MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE

By W. N. P.

Will H. Grey of Tulsa, Oklahoma is president of the National Association of Independent Oil Producers and chairman of the Oil Division of the Southern Tariff Association. President Gray may call a conference of the directors of the National Association of the Independents to be held during the Texas State Fair. Probably on October 14. This is the latest interview of this well-known Texan who has ever been a dyed in the wool Democrat but who is a stalwart champion of a high tariff on oil importations: "The reasons for the recent advances in oil are several and in my judgment we may look forward with confidence to a price of $2 a barrel for oil by January 1. I should not be at all surprised if the price goes even higher. It may not be generally known, but the world will consume more gasoline and oils of other sorts in 1921 than throughout any other twelve-month period in all of the history of time. The gasoline consumption for the current months is well known to be from 18 to 20 per cent above the rate of consumption in 1920 and fully 40 per cent greater than at the time of the signing of the armistice with Germany in November, 1918. This means that in a year of dire depression, with 5,000,000 men out of work, there is still a demand for gasoline and oils unprecedented. The cut in the price of oil from $2.50 to $1 never was justifiable in the sense that price reductions for other commodities was to be expected because of reduced demand. The sole reason for the downward plunge of oil was an era of tremendous overproduction in the Republic of Mexico, which came into this country tax free, duty free and paid no part of our war debt. From December, 1920, through June, 1921, oil from Mexico was imported into this country at the rate of 450,000 barrels a day. The profits from this imported oil went exclusively into the coffers of a few great corporations. In the month of August the famous Amatland wells began to show salt water. By the end of August the great Amatland Valley field had failed. With oil down to a dollar a barrel the production was declining at a rapid rate. Production in the midcontinent fields has been declining at the rate of 10,000 barrels a week for the last six weeks. There are no more wells drilling now than there were five years ago and this lack of development is due to the low prices. Mexico's catastrophe, coupled with the decline in production in this country and the ever-mounting demand for gasoline, has caused those charged with the responsibility of furnishing the Nation with gasoline to post advances in the price. A price of $2 a barrel is needed if oil is to be produced at a profit in this country. There are 258,000 producing wells in the United States and 200,000 of them are producers of an average of only two barrels a day. The cost of lifting oil from these 200,000 wells amounts to $1.75 a barrel."

A mass meeting of bankers, livestock growers, farmers, grain men and oil mill operators and other business men of Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma will be held in Fort Worth on October 12 to discuss the organization of one or more loan companies in the Eleventh federal reserve district, through which excess loans that cannot be handled by banks, might be made. This was announced by Marion Sansom, chairman of the Fort Worth livestock and agricultural agency of the war finance corporation, following receipt of a telegram from Eugene Meyer, Jr., managing director of the war finance corporation, suggesting the organization of such companies. Sansom appeared before the senior directorate of the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce and explained the situation. He declared that the move suggested by Meyer was one calculated to be of the greatest benefit to the livestock and agricultural interests of the Southwest and that the organization of such agencies would be second in importance only to the governmental agency itself. A loan company with a capitalization of $1,000,000 could float loans aggregating $10,000,000 to $20,000,000, he said. More than 500 are expected to attend the mass meeting which will be held at 2 o'clock next Wednesday afternoon. The executive committee of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers' Association will meet in Fort Worth on Wednesday, Oct. 12, the same date set for meeting of cattlemen, bankers, farmers and others who have been called to a conference by Marion Sansom to discuss the formation of loan agencies. The date for the executive session of the Cattle Raisers' was set prior to the call for the other conference, E. B. Spiller, secretary of the association, said. "However, it is a wise thing to have the two meetings at the same time, as the fifty executive members have been studying the situation and will have many important matters dealing with the cattle industry up for discussion. "Headquarters for the association will be decided upon at the meeting," Spiller continued, "while the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce has been furnishing offices, their lease on the Burton building expired on July 1, and other arrangements must be made. Dallas and San Antonio Chamber of Commerce have been trying to get us to move the headquarters to these points and have offered any offices

LITTLE SERIES GAME BREAKS UP WITH RIOT BY 3500 SPECTATORS

By Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 9.—A riotous demonstration broke up the fourth game of the Louisville-Baltimore junior world's series here today when 3500 spectators, angered at a close decision, swarmed on the field, pelted the umpires with cushions and caused the game to be forfeited to Baltimore 9 to 0. No one was seriously hurt and no arrests were made. Police used their clubs freely.

Before the rioting ended the game in the first half of the ninth inning, the fans swarmed on the field in the seventh inning to protest a decision by Umpire McGowan of the International League and delayed the game 15 minutes before the police could clear the field.

When Umpire Frank Connolly of the American association called Jack Bentley, the Orioles first baseman, safe at first in the ninth on a play which appeared to be an easy out, the spectators swarmed on to the field and the police were powerless to disperse them. When the police and players started to escort the umpires off the field cushions were thrown by hundreds and a stampede of fans in the direction of the umpires began. A volley of cushions were hurled at the fleeing umpires and their police escorts as they broke into a run in the direction of the exits. Other than the throwing of cushions and a few pop bottles, no violence was attempted.

Questionable decisions on close plays by Umpire McGowan led up to the demonstration. Louisville rooters asserted the decisions favored Baltimore.

In the ninth inning with two men on bases, two men out and two strikes and three balls on Jacobson, Umpire McGowan called the next pitched ball a "ball" although fans thought Jacobson swung at it and missed. A single scored two runs and put another Oriole on third. Bentley hit a grounder to Kirke and the play at first was close. Umpire Connolly called Bentley safe. The fans charged on the field; angrily hurling cushions as they rushed toward Umpire McGowan apparently not stopping to consider that it was not he who made the decision at first.

Manager Joe McCarthy of the Louisville club, rushed to McGowan's side and with the aid of half a dozen police escorted him to the visitors dugout, where the cushion fight started. The police succeeded in getting the umpires into the office of President Knebelkamp of the Louisville club, where they were held under guard until the streets were cleared.

The cause of the first demonstration came in the seventh inning on a ruling by Umpire McGowan in favor of the Louisville club, but the fans did not learn that the decision had gone in their favor until they had swarmed onto the field and delayed the game fifteen minutes.

With Meyer on second and Miller on first and one out, Acosta hit an infield fly to Dowd who dropped the ball. Meyer sped for third base and Miller to second and both reached bases safely. Dowd threw to Boley, but Boley instead of touching Miller, touched the base and as Miller was not forced, he was safe. The ball was then thrown to Maisel, who failed to touch Meyer. Both runners were evidently safe, but when the Baltimore team, thinking both Acosta and Miller were out, walked off the field, the crowd took it for granted that either McGowan had called out Meyer at third or that Connolly had called out Miller at second and charged from the bleachers.

McGowan made no effort at the time to bring the Baltimore players back and his inactivity in this regard was responsible for the crowd's belief that he had ruled both Meyer and Acosta out. After the Orioles learned that both Miller and Meyer had been called safe they protested vigorously. The spectators did not attempt to harm the umpire this time and seemed more intent on ending the game. Baltimore was leading nine to three at the time.

President Hickey of the American Association said the ending of the game was a "disgrace to baseball."

"It would have taken militia to stop those people from coming on the field" President Hickey said.

"The police were utterly helpless."

APPEAL FOR AID TO EDUCATION CLOSES SYNOD

Dr. John Burma, President of Trinity University Tells of Efforts of Students to Prepare for Service.

With a stirring appeal to the pastors and congregations the Presbyterian U. S. A. church, represented in the Synod meeting, to make it possible for Trinity University to afford opportunity to more worthy students who are financially unable, given by Dr. John Burma, president of the school brought to a close the 1921 meeting of the Texas Synod Sunday night at the First Presbyterian church. Final business, the resolutions, and other closing matters were attended to Sunday, so that the close came a half day earlier than the program announced.

The closing session was given over to the educational department, Dr. R. L. Irving of Fort Davis, the chairman of education, delivering an address on "Christain Education" with Dr. Burma's talk on Trinity University the only Presbyterian U. S. A. school in Texas, closing the program.

Dr. Burma told of the physical equipment of Trinity, buildings and endowment worth a half million, with that much more in pledges on the million endowment fund; told of its history, of the 6,000 alumni and exstudents, now in all parts of the United States, of the rank and standing of the institution as compared with the other institution of learning in the country. Trinity standing with the first five in the state of Texas; and then he pointed out the great need of the university, more means for caring for the boys and girls who are not able to finance their schooling.

"I have been forced to tell many boys and girls this year that we could not care for them," he said, "and finally in desperation I told some six or eight of them to come on and we would find the means somewhere. Some of these are sons and daughters of home miksionaries, some of Presbyterian ministers. There are only a few scholarships available, and these scholarships only amount to about $60 a year.

When the country is demanding educated, trained workers, is it not a crime that ambitious, bright young men and young women should have the doors of schools shut to them because of lack of means. I appeal to you, representatives of the Presbyterian U. S. A. church in Texas, to help us do something, that the only school our church has in the state, may not be forced to turn away so many who are unable to pay their way."

The need of new dormitories, for both young women and young men, was stressed by Dr. Burma, also, though he stated that in the present time is was not the intention of the University to push the endowment pledges, preferring to wait until business affairs were more favorable.

Dr. Irving's key thought was the necessity of students having the double education of soul and mind, of teaching the young people the fundamentals, that there was one above all,

Candidates Start Grand Rush To Win 50,000 Vote Offers In Record News Auto Campaign

Like a mighty ocean wave that laughs at obstacles and sweeps everything before it, the movement of candidates in the Record News automobile and prize campaign, in response to the big vote offer, is getting bigger every moment as it nears the "shore."

The offer closes Saturday night, Oct. 15th, at 7 o'clock. Every candidate who is in the swim—and that means about all of them who are in the list—confidently expects to ride the crest of the wave and be deposited well up on the banks of opportunity.

With the remaining period of the offer getting smaller with every tick of the clock, six more days effort is being renewed to make the most of the marvelous opportunity which is nearing the close.

Six More Days

The gap is closing!

Only six days remain until the big extra vote offer—the vital period of the campaign—comes to a close.

Every $30 club of subscriptions during this offer means 50,000 bonus votes.

Keep your eye on Saturday night. Don't let it slip by without your having accomplished everything possible to send you well on the way to a luxurious automobile.

ROADS EARN BY CUTTING DOWN MAINTENANCE

Gain in Earnings Come by Virtue of Delaying Inevitable Ependitures, Executives Report.

Had Replacements Been Made as Required by Upkeep of Properties, Deficit Would be Result, Say.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTO, Oct. 9—Basing the conclusions upon practically complete reports of business on main line railroads during August, the association of railroad executives announced today that indicated betterment in earnings on the country's transportation system has so far been due to skimping of expenditures on maintenance work both on road beds and equipment.

"Mainly by virtue of this reduction which represents in a large measure, the failure to expend money which must later be put into the properties," the statement asserted, "The railroads in August of this year were unable to show a net operating income of $90,200,000, had they spent the same amount for maintenance during that month that they spent for the same purpose in August, 1920, they would have had this August an operating deficit of $60,800,000."

Total expenditures by class one railroads for August, 1921, on maintenance the statement estimated at $182,000,000, 43 per cent less than maintenance expenditures of August 1920.

COTTON HAS SLIGHT DROP AFTER REPORT

By Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 9.—The trend of prices in cotton this week was lower, the market making its highest levels during the early bulges of bureau day, and selling off each succeeding session until Thursday when it touched its lowest. At the highest the trading months were 115 to 159 points over the close of the preceding week, at the lowest they were 96 to 136 points under and on the close prices were at net losses of 59 to 99 points. December raded as high as 21.85, fell off to 18.90 and closed at 19.36. In the spot department middling lost 65 points in the net results, closing at 19.50. A year ago middling closed at 20.50.

The first bulge of the week was due to the smaller ginning figures than expected, 2,907,950 bales produced to September 25 while the decline of the week was started by selling based on the fact that the condition report of 42.2 per cent of normal on September 25 was higher than expected. The indicated crop of 6,537,000 bales was from 400,000 to 500,000 bales larger than generally looked for.

As the week progressed it ran into much liquidation and for a while there was persistent hedge selling in evidence. Late in the week it became apparent that interests outside of the trade were sellers on a large scale while certain professional and spot interests were also against the market. As the market fell it attracted more or less support but buyers who took hold on the breaks were prone to let go on the bulges which made the market much of a trading affair.

Great interest was taken in developments in the spot department, mainly because of the marketing policy of the growers who refused to sell on declines and offered cotton only sparingly on advance. It was market gossip that many banks in the belt were advising their customers among the farmers not to sell cotton under 20 cents a pound but were advocating supplying the demand, to a moderate extent, above that level. Farmers withdrew from the market to such an extent around the middle of the week that Liverpool cabled that Texas was offering no cotton at all. Reports both private and official claimed that action was open to the northern most limits of the belt and many reports claimed that the crop was 80 to 90 per cent picked, with ginning keeping pace with picking.

LABOR MEN WILL HOLD ARMS PARLEY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—The first meeting of the advisory committee on armament limitation, formed by President Gompers of the American federation of labor, will be here Tuesday, Oct. 18, was announced today. Approximately one hundred men and women prominent in various lines of activity have been invited to become members of the committee.

WICHITAN MAY BE ELECTED HEAD S. C. V.

By Associated Press.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Oct. 9.—Following a recent announcement by Nathan Bedford Forrest that he would not be a candidate for reelection as commander-in-cheif of the Sons of Confederate Veterans, it was reported at reunion headquarters tonight that Judge Edgar Scurry of Wichita Falls, Texas, commander of the trans-Mississippi department, probably would be his successor. It was said that leaders in the organization had agreed upon Judge Scurry and that his name would be presented to the convention here on October 26.

SHIP SUNK BY VESSEL COMING TO ITS AID

Negro 'Jazz' Artists Touring Britain Among Victims of Peculiar Tragedy in Irish Sea.

By Associated Press.

BELFAST, Oct. 9—Damaged by one vessel in a dense fog off the southwest coast of Scotland and then sunk by another coming to its aid was the fate early this morning of the Laird Lines Steamer Rowan, plying between Glasgow and Dublin. Thirteen of the Rowan's crew and three passengers are missing. Two passengers died after being rescued by vessels which responded to wireless SOS call.

An official statement says the Rowan carried ninety-three persons including the crew, 77 of whom are accounted for by the four vessels which went to the Rowan's assistance.

Aboard the Rowan was the American Southern Syncopated Orchestra, composed largely of negro players who had been touring this side of the water since 1919.

One of the men who died after being taken out of the seas was "Pet" Robinson, the drummer of the orchestra.

The accident was due to a double collision in the north channel off Corsewall point. The Rowan first collided with the American steamer West Camak, both of them being damaged. The West Camak stood by with here forepeak full of water, meanwhile sending out wireless calls for aid. The Clan Liner, Caln Malcolm responded but in the confusion due to the heavy fog, ran into the disabled Rowan, which sank immediately.

