2 Local Ladies Receive Burns This Week

Mrs. Sam Houtchens of the Hollywood Beauty Shop, was badly burned this week, when the gas formed over a stove exploded, when she undertook to light it. She spent the day in the office of her physician, Dr. John R. Turner, using anti-burn masks, with the results that while her hair is singed badly, there are no blisters.

Also, Miss Nadine Pool, waitress at the Brownfield Hotel Coffee Shop, was quite painfully, but not seriously burned when the gas fire under the coffee reservoirs went out, and she lighted it again, before all the gas escaped. Her hair and eye brows were singed pretty badly, but no bad effect left on the flesh.

One cannot take chances with gas. It is a great fuel, and safe enough when handled right, but otherwise dangerous.

Pike Accepts Position With Santone Packers

Cecil Pike, who has held the job of meat cutter for the Piggy Wiggly store here for some time, left last week for San Antonio, where he will travel for a San Antonio Packing concern. Cecil made many friends while here, and will no doubt be an efficient employee of his new firm.

He has been waiting some time until his successor could get here, who is Mr. J. Q. Reed of Odessa, who comes from a Piggy Wiggly store in that city, and is highly recommended by them. He has moved his family to Brownfield.

Postal Receipts Continue To Show Gains Here

Postal receipts for 1938 were $1,283.29, as compared with 1937 receipts, amounting to $1,132.59, which shows a 13 per cent increase over last year.

Money orders for August, 1937 amounted to $9,601.00, compared with money orders for August, 1938, amounting to $11,070.41, which shows a gain of $1,469.01.

So Old Homer Had a Great Time in Austin

If you don't think H. R. (Old Homer) Winston had a great time at the State Legion Convention at Austin last week, you just ought to ask him about it. His version will give you a great many old deep belly laughs that will loosen up your old creaky joints and make you feel younger and better. Give us more guys that will tell us something funny instead of all crepe all the time.

Well, he and the good madam (Old Mahota) and kids attended, and we know they got their money's worth. Aside from business sessions, banquets, etc., the boys roped off some few blocks on Congress Ave., and set up a real Tom Bean Court, or "The Law West of the Pecos." Object, raising needed money to help disabled veterans, and Homer says thousands of dollars were raised in short order, with small fines but BIG COURT COSTS.

One big guy, a third bigger than Mon Telford was hauled into court, and charged with laughing at and contempt of Court. This being a heavy offense, the Court cracked down on him heavy. But he wouldn't pay. A dozen huskies began to drobe him of his clothes at the instigation of the judge.

Well, says Homer, he had on more clothes than a tight rope walker, but they finally got down to red flannel long-handled undies, fastened on with the largest safety-pens you ever saw. At this time the big guy made a break for liberty with a corps of police, motorcycle men with sirens going.

Of course the fellow was dressed for the act, but it was a long time before some caught the joke.

Thought We Got Sore At He and Sadler

Had a card from a good friend out on route one this week, which read as follows: "In working for Sadler, I was just being loyal to my old friends in east Texas—the Sadlers. But in doing so, I didn't want to lose any friends here. Was just 'kidding' you."

In reply will say that we admire this friend more than ever before because he did stay with and work for an old friend that he had known for years. If there is a person on earth that we have small confidence in it is a man that forgets his old friends when they need his friendship.

Mr. Sadler is the nominee of the Democratic party. Mr. Terrell, our man was defeated. Now we are for Sadler, lock, stock, barrel and ramrod, and shall take pleasure in supporting him in the general election in November, and perhaps two years from now.

And, "Old Friend," if we appeared to be huffed, you misjudged us. We remember our meeting you and lady on the streets. We had a previous appointment to make in the next few minutes up the street, and was merely in a hurry. If we acted uncivil pardon us.

To Attend ITU Convention at Birmingham

Joe Bailey and family were down from Lubbock Saturday to pay a short call on Mrs. Bailey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Brownfield and other relatives, and paid the Herald a short call. Joe spent some four or five years with the Herald in middle twenties, where he learned to handle the Linotype machine.

For the past several years he has been an employee of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal publications as linotype operator. He informed us that he and family are leaving this week for Birmingham, Ala., where he goes to represent the Lubbock Typographical Union in the national convention.

At the time he was here, he felt sure he and wife and two little daughters would go via Dallas, Shreveport, Vicksburg and Jackson, and return via the Hug-the-Coast route from Mobile to New Orleans, and thence home.

Kermitt Football Game Changed to Thurs. Nite

Due to a conflict in games it has become necessary to change the date of the opening game with Kermitt to Thursday night, September 15. The playing of games on week days is against the policy of the administration but in this case it was either Thursday night or Saturday night, and there was many objections to the latter.

A Very Busy Week In District Court

This, the third week of District Court, over which Hon. Louis B. Reed of Lamesa is presiding, is the first week of Criminal Court, and according to District Attorney, Truett Smith, it is to be a very busy one. He expects the trial of Nickson Haley,

LOUIS B. REED
Our District Judge, of Lamesa

TRUETT SMITH
Our District Attorney, of Tahoka

for the alleged murder of Earnest Word here in June, to go to trial today, (Friday).

L. N. Fletcher was tried for alleged cattle theft Tuesday and given 3 years in the pen. C. C. Harris of Michigan was to be tried Wednesday charged of theft by bailee of City Service stock in this city. John Reinhardt of New Mexico was to be tried for forgery and passing cold checks.

A young man of this section was to have been tried for statutory rape, but the case was passed to the next term on account of the absence of some witnesses. A special venire of 75 men have been summoned for the murder case set for today.

Bennie Carver of Lubbock was given two years in the pen for forging a check on a prominent Terry county farmer for $225.00. He was carried to Lubbock by Sheriff Ches Gore, where he will be tried as a habitual criminal, having been mixed in court cases frequently in that county.

There is still another week of District Court, and at the end of which the docket should be fairly well cleared.

Herald Receives Its First Santa Claus Letter

While it is more than 100 more days until old Santa Claus appears in Brownfield, the Herald has already received its first appeal from one of our youngsters to the region of the North Pole. You have often heard that the early bird gets the worm, and we hope our little friend shares well this year.

Anyway, the Herald does not start printing Santa Claus letters until the first week in December, but the little letter has been filed and will appear with the first batch that we print in December. And we hope Santa gets busy on his racer and truck (that has lights on it.) The letter bore date of August 24th.

Says Californians Are Also Rather Radical

Clarence Hudgens, who has recently returned with his family from a visit to their son and brother, Jim, at Los Angeles, says the Californians have nothing on Texans in jumping in and electing an unknown, just because he pulled something unusual.

He reports that the man who outran McAdoo for the United States Senate on the Democratic ticket is considered a very commonplace individual. His main platform being a promise to give every man over 50 years of age $30 every Thursday. His proposal is to use script, and merchants and bankers of California have declared they will not handle it.

Lubbock Goodwill Trip- pers Coming Sept. 13

LUBBOCK, Sept. 6.—More than 30 Lubbock Goodwill Boosters will arrive in Brownfield Tuesday, September 13, at 3:50 p. m. on the annual goodwill tour publicizing the 25th annual Panhandle South Plains Fair which is to be held in Lubbock September 26 to October 1.

With this group will be 25 select members of the crack Lubbock High School Band.

