Slipup slows orders to end mine strike

By MARC CHARNEY
Associated Press Writer

A slipup in stuffing envelopes in Washington brought a day's delay Friday in serving back-to-work orders on the striking United Mine Workers.

And a Library of Congress analysis forwarded to President Carter pointed out that a regulation Carter's administration is using to try to bar food stamps to striking coal miners was declared void two years ago by a federal court in California.

Meanwhile, contract talks to settle the 95-day coal strike resumed in Washington. UMW President Arnold Miller told reporters that it was in those talks that the strike stands any chance of resolution.

"It's not going to be resolved by intervention," he said.

Even if the documents had been served on schedule, little if any coal was expected to be mined before Monday — and then only if miners obeyed the order. Whether they will remain an open question.

A day after the Carter administration had obtained a temporary back-to-work order under the Taft-Hartley Act, federal marshals in cities throughout coal country were ready Friday to start the enforcement process by serving papers on UMW locals.

Packets of documents — the order, the government suit and supporting affidavits — were flown from Washington to outlying cities.

Then it was discovered that a crucial piece of paper — a summons to a court hearing next Friday on a request for a permanent injunction — had been omitted. That put the marshals' efforts into limbo while the summonses were rushed out in a separate shipment.

At 5 p.m., a Justice Department spokesman in Washington said no union locals anywhere in the country had been served with the papers — and none would be before Saturday.

The deadline for delivering the documents is Monday afternoon.

Four major organizations had been legally served in Washington Thursday night when the order was obtained — the UMW, the Peabody Coal Co. and two industry groups, the Bituminous Coal Operators Association and the American Bituminous Contractors.

The UMW leadership sent a telegram to local and district leaders ordering them to tell miners to go back to work.

But serving the court papers on hundreds of union locals was the key to beginning enforcement of the order.

The 1973 food-stamp regulation came into question because Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland used it to order county welfare offices to disqualify from food stamps any head of household who does not obey the Taft-Hartley order.

A Library of Congress analysis, forwarded to the president by Rep. Frederick W. Richmond, D-N.Y., concludes that the regulation is shaky, at best. The analysis concludes that the Agriculture Department "exceeded its authority" when it adopted the regulation, which denies food stamps to heads of households involved in a strike declared illegal by a court, who also refuse to register for work.

In Charleston, W.Va., the U.S. marshal's office waited until 3 p.m. before its first shipment of documents arrived. When it did, the summonses were missing.

"We're waiting again," said a spokeswoman, who did not want to be identified.

In Lexington, Ky., the U.S. attorney's office first decided to draw up the summonses themselves, but then decided to wait for them to come in from Washington. By 3 p.m. they had not.

The injunction orders the miners back to work for an 80-day cooling off period. It formally took effect at 7 a.m. Friday, and some mines declared themselves open as of that moment.

But it could not legally be enforced until marshals served the papers on defendants. That was a big job which, even before the snafu was known, had been expected to carry over until Monday.

There are 1,451 defendants — the bulk of them United Mine Workers union locals representing 160,000 striking miners in more than a dozen states. To allow time for paperwork and travel, the marshals were given until 4:30 p.m. Monday to finish serving the papers.

Marijuana may be hazardous

By LYNN DARLING
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare is expected to release a statement Sunday warning the nation's estimated 13 million marijuana users that irreversible lung damage could result from smoking Mexican marijuana contaminated by a highly toxic herbicide meant to eradicate it in a drug control program partially funded by the State Department.

According to studies conducted by HEW's National Institute on Drug Abuse, over 20 percent of the marijuana coming into the United States from Mexico may be contaminated with the herbicide paraquat, in amounts of over 2,200 parts per million.

The maximum level of contamination on food crops permitted for use in this country is 0.05 parts per million. "Since approximately 60 percent of the marijuana consumed in this country is of Mexican origin," the report said, "this represents a large exposure population."

What paraquat does specifically, according to the NIDA study, is to "concentrate in the lung tissue and produce a condition called fibrosis, which effectively reduces the capacity of the lung to absorb oxygen."

Since the chemical turns marijuana a yellowish-gold in color, uninformed users easily could confuse the contaminated marijuana with high-quality marijuana known popularly as Acapulco Gold.

"Some people are going to take one look and think it's top of the line," said Keith Stroup, president of the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws (NORML).

Despite the highly toxic nature of the herbicide, one State Department official said that on recommendations will be made to Mexico concerning continued use of paraquat. "We will of course share this information with the Mexican government," said Mathea Falco, who supervises the State Department's International Narcotics Program. "But it's their program, and their country. It's up to them."

According to Falco, $13 million a year is given to Mexico to "help in drug eradication and control" in a program to which Mexico contributes $40 million. Most of the American money, she said, is spent on the eradication of Mexican opium poppy fields in an attempt to reduce the amount of heroin, an opium derivative, that is smuggled into the United States.

But reporters were left in no doubt that the expectation does exist that the force will at least be substantially reduced, over time. Indications were that Dobrynin made no strict commitment, however, and in particular that he made no promises about a timetable for the troop reduction.

This fact could leave the Soviets with an option of keeping a large well-trained force of Cubans in Ethiopia for some time to come — at least so long as the conflict of southern Africa remains unresolved.

In addition, reporters were told that Vance firmly rejects the suggestion put forward at the White House a week ago that the Soviet threat in the Horn of Africa should be considered to affect the future of strategic arms negotiations.

Barnhart said he will attend a Dallas fund-raiser at which Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., will be the speaker.

Some political observers, however, believe Barnhart's objections to Baker also amount to the opening Texas shot for the 1980 Republican nomination.

Barnhart is a strong backer of former California Governor Ronald Reagan. Baker also is considered a potential presidential candidate.

Two other potential candidates also are directly or indirectly involved in the Houston fund-raiser, one of several Eisenhower Silver Jubilee Dinners to be held across the country simultaneously.

Former Texas Governor John Connally is co-chairman of the Houston dinner and George Bush, the former United Nations ambassador from Houston, is national chairman for the dinners.

Party fuss blamed on canal treaty stand

HOUSTON (AP) — Blaming differences over the Panama Canal treaties, the Texas Republican chairman says he will boycott an April fund-raising dinner in Houston at which Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., will be the speaker.

Baker has said he would support the treaties if they are amended to permit the United States to defend the canal and to allow U.S. ships priority use of the waterway in wartime. Texas GOP Chairman Ray Barnhart said Friday, however, that such a position does not reflect the majority view in Texas.

Barnhart said he will attend a Dallas fund-raiser at which Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., will be the speaker.

Soviets pledge troop reduction

By OSWALD JOHNSTON
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The Soviet Union has advised the Carter administration to expect a substantial reduction in the massive Cuban military presence in Ethiopia when the Somali withdrawal from the Ogaden is complete and the fighting there stops.

reporters were told Friday.

This formula for reducing the chances of superpower conflict in the Horn of Africa was first raised with the Russians several weeks ago, reporters were told. It is understood that Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance raised the idea again Thursday in a conversation with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin.

Reporters were cautioned, however, that no timetable for this tentative withdrawal had been set or even discussed, and they were cautioned further that there is no hard commitment that this withdrawal will take place.

Nevertheless, the tenor of the message was optimistic. With the Somali decision Thursday to withdraw, the United States and the Soviet Union, ostensible adversaries in the region, achieved a "concurrence of interest," in the view of a senior administration official.

"I think we are better off today than we were 48 hours ago," reporters were told.

On a related issue, a ranking administration official said that Vance has also received what he believes amounts to a commitment from the Soviets to cooperate in making the Somali pullout bloodless. In particular, the Carter administration has been trying to arrange an international peacekeeping force to police the area of Somali evacuation and protect ethnic Somalis living there from reprisals from Ethiopian forces.

The Soviets have said that if Somali troop withdrawals take place, the Russians "share our view about the importance of having an international presence to protect the inhabitants from reprisals," a senior official told reporters. This official could not be named under the ground rules of the late-Friday press briefing.

To achieve a settlement of the Ogaden conflict, the official said, the United States has been in touch with Nigeria in its capacity as chairman of an Organization of African Unity commission which has been seeking a negotiated settlement.

Under an administration program outlined Thursday after the Somali decision to abandon its war of territorial conquest in the Ogaden, the OAU would supply the manpower for an observer force to prevent a blood-bath of reprisals.

But the disclosure Friday that the Soviets are believed by the administration to share this objective makes it more likely to come about.

Train sparks series of right-of-way fires

Sparks from the laboring engines of a westbound freight train touched off a series of streamer-like grass fires along a 40-mile stretch of the Missouri-Pacific Railroad Co. line between Odessa and Big Spring Friday afternoon. The helter-skelter grass fires, mostly on the south side of the tracks, were spotted from just east of Stanton in Martin County to several miles west of Midland Regional Air Terminal.

Fire-fighting units from the Midland Fire Department and from the Martin County Volunteer Fire Department in Stanton put out the fires, which reportedly did no damage outside the railroad's right-of-way.

Midland firemen first responded to the grass fires at 4:10 p.m. Friday. Units headed east and west along the tracks.

The series of spotted fires, whipped by west-to-southwesterly winds gusting up to 39 miles per hour, stopped short of the Ector County line.

"They're all between Big Spring and Odessa," Midland Fire Department dispatcher Lloyd Dunagan said at height of the firemen's bustling efforts to douse the fires. "Just pick your spot," he said.

Midland Fire Capt. Rudy Dudley said the fires were limited to alongside the tracks.

"It's pretty well confined as long as we don't have high winds blowing fire across the service roads," he said.

Although the winds occasionally gusting to near 40 mph, they stayed mostly in the mid-20s.

A spokesman in Odessa for the Missouri-Pacific Railroad late Friday afternoon said the dry grass and weeds along the right-of-way were ignited by sparks from the laboring diesel engines.

The fires were not touched off by a "hot box" flinging sparks. Had that been the case, the Mo-Pac spokesman said, then a car axle would have broken and "there would be a

airs views on rate hike

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Public Utility Commission Chairman George Cowden speculated that Southwestern Bell decided to file its $214.3 million rate increase, believing it would be unsuccessful in getting the additional money it wants from the Texas Supreme Court.

"No court has given it to them yet," Cowden said, as he waited to review the phone company rate application, which was filed Thursday. "And some people say they won't get it (more money) from the Supreme Court."

On April 5, the Supreme Court is scheduled to hear oral arguments on Bell's suit against the $57.8 million increase it received from the Utility Commission in December 1976. It wants the court to order the original rate request of $297.8 million, pending a full trial on the merits of Bell's appeal.

But also at issue in the Supreme Court case is the basic method of calculating utility rates.

Utility Commissioner Al Erwin notes that in the case now before the Supreme Court, Bell says rates should be based on the replacement cost of its equipment.

The Utility Commission calculated the $57.8 million it gave Bell based upon the original cost of the equipment, and Erwin observes that the phone company based its newest rate application upon this formula.

"I'm glad to hear that," Erwin said about Bell's decision to use the original cost data, because, "We will continue using that approach until the court tells us that we shouldn't."

According to Chairman Cowden, it will take the Utility Commission about 60 days to clear its docket of pending matters, so that it can hear the Bell case, which could take months to argue. This fact apparently spurred Bell to file its new rate case at this time, without waiting for a Supreme Court decision.

Should they, however, receive more money from the court, Bell officials say they will "adjust" their rate application before the Utility Commission "downward."

But Erwin says Bell's timing puts double pressure on the Utility Commission staff, which has been preparing for the Supreme Court arguments, and now must begin working on the new rate case.

derailment. He said the fires would have been prevented had the railroad been permitted to keep up its policy of routinely burning the dry vegetation alongside the tracks. But in recent years, laws were passed prohibiting the railroad companies from doing that.