The West Camak helped in the rescue work. Captain Donald Brown of Glasgow is reported to have gone down with the Rowan.

The Clan Malcolm which rammed the Rowan amidship was damaged only slightly.

The Syncopated orchestra, which went to London in June, 1919, gave performances there and in the vicinity until two months ago when they made a tour of Scotland. There were originally thirty-eight members, about fifteen of them British players.

JAYHAWKERS SET PACE IN OPENING SET

By Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 9.—By holding the fast Washington University team scoreless and putting over three touchdowns long before the final whistle, the Kansas State Agricultural College eleven set the pace Saturday in opening the 1921 Missouri Valley conference season. The score, 21 to 0, upset predictions made by most observers.

Ames defeated Grinnell at Ames 21 to 3 in the only other conference game of the day.

The conference managers with non-conference games on Saturday were not forced to extend themselves to win and the scores were all one sided.

The coming week-end will see six of the nine conference members pitted against each other. Missouri meeting Ames at Columbia; Kansas playing Drake at Lawrence; and Grinnell opposing Washington at St. Louis.

Nebraska has a game scheduled with the Haskell Indians at Lincoln, the Kansas Aggies will play Creighton at Omaha and Oklahoma University will meet the Oklahoma Aggies at Norman.

REMAINS OF PAT CARRIGAN ARRIVE SUNDAY

Body Is Met at Station by Large Delegation of Comrades in Service and Local Legionnaires.

Remains Are Identified by Three Wichitans Who Witnessed Burial on Battlefied in France.

The body of "Pat" Carrigan, former service man whose death in action in France won for him the Distinguished Service Cross, and whose funeral this afternoon will be the occasion for the closing of the city as a mark of respect to his own memory and the memory of other Wichita Falls boys and men who gave their lives in the serice during the war, arrived in Wichita Falls Sunday just before noon.

It was met at the station by a large delegation of former service men, for the most part members or officers of the legion post which bears the young Wichitan. The body was accompanied, in addition to the usual escort, by the father and mother of Lieut. Carrigan.

From the train the body was carried to a local undertaking establishment, where the casket was opened and the remains definitely identified by Wichitans who were members of the same organization as the deceased, and who saw his body after his death. These were Joe H. Jones, who was present at the burial of Pat Carrigan on the battlefield, Wayne Summerville, member of the organization's medical detachment of the organization, and who examined the body following death, and Jake Avis. Identification was simplified by the knowledge of these former comrades of the wounds which resulted in death, one of which was a more or less rare one to one of the legs.

From the undertaking establishment the body was carried to the Carrigan home, where reliefs from the local post of the legion watched until the time of the funeral.

The funeral will be conducted from the First Presbyterian church to which the young man belonged and of which his family are among the oldest members. The time of the funeral will be at 4 o'clock. The burial will be in Riverside cemetery, in the family mausoleum. Active pall bearers, all members of the 142nd Infantry, with which the deceased served, are as follows: Joe Kell, James Martin Williams, Jake Avis, James Barnard, Charles Nolen and Leslie Stringer.

Honorary pall bearers, all former service men, are: Dr. M. Perkins, John Burts, S. J. Staniforth, Joe H. Jones, Wayne Summerville, L. T. Burns, Robert Avis, Phlete Martin, Charles Smoot, John Gould, Dr. Everett Jones, Dr. O. W. Wilson, J. Henry, M. A. Noble, Franzel Davis, Merrill Blair, Allan Montgomery, Jerome Stone, E. L. Fulton.

In deference to the proclamation of the mayor all members of the Retail Merchants' Association have agreed to close their places of business between 3 and 6 Monday afternoon as a mark of respect. The county and district courts will be closed all day and the Federal hearings in the Texas-Oklahoma boundary dispute will be adjourned during the afternoon. Flags on public buildings and in the parks, according to a decision Sunday, will be at half mast throughout the day.

FORMER NEW YORK SOLON IS DEAD

NEW YORK, Oct. 9—Michael Farley, a former representative in congress from New York died here today following a brief illness which was diagnozed at a hospital as anthrax. Mr. Farley told attending physicians he had purchased a new shaving brush last week and that a rash appeared on his face shortly after he had used it.

BABE'S HOME RUN FAILS TO AVERT YANKEE'S DEFEAT

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—"Babe" Ruth made a home run at the Polo Grounds today but the hit, a tremendous wallop into the right-field bleachers, came in the ninth inning with nobody on base and failed to save the Yankees from defeat in the fourth game of the world's series. The Giants won by the score of 4 to 2, evening the count of the series, which now stands at two victories each.

The game, a snappy, quickly played contest, was witnessed by more than 36,000 persons, a few hundred less than the record crowd of last Friday. For seven innings it looked like a repetition of last Wednesday's pitchers' battle between Carl Mays and Phil Douglas, these two twirlers again being pitted against one another. Then, in the eighth, the Giants broke through Mays' guard and scored three runs—enough to win—by a pretty exhibition of consecutive batting.

The Giants added another, but, as it turned out, unnecessary run in the ninth. The Yankees were able to hit Douglas consecutively only in the fifth, when they scored once, the other tally being accounted for by Ruth with his four-base blow.

That the "Babe" appeared in the game at all was a big surprise to the fans. It had been feared his injured arm would keep him out of the play for the remainder of the series, and even Manager Miller Huggins of the Yankees did not expect him up to an hour before game time to be in the line up today, announcing that "Chick" Fewster would take his place in left field. It developed, however, that Ruth determined to play, had his arm well plastered up and shortly after 1:30 o'clock he came on the field in uniform and to all appearances as fit as ever.

The sight of the "Bambino's" bulky figure drew forth a big shout of welcome from the crowd, which was repeated many fold when he made his circuit hit in the ninth. He handled his two fielding chances cleanly. There was nothing in his work at the bat to indicate that his injured arm was handicapping him in the least. He did not, however, try to steal any more bases.

"I have realized one of my great ambitions—to make a home run in the world series," Ruth said after the game. "But I'm sorry it did not come with men on the bases. It might have meant the winning of the game."

Douglas Hurls Niftily

The real honors of the day, despite the spectacular feat of Ruth in making his first world series home run—which by the way was the first homer of the 1921 tilt—went to the lanky man who occupied the mound for the National leaguers. "Shuffling" Phil Douglas' exhibition was a work of baseball art that was a pretty thing to watch.

He held the heavy hitting Yankees with the exception of Ruth and Schang, almost in complete subjection when hits meant runs, and grew better as the game drew towards its close, only Ruth being able to reach him to any effect in the last three innings.

The Yankees first run in the fifth, was scored when Wally Schang cut

VIOLATIONS OF TRUCE GREATEST PEACE MENACE

On Eve Irish Peace Conference Both Sides Make Public Long Lists Alleged Violations.

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 9—The Irish peace delegates spent a quiet Sunday in London, the delegates and the secretaries dividing their time between the various churches.

A third secretary has been added to the delegation. He is John Chartres and his appointment has provoked much speculation. His name is unknown in Irish politics, and he is the only one connected with the delegation who is not a member of the Dail Eireann, or any other representative body. He is the grandson of Richard Chartres of Dublin, his father being the late Sergeant Major Chartres of the Eighth Hussars. He married the Italian poetess, Anne Vivani.

His accession to the Irish delegation is taken as indicating that the Sinn Fein is engaging all expert advice possible as he is an expert in several branches of law and has served in the intelligence section of the British war office.

Others invited to assist the delegation, although not Sinn Feiners, are George O'Brien, historian and economist, and George Russell of the Irish Homestead and a former official of the British local government board, to handle the intricate questions of local government.

The chief risk to a settlement now, is believed to be in Ireland, rather than in the conference chamber. Both sides allege that breaches of the truce have recently multiplied. Dublin Castle claims to have a list of six hundred such breaches, while Sinn Fein laison officers have issued numerous instances of alleged aggression by police and army and soldiers.

To carry arms is a breach of the truce, but to send troops is not, neither is the transfer of troops, and each side has answered the other's complaint by saying that they were only training or moving troops.

The appointment to the London delegation of Eamon J. Duggan, since the truce has acted as chief laison officer, removed from Ireland a man whose great experience would be to the avoidance of trouble. His successor, Murphy, has had less experience.

PRESIDING OFFICIAL IN RED RIVER HEARINGS DESCENDANT OF PRESIDENT WHOSE ACT ADMITTED TEXAS TO UNION

The federal hearings now in progress at the courthouse in connection with the settlement of the dispute as to the south bank of the Red river are in charge of a man who is a descendent of a former president of the United States, who has been practicing attorney for a number of years in one of its largest cities and who is yet to cast his first vote.

Frederick Tyler, special commissioner appointed by the Supreme Court to conduct the hearings in the settlement of the boundary dispute is a descendant of John Tyler who signed the bill which admitted Texas into the union

As a life long resident of Washington D. C. he has never cast a vote in any kind of an election.

"If these hearings continue much longer I may be able to qualify as a voter in Texas and Oklahoma" was the commissioner's reply when asked concerning his failure to exercise the usual suffrage right.

In this connection friends have suggested to the commissioner that he write a history of early days in south Oklahoma and North Texas with the questionable course of the Red river as a feature. For four months "Judge" Tyler—as he is called by his father—has listened to voluminous testimony from practically every old settler living in this section of the state mentioned in connection with some phase of the boundary disputes.

It is understood that the suggestion has been declined on the ground that the historical data varies somewhat depending on what side of the river the testimony happened to be given.

Good Old Buggy And Dobbin Fast Enough for Them

By Associated Press.

BLAIR, Neb., Oct. 9—In these days of rapid locomotion when the average person gets to his destination with all possible speed, the travelers can see beauty and nature such as J. H. Goff and his wife, who gave their address at Corpus Christi, Texas, did not promise to do, they did. They were when the aged couple passed through here in an old-fashioned buggy being drawn by a faithful old family horse.

Mr. and Mrs. Goff left Texas, June 5, and they gave Madison, Wis., as their destination, which they expect to reach sometime in October.

"When we started we had two horses besides the mule but the plains and heat of Texas and Oklahoma were too much for the horses so the mule was forced to take the burden," commented Mr. Goff after he had made inquiry of the constable for a "parking" place for his conveyance, mule and the family.

"We have averaged about thirty miles a day," Goff continued, "although we spend much time at different places where I would take a job. How do I like the mode of travel? The best ever, except the ridicule we are subjected to whenever we enter a city is a very disagreeable feature."

Mr. Goff said he was a sole cutter and leather worker and formerly lived in Madison. He also said he was a veteran of the Boxer uprising and the Spanish American war and the pension he draws from the government, together, with the money he is able to make doing odd jobs along the route, has provided them both with sufficient funds to make the trip.

MINNEAPOLIS ORCHESTRA IS REORGANIZED

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 9.—The Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, one of the leading musical organizations of the country, will open its eighteenth concert year here Oct. 14, after passing through a period that threatened its disruption. The Symphony will give weekly concerts until April 7, when it is expected the orchestra will start its usual tour.

Many of the world's artists, vocal and instrumental will appear as soloists again this year.

The recent disbandonment possibility, resulted from differences between the orchestra association and the musicians' union. Refusal of the Symphony to play at a local park after entering into a contract to do so with the board of park commissioners caused the break. The Symphony musicians, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, refused to appear and give concerts because the Park Board Commissioners hired another band, whose members did not belong to the federation, to play at other parks.

Thereupon, E. L. Carpenter, president of the orchestral association, with the backing of the guarantors of the Symphony, stated the orchestra would not be continued unless the musicians receded from their stand and allowed the orchestral association to control its appearances. After prolonged conferences with union heads in the east, the local park board was removed from the unfair list and the differences settled.

Emil Oberhoffer, the Symphony's only conductor since the organization in 1903, will wield his baton again when the first concert begins. Practically the same group of musicians will play again this year as did last year.

SHARK MEAT TO BE UTILIZED IN NEW INDUSTRY

By Associated Press.

VICTORIA, B. C., Oct. 9.—Sharks in the waters along the British Columbia coast are to be turned into leather, liver oil, fertilizer, jewelery, and finally dollars, according to plans of Sidney Ruck, head of the Consolidated Whaling Company, who has resigned to launch the new industry. Organization of the new company has been completed, and the reducing plant will be erected on the Alberni Canal.

Shark fishing, like whaling, is to be carried on along the west coast of Vancouver Island, where Mr. Ruck says examination has shown that the huge sun sharks, some of them weighing 2,000 pounds, rove up and down in schools of thousands. Recently one of the coasting steamers reported running into a solid mass of these big fellows.

Fishing for the sharks will be carried on after the fashion of whaling with harpoons shot from guns.

Livers of some of the big sun sharks, which are 60 to 65 per cent oil, yield up to twenty gallons of the finest shark oil. It is used for medical purpose and lubrication of delicate mechanisms. Livers of the smaller mud sharks, found in the waters between the island and the mainland, yield about ten gallons of oil.

Teeth of sharks are in great demand for the manufacturers of necklaces, it is stated, owing to a new fad in neck ornament which recently developed.

The fins are almost pure gelatine. They are cured and sold to Orientals, who use them in preparation of table delicacies.

Membranes and intestines are turned into gloves, glue and gut, blood and flesh into chicken food and fertilizer. The head is a solid mass of cartilage gue.

The most valuable part of the fish is the skin, which has the toughness of vulcanized rubber. The outer surface is as rough as sand paper. This is taken off by acid treatment, and the skin is tanned.

STAMFORD CHAMBER OF COMMERCE TO DINE ON 'POSSUM

Special to the Record News.

STAMFORD, Texas, Oct. 9.—The officers of the Chamber of Commerce were most agreeably surprised Friday afternoon when a committee of farmers from what is known as the Shinnery District of Jones county, appeared in the offices of the organization and told their business. It was extended the membership of the organization to visit the Shinnery neighborhood at their convenience, and partake of a "possum and tater" dinner. This dinner to be served entirely of products raised in the Shinnery, consisting of possums, potatoes, fruits in fact things produced in that section of the country.

The invitation was promptly accepted, and the date set for October 20 which is the regular weekly luncheon day of the organization. In the presentation of the invitation the committee said that there were more than a thousand acres of peanuts growing in the neighborhood that would yield thirty bushels to the acre, that they had raised more than ten car loads of watermelons, that the sweet potato crop was the best in the history, and was ready for harvest, that a fine fruit crop had been gathered, and that cellars were filled with the products of the orchards and gardens.

The shinnery district is about 12 miles from Stamford and the object of the farmers extending the invitation to the business men of Stamford is to show them the possibilities of that section of the country, and to get their co-operation in further developing the fruit and truck growing interest that obtain.

Women of Wichita Falls and vicinity constitute a large percentage of the depositors whom the City National Bank of Commerce serves. Housewives and those in business occupations find the facilities of the bank especially convenient and suited to their needs—Adv.

