Jaworski, St. Clair Clash Before Court

LUNCHEON COMMITTEE members Doris Erwin, left, Chamber of Commerce secretary, Georgia Coon, pageant chairman, and Mary Martindale, committee member, discuss plans for the lucheon that will be held in conjunction with the Miss Top O Texas beauty pageant Aug. 9. Tentatively, there are 36 entrants for the contest to be conducted at M. K. Brown Auditoruim.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Special prosecutor Leon Jaworski told the Supreme Court today that if President Nixon insists on defying court orders to yield Watergate information, America's constitutional goverment "is in serious jeopardy."

But White House lawyer James D. St. Clair countered by charging that Jaworski by design trying is trying to intrude the court into the legislature's impeachment process—and that was not proper.

Jaworski and St. Clair brought to the Supreme Court their arguments on whether Nixon is protected by executive privilege from federal court orders in connection with Watergate.

The case marked the high court's deepest venture into the issue of separation of powers among the branches of government, and also goes into the question of whether a federal grand jury can name a sitting president as an unindicted coconspirator in a criminal case.

Jaworski, leading off the historic arguments in the packed chamber, said: "This case goes to the heart of our basic constitutional system. In our view, this form of government is in serious jeopardy."

The prosecutor, appointed by Nixon to handle the investigation into the nation's most encompassing political scandal, said the bedrock issue in his efforts to obtain 64 presidential tapes and documents for the Watergate cover-up trials scheduled for September is "Who is to be the arbiter of what the Constitution says?"

St. Clair countered with the argument that Jaworski's case should be dismissed on grounds the Supreme Court would be injecting itself into the impeachment proceedings being conducted by the House Judiciary Committee.

"Only the legislature has the right to conduct in impeachment," St. Clair argued. "The special prosecutor is drawing this court into those proceedings inevitably and inexorably."

Only eight justices heard the case because one, William H. Rehnquist, disqualified himself because of his former associations with those charged in the case. Should there be a 4 to 4 tie on the matter, Jaworski's subpeona would remain in force along with the grand jury's naming of Nixon as a coconspirator.

Even as St. Clair was presenting his case at the Supreme Court, a White House spokesman again would not say whether Nixon would obey a court ruling. In response to numerous questions, Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said "it would be very wrong" for him to comment in any way on the dispute or its possible outcome while St. Clair was dealing with the matter at the court.

Senate Leaders Mike Mansfield and Hugh Scott said Nixon should abide by any Supreme Court decision. Mansfield said "any citizen should obey any ruling of the Supreme Court. It would be a duty." And Scott said "yes, he (Nixon) should not defy the Supreme Court if it is a clear opinion."

Justice Thurgood Marshall, drawing a ripple of laughter from spectators, remarked that if the Supreme Court dismissed the case on grounds it should not have taken it up in the first place, Jaworski's subpoena for Nixon's records would be left in force.

Nonetheless, St. Clair replied, "It should be dismissed, period."

Jaworski's appeal in the subpoena matter brought before the court the parallel issue of whether the Watergate grand jury was within its rights in naming Nixon an unindicted co-conspirator in the Watergate coverup.

The eight justices hearing the case questioned both Jaworski and St. Clair at length on their legal positions in the matter. One issue raised concerned St. Clair's argument that the legal dispute was between two arms of the executive branch—and thus was not within the court's jurisdiction.

Jaworski argued that the matter is not simply a litigation within the executive branch, since he expressly was given the power to challenge in court any assertions of executive privilege. He said he had this assurance both verbally from the President and in writing from Justice Department officials.

"What has evolved from the regulations is a prosecution force with certain exclusive powers," Jaworski said. "What we are saying is that we have a clear right to test this (executive privilege) in this Court."

Jaworski, asked about the grand jury action, said his office disclosed the naming of the President as a conspirator in order to bring out full facts in seeking an order from U.S. District Coirt Judge John J. Sirica for further White House evidence.

As for the President's refusal to honor the subpoena for 64 tapes and other records of White House conversations, Jaworski said: "He may be right in how he reads the Constitution. He may be wrong. If he is wrong, who is there to tell him so? What then becomes of our constitutional form of government?"

The effort by Jaworski to get the tapes is titled "The United States v. Richard Nixon, President of the United States." Nixon's effort to prove that no grand jury can name a sitting chief executive as a coconspirator was titled "Richard Nixon, President of the United States, Nixon v. the United States."

There was no indication when the court might hand down a decision following the three hours of arguments. The court has never before ruled on such a direct confrontation within the government.

Douglas said the grand jury was sending material to the House Judiciary Committee which is conducting an inquiry into whether grounds exist for he impeachment of Nixon, but Jaworski responded:

"The grand jury sent nothing incriminating to the House Committee."

IN ELLSBERG CASE

Ehrlichman Denies Any Involvement In Break-In

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former White House aide John D. Ehrlichman today testified that President Nixon ordered him to keep hands off covert White House "Plumbers" operations two months before the Ellsberg break-in.

Ehrlichman testified on his own behalf today in his trial with three other defendants on charges of conspiring to break into the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. He answered friendly questions by one of his four attorneys for 65 minutes.

Ehrlichman, who steadfastly has denied having prior knowledge that "covert" activity to plug leaks of national security matters involved anything illegal, said his involvement in the Ellsberg case ended about two months before the Sept. 4, 1971 break-in when the President told him to concentrate on domestic affairs.

"On the 2nd of July the President said to me — 'You get back to domestic policy stuff and leave the conspiracy and Ellsberg stuff to (Plumbers leader Egil) Krogh,'" Ehrlichman said.

Krogh was co-director with David R. Young of the plumbers team that was formed to find security leaks following Ellsberg's disclosure of the secret Pentagon Papers.

Ehrlichman pictured Young— a prosecution witness in the case after being given immunity—as wanting to have full charge himself. Krogh was given a leading role over Young despite title of co-directors of the group, Ehrlichman said.

Ehrlichman said before the Krogh-Young team got involved in covert activity it was assigned to act as "a prod, a goad" to keep other agencies vigorously investigating leaks. Ehrlichman said Nixon was particularly interested in learning whether Ellsberg acted alone or was part of a group.

The defense case, which began Friday, is built on the contention that Ehrlichman and the White House "plumbers" were following high orders to provide and disseminate psychological information about Ellsberg.

Young testified last week that in late March 1973, Ehrlichman sent word to him through secretaries that he wanted the Ellsberg file. Young said he got them back two days later with two paragraphs cut out of a memo. He said he had made duplicates beforehand and these showed the deleted words would tend to incriminate Ehrlichman.

Ehrlichman, speaking crisply and vigorously throughout his testimony, denied requesting the papers and said they remained untouched by him on a table behind his desk for two days before ordering them returned to Young because he was too busy to look through them.

Ehrlichman said that on March 22, the day Young brought the papers, he was busy conferring with Treasury Secretary George Shultz from a finance conference in Europe.

Shall We Dance?

KEY BISCANE, Fla. (UPI) — Despite a bout with phlebitis in his left leg and a traditional reluctance to dance, President Nixon took to the dance floor of a restaurant Saturday night.

His partner was 10-year-old Lisa Berry of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., and the band played "Thank Heaven for Little Girls."

As the dining room erupted in applause afterward, Nixon gave the little girl a low formal bow and they walked arm in arm off the dance floor.

The President had impulsively invited a hesitant Lisa to dance as he was leaving the dining room after having dinner with his wife Pat, his best friend, Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo, and Rebozo's frequent companion, Jane Lucke.

Despite his recent problems with a blood clot in a vein of his left leg, the President showed no sign of pain.

Lisa was wearing a long granny gown with pearls. Later, she said Nixon had told her she should see the movie "Gigi," which featured the song they had danced to.

Weekly Grocery Costs Increasing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Weekly grocery bills for a family of four on a low-cost diet rose to $43.90 in May, up 50 cents from April and $2.20 more than at the beginning of 1974, government estimates show.

The May food cost estimates, released today by the Agriculture Department, also showed that food price inflation since January has hit low and moderate income families harder than high income groups.

The estimates showed that May grocery bills, for four-person families on the "Economy" and "Low-Cost Plan" diets drafted by government nutritionists, were 5.3 per cent higher than in January. But weekly food expenses for four-person households able to afford "Moderate-Cost Plan" diets rose only 3.4 per cent for the same period.

For families following a "Liberal Plan" food budget, May costs were only 3.1 per cent above January, the report said.

The May increase in the cost of the sample diets followed a decline in April. The April drop was the first since last October.

Here are the costs of a week's food under the various diet plans from January through May, including the "Economy" plan which is used as the base for calculating benefits to needy people in the Food Stamp program:

Economy —January $33.36; February $34.48; March $34.96; April $34.70; May $35.12.

Low Cost Plan —January $41.70; February $43.10; March $43.70; April $43.40; May $43.90.

Moderate Cost Plan — January $53.20; February $54.80; March $55.10; April $54.50; May $55.

Liberal Plan — January $64.60; February $66.60; March $66.90; April $66.10; May $66.60.

The diet plans are all based on lists of foods which nutritionists say will give a family well-balanced meals and snacks for a week.

The difference in the four plans is in the kinds of foods included. The costlier plans use more high-priced meats.

A family of four including two elementary school children, for example, would get 11.5 pounds of meat, poultry and fish weekly if it were following the "Low Cost Plan" diet.

Under the "Moderate Cost" diet the same family would get 17.25 pounds of meat, poultry and fish, and 20.75 pounds would be used in the "Liberal" diet.

Quantities of foods in the various diets are based on surveys of the shopping habits of low, middle and high-income families.

Commissioners Study Taxation

The Gray County Board of Commissioners was scheduled to convene today as a board of equalization to consider the county's industrial roll.

Opening of the meeting was scheduled for 9 a.m.

On Wednesday the board will also convene at 9 a.m., the purpose of that meeting being to consider the "local" tax roll.

534 Traffic Deaths Counted In Holiday Toll

United Press International

The Independence Day holiday weekend death toll reached early today the upper limits of a preholiday estimate by the National Safety Council.

The council had estimated 450 to 550 persons —the lowest for a four-day Independence holiday in 24 years —could lose their lives in traffic accidents between 6 p.m. local time Wednesday and midnight Sunday.

The only lower council estimate for a four-day Fourth of July came in 1950 when council statisticians estimated 385 highway fatalities.

The roadway fatality count early today passed 520, but the official tally was not expected until later. Drownings also claimed a steadily rising toll over the holiday weekend.

By comparison, 800 to 900 fatalities were expected for the last four-day Independence holiday in 1972. The toll that year was 760 —an all time high for the holiday since the council began making holiday projections in 1947.

A United Press International count at 1 a.m. CDT showed 524 traffic deaths since the counting began.

A breakdown of accidental deaths:

Traffic	524
Drownings	159
Planes	8
Other	73
Total	764

California reported the highest number of traffic fatalities with 57 dead. Texas had 33 highway fatalities, Ohio 26, New York 25, Michigan 23 and North Carolina 22.

Earl Wilson

"Ten years ago," writes Nonnee Coan of Norfolk, "for $5 you got a big bag of groceries. For five bucks today you don't even get a bag" ... A youngster reported her teacher probably wasn't very bright: "All us kids got promoted, but the teacher's gonna be in third grade again next term" ... All that cooking, cleaning and laundering take some of the joy out of marriage — but some husbands do it without complaining. (For more laughs see Earl Wilson on Page 8).