In effect, the dry weather aided those diesel locomotive sparks in setting off the fire.

The grasses and weeds were dried to kindling-wood likeness from the lack of rainfall in the past several months. The humidity at time the fires were touched off was around 15 percent, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

The rainfall this year has been about half of the norm.

No rain in the forecast today or Sunday. The high reading today should be in the low 70s. The low tonight will be in the mid-40s.

Midland police arrested a 20-year-old Midland woman on an aggravated robbery charge stemming from an incident last Sunday in the 900 block of Madison Street.

Diana Perez of 1605 Garden Lane remained in the Midland City Jail Friday on a $25,000 bond.

Ismael Burito told officers he was robbed at knifepoint Sunday in the 900 block of Madison Street.

High in 70s
likely today

Lately, it's the same old story over and over again... at the weather watch.

No rain in the offing. And for today, fair skies, a westerly breeze and warm temperatures — in the low 70s — are in the forecast, said a weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

Tonight, the mercury will drop to the mid-40s, and the winds will shift to the southwest and drop to 5-10 miles per hour.

The only clouds in the state at midday were included in a narrow band that extended from Corpus Christi to San Antonio.

400 Midland College students cited for scholastic excellence

More than 400 students at Midland College have been named to the President's List and Dean's List for the 1977 fall semester. This is the largest number ever named to the honor lists, according to registrar Dee Windsor.

The 2,212 students who attended credit classes during the fall term were the largest enrollment in the nine-year history of Midland College.

Students who had a perfect 4.0 grade point average are named to the President's List while those with a 3.5 GPA are on the Dean's List. Part-time students must be enrolled in at least six semester hours to be eligible for honors, while full-time students are those taking 12 semester hours or more.

Full-time students named to the President's List include:

From Midland: Tommy Anderson, Judy Barsch, Thomas Bearden, Isabel Bernal, Carol Birdwell, Shaun C. Callison, Allen C. Cearley, Lynn Cole, Tana Cosgrove, Margie Davis, Darlene Dodson, Victor Garibay, Clifford Graham, Dan Harkey, Billy Harless, Holly Herring, Susan Hobbs, Ava Hoelscher, Julia Jackson, Robert Jennings, Clint Jones, Richard Kemp, Randall Keyes, Barbara Lea, Frank Madrid, Robert Madrid, Ascension Melendez, Coleen Michael, Douglas Murray, Thomas Nunn Jr.

Kent Pendleton, Tandra Phiffer, Mark Pickens, Daniel Ramirez, Laquita Reynolds, Loretta Robins, Ann Clarke, Susan Kerr, Sue Faulkner, and Brenda Cobb.

From Saudi Arabia: Mustafa Faier, Mohammad Kahtoni, and Said Kahtani.

Part-time students on the President's List are:

to mean more funds

Recent estimates that place Ector County's population at 100,900 have enabled a 17-county consortium to form what eventually could mean as much as 40 percent more federal funds for the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act Program.

According to Willie Taylor, director of the Manpower program, the formation of the consortium would mean that the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission would deal directly with the Texas Department of Labor for CETA funds. Presently, local agencies deal with the Texas Department of Labor, which has the authority to siphon off up to 20 percent of the local funding request, Taylor added.

Federal regulations require that at least one county in the consortium have a population of 100,000 or more.

If the application for the consortium is accepted by the Department of Labor, local elected officials would have more say in the operation of programs and the state agency would lose its grasp on 20 percent of the local funds, Taylor said.

A resolution to form the consortium of the 17 counties in jurisdiction of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission was approved by the PBRPC board of directors on Wednesday. The proposal now must be approved by each of the 17 participating counties before it is sent to the Department of Labor.

Blacks leaving Northeast for South, Census reports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Black Americans are moving out of the industrial Northeast and heading for the South in record numbers for the first time since slavery ended, the government reported Friday.

A Census Bureau study shows that 147,000 blacks moved out of the Northeast from March 1975 to March 1977, and that more than two-thirds of them — 104,000 — moved to the South. The others moved to the North Central regions and to the West.

During the same period, however, the number of blacks moving from the South and North Central regions was not significantly different from the number moving into those areas, illustrating the migration trend away from the Northeast, the report says.

This represents a significant change from the 1960s when large numbers of blacks moved out of the South to the Northeast and North Central regions in hopes of finding better jobs, better schools and better social opportunities.

The report, entitled "Geographical Mobility: March 1975 to March 1977," also shows that in the two-year period ending last March, many blacks who were born in the South returned there while many other blacks moved West.

The report cautions, however, that one cannot conclude that because of the new migration trend the South has more blacks moving in than moving out. It stresses that what is significant is that blacks are not fleeing the South in the numbers they once did.

"Many of the black migrants from the Northeast and to the South are probably returnees, that is, blacks born in the South and returning to the region of birth," the report says.

It also shows that there was a significant increase in the numbers of whites who moved from the Northeast and North Central regions. But the authors add that this reflects patterns already established during the 1960s.

Mortgage pool boosted by LULAC spokesman

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A mortgage pool, fed by lending institutions across the state, could salvage aging neighborhoods and help low income families buy homes, a Senate subcommittee was told Friday.

"Mortgages must be made available to the less fortunate who cannot qualify for other loans," said Zeke Serna, a Corpus Christi real estate man and chairman of the Fair Housing Committee of the League of United Latin American Citizens (LULAC).

Serna testified before the Senate Subcommittee on Consumer Affairs, which is studying "redlining," the practice of not granting mortgage loans in older neighborhoods.

The mortgage pool would operate similar to the automobile insurance industry's assigned risk pool, Serna said.

Sen. Bill Patman, D-Ganado, said he would ask the Texas Department of Community Affairs to study Serna's proposal.

DEATHS

Mrs. Mote

VERNON — Addie Pearl Mote, 63, of Vernon, sister of Bobby Love of Midland, died Tuesday in a Wichita Falls hospital.

Services were held Thursday in Sullivan Funeral Home here. Burial was in East View Cemetery.

Mrs. Mote was born Dec. 16, 1914, at Granbury, and came to Wilbarger County in 1915.

Survivors other than the brother in Midland include two sons, two daughters, six sisters, six brothers and six grandchildren.

Fabian Bell

BAIRD — Services for Fabian Bell, 66, brother of Bruce Bell of Midland, were held Friday in Morgan-Parker Funeral Home here with the Rev. John Dorn, pastor of the United Methodist Church, officiating. Burial was in Ross Cemetery.

Bell died Wednesday in a Baird hospital following a sudden illness.

LoVaca to hear challenge

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — LoVaca Gathering Co., its corporate parents and most of its customers, will take on challengers — if any — to their proposed settlement at an April 3 Railroad Commission hearing.

The commission voted unanimously Friday to further delay its "final order" in the LoVaca gas rate case and hold a hearing on the 1,200-page settlement.

Commission approval is necessary for the settlement to take effect. Several federal agencies also must clear it.

Tracy DuBose, attorney for LoVaca and its corporate parents Coastal States Gas Corp. and Coastal States Gas Producing Co., said he anticipated no problems in obtaining commission approval.

Commission counsel Rex White said customers who signed the settlement account for 79.5 percent of LoVaca's sales volume.

The settlement would pull LoVaca out of the Coastal States empire, rename it the Valero Corp. and place control in the hands of the customers.

Coastal would spend $180 million to $230 million to seek new gas that would be offered at below market price to Valero, which in turn would sell to its customers at the going market rate. Valero also would receive lignite holdings from Coastal.

Gas customers would notice little difference in prices.

Most of the major customers with whom the settlement was signed had sued LoVaca and Coastal.

R. D. Churchill

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — Lt. Col. Ralph D. Churchill, ret., 65, of Albuquerque and formerly of Midland, died Friday morning at his home.

Services are pending at Cantwell Funeral Home in Haven, Kan.

Churchill was born Sept. 27, 1912, in Fort Riley, Kan. He had lived in Midland many years following his retirement from the armed forces. He was an athletic coach at Trinity School of Midland. He was a World War II and Vietnam War veteran.

Survivors include his wife, Mary Churchill; a son, Tom Churchill of Seminole; two daughters, Mary K. Byerley of Fort Campbell, Ky., and Deede Churchill of Austin; two brothers, Frank Churchill of Homeland, Calif., and Arnold Churchill of San Jose, Calif., and three grandchildren.

The family requests memorials be made to the American Cancer Society.

F. G. Staker

KERMIT, W. Va. — Services for Frederick Georgstaker Sr., 92, father of Dr. Norman W. Staker of Lamesa, were Friday in Kermit Baptist Church in Kermit, W. Va., with burial in Maher Memorial Gardens in Kermit.

Staker died Wednesday morning in Huntington, W. Va., after a brief illness.

He was born Feb. 1, 1886, in Ironton, Ohio. He was a railway agent with the N&W Railroad 53 years in Kermit. He was a lifelong member of the Baptist church. He married Nada Frazier. She died in 1961.

Other survivors include four sons, a daughter, nine grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Adams

BROWNWOOD — Services for Mrs. Brownell (Juanita) Adams, 62, of Brownwood were held Wednesday in the Coggin Avenue Baptist Church here with burial in Greenleaf Cemetery directed by Davis-Morris Funeral Home.

Mrs. Adams was the sister of Newbert Green of Midland and the mother of Tom Adams of Andrews.

She died Monday in a San Angelo hospital after a lengthy illness.

Mrs. Adams was born Sept. 18, 1915, in Little River and had lived in Brownwood since 1920. She married Brownell Adams Dec. 26, 1931, in Brownwood. She was a member of the Coggin Avenue Baptist Church.

Other survivors include her husband, a son, two sisters, two brothers, her mother and five grandchildren.

Mrs. Burke

ANDREWS — Isa Pearl Burke, 81, died Thursday in an Andrews hospital following a lengthy illness.

Services will be at 2 p.m. today in Singleton Funeral Home of Andrews, with burial to follow in Andrews Cemetery.

Mrs. Burke, born Oct. 5, 1896 in Missouri, had been an Andrews resident for the last nine years, moving here from Oklahoma.

Surviving are five sons, Joe W. Burke of Andrews, Chester L. Burke and Billy E. Burke of Wichita, Kan., Harold F. Burke of Wichita Falls and Milton Burke of Madison Park, Okla.; a daughter, Cecil Burke of Andrews; a sister, Nellie Baker of Kansas; a brother, Leslie Lightfoot of Hereford, and 17 grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

'Tall stack' promised at Pancake Jamboree

Midland stop on agenda

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe's campaign headquarters said Friday that Briscoe would begin Monday a four-day campaign for reelection in 13 West Texas communities.

Briscoe is scheduled to address the AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education (COPE) Monday morning in Houston then go on to Brownwood and San Angelo. On Tuesday he will be in Big Spring, Sweetwater, Abilene and Lubbock. Wednesday he will be in Brownfield, Wink, Kermit, Midland, Odessa, Pecos and El Paso. He will be in El Paso all of Thursday.

Briscoe's headquarters said he would hold news conferences in each city visited.

YMCA to open fun club

The Alamo and Central YMCA's will hold a special Easter Fun Club on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday of next week and March 27.

The fun club is open to all children in the first through sixth grades, YMCA members and non-members.

Activities include swimming, games, a trip, skating, bowling and golf. For further information call the Alamo YMCA at 694-9571 or the Central YMCA at 682-2551.

Priscilla has reins

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Elvis Presley's ex-wife, Priscilla, has been named formal guardian of Lisa Marie, their 10-year-old daughter, and thus takes charge of the estate Presley left the child.