Russian, Who Obtained Commission At Ten and Has Been Four Times Decorated for Bravery, Arrives

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 9.—An officer in the Russian army at the age of ten, decorated for valor by four different nations and with a service bar that denotes action in practically every country in Europe and Egypt, Miroslav Marek, declared to be the youngest foreign veteran of the world war, has reached America and enrolled in the arts of science college of the University of Nebraska. Marek, an orphan, is seventeen now, but he held the rank of lieutenant in the Czar's guard.

Marek reached America largely through his own resources, and after having failed in the attempt in two previous occasions. He tried to land in San Francisco from a transport which he accompanied out of Vladivostok when refugees were fleeing before the bolsheviki in 1918, but was unsuccessful. Another troop ship on which he started to America was wrecked off the coast of Japan. He finally entered the United States from the Altantic.

Throughout his experiences, Marek has preserved the records of his deeds and displays the citations which brought him his decorations. His war record is a piece-meal on all varieties of paper and rags, which he has patched and worked together that the record might be readable.

Marek was decorated at Moscow in 1915 by Czar Nicholas with the Royal Cross of St. George. In 1906, the Polish Legion was conferred upon him for exceptional intelligence service, and in 1918, General Hanin of the French army decorated him with the dalle Militaire for similar service. President Masaryk of Czecho-Slovakia conferred the cross of honor on him at Prague in 1920. Marek shows wound scars and lacerations, the latter, he says, having been inflicted upon him by the bolsheviki because he refused to divulge secrets.

The youthful warrior speaks English, but his story, which professors have helped him to unfold, started at the beginning of the world war, when his father was a captain in the Russian army. By nativity Marek is a Slav, but he was reared in exile because his father fled from Brunn, Moravia, after having been implicated in a political uprising against the Hapsburgs.

COMMERCIALIZATION AND ITS CONFLICT WITH RELIGION IS KAY'S SUBJECT ON SUNDAY

Commercialisation's conflict with religion was the subject of the second of the series of lectures by Judge John Kay to his Men's Sunday school class at the Olympic theater, given Sunday morning at 9:45. The lecture in part follows:

"It is a very difficult matter, a dangerous matter, a delicate matter for me to talk to this class; I never know who is here. If I talk about oil I find out afterward some fellow who used to board with Colonel Drake at Titusville, was here. If I talk about money I look over and see some bankers who had sprinkled rose water on a hundred million dollars of currency. If I talk about the Latin tongue I find some fellow here who knew Latin well. If I talk about war matters I find some boy here who watched the mountains in France burn red for months together.

"This lesson this morning is about commercialism coming into collision with religion. I would not condemn a banker or a merchant or any kind of a mercantile enterprise in itself; we are not here to do that, but it is only when that business runs counter to the things of life that we would attack it.

"To begin with, this man Paul liked to go among the fine people. He talked Greek like a Homer and Latin like a spartan grandmother. He was a great doctor in the Jewish church and he liked to go to a great educational center like Asia or like Ephesus, at that time one of the finest cities on the glob. They had a temple there, probably one of the finest buildings erected by human hands, filled with Greek statuary and Greek paintings. They worshipped a goddess called Diana.

"They were a cultured people; a rich people. They lived on the coast and had lines of commerce coming from all Asia, even China; and it was a great commercial center.

"There never was a religion in the world—Curistian, Jewish, Pagan, Buddhism or what not that somebody did not try to make some money out of, so in this particular town one of their great methods of business was to make little silver idols; little images of this goddess and other idols. They had to sell them to anybody they could sell them to, especially to the visitors of the town. Paul was there preaching that there was only one God and that he could not be touched with human hands and they were not to have any other before him. And here is a great army of working men out there making these idols in this one country. The loss of time, the sinner is honest. Honesty is not a virtue that makes for Christianity. The Chinese is the most honest race in the world, as every missionary tells us. Here was a fellow that was honest. I like a fellow that you can understand when he opens his mouth. He did not commence to talk about the goddess Diana; he did not praise the religion of these Greeks; he comes to what he has in mind. He says: 'If this religion has a hold here; if Paul makes a 'go' of it, our business is going to be ruined.' Did you ever hear a voice like that crying out in the community where you live? I have heard many an orator shout that prohibition would ruin business; and you will find lots of fellows—good looking fellows like Noble and me—who are liable to believe that.

"This religion will ruin our business,' says Demetrius, the silversmith. Right here is a little secret: A fellow says, 'I will not join the church because she is full of hypocrites.' He will not join the church because of this and that and the other. Ah, gentlemen, the French have a proverb that says: 'A poor excuse is better than a good one' because a good one might deceive somebody and a poor one, you know he is lying. That fellow's real reason for not joining the church; that fellow's real reason for not lining himself up with the church is because the requirements of the church are too great to suit his way of life. He will give you one hundred reasons, but never that reason which is the real reason.

The reason requires that he go down on his knees and confess his sins; it requires that he support her institution; it requires that he be a man of clean lips, a man who does not swear or tell a smutty story; that he loves his fellowman; that he treat all men justly; and there is his reason why he does not join. Doesn't it strike you that these reasons that I have given are more logical and more abundant than those of the man who says: 'I am not going to join because they have hypocrites down there in the church.' But this silversmith, Demetrius, was honest."

Here is his talk in effect: 'I do not know anything about this religion; I do not know anything about our own religion; all I know is it is going to wreck this idol business that we have and to stir up the city that way. Like a man like Paul. You would never find a man like Paul going anywhere that he did not create a riot; and yet one of us fellows will slip through and deceive that crowd, not tolerating that crowd and carrying water on both shoulders.

Yes, we do try to slip through the world without any friction at all.

Now, the real trouble there was not religion at all; it was commercialism—commercialism in its worse sense. God pity that cowardly man who says in the face of his maker and in the face of the world, that 'if I do right I am going to lose my bread and butter.' A righteous man; a just man does right and leaves the consequences and leaves his bread and butter at the disposition of his Maker. I wish I could get that into your heads like it is in my head. I wish I could get it into your heart like I want it to be in my heart. Half of the fellows in the world are afraid of starving to death. Did you know that was so, Tom? Here I am, fifty years old; I never saw anybody starve to death in this country; never knew a case of it; never knew anybody that did know a case of it, and yet I have been afraid of it all my life, Brother Simmons.' Such a man has not any faith. Right there is a place you want to stick a safety pin to. You will always find that a man who has not got faith in his maker has not any in himself. And I think that is the whole crime by itself. Afraid my business will be wrecked. The damages to your business and the dangers to my business consists in the fact that it may have some foundation stone under it. That is not righteous, and if it is to be wrecked at all, mark me, it will be wrecked and ruined by some factor that has its existence and origin in some wrong, some evil.

Now you take the people of this town; you take the people of any community you ever knew and you will find that the men who prospered for a long pull throughout the long and busy life were known of all men as being just. We can go out here and get a bunch of easy money; but if you intend to live a long time and run any kind of a business, or have any kind of a calling, the only safety lines in running it is on a righteous basis.

This religion, this fellow says, is going to ruin him, not us. He never said anything about its effect on their hearts or their heads, just going to take our bread and butter. That fellow never did get any higher than the dinner table, brother Simmons. There is many a man in life and many a man in Wichita Falls that would have every worry off his heart if he could just have it guaranteed to him that he could stay at a boarding house as long as he lives; and there is many a rich man—some of the finest men are rich men—some of the most righteous, just men are very wealthy, but there is another type of rich men, that never looks up, any more than the swine looks up to see where the scorns fall from. He is always afraid that some calamity will overtake his business. A righteous man does not even worry about his business.

There is a saying of old Job, when the storm came and destroyed all his cattle, blew down his houses and killed his children: 'Though He slay me yet will I trust in Him.' Old Job said this because he was looking out beyond the narrow confines of this world, without concern. This fellow was not looking beyond what little money he would get for making these silver gods; he was not looking beyond the great dances, floral ornamentation and triumphal marches they were having about the temple; he did not know the way up to the forest of Eastern Russia and Western Germany. There was right then forming an army that was coming through his country on horseback with a commander who boasted that the grass never grew afterwards where his horse put his foot; that was coming like a horde of locusts out of the north and left Ephesus just a memory.

Ah! men, do not worry about the little things that are going to happen to you; it is some great big thing that is going to happen to you and you are going to loss or win all, and you want to live your life a little more sweetly and unselfishly, to the end that you may lose it. The question was not whether this fellow sold gods or did not sell them.

It was that their god was commercialism. They put one of the commandments in about commercialism that you must not covet other people's stuff. We must try to want or get everything. What is the one fine thing that we do want. There has been entrusted to you, men, a jewel more precious in the light of Heaven than any diamond that ever came out of quartz, and that jewel is the human soul. The human soul is not affected or ought not be affected by wealth or poverty, nor fame or obscurity, nor by ignorance or education, or any of these things, but your mission and my mission is not to live here, but to bring at our last that precious jewel that is called the human soul safe again up to his Maker at last.

That is the one fine business of life. We are charged with that as the great duty of life, that we bring that soul up clean and safe once more, at last to its Maker and leave the results of these other things that we try for here; leave the results with God. I thank you!

UNIQUE TEST IS BEING MADE IN TEXHOMA POOL

A color test which is declared unique in the Mid-Continent field was being performed Saturday by W. F. Arnold, deputy supervisor of the oil and gas division, Texas railroad commission, for the purpose of determining definitely from which well water was coming in a certain section of the Texhoma pool in South Burkburnett.

The test consists of lowering a quantity of Flouriscain, a French chemical preparation which is so very sensitive in salt water as to be detachable in almost unbelievably small qautities—most of the time by the discolorntion of the water.

In case the discoloration shows up in a neighboring test, it is definitely determined that the water is coming from the well in which it was first injected.

By a process of elimination and repeating the tests, if the first well is not the water well, the well responsible for the water in the field is established.

The preparation will not be affected by any soil in this section—it reacts only with peat. It travels at the rate of about 600 feet per three hours.

If the amount is too small for its presence to be disclosed by the naked eye, it is readily detected with a flouriscope. The test was made as the result of the assertion from certain operators that the well of another operator is responsible for the water, and the denial of the latter that his well was so responsible. The test was ordered to settle the controversy.

Prohi Meeting In Denver Broken Up By Judge Lindsey

By Associated Press.

DENVER, Oct. 9.—A meeting in the capitol last night called by women's clubs to stir public sentiment against prohibition violations was thrown into commotion when Judge Ben B. Lindsey of the juvenile court, denied the privilege of the floor, leaped to the top of a desk and shouted denunciation of city officials in the enforcement of the prohibition statutes.

The meeting was attended by Governor Shoup, Mayor Bailey, District Attorney Vancise and other officials.

"This meeting has been a camouflage from the start," the judge declared. He charged city officials with lax enforcement of the law.

Judge Lindsey called attention to the seizure by police a few days ago of a truckload of liquor seized in the garage of a wealthy Denver citizen and the arrest of the truck driver, but charged that the police had permitted the owner of the whisker to go free. He charged that the city was controlled "by a combine of wealth" which, he said, "sought to protect the wealthy violators of the eighteenth amendment."

we would suggest," he remarked in discussing the fight other cities have made for the Cattle Raisers' headquarters."

"The oil producers of North Texas have long been contending that they should receive a higher price for their product than the Oklahoma producers, because of the fact that the North Texas crude oil is of higher gravity than that produced in the Sooner State." "The large purchasing agencies have until the last week seemed to have different opinion from the North Texas operators for they have always posted a price for 'Mid-Continent Oil' including all the oil produced in Texas, Louisiana and Oklahoma, with the exception of the coastal crude of Texas, which is a heavier oil and which has always been quoted below the regular Mid-Continent production. When the price of oil was advanced 25 cents a barrel in Texas last week, the price of Oklahoma crude remained at $1.00 per barrel. Four days later when the price of Texas crude was advanced to $1.50, which by the way was a 50 per cent advance in four days, the price of Oklahoma crude was advanced to $1.25 per barrel, making the price of North Texas crude 25 cents a barrel higher than that of Oklahoma. With the announcement from Tulsa yesterday that the Prairie Pipe Line Company, probably the largest oil gatherer in Texas had again advanced the posted price of North Texas crude to $1.75 came the announcement that the price of Oklahoma crude had advanced to $1.50 per barrel. It has long been an established fact that the North Texas crude was just as good as the Pennsylvania crude, although at no time since the discovery of the North Texas oil fields has the posted price for oil in this state been anywhere near the posted price for Pennsylvania crude. When the price of crude in Texas was at its highest, $3.50 per barrel, the also reached its peak, $6.10 per barrel, writes W. Bradley Alley of The Texas Oil Ledger. Now the announcement is made that in the future the large purchasing agencies are to make a distinction between the production of North Texas and that of Oklahoma, and it would not surprise the writer to see the posted price for North Texas crude to be on an equal with that of Pennsylvania within the next six months. Pennsylvania crude is now $3.00 per barrel, the posted price having advanced 25 cents a barrel, in sympathy with the advance in Texas crude, but those in close touch with the crude oil purchasing agencies predict freely that it will be but a matter of time before Pennsylvania and Texas crude will be on the same basis."

UNEMPLOYMENT PLANS TO GET FINAL TOUCHES

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—The national conference on unemployment turns tomorrow to the task of whipping into shape a general program of permanent measures designed to combat involuntary idleness throughout the country and effect the return of the nation's business and commerce to normal.

Various sub-committees are scheduled to meet tomorrow and the full conference is to reassemble Tuesday. While some of the committees have practically decided upon their recommendations for permanent measures, it is the opinion of conference officials that at least a week will be occupied in the study of the country's economic problems before action is taken upon the complete program.

Upon reconvening the sub-committees are to receive a report from the executive secretaries setting forth the program made toward relief of the unemployment situation under the emergency measures adopted by the conference. The report, which was made public tonight, said:

"The predominant object of the conference was to recommend and organize measures to meet the emergency situation during the winter. The preliminary recommendations and organization plans have had the following response in the seven days since their issue:

"Second: Conferences have been held during the past week by the president, Secretary Hoover and members of the conference, with the heads of the great national industries, including railways, coal and shipping, from which have resulted definite steps undertaking to meet the emergency in many practical ways.

"Third. The active participation of the great national commercial and employers' associations have been assured, in definite organization of their branches throughout the country to assist the Mayors and to meet the situation generally. The United States chamber of commerce, the national manufacturer's association, various regional and state associations have actively entered into the problem of organization and provision of work for the unemployed and assistance to the state and municipal authorities.

"Fourth: A number of cities have undertaken steps for the immediate advancement of local public works and for definite advancement of construction work in the community. Steps organized in this direction have been formally reported from eight cities.

"Fifth: An office has been set up and is at work in Washington, urging Colonel Arthur Woods to continue the stimulation and co-ordination of national state and municipal agencies, under the direction of the unemployment conference.

"Sixth: As the result of experience gained in organization throughout the country the past week and of suggestions from many quarters a large amount of material is now available for further development of emergency measures."