Pampan Dies In Car Mishap

A Pmapa man, Claude Heiskell, 53, of 1325 Christine, was pronounced dead at the scene of a one-car accident which occured at 8 p.m. Sunday.

Texas Highway Patrol troopers said the accident occured 18.9 miles North of Pampa on Highway 70 in Roberts County.

Officers said Haskell was traveling alone, southbound on the Perryton Highway when his car veered from the roadway and struck a tree on the right-of-way.

The body was taken by Metropolitan Ambulance service to the Duenkel Funeral Home, where funeral arrangements are pending.

Justice of the Peace Nat Lunsford, acting in his capacity as coroner, ordered an autopsy to determine the cause of death.

There had been speculation that Heiskell had fallen asleep at the wheel or possibly had suffered a heart attack or other type of seizure.

At press time today the autopsy examination was underway, with the official report not yet available. (See obituary, Page 2.)

WITH DELAYS EXPECTED

Congress 'Losing Time' On Its Legislative Goals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With six months left in the 93rd Congress, and the prospect of an impeachment vote and trial, time is running out for the House and Senate to achieve the legislative goals it set 18 months ago.

A number of major goals announced for the 93rd Congress probably will have to be bequeathed to the 94th, which takes office in January.

In addition to delays that would be caused by impeachment, the prospect of a "veto proof" Congress is blocking some legislation.

Democrats and Republicans concede Watergate is going to cost the GOP in the fall elections and Congress may be in a position to override any veto of President Nixon's next year. As a result, some controversial bills may not be pushed hard this session.

Two major victims could be national health insurance and tax reform.

The House Ways and Means Committee has not yet approved either although it has been working on both.

A third bill that appears in trouble involves trade reform. The President can have it but only at the price of a rider denying Russia most favored nation treatment unless it permits unrestricted emigration of Jews.

Also in trouble, this time for a completely different reason than in the past, is a multibillion dollar package of federal aid to education.

Two major bills, however, appear headed for passage.

The House Administration Committee has approved a political campaign reform bill that includes strict limits on candidate spending and political contributions plus taxpayer financing of presidential elections. A similar bill has already passed the Senate.

The other bill, already worked out by Senate-House negotiators, is a broad reform of private pension programs.

Campaign and pension reform, plus possibly an omnibus housing bill, may stand as the major achievements that the 93rd Congress still can accomplish, barring a breakthrough on other bills.

IF THEY HOLD ON

Wheat Farmers Expect To Gain Higher Prices

United Press International

Some wheat farmers in the Southwest and West are betting they will get higher prices if they hold on to their wheat.

It has happened before with the wheat for future delivery on the Chicago Board of Trade selling for $2.61½ to $2.74 a bushel a year ago. Friday, the same deliveries ranged from $4.44 to $4.38 a bushel.

Adding to the farmers' expectation was the belief that the next crop report will show the hard winter wheat crop was below expectations.

"In the past two years, they have sold and watched the market go up later," Bill Nelson, executive vice president of the Texas Wheat Growers Association in Amarillo, said.

"Having had two years of a little better prices, he (the farmer) can afford to take a little more risk, Nelson said. "That's what they're doing."

So far, the farmers decision to wait has not had any immediate effect on bread prices to millers and commercial bakers.

"The cost of living average retail bread price rose every month of last year until it hit a high of 34.3 cents per loaf last April," a spokesman for the American Bakers Association in Washington said. "When it remained there in May we felt it had become stabilized. We'd like to see it remain there."

He said the millers' price does not always reflect the day-to-day price fluctuations and the price seems to depend more on longer term trends.

"A great deal of what's happened to the wheat market is concern about the status of the spring wheat crop in the northern states and the soybean and corn crops," said Morton Sosland, editor of the Milling and Baking News, a man widely regarded as knowledgeable in the grain trade. "Farm holding itself does not make for higher prices."

Country elevators report the typical farmer has sold only about 5 per cent of the wheat being delivered to elevators and that prices would be lower if they had sold 15 per cent, Sosland said.

Final Rodeo Plans Made On Top O' Texas Event

Plans have been finalized for the 28th annual Top o' Texas Rodeo in Pampa, July 31 - Aug. 3, with performances at 8 p.m. nightly, according to an announcement today by rodeo officials.

The Linger Rodeo Co. of Miles City, Mont., returning to Pampa to produce its second rodeo, is a rodeo family presenting good clean family fun and entertainment, officials said.

The family represents over 50 years experience in rodeo producing, contesting, and contracting rodeos throughout the Western United States.

From the opening ceremony, and the presentation of the American Flag, to fast action from the bucking chutes to top notch rodeo livestock, there "is left no doubt" in the minds of the spectators that they have seen a first class rodeo, officials added.

Pete Logan of Eagle Point, Ore., at the microphone will be describing the action. Logan has announced the National Final Rodeo eight times and is the only annoucer to handle New York's Madison Square Garden rodeo for ten years. Famed newscaster, Paul Harvey, has described Pete Logan as, "All American."

Miss Paula Davis, Miss Rodeo Texas 1974, will be appearing nightly in the grand entry. Miss Davis is a student at Tarleton State College, Stephenville, where she is a member of the Rodeo Club. She has won many honors in barrel racing and showmanship.

Among the special attractions will be D.C. Cogburn's comedy acts, including sheepdogs and monkeys, Minnie the Mule, and a brahma bull act.

Buck LeGrande has a number of comedy acts and is adept at fighting the bulls, which is always a crowd pleaser, officials said.

The Kid Pony Show, with events for ages 5 through 15, will be held Tuesday, July 30, with shows at 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.

Rodeo dances will be held nightly at 9 p.m. in the National Guard Armory building on the rodeo grounds.

Grandstand seats may be reserved by calling 669-3241 or writing Box 1942, Pampa, Texas.

Convention Begins Final Votes Round

AUSTIN (UPI) — Constitutional Convention delegates reconvened today to begin the final round of votes on the document they will ask Texas voters to ratify in November.

Convention President Price Daniel Jr. said the first vote on the final document as approved in a resolution by the submission and transition committee could come Wednesday or Thursday.

"That resolution may very well run over 100 pages," Daniel said. "I believe the delegates will want time—and justly so—to review the contents."

Today's session was devoted to perfunctory votes on fourth reading of nine constitutional articles which the delegates altered during the convention's second round of debate in June.

The delegates can not change the wording of the articles, only approve them and send them on to the submission and transition committee for inclusion in the final document.

When the convention receives the resolution to approve the entire charter it will need to obtain 121 favorable votes. A two-thirds majority, to send the constitution on to the voters at the November general election.

"It's got a lot of strong support and I still think there's a chance it'll get 121 votes on the first go," Daniel said last week.

However, he had earlier predicted it may take several attempts and several revisions by the submission and transition committee before the constitution is finally approved.

SURPRISE BIRTHDAY PARTY — The over 650 people attending the National Academy of Western Art banquet held recently at the National Cowboy Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center in Oklahoma City were all treated to a surprise happy birthday for one of the Center's best friends and benefactors, Mrs. D.D. Payne of Pampa. After all the awards were presented and the evenings activities were about to conclude, the nationally-known Olympia Brass Band of New Orleans, La., struck up "Happy Birthday" and paraded through the crowd to the stage with the birthday cake. While receiving a standing ovation, Mrs. Payne was escorted to the stage and invited everyone present to have a piece of the cake.

Australia Protests Latest Nuclear Test By France

CANBERRA (UPI) — Prime minister Gough Whitlam accused France today of setting off a new atmospheric nuclear explosion in the Pacific and said the blast was "a matter of deep concern" to the Australian government.

"The Australian government has reason to believe that France has exploded an atmospheric nuclear device early today," Whitlam said in a statement.

(In Paris a spokesman at the Foreign Ministry refused to confirm or deny the Australian report and said "No comment. We know only what we read in the newspapers.")

The test, the 37th set off by France in the Pacific since 1964, was believed to have been carried out at the Mururoa Atoll testing area 720 miles southeast of Tahiti.

"I wish to reiterate what I said on June 17 that this further action by the French is a matter of deep concern to the Australian government and that the feelings of the Australian government and the people of Australia against these tests have not changed," Whitlam said.

Whitlam's June 17 remarks came at the start of France's current series of atmospheric nuclear tests in the Pacific. Australia and other Pacific nations have attacked the French explosions sharply.

In Wellington, New Zealand Prime Minister Norman E. Kirk also said there was reason to believe France had exploded a second atmospheric device in the South Pacific. He would not say where the information came from.

Kirk said at a news conference there was also some evidence of fallout from the first French test June 17.

"I don't want to alarm anyone and the recording was very slight, but there is evidence that the tests do affect the level of radioactivity both here and in the territories near us," he said.

Kirk said he had received a reply from French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing in which Giscard "lays stress on France's decision to move the tests underground and this is a new element in the French position."

Tanaka's Party Taking Lead In Early Returns

TOKYO (UPI) — Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka's ruling Liberal Democratic party, relying heavily on its strength in conservative rural areas, took a commanding lead today in voting for the upper house of the Japanese parliament.

The opposition, led by the Socialists, scored best in big cities such as Tokyo following a campaign blaming Tanaka for Japan's more than 20 per cent inflation rate.

Projections indicated Tanaka's party would wind up with a small net loss of seats in Sunday's election, but still maintain its absolute majority in the 252-seat upper house of the Diet (parliament).

The upper house can delay, but not defeat, legislation passed by the lower house of the Japanese legislature.

Tanaka's position as prime minister was not at stake, but he had put his personal prestige on the line, campaigning strenuously for party candidates across the country.

An election defeat, however, would have hurt Tanaka's chances next year when he comes up for re-election as party president and prime minister, posts he has held since 1972.

In unofficial returns for 108 of the 130 contested seats, Tanaka's party won 57 posts to 51 for the opposition —Socialists 25, the Buddhist Komeito party 10, Democratic Socialists 4, Communists 6 and independents 6.

Press, radio and television projections said the prime minister's party would end up with 130 of the 252 upper house seats, a loss of four.

In the old house, the Tanaka party held 134 seats, Socialists 59, Komeito 23, Communists 11, Democratic Socialists 11 and independents six. The remainder was vacant.

Recent opinion polls indicated less than 20 per cent of the Japanese people thought Tanaka was doing a good job compared with 70 per cent two years ago.

Despite rain and drizzle, a record 73 per cent of the 76 million eligible voters cast ballots, topping the 1950 turnout for upper house voting of 70 per cent.

School Budget Study Planned

LEFORS — The proposed budget for the coming school year will be examined at the July 11 meeting of Lefors Independent School District.

Also due for discussion is the tax and the value of school district property as submitted by a private valuation engineering firm.

The board is expected to accept personnel resignations and to discuss replacements.

Dept. Answers 3 Fire Alarms

Firemen answered three alarms Sunday, with no injuries or serious damage reported.

At 3 p.m. a flooded carburetor caused a fire in a car belonging to Earl Snider, at 1900 Mary Ellen.

A grass fire along the Santa Fe Railroad right-of-way occured at 4:30 p.m.

The third call came at 4:40 p.m. when grease in a vent caught fire at the Pampa Country Club.

SOVIET REPORTS SHOW

Orbiting Cosmonauts Can Complain Like Astronauts

MOSCOW (UPI) — Col. Pavel Popovich whooped with joy at a soccer score and wished his daughter good luck on her school exams. Lt. Col. Yuri Artyukhin stuffed himself with cabbage soup, but complained of milk in his coffee.

