NOBODY'S BUSINESS

BY JULIAN CAPERS JR.

Austin—Money for pensions will be the first problem to confront the new administration when it takes office next January in the opinion of those here whose business it is to follow the trend of public thinking in Texas. The first indication of what direction the O'Daniel administration's efforts to meet the public demand for increased pensions will probably come out of the Beaumont state convention next month. The whole field is wide open—since O'Daniel made no commitments during his campaign nor since—and the platform adopted at Beaumont should show the direction in which he will turn to get additional pension revenue.

Sales Tax Drive On

Advocates of a sales tax already are busily urging this method as the least painful method of extracting substantial additional revenue, and it now appears that the sales tax advocates, headed by Jim Ferguson, did some shrewd political maneuvering during the campaign. At the outset, Ferguson, the most voluble advocate of $30 pensions and likewise the most ardent sponsor of the sales tax, endorsed and supported McCraw, who looked like the leading candidate early in the campaign. Later, as the O'Daniel movement developed, Ex-Senator T. H. McGregor, life-long ally of Ferguson and as strong sales taxer, jumped aboard the O'Daniel bandwagon. The politicians wondered about this apparent "split" between the two veterans who have always worked so closely together, but when the votes were counted, and McGregor launched a speaking campaign in behalf of the sales tax, advocating repeal of the chain store tax at the same time, they understood.

Two Best Bets

The sales tax and additional taxes on natural resources appear to be O'Daniel's best bets to get important pension money. The oil industry, however, claims it is now bearing about all the load it can carry and remain in competition with other oil producing states, and any radical increases in taxation might result in a declining total of revenue, especially with too much oil being produced even under rigid proration. Oil and gas are now produced in substantially more than half the counties of the State, and a strong bloc to resist increased taxation on these resources would be formed immediately in the Legislature. Real estate no longer is an important source of state revenue, and the property owners have protested so vigorously that the trend there is to relieve real property eventually of all State taxation.

O'Daniel's taxation views are not known here. He has been a flour broker, selling to merchants himself, so it is a natural assumption that he ought to be sympathetic with the view of retail merchants, who oppose a sales tax to a man. If that is true, it appears that natural resources will emerge as the prospective patient for the $90,000,000 pension operation.

But O'Daniel's friends concede it was the pension talk that recruited the backbone of his tremendous strength, and being the careful student of public psychology that he is, few here believe the new governor will waste any time tackling that problem.

The Run-Off

The final scramble for votes between two candidates for each of six State offices, and a goodly sprinkle of local candidates is nearing the final spurt for the second primary August 27. The State ticket find Walter Woodul, lieutenant governor, of Houston, an able lawyer and an official seasoned by experience in public service, pitted against Gerald C. Mann, of Dallas, youthful Dallasite who is campaigning against "professional politicians", who has held three appointive politi-

Vocational Agriculture Placed In Local School

The board of trustees of the Loraine Independent School District Monday night decided to offer vocational agriculture to pupils who attend school here this year. Edward F. Brown of Harper, Texas, was elected vocational agriculture teacher. Mr. Brown has had four years teaching experience and comes highly recommended. He is expected here right away.

Mrs. Lon Baker was elected to fill a vacancy in the grade school. Opening day of school was definitely set for Monday, September 5, according to Superintendent Ed E. Williams. All teachers have been secured except a principal and coach to take the place of Mr. Brooks.

ENTERTAIN WITH KID PARTY TUESDAY NITE

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Cope were hosts Tuesday night to a group of friends when they entertained with a kid party at their home. Everyone in attendance was dressed like a kid and a great deal of fun was had.

cal poses in the brief period since he graduated from Harvard law school. For lieutenant governor, Coke Stevenson, of Junction, veteran legislator, twice speaker of the House and political conservative, is opposed to P. Pierce Brooks, of Dallas, a real estate subdivider who has never held office, but ran for Governor two years ago. Chairman C. V. Terrell, of the Texas Railroad Commission, faces G. A. Sadler, of Longview; Bill McDonald, Land Commissioner, of Eastland, whose administration has drawn criticism from legislative and other sources, tilts with Bascom Giles, a former employee of the office who has never held elective office. Two high court judges, also face runoffs. Associate Justice Richard Critz of Williamson county, with W. H. Davidson, of Beaumont, and Judge Harry Graves, of Williamson County, with Judge James A. Stephens. Leading Lawyers of the State have inaugurated a vigorous campaign in behalf of Judge Critz of Williamson County, who seeks election to his first full term, having been first appointed to succeed Justice Pierson and later elected to complete Pierson's unexpired term.

Campaign Aftermath

The extraordinary campaign waged by W. Lee O'Daniel and its outstanding success with voters, has upset some traditional beliefs of candidates and campaign managers generally. The fact that O'Daniel, rated as one of the Nation's premier radio personalities, used that medium extensively, has influenced heavy purchases of radio time in both primaries by virtually all candidates. Newspaper advertising has suffered considerable loss of prestige, as a result. But as one advertising expert pointed out, they overlook the fact that it was the continuity of advertising effort kept up for eight years by O'Daniel before he got into the Governor's race, that won success for him, instead of the medium he used. "It sh' is too bad, ma'am", remarked the negro cook employed by one candidate's wife, when she read the election returns and found her employer in a runoff race. "I was hopin' de boss man would win, but he's done got hisself in one of these 'run-rounds'". New State Senator from Fort Worth, to occupy the seat formerly held by Frank Rawlings, the upper body's ablest parliamentarian, will be Jessie Martin, whose runoff opponent, Rep. Lonnie Smith, withdrew. Martin is a former assistant Federal District Attorney. E. R. Lindley, of Beaumont, doorkeeper of the House of Representatives has announced he will be a candidate for the post of chief clerk of the new Legislature, and Mrs. Louise Snow Phinney, of Dallas chief clerk for the past 12 years, has announced she will seek reelection, denying an earlier report that she would not run again.

TO PREACH FOR REVIVAL

REV. M. H. GODFREY

Rev. M. H. Godfrey, pastor of the Baptist Church here, will begin a revival meeting at the tabernacle Sunday night, August 14. The meeting will continue through the following week.

Monday night the pastor's subject will be: "What God Has Done That We Might Be Saved." Tuesday night: "How to be Saved Without Baptism." You are invited to attend the services, both morning and evening.

POULTRY SHIPMENTS OFF DURING JUNE

Austin, Texas, August 8.—Shipments of poultry from Texas to out-of-State points during June totaled 51 cars, compared with 63 cars during the corresponding month last year, a decline of 19 per cent, the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research has reported. Egg shipments totaled 44 cars, compared with 43 cars during June last year. Five cars of eggs were shipped into Texas during June, all of which came from Kansas; last year in June, 11 cars were brought in, 9 from Kansas and 2 from Nebraska.

Former President Herbert Hoover smiles for the cameraman as he rounds out his sixty-fourth year. The veteran Republican leader, who celebrated his birthday anniversary Wednesday, August 10, was born in 1874 at West Branch, Iowa.

Electric Rates Are Lower Now

Electric rates in Loraine are cheaper now than they were last year. The Texas Electric Service Company recently voluntarily reduced the rates. Quite a saving to each user of electricity will be affected.

The new rate is as follows: $1.25 for the first 8 kilowatts, 5 cents per kilowatt for the next 50, 4 cents for the next 50, 3 cents for the next 50, and 2 cents for all over 158 kilowatts. This rate is for residences and we can see that the more electricity we use the less per kilowatt it will cost.

Just before the break of day Thursday morning showers started falling here and had continued at intervals until 8:30. Clouds still looked heavy and prospects were good for more rain.

Leaving Loraine

ROBERT (Pinkey) BROOKS

Football fans of Loraine received a shock Tuesday morning when they learned that Robert (Pinkey) Brooks had resigned his position here to accept a place at Dumas, Texas, at a higher salary.

Football players and fans alike liked Pinkey's methods of coaching and will be greatly disappointed at his not being here again this year. Mr. and Mrs. Brooks both endeared themselves to the people of the community.

Football fans are becoming somewhat worried at losing a coach after one season and are virtually demanding that the board pay a coach a better salary in order to keep one longer than one season.

