Watch Missouri—
They Fought Reed—
Now They Help Him—
An Old Man Is Dying—

MISSOURI WILL CONTINUE to occupy a large place on the political map until after the November election. Having won a senatorial renomination, James A. Reed must continue in the battle until he has won a re-election over his republican contender. Missouri rolled up a large majority for the republicans two years ago.

An army of democrats bolted the nomination of Cox and Roosevelt and placed the old state in the republican column. Now Reed is looked to, to win in November and place the state in the democratic column. His majority over Breckenridge Long is six to eight thousand. Long is a millionaire, he had wrapped himself in the mantle of Woodrow Wilson, he appealed to the women and the prohibitionists and yet it was charged during the campaign that in the cellar of his St. Louis residence is one of the finest stocks of liquor in the country. He went down in defeat because the men of Missouri preferred an eagle to a tom-tit, even if the eagle had been a bit of a political philanderer during his term of service.

THERE ARE A HALF DOZEN democratic senators going to Missouri to assist Reed in his campaigning. These senators voted for the ratification of the league of nations.

They voted for all the Wilson policies. They are Wilson's loyal friends today, but they are going to stump the state of Missouri for Reed and they are going to tell all the democrats of Missouri that they need Reed in the senate of the United States. Included in the list are Senator Joseph Robinson of Arkansas; Senator Augustus O. Sanley of Kentucky; Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, and Senator Carroway of Arkansas.

These important and powerful democratic orators will tell the voters of Missouri that James A. Reed is a hundred per cent democrat and they will urge all members of his party to support him.

THERE ARE THOUSANDS OF independent voters in Missouri, thousands of former democrats who broke away from the party two years ago who will vote for Reed, but to restore Missouri to its old place in the democratic column, the Wilson democrats must accept Reed as the party nominee and vote the ticket straight. They forced the issue. They backed Breckenridge Long. They went down to defeat. Now why shouldn't the majority rule? Reed's personal integrity has never been assailed; his private life is spotless. He never bolted a ticket in his life. He made one of the greatest fights of history and now he must make another for the democracy of the fathers and the principles they so highly prized.

LORD NORTHCLIFFE IS DYing. He owns more newspapers than any man in the world. He has accumulated a huge fortune. He has broken many a military chieftian and many a political despot. His name is international and his fame goes with his name.

He began life as Alfred Harmesworth. He was a printer and a proof reader before he was 25. He was one of the foremost publishers and journalists of the English speaking world before he was 40. Money and titles rolled into his lap. He has traveled in every land under the sun. Now he is dying.

He burned the candle of life at both ends. His brain went on strike. His reason tottered and the newspaper autocrat of the world succumbed to what noted alienists said was physical exhaustion.

LORD NORTHCLIFFE WAS AS ambitious as Caeser, as influential as a crowned king and as restless as a caged tiger. He is yet in his prime, but death is at his door. He lived a thousand years in less than 60 as men measure time and he accomplished more than any dozen men had ever accomplished in the publishing business of the British empire. Men go when their work has been finished. Age has nothing to do with it.

Northcliffe hoped to die in harness. He had just closed a newspaper trip around the world when his nerves gave way and the autocrat of British newspaperdom surrendered to the inevitable.

SENATOR KENNETH D. McKELlar has received the democratic nomination for United States senator in the Tennessee primaries by a majority estimated on incomplete returns as 30,000. Senator McKellar had two democratic opponents for the nomination.

Captain George T. Fitzhugh, one of the leading lawyers of the old volunteer state and a most popular orator, ran second. Hon. Noah Cooper, a Nashville lawyer, made his race as a blue Sunday law advocate. He declared early in the campaign that the contest was between God and mammon, that he was representing God and McKellar and Fitzhugh were representing mammon and the devil.

HE ANNOUNCED TO HIS FOLlowers that he was going to win from the start because the Lord was with him and would direct his campaign. He declared the issuance of Sunday newspapers a sacrilege and urged his friends to stop reading them until the lawmakers of Ten-

JUNK PENS AND PUT PRISONERS ON ROAD WORK

Such Is Platform of Candidate for Lieut. Gov.

(By H. N. F.)

DALLAS, August 6.—Governors sometimes die. Do you get it?

A long line of distinguished men have been called to the high office of governor of Texas. Why shouldn't Texans continue to call men of ability and men of integrity to the second highest office within their gift? There is a senatorial run-off to be decided August 25. There is a successor to Charles A. Culberson to be named; but back to the original proposition: Governors sometime die.

There are two runners off. State Senator T. V. Davidson of Harrison county is one and Colonel Billy Mayfield of Harris county publisher of Mayfield's weekly, is the other.

Senator Davidson is a native son, one of the foremost lawyers of the commonwealth and widely known the state over. As a man of distinctive ability and as a progressive citizen, a churchman and exponent of the democracy of Jefferson and defender of the principles which underlie the institutions founded by the fathers of the republic. Colonel Mayfield speaks for himself in his weekly newspaper. He has his own organ.

Davidson Ripe Scholar

Senator Davidson is a ripe scholar, a deep thinker and a man of large affairs. He has a legislative program which is a building program and those who have studied it say that it would not only take the penitentiary system out of politics but also out of debt. Lieutenant Governor Lynch Davidson, who will be a candidate for governor two years hence, if he lives and does not change his mind, believes that the penitentiary plants should be junked, the prison farms sold to the highest bidder and the labor of the convicts utilized in road building for all Texas and for all Texans.

State Senator Davidson is said to be in favor of this program fathered by a democrat of the same name but not of the same family.

Former Lieutenant Governor W. A. Johnson of Hall county, ran a high third in the race for the nomination for the office of lieutenant governor. He was of the west, he was one of the pioneer prohibitionists of Texas, one of the pioneer advocates of woman's suffrage, but this did not appear to help him any on July election day.

His name did not appear on the slate of the invisible empire and the man from the west was dumped.

Johnson had served as state senator eight years. He had been lieutenant governor of Texas. He had voted for the most ultra measures introduced by the anti-saloon league,

CARMEN AGREE TO ACCEPT CUT

Chicago Trains to Start Again

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—Surface and elevated employes tonight voted 9,002 to 5,086 to accept a ten cent an hour slash in wages and return to work thus ending a strike which has paralyzed the city's electric transportation system for the past six days.

Just twenty minutes after the result of the vote was announced to a mass meeting of the strikers and was received with cheers, the first elevated train was pounding toward the loop with its crew waving their hands and shouting the news to the hundreds gathered along the right-of-way.

Meanwhile, however, city officials were planning to continue the operation of a fleet of municipally owned motor busses charging five cent fares against the seven and ten charged by the surface and elevated. There were sixteen of these busses in service when the strike ended.

Thieves Get Dress

Thieves were busy here Saturday night, according to reports made to police headquarters Sunday morning.

The home of Clara Best, 2305 Seventh street, was burglarized by unknown persons, who obtained a blue organdy dress, a ping gingham dress, a georgette waist and several other articles of wearing apparel.

Although the officers had begun an investigation yesterday into the robbery, no clue as to the identity of the guilty persons had been obtained late last night.

Sleeper Burns

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 6.—The lives of 30 passengers were imperiled, one man was seriously injured and several other persons received cuts, burns and bruises when the rear sleeper on the westbound Columbian flyer on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad was destroyed by fire early today near Rye, 130 miles east of Seattle.

Suitcase Full of Dynamite Found On Katy Bridge

By Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., August 6.—Four city firemen, out coon hunting last Monday night, found a suitcase packed with dynamite under the Kansas City Southern railroad bridge near Sheffield, an industrial suburb of Kansas City, it was learned tonight.

Attached to the cuitcase was a copper wire which led to a storage battery in the underbrush 100 yards away. A slight contact would have set off the explosion, according to the firemen.

The dynamite was removed without accident.

Union Heads Plan Further Meetings

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Leaders of the striking railroad shopmen, B. M. Jewell, president of the railway employes department of the American Federation of Labor; W. H. Johnston, president of the machinists association, and J. P. Noonan, chief of the electrical workers brotherhood, waited over Sunday in Washington expecting to resume with President Harding tomorrow the negotiations for strike settlement which were reopened Saturday. There was in the meantime a gathering of general chairmen of the strike organizations on several of the eastern railroad systems, chiefly machinists representatives, who reported on existing conditions and discussed strike policy with the national leaders.

The union leaders expect other railroad unions not on strike to follow up tomorrow the program of making representatives to the president concerning the bad condition into which they claim the strike has put railroad rolling stock. This was begun Saturday by agents of three of the train service brotherhoods organizations, the engineers, trainmen and firemen and enginemen.

The separate conference between the shop craft spokesmen on the Southern Railway and the management begins tomorrow after a two day postponement. The Southern acting apart from all the other large railroads has offered to settle with its men exactly on the basis of President Harding's proposals. The union policy has been hitherto emphatically against single line settlements.

Aerial Racers Cross Geneva

By Associated Press.

GENEVA, Aug. 6.—The balloonists competing in the Gordon Bennett race rose from the ground this afternoon in the presence of 50,000 spectators and with favorable weather conditions. The first balloon rose from the ground at 4:25 p. m., the others following at five minute intervals until all were floating over Lake Geneva affording a unique spectacle. The American balloonists were given an ovation as they rose in the air by a large contingent of American visitors in the grandstand.

The Spanish balloon Jesus Ferrando Duro, piloted by E. Magdalena, landed at 7:15 o'clock this evening in Grand Sacconnex, near here.

Allied Meet Opens

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—Allied statesmen are gathering in London tonight for the opening tomorrow of what seems universally regarded as the most momentous conference since peace was concluded.

The immediate concern of the conference is the question of reparations and Germany's request for a moratorium, but since the delivery last week of the note of the Earl of Balfour, it is presumed that the question of inter-allied indebtedness cannot be excluded from the discussions, especially as Premier Poincare is credited with bringing to London a plan for the extinction of the German reparations bonds in exchage for a cancellatio of the Frech debt to Great Britain.

Cox Urges League

By Associated Press.

GENEVA, Aug. 6.—"The welfare of the league of nations and the welfare of our own country would be advanced if we entered into full membership in the league of nations; but it is apparent from an intimate view of the situation here that membership of the United States is not essential to the life of the league of nations," said James M. Cox, former governor of Ohio, this evening in a speech delivered to the members of the secretariat of the league of nations and prominent men of Switzerland.

Reed Is Silent

By Associated Press.

WASHINBTON, Aug. 3.—Back from his primary fight in Missouri where he was renominated Tuesday by democrats Senator James A. Reed declined tonight to discuss any phase of the contest beyond what he said before leaving his home state.

Beyond indicating that he might jump into the thick of the tariff fight in the senate, Mr. Reed said he had no immediate plans in view.

FERGUSON WON'T BE RULED OUT SAYS DEM HEAD

Committee to Vote For Leaving Name On Ticket

By Associated Press.

DALLAS, Aug. 6.—Chairman Frank C. Davis of the state democratic executive committee, which meets here tomorrow at 10 o'clock to canvass returns of the July 22 primary and to consider a petition which has been presented by Judge John W. Gaines of San Antonio, asking that the name of James E. Ferguson, candidate for the United States senate be left off the ballot in the run-off primary election, August 26, tonight declared:

"I am sure that the committee, will, on Monday, vote practically unanimously to keep Mr. Ferguson's name on the ballot for the August run-off in the senatorial race."

"The committee has previously acted on this matter, having put Mr. Ferguson's name on the ballot for the first primary, and I see no reason to change that action and do not believe that there will be a change by the committee.

"I say this after having talked to several of the members who arrived here Sunday for the Monday meeting."

It was stated authoritatively tonight that Governor Neff is in favor of permitting Mr. Ferguson's name to remain on the ballot.