Vital questions affecting the industrial welfare of the nation will be up for the consideration of the conference. Committees already have shaped recomendations involving readjustment of wages and prices, the open shop, repeal of the Adamson act, and a declaration in favor of the railway funding bill. Other subjects to be studied by the committees include foreign trade, agriculture and the relation of credit to the country's economic structure.

Much Wealth In Wine Glasses Is Worthless Now

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Thin, glistening wine glasses, hundreds of dozens of them worth thousands of dollars, are stored away in the big hotels of New York and the stewards don't know what to do about it.

Some few have been sold and others given to friends of the hotels, who, it was assumed, were able to employ the gay glassware as it was intended it should be used. But prohibition made the glassware useless for the hotels, most stewards feeling it dishonorable to past memories to serve ginger ale and important grape juice in the fine old wine glasses.

Fifth Avenue hotel announced it had written off $100,000 on glassware at its after-prohibition inventory and others estimated their idle drinking accessories at sums almost as high.

TEXAS AVIATORS LEAVE ST. LOUIS FOR HOUSTON

By Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 9.—Lieutenants H. R. Yeager and R. A. Hicks of the Ellington Field, Texas, army aviation station, left here at 8:30 this morning on a proposed non-stop flight to Houston. On their recent flight to New Orleans made to inspect terminal facilities, the airmen stopped at Lake Charles in West Louisiana.

By Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Texas, Oct. 9.—Lieutenants H. R. Yeager and R. A. Hicks, Ellington Field Aviators, who left New Orleans at 8:30 Sunday morning on a non-stop flight to Houston arrived here about 11 o'clock. Captain Wm. Donnelly, commander of the field stated here Sunday.

They were one group of eight flight parties arriving at the field from flights to other camps, he explained and the feat is not unusual.

Incidental to the activities of the field, Captain Donnelly announced that the 500 officers and men, who left Kelly Field, San Antonio several months ago to participate in bombardment maneuvers off the Atlantic coast, would be stationed at Ellington on their return. He expects them about the first of December. Fourteen officers are now on their way to Ellington from Langley Field, where participants in the maneuvers were stationed, he stated. The movement will bring the force at the field up to about 1,800 men, it was said.

STAMFORD PLANS ENTERTAINMENT OF ODD FELLOWS

Special to the Record News.

STAMFORD, Texas, Oct. 9.—The advance guard of the State Encampment of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows of Texas began arrangement in Stamford Sunday morning, for the annual encampment to be held October 10 and 11. Chairman Ray Rector of the local committee stated this afternoon that he looked for four or five hundred to attend the meeting.

The local Odd Fellows joined by the Chamber of Commerce and Rotary clubs have everything in readiness for the meeting and the visitors are being given a most hearty welcome. The meetings for the most part will be held in the auditorium of the municipal building and there will be ample committee rooms afforded in that building. On the second day the citizens of Stamford will take the visitors to the new city lake, nearing completion in autos, and following this they will be given a real West Texas barbecue at the College Lake.

FIRE INSURANCE COMPANIES LOSE MISSISSIPPI SUIT

By Associated Press.

JACKSON, Miss., Oct. 9.—The state of Mississippi won a complete victory over the 139 fire insurance company's defendants in an anti-trust suit in a decision today by chancellor Striker, who ruled that the state inspection and advisory rating bureau was merely the old southeastern tariff association in disguise, as claimed by the state authorities.

The association was barred from doing business in the state fifteen years ago.

Although penalties aggrevating nearly $13,000,000 were assessed against the defendant companies, the chancellor imposed only the minimum penalty of two hundred dollars per day, provided by the state, in effect from 1908 to 1910 and a fine of $25 per day from 1910 up to the time the companies withdrew from business in this state, during the early part of the current year. The legislature in 1910 reduced the minimum penalty to $20 per day.

CONFIDENCE IN MONEY MARKET SHOWS GROWTH

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Indication of growing confidence in the financial market this week were definitely expressed in a substantial expansion of the inquiry for high grade securities and the further lowering of rediscounts at reserve centers.

Trading in stocks was secondary throughout to the activity displayed by the bond market. Liberty and Victory issues again held undisputed leadership, the former leading at highest quotations of the year.

Prevailing prices for these bonds show an enhancement of about $1,300,000,000 over the year's lowest levels. The major part of the accumulation was credited to the treasury department but there were little doubt that a considerable proportion emanated from private sources.

The strength of the investment situation and its international scope were reflected in the immediate absorption of such antipodal under writings as a Rio de Janeiro $12,000,000 loan and an Australian offering, the first of its kind ever floated here, for a like amount.

General business conditions also showed signs of improvement as evidenced by an enlargement of buying power over the corresponding period of last year. In several of the less essential lines of industry, however, some retrogression from last month's forward movement was noted.

Almost every important district in the steel and iron trade reported gradual increase of operations over August production. Confirmation of this improvement is expected in the September tonnage statement of the United States Steel corporation to be issued next Monday.

Foreign exchanges again were the most uncertain elements, although dealings were limited largely to British and French remittances. Sterling was strong on steady buying, much of which was credited to Japanese account. The German rate made only feeble recovery from its lowest quotation Austrian, Polish, Czecho-Slovakian and Greek mills continued to shrink as economic and other developments in central and eastern Europe assumed graver aspects.

APPEAL FOR AID TO EDUCATE CLOSES SYNOD

responsible for the entire scheme of things on earth.

"We have just had a costly, terrible lesson of the fallacy of education and culture of the mind alone," he said. "Germany was the most highly educated nation in the world, with a one sided education. I do not mean a sectarian education, when I say a christain education, but I do mean an education that will keep ever before the students their Divine Maker, and His part in their life."

Sunday afternoon memorial services were held for the members of the Texas Synod who had died during the year. Five ministers had passed on during this time, C. H. Mitchelmore of El Paso, R. T. Phillips of Ballinger, George W. Self of Cushing, C. G. Reagan of the North Texas division and C. I. Brown of the South Texas division.

The closing business of the Synod was the adoption of the report of the resolutions committee, unanimously passed as follows:

"Forty-three years ago, if we mistake not, the first Synod of Texas met.

"None of the faces present at that age seen at this Synod, but their faith abides with us still. Nearly a half century is passed and yet we find the ministry of this Synod still living in the faith of the Fathers—the Deity of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Fatherhood of God, and the Brotherhood of Man. Were our resolutions at this time concerning ourselves, we would first resolve to thank God for the loyalty of our church to its history, faith.

"But, this committee has a different commission which it undertakes with equal eagerness—the privilege of expressing the appreciation which the Synod feels for the kindness which has been shown during this session."

Therefore, be it Resolved:

"First: That we as members and visitors of this Synod do express our deep appreciation of the fine courtesies, the generous hospitality, and the delightful friendship of our pastor host, the Rev. Dr. Nat Grafton, and all his host of members, helpers, and other friends.

"Second: That we rejoice most heartily in the position of influence and popularity which Dr. Grafton and his people occupy in this city.

"Third: That we thank the mayor of this city, Mr. W. D. Cline, and the citizenship which he represents for their conspicuous thoughtfulness for our welfare while in the city. And also the local press for their co-operation and attention.

"We suggest that in addition to placing these resolutions in our minutes that a copy of them signed by the Stated Clerk and Moderator be given the officers of this church for their own records and also a copy be given the local press."

SOCIETY

MRS. E. T. DUFF ELECTED DELEGATE TO CONVENTION.

Mrs. E. T. Duff was elected to represent the local chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy at the Silver Jubilee convention of the Texas Division, U. D. C., which will be held in Paris, Texas, October 18-20 at a meeting held Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John C. Kay.

Following the business session, a program was enjoyed, in which papers reviewing the work of previous years, Mrs. E. T. Barker gave an interesting paper on "What Other Chapters Are Doing," and talks on "The Past and Future of the Chapter" were given by Meadames C. B. Felder, J. L. Jackson, M. Gaffney, Fred Barron and John C. Kay. Mrs. F. R. Collard gave a piano selection which was very much enjoyed.

During the social hour, the hostess served ice cream and cake to Meadames M. Gaffney, Fred Barron, Prewitt, J. L. Jackson, E. T. Duff, E. T. Barker, Capron, McFall, P. A. Martin, Molly McElroy, Charles Pogmpohl, Virgil Shepherd, C. B. Felder, Mack Thomas, F. R. Collard, J. W. Stone, P. P. Langford, Oakes, Gibson, Walker and Misses Calvert and Morgan.

MRS. CLIFFORD HOSTESS TO MUSIC STUDY CLUB.

Meeting in the first formal session of the fall and winter season, Mrs. N. M. Clifford was hostess Saturday to the Music Study club.

The lesson for the afternoon was taken from Baltzell's History of Music with Mrs. O. E. Maer, leader, who also gave an interesting talk on the "introduction' of music. This was followed by a round table discussion of the members.

Following the study program, a delightful social hour was enjoyed in which the hostess served a dainty ice course to Mesdames E. L. Fulton, E. C. Huckabee, O. E. Maer, O. J. McKnight, O. E. Nicholls, W. M. Priddy, C. Y. Tully, F. E. Van Wormer, C. W. Wallace and Misses Cecelia Adickes, Berenice Jackson and Marion Maer.

Movieland

Bebe Daniels, who was really truly arrested and thrown into the hoosgow for ten days out on the Pacific coast some time ago for traveling too rapidly in her Rolls-Arrow, is going to show her movie admirers just how it happened—and even who pinched her.

From Realart studios comes word that her next picture will be "The Speed Girl." It is written around that episode. Many of the characters who participated in her arrest and kept a watchful eye over her while she "wasted away" in jail will be in the picture. The press agent swears, however, that there was no intention of making any such photo when she was arrested.

Bebe has appeared in several successes recently. Her latest appearance was as one of the principal characters in the "Affairs of Anatol."

PEGGY IS BACK

Peggy Hyland, with her recently acquired husband, Fred Granville, is again picture making in the United States. She starred in three pictues for British concerns while visiting her home in England. "Old Santa Fe Trail" is the title of her new film, taken near the Grand Canyon in Colorado.

GOSSIPY BITS

Doris Kenyon, who plays a leading role in "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," is a fine singer. In fact, Victor Herbert, the composer, "discovered" her while she was singing in a Brooklyn church choir.

Virginia Valli will play the leading feminine role in the Goldwyn picture, "His Back Against the Wall," in which Raymond Hatton, character actor, is to be featured.

Virginia Tracy, author of "Queen of Sheba," the remarkable spectacle drama produced by William Fox, is well known for her novels and short stories. The novel "Persons Unknown" is her's. Her short story, "The Lotus Eaters" is mentioned by William Dean Howells as among the 100 best American short stories. "Queen of Sheba" is an original story, the first she has ever written for a motion picture.

Francis Ford, who has probably played in more serials on the screen than any other actor, has left the chapter drama for a time at least. Ford has one of the principal roles in "The Lady from Longacre," with William Russell, soon to be released. This is said to be one of the best stories in which Russell has appeared, and is by Victor Bridges, the English novelist.

For the first time in their long careers, Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks are showing in New York city in counter attractions in theaters side by side, Miss Pickford in "Little Lord Fauntleroy" at the Apollo and Mr. Fairbanks in "The Three Musketeers" at the Lyric, each picture drawing capacity crowds.

Those who look forward to seeing Rex Beach's film of his own novel, "The Iron Trail," will be interested in learning that this author wrote his first dramatic production to get "grub money" when he went broke in Nome, Alaska, during the first gold rush. This was in 1897, and there were two so-called vaudeville houses in Nome. One had rounded up all the actors so the other wasn't doing so well. Rex Beach, in two hours, worked up a violent melodrama, furnished the cast and soon had it put on before a big crowd of his friends. After the show Beach left the box office with a bag full of gold dust.

RECIPES FOR A DAY.

Shirred Egg.—Butter the required number of small vegetable dishes, cover bottom and sides with bread crumbs; add egg carefully, cover with seasoned crumbs and bake in slow oven until white is firm and crumbs are brown.

Birds' Nest Salad.—Mix one-quarter pound nut meats with one teaspoon chopped parsley and one-half pound of good cream cheese; form into balls size of hickory nut; take center crisp leaves of head lettuce; form three or four for each plate into a nest; place balls in nest, add dressing, serve cold.

Macaroni in Tomato Cases—Cut tops off four tomatoes, scoop and fill one-half cup macaroni previously boiled; add one-half cup white sauce, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon paprika; cover with cracker crumbs and dots of butter; bake in hot oven fifteen minutes and serve at once.

CUSTARD DESSERTS.

Floating Island.—One egg, one-half tablespoonful sugar, one-half cupful milk (scalded), one-eighth teaspoonful vanilla, one tablespoonful powdered sugar.

Beat yolk of egg, add sugar and scalded milk, cook over hot water, stirring continuously until thick as cream. Remove from fire, all vanilla and chill. Beat white of egg until stiff, add powdered sugar, and place by spoonfuls on top of the custard.

Floating Island—Make a regular boiled custard, but use the whites to serve with it in the following manner: Beat whites until stiff, sweeten them a little, and cook them in a covered dish over water which is hot, but not boiling, or cook them on top of the hot milk which is to be used in making custard. Lift them out carefully with spoon and place on top of the custard. Decorate with small bits of jelly.

Tapioca Custard.—One-eighth cupful pearl tapioca, one cupful of milk, one egg yolk, one-eighth cupful honey or corn syrup, speck of salt, flavoring.

Soak the tapioca in water for an hour or two, drain it and cook in the milk until it is transparent. Proceed as for boiled custard.

TRY THESE.

Scrambled eggs are delicious served with asparagus.

Beef cooked in a fireless cooker is not salted until done.

Bread sponge that sets the least bit too long may be sour.

Browned breadcrumbs and cream are delicious for breakfast.

To most salads the dressing should be added just before serving.

For a change, use pineapple juice to replace one-half amount of vinegar required in your French dressing.

Baked onions are almost as delicious as those roasted in ashes. Do not peel them, but set them in a hot oven and bake until tender. Remove the skins carefully and serve with butter, pepper and salt.

MRS. MINNIE HILL MARRIED SUNDAY TO LOCAL DAIRYMAN

Mrs Minnie Hill and J. C. McQuerry were united in marriage by the Rev. O. L. Powers, pastor of the First Baptist church Sunday morning at 9 o'clock. Mrs. McQuerry has made her home in this city for a number of years. Mr. McQuery is a leading dairyman of the city.

Mr. and Mrs. McQuery left immediately for a week's trip through north and east Texas. Upon their return they will be at home to their many friends at their country farm east of the city.

With the Women of Today

Gift shops have become such an integral part of the shopping centers of every city that one scracely stops to think that they are, comparatively speaking, a young enterprise. Popular as they are in every part of the country now, one somehow or other always connects them with the New England section. It is in a quaint New England town that one always expects to spend lovely afternoons poking around among old-fashioned rooms on an informal hunt for a gift or remembrance. And one always calls it a 'quaint' town and speaks of the hunt as "poking" around. Otherwise it might be compared to plain, ordinary every-day shopping.

