SISD board of trustees...

Amendments, agreements approved

Snyder school board trustees on Thursday approved personnel requests, budget amendments and agreements with Ira ISD, and heard from concerned parents over dress codes and transportation.

The board also approved a sick leave bank, computer bids and attended a demonstration of the Computer Assisted Instruction (CAI) lab at Central Elementary, where the meeting took place.

As anticipated, trustees approved amendments to the 1994-95 budget totaling $40,014. The extra funds allow a para-professional pay scale to be phased in over a one-year period instead of two years, as the original budget had stipulated.

Personnel requests approved by the board were the hiring of Janice Mitchell as a high school TAAS English instructor, John Richardson as a junior high math teacher and Leslie Ward as a junior high science teacher.

The board approved two agreements with Ira ISD. One will allow Ira school district to calculate for its weighted average daily attendance those students who reside within the Snyder district but actually attend classes at Ira.

The second allows Ira to "purchase" attendance credits from SISD in order to reduce the smaller district's wealth level.

Ira is considered a "wealthy" school district under Senate Bill 7, and must reduce that wealth. The agreements approved Thursday night help Ira ISD accomplish that. The two districts had similar agreements for the 1993-94 school year.

Snyder ISD Business Manager Lee McNair said that while Snyder will lose some state funding, the overall result will be a net gain. McNair said it is not clear how many credits Ira will purchase, but he anticipates Snyder ISD will benefit by some $15,000 to $20,000.

He noted that the agreement is similar to one with Borden County ISD, which, on a larger scale, is anticipated to bring about $300,000 to Snyder ISD for 1994-95

Board members also approved a proposed Snyder ISD "Catastrophic Sick Leave Bank," or CSLB. Under the proposal, employees of the district may join the CSLB by contributing one and one-half days of accrued or anticipated

USAir jet crash kills all aboard

ALIQUIPPA, Pa. (AP) — The jetliner banked to the right, rolled a few times and nose-dived into a ravine. There was a muffled boom, then the evening sky turned bright with flames as a black cloud of smoke mushroomed into the air.

"It was just coming straight down," said one person who saw the USAir jetliner crash Thursday evening.

All 132 people aboard died when the Boeing 737-300 dropped from the sky on a clear, windless evening as it approached Pittsburgh International Airport, the deadliest crash in the United States since 1987 and USAir's fifth fatal crash in as many years.

Witnesses described a gruesome scene of body parts, pieces of plane and baggage strewn everywhere in a clearing on the heavily wooded ravine.

"All we saw was body parts hanging from the trees," said Denise Godich, a nurse who was one of the first at the scene. "There were people everywhere. You could just see parts of them."

A pilot, nurse and paramedic flown in by a medical helicopter walked through the site moments after the 7:19 p.m. crash.

"It was total devastation," said Jim Bothwell, director of operations for the STAT MedEvac helicopter service. "The airplane was in a million pieces and the people inside were in pieces."

USAir Flight 427 originated in Chicago and was to stop in Pittsburgh before continuing to West Palm Beach, Fla.

Jason Moka, a 10-year-old who was playing soccer a half-mile from where the plane went down, said its engines seemed to sputter before the crash.

The crew radioed the airport tower when the plane was about six miles away and "there was no indication at that time of any difficulty," USAair said in a statement.

Crews began cutting a road into the rocky, wooded site at daybreak, and as of midmorning a team was waiting for clearance from investigators to begin the search for remains. Refrigerated trucks waited to bring bodies to a temporary morgue at Pittsburgh Airport.

Discovery poised for liftoff

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Discovery stood ready to blast off today on a mission to study the atmospheres of the Earth and sun and to test a jet pack in the first untethered spacewalk by astronauts in 10 years.

NASA finished fueling the shuttle late this morning. The forecast — 70 percent chance of good launch weather — was less favorable than Thursday's. Thunderstorm clouds were the main concern.

After analyzing last month's last-second engine shutdown on another shuttle and other mechanical problems over the past three weeks, NASA declared Discovery "100 percent go."

"If we get some (good) weather, we'll be out of here," promised shuttle director Brewster Shaw.

The six astronauts slept in, a rare luxury for shuttle crews on launch day. Shuttles usually lift off in the morning; Discovery's late afternoon departure was dictated by one of its science experiments.

Many of Discovery's experiments have never flown before in orbit.

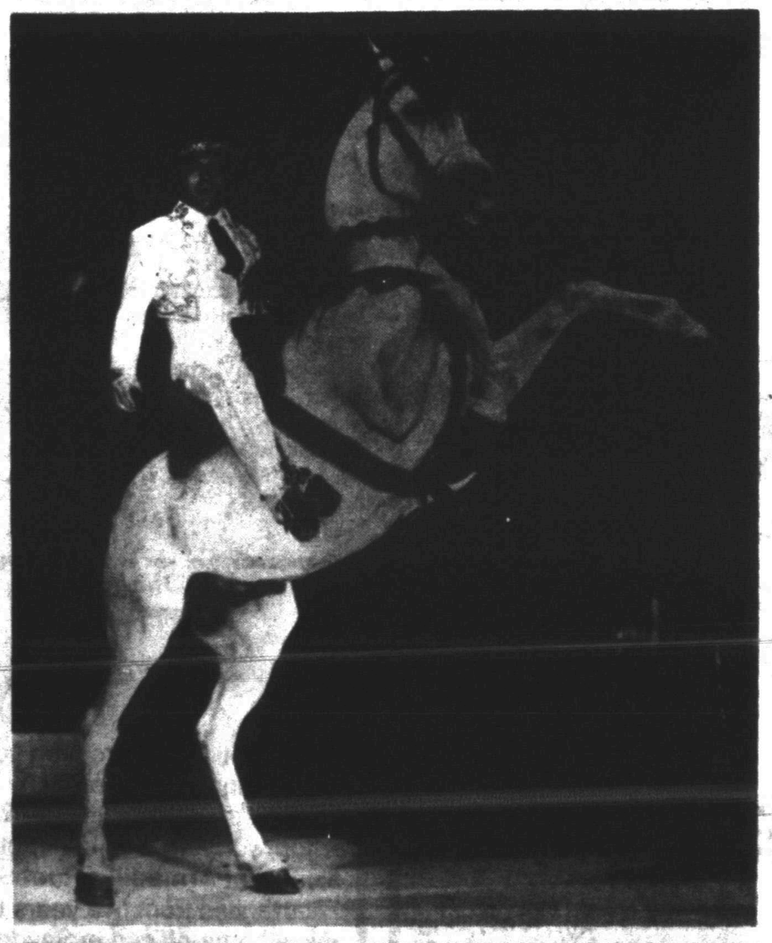
There's a $25 million laser machine that will beam pulses down to Earth and measure the light that's bounced back from clouds, atmospheric particles and the surface itself. Scientists hope to learn more about the climate.

There's a $14 million satellite with two telescopes to study the sun's corona, the outer part of the sun's atmosphere. These measurements will coincide with the solar probe Ulysses' pass over the sun's unexplored south pole.

There's a $7 million jet pack to be tested by astronauts Mark Lee and Carl Meade near the end of the nine-day mission. They will fly without a lifeline.

The last time spacewalkers relinquished their safety tethers was in 1984 when they used an older, bulkier, costlier jet pack. The new unit is designed to be used as an emergency rescue device for future space station crews.

And there's a $3 million robot — the first U.S. robot to fly in space — that will try to load semiconductor crystals into furnaces. It will work while the crew sleeps; that's the only time the shuttle will be still enough for the delicate task.



CIRCUS COMING — Snyder and Mitchell County Shrine Clubs will sponsor the 3-ring Shrine Circus on Sunday at Scurry County Coliseum. Shows are scheduled for 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. and tickets are on sale now at the coliseum for $8 for adults and $4 for children 12 and younger.

Northern Ireland...

Plea to gunmen: 'Please stop'

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The top Protestant cleric in Northern Ireland appealed to Protestant gunmen today to follow the example of their Catholic adversaries and lay down their arms.

"There is more to be gained, in a political sense, through dialogue than will ever be gained through the barrel of a gun," Archbishop Robin Eames, leader of the Anglican Church of Ireland, said at St. Anne's Cathedral in downtown Belfast.

The Irish Republican Army declared a cease-fire last week after a 24-year campaign of violence to end British rule and make Northern Ireland part of overwhelmingly Roman Catholic Ireland. Catholics are the minority in Northern Ireland.

Sinn Fein, the political arm of the IRA, said today its leader, Gerry Adams, would ask for permission to make another trip to the United States to publicize his case for British withdrawal.

Adams' two-day visit to New York in February was an important step in the process leading to the IRA cease-fire.

President Clinton reversed longstanding State Department policy in granting the first visa. The gesture angered Britain, but increased pressure on Sinn Fein to

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Too many people are me-deep in thought."

Keeping tabs on our neighbors:

Larry Crabtree, in the Vernon Daily Record, passed along an Aggie story.

It seems that an Aggie had a long streak of misfortune — investments that turned sour, a wife who left, debts that couldn't be paid, a hopeless situation.

He decided the only solution, the only way to get money to pay off his debts, was to kidnap a child and hold it for ransom.

The Aggie selected an eight-year-old boy, successfully made the grab, held the youngster for 24 hours and decided it was time to send a ransom note.

The note demanded $100,000 in $100 bills placed in a grocery sack and delivered it to the local city park at high noon. The kidnapper signed the note: "Aggie, Class of '64."

A problem surfaced. The Aggie couldn't remember the father's name or where he worked. After long deliberation, he gave the note to the 8-year-old and told him to take it to his father.