"If James E. Ferguson's name is left off the ballot in the second primary, it will be over my protest and against the wishes and demands of my attorneys, who will be at the meeting of the comittee Monday." Earle B. Mayfield, candidate for United States senator, ex-governor Ferguson's opponent in the run-off, declared tonight.

"It does appear that some prominent men in the state think Mr. Ferguson should not be permitted to finish the race—but as for me, I want him until the finish—and I will finish him."

"I believe that the organized effort to have my name struck from the August 26 ballots is going to fall flat," Mr. Ferguson said tonight.

However, should Ferguson be declared ineligible, Senator Culberson, incumbent will be Mayfield's opponent, committee officials declare.

The reason, behind the instigation to have Ferguson's name left off the ballot, is given as being two-fold: His impeachment in 1917, when governor, under charge of placing state funds in other than designated banks, and his reappearance in the gubernatorial campaign two years ago in an "American party" which is alleged to have automatically removed him from democratic circles.

BUSINESS MAY ESCAPE TIE-UP

Movement of Freight Is Still Good

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, August 6.—Despite the strikes and unsettled foreign developments the undertone in the country's chief markets has remained cheerful this week. Security prices have held up well and the view still prevails that the strikes will be settled before the business revival has been seriously crippled.

With the railroads refusing the president's strike settlement, proposal, financial quarters are giving their attention to coal production figures and railroad tariff statistics.

Taking the latest available figures, those for the week ended July 22, the movement of freight, exclusive of coal, remains remarkably good. Total loadings of 861,000 cars, showed a slight improvement over the previous week and were within 16,000 cars of the high record for the year. Exclusive of coal, the loadings were the highest in history for this season of the year.

Although the complete figures of the week are not yet available, it is doubtful whether coal production this week has risen very materially above the 4,000,000 ton level. Much depends, therefore, on the success of the measure now being taken to reduce congestion on the coal carrying roads.

So far the steel industry seems to be the chief sufferer on account of the strike. Not long ago both the steel corporations and the independents were operating at approximately 75 per cent of capacity. During the past week the rate of the former fell to 70 per cent and that for the latter to 60 per cent.

Crop prospects shows little change.

McLane, car foreman of the Illinois Central shops here, was kidnaped early this morning, blindfolded and taken by automobile to the woods near Cardiff, Alabama, where he was terribly beaten with hickory sticks. 19 Year-Old Waitress Heroine of Rail Crash As She Escapes Death

Passenger Sees Flier Coming and Jumps Out Of Window Just Before Car in Which She Was Riding Is Totally Demolished by Crash

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 6.—The Union station here was a scene of horror this morning as trains No. 32 and No. 4 pulled in with the survivors and victims of the Sulphur Springs disaster such as St. Louis probably has not witnessed since the disastrous cyclone of 1896.

A crowd of nearly 1,000 mingled sight-seers, relatives and friends of victims, stormed the gates at the train sheds and pleaded with he police to permit them entrance. Faces reflecting the terror of an anticipated death or injury—faces gray with anxiety peered through the grating in desperate effort to catch glimpses of shrouded bodies as they were forced to waiting automobiles.

For hours previous to the arrival of the death trains, crowds surged through the station, frantically seeking the word that might allay the fears that were consuming them.

Trains No. 32 arrived at 3:20, followed by No. 4 an hour later. No. 32 carried nine dead and more than 30 survivors. Waiting anbulances were backed to the coaches and police carried and helped the injured into the ambulances in which they were rushed to hospitals. In a baggage car a woman lay on an army cot saying the Rosary beads.

Miss Lennie Walker, a waitress, 19 years old, of St. Louis, was a heroine of the telescoped local, according to fellow passengers. She was a passenger of the third car from the rear of the local train, a steel constructed coach, which was thrown from the track when the crash occurred. Of the 30 odd passengers in this car, Miss Walker, A. O. Briscoe, of Columbia, Mo., and F. L. Lyamnits of Silver Lake, Mo., were the only persons not seriously injured or temporarily disabled. They cleared the coach of all injured before other help arrived. Speaking of the disaster, Miss Walker said:

"I heard the passengers in the coaches ahead cry out in danger as they glimpsed the on-rushing train

ENGINEER DIED IN CAB, BELIEF

Conductor Says He Was Dependable

By Associated Press.

POPULAR BLUFF, Mo., August 6.—Matt Glenn, engineer of Missouri Pacific train No. 4, which struck the ill-fated No. 32 at Sulphur Springs, Mo., last night, was said by railroad officials here tonight to have been one of the most careful engineers on the road.

Engineer Glenn had been dependable, it was said, and railroad officials are unable to determine why he run past two block signals into No. 32. Glenn, railroad men here say, told members of the crew of No. 32 yesterday as the train was preparing to leave: "You had better watch out today, I'll run over you." In a joking manner, when he learned that the local passenger was only two hours ahead of the fast train he was to pilot.

"You can't make me believe that Engineer Matt Glenn failed to see the signal light set against him," was the remark of George McCannon, veteran Missouri Pacific conductor, in discussing the wreck.

"He was not only careful, but the most careful and the best engineer I have ever worked with," was McCannon's remark.

"I found him always the most careful and never have I heard of him even making a negligible error.

"I am firmly of the opinion that Matt must have died on the engine or was stricken with paralysis."

BLAME PLACED AFTER MISSOURI RAIL COLLISION

Death List Is Cut to 3 With 137 in Hospitals

By Associated Press.

ELWOOD CITY, Pa., August 6.—Several persons were injured this afternoon when Baltimore and Ohio passenger train No. 9, bound from New York to Chicago, crashed into the rear end of an extra freight in the Frisco tunnel near here. Mrs. E. J. Erbe and Mrs. A. C. Messenger of Los Angeles and Mrs. Lucy LaMonda of Brooklyn, were brought to a local hospital.

Trainmen said shortly after the wreck that they thought a defective block signal was responsible. The passenger was running at reduced speed when it struck the caboose.

The wreck did not catch fire, but a number of passengers suffered from clouds of smoke that poured through the train. The three women who were taken to the Elwood City hospital were unconscious when rescued. All will recover, physicians said.

PASSENGER CRASHES INTO SWITCH ENGINE

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., August 6.—Engineer J. V. Turner of Jackson, Tenn., in charge of the northbound Seminole Limited, fast passenger train of the Illinois Ceneral line, running between Jacksonville, Fla., and Chicago, sustained severe bruises on his body when his train crashed into the rear end of a switch engine which had been backed in on the main line of the road this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at Dora, 25 miles north of Birmingham.

Both engines were derailed from the collision, although no one else was injured. Engineer Turner was brought back to Birmingham on his train, but his condition was not thought serious enough to warrant his being taken to a hospital.

The crash of the two engines was terrific but other than being jolted, many of the passengers were unaware of the wreck.

Officials of the railroad are investigating the wreck.

DEAD ENGINEER BLAMED FOR WRECK

By Associated Press.

SULPHUR SPRINGS, Mo., Aug. 6.—Failure of an engineer to heed a block signal caused the rear-end collision on the Missouri Pacific here last night in which 38 persons were killed and about 137 injured, 25 seriously, according to John Cannon assistant general manager of the road.

Train No. 4, a passenger vestibules steel train, running at full speed crashed into No. 32, a local, composed of five wooden coaches, a baggage and an express car, as the engine was taking on water with the coaches stretching back on a trestle over Glaise creek.

The impact hurled two of the local coaches down a 50-foot embankment, edging the Mississippi and telescoped four other coaches, crushing a number of passengers to death in their seats.

Both trains were behind time and the fast passenger running from Fort Worth, Texas, to St. Louis, carried 180 passengers and the local 100 persons.

According to Mr. Cannon, Matt Enger Glenn of St. Louis, engineer of the fast passenger, failed to heed a block signal warning him that the track was not clear ahead.

Glenn, 57 years old, an engineer for 37 years without a black mark against his record, was killed when he jumped from his cab just before the crash.

Edward Tinsley also of St. Louis fireman of No. 4, remained at his post and was seriously injured.

Engineer Glenn shortly before arriving in Sulphur Springs, received order "on the run" to pull over on a siding at Cliff Cave, ten miles north of here ,to allow "Sunshine Special No. 1" enroute from St. Louis to Texas points, to pass and Mr. Cannon explained that the engineer failed to heed to block signal because he apparently was reading these orders when he passed the block. The orders were found near his body.

Bible Stolen

Ghouls appeared on the scene shortly after the crash and robbed the dead and dying of whatever they could. Only one was arrested, however, and he said he was William Hall of St. Louis. Several pieces of wearing apparel taken from the unfortunate were found on his person and a bible was in his waist. The bible, it was said, had been the property of the Rev. V. O. Pensley of DeSoto, one of those killed.

The dead and injured were spread over an area of several city blocks and chicken crates, automobile cush and chicken crtaes, automobile cush constituted their couches. This little village of 150 inhabitants was unable to undertake the task of caring for the injured and they along with the dead were taken to St. Louis and DeSota. Dr. W. W. Hull of this village was the only physician administering to the injured for several hours until relief trains arrived.

"Had I some assistance I might have saved some of the dying," Dr. Hull told a representative of the Associated Press. "At one time I was trying to treat 25 persons simultaneously."

The pitiful cries of the injured could be heard for blocks. Mothers begged for news of their babies and children cried for their parents. One 14-month-old child who was unable to tell her name was found a mile

BEAD CRAZE IN LONDON SOCIETY

Milady Fond of Fancy Bags

(By International News Service)

LONDON, August 6.—The bead-work craze for evening dresses in London is stronger than ever. Sequins and palletes are dead.

Small beads of steel, bronze, glass, china and even felt adorn dresses for both day and evening year in London today. They are, however, no longer massed together to produce heavy, chain-mail effect, but are applied singly by hand, in delicate cobwebby designs. For evening wear the metal varieties, as well as plain and colored crystal, are preferred, while small white china beads are used extensively on gay-colored frocks of cotton georgette or voile.

Woolen beads trim gowns of pasha (a kind of serge) or crepe marocain and a novel touch is added to creations in these heavier materials by adorning them with designs carried out in the new felt beads.

These consist of quaint geometrical shapes, triangles, diamonds, oblongs, of the most vivid-hued felt, jade, yellow, cerise, Chinese blue.

Another novelty from Paris, which has made its appearance on some of the lovely cream satin gowns designed for courts, is the tiny ring of mother of pearl. Thousands of these little rings are stitched by hand to the gown, following a scalloped design and giving a fish scale effect.

Johnson, the man from the west, would junk the penitentiary plants. He would sell the prison farms.

He would make road-builders of the convicts and if necessary he would create state-owned cement plants to turn out road building material. There are mountains of the raw material in Texas. It is not necessary to go out of the state for the material needed in the construction of modern highways. Johnson was and is a Wilson democrat. He has been the thick and the thin Wilson man for ten years. But back to the original proposition:

Governors sometimes die.

Davidson Wilson Stand-by

Senator Davidson is a Wilson democrat. Senator Davidson was in the big convention at Baltimore when the star of Wilson shot across the heavens and he became the standard-bearer of democracy. For eight long years Senator Davidson upheld the policies of the Wilson administration and was on the firing line when a republican landslide hit the country in November of the year 1920.

Governors sometime die.

There is to be a democratic candidate for lieutenant governor nominated Saturday, August 26, and the democrats of Texas are reminded that they are just as vitally interested in the man to be named for that high office as they are in the choice of the Texas democracy for the office of United States senator.

Two Other Big Offers

There are two other important state offices to be filled. All the people are interested in the cause of education. All the people are interested to the extent that the children of all the people should be given a first class public school education. All the people should be interested in the intellectual caliber and qualifications of the man who is to be named for state superintendent of public instruction.