One of the most beautiful and most famous gift shops in the country is in Hartford, Conn. It is run by Miss Cora Greenwood and Miss Sybil M. Gray. Miss Greenwood is one of the pioneers in the establishment of gift shops. About fifteen years ago she started her little shop with Miss Gray. At that time there were only two or three shops of that nature in the entire country. Miss Greenwood has always kept her shop in a residence and has kept as far away as possible from the commercial atmosphere. Her shop is now located in the residential part of Hartford on a main thoroughfare and occupies two floors of a large old-fashioned brick house, the spacious veranda and beautifully kept gardens further carrying out the idea of a home.

For many years while carrying on the shop, Miss Greenwood was art instructor at the Hartford high school resigning about ten years ago because of the growth of her business. The fact that the commercial atmosphere is submerged in the shop does not mean that it is a small enterprise, for Miss Greenwood and Miss Gray go to Europe each year to obtain material for their shop.

A WIFE IN THE MAKING

THE FIRST REFERENCE TO ARLINE

It was two weeks after Ned's return that the first rift in the matrimonial lute occurred.

Everything had been going swimmingly and, in fact, both Cherry and Ned had often wondered how they ever had scrapped before.

At dinner one evening he announced that Arline Bates was returning the next day and with that announcement the bottom seemed to drop out of Cherry's exquisite happiness.

She said little at the time for fear of beginning an argument at the table, but her heart was troubled all through the long meal and her thoughts were anxious ones.

"You saw Arline in Chicago, didn't you, Ned?" asked his mother. "Someone wrote and said so, and I think Cherry told me the same."

"Yes, I saw her. She came to the city to buy some new clothes and was stopping with some cousins, I believe. She seemed lonely, so I invited her to lunch once or twice and to the theater a couple of times besides."

Cherry winced at his words, for Ned had never mentioned this to her and she had been too proud to ask him. Why, oh why, must she always hear the name of Arline Bates just when she was happiest? It seemed unfair, somehow.

"I thought that she was going to stay with her father this time, Ned," said Cherry quietly.

"I believe he did want her to, but she couldn't stand it. Arline never could live on peaceful terms with her family anyhow. They are too fond of trying to curb her naturally high spirits, and they seem to mutually irritate each other, she and her father."

"Well, I suppose she is better off here with us. Besides, she's near her Dr. Wilson," Mrs. Randau went on briskly. "I wouldn't be a bit surprised to hear that they were to be married soon. A girl like Arline couldn't care to stick out an office job for long. She's not the worky kind."

The rumor is that she's broken off the engagement," said Ned. "I forget who told me that, but it seems that Arline wrote to Peter telling him that she had changed her mind, or something."

"How sad for Dr. Wilson," cried Cherry. "He's such a splendid young fellow and will take it to heart so. I should think that Arline would have thought twice before giving up a man like him, especially as any number of girls are simply crazy about him."

"That wouldn't influence Arline at all," answered Ned. "She's always done more or less as she pleased, and a bedrt, even Doc Wilson's, means nothing more than a new toy to her. Of course it' too bad."

"If she's broken with Dr. Wilson, I'm glad for him," broke in Jack gruffly. "I think the world of him and he's too good for that snippy girl. But why in thunder does she hang around here any more then? That's what I'd like to know."

And Cherry mentally echoed Jack's words to herself as she made a brave effort to keep the tears back.

Percy Helton, who made a big hit in "The Return of Peter Grimm," with David Warfield, is working at the Fox New York studio in a picture which Edwin Carewe is directing and in which Mary Carr is playing the lead.

INDIA CO-ED FAVORS DRESS OF OWN LAND

By Associated Press.

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 9.—There is a co-ed at the University of Nebraska this year from Midnapore, sixty miles west of Calcutta, India, and her name is Khanto Bala Rai. Miss Rai is registered as a junior, following two years of study at Bethune College in Calcutta, and is enrolled in Christian and missionary arts.

Miss Rai is of the Bengali race. Her father is a Grahmin Hindu and was converted to Christianity shortly before Miss Rai was born. She appears on the campus in the classroom in her native costume, which consists of a separate waist and "sari" which is made up of five yards of material so draped as to form a skirt of her costume, and caught at the shoulder.

"I love my native costume and I do not think I shall be persuaded to adopt the styles of the American girls," Miss Rai has frequently told inquirers. She speaks English fluently. When questioned as to her opinion of American styles and American girls, Miss Rai replies:

"American girls' clothes are appealing, if not carried to extremes but I believe they are inclined a little toward mannishness and they are decidedly taking advantage of the freedom which has been accorded them."

Apparently her observation of the matrimonial angles and ceremonies of the American has not changed her native viewpoints.

"I am well content with our own matrimonial system." Miss Rai says "We have great faith in the wisdom of our elders and my sisters, as well as myself, are quite willing to abide by the choice of our parents."

Miss Rai has an ambition to return to Midnapore and teach in the girls' high school there, which is to be erected from donations made at jubilee meetings. It was at one of these meetings she met the Rev. and Mrs. W. T. Elmore of Lincoln, who induced her to accept a home with these people during her schooling.

Tell It To the World by Good Advertising

—"If a man can write a better book, preach a better sermon, make a better mouse trap than his neighbor, though he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door," once said a famous philosopher.

—Perhaps this is so—if some other man does not do these things almost as well in a more accessible spot, and—if the world be cognizant of the fact that he is in existence.

—The mission of your advertising today is clearly defined. Primarily, let the world know you are alive and tell what you have to OFFER.

—The Record News offers you an opportunity to accomplish these basic advertising principles with all the fine points and considerations that constitute modern advertising.

—The Record News simplifies your advertising problems, provides illustrations, copy and layouts compiled by experts and meets the merchandising requirements of the moment.

—You will find advertising of this kind—if consistently employed—to be an important sales factor and constructive element in your business.

AMERICAN MANUFACTURERS WORTH 62,000,000,000 IN 1920.

Totaling almost $63,000,000,000, value of the products of the nation's manufacturing industries in 1920, were three times as great as they were in 1910 and five and one-half times what they were in 1900, according to the Census Bureau's announcement of results of last year's manufacturers census.

There was an average of 9,103,200 wage earners employed last year in the 289,768 manufacturing establishments of the country, whose capitalization totaled $44,678,911,000 and whose products were valued at $62,910,202,000.

Thirteen states manufactured products with a total value of more than $1,000,000,000.

New York leads all states with more than one-eighth of the country's total, her manufacturers being valued at $8,875,007,000, and wage earners numbering 1,228,900.

Pennsylvania ranks second with products valued at $7,312,333,000, and 1,137,100 wage earners.

Illinois is third with $5,874,007,000 and 653,000 wage earners.

Ohio stands fourth with $5,100,299,000 and 730,700 wage earners, having supplanted Massachusetts, which held fourth place in 1909.

Massachusetts ranks fifth with $4,007,452,000 and 713,600 wage earners.

New Jersey holds sixth place with $3,686,775,000 and 509,200 wage earners.

Michigan retains seventh place with $3,447,984,000 and 470,800 wage earners.

California which held seventh place ten years ago, has moved up to eighth place, passing Missouri, Indiana and Wisconsin with manufacturing products valued at $1,981,410,000 and 243,800 wage earners.

Indiana has passed Wisconsin and occupies ninth place with $1,901,846,000 and 277,600 wage earners.

Wisconsin dropped from eighth place to tenth place with $1,883,608,000 and 265,200 wage earners.

Missouri occupies eleventh place with $1,599,264,000 and 195,000 wage earners.

Connecticut ranks twelfth with $1,394,898,000 and 293,200 wage earners.

Minnesota, ranking thirteenth, is the last of the states producing more than $1,000,000,000 worth of manufactured goods, her total being $1,128,130,000 with 115,600 wage earners.

Texas occupies fourteenth rank with $999,996,000 and 107,700 wage earners.

North Carolina is fifteenth with $943,808,000 and 157,700 wage earners.

Senator Penrose says the tariff bill will be passed as "promptly as possible." This is equivalent to saying that it will be taken up and passed in 1922. Penrose is an adroit politician. He is playing for time.

Cotton picking is on in the Panhandle and Lubbock demanded a thousand pickers. In that county the chamber of commerce is acting as a clearing house for cotton pickers on the South Plains. There is a lot of cotton in Lubbock, Crosby, Lamb, Lynn, Post and Garza counties and business is said to be booming. Cotton as a money crop is making its influence felt this year.

CENSUS SHOWS FAMILY DECREASING IN NUMBER.

Decrease during the last decade in the average number of persons in a family and to a dwelling in the United States is indicated by comparative statistics made public today by the Census Bureau. The 1920 census showed, a statement said, that the nation's population was grouped into 24,351,676 families residing in 20,697,204 dwellings, making an average of 4.3 persons to a family and 5.1 persons to a dwelling.

In 1910 the average number of persons to a family was 4.5 and to a dwelling 5,2. The average in both cases was still higher in 1880—five persons to a family and 5.6 persons to a dwelling—and has declined steadily since.

The Census Bureau applies the term "family" to a group of persons whether related by blood or not, living together in one household. One person living alone is counted as a family, while the occupants of a hotel or institution, regardless of their numebr, are considered one family. An entire apartment house, although the home of many families, constitutes only one dwelling in the Census Bureau's classification.

As shown by the 1920 census, the average size of families was greatest in southern states and smallest in western states, the Bureau announced. The number of persons to a dwelling was greatest in New England and Middle Atlantic states and smallest in western states. Among individual states the average to a family in 1920 ranged from 3.5 in Nevada to five in North Carolina, and to dwelling 3.7 in Nevada to 7.8 in New York.

AMERICAN BEET SUGAR INDUSTRY OF SALT LAKE CITY.

H. H. Rolapp, president of the United States Sugar Manufacturers' Association, says the beet sugar crop of the United States for the campaign beginning October 1 will amount to roundly 2,000,000,000 pound or about 900,000 long tons, which is a little below the output last year. The statement also contains the information that virtually all the companies operating this year have now been financed for the season and that their sugar will be marketed in the ordinary way in the Western and Central states, where its distribution is favored by freight rates. This answers trade speculations as to the possibility of beet sugar being forced into eastern territory in competition with Atlantic seaboard refineries.

"At present approximately 1,000,000 acres or over 1,500 square miles of territory between Ohio and the Pacific Ocean are devoted to the production of nearly 10,000,000 tons of sugar beets," says Judge Rolapp. "This crop is now being harvested and is of exceptionally fine quality. The best sugar industry is distinctly American in its operation, and ownership and financial conditions during the last year have forced very serious losses upon it. Some producers have been compelled to close their factories, but most of them are courageously standing by the industry and at this time virtually all of the survivors have been financed for the season. Their sugars will be marketed in an orderly manner through the usual channels. Only an occasional and very negligible quantity of beet sugar ever finds its way into eastern or southern states. The beet sugar industry never has and in the nature of things cannot establish prices for its products. It must follow the cane refiners, who furnish three-fourths of the country's supply. Such cane sale necessarily fix prices."

FUR PRODUCTION IN CANADA.

More than three and a half million pelts, worth $21,387,000, were produced in Canada in 1920. Muskrat and beaver pelts valued at $6,000,000 and $5,300,000 respectively comprised about half the total, with marten, mink, silver fox and fisher following in the order named. A very small proportion of these pelts was produced by the fur farming industry, which confines itself almost entirely to silver fox. The fox has proved most suited to domestication and has been successfully raised for the past 40 years. In 1919 there were 424 fox farms, 3 mink farms and 2 raccoon farms in operation with a total production of 2,543 pelts worth $508,549. Of the farms at the end of the year there were 8,310 foxes, mostly of the silver variety, valued at approximately $3,000,000. The largest part of the Canadian fur production is exported, principally to the United States. In the fiscal year 1921, imports from Canada totaled 2,684,000 pelts, worth $9,093,000.

THE SAD OPTIMIST

The most determined optimist has moments when he sighs, and mutters to himself, "I wist that life is not all pies;" and ere he's found his grouch uprist, he's shed brine from his eyes. The most resolved of Sunny Jims has moments of despair; he fails to dance on buoyant limbs, he seats himself to swear, and wearily he wipes his glims, and rends his beard and hair. I would not give a picayune for any mirthful gent who always hums a cheerful tune and never makes lament; he shows he is a locoed loon, devoid of sentiment. The optimist has gloomy days when he can't frame a song, for everywhere he turns his gaze he sees so much that's wrong, sees virtue halt on stony ways, while crime is going strong. But since he is an optimist, he fights the gloomy view; he taps himself upon the wrist, and says, "This will not do! There never was so dense a mist the sun could not break through! And all the evils I behold are doomed to pass away, and virtue, shod in shining gold, again will have her day; then why lament and rant and scold, and flop my ears and bray?" The optimist sees good advance, though progress oft is slow; and if he is, by any chance, immersed in tears of woe, he soon emerges from his trance, his teardrops cease to flow.—Copyright by George Matthew Adams.

WHY DO THEY DO IT?

A flier at Dayton, Ohio,
Went up 41,000 feet,
And thereby he broke the records
And glided back home all complete.

But why any guy wants to do this
Is a mystery too deep for me,
For after he's gone and has done it
There's nothing up there for to see.

That's what I would call going nowhere.
There isn't a hotel in sight.
No one-armed cafe and no vaudeville show,
And all he can find there is height

His nose and his ears they were frozen,
He came back all covered with ice,
But that is a trip I don't care for
No matter how handsome the price.

For I can go "up in the air," folks,
Without any airplane around,
Yes, I can go "up in the air," folks,
And not take my feet off the ground.

DOGHILL PARAGRAFS
By GEORGE BINGHAM.

Fletcher Henstep, after years of practice, is beginning to show some ability as a trader. One day this week he took his mule over to Bounding Billows and swapped it for a hog. Starting home the hog got contrary and didn't want to go so he stopped and swapped it for a ham of meat. Then further down the road a man saw the ham and wanted it, and Fletcher swapped him it for a good rifle, and when he reached home his wife asked him where the mule was and he held up a nice rabbit he had just killed.

Breakfast Stories

An unfortunate man, possessed of a comfortable competency, evidenced various eccentricities, and so his loving relatives tenderly escorted him to a famous neurologist. The latter viewed the patient from different points of the compass, and in due course passed him on to a psychopathologist. This polysyllabic expert subjected him to an exhaustive analysis and presently shucked him off on to a psychiatrist. The latter had hardly more than begun his investigation when the patient lost the most of his money. Thereat his kin turned him loose, declaring that they had no more time to waste on a darned old crank. And he fell into the hands of a shabby plug of an unknown general practitioner, who gave him a few doses of bitter stuff and cured him for a dollar and sixty cents.

"Were you ever in the silk business?"
"Why, of course not," answered the banker.
"Well, you're in it now," said the silk merchant as he picked up his hat and went out.