Traveling in special chartered buses, this delegation will leave the "hub city" early Tuesday morning dressed in cowboy regalia. In each town along the route the trippers will stop to present a short program and distribute the free fair souvenirs to school children and grown-ups. Every school child on the South Plains will be given a ticket to the fair for School Children's Day, Wednesday, September 28.

Plans are nearing completion for the quarter century exposition as workmen finish laying out the new parking area which will be inside the fair grounds, and put the finishing touches on the new walks and roadways.

Chamber of commerce, newspaper and school officials in Brownfield have been asked to assist in arranging for the local program. Every one, young and old, is urged to meet the Lubbock delegation at 3:15 p. m.

Course in Office Practice for Adults

A course in office practice for adults is to be set up within the next ten days or two weeks. It will be taught from 4 to 6 o'clock in the afternoon. The course is under the direction of the Industrial Division of the Department of Education and is financed largely through federal and state sources. There will be a charge of $1.50 or $2.00 for each individual who takes the course. It will extend 72 days, which will be some two and one-half or three months. A charge of $2.50 will be made for use of the typewriters.

Included in this course will be training in filing, typing, simple bookkeeping, and many other phases of office practice. A certificate will be given at the completion of the course, and another course will immediately be set up for additional training in some industrial or professional line.

Fifty per cent of the enrollment must be from people who are now engaged in some kind of office work. Thirty per cent might be those who have had work of that type but are temporarily unemployed. Twenty per cent might be those who have never had such training.

Alaska Sourdoughs Hold Meet at Portland, Or.

Recently the men that made history during the gold rush to the Yukon back in 1898 met in reunion at Portland, Oregon, and many were the yarns spun out by these men, and of the hardships they endured. But there was a funny side to these yarns as well as sad. It was generally agreed however, among the men who slung their pack for the treacherous pass over the mountain, that there was no such incident as the "Shooting of Dan McGrew."

That was given as purely fiction. But men were not so safe in those dance halls and saloons. We have two very prominent men in Brownfield who were in the gold rush, being our present mayor, Clyde C. Coleman, and J. B. Bailey, retired groceryman. Neither attended the convention.

Cadet Brownfield is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Brownfield, of 803 E. Cardwell St., Brownfield, Texas. He received his appointment from Rep. George Mahon, 19th Texas Dist. and entered the Military Academy in 1935. He will graduate in 1939.

Good Crowd Attend Tradesday, Monday

Merchants generally cashed in nicely on their week end specials as a huge crowd thronged the streets both Saturday and Monday, estimated to be one of the largest Tradesday crowds seen here in some time.

Merchants were well prepared with large seasonal stocks and reported sales not only of large quantities of staples, but the shoppers were interested greatly in the new fall showings of merchandise.

Business and professional men of the city are already preparing for the first Monday in October, and will at that time offer a full showing of fall and winter goods. Others will have a line of seasonal goods, such as drugs and sundries, hardware and implements, furniture, as well as staple and fancy groceries, meats, etc.

Farmers Wrought Up Over Quail Shooting

A bunch of our farmers are getting thoroughly wrought up over men from town coming out to their farms, any time of year and poaching on their game that they are trying to raise. We had a long conversation with two of them this week, who were getting signers of men who wished to help propagate quail, and at the same time protect these fine little pets of the farm.

Recently in conversation with our game warden, Mr. Harris of Lamesa who was over, we agree with him that a man that will poach and pot-shot a bunch of a farmer's quail has committed a worse crime than if he pot shot a bunch of his chickens. Suppose some farmer should come to your town home and begin shooting your chickens, pet rabbits, or even your canary?

We have conversed with some farmers recently who say they are going to return shot for shot, and they mean business. One man here in town who owns a fine farm in the northern part of the county, says that poachers slip in Sundays when his tenant is gone and shoots his quail. This man has gone to some expense, as well as other farmer-owners to provide harbors for their quail—a place to hide from hawks as well as to raise their little broods.

These farmers are getting together in the right way. One of the pledges of the Association is to report all game law violations no matter who does it, that comes under their observation. One of these farmers remarked that if he invited a friend out to shoot a half dozen quail, and that is plenty for most any family at one time, that was his business. But a better way is to trap them. They do not get wild from being trapped, like they do if it shooting is the method.

Some others play they are shooting dove, but take a crack at any quail in sight. One farmer told us that oftentimes the hunters feared getting caught and would leave dead quail along the fence rows, a wanted destruction of wildlife. This same man said he caught a hunter shooting his quail not long ago with a 22. The farmer met him with a good shot gun loaded with pretty heavy charges of big shot. What he told the hunter is not printable in these columns.

Another farmer told us some time ago of a little incident out at his farm west of town. His residence is considerable ways from the road, and he saw some men shooting his quail down on the road. He took his old Winchester, walked out in the yard, and began to plant a few bullets near the hunters. Didn't want to hit them unless they persisted. Needless to tell the readers that the hunters crawled to their car and made a swift get-away.

We don't know who these hunters are. None of their names have ever been called in our presence, except that farmers will just say, "some of our prominent business men," but the Herald wishes to say just this: Be good sportsmen. Don't do something to your neighbor that you would not permit him to do to you. Don't kill that which he has fed and protected without his permit.

Ray Brownfield Promoted at West Point

WEST POINT, New York, Sept. 5.—New appointments of cadet officers and non-commissioned officers at the United States Military Academy, as announced here today by the Superintendent, Brigadier General Jay L. Benedict, U. S. Army, included the promotion of Cadet 1st Sgt. Albert R. Brownfield, Jr., first class, to the grade of Cadet Lieutenant.

Cadet Brownfield is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Brownfield, of 803 E. Cardwell St., Brownfield, Texas. He received his appointment from Rep. George Mahon, 19th Texas Dist. and entered the Military Academy in 1935. He will graduate in 1939.

A Former Newspaper Woman Visits Herald

Miss A. B. Fletcher, of El Paso, was in our city this week, representing a medical line, which are sold to physicians. While here she paid the Herald a short call, saying that she had worked on papers, and it was hard to pass one up. That old familiar "smell" still lingers with her.

She worked on the Uvalde Leader-News, the paper started by Vice-President John Garner around 1921. At that time Garner was a member of Congress from that district. Mrs. Fletcher has also worked on other west Texas papers.

Wellman School Opens With Over 300 Pupils

The doors of the new Wellman $45,000 school building, swung open, Monday, Sept. 5th, to 306 pupils, and a large number of visiting patrons. Three new teachers were added to the faculty this year, and another will be elected if the enrollment reaches 400, which is expected. Board of Education, faculty, bus drivers and school custodians, were on the stage.

Mr. Bell was master of ceremonies, and the program opened with the singing of America. Mr. A. A. Lawrence, a member of the board, gave the welcome to the students and school patrons. The Board of Education is as follows: A. L. Baker, President; T. F. Crestman, Secretary; W. A. Smith, Buck Little, L. P. Hamm, G. L. Sullivan, and A. A. Lawrence. J. B. Bell, Supt.; P. C. Goza, high school principal; Miss Margaret Walker, commercial department; Miss Bunny Dow, physical education department for girls; Mr. Vernon Payne, physical education department for boys; Miss Josephine Oliver, history department; Mrs. Elsie McWhorter, home economic department; Mr. Elsie McWhorter, Elementary principal; Mrs. J. L. Lyon, 4th grade; Miss Alameda Grigg, 3rd grade; Mrs. J. B. Bell, 2nd grade; and Miss Velma McClish 1st grade.

