Lindbergh Carries First Airmail To British Honduras

"EAGLE" OPENS NEW ROUTE TO PAN-AMERICA

Air Hero Observes His 27th Birthday by Flying New Mail Line

CROWDS GREET PLANE

Ace Leaves Miami at First Break of Day, Landing First at Havana

BELIZE, British Honduras, Feb 4. (UP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh celebrated his 27th birthday here tonight by completing the first part of his three-day flight from Miami, Fla., to Cristobal, Panama Canal Zone, inaugurating the new Pan-American airway route through Central America.

Lindbergh landed his twin-motored amphibian plane in the harbor at 3:58 p. m. after a 600-mile flight from Havana Cuba, in less than six hours.

Two Passengers

He was accompanied by Col. J. A. Hambleton, vice president of the Pan-American Airways, Inc., which has the air mail contract between the United States and the canal zone, and Harry L. Buskey, radio operator and mechanic. The fliers will remain here as guests of members of the American colony tonight.

A large crowd awaited arrival of the big plane.

Lindbergh and his passengers left Miami at 6:08 a. m. on a flight which is scheduled to cover 2,327 miles. He landed at Havana at 8:20 a. m. and rested there for an hour while the plane was refueled.

He was accompanied to Havana by J. T. Tripple, president of the Pan-American Airways, Inc., who left the party there and returned to Florida by plane.

Greeted by Crowd

A large crowd met Lindbergh at the Havana flying field. Julio De La Torre, representing President Machado, expressed the government's unofficial greeting to the American aviator. Lindbergh replied briefly, saying he was glad to return to Cuba. He was presented with a huge birthday cake by government officials who had come to the field. American Ambassador Judah also greeted the fliers.

Taking off for Belize, another point which Lindbergh visited on his long Central and South American tour last year, the big plane was quickly lost in the distance. There was no word from the fliers until the craft settled gently at Belize harbor.

The flight of approximately 600 miles from Havana was made in fast time.

The route which Lindbergh will follow from Belize takes him to Tela, Honduras, Tuesday morning. He visited Tela on his previous tour. From Tela he will cross to Puerta Arenas, Cost Rica, and thence to Managua, Nicaragua, where the second over-night stop will be made.

The Wednesday morning flight will be to Cristobal, the final point on the route.

STEWART LETS MONEY SPEAK

Imperilled Oil Chieftain Cuts Triple Melon

CHICAGO, Feb. 4 (INS—A record-breaking dividend of 50 per cent, amounting to one-half for each share of stock, was announced here today by the directors of the Standard Oil company of Indiana.

In the fact of the "battle of millions" for control of the company between John D. Rockefeller Jr. and Col. Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of directors, the company immediately climaxed its 50 per cent stock dividend with an extra cash dividend of 50 cents per share.

These payments, the company further announced, will be made in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 62½ cents a share.

The dividends are payable to all stockholders of record at the close of business Feb. 16, 1929.

While the announcement of the dividends was made by the board of directors without comment, on LaSalle street, Chicago's financial center, the "melon cutting" was viewed as another blow by Stewart against Rockefeller. It was declared in the financial district that the big dividend showed that Stewart's executive ability had been demonstrated in striking fashion and that his ousting by Rockefeller would hardly "be tolerated by stockholders of the concern."

WORK STARTS FEB. 20TH ON SCOTT BRIDGE

County Approves Company's Bond for Building of Structure

SUPPLIES PURCHASED

Special Meeting Called Thursday to Hear Plea Of Aid Society

Work on the construction of the new bridge across Wichita river at Scott avenue will begin on Feb. 20, members of the county commissioners were told Monday when they approved the bond and signed the contract with the Luten Bridge company, of Little Rock, Ark., builders.

Completed Nov. 1

The bridge is to cost $68,000 and is to be completed around Nov. 1, 1929, according to the plans of the company.

The commissioners spent most of Monday in compiling dozens of bids for county supplies, from nails to dynamite, to be used by the commissioners and the county officials throughout the year. Supplies valued at more than $50,000 were contracted for. The court ruled out all bids for gas and oil except those offered by Morgan and Cain, of Iowa Park, for the supply of precinct No. 3. All bids for stationery and for groceries, including food for the county farm, the county jail, and for road gangs, were rejected, and the auditor authorized to readvertise.