Committees Named For Loraine Fair

J. W. King, general chairman of the Loraine Fair again this year, this week appointed a group of committeemen to make arrangements for various departments of the fair. In view of the fact that the fair is a little more than a month away he urges the committees to go to work at once so that everything will be ready by the time the opening day comes. "The work of each committee named will of necessity have to be done by the individuals named or the fair will not be as good as we want it to be," King stated today. "It is impossible for any one man to devote the necessary time away from his business to get things done for the community, but if we all will cooperate we can get it done without inconveniencing anyone a great deal," he said.

The committees named are: Finance, E. O. Leggett, chairman, Stanton Hutchins, John Seown; Entertainment, W. R. Martin, chairman, T. R. Bennett, H. E. Thomas; Concessions, O. I. Griffin, chairman, Claude Spikes, Joe Bennett; Buildings, J. B. Mahon, chairman, R. K. Thornhill, Alonzo Phillips; Parade, Kirk Taylor; Rules, G. A. Hutchins, chairman, J. C. Hall, W. J. Coon.

MISS OPAL MARTIN HONORED WITH SHOWER

Miss Opal Martin, who is to be married to L. J. Burdine Sunday, was honored with a miscellaneous shower in the home of Mrs. K. L. Taylor Friday, August 5.

Mrs. Taylor and Mrs. W. R. Martin, with whom Miss Martin has studied piano, voice and expression through her school years were assisted in the shower arrangements by Mrs. Clyde Smith.

Guests were received on the front porch, which had been transferred into a summer bower. Huge jardiniere of vari colored zinnias, roses and other yard flowers were banked among ferns and pot plants.

Phnch and cookies were served by Misses Doris Glass, Blossom Green, Iris Duke, Ruby Jo Marshall and Evelyn Land. Fredda Derryberry presented the favors which were white wedding bells tied with vari colored ribbons and ornamented with a sprig of fern. The inscription read Opal and L. J. August 14, '38.

Mrs. Martin announced the program with Miss Ruth Ann Hall reading two selections "The Tilt" and "Wives."

Mrs. Taylor and Miss Earlene Brown played accordion numbers "Go Feather Your Nest" and "Dark Town Strutters Ball." A medley of popular love songs was sung by Misses Doris Glass and Blossom Green with Miss Wennola Martin, sister of the honoree, playing the accompaniment.

Miss Bessie Nell Johnson read "Court'n in Kentucky" and Gloria Martin gave a modern swing version of the old song "Froggie Went a Court'n" which gave the history of the courtship and finally announced the approaching marriage.

A messenger inquired at the door for Miss Opal Martin saying he had a package from J. C. Sweet dry goods store, Midland, Texas. This proved to be the first of the many lovely gifts presented Miss Martin.

The bride's book was the artistry of Mrs. Glen Coon and was presided over by Miss Helen Bennett. There were 149 callers listed.

Big Asia May Be Too Small
For Stubborn Russia, Japan

by Edward W. Pickard

Foreign

Joseph Stalin once said Russia wanted "not one inch" of foreign soil. Last week Japan decided Dictator Stalin had either changed his mind or was at last throwing open support to beleaguered China. But best explanation of all was that big Asia is still not big enough to hold two stubborn powers.

Since 1931, when Japan marched into Manchuria, American newspaper readers have heard periodically that Tokyo and Moscow were "on the brink of war." Only Russia's autonomous Siberian army kept land-hungry Japan from moving into Soviet territory. But even that was not enough to prevent periodic outbreaks along a thousand miles of ill-defined border, where last month the five-year "secret war" crept into the open.

JAPAN'S KAZUSHIGE UGAKI
He wanted less lawlessness.

At 8 p. m., one night last week, eight Soviet tanks stormed over a hill near Changkufeng at the roughly-defined junction of Manchukuo, Russian Siberia and Japanese Korea. Behind them in a pall of smoke came Soviet infantry, while overhead soared planes that severed rail connections between Manchukuo's inland Kirin and coastal Yuki. At battle's end, Tokyo boasted 800 Russian casualties. Moscow admitted 68.

Next day, while eastern Japan went under emergency regulations, the war started again. By nightfall the third day, Russia claimed undisputed capture of Changkufeng but it appeared the fun was just starting. Tokyo rushed 35,000 men and 400 war planes to the frontier while the Soviet pointed war trains eastward along its Trans-Siberian railroad.

Neither nation appeared to be giving an inch, which supported the theory that one or the other must eventually get out of Asia. At Tokyo, Foreign Minister Kazushige Ugaki daily sent fresh instructions to his Moscow ambassador, demanding that Russia prevent "recurrence of lawlessness." Moscow simply sent back the same demands.

At Washington, the state department hoped it would end in armed truce. In Paris, the foreign office said Russia had sent assurance that no "actual warfare" would develop. And by week's end a ray of hope appeared in Japan's proposal that time out be taken for peace talks.

Japan's other war pushed closer to Hankow last week as China once more moved its government westward, this time to ancient Chungking, 1,500 miles from Shanghai. At Hangchow, Jap troops methodically walked into a British owned hospital, removing 103 wounded Chinese soldiers. What happened to them, nobody knew.

Last winter Great Britain broke off diplomatic relations after Mexico seized its oil properties. On July 15, the United States state department demanded prompt payment for American land seized since 1915. Mexico's total oil debt to United States-British interests is $400,000,000. Last week President Lazaro Cardenas answered, acknowledging the debt, but claiming there was no obligation to make payment. To say the least, Mexico's stand set a precedent.

Domestic

Up through Panama canal and homeward last week sailed Fisherman Franklin D. Roosevelt aboard the U. S. S. Houston, where last week he played Good Samaritan for Machinist's Mate Oliver W. Halliwell of the escort destroyer, McDougal. Stricken with appendicitis, Halliwell was shifted to the Houston on presidential orders, later going under the knife of White House Physician Ross T. McIntyre.

If Franklin Roosevelt had his fill of fishing last week, he did not have his fill of traveling. Announced at the White House was a list of speaking engagements that will keep him jumping until late September, from Georgia to Ontario, from New York to Michigan, from North Dakota to Tennessee.

Only Brian Boru, Finn MacCool and the Great Cuchulain were more important to New York Irishmen last week than Douglas Corrigan. Arriving on the S. S. Manhattan, America's "mistake," Atlantic flier got his Broadway ticker tape show, after competing Manhattan and Brooklyn committees ironed out their disputes. Ahead for Douglas Corrigan was all the excitement he could stand in any American city he will agree to visit.

Politics

Long before Tennessee Valley Authority was a household term, Tennessee's Senator George L. Berry bought a large block of land in his home state. When TVA's expansion required the land, Senator Berry tried to sell out for $5,000,000, finally heard a court decide the property was worthless. The stunt placed him in Franklin Roosevelt's disfavor.

Last week George Berry fell in his own state's disfavor. From Memphis the powerful Crump political machine swept over Tennessee, nominated one Thomas Stewart for senator in the Democratic primaries. Also defeated was Gov. Gordon Browning by a political amateur, Prentice Cooper. Republicans, still hopeless in the South, held no primary.

Franklin Roosevelt had kept his hands out of the Tennessee family squabble. But as America went to the polls last week in other states, first primary returns to reach New Deal headquarters showed the score tied 2-2, the alleged "purge" having failed to jell.

In Virginia, Sen. Harry Flood Byrd's machine defeated two "100 per cent New Deal" congressional aspirants, William E. Dodd Jr., and R. Bruce Shafer. Winners, who will probably be elected next November, were Rep. Howard W. Smith and ex-Rep. Colgate W. Darden, who beat both Shafer and the incumbent Norman R. Hamilton.

In Missouri, Sen. Bennett Champ Clark was renominated after helping scuttle the Roosevelt judiciary and reorganization bills. Most important result, though, was Gov. Lloyd C. Stark's successful challenge of the Pendergast machine's supremacy. Stark's candidate for the state Supreme court, Judge James M. Douglas, easily felled the Pendergast nominee.

In Kansas, New Dealer George McGill won renomination to the senate. But chief interest centered in Former Gov. Clyde M. Reed's successful G. O. P. senatorial fight against Radio Evangelist Gerald B. Winrod.

In West Virginia, New Dealers Jennings Randolph, John Kee and Joe Smith won congressional renomination hands down.

Crime

When youthful Thomas E. Dewey became New York's district attorney, Manhattan expected fireworks. Many a bombshell has fallen in pre-trial accusations against Tammany's James J. Hines, one-time New Deal patronage distributor and alleged political fixer for the late Dutch Schultz's policy ring. Last week came two more bombshells.