The next day, at high noon, the Aggie went to the city park. A short time later, the kid showed up with grocery sack in hand. The Aggie peeked into the sack and discovered it was full of hundred dollar bills. Resting on top was a note which read:

"Here's the money! I can't believe one Aggie would do this to another Aggie. Class of '60."

Over in Rotan, the high school football coach presented the Rotary Club program and told this story:

The coach was quizzing his reserve squad on game situations.

"Suppose we're in the final quarter," he said. "The game is tied with only 20 seconds left and we get the ball. What should we do?"

"Gee, coach," replied one player. "If we're in that situation, I would keep the first team in."

The Soil Conservation Service will host an information meeting about the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) at the Kiva Inn in Abilene, on Sept. 15 beginning at 9 a.m. and ending at 4 p.m.

This meeting will coincide with the first group of CRP contracts to expire beginning on Sept. 30, 1995. Although the majority of CRP contracts won't expire until 1996 and 1997, program participants need sufficient time and information to consider their options.

Information available at this meeting will enable CRP participants to make informed decisions about future land uses and resource management needs. Agenda items will also be of special interest to farm commodity groups, livestock organizations, agricultural related businesses and agricultural lending institutions, real estate agencies, chambers of commerce, tax offices, county and city governments, and others who will be affected by the future use of CRP lands.

Congressman Charles Stenholm has been invited to provide a legislative update on CRP and the 1995 Farm Bill at the meeting. He has indicated he will attend. Other speakers will include officials from the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Agricultural Research Service, Texas Tech University, Texas A&M University, ASCS and SCS.

Items to be discussed include conservation compliance, grazing management (with emphasis on Old World bluestems, weeping lovegrass, Kleingrass and native grass mixtures), wildlife management, national and state program updates, legislative perspectives, environmental impacts and economic alternatives associated with CRP.

For more information contact your local Soil Conservation Service at 5309 Big Spring Highway, Snyder, or give us a call at 573-6317.

When balding strikes a young female

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 28-year-old daughter has been diagnosed with alopecia. She's on medication and receives steroid shots to the affected areas. I've heard that stress has a lot to do with this disease. That might explain why she's been so afflicted, as she's under a great deal of stress. Any light you can shed on this condition would be appreciated.

DEAR READER: The cause of alopecia (balding) in women is often difficult to identify. Genetic factors play a role, as do medical conditions (including hypothyroidism) and skin disorders, such as eczema. Also, stress may contribute to hair loss in some individuals.

If your daughter can learn more effective ways of coping with stress — with stress counseling, for example — her alopecia may improve.

However, she will probably achieve more success by being under the care of a dermatologist, as I suspect she already is. Cortisone (steroid) injections into affected areas of the scalp are not always successful, but are certainly worth a try, because there is no consistently effective therapy for this condition.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Eczema and Psoriasis." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband and I both suffer from heel spurs. I had no idea they could be so painful. We're only in our late 50s and our activity has been curtailed by the problem. We've been to foot specialists and are using orthotic inserts. The doctors are reluctant to operate on the spurs because of the rate of failure and the long recovery period needed after surgery — apparently two months for each foot. Anti-inflammatory medication is helping, but I don't know for how long. What would you suggest?

DEAR READER: If your heel spurs (calcium deposits in the tissues of the heels) have not responded to orthotic devices, you may be helped by cortisone injections into the painful areas. If the injections fail, you'll either have to put up with the pain or consider surgery to remove the deposits.

I suggest that you seek a second opinion from an orthopedic surgeon. In my experience, surgery is usually successful and will not severely hamper your activities for more than a couple of weeks.

FDA approves human tests for gene therapy research

HOUSTON (AP) — Ten women with ovarian cancer will be the first to undergo a newly approved test that researchers hope will eliminate many of the toxic side effects of anti-cancer drugs.

Researchers at the University of Texas M.D. Anderson Cancer Center are conducting the test, which involves manipulating the genetic material of bone marrow so it's protected from the toxic side effects of chemotherapy.

Dr. Albert Deisseroth, chairman of the hospital's hematology department, said Thursday that federal authorities last week approved the therapy for study on ovarian cancer patients.

"If it's successful, this principle of therapy could be expanded to other kinds of cancer," Deisseroth said. "This could have a major effect on the burden that chemotherapy imposes."

Traditionally, physicians have been limited because virtually all cancer drugs attack both healthy and cancerous cells. In many cases, patients have died because of complications when the drugs attacked healthy cells along with the cancerous cells.

The newly approved therapy, called chemoprotection, involves altering the genetic structure of bone marrow cells so they aren't destroyed by the drugs used in chemotherapy. It's aimed at women with cancer who aren't helped by chemotherapy or who develop infections after surgery.

About 30,000 cases of ovarian cancer are diagnosed every year. Deisseroth said 15 percent, or 4,500, of those women won't benefit from standard or chemotherapy treatments.

Patients who take part in the study will be given two powerful, anti-cancer drugs over five days before physicians extract bone marrow. The marrow will be altered with a gene known as MDR-1 and returned a week later to the patient.

After the patients have recovered from the marrow transplant, they'll be given large doses of taxol, an extremely poisonous new drug that's been used in a variety of cancer treatments.

Because of its tendency to destroy both healthy and cancerous cells, taxol has seldom been used in patients who have received either self or donated bone marrow transplants. Its toxicity also has limited the dosages in many patients, making it difficult to eradicate the cancerous cells.

But Deisseroth said the chemoprotection should help the marrow move higher doses of taxol quickly away from normal cells.

Service to honor New Hope pastor

New Hope Baptist Church will conduct a special service at 3 p.m. Sunday to honor its pastor for 16 years of service.

The appreciation service will honor the Rev. Raymond Dunkins and his wife, Gloria. The church is located at 3305 Ave. L.

A former New Hope pastor, Snyder native Otis J. Archie, will be the guest speaker. The Rev. Archie is pastor of the Macedonia Baptist Church in Midland.

Following the service a meal will be held, and friends and visitors are welcome.

Egg production increases in July

WASHINGTON (AP) — Egg production for July rose 3 percent from the previous year to 6.19 billion, the Agriculture Department says. The totals broke down to 5.25 billion table eggs, 876 million broiler-type hatching eggs and 60 million egg-type hatching eggs.

The number of fowl laying eggs amounted to a daily average of 287 million in July, a 2 percent rise from the previous year. Average egg production per 100 birds was 2,153, up from 2,130 in 1993.

A single-day check on Aug. 1 showed 288 million layers, up 6 million from the previous year.

Lotto prompts lawsuit

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston woman is suing her twin sister and 11-year-old niece over $24.4 million she won two months ago playing Lotto Texas.

Elizabeth Ann Robinson alleges in a lawsuit filed in federal court Wednesday that Virginia Ava Chernitsky falsely has laid claimed to the Lotto loot and that Ms. Chernitsky's daughter, Mary Christine Chernitsky, may make a claim.

The dispute is over a trust fund to which Ms. Robinson's winnings from the July 6 Lotto Texas jackpot were transferred.

The first of 20 installments — $1,232,531 — was electronically transferred into the fund on July 12, said Texas Lottery spokesman Steve Levine.

On trust documents filed in Austin, Ms. Robinson and Ms. Chernitsky are listed as grantors to the trust, meaning that each put something into the trust. Ms. Robinson is listed as the trustee, the person responsible for the trust.

Levine said lottery officials were not aware of any problems between the sisters when the trust was set up.

But now Ms. Robinson alleges that Ms. Chernitsky and her daughter falsely claimed ownership. Ms. Robinson said she purchased the ticket with her own money and is the sole owner of the proceeds.

Ms. Robinson's lawsuit asks a federal judge to name her sole owner of the proceeds and award attorney's fees and court costs for filing the lawsuit.

Olney Wallis, Ms. Robinson's attorney, said he wanted "a judicial determination about whose money it is."

Ms. Chernitsky could not be reached for comment.

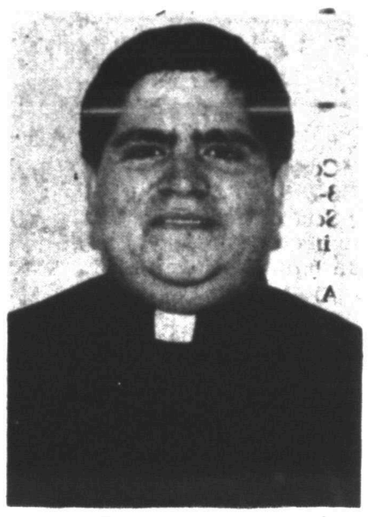
Clinton to swear in 15,000 youths

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton will kick off the AmeriCorps national service program by administering an oath to 15,000 young people on the White House lawn Monday.

The youths, expected to number 20,000 within a year, will serve at least a year in programs to promote safety, education, health and environmental protection. Each will be paid a minimum-wage stipend and get education vouchers of $5,000 a year for up to two years.

"It's going to represent a great new adventure to reclaim our country from the twin diseases of apathy and despair," said Eli Segal, chief executive officer of the Corporation for National Service.

On Sunday, the president will attend a prayer service at the Army's Aberdeen Proving Grounds in Maryland to showcase the base's AmeriCorps program there.



REYNALDO REYES

Reyes named pastor here, St. John's

Fr. Reynaldo Reyes, has been named pastor at two Catholic churches in Scurry County — St. Elizabeth's in Snyder and St. John's in Hermleigh.

He assumed his new duties last weekend, replacing Fr. Liam Sweeney who has been transferred to Seminole.

