Mrs. Bess H. Ray Named Woman Of The Year By Tumbleweed Chapter ABWA

MRS. BESS H. RAY

SHEPPARD AFB, Texas — Mrs. Bess H. Ray, Air Force civilian at Sheppard Air Force Base, was named Woman of the Year by the Tumbleweed Chapter of the American Business Women's Association in Wichita Falls recently.

Her selection was announced by Mrs. Earl Whitmire, chapter president, during the meeting held at the Trade Winds Motel, June 21.

A woman of many interests and abilities, Mrs. Ray holds a responsible critical-sensitive position in the Classified Documents Branch of Administrative Services at Sheppard.

Born Bess Harris on a ranch at Ringgold, Texas, just before the turn of the century, she attended public schools in Crowell, Tex.; Oklahoma College for Women in Chickasha, Okla., where she was president of the Utopian Literary Society, and Draughton's Business College in Dallas.

After moving to Wichita Falls in 1955 she attended adult night school at Midwestern University and received a certificate for two semesters in mathematics, physics and chemistry, and one semester in psychology.

Mrs. Ray considers her greatest role as being a wife, mother and grandmother. Early in life, leadership and planning became a major factor in her life. She worked over 25 years as bookkeeper, stenographer, or both, for a bank, department store, and drug store in Crowell and Breckenridge, Tex.

During this period she belonged to the Breckenridge Women's Club and the Wednesday Study Club, serving two years as president of each organization, and over the years served in almost every office and on every committee.

She was an officer in the Breckenridge Golf Club; was a charter member and assisted in organizing the Women's Forum of Breckenridge; was an active Rotary-Ann, American Legion Auxiliary member, and served in many civic organizations.

She was chairman of the Cancer Society, worked with the Red Cross and the United Fund. An active member of the Methodist Church in Breckenridge, she received recognition in 1952 for over 25 years of working in the Women's Society of Christian Service. She now attends the University Methodist Church in Wichita Falls.

She retired in 1947, but after her husband's death in 1954 she qualified for Civil Service, and since October 1955 has been employed at Sheppard AFB.

Always ready to take advantage of any course of education offered to acquire better knowledge for her work, in the past 10 years she has completed 507 credit hours from the Extension Course Institute, Air University, Gunter AFB, Ala., and 10 hours for special courses at Sheppard Technical Training Center.

During each of her 11 years at Sheppard she has had excellent, sustained superior, or outstanding ratings.

In 1919 she married Counts Ray, a druggist and pharmacist, in Crowell, moving to Breckenridge a year later. They became parents of a son, Jack Harris, and a daughter, Betty Lou.

Jack, a graduate of the U.S. Military Academy, West Point, Class of 1947, and a star football player, is now vice president of Tenneco International Oil Company.

Betty, now Mrs. J. W. Henry, is an officer in the national Women's Auxiliary of the Allied Beverage Industry, has a commercial pilots license, flies her own plane, and has flown and will fly again this year in the Powder Puff Derby from Seattle, Wash., to Clearwater, Fla.

The Rays also assumed the responsibility of caring for and educating an orphaned niece about the age of their daughter, and two teen-age boys who needed help to get an education. For the 35 years they were married they also cared for an elderly blind grandmother who lived in their home, until her death in 1955 at the age of 101 years.

Mrs. Ray never has a dull moment, keeping current on her hobbies of fishing, golfing, swimming, card games, and traveling.

Her travels have been to Canada, France, Italy, Greece, Turkey, Spain, Lebanon, Egypt, Syria, Jordan, Iraq, Puerto Rico, Santo Domingo, Haiti, Venezuela, Colombia, Jamaica, Mexico, and Hawaii.

She enjoys taking her grandchildren with her on vacations and — by the children's choice — they will make their third trip to Jamaica this summer.

Presently recording secretary of the Tumbleweed Chapter of the ABWA, Mrs. Ray has served as corresponding secretary and as chairman of a number of committees since joining the group four years ago.

Insulation

The insulation value of one inch of wood is equal to that of 12 inches of concrete, according to recent research bulletin issued by the Forest Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The Southern Pine Association suggests that this insulation can be put to good use in the following areas:

—Wood siding on western walls or other parts of the exterior having greatest exposure to afternoon sun in summer.

—A lining of solid lumber sheathing across rafters beneath roofing materials.