First was an agreement that J. Richard (Dixie) Davis, disbarred attorney and alleged mouthpiece for the Schultz gang, would turn state's evidence and testify against Hines.

Second was a bill of particulars in which Tom Dewey's predecessor, William C. Dodge, felt once more the lash of New York's ambitious crime buster. Not waiting until August 15 for the opening of Hines' trial, Dewey presented his particulars last week before famed Justice Ferdinand Pecora. One particular: That ex-District Attorney

WILLIAM C. DODGE
For the moment, unimpaired.

Dodge was among public officials "influenced, intimidated or bribed" by Jimmy Hines.

Tom Dewey's mistake apparently lay in insufficient particulars. Because the bill admitted there were other alleged intimidation victims "not at present known," because Dodge and two New York magistrates were not specifically charged with a crime, Justice Pecora next day directed the district attorney to show cause why it should not be barred.

Unimpaired for the moment, William Dodge thundered: "This outrageous and malicious assault upon my character is unjustified!"

Miscellany

Dead two hours after smothering under blankets in his parents' car, three-month-old Robert Didier of Chicago responded to adrenalin injected by a surgeon at Wheeling hospital. Next day Robert was home, chortling happily in his crib.

Meeting at San Francisco last week, Women's Christian Temperance Unionists held daily "fruit juice hours" as a challenge for society to forsake its cocktail hours.

Business

Last week as Russia and Japan moved to war, American dollars and gold moved over the Atlantic. When nervous European capital hurried for cover, gold soared from $34.77 to $34.94 an ounce, a new 16-month high. In two days, continental hoarders absorbed $26,715,000 in yellow metal.

Sports

Several months ago fabulous Byron (Whizzer) White turned down a $15,000 offer to play professional football with the Pittsburgh Pirates next autumn. Reason: Whizzer's combined scholastic-athletic accomplishments at the University of Colorado had won him a Rhodes scholarship. He would accept it immediately.

But last week after careful deliberation Whizzer White found a way to have his cake and eat it. Rehearsing for a radio program at Denver, he took time off to announce acceptance of the Pirate contract and postponement of the Rhodes scholarship until next January.

Elated, Manager Art Rooney forecast a National league championship for his Pirates. From Washington, where the Redskins had just signed Sammy Baugh to a three-year contract at the biggest salary in professional football's history, Owner George Marshall begged Rooney that it might be wise to hire the Pitt stadium for the Pirate-Redskin game October 2.

Back to her Parisian home last week via the Normandie went petite Simone Simon, her one-year contract with a Hollywood producer at an end. While ship's photographers snapped, Simone Simon pointedly announced she may never come back to the United States.

One reason was that United States cinema audiences have not been enthusiastic, but a more important reason was her clash with the internal revenue bureau. To her suite on the Normandie went a tax collector to be certain Simone Simon had paid $4,000 due on last year's earnings. Kneeling on her bed the homing actress crooned: "I have paid my tax and I wouldn't get you in trouble for the world."

Almost unnoticed on the same boat was blonde Ariane Borg, also bound for France with the story that an American producer had spent $70,000 "grooming" her for pictures that were never made. Having learned to speak English, ride, fence, walk and dance, twenty-two-year-old Miss Borg wondered what she would do with her skill.

Twelve years ago many a theater marquee blazed the name Al Kvale to jazz-mad America. He was their idol, the scholarly boy saxophonist who won thousands of fans by playing "Looking at the World Through Rose Colored Glasses." Last week a charity ward at Chicago's Cook county hospital opened its doors to Al Kvale, broke, suffering from convulsions. To the rescue came his two noted brothers, Mayo clinic's Dr. Walter Kvale and Minnesota's Congressman Paul Kvale.

One-time cinema actress Pearl White thrilled an earlier generation by jumping from trains, changing airplanes in midair, bouncing from madly running horses. Her most noted serial: "The Perils of Pauline." Last week at American hospital in Paris, Pearl White, 49, died.

At Richmond, Va., tobacco heir J. Louis Reynolds won court custody of his year-old son from Helen Fortescue Reynolds, sister of Thalia Fortescue Massie, who once figured in a Hawaiian murder case.

MIXTURE OF RELIEF CASH
AND POLITICS DANGEROUSCandidates' Methods of Influencing Voters Scored by Washington Observer; Suggests Return to Election of Senators by Legislatures

By WILLIAM BRUCKART

WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON. — I had finished reading my evening paper a few nights ago when I found myself quite down in the dumps. The news of the day was disturbing. It was vicious news in its implications. There was so much of it that was disturbing that I could not help wondering where we, as a people, are headed.

On page one, there was an account of the bitter factional fight within the Democratic ranks in Tennessee. Sen. George Berry was seeking re-election—rather, renomination—and Senator McKellar, his colleague, was fighting tooth and nail to prevent it. Party control in the state was the objective, and

And then, rather in disgust with the whole thing, I turned to a new book. The volume is titled "Notable Virginia Bar Addresses."

Among the 27 speeches listed there, I decided to read that by the late Thomas R. Marshall. His address, like all of the others, was intended to preach good government and the obligations of the lawyer as well as the layman. In reading that speech, I came across this passage:

"I have only one apology that I know of to make for my political life. I apologize to the American people for having been in favor of the election of United States senators by the people. My reason for it was different from the reason of many men. I had gotten tired of voting for some old run-nosed Democrat for the legislature in Indiana because a United States senator depended on him for election; and I thought that I could raise the grade of legislators in Indiana by letting the people elect the United States senators. Now, it was an altruistic movement to make that change in the organic law of the United States; but, ladies and gentlemen, when it has resulted in the spending of half a million dollars to elect a senator, I want to know if the old fashioned government would not have been better."

Answer to Today's Problem
Given in 1920

And right there, I believe, is the guts of the present day problem. Mr. Marshall had held many elective offices and the speech from which I quoted the above passage was made while he was vice president of the United States. He was an observer and a student of politics. He saw in 1920 where we, as a people, were going and I have no doubt that he could have predicted exactly the set of circumstances we are meeting now.

When Senator Norris of Nebraska, once a Republican, then a Democrat, and now labeled as something else, drove the constitutional amendment through congress and cleared the way for direct election of United States senators, he accomplished two things. (1) He made it possible for the purest type of demagogue to win elections by his ability to "promise" more than the opposition, rewards, political patronage, pork barrel returns to the state and (2) he assured that vast sums of money can—indeed, must be—used to influence elections. And, in amplification of the second item, he made it possible for any administration, any dominant party, in control of the federal government to build up national and state machines jointly by using federal money.

Too Many Senators Out for Greatest Amount of Swag

I grant that corporations, "vested interests," formerly had too much to say about the election of United States senators by state legislatures. But of the two, I have come to the conclusion that we had a better national administration and particularly a better senate under that condition than under the system where every voter casts a ballot directly for a United States senatorial nominee. That is why 75 per cent of the present senate members are nothing more or less than salesmen who are trying to collect for their states the greatest amount of swag which they can put over with their brother senators. That is why, too, day after day, we have watched cliques formed and trading done over legislation in the senate. The senators either are trying to make good on demagogic promises or they are building a storehouse to be used in the next campaign.

Senator Norris may have thought he was performing a great service to the American people and he may have felt that he was building a monument for his name, but I am firmly convinced he did quite the contrary. For, be it known, were it not for Mr. Norris' monumental amendment to the Constitution of the United States there could hardly be such an outrage committed as that by Mr. Hopkins. It must be remembered that Mr. Hopkins never was elected; he is an appointee of the President of the United States and is responsible to him alone. So when Mr. Hopkins flirts with a state electorate, there can be no other interpretation placed upon his action than that he is using the influence available as a result of his dictatorship over relief distribution.

It all depends, of course, upon how one views the functions and purposes of the United States senate. If one wants the senate to be just a glorified house of representatives, able to maintain itself solely on what pap it is able to lay in the laps of voters—then, we ought to keep the present system. If, however, one believes as I do that the senate is comprised, or should be, of senators of the United States instead of senators of a state variety unconcerned with the Union of states, then there could well be repeal of the amendment.

★ Judge Hardy Craze
★ Gary's a Wrangler
★ Glamour to Order

—By Virginia Vale—

YEARS ago, when the "Amos and Andy" craze started, enthusiasts used to defend themselves against skeptics by saying that they liked the radio program because it was so human.