A native of Lamesa, Reyes said he is glad to be in Snyder. It's his first assignment as pastor and he has already discovered that the people are "wonderful." He is "looking forward to working with the community" as well as the two parishes.

Reyes doesn't have any hobbies per se, but said that "meeting people is what keeps me going!"

Previously, Reyes served as associate pastor in Plainview and later Lubbock. He is a graduate of St. Mary's Seminary in Houston. He has a masters in divinity from St. Thomas University in Houston and an undergraduate degree from College of Santa Fe in Santa Fe, N.M.

Reyes has a cousin who is a priest in Mexico.

3 teens arrested in woman's death

RICHARDSON (AP) — Three teen-agers were being held Thursday in the slaying of a suburban Dallas woman whose nude body was found behind the church she had attended for years.

Michael Andrew McCaffrey, 17, of Richardson, was arrested on a charge of murder at the Richardson police station late Wednesday in the death of Naomi Anderson, 37, of Plano, said police Sgt. Ray Pennington. McCaffrey was being held on $50,000 bond at the city jail.

Two 16-year-old Plano boys, whose names were being withheld, were in custody at the Dallas County Juvenile Detention Center, Pennington said.

All three claimed to be members of a local gang, but their affiliation did not appear to play a role in Ms. Anderson's slaying. A motive behind the killing was not immediately apparent, but the victim and suspects were not strangers, Pennington said.

A citizen's tip led police to McCaffrey, who revealed the juveniles' participation, the sergeant said.

Clinton and Dole face tough choices

By JILL LAWRENCE
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The story goes that four years after he made a campaign speech promising a balanced budget, Franklin Roosevelt planned a return visit and asked an adviser what he should say about his earlier speech.

"Categorically deny you ever made it," came the reply.

It worked for George Bush, who denied he'd called Ronald Reagan's supply-side ideas "voodoo economics" until someone confronted him with his own voice on tape.

But the "who-me?" option probably is not high on President Clinton's list as he ponders the political price of warming up to small-scale health reform or no reform at all. The nation saw him brandishing a pen early this year, threatening to veto anything less than insurance coverage for every American.

The questions he faces now are these: Will they think worse of him or better if he signs a modest bill? Will he be lucky enough to get even that? How can he minimize damage to Democrats facing midterm elections? And if all is lost, will people blame him or Republicans?

Clinton is not the only national politician with a health-reform dilemma on his hands. Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., has to decide whether he's going to help or hinder as Congress enters its final few weeks before adjournment.

GOP moderates are working hard to see that some steps are taken this year to reform an expensive and inequitable system. But Dole is under perhaps heavier pressure from his party's scorched-earth types, who don't want any bill this year.

The latter group is led by Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, a potential Dole rival for the 1996 presidential nomination who now heads the GOP Senate campaign committee. It's a key job: Republicans are within striking distance of wresting Senate control from the Democrats.

What is Dole willing to do to ensure that happens? Well, there was that astonishing about-face on Iran-Contra figure Oliver North. Within days he went from distancing himself from the Virginia Republican to embracing his Senate candidacy, complete with campaign contribution.

The last thing Dole and Republicans want to do is give Clinton and Democrats something they can call a victory on a popular issue like health. But they don't want to look like spoilers either.

In some ways Clinton's job is easier if he gets nothing from Congress this year, either because the GOP decides to deny him a bill or because he himself decides he'd rather start fresh next year. That way he can blame Republicans for the failed crusade and he doesn't have to decide whether to stick to his veto threat.

However, the White House and its allies for some time now have been signaling that Clinton is willing to sign something much less grandiose than the universal coverage he once said was his bottom line. It couldn't of course be called "health reform," they say; maybe insurance reform or a downpayment on health reform.

FDA ban sought for drug used for leg cramp relief

WASHINGTON (AP) — A consumer group wants the Food and Drug Administration to ban sales of a prescription drug for nighttime leg cramps, saying it's dangerous and calling reports of its effectiveness "almost folklore."

Quinine sulfate is sold in prescription and over-the-counter forms.

The FDA announced last month that it would ban the sale of nonprescription forms on Feb. 22, 1995, after reviewing reports about adverse reactions the drug caused in people taking it between 1969 and 1992.

During that period, the agency received 107 reports of problems in people using both the prescription and nonprescription forms to treat the cramps. The reports included 16 deaths, four disablements and 40 hospitalizations.

Citing that information and the lack of evidence of its effectiveness, the FDA concluded that quinine sulfate was unsafe for over-the-counter use to treat or prevent leg cramps and issued notice of the ban last month.

But Public Citizen's Health Research Group contends the prescription form, which is dispensed is doses similar to the nonprescription version, is just as dangerous and should be removed from the market immediately. It is sold under the brand name Quinamm as well as several generic versions.

The group first petitioned the FDA to ban the drug in December 1988.

Quinine sulfate is also prescribed to treat malaria, but Public Citizen's petition is not seeking to ban that use.

"They have pretty much made, in our view, an ironclad case as to why this drug is dangerous," said Dr. Sidney Wolfe, director of the research group. "It's almost folklore that this stuff has worked."

He said Thursday the group might sue if the FDA does not order an immediate ban.

FDA spokeswoman Susan Cruzan said the agency was reviewing the petition and "will determine what action is necessary for the prescription drugs."

An FDA advisory panel recommended in 1977 that certain doses of quinine sulfate for treating leg cramps should not be available for over-the-counter use until controlled studies show it is safe.

Caution advised following one cholera death

McALLEN (AP) — A McAllen man's death due to cholera has South Texas health officials warning people to take precautions when they eat in Mexico, particularly by ensuring their food is fully cooked.

"One has to be careful what he eats," said Dr. Maharaj K. Razdan, a McAllen Medical Center doctor who treated the cholera victim. "This is a disease that is spread by eating contaminated food."

The 52-year-old victim, whose name was withheld, is believed to be the Rio Grande Valley's first cholera-related death this year.

Give and take tricks

By Phillip Alder

Today's deal is another from the Ninth Worldwide Bridge Contest, held last June and sponsored by Seiko Epson Corporation and France Telecom. It features opportunities for both sides. How do you think play should proceed in five hearts?

East has what I call an "eau de cologne." It is named after the 47-11 cologne.

Even though it might work out badly, East's four-spade overcall is reasonable. And South has an automatic bid of five hearts.

West leads his singleton spade, of course. After East wins with the ace, which card should South play? If the two, it is easy for East to give his partner a spade ruff. And East's heart ace defeats the contract.

But what happens if South drops the spade king at trick one? As South knows West must have led a singleton, this gambit cannot cost.

East is likely to switch to the club three. After winning West's king with dummy's ace, South starts cashing dummy's diamonds. East ruffs the second with his heart ace while South discards his last club. But how does East know which black-suit queen to cash? If he gets it wrong, leading the club queen, South makes his contract. He ruffs, draws trumps ending in the dummy and discards his spade loser on dummy's third top diamond.

West must help his partner. While declarer is playing dummy's ace and king of diamonds, West must drop two high diamonds, say the jack and eight, as suit-preference signals for spades.

Defense often requires careful cooperation, especially when declarer makes a well-timed falsecard.

Texas teen injured in police shootout

FARMINGTON, N.M. (AP) — A Texas teen-ager was wounded in a shootout with police after he fled a motel and allegedly stole a truck outside a nearby business.

Police said they have no idea what triggered Thursday's incident.

Ralph Timothy Broesche, 15, of Brenham, Texas, was arrested Thursday and taken to San Juan Regional Medical Center for surgery on a bullet wound in his left hand, Deputy Police Chief Mike Heal said.

Broesche was armed with both a .30-30-caliber rifle and .410-gauge shotgun. Police didn't immediately know how many bullets were fired during the shootout, and they didn't know who the guns belonged to.

"We haven't got a motive at all at this point," Heal said.

At least one Farmington police car and one state police car were hit with gunfire, and a bullet passed through a door at a nearby auto repair shop.

Heal said the district attorney would decide what charges to file. He said the decision hadn't been made Thursday evening.

Police briefly closed the Bloomfield Highway near the Days Inn motel, believing that as many as three people might be in the room the boy had shared with his father, but after 21/2 hours a Special Response Team fired tear gas and flash grenades into the room and broke down the door. They found the room unoccupied.

Heal said the boy's father was working in the Farmington area, and the boy had been staying with him.

Lt. Dave Gardner said the incident began about 9:40 a.m. when Broesche called the motel desk clerk to say he was leaving, was armed, and "would shoot anything that moved."

A maintenance man who had befriended Broesche went to the boy's room. Investigators said a shotgun was pointed at the man's face.

Police were called, but Broesche went out a back window, and the first policeman to arrive, officer Raymond Nelson, came under fire from a field west of the motel, Gardner said.

Supported by state police and deputy sheriffs, police watched Broesche move through the field to Petro Wireline Service where he shot out the glass doors and waved his guns in threatening employees.

Aunt Who Gets No Thanks Considers Giving No Gifts

by Abigail Van Buren

© 1994 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I finally worked up the courage to ask my sister why her three school-age children never write thank-you notes for the gifts I have given them.

She told me they were so busy with their school work and other activities, they didn't have the time. Then she added, "Since you have no children of your own, you can't understand how hectic their lives are. Besides, they always thank you in person when they see you." (Her attitude was, "Get a life.")

Abby, doesn't she realize how much time it takes me to shop for those gifts, gift wrap them and then deliver them? I find the time to fit it into my busy schedule — children or not.