—Wood decks adjacent to home swimming pools for sunbathing in comfort.

Prize Money Swells Library Fund

Highway Safety Is Everyone's JobHIGHWAY SAFETY

Much more progress has been made in holding down
the highway accident rate than is generally realized.

Travel on the nation's roads and streets is almost three times as safe as when the industry-supported Automobile Safety Foundation was started (thirty years ago) as measured in deaths per vehicle miles. However, the tremendous increase in vehicle miles has resulted in a larger total of accidents.

Pointing to increased public interest in traffic safety, Alan S. Boyd, Under Secretary of Commerce for Transportation, said, "We have made considerable progress in this long upstream struggle." He also noted that the public debate has tended to center on one or two elements of the program.

In commenting on proposed federal legislation Secretary of Commerce John Connor testified, "It is based on the recognition that accidents often are caused by multiple factors . . . they are frequently the result of some failure of the system which includes the driver, his vehicle and his environment, including the highway, or the interaction of all three. It does not assume that any one of these elements is more important than the others,
and it is not directed toward a panacea-type solution
to the highway safety problem."

Intensified efforts on the part of federal, state and local governments, as well as industry and other cooperating organizations obviously are required to keep down the fatality and accident rates as the stream of traffic continues to swell. But an objective analysis shows much has been done already.

JUST FOR THE ASKING

America's more than 211,000 "service" stations are so well named that we often take for granted the wealth of information and materials that are available from them, just for the asking. This summer, for example, service stations throughout the country will be on the job as friends in need to millions of vacation travelers.
Station attendants will provide automobile tourists with road and weather conditions. They point out what to see, where to fish, where to hunt, where to eat, where to sleep, various church locations, recreation areas, and other points of interest. They can provide town-by-town, city-by-city travel information, complete with state and regional maps. And, for the tourist who has strayed off course, or is just plain lost, the station attendant can often offer rerouting suggestions taking the traveler back toward his planned destination with perhaps a few added side attractions.

Using up-to-date information provided by their respective oil companies, and state and local travel bureaus, service stations are topnotch, coast-to-coast travel guides for the American tourist. And it's all "just for the asking."

Weekly Report
Roger W. Babson*MEETING SKILLED MANPOWER SHORTAGES

Babson Park, Mass., June 30
— The manpower drought is about the worst in our history right now, and the reservoir of skilled and executive-type men and women is expected to dwindle still further. The problem is a rough one for employers in practically all lines of business.
If you have any doubt about this, look at the "want" ads in any big-city newspaper and see how many pages they fill. Notice
the wage-fringe come-ons,
the frantic calls in big print
from cities on the opposite sides of the nation.

Worker Shortages Must Be Met

If a company is going to take advantage of our boom conditions, and plan intelligently for future opportunities, every method of building and maintaining top-notch personnel must be tried. Astute executives know this. Hence the frantic search for suitable job applicants via every possible source. This is the reason employers are offering bigger job benefits and fatter pay envelopes. This accounts for the "pirate" war going on among management officials in an effort to bid away
top employees from their rivals.

Executives may have been a dime a dozen during the depression, but that's a long time ago
and the situation now is diametrically different. New executives and management leaders are usually sought in the 35-44 age group, and this category is going to be on the decline for the next decade, according to population experts. This means that younger aspirants are being grabbed up as they come out of college, and polished for official positions. And the race will become more heated as the need for high-skilled workers increases.

Worse Before It's Any Better

Don't think that conditions will be ironed out by some temporary cutbacks in auto production or in an occasional other industry or two. Within the next decade, it is estimated that management will need an additional 1,700,000 individuals,
the professions perhaps 4,600, 000 more. It has already been proven that electronic operations replace lower-echelon employees, but the demand for highly educated and decision-making workers only expands.
Management should be prompt to upgrade employees

within a plant so that younger newcomers may be trained and moved onto the starting rungs of the organizational ladder. This is almost always wiser (and cheaper) than bringing in high-echelon outsiders at an exaggerated salary rate. Old-timers are more likely, too, to stick with a concern, less likely to be lured away with bright promises.
In-plant training programs are a fine idea, and government
help is usually available to help defray costs in such instances.
Business colleges and trade schools are developing more programs for young men and women who want to further their education while still working.