Each commissioner chose from numerous offers the lowest bidders on all supplies, including lumber for bridges, cement for culverts, wire and posts for fences and other road material, the bids offered separately on lists prepared for each precinct. A compilation of the bids and awards will be announced later.

In order to consider the requests of Miss Katheryn Henricle of the Children's Aid society for the payment of past and present board bills for dependent children, the court will hold a special session at 1:30 Thursday afternoon. Other routine matters which were not reached Monday will be acted upon at that time.

BONE DRYS IN TEXAS HOUSE SCORE POINT

Bill Allowing Liquor Search On Testimony of Two Witnesses Favored

HOT WORDS IN FIGHT

Georgetown Solon And Weatherford Minister Champion Bill

AUSTIN, Feb. 4. (AP)—Bone drys in the house won a temporary victory today when they sent the search and seizure bill, sponsored by Representative Graves of Georgetown to engrossment after a day-long battle. They failed, however, to muster the necessary three-fourths majority to suspend the rules and vote on final passage. The bill would permit the issue of a search warrant on information from two creditable witnesses.

Sharp verbal clashes between drys and champions of constitutional rights marked efforts of Graves to secure final passage of his measure. After more than an hour of wrangling, the house recessed that opponents and lawmakers backing the bill might align their forces for a final gesture.

Representatives Graves and Forbes, the latter a Weatherford minister, called on "friends of prohibition to free the hands of officers from shackles" which they declared existed only in relation to searches for liquor.

Representative Forbes was interrupted by Representative Gates of Runge, who asked: "Isn't it dry enough for you? It sure is for me."

"No, sir," Forbes replied. "We want to make it bone dry in Texas."

The attack on the measure was led by Representative Anderson of San Antonio, Kenyon of Galveston and Hopkins of Gonzales.

An amendment offered by Representative Kenyon, providing that a search warrant could only be issued after facts on which suspected law violation was based, drew fire from sponsors of the bill, who contended that it would seriously interfere with the purpose of the measure.

The bill would permit prosecution for unlawful sale or delivery of intoxicants in any county to which or through which they were transported.

Blushing Red Man Tells How White Wife Won His Hand and Fortune

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4 (AP)—A bashful, smiling Indian told a senate committee today how he married against his will.

Made wealthy by an Oklahoma oil well, Jackson Barnett, member of the Creek tribe, admitted sheepishly before his "paleface" wife that she proposed to him on their second meeting, but the wife, called to the stand, refused to waive immunity and her testimony was not heard. The committee is investigating the marriage, described in other testimony as a "kidnaping."

He "Doesn't Know"

Much of the Indian's story was a repetition of "I don't know" but now and then he answered questions more fully. The courts have declared him incompetent. He came here with his wife in response to a subpoena.

Once Senator Pine, Republican, Oklahoma, asked him wether he knew the difference between a $5 and a $20 bill.

His answer, "Do you?" drew a roar of laughter.

The Indian's testimony began with a rambling account of his marriage in Kansas and his subsequent removal from Oklahoma to Los Angeles, where he said he had a home "like the movie actors at Hollywood to live in." Pictures of the mansion were put into the record.

The reappraisements were on public free school lands.

He made the statement in reply to the committee's request for certain information covering operations of the land office under the reappraisement acts.

The committee adjourned until Thursday after ordering its request for the information and Robison's reply placed in the record.

Senator Moore of Greenville at first objected to either the committee request or Robison's statement being released to the press, but later withdrew his protest, after E. F. TESTIMONY IN BALDWIN DEATH CASE FINISHED

Witnesses Tell of Letter Believed to Be Cause Of Slaying

NEIGHBOR WARNED

Three-Cornered Mixup Of Families Revealed In Frederick Trial

By C. W. ROGERS
Staff Correspondent

FREDERICK, Okla., Feb. 4.—The history of what is called a "warning letter" claimed to have been written by one on the "inside" of alleged domestic irregularities between members of two other families, was reviewed in the testimony of witnesses called today in the trial of Allen Tutt for the murder of S. G. Baldwin, pioneer Tillman county farmer, last December.

The case tonight had reached the arguments, and the charge to the jury is expected to be delivered by District Judge Frank Mathews Tuesday morning.