I do it because I want to — not because I want anything in return. I realize that not everyone cares about written thank-yous, but I do, and they know it. All it would take is 10 minutes and a postage stamp. I try hard to give her kids gifts that matter to them. Why can't they do something simple that matters to me?

I'm steamed enough to stop giving them gifts altogether.

It's too bad my relationship with my sister has soured over something that would have been so easy to fix.

SAD AUNTIE

DEAR SAD AUNTIE: Children cannot be expected to know what they have not been taught. I have always emphatically stressed the importance of writing thank-you notes — promptly — but I now realize that not everybody shares my opinion.

DEAR ABBY: I never thought of myself as a prude until now, but I suppose that is exactly what I am.

A divorced woman moved into our lovely little neighborhood last year. All was fine until recently. Now a lover has moved in with her. They are both in their mid-40s.

My question: What do I tell my children? I wouldn't think of telling them the truth in this situation. Could I be forgiven if I said the man is renting a room in her house? Thank you.

A PRUDE IN ABILENE, TEXAS

DEAR PRUDE: Don't lie. Your children will probably assume that the couple is married, then you won't have to tell them anything. You're welcome.

DEAR ABBY: Would you please do elderly people a favor and mention in your column that when people telephone, they should please allow a little longer to answer?

If the television is on, the call can blend in with the program. When it dawns on the viewers that the telephone ringing is their own, they may have difficulty getting up. By the time they get to the phone and lift the receiver, the caller has hung up! This is very frustrating. Not only have I missed the key part of my program, I have been left wondering who is calling.

We are not sitting at desks, you know. Please give us elderly people a little more time to answer the telephone.

ELIZABETH HEATH, WAYCROSS, GA.

DEAR ELIZABETH: Your letter rings a bell with me. There can be many reasons why it's difficult to get to the phone — and age and infirmity are only two of them. Let it ring a minimum of 10 times!

DEAR ABBY: If Leslie Barnes of Dallas doesn't provide an explanation as to why men's and women's clothing button from opposite sides, here is what I have read:

"When originally introduced, buttons were expensive and therefore used only on the clothing of the upper classes. Wealthy women were dressed by their right-handed servants, so the buttons were located on the left side of garments.

"Men dressed themselves, so the buttons were placed on the right side of garments."

BERNIE ALTMAN, CULVER CITY, CALIF.

DEAR BERNIE: Thank you. Your explanation appears reasonable — so I'm squirreling it in the back of my mind in case I'm ever on "Jeopardy."

HIV-2 virus causes AIDS less frequently

WASHINGTON (AP) — A study of prostitutes in Senegal has provided scientists with evidence that the virus known as HIV-2 causes AIDS much less frequently than its cousin, HIV-1, the strain found in the United States.

"We are hoping that by picking up the actual molecular and genetic reason we will be able to use that knowledge to slow down the life cycle and the destruction of the immune system caused by HIV-1," said Richard Marlink, executive director of the Harvard AIDS Institute.

"It's the first time we can definitively document a type of AIDS virus that causes disease much less often, a slower AIDS virus, from the time of infection onward," Marlink said.

The study, described by Marlink and his colleagues in this week's issue of the journal Science, followed women registered as "commercial sex workers," at a clinic in Dakar between 1985 and 1993. The women are examined and treated for sexually transmitted diseases twice a year.

The women were mostly in their 30s, had been sexually active since age 16 or 17, and had been registered as prostitutes four to eight years before enrolling in the study.

In a five-year period, four of 32 women infected with HIV-1 developed AIDS, the researchers found, but none of 33 women who had HIV-2 did, Marlink said.

"The likelihood of having AIDS after five years is one-third after (HIV-1) infection,", Marlink said. "But the likelihood after infection with HIV-2 to have AIDS is nearly zero or nil."

He said his study followed more than 100 women who tested positive for HIV-2 when the study began and "of those women, followed an average of four years, only one case of AIDS developed."

Only several hundred cases of HIV-2 have been found in Europe and the United States in the course of blood surveys or blood bank testing, Marlink said.

The HIV-2 variety somehow is regulating itself, he said, "and if we can figure out why, we can hopefully down regulate the HIV-1 life cycle."

Marlink said scientists need to learn whether a unique gene in HIV2 creates a product that can be used for therapy on HIV-1 patients.

2 hurt in lightning-sparked explosion in Central Texas

DONIE (AP) — Two people sustained minor injuries Thursday in a lightning-sparked explosion at oil storage tanks that triggered a blaze in this Central Texas town.

Five oil storage tanks and three tanker trucks were destroyed in the afternoon blast, fire officials said.

The injuries were the second and third in two days involving Texas victims of lightning strikes, with an Austin area teen-ager still hospitalized after Wednesday's hit.

Firefighters from five rural communities took more than 21/2 hours to extinguish the blaze from the latest strike.

"It was quite an explosion when it all went up," said Mexia Fire Chief Aaron Thompson. "I understand there were a couple of fellas in a little office building that they had right close and I think they dived out the back window or something when it went up."

The two victims were treated at the scene for minor injuries after lightning struck an open storage tank that was being used to extract salt water from crude oil, triggering the blast about 90 miles south of Dallas.

Meanwhile, Hays High School student Kristin Wilke remained in serious condition Thursday evening at Brackenridge Hospital in Austin.

The student, who had just celebrated her 18th birthday with friends, was hurt Wednesday when lightning struck the ground near her.

Wilke, a senior, was injured about 1 p.m. as she and several other students walked in the rain between buildings on the Buda campus, said Joddie Witte, Hays superintendent.

An hour before the accident, Wilke had been celebrating her 18th birthday with friends in the school cafeteria.

Justin Hendrickson, a Hays freshman, saw and heard the lightning strike.

"It sounded like a gunshot in my ear," said Hendrickson, 14. "I saw a streak of light in the corner of my eye. I turned around, and I saw her fall to the ground."

Hendrickson said three students carried Wilke to the theater building before she was taken to the hospital.

Witte said school counselors and social workers met with about a dozen students who witnessed the incident.

Buda is 15 miles southwest of Austin.

Production of red meat is up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Commercial red meat production totaled 3.36 billion pounds in July, up 1 percent from the same month in 1993, the Agriculture Department reports.

USDA defines red meat as beef, veal, pork and lamb and mutton.

Red meat production for the January-July period rose 4 percent from the previous year to 23.9 billion pounds. During the seven-month period, accumulated beef production rose 6 percent from 1993, veal was up 3 percent and pork rose 1 percent. Only lamb and mutton declined, down 6 percent.

Beef production for July totaled 2.03 billion pounds, up 2 percent from the previous year. Head kill was down 2 percent at 2.82 million. Average live weight increased by 32 pounds to 1,192 pounds per head.

Pork production was 1.29 billion pounds, a 1 percent drop from a year earlier. A total of 7.1 million hogs were slaughtered, a decline of 1 percent. The average weight per hog fell 1 pound to 252 pounds.

U.S. Air Force rejecting UFO theory

WASHINGTON (AP) — A supposed alien spacecraft discovered near Roswell, N.M., 47 years ago likely was a secret Army Air Force balloon designed to monitor Soviet nuclear testing, the Air Force concluded Thursday.

The Air Force in a report on the "Roswell Incident" said contrary claims in a wave of sensational books and television specials are "undocumented, taken out of context, self-serving or otherwise dubious."

The July 1947 discovery of wreckage on a ranch near Roswell has been at the center of longstanding disputes between UFO advocates and the government over whether the Air Force has been hiding evidence about alien spacecraft discoveries.

The Air Force began its investigation earlier this year amid charges that it was covering up the truth.

The material found near Roswell consisted of foil-wrapped fabric, wooden sticks, rubber pieces, and small I-beams with strange markings on them. A local newspaper at the time reported: Air Force Captures Flying Saucer On Ranch.

"The Air Force research did not locate or develop any information that the 'Roswell Incident' was a UFO event," wrote Col. Richard Weaver, author of the report. "The most likely source of the wreckage ... was from Project Mogul balloon trains."

Although it rejects UFO and alien theories, the report, nevertheless, suggests an interesting ancestry to the Roswell wreckage.

Project Mogul was a top-secret venture to develop balloons that would carry sensing devices aloft and alert the U.S. military of any Soviet nuclear tests. It was a high priority at a time when the government was concerned that its monopoly on nuclear weapons might be threatened.

The Roswell Incident also occurred in the midst of the so-called UFO wave, the surge of interest in unidentified flying saucers, presumably from other galaxies. Shortly after the incident, officials in what was then the Army Air Force dismissed the flying saucer speculation saying that the wreckage found near Roswell was a weather balloon.

There the matter stood until 1978 when the supermarket tabloid National Inquirer reported that Maj. Jesse Marcel, the Army Air Force intelligence officer who brought in the wreckage, claimed he had discovered UFO debris.

A series of books followed advancing the UFO theory and accusing the Air Force of coverup. The Robert Stack-hosted television show, "Unsolved Mysteries," aired a recreation of the Roswell incident and other television shows followed suit. According to the Air Force, a made-for-TV movie is in the works.

"From the rather benign description of the 'event' and the recovery of some material as described in the original newspaper accounts, the 'Roswell Incident' has since grown to mythical, if not mystical, proportions," Weaver wrote in the Air Force report.

Weaver conceded that debunking conspiracy theories is a no-win business because "pro-UFO" elements would simply dismiss the report as part of the coverup.

Rep. Steven Schiff, R-N.M., began pressing the Pentagon last year to declassify documents relating to Roswell.

The Air Force appears to have expended considerable energy on the report.