Government Analyzing Worker Short-Spots

As always, there are places where the scarcity of labor is especially severe — as well as places where there is some easing of the squeeze. The government is now issuing a monthly report to show where and in what industries labor shortages are most acute. Also, study is made of areas with surpluses.
In plotting your personnel requirements for now and for the future, it would undoubtedly help you to receive these monthly summaries. Ask to be put on the mailing list for "Reports
on Manpower Shortages and Reserves." Send your request to Commissioner Arthur Ross, Bureau of Labor Statistics, Labor Department, Washington, D.C. 20210.

Look into ways of strengthening your personnel, ways that you might not think of under normal conditions. See if any present workers possess unrealized skills that could be used for critical jobs. Reclassify work requirements to be sure they are not higher than need be.
Interview low-skill employees with an eye to increasing their potentials. Ask the unions to help you revise retirement policies so that older employees who are willing may be kept on.
Increase the use of computers
where possible to ease executive bottlenecks. And, as a last note, don't overlook the executive possibilities of women, especially those whose families have grown up and moved away from home.

Still Busy

Southern Pine lumber manufacturing was the nation's first industry and is still one of the busiest. Nearly 6,000 lumber mills are currently operating in 12 Southern Pine producing states.

Conservative estimates have placed Texas Tech's 1975 enrollment at 35,600.

The author states, "our country's strategy had been shaped to entice the Japanese to attack Pearl Harbor." He further says every effort has been made since then "to keep these facts from the knowledge of the American people." Those in Washington who knew the facts evidently decided that their loyalty was to the administration, rather than to the American people and to our officers and men who died at Pearl Harbor.

Milk Depots
During the hectic early days when a city began requiring pasteurization of milk sold within its borders, milk depots selling the unpasteurized product sprang up beyond the city limits, and were patronized by considerable numbers of skeptical citizens—for a while. And that's the origin of the term "bootleg milk", since much of it happened during the prohibition era following World War I.

Today, we are blessed with sweet pasteurized milk from clean, healthy, tuberculin tested cattle, bottled and cooled for our good and safe nutrition.

Janie Dale Phillips-2nd Lt. Donnie Culpepper Married June 10th At United States A. F. Academy

Miss Janie Dale Phillips, daughter of Major General Samuel C. Phillips, USAF, and Mrs. Phillips, was married June 10 to Second Lieutenant Donnie Dale Culpepper, son of Mrs. Valrie Culpepper of Burkburnett.

The ceremony was performed at the U. S. Air Force Academy Protestant Chapel. A reception at the U. S. Air Force Academy Officers' Open Mess followed the ceremony.

Attending the bride were her sisters, Mrs. Gary Douglas Stabile of Los Angeles, matron of honor, and Miss Kathleen Phillips, bridesmaid. Cadet Henry S. Jordan, Jr., USAFA, was best man.

The bride wore a long gown of Italian silk matalasse, the bodice trimmed with pearls. Pearl-trimmed flowers held her elbow-length tulle veil. She carried a cascading bouquet of steffanotas and white orchids. Her attendants were gowned in full-length turquoise crepe sheaths with shoes and veils of a darker shade. They carried sprays of daisies.

Prior to her marriage, the bride attended the University of Wyoming at Laramie.

Lt. Culpepper graduated recently from the United States Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colo. Following a wedding trip to Panama City, Fla., they will reside at Craig AFB, Ala., where he will receive pilot training.

Bond Drive Slated To Start July 18

Wichita County and more than 175 other counties from coast to coast will hold special bond drives in 1966 to mark the 25th anniversary of the U.S. Savings Bonds program, the Treasury Department announced today.

The anniversary observance is built around the theme of "25 years of star-spangled security for Americans." It will feature the thrift achievements of millions of bond-owners as a means of appealing to a new generation of savers and to persuade them, officials said, that "the world of tomorrow is worth saving for."

Since the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt purchased the first Series E Bond on May 1, 1941, Americans have bought about $150 billion in E and H Savings Bonds. Some $100 billion of this total has been redeemed to finance new homes, college educations, and other major needs for which bond-owners had saved. The public still owns over $49 billion in these securities, and the total continues to grow at a rate of about one billion dollars annually.

The 1966 bond drives will be organized and carried out by volunteer leaders in the 175 communities, and will have as their objective the signing up of new regular buyers through Payroll Savings and Bond-a-Month Plans.