S. M. N. Marrs and Ed R. Bentley are in the run off. Mr. Marrs is widely known in educational circles the state over. As teacher or superintendent, he has filled many important positions. Mr. Bentley is a teacher and teaching is and has been his profession. He has been campaigning for a long time and his views are well known.

Smith Backs Morris

Jefferson G. Smith ran third in the race in the July primary and received a very large vote. He has thrown his support to Mr. Marrs, for the reason, he says, that he believes in the freedom of the ballot without dictation, that the cause of public eduaction in Texas is more important than the political fortunes of any man and that while for many years he has been a member of one of the leading protestant denominations of the state he has never appealed to his church for its support and believes that am n making the race should do so solely as a school man on his school record. There must be a nomination August 26. Marrs and Bentley are before the democrats of Texas and one or the other must be named. As the people are the master and as the democrats control Texas elections, they are reminded that the cause of education should come first and that it is of vastly more importance to the children of Texas that a high grade man shall be superintendent than it is that the voters should devote all their time to the puerile personalities which appear to be uppermost today.

Governors sometime die.

The Treasury Watch Dog

There is another state office to be filled at the November elections and the successful candidate will be nominated August 26. Aren't all the people interested in the man who is to be the custodian of their money for four years?

Aren't all the people interested in the man who is to be the watchdog of the state treasury for four years? C. V. Terrell of Wise county and George C. Garrett of Tarrant county are the runners off. C. V. Terrell is the incumbent.

When John W. Baker resigned Governor Pat Neff appointed Mr. Terrell to serve out the unexpired term. He accepted the appointment, and months later announced that he would be a candidate for a full term subject to the action of the July primary. Mr. Terrell had served most acceptably as a state senator in other years and had mastered the details of governmental affairs as well as acquinted himself with the needs of the state. He is the only man from the west in the run-off. Mr. Garrett was a stranger to the democracy of the state, without official training of any kind until he appeared before the political footlights in the campaign which closed July 22.

Mayfield, Bentley and Garrett were on the official klan tickets in the July primary.

Davidson, Marrs and Terrell all Wilson democrats, ran as democrats from start to finish in the campaign and are running true to original form for the finals. It is important according to all representative men, of all creeds and callings that high-class men for the offices of lieutenant governor, state treasurer and state superintendent of public instruction should be named August 26. Texas is an imperial commonwealth and Texans should take no step backward. Education should come first.

Give all the children of all the people an opportunity to win developed brains and trained hands.

Give them a fair start in the race for existence and equip them for the battle of life.

Governors sometimes die.

Congressman J. J. Mansfield will be unopposed in the ninth district. Hon. W. M. Fly of Gonsales, who ran second in the primary race, has notified Mansfield of his withdrawal from the contest.

Congressman John C. Box has been notified by John W. Burns who was second in the primary race of his withdrawal from the contest. This, it is said, will give Box a clear field.

Congressman Thomas L. Blanton, and former Congressman Oscar Galloway are the runners-off in the seventeenth district. Blanton lacked but 384 votes getting a majority over his three opponents in the July primary. They vote in the Blanton district. Upwards of 60,000 men and women voters plumped their ballots in the boxes in the district for the congressional candidate of their choice Blanton received more than 25,000 votes in the seventeenth district.

Men say that if he defeats Calloway August 26 he will go into training for the senatorship and whenever Morris Sheppard shows his face as a candidate for re-election, Blanton will be there.

There are other leading democrats who are positive that Congressman Tom Connally is ambitious to go a step higher and that he will be a contender for the toga now worn by Sheppard when the latter appeals to the democrats of Texas for another term.

Governors sometimes die.

Education is the thing. Make the best man the guardian of the state treasury.

Make Texas first. Final round-up Saturday, August 26. There are run-offs in many legislative districts. Texas needs lawmakers who are constructive and who will get in behind the big building and development program to be submitted by the governor early in the winter months in 1923.

This program will include educational advancement, state road building, law enforcement, penitentiary reform, conservation of flood waters, drainage of swamp lands, prevention of overflow of valley lands, development of the latent resources of the state and a forward movement all along the line. If Texas ever needed constructive lawmakers, Texas needs them today.

bearing down on us and saw men leaping from the windows.

None of us had time to leap from the coach and the next instant we were hurled from the track.

"The coach landed on the side I was sitting on and I was not thrown as were those sitting on the opposite side. When I found I had only been shaken and bruised I was not frightened and jumped out through a window of the upper side to see if the wreck was catching fire. I then climbed back and helped Mr. Briscoe and Mr. Lamnitz remove the injured."

Miss Walker refused medical aid as did Briscoe and Lyamnitz and went to her home immediately after arriving in St. Louis. She was returning on the local from a visit with her parents at Fredericktown.

Charles J. Hamilton and Robert Thomas, both salesmen of Desare, Mo., said they were in the smoker of the local train with some 60 other men when they were warned by cries of fellow passengers who had sighted the on-coming flyer.

Both leaped for the door and Hamilton said he reached the platform and was thrown clear of the smoker as it hurled down the embankment.

Thomas asserted he was imprisoned in the car with the majority of the other passengers until rescue workers smashed their way through a door with sledge hammers 30 minutes later.

The mail car of train No. 4 which arrived at the station at 4:15 a. m., was a charnal house on wheels. Fifteen dead, 13 of whom were women and children, were piled in hurried heaps on mail sacks and torn clothing. Seven survivors lay with the dead, one a woman occupied a cot along side a heap of eight female victims. All the victims apparently had met death instantly. Their appearance being that of bodies from which the life had been literally smashed out by the terrific swoop of the impact. The injured four men and two women were terribly mangled and semi-conscious.

Willing hands helped carry the injured to ambulances as spectators seeking loved ones scanned their faces. The dead in the mail car were hauled to the city morgue in a furniture van.

The terrific crash and splintering of the rear coaches by the locomotive of No. 4 was the first warning of the disaster to many passengers in coaches near the center and forward sections of No. 32.

W. D. Morton, train auditor of No. 32, said he was in one of the steel coaches near the center of the train. He was thrown from his feet when the collision occurred and a moment later the car left the track and turned over on the edge of the embankment. Six persons in the car were killed in the crash, Morton said, and few of the passengers escaped without injuries. Morton and several men aided occupants of the car to get out of the overturned car.

A backward glance out of car windows proved fortunate for W. E. Foster of Herrin, Illinois, who jumped from one of the coaches of No. 32 a moment before the rear end collission. Foster said he looked back and saw No. 4 rounding the curve back of No. 32 at a high rate of speed. He shouted a warning and ran to a vestibule, accompanied by a man who had been with him. Foster said he was sliding down the embankment away from the track as No. 4 crashed into the train ahead. The coach from which Foster made his escape was demolished.

Foster declared the engineer of No. 32 was attempting to get his train in motion at the moment of the collsion and that No. 32 had just started moving. Foster said men dived out of windows in the forward coaches the moment No. 32 was struck. Other passengers who escaped without injury in the wreck were unable to give a coherent account of the disaster when they reached S. Louis. A grinding shock, screams and a wild scramble for safety was all they could recall.

nessee and the nation prohibited Sunday publications. He desired to have the people of the United States as well as Tennessee stand behind him in his efforts to stop Sunday train service and to spend one day a week in fasting and prayer as he spent the day before election.

Captain Fitzhugh had the editorial support of the Memphis Commercial Appeal and the Nashville Tennessean, the two leading newspapers of the state. Cooper had the support of the Lord, so he said, thus McKellar was compelled to place his cause in the hands of the plain people and the sinners of Tennessee. They gave him a majority of 40,000 over all. And all the ballots haven't been counted. Hon. Noah Cooper ran a pitiful last or third. Now he will be privileged to return to his law office and resume legal practice with preaching as a side issue. Satan s t him and perhaps mammon will be charitable and erect a monument to perpetuate his virtues.

TRAIN DISPATCHER HARD ON RODENTS

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., August 6.—William E. Starcher, local traction train dispatcher, former member of the house of delegates and candidate for the house again, says the only way to clear the barn or the house of rats is to use your flivver. Back it up to the barn, attach a tube to the exhaust, and turn on the engine and let her flicker. The rats, half dead from the poisonous fumes, rush out into the open and can be easily captured in a bucket, where they die.

from the scene of the disaster asking for "mamma." A woman from St. Louis took her in charge.

One of the saddest scenes was that of the DeGarnia family of St. Louis. Four of the family of six were killed and the father is reported dying in a St. Louis hospital. Three of the DeGarnia children, Ralph, 6, Melvin, 5, and Robert 14 months, lay dead to the right of their father and Mrs. DeGarnia lay dead to his left. Mildred, 7 years old, lay unconscious. Mr. DeGarnia, in his semi-delirium, reached over and grasping his infant son to his breast repeated between groans of pain "thank god, Bobby, we're all alive," not knowing the hearts of his wife and three children were still.

Thirty-four dead have been accounted for, but the death toll is expected to exceed this number by at least a dozen as in the confusion several bodies were placed aboard relief trains before being checked. Many of the bodies could not be identified because their effects had been scattered over such a wide area.

The railroad tracks parallel the Mississippi river and the trestle on which the disaster occurred spans Glaise Creek where it enters the river. As a result a report was current that a number of bodies were hurled into the Mississippi. There was no way of verifying that report, however.

Rescue work was interferred with by lack of proper light. This little village is without electricity and the rescue workers and morbidly curious made their way along the mass of twisted steel and crumbled wooden coaches by the aid of kerosene torches and light sticks.

Thousands of persons visited here late last night and today to view the wreck and roads were blocked for a radious of three miles. Dr. Hull, who was among the first at the wreck told the Associated Press that bodies of dead were found 200 feet from the scene of the accident. One body was buried waist deep in a bog. Dr. George W. Elders, coroner of Jefferson county, said a thorough investigation of the accident would be made.

ELECTRA GETS NEW CREAMERY

Commerce Chamber Backs Plan

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, August 5.—An agreement has been reached between the agricultural committee of the local chamber of commerce and agriculture and J. A. Brannen of the S. S. Walker lumber company whereby the latter has agreed to erect a bank building to be used by the community creamery.

The erection of this building will be started as soon as the remainder of the stock of the enterprise has been placed, Mr. Brannen says. Three-fourths of the stock of $3,500 has been subscribed and the remaining shares will be sold at an early date, according to advice from those who have th business in charge.

The community creamery will be worked on the co-operative basis, being sponsored by both farmers and business men.

FEVER SITUATION MUCH BETTER

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, August 5.—With only 12 cases of typhoid reported, and most of them out of danger, the fever situation has been greatly exaggerated in reports going out from Electra, in the opinion of W. A. Gault, city health officer. Of these 12 cases, he says, six were brought to the city from other places. Dr. Gault does not attribute the presence of fever to the impurity of the city water for tests made frequently during the summer has proven conclusively that the water is free from germs.

DRILLER HURT IN OIL WELL ACCIDENT

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, August 5.—R. L. Rudder of Sunshine Hill, a driller employed by the Sooner Oil company near Fowlkee is suffering from a crushed cheek bone and minor bruises as a result of having been struck by a swinging cable several days ago. Attending physicians do not believe the injury will prove serious.

FRIEND LEAVES FARMERS' ELEVATOR

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, August 5. — E. M. Friend, manager of the Farmers' elevator since January 1, 1920, has resigned his position with that company and has been succeeded by John H. Clemens of Copperas Cove. Mr. Friend has severed his connection with the business entirely and intends to take a rest from business for a while. He sold his stock to his successor.

ELECTRA, August 5.—While assisting in separating some stock for his neighbor, E. M. Friend, J. A. Lee, of the McAdams lumber company, was attacked by a Jersey bull and knocked from his feet Thursday night. Mr. Lee, knowing the disposition of the animal, had armed himself with a gas pipe with which he struck the bull but was unable to check the onrush. The man gained his feet before being injured and by threatening with the pipe succeeded in making good his escape.