Dozens of people, including several who were in Roswell and involved in the discovery of the wreckage, as well as veterans of Project Mogul, were interviewed. Investigators also combed archives for material relating to UFOs.

In one example of the extent of the effort, the Air Force tracked down the original photo negatives of newspaper pictures showing the wreckage and sent them to "a national level organization" for digital analysis. This probably refers to the National Photo Interpretation Center, a super-secret branch of the CIA. The analysis found that the photos were of "insufficient quality" to produce substantiee results.

Walter Haut, a volunteer at the UFO Museum at Roswell, a center devoted to gathering information on this and other UFO incidents, rejected the Air Force conclusions.

"I feel very strongly about it," Haut said. Referring to those who made the original UFO claim, he said, "We're not talking about flaky people."

Employees of physicians' group have filed complaint

HOUSTON (AP) — Twenty-one former and current employees of a Houston physicians' group have asked federal officials to investigate claims that they were subjected to racial slurs by their fellow employees.

The Kelsey-Seybold Clinic employees have filed a complaint with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, alleging that in the past year they were subjected to a "systematically, pervasive and racially hostile environment."

"This is the '90s, but things are very, very bad over there. They need to be stopped," said Hope Hererra, a former Kelsey-Seybold secretary.

The complaint, filed July 6, alleges that a physician assistant at one Kelsey-Seybold clinic said a black clinic worker resembled "the fat, black, nasty, nigger maid in the play 'The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas.' "

A physician at the same clinic complained about minority workers and referred to the staff members as "niggers" and "wetbacks," the complaint alleges.

The employees, 11 of whom still work for the group, also allege that Kelsey-Seybold supervisors have given preferential treatment to white employees and routinely fired or disciplined minority workers.

Breaux Castleman, managing director for the physicians' group, said the allegations were investigated by company officials. He said negotiations with the employees have been stymied, primarily by employee demands for monetary compensation "into seven figures."

Activist pastor picked to lead nation's largest black church

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The nation's largest black church group, which once rejected Martin Luther King Jr.'s appeal to help propel the civil rights movement, elected an activist pastor to lead it into the third millennium.

The Rev. Henry J. Lyons won election late Thursday to a five-year term as president of the National Baptist Convention U.S.A. Inc.

At a victory celebration early today, Lyons vowed to work at increasing the political and economic power of blacks and make the convention a force to be reckoned with in Congress and the White House.

"Our presence must be felt, must be made known and our counsel sought," Lyons said. "We've got to let it be known we will not be taken for granted."

Lyons, 52, a convention vice president and pastor of Bethel Metropolitan Baptist Church in St. Petersburg, received 3,545 votes to win the five-man race. The Rev. W. Franklyn Richardson, a pastor in the Westchester County, N.Y., town of Mount Vernon and the convention's long-time general secretary, finished second with 3,014 votes.

The Rev. William J. Shaw, a Philadelphia pastor who is director of the ministers' division of the National Congress of Christian Education, finished third with 2,311 votes, while the Rev. C.A.W. Clark, a convention vice president and nationally known revival leader from Dallas, was fourth with 1,344 votes. A write-in candidate, the Rev. Jasper W. Williams of Atlanta, received 141 votes.

After the votes were announced, Richardson, Shaw and Clark promised to work with Lyons, who asked for their ideas in shaping a new administration.

Lyons succeeds the Rev. T.J. Jemison, the Lousiana pastor who was prohibited from seeking re-election after 12 years in office.

The election Thursday of the convention's third president in 42 years comes at a critical juncture for black churches under increasing pressure to tackle AIDS, violence, poverty and the dissolution of family life more aggressively.

In 1961, the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. and some other civil rights leaders left the convention to help form the Progressive National Baptist Convention after their candidate lost a turbulent bid for the presidency.

"America continues to look to this group for leadership ... and we've never offered them anything," Lyons said today. "We want to turn that whole image around."

With an estimated 8 million members in 33,000 churches, the convention claims to be the world's largest black organization.

Lyons said the convention will seek to work closely with the National Congressional Black Caucus, President Clinton and federal agencies to address issues blacks face in their communities, from the loss of young men with bleak economic prospects to prison to a shortage of affordable housing.

Jesse Jackson, whose presidential campaigns Lyons handled in Florida, stopped by the president-elect's headquarters early today to offer congratulations. He said Lyons may take the convention's political and social activism to another level.

Lyons said his plan for "total recovery" of the convention includes instituting a systematic plan for getting money, rather than relying on appeals and registration fees; increasing the staff at the denomination's world headquarters; publishing regular financial statements and increasing support to black schools.

During his tenure, Jemison said, the convention grew from 7 million to 8.2 million members and built the World Baptist Center in Nashville, Tenn., the first national headquarters for a predominantly black denomination.

Pleads innocent

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mickey Rourke has pleaded innocent to beating his estranged wife after a chance encounter at a Hollywood office.

Rourke was charged with spousal battery for allegedly slapping Carre Otis, 25, knocking her down and kicking her in July at their publicist's office.

Your Birthday

Saturday, Sept. 10, 1994

In the year ahead, you might do more traveling than you have done for quite some time. These trips may not be of long duration, but they could be adventurous and fun, as well as profitable.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Attitude is extremely important today, especially if you have to deal with something that is complex and distasteful. The secret to your success is to remember that all tasks are endurable. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Lady Luck continues to hover about you where your financial and commercial interests are concerned. Don't think in petty terms. Envision winning on a large scale.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It pays to be a good listener today, because you have the ability to analyze information quickly, and to take what you hear and turn it to your personal advantage.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Financial tides are beginning to trend in your favor, so be doubly alert for unusual types of opportunities today. One or more might develop.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Whether involved with a large or small group, your natural leadership inclinations will come to the fore today. Others will look to you to handle anything unexpected that occurs.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your resourceful and progressive contacts will be the persons who'll be best able to help you the most today. Don't waste time conferring with others who are too steeped in tradition.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your commercial instincts are rather acute today. There's a possibility you'll conceive something that could be profitable, not for now, but for the very near future.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Someone whose knowledge and experience you desperately need might come to your assistance today, enabling you to accomplish something you've been unable to do on your own thus far.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're a quick thinker today and your immediate responses are apt to be your best. Companions will appreciate their value perhaps even more than you do.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) New ways and methods can be found at this time to enhance your productivity where your work is concerned. Experiment with new ideas and concepts and let go of the old.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't reject any social invitations you get today, because you might meet someone extremely interesting who will introduce you to a fascinating new group.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Pay heed to any flashes of inspiration today that could improve your basic lifestyle. Your intuition may be trying to put you on the track to self-improvement.

Tigers face tough task in Loboes

Baugh hopes trip will be a good one

By TODD STANLEY
SDN Sports Editor

This year's script is the same, but Snyder head coach David Baugh hopes the second act is different.

Snyder's huge win over arch rival Sweetwater in last season's opener provided the Tigers with an emotional tidal wave that they were unable to navigate successfully in week two's 35-28 loss to the Monahans Loboes.

Coach Baugh hopes the same will not hold true this year as Snyder is on the road again back to Monahans after a colossal win over the Andrews Mustangs.

"There is no one I'd rather beat than the Monahans Loboes," he said. "In last year's contest whoever had the ball last that was going to be the winner."

Monahans is a different team this year, however. Much of that change can be attributed to the loss of star tailback Tari Jessie (6-1, 190).

Jessie was dismissed from the Monahans school district after an altercation involving a car owned by the school.

Jessie was the Loboes' Tigerkiller. Last year, he rushed for 188 yards on 25 carries and 2 touchdowns.

Monahans will rely on the skills of speedster tailback Callie Porras (5-6, 145) and the power of fullback Steven Boyett (5-7, 162).

Baugh said that he expects the 145 pound Porras will be tough to handle.

"He (Porras) might not be big, but he can move," he said. "In the Sweetwater game, he got to the outside and he was gone.

"The Sweetwater players all seemed to have the angle to catch him, but he flew right by."

Coach Baugh also believes that Monahans head coach Bren Holland will try and exploit the young defensive secondary of the Tigers.

Lobo quarterback, senior Randy Moore (5-10, 175), and senior flanker Brad Soles (6-0, 160) are a dangerous combination on roll out plays.

"He (Moore) is a good sprint out runner and thrower," Baugh said.

Despite Monahans' big offensive tackles, Baugh said that the weak point of the Lobo line may lie in senior center Chad Branham.

Branham is listed at 5'9" and 163 pounds, a description that might be a little exaggerated.

Baugh expects Snyder senior nose guard Chris Mills (5-10, 200) to have a big game.

"They (the Monahans offensive line) will have to tackle Mills in order to stop him," he said. "He needs to get through his defender and pursue the play down the line of scrimmage."

Coach Baugh, however, does want to spell Mitchell at tailback tonight. He said that sophomore L.S. McClain will get some playing time at the tailback slot.

"I want to let L.S. carry the ball some," he said. "I'd rather Mitchell carry the ball 28 times against district opponents like Frenship and Coronado, than against Andrews and Monahans."

The Snyder Tigers have a tough task handling the Monahans Loboes on their home field, but Coach Baugh is not in the mood to lose his eighth straight to Coach Holland.

Maybe this year's script will end with a happy ending for Baugh and his Tigers instead of as a tragic one.

Red Raiders fall despite strong first half showing

Nebraska rushes for 524 yards in 42-16 win

LUBBOCK, (AP) — Tommie Frazier ran for two touchdowns and threw for one as No. 1 Nebraska broke open a close game in the second half and beat Texas Tech 42-16 Thursday night.