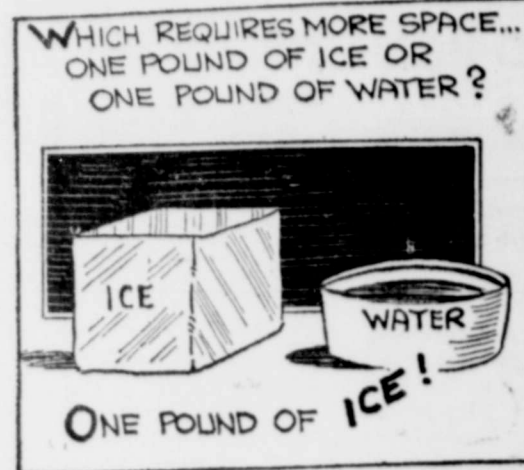

J. W. Martin of Williams-Dwyer Co., Wichita Falls has been named by the Treasury Department as volunteer chairman of the drive in Wichita County.

The campaign in the county is to start July 18.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

A new business precept has been forged. It is to the effect that if one is losing money on operation, one should not raise prices for fear that someone can take the business away from you.

This is the position the U.S. Office is taking on the proposed legislation to parcel post rates and the same permit larger and smaller packages to be mailed by parcel post.

The postal people feel if they raise parcel post rates on average of about 8 cents per pound, and also handle bigger packages than presently allowed between first class post rates which roughly means a weight of at least 10-12 pounds, they could generate enough revenues from parcel post business to cut into deficit. The nation's independent business proprietors, through the National Federation of Independent Business, oppose this move by a majority of 59 per cent.

But the interesting part of the entire situation is the fact that the post office contemplates raising catalogs at a loss. The survey shows that even with proposed increases, the loss on handling catalogs will be an estimated $8,479,000, which will be partially offset by the increase in parcel post rates.

Now, of course, the catalogs of the big mail order houses are advertising, so what the post office is really doing is subsidizing their advertising.

office proposed to do is subsidize their advertising.

When questioned why not raise the rates on catalogs so that they can be handled without a loss, the postal people say they are afraid if they did so that the business of distributing them would go to private enterprises who might be able to do the job, at a profit, for less than the post office costs. Thus, the postal service does not want to lose the business, even if it is business handled at a loss.

This is somewhat of a switch on the old saw "I lose a little on every sale, but the volume makes up the difference."