This is the same animal that attacked Mr. Friend the morning before, breaking his collar bone and ankle and bruising him painfully. The bull broke his ankle at the first rush and the man thus incapacitated was forced to remain on his back and tight with his pocket knife until his son could run to the house and return with a pitchfork.

ELECTRA, August 5.—A daily paper, containing stenographic report of the services and a digest of the work of the various departments of the church work is to be a feature of the revival meeting to begin at the local Methodist church Sunday evening. Rev. R. B. Curry, pastor, has advised.

Rev. Curry, who is to do the preaching, will be assisted by Rev. E. C. Huckabee, assistant pastor of the First Methodist church of Wichita Falls, who will have charge of the personal work, J. Marvin Edwards of Dallas, director of choir and orchestra, and Miss Don Higginbothan of Fort Worth. Miss Higginbothan will have supervision of the junior choir and ladies' work.

An open air tabernacle with a seating capacity of 2,000 has been erected for the meeting.

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, August 5.—A substantial sum was netted by the local B. Y. P. U. in a play, entitled "All a Mistake," staged at the Grand theater Thursday night, however the attendance was disappointing, due to the threatening weather which kept many from attending. The money will go to the building fund of the Baptist church. The comedy, under the direction of Miss Lois Wear, was admirably presented and enthusiastically received.

The following took part in the play: Messrs. Harvey Stanford, Clyde Crass, Sam Blackburn, Forrest Gossage; Misses Ruby Brown, Mildred Francis, Bonnie Wilson and Lola Crass.

GLARING LIGHTS CAUSE AUTO ACCIDENT

Special to the Record News.

ELECTRA, August 5.—Glaring lights and a greasy pavement were the cause of an auto accident Tuesday night when a car belonging to B. M. Dickey and driven by his son, Roscoe, turned turtle on the Vernon road east of town. A handle of a car door was stuck in Roscoe's leg and he was bruised up. Others injured are: Mrs. B. M. Dickey, neck strained; Mrs. Roy Dickey, skinned and bruised about the face; Mary Francis Wright, collar bone broken. Mrs. Lucile Wright and Roy Dickey, Jr., who were also occupants of the car, escaped uninjured.

According to Roscoe, the glaring lights of a car he was passing blinded him and he lost control of the car on the greasy pavement.

However, there were no international complications following the tourney.

Second Typhoid Death in Family

When Helen Hickman, age 9 years, died Sunday at the general hospital of typhoid fever it was the second death in the family from the same cause within a week, Mabel Heckman, sister, having died a week ago. Mrs. Heckman is now ill in the hospital with typhoid and her condition said to be critical. The family was stricken at Electra and brought to the hospital here for treatment.

The body of Helen Heckman was shipped Sunday by the Hines undertaking parlors to Clarendon, Texas, where the burial will take place.

ALBANY COP HAS SERVED 52 YEARS

(By International News Service.)

ALBANY, Aug. 6.—Albany claims to have one of the oldest active policemen in the state in the person of Lieutenant Thomas Roche, who has been wearing the blue for forty-two years. Chief Frank Lasch has just recommended that Lieutenant Roche be advanced to captain, and it is expected that shortly the veteran officer will be wearing the insignia of that rank.

Lieutenant Roche is a veteran of the civil war, and he has many noted arrests to his credit. Violators of the law who have come in contact—and this means physically—with the lieutenant testify to the fact that he is "pretty active for a man of his years."

Lieutenant Roche says that some of the young thugs with whom he comes in contact are far more daring than the crooks of the olden days.

"Thirty years ago," said Lieutenant Roche, "a crook would give a policeman a chance, but these days they think nothing of shooting an officer of the law when his back is turned."

Little Stories For Bedtime

CHATTERER WISHES HE HAD STAYED AT HOME

How often when it is too late
We wish we hadn't tempted fate.

That means we wish that we had not done the things we did do. It was that way with Chatterer the Red Squirrel. He wished with all his might that he never had heard of those six eggs of Bully the English Sparrow. Anyway, he wished that he hadn't thought of trying to get them, but that he had stayed at home and attended to his own affairs. Here he was smarting from the wounds that he had received from the stout little bills of Bully and Mrs. Bully and without even one of those eggs in his stomach. And it had all come about through the fact that he had not realized what a fighter Bully is.

Chatterer had gone over to the tree in which Bully had made his nest, chuckling as he went. He had spent part of the day before watching Bully and Mrs. Bully and he made up his mind that he had nothing to fear from such little birds. Of course it would be best to wait until one was at home before he tried to get those eggs, but even if the other should come back, it would make no great difference. He had never yet seen a bird as small as they who would do more than scream and make a great fuss when he stole her eggs. Usually this brought all the other birds who were near and some of them made it very uncomfortable for him, but from what Jenny Wren had said he didn't think that this would happen this time. In fact he rather suspected that the other birds would be glad to have Bully and his wife robbed of their eggs.

Chatterer was still chuckling as he started to climb the old apple tree in which the nest was. He had seen Bully start for his breakfast over in Farmer Brown's barnyard and he hadn't the least fear of Mrs. Bully. With the first rattle of the eggs on the bark of the tree out popped Mrs. Bully to see what was going on. The instant she saw Chatterer she began to scream, just as he had suspected that she would. And then she had done what he hadn't expected. She had flown at him like a little fury. She had flown straight in his face, pecking at his eyes so that he was only too glad to try to dodge behind the trunk of the tree. But Mrs. Bully was right after him, and in a few minutes Bully himself appeared, for he had heard Mrs. Bully's cries and had hurried home.

For a time it seemed to Chatterer as if the air was full of birds, every one with a stout bill that hurt when it struck. Yes, sir, it seemed as if all the birds in the Old Orchard must be trying to put his eyes out, or at least tear his red coat to pieces, and yet there were but two, and two little birds at that, for you know Bully and his wife are not very big. The very first chance he got Chatterer darted away for the old stone wall, Bully after him. Once he had reached that, Chatterer dodged out of sight between the stones and Bully returned to his home in triumph, boasting loudly of what he had done.

Now all the other birds had been watching sharply all that happened, particularly Jenny Wren, for it was she who had told Chatterer about the six eggs in Bully's nest. Not one had offered to help Bully and his wife, and right down in their hearts all had been hoping that Chatterer would get those eggs and break up the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bully, so that they would leave the Old Orchard. Now, though they were disappointed, they had a new and very great respect for Mr. and Mrs. Bully. So did Chatterer the Red Squirrel.

WEDDING BELLS IN HOSPITAL

Mrs. Beulah Benedict Scranton.

(By Central Press)

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 6.—With an operating table as an altar, a doctor and nurse for witnesses, an odor of chloroform supplanting that of the usual bridal bouquet and the groom's father watching the ceremony from his cot, Joseph Scranton and Miss Beulah Benedict were wed in a hospital here.

The sick man, Col. Walter Cranton, former president of the Lackawanna Steel company, was about to undergo an operation. He requested that his son and Miss Benedict be united before he went under the scalpel.

They hurried here from Gergennes, Vt., in answer to Colonel Scranton's request secretly and friends in Vermont knew nothing of the romance until the marriage was announced.

Scranton is forty-one. His bride is fifteen years younger. He is a descendant of Moses Scranton, founder of the city of the same name in Pennsylvania.

Young Scranton had been visiting the Vermont town for longer than a year, but his father's old home was there, and there were more than sentimental reasons for his pilgrimages.

Mrs. Scranton, originally, was from Chicago.

IGNORANCE IS SERMON TEXT

Simmons College Head Speaks

If you trace your ancestors far enough back you may not find any of them hanging by their tails from trees but you more than likely will find some of them hanging from trees by their necks.

The foregoing is just one of the interesting statements by Dr. J. D. Sandifer, president of Simmons college when he addressed the congregation of the First Baptist church from the pulpit of that institution Sunday morning. In this particular reference he was speaking of the theory that man is descended from the monkey.

Dr. Sandifer took as his subject "Who is the Wise Man?" and also the question "Who Can Interpret Sin?" In handling these subjects he made frequent reference to events of the past and the present. He told of his own life and how that was an ignorant country boy raised on a ranch and hardly knew anything of the outside world until he was 21 years old. He told of going to school and securing his first diploma and said that in his boyish ignorance and pride he thought he was wise. He then told of going to college and getting his diploma and framing it and how proud he was of that diploma because he thought the study he went through gave him wisdom. He told of subsequent diplomas and degrees he secured and how proud he was of them. "But after forty years have come to realize how ignorant I am," he said. He contrasted knowledge and intelligence and then he told of how times have brought about things which in the oldest days the wise men never dreamed of. He told of the great men of today being the men who knew they were ignorant as to what may be accomplished or what is to happen in the future. He told of Lloyd George, one of the greatest statesmen of modern times whom diplomats and other statesmen wait in line to get to see even for a few minutes and said that Lloyd George can be found on the Sabbath day teaching a Sunday school class in a little mission in a remote part of London where he with others is trying to study the questions of life and help a sick world.

Dr. Sandifer discussed the men of science and told how many things are being accomplished. He also told how people are running off after theories. He said that one reason why the world is so sick today is because men have not taken Christ into their business problems with them as they should. "Men are devoting deep thought and study of railroad, mine, political and other problems without taking Christ into that study with them" he said. He pleaded with his hearers to stick to the bible and Christ and to draw their wisdom from the life of Christ. He compared them with that of Christ and said that all man knows is so infinitely small in comparison with that knowledge that Christ has as to be as nothing.

One of the strongest habits a man of family acquires is pretending he isn't when away on trips.

The Store Keeper vs The Merchant

That is a question that you must decide for yourself. Are you a storekeeper or a merchant.

When the big cities of today were the small towns of yesterday, the same men who are the big merchants today were the merchants then, but just on a smaller scale. The storekeepers of yesterday are the storekeepers of today.

The merchant believes in his business and is proud of it. The storekeeper regards his business as a means of making a living for himself and family.

The merchant is alive to the possibilities of appearances. The storekeeper thinks that old fixtures sell just as much goods as new ones.

The storekeeper puts things in his windows to keep the front from looking bad. The merchant has well planned and well arranged displays in his windows, he changes them often and keeps the windows well lighted to attract the passerby and make the sale more satisfactory when the customer comes inside.

The storekeeper thinks that people in general know that he gives good values and has a good stock and that they are going to buy when and where they please anyway. The merchant knows that he has good values, desirable merchandise and tells the public about it in frequent, consistent, well planned advertisements in the daily newspapers.

A FARM-LABOR VICTORY

MAYOR JOHN C. WALTON of Oklahoma City is a new face in the national political picture gallery. Backed by the democratic farmers and laborers of Oklahoma he made the race for the nomination for governor and the latest returns place him far in the lead over the next highest man, who is a veteran political leader and officeholder and had the united support of Oklahoma newspapers. R. H. Wilson is superintendent of public instruction for Oklahoma. He has held the office twelve years. It has been his ambition to be governor of Oklahoma. He had been playing for it and planning to win it all these years. Mayor Walton had the backing of the organized farmers of the state, organized labor of the state and this included the organized railway workers. Gov. J. B. A. Robertson is said to have thrown his support to Walton, but the so-called conservatives or reactionaries of the democratic party gave their votes to Wilson or Thomas H. Owen, a former justice of the supreme court of the state. Many of the newspapers remained neutral during the campaign, some few backed Wilson for the nomination and the farm and labor press editorially supported Mayor Walton, who is considered the most progressive of all the democratic leaders.

Old war horses of the party are dazed by their defeat. Old reactionaries of the party are stunned. This is the first time in the political history of Oklahoma that the democratic farmers of the state joined forces with the labor organizations for the purpose of putting over candidates for congressional and state offices and for the control of the legislature. The combination made a clean sweep of the local offices in many counties and the leaders of this farm and labor organization, working within the democratic party, declare their ability to control future elections. Mayor Walton is said to have appealed to the farmers on a platform which declared for control of all public utilities and which contains many of the features of the national non-partisan program. He is a champion of the Plumb plan of administration of the railroads by the government and had the solid backing of the railway workers of the state who are democrats.