Now the movie-goers, in droves, are saying the same thing about the pictures based on the lives of the

MICKEY ROONEY

Hardy family. The latest one, "Love Finds Andy Hardy," is making plenty of friends for the series, and may lead to demands that earlier Judge Hardy and Family pictures be revived.

The cast is good; Lewis Stone, Mickey Rooney, Cecilia Parker, Anne Rutherford, Lana Turner, Ross Clark, Raymond Hatton. You'll feel that you know them as well as you know your neighbors.

Mickey Rooney is superb. His performance might well be listed as among the best of the year. Don't miss "Love Finds Andy Hardy."

Gary Cooper is perfectly happy, now that he is making "The Cowboy and the Lady" and wearing the kind of clothes he wanted to for his role; not the expensive togs that the studio's wardrobe department picked out for him, but the kind that a cowboy really would wear.

They are telling an amusing story around New York about Jon Hall. It happened when he and Frances Langford were honeymooning there, and were guests at a lake not far from the city. Hall took a canoe out one day, and the attendant stopped him, saying that he couldn't do that until he'd taken the canoe test. So Hall, who grew up in Tahiti and of whose skill in the water you know if you saw "Hurricane," took the canoe test as obediently as if he hadn't practically lived in one from the time he was born.

The new Boyer picture, "Algiers," has been the inspiration for a new dance, a slow fox-trot very much like the tango. Kay Kayser, whose radio popularity is spreading rapidly, played with his orchestra when it was introduced in New York.

Glamour can be cultivated, these days, if the girl who wants it happens to be in Hollywood. There's a man named Al Siegel who has made a business of it; teaches his pupils how to walk, how to use makeup, how to put a song over—how to do practically everything that most of the girls on the screen and in radio have to do these days. He is credited with developing such stars as Ethel Merman, Dorothy Lamour and Shirley Ross, and among his pupils at present are Marsha Hunt, Andrea Martin and Patricia Ellis.

Patricia Ellis

Much of his work is with people who have made a hit in radio, been signed up for pictures, and don't know the tricks of the trade.

Odds and Ends—Too bad that Don Ameche had to spoil the first part of that long-awaited European vacation by coming down with appendicitis. . . . And may be 20th Century-Fox wasn't wild when they heard of his illness! . . . The new house which Lupe Vélez and Johnnie Weissmuller were building will be finished and rented, unless Lupe changes her mind again about getting a divorce. . . . There's a radio in every room of Jack Benny's new house. . . . The Pickens sisters, who climbed so rapidly to success in radio, are now working hard to achieve it on the stage; they're at the little theater in Provincetown, and experts say they're good. . . . Douglas Corrigan has agreed to signing a film contract, if the story is to his liking—and it should be, for it will be the story of his own life. . . . Martha Raye set September 12th for the date of her wedding to David Rose, and then was informed that she'd have to call off her plans, as she would be working that day. . . . The picture will be "Never Say Die," with Bob Hope. Mr. Zukor expects to make the Raye-Hope team a comedy starring one. . . . But Martha wishes that he would postpone his plans for a month or so.

"There's only one thing to do with us," Ruth said. "You can take us to Tail Holt and leave us at Ma Presnell's. We'll be safe there. You'll have us under your eye all the time."

"All right," Lee assented. "I'll take you with me—both of you. I wouldn't if I could help it, but there's nothing else to do, as you say. You and Nelly fix up your war-bags. We may be there two or three days. While we're at Tail Holt you'll stay right in the house every minute. Understand?"

Ruth said she understood. They took the road two hours after midnight.

Steadily they rode, through a lovely night of stars that softened the harsh and desiccated face of Arizona to a strange, ghostly loveliness. Even the sahuaros, with their intimation of age-old decay, were like magnificent candelabra waiting to be lit. Peace reigned over the land.

Jeff Gray was a light sleeper. Awakened by the furious barking of the blacksmith's dog, almost instantly he was out of the bunk and at the window. Silhouetted in the moonlight on the brow of the little hill in front of the cabin were a number of men. They were moving toward the cabin. The marshal counted eight of them.

He called to his companion: "Wake up, Hank, and come here." Ransom struggled to consciousness. "Lord love ye, man, what are ye doing at the window?" he asked.

The dog was still barking savagely at the intrusion of so many night visitors.

"They've found out where I am and are coming to get me," Gray replied.

The blacksmith joined him. "The scallawags are scattering to cover more ground." He lifted his Winchester from the wall.

"Any chance for me to slip out of the back door down to the rocks in the creek?" Jeff inquired.

"Not a chance," Ransom said grimly.

"Then I'll have to surrender. They'll only hold me prisoner, if Sherm Howard is running the show. His son is out at the L. C. I'll step out with my hands up."

"Wait a minute," the old Indian fighter objected. "I'll go out and make a bargain with them. Better tie them up to an agreement. If there weren't so many, I'd say for us to stand 'em off, but I don't reckon we can do that."

A gun cracked. The dog no longer barked.

The leathery face of the blacksmith twitched. "Some damned scoundrel has killed Laddie," he said.

"Yes," Gray was thinking that a man who could shoot down a faithful dog was a villain and not to be trusted. "I'm going to wave the white flag and make terms, Hank. You're not in this. I'm the man they want. First thing is to get you out of this."

He sat down on the bed, pulled on his boots, and buckled round his waist the gun-belt lying on a chair.

"I'm not in this, ain't I?" the blacksmith blazed. "After they've killed my Laddie?"

The marshal returned to the window. The men outside were about sixty yards from the house. Jeff put a hand on the shoulder of his friend. "We've got to play our cards the way they are dealt us, old-timer. I'm going out with my hands up. You stay under cover. After they have me they won't bother you."

Gray unbolted the door and whipped it open. He stepped into the moonlight and lifted a hand, palm out.

There was a yell of rage. A bullet knocked a dirt chip from the adobe wall back of the officer. Another dusted his hat. The roar of a rifle deafened him. From just back of him Ransom had fired.

Lead splattered against the building. Hank lurched against his shoulder and fell.

"I'm hit!" he cried, and caught at his right leg.

Jeff snatched the rifle from him. "Crawl back into the house," he ordered.

"Come on, boys, we've got him!" a voice shouted.

The line of attackers moved forward. The marshal fired and missed—fired again and hit. A running man cried out and stopped abruptly. The others faltered. Their guns barked angrily.

Gray stepped back into the house and slammed the door.

"Get any of 'em?" his companion asked.

"One." The officer was at the window. "For right now they've had enough and are hunting cover. I've sure got you in a fine jam, Hank. You hurt bad?"

"My leg is plugged. It's not bleeding bad. I reckon the bullet missed an artery."

"Look after you in a minute,"

Jeff said. "Got to fix the fort so we can hold it."

He found an axe and knocked a bunk to pieces. Ransom told him where to find nails. The window he boarded up, leaving an inch or two for a loophole. Both doors he barricaded as best he could. Meanwhile, Ransom crawled across the floor and with a hatchet cut a spy-hole in the adobe wall. He made it large enough for shooting purposes.

"I'd like first-rate to get that bull rattle Morg Norris," Ransom said. "I've a notion if we picked off that slit-eyed cabron, and maybe one or two more, the rest of the lads would drag it."

Gray was of another opinion. By this time the whole village would know what was going on, and the attackers would be recruited if necessary by others. Reinforcements were likely to come in from the hills. Having gone so far, Sherm Howard would feel that safety lay in finishing the job. But the marshal did not say what he thought.

"I certainly picked me a top hand for a partner this trip," he said

"Gimme a hand, pardner!" he drawled.

lightly. "They're beginning to close in on us. I better discourage that." He took aim at a dodging figure and fired.

"Get him?" asked Ransom, scraping the dirt out of the hole he had dug.

"No. Some of them are moving up the hill. Going to take us in the rear, I reckon."

The rifle of the blacksmith boomed. Hank gave a yell. "One of 'em won't take us in front or rear. He's down."

A bullet tore through the window and the plank with which Jeff had shuttered it. It broke a glass in the cupboard. The defenders could hear others showering dirt from the adobe wall.

Ransom dragged his wounded leg across the room to his loophole in the rear.

"Where did those fellows go?" he asked after a time. "No sign of them back here."

"That's funny. They headed toward the rimrock. Four or five of them. Must be figuring to work back of us, don't you reckon?"

"Love of Moses!" the old soldier cried. "They're going to crash boulders down on us."

