Farm Survey Underway

Farmers in Haskell County have been doubling as statisticians in completing questionnaires which become essential links in the sophisticated economic structure of Texas agriculture, Commissioner Reagan V. Brown said today.

The county's producers were part of some 30,000 farmers across the state who recently responded to the mid-year survey on summer acreage and production conducted by the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. The results of the survey will be issued in an August 10 crop report which is available free of charge.

"Without the availability of unbiased, accurate figures through cooperation between Texas farmers and the Reporting Service, business and government agents from one end of the state to the other would suffer in their ability to predict coming trends and act accordingly," Commissioner Brown said.

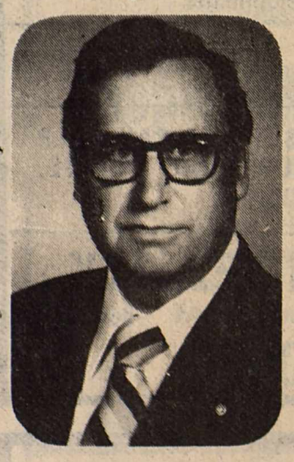

He explained that farmers themselves use the estimates as working tools in determining upcoming production decisions. At the same time, the information is used by farm organizations and legislators in planning and administering programs, by extension economists and private farm management consultants in advising farmers, and by almost every link in the agriculture service industry in allocating resources.

Banks and investment corporations also round out their economic profiles of counties through the use of the crop and livestock statistics.

"From the individual who sells fertilizers or designates railroad car placements to the government agent who makes decisions on crop payment programs, everyone in the agricultural production chain needs and uses the information made available through this continuing cooperative effort," Brown said.

"And at the bottom line, of course, is the agricultural product consumer, who reaps the benefits of a more informed agricultural industry, better able to minimize the drastic ups and downs which can translate into unpredictable supplies and prices," Brown concluded.

Bill Fisher Goes To Washington

Bill Fisher, Republican candidate for Congress in Texas' 17th District, says his meeting in Washington with U.S. House of Representative's Minority Leader John Rhodes was "productive and encouraging, and leads me to believe that I certainly can add to the Republican efforts to provide a much needed tax cut for Texans."

Fisher met with Rep. Rhodes in the Minority Leader's office to discuss the Kemp-Roth 33% across-the-board tax cut measure, as well as discussing Committee assignments and the Republican's legislative programs.

"The conversation was very helpful," Fisher said afterward. "The Republicans in Congress have some excellent alternative measures to the Democrats' massive spending measures, and the Kemp-Roth tax cut measure has come very close to passage this year. I'm convinced from our conversation that with my voice in Congress, we would stand a much better chance of creating justice for the taxpayers as well as being able to eliminate that awesome burden which families face today in paying for massive, ineffective govrenment."

Fisher said the conversation with Mr. Rhodes provided insight into Republican plans for "enacting the tax cut measure as well as relating some very helpful material on Republican efforts to pass other meaningful legislation."

Rhodes said he was very pleased to learn of Fisher's support for tax cuts and added that Fisher's support in Congress would increase the possibility of passing tax relief for the taxpayers.

"Bill Fisher indicated to me a great understanding of the plight that families face today. His determination to work toward solving that dilemma is real and deep seated. His voice in Congress would undoubtedly be raised repeatedly for tax relief and more efficient government. The taxpayer of Texas, and of the nation, can ill afford to remain very long without Bill Fisher's voice in Congress," Rhodes said.

YOUR JACUZZI DEALER!

Remember that car you bought, thinking you couldn't afford a better one? Remember how often it was in the garage, wasting your time and money? You wished you had spent a little more to begin with, didn't you?

Well, remember all that when you're buying a water system. It works the same way. Jacuzzi equipment may cost a few dollars more than some of the racy little stripdown models, but Jacuzzi builds quality and dependability into it. That way you never wind up paying more for repairs than you did for a pump.

So, if you're buying a water system, see us. You could buy a cheaper system, but it would cost you more!

The first night they enjoyed an open air dinner and show at the Garden of the Gods in Colo. Springs, Colo. The following two days were spent in the Tetons and Yellowstone Nat. Park, with their own Park tour guide to point out all the highlights and of course Old Faithful. On to Mt. Rainer where snow was everywhere and the temp. was 40°. In Seattle there was a stop at Worlds Fair Grounds while the bus was being serviced.

In the succeeding 2 days the tour went through Canada with night stops at Prince George and Prince Rupert. At Prince Rupert all boarded the M.V. Malaspina, a ship of the Alaskan Ferry System for a day and night Cruise up to Juneau.

A call to the Missionary Pastor of First Baptist Church of Juneau brought an invitation to visit the church Sun. night and a social hour after services in his home. The Pastor sent transportation for the people. The Lottie Moon Christmas offering built the church.