Mrs. Presley's attorney, Roger Toll, described the action Tuesday in Superior Court as routine. He said parties in probate proceedings on the Presley will have been "perfectly amicable."

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell, in accordance with the rules of the Public Utility Commission of Texas, hereby gives notice of the company's intent to implement a new schedule of telephone rates in Texas effective April 14, 1978.

It is expected that the requested rate schedule will furnish an increase of 11.4 percent in the company's intrastate revenues.

A complete copy of the new rate schedule is on file with the Public Utility Commission at Austin, Texas, and with each affected municipality, and is available for inspection in each of the Company's public business offices.

Stylized memorial honors late actor

By CHARLES HILLINGER
The Los Angeles Times

CHOLAME, Calif. — This town of five residents has a new, $15,000 stylized sculpture to the memory of actor James Dean.

The memorial, which is wrapped around the trunk of a Tree of Heaven in front of the hamlet's 9-by-9-foot post office, was erected by wealthy Tokyo businessman Seita Ohnishi.

Dean was killed when he missed a turn on Highway 46 a mile up the road from the Cholame post office and wrecked his silver Porsche Spyder on Sept. 30, 1955.

Although only 24, he was a star with three box-office successes, "East of Eden," "Rebel Without a Cause" and "Giant."

The sculpture was dedicated five months ago on the 22nd anniversary of Dean's death.

"Mr. Ohnishi had total admiration for James Dean, for his life-style and philosophy. That's why he placed the sculpture in Cholame, where Dean lost his life," explained Takuji Funaki, vice president of a Los Angeles architectural firm.

Ohnishi, 50, contacted the company to seek help with his memorial.

The Japanese businessman made three Tokyo-to-Los Angeles flights and three trips to Cholame, 25 miles east of Paso Robles, solely to complete his tribute to James Dean.

Ohnishi looked over the spot where

Dean was killed, but while in Cholame he noticed the Tree of Heaven in front of the tiny post office and was taken by the tree, symbolically sacred to Orientals.

He decided he would incorporate his memorial to the actor with the tree.

Ohnishi returned to Tokyo. Several months later he flew to Los Angeles again to make arrangements for the sculpture, cast in Japan, to be transported and set in place in Cholame.

Then the Japanese fan of the late actor returned here again from Tokyo for the dedication of the sculpture in September.

The memorial has the actor's name, date of birth, time and day of his death and a figure eight on its side, the symbol for eternity. The stainless steel shaft mirrors the bend in the road where Dean was killed.

"Not too many cars go through here, but travelers in most of them have been stopping to look at our lovely sculpture," said Lilly Grant, who operates the small post office here. "They all want to know who put it up and why."

But Ohnishi did not divulge to anyone during his visits here why he decided to erect the memorial 22 years after the actor's death.

Estimates are that it cost the Japanese businessman at least $15,000 for all the expenses in constructing, shipping and setting the memorial in place.

World War II internee holds no rancor at bitter experience

By SHERRY ANGEL
The Los Angeles Times

COSTA MESA, Calif. — He had been denied his legal rights as an American citizen for more than two years. He lost his freedom, his business, his security — all because his ancestors were Japanese.

But shortly after his release from the relocation center where he was interned during World War II, Steve Akutagawa stood before a church group and called the experience a blessing.

The congregation reacted with stunned silence. And people still find it hard to believe that Akutagawa did not tell his children horror stories about the banishment of more than 110,000 Japanese-Americans from the West Coast of the United States two months after the Dec. 7, 1941 attack on Pearl Harbor.

Akutagawa is an optimist, he explained as he recently reflected on his ability to find the positive side of the ordeal.

The 59-year-old Costa Mesa resident, who has a youthful exuberance and a hearty laugh, speaks of his experiences in the relocation camp without a trace of bitterness in his voice.

That doesn't mean he cooperated without protest, however, when he was ordered to move his family from Los Angeles to a camp in Wyoming, taking along only the most basic necessities.

The camp was one of 10 hastily established after the United States declared war on Japan. A wave of hysteria swept the Pacific Coast at that time, leading the government to classify all persons of Japanese descent as enemy aliens.

Most of those who were crowded into barracks surrounded by barbed wire and guarded by the War Relocation Authority were American-born citizens.

About a third were unnaturalized immigrants, many of whom had strong emotional ties to their homeland.

Akutagawa, a native Californian, had an all-American upbringing, he said. His mother spoke English and never talked of returning to Japan after his father died in 1929.

Akutagawa was 24 when the internment order was issued. He had just begun to establish himself in the produce business, and his wife had recently given birth to their first child.

Like most others, they followed the government's directive stoically, offering no resistance.

But once the camp, Akutagawa started writing letters demanding that the government confirm his status as an American citizen.

Being a member of the U.S. Army Reserve, he informed the military that he felt no obligation to serve until his citizenship status was clarified.

He never received an answer, nor was he called into the service when a Japanese-American combat force was formed.

He said his uncertainty about his citizenship status disturbed him even more than the loss of freedom.

"Technically, legally and morally, I was an American citizen — no matter what the government said. To have that taken away from you...How can one describe that?"

"I felt like a man without a country."

Unable to obtain any answers from the military, Akutagawa resigned himself to the fact that he could do nothing to change his situation. He relied on faith and hope to carry him through the tedious months in camp.

When the Japanese-Americans finally were given back their freedom in December, 1944, the most disillusioned among them renounced their American citizenship and when the war ended some months later returned to Japan.

Akutagawa never considered such a move, he said.

In fact, he said he tried to convince many other internees to continue to respect the American flag and Constitution.

"I never once doubted that we had a good system of government. Our politicians aren't very good, but the system is still best," he explained.

Akutagawa returned to Los Angeles after his release and accepted temporary employment at a resettlement office established by a Quaker group in Pasadena.

It was during that period that he concluded the relocation program had been a blessing in disguise.

One evening as he sat in a bar, he noticed that he was being watched by several other customers. Finally, they found the nerve to ask him about his ancestry. When they learned he was a Japanese-American, they embraced him and shook his hand, saying the words Akutagawa most needed to hear — "Welcome home."

Akutagawa said he often had visited bars before the war, always being more interested in meeting people than in drinking. Few people ever bothered to talk to him, however, and many deliberately avoided him.

"The Japanese had not been accepted here before the war," he said.

The Japanese had been victims of discrimination since they began to immigrate to the West Coast in large numbers in 1890.

Labor unions feared the Japanese immigrants would pose an economic threat and they became subject to an anti-foreignism movement that became prevalent in the late 1890s.

The immigrants responded by sticking together, making Los Angeles the center of the nation's Japanese community.

Akutagawa said their reluctance to mingle and adopt American ways contributed to the reluctance of others to accept them.

Akutagawa, an electronics technician, said he was forced into the produce business because he couldn't get a job in his field before the war.

One potential employer was particularly blunt. "Man, we just don't hire Japs," he told Akutagawa.

All that changed after the war, however.

Akutagawa said many people he met after the war seemed sympathetic or angry about how the Japanese-Americans had been treated.

"People were interested that such a thing could happen to American citizens. They wanted to talk about it," he said.

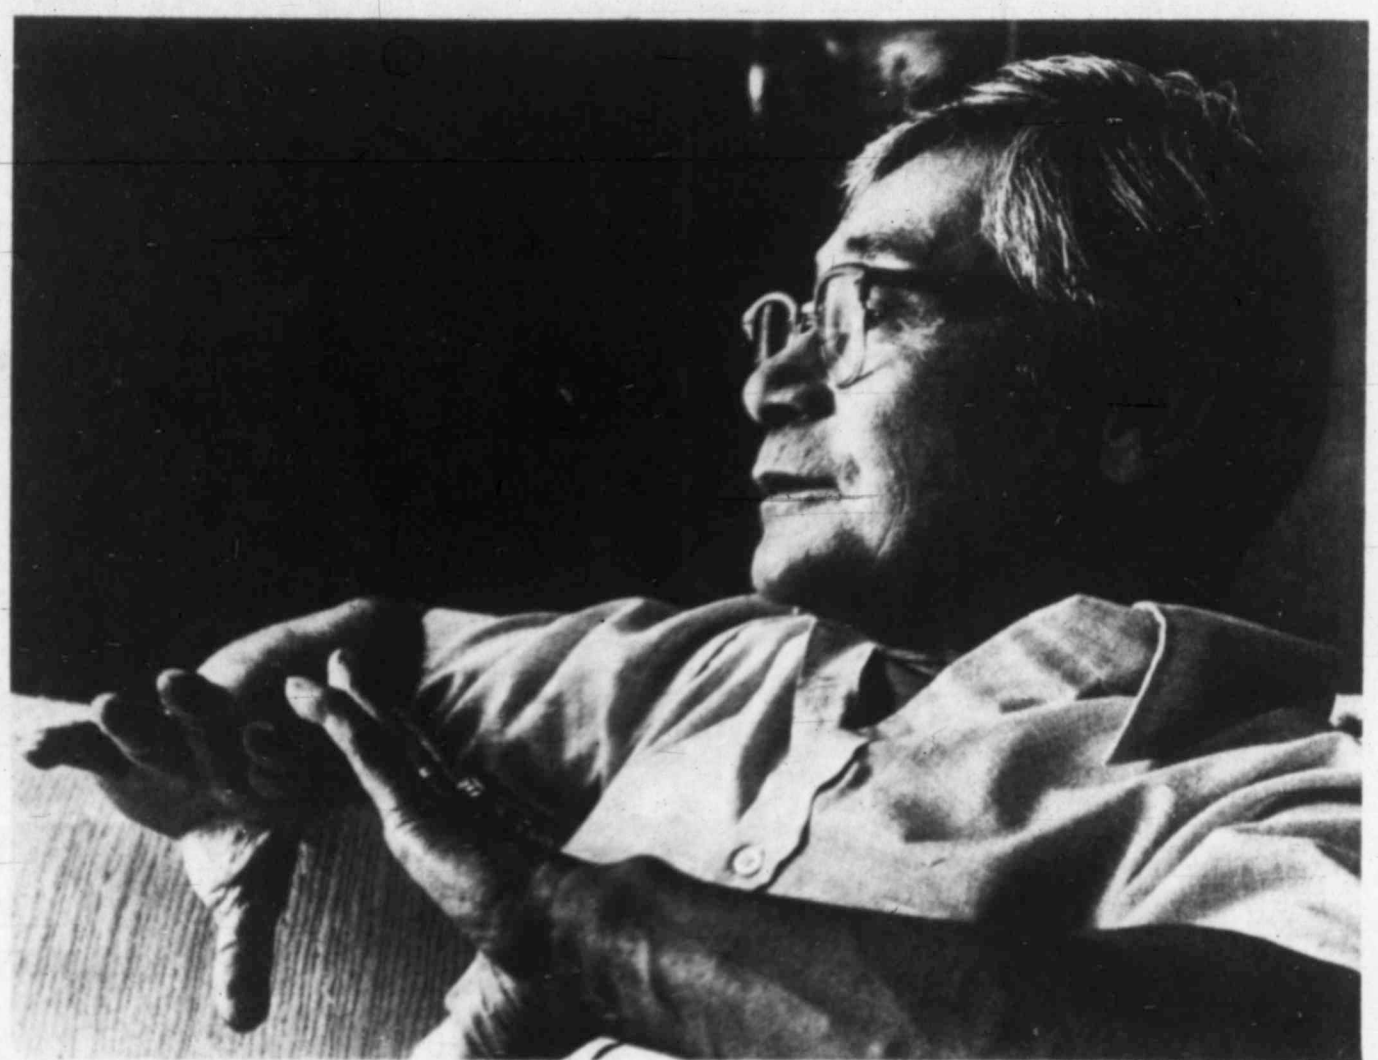

He was one of many asked to share camp experiences with church and civic groups, and the communication promoted social acceptance that earlier had been denied to the Japanese-Americans.