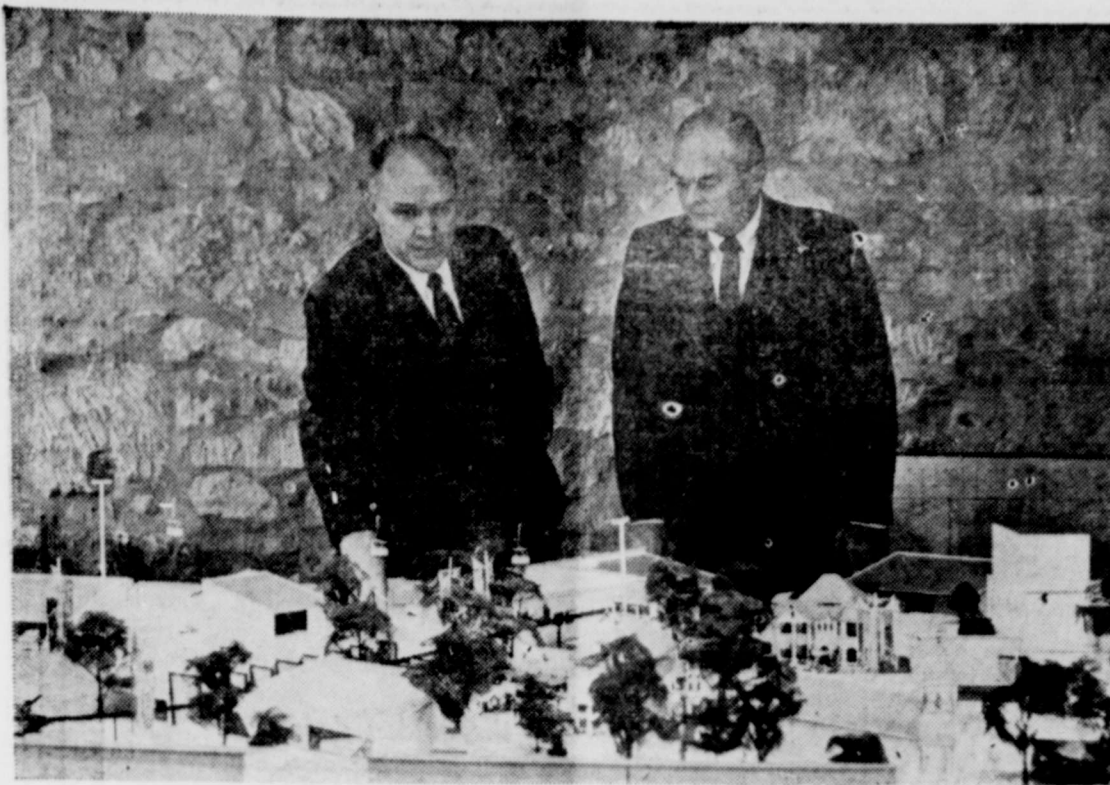

In addition, the postal people fear that higher rates on catalogs would put a damper on mail order business, and cut into parcel post business.

Thus, once again there is illustrated the difference between government and business thinking. While it is laudable for any government agency to seek solutions to the problem of operating at a loss, there is a far greater consideration.

For after all, the needs of the local communities are vital. It is the business community on the nation's Main Streets that largely support the schools, the police and fire departments and the other essentials.

Thus, seeking ways to increase the inroads on Main Street by distant mail order houses, while perhaps beneficial to post office revenues, is not being fair to local business or local communities.

This is something that every community should consider.

Rufus Gilbow Services Held

Rufus Gilbow, 65, died Saturday morning after a heart attack at his home north of Burkburnett.

Services were held at 2 p.m. Tuesday from First Methodist Church here, with Dr. Earl R. Hoggard and Rev. Don Youngblood officiating. Burial was in Burkburnett City Cemetery under direction of Owens & Brumley Funeral Home.

Gilbow was born Nov. 11, 1900, in Tarrant County. A rancher, he was married to Thelma Jarrett March 21, 1920, in Montague. A member of First Methodist Church here, he had been a Burkburnett resident 43 years.

Survivors include the widow; two sons, R. C. Jr. and Bill of Wichita Falls; a daughter, Mrs. Maxine Marten of Wichita Falls; a brother, Aubrey, and a sister, Mrs. Beth Maben, both of Burkburnett, and six grandsons.

Palbearers were Glenn Kemp, Gene Turner, B. O. Willis, Jack Alexander, Jesse Flick and T. J. Campbell.

Mrs. J. D. Stegall Is Party Honoree

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Duvall was the scene of a surprise Birthday dinner honoring Mrs. J. D. Stegall on June 26.

Those attending were just a few, from a mighty host of her friends, who furnished the delicious food for the occasion.

The dining room was decorated with the birthday atmosphere—a white lace tablecloth enhanced the one hundred year old round dining table, even the matching dining chairs were reluctant to turn their back on the beautiful birthday cake, which claimed itself to be the center of attraction, even the old antique wall phone almost sang happy birthday to Mrs. Stegall, as all sang the traditional birthday song. The oval rug under the table was somewhat exhausted from the tapping of toes from the tune. After extinguishing the candles on the decorated orange chiffon cake she almost choked up with tears of gratitude — then joyful conversation and well wishes followed.

After the meal, which included old fashioned "corn" bread made from corn meal, the Duvalls acquired from an old stone wheel water mill in Georgia, while on a recent vacation of the southern states, all adjourned to the den where numerous antiques are permanently displayed, from a slave iron to a grandfather clock which dates to 1713. Mr. Duvall claims the den as his vantage point of relaxation.

Reminiscing of old days and current subjects was the agenda for most of the afternoon.

Those present for the dinner were Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Hillis, J. M. Gower, C. T. McGill, W. E. Goins and the queen for the day, Mrs. J. D. Stegall.

VACATION-TIME LUNCHES

ation time, when the child are no longer lunching at home, poses new problems for parents. Lunch-time seems to go around pretty fast, especially if one is not ready for it. Usually, the feeding of the horde at home is not difficult, if one prepares in advance. This consists mainly in having a good supply of the necessary ingredients for making a quick and attractive lunch in a minimum of time and

Needed Supplies

Helps to have several kinds of bread — white, rye, whole wheat, raisin — and some rolls, and English muffins for toasting. Milk, of course, is a must for children — skim, buttermilk or chocolate milk, plus cream or half-and-half for cereals. Peanut butter, of course — what would home lunches be without peanut butter?