When we reached Fairbands, Alaska, Maye Bell Taylor called her missionary friend who came to visit and take her to a meeting of the women of First Baptist Church. Here she spoke on Brazil, a social hour followed. The next night Miss Taylor and her room mate Erma Liles, had dinner with the missionary.

For the next 8 days the group was escorted by Westours throughout its stay in Alaska and the Yukon. This included tours of the cities of Juneau, Fairbanks, visits to museums, a side trip to the glacier fields, a ride on a sternwheeler with stops to see fish traps, salmon being smoked, furs being tanned. There was always time for shopping as they pleased.

A flight from Juneau to Fairbanks with a stop over at Anchorage gave them an opportunity to view the glacier fields and Mt. McKinnley from the air. Later with an entertaining Westours bus drive guide they traveled the Alaskan highway into Yukon Territory with frequent stops along the way. Some of the things they saw were the Alaskian pipe line, Santaland North Pole, Alaska and the ghost town of Silver City, Yukon Territory.

A highlight of the trip for most was the train ride from Mt. Whitehorse to Skagway, a 110 mile, 6 hr. ride around, through and over the mountains. The tracks were laid in slightly over 2 yrs., built with only hand tools and dynamite, to carry provisions for the thousands of gold miners rushing to the Yukon Territory in 1890's. The views were thrilling with thundering waterfalls, deep canyons, rivers, high trestle bridges, snow and at times a glimse of the old foot paths miners used before the railroad was completed. The next day was a relaxing fun day in Skagway which had been preserved to keep her old 1890 atmosphere with many of the old original wood buildings, boardwalks & dirt streets.

Two nights and a day on this same ship returned the group back to Prince Rupert, Canada where we boarded our own bus again for our trip back home.

Most thought the ride through the rugged Canadian Rockies, the Columbia's ice fields and Lake Louise the most beautiful sight of all. The following day took us through Montana, Wyoming, and Colo. and a stop at the U.S. Airforce Academy, where we saw the beautiful Chapel, New Mexico and their home.

Someone of the wild life we spoted in various areas included deer, antelope, elk, moose, whales and porpoise in the waters. In Juneau we enjoyed seeing the Bald Eagles, salmon spawning in streams.

The group returned July 29 after traveling 9,000 miles and enjoying every minute of the tour.

Grant Awarded To MBFA

The office of Representative George Mahon notified Land D. Wall, President of MBFA Foundation, that H.E.W. has awarded a contract in the amount of $90,000 for Home Health expansion in the Seymour and Abilene Provider areas.

The counties involved in the Seymour Provider are Young, Dickens, Motley, Haskell and Throckmorton. The three counties in the Abilene Provider are Coke, Runnels and Callahan.

This grant will provide RN's and LVN's to explain home health services to the public and to referral professionals such as physicians, ministers and agency staff serving the elderly and disabled. They will also work out procedures and agreements with local hospitals for an orderly transfer of patients to and from home settings. The grant will also expand the type of health services to be offered in these provider areas and will open up unserved and underserved areas to home health services.

Rule Fireman Attends School

Rush William Callan, volunteer fireman on the Rule Volunteer Fire Department of Rule, is attending the 49th Annual Texas Firemen's Training School July 23-28. The school, attended by nearly 1,750 students representing about 750 cities from more than 25 states, is being held on the Texas A&M University campus this week.

Firemen can choose their courses at the school from a list including Fire Fighting, Fire Prevention, Fire Department Officer Training, Fire Department Pump Maintenance, Specialized Fire Protection, and Disaster Rescue Training.

Fireman Callan is being sponsored by Haskell County Farm Bureau and Texas Farm Bureau Insurance Companies by contributing toward the cost of the school. Since volunteer firemen are interested in attending this school to help do a better job of fire fighting and fire prevention, 100 County Farm Bureaus and the Texas Farm Bureau Insurance Companies in the statewide program have sponsored 100 firemen at the school.

"The Farm Bureau Insurance Companies believe volunteer fire departments have been very effective in reducing the amount of loss involved by fire in rural areas," said President Carrol G. Chaloupka of Dalhart. "It is our hope in sponsoring this program that the fireman will help the Rule Volunteer Deparetment to better serve the residents of Haskell County."

Every person that drives any type of motor vehicle should take the National Safety Council's Defensive Driving Course. Well over nine million safety-minded drivers, who have already taken this course, have learned the principles of accident avoidance driving-literally a new way to drive.

The Staff of the Haskell Field Office of the Soil Conservation Service, along with those of the nine other field offices in the Abilene Area, completed this Defensive Driving Course this past week. This is our second go at the course, the first being three years ago.