The Soviet Union issued U.S.-style, human interest reports today on two cosmonauts orbiting the earth in a space laboratory and indicated the men might try to set a Russian record for manned space flight.

The Tass news agency said Popovich and Artyukhin, who blasted off July 3, were feeling well and in good spirits despite a couple of disagreements with Soviet ground controllers.

Tass said the two Soyuz 14 cosmonauts were spending their fourth day in space entirely in the Salyut 3 orbital station carrying out scientific experiments.

The news agency said ground controllers turned down a request by Popovich to listen to Saturday's Poland-Brazil soccer match because the excitement might upset medical experiments.

Tass said, however, the cosmonaut's first question after the game was, "Who won?" Told of Poland's 1-0 victory, Popovich let out a loud "war whoop."

Tass said Artyukhin complained to ground controllers because his coffee contained milk, but the two cosmonauts otherwise appeared to be happy with the food on their mission.

Popovich, a Ukrainian, took along a large supply of his favorite soup, borscht, eating some for lunch Sunday for the third day in a row, Tass said. Artyukhin, a Russian, stuck to his favorite, cabbage soup.

The official news agency said the cosmonauts' space menu for Sunday also included ham and bread, cottage cheese, black currants, cake and coffee.

The newspaper Kommunist Tadjikistan said a reporter who interviewed Popovich before the flight noticed the cosmonaut had written on his desk diary, "Call Natasha to wish her good luck in the exams."

The stay would surpass the 24 days spent on the first Salyut station in 1971, but would fall far short of the 84-day record set by the U.S. Skylab astronauts.

IN ELECTION

Trudeau Seeking To Secure Post

OTTAWA (UPI) — Canadian voters choose a new government today in an election brought about by the downfall of Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau over the issue of inflation.

Candidates in Trudeau's Liberal party need to win at least 133 seats to assure Trudeau's position as prime minister, but polls indicated neither the Liberals nor the other major party, the Conservatives, would win enough votes for an outright majority.

Trudeau and his 18-month-old minority Liberal government resigned May 8 after a defeat in the House of Commons on the budget. Trudeau was against using price controls to control inflation.

Despite the close outcome forecast by pollsters, both Trudeau and Conservative leader Robert L. Stanfield predicted they would win an outright majority.

In the 1972 elections, neither Liberal candiates nor Conservatives won a majority of seats, because minor parties got a total of 48 votes. Trudeau's Liberals maintained minority control of parliament by an informal alliance with the socialistic New Democratic party.

Inflation has been the major campaign issue, catching the attention of Atlantic Coast fishermen and western wheat growers alike.

Stanfield ran on a proposal to freeze salaries and prices for 90 days then impose more flexible controls for a maximum of two years. Trudeau opposed this, saying such controls did not work in the United States or Britain. He said inflation was a worldwide phenomenon.

Trudeau, whose earlier swinging bachelor image has faded into a more pragmatic approach, was seeking to regain the sweeping victory he gained when his Liberals captured 155 seats in the 1968 elections.

Cases Of Beer Reported Stolen

Theft of nine cases of Coors beer from a parked van was reported to police Sunday morning.

The incident occured at 2100 N. Wells. Entry was gained by removal of a padlock, which also is listed as missing.

A mobile office owned by Terry Haralson of Haralson Oil Co. was vandalized to the extent of $400 to $500. The incident was reported at 12 p.m. Saturday.

Three Charged For Possession

Three young men, one of them from Pampa and the other two from Amarillo, have been charged here with possession of marijuana and paraphernalia.

Police officers said a search of a car shortly after 7 a.m. Sunday in the 100 block of West Francis Street resulted in the finding of marijuana, several needles and syringes, a taped razor blade and a spoon.

The men were charged with possession but not placed in custody, pending results of laboratory tests.

Highway Patrolman Dies After Being Hit By Car

CLYDE, Tex. (UPI)—A highway patrolman talking on the median of an interstate highway to the driver of a car he and his partner had stopped was struck by another car Sunday and killed. Moments later his partner died of a heart attack.

John D. Oldham, 26, who was killed instantly by the impact of the car, was to be buried today at St. Judd Catholic Church in Mansfield, Tex. Oldham was married and had two children.

Funeral services for his partner, Harold Hambrick, 38, were to be held today at the First Baptist Church in Clyde, Tex. Hambrick was married and had four children.

The driver of the car that killed Oldham was arrested and officials said he could be charged with involuntary manslaughter.

According to the Department of Public Safety, the two officers stopped a car for unknown reasons less than a mile east of Clyde on Interstate 20 in West Texas. The driver stopped with his car partially on the median and partially in the inside lane of the interstate.

Both Oldham and Hambrick walked to the car to talk with its driver. The driver got out of his car and met the two officers at the right rear of the car. The second car hit Oldham as the officer was standing at this spot.

Moments later Hambrick had a heart attack and was pronounced dead on arrival at Hendrick Hospital in Abilene, Tex.

Oldham was born in Washington, D.C. He joined the DPS in Brady, Tex., and graduated from the academy April 6, 1973. He was assigned to Del Rio, Tex., upon graduation and transferred to Baird on Jan. 1.

Hambrick was born in Ackerly, Tex., He was a sergeant in the Abilene Police Department when he joined the DPS in June, 1967.

Chickweed, wild onions, May apples, pawpaws, persimmons, crab apples, butternuts, Jerusalem artichokes, mint, red clover, walnuts . . . the list of wild edibles that can be foraged in almost any American city goes on and on.

Wait a minute. Did I say "city"? Yep. City. For cantrary to what you may have thought, most of the really nutritious and toothsome foraged fare grows best not in the forest . . . but on cleared land in and around our population centers.

As a matter of fact, once you know how to begin looking for them, the chances are good that you'll be able to find 100 or more volunteer fruits and vegetables growing within a mile of your home . . . . even (or especially) if you live in the average neighborhood of almost any large or small town on this continent.

Nancy Bubel, who used to live in Philadelphia (she and her family have since moved out to a little "homestead" in the country), regularly foraged purslane, burdock, lamb's - quarters, dandelions, sorrel, chickweed, chicory, mildweed, wild cherries, blackberries and many other wildlings in that city.

Scores of other readers have written to tell me of equally successful forays they've conducted in towns all over the United States and Canada.

My all - time favorite harvesters of urban wild foods, however, are still Cathy and Sleepy Johnson. Just like the Bubels, the Johnsons now happily reside on a little farmstead in the country. . . . but they used to live in Kansas City, and many are the volunteer edibles they gathered there.

"Our foraging began just outside the back door with the dandelions in our yard," Caty says. "In the spring they supplied us with early greens for salads. We also steamed the leaves and served them with a little vinegar and lots of butter, salt and pepper.

"Later, in the summer, we picked hundreds of dandelion blooms and made them into wine with which to celebrate the following Christmas. During the fall we dug some of the plants, potted them and put them in the basement where they supplied us with 'blanched', mild salad leaves all winter. We even added roasted and ground dandelion roots to our coffee to make it go farther."

Cathy notes that she and Sleepy also gathered plantain (good in salads and as a potherb) and tart, lemony - lavored wood sorrel (which perks up a tossed salad or glass of cold tea) right from their backyard.

A hundred feet further from their Kansas City home, Sleepy and Cathy harvested milkweed pods in early summer (boiled in three changes of water to remove the bitter "milk," they're delicious).

Behind their property, the Johnsons found an elderberry patch that furnished flowers (or "elder blow," as some folks call the pretty, white blossoms) which were excellent in pancake and fritters. The berries from the same plants were dried, stored in airtight jars and used throughout the year in cakes, muffins, puddings and elderberry - apple pie.

Then there were the day lilies that had escaped from various and sundry flower gardens and begun to grow on their own. Cathy and Sleepy relished their crisp, pale - green young leaves just as the plants' foliage began to sprout.

The Johnsons also often ate their fill of unopened buds and just - opened flowers later in the summer. The buds are quite tasty, you know, when steamed and served with butter, and the newly bloomed flowers are really good when dipped in batter and fried.

Chicory — the blue - flowered cousin of dandelions — grows by the acre alongside a railroad that passes right through the middle of Kansas City. The couple roasted its roots, ground them and used them as coffee.

An empty lot a block from the place where Sleepy worked yielded all the curly dock and wild mustard (both delicious spring greens) that the Johnsons could eat.

And lamb's - quarters, of course, sprouted almost everywhere the coule looked. They used tender tip leavers of this last plant as a spring potherb or in cream - cheese - on - homemade - sourdough - bread sandwiches.

The list of wild edibles that Cathy and Sleepy Jonson foraged in Kansas City goes on and on . . . and there's no reason why you can't equal or better their success.

Get a guidebook from your local library (Euell Gibbons' books are as good to start with as any) or find an old -timer who can show you where to begin.

Use common sense, avoid gathering and eating any plants that you can't identify and always refuse to collect wild foods which might be polluted. Thousands of others are already reaping a rich harvest of free eats . . . a harvest that begins right there in your own backyard. you might as well get your share too!

For more detailed information about the Johnsons' foraging experiences, send 10 cents and a stamped, self - addressed long envelope to The Mother Earth News, Box 957, Des Moines, Iowa 50304. Ask for Rprint N. 48, "Free Foods!"

According to the International Labor Organization, at least two-thirds of the world's population live in rural areas and six of every 10 working men and women are engaged in agriculture.

Clothing Design Workshop Slated

LUBBOCK — Les Wilk, couture designer whom "Women's Wear Daily" has called the "darling of Southwest specialty shops," will lend his guidance to a three - week workshop in advanced clothing design at Texas Tech University.

The Dallas designer - manufacturer will spend the second week of the workshop on campus as a lecturer, demonstrator and consultant on problems in designing.

The workshop begins July 15 and will continue through Aug. 2 and will be condicted under the supervision of Dr. Eleanor Woodson, associate professor of clothing and textiles in the College of Home Economics.

The workshop is for graduate students.

The first week of the workshop will be devoted to instruction inflat pattern design and the use of power sewing equipment such as the single needle lockstitch machine the serger, and the blindstitch hemmer, all of which are basic to vocational school programs and to industry, Dr. Woodson said. Hand knitting macnines and Viking sewing machines will be available for use by the participants also.

Wilk will present his own style of designing, manufacturing and merchandising fashions during the second week and the third week will be devoted to application of information and skills to the designing or teaching by the individual participants, she said.

"This is the first time this type of workshop using power sewing equipment on campus has been conducted," Dr. Woodson said. "That feature and the participation and help of a fashion designer of national reputation such as Mr. Wilk are indicative of the moves our department and college are making to integrate industry with the college curriculum in the teaching of clothing and textiles."

In accepting the invitation to be one of the leaders in the workshop, Wilk said it fulfills a desire of his to work with college and university students and faculuty in the area of design of women's fashions.

Wilk's design credits include "everything from circus costumes to aquacades and musical comedites to Shakespeare." He opened the Les Wilk label five years ago after working for another dress manufacturer for six years.

Two seasons ago he opened a second label, the "L.W. Country Couture," with a designer approach to fashion sportswear.

He is the first recipient of the new Silver Fashion Award to be presented by Weiss and Goldring in Alexandria, La., one of the leading speciality stores in the South.

He was chosen to receive the first award by Harry Silver, the store's president, because Wilk's clothing "Has proved, season after season, to be not only in impeccable taste but also has epitomized what the gracious Southern woman has always envisioned as 'her image'."