The marshal knew at once that Ransom was right. The cabin lay in the path of an old slide. At the edge of the rimrock, a hundred feet above them, lay hundreds of loose boulders large and small. A half ton of rock, hurtling down that precipitous slope, would crash through the soft adobe wall as if it were paper.

"I've got to stop that, Hank," the younger man said. "The firing down here is a bluff to keep our minds busy. They won't charge the cabin till those above have smashed it. I'm going up to stop their game if you don't mind sticking it out here alone."

"They'll pick you off before you've gone a dozen yards, boy," the blacksmith told him.

"Maybe not. The moon is under a cloud now. For one thing they won't be expecting me up there."

"They must have someone watching the back door."

"Not near enough to see in this darkness. See you later, old-timer." Jeff tore down the plank with which he had reinforced the back door.

Ransom said "Sure," and did not believe that either of them would be alive an hour from then.

"Bolt the door after me. I may come back on the jump. Be ready to let me in pronto." The marshal opened the door and slipped out.

Clouds were scudding across the sky. Jeff lay behind a woodpile, eyes and ears alert. Someone must have been sent to make sure the trapped men did not escape by the back door. The man was probably crouched back of a rock some distance from the cabin. He might or might not have seen the door open, since the sky was now overcast. Gray wished he knew whether he had been observed. If he moved from the shelter of the woodpile, he was likely to find out.

He crept up the hill, taking advantage of every rock and bit of cactus that would give him cover. From the front of the house came the occasional crack of a gun. This was good news, since it told him the attackers were not rushing the house yet, but were waiting for the rock-rolling brigade to drive out the doomed men.

He was close to the top when a sound brought him to rigid stillness. A man was standing on the crest just above him. He was striking a match to light a cigarette. For a moment the flare of light showed Jeff a face he did not recognize, yet one that seemed oddly familiar. In an instant the man would look down and see him. The marshal did not wait for discovery.

"Gimme a hand, pardner," he drawled.

The match went out. "Who in hades are you?" a heavy voice rasped.

"Bud Taylor," Jeff said evenly. "Sherm sent me with a message."

The man above lent a hand to pull the climber over the edge. Looking at the iron-gray hair, the scarred cheek, the shifty eyes, Jeff remembered where he had seen that face before. It had been in a sheriff's office in Texas, on a photograph beneath which had been written the caption, "Clint Doke, Wanted for the robbery of the Texas and Southern Flyer."

A fraction of a second later the light of recognition began to dawn on the hairy face of the outlaw. He had seen this man once in San Antonio, had had him pointed out as the famous man-hunter, Jefferson Gray.

Doke opened his mouth to let out a cry. Already Gray's fist was traveling in a powerful short-arm jolt toward the drooping chin. The cry materialized as a strangled groan, and the outlaw pitched down as if he had been hit with the back of an axe.

Jeff did not dare to leave him to recover in a minute or two. He pistol-whipped the fallen man across the temple. His gun he kept for immediate use.

Someone called, "Come here, Clint."

Jeff stepped behind a boulder. He could see three men grouped together against the skyline. With Doke's gun he fired three times rapidly above their heads.

One of the men gave a yell of consternation. He started to run. Another fired in the direction of the marshal. Jeff pumped lead at him.

"Let's get out, Mile High," the third man shouted shrilly. "We're being bushwhacked."

It might be true. Mile High did not wait to find out. In another moment it might be too late to escape. He flung one last defiant shot and followed his companions into the darkness.

Jeff started to descend the rimrock. It was time for him to get back to Ransom. As soon as Morg Norris learned of the fiasco above, he would rush the cabin. At the foot of the rimrock Jeff broke into a jog-trot, reckless of being seen by the watcher at the back.

Abruptly he stopped. Four or five figures came into the open, as if from the creek bed, and ran toward the cabin. He heard shouting, but could not make out the words. There was the crack of a gun. The figures vanished into the house. From inside it came the crash of revolvers.

Jeff Gray's heart died within him. He knew that Ransom had been killed. The old soldier had come to his death after he had apparently deserted him. If he had stayed in the cabin, they might have driven back the attack. In any case he could have gone down fighting with his friend.

Sick with despair, Jeff turned to the left, reached the foot of the slope, and dropped down into the creek. He could neither see nor hear anybody. Through the brush he made a circuit and reached the cottonwood grove. Occasionally he could hear the spitting of guns.

The best thing he could do was to get down to the Alamo corral and force Reynolds at the point of a gun to lend him a horse. If possible, he must ride back to the L. C. and get the reinforcements Lee Chiswick had promised. He knew that Lee could stir up some of the other cattlemen and that a large fighting force could be organized.

That excitement in the village had reached a high point he could see. Many men were in the street, most of them farther uptown in the little business center. He had to wait for a chance to get across the road unobserved. More than once someone appeared just as he was about to start.

He took the street at a run, and swarmed over the same wall he had gone over on the night of his adventure with Frank Chiswick. He passed the blackened site of the stable that had been burned, crossed the creek, and moved down along its bank.

Another burst of gunfire filled the night. Jeff could not understand this, unless the victors were setting off fireworks in celebration of their victory. The officer's jaw set grimly. They had better wait until they had finished the job. He intended to make them pay for what they had done to Hank Ransom, if they did not get him before he could slip out of town.

There were too many people about. As he made a circle around the Presnell boarding-house, three men carrying rifles walked toward him. He did the only thing possible, dodged into the same door he had entered some hours earlier when he had been looking for Curly.

The men stopped to talk for a moment at the door. One of them was coming into the house, Jeff gathered from what he said. Gray went gingerly up the stairway. He heard a crisp "See you later," and knew that the man was coming upstairs too.

Jeff had no time to pick and choose. He whipped open the first door he saw, walked into a room, and closed the door behind him. On the table there was a lighted lamp. At the window a woman stood, clean-limbed and slender. She turned toward him a haggard face, eyes shadowed and fear-filled. For an instant she looked at him incredulously. Her amazement was no greater than his own. The woman was Ruth Chiswick.

A dressing-gown, open at the throat, was wrapped tightly around her lithe long body. Beneath the edge of it here bare feet peeped out. Jeff was aware, without giving the matter any weight, that Nelly lay asleep in the bed.

"You!" she cried. "I thought—I was afraid—"

Her tremulous voice broke, quivering with emotion.

"What are you doing here?" he asked.

"I made Father bring me. He came to help you—after Lou Howard got away."

"Got away?"

Drouth Is Seen as Cause of Ancient Indian Exodus From Northern Arizona

A drouth producing the same results as the modern dust bowl of the Middle West may have driven a cultured race of Indians from the region of northern Arizona more than 700 years ago, according to Dr. Ralph L. Beals, instructor of anthropology at the University of California at Los Angeles, says the Los Angeles Times.

The cliff dweller ancestors of the Hopi and Zuni Indian tribes began building their huge communal homes around the year 1250. A southern exposure was apparently as desirable for the home at that time as it is at present, since only huge cliff caves opening to the south were used for building. The cliff home was used only during the winter time, the tribe moving to the valleys for summer.

Suddenly around the year 1300 the dwellings were abandoned, probably all at the same time, according to Doctor Beals. The time of the evacuation was established by rings on timber used in repairing the buildings.

A drouth of about 25 years laid waste the land. Like the present situation in the Midwest, water was scarce and men and animals could not live on the scanty vegetation.

Cornucopia in the bottom of trash piles at the beginning of the drouth were very large, while at the end of the period, the ears had become very small, according to Doctor Beals. The people migrated from the district in much the same manner as refugees are leaving the dusty Middle West.

Costa Rica Most Flowery

Plants of the little country with more varied vegetation than any area of its size in America—a country with about 6,000 varieties of flowering shrubs and trees, including more than 1,000 different kinds of orchids—are described in "Flora of Costa Rica," published by Field Museum Press. No other area of its size in North or Central America has a flora so rich and varied as Costa Rica. In area, the country is about the size of West Virginia, but its flowers and plants are about three times as numerous as those of that state. Few tropical countries anywhere in the world can rival Costa Rica in the variety of its orchids and ferns.