Shooting Over Letter

Tutt, 23 years old, who lives eight miles east of Grandfield, has been in jail since the slaying of Baldwin Dec. 15 last. At the examining trial held shortly after he was arrested on a charge of murder, it was brought out that the shooting had followed the discovery by Tutt that S. R. Tixier, a neighbor, had received a "warning letter" informing him (Tixier) of an affair in which his wife was alleged to be involved.

Testimony corroborated this today, when Tixier, on the stand, said that he had received a letter "apparently written in Baldwin's hand," and when Sheriff Jenks McCorcle testified Tutt had told him shortly after the shooting that Baldwin had "confessed" to writing the letter before dying from gunshot wounds.

Pistol Identified

Other witnesses included W. O. Whitner, of Grandfield, who identified a pistol introduced in the evidence, as one which he had loaned Tutt on the day of the shooting. Dr. W. A. Fuge, of Grandfield, testified that Baldwin had been shot in the back; and H. D. Barnes, deputy sheriff at the time of the affair, said that on the night of the shooting Tutt had remarked to him:

"I had to shoot him, but I hated to."

people of Texas, by whom Robison was elected and to whom he is obligated."

"Robison believes and his friends believe, that his record is clean and white," he said.

"In September, 1928, I began to refund by check the sum due each person," Robison stated in response to the committee's request for amount of money returned to purchasers who had put up one cent an acre to pay the reappraisement expenses.

"After hundreds of checks had been written and many sent out, some were returned to me with the endorsement of the payee thereon," he said. "I have held them unleashed. Many were collected by the payees. Those returned are largely in small accounts though a few represent substantial sums. They range from a few cents each to a few hundred dollars. Some are from persons outside of Texas and many from persons unknown to me. There has been no secrecy about this matter. The circumstances were openly talked, publicly discussed and notoriously known and approved throughout the country and could have been known to all other persons who felt sufficient interest to make injuiry.

"Knowing many of the people and having confidence in their good faith and purpose, the checks were held rather than returned with an imputation of unworthy motives. Deeming the state to have no interest in the sums represented by the checks, financial or otherwise, I have used some of the funds aginst whom they were drawn. There is now approximately $8,000 to the credit of this fund in the Texas Bank and Trust company. When the last refund check shall have been issued and presented for payment there will be sufficient funds to meet the obligation."

tated, Senator Wheeler asked him if he was "afraid of this woman," to which he replied "no."

"Anybody tell you that the American Baptist Home Mission society wanted some of your money?" Wheeler asked.

"A preacher did" Barnett answered. "He said he had started building a house and couldn't finish it and wanted some money."

"Did you give it to him?"

"Yes, I told him he could have what he wanted."

This "donation," amounting to $550,000, approved by the bureau of Indian affairs, later was set aside by the courts along with a similar donation to his wife, who already had been married twice before she came to the Indian's shack in Oklahoma and took him away with "another fellow" who Barnett said he did not know. The Baptist money was to be used at Bacone college in Oklahoma.

"Don't you know she's got some of your money?" Wheeler asked.

"No."

"Does she give you any?"

Aged Parents Ask Court to Bar Son From Home as Sequel to Land Suit

The aged parents of a 34-year-old Wichita Falls man Monday afternoon appeared before Judge W. W. Cook in the 78th district court and asked that their son be restrained from using their name in business transactions and from entering their home.

The elderly couple are natives of Czechoslovskia, and required the services of an interpreter in giving testimony against their son. The defendant, they told the court, often came home drunk and overbearing, and that even when he had not been drinking he threatened the peace of the home by taking charge of affairs and running things to suit his own pleasure, taking advantage of the age of his parents and their lack of understanding of English. The mother, speaking her native tongue, told the court that her son had forged her name to a $750 check, that he had misled his parents into deeding away their property, and that he would not allow his parents to run their own affairs, but commandeered the home and all its resources for his own use.

Judge Cook continued the hearing until Tuesday morning in an effort to bring the defendant himself into court.

Two civil suits, seeking to cancel a deed to 2,000 acres of farm land, alleged to have been wrongfully obtained by the son, are pending now in civil courts.

City Manager to Get Hearing Today on Contempt Charge

Hearing on an affidavit charging George Fairtrace, city manager, with being in contempt of court in the violation of an injunction forbidding the city to pollute the waters of Wichita river will be conducted before Judge P. A. Martin at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning.

The affidavit, offered by D. G. Whitney, owner of land along the river, alleges the city has not complied with an order issued last summer, effective Oct. 1, restraining the city from using the river for the bestowal of sewage.