Dr. Woodson urged that reservations for the course be made as early as possible. The class will meet in Home Economics Room 203 each Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. until 12 noon and all participants are urged to report for the first class session at 9 a.m. July 15.

Housing facilities are available in air - conditioned rooms in the residence halls.

For persons who cannot attend the full three weeks, a special problems course is being offered for the graduate who wishes to earn one or two credits to fulfill a special need, Dr. Woodson said.

Additonal information may be obtained from her through the Clothing and Textiles Department, Texas Tech University, Lubbock 79409 or by calling 742-7287.

LANDING RIGHTS

TEL AVIV (UPI) — El Al Israel Airlines will seek landing rights in five additional U.S. cities on the basis of a joint agreement between the United States and Isrel, an airline spokesman reported.

In additional to New York, El Al wants landing rights in Los Angeles, Miami, Philadephia, Boston and Chicago, the spokesman said. He said the carrier has been negotiating with the U.S. government for these rights since 1966.

Is it charity or is it sin?

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Le Roy and I have been married for 38 years, and during that time I have had proof that he cheated on me with 33 different girls. I suspected 14 others, but never had proof. I thought maybe time would slow him down, but it hasn't.

Last Sunday, Le Roy spent the whole day in his pickup truck hauling this girl's stuff from her apartment to a trailer court. He didn't make it home until midnight.

Abby, I'm a good Christian woman who loves the Lord. I told Le Roy I thought it was a sin for him to work on Sunday, but he said it wasn't work, it was an act of charity to lend a helping hand to a person in need.

This girl is not in need of anything but prayers, and I've been praying for her. I have also been praying for Le Roy.

Please ask your readers to pray for these two sinners, and tell me if you think Le Roy worked last Sunday, or was it charity? A CHRISTIAN

DEAR CHRISTIAN: Let's say it was charity on his part, and work on hers.

DEAR ABBY: A girl friend of ours (I'll call her Molly) is scheduled to get married in two weeks. She met the guy three months ago and has seen him only twice since. (He's in the service.) Molly is a bit of a screwball. She's 23 and he's 24. Nobody we know has ever met him. Molly is planning everything herself. Two other girls and I want to give her a shower, but I honestly don't think there is going to be a wedding. (Neither does anybody else.) Molly is a swell kid with a heart of gold, but she's done a lot of really nutty things, and we don't want to go to the expense and work of making a shower for her if the wedding never takes place.

She's not pregnant. We'd just make it a general shower. Please advise me so I can show it to the other two girls who are as puzzled about this as I am. MOLLY'S FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: Since there seems to be a question as to whether there will be a wedding, skip the shower. If Molly gets married, give her a gift and your best wishes at the wedding—and shower her later.

DEAR READERS: If you like contemporary poetry, get "America," a powerful and beautifully written and illustrated little volume by Jim Kavanaugh, in which he captures the idealism of the 40's, the pride of the 50's, and the disillusionment of the present. ("I love you, America, but not like I use to.")

I've given ten copies as high school and college graduation gifts and was thanked in superlatives by each recipient. It's only $3.95. If your bookstore doesn't have it, write to Karo Communications, 9010 Reseda Blvd., Northridge, Calif. 91324.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-address envelope, please.

WEDDING-ENGAGEMENT DEADLINE

The following deadlines and procedure on wedding stories will be as follows: For a wedding story to appear in a Sunday edition, information and picture must be turned in to the women's editor by 5 p.m. on the Monday BEFORE the wedding. All wedding stories submitted after that time will appear during the week. Engagement announcements must be submitted by 12 noon Wednesday to appear in Sunday's edition.

Monthly Project Activities Explained At Jaycee-Ette Meet

The Pampa Jaycee-Ettes held their regular montly meeting recently at Southwestern Public Service Co. The meeting was opened with the invocation given by president, Kerrick Horton, and the Jaycee-Ette Creed led by Margaret Milam.

Margaret Milam reported on the completion of the club's sales project a ways and means project to help with civic activities. Also during the month of June, the Jaycee-Ettes held a bake sale at the Flea Market at Coronado Center, and at the Hughes Building. Lynne McDougall was chairman of the bake sales.

The Jaycee-Ettes furnished transportation for the "Busy Bees" for their June meeting, and Margaret Milam provided transportation for the visually handicapped members needing rides.

Member served as hostess for the June 20 meeting of Senior Citizens, with Sharen Peoples, Nelda Lancaster and Alisa Lancaster serving sandwiches and cookies to 55 seniors. Members donated door prizes, and 12 were awarded during the meeting.

Lynne McDougall visited and provided refreshments to the Satellite School for the month of June.

The Jaycee-Ettes aided their Jaycee's at the annual Jaycee Memorial Day Rest Stop. They served coffee and soft drinks to holiday drivers who stopped. They also aided the Jaycees by helping to prepare and serve a spaghetti supper at the recent Jaycee Work Forum. The Pampa Jaycees hosted the event, and approximately 40 area Jaycees attended.

Trecia and Sharen recently traveled to the regular monthly meeting on the Amarillo Jaycee-Ettes. Trecia presented an orientation to the Amarillo Jaycee-Ettes on state programs and state officers. Kerrick and Trecia attended the area council meeting held in Amarillo on June 8, and Trecia also attended the "Round up" hosted by the Perryton Jaycee-Ettes in Amarillo on June 14.

A social is being planned in July for members and their husbands and prospective members. Trecia Saltzman is in charge of the social.

The Pampa Jaycee-Ettes are working on a scrapbook orientation to be presented to the White Deer Jaycee-Ettes on July 8 with Trecia Saltzman as chairman.

Four Jaycee-Ettes attended the Jaycee Ladies Night held at Furr's Cafeteria on June 26.

Kerrick Horton presented "Have Your Say," and Margaret Milam won the door prize, a bean bag game, to be donated to Panhandle Orphange in her name. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served to Kerrick Horton, Trecia Saltzman, Margaret Milamn Anna Mae Lancaster, Sharen Peoples and Nelda Lancaster.

BROILING

When broiling foods, leave the oven door ajar. Air circulation insures broiling — a closed oven bakes, Janice Garrett, homemanagement specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System explained.

Breakfast: The Cooler, The Better

Cool it at the start of a warm Summer day with a breakfast that promises to give you energy without taking a lot of energy to prepare. This is not the season to plan elaborate breakfasts that require a couple of burners plus the warming oven.

Here's the solution: cool, delicious milk shakes made with instant breakfast mixed in fresh, whole milk plus special flavorings.

Tangy Peach Shake

Combine 1 envelope vanilla instant breakfast, ⅓ cup peach yogurt and ¾ cup cold milk in a blender or a glass. Serve immediately.

Sunrise Shake

Combine 1 envelope eggnog instant breakfast, 2 tablespoons frozen orange juice concentrate and 1 cup cold milk in blender or glass. Serve immediately.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, JULY 9

Your birthday today: Opens your new year on a note of high hopes, expanding energy, fresh resources coming to reality. Discipline yourself to concentrate on your main projects rather than a scattering diversification program. Relationships must be guided with care and sensitivity. Today's natives are determined planners, always dreaming of some utopian perfection.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: In travel, avoid crowds and delays by starting early. Select work which gives you less exposure to the world at large; keep your own counsel.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Business deals are easier organized than personal financing. Important introductions are almost spontaneous, need only your will to reach forth.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Be alert and confident in your approach to sudden expansion. More responsibility seems inevitable; enter into it gracefully. Encourage all to greater self-confidence.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Now is a good time for organization of major projects, important contacts are there to cultivate, perhaps a new market for your special skills. Romance languishes.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Just enough "luck" tempts you into overdoing. Associates are full of wild schemes. Bring home symbolic gifts to express your deeper feelings.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Do what you can for friends but stay intact and on your way, so you can help yourself [and those friends] again later. Higher earning power is at hand.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Your activities come to general notice, not in the same perspective as you view them, but favorably. It's also time to speak at some length to those you love.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Keep your mind open for a wave of feelings, new ideas, inspiration. The main ingredients yet to put in are hard work and common sense.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Clarify your thinking on major projects—nearby observers disagree, distant contacts are all for your plans. Romance eludes pursuit for the moment.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Press onward with the overall program you've worked out. If one routine can't be followed, another can. Marital and home conditions can stand improvements.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: The state of the world takes your attention, perhaps to the point that you neglect the personal touches that make all the difference. Try for a little more balance.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: What seemed difficult or impossible yesterday now comes much closer to achievement. Tact and patience never go out of season among those you cherish.

Lots Of Scrubbing Required To Polish Tarnished Brass Objects

By HERMAN BAUM

Dear House Doctor:

I have a brass bowl that was given to me several years ago. I use it for holding fruit. I remember that the label on the box stated that the brass would never require polishing.

However, dark stains are appearing on the surface. I tried to remove these with brass polish, but it did no good. Please tell me how the bowl can be restored.

Mrs. R.F.A.

ANSWER — Perhaps you did not read the fine print, which, to be truthful, would have stated that the bowl would never require polishing if it were left in the box and not used.

All brass goods are portected by lacquer to prevent tarnishing. The better the quality, the thicker and move durable is this lacquer coating.

Quality brass lighting fixtures almost never tarnish, but, in time, the lacquer will be worn from objects that are washed frequently, then they tarnish.

If any spoiled fruit was allowed to remain in the bowl, the acid in the fruit would certainly be a contributing factor.

The first step in polishing any brass object is to remove the lacquer with lacquer thinner. If practical, the object should be submerged in the thinner, but with more effort, it may be washed off with cloths saturated with the thinner. Lacquer thinner is highly flammable, so it is best to work outdoors.

Once the lacquer is off, the brass may be polished with any good brass polish, but you must wear cotton gloves while polishing to protect the polished surface from the oil in your skin.

Those dark brown or black stains may respond to polishing as described above, but often they present a problem.

The can be easily removed by the use of an electric buffing wheel and an abrasive material known as "tripoli." Once the stain is out, the area is polished with jewelers' roughe on the buffing wheel.

Buffing wheels may be placed on bench grinders or radial saws, or you may even chuck one in a portable electric drill. Hold the drill securely in the vise or in a holder made for this purpose. Do not forget to wear the cotton gloves.

Automobile body cleaning compound may also be used to remove these dark stains, but this will not restore the high gloss of the metal.

Another method that requires more labor is to glue chamois to small wood strips and use these with the tripoli and rouge.

After the stain is removed, the surface must be protected by lacquer. The quality lacquer used by the brass goods manufacturers may be impossible to buy in the small quantity you require.

The best that you can do in this case is to use the clear lacquer available in aerosol cans. Apply a very light coat, let this dry, then apply another. Not less than three coats should be used.

Remember not to touch the brass with bare hands until the lacquering job is complete.

OUTPATIENTS' CLINIC

H.P.M. — There are special products available for removing mildew stains from light-colored roofs. If one is not available in your area, was with a strong solution of trisodium phosphate and water.

K.O.S. — If you are certain that the water coming down the inside of your chimney is soaking through the bricks above the roof, this area can be waterproofed by applying transparent silicone waterproofing to the chimney.

PEELING PAINT

Dear House Doctor:

I painted the facia board around my house a few months ago and it is already peeling off. There is a tar and gravel roof above the facia. If water is causing this trouble, please tell me how to correct it. J.K.

ANSWER — There are several possible causes of this trouble. If the facia was previously painted with oil paint and then you applied exterior latex paint, this could be the cause.

Lack of sufficient ventilation in the attic may be responsible for humidity build-up so that moisture penetrates the facia, causing the paint to blister.