Lawrence Phillips helped Nebraska (2-0) pull away, running for two touchdowns and most of his 175 yards in the third quarter. Tech got as close at 14-9 before Phillips took control.

The Cornhuskers ran for 524 yards using Phillips, Cory Schlesinger and Clinton Childs. Frazier rushed for 84 yards and threw for 88.

It was defense that kept Texas Tech (1-1) within reach of Nebraska until midway through the third quarter. The unit, led by linebacker Zach Thomas, sacked Frazier once and had four tackles for losses.

Frazier gave Nebraska a 7-0 lead just 2:01 into the game when he sprinted 58 yards down the right sideline, then made it 14-0 by going the last 3 yards of a 98-yard drive early in the second quarter.

Tech's first pass completion of the game, with 12:22 left in the half, was a big one, a 43-yarder from Tony Darden to split end Field Scovell that set up a 49-yard field goal by Jon Davis.

The Red Raiders made it 14-9 early in the third quarter on Zebbie Lethridge's 6-yard pass to tight end Scott Aylor. A 2-point conversion attempt failed when Lethridge fumbled.

Then Phillips took over.

He vaulted 2 yards to make it 21-9, then sprinted 56 yards to give the Cornhuskers a safe 28-9 lead.

Frazier hit Eric Alford with a 35-yard TD pass to give the Cornhuskers a 35-9 with 10:56 left in the game.

Tech nearly gave away a touchdown in the fourth period when Darden ran 11 yards to the 2, only to fumble. A Nebraska defender jumped at the ball, but missed it and Tech tackle Ben Kaufman recovered in the end zone with 6:24 to go.

District 6 Six-man preview

Borden County Coyotes at Grady Wildcats

Grady comes off a big 33-12 win over District 3 Six-man power Ropes. Borden County kicked its season off with a 27-19 win over Dawson. The two meet Friday night to decide who will start the season off 2-0.

Last season, Grady made it to the state semifinals on the backs of two outstanding juniors.

Those players are now seniors who have another season under their belts and they hope to show off their experience against the Coyotes.

One of the seniors is running back Tommy Hewtty (5-8, 150), who had 1,096 yards rushing during the 1993 regular season. The other senior is quarterback Timmy Garza (5-6, 135), who finished 1993 with 1,252 yards and 16 touchdowns on 62 completions.

Borden County will look to its own two big guns, senior quarterback Kurt Hess and end Doug Flanigan.

Last week against Dawson, Hess rushed for 177 yards on 23 carries and threw for 78 yards and two touchdowns.

Flanigan led the defense which only allowed Dawson 84 rushing yards.

The story for Coyote head coach Bobby Avery is senior James Cooley who had almost 90 yards of total offense and two touchdowns.

Patton Springs Rangers at Ira Bulldogs

The Ira Bulldogs took a shot below the belt last week as they fell to Three Way 45-0. This week they take on the Patton Springs Eagles who, like Ira, are small on numbers, but big on heart.

Patton Springs is coming off a similar 44-24 drubbing by the McLean Tigers and they hope to rebound this week by using the same tactics that Three Way used to beat Ira, spread the defense thin.

The Ira defense will need to stand tall, but to win a football game a team must score points.

Ira needs to have a better game offensively if they want to win their home opener.

In order to accomplish that task, the Bulldogs will have to cut down on their charitable contributions.

Last week, Ira fumbled the ball four times. All four tornovers were converted into touchdowns by Three Way.

Running back/receiver Eddie Brasuel needs to have another good night running the football. He had 11 carries last week for 97 yards.

Tyrel Sterling and Scott Strong need to contribute, as well if the Ira offense is going to be effective.

The Rangers depend heavily on senior running back Teddy White to provide the offense.

Travis Collom, Ira's senior linebacker, needs to match up with White on every play and mirror him all over the field if the Bulldogs are to shut down the Patton Springs offense.

Southland Eagles at Hermleigh Cardinals

Hermleigh head coach David Rogers and his Cardinals are coming off an emotional 34-12 victory over the Loop Longhorns.

The Cardinals look for another big performance from the backfield duo of senior Chris Roemisch and junior Joey Sanchez.

Southland has a mirror image of Sanchez playing for them.

Quarterback Joe Sanchez will trigger the Eagle offense.

He and fellow backfield mates fullback Tony Ayala and tailback Jimmy Garcia look to get carry the offensive load for head coach Jonathan Lorenz.

The Eagles are coming off a disasterous 56-12 loss to the Whitharral Panthers.

Defensively, the Cardinals' Jimmy Digby and freshman John McHaney will try to stop the struggling Eagles offense.

Stanley's picks part II

With an extra day to think about this week's selections, I figure to have an almost unbeatable series of picks. My record last week speaks for itself.

When the weekend's football games were over my record stood at 14-6, a .700 average, tops among the coffee drinkers.

The first part of my picks for this week appeared in Thursday's paper. A recap of those scores shows Snyder over Monahans, 21-17; Borden County over Grady, 35-21; Hermleigh over Southland, 28-24; Ira over Patton Springs, 21-10; Permian over A&M Consolidated, 30-20; Canyon over Levelland, 17-10; Oregon over Hawaii, 42-35; Iowa over Iowa State, 35-7; Oklahoma over Texas A&M, 30-10 and Rice over Tulane, 28-7.

The rest of Stanley's super selections starts off with the Michigan playing the mother of all college football teams under the watchful eyes of "Touchdown Jesus". I do not believe a thing Coach Lou Holtz says about his team.

Golden Domers shine over Michigan 38-17.

Southern Cal travels to the friendly confines of Beaver Stadium in Happy Valley to take on Penn State. Coach Joe Paterno will send the Trojans and their fight song back to Los Angeles with a loss.

Nittany Lions roll over USC 28-21.

Both Tennessee and Georgia lost key players last week. The advantage goes to Georgia who is at home between the hedges.

Georgia sends the Volunteers home 28-24.

To the professional ranks, where the battle of Texas takes place on Sunday. Over the past few years this match up has been close, not this year.

Dallas destroys the Oilers 35-16.

Last week New England played well against the Dolphins and the Bills struggled against the Jets, the defending AFC champs fall to the rising Patriots.

Pats buck the Bills 30-28.

In the opening week of the NFL season, Dan Marino threw five touchdown passes. That won't happen again this week.

Packers pack the fish 24-17.

The game everyone has been waiting for will be in Kansas City Sunday. All-World and former Forty-Niners quarterback Joe Montana takes on his disciple Steve Young. This is the hardest pick all week. Montana will go down as the best quarterback of all time, but the Niners have the best team.

San Francisco scalps the Chiefs 35-24.

In the final pick of the week, "Attack of the Aztec Part II" shows up in Tampa Bay as Marshall Faulk and ex-Palo Alto High School quarterback Jim Harbaugh run wild.

Colts bash the Bucs 28-10.

JV gridders fall, 19-14

The Snyder junior varsity football team suffered a disappointing 19-14 loss to the visiting Monahans Loboes.

In the first half, the Tigers looked strong as Snyder running back Scott Sanders started the scoring with a first quarter touchdown jaunt down the sidelines

The ensuing extra point try was blocked.

With 2:13 left in the first quarter, Monahans took over possession on their own 5-yard line.

On first and ten from the five, the Monahans tailback took a pitch and scampered 95 yards around the left side for a touchdown to give the Loboes a 7-6 lead.

Despite an impressive drive before the end of the first half, quarterback Russell Riggins mishandled the snap from center at the Lobo 10-yard line and Monahans recovered.

In the second half, the Tigers tried valiantly to come back, but fell short in their effort 19-14.

Snyder frosh win big, 24-6

Snyder head coach Lavon Webb and his freshmen pulled off a big 24-6 Thursday road win over the Monahans Loboes.

Leading the way for the Tigers was running back James Burks who had 126 yards rushing and two touchdowns.

Ben Boyd, another running back, had 60 yards rushing and one touchdown.

Snyder quarterback Kyle Beck threw a 10 yard touchdown pass to D.J. Rodriguez during the game.

Coach Webb was pleased with the effort.

"Our guys really played tough," he said. "I was impressed with how hard they played."

Stich & Agassi grab U.S. Open spotlight

NEW YORK (AP) — Twelve days into the U.S. Open, the spotlight is on Andre Agassi. Michael Stich couldn't be happier.

"Let everybody think Agassi's supposed to win," Stich said. "I like that."

Stich, at No. 4 the highest seed left in the men's field, grabbed a spot in the semifinals with a 6-4, 6-4, 6-7 (7-9), 6-4 victory over Sweden's Jonas Bjorkman on Thursday night. His semifinal opponent will be Karel Novacek of the Czech Republic, who defeated Peru's Jaime Yzaga 6-2, 6-7 (7-9), 6-1, 5-7, 6-3.

Super Saturday's other semifinal will pit Agassi against ninth-seeded Todd Martin, guaranteeing an American will be in Sunday's title match.

Today, the women's semifinal matched top-seeded and defending champion Steffi Graf against No. 7 Jana Novotna, while No. 2 Arantxa Sanchez Vicario was paired against No. 8 Gabriela Sabatini. The women's final will be played Saturday.

Today's schedule began with the men's doubles final: Jacco Eltingh and Paul Haarhuis of the Netherlands against Australians Todd Woodbridge and Mark Woodforde.

On Thursday, Elna Reinach of South Africa and Patrick Galbraith of Tacoma, Wash., teamed to win the mixed doubles championship.

3 arrested

Area peace officers made three arrests Thursday during an otherwise quiet period.