Eighty School Girls to Sing In Chorus of Business Girls' Musical Review, "Springtime"

About eighty school children will compose one of the choruses in the musical revue "Springtime" which will be presented at the Wichita theater October 21 and 22, under the auspices of the Business Girls' club. This chorus will be a strong hit of the show it is announced. Enthusiastic rehearsals of the "Guest Group" and the opening chorus were held Saturday night, according to the announcement.

The "Guest Group" is one of the many pretty choruses in which the members will wear quaint gowns of our grandmothers period.

The opening chorus is composed of a lively bunch of young people who will sing, "I Could Be Happy With One Little Boy" led by "Elvira the Vampire," with Miss Bruce Dickson in the role of the "vamp."

School children who will take part in the choruses will include:

Who's Who

MISS MARY VAN KLEECK

The presence of three women among the industrial leaders meeting in Washington to solve the unemployment problem is another proof of the important part the fair sex is now playing in the industrial and business world. One of these three women is Miss Mary Van Kleeck, a New York woman.

MARY VAN KLEECK

Miss Van Kleeck has led women's activities in various fields for some years. She was director of the department of industrial studies of the Russell Sage Foundation for several years. During the war she was chosen to head the newly-formed women in industry service in the department of labor. She made the service such a success, according to government officials, that the service, begun as a war measure, was continued after the armistice.

Miss Van Kleeck is a native of New York, having been born in Glenham, Duchess county, that state. She won her A. B. degree at Smith college and then studied at Columbia, finishing her studies there in 1917. Her efforts in investigating the hours of work of women and child labor conditions in New York in 1905-07, won her her first recognition in the industrial field.

loose with a fence breaker to left for three bases, scoring McNally, who had reached first on a fielder's choice. Schang was left when Mays grounded to Rawlings for the third out.

The break of the game came in the eighth, the lively Yankee infield had broken up an incipient Giant rally in the previous inning by a fast double play, but in their next turn at bat, Manager McGraw's men went at it again with a determination that wouldn't be broken down.

"Irish" Meusel started it by hitting the first ball pitched to far left center for three bases. This set the Giant rooters cheering and they went wild when Rawlings speedily singled to center, scoring Meusel with the tying tally. Mays was in rather a bad way here, for a run was in, and a man was on first with none out. Matters became worse when he missed Snyder's bunt in a headlong drive for it, with the result that Snyder landed on first and Rawlings on second. They both moved up on Douglas' sacrifice, which Mays threw to Ward, barely getting the batter.

Burns Comes Through.

Then up stepped George Burns, who previously had found the range with a single off Mays in the sixth. Burns' aim was even better this time for he drove a slashing double to left, scoring Snyder and Rawlings and putting the Giants two runs to the good.

There was still only one man out, but Mays put on more steam at this point, causing Bancroft to fly to Ruth and Frisch to foul to Schang.

The Giants' final run, in the ninth, came when George Kelly broke the ice for his first hit of the series, a smart double to left, and scored on Emil Meusel's single.

The official figures gave the attendance at 36,372. The gate receipts were $118,527, of which the share of the advisory board of baseball is $17,779.05, the player share $60,448.77 and the two clubs' share $40,299.18.

Both sides went out in order in the first inning. Burns, first up for the Giants who got four hits in the third game last Friday, fanned. Captain Bancroft was an easy out Ward to Pipp. Frisch sent a long fly to Miller. It took only three minutes to retire the National leaguers. Miller, leading off for the Yanks also fanned to the great delight of the Giant rooters.

With two strikes and balls, Captain Peckinpaugh sent a grounder to Bancroft and was thrown out. Ruth bumped an easy one to Kelly who sprinted to first for the out.

The second inning was also quickly, only three men on each side facing the pitcher. Young sent a high fly to Ruth who showed no ill effects of his bad arm in making the catch. Kelly hit Mays' second offering to McNally and went out at first. "Irish" Meusel also hit the second ball pitched and grounded out, Ward to Pipp. For the Yankees, Bob Meusel with two balls and a strike, hit to Frisch and was retired at first. Pipp shoved out a slow line drive that Bancroft gathered in for the second out. Ward grounded out, Douglas to Kelly.

The National leaguers got a man on in the third inning, after Rawlings was thrown out by Peckinpaugh. Snyder sent a low fly to short. McNally ran to get it, but it was just over his head. Peckinpaugh evidently being confident McNally would make the play, was not set for the ball as it went over McNallys head. It was fumbled and Snyder was safe. Peckinpaugh was charged with the first Yankee error in the series. They had gone 29 innings without a fielding misplay. Snyder moved to second on Douglas' out, Ward to Pipp, and was left there as Burns was tossed out by Peckinpaugh.

The first hit of the game came in the Yankees half of the third and started terrific cheering in the vast crowd. McNally laced a slashing single to right, pitcher Douglas, aware of McNally's speed, kept him close to the bag. With Wally Schang at the plate, with two strikes and one ball, McNally bolted for second and was an easy out, Snyder making a rifle shot throw to Bancroft. Schang fanned and Mays popped out to Bancroft.

In the fourth for the McGraw clan, Peckinpaugh threw out both Bancroft and Frisch on easy chances. Young made it a quick inning by hitting the third ball for a high fly to Bob Meusel. For the Yanks the top of the batting was up. Frisch made a great stop in the hot corner of Miller's sizzling grounder. Peckinpaugh bounded out to Kelly unassisted. The crowd cheered Ruth as he made his second trip to the plate and "Bambino" tickled his followers by driving a hot single to right. He was left on first base as Bob Meusel struck out.

The fifth inning showed the Giants completely in the grip of Carl Mays. They were unable to do much with his underhand shoots and went out in order on infield grounders. McNally threw out Kelly, Mays tossed "Irish" Meusel out and Peckinpaugh relayed Rawling's grounder to Pipp.

The Yankees broke into the scoring column in their half. Pipp caused a lot of excitement by sending a clean single to left and went down to second on Ward's neat sacrifice, Douglas to Kelly. Frisch copped McNally's grounder, caught Pipp between second and third and ran him down, the play being Frisch to Rawlings to Frisch. McNally remained on first and a minute later came all the way home on Schang's tremendous drive for three bases to left field.

The Yankee followers were almost in a frenzy as the fleet-footed McNally raced across the plate with the first. Mays ended the inning by grounding out, Rawlings to Kelly.

The Giants made their first hit of the game in the sixth. Snyder lined out to McNally and Ward threw out Douglas. Burns shot a single to center and was left on the bag as Bancroft was thrown out by Ward on an easy chance.

In the Yankees' half Miller fouled out to Snyder. Peckinpaugh scratched an infield hit and Ruth struck out to the great delight of the Giant rooters. He went out on three pitched balls, two of them being foul strikes. With Bob Meusel at bat, Peckinpaugh tried to steal but was thrown out, Snyder to Rawlings.

The Giants were cut off short by a double play in their half of the seventh. Frisch went out Ward to Pipp. Young singled to center and was forced at second by Kelly who was doubled at first, the playing being Ward to Peckinpaugh to Pipp.

Douglas in the Yankees' half of the inning gave one of the best exhibitions of pitching so far seen in the series. Bob Meusel sent up a fly that Young gathered in and Pipp and Ward went out by the strike route.

Giants' Big Inning.

Then came the Giants' big inning of the game. "Irish" Meusel drove Mays' second pitch to the left field fence for three bases. The hit aroused the spectators and there was tremendous cheering as Rowlings came to bat.

He made good by shooting a single to right, sending home Meusel with the tying run. Snyder tried to sacrifice. He laid down a fine bunt that rolled toward first and Mays in trying to field the ball, sprawled on the ground and the attempted sacrifice blossomed into a hit, both Rawlings and Snyder being safe.

This was the turning point of the game. With two on, the score tied, and no one out, and the crowd cheering like mad, Pitcher Douglas advanced the runners by sacrificing, Mays to Ward. Burns then scored both runners by a hefty two-base drive to left and the cheering lasted for some time. Even the Giants on the coaching line and those in the dugout showing their great pleasure by throwing their caps and patting one another on the back. Burns tried to get home on Bancroft's fly to Ruth but failed. Frisch ended the inning by fouling out to Schang.

The Yankees went in to bat determined to wipe out the Giants' lead. McNally started out badly by fanning. Schang, however, scratched out an infield hit, but was forced at second by Mays on a play by Rawlings to Bancroft. The latter tried for a double play at first but his throw was low and the ball rolled to the grandstand, Mays taking second. Miller ended the inning by striking out and the Yankees' chances of victory failed.

Phil Fans Eight.

It was Douglas' eighth strike-out of the game.

McGraw's men added a run to their score in the final inning. After Young was thrown out by Mays, Kelly ripped a two-bagger to left, and scored on Meusel's single to the same field. Meusel tried to steal and was out, Schang to Peckinpaugh. Rawlings raised a Texas leaguer to right and was left at first when Snyder popped out.

The Yanks' last turn at bat. Peckinpaugh grounded out Rawlings to Kelly. Babe Ruth here inserted his home-run in the box score and the inning and game quickly came to an end as R. Meusel fouled out to Snyder and Pipp rolled an easy one to Douglas, who ran over and made the put-out at first base himself.

In winning his game, Douglas pitched five more balls than Mays. He hurled 108 balls at the batters, of which 30 were called balls, 27 resulted in strikes, 14 foul strikes, eight fouls, 16 infield outs, an outfield out and 7 hits.

Mays pitched 98 times for 31 balls, 22 strikes, 11 foul strikes, 20 infield outs, four outfield outs, 9 hits and one base on error.

Neither pitcher gave a base on balls.

THREE NEBRASKA SEMI-PROS LIFTED TO HIGHER CLASS

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 9.—Three Nebraska baseball players, all well known in semi-professional circles, will perform next year in major and minor league class.

Floyd Brown, catcher for the Sidney, Neb., team which won the Denver tournament this year, will try out with the New York Giants next year. Brown backstopped for the Omaha team of the Western League the greater part of the season.

Outfielder Dick Wood, a member of the Exeter and Wilber, Neb., teams this year, has signed with the Detroit Americans.

Rack Dickson, former football and baseball star at Coiner College, Bethany, Neb., has signed with the Minneapolis team of the American association.

Vanderbilt's Famous "Blood and Iron" Line That Faces Texas U. at Dallas October 22

Bomar, guard

Elam, tackle

Wade, guard

Overall, tackle

When the orange and white backfield of Texas U. starts on a proposed parade down the Dallas state fair gridiron on October 22nd, they are going to have to thrust aside a lot of beef en route. Said beef consists famous "blood and iron" line, and when the Longhorns get through, they can go home to Austin and casually remark: "Well, we done somethin'."

While the Tennesseans realize they are not ging to visit a sewing circle the afternoon they meet the Texans, nevertheless it is reported they feel rather chesty over the situation. They believe they'll make it hard on any team before the give up a football game, and they're working hard to get in shape for the long trip to the state fair game.

The state fair football program is arousing general interest, and the Texas-Vanderbilt tussle is one of the headliners. Both teams will go into the contest without having been extended this season, and some real thrills are expected.

According to an announcement of the Ex-Students' association of the University of Texas, seats have been reserved in special sections for the Vanderbilt game and for the A. & M. game at College Station Thanksgiving, for the benefit of all ex-students and blue book signers who are not exstudents. A special section has also been reserved for the Vanderbilt ex-students at Dallas.

All applications for seats for either of the games should be sent directly to L. Theo Bellmont, University Station, Austin, accompanied by the price of the tickets, it is announced. Each applicant should state that he is an ex-student of the University or a blue book signer. Those who are Dallas residents may secure their seats for the Vanderbilt game from W. E. Metzenthein, University Club, Oriental Hotel.

Box seats are priced at $3 each; reserved seats at the sides of the field are $2.50 each and reserved seats at the ends of the field are $2 each. Prices are the same for both games. No applications for special seats will be received after five days prior to either of the contests, since it will be necessary to place all tickets on public sale at this time.

WISDOM and WORSE

By C. F. C.

Something seems to have occurred, brethern, to prove that the "submarine ball" can be hit by National league bats.

Likewise, I rises to remark that one "Shufflin' Phil" Douglas on occasion appears quite capable of doing other things than shufflin'.

And a little bird is whispering around the glad tidings of great joy that Bambino Ruth at last smacked one on the kisser for four sacks.

Now, if Babe will only suffer an infection in his other arm and get spiked in one leg, it's possible he may hit another.

The world is always full of cripples who do the unexpected.

As, f'instance, Oberlin college Saturday when she trounced Ohio State at feetball, eh, Woodie?

I wish the Pirates or Cleveland had won, either one of 'em—just so there'd be something besides that same old New York date line on all these world series stories. They ain't no color, somehow, to a world series played in the same city game after game; not enough of the wild-eyed crazy fanning; not enough of that "You're a liar my town's a better town than your town" stuff.

Now, down at Louisville, Ky., the city that once was famous for its beautiful women, good whiskey and fast horses, and today is still famous for its fast horses and beautiful women—down there yesterday the fans rioted on the ball field and broke up the "junior world series" between the Colonels and Jack Dunn's Baltimore Orioles; just swarmed on the field and pelted the umpires and police with cushions so dod-gasted whole-heartedly that the game broke up in disorder, and was forfeited to Baltimore. That's pep, hot dawg!

I played ball yesterday, myself, with the University club against them there All-Stars—and say, I sure hit the old apple on the nose, gang! But my infield blew up with a detonation that must have rocked the ships in San Francisco bay; and, by gum, the All-Stars licked us for the city semi-prochampionship. Aw, shucks, I never did have much luck with the things my heart's been most set to obtain!

But I'll betcha the Yankees win today. Betcha they get mad, and just tera into them there Giants something nawsty—but I don't wanta bet much; say, 'bout ten cents, huh?

CUBS STILL IN CHICAGO CITY BASEMENT

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—The Chicago American Leaguers made it four in a row from their National League rivals today by winning 3 to 2 in the series to decide the city championship. "Shovel" Hodge of the White Sox opposed Grover Alexander, the Cub's ace, on the mound, and the veteran suffered his second defeat, while the White Sox rookie was credited with his second win, having finished the previous game which the American leaguers won in the tenth inning.

Hodge outpitched his veteran rival, permitting only six hits, two of which were bunched and resulted in an earned run in the fifth. The other run was the result of a two base muff of Barber's fly by Mostil, an infield out and Grimes' single. Alexander was hit freely but tightened up in the pinches. The game was one of the hardest fought of the series. Score:

ALLEY STARS OF NATION ENTER BIG BOWLING TOURNEY

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 9.—Bowlers of the nation have their eyes turned toward the fourteenth annual tournament of the Middle West Bowling association, to be held in Des Moines on November 18 to December 3.

Already the entry list includes a number of teams and individuals well known in the bowling world, and new entries are arriving in each day's mail, according to M. J. Locker, secretary of the association. Teams from Ft. Wayne, Ind., Milwaukee, Wis., Indianapolis, Ind., Toledo, O., Denver, Colo., Omaha, Neb., St. Paul and Minneapolis, Minn., St. Louis, Mo., and a delegation of forty teams from Chicago, including present and former champions are entered on the lists. In the individual entries are Jimmy Smith of Milwaukee, James Blonin of Chicago, Joe Shaw, former individual and all-even champion of the world, H. Marine and D. DeVito, Jess Pritchett, all-event champion, and F. McCullough, individual champion from Indianapolis, and many others.