On tar and gravel roofs, there may be a defective seal between the roofing felt and the metal gravel stop along the edge of the roof so that water is leaking down behind the facia.

WATER PIPE EXTENSION

Dear House Doctor:

I have a water faucet outside my house at the rear, but I need one nearer the front for washing the car. I cannot afford the price that a plumber quoted. With your help, do you think I could do this myself? G.P.

ANSWER — Installing copper pipe is even easier than losing an argument with your wife. We have a new illustrated bulletin that tells you everything you need to know except how to dig a trench in which you will bury the pipe, if that is the way to intend to rout it.

For a copy send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 20 cents in coin to The House Doctor in care of Register and Tribune Syndicate, Des Moines, Iowa 50304. Ask for Bulletin No. G-19.

SPRAY PAINTING

Dear House Doctor:

My six-year-old home is clapboard painted with latex paint. I want to repaint it this summer, and am considering spraying instead of brushing. Do you think this is practical? R.C.G.

ANSWER — Spray painting is practical providing you are willing to invest around $200 for the necessary equipment. Consider also the problem involved of protecting windows, patio floors, and everything else in the area that you do not want the spray blown onto.

WATER HEATER

Dear House Doctor:

We have an extra gas water heater that we would like to install in our cottage in New Hampshire, but there are no gas lines in the area. Can this heater be converted to operate on bottled gas, or electricity? — Mrs. J.N.

ANSWER — The water heater can be converted to operate on bottled gas, but not electricity. The cost of the changeover should be nominal.

For your copy of the booklet, "Wood Fences You Can Build," send 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to The House Doctor, in care of Register and Tribune Syndicate, Box 957, Des Moines, Iowa 50304.

DANGEROUS HABIT

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — To would be gasoline siphoners, the word is DON'T.

Medical experts say even a small amount of gasoline swallowed or inhaled can make a person very ill. In some cases, it can be fatal.

Also, the slightest spark or flame—such as a water heater pilot light in a garage—can trigger an explosion.

If a person must transfer gas from one car to another in an emergency, it is recommended that it be done in a well ventilated area, away from any flame or electrical device.

A final word: Use a mechanical siphon, never your mouth.

For cold days come winter, don the newest in gloves—the knits, sometimes trimmed in leather. Cuffed knit shorties and sweater knits come in all the bright colors.

Stroke Victims Need Attention

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: People have been warned not to move accident victims unnecessarily (I've seen a case, I believe, where they should have been told that). Doesn't the same apply in case of a stroke?

My husband had a stroke. I called the doctor and an ambulance and reassured him but left him lying there for the ambulance men to handle.

Of course the fact that he weighs twice as much as I do had something to do with my good judgment. At any rate he was recovering and home in four days.

Isn't it a mistake to pick up the victim and seat him on a chair, as they did to someone I knew? Maybe she would have died anyway, but I don't think that moving her helped. People seem to think we "must do something." — L.S.S.

You are entirely right. True, it's a human desire to want to "do something," but within certain limits the less you do the better. Doing something seldom helps, it can do substantial harm.

For either an injured or a stroke victim, the collar should be loosened, the head turned to one side to avoid "swallowing the tongue" and obstructing the airway, and possibly the head may be raised on a pillow.

But that's about all — except, of couse, if the victim should fall against a hot pipe, a radiator, stove, or such hazard, move him gently.

Other than that, wait for the docotr to decide what to do. Because there is little to be done immediately for a stroke victim except exactly what you did. Getting him up on a chair is totally pointless. He's better off lying down and being kept calm.

In violent accidents, pressure ought to be applied to stop heavy bleeding and, if you know what you are doing, a tourniquet may be needed, but clumsy tourniquets can do more damage than good.

And if there are bone fractures, by all means, the least movement possible!

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 15 and have tried different advertised products to make my hair grow. Is ther any special cream or medicine to make it grow long? I'm fed up with these advertisements. I've tried everything. You name it, I've tried it. — L.F.

Most of us have a "natural length" and when hairs heach that length, they break off and new ones start to grow. I'm sorry, but I just don't know of any way to change this. But the great number of patent "remedies" advertised would indicate that a lot of people keep hoping.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I read in your column about the hairless chest. I am married to a man whose chest is "bald." He was being teased by a bunch of hairier friends and it was my pleasure to put a stop to it.

I simply siad, "Any ordinary male can grow hair on his chest but it takes a real man to keep it worn off!" Perhaps this could be of use to other barechested men. — D.J.B.

Consider the idea passed on.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 64 and have diverticulosis. My doctor has me on a bland diet and medication. I got up at 4:30 this morning with cramps. The longer I lie the worse it gets.

After I eat and walk around I'm all right. I would like to know why I get cramps early in the morning and not during the day. — Mrs. I.M.

An accumulation of stool and gas in the colon could cause morning cramps. The apparent reason for being free from cramps the rest of the day is that your morning bowel movement relieves the pressure and distension in the colon.

Perhaps you could alter your eating habits slightly, for example avoid heavy evening meals or late night snacking, if you are used to that.

Diverticulosis is a bulge in the digestive tract. To learn more about is, write for Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Don't Let Diverticulosis Throw You," care of him Dr. George C. Thosteson at Box 1400, Elgin Illinois 60120. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

Found In N.Y.: Something Free

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — People - watching is free. It's people - watching time again in New York and all over the world.

The best people - watching, I sincerely believe, is right here on 9th Ave. and 6th Ave. at noon, when the pretty secretaries and salesgirls are out wiggling down the avenues, and at going - home time, from 4 to 6, on 57th St., 2nd Ave. and 3rd Ave., where many a guy or girl intending to go home, doesn't go home.

There's a livelier kind of people - watching around Broadway and 7th Ave. on Saturday and Sunday when the mounted cops spur their horses among the movie - going crowds waiting to see "Chinatown," "Claudine," "Three the Hard Way," "The Exorcist," "For Pete's Sake" — and a few blocks away on 54th St., the MGM hit, "That's Entertainment!"

Times Square has the funniest - looking people to watch, even a flea market, and Shubert Alley, and stage doors. But repeating what I said first: The price is right.

"Hello, Earl's Pearl!" said Jackie Gleason from Miami. "I'm in training, I'm dieting, I'm not drinking, for my new NBC series, 'Panama Gargo' is a guy who can outhustle anybody at anything. It's very dramatic. I'm doing it for Norman Lear, we'll shoot it right here in Florida." We pressed Jackie about not drinking and he said:

"Oh, yes, I'm getting into a lot of bad habits."

"Why Girls Fall For Men Of Experience," screams a London paper, saying that Gregory Peck at 58 gets a thousand fan letters a month from women, that Sexy Rexy Harrison still is, and that Cary Grant at 70 might marry again (he says No!)

"They like the experience the men bring to them," is the answer.

Peck said the President Nixon told him at a dinner that he loved him in "Friendly Persuasion" — that the President thought he was Gary Cooper who was dead 12 years but decided not to tell him his mistake. As far as Peck knows, Nixon still thinks he was Gary Cooper.

Nudity is increasing: Paloma Picasso, "the naked millionairess," illegitimate daughter of Pablo Picasso and heir to his fortune, is coming here to continue a film career she started in Europe. She's called "the naked millionairess" because in her first film she was spectacularly nude frontally ... Mary Martin was in Pearl's eating everything on the Chinese menu. She's taken a Palm Springs home and will work again, she says, "when I get my life settled" ... David Frost is talking to Paramount today about "Lead Belly," the film he'll produce in Louisiana and Texas.

THE MIDNIGHT EARL...

Ailing Harry Hershfield celebrated his 89th birthday slightly in advance at Mama Leone's. "Don't you think you should go home?" his nurse kept asking and he said "No!" ... Robert Preston, Bernadette Peters and Lisa Kirk appear to have a big hit in the David Merrick musical "Mack and Mabel," now in LA butdue to hit Broadway about October ... Ann Keinking, a dancing doll in "Over Here," is around Seafare and other spots with Bob Fosse.

Burt Reynolds told an interviewer, "I don't like to talk about my singing. I made an album and the buyers are using it as place mats" ... Martha Mitchell's been asked to write a column about the Washington political scene (for Pageant) ... Candy Bergen's old film "Soldier Blue" will be re-released (after the gorier scenes are cut out, for a PG rating).

Show Biz Quiz: Who starred in the Peter Gunn and Mr. Lucky TV series? Ans. to Friday's: Wally Cox's co-star in "Mr. Peepers" was Tony Randall.

The N.Y. police dept. is putting more men in the Times Sq. area. It's being done without publicity because, a cop explained, "Otherwise, everytime some guy gets robbed in Staten Island, he says, 'it wouldn't have happened if you didn't have all your men in Times Square.'"

MGM wants Dean Martin to take the Clark Gable role in a remake of "Any Number Can Play" ... Lun Far, the Sixth Ave. restaurant where Marlon Brando was sometimes staked to a meal when he was broke, closed after 40 years ... Monticello Raceway adds a discotheque Friday. (The first track for trotters and dancers) ...

I'D RATHER BE LIGHT TODAY'S BEST LAUGH:

A recently divorced actor announced he'd soon remarry, and a friend exclaimed, "Already?" "Listen," snapped the actor, "the apartment's filthy!"

Under Twenty

by KURT LASSEN

"Do you wnat some grease?" Bowzer proffered a tube from which he was greasing his hair and molding his duckbill.

He looked like someone who had stepped out of the Fifties — not necessarily a rock star, but someone definitely out of the Fifties. He and Denny Greene, one of the original members of Sha Na Na, were trying to explain what the group was and why they've been filling halls wherever they play.

Along with Donny and Tony Santini (both originals) Johnny Bowzer and Denny are singers and entertainers with the ten-man group which has been projecting a 'Fifties image for the last five years.

Their latest album, "Hot Sox," is climbing the charts. The artwork on the jacket definitely looks pre-Beatle and the sound is hard rock and as hard to describe.

"I'm to blame for the 'Hot Sox' title," Bowzer told us. "I wear wild sox I have specially made."

We asked to see and were disappointed to see a rather ordinary pair of gym sox atop his sneakers.

"Oh, I only wear them on the show, but they're wild!"

The sound of the group is only reminiscent of the 'Fifties not by any means a copy of sounds of the era. It's more sophisticated, move together and the individual musicianship is many cuts above the nostalgic sound of that era.

Responsible for it are Rico on guitar, Screamin' Scott Simon on piano, Chico on bass, Lennie on saxophone and Jocko on drums.

The music, however, is only a part of their story. Sha Na Na were among the first (and they've since been heavily copied) to combine exciting entertainment with their music. Their performances are productions.

"We actually work out every detail of our production numbers," Denny told us. "We work hours, not only on the arrangements but also on the choreography. There's a reason for what we do and how we do it and it's geared to entertain the audience at the same time they listen to our music."

Part of the act is when a few members of the band go down into the audience, select some dancing partners and conduct a dance contest complete with the selection of a winner by the traditional applause — measurement method.

"It gets us involved with the audience," Denny says. "We aren't just some bunch of guys a mile away on a stage. We try to involve the audience in every way we can so there isn't that invisible barrier between us."

Denny is bright and perceptive. Bowzer is quick and born kidder. It was decided to talk to just two of the group because "nobody could possibly carry on a conversation with all of us and keep his sanity."

It was almost hard enough with the two! Bowzer brough forth his famous chain, his favorite prop. He's the butt of the jokes of the rest of Sha Na Na right from the opening. He comes out and flexes his not-too-developed muscles and pulls as if to break the chain, accompanied by loud boos from the rest of the group.