Employees at Don's Value King contacted police at 12:11 p.m. in reference to having a shoplifter in custody. Officers arrested a 35-year-old woman for Class B theft, shoplifting.

At 4:53 p.m., police arrested a 28-year-old man in the 1100 block of 26th Street on warrants for expired motor vehicle registration, no valid Texas operator's license, failure to maintain financial responsibility and failure to appear.

Officers arrested an 18-year-old man in the 400 block of 30th Street at 9:09 p.m. on outstanding DPS warrants for speeding, failure to appear and seat belt violation.

Peace officers also investigated reports of prowlers, family disturbances and loud noises. No other arrests were made.

Robberies may be linked

HOUSTON (AP) — Police are investigating whether eight bank robberies in the city are linked, following the heist of a northwest Houston bank.

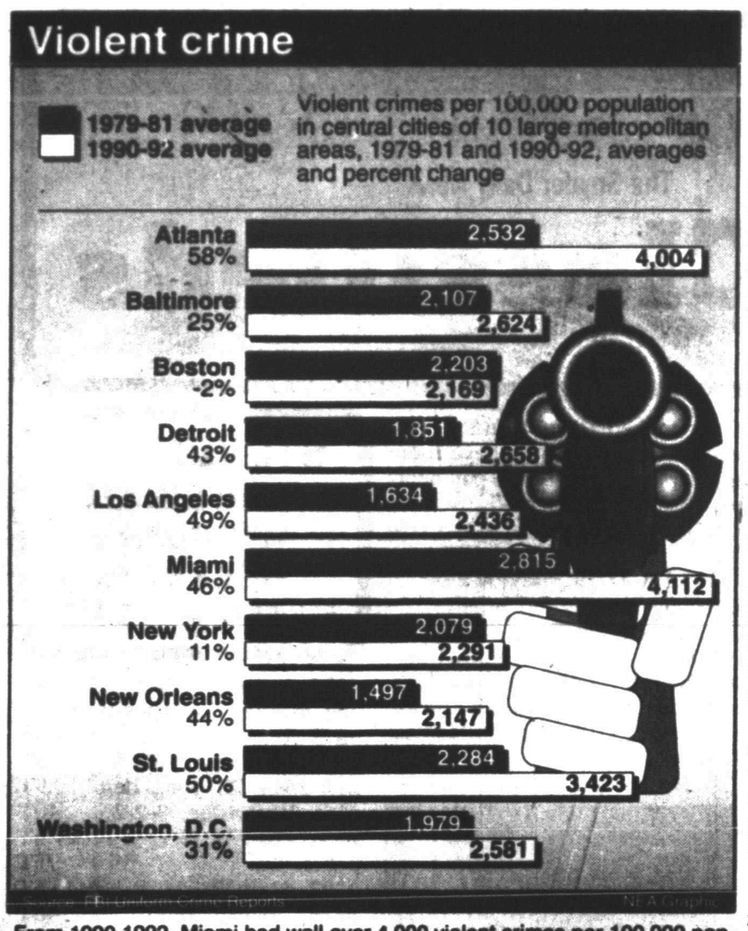
Three masked men armed with semiautomatic pistols burst into the NationsBank at about 9:30 a.m. Thursday.

The men ordered everyone in the bank to lie on the floor. One of the men then jumped over the tellers' counter and forced a bank employee to open the vault. The robbers escaped in a 1994 white Honda Civic.

Houston police officer Darryl Cherry said it is possible the men are part of an organized group that has been hitting banks since last May.

Cherry said there are similarities in the robberies: in all of the heists the men wore black ski masks and used a stolen car to escape before abandoning the automobile.

The other incidents occurred between May and August and usually involved two robbers. There are no similarities in the banks other than most of them were in southwest Houston.



From 1990-1992, Miami had well over 4,000 violent crimes per 100,000 population. Atlanta, with fewer crimes during that period, underwent nearly a 60 percent increase in crimes when compared to 1979-1981.

Abortion compromise takes floor at U.N. conference

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — With a hard-bargained compromise position on abortion finally in hand, delegates at U.N. population talks today moved on to other contentious issues, including contraception and teen-age sex.

A small committee on Thursday laboriously worked out a single paragraph dealing with abortion in the conference's 113-page draft Program of Action. Although the document is non-binding, the language on abortion was bitterly fought by the Vatican and a handful of Roman Catholic countries.

U.N. officials said the full committee that began considering the abortion text today would extend its deliberations to Saturday. The text would go to the whole conference on Monday.

Countries participating in the conference are trying to come up with a blueprint to control population growth. Currently the world population is growing by a record 90 million people a year.

The draft sets a target of spending $17 billion a year worldwide by 2000 for basic health care for women and children, family planning and AIDS prevention. That's projected to rise to nearly $22 billion a year by 2015.

While abortion so far has dominated the nine-day conference, which began Monday, this morning delegates debated the chapter on education, which calls for the eradication of illiteracy and equal education for girls and boys.

The conference will also discuss contraception, adolescent sex and the concept of "fertility regulation" — a phrase the Vatican views as a code word for abortion.

Delegates discussed today whether immigrants have the "right" to be united with their families. Some nations with many emigrants say they should, but countries on the receiving end say this would undermine efforts to control immigration.

A small working group began discussions today on reproductive rights, which a draft text calls the "right of couples and individuals to make decisions concerning reproduction free of discrimination, coercion and violence."

Libya, Iran, Algeria, Indonesia and the Central African Republic called for the deletion of the reference to "individuals" — single people — on the basis that it violated Islamic values, which proscribe extramarital sex.

However, Nicolaas Biegman, a Dutch diplomat presiding at negotiating sessions, said individuals' reproductive rights have been recognized since the 1974 population conference and that the idea was "to protect, in most cases, the woman in the couple."

Vatican delegate Diarmuid Martin said the definition of reproductive health could "suggest the possible right to abortions, or be misconstrued as such." The ambiguity should be removed, he said.

The campaign by the Holy See against abortion has infuriated many, including U.N. officials, delegates, private agency officials, activists and even host country Egypt.

"The meetings have been hijacked by a minority of the Vatican and ... (its) vassal states on the abortion issue," said Alexander C. Sanger, president of Planned Parenthood of New York City.

The proposed compromise text on the abortion paragraph uses the World Health Organization definition of unsafe abortion as "a procedure for terminating an unwanted pregnancy either by persons lacking the necessary skills or in an environment lacking the minimum medical standards or both."

It changes a reference to "legal" abortion — objected to by the Vatican — to abortion that "is not against the law." It also says abortion should not be encouraged as a method of family planning, its legality should be left to individual countries and that that women with unwanted pregnancies must be treated with compassion, not punishment.

The text has the backing of the United States, European Union and Nordic nations, and some Muslim states, including Iran and Pakistan.

Bryan man claims Lotto

AUSTIN (AP) — A Bryan carpenter has come into some big money.

Cabinetmaker Leslie Warren received a check for $509,227 from Texas Lottery officials Friday.

Every year for the next 19, Warren will get $506,000 a year for having the lone winning ticket in last Saturday's $10.1 million Lotto Texas jackpot, officials said.

Warren, who won on Quick-Pick numbers, asked for minimal publicity on his good fortune, lottery officials said.

This Saturday's Lotto Texas jackpot is back up to an estimated $10 million.

seek an IRA cease-fire.

The Irish Times of Dublin reported today that Adams hoped to address members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in Washington later this month, as part of an extended tour.

Protestant gunmen, who want Northern Ireland to remain in the United Kingdom, have indicated they are seriously considering matching the IRA cease-fire.

"Please ... find in your hearts that this is the time to stop," Eames said in his appeal to the so-called "loyalist" gunmen, who have killed more people than the IRA in recent years.

An umbrella organization for the two main outlawed Protestant paramilitary groups on Thursday demanded reassurance:

— That the IRA cease-fire is permanent.

— That the Irish National Liberation Army, an IRA splinter group renowned for attacks on Protestants, also would abandon violence.

— That the British government made no secret deals to win the IRA truce.

Many Protestants fear that Prime Minister John Major has secretly agreed to relinquish British control of Northern Ireland. Major has said the IRA must make its commitment to a cease-fire clearer before his government will begin talks with Sinn Fein.

The Rev. Roy Magee, a Presbyterian minister in touch with the Protestant paramilitaries, said he thought the statement by the Combined Loyalist Military Command "indicates that they are thinking the matter through and they are taking seriously what the IRA has said."

The loyalist command represents the Ulster Defense Association, which has killed 12 people in Northern Ireland this year, and the Ulster Volunteer Force, which has killed 19. Each killed a Catholic since the IRA cease-fire was announced Aug. 31.

The IRA, responsible for more than half of the nearly 3,200 deaths in Northern Ireland's conflict since 1969, has killed 17 this year and the INLA six.

Security consultant denies he was at the murder scene

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A private eye with a celebrity clientele denied he was shadowing O.J. Simpson's ex-wife when she was slashed to death.

"I only wish that this were true," Anthony Pellicano told The Associated Press on Thursday. "Imagine, I watch O.J. do it or someone else do it. Think of the money I could make. I would be a hero to O.J. or a hero to the public. I'm saying, why can't this be true?"

Pellicano, who has worked for Michael Jackson and Roseanne, said he has been subpoenaed to testify before a grand jury because he was wrongly fingered as a potential witness by John Dunton.

Dunton, a convicted forger, was jailed for contempt on Wednesday for refusing to appear before the grand jury investigating Simpson's friend, Al "A.C." Cowlings.