Akutagawa said he learned that those who had lobbied for the relocation program were a vocal minority — groups such as the American Legion and the Native Sons of the Golden West.

The temporary banishment of the Japanese from the West Coast also resulted in their eventual dispersal throughout the United States, speeding up the process of assimilation, Akutagawa noted.

His conclusion that the outcome was beneficial also is based on his belief that the government never again will deny American citizens their freedom.

"I'm sure we all learned a great lesson from it," he said. "I don't think the American people would let it happen again. I think the people recognize that a citizen is a citizen, regardless of race, color or creed."

Human clone report questioned

NEW YORK (AP) — "Max" is the millionaire father, "Sparrow" the surrogate mother and "Darwin" the doctor who created a genetic duplicate of the father, according to a copy of an unpublished book on the first human clone.

But the book, "In His Image: The Cloning of Man" by David Rorvik, is short on details of how "Darwin" made possible what has been viewed as impossible.

Rorvik refers to various "refinements" and "adjustments" to techniques described in known experiments with lower forms of life but gives no substantive details of anything novel.

J. B. Lippincott Co., the publisher, has declined to make available either the author or his book, but The Associated Press obtained a copy of the still unpublished book from a source in the publishing industry. Reports about "In His Image" have caused respected geneticists to question its authenticity. Scientists contend that the cloning of a human being — exactly reproducing a man or a woman from a single body cell without using the genetic material of a sexual partner — is for now impossible.

Rorvik concedes in the book that he doesn't expect anyone to believe him. He says documentation will come someday.

To protect their privacy, Rorvik says, he had to conceal or change details about the principals in the experiment.

They were "Max," who wanted to create an heir; the purported clone, born in December 1976; "Sparrow," the woman in whose womb the clone grew; "Darwin," a female assistant doctor named "Mary"; and "Paul," an assertedly brilliant Ph.D. who also was in on the secret.

Rorvik writes that body cells from Max were put in a centrifuge and spun in a substance which extracts nuclei. Eggs were removed from female ovaries and kept alive for five hours in a culture dish, he continued.

The nuclei from Max were combined with the eggs, minus their nuclei. A microscopic embryo developed and was implanted in the uterus of "Sparrow," says the book.

In an afterword, Rorvik writes that Max, Sparrow and the cloned child were together and well.

Suicide proves futile gesture

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Melvin Gordon was dead only a few minutes before his body was found, but in those few minutes the purpose in his death perished as well.

His widow says it was a wish to give his kidneys to his ailing sister in Michigan that led him to take his own life Wednesday night while sitting in his car outside a hospital emergency room.

Gordon had told his wife he would do almost anything to restore his sister's health. "He loved all of his family very much," she said.

He also was apparently depressed about a seasonal furlough from his job as a boilermaker, said Mrs. Gordon.

Gordon, 38, put a rifle muzzle to his head and fired one shot. His body was found moments later, but kidneys for transplants must be taken from a body at the moment of death and kept filled with flowing blood to avoid tissue deterioration, said G. Michael Heinrich, a Sacred Heart Medical Center spokesman.

However, Gordon was carrying a donor's card. His corneas were taken for use by a local eye bank.

"Get my kidney with (sic) one hour," said a note pinned to the dead man's shirt.

Carrier Coral Sea self-contained floating city

By WILLIAM ENDICOTT
The Los Angeles Times

ABOARD THE USS CORAL SEA - A day and a half out of its home port at the Alameda Naval Air Station and 75 miles off the coast of Baja California, the aircraft carrier USS Coral Sea was steaming into position recently for 18 days of flight operations when the first jet contrails appeared overhead.

"Here they come," someone barked. Within seconds, the first Navy Crusader jet streaked across the flight deck with a roar, its wheels lightly touching in a practice run before the young pilot came around again for his first-ever carrier landing.

In the old days, one could almost visualize John Wayne on the bridge of the carrier, screaming orders to the deck crew through a megaphone while all but single-handedly directing the air traffic.

The reality is a little less dramatic. Nowadays, there are computer-fed radar screens and closed-circuit television monitors. Very little is left to chance.

Still, the idea of landing a fast-moving jet on a bobbing, pitching speck in the Pacific is enough to send a tingle of anticipation and excitement through both those who are watching and those who are doing.

So, in that respect, at least, the Coral Sea mission was less than routine.

The reason for the mission was to give new Navy and Marine Corps pilots from bases in Southern California a chance to complete the 10 daytime and six nighttime landings they needed to mark them "carrier qualified."

What follows is an accumulation of tidbits from the notebook of a reporter who has along during four days of that mission for a behind-the-scenes look at life aboard what amounts to a self-contained floating city.

The Coral Sea, named for the famous battle which marked the first successful Navy engagement with the Japanese in the Pacific during World War II, was under construction during most of the war and was not launched until April 1946. It is one of 13 active Navy carriers.

If you placed three football fields end-to-end you still would have room to spare on the ship's flight deck.

Its height from keel to the top of the mast is equal to a 20-story building.

Still, it can slice through the water at speeds up to 32 knots, or more than 38 m.p.h., and the men who make it work in cramped engineering spaces deep within its hull.

"Shine she may, run she must," reads a sign someone has painted on one of the ship's boilers.

"It's probably the least glamorous job on the ship, working down here," said Lt. Linwood W. Farmer, a 27-year-old engineering officer from Rockville, Md., who equates his job with being manager of the "Coral Sea Municipal Light and Power Co."

Since the ship's primary function is to launch and recover airplanes, the men in the engine rooms are support troops. "Our job is to keep the ship moving and provide steam for the catapults," said Farmer. "The only time anybody notices us is when we screw up."

At sea, Farmer and the 160 men under his command work seven days a week, for which he earns about $15,000 a year. "I gripe about it a lot," he said with a grin, "but we're expected to gripe. The joke is if the chief engineers comes up from his hole and sees his shadow it's six more weeks of sea time."

In command of the Coral Sea is Capt. George A. Aitchison, a soft-spoken ex-Navy aviator who is the antithesis of the stereotype John Wayne carrier commander. At 48, he wonders aloud to a visitor if the pilots are getting younger or if he is just getting older.

At a buffet lunch for some visitors the first day out of port, he apologizes for not being able to have dinner with them in his cabin. He will take most of his meals on the bridge while the ship is at sea, working 16 to 18 hours a day and "trying to catch a catnap in the afternoons."

The ship has a detachment of Marines aboard to man the ship's brig, provide security and handle ceremonial chores.

But for a city of more than 2,000 people, all male, the Coral Sea is remarkably peaceful. "It might be different if you added 50 women," said Farmer, the engineering officer. But women are not permitted to serve on combat ships and, consequently, there are none on the Coral Sea.

To accommodate the various duty shifts, meals are available on the ship 18 hours out of 24, either in the main dining facilities or a small fast-food facility known as the "doggie diner."

According to a supply officer, the ship uses up about 3.9 tons of food daily serving more than 9,000 meals and runs through about $2,500 worth of coffee every month. There are coffee urns in almost every compartment.

If it had to, the ship could go for 90 days without replenishing its food supply but would run out of fresh milk in 11 days. "The most bitching we get is when we run out of fresh milk," the officer said.

Like a small city, the ship has all the necessities on board, everything from a dry-cleaning plant to a post office and print shop and a 23-bed hospital. The public affairs office prints and distributes a small newspaper daily when the ship is at sea.

For a generation of crewmen who grew up on Capt. Kangaroo and Saturday morning cartoons, the closed-circuit television system has proved a boon to the captain. He uses it often to communicate and it is the only time many crew members ever see him.

"It's the damndest thing," said Capt. Robert T. Owens, the ship's executive officer. "You can tell a man something face to face and he might or might not get it, but go on television with the same message and they'll sit there entranced and take it all in."

The TV system also is used nightly for a newscast written and delivered by crewmen. The captain's yeoman, Kim Sandblad, 28, of San Francisco, is the anchorman and Seaman Bruce Jones, 20, of Brockton, Mass., does sports and weather.

The first afternoon out of Alameda a man-overboard drill was held, both to acquaint new personnel with safety procedures and to find out who might have missed the ship and, consequently, be on unauthorized absences.

"With 2,300 guys on board, we don't know where in the hell everybody is," said Comdr. Paul M. Yakubek, 39, of Flint, Mich.

Everyone was accounted for within 37 minutes. Yakubek said the ideal is 20 minutes.

Planes land on the carrier with engines at full thrust so they will have enough power to lift off the deck if they miss the four arresting cables that are designed to jerk them to a quick stop.

There are four parallel cables and the target cable is supposed to be the third one. If a pilot hooks the first one, that means he came in too low. If he hooks the last one, that means he came in too high.

And if he is not "on the ball" for any of them, in the language of the landing signal officers, he will be waved off for another try.

One nervous Navy pilot needed 18 passes to make his 10 daytime landings. He missed on the first seven attempts.

"It took him a while to get all his excess adrenalin worked out," said Comdr. Jerry Kuechmann. "The landing signal officers have to use a fair amount of psychology."

Once landed, planes taxi for take-off to one of the ship's two steam-driven catapults which slam as much as 70 million foot-pounds of energy against the nose gear and forward structure of the jets to hurl them off the deck, 60 feet above the water.

That's enough to accelerate a 35-ton aircraft from zero to 120-150 m.p.h. in less than 2 1/2 seconds.

"It looks like mass confusion up there on the flight deck," Lt. Richard E. Clayton, 31, of Hopkins, Mo., said. "But it's a controlled environment. And everybody knows what he's doing."

You can tell a man's job on the flight deck by the color of the jersey he is wearing—green for flight control and maintenance personnel, red for fire and crash crews, purple for refueling crews, yellow for plane handlers, white for safety personnel and so on.

"The highest state of the art is a night landing on a carrier," said Clayton, who is a pilot now assigned to flight deck duty. "That's the toughest thing in aviation to do."