WHY WAIT

Why wait longer to sign up for stock in the Loraine Cooperative Association? Stock sales are advancing at a pleasing pace but there are some farmers who are prone to wait. They want the cheese plant to be established here but they seem to want the other fellow to take all the risk and do all the work in getting it over. If we all take that attitude Loraine will not get the cheese plant. Other towns in this area are waiting to see what we are going to do about it—they are ready to begin work as soon as Loraine stops. If you want the plant here at home help to put it over by taking some stock.
The directors have made it easy for you to get into the organization. Each producer is only required to purchase $25 worth of stock, with $5 in cash and the balance to be paid out in two years. Nothing could hardly be easier. Should the plant fail to materialize your money will be refunded in full. Should the plant be established and after operating for a time it should fail all you will ever be out is the $25,
or the amount of stock you buy.
Any farmer should be willing to risk that much for a better market for his milk products.

With the abundant feed crop already made this year and the probability that feed acreage will be large from year to year in the future it is evident that some means to use the feed must be worked out. Sale of the feed through livestock seems to us to be most profitable. If you put maize on the market now it will bring only $4 or $5 per ton, and bundle feed is going to be very cheap, but if marketed through the form of milk the price would be upped considerably.

Directors of the organization did not have time to devote to selling stock so they made arrangements with Claude Woods to do the job. When Claude calls on you be prepared to sign up and let's get the plant in operation as soon as possible.

The Loraine fair this fall should be the biggest we have ever had. As fine products as

Let the Critters Do the work

Texas Breeder-Feeder Association By T. C. Richardson, Secretary

At this season crops are maturing and harvesting is ahead. A great deal of labor may be saved by turning livestock in the fields and allowing them to feed themselves. Under proper handling there is little waste of grain, and animals get the benefit of green forage that would not be otherwise saved, and which adds to the value of the grain by helping to balance the ration. If fields are not already fenced, a temporary fence of 32-inch woven wire will confine sheep and hogs, and with a few staunch posts at wide intervals, small stakes driven into the ground will support it. It can readily be rolled up and moved several times, and when it becomes too badly bent to stand up in a temporary fence, it is still good for permanent use where solid corner posts permit tight stretching.

Hogs are well known to be the best gleaners of grain, with sheep next. If crops are harvested by cattle it is always advisable to follow with hogs. The cheapest pork, both in labor cost and the amount of grain required to make 100 pounds of meat, is produced by a combination of green pasture, hogging down feed crops, and the self-feeder. Carl P. Thompson, extension swine specialist of Oklahoma voices the experience of the best hog men when he says that it is doubtful if a farmer can afford to raise hogs unless they can run on pasture a good part of the year.

Besides the labor saving element it is good for the health of both hogs and sheep to get off the permanent pastures and on the cultivated fields, where internal parasites are less prevalent. It is best to confine the animals to a space that can be cleaned up in ten days to three weeks, rather than permit them to roam at large for a month or more. In the final stages of grazing, grains will be slowed up by their walking over large fields in search of food, and there will

We cannot understand the attirealize that we need to do something to keep things moving but the general opinion among our business men seems to be "Let the other fellow do it," and consequently we do not get everything done that should be done.

be more wastage in the long run.
It goes without saying that shade and water must be easily and continuously accessible to the animals while hogging down or sheeping off crops. Experiments have shown that a bushel of grain goes a great deal farther in meat production if the animal can drink when thirsty instead of waiting for periodic waterings several hours apart.

Mineral mixtures and protein supplements are usually not indispensable if hogs have access to good pastures and legumes, or skim milk, but experienced hog men say protein supplements always pay. Corn and cowpeas, corn and soy beans, corn and peanuts, make good fattening rations when hogged down together.
With corn alone it is advisable to supply a mineral mixture and a protein supplement in self-feeders. Either wood ashes or air-slaked lime and salt in equal parts is good, and bone meal may be profitably added under some conditions. Charcoal is commonly used and hogs like it.

The protein supplement may be based on cottonseed meal, linseed meal, peanut meal or tank-age. The experiment stations of the Southwest have worked out formulas for protein supplements for their respective states, according to the availability and adaptation of the materials. Cottonseed meal is available everywhere in the Southwest, and may be safely and profitably fed to hogs by following directions furnished by extension hog specialists and county agents who keep up with experimental results.

Enough feed goes to waste on most Southwestern farms to produce all the pork and beef or mutton the family could use.
Pasturing the fields is the only way much of this waste can be turned to profit, and the most economical way of harvesting and selling crops that are adapted to harvesting by animals.

Let the critters do the work.

Service.
"Alfalfa has been stored in silos at the Luling Foundation farm for years, and the practice has been adopted by farmers in various parts of the State. Experimental work by the U. S.
Bureau of Dairy Industry proved the worth of this system," Eudaly said. "Not only alfalfa, but soybeans, cowpeas, the small grains, and sudan, johnson, and rhodes grass have been successfully stored as silage."

Crops with a high moisture content, especially the legumes,

are likely to develop bad odors in the silo that may affect the flavor of the milk when the silage is fed to dairy cows.

The odors can be prevented and lessened by adding molasses to induce fermentation. If the moisture content of the crop is reduced by allowing it to wilt from 2 to 4 hours on good drying days and longer on cloudy days, less molasses is necessary. Information as to the amount of molasses to use can be obtained from county agricultural agents.

Thorough packing as the silo is filled is necessary. This is much more important with hay crops than with corn or sorghum, Eudaly pointed out. Fine chopping, to one-fourth inch if possible will make packing easier, but the dairyman reported seeing fine alfalfa silage in the Lower Rio Grande Valley and excellent bermuda grass silage in East Texas that had not been chopped.

TEST YOURSELF FOR DRIVING ABILITY

Austin, August 8.—State police traffic experts have devised a questionnaire from which drivers may determine their individual qualifications for operating vehicles in a safe manner.

Ten questions relating to basic causes for most accidents on streets and highways were listed by traffic research officers so that drivers may correct their errors. Each question counts 10 points if answered in the affirmative, with 10 points discount for negative answers. If your grade is between 90 and 100 you may consider yourself an excellent driver. A grade between 80-90 classes you as a "fairly good" driver, but if your grade is below 80 you are a menace to traffic safety and should correct your faults, state police warned.

The questions are:

1. Do you use proper arm signals when turning or stopping?
2. Do you always drive within legal speed limits?
3. Do you always refrain from passing other vehicles on hills or curves?
4. Do you bring your vehicle to a complete halt at traffic STOP signals?
5. Do you observe right-of-way rules at intersections?
6. Do you always park your vehicle so that it does not obstruct traffic?
7. Do you dim your lights at night for oncoming vehicles?
8. Do you always drive on the right side, not too near the center stripe?
9. Do you regularly inspect lights and other mechanical parts of your vehicle?
10. Do you drive in the same manner under supervision of a traffic officer as you do when he is out of your view?

Persistence—

Persistence is the mother of miracles.

It is half of achievement.

In advertising, persistence is the first law of success. Spasmodic hit-and-miss or now-clever—is seldom successful.

Persistence builds good will and creates confidence and confidence is the one priceless ingredient of every business transaction.

Persistence overcomes buyers' resistance and generates buying impulses.

Plan to use advertising persistently rather than using it only spasmodically.

Re-elect Judge
RICHARD CRITZ
for a
FIRST FULL TERM
as Associate Justice
SUPREME COURT
of TEXAS

THE HIGH QUALITY and great amount of Judge Critz's work on the Supreme Court while serving an unexpired term is attested by the fact that he is the choice of nearly all the Judges and Lawyers of Texas.
Judge Critz came from the ranks of the people. As a boy he worked on a farm for wages, and all that he has been attained in spite of poverty and hardship and as a result of his own effort. . . . Judge Critz was a country lawyer in Taylor, Texas, and never represented any large corporations or vested interests.

GLEANERS S. S. CLASS

The Gleaners S. S. class met in regular monthly meeting August 9, in the home of Mrs. Earl Hallmark with Mes. H. B. and F. W. Beights cohostesses.

The class song, Blessed Assurance, was sung. The Lord's prayer was said in unison, led by Mrs. Hallmark. Devotional was given by Mrs. T. C. Wilson who used the 15th Psalm 9-13, and Mark 4:26-29. Her subject was "My Father's World and Mine." She also read two poems. The class reported 15 trays, 15 visits and 17 bouquets to the sick this month.

Several interesting games were played after which we were invited to the yard where delicious watermelon was served to 13 members and 1 visitor.