One can understand the boos after looking at his chest, which looks as if it just grew and grew and grew. The problem is it grew inward instead of outward and he looks about as much like a strong man as a tippy toe ballerina.

"Boos are not uncommon in the group," Bowzer told us. "When we're working on new material and someone comes up with an idea that just doesn't make it he really gets booed down. We're just as likely to cheer and clap when we think it's got a chance."

"Now that the new album is behind us," Denny said seriously (which is the way he talks), "we've got to put together a new act for our summer schedule. It's packed and we don't want to go out and do the same thing. Some of our 'clasics' we'll have to leave in, but we're constantly changing to keep it fresh and keep ourselves awake."

Sha Na Na are awake, wide awake. They're riding a 1970's version of the 'Fifties and they're riding it high. Their schedule has taken them around the world and it's booked solid for the summer.

They don't mind having been copied by a score of other groups because there is only one version of Sha Na Na and that's the original.

The Panhandle Okies League consists of Guymon, Hooker, Houghoton and Elkhart, Kan. The Eastern Panhandle League is Wheeler, Miami, Lefors and Shamrock. The Top - O - Texas consists of Perryton, Booker, host Follett, Darrouzett, Canadian and Beaver, Okla.

"We have to go up there and play sound baseball," said Pampa Manager Wayne Ledford, who will have Davis Sims and Leon Peeler as coaches. "Whenever you have a 15 - year - old tournament, you don't find a weak team.

"I believe the kids think they can win, but I don't think they're overconfident."

Pampa has been established as tournament favorite.

The All-Stars most recent action was an 8-7 loss to the Pampa American Legion team Friday night in Optimist Park. In the contest, Ledford used four pitchers — Tommy Washington, Brian Bailey, Joe Davis and Gary Bolch.

"All of the kids looked pretty good. It was a pretty good ball game, a pretty even game. We started out ahead," said Ledford.

All-Stars are Bailey, Eddie Brown, Hank Jordan, Davis, Washington, Randy Britton, Doug Burns, Scott Dunn, Mike Lancaster, Mark Ebenkamp, Mike Knutson, Curtis Haynes, Bolch, Johnny McBride and Jeff Skinner.

West Germans Capture Crown

MUNICH, Germany (UPI) — Gerd Mueller, kneeling on the field, head thrown back in a gesture of joy, arms raised in relief and jubilation, told it all as the final whistle sounded. West Germany had won the World Soccer Cup.

Mueller — "Der Bomber" — probably had more reason than most to be happy about the result. It was he who scored the winning goal — for the 21st time in his international career — giving the home side a 2-1 victory over Holland.

The flying Dutchmen, before a capacity 75,000 crowd in the Olympic Stadium, came down to earth with a bump Sunday.

The happy-go-lucky, orange - shirted individualists were not able to put together the flowing, open, lethal football that took them from nowhere to favorites.

West German manager Helmut Schoen said Holland was too confident.

Johan Cruyff, the Dutch captain, had another explanation: "We played like schoolchildren" for much of the time.

It was a bizarre match — more guarded than any sporting event has ever been; watched by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger; exploding with a penalty before a West German had touched the ball; equalized with another penalty, and all over — in goals at least — by half-time.

For the winning Germans, there was a fortune in advertising contracts for each player. For the Dutch, the chance to fight again — though experts doubted another such team could be assembled.

"Our team was the best in what counts most in present-day football," said Schoen said afterwards. "That is the determination to fight and run for 90 minutes. Holland was too confident before the match. This helped us to win".

Probably, however, it is Holland, rather than West Germany, which will be remembered as the team of 1974.

It was a team that arrived unheralded and low in the betting odds. It set the tournament aflame with its first match — a flowing 2-0 victory over Uruguay, then proved this was no fluke with scintillating football against Sweden and Bulgaria, as West Germany labored against Australia and lost to East Germany.

Holland, guided by the master Cruyff, improved as the contest went on, smashing Argentina, 4-0, and East Germany, 2-0, before knocking out the champion, Brazil, in a savage encounter, by the same margin.

Legion Team Falls To Plainview, 14-9

Plainview scored five runs in the top of the 10th inning and sent the Pampa American Legion baseball team reeling to defeat 14-9, Sunday afternoon at the Pampa Optimist Park.

Pampa had come from behind twice in the game, once in the seventh and once to tie the game in the ninth after Plainview had gone in front by two.

The loss gives the Rebels the 6-10 season record and 5-8 conference mark with only three games remaining. Pampa travels to Caprock Tuesday (7 p.m.), hosts Canyon Wednesday (8 p.m.) and visits Hereford Sunday (4 p.m.).

Plainview jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the top of the first. Pampa scored once in the inning as Mike Adair was hit by pitcher Freddie Longoria which forced in Bobby Chance with the bases loaded.

Plainview made it 4-1 in the third. The Rebels got single runs in the fourth and fifth to make it 4-3. In the fourth, Kory Gamblin singled, advanced to second on a base hit by Larry Petty, to third on a ground ball by Mike Fraser and a home on a sacrifice fly by Robby Harris. In the fifth, Adair knocked in Roy Morris with a single.

Down 7-3 in the sixth after Plainview scored three in the top half of the inning, Pampa scored an unearned run when Fraser grounded to first and Kory Gamblin came home as the first baseman could not handle the ball.

Pampa tied it in the bottom of the seventh as Chance, Morris and Mark Adair scored after getting the bases loaded as the Mustangs committed two errors.

Plainview managed two runs in the ninth and then the Rebels tied it in the inning. With two outs Gamblin walked and scored as Petty smashed a double to left center. Fraser scored Petty with a line single up the middle to send the game into extra innings.

The losing pitcher was Fraser, who was relieved in the 10th. He gave up 14 runs on 11 hits while walking six and striking out 14. Fraser is now 2-2 for the season. Rance Young, who relieved Longoria in the sixth, was the winner.

Pampa's leading hitters were Chance and Petty, who both went two for four, and Fraser who got two hits in five trips.

Plainview outhit the Rebels, 11-9.

"We showed some character in never giving up. We came from behind twice to tie them, but missed some opportunities to win. Plainview played good ball," said Rebel coach Dan Hood following the contest.

Texas Horse Ruidoso Winner

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N. M. (UPI) — A Texas filly named Azure Teen took away the winner's share of the $377,960 pot at the end of the 1974 Rainbow Derby.

The 8-1 shot enriched her owner, Richard Harper of San Antonio, by $124,195 in first place money by edging Timeto Thinkrich by a nose in the 10th running of the derby at Ruidoso Downs Sunday.

Leading a field of 10 finalists with previous earnings totaling $1,203,357, Azure Teen finished the 440-yard course in 21.78 seconds, paying 18.60 to win, 8.00 to place and 3.80 to show.

At the halfway point jockey Wayne Morrison began driving the filly to a hard finish that wiped out a lead of a lenth enjoyed by Timeto Thinkrich, which went off at 3-2 in the betting.

Pass Over, the 2-1 betting favorite, had been in close contention midway in the dash, bjt that colt faded to fifth in the finish.

Timeto Thinkrich, a California horse owned by Los Alamitos Track executive Frank Vessels, took home second place money of $59,673, with Mr. Hay Bug finishing third and collecting $30,955.

Chick's Dimple was in sixth plce after Pass Over, followed by Twin Jet in seventh, Tenci's Jet in eighth, Rose Bug in ninth and Easy Jet in seventh, Tencie's Jet in eighth, Rose Bug in ninth and Easy Jet Arrive, which collected $12,680 for its last place finish.

TALLEST PLAYER

SEATTLE (UPI) — Tom Burleson, of the Seattle Supersonics, who stands 7 feet, 4 inches, will be the tallest player in the National Basketball Association next season.

STARS SIGN DOWLING

OAKDALE, N.Y. (UPI) — The New York Stars of the World Football League have signed New England Patriot back-up quarterback Brian Dowling to a multiyear contract beginning in 1976.

A former standout at Yale University, Dowling joined the Patriots in 1970 after failing to make the grade with the Minnesota Vikings who drafted him in 1969.

Olympic Heads Meeting To Find Coach For 1976

DURHAM, N. C. (UPI) — The United States Olympic Committee meets here this week to choose both a head coach and a way of selecting a team for next spring's Pan American Games scheduled for Sao Paulo, Brazil.

Also likely to be high on the USOC's agenda is a review of the United States' performance against the Soviet Union in the weekend's dual track and field meet — a performance that saw the U. S. men win, as usual, while the American women lost, as usual.

"They were all class athletes and a gutty bunch," was the tribute paid to the U.S. team by men's coach Jimmy Carnes of Florida, whose own performance certainly helped put him in the running for the Pan American Games coaching position.

The U.S. men, thanks to three winning efforts from Tennessee sprinter Reggie Jones and meet record performances from Rick Wohlhuter in the 800 meters and Dick Buerkle in the 5,000 meters, outscored the Soviets, 117-102, for their ninth triumph in 12 dual competitions against the Russians.

The Russian women, paced by Lyudmila Bragina's world record of 8:52.1 for 3,000 meters, lived up to their favorites role by winning nine of the 15 female events to coast to an easy 90-67 victory — their 11th team win — and help the Soviets to an overall 192-184 triumph, their ninth combined win.

"The training facilities in the United States are not comparable to those in Russia," noted U. S. women's coach, Will Stephens, "but we are making headway. The women do not do as well as the Russians because the training and discipline methods are below those in Russia."

Of the six American women triumphs, the most impressive one was turned in by Mary Decker, 15, Garden Grove, Calif., in the 800 meters. The 99-pound teen-ager, who usually dines on spaghetti prior to a race, lowered her own meet mark by six-tenths of a second to 2:02.3.

Wohlhuter, a 25-year-old insurance adjuster from Chicago and a good bet to break the world mark in the men's 800 meters, produced a 1:44.0 clocking for his specialty while Buerkle, a 26-year-old high school teacher from Rochester, N.Y., was timed in 13:26.1 for 5,000 meters.

The meet produced two controversies and protests, the first of which the United States lost on Friday when Tom Byers of Ohio State claimed he was tripped while leading the 1,500 meters.

But the Americans gained some consolation on Saturday when the apparent Russian winner of the 3,000 meter steeplechase was disqualified for interference and Jim Johnson of Seattle was awarded first place.

Duo Comes Home With Vow For '75

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Wimbledon tennis men's singles champion Jimmy Connors followed girlfriend Chris Evert, the women's singles champion, home to the United States today — leaving with a promise they'll return in 1975 to try to become the first married couple to win the titles.

Miss Evert, 19, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., returned Sunday with the Wimbledon women's laurels and $16,800 prize money for swamping Olga Morozova, the first Russian woman to reach the finals, 6-0, 6-4.

Connors, 21, gained the men's title and $24,000 by beating Australian Ken Rosewall, 39, in the finals Saturday, 6-1, 6-1, 6-4 — making him the youngest Wimbledon champ since 1956.

Resting Sunday after the traditional Wimbledon ball where they danced the first dance to "The Girl That I Marry," Connors said they would announce later the exact date of their planned November marriage.

Reflecting on his overpowering win over Rosewall, who played Wimbledon when Connors was still a toddler, the young champ said he had dreamed of winning "the greatest championship in the world" since he was six.

Connors used a strategy developed by his coach, Pancho Segura. It called for him to take the ball on the rise, drive flat and deep and, at all odds, keep the ball in play using the lob to force his man back from the net.