Vigilant State Police Slew Traffic Deaths

AUSTIN, Sept. 6.—Texas is the only state that is establishing a low traffic death record through an enforcement program, according to R. G. Paustian, University of Iowa engineering official who is conducting researches into traffic setups for the Federal Bureau of Good Roads and the National Safety Council. Mr. Paustian was in Austin conferring with state police officials.

He told safety officials here that he was favorably impressed with this state's low accident record, efficient handling of traffic flows and other favorable results obtained through "its unique enforcement program."

"Texas is the only state in which I have found an enforcement index-speed in relation to traffic movements and accidents—used as a basis for placing patrolmen at high accident locations," he commented.

Mr. Paustian also commended Texas officials for their various classifications for chauffeurs in which applicants for commercial driving permits are examined for the types of vehicles they propose to operate. He said he plans to recommend to other states that they adopt many of Texas' traffic control systems.

The visiting official left Austin for Oklahoma City where he will examine traffic records of Oklahoma.

Cotton Loan Rates Satisfactory, Slaughter

COLLEGE STATION—"The cotton loan rate is a very satisfactory one from every angle," Geo. Slaughter, Wharton, chairman of the Texas Agricultural Conservation Committee has commented.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has set the loan rate on 1938 cotton at a base rate of 8.30 a pound for 7-8 inch middling, with differentials for other grades and staple lengths.

The loans will actually run from 5.30 cents on 13-16 inch or shorter low middling to 10.75 cents on 1-18 inch or longer good middling or better cotton.

"The main function of the cotton loans should be to set a bottom to the market and to help growers who wish to hold cotton off the market for possible higher prices," Slaughter said.

Loan rates at a higher level, as desired by many, would have tended to hurt rather than help the cotton situation, he believes. "A large proportion of the crop would have gone from commercial channels to the hands of the government. This would have further aggravated our foreign market problem, and while cotton farmers would have been helped temporarily, the long time effect would have been disastrous."

Workers of the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service were pleased with the provision of the loan plan which dealt with variable rates for different grades and staple length. The movement to improve the quality of Texas cotton, they felt, had been hindered in the past by a blanket loan rate.

tieman," official publication of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, Inc., released its current issue as a special Aggie number.

Breaking a precedent in the make-up of trade journals, "The Cattleman" devotes most of the 76-page issue to A. & M. for the expressed purpose of "bringing about a better understanding and appreciation on the part of livestock producers for the school and its work."

Even the cover is so designed as to bring a thrill of remembrance to the many thousands of ex-Aggies scattered over the Southwest—carrying as it does a pictured between-halves "T" and a bar of the chorus and music from the school anthem "The Spirit of Aggie-land."

Nearly 30 articles and a photo section take the stockmen of the state on an instructive journey behind scenes in the institution which, as the magazine points out, is only one year older than the Cattle Raisers Association.

Mrs. Lackey of Plains was here Tuesday.

It is rather hard for the average American to understand the unrelenting laws of the British people. They don't seem to change their laws either out of sympathy or to please the whims of our popular movie people. First they stop a blind American lady who wished to carry her dog in that acted as her "eyes." Then Tom Mix's brace of six pistols were taken, but Tony got by. It might seem to some that stopping a dog at the quarantine was foolish, but the British Isles have been clear of rabies for years because of such precautions. There was no excuse whatever for Mix carrying his guns on his person. One reason there is less crime in Britain than in one or two of our larger cities is that the laws of that tight little island are enforced.

The Herald has stood by the President in most of his undertakings. It has been for most of the legislation he has originated, but we cannot altogether bear with him in his dabbling in the political affairs of the several sovereign states. We are too much of a state-righter for that. There is no harm, as we see it, for the president to announce his preferences from the White House, but to campaign the states, is another question. That should be left entirely to the people. They know whom they wish to represent them. They are very often wrong, but generally correct their error at the next election. Frankly, we believe Mr. O'Daniel, being a Texan himself, had much more right to indicate his preferences in Texas elections than would FDR.

We are glad to learn that our old friend, Editor E. I. Hill of the Lynn County News, Tahoka, appears to be on the mend, and we hope will soon be back at his desk. It was erroneously reported to us last week that he had passed away, but a little investigation on our part soon revealed the error and like the report of Mark Twain's death, "was a little previous." How such reports originate, is beyond us, or why misunderstood reports are repeated. There is at least one person, probably others right here in Brownfield, healthy and happy today, whom we heard had died. Lots of times, one person will say they are thought to be dying. Another that they are dying, and the next fellow will say they are dead. Did you ever try playing the "Whispering Circle" or whatever the name of it was? Well, a circle is formed and the leader will whisper a simple sentence into the ear of the one next him. The message is relayed around the circle and finally comes back to the originator and nine times out of ten, he will not recognize it. That is the very reason that gossiping is such a bad habit.

We had a card last week from Harley Sadler, popular west Texas showman, thanking us for carrying publicity for "Cousin Jerry." We did carry considerable free publicity for Jerry, as well as receive some paid advertising. However, we did not support Jerry in either primary. Jerry tells us in a recent statement that he is going to vote with Ernest Thompson when he is right and with Lon Smith when he is right. Meaning which, Jerry will never be wrong himself. Jerry also seems inclined to prolong the fight against those who did not support him, or give him their "nod," stating he would likely carry the fight into the State Convention. Evidently the State Convention will be controlled by O'Daniel cohorts, and Jerry is likely to get set down on hard. On the other hand, Gerald C. Mann announces the fight is over with him, and he is for co-operating with the administration to try to make the incoming administration the best possible. This may be one of the lessons he learned as a football player, fight to beat old billy when the tide seems against you, but when victory is won, congratulate your enemy on the hard fight they put up. That is the calibre of the true sportsman.

STRICKLIN HAS ON HIS WAR PAINT

son, rebel, republican, and that we sat in judgement on his debate and is peeved because we did not think he whipped Hill. But did not the "logical" fellow want anyone to express an opinion? What he says is law, and as unchangeable as the laws of Medes and Persians. But if we had agreed with the great arguer we would have been in high esteem. It was a case of the gored ox.

But he is howling again, loudly and lonely, that he has always boosted Yoakum county people before Hale ever knew there was a Yoakum county. My, how he does rave, and did you get that "before Hale knew there was a Yoakum county?" He must think Hale is a mere boy or else very dumb.

But he strikes at us for saying many are saying, that a republican may be elected governor this fall. Remember he does this after roaring in as for siding with Hill about that debate on the weather. Be fair Stricklin, if you do not want to be judge, do not judge.

Stricklin says Hoover was enough. So HE can change when he thinks he voted wrong. Now, hear him howl.

It would have made a good picture to have Stricklin and Hoover walking down the street arm in arm, in that memorable year of 1928, and talking of carpetbag days when the South went to the polls under bayonets. It is amazing how Stricklin runs to the arms of Mr. Hoover every time he starts his stuff.—Hale's Yoakum

County Review.