One of the variety of the child-like best. Luncheon meats, and chopped meat are to have around. Ice cream, several flavors, plus chocolate butterscotch and other favorite toppings. And nuts.

Summer is the season for fresh fruit and it is also a good time to eat fresh vegetables.

Try Outdoors

Summer lunches are more fun if doors, and children can prepare them if a picnic where is created. The food is put out on a table, preferably under cover from flies and insects, and eaten in the yard, patio or porch. Paper plates, cups and napkins and disposable plastic eating utensils help to take the edge off the work load, and children can and should help to clear away after eating.

Vary Menus

The exact menus should be varied, and should reflect the likes and dislikes of the family.

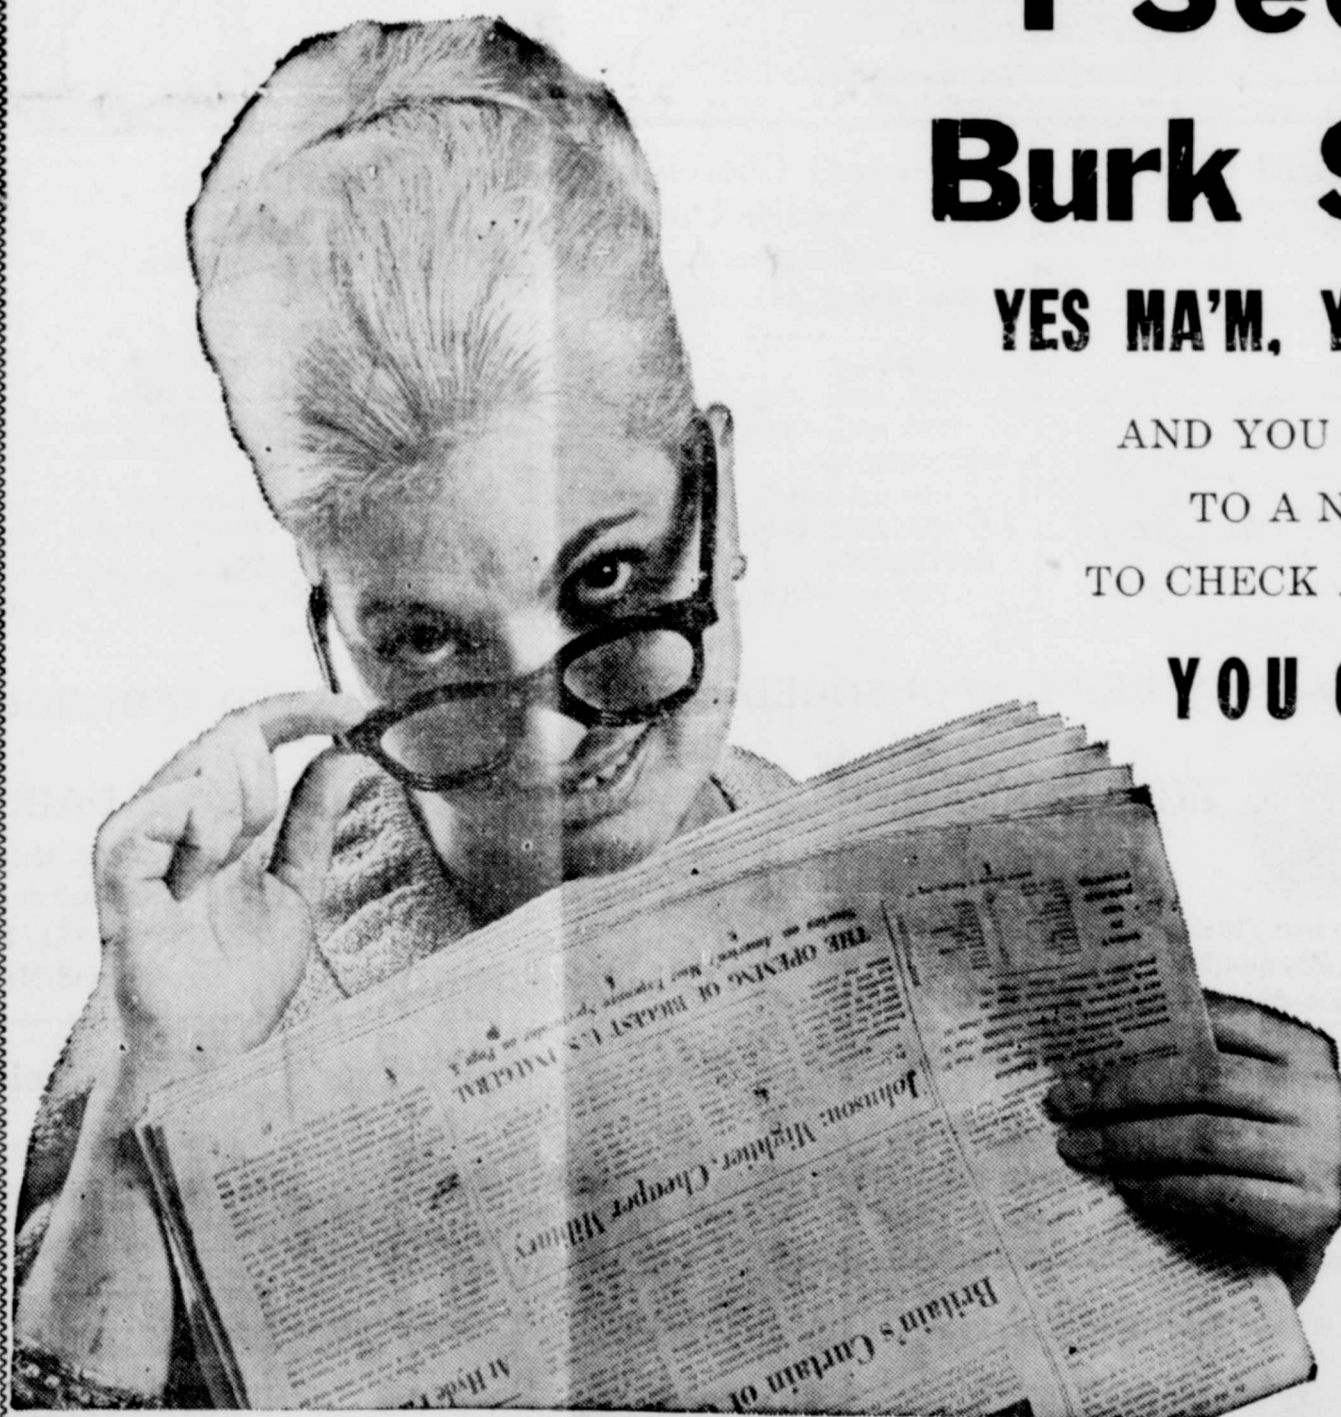

A good pattern for a summer mid-day meal is a sandwich with meat or cheese or peanut butter, the latter perhaps combined with jelly or honey, plus cool — not too cold — milk, or a milk shake.

Add a raw vegetable such as a carrot or cucumbers, or sliced tomatoes, or celery stuffed with cream cheese, and top it off with ice cream or fresh fruit, and you have a balanced meal with a minimum of fuss, and everybody has fun.

Berries, Too

In berry season, cereal with berries and half-and-half or cream, make a fine basis for lunch. Children love hot dogs, hamburgers or toasted cheese sandwiches. Crisp bacon and tomato sandwiches too, are well accepted. Any fresh fruit in season may be served as it comes from the store, but care should be taken to wash all fruits except those that are peeled before eating.

In-between snacks should emphasize fruits and vegetables or dairy products in preference to candy and other sweets. Soft drinks should not crowd out the necessary milk, but they need not be banned, either.

FREEDOM

Inscription for the Statue of Liberty

BY EMMA LAZARUS

Give me your tired, your poor,

Your huddled masses yearning to breathe free,

The wretched refuse of your teeming shore,

Send these, the homeless, tempest-tossed, to me:

I lift my lamp beside the golden door.

This truly reflects the attitude of a nation living close to God. The concern and love for others grows through Christian fellowship. Attend Church Regularly.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Points and Pointers on Homemaking

MOTHERS get so much advice on bringing up baby, that it's hard to remember what's important and applicable. Save time, trouble, and trips to the library by underlining or taking notes on child-care material of special interest, which you want to record or refer to later.