Oklahoma landed in the republican camp two years ago. Harding and Coolidge captured the electoral vote and the republicans captured five congressmen and a United States senator. Now the democratic farmers and laborers of the state have nominated Jack Walton for governor and unless their combination is broken in future years, they are going to send to the senate men of the type of Brookhart of Iowa, Howell of Nebraska, Frazier of North Dakota, Farmer Smith of South Carolina and others whose names are listed as members of the congressional farm bloc. There is political history in the making in this country and the agricultural states of the west and the south are making most of the history. This nonpartisan wave began in North Dakota. Its apostles are working their way to the gulf. Those who have been admitted behind the scenes in Texas say that the farm labor organization has a membership of 250,000 and that more than 225,000 cast their ballots for Maj. Fred Rogers for governor July 22.

Their organizers are neither dead nor sleeping. They do not go about the country with brass bands. They have no publicity agents. There are 50 per cent of the white farmers of Texas who are landless. They are known as tenants. There are thousands of small farmers in the state. This is not all. There are thousands of large and successful farmers who are said to be members or in sympathy with the platform demands of this organization which made the most astonishing showing of strength in the July primary. They promise to be fully organized for the campaign of 1924 when there is another senator to be elected and to place a farm-labor ticket in the field from senator down to constable. They do not contemplate independent political action. They call themselves democrats and they are going to work within the democratic party to help to nominate its candidates and shape its policies in future years. Oklahoma has often been called the stepdaughter of Texas. There are thousands of former Texans who are citizens of that state. Mayor Jack Walton of Oklahoma City is in the public picture gallery. An organized drive made by organized farmers and laborers placed a new face on the political screen

FROM A SEAT IN THE GALLERY
By Herbert Corey

THIS city, mark you, is the capital of a great nation. It is something of a city, too. It has running hot and cold water, open pool rooms, the finest home-made corn whisky that ever laid a face on the barroom floor, polite colored servants—

I know that is hard to believe. But I came here from New York, where I was thoroughly broken in to tipping. Nothing less than a quarter was accepted by the newly arrived immigrants from distant and undesirable parts of Europe. Anyone who gave a fresh-laid searcher for civil and religious liberty a mere dime discovered where America stands in the eyes of the world, pronto. But in Washington I produce 10-cent pieces.

"You don't have to give me this, boss," the party of the second part often says. "I'm working here anyhow. I'd do this for you just the same——"

Which is submitted as one of the chief marvels of our so-called civilization. Anyhow, the megaphone wagons are constantly passing up and down the streets, filled with tourists who are glad to pay a dollar for the privilege of taking their weight off their feet. They come from all over the world and one hopes that they will have the information they have gathered acid tested before they pass it on. This is a slow way of getting to the point, but what I mean to say is that there are other tourists in town in a lower range of visibility.

"You wouldn't believe it," said Police Inspector Headley, who has fathered and mothered and alternately spanked and petted this town for a generation, "but people come to town every day who never saw a street car or an automobile."

"That right?" I said. "I wouldn't believe it, cap."

"But they do," persisted the inspector. "They come from up in the hills of Maryland and Virginia, where they still weave their own cloth and make their own shoes. They travel afoot or amule up there and have their own feuds and their own ideas. They are just as foreign to us as Mexicans. A fine, strong, intelligent people, but shut in by high mountains. Their thoroughfares are shoulder-wide trails through long forests."

Some come to Washington on business. Others are the true tourists. They have heard about this town, or their daddies have. Maybe after the Revolutionary war or the Mexican war or the Civil war. Even after that war in which we made democracy so safe. They come down here to see how we are festering along.

DE VALERA

EAMON DE VALERA is said to be on his way to the United States to plead for financial support to fight the Irish free state government. If so he should be given the cold shoulder by all men of Celtic blood in the United States. He is a mad man at best and not a safe leader for any people who are battling for the principles of a republican form of government. Arthur Griffith and Michael Collins and their co-laborers submitted the treaty which created the Irish free state to the people of 30 counties of Ireland. There were more than 500,000 votes cast at the election and of the 500,000 nearly 400,000 voted for parliamentary candidates favorable to the treaty and an Irish free state government.

De Valera and his radicals revolted or rebelled and placed an army in the field to destroy the free state government and its defenders. They would have destroyed Ireland and the Irish people if it had been in their power. They have been defeated everywhere and Harry Boland, the ablest of the rebels, is dead.

De Valera is not an Irishman. He was born in America. His father was a Spaniard. He refused to bow to the rule of the majority. He defied the government set up by the Irish patriots themselves and he should be given no recognition should he come to America by Americans of Celtic blood who would see peace and prosperity come to the Irish people now that they have a government of their own and an opportunity to work out their own destiny. Michael Collins is entitled to the sympathy of men of all nationalities who believe in liberty and the rights of man. He is of the Irish, for the Irish and when they follow him they will make no mistake.

There is but one way to ease a grief, and that is to work it up into art.

Eternal smashing of fanatics is the price of liberty.

SCIENCE AND PROGRESS

Far back in inter-glacial days, when life had few if any charms, our rude forefathers went their ways, the clubs they bore their only arms. These clubs were shapeless limbs of trees, picked from the ground in forests dense; there were no guns or snickersnees or other weapons of offense. And when a man went forth to slay an ox or bear for his repast, he had to pound away all day, before the critter breathed its last. It took long hours to kill a pig, and twice the time to kill a cow; the waste of effort was so big it gives me fantods, even now. But lo, a great idea strikes the leader of a savage clan, and in his club he places spikes, this scientist, this super-man. He goes a-hunting with a smile, and with one blow, of proper zest, he slays the roaring crocodile, or knocks the warthog his invention as a shame, and plied their shapeless, galley west. And doubtless many foolish dubs knocked spikeless clubs, because their fathers did the same. The world has always had its host of men who hate the word "improve," who make an idiotic boast of trotting in the same old groove.

RADIO—

By EDWARD N. DAVIS
Formerly Technical Expert for U. S. Government

The most revolutionary inventions in radio in the last few years have for their foundation the complete thermionic tube of three elements. When the third element, the grid, was first introduced by Dr. Lee DeForest, he laid the cornerstone for radio development, and it is doubtful whether broadcasting by radio telephone would today be a public service were it not for the three electrode thermionic tube.

The "grid," as it is called, is a mesh or screen, interposed between the filament and plate, and because of the strategic position, it can with a very small amount of energy control the electrons emitted from the filament and determine in what quantities they shall reach the plate.

It will be remembered that with the filament properly lighted and a positive potential on the plate, a current will flow in the plate circuit from the plate to the filament and then externally to the plate. In figure 1 is shown by means of heavy arrows the direction of plate current, the dotted arrows showing the direction of emission and travel of electrons.

By studying figures 2 and 3 it can be seen that because of the closeness of the grid to the filament, a small negative charge placed on the grid would repel the electrons and tend to prevent their reaching the plate. A positive charge on the grid would increase the quantity of electrons leaving the filament for the plate. Figure 2 shows the grid negatively charged and no plate current because the electrons are prevented from reaching the plate by the negative charge on the grid. Figure 3 shows a positive charge on the grid allowing the electrons to reach the plate, and a consequent flow of current in the plate circuit.

For sake of illustration the potential on the grid is indicated as being furnished by a battery rather than the usual receiving inductance.

The energy in the plate circuit depends on the amount of filament emission and the voltage or potential of the plate. The control of the grid over this energy depends on its closeness to the filament, its charge, and its construction. By reason of the small amounts of energy on the grid which can be made to control greater amounts of energy in the plate circuit, the thermionic tube possesses amplifying properties which are of great importance in radio telegraphy and telephony.

The Once Over

"WHY I AM A SUCCESS IN MY BUSINESS"
(As America's great men might tell the story.)
J. P. Morgan.

You ask me to give the young men of America the recipe for success. Well, my advice is this: study the encyclopedia until there is no subject upon which you are not fully informed. Take my own case. After graduating from Harvard my father called me to his office, looked me in the eye and said: "My son, where is Mount Popocatepetl?"

"I haven't the slightest idea," I replied. "If you are thinking of the trip why don't you call up a ticket agency?"

With a look of supreme disgust, he turned on his heel, dropped into his chair, and began to sob.

"Whatzamattah, pop?" I asked, rushing to him.

"I realize that you can never succeed in business," he sobbed. "The idea of the son of the world's greatest financier not knowing where Mount Popocatepetl is!"

That very night I sailed for England. At the end of six months I not only knew where Mount Popocatepetl was, but why it was and how it got there. I conveyed the news to my dad and he called me home at once. Not long after I was made a director and astounded the board by telling them what menhaden were and how they were reared. It was pretty smooth sailing after that.

Charles Schwab

There isn't much to say. At sixteen years I entered the Carnegie steel works as a stake driver. One day Andrew Carnegie passed through the yards. I called to him: "Hey, Andy!"

"Whatcher want?" he asked.

"Formaldehyde is a drug, a dinosaur is an extinct animal, Ferdinand De Soto was an explorer, and salmon come from the Kennebec river." I replied—just like that.

"Come on back to the office with me," exclaimed Mr. Carnegie, "I want to make you general superintendent of all my mills."

John D. Rockefeller

My first real job was with a commission house in Cleveland, Ohio. The salary was $25 a week. Even as a youth the thought of such a picayune sum as that annoyed me. What must I do to convince my boss that I am worth more money? I asked myself. Then, like a flash, came the answer: "Study the Handbook of Knowledge, you darn fool!" I did so, poring over the pages in all my spare time. One day the boss had a better job in view and had to choose between another employee and me. He had decided on the other youth and was about to promote him when I jumped from my chair, grabbed him by the neck, and exclaimed: "Listen, boss! You've gotta give me that position!"

"Why have I gotta give you that position?" he demanded.

"Because," I replied, drawing myself to my full height, "I know where jute comes from!"

"You do!" gasped my astounded but delighted employer.

Well, the boss embraced me, gave me the new job and raised my pay $10. It was impossible to keep a well-informed youth down and I soon was in business for myself.

E. H. Gary

"The story of my career is quite interesting. Until I was well over thirty-five years of age I was a lawyer in Wheaton, Ill. I had been mayor of that town and a judge of the high court. But I realized I wasn't getting anywhere. Finally I quit the law and became an official of the Federal Steel company. Still I yearned for greater things. One morning I heard that the elder Morgan was looking for a man to head the United States steel corporation, the greatest industrial organization in the world. I put on my hat, jumped a train and was soon at his New York office demanding the position."

"But are you big enough for the job?" he asked.

"If you don't think so just ask me of what use swimming bladders are to flying fish." I returned.

"All right. Of what use are swimming bladders to flying fish?" repeated Mr Morgan.

"They keep the fish from drowning," I replied without even looking at my notes.

"Gentlemen!" called Mr. Morgan to his board of directors, 'Meet the new chairman of the United States Steel Corporation—Mr. E. H. Gary!"

No Age Limit for Swimming Pupils—Strokes Should Be Taught to and Not Wished On Beginners of Water Art

This is the first of a series of articles which Miss Artelt has written, dealing with the various styles and strokes and benefits, both physically and mental, derived from swimming.

A HELPFUL SHOCK

WHEN I was nine years old I couldn't swim a stroke and I'll tell you what made me determined to learn. We have a bungalow at Bowers Beach, which is a small fishing village on Delaware Bay, and we used to spend several weeks there in the summer roughing it.

The water was very shallow in the bay for a half mile out. This was because of a sand bar. At the end of the bar was the channel which was dredged for the passage of oceangoing steamers.