All we wish to say in reply to Hale's crude tirade of abuse above, is that the Herald was one of the very few weekly or daily newspapers in this section that supported Al Smith in 1928. Sometime, Hale, drop in and see the files of this paper back in the fall of 1928. You never have called on us except when you wanted an accommodation; pay us a fraternal call sometimes. As to the mention of carpet bag days, will just inform howling Hale that our dad served in the 13th Tennessee cavalry regiment under Gen. Down The Road

By CHARLES M. UPHAM
Engineer-Director
American Road Builders' Assn.
Washington, D. C.

GERMANY'S SUPER-HIGHWAYS

When the average American thinks of Central Europe, he usually thinks also of dictators, rearmament and war. German, in particular, is looked upon as a danger spot which may at any moment ignite another world conflict. All Germany activities, therefore, are studied for possible military significance. So, when Germany began its huge road-building program, which has resulted in a system of super-highways second to none, that activity was construed by many to be strictly a military project.

As a representative of the United States government to the recent International Road Congress at The Hague, I had the opportunity to travel over 3,000 miles of German highways, of which nearly 800 miles were part of the new Reich autobahn system. Whether or not it be true that these roads were constructed primarily for military purposes, it is most certainly true that they provide the German people with innumerable peacetime commercial, industrial, social and cultural benefits. Although these roads may some day be used to speed the movement of mechanized agents of death and destruction, they are at present responsible for an 83 per cent reduction in the number of traffic accidents.

Built into the German super-highways are most of the safety features that have long been recommended by American highway engineers. The new roads consist of two double-lane highways, each 25 feet wide, with opposing streams of traffic completely separated. Beyond these traffic lanes are adequate shoulders and a gradual slope to a drainage system. Railroad crossings and highway grade crossings have been completely eliminated with a majority of the intersecting roads being carried over the right-of-way of the new system by a most modern type of overpass construction. All curves are super-elevated and the surface finish of the pavement in non-skid. Traffic is controlled at road junctions by a clearly defined and systematic layout and parking places are provided at carefully chosen intersections. Pedestrians, bicyclists and animals are excluded from the highways and no advertisements or billboards can be erected by the roadside. Efforts are being made to retain and to enhance the beauty of the landscape.

There is no speed limit in Germany. The roads are designed for speeds from 80 to 100 miles per hour, according to the topography of the country. It is claimed that there have been no major accidents on the autobahn system chargeable to the condition of the road or to detail of design. This record is particularly remarkable when compared with the situation in the United States. Of the 40,000 traffic accident fatalities in this country last year, it is estimated that at least 50 per cent can be blamed on the failure of the roads to meet the demands of modern traffic.

While conditions in our country do not demand, or justify the immediate construction of a complete highway system like that in Germany, there are areas where heavy traffic and numerous accidents do call for the construction of roads of this type. A system of American super-highways could not be constructed in a few years but could be designed, laid out and some sections constructed in locations where traffic is heavy congested and a super-road is particularly needed. If this policy is followed, super-highways can be constructed when the need arises and this country will, in the future—possibly ten, twenty or even forty years from now—be provided with a system of highways that will adequately and economically care for the increased traffic demands that are bound to come.

KINDRED SPIRITS

"Delighted to have met you, Mrs. Higgins," gushed the new resident. "Do come over and see us one night." "So sorry, dear," replied Mrs. Higgins, "but we never go anywhere. You see, by husband is partially paralyzed."

"Oh, don't let that worry you. My husband is that way more than half the time."—Washington Star.

NECESSITIES

The tourist had stopped to change tires. "I suppose," he remarked to a native onlooker, "that in these isolated parts the necessities of life come pretty high?"

"Yer right, stranger," replied the native, gloomily, "an' it ain't worth drinkin' when ye git it."—Telephone Topics.

NATURAL GAS USED TO BRING OIL TO SURFACE

The remarkable achievement of the Continental Oil Company in developing new engineering methods which promise to effect vast savings of oil and gas in the country's oil fields is the subject of an article in the Reader's Digest for September.

Using the Continental Oil Company's new Tepepetate field in the State of Louisiana as an outstanding example of the new procedure, the writer describes how natural gas, at one time regarded as a nuisance by oil men, and later treated as a by-product of oil recovery, is now harnessed by Continental Oil Company engineers to maintain pressure in the oil sands and force the crude oil to the surface. Oil recovery by the new method, according to the writer, is almost twice as efficient as heretofore.

In conjunction with this development, the article tells that Continental engineers have developed a process for capturing and conserving the volatile elements or "light ends" in the crude, the combined process constituting a "development in engineering, which can save untold quantities in oil and gas." Continental's president, Dan Moran, is credited with being the chief factor in bringing about this advance in petroleum conservation.

YOUR FIRE BILL

You, the reader of this article, possess the key to fire prevention. You possess the power to help reduce the nation's fire loss, which now totals about a quarter of a billion annually, to an insignificant sum. And you can help save the ten thousand persons who now die horribly each year from fire.

By the same token, it is you who must pay the bill for our collective national carelessness with fire and its hazards. And it is you who suffers when fire strikes.

Many of us mistakenly think that fire prevention involves the purchase of expensive and complicated equipment, plus an involved system of inspections by high-priced experts. That is true only in a minority of cases. A very large proportion of all fires occur in homes and on farms—and in these cases adequate fire prevention usually requires little expenditure of either time or money. Improperly stored inflammable liquids, uncared-for heating plants, amateur electric work, accumulated debris of various kinds in attics, basements, closets and out-buildings—these are major sources of fire. And these grave hazards can be done away with quickly and for little or nothing.

Next time you read of a fire, large or small, think of its cost as being partially paid by you. You pay it in decreased purchasing power, in community retrogression, in lost jobs, in higher insurance rates. Think of the thousands of such fires that constitute America's gigantic and inexcusable total waste. Then answer this question: "Is the little effort that would make my property safe, worth while?"

HANCOCK'S CAFE

Tom Connally Usually Says What He Thinks

Righteous wrath—the sensitivity to feel it, the ability to convey it to his auditors—has made Texas' Senator Connally a recognized leader of the liberals in the United States—not the neo-liberals, but those of the sound old school.

Last week, American Legionnaires at their annual convention in Austin heard a sample of that wrath. They liked and they chered it and to the Junior Texas senator came new stature in the eyes of that growing body of Southerners resentful of the attempted "second reconstruction" of the southland.

Epitome of a statesman, in appearance and eloquence, Connally extemporized as his audience reacted, strode his way boldly plucked many a responsive chord as he decried the "new thought" sentment for those American ideals for which the Legionnaires offered their lives some twenty years ago.

To us a commoner description, he "poured it on;" and he liked the applause. "I'm not," he explained at one point, "accustomed to approval."

Southern people, he said are getting tired of "this stuff from other sections, reforming us down here."

Yankees
"The trouble with the South," Connally shouted, "is that the damned Yankees have had their feet on our neck for 75 years, ever since the war between the states, and if they'd take off we wouldn't need any wet nursing."

This climaxed an extemporaneous talk in which Connally, who voted against the Supreme Court bill and conducted the anti-lynching bill filibuster, vigorously defended his conduct.

In the rambling talk, Connally mentioned the recent report of the National Emergency Council on conditions in the South only enough that his audience knew it as one of the unwanted and unneeded "reforms," State Observer.