As a part of the SCS Safety program, each employee is required to participate in this dynamic program. It is felt that, as Federal Employees, we should set an example by our driving techniques, attitudes, and performance on the road. Each participant in the course is also entitled to a 10% discount on auto insurance.

Haskell Field Office has passed the fifteenth year without a motor vehicle accident. This safe driving record can be attributed to our continuous stress on safety first, preventing accidents by driving defensively.

A preventable accident is one in which the driver failed to do everything he reasonably could have done to prevent the accident. Defensive driving is driving to prevent accidents in spite of the incorrect actions of others and adverse conditions.

The five basic elements of Defensive Driving are (1) Knowledge-study and know the traffic laws of our state. Become experienced. (2) Alertness-keep your attention on what you are doing. (3) Foresight-Anticipate what other drivers are likely to do. Try to foresee situations that could happen. (4) Judgement-Recognize your alternatives. (5) Skill-be able to control your vehicle.

American Ag News

by Bettye McBroom

We have received in the mail in the last month two forms, one from the federal government and the other from the Texas government. If you will read carefully the fine print, the one from the federal government states that it is a law that the form be filled out and returned. The one from the Texas government states that it is not a law but they wish you would comply and fill out the form and return it.

There is no law stating that these forms be filled out and returned. These forms are to get an estimate of how much is or will be produced in the coming year. The figures then are used to determine if there will be a surplus, and also what rate will be paid for that particular produce.

If you let your forms lie around the house, then you soon (within a week) will receive a card asking you to fill out the form sent previously to you. If you ignore this card then someone will call you and check to see what has happened to you and your form.

My suggestion is for you to write either on the form or in a letter and attach it to the form a letter to the effect that we no longer will furnish the government or Texas with such information to be used against the American farmer and rancher. When they decide to work for the American farmer and rancher and not against him, then we will again start to furnish the information needed, and until then, we choose not to participate in their program.

I mailed the one to the federal government about three weeks ago and have not heard another word from them. I mailed the one back to Austin this week, so they really haven't had time to answer my letter.

It is of my opinion that if the federal government would lie to us about it being a law and we must fill out the forms, then how many more lies are they feeding us? We need to watch them closely and call their hand on other things that are not true which they are putting out.

If you read something that you question, write to your Congressman and ask if they will check out the problem for you. This is part of their job, and after all, your tax dollars are paying their salary.

Area Producers Tour Cotton Inc. Headquarters

Twent-one cotton producers from the Rolling Plains region of Texas visited the Cotton Incorporated research center here recently to find out how their dollars are invested by the company to improve cotton markets and cut their production costs.

Cotton Incorporated is the fiber company of American cotton producers.

In their one-day visit, the Texans toured laboratory facilities and heard Cotton Incorporated officials detail the research and promotion work of the company.

Counties represented in the tour were Cottle, Collingsworth, Fisher, Hall, Haskell, Jones, Kent and Runnells.

At the conclusion of the trip, one tour member, ginner D.F. Miller of Memphis, commented: "We've always been interested in Cotton Incorporated and wondered just how our money was being spent. So we came up and went through their facilities and laboratories. We certainly understand now where our money's being spent and that it is being will spent. We're real proud of this trip."

One of the tour members, ginner Foy Mitchell of Memphis, admitted he had some reservations about the work of the company, but he came away impressed.

Said Mitchell, "We were invited up to Raleigh to see their facilities, and I was very much impressed with what they are doing. They seem to be doing a real good job of research and promotion of cotton products."

Another tour member, cotton producer Billy J. Holley of Paducah, explained that he made the trip "because we wanted to look at our facilities and see what Cotton Incorporated is doing to improve the sale of our products to the public."

"It looks real good," he concluded.

Said Davis Weaver, a cotton producer from Hamlin: "I was interested in where my approximately $2 a bale went. I wanted to see what kind of stuff was going on here. And I think they are doing a pretty good job at it. They're doing a lot more than I thought."

Cotton Incorporated officials from the agricultural research division told the producers about efforts to lower the costs of production through improved insect and disease control, better varieties, and by streamlining the harvesting-handling-ginning process.

The producers also heard Cotton Incorporated's Dan Troxler, associate director of supply economics, describe how the economists and potential demand and supply of cotton so producers will be in a better position to market their crop.

The group toured the company's product research lab, testing facilities, and dyeing and finishing lab, where they saw how Cotton Incorporated works to design new mostly cotton or all-cotton products for the textile market. They also heard about and saw new equipment developed by the company to cut the costs of using cotton for textile mills to make cotton more competitive with synthetic fibers.

Charles Lapidus, director of merchandising in the New York marketing office, explained to the producers the company's marketing and advertising strategies.

He told the group that through advertising the cotton seal had become the most widely recognized symbol of a textile product in the minds of the American public.