I loved the water then as I do now and, although I couldn't swim, I could float. I would rush into the bay and float for several minutes at a stretch. One day when I was floating there was a squall brewing, and the wind came up so suddenly that I was swept swiftly toward the channel.

To my amusement I couldn't touch bottom and it seemed that my heart stopped beating. Honestly, I was scared stiff. Luckily my father had been watching me, saw my predicament and rescued me.

It was a frightful experience for me, and as soon as I returned to my home in Philadelphia I sought a swimming instructor and took lessons.

A like incident has happened to many, but if it hasn't to you don't wait for it to come.

Learn to swim and you'll be prepared to take care of yourself.

AND just think of the benefits of swimming! But I'm going to tell you of them in my following articles.

In her next article Miss Artelt will describe the various swimming strokes.

NEVER TOO OLD TO SWIM

RECENTLY a lady asked me how long I had known how to swim.

I told her I had learned when I was ten years old. I knew what she was going to say and she didn't disappoint me.

"Well, that is fine," she said. "My one regret is that I didn't learn when I was young. Of course, I'm too old now."

Such a remark is foolish because there is no age limit to swimming. One is never too old to learn. It's a natural instinct to like water, and if it isn't the habit should certainly be acquired.

"You have heard the 'I-fell-off-a-boat-and-learned-to-swim - because-I-had-to' chap. There's at least one in every office. I have heard many of them. They tell me of the time when they were ten years old; they were thrown off a dock or fell out of the boat, and, after paddling around a bit, swimming came to them and they stroked for the shore. I also have seen these same chaps in the water and was not surprised to see that they still paddled.

I recommend that swimming be taught and not suddenly wished on a person. It's a much safer method and also better. Under a good instructor a marked improvement can be seen in the pupil's swimming every time he goes in the water. First he learns the easier strokes; then he perfects the more difficult ones, and finally masters the American crawl. Then he is classed as a swimmer.

I SAID there was no age limit to swimming, but I believe there is a minimum. Instinct will draw a child of three years to water. It plays at the faucet with every opportunity and loves to romp up and down the beach. But let a kiddie be natural, and don't force swimming until it has passed six years.

Twin Win Puts Spuds in Front as Cats Split 2 at Dallas

FLAHERTY AND KEENE HURL TEAM TO DOUBLE WIN BUT FIRST GAME IS RAGGED GO

Both Teams Stage Farce Comedy in Opener Before Best Sunday Crowd of Season; Vic Keene Humbles 'Em in Second; Felix Adds Pair of Homers in First; Umps Kept Busy

By "SPIKE" COOPER

When Pat Flaherty and Vic Keene hurled the Spudders to a dual victory over the Gassers, the home team moved into the honor position, thanks to Snipe Conley and his teammates, who copped the second game of the bargain day show with the Cats at Dallas. A scant margin of two points is the lead, but the Spudders at last have achieved that which no other club of the league has done this season, that of driving straight from the cellar to the top within the space of barely one month.

The Spudders copped the first game, a hectic encounter, 16-11, and the second, 8-2. Terrific hitting marked the Spud victories, for they hammered out 26 base hits in the two games.

In taking the two Sunday games, the Spudders ran their string of straight wins to 18, and as they closed, they showed no signs of weakening. The entire team were on their toes throughout and fought doggedly for every point. Their two day rest left them full of pepper and they stepped right out from the start and the visitors hardly had a chance.

Salm sent his "Wild Irish Rose," Pat Flaherty, to the mound to face his former team mates, the first time since joining the local club. Pat seemed to hold them in the hollow of his hand and not a runner reached first base until two hitters had been retired in the fourth. A pass to Ezzell granted the first ray of hope, and that was very dim, for the Spudders held a margin of 11 runs at that juncture.

Pat hurled an excellent game through the first five frames and the first Gasser hit was registered in the sixth round, when a pair of singles, and error and a sacrifice fly netted them a marker.

They seemed to taste blood, for they annexed another in the seventh, four in the eighth and another in the ninth when he was chased by Umps Daly for some unknown reason. The act came after Smith had been called safe at first on a close play by White and Beck.

Keene took over the job and with less than five minutes notice, mounted the hillock with runners on second and third and none away. Three hits, one a homer by Felix, counted four more runs, bringing the total to 11 for the day.

Big Crowd Out

Probably 5,000 fans sat through the sweltering heat to see the Spudders continue their drive. The entire stand was filled and practically all the boxes. Perhaps the excessive heat curbed the enthusiasm of the fans, but from some unknown cause, their old time punch was lacking. Many resounding basehits from the Spudder bats were un-applauded as in previous days, but the entire crowd went home satisfied.

Umps Gets Riddler

The umpires had lots of trouble with the boys. Heated arguments caused the banishment of Pat Flaherty and "Grandpa" Jackson in the first, which Boss Jack Vann of the Gassers left under orders in the second. Fans failed to agree with many of the decisions rendered, and during the last game. Weir was razed from the stands for his actions. Jack Daly has been the most popular member of the arbiter force shown here this season, but he found ill favor many times, both while working the bases and behind the plate. Maybe theirs was an off day, but at any rate, many of the fans were far from satisfied with what they saw.

Felix Poles Pair

The hard-hitting Felix grabbed off a bit of honor for himself in the first game when he crashed the apple for two trips around the pillows.

Fred Beck resumed his stride again after a slump of several days and poked three singles and as many triples over and around all parts of the field, sending him in with the high average for the day.

Homer Ezzell and Short Adams staged a duel for honors on the base paths, both purloining three cushions during the afternoon.

Jack Doyle "look-'em-over" man for Bill Killifer's Cubs, saw the game from the stand. The Cubs have three men now playing with the Spudders, and there are others who will soon be sought by the major league clubs. Whether he was just looking over their own boys, or perhaps studying some other players of the day, could not be ascertained.

Gassers Are Crippled

The Gassers presented a crippled team when they took the field yesterday. They were minus the services of Johnny Baggan and Bruce Hartford, two stellar members of the team. Baggan is out with a bad foot, while Hartford has been sick for the last week and was unable to come here with the team.

But now that the Spudders top the column, they're going to be hard to head. They've the fight and punch and for an attack, they've the pitching to go with it, and their defense is second to none in the league.

Manager Salm stated yesterday afternoon that he was expecting Jake Miller at any time now, although he has heard nothing definite from him. The Pittsburgh moguls stated that he would start for Wichita Falls Friday in case he was willing to come. And since nothing has been heard, he may be on his way.