BOY SCOUTS ARRANGE FOR FAIR EXHIBITS

LUBBOCK.—Many new and interesting exhibits are being planned by the Boy Scouts for the Panhandle South Plains Fair to be held here September 26 to October 1. The Boy Scout Building has been overhauled, relocated and a new layout for the exhibits is being planned. Thord Dockray, General Chairman, announced.

Quite a number of Troops, individuals, and Patrols have made definite statements that they are going to participate in the Fair. Greater participation than has ever been experienced before is expected by the Fair committee.

Cash prizes and ribbons for the winners have been definitely arranged for and with advance time to make preparation this year's exhibit is expected to be the best ever held at the Fair.

Varying Showers Visit Terry the Past Week

Portions of the county have been blessed the past week with fair to good showers, especially the north-west portion. They have been rather light here and at other points in the county.

However the little moisture accompanied by cooler nights, have helped wonderfully to keep plant life growing, or maturing its fruit.

Veteran Legislator Says $30 Pensions Unlikely

On the basis of the cold facts, carrying out the $30 to all pensioners campaign promise of Governor-Nominate Lee O'Daniels will not be possible unless Texas amends her constitution and at the same time relinquishes Federal assistance.

This was pointed out here by Walter E. Jones of Jourdanton, member of the Texas House and veteran chairman of the House committee on taxation and revenue, who retired voluntarily at the end of his present term.

The first handicap to paying pensions is the Texas constitutional amendment which strictly limits the state's pension contribution to $15 per month.

Needy

Then, the Federal law says that the Federal government will match state payments made to "aged needy individuals."

"The state could pay the full sum of $15 irrespective of needs, but in going so they would stand the chance of losing the Federal funds, he pointed out.

Those who propose decentralizing the administration of pensions by placing it in the hands of commissioner's courts also reckon without Federal law, he said.

The Federal plan of administration, he pointed out, requires a central executive board.

"Deception"

"I do not believe in practicing deception of these unfortunate people," said Jones, "and would not promise anything more than could be fulfilled.

I therefore say that under the Constitution of our state and the Federal act, it will be impossible to write a law that will give to every person over 65 the sum of $30 per month."

Fall is coming; I don't care. Leaves are falling, trees are bare. Soon the snow will fall in sheets. Unemployed will walk the streets. Then at night the wintry blast. Will cool still more a cold repast. But I've a Democrat's belief. That I'll be safely on relief.

Domestic Allotment Plan Urged by WTCC

ABILENE, Sept. 5.—Adoption of the Domestic Allotment Plan to "assure the welfare and development of West Texas agriculture" is being urged by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce following re-approval of the plan by the WTCC agricultural board.

The plan was first endorsed by the organization at its 1935 convention in Plainview. All affiliates are being asked to work for enactment of the legislation.

WTCC officials contend that West Texas did not receive just allotments as compared with other agricultural states under government farm control programs in recent years. "The policy of scarcity and the administration of acreage and crop control is discriminatory to West Texas wheat and cotton producers and is stagnating our agricultural welfare," they declared.

Under the old Bankhead bill, West Texas farmers were forced to produce 45 per cent less cotton, while certain states east of the Mississippi were allowed to produce more cotton, it was pointed out. Foreign markets are being lost because while cotton acreage is being reduced in this country, it is being increased in other countries it was said.

Under the Domestic Allotment plan, a farmer can control his own acres, secure subsidy payments on the portion of this crop domestically consumed and be free to get what he can on the balance of his crop in the foreign market, WTCC officials said. Present government formula for making wheat loans and possible use of this formula for making cotton loans was termed by the board as "unfair and discriminatory to West Texas producers."

WTCC officials say they do not want the cotton loan formula mixed with freight rates. "Should the cotton loans be made on basis of the wheat loan formula, our West Texas producers will again suffer a penalty and differential greater than producers in other sections," they said. Officials pointed out that for cotton, on basis of equal hauls, Texas pays 49.34 per cent higher freight rate than Arkansas, 71.87 per cent higher rate than Missouri and 2 1-2 times higher than Louisiana.

THE METHODIST CHURCH

A splendid congregation for the morning service last Sunday. We appreciate the good number of visitors and invite them back again. The pastor will preach Sunday morning, using the subject "THE HIGHWAY OF THE IMMORTALS." This subject was suggested by the beautiful highway from Taos to Raton, New Mexico, which is so named because it was the familiar way of Kit Carson, General Grant, General Stonewall Jackson, the early Spanish explorers, the Padres, and many others.

There was a very decided increase in Sunday School attendance also. A good class and a competent teacher awaits any and every one who will come. Our facilities leave much to be desired, but the spirit of the school is what it should be, warmly, cordial and Christian. You will feel at home here. "Come thou with us and we will do thee good."

Mrs. Cleve Williams, city, and Mrs. B. Everett McLean, Texas spent a few days last week with their father, J. E. Bryant of the Union community.

Mrs. Leslie McLaren and son, Leslie, of Plains, were over Wednesday.

Economic Highlights

The American people know thoroughly the government's attitude toward domestic policies and problems. There have been few eras in which the doings of government and the politicians who run the machine have been of so much concern to the average man and woman. But it is probably a fact that a relatively small proportion of the people have any adequate realization of the immensely important change that has taken place in American foreign policy during the last few years of European and Asiatic turmoil.

Two recent events have served to further clarify this change. Secretary of State Hull made a burning talk which, while it named no names, was very obviously addressed to the dictators of the world. Stressing again his passionately held doctrines involving international morality and order, he put this country at the forefront of those powers which will work for peace—but which at the same time are prepared for war, and are ready and able to defend their rights at all times. Two days later the President went to Canada to dedicate a new international bridge—and made a talk in which he assured the Dominion that this country will come to her aid if she is ever attacked.

As Life expresses it, "Bigger news than either of the speeches, the calm acceptance of them at home served to show how far a determined President and his Secretary of State, in three years, have swung Americans away from peace-at-any-price isolationism and toward an acceptance of active, responsible, war-risky participation in world affairs." Ten years ago it would have been incredible had the highest government official made speeches of these kinds. Today they are apparently accepted with approval by the majority of Americans.

It is the utmost significance that practically policy of the New Deal has been roundly criticized in many quarters—with, generally speaking, the exception of its foreign policy. Because of his sage counsel, Secretary Hull has steadily gained in stature since he entered the Cabinet after a distinguished career in Congress. The United States, under the Hull policy, will pull no nation's chestnuts from the fire. But it will use all the moral suasion at its command to repeal aggressors. It distrusts and dislikes all the dictators. And it has unsurpassed forces to meet the issue if and when it is forced.

This does not mean that there is no criticism at all of our present foreign policy. One school favors complete isolation and would have this country keep completely out of foreign affairs and let the belligerent powers and their victims shift for themselves. Another school, somewhat left-wing in its philosophy, would have the U. S. take a much more belligerent line than it is taking even to the use of threats. But both these schools are very much in the minority, and there seems small chances that either will get their programs over.

Whether American opinion has created American foreign policy for American foreign policy has created American opinion is a moot question. But various surveys indicate that the policy is remarkably in consonance with the views of the people at large. These surveys, for instance, show that Americans are overwhelmingly opposed to Japan and in sympathy with China. They show a mounting disgust for England's peace at-any-price policy. They show active hatred of the Nazis and Fascists. And they show that the bulk of the people are against Franco and want the Spanish government to win.