Commented one of the tour members, Carl Wischkaemper of Memphis, at the end of the visit: "I think they're doing a wonderful job. There are a lot of things going on that we didn't realize were going on in the way of research and new products that are coming out with new methods. I think they're doing a wonderful job of it."

Concluded another Memphis cotton producer, George Williams: "I came to see where my $2 a bale was being spent. It's been very informative, and I think we're getting our money's worth."

SAGERTON COTTON PRODUCERS eye knitting equipment---Delbert LeFevre, (left) a ginner from Sagerton, and Alvin Ulmer, a cotton producer from Sagerton, examine a warp knitting machine in the knitting lab at the Cotton Incorporated research center in Raleigh, N.C. LeFevre and Ulmer visited the center along with 19 other Rolling Plains cotton producers. Cotton Incorporated is the fiber company of American cotton producers.

Library News

There will be a story hour at the Library, Saturday, August 5, 1978 at 10:00 a.m. Presenting the program will be Miss Melissa Roberson. Please send your children.

Members of the Haskell County Library Board and friends of the library met Thursday afternoon, July 27, 1978 at the library with Mrs. Ada Howard, System Consultant. Mrs. Howard works out of the Abilene Public Library and this was her first visit to Haskell.

The needs of the library were discussed and several helpful suggestions were made by Mrs. Howard. Two important services of the library which the county needs to be informed about are:

FILM CATALOGUE...excellent films are available at no cost to the user for service clubs, schools, scout programs and youth groups. Mrs. Elsie McGee, Librarian has the catalogue and contacts the Abilene Library for use of the film. If interested, reserve early because this is a much used program.

BOOKS-BY-MAIL...a catalogue is available to shut-ins who are unable to come to the library, young or old, with a list of current and popular books. You order using a card in the catalogue from the Abilene Public Library and return the book in a mailer, postage paid. If interested, call Mrs. McGee at the library for a catalogue.

The Haskell Library continues to be the largest user of the extension loan service. Anyone who needs books not found in our local library may borrow from the Abilene Public Library through Mrs. McGee.

For interested Haskell County residents a copy of the Annual Report of Haskell County Finances, December 31, 1977 has been presented to the Library.

Those attending the meeting were: Mrs. Robert Wheatley, Mr. Raja Hassen, Mrs. Walter Kretschmer, Mrs. Wallace Cox, Jr., Mrs. Howard and Mrs. McGee.

Cardboard chewing cattle may become more common during the next few years. Researchers say cellulose in cardboard provides a much better diet for cattle than newsprint materials which were experimented with for several years. Giving the new product the title, "Rumose", promoters are pushing for acceptance of treated corrugated boxes as a viable feed supplement in the feedlot for commercial feeders. Developers advocate grinding or pelleting of the boxes, then mixing with whey (waste material from cheese making) or other materials to make the boxes more palatable. One of the key researchers for this project is Dr. John Campbell of the University of Missouri. Dr. Campbell says the process of manufacturing the boxes may increase their digestibility which "approaches or even exceeds the digestibility of common forages". For cattle, "box" lunch may take on a whole new meaning.

Predicting where oil spills move

AUSTIN, Texas (Spl.) Work being done by atmospheric scientists at The University of Texas one day may help predict where an oil spill will move and how long it will take to disperse.

Researchers in the Civil Engineering Department are devising an atmosphere boundary layer model to predict atmospheric stress at the ocean surface which moves an oil slick along. Key factors in the model are wind direction and speed, and the interaction between the ocean surface and the atmosphere which helps to break up a slick.

Although the study concentrates on the Gulf of Mexico, it is believed the model could be applied to the open oceans.

College News

Connie Frierson, a 1978 graduate of Haskell High School, has been awarded a $500 Keitha Morris Memorial Award scholarship by the Texas Interscholastic League Foundation. The award is made annually to the Best Actress in the Region IA One-Act Play Contest, held at Texas Tech University.

In addition to her drama credentials, Frierson competed in the UIL State Meet prose reading contest two years, placing fourth in 1977 and third in 1978.

In 1978, the Haskell troupe placed third at the State Meet One-Act Play contest and she was named to the all-star cast.

A member of the all-district, all-region and all-area bands, Frierson was named to the National Honor Society and served as president of the group two years. She was also a member of the annual staff, was Homecoming Queen runner-up in 1977, and a member of the girls' basketball team. She served as band vice-president, and competed in the UIL Solo & Ensemble contest.

Frierson plans to attend Texas A&M University and major in mathematics.

"Connie is among the finest of this year's high school graduates in Texas," said Dr. Rhea Williams, TILF secretary. "She has compiled an impressive list of academic and extracurricular achievements and we're most proud to have her among our TILF scholars."

However, don't start too soon--the waiting is harder on children than adults, says Dorthy Taylor, family life education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.