Connors tested the technique in a quarter-finals with defending champion Jan Kodes who showed it could be penetrated with short angled ground strokes.

Angels, Williams Lose Eighth Successive Time

United Press International

Dick Williams left more than Charlie Finley behind when he moved down the California coast from Oakland to Anaheim.

He got another harsh reminder of that on Sunday when the California Angels, still winless since Williams took over as their manager a week ago, lost for the eighth successive time.

The novelty clearly has worn off.

"There will be moves shortly," Williams said after the latest defeat, Sunday's 6-2 setback to the Cleveland Indians.

Williams left unclear exactly what he meant by "moves" but said, "We'll probably have an announcement tomorrow."

The problem Williams is finding is that it's not as easy to correct the Angels' mistakes as it was with the world champion A's.

Sunday, in the sixth inning, he reminded Frank Tanana, his young starter, that he had thrown a lot of home run pitches in late innings and that it shouldn't have to happen again.

But when Williams looked to his bullpen, he didn't see Rollie Fingers and Darold Knowles. The people he saw instead were named Skip Lockwood and John Cumberland, and so Tanana stayed in the game.

Suddenly in the eighth inning, Cleveland hit three homers, two of them off Tanana and one off the hastily summoned Lockwood. That was goodbye ballgame.

The pitching Sunday came from Jim Perry, who needed ninth-inning help from Milt Wilcox to raise his record to 87. The hitting came from John Ellis, George Hendrick and Oscar Gamble, who hit the three homers in the eighth that snapped a 2-2 tie.

Elsewhere in the AL Sunday, Boston beat Kansas City, 5-3, to end a five-game losing streak after the Royals won the first of a doubleheader, 11-9, in 10 innings; Milwaukee beat Minnesota, 8-5, before losing 5-3; Baltimore defeated Oakland, 4-1; Chicago topped Detroit, 3-1, and Texas edged New York, 3-2.

In the National League, Los Angeles swept Montreal, 4-1 and 5-3, and Cincinnati swept St. Louis, 2-1 and 11-2. Other scores were: New York 6 San Francisco 0; Philadelphia 9 San Diego 3; Chicago 4 Atlanta 3, and Pittsburgh 6 Houston 4 in 10 innings.

Red Sox 9-5 Royals 11-3

The Royals won the opener when Hal McRae's single and Fran Healy's sacrifice fly drove in two runs in the 10th inning. In the nightcap, the Red Sox broke a 3-3 tie with two runs in the eighth.

Brewers 8-3 Twins 5-5

Milwaukee third baseman Don Money set a major league record by playing in his 78th consecutive game without an error this season. He's 19 shy of the two-season record of 97 set by San Francisco's Jim Davenport in the 1960's. Mike Hegan and Darrell Porter drove in three runs apiece for the Brewers in the first game. Steve Brye doubled home the go-ahead run and then scored an insurance run in the 11th inning of the second game.

Rangers 3 Yankees 2

Texas parlayed an error by Chris Chambliss and an RBI single by Len Randle into three unearned runs in the third inning and righthander Steve Hargan made them stand up, neatly spacing nine Yankee hits. It was Hargan's seventh win and fourth in a row.

Michie, Robinson Win Championships In Whisk Tourney

John Michie and Lynn Robinson won the men's and women's titles respectively by racking up 29 and 34 points while playing with different partners in the Pampa Tennis Club's Whisk Tournament Sunday at the high school courts.

Eugene Laycock scored 27 points and finished in second in men's play, ahead of Dick Stowers' and Rick Brazile with 26 apiece. Betty Blake placed second in women's play with 29, followed by Martha Plunk with 27.

The club's next action will be Friday through Sunday in the Men's and Women's Singles Tournament. Entry fee is $3.00 for adults and $2.00 for students and must be payed to either Jack Scott or Joe Davis by 7 p.m Thursday.

Today's Sports Parade

BY CHARLIE SMITH
UPI Sports Writer

(EDITORS NOTE: UPI Sports Editor Milton Richman is on vacation. In his absence, his column is being written by UPI sports writers in various parts of the country.)

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Barry Switzer is not much of a worrier. At Oklahoma, he knows it's a waste of health.

"You always feel pressure," says the second-year head football coach of the Sooners. "But I don't worry about it. You do the best you can. And if that ain't good enough, they'll get someone else in here that'll try to do better."

Switzer has good reason to feel like he's on a hot seat. He unexpectedly guided the Sooners to a 10-0-1 season in his first try after taking over for Chuck Fairbanks.

And, of course, once he accomplished that, he's got nowhere to go but down. Once the pinnacle has been reached, the rabid Sooner fans expect unbeaten teams every season.

"I don't know whether we can do it again," says Switzer. "But we're gonna try. We'll play hard and let the record take care of itself. The team wants it that way."

The Oklahoma football program is in the second year of a three-year probation, a fact that didn't affect the team's performance last year at all. Perhaps it was the attitude generated by Switzer that sank the probation blues.

That attitude has been that Oklahoma should whip most teams on form. And the Sooners can play on an equal footing with the rest — like Texas, Southern California, Nebraska and the like.

As he said when asked how the probation would affect Oklahoma's recruiting:

"None, because a lot of the schools we recruit against are on permanent probation. They're never going to a bowl, anyway."

Switzer, 36, a native of Crossett, Ark., turned the probation sentence into Oklahoma's favor. He's made the players feel it has nothing to do with what can be accomplished on the field.

"All the publicity out of the probation is an incentive to our squad," he said. "I'm not worried about attitude. Those things were answered last year."

Indeed they were. After an early-season 7-7 tie at Southern California, the Sooners humiliated everyone in sight. That included a 52-13 walloping of Texas and a 27-0 burial of Nebraska, two teams that eventually wound up in the Cotton Bowl while Oklahoma's players watched on television.

Oklahoma's 1974 schedule indicates the Sooners have an excellent chance to duplicate last year's success. They open with Baylor, Utah State and Wake Forest, all in Norman, before the annual grudge match with Texas in Dallas. Within the Big Eight Conference, they play at Colorado and Nebraska.

At this stage, only Texas and Nebraska appear to have any kind of chance to beat Oklahoma.

New Anti-Press Law

A couple of weeks ago, the U.S. Supreme Court struck down a Florida state law which interfered with freedom of the press. On the next day, the legislature of the State of Delaware passed a law interfering with freedom of the press.

Can't politicians understand the English language?

The U.S. Constitution which binds state constitutions, states there shall be NO LEGISLATION which interferes with the freedom of the press. That is about as plain and simple as any written statement can be.

We acknowledge that some people do not like what some segments of the press do sometimes, and most of those who do not like us are politicians.

We can live with that.

We are not here to be liked. We particularly are not here to be liked by politicians. Any time the reader finds a unit of the press being constatnly praised by the politician, it is time of concern.

The purpose of the free press is to inform the people as a means of helping them protect their freedom. If the press is respected for its efforts in that direction, it will continue to remain free.

In that connection, it is the reaction of the reader that carries the most weight with a member of the press, and that brings us to the two bits of legislation mentioned at the opening of this commentary.

In Florida, a state law decreed that newspapers must provide free space to political candidates the paper criticizes. We agree with the Florida newspaper that such a law violates the Constitution. We do not agree with any newspaper's failing to let the offended politician have his say. This is not to say that we challenge a paper's right to publish or not to publish. We simply believe it is unwise not to haveopen discussions of opinion.

In the Delaware legislation, just approved, newspapers would be obligated to attach the name of the writer of the editorials appearing in the paper.

Why any political body would deem that important excapes us. The editorial is the opinion of the newspaper publisher. It is written sometimes by the publisher, sometimes by the editor and sometimes by other editorial associates, but it always is the opinion of the newspaper ownership itself.

One of the reasons newspapers generally avoid identifying the particular author is to get away from the personality aspect so that the opinion might be examined on its merits alone. Personality prejudice has a way of interfering with examination of idea, and it works both ways. Sometimes a reader might accept anything a certain writer puts to paper while rejecting anything another writer produces.

Newspapers generally hold that it is the idea itself which should be examined, and that goal is best seved by publishing the newspaper's opinion without a by-line.

The reader who wants to know the author can find out simply by asking. Ther is no need for politicians to burden the tax payer with additional legislation

Looking For A Miracle

What with so many persons advocating a national housecleaning, move women are interested in public - office. Two organizations have formed to coach them. One is the Women's Education Fund. It holds seminars and distributes video tapes and booklets to help female candidates. The other is Women's Political Caucus, an endorsing group. We read in the Wall Street Jouranl that a third group was organizing to raisemoney for the front runners.

No one can say yet whether a massive change of gender will or will not sanitize the legislative halls and cloakrooms. Before women won the power to vote, it was suggested that the purity of her "x" on the ballot would somehow creep into the veins of the candidate and cause him to be more nobel and ethical. Politics was to be dragged kicking and screaming out of the barroom, sloshed in the horse tank until spotless, and then recommissioned to fulfill the public trust. But what you see now is the girls in the cocktail lounge, plotting and scheming and bending elbows with the craftiest.

Still you can't say for sure that the New Purification absolutely doesn't stand a chance. Miracles have happened.

OUTRIDER

Grounds For Impeachment?

By GARRY WILLS

In the spring of 1973, I surprised and dismayed some of my friends by writing that Richard Nixon should not be impeached. I had written the samething earlier in 1972, when Congressmen McClosky and Conyers first raised the subject of impeachment.

My point in 1972 was that Nixon was being attacked for views that the electorate had endorsed, and there is no ligitimate way to prevent a democracy from choosing bad leaders if it wants to. My argument in 1973 was that charges of criminal conduct, in the Watergate break in, were not a sufficient basis for impeachment. The impeachment clause was not aimed at arresting White House jaywalkers, but at stopping a runaway executive from defying the people and the other elected representatives of that people. In this sense, impeachment is always a political act, not a criminal process.

My view seemed to serve the president then, and was endorsed by some Nixon supporters. (That's embarrassing company to be in.) But a great deal has happened in the interval. We know now about the Huston Plan, the Fielding break in, the attempted bribing of Judge Byrne, the tax scandals, the ambassadorships offered, the use of the CIA and IRS, the buggings and tappings, the subpoenas defied, the obstructors of justice favored and pursuers of it fired.

In such circumstances, the White House must change its tune and call impeachment a criminal proceeding, in which the president has all those defendant rights criticized by the "law and order" crew that ran the 1968 campaign for Nixon. It is the president's line to say that a political impeachment would be unconstitutional — an attempt by Congressional Democrats to void "the mandate" of Nixon's 1972 landslide election.