It is obvious that our foreign

MONEY IN THE BANK

"Feed in the silo is like money in the bank—safe as long as you leave it there and subject to checking out whenever you need it." That's what thousands of trench silo users will tell you after a year's experience. There are now known to be about 11,000 of these "money in the bank" ditches in Texas and probably that many more in the four adjoining states, for which figures are not available at the moment. They range in size from 6,000 tons capacity down to those just large enough to feed one or two family milk cows, the tiny ditch is just as efficient for its purpose as the huge canyons holding feed for thousands of beef steers.

The Southwest probably has the greatest crop of feed, both grain and roughage, in history. Many farmers who diverted land from cotton or wheat into other crops, will have more feed than the livestock now on their farms can use in one season. If stored above ground as dry forage its palatability and feeding value gradually deteriorates, but if properly stored in a trench silo it will be as good ten years from now—if it should be that long before the next drought or hard winter—as it is a month after filling the silo.

The trench silo can be constructed with little or no cash outlay. Any dirt-moving tool from a spade to a drag-line will do the work. It can be dug in a hillside or the level any length, depth or width to suit the conditions and the needs of the owner. If rock is too close to the surface or ground water too high for the desired depth, the dirt excavated can be piled up to raise the walls above the ground level, and increase the depth of the trench sufficiently to insure good packing of the ensilage, which is essential to proper curing and keeping of the material.

Any crop can be ensiled, even after the grain is mature and the stalks partially dried out. The ideal condition of course is while stalks and foliage are still green and succulent, but if drought or frost gets in its work before the crop can be ensiled, adding water will supply the deficiency of moisture and make ensilage of dry, or partially dry, material.

Corn, sweet sorgho and grain sorghums carry sufficient sugars and easily convertible starches to insure the fermenting process which turns the material into ensilage. Sudan grass and the legumes require the addition of some fermenting material and black strap molasses, a few gallons to the ton of ensilage, will do the job.

Crops may be successfully ensiled in whole stalks or an ensilage cutter may be used. In either case success or failure depends on thorough packing in order to exclude air pockets. It is easier to properly pack cut ensilage than stalks, and it is easier to feed out, but the lack of a cutter has not prevented hundreds of farmers from making and using whole-stalk ensilage. Those who have not had previous experience in storing ensilage should consult their neighbor who has, or the county agent, who will supply detailed information in person or by bulletin.

Ensilage is more digestible than dry forage, hence an acre of feed in the silo is worth more as feed than the same acre cured dry. There is also less waste, and the acre of feed will go further in the silo. It furnishes succulent feed when green policy has been a strong psychological check on the ambitions of aggressor nations. They can't afford to lose even our formal friendship—and much less take a chance on arms and supply embargos. As a nation, we are rich, powerful, and remote from all other great powers. We are practically immune from attack—and in the event of war, we would have the balance of power, as we did in the last. That helps a great deal to keep the envious peace of Europe.

The business indexes still tend upward. As the Annalist puts it, "So far as can be seen the recovery movement is continuing in a generally satisfactory manner."

It is true that in many lines there has been little or no actual betterment as yet. But even there, sentiment has undergone substantial change, and leaders are looking to the immediate future with a great deal more equanimity than they did a few months back when all that could be seen on the economic horizon was storm clouds.

Steel recently passed 40 per cent of capacity for the first time since last November. Employment has been jumping in the automobile industry, due to preparation for next year's cars. Electric power is nearing its high for this year.

Retail sales have been down, as usually happens in the summer, but the decline has not been greater than seasonal in most states. Good fall business is anticipated.

pastures are not available, and is therefore relished by all livestock. It keeps the digestive apparatus of cattle and sheep functioning better, they get more nourishment from dry grain feed, and therefore produce more milk or weight for each pound of expensive grain they eat.

No farm, even if it has only a family milk cow and the work stock, can afford to do without a trench silo. One year's use will pay for it, and if not needed this winter, think what it would mean to have "money in the bank" when the next drought hits!

WHY ARE BANKING HOURS SO SHORT?

The hours during which a bank is open to the public for the transactions of business are usually called "Banking Hours." They are only a part of the working day for bank employees. A bank is very much like an efficient housewife who has work to do before a dinner party, and work to do after the guests leave. There is much work for employees to do before the bank opens to the public.

At the close of "Banking Hours" many important tasks begin. Window tellers count and balance their cash; bookkeepers prove accounts and tally ledgers; checks are arranged for clearance to other banks and to other cities; staff meetings and conferences are held; officers dictate and sign correspondence, go over reports and attend to many other duties. An important part of every bank's work is done before and after "Banking Hours."

Your Banks Are Open From 9 A. M. to 3 P. H. Each Day of the Week. We Need the Hours Before and After Banking Hours to Attend to the Proper Handling of Your Financial Affairs. Your Cooperation In Helping Us to Observe the Regular Banking Hours Bill Be Appreciated.

MAIDS AND MATRONS CLUB COMPLIMENTED

A well known young lady was heard to remark during a conversation that Tuesday was the beginning of another club year. "I wish there were several other study club in Brownfield, it has been paramount in helping to make Brownfield a better place, spiritually, morally, and intellectually." The Library is an untold asset to the county, with its hundreds of volumes of good literature, put there at a very small cost, so small in fact that anyone can get membership.

The club, until a men's service club, was organized, always sponsored our "clean-up" campaigns and yard contests, and now stands always willing and ready to help in anyway the city council or service clubs might want them to do.

One of the clubs aims this year is to try, and they think they will, make enough money to start on their new home to be erected on the lovely corner lot, donated by Dick Brownfield, on east Broadway.

COMING—THE MUSICAL COMEDY

"MISS BLUEBONNETT" UNDER THE AUSPICES OF CEN-TEX HARMONY CLUB

A capable director will arrive in our town the tenth to select thirteen dramatic characters from here and the surrounding community, who will carry out the parts of a blustery country doctor and his wife who wish to marry off their Old Maid daughter to a prominent gospel singer. To accomplish this they enlist the aid of Miss Bluebonnet, a Texas Miss who is in the community lecturing on psychology. How Miss Bluebonnet accomplishes her purpose is the story of the play.

Peppy songs and dances by school students, will add variety to the play.

Mrs. Glen Noble Webber and Miss Bugs Tarpley were Lubbock visitors Wednesday.

Mrs. Bertha Stahl was a visitor to Lubbock, Tuesday.

BIRTH OF A SONG

"Did You Ever See A Dream Walking"
By Mack Gordon and Harry Revel

HARRY REVEL's first musical step was when he made up brown-face and joined a Hawaiian orchestra in Paris. Mack Gordon was singing in New York Cafes.