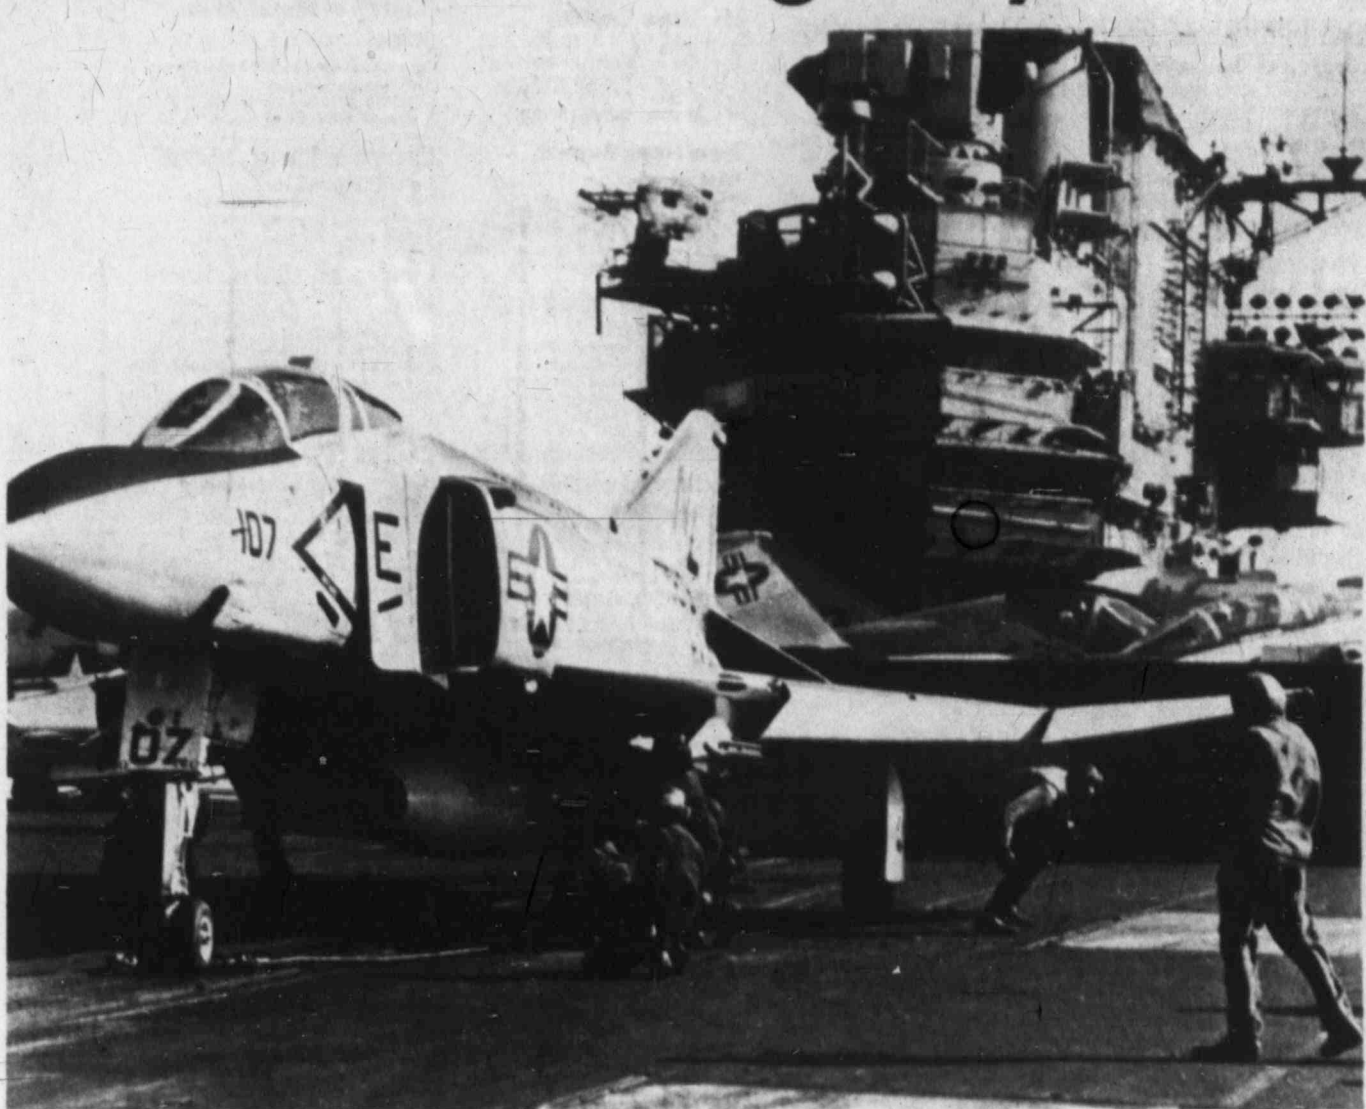

But if the pilots require coolness and finesse, so do the men who work on the flight deck—people such as Airman Rich Ellis, 21, of Newark, N.J.

Ellis makes his living rolling under jets on the catapults to make sure they are properly connected, for which he earns an extra $50 a month in hazardous duty pay.

"It's something to help out," he said of the extra money.

His is a job designed to produce ulcers and Ellis admitted that it often is nerve-wracking. It seems incongruous that with all the advanced technology his job remains necessary.

"You get used to it after a while."

he said. "You've got to keep your eyes moving, your head moving. You can't relax. There's a lot of tension."

In his two years about the Coral Sea, he guessed he has helped launch at least 4,000 airplanes from the ship's twin catapults. "It's like firing a double-barrelled shotgun," he said of the catapulting action.

The noise on deck is deafening without ear covers, but Ellis said that with his "Mickey Mouse ears" on it is like no more than a "loud vacuum cleaner."

With its current mission completed, the Coral Sea returns briefly to Alameda and then on to the Puget Sound Naval Shipyard at Bremerton, Wash., for an 11-month overhaul.

Officials' act seen as 'gesture'

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The government freed newspaper editor Percy Qoboza and nine other imprisoned black leaders Friday in an apparent conciliatory gesture toward South Africa's black community and international critics.

Justice and Police Minister James T. Kruger said the 10, held without charges since a massive security crackdown last Oct. 19, were released unconditionally. But he said he would "watch them."

Speaking to Parliament in Cape Town, Kruger said he personally had decided to free Qoboza and that the others were released on the recommendation of a review committee. All had been held at the Modder Bee prison near Johannesburg.

Qoboza, 40, was editor of the World, a white-owned newspaper for blacks. The paper was banned in the October crackdown.

The others released included two members of the "Committee of Ten" — a group of leaders from the nearby black township of Soweto — and some members of the Black People's Convention, a banned "black consciousness" organization.

Kruger said he had met with the 10 in prison.

Growers seeking to push coffee prices up again

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Central American coffee producers are meeting in San Salvador to try to figure out ways to push prices back toward last year's higher levels. Their best hope may be reduced production due to drought.

The seven Central American countries agreed last month in London to suspend exports, but at least one of them, El Salvador, continues doing business as usual. And the world's largest producers, Brazil and Colombia, are not represented.

"There will definitely be an impact if they don't sell," said one source close to the market in El Salvador. "But if they don't sell, they would be hurting in a short time. It would affect their balance of payments, their bank reserves and debt payments."

"Anyway, I don't think they can even coordinate their marketing strategies."

"We aren't selling all that much," said Ricardo Falla Caceres, manager of the government Salvadorean Coffee Company. But Fausto Cantu Pena, who heads the Mexican Coffee Institute, told reporters that "flexibility within the agreement is not understood."

Honduras announced last week that it has stopped selling.

Falla Caceres blamed commodity speculators for the drop in the spot price from $2.50 a pound last year to $1.72 a pound Thursday. He said speculation is causing panic among producers, some of whom have no organizations to control exports.

Production in some of the countries dropped due to drought, depleting reserves.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture earlier this year estimated the region's production at 14.6 million 132-pound sacks. But one delegate said it could be 2.6 million sacks less.

A dry spell cut last fall's harvest in El Salvador almost in half, from 2.7 to 1.5 million sacks, Falla Caceres reported. He said Brazil could end up with a 4-million-sack shortfall this year because of drought.

Midler to star in movie

NEW YORK (AP) — Mark Rydell, director of "Cinderella Liberty," "The Reivers," and "The Fox," has been signed by Twentieth-Century Fox to direct "The Rose," in which recording star Bette Midler will make her motion-picture debut.

Miss Midler will portray a singing star in this musical love story set in the late 60s.

Argentina due roads

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Argentina will receive $105 million from the World Bank to build 840 miles of highway, reports a spokesman from the National Highway Systems.

The state-owned National Highway System currently has 243 contracts out to build some 3,700 miles of roads, according to the spokesman. As of January 1977, Argentina's road system totaled 30,000 miles.

LOVE LOOKS UP

For Karl and Karen this month marks their second wedding anniversary. It brings bright memories that glow as the candles glowed that Saturday evening they were married.

But "looking back" is not the character of love. Love looks up! It finds its soul in the presence of God. It finds its body in the devotion of a man and a woman to each other, devotion enriched by faith and expressed in unselfish affection.

Love looks forward, too! It faces confidently the years ahead, expressing its spiritual vitality in hope and purpose and concern for others.

For Karl and Karen, as for other Christian couples, the smile in looking forward is born in looking up.

Group discusses issues, history

By CONSTANCE D'AU VIN
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Why do many people have the view that history is linear, moving toward a cataclysmic end? How much does biblical history affect the way we think about ourselves, our country? How do ethics and morality fit into the political games played in Congress and the government agencies?

These and hundreds of other questions have been pondered once a month for the last two years by a group meeting in the basement of the Church of the Reformation on Capitol Hill. They are not academicians or theologians. Most of them are high-level public officials and congressional aides, with schedules so crowded that they often conduct business during breakfast, lunch or dinner.

Unlike discussion groups on ethics and public policy held periodically by the Woodrow Wilson Center and the Center for Theology and Public Policy, this group limits its discussion to how present-day issues relate to biblical theology and history.

"In our political setup, nothing allows for the spiritual element," said the Rev. Dr. Arnold F. Keller, Jr. "It can come to the point where these questions are no longer raised, and that can be very dangerous." Keller is pastor of the Church of the Reformation.

He and his congregation hired the Rev. Leopold W. Bernhard two years ago. His only duty is to minister to the group called the "Public Affairs Sector."

On a recent evening, 44 persons made up the interfaith group, many of them high-ranking bureaucrats. Bernhard, a man with a warm personality who wears rimless glasses and conservative black garb, spends a lot of his time visiting White House staff, congressional offices and federal agencies to attract people to the meetings.

He and Keller also have managed to host a few affairs for members of Congress in the Rayburn Building, but haven't really gotten a regular discussion group of lawmakers going. Sen. Richard Stone attended a breakfast discussion on Jewish law and said that he found a perusal of "historical and religious underpinnings of issues ... helpful," according to press secretary Jean Parvin.

Ms. Parvin found the idea of a discussion group for aides so attractive that she immediately called Bernhard after she relayed Stone's message to a reporter and asked to be invited to the next monthly meeting.

"Actually, we started with friends, and the word spread from there," said Bernhard.

"We have to be very careful not to tie any of our discussions to specific pieces of legislation so they don't think we're trying to influence them," Keller said. "The Lutheran Churches of America (which funds the project along with its Maryland Synod, or district) has a government liaison officer (lobbyist) in Washington just like all the other churches. That's his job."

Bernhard is a native of Germany and is a longtime friend of Keller.

Board member to give Tuesday noon lecture

Christian Science lecturer Joseph G. Heard of Miami will present a lecture Tuesday noon in the Midland Hilton. It will be open to the public at no charge.

Heard is a member of the Board of Lectureship of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston. His program here is presented under auspices of Midland's First Church of Christ, Scientist.

The visitor's lecture topic is to be "We THY People."

Heard says that "the Bible abounds with stories of how men and women in times of great peril discovered a fuller life through the understanding of God. They were freed from prisons, hunger, poverty, sin, malice, intrigue, diseases acute and chronic." And he reiterates that the Biblical miracles resulted from God's law of goodness and love for man. This law is always present, available today as it was in Jesus' day, Heard declares.

The visitor has been a Christian Science practitioner for more than 25 years. He was elected to the Christian Science Board of Lectureship in 1969.

Joseph G. Heard

The Tuesday lecture will be in the Ellenburger, and Devonian rooms of the Midland Hilton. Child care will be provided in the Arbor Room of the hotel.

Midland Unitarians to have Sunday guest

Midland Unitarians will be host to George Briggs of Beaumont at their Sunday morning service.

Briggs is minister of the Spindletop Unitarian Church of Beaumont. He will be speaking during the 10:30 a.m. Sunday service of the Midland Unitarian Church, 3400 North A St., with sermon topic to be "I Thou and I It." The public is invited to hear him.

Briggs holds a bachelor's degree from San Jose State College in California and a master's degree from the Iliff School of Theology in Denver. A former Methodist minister, he served as pastor of churches in Oregon and Idaho from 1955 to 1960. He has been in the Unitarian-Universalist ministry since 1968, serving the First Universalist Church of Pittsfield, Maine, from 1968 to 1973, and as minister of the Spindletop Unitarian Church from 1973 to the present. In addition to his ministerial work, Briggs is presently a graduate student and teaching fellow in the English department of Lamar

Billy and Bettye Nickell

Visiting evangelists to lead special rites

West Texas evangelists Billy and Bettye Nickell will lead special services next week at Midland's First Assembly of God, 100 W. Wadley Ave.