According to Pellicano, Dunton told police he saw the sleuth in a car outside Ms. Simpson's Brentwood home on June 12, the night she and Ronald Goldman were killed.

"I don't think police believe him," Pellicano said. "I think he made the whole thing up to police and when he was called before a grand jury and was put under oath his attorney told him to shut up."

Dunton's lawyer, Robert Rentzer, was unavailable for comment Thursday, his receptionist said.

Simpson, 47, has pleaded innocent to two counts of first-degree murder. His trial is scheduled to begin Sept. 26.

Pellicano said his name would be surfacing again in the Simpson case: He's working for Detective Mark Fuhrman, who found a bloody glove outside Simpson's estate.

Defense attorneys have tried to portray Fuhrman as a racist. Pellicano wouldn't discuss the Fuhrman job except to say his client isn't a racist.

In other developments Thursday:

— Cowlings' friend and porn actress Jennifer Peace, 23, met with prosecutors Thursday.

Her attorney, Elliot Abelson, confirmed that investigators searched her home and seized audio tapes and phone records. He didn't know whether any of the tapes were conversations between Ms. Peace and Cowlings or Simpson.

— CBS News reported that a county pathologist who performed the autopsy on Ms. Simpson may have overlooked a human bite mark on her upper back.

The network said the bite is clear on autopsy photos but was not mentioned by Dr. Irwin Golden in his official report or during his testimony at Simpson's preliminary hearing.

pated local sick leave. Then, if an employee member of the CSLB has exhausted all accumulated state and local sick leave days, and vacation days, he or she may apply for extra days from the "bank." The purpose of the bank is to help employees who suffer catastrophic injury or disease.

In other business Thursday the board:

—Approved a bid of $28,350 from Altrue Computers, Inc. of Abilene for computers for the high school business department.

—Approved Texas Association of School Boards policy updates, primarily pertaining to changes since the career ladder was abolished.

—Heard from Diane Perkins, a parent, who asked that the district dress code include a physical description of the length of shorts and dresses. She said the current policy has no physical description and is subject to opinion. It has caused antimosity among some students, she said, who feel that some teachers and administrators are using it as a tool for harrasment. She cited occasions in which her high school-age daughter had worn shorts or dresses two or three times without a problem, only to be "called down" on the third or fourth time.

—Heard from Michael and Noreen Taylor, who have a two children attending Stanfield Elementary — a kindergartener who is dismissed at 2:45 p.m. and a second grader who is dismissed at 3:30 p.m. The Taylors want the younger child to be allowed to stay in a room with bus students who wait until 3:30, so that the youngster can walk home with the second grader. However, district rules say that the only children who can wait in the bus room are those who will be riding the bus.

"I'm not asking for any special treatment," said Michael Taylor. "The bus room is already there. It's already in place. I'm just asking that my boy be allowed to sit with those other children and wait for his sister....My children have transportation needs just like children who live out in the country."

It was pointed out that to accommodate the Taylor's request would cause an overall change in district policy and the possibility of adding additional supervision in the bus rooms throughout the district. Board President Charles Anderson told the Taylors that he did not think the board would want to change policy, but did say that the situation "will be looked into."

—Visited a CAI lab and watched children work oncomputers, then heard a brief presentation from Dale Byrd, SISD director of technology, on the program.

—Approved payment of bills and previous minutes.

Trustees present Thursday were Anderson, Luann Burleson, Janet Stribling, Geraldine Parker, Richard Chambers and Mark McCormick. Glenn Clarady was absent.

U.S. and North Vietnam...

American vets told they can help speed up reconciliation

HANOI, Vietnam (AP) — The architect of Hanoi's victory in the Vietnam War, Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, told American veterans today they could help speed up the reconciliation between their once hostile nations.

Four members of the Vietnam Veterans of America had earlier handed over to their former Vietnamese foes a briefcase of documents and a battered canteen as clues to the fate of Vietnamese missing in action from the war.

The veterans also turned over yellowing photographs, pages from diaries and hand-drawn maps of burial sites that the group's president, James L. Brazee, said should help account for at least 1,250 missing North Vietnamese soldiers.

The VVA collected the items from its members, who had taken them as battlefield souvenirs more than 20 years ago.

Giap agreed with Brazee, of Lafayette, La., that Vietnamese and American veterans can help bridge lingering differences between their countries, which are moving to re-establish diplomatic ties. Washington broke off diplomatic relations in April 1975 after North Vietnam's victory.

"I think the process of normalization should take place more quickly, and the veterans can play a positive role," said Giap, who was North Vietnam's defense minister and armed forces commander for most of the war.

Giap launched the Tet Offensive in 1968, a bold attack against South Vietnam's cities that proved decisive in shaking U.S. support for the war. But he was pushed aside after his mentor, revolutionary leader Ho Chi Minh, died in 1969, and credit for the communist victory went Gen. Van Tien Dung.

In an earlier meeting, Brazee told Gen. Tran Van Quang, president of the Vietnam Veterans Association, that "as fellow veterans we have much in common because we understand the horror of war."

Reno ready to release funds for crime bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Janet Reno says she's ready to turn the crime bill from a piece of paper to reality — including the start of efforts to hire thousands of new police officers to walk neighborhood beats.

Reno told reporters that Associate Attorney General John Schmidt, the No. 3 department official, would coordinate implementation of the $30.2 billion bill. Someone with police experience would be hired to oversee efforts to place 100,000 new police officers on the streets by the year 2000.

President Clinton is scheduled to sign the bill Tuesday. Besides the beefed up police forces, the measure will toughen penalties, create 60 new death penalty crimes, ban 19 named assault-style weapons and copycats and build thousands of new prison cells.

Reno said the department will not dictate to states and communities how to spend federal crime bill funds.

"We cannot implement the crime bill by Washington telling communities what to do," she said.

Reno said the department will focus immediately on:

—Meeting with police chiefs, mayors, corrections officers and other state and local officials to determine their needs under the legislation.

—Disbursing 250 grants from previously appropriated money to hire 2,000 police officers who "will walk the beats in the neighborhoods."

—Discussing the bill's criminal provisions with U.S. attorneys across the country.

—Establish a toll-free hot line for states and cities to obtain information on the law.

Reno said she expected that 20,000 additional police officers would be on the streets in the first 16 months of the law, with the number reaching 40,000 by October 1996.

Also by the 1996 date, Reno said she expected 300,000 young people to be involved in prevention programs.

Marilyn Monroe stamp planned for next year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Marilyn, music and the military are likely candidates for next year's postage stamps.

Various poses of actress Marilyn Monroe are being evaluated for a 1995 stamp, one that officials hope will repeat the runaway success of the Elvis Presley stamp a year ago.

Programs for stamp collectors brought in $250 million last year, led by the success of the king of rock 'n' roll.

And that's nearly all profit for the financially pressed Postal Service, since it doesn't have to perform any work for the stamps saved by collectors and music fans.

Other issues aimed at collectors next year will likely be the final year of the World War II series and stamps commemorating the Civil War.

Officiating will be the Rev. Bob Rhodes, minister of the Northside Baptist Church in Snyder. Burial will follow in Hillside Memorial Gardens.

Born on May 13, 1927 in Austin, she married Willis Henry Pope on May 13, 1947 in California. He died in 1976.

Mrs. Pope was a former resident of Snyder.

Survivors include a son, Bobby Pope of Fort Worth; a daughter, Kathie Ballard of Abilene; four grandchildren; and four great-grandchildren.

Two dogs maul woman

IRVING (AP) — A woman was severely mauled today by two dogs who attacked her as she walked to work.

Barbara Fouts, 44, of Irving, was in fair condition with shredded muscles and tendons in her right arm and puncture wounds in her left arm, said Yvonne Wilson, spokeswoman at Parkland Memorial Hospital in Dallas.

Ms. Fouts, a nurse's aide, was attacked at about 5:40 a.m. by a Rottweiler and a pit bull, police Lt. Richard Bailey said.

"Officers responded on our report of two large dogs attacking a person in the yard. I understand she had been walking on the street, and the dogs attacked her on the street and dragged her into the yard," he said.

The Rottweiler was shot and killed by an officer. The pit bull fled.

Officers were investigating why the dogs were loose.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

BORN TO THE PURPLE

THE COLOR THAT DENOTES ROYALTY IN ANCIENT AND IN MODERN TIMES IS PURPLE. POSSIBLY THIS IS SO BECAUSE ANYTHING PURPLE WAS COSTLY AND CONSEQUENTLY ITS USE WAS THE PRIVILEGE OF THE WEALTHY AND THE HIGHLY PLACED. RICH CLOTHS OF PURPLE WERE USED AS COVERING FOR THE SEATS OF PRINCELY PALANQUINS AS NOTED IN THE SONGS OF SOLOMON (CHAP. 3:9,10), ALSO FOR THE DECK AWNINGS ON LUXURIOUS SHIPS AS NOTED IN EZEKIEL (CH.27:7), ALSO FOR THE DRAPERY OF MANY IDOLS OF THE HEATHEN AND FOR THE HANGINGS IN THE TABERNACLES AND THE GARMENTS OF THE HIGH PRIESTS. THE PURPLE DYE WAS OBTAINED FROM VARIOUS KINDS OF SHELLFISH. THE AMOUNT YIELDED BY EACH FISH WAS VERY SMALL SO THAT MUCH LABOR WAS REQUIRED TO COLLECT A QUANTITY OF THE STUFF WHICH MADE THE PRICE CORRESPONDINGLY GREAT. SO THE SAYING "BORN TO THE PURPLE" REALLY DID SIGNIFY A PERSON'S HIGH ESTATE.