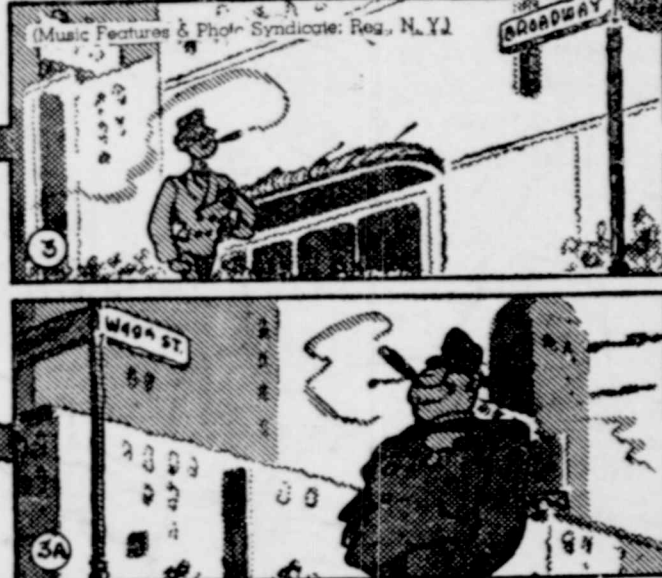

Mack didn't think much of Harry till he heard him improvise—but he was leaving for a vaudeville tour and there was no time to get together.

Harry soon took up with a more serious orchestra, toured Europe and began to compose; Mack joined "Honey Boy" Evans' Minstrels as "The Boy Soprano."

But Harry followed in his heels to the Albany day boat and sold Mack the idea. Their first week out resulted in 19 songs, among them "Underneath The Harlem Moon."

Both were successful in a small way and soon gravitated to the mecca of song writers, around Broadway and 49th Street, New York City.

They were never headed from then on and wrote for Ziegfeld and other producers, created popular numbers and finally landed in Hollywood.

From ASCAP Files
By Joseph R. Fliesler and Paul Carruth

Here they met, physically, and were later more formally introduced by Billy Rockwell of the Harms publishing office.

Their musical output is enormous and almost uniformly successful. As created it becomes part of the repertoire of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers by virtue of their membership, and is made available to the commercial users of music.

Behind the Scenes in American Business

NEW YORK, Sept. 6. — BUSINESS — The key to tomorrow's business may lie in last week's headlines from foreign capitals. While the majority of Americans spent the week with nothing more pressing than to clean up their work to get away for the 51st observance of Labor Day week end, all Europe was tense as a new war scare gripped the continent. Hitler made an unexpected tour of inspection of Germany's fortification along the Rhine opposite France and Switzerland no doubt to show he meant business in backing demands of the German minority in Czechoslovakia for territorial autonomy. Heavy fighting occurred in China as the Japanese army renewed its attacks in the Hankow area. Italy passed a decree ordering all Jews who have taken up residence in the country since the world war to leave within six months, even those who have acquired citizenship. In Mexico City, President Cardenas opened the Mexican Congress with a denunciatory speech refusing demands of the United States for abridgment of payments to seized land, attacking the position of this country as an attempt to impose the will of the strong on the weak. Meanwhile, in America a fighting unit of the Navy was assigned to patrol the Atlantic Ocean for the first time since 1932 when the Naval Scouting Force was transferred to the Pacific.

WASHINGTON — Officials here continue optimistic over the business outlook believing that more definite statistical evidence of the steady rise now going on in many lines will appear within a few weeks. Whether business can be lifted bodily into considerably higher sales volume brackets before next year, however, depends pretty much on three factors, economists point out: 1. The buying response of the public to the 1939 model automobiles. 2. Expansion in the capital goods industries, iron and steel, machinery, transportation equipment, nonferrous metals, lumber, stone, clay, glass, and the like. 3. The ability of the textile industry, now booming, to maintain this pace; observers don't overlook possibility that present business may represent merely stocking up in anticipation of the new wage-hour law as it did in anticipation of NRA.

BUSINESS SPEAKS — There are 2,009, 935 business concerns in America employing 30,644,000 persons, according to the latest Statistical Abstract of the U. S. These two million companies—large and small—are the creators of America's standard of living, highest in the world. That they are being subjected to attack, observers agree, is due in large part to their failure to tell the public about their objectives and activities. There are always two sides to a story, but to date the American public largely has heard only the version of business' opponents. Therefore, announcement in New York by the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company that it is cooperating with consumer or other public study groups caused quite a ripple in industrial waters as marking a new era in corporate public relations.

The A & P, announcing a $2,000 contribution to an Emergency Consumers Tax Council representing women in some 100 New Jersey communities, told the public frankly that it is cooperating with "this and similar organizations dedicated to the protection of the consumer from further rise in the cost of living as a result of punitive or confiscatory taxes levied on independent merchants, chain stores, producers or distributors of any kind . . . We feel the great need is to help provide ways and means of bringing out the facts. The people will form their own opinions. To this end, we are planning to augment cooperation with consumer groups with a program of paid advertising in the near future."

Papers from coast to coast editorially are praising the move. Typical is an editorial in Newsdom, a magazine for publishers, which said in part: "Business has every right to present its side of the case to the public, just as has the politician. The A & P . . . has a definite interest in helping to expose punitive or confiscatory taxes levied on merchants, whether they be independent or chains, and in assisting in informing the public that the taxes must be passed on to the consumer. It does not conceal its motives and that in itself is worthy of praise. Let business tear a page from the book of the A & P and speak out."

THINGS TO WATCH FOR: "Fuzzless peaches," a new, smooth variety said to ripen a week or ten days earlier than the ordinary kind . . . A device which locks two auto doors simultaneously when a key is turned in one . . . A cap for medicine bottles that shows when the next dose is to be taken; a tiny steel ball in a ribbed groove is moved to the hour or half hour mark as a reminder . . . A new type oil filter for automobiles, said to cut down consumption, clean and recondition the old oil, thus eliminating the need for frequent changing.

HEADLINES IN NEW YORK — Radio Corp. of America acquires rights to new patent which may overcome the almost "prohibitive" cost of establishing a network of stations for commercial television broadcasts . . . Nickel Plate Railroad defers interest payment on 4½ per cent bonds; Lehigh Valley and Baltimore & Ohio Railroads move for temporary scaling down of interest payments . . . California bonds sell lower as State Supreme Court approves inclusion of the "$30 every Thursday" pension plan on November ballot . . . Silk mills more active in August . . . Federal Surplus Commodities Corp. to purchase 10,000,000 pounds of butter . . . Potato growers in 15 late producing states refuse to support proposed AAA marketing agreement . . . Government takes loss of from four to seven cents a bushel as wheat export plan begins with shipment of 451,000 bushels.

STATE HEALTH OFFICER URGES VACCINATION

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 6.—Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, in a statement issued at Austin this week, urged all local boards of health and boards of education to pass regulations making mandatory smallpox vaccination and diphtheria immunization for all school children before they are allowed to register for the fall school term.

"School children are exposed to so much infection during the school year that where a definite preventive against a disease is known, parents should be urged to take advantage of this knowledge. Vaccination may save a period of prolonged absence from school, doctor's fees, and even life itself. It is foolhardiness not to require that all school children be rendered non-infectious from the communicable diseases, smallpox, diphtheria and typhoid, before they start to school this year," Dr. Cox stated.

"The Texas State Department of Health wishes to recommend that the various local school boards adopt such regulations, taking further into consideration that lack of action on their part may mean the difference between a successful school year or prolonged illness, failure or death. 238 children died from diphtheria in Texas during 1937.

"It is further to be urged that parents take their children to the family physician for a physical examination before school opens. Defects may be found which can easily be remedied and will prevent future illnesses. It has been demonstrated that almost all the physical defects of children are comparatively easy to correct—insuring the child of its normal strength and an ability to keep up with its school work without undue effort.