The evangelists, from Andrews, will begin their ministry at the local church Sunday, with services to continue daily through March 19, said the Rev. J. W. Farmer, host pastor. Sunday services will begin at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., and weekday services are scheduled for 7:30 p.m., he said. The events will be open to the public.

Nickell is a graduate of Andrews

High School and trained for the ministry at Southwestern Assemblies of God College at Waxahatchie. He has been involved fulltime in the evangelistic ministry for the last three years, and has conducted revivals and crusades in many parts of the nation. His wife, a graduate of Denver City High School and Southwestern Assemblies of God College, holds a B.A. degree from North Texas State University.

The visiting evangelists will provide special music during each of the services here, it was announced.

Congregation continuing Sunday night missions

First United Methodist Church continues its special Sunday Night Preaching Mission with a service at 7 p.m. Sunday at which Dr. Walter L. Underwood of Houston will be the speaker.

Dr. Underwood currently is pastor of Houston's St. Luke's United Methodist Church and a former pastor of First Methodist Church of Wichita Falls and First Methodist Church of Fort Worth. He is a graduate of the University of Virginia and Perkins School of Theology of Southern Methodist University. He holds an honorary doctor of divinity degree from Texas Wesleyan College at Fort Worth.

The visitor is a former superintendent of the Dallas Southwest District of the United Methodist Church and currently serves as vice chairman of the board of trustees of the Methodist Mission Home and the Southwest Center for Hearing Impaired at San Antonio. He is a trustee of Texas Wesleyan College and the Methodist Hospital at Houston. He has been a member of the World Methodist Council and has served as a delegate to the general and jurisdictional conferences of the United Methodist Church.

The Sunday night service will be open to the public. The church nursery will be available for child care.

Choir to voice special music

"Seven Words of Love," a cantata composed by Lloyd Pfautsch of Dallas, will be presented during the Sunday morning worship service of St. Luke's United Methodist Church.

The presentation will feature the 30-voice Chancel Choir, directed by Don McCartney, joined by readers. Mona Ruth Dickson will provide organ accompaniment.

Pfautsch's cantata includes musical settings for the seven last words spoken by Christ on the cross. The settings will be sung by the choir. Following each, a commentary on that particular word will be read. The commentaries were selected by Pfautsch from the writings and sermons of such outstanding theologians and leaders as John Wesley, Martin Luther, John Calvin and Soren Kierkegaard.

Pfautsch is chairman of the department of choral music at Southern Methodist University and well-known as a composer of anthems and choral works.

The Sunday service, scheduled to begin at 10:30 a.m., will be open to all interested persons. St. Luke's Church is at 3011 W. Kansas Ave.

Group plans sunrise rites

The annual sunrise Easter service sponsored by the Midland Association of Churches will be held this year at Memorial Christian Church, Andrews Highway at West Cuthbert avenue.

The Rev. O.A. McBrayer, pastor of St. Luke's United Methodist Church here, will deliver the sermon at the service, open to all residents of the community.

Odessa church hosting minister's conference

ODESSA — A conference and workshop exploring problems of being a minister from both emotional and occupational standpoints will be held Monday at Odessa's Westminster Presbyterian Church.

According to Dr. Clark Johnson, director of the Human Potentials Center of The University of Texas of the Permian Basin, the workshop is being sponsored jointly by the Human Potentials Center and the UTPB United Campus Ministry.

Topics scheduled for discussion include "The Professional: 'Burn-Out,'" "Satisfactions and Rewards," "Pitfalls and Dangers of the Counseling Role."

The conference will begin at 9 a.m. Monday, continuing until 3:45 p.m. There will be a $10 fee per participant. Additional information on the workshop may be obtained from Dr. Johnson at UTPB.

Here's a Quick Message About a Long-Winded Subject

There are probably as many ideas about religion as there are people, and that's what Unitarian Universalists discovered several hundred years ago. Since then, Unitarian Universalists have revered personal thought and action within the religious community. Monterey blanks Rebels, EP Burges

By BOB DILLON

Superb pitching and power hitting was the order of the day in the 4th annual Tournament of Champions at Cubs Stadium Friday.

Lubbock Monterey got two great mound performances from Ron Reeves and Derek Hatfield while Duncanville's Leland Creel put on an amazing power-hitting display as the Plainsmen and Panthers won two games each in the baseball tourney.

Reeves, who quarterbacked Monterey to the Class AAAA state semifinals in 1976 and to the quarterfinals this past season in football, set El Paso Burges' Mustangs down on two hits Friday night while striking out 15.

Hatfield, meanwhile, blanked the Midland Lee Rebels, 5-0, Friday afternoon in scattering six hits.

Duncanville, state baseball champions in 1975-76 and state runnerup last season, bombed Midland, 10-0 and Burges to the tune of 13-2, flexing its muscles in pounding out 21 hits in the two games.

CREEL COLLECTED four hits in six trips to the plate, including a pair of doubles, a triple and long home run over the scoreboard in left. The 6-4, 220-pound senior, knocked in seven runs against Midland and Burges and went all the way on the mound in beating the El Paso entry.

Duncanville only out-hit Midland High, 9-6, but the Bulldogs committed six big errors while Scott Wolf, Creel and Pete Collins were pounding the ball. Creel had a double and homer. Collins ripped a triple and Wolf along with catcher Nick Junior, smacked doubles.

Lee's Gary Gibson threw well against Monterey, trailing only 1-0 going into the seventh inning, but three errors opened the gates for a four-run outburst for the Plainsmen.

Steve Pitts hit a double for the Rebels while Dana Rieger also had a two-bagger for the Plainsmen.

GIBSON STRUCK out seven Plainsmen and had a three-hitter going for six innings, before the roof fell in on the 220-pound southpaw.

Duncanville scored three quick runs off Burges in the third game of the tourney with Creel's long two-run triple the big blow in the first inning.

Wolf also had a triple for the Panthers in the second when they scored two more runs and Creel's two-run double highlighted a five-run outburst in the fourth inning.

Lee and Midland then met with the Rebels getting out in front, 7-0 before the Purple Pack scratched.

The Rebs scored four runs in the first inning off starter Archie Booth.

Clay Calhoun started the rally with a triple to deep right-center and after two walks, John White knocked in a pair of runs with a single.

TERRY WILLIS picked up the win on the mound, his second of the season as Coach Ernie Johnson's Rebels chalked up their sixth win of the season in seven outings.

Midland got a single run in the fourth inning and added two more in the seventh with Jeff Hatfield picking up the save for Willis.

Jimmy Zachry singled in Tracy Gann in the fourth while Blake Feldt had a run-producing single in the seventh for the Pack which is now 2-4 on the year.

Reeves was tremendous against (Continued on 2B)

IT WAS that kind of day, one for soaking up the sun, but photographer Bruce Partain, on assignment to shoot the Tall City Baseball

Smith were doing the sole-searching in the parking lot and not the ball park.

After 15 years, Bud comes back

If you were casting for Billy the Kid, you wouldn't audition James Arness. Who would expect to see Jackie Gleason as Rhett Butler? And it couldn't have been more of an upset if Col. Earl Blaik had said, "Sure, I'll coach Navy."

What made it even tougher to digest was the 15-year absence and, yes, to a lot of folks even the age.

Bud Wilkinson was 62 when he said "yes" to the St. Louis Cardinals the other day. Even his ex-players were surprised.

Bud belongs right there with the Rocknes, Staggs, Leahys, Crislers and Biermans of the past and the Bryants, Hayes', and Paternos of the present. Where else with a 145-29-4 record and three national championships?

HE'S PART of the college legend and if a pro team had made an offer 15 years ago, like Joe Paterno a few years ago, there's no doubt in anyone's mind, particularly those who knew him, that he would have turned it down.

But times change and so do circumstances. A comfortable retirement from football was shaken by a recent Internal Revenue Service ruling that had an adverse effect on his insurance business and perhaps his longing for a return to the life he knew for so long became acute. As long as he was involved in TV color commentary of the weekly NCAA games, he wasn't too far away from his first love, but last year even those ties were severed.

So now, after the first shock of his acceptance of the new challenge was worn off, the skeptics are at work.

HAS HE been away too long? Have the times passed him by? Can a college coach who rode to unparalleled success on ground-oriented, ball-control football adjust to the wonderful world of volleyball? And is 62 too late in life to begin over again in a strange environment?

Three Midlanders who played for Wilkinson and span the years of the Wilkinson era at Norman leave little doubt of their confidence in Bud's ability to succeed, although all three were uniformly surprised their old coach had deserted retirement for the blandishments of the mercenaries.

Dean Smith played on the post-war Sooner teams, the 1947-1951 stretch while Wayne Greenlee played in the mid-1950's, probably the height of Wilkinson's success, and Dale Keagle played for the Sooners in the final years when the heretofore verboten word "defeat" began smudging the amazing success story.

BUD'S IMPACT was such that in recalling their impressions of the past at separate sittings, it was almost like interviewing the same person.

"I was elated that he got back into coaching," Smith, who came out of Tulsa Central to play at OU, said. "He's a tremendous coach and individual. I first met him when he first took over as head coach. He's about the most honest and direct individual I've ever known."

"I was quite surprised and I just couldn't believe it," Greenlee said.

KEADLE, WHO played as a back at Stinnett and then attended OU from 1957 to 1960, recalls, "He was not only innovative, but had a way with collegiate players. As far as I am concerned, there is no reason to think he wouldn't have the same type rapport with his pro players. He is one of the most fantastic individuals I've known. I disagree with the skeptics that say he has been out too long."

Smith's impressions are remarkably similar. "He uses a psychological approach to football in addition to being a shrewd coach. In retrospect, I think he got more out of individuals than most coaches could have."

While at OU, Smith recalled the Sooners lost to Santa Clara and then won 32 straight before losing to Bear Bryant coached Kentucky in the 1952 Sugar Bowl.

"YES, THAT was the team that had Babe Parilli at quarterback, but I remember that big tackle (Bob Gains) most of all, because as offensive guard I played opposite him."

"I'm afraid he has been out too long," Greenlee began. "But if he rounds up a good staff of assistants, he can do it, if he has the lieutenants."

DEBBIE AUSTIN

Austin opens 4-stroke edge in Sunstar golf

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sizzling Debbie Austin fired a 2-under-par 70 Friday to assume a 4-stroke advantage at the midway point of the $100,000 Sunstar Classic at Rancho Park golf course.

Austin has a 36-hole score of 138 entering today's third round of the Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament that offers a $15,000 first prize and wraps up Sunday at the 6,100-yard El Rancho layout.

Five players share second place at 142—Chako Haguchi and Penny Pulz, who had 70s Friday; Debbie Massey, Kathy Martin and Mary Dwyer, all of whom had second-round 71s.

Kathy Mant, who had a 72 Friday, is alone at 143.

Nancy Lopez, Sandra Post, Betsy King, Iyako Okamoto and Silvia Bertolaccini are next at even-par 144.

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Under normal conditions, Utah Coach Jerry Pimm says, his team would be "overjoyed" by drawing an opponent with the worst record in the NCAA basketball tournament.

But Pimm sees danger in Sunday's first-round meeting with Missouri, a team that finished sixth in the Big Eight during the regular season but won its way into the Midwest Regional by capturing the conference's post-season tourney.