CROOK GETS CLOTHES CHEAP

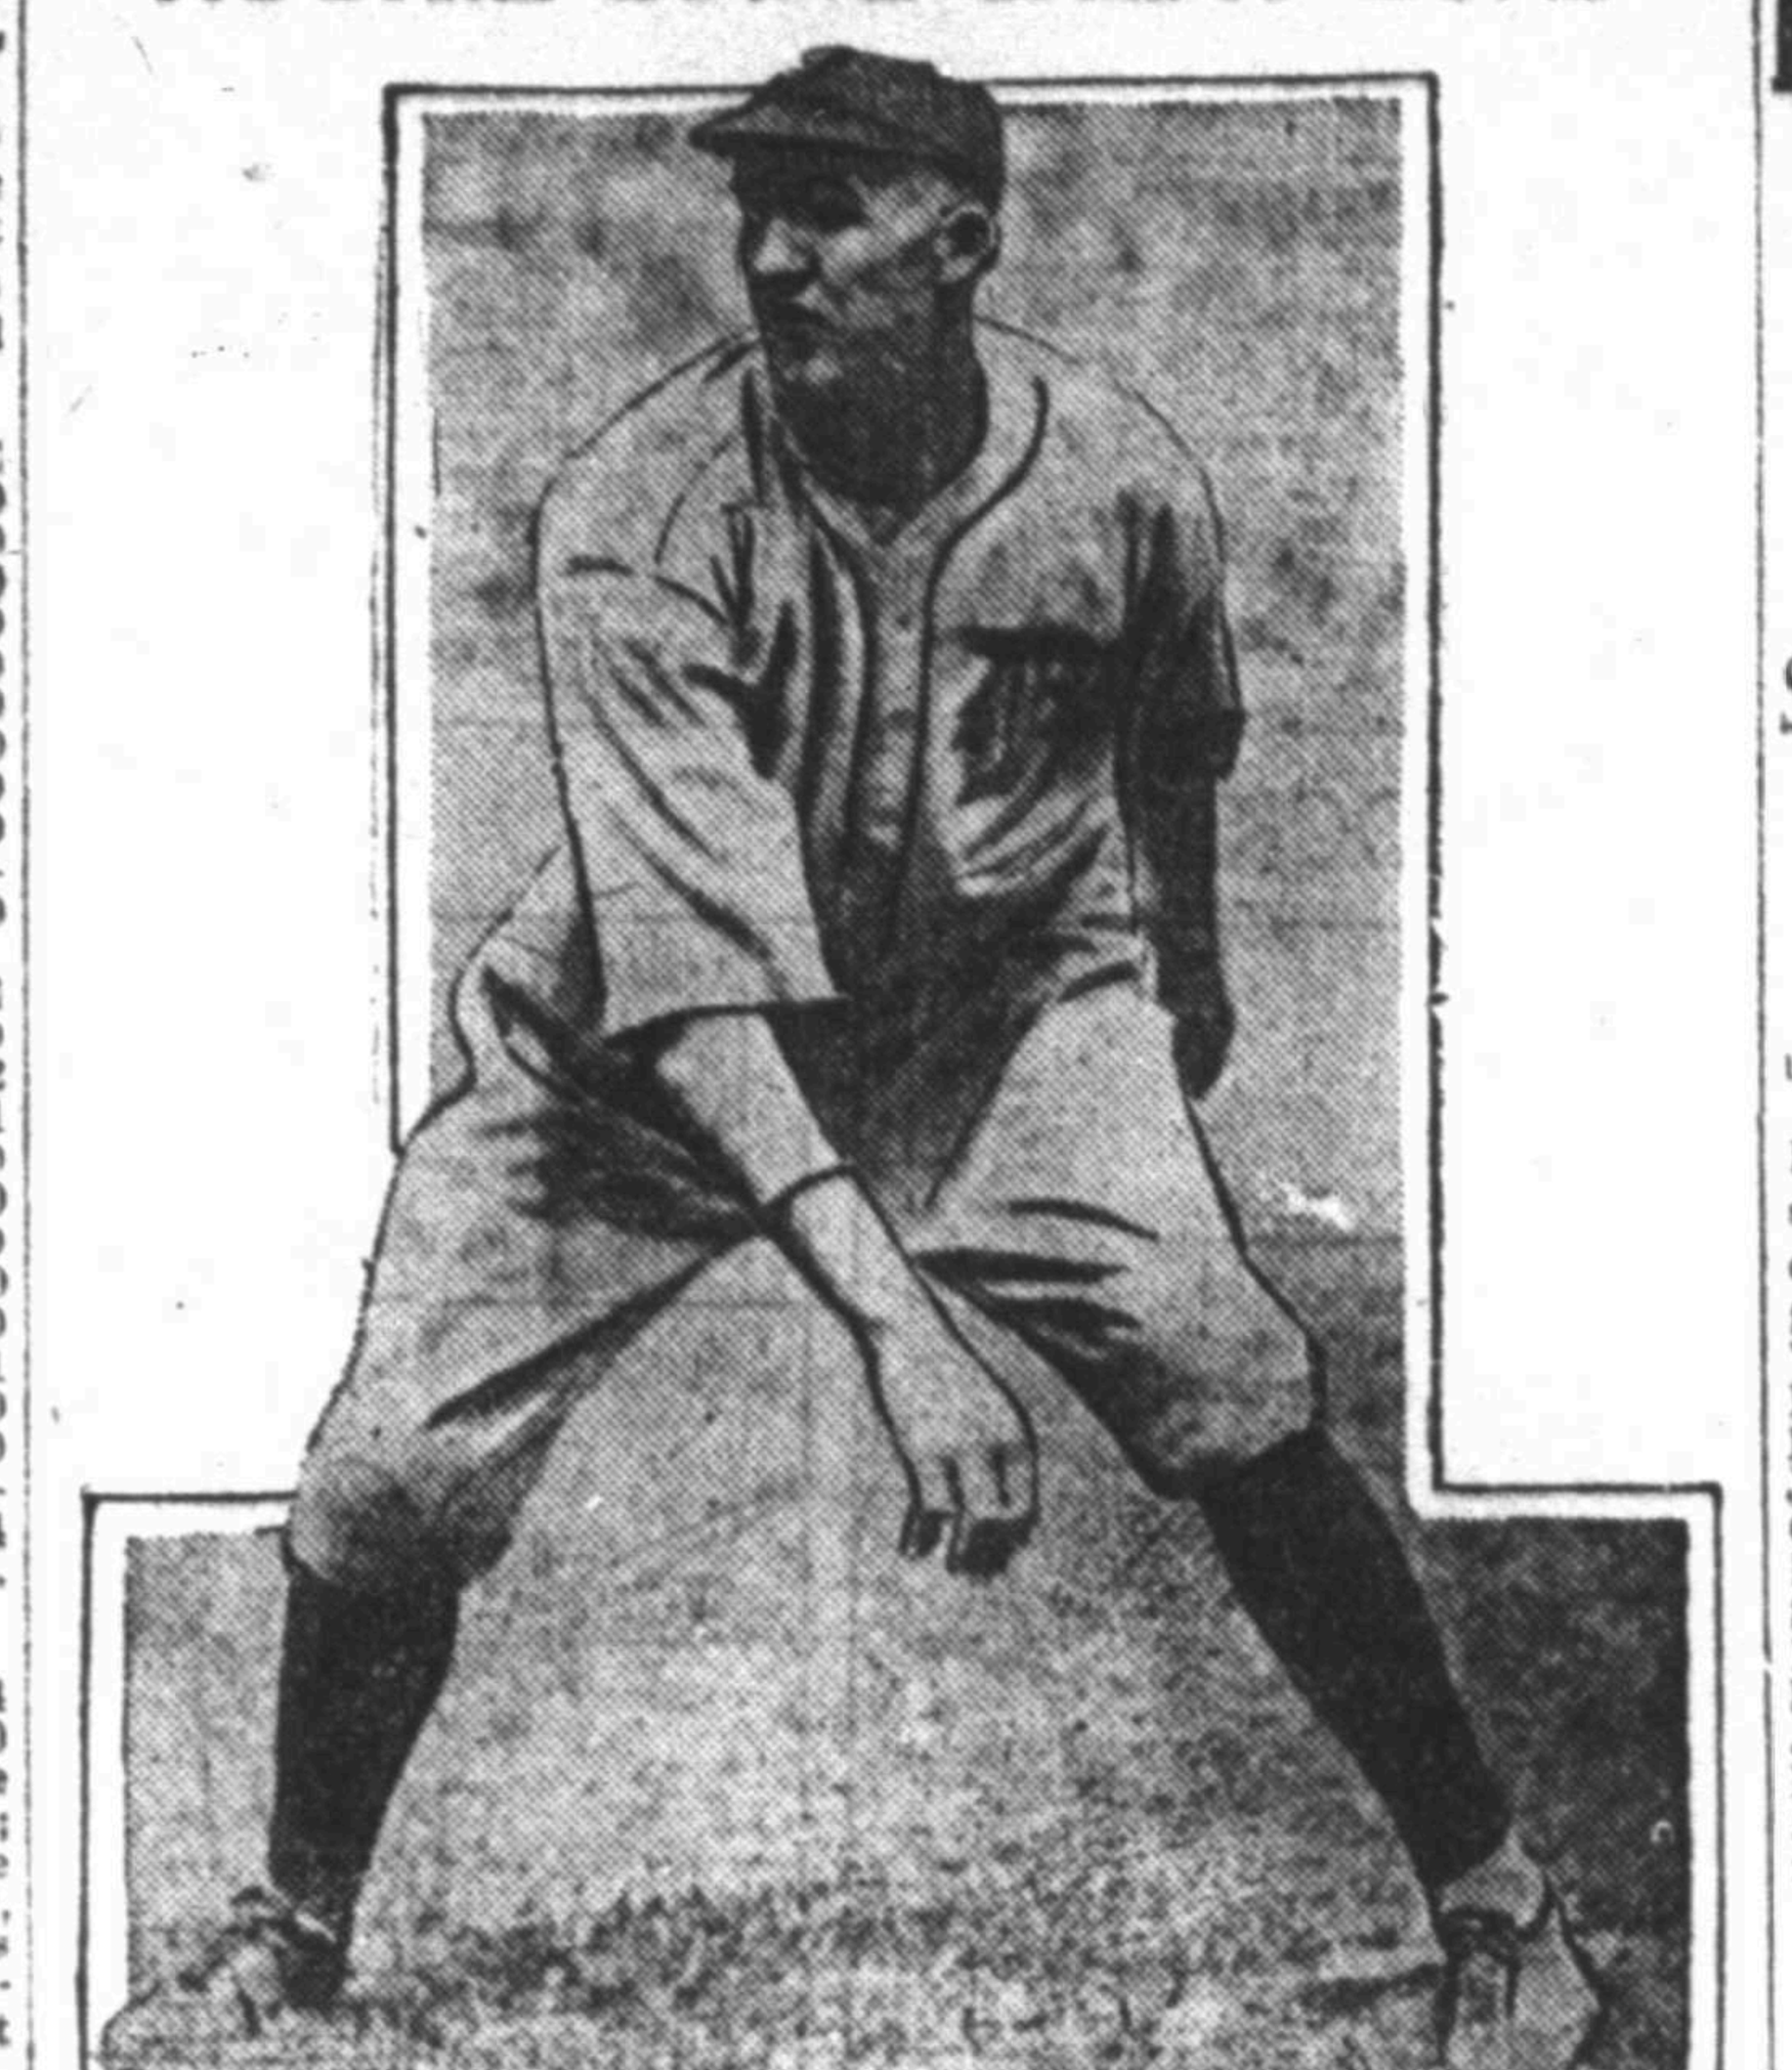

(By International News Service.)

CINCINNATI, August 6.—A dapper young man bought three suits of clothes from a local store and ordered the msent C. O. D. to an Auburn avenue address. The delivery boy, with instructions to collect $100, was met at the front steps by the customer, who took the package and told the boy to wait until he we nt into the house for the money. The dapper young man disappeared around the side of the house as though going in a rear entrance. When the messenger tired of waiting and rang the door bell he learned that no one by the name of his customer had ever been heard of there.

HULL TO SPEAK AT DEMO MEETING

CINCINNATI, August 6.—Delegates from a half dozen states are expected to attend the annual outing o fthe Duckworth democratic club at Coney Island on August 6. The committee in charge is making a special effort to make the picnic a big success this year in order that the effect may be beneficial on the election this fall. They say that the November election in Ohio will be of national significance and have a determining influence on the presidential election two years hence. Cordell Hull, national democratic chairman, will be the principal speaker at the outing.

ROOKIE GOING GREAT GUNS

Herman Pillette in action.

Phenoms may come and phenoms may go, but Herman Pillette keeps right on humbling American eague teams as fast as they are brought on. Ty Cobb's rookie hurler has won 12 games, or thereabouts, and lost but a third of that number. He is the big reason why the Tygers are up with the leaders. Cobb wouldn't trade him for Walter Johnson, Faber or Coveleskie. And to think Pillette was thrown in for good measure in the deal which brought Johnson, another pitcher, from Portland for a wad of cash. Let Ty chuckle.

But just about noon the 100 line was crossed and by 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon 106 was reached. The heat held up to the 106 line until after 5 o'clock when it began to weaken slowly.

TAKE HEED, YE RABBID POLITICIANS

(By International News Service.)

COLUMBUS, Ohio, August 6.—Here's something new in the way of political campaigning.

A local candidate has displayed evidence of originality by entertaining a large crowd at a street corner with jazz orchestral music emanating from a large Magnavox which he had connected with the diaphragm of a phonograph.

While the music box played the candidate distributed campaign circulars.

MOTHER FALLS FOR WILES OF VAMP

DETROIT, Aug. 6.—Mary Foder, although married and the mother of four children, succumbed to the bandishments of Anthony Vargo, and fled with him to Akron, Ohio, where she later married him, according to the $10,000 alienation of affections suit Foder has filed here against Vargo.

Foder is a farmer living near Belleville. He declares in his bill of complaint that when his wife went to Akron with Vargo he followed her. Two of the children that Mrs. Foder took with her were calling Vargo "Papa," he asserts.

When he returned to Detroit he filed suit for divorce. It was granted on the grounds of public policy, and Foder was granted the custody of the children.

PRISONERS BUY NEW UNI FOR POLICEMAN

(By International News Service)

CINCINNATI, Aug. 6.—Policeman Brockman entered a house to quiet four men who were conducting themselves in a boisterous manner. He came out a few seconds later, his uniform past all repair, and summoned help to make the arrest. The judge listened to a story next morning and pondered over the charge.

"Buy the officer a new uniform, and we'll call it square," he said. And the four prisoners "chipped in" for the necessary amount.

It gives a man a great deal of happiness to witness the pleasures of others—when his profits amount to at least 10 per cent.

RELIGION HELD AS BASE LINE

Human Action Based Upon It

Speaking from the question of "What Is Religion for?" Dr. Pittenger Sunday morning declared that it is the base line of human action, in agreement with a conscience that has been trained in a certain direction and that it is the thing that causes a man to stand steadfast in his convictions, even unto death, or when his last friend has deserted him.

He declared that Paul stoned Stephen because his religion had taught him to do that thing, but that this same Paul stood steadfast, unflinchingly, when dragged around by the Roman soldiers or when wounded by their stripes.

Asking the question as to what were the evidences of God's working in the world today, the pastor declared that the best evidences were the complete working of things of nature, without mishap and the complete co-ordinating of the forces of the world making them subservient to God's desires. God makes nature's forces subservient to the people for their use and sets the machinery of the world at work so that anyone may use it. "The young lions do want and suffer hunger, but they that wait upon the Lord do not lack any good thing." The religion of Jesus Christ is bringing us into relationship with God by showing how God supplies our every need.

Religion is an adjustment of us with the things of earth and is to bring us into harmony with God. It is a certainty of spiritual values, but some people put spiritual values on wrong things. God called the Jewish people to task for continually making offerings to him without giving the heart's affection along with them. If we are so religious as not to sing a simple love song on Sunday, but attend the horse races on Monday to the detriment of our children, we are putting spiritual values on the wrong things.

The religion that is going to set the world right is that which starts from the baseline and, catching the true value of true things, sends men out to battle for the right things.

John Bunyan laid in a dungeon for 13 long years writing the story of Pilgrim's Progress, and thus is one of the best examples of what a man can do when his heart and conscience is right and when he knows that he is battling for the right thing.

BROOKLYN BRIDGE AILING

Looking across Brooklyn bridge.

Brooklyn bridge, New York's famous old suspension bridge, soon will have to have a "gland operation" or some other heroic means will have to be adopted to stem the ravages of old age. A recent inspection showed that two of the giant cables had slipped from their saddles atop of the bridge tower on the Mannattan side. Bridge engineers say the bridge is good for another hundred years, even in its present condition.

FASHIONS

Combining a perfectly straight back and front with wide circul side section and sleeves, the frock shown in the sketch presents an example of the general trend for fall and winter, according to present indications. The circular panels hang considerably below the skirt hem. This irregular line has been in favor for several seasons with girdle of metal and silk or chenille in contrasting color.