METHODIST CHURCH

Only eternity will reveal the good done in the revival of the past two weeks. Some of the visible results are 25 additions to the church, 19 on profession of faith, 6 by certificate, a number of other conversions and reclamations. We are sure all who were privileged to attend received a blessing. We thank God for this manifestation of His power among us.

We wish to thank the committee on entertainment for providing in such a splendid way for our visitors, also our two pianists, the singers and everyone who aided in any way to make the meeting a success.

The pastor and wife express their thanks for the "abundant shower" given them. You people have been very gracious and kind to us and we remember it with gratitude.

Our task ahead is that we may keep the spiritual fires burning and carry on in a way that shall strengthen our new converts and make our church a power for good in our community. To that end we ask your continued cooperation. Be with us in the services next Sunday.

FARM CASH INCOME HIGHER THAN YEAR AGO

Austin, Texas, Aug. 8—Farm cash income in Texas during June, as computed by the Bureau of Business Research, excluding government subsidies, was $28,862,000, compared with $26,060,000 during June last year, according to Dr. F. A. Buechel, assistant director of the Bureau of Business Research, University of Texas. During the first six months of the year aggregate income for the State as a whole was $128,328,000, compared with $146,564,000 during the corresponding period last year, a decline of 12 per cent.

"The computed figures are estimated to be about 91 per cent of the actual farm cash income, so that by adding 10 per cent to the foregoing a close approximation to the actual farm cash income is obtained," he said.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act so quickly as they should. This may be due to many causes, but if retained, the poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging headache, persistent backache, attacks of dizziness, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder trouble may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wise when signs appear. The Doan's Pills, Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your druggist!

Lesson for August 14

THE RELATION OF TEMPER- ANCE TO CHARACTER

LESSON TEXT—Proverbs 4:10-23; 1 Thessalonians 5:6-8.
GOLDEN TEXT—Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging; and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise.—Proverbs 20:1.

PRIMARY TOPIC—What a Wise Man Said.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Wise Man's Way.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—
How the Use of Liquor Affects Character.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—
How the Use of Liquor Affects Character.

Childhood remembrances are commonly sweet and precious—but some of them are vivid on the pages of memory because they relate to dangerous and distressing things. Among the things decent people avoided like the pestilence when the writer was a boy was the saloon. To be seen entering such places was to mark one's character, and to be a frequenter of them was to be lost to all that was good and holy.

High sounding and very pious were the assurances that when prohibition was repealed we would never see the return of the saloon, but we have them in multiplied number, and with a shameless appeal to women as well as men, to our growing girls and boys as well as to adults. Clever advertising has sought to make it "smart" to drink, and "manly" to be able to "carry" liquor. It is for that reason that it is of the utmost importance that we develop strong and intelligent character in our boys and girls—so that they may not only appraise the vicious "booze business" for what it really is, but also have the strength of character to fight it, not only for themselves, but for their weaker brother. They should know and proclaim that the saloon, whether it be called an "inn" or a "tavern," is always a "bar"—"A bar to Heaven, a door to Hell; Whoever named it named it well."

I. Developing Strength of Character (Prov. 4:10-23).

Solomon, the writer of many of the Proverbs, constantly stressed the importance of gaining wisdom. A man may be a perfect encyclopedia of information and yet may lack the wisdom to apply that knowledge to life. Dr. Hight C. Moore, in Points for Emphasis, provides a most helpful outline of this portion of Proverbs 4, which will assist the reader and teacher. He suggests that we must (1) "accept the challenge of a worthy goal, v. 10," by listening as a son to a father to the words which shall give us a long and happy life. Then we must (2) "follow the way of wisdom, vv. 11-13." It is a way that has been tested by those who have preceded us, and they have found it to be the right way. This will enable us to (3) "avoid the way of the wicked, vv. 14-17." Note the dreadful picture of those who not only do wickedness but delight in leading others into their evil paths, in fact they cannot sleep unless they have misled some poor soul. Shun that path, and (4) "irradiate the path to the larger life, vv. 18, 19." The way to life is a light path "that shineth more and more." The way of the wicked is stumbling and darkness. The devil and his followers are trying to make young people believe just the opposite. Let us teach them the truth that they may (5) "heed every syllable of all the words of God, vv. 20-23." Give attention to God's Word, listen to it, read it, keep it hidden in your heart. The heart in Scripture stands for the very center of man's spiritual being, out of which are all the issues of life. Evil thoughts, unholy desires and ambitions hidden there will ultimately be revealed in overt acts of ungodliness. Even so the Word of God hidden there will bring forth life in all its abundant beauty and strength.

The young man or woman who is thus taught God's Word in the home and the church will have an impregnable defense against the wiles and temptations of the world, the flesh, and the devil.

II. Exhibiting Strength of Character (1 Thess. 5:6-8).

The Lord is coming again! Paul was constantly looking forward to the day of His coming. It was not his lot to live until the Lord came, but he was not mistaken in looking for Him. The Lord has tarried, why only He knows, but it is the judgment of many excellent Bible expositors that the next great event to take place in divine history is His return. What a glorious hope!

But while we await His coming we are not to sleep as those round about us. Watchfulness, sobriety of life, these become the Christian. Certainly nothing of the drunkenness of our day is to enter into the life of the Christian. He who belongs to Christ does not drink of the devil's "fire-water." But far more than that is in mind here, for the Christian is to go on in faith, love, and hope until he becomes "on fire" for God, burning with the passion of the Holy Spirit, not only for his own life, but for the salvation of the lost and for the development of true Christian character in those who have taken upon themselves the beautiful name of "Christian."

Blue Denim Stylish for Sportswear

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

HERE'S big news! It's all about denim, just plain ordinary, sturdy blue denim. Believe it or not, after all these years that blue denim has been associated in our minds as a mundane material devoted for the most part to the making of men's workaday overalls, we awake to the astonishing realization that this sturdy fabric has, in this summer season, gone style-high for women's wear. Just how Dame Fashion could have been so blind these decades past as to fail to recognize the style possibilities of denim as a medium for ladies' apparel will forever remain a mystery.

However, the fact remains denim has unmistakably come into its own in the feminine realm, not only for the making of play clothes, but designers are turning out the smartest-ever suits meticulously tailored of this never-wear-out attractive weave. In consequence of which we now see clever little classic jacket-and-skirt tailors of blue denim worn by women who register among the best dressed. These suits are stunning worn with a white pique blouse or a dainty, frilly white lingerie type, with accessories in white. Equally attractive are these suits with accents of bright color such as a Roman striped blouse with striped sandals and hand-bag to match. Scarlet or bright yellow buttons, belt and gloves is another way of doing it. The tailored linen blouse in vivid color also goes well with an outfit that is made of denim. A two-piece dress (shirt and skirt) of denim, as illustrated to the left in the group, will not only give untold service but it stands for style personified in the sports clothes realm. Every line and detail of this outfit reflects exquisite standards of tailoring plus perfection of fit and finishing touches.

Ship ahoy! See the lovely recruit for the sailor's life centered in the picture. All tagged out is this mid-summer siren in sturdy denims that never lose an item of perfection no matter how many the big waves that wash over them—old demon shrinkage doesn't have a chance. And what a wealth of style these sturdy denim togs do pack.

Even if the girl pictured to the right took an unexpected dive into the sea she need not be concerned about her outfit, for neither salt spray nor suds will make the sturdy fabric shrink. Note the nautical symbols, the pipings, braidings, all smart details of this grand garment that promises to remain true "for better or worse" wear.

By way of offering a few extra suggestions for the styling of denim we don't mind telling you that a bolero dress of denim will prove a positive treasure in your outing or vacation wardrobe. You vary the blouse to suit the occasion and it's "on again, off again" to suit the changing temperature, so far as the cunning bolero is concerned.

The idea of denim for children's play suits, dresses and other apparel should prove most inspirational to mothers.

CROCHET COLLARS By CHERIE NICHOLAS

A spic-and-span collar to give new life to your favorite dress is always a welcome addition in a collection of pretty accessories. If hand-crocheted so much the better for a bit of handiwork always adds an exclusive touch to a costume. The collar pictured at the top is crocheted of lightweight mercerized cotton and embroidered in contrast color. The other collar is also hand crocheted of light mercerized cotton. It is trimmed with a border of contrasting color to match the drawing of twisted cotton strands cleverly brought through open spaces in the crochet.

Pockets Go Down

Pockets on beach togs have been lowered and lowered until now they have reached the knee.