"They are playing very good basketball," Pimm said. "In order to beat Iowa State, Nebraska and Kansas State on successive nights, they have to have been playing extremely well. And from all the information we can gather, their team is playing as good as they've played all season."

The 15th-ranked Utah squad, 22-5, will tangle with the Tigers at 2:36

ODESSA—The opening day of the 35th annual West Texas Relays went on as a matter of course here Friday at W. T. Barrett Stadium with little of the unexpected happening. That is until the final race of the day.

Odesa Permian, Odesa High and Midland High were all disqualified in the mile relay on the final event of the day. In a fit of baton throwing, which is not an event and not allowed by the UIL under any meet circumstances, the three schools were all guilty of the same unfortunate act. They won't be running today when the finals begin at 1 p.m.

PERMIAN STARTED the rash of baton gymnastics when Mark Shipman threw the baton when he finished the race. An Odesa High runner followed suit, and Midland's Chuck Stump beat then all when his baton went across the fence to the Barrett Stadium infield. All three teams were put out of the competition.

"I didn't even know we had been disqualified," Midland High Coach Ed Nixon said late Friday. "I got a call at home explaining that we had thrown the baton and had been disqualified. I saw Permian and Odesa throw theirs, and then I thought that would put us in the finals. I saw another baton go over the fence, but I didn't know who threw it. The baton is still there I guess, and I know one young man that is going to have to buy a baton come Monday."

"I'M SURE Chuck just followed suit with what the others were doing, but we have talked about that sort of thing before."

It was that kind of day for the Bulldogs. They also lost their sprint relay team by missing the final exchange. Permian's oversight, however, could be a disaster for the Panthers since they have a chance to win the meet. Permian took the first day lead by scoring 32 points in four field event finals Friday. El Paso Bowie is second with 20 while San Angelo, now the favorite, has 19.

There were some redeeming qualities for the Bulldogs, however. Alvin Price turned in a solid 220 to earn a finals berth by winning his heat. West Texas Relays officials, however, did not release any qualifying times.

STUMP AND Gene Tuttle both gained finals berth in the 880 Dash with good showings while Jerry Bundage qualified in the 100. Jeff Adkins and Pat Darden both qualified as expected in the competitive mile run.

The Midland High and Lee girls did not score any points Friday as El Paso Eastwood jumped to a big lead with 42 points.

Lee's Terry Reyes was the only Rebel to gain the finals with a berth in the 880. Midland High, however, will have seven individuals and one relay in the finals.

Jana Trolinder and Susan Shoemaker both won berths in the 80-yard hurdles while Loryanne Coon and Donna Repman both made the mile run. Nan White will be in the 440.

Trolinder, White, Margaret Christian and Lashell Schrock will comprise the mile relay unit.

THE ANDREWS Mustangs took the first day lead in the AAA division with 34 points, but they are not expected to hold on long enough for the title. Van Peary, a freshman, won the long jump with a leap of 21-5, and also qualified in the 100 and 220.

AAAA Division Finals

The sun shines again for Jeff

By PAUL DOMOWITCH

Jeff Bramlett will be the first to admit that he hasn't exactly been playing what you'd call exceptional tennis of late. For one reason or another, the young Midland High netman, who just last summer made it to the round of 32 in the Boys 16 Nationals, has been in a slump. A bad slump.

After coming on strong late last year, Bramlett's tennis game took a decided turn for the worst. Matches that should have been routes became struggles. And players who had no right to even think they could beat him, were doing just that.

But the clouds parted and the sun began to shine again for the Midland High junior last weekend in Dallas, when he rode over five straight opponents with the ease of old, enroute to winning the boys singles title at the L.D. Bell Tennis Festival. And Friday, he let everyone know it wasn't a fluke as he left a trail of three more victims and breezed to a berth in this morning's final round of the Tall City Tennis Classic.

Bramlett will face top-seeded Wayne Oppenheim of El Paso Eastwood in today's 9 a.m. championship match. In the girls singles final also slated for 9 at the Midland High courts, Bramlett's MHS teammate Vicki Vasicek will tangle with Lee's Karen Broe.

The boys and girls doubles crowns will also be decided this morning, with Midland's Kirk Farquhar and Joe Love facing Permian's Mike Madden and Steve Ashley in the boys final, and Suzanne Naworski and Karen Wilson of Permian meeting Nancy Craig and Sharon Weaver of Lubbock Monterey for the girls' crown.

Bramlett, who is seeded behind Oppenheim, disposed of all three of his Friday opponents in straight sets, including third-seeded Jim Cannon of Amarillo in the afternoon semifinals, 6-2, 6-2.

"He just decided it was time for him to play," Bramlett's Midland High coach Larry Burgin explained matter-of-factly. "He can write his own ticket now if he wants to."

Oppenheim, who beat Bramlett in two of three head-to-head meetings last summer on the Highway 80 circuit, will be no pushover though. He made that clear in his impressive 6-4, 2-6, 6-3 semifinal victory over Lubbock Coronado's Robert Davis, the tourney's Fourth seed.

Vasicek, the defending girls singles champ and the number one seed, will be a slight favorite over Broe, who advanced to today's finals by eliminating Midland sophomore Mary Morgan, 6-4, 7-6, in the semis. Vasicek got off to a slow start against Lubbock Monterey's Cheryl Rosen in her semifinal match before prevailing, 4-6, 6-1, 6-3.

The young Morgan pulled off one of the few upsets Friday, when she eliminated second-seeded Kathy Lawson of El Paso Eastwood in the 20-10 record makes reluctant Reuschel hot copy

By SCOTT OSTLER
The Los Angeles Times

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — The sun was finally making progress in its battle with the clouds and the Chicago Cubs were working hard, making up for rained-out practice time. Rick Reuschel ducked into the clubhouse to change his undershirt, trade his cleats for jogging shoes and answer a few questions.

Talking to reporters is not Reuschel's favorite pastime, but he's patiently endured it since becoming a sensation of sorts last season. A pitcher with a 62-64 record through his first five big-league seasons, he was 20-10 in '77, with a 2.79 earned-run average. National League players named him right-handed pitcher of the year.

During the winter he was much in demand on the Chicago-area banquet circuit. "He could have made a lot of money, but he turned all the offers down," says a Cubs spokesman.

INSTEAD REUSCHEL played basketball with the Cubs' team — "My job was mostly rebounding and outlet passes" — and did carpentry work on his new home in Chicago.

"I don't like to speak," says Reuschel, with conviction. "I don't enjoy it. I'm not comfortable. My time was taken up by basketball and working on my house. I couldn't have done it (made appearances) even if I had wanted to, which I didn't. I've got to put up with it (being in the public eye) six or seven months of the year. I enjoy getting away from it as much as possible."

In many ways, Reuschel (pronounced RUSH-L) is an untypical athlete. He's a star who is happy with his contract and feels loyalty to his team; a math major in college who dislikes discussing the science of pitching; a pitcher who likes Wrigley Field, and a ballplayer who is bashful at off-the-field gatherings but gets along fine with the rabid Cubs fans.

Most untypical of all is his physical appearance. He's been called probably the least athletic-looking guy in the major leagues, with a goodly proportion of his 230 pounds (he's 6-3) situated around his waistline. He has frequently been advised in print that he might win a few more games if he lost a few more pounds. At least that's what they wrote until last year.

"I NEVER really had to deal with the press until last year," Reuschel says. "Before, they didn't talk to me except when they wanted to talk about my weight. I usually don't have much to say, so they left me alone."

Didn't he enjoy the sudden attention?

"Not especially. It didn't do anything for me. I've seen what they can be like when you're not going so good, and all of a sudden everyone around is slapping your back. It seems kind of, what's a good word? Phony, yea, that's a good word. For five years all guys said about you was how overweight you are, then all of a sudden they're your best buddy. I'd just as soon they leave me alone the way they always did. I'm not concerned about getting my name in the paper.

"THEY MADE my job tougher when I was going bad, so why should I help make their job easier now that I'm going good? Instead of a few words of encouragement when I was pitching good but not getting any support, they just ignored me like I wasn't even there."

REUSCHEL'S money pitch is his sinker, handy to have in Wrigley Field, where any ball not hit on the ground has a chance to be blown over the ivy-covered walls. When did he develop the pitch?

"I didn't even know it was a sinker until I got to the big leagues," Reuschel says. "I thought it was a fastball. They told me, 'That's no fastball, that's a sinker.'"

To appreciate the pitch you have to see it from the center field TV camera, says Cubs PR man Buck Peden. "It looks like a fastball but it drops like it's falling off a table. He used to throw it 3-0 and batters would swing and it would bounce in the dirt. Then they started letting it go 3-0 and so he started throwing fastballs. Now they don't know what to expect."

Asked to explain how he throws the sinker, Reuschel declines.

"I don't know how to explain all that. As long as it keeps sinking I try not to get into the mechanics of it. You start thinking about all that and you take your mind off the purpose of being out here, which is to get people out. I try to keep it simple and let things take care of themselves."

Mark "The Bird" Fidrych loosens up prior to turning back Red Sox for Tigers in two-inning exhibition mound stint Friday.

Henderson's bat pace Texas, 6-2

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Outfielder Ken Henderson, who may or may not figure in the Texas Rangers regular season plans, collected two hits and two runs batted in Friday as the Rangers dropped Kansas City 6-2 in the exhibition opener for both teams.

Henderson has been rumored to be the "player to be named later" in a trade between Texas and the New York Mets, but both teams are reportedly having second thoughts.

Henderson singled in the fifth, then doubled home two runs in the seventh to pace a 12-hit Ranger attack.

Dock Ellis, Doyle Alexander and Ferguson Jenkins were impressive on the Texas mound, with Alexander allowing three hits and no runs in three innings.

Dennis Leonard started for the defending West Division champion Royals and pitched a perfect two innings.

Norwood's double beats Astros in 12

COCOA, Fla. (AP) — Willie Norwood's two-out double in the 12th inning drove in Glenn Borgmann from second to give the Minnesota Twins a 5-4 victory Friday over the Houston Astros in the exhibition baseball opener for both teams.

Borgmann and Sam Perlozza singled off Houston losing pitcher Gene Pentz to set up Norwood's game winning hit.

The Twins overcame an early 4-0 deficit by using two walks, a triple by Rod Carew and a single by Dan Ford for three runs in the third and then pulling even at 4-4 on a sacrifice fly by Butch Wynegar in the seventh.

Terry Puhl, Houston's first batter, homered off Minnesota starter Pete Redfern and the Astros scored three more runs off Redfern in the second inning.

Chisox make Pirates walk plank

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Wayne Nordhagen drove home four runs with a triple and a homer Friday as the Chicago White Sox opened the 1978 exhibition season with an 8-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Nordhagen was credited with a two-run triple in the first inning off loser John Candelaria when Pirate right fielder Dave Parker fell while in pursuit of a windblown fly ball.

Nordhagen hit a two-run homer in the fifth inning off Pirate rookie Rob Scury, and designated hitter Reggie Sanders followed moments later with another two-run homer.

Fidrych beats Bosox for Tigers

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Mark "The Bird" Fidrych pitched two scoreless innings Friday as the Detroit Tigers chalked up their first exhibition victory of the season, a 7-4 decision over the Boston Red Sox.

Fidrych struck out two and got credit for the victory in his first appearance of the young Grapefruit League season.

The Tigers were never behind as Jason Thompson opened a five-run second inning with a 360-foot homer off the light post at Marchant Stadium.

Butch Albert's homer beats Phils

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP) — Butch Albert's third hit of the game, a three-run homer with two out in the 10th inning, gave the Toronto Blue Jays a 7-4 comeback victory Friday over the Philadelphia Phillies in the exhibition baseball season opener for both teams.