The hearing was set for Tuesday morning after a conference Monday between Judge Martin and the attorneys in the case. It will follow a ruling last week in which Judge Martin held against the defendants in a plea as to the jurisdiction of the court.

Better Than Whiskey For Colds and Flu

The sensation of the drug trade is Aspironal, the two-minute cold and cough reliever, authoritatively guaranteed by the laboratories tested, Approved and most enthusiastically endorsed by the highest authorities, and proclaimed by the people as 10 times as quick and effective as whiskey, rock and rye, or any other cold and cough remedy they have ever tried.

All drug stores are supplied with the wonderful elixir, so all you have to do is to step into the nearest drug store, hand the clerk 60c for a bottle of Aspironal and tell him to serve you two teaspoonfuls. With your watch in your hand, take the drink at one swallow and call for your money back in two minutes if you cannot feel the distressing symptoms of your cold fading away like a dream, within the time limit. Don't be bashful, for all druggists invite you and expect you to try it. Everybody's doing it.

Take the remainder of the bottle home to your wife and children, for Aspironal is by far the safest and most effective, the easiest to take and the most agreeable cold and cough remedy for children as well as adults. Quickest relief for catarrhal croup and children's choking up at night.—Adv.

Chief officer Harry Manning says: "Reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet."

"WHEN I climbed aboard the 'America' after those cold, strenuous hours getting the men off the freighter 'Florida,' there was nothing I wanted so much as a Lucky—'By George,' it tasted wonderful! A Lucky is always refreshing. My tense nerves relaxed, my aching throat was soothed and the whole thrilling adventure just seemed a part of the day's work. As time goes by, and as I look back to that memorable night, I'll always remember the wonderful taste of that welcome Lucky. As I went around to visit the men we'd rescued, I found many of them enjoying Luckies, too. We really couldn't wait to get back to our ship and 'Luckies.' As an actual fact in returning to the 'America' I noticed one of our men* rowing with one hand and lighting a 'Lucky' with the other. There's no flavor to equal toasted tobaccos, and I always prefer Lucky Strikes. There's wisdom in the saying: 'Reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet.' It helps a man to keep physically fit and we who follow the sea must always be prepared for any emergency."

*The man mentioned by Chief Officer Manning was Boatswain's Mate Aloys A. Wilson.

Note: Authorities attribute the enormous increase in Cigarette smoking to the improvement in the process of Cigarette manufacture by the application of heat. It is true that during the year 1928, Lucky Strike Cigarettes showed a greater increase than all other Cigarettes combined. This surely confirms the public's confidence in the superiority of Lucky Strike.

TEXAN GOES TO BRIDGE PARLEY

Conference Meets Today in Oklahoma City

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 4. (UP)—A representative from the office of the attorney general of Texas is expected here tomorrow to discuss Texas-Oklahoma cooperation on toll bridges.

He will meet W. C. Lewis, assistant attorney general of Oklahoma, and a joint committee from the two Oklahoma houses.

Texas already has passed a law allowing it to co-operate with border states on three bridges on state highways and allowing taxes to pay 50 per cent of the cost.

The discussion tomorrow will affect seven of the 20 bridges on state highways over the Red river, three of which already are free bridges.

New Bridges Seen

W. C. Burnham, bridge engineer for the Oklahoma state highway commission, recalls that a state has only the right to buy private bridge property and that the United States must do any condemning necessary.

He believes the ultimate results of conferences between the states would be the erection of new bridges since most of the present ones are narrow, light and inadequate.

A resolution for presentation to the Oklahoma houses is expected to be drawn up at the conference tomorrow, giving Oklahoma permission to assist Texas in acquiring the bridges.

The four toll bridges on state highways now are the Denison-Durant bridge, the Woodsville bridge, the Gainesville bridge and the Terral bridge.

The three free bridges on state highways are the Vernon-Frederick bridge, the Hugo-Paris bridge and the Burkburnett bridge.

Seven bridges are operated by the Southern Toll Bridge corporation of Texas.

Tolls Reduced

These are near Hollis, Electra, Texas, Quanah, Texas, Nocona, Texas, Walters, Okla., and Honey Grove, Texas.

The six other bridges operated by private companies are near Elmer, Byers, Waurika, Ringling, Grandfield and the K. O. & G. bridge between Durant and Denison.