SUMMER FURS TAKE STYLE SPOTLIGHT

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Fur in summertime is just one of the charming incongruities that makes fashion an ever-abiding source of interest and enthusiasm. If you would keep pace with the mode you must acquire a white ermine bolero or a cape of pointed fox for this summer. When fall comes you will be wanting one of the new hip-length jackets in brown fur, advance models of which have already arrived. White marabou or ostrich neckpieces, boleros and capes are also proving of immediate interest.

Bed Capes Used as Evening

Wraps Over Summer Frocks

Recently some very cunning breakfast-in-bed capes have been brought out that are crocheted with tiers of little ruffles from neck to hemline. They are too lovely to be secluded in the boudoir, at least that is evidently the thought of young and daring daughters of the household who conceived the idea of appropriating these delectable capes for wear as evening wraps over their summer frocks, and from all reports the idea is working out to perfection.

'Forest Green' New Color For Girl Scout Uniforms

Forest green is the shade chosen for the new costume to be adopted by the 450,000 Girl Scouts throughout America. The dresses are in one piece, made on princess lines with a flared skirt, and short, slightly puffed sleeves. They are belted at the waist and zipped up the front to a close, rolled collar.

Boleros Popular

Boleros become increasingly important for summer fashions. They are worn equally often with evening clothes and informal daytime dresses, and they are made of everything from velvet to organdie.

Fall Tweeds Stress Color

High style tweeds which will appear soon for the fall market have wine-purple-green-pink blended together in stripe or in tile patterns. Blues are especially stressed.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Analyzes

The Cereal Grains

Well Known Food Authority Describes Their Place in the Diet

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

6 East 39th Street, New York City.

TO ME, there is no more inspiring sight in the world than a field of nodding golden grain. It not only pleases the eye with its grace and profound beauty, but it attests to Nature's bounty. For down through the ages, grains have sustained and comforted man.

In every quarter of the globe, foods made from grain constitute the largest single item in the food supply. This is as it should be, for no other foodstuff affords such a rich store of fuel value at such little cost. It has been estimated that during one day's labor, an American farmer, growing wheat by up-to-date American methods, can produce enough protein and calories to sustain a man for a year.

A Source of Power and Pep

Every nation depends upon some form of cereal to furnish motive power for the body machinery—to provide necessary energy to keep body and brain functioning efficiently. In the Western world, wheat is supreme. But in Oriental countries, rice takes the lead and it is the chief article of food for half of the world's people. Rye, oats, barley, maize and buckwheat are likewise important crops.

Energy Values Compared

All uncooked cereal foods show great similarity in their chemical composition and therefore have very nearly the same energy value—that is about 1,650 calories per pound. The weight of a 100-calorie portion is about an ounce. But there is a wide variation in bulk, depending upon the degree to which the cereal has been refined. For example, three tablespoons of patent wheat flour weigh one ounce; one and one-fourth cups of a puffed wheat cereal likewise weigh one ounce. After cooking, there is a big variation in weight, as well as measure, owing to the varying amounts of water absorbed. Thus a cup of cooked oatmeal mush supplies the same number of calories as three tablespoons of a pebbly dry cereal with a nut-like taste.

From 8 to 12 per cent of the calories in cereal foods are obtained from protein and two noted investigators have estimated that grain products contribute 38 per cent of the total calories and 37 per cent of the protein in the typical American diet.

Laboratory experiments indicate that the proteins of wheat, oats, maize, rye and barley are about equally efficient in promoting and supporting growth. None of them compares with an equivalent weight of the complete proteins of milk, eggs or meat, but when combined with small amounts of milk, the cereal proteins become highly efficient.

Iron and Copper

The mineral elements of grains are concentrated largely in the outer layers and in the germ. For this reason, there is considerable difference in the yield of minerals from whole grain and highly refined cereal foods.

The mineral content of bran is from 10 to 20 times greater than that of patent flour, and whole wheat contains from three to five times as much iron, calcium and phosphorus. Bran, oatmeal and whole grain cereals are a good source of copper as well as iron.

Rich in Vitamin B

The different cereal grains are quite similar in their vitamin values, but as the vitamins are very unevenly distributed throughout the kernel, there is a wide variation in vitamin content between the whole grain and refined cereal foods.

All seeds, including whole grains, are relatively poor in vitamin A. They are entirely lacking in vitamins C and D and contain only small amounts of vitamin G.

Both the germ and bran, however, are excellent sources of vitamin B—which promotes appetite, aids digestion and helps to prevent a nervous disorder. The importance of the germ as a food has been more fully appreciated since it was discovered that it is at least five times as rich in vitamin B as the whole grain or bran. There are several cereals on the market containing added wheat germ and this precious substance may also be obtained in concentrated form.

Laxative Value of Cereals

The whole grain cereals contain an abundance of bulk or cellulose and are therefore a valuable aid in promoting normal elimination. Individuals differ in their requirement for foods having a laxative effect, and in some cases one must be guided by personal experience. But inasmuch as the whole grain products furnish the body with larger amounts of minerals and vitamins B and G, a good general rule is to consume at least half of one's bread and other cereal foods in the whole grain form.

Digestibility of Grains

The whole grain products are less completely digested than those which are more highly re-finer, but as they contain larger amounts of protein, it is estimated that the amount of protein digested and absorbed from an equal weight of entire wheat or patent flours is practically the same. Thus when the two types of flours are considered as sources of protein and energy alone, they are regarded by nutritionists as substantially equivalent and interchangeable.

Many Forms of Cereal Foods

From infancy to old age, the cereal foods should, and usually do constitute the mainstay of the diet. Fortunately, there is such a wide variety from which to choose that there is little likelihood of monotony. Furthermore, because of their bland flavor, one does not readily tire of cereal foods.

In addition to the wide variety of breads, rolls, muffins, biscuits and griddle cakes that can be made from refined and whole grain flours, there are an astonishing number of cooked and uncooked cereals from which to choose. When served with milk, bread or cereals make an ideal and economical food combination.

Macaroni for a Main Dish

Besides serving as the main feature at breakfast and for the child's supper, cereal foods are useful as the chief attraction at dinner or supper when served in the form of macaroni, spaghetti or egg noodles. They are a fine source of energy and also furnish about 12 per cent protein. When combined with cheese, which adds protein, minerals and vitamins, they constitute a balanced main dish.

Cereal products of all kinds deserve a ranking place among FOODS THAT KEEP US FIT.

LIBESTOCK SHIPMENTS LOWER IN JUNE

Austin, Texas, August 8.—Shipments of livestock to Fort Worth stockyards and interstate points for June totaled 7,437 cars compared with 8,184 cars during the like month last year, a decline of 9 per cent, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. Cattle shipments, 4,609 cars, declined 20 per cent; calves, 811 cars, increased 17 per cent; hogs, 490 cars, increased 19 per cent; and sheep, 1,563 cars, increased 28 per cent. During the first six months of the year shipments aggregated 40,645 cars, a decline of 13 per cent from the corresponding period last year.

GLAD GIRLS ENJOY CHICKEN BARBECUE

The Glad Girls Sunday School class met at Mrs. Hubert Thomas' Monday evening for a back-yard barbecue. The class was well represented by ten members and their teacher, Mrs. Thomas.

After barbecuing the chickens, supper of barbecue, salad, pickles, potato chips, bread, and lemonade was served on the lawn.

The regular business was attended to and plans made for the rest of the summer's work were made. With the business settled all the members entered into a very enjoyable social hour of songs and round-table "wind-jamming," followed by a feast of ice-cold watermelon as the final feature of the evenings entertainment.

TEXAS INDUSTRY IN SLIGHT RECESSION

Austin, Texas, August 8.—A slight recession was seen in industry and trade in Texas during June in comparison with the preceding month and with June, 1937, Dr. F. A. Buechel, assistant director of the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research, said in his latest survey of Texas business. The Texas composite business index for June was 92.3 compared with 93. for May and 98.9 for June last year, he said.

"There are growing indications that the Texas business curve will soon reverse the downward trend which has prevailed since last September," Dr. Buechel said. "It is expected, however, that the upward trend of the composite index will be gradual, not sharp; but some of the factors in the combined index, such as retail sales, runs of crude oil to stills and electric power consumption, may register rapid improvement. Employment, pay rolls and miscellaneous freight car loadings are expected to increase more gradually. Since these latter items are given the greater weight in computing the index, the composite index is expected to show only a moderate gain during the next several months."