Warren Brusstar had retired the first two batters in the inning before Al Woods reached first on a throwing error by shortstop Terry Harmon.

Sam Ewing followed with a walk before Albert, acquired in an off-season trade which sent Ron Fairly to the California Angels, homered to cap the comeback after the Jays had fallen behind 4-0 after four innings.

Angels nudge Oakland A's, 3-1

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — California's Chris Knapp and Dyer Miller made their exhibition pitching debuts in impressive fashion Friday as the Angels posted a 3-1 victory over the Oakland A's.

Knapp, a right-hander acquired from Chicago in the trade that sent Bobby Bonds to the White Sox, started and worked three shutout innings, allowing one hit and one walk, both in the first inning.

Miller, a right-handed reliever who joined the Angels in midseason last year, picked up the victory by working the final three innings and allowing just one hit while striking out two.

Atlanta bobble opens the gates

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Atlanta shortstop Craig Robinson kicked Ellis Valentine's grounder as Gary Carter scored the eventual winning run in the fifth inning Friday in the Montreal Expos' 7-4 exhibition baseball victory over the Braves.

Right-hander Joe Keener was the winning pitcher, hurling two innings, giving up one hit and striking out one. Rick Mahler took the loss for the Braves.

Giants beat Tribe on Murray's belt

PHOENIX (AP) — Rookie Richard Murray's 450-foot home run in the 10th inning, followed by an unearned run, gave the San Francisco Giants a 6-5 exhibition baseball victory over the Cleveland Indians Friday.

The Indians, who beat the Giants in 10 innings Thursday to open the Cactus League season, had taken a 5-4 lead in the top of the 10th with an unearned run.

Murray belted his homer to center field off rookie pitcher Dennis Kinney to tie the score. Then Darrell Evans singled and, with two out, went from first to home with the winning run after Indians center fielder Horace Speed, a former Giant, dropped Mario Guerrero's fly ball.

The homer by Murray, who had a two-run triple Thursday, was the Giants' first of the year. Andre Thornton hit the Indians' first homer, a two-run blast, in the fifth inning.

TEE TIME

Golfers to mind manners

BY REX WORRELL
Hogan Park Golf Pro

With the weather improving and the golf season finally getting under way, it would be a good time for us to brush up on our golf course etiquette.

Let's take a look at the big E in golf, proper etiquette, which amounts to a golfer's manners or common courtesy shown by one golfer to another while involved in play.

This definition takes in all phases of etiquette. Now let's break it down into a more detailed description of how a properly educated golfer should conduct himself on the golf course.

— DO NOT stand close to or behind another player while he is addressing the ball or making a stroke. Talking or moving around under these conditions is also considered considered taboo.

—No player should make a shot until all is clear up ahead. In other words, wait until the players in front are well out of range.

—In the best interest of all players, it is necessary to play without delay. This is the most frequently abused rule of etiquette. To hold up the four-somes behind you frustrates both your own group and the players waiting to hit. If your group gets behind, only a couple of minutes are required to stop and allow a faster group to play through.

— Players searching for a lost ball should always permit players coming up to pass them.

— Before leaving sandtraps after play, the courteous golfers level the sand.

— Players should not pull carts or drop bags on putting surfaces. Before leaving a green, all ball marks and spike marks made while playing the hole should be repaired. As soon as this is done, leave the green immediately to make way for the next group.

Politeness on the golf course has traditionally been the main reason why golf is considered a game of gentlemen and ladies. Check your group's etiquette the next time you play and see how they measure up.

THE HOGAN Park Women's Golf Association held a low score on par fours event last Thursday with the 18-hole division first flight winner being Cheryl Starcevic, the second flight winner was Wilma Cox, the third flight Sandy Wilkerson and fourth flight Bernice Cox. In the nine hole division, Francis Stahl and Betty Reimers tied for first while Pat Kolb and Jeanne Allen tied for second.

There will be a board meeting for the HPWGA Wednesday at 9:30 a.m. in the home of Anelle Mack. A general business meeting of the HPWGA will be held in the golf shop Thursday at 9:30 a.m. After the business meeting, the ladies will make their own pairings for a most pars event with the nine-hole division starting on No. 10 tee box.

Lee captures Tall City golf

With Kyle Rowland turning in a medal 145 and Grant Spencer shooting a 149, Midland Lee took first place in the 36-hole Midland Invitational Golf Tournament Friday at Hogan Park Golf Course.

The Rebels, posting a team score of 606, beat out Odessa Permian, which finished with a 621. Kelly Moran's 150 followed Rowland and Spencer in the medal competition.

Midland High finished third with a 630 as Mike Mahan turned in the low round of 77-76-151 or the Bulldogs.

In the JV competition Odessa Permian No. 2 took first place with a 638, beating out Midland High No. 2 which finished with a 661.

In the varsity competition, Lee shot a first-day 297 to lead Permian and Midland by eight strokes and came home Friday with a low 309 for its 606. Buddy Gieb shot a 157, Curt Raney a 159 and Gary Raney a 162 for the Rebels.

Tigers worry Utah

to defend the Tigers' presence in the 32-team national tourney.

Stewart concedes that Utah and any future NCAA opponents will take comfort in Missouri's 14-15 record.

"Realistically, sure they will," he said. "They'll have to look at that. But on the other hand, we played some pretty good people. When you get into a tournament, it's momentum, how well you're playing now."

DePaul enters its first-round game with Creighton, the Missouri Valley champion, with the best record in the NCAA field, 25-2, including a triple overtime victory over the Bluejays six weeks ago in Omaha.

"I don't think there's any team in the tournament we can't beat," said

JIM MURRAY

Bartow successor up for sainthoodBy JIM MURRAY
The Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Replacing John Wooden as coach of UCLA basketball was a job for a guy who could part the Red Sea, multiply loaves and fishes or cure lepers.

Replacing Gene Bartow was a job for a guy who could beat Oregon State or Idaho State.

Which is why people were surprised when UCLA went out and hired the best coach money could buy.

The coach they got was not Al McGuire, Dean Smith, Digger Phelps. On his record, he was better. This was a coach who, in 1965, took a team into Pauley Pavilion and trounced the two-time NCAA champion UCLA varsity Bruins by a whopping 15 points! He broke in some of the greatest players ever to play the game of basketball — unless you can think of some better than Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Bill Walton, Lucius Allen, Curtis Rowe, Greg Lee, Jamaal Wilkes.

This was a coach who had three undefeated years, whose overall record was 101-15.

THE BIGGEST surprise was that he was still available, that the Bruins brain trust didn't have to fight off the New York Knicks, Alabama Crimson Tide or Texas Longhorns for his services. This was a man who knew every crack in the floor at Pauley Pavilion — his team won the first game played there, 75-60, beating the legend, John Wooden, in the process. This was a man who knew every jump-shooter in Southern California's playgrounds and what he liked for dinner.

This was a man who should have held out for front footage on Westwood Blvd. before signing. But he probably took a cut in salary.

Gary Allen Cunningham is only the sixth head basketball coach in UCLA history. It's better than being the fifth because UCLA is probably the only basketball school in the country where you can go 24-5 and have the alumni howling for your scalp the next day.

GARY CUNNINGHAM came along at just the right time. It is well known that timing is as important as talent and Gene Bartow had run screaming for the hills after posting an .832 record in his two seasons after Wooden. He lost only nine games and still got obscene phone calls in the night. Wherever he went, John Wooden's eyes seemed to follow him like a portrait in a haunted house.

There was no reason to believe Cunningham would find it any different. Wooden was more than a coach, he was a divinity. Around the shrines of Westwood, he was "St. John." Bartow was the voice crying in the wilderness.

Parison to Wooden, Cunningham invited it. Instead of hiding from him, Gary hung an autographed photo of Wooden on his wall. It is fondly inscribed "To one of my boys."

HISTORY WILL record whether he's one of his boys — or one of his victims. But Cunningham was a Wooden player, '59 to '62. He was a Wooden freshman coach, '65 to '71, and went undefeated three times. Cunningham knew better than most that players make the coach whether the coach is Wooden or Cunningham. He was a wooden assistant from '68 to '75.

Cunningham is a devoted disciple of the Gospel according to John. And a believer in the Wooden "Pyramid Of Success," a collection of wall mottoes and bromides from the collected works of Elbert Hubbard and Grantland Rice, which nevertheless seems to lead somehow to the NCAA — with the help of 7-foot centers.

The question is whether sainthood can be passed on, whether St. Gary will be the newest canonization at Westwood. It will depend on whether success can be pyramided in the upcoming NCAA eliminations, a 5-game gauntlet in which the Wooden words to live by will be sorely tested. But if Gary passes the devil's advocates and wins at St. Louis, the watchword at Westwood will no longer be "Wooden wouldn't have played it that way" but rather "Cunningham will think of something, don't panic!"

Ed Fiori...his 65 withstands challenge.

Ed Fiori retains wind-aided lead

MIAMI (AP) — A howling wind swept away the chances of any would-be challengers and left rookie Ed Fiori as the leader Friday in the day-long completion of the rain-interrupted first round of the $200,000 Doral Open Golf Tournament.

The chunky Fiori, who had a spectacular, 7-under-par 65, and five men with 67s all completed play Thursday before a steadily-pounding rain flooded the 7,065-yard Blue Monster course at the Doral Country Club and forced a suspension of play.

Half the field, 75 players, were stranded on the course and forced to return Friday to complete the round. The course had dried, but a whipping, 30-mile per hour wind kicked up and sent scores soaring.

"THE COURSE had to play anywhere from three to five shots harder today," said Fiori who tried—then abandoned—a practice session. "It's too windy to practice. It's even too windy to golfing."

None of the players who finished Friday were able to break 70.

"Life is not supposed to be fair,"

Chi Chi said with a grin. "If life was fair, I'd be the richest man in the world. On a day like today, attitude is very important."

"You can't go out there feeling that you've been robbed. You can't go out with the idea that the guys who played yesterday got a big break. You just have to go out and do the best you can."

FOLLOWING THE 65 posted by the 24-year-old Fiori were Tom Weiskopf, Gibby Gilbert, Bill Kratzert, John Mahaffey and Lee Mikles at 67. Lou Graham and Wally Armstrong were at 68. Jack Nicklaus topped a group of four at 69.

They, and all others who finished play Thursday, had the day off whether they wanted it or not. The second round is scheduled for Saturday with a double round of 36-hole set for Sunday.

The interruption of play was the fifth time in 10 weeks on the pro tour this year that play had been disrupted.

RODRIGUEZ, Roger Kennedy, Bob Mann and Eddie Pearce, with 70s, were the best of the men who finished play Friday.

Texas

HOUSTON (AP) — Billy Blum tossed a three-hitter and his teammates hit four home runs as the Houston Cougars defeated the Texas Longhorns 6-1 in a South-west Conference baseball game Friday.

Blum struck out 11 and walked only three as he picked up his fourth victory against no defeats.

Houston now is 10-6 for the season and 3-1 in conference play. Texas is 14-4 for the year and 1-3 in league action.

Come talk Peugeot Diesel. There's never been a better time.

56 years of experience. Come in and let us show you our full line of Peugeot Diesels. The same diesels that Peugeot has spent over fifty-six years perfecting. More miles per gallon. We'll show you how a Peugeot Diesel will give you more miles per gallon; since it gets the best mileage of any compact—34 mpg highway, 28 mpg city, 30 mpg combined.* And since diesel fuel nationally averages for some 10¢ a gallon less, you'll also get more miles per dollar.

No tune-ups. We'll show you how a Peugeot Diesel saves on tune-ups, too. Because they don't need any. There's never been a better time. If you want to talk diesel, come talk to us. There's never been a better time.