Various brown shades are featured in the lineup of autumn street frocks, but in all probability navy as usual will lead the procession by actual count.

The hat worn with this dress might be of felt or velvet, with velvet flowers and foliage. Felt bands and pipings trim some of the smartest of early fall velvet chapeaux. Flowers made of velvet, ribbon, or bakelite are also featured and novel feather bands and ornaments figure prominently in the line-up of hat trimmings.

Russian, Egyptian and Spanish notes are all sounded in the autumn millinery and there is a Spanish trend in many of the smartest of fall and winter dresses. This is apparent in the rather novel frocks that feature a slim, straight figure to about the knees, with decided flare about the skirt from knee to hem line. A sort of Spanish dancing girl's costume this has been designated at times.

However, flare how or where it will in the main the actual silhouette remains straight and unbroken.

Circular Sleeves and Panels Distinguish this Fall Frock and apparently is well thought of for the season immediately ahead.

This dress is of a heavy silk crepe,

MANY INDORSE FORD FOR PRESIDENT

(By International News Service.)

DETROIT, August 6.—Every state except Maine, New Mexico and Nevada has been heard from in the form of unsolicited letters indorsing Henry Ford for president of the United States, officers of the "Ford for President club" of Dearborn report.

State clubs are being organized and the Ford "boom" will be placed upon a firm foundation long before the 1924 campaign.

Authors of the letters belong to both republicans and democrats and have expressed their willingness to vote for Ford regardless of party affiliations, according to William Daw, president of the club.

DREAMS HE FOUND MONEY AND HE DID

(By International News Service.)

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 6.—Did you ever dream you had found a large amount of money and awake to find your dream had come true? Possibly not, but you can imagine the pleasant surprise you would have.

Such was the feeling of William H. Mueller as he alighted from a street car in front of his home after spending the night in a section camp several miles away. Standing at his curbing was his automobile, which two bandits had taken, robbing him of his money and driving into the country. Mueller slept at a camp all night and walked to a street car line the next morning.

TAKES POISON RATHER THAN KILL CHICKENS

(By International News Service.)

FLINT, Mich., Aug. 6.—Edna Farnsheld has a tender heart. Her mother asked her to kill some baby chickens that had been injured in a storm.

The girl started for the coop and then turned suddenly and ran screaming to the house.

"I would rather take my own life than kill little baby chickens," she cried.

Her nine-year-old sister ran after her to the bathroom and managed to knock a bottle of poison from her hand after Edna had swallowed half of it.

She has a chance to recover .

BIBLE CLASS HEARS HISTORY

Interesting Talks by Robertson

W. L. Robertson addressing his bible class in the First Baptist church Sunday morning told of the rebuilding of the temple and how the work was accomplished under difficulties.

The olden text for the lesson was "My Soul Longeth, Yea, Even Fainteth for the Courts of Jehovah."

Mr. Robertson reviewed how when the Jews were given their freedom to go back to their native land and rebuild the temple many of them did not want to go, because they had become used to the new mode of living in bondage and had gotten away from their desires to go back to their land and worship their God as they had done at first. But the faithful who went back carried with them the vessels of gold and silver that had been taken from the temple and other gifts, according to the decree of Cyrus and took up the work of rebuilding the temple.

"The construction of the temple was exceedingly interesting," said Mr. Robertson. "When the foundation was laid the priests in their apparel with trumpets and the Levites the sons of Asaph with cymbals, to praise Jehovah after the order of David, king of Israel. The Jews could worship God without a temple, yet they knew how necessary a building was to fullness of worship. Men were put to work on Mount Zion. Some were put to work quarrying the stone and masons cutting the blocks. Others went to the great and famous forrest of Lebanon for cedar lumber. The timber was bound on rafts, brought down to Joppa and carried overland 35 miles to Jerusalem.

"The priests in their apparel could not mean workmen. They were robed in white linen with trumpets. They were the sacred trumpets that the priests alone were allowed to blow. They were of silver, narrow and straight not a yard long. They served in that time as church bells served in later years to summon people to worship. The Levites were assigned by David to furnish instrumental music in the sanctuary and the cymbals were played especially by the sons of Asaph. The cymbals were regarded as instruments of less dignity than the trumpets blown by the priests. This music was offered in praise and giving thanks to Jehovah. Might we not well compare our action in this day and time in building churches with that of the Jews in re-building the temple?"

Mr. Robertson told how when the foundation was laid for the re-building of the temple how the Jews gave praise to Jehovah saying "For He is good, His loving kindness endureth forever toward Israel." And all the people shouted with a great shout because the foundation of the temple was laid before their eyes wept with loud voice and many shouted aloud for joy.

Mr. Robertson told of the prophets of the day and of the leadership. He said that the right kind of leadership is necessary to the accomplishment of any worthy cause. He said the character of Haggai was that which might be compared to a whip, urging the people on to the task with warnings and threats as well as by promise of the future glory. Zacheriah on the contrary, he said brought to the workers calm strength and fith by means of his beautiful visions showing them the angels waiting for the finishing of the temple and ministering comfort to their sorrows.

Mr. Robertson showed that the people who work for God seldom find things easy but told of the rewards of the work after the efforts of Satan to block them have been overcome.

Ranger Gets Back

M. N. Koonsman, Texas ranger, who for the past 10 days has been stationed in Quanah, returned to Wichita Falls Sunday. The ranger, who is well-known here and is one of the popular members of the Texas squad, will be here several days, it was understood.

Ranger Koonsman has been doing strike duty in Quanah, but intimated yesterday that the situation at that place is not tense.

Quiet for Cops

Saturday night and Sunday went on record at the local police station as one of the quietest periods in the history of the department.

Only two arrests had been docketed late yesterday since Saturday evening. Both will be brought to trial in corporate court this morning before Judge J. P. Marrs.

One of the arrests was a woman charged with vagrancy, while one man was arrested on charges of intoxication.

NEWS NOTES OF MOVIELAND

Charles Ray at his "Ray-d'o"

Congressman, opera singers, and lecturers who have taken advantage of the radio to broadcast their platforms, high C's and dry speeches have nothing on our own Charlie Ray. Ray who is busy making "A Tailor Made Man," recently took time out to listen in on the broadcasting from the S. R. O. station of Fandom.

He made his own apparatus and he says the patents are pending. An old wash boiler, a few bed springs and a handy funnel or two as amplifiers are the materials used. Charlie calls it his "Ray-dio" set.

"The Duce of Spades," "Smudge" and Alias Julius Caesar" will be seen before "A Tailor Made Man" which is not due until fall.

ELLIOTT DEXTER IN "ENTER MADAME"

Here's the answer to the query of "fans" and exhibitors, "Where's Elliott Dexter these days?" Mr. Dexter is about to don the grease paint to play opposite Clara Kimball Young in the celluloid production of the famous stage success, "Enter Madame," which Metro will distribute. He has just completed work in the lead with the same star in "The Hands of Nara."

And we heard that after "Enter Madame" Mr. Dexter is to be starred in a special film production of James Whitcomb Riley's poem, "An Old Sweetheart of Mine."

BESSIE'S NEXT

Bessie Love is moving her makup box from the Fox studios, where she has just completed work in the all-star production of "The Village Blacksmith" to the Horsley studios to begin "Deserted at the Altar." In view of the recent postponements and other wedding mix-ups in the 400 one can't tell whether Bessie's new play is one of the high society kind or one of the old "10-20-30" favorites. I don't know whether she is cast for the deserted one or not.

GOSSIPY BITS

Hallan Cooley began his thespian career as a spear-carrier in Shakespearean repertoire in Grand Forks, N. D., getting 50 cents a night. During the past year he has played leads in 11 pictures. Twelve years of stage and screen training bridge this leap to fame.

J. P. Lockney used to run a picture show in New England many years ago under an assumed name because he was afraid his co-workers of the stage would learn of his film connection and cut him dead."

RUSSIAN OFFICIALS REVAMP NAVY

(By International News Service.)

LONDON, August 6.—The Russian navy is being reorganized and already a few of its ships are at sea.

Two submarines are on patrol between Sebastopol and Odessa, but seamen in famine relief ships opine that while these craft are all right on the surface it is doubtful what may happen if they submerge. But while the submarine personnel of the old imperial navy was never large, it is supposed that it may have been supplemented by ratings from Germany.

The soviets have planned maneuvers on a large scale and fishermen in the Gulf of Finland have been warned to steer clear of the red fleet.

Don't expect to grow heavenly wings by your name on the fly leaf of the bible.

SPRIGHTLY PAIR WIN CONTEST

Mrs. Jean Baptiste Fruge and her father, Auguste Jeansonne.

This sprightly couple, whose ages total 202 years, were the winners of a most unique contest staged at Opelousas, La., recently. They were the oldest couple to drive up in the oldest moving automobile before the judges' stand. They are father and daughter, Auguste Jeansonne, aged 111, and Mrs. Jean Baptiste Fruge, aged 91. They drove up in a Ford which dated back a score of years.

Short Stuff With a Dash of Pepper

A scream was heard at the intersection of Scott and Eighth. Several enthusiastic domino hounds pushed aside their "bones" and rushed downstairs and several men and boys loitering around the streets rushed to the same intersection. But it was only a slight accident. A Ford had collided with a Cadillac. None was injured, but the sight of that Ford must have been enough to have made the lady scream. It brought a big "scream" later.

does the fish in water swim"

The fisher pondered many ponds, then answered with a sneer.
"Why, certainly my daughter, did you think it swam in beer?"

A little dog wandered into the Owl drug store yesterday. His tongue was hanging out. With almost human intelligence, the canine whined until the "soda skeet" handed him some iced water. Strange how all animals gather at the soft drink bar in this warm weather.

Man Exonerated for Killing of Meddler

By Associated Press.

The killing occurred in the Toney butcher shop, after, it is declared, Hurtwick had armed himself with a meat cleaver and advanced upon the butcher.

FAGS FAVORED MORE THAN ARE STOGIES

(By International News Service.)

AKRON, Ohio, August 6.—That the cigar is becoming forgotten and that men are replacing it with the cigarette is the claim made by Akron tobacco dealers.

The tendency to place the cigarette ahead of the cigar among all classes of smokers has become more pronounced in recent months, Frank T. Nied, manager of a cigar store here, declared.

"Cigarettes are not only more fashionable, but they are becoming cheaper. Perhaps this explains their increased popularity," said Nied. "Cigarettes are now the cheapest in five years. Leading manufacturers are having a price war among themselves that has lowered prices to very attractive levels.

"A reason, perhaps as pertinent as cheapness of price, is the strong approval set on cigarettes by fashion."

Don't Kick About Heat; Here's How to Take Kick Out of It

They get a kick out of heat in Wichita Falls.

To 106 in the shade add a little more heat and toot, toot, you are tooted.

Officers Chas. Bebout and W. F. Belcher broke up a heated heat jag party late Sunday in the railroad yard distrite across the track. They found two white men overheated to the extent that they were hilarious. They were put in the city cooler to coll off a bit.

On the border it is fire water that makes them do that way. In Wichita Falls it is the heat that comes in cans. Both these facts would indicate that there really is a wonderful kick in heat. Anybody can testify that heat has a wilting effect, but there are not many who can get the joy out of it.

"That's old stuf fin Wichita Falls" a bull told the newshound. Having seen only a few kinds of jags from coast to coast and in a few other nations the reporter was not acquainted with the canned heat stew.

"How do they mix their cocktails?" he asked the law.

"That's easy" said the bull, "they mix the stuff with water, strain it and drink it, adding a little ice if they choose."

So there is your recipe for a heat cocktail with an awful kick. Twelve cans of heat had been consumed by the heat party the two laws broke up Sunday evening.