Parent Teacher organizations, the public health personnel and the local medical organization are strongly in favor of pre-school examinations and vaccination. In this campaign against unnecessary death and disease among the school children of Texas, the State Health Department lends its full support.

A STRAW IN THE WIND

For those who have been worried by the inroads of Communism and other beliefs to real Americanism, here are at least some crumbs of comfort from an erstwhile "liberal" Congressman recently defeated in his campaign for renomination and reelection:

"Although local issues played an important part in my defeat, it seems to me that it also reflected a growing national attitude. That is an attitude of belief in and willingness to fight for Americanism against all the other isms.

"The Americanism of some of my backers was questioned. The voters were frightened, not by me but by my supporters. They voted against me.

"I see that trend developing all over the country. And I predict that within the next eighteen months or two years this country will see a wave of Americanism such as it has never seen before."—Abilene Times.

Mr. and Mrs. Dube Pyeatt will spend the week end in Sweetwater with Mrs. Pyeatt's parents. Miss Wanda, who has been here the past month, will return to her home to enter school.

Mrs. Laura Butler of Lubbock has been the guest of her daughter, Mrs. James Harley Dallas the past week.

PATTERN PICTURES

Long shadows, with the sun as a ready-made spotlight—and the potted flower is twice as interesting. Don't overlook the pattern in the floor grooves.

PATTERNS make fascinating pictures, and they are all around you—shadow patterns, ornamental ironwork, window grilles, railings, wheels, stacks of lumber, piles of drain tile—even groups of people in a formal arrangement.

Include a definite pattern in your pictures, and they will have an unusual, "different" quality.

When you go to the beach look for patterns in sand ripples and the shadows cast by beach grass. Climb a high bank or diving tower, and shoot down on your crowd when they are sunning themselves in a circle or formal arrangement like the spokes of a wheel which gives pattern interest to the picture.

Take pictures of scenes through things, such as ornamental ironwork. The outlines form patterns which make the scenes more interesting. Picture a tennis player through the net or racket—or let him hold the racket so that the sun casts an interesting criss-cross shadow pattern on his face.

Out in the country, try picturing scenes through wheels of farm equipment—for instance, "frame" a landscape through the tall wheel of a hay rake. The spokes and rim of the wheel give pattern interest. In town, picture shadow patterns on a brick sidewalk or street. The shadows give one kind of pattern interest, and the pattern of the paving adds another.

When a new house is going up—before the roof and weatherboarding are put on—there are pattern chances in the framing and roof timbers. Get inside, point the camera upward, and picture workmen on the roof. Look for pictures, too, in the steelwork of bridges and trestles, and in the criss-cross patterns of wires and cross-beams at the top of telephone poles.

It's fun to hunt patterns, and they add new interest to your pictures. Keep your eye open for them, and snap any that look good.

John van Guilder.

C. V. Terrell, seeking reelection to the Railroad Commission, is being supported by John Wood (right), who was third man in the July primary with more than 225,000 votes. Contour Rows Conserve Water

Contour tillage supported by terraces where necessary, holds practically all the water where it falls on the land and permits moisture to soak into the soil for use of growing crops. Residues and trash from crops provide effective protection from wind erosion. Contour rows in this field on a Soil Conservation Service demonstration project are full of water several hours after a heavy rain.

Stock Ponds Improve Range

Stock ponds not only provide water for livestock, but distribute grazing if properly located over the range. By catching and holding water, such ponds also tend to reduce possible flood damage downstream, the Soil Conservation Service points out. The ponds also provide a haven for water fowl and in many instances serve recreational purposes.

HARMONY—

The crops began to suffer here but we are rejoicing now over a rain about three fourths of an inch that fell last Sunday afternoon. All crops will be greatly benefitted.

The Baptist revival here closed last Friday night. There were eight additions to the church by baptism, two by letter and two recommitments. Owing to the scarcity of water at Harmony and Wellman the converts of these two places met at the Brownfield Baptist church last Sunday afternoon and were baptised by Rev. Curtis Jackson, the pastor. There were 24 baptisms from the two places. We feel very grateful to the Brownfield church for their kindness and courtesies shown us.

Mrs. Cecil Garey and little daughter, Shirley Ann and Miss Kitty Lynn of Wilson visited their aunt, Mrs. Joe A. Davis last Tuesday. They were attending the annual meeting of the WMU of the Brownfield Association, which convened this year at Gomez.

On last Tuesday Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Wilhite and the reporter visited Miss Velma McManis at Lakeview, who is sick, but we are glad to report she is improving. Miss Velma is one of our teachers and we understand that Mrs. P. O. Corley will supply for her during her illness.

Mr. and Mrs. John Garner visited in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ocie Murry last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Garrett had as their guests last Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Long and little son George Ross.

Mr. and Mrs. Hawley of Breckenridge are visiting in the home of their daughter, Mrs. W. B. Whitefield.

Last Sunday Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Wilhite had as dinner guests Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Smith and children, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Davis and children and little Avenell Garner.

Rev. B. F. Deamore left last Saturday for his home at Sunset. We are glad he came our way.

We told you last week about Earl Jones sending out two Heralds to relatives and got two sets of our pens and pencils for his girls. Well, it happened just as we expected—Jones also has two boys—but boy they are boys. And Earl had to send the Herald to two additional relatives.

The Herald is going to Miss Orvalene Price at Monahan for the next nine months, on our special offer to teachers and students.

One of our former friends brought in a twig of persimmons he had retrieved during a visit to southeast Oklahoma, but to save us we can't think who it was. Anyway, the possums will surely be fat in that region this fall.

There will be a meeting in charge of Judge J. D. Hamlin of Farwell at the Hilton Hotel, Lubbock, Sept. 16. Object: abolition of the state property tax. All property owners urged to attend.

Jerry Sadler Says He Is a Conservationist

Owing to the rumors going over the State that Jerry Sadler was in favor of turning oil fields loose and wrecking the proration system now in effect, he issued a statement to the Fort Worth Press Saturday in which he stated that he would be the "strictest conservationist" on the Texas Railroad Commission, and expressed admiration for Ernest O. Thompson, present member of the oil regulatory body's majority.

Sadler said in a long distance telephone conversation that he was leaving Longview for Austin immediately "to start some of the biggest headlines you ever saw."

"The word has been put out that I'll turn East Texas loose," said Sadler. "So far as my vote is concerned, I won't turn anybody loose. They're going to have an old country boy down there who is a big conservationist as any body."

"The price of oil is all right, but it won't be all right if they continue to have confiscation suits in East Texas. Looks like they're getting ready to confiscate everything."

"They're supposed to sell that confiscated oil at public auction, but they've been having private sales. I'm going to Austin to start some of the biggest headlines you ever saw. They've had the bankers hollering Sadler is for hot oil. I'll show 'em whose hands are clean."

Sadler said that he had nothing against Ernest O. Thompson, although he said he knew Thompson favored his defeat. Thompson and C. V. Terrell, who will be replaced by Sadler, usually were dominant to Lon A. Smith, the third member.

"I think Thompson is a great commissioner," he said, "and Lon Smith too. I'll vote with Thompson when he's right and Smith when he's right."