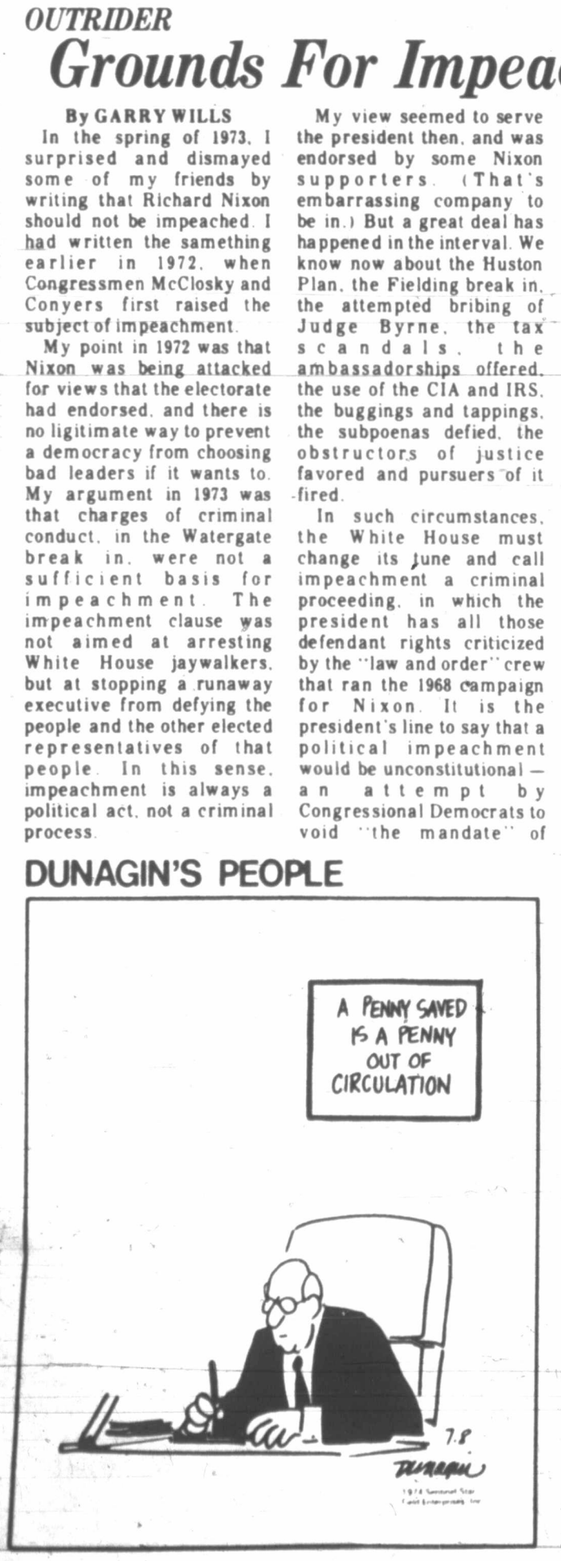

It is hard to exaggerate the absurdity of this view. Putting Gerald Ford into office would almost guarantee his election in 1976, and would certainly continue a right-wing Republican administration — a point not lost on men like Senator James Buckley. Nixon is not protecting any "mandate" now, but endagering it — as spokesmen for that mandate have admitted.

The full absurdity of the White House argument only emerges when its authors abruptly reverse themselves. First, they say Nixon should not go because he is the popular victor of a landslide election. Then they argue that he should not go because he made the tough unpopular decisions, and no president would be allowed to make those in the future if he could be punished for them by removal from office.

Thus, grounds for impeachment now exist — not criminal grounds as such, but political ones. It would be a dangerous luxury to remove a president simply because he is not a saint, or even because he is a crook. But recent surveys show that the roughly 25 percent hard - core Nixon support believes any president can break the law at will, defy the courts, do anything for what he in secret conceives to be the national interest, and declare the Constitution invalid if he is questioned about these proceedings. We are not talking, any more, about one man's crookedness, but about deep political errors for which the voters did not give Nixon any mandate in 1972. If we let an embattled minority give those views a mandate in 1974, we deserve whatever we get — not only Nixon, but the Constitutional abominations that Nixon has espoused for his own survival.

INSIDE LABOR

Dems Face Labor Vote Loss

By VICTOR RIESEL

WASHINGTON — A searing confidential document circulating in the highest labor circles reveals that a rip - roaring civil war within the Democratic party has gotten into the out - fighting stage.

This document leaves no doubt that unless Democratic National Committee Chairman Robert Strauss cuts his covert support of the McGovernite "new politics" combine, the party will lose the bulk of its traditional labor support in 1976 as it did in 1972.

And this could well develop long before the bicentennial campaign. We could hear a repetition in August 1974 of the words uttered to a small group of reporters in August 1970 by the, politically powerful AFL-CIO chief George Meany — namely the Democratic party is in shambles and "...has disintegrated ... It almost has become the party of the extremists ... new lefts ... have taken over the Democratic party." He added the party could no longer depend on labor's rank and file.

Meany made good that threat. In 1972, George McGovern lost most of the AFL-CIO's political funds. But more important he lost the invaluable thrust of Meany's "instant political party," the national network of labor's Committee On Political Education (COPE). What else he lost is history. This may well repeat itself.

Chairman Strauss, in the confidential document or memo, is accused of outright betrayal and double - crossing of labor's Democratic party bloc, "the mainstream coalition."

As a result, this combination of party regulars and AFL-CIO chiefs may lose the mini - convention in Kansas City this December. Some call it a charter convention. But by any other name it is a mandated constitutional gathering and can do anything — absolutely anything — with the party it wishes.

And at this moment, according to the memorandum, the Strauss - McGovernite alliance appears to have almost a majority for the remaking of the party as a centralized force, operating on a quota, affirmative action, youth, women, minority way - out set of laws which again would deprive the regulars of influence.

One of the AFL-CIO's centrist intellectual allies says, "It's 60-40 in our favor against the new politics crowd led by Ken Bode (one of the 1972 McGovern inner circle braintrusters).

Another insider who has a most professional view of things — and who virtually ran the '72 Miami convention — says, "The new politics crowd has it. Kansas City will be a repeat of Miami. And that's disaster."

Insiders reckon the final delegation count will depend on who captures the New York and California delegations — 'twas always thus. Already in New York the McGovernite new politics machine is so powerful, its man, Howard Samuels, is the frontrunner against the regular labor candidate Congressman Hugh Carey in the gubernatorial primary race.

But it's the California race which is fascinating. There the delegates will be elected in such fashion that labor believes the college students will dominate. The delegate selection will be made on the Saturday after election day in November. Most labor and professional political leaders presumably will be too exhausted, or of no mind, to get into another hassle.

Thus, they're not expected to attend the delegate - choosing sessions. These will be held in each area, in an auditorium to which virtually all who say they're Democrats will be admitted. This is just the day for the students and their allies. The university people will be well into their courses, there will be few exams set, no papers due.

"It's a screwball system of delegate selection," says one of Meany's colleagues.

For the Democrats faced with the loss of labor's most powerful campaign machinery, it doesn't make a pretty picture.

WATCH ON WASHINGTON

The SEC Chairman And Standards Of Conduct

By C. MOLLENHOFF

WASHINGTON — Months after former Securities and Exchange Commission Chairman G. Bradford Book admitted his important role in the attempted cover-up of international financier Robert Vesco's $200,000 cash gift to the Nixon campaign, the 36 - year - old lawyer is still representing clients at the SEC.

Veteran SEC staff members are privately asking how long Cook's representation of clients can be permitted to go unchallenged without destroying all semblance of proper standards of conduct.

On the other hand, Cook's supporters note the young Nebraska lawyer finally told the truth about the cover-up of the $200,000 cash gift to the Nixon re-election committee. The cover-up was done at the request of former Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans and Cook testified on this as a government witness in the unsuccessful effort to prosecute Stans and former Attorney General John N. Mitchell.

Cook was not named as an unindicted co-conspirator in the indictment for obstruction of justice and perjury from which Stans and Mitchell were acquitted by a federal jury in New York.

But, Cook did admit a series of dishonest acts as general counsel of the SEC when he was seeking to curry political favor in 1972 to set the stage for his appointment by President Nixon to head the agency.

Cook was appointed in January, 1973, and confirmed by the Senate in February, becoming, at 35, the youngest chairman in the history of the important federal regulatory agency. But, his government career came tumbling down in May, 1973 when Stans and Mitchell were indicted. During the investigation, it was revealed that Cook had been involved in some manner in directing the deletion of a paragraph from the complaint against Robert Vesco and his enterprises on a $200,000 cash gift to the Nixon re-election committee.

Briefly, here is what Cook has admitted under oath:

1. He took the action to cover-up the cash transaction in th pre-election period in 1972 at the request of Stans, who was then the finance chairman of the Committee to Re-elect the President (CRP).

2. Cook lied under oath before three committees of Congress in denying conversations with Stans on the Vesco cash and related matters dealing with the SEC investigation of Vesco on charges of having looted mutual funds of more than $224 million.

3. On three occasions, Cook lied to a federal grand jury before finally admitting his role in the coverup plot.

Senators William Proxmire (D-Wis.) and Edward Brooke (R-Mass.) asked the Justice Department to examine Cook's testimony before the Senate Appropriations Committee to determine if prosecution for perjury was warranted. The appropriations committee supported the Proxmire - Brooke request with a 16 to 0 vote in sending it to Attorney General Saxbe several weeks ago.

The Justice Department has made no response.

Cook's cooperation as a government witness probably should be taken into account in the decision of whether to prosecute him for admitted perjury, although he received no promise of immunity when he finally decided to tell the truth.

But, SEC lawyers seriously question if Cook should be permitted to practice law before the SEC when he has admitted actions as an SEC official that would have resulted in disbarment action if they had been done while representing a client before the SEC.

They point to Rule 2-E of the rules of practice of the SEC which provides for disbarment if any lawyer is found to be "lacking in character or integrity, or to have engaged in unethical or improper professional conduct."

The rules of conduct also provide for disbarment when the SEC finds a lawyer "to have willfully violated or willfully aided and abetted the violation of any provision of the federal security laws or any rules and regulations thereunder."

Cook's defenders at the SEC say there is no precedent for invoking the rules of professional conduct against an official of the SEC. They point out the rules have been used only to discipline attorneys who have misrepresented matters to the SEC or have otherwise engaged in unprofessional conduct.

Cook's critics say it is about time that a precedent be established to demonstrate that SEC employees and officials are not exempt from the standards of conduct set out in the SEC's own "rules of practice."

Even as a quiet debate goes on behind the doors of the SEC as to whether General Counsel Lawrence E. Nerheim should initiate disbarment against the former general counsel and chairman, inquiries have been made by the Illinois Bar Association that could result in action there.

Disbarment by any state would automatically end Cook's right to practice before the SEC and the SEC General Counsel's office would be spared the anguish of initiating action against a former associate.

Cook, a native of Lincoln, Nebraska, is also a member of the Nebraska and American Bar Associations.

QUESTION BOX

QUESTION: On his recent trip to the Mideast, President Nixon was reported promising financial aid to just about every nation he visited. Does he have the autority to give away tax money without the consent of the people or their representatives? Does he have constitutional right to spend money for foreign aid?

ANSWER: We know of no authority for Mr. Nixon or Mr. Kissinger or anyone else to contribute the tax money of the American people to the people of other nations. We are quite sure he has no authority to spend the money without authorization from Congress. But the way the authorizations and appropriations are written by the politicians in Congress, we suppose some way can be found to get around the legal technicalities.

We also can find no constitutional authorization for the politicians in Washington to take money from U.S. tax payers to be spend in propping up the economy or military prowess of some other nations. But such matters as constitutionality do not seem to concern the politicians in Washington, regardless of party.

It is reported by Rep. H.R. Gross of Iowa that U.S. spending for foreign aid has exceeded $250 billion. That is approximately one - half the admitted national debt, and one of the principal reasons for the inflation which has robbed every American of the value of his savings.

And we fear the people in Congress will continue to vote the billions to be thrown away on foreign aid programs, and the members of the administration, of whatever party, will continue to pass it out is if they had it to give.

There seems no way to halt it, short of a massive tax payer rebellion. And too many tax payers think they "never had it so good."