Entries for the tournament will close November 9, Secretary Locker announces. It is expected that approximately 300 teams will be entered in the tournament, a special railroad rate of one and half fares adding to the inducement to attend. The aggregate cash prize fund which will be available is estimated at $15,000, according to H. C. Menne of St. Louis, president of the organization.

LIGHTER ELEVENS OF SOUTH EXHIBIT POWERFUL DEFENSE

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 9.—The most consistently powerful drive shown during last week's southern football games was by Alabama, Auburn, Georgia Tech and Sewanee, but their performances were well matched by the manner in which Tulane came back after a bitter defeat and by the defensive work of Virginia Polytechnical Institute and Furman. Some of the lighter elevens exhibited surprise defense against their opponents. Richmond University held Virginia to two touchdowns, Wake Forest allowed Virginia Military Institute but three. Emory and Henry gave up but four to Washington and Lee. Newberry held South Carolina University to a lone touchdown.

Intersectional contests resulted in no victories for southern teams, Maryland University, the most probable winner, went down 42 to 0 before Syracuse. North Carolina, State, held Pennsylvania State well in hand, the score being 35 to 0, and North Carolina University lost to Yale 34 to 0.

Three big intersectional games are on for Saturday, Georgia playing Harvard, Tennessee meeting Dartmouth and Washington and Lee playing Rutgers. Sewanee set a season's mark for southern teams in its 102 to 0 victory over Bryson College.

STECHER ASKS LICENSE TO GET BACK IN MAT GAME

DODGE, Neb., Oct. 9.—Joe Stecher, former heavyweight wrestling champion, has made application with the state boxing commission for a license to engage in wrestling under the state laws. Stecher, who recently returned to Nebraska, intends to get back into training, with the possibility that he may again become a championship contender. He gave his normal weight at 210 pounds and his ring weight as 205 pounds.

ALL-STARS WIN CITY BASEBALL CHAMPIONSHIP BY DEFEATING UNIVERSITY NINE IN WILD GAME

The All-Stars grabbed the city semi-pro baseball championship yesterday afternoon at Athletic park, defeating the University Club team 11 to 9 in a wild and weird exhibition of crazy slugging, idotic base running, bonehead plays innumerable and errors by the gross. Although the University Club batters out-hit the All-Stars, the club piled up the staggering total of 10 errors, according to the official scorer, not to mention a large and varied collection of bonehead plays that do not show in the box score.

The University Club nine declined to win; repeatedly declined with thanks. Every time the sluggers of the team drove in a few runs, the infielders kicked away a few more grounders, left a few more bases uncovered and handed the runs back to the All-Stars—and the latter took advantage of every opportunity. Despite the four errors made by the team, the All-Stars played fast, snappy ball and honestly earned the city crown by keeping their heads up and being on their toes, full of fight and ginger, ever minute of the game.

The fans had a lulu of an afternoon. They razzed the University clubbers and the All-Stars impartially; they roared at the umpire, and they nicknamed every player after some world series star. All in all, they got their money's worth in a good time, although they witnessed some extremely "sour" baseball. Scattered throughout the game, however, were a number of snappy plays that contributed to the general variety of th eafternoon tangle.

Beesley and Conley were both hit hard, but Beesley pulled through to victory through the errors of his opponents. Conley gave way to a pinch hitter in the seventh, and Sandeford finished the game, Conley replacing McClure back of the plate for the University Club when the latters foot was injured.

The All-Stars opened the ball with one run in the first frame. Brooks singled through second, and went to second, and went to third while Neal was throwing out Taylor at first, Gordon failing to cover third base. Martin fouled out to Faichney, and Brooks scored when Conley likewise failed to cover the home plate.

In the second the All-Stars grabbed two more, Neal opening the inning with a single through third. Beesley hit to short whose throw to second was too late to get Neal, both runners being safe. Brooks struck out and Taylor forced Neal at third. Martin hit to Gordon who threw wild to the clubhouse, Neal and Beesley scoring and Martin going to third—enef.

In their half of the second the University club crew went wild, and drove in five runs. Kerr opened with a left field single, and went to third on Neal's single to center. Neal stole second, and both men came home when McClure smashed a two bagger to center, McClure going to third on the throw to the plate. Conley hit a sacrifice fly to Woods, McClure scoring. Gordon flied out to Woods. Carter singled down the first base line, and scored on Faichney's double to left. Smith singled to center, bringing Faichney home—sufficient.

But the club team couldn't hold it. In the fourth Brooks singled to left, and stole second. Taylor fanned. Martin singled to center scoring Brooks, and was out at second trying to stretch the hit. Fowler tripled to the center field fence, and scored on Woods' single to right.

From that point on the All-Stars scored in every inning but the eighth, breaking the tie with two tallies in the fifth and keeping up the fusillade of hits to an accompaniment of University club errors.

The University club nine had a good chance to knot the count in the ninth frame, but after driving in one tally dumb work on the bases again threw away an opportunity—the last opportunity.

An effort will be made to arrange a series between the All-Stars or a picked team, and the city champions of Dallas.

FROM AROUND THE STATE

BOWIE.

BOWIE, Texas, Oct. [illegible] Work of graveling the city streets goes steadily on and just now the city has under construction something like ten miles of graveled streets.

Dr. Schoolfield and family, for 28 years residents of Sunset, are moving to Memphis, Tennessee, where they will reside in the future.

A new city well for the water works department was complete yesterday. This gives the city four wells and an abundant water supply.

The American Field Trials for bird dogs will be held in Bowie in February next, when lovers of dogs will meet here from several states to spend ten days in running their dogs in the trials. This will bring a number of prominent business men of all walks, and real sports, to our city, and the Chamber of Commerce has extended the Association a hearty welcome to our city. R. Q. Kennedy, Ezra Williams, Lee Bailey and other lovers of this kind of sport will look after details of the meeting.

It is announced that the fourth quarterly conference session for this conference year will be held in the First Methodist church, Sunday, October 16, also Harvest Home coming or Sunday School Rally Day. Presiding Elder Shover will be present.

Frank Timberlake of Wichita Falls was a visitor in Bowie this week.

Miss Aileen Williams, who is attending school in Wichita Falls, visited relatives in this city, the past week.

Mrs. H. P. Owens is dead. She had been a resident of Montague county for more than forty years and a faithful mother of seven children, all living.

Among the recent deaths was that of W. L. Smith, age 77 years. He had been a resident of Texas 74 years and was one of the early pioneers of Newport. Six sons and daughters survive him.

C. A. Patterson of Wichita Falls was checked in the first of the week to relieve L. C. Gibson with the light plant here.

F. M. Watson of Wichita Falls is here inspecting the local plant of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company.

Bowie cotton yards received 1,100 bales by wagon this season up to yesterday.

MEMPHIS.

MEMPHIS, Texas, Oct. 8.—D. H. Arnold spent Wednesday at Amarillo, where he went to make investigation into Masonic affairs, realtive to temple building. It is now believed that the funds will be forthcoming soon after the first of the year. It is probable that the old buldings will be razed by the first of March, and everything ready for breaking the ground for the new edifice.

Rev. E. B. Kuntz is in Wichita Falls attending Amarillo Presbytery and the Texas Synod of the Presbyterian church.

The chamber of commerce camp supper which was to have taken place Friday afternoon has been postponed until Tuesday night on account of weather conditions.

Rev. Dr. A. L. Moore is attending the annual conference of his church in Amarillo. He has been the secretary of the Northwest Texas Conference ever since its organization.

Captain Hardesty of the Texas Rangers says he sees no reason for a conflict between the whites and the negro cotton pickers in Hall or addition counties. Many cotton pickers were brought here this week and were absorbed in the cotton fields without delay.

Some unfavorable comment has been has been made by some about Gov. Neff, on the theory that he has sent Rangers into Hall county. The governor would no doubt be surprised to learn this, as he has sent no Rangers to this county, and no Rangers have been in this county for any purpose whatsoever since he became governor.

IOWA PARK.

IOWA PARK, Texas, Oct. 8.—W. Grow and associates of Wichita Falls brought in a sixty-barrel well on the Lee Allen farm, said to be one of the best in the Iowa Park shallow field. Mr. Grow expects to drill other wells at once. Operators are very optimistic over the advance of crude oil and the Iowa Park section predicts another rush to the shallow fields around this place.

Judge Edgar Scurry of Wichita Falls and others were present at the meeting of the Bruce Cobb Post of the American Legion Judge Scurry made an address and refreshments were served to members and guests at the Park Inn.

NEW NATION COMING TO LIFE TODAY

By Associated Press.

TEGUCIGALPO, Honduras, Oct 9—A new nation having an approximate area of 100,000 miles and a population of 4,000,000 will come into existence tomorrow when the governments of Honduras, Guatemala and Salvador will cease to function and the Provisional Federal Council of the Central American Federation, composed of those countries, will take charge.

The new republic lies between Mexico and Nicaragua, with Tegucigalpa as its capital.

The pact of the union was signed early in January of this year at San Jose, Costa Rica, by the three mentioned states and Costa Rica, whose National Assembly rejected it later by a vote of 19 to 20.

Nicaragua refused to sign the pact on account of differences with its neighbor states about the interpretation of the Bryan-Chamorro treaty, which gave to the United States special right for the construction of a new interoceanic canal through its territory.

Similar considerations apparently prevailed in Costa Rica, but in both countries the public opinion is divided and a Unionist party is endeavoring to bring about, some time, the union of Nicaragua and Costa Rica to the federation. If this comes to a fulfillment, the population of the new nation would be increased by 1,000,000 inhabitants and would extend its boundary down to Panama.

The union of these sister republics has been a national aspiration since 80 years ago when political troubles destroyed the Federal Republic of Central America which, as a whole, liberated itself from the Spanish power in 1821 and maintained its unity until the forties. They speak the same language, Spanish, have the same religion, Roman Catholics, and are of the same race, predominantly Indian, except in Costa Rica, where the white race prevails. Since the Spanish conquest they have had identical legislation and the same culture.

The text of the treaty of union provides for a government modelled on the lines of the Constitution of the United States, with three separated branches, the executive, legislative and judicial, although the executive is modelled more on the Swiss system. A constitution embodying these provisions was finally approved by the Constituent Assembly which met in September at Tegucigalpa.

In so far as it does not infringe on the Federal Constitution, each state retains its autonomy and independence in the management and direction of its internal affairs and will carry on the governmental functions not specifically delegated to the federation.

HOTEL SUITES IN WASHINGTON TO BE CALLED "FOREIGN TERRITORY" DURING ARMS PARLEY; EXPECT BOOZE TO FLOW

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—Husky two-fisted drinkers of other days in dry old Washington are waiting impatiently for the days of the big arms parley. Because—

Private bars are expected to spring up and blossom with all the dazzling trimmings of what are now called the good old days. Every hotel will be a mecca for the thirsty. The bars will be immune from interference from pesky dry law agents.

Each leading hotel will have reserved for the swarms of delegates and their staffs large suites of rooms, and in some cases whole floors of these large hostelries will be placed at the disposal of the peace envoys. For the time being, and until the arms parley is ended, such quarters, wherever they are, will enjoy all of the extra-territorial rights guaranteed to the foreign embassies and legations. Such quarters for that period are held to be foreign territory, within the meaning of international law and time-honored ethics in diplomatic intercourse.

If most of the foreign diplomats do not drink whiskey, wines or other high voltage liquors they have hosts of friends who do. It will be a gala period for hospitality. Gloomy will be the quarters of a visiting delegation which does not have its large quota of guests, distinguished and otherwise, and its inexhaustible supply of the liquids that cheer.

Washington will become one of the real "wet" spots in America, and protected in its wetness by diplomatic immunity.

Aside from the purely official headquarters, with all the needed appurtenances for entertaining, the homes of Washington's star entertainers among the so-called residential set will for that period become gay oaseses.

Just to remove all doubt and handicaps on the point of an abundant liquor supply for the foreign delegations and their guests while here the barriers have been torn away to allow the uninterrupted flow of foreign liquors through our ports.

The liquor stock soon to enter by coast routes will be brought by the delegations as a part of their luggage, or be shipped from foreign countries, consigned to accredited foreign diplomats resident here.

Officials who have had a hand in clearing away the red tape to permit free entry of such liquors are expecting a veritable flood. The drys scarcely will think of trying to stop it. Their pleas at the state department, if made, probably would be fruitless. It's a question of international courtesy. And during a peace meet, aimed at stopping bloodshed between nations, the very thing that the state department will scrupulously avoid is discourtesy.

MEXICAN RANGES ARE NOW OPEN TO YANK STOCK MEN

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 9—With the purpose of encouraging the bringing into Mexico of cattle from the United States, President Obregon has ordered a reduction in import and export duties which will amount to about 50 per cent. The reduction began on September 1.

There were several reasons for this action by President Obregon. He desires to see Mexico's ranges restocked and thinks, it is said, that a step in that direction would be to make it easy for cattlemen in the United States to use the rangeland in the northern tier of States, Chihuahua, Senora, Coahuila and elsewhere.

The suppostiion is that while much of the cattle will be later taken back to the United States, some will remain in Mexico and that eventually the range will be filled again.

At present there are millions of acres of good range land upon which there is not a cow.

It is also expected that the reduction in duties will bring about a reduction in the price of meat, which will lighten the burden of the poor, who are facing the double difficulty of high prices and scarcity of work.

Popcorn Vendor's Wagon Is Latest Bag of Prowlers

Police were searching Saturday and Saturday night for a popcorn wagon loaded with peanuts and popcorn and the candies usually sold from such wagons. The wagon was reported to police to have been stolen Friday night from a resident of North Wichita and hauled away.

Members of the night police force reported seeing two men dragging a popcorn wagon over the Ohio street bridge shortly before midnight Friday.

Belief that the property may have been taken by some party with the intention of spiriting it to a nearby town for the purpose of opening a peanut and popcorn vendor's business was expressed by Police Chief Morgan.

Police failed to obtain the name of the man reporting the loss of the wagon.

KANSAS CITY UNITY LEADERS ARRIVES TO CONDUCT MEETING

Miss Daisy Levi Freedman of Unity headquarters Kansas City, Mo. arrived in Wichita Falls Thursday to conduct a series of meeting under the auspices of the New Thought Truth Center.

METHODISTS DISCUSS REPORT MADE ON CHURCH'S STATE

AMARILLO, Texas, Oct. 9.—Much of the morning session of the Northwest Texas Methodist conference in session here was taken up with the discussion of a paragraph in a report of the committee on the state of the church. This paragraph called in question the orthodoxy of some missionaries. Bishop McMurry ruled the paragraph could not be inserted unless the accused were present to defend themselves. After much discussion the paragraph was completely changed.