TELEVISION, too, abounds in helpful hints for the whole family: recipes, children's games, booklet offers. When paper and sharpened pencils are handy, it's a reminder to jot down important or interesting bits of information.

VISUAL entertainment has interested people of all ages in art. If painting and sculpture seem too difficult, try cartooning. It's relaxing, fun, easy-to-do, and good rainy-day diversion for the kiddies. All you need is a pad of paper and pencils, honed to constantly sharp points by an APSCO Vacu-Base pencil sharpener which you can attach anywhere with a flip of the finger. No screws needed.

how to save for a rainy day and help your country now

Someday, sometime, you may have an emergency which will affect the future of your family. It will be comforting to you to know that you have a fund standing by to help you meet that emergency.

Your money in United States Savings Bonds grows steadily to help you provide for college, a new home, an unexpected illness. And as the money grows, your country uses it to help protect our freedom... and back our men in Vietnam.

Americans are holding over $49 billion in Savings Bonds—for rainy days, and sunny days, too. Why not join them? Start buying Bonds now, and see if you don't feel pretty good about the whole thing.

It's easy to buy Savings Bonds on the Payroll Plan where you work. A $50 Bond costs $37.50, a $25 Bond $18.75, and you can buy them in installments for a few dollars a week. Or buy them outright at any bank. No charge for the service.

NOW—Savings Bonds Pay 4.15%!

Interest on new E and H Bonds you purchase has been raised to 4.15%. E Bonds mature faster, too—now in just 7 years. Your old Bonds will earn more, too. Savings Bonds are better to buy, and hold, than ever.

Permanence

Many of the stately colonial homes are still in excellent condition after centuries of service.

They were built over protracted periods of time and the lumber used for structural frameworks was allowed to air dry for months prior to use. The seasoned condition of the structural material was the main source of permanence.

Modern homes are built in a matter of days rather than months, but the same opportunity for permanence exists due to the wide availability of lumber that has been properly seasoned at the mill. The Southern Pine industry has standardized a process of drying the pre-shrinking framing, siding, paneling, trim and other items before they are surfaced to final size.

SPELL QUIZ

Correct Answer Is:

abeyance

CONTINGENT OWNER

one else paid the premiums, the mere fact that he did so would not make him the owner.

Under a typical arrangement, ownership passes to the child on reaching age 21. If the owner dies before then, ownership passes to the contingent owner, who typically is a beneficiary.

If you name yourself as sole owner and the aunt as contingent owner, ownership would pass to her in event of your death before your son becomes 21. She could then cash in the policy or exercise any other powers of ownership. The father could not change the contingent owner.

But many other arrangements are possible. You could name yourself and your husband as co-owners, or your husband as contingent owner — with ownership in either case passing to the aunt should both you and your husband die before your son becomes 21. Or, if the policy is a gift to your son, you could name him immediately as owner, with yourself as custodian (and your husband or the aunt as contingent custodian).

HAVE BABIES CHANGED?

Babies haven't changed, but their care, comfort and certainly has! Did you know that about 100 years ago, babies weighed on a butcher's scale like lamb chops? Or that they smeared with hog's lard to protect their skin? In the fashion in those days were coarse, canvas diapers, coarse woolen garments and long flannel nightgowns.

While today's baby lives a lot better, he still eats, sleeps and diapers just as his infant ancestors did. For his added and your added ease come these good health tips compiled by Desitin baby care consultants:

all bathing needs on the then check it daily before dressing the child. Hold your wrist, and curving fingers under his armpits, your free hand, wash him with a soft cloth and soap, paying special attention to creases. Then blot dry.

1. Never wake baby to change him unless advised to do so by your doctor. If baby is awake, he should be checked every two to three hours for changing. Then wipe the diaper area with cotton dipped in lotion or oil, and complete the diapering. New medicated products, such as Desitin baby oil and lotion, have a germ-killing formula that help protect skin against bacterial infection and irritating diaper rash.

2. Years ago, babies weren't bathed often because of drafts. Today's daily sponge or tub bath not only helps cleanse the skin, but it is a pleasurable time for an infant. Increase both pleasure and efficiency by taping a list of off with a medicated oil or powder.

3. For some facts about baby skin care—and fast folkloric from yesterday—look for a colorful, illustrated booklet called "Healthy Baby Care," Write Desitin Baby Care, Division, 215 E. 8th St., New York 10017.