Delegates were appointed to the general conference of the church. The afternoon and evening were confined to attending to conferece business.

Ministers for northwest Texas who receive their appointments tomorrow, which is the closing day of the conference.

KERNEL COOTIE—SICK ABED

Americans Hope to Bare Secrets Of Mars by Use Deep Mine Shaft As Telescope, Snapshooting Star

By Associatd Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Rocket, radio or camera—which will be first to lay bare the secret of Mars?

Of course, it isn't at all certain that any one of the three will prove a successful Sherlock Holmes of the skies but scientists, lured on by an age-old curiosity concerning our neighboring planet, are pressing along all three paths.

The latest development to set the scientific world again agog over the old question of whether there was life on Mars was the announcement from Paris of B. McAfee, American scientist and Professor David Todd, American astronomer, that they proposed to snap-shoot the planet by using an abandoned mine shaft in Chile as the barrel for a telescope.

Only a short time before Signor Marconi of wireless fame had put a kick of interest in the most fantastic of scientific inquiries by suggesting that a radio signal of 150,000 meters which he had picked up might have come from some Martian armed with a mammoth sending set.

Two engineers of Omaha devoted two weeks of their time recently to listening for signals from Mars. They kept their apparatus tuned to catch such a message as Marconi described but they heard nothing.

Provoker Controversy

Controversy has run high over the bold proposal of Messrs. B. McAfee and Todd. A mine shaft in the Chilean Andes, which will point directly at Mars in 1924, will provide the barrel of their telescope, they announced and a big pan of mercury revolving at high speed at the bottom will provide the mirror. The two Americans calculate that the surface of Mars will be magnified at least 25,000,000 times bringing it within a few miles of their cameras.

The mine shaft will be widened to 50 feet in diameter and sheathed. The pool of mercury at the bottom will be revolved at such high speed that it will assume a concave shape and become a mirror. The depth of the fortunately placed shaft is so great that there will be sufficient luminesity, the two scientists said, to enable them to take snapshots instead of time exposures.

The Goddard proposal for aerial investigation also includes use of cameras. To summarize his principle, the determining factor of the efficiency of a rocket is the velocity of the ejection of gases due to the explosion of propelling material. By increasing this velocity, through increasing the proportion of the propelling material to weight of projectile and through a greatly improved nozzle-haped passage for the escape of gases, Professor Goddard claims to have raised the efficiency of the rocket to nearly 64 per cent.

Convinced Life Exists

Many investigators are convinced that life exists on Mars and expect to prove it with their novel telescope. What they will find on their photographic plates is the object of speculation by scientific men the world over.

Lowell has said that Mars is level and uninteresting with no mountains and only a few dried up beds of shallow seas to diversify its topography. More than one-half of it is desert land and the rest is only green when the canals are bringing water from the polar ice caps. Dust storms which blot out hundreds of square miles of the polar ice caps. Dust storms which scientific observers sweep over its equatorial section.

The physical conditions of Mars are entirely different from those we know on earth. The force of gravity exerted by Mars is only three-eighths that of the earth while the atmospheric pressure that is about 15 pounds to the square inch at sea level on our world is less than four pounds of Mars. The air is very thin and no known animal could live on it. These conditions, however, make it possible for great weights to be lifted with little effort.

Leap Like Gazelle

Lowell computed that the Maritans could do seven times more work than human beings could accomplish, with the same amount of effort. A human observer on Mars, he said, would be impressed by the slowness and flatness of his surroundings.

An elephant could leap like a gazelle in such an atmosphere, he said; water would flow with a hesitant, lazy current and a stone thrown into the air would sink with graceful moderation to the ground. He made no attempt to describe how the Maritans themselves might appear to worldings but he said they would not resemble human beings.

The Maritan day is 20 minutes longer than ours but the seasons are twice as long. Lowell asserted that Mars is slowly dying for want of water and the canals had been built in an epic struggle of the Maritans to maintain life. He suggested that the spots observed at the intersections of some of the canals might be cities built up around points where the greatest amount of water could be concentrated by the canals.

But it was left to Professor Robert H. Goddard of Clara College in Worcester, Mass., to suggest making an investigation of the moon by means of a multiple charge, high efficiency rocket, capable of carrying cameras of other recording apparatus needed to explore the unknown regions of the upper air. As the claim was made that a rocket could be constructed of unlimited cruising power, it has been suggested that it might be shot up to Mars instead of the moon, which many scientists affirm is uninhabited. One or two daring individuals even have volunteered to be shot up in place of a camera.

The possibility that some folk might be wandering up and down the valleys of Mars has excited the curiosity of astronomers and laymen throughout all the ages for Mars is the nearest planet to the earth and the easiest to observe.

Imaginative writers took their readers on trips to the moon and laid the scenes of their stories in the surroundings of Mars, Saturn and other planets but there was little scientific knowledge to furnish a basis for such fiction.

Science Quickens Interest.

The perfecting of the high powered telescope and the adaption of photography to the uses of the astronomers quickened their interest in the possibility of life on another world. Mars, which was seen to have large areas of a bluish green and other areas of an ochre red, with patches of white at the poles, was believed by many astronomers to be capable of supporting life in some form.

Schiaparelli, an Italian astronomer, announced in 1871 that he had found the surface of the planet scarred by many lines which were perfectly straight and seemed to have some system like vast engineering works. He called the lines canals and said he believed they had been constructed and were not simply cracks in the surface of the planet.

Professor Percival Lowell erected an observatory in Flagstaff, Ariz., many years ago and commenced a systematic observation of Mars. More than ten years ago he startled the world by expressing his belief that Mars was inhabited by intelligent organisms living in a civilization much farther advanced than ours.

The canals, he said, were really big ditches bringing water from the poles to irrigate the rest of the planet. The ochre red areas on the surface of Mars, he asserted, were deserts or fallow fields which became bluish green as the water flowed along the canals in the seasons.

Claims Saw Spring Come.

Later, he said that he had watched the bluish green area, denoting land springing to life with the coming of the water spread down the northern hemisphere along the borders of the canals to beyond the equator of the plant and then gradually turn reddish brown with the waning of the season. The water, he claimed, was from ice melting on the polar caps of the planet.

Other scientists took the opposite point of view. Some said the canals were only cracks in the surface of the planet filled with sand, impregnated with salts of various kinds, which became dark or light to the observer according to its moisture content. The temperature on Mars, they said, was too cold to support life of any kind.

Lowell retorted that his observations showed that the average temperature of Mars is 48 degrees Fahrenheit. The regularity of the canals; their even spacing; the accuracy with which they made a great circle such as navigators employ on a curved surface thousands of miles in extent; the manner in which some of the canals were parallelled at certain points and the regularity of the spots at the intersections of canals all testified, he asserted, to the artificial nature of the canals and justified a belief that they were made by sentient organisms of high intelligence.

More than 500 canals and oases, as Lowell claimed the spots to be, have been mapped out and their names are so well known that Harvard Observatory announced last April that snow had been observed falling at Isidis in the district of Syrtis Major, Mars. It was held by some that the canals had been developed to signal the earth which must appear to the Martians as of immense size being nine times bigger than Mars.

With the development of wireless telegraphy several attempts have been made to get into communication with Mars with high-powered apparatus. Signor Marconi gave encouragement to that field of research recently, when he announced that in the course of experimenting he had picked up a signal with a wave length of 150,000 meters, about six times as long as any commercial apparatus in use today. Marconi said the letter V had been repeated several times in international code. He suggested that possibly the inhabitants of Mars were trying to get into communication with the earth.

KLAN PARADE VISITS CHURCH IN OKLAHOMA

By Associated Press.

BLACKWELL, Okla., Oct. 9.—More than 200 men wearing robes of the Ku Klux Klan filed through the First Methodist church here tonight, during church services, and stopping in front of the Rev. Fred Mesh, spokesman said "we know you are not with us, but we are behind you, 3,000 strong in Kay county.

His speech concluded, the spokesman turned and the leader of the Konclave, bearing a huge cross-lighted with torches, preceded the remainder of the body down an aisle and out the door.

The klansmen carried banners stating "We stand for 100 per cent Americanism" and "We bow only to the law, but we want the law enforced by the right officers."

The band disappeared almost immediately after leaving the church. The Rev. Mesh has been emphatic in his appeals for observance of the law and its enforcement, according to members of his congregation.

SAYS WAS SHOT AFTER QUARREL CONCERNING COW

By Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 9.—Floyd Beatty, alleged to have been shot during a controversy over a cow, died early today in a hospital here. He was shot a week ago last Saturday. He made a dying statement, according to the assistant county attorney, Mont R. Powell, implicating Charles Williams, age 60, whom he declared shot him in the back as he attempted to run from him.

PASSAMAQUODDY TRIBE PLEAD FOR ANCIENT SOIL

BOSTON, Oct. 9.—"Lo the poor Indian!"

Led by Chief William Neptune, the 471 survivors of the once-powerful Passamaquoddy tribe are planning a last stand for their former domain.

The Indians lay claim to lands about Princeton, Me., which they say were granted to the tribe by Massachusetts in 1795, when Maine was part of the Bay State. Chief Neptune has sought to enlist the aid of Governor Cox, of Massachusetts, in an effort to regain the land for his followers. He charges that the State of Maine seized the land and sold it for a dollar an acre.

CANADA HELPS IT'S SOLDIERS TO GET LAND

By Associated Press.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 9.—Canada has spent over $84,000,000 in the establishment of returned soldiers on the land. This figure represents over 27,000 individual ex-service men who have benefited from the law which had for its twin aims soldier re-establishment and the development of the agricultural resources of the dominion. It represents 80 per cent of Canada's ex-service men who have gone back to the land and 30 per cent of the men of the Canadian army who were demobilized as physically fit.

Under the law any ex-service man eligible from a military standpoint, having seen service overseas, may apply for loans up to a maximum of $7,500 for the following purposes: For the purchase of land $4,500; for stock and equipment $2,000; for permanent improvements $1,000. If on encumbered land, the ex-soldier is entitled to loans amounting to $5,000; if on free dominion land, to loans amounting to $3,000. In the case of purchased land the settler must pay 10 per cent of the cost price of the land as a guarantee of good faith.

The benefits are open to men of the Canadian expeditionary forces, to ex-service men of Great Britain, the dominions and the Allied forces, who lived in Canada prior to the war, and to ex-service men of the imperial or dominions forces, if on their arrival in Canada they spend a sufficient time to gain practical agricultural experience on Canadian farms. The imperials, however, are required to pay 20 per cent of the expenditures for all purposes cash down.

On July 31, the number of applications was 60,827, and of these 43,765 had been accepted as qualified to farm. Nearly 1,000 others are in training with the intention of taking up farms when qualified. Of the 26,701 settled on the land, 20,624 were granted loans. The others were located on free dominion lands without financial assistance.

The Settlement Board adopted a system of selection, requiring that applicants must pass a rigid examination as to physical ability, moral character and sincerity of purpose, with the result that, out of the 26,000 men who have now been on the land upwards of two years, strict supervision of their operations has revealed the fact that only about 10 per cent have failed to show promise of satisfactory results. In some cases, it has been found necessary to allow the settler to withdraw from his obligation and the board has taken over his farm and sold it to another.

In 425 such cases, where the investment of the government was $1,062,729, the government realized on resale $1,054,525, showing a loss of only $19.30 on each farm.

The loans for land and permanent improvements run for 25 years, those for stock and equipment for six years, with interest at five per cent. No payments were due until the fall of 1920, when 12,231 men were liable. The number who made repayments was 9,330 and 1,439 made pre-payments. There were 403 who repaid their entire loans.

In view of the collapse of the markets in the middle of the threshing season and of the occurrence of drouth and other visitations last year in some localities in the West, the government regards this statement as very satisfactory and it is believed that a very few years will see most of these soldier farmers well on their way to success. Indeed, there are cases where settlers have taken from the ground crops aggregating in value more than the whole cost of their farms.

Alberta has the largest number of soldier settlers, with 6,058; Saskatchewan second, with 5,136; the other provinces in the order named: Manitoba, 3,319; British Columbia, 2,975; Ontario, 1,521; New Brunswick, 545; Nova Scotia, 381; Quebec, 363; Prince Edward Island, 329.

In addition to the loan advantages which a soldier settler has, the board secures for him favorable arrangements with regar to the purchase of his stock and equipment. Farm machinery manufacturers, lumber dealers, harness and wagon makers give special prices to soldier settlers, in some cases, amounting to a reduction of 30 per cent. In the purchase of equipment, the board has effected a saving of $886,894. It also has saved the settlers large sums in land purchase. So intermediary is permitted to take a rake-off on soldier farms; the land is bought direct from the owner.

The most important advantage, however, is the supervision which the board gives to its settlers. It advises him in all his operations until satisfied that he is doing well and in a position to carry on without assistance. It buys only what he needs, not what he wants, in this way curbing his propensity for rash buying.

A home branch counsels and assists in whatever manner seems to be desirable the dependents of the settlers. This branch has secured the co-operation of the Red Cross and other societies in the establishment of hospitals in remote areas and it has brought thousands of the women to centers of population for courses in home economics, which have proved very interesting and helpful.

This great re-establishment scheme which it is claimed is unrivaled in the world, is administered by a board of three: Major John Barnett, Major R. J. Ashton, and Samuel Maber. The head office is at Ottawa and district offices are established in every province.

TO ENFORCE OLD ORDINANCES AS TO PROCESSIONS

Another city's traffic ordinance that has been inactive for some time will be rigidly enforced in the future according to announcement Sunday from Chief of Police Morgan.

In connection with an arrest made Sunday, Chief Morgan said that all drivers of automobiles who violate the ordinance forbidding driving partly or through a funeral procession will be arrested and brought to the police station. The initial arrest in the enforcement of the ordinance was made Sunday when a local merchant was arrested for driving through a funeral procession in the downtown district.

"The ordinance expects any one who is in a hurry to drive down another block and thus get ahead of the procession," Chief Morgan said Sunday "and this disrespect shown by driving past the procession and through must stop at once."

A motorcycle officer in the future will be assigned to processions while within the city limits to enforce the traffic requirement.

YANK WEDS PRINCESS OF RUSSIA

By Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 9.—The final rites in the marriage of Princess Zenia Georgievna of Russia and William B. Leeds Jr., of New York, were carried out today. Two religious ceremonies, following the civil ceremony of Saturday were performed. The first of these, which was brief and simple, took place at the American Episcopal church of the Holy Trinity and the second, which lasted one hour, followed at the Russian church. At the latter ceremony, all the pomp and historic customs of the ancient orthodox church formed part of the ceremony, which was performed by the private chaplain of Queen Mother Olga of Greece.

The ceremony at the Episcopal church was witnessed by only relatives and a few friends, but it was found impossible to bar several thousand members of the Greek and Russian colonies from that in the Russian church. When the bridal party entered, the crowd stormed the barrier, and as many persons as could be squeesed in, rushed into the church to witness the ceremony. After the wedding the church attendants had to force a way through the church aisles for the bride and groom.