Tolls on the Gainesville and Terral bridges on state highways were reduced Jan. 17 by the war department. The toll on the Denison-Durant bridge was reduced but an injunction has been obtained preventing the reduced schedule from going into effect.

The toll on the Woodville bridge remains unchanged after litigation as the war department determined the owners were not making expenses.

of misery. I suffered with gas pains around my heart, and could taste my food for hours. I seldom got a good night's sleep and was so nervous at times that I would shake all over. I felt tired, run down and worn out even before the day was half over. My liver was out of order, I was bilious and my vitality was very low. I took lots of medicines and treatments with no lasting benefit.

"Then I tried Sargon, and I knew almost at once that I had found the right medicine at last. My appetite returned and my strength and energy began to come back with the first bottle. Now, I sleep fine, eat anything I want and everything agrees with me. I am always hungry and enjoy my meals. My nerves are steady as a die, my headaches are gone and I feel like a man made all over again. I have gained nine pounds and just want to be on the go all the time.

"Sargon has built me back up so that I am stronger, and feel better than I have felt in years. I am a well man, and the Sargon treatment is responsible for it."

Sargon may be obtained in Wichita Falls from the Renfro Drug Co., Eighth and Scott streets, No. 1 and Seventh and Indiana, No. 2; and in Electra from Lough's Drug store.—adv.

KAISER'S ART 'SALE' DENIED

Culture Ministry Says Report Is Swindle

BERLIN, Feb. 4. (INS)—The Prussian culture ministry today characterized as a "swindle" the story published that the former kaiser had sold the major art masterpieces of the Hohensollor collection.

The most important picture mentioned—Watteau's "Departure for Cytherea"—was declared to be state-owned property. It still hangs in the Berlin castle museum.

"French Comedians" and other pictures were said to be the ex-kaiser's private property and not important enough to require state approval for export.

Wilhelm Von Bode, dean of the German museum directors, however, publicly appealed to the former kaiser some time ago to cease his art sales and the ex-kaiser agreed.

The administration officials of the house of Hohensollern deny all reports of the ex-kaiser's art sales. A statement to International News Service says:

"No art object of the former royal house has been sold for years. The kaiser does not even intend to give away anything of his art property. Some sales were made shortly after the revolution, but then only pictures of minor value were sold in Switzerland."

According to a cablegram to International News Service from London on Saturday, quoting the London Times, the former kaiser is selling the most important art works in the world.

Bovina Wants To Build New Gin

Special to The Record News

STAMFORD, Texas, Feb. 4.—Manager Homer D. Wade of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce is in receipt of a letter from H. C. Darsey, treasurer of the Bovina Chamber of Commerce, asking his assistance in locating a gin at Bovina.

Bovina is practically in the center of Parmer county and surrounded by the best cotton land in the county. The one gin in the county is on one side of the county and away from the cotton district. This gin has turned out 1,200 bales this season and will probably gin 1,500 more.

Because the chamber of commerce has been working on an acreage proposition for the county, a good up-to-date gin capable of handling bollie and picked cotton alike, could be assured of the cotton from 4,000 to 5,000 acres.

Mr. Darsey wrote that anyone interested and capable of financing their own proposition would receive the co-operation of the chamber of commerce.

Musicians Club Brings Joseph Burger, Famous Baritone, Here for Program

Joseph Burger, noted baritone, will be the feature attraction of the Musicians club program at the Junior college Tuesday evening at 8:15 o'clock, when he will sing Mrs. Harwood Stacy's prize winning composition, "Whither." Mr. Burger gave this number last week in San Antonio as its initial performance, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Stacy.

Mr. Burger was born in San Antonio of French and German parentage, and has received his entire musical training in America under the following teachers: Joseph Regneas, Fay Foster, Mary Jordan, Sandor Radonovitis and Francis Grigsby of the Chicago Conservatory of Music.

Among his musical activities have been appearances with the Marshall Field choral society in Chicago, the Aborn Light Opera company at Conneaut Lake Park in Pennsylvania, and later in New York in a revival of "H. M. S. Pinafore," the Schubert production of "Princess Flavia," in the Century theater in New York, and the production of "Cherry Blossom."

During the fall of 1923 the Fay Foster trio was organized by Fay Foster, well known American composer, with Mr. Burger as a member. For professional reasons he changed his name to Josef Berge. The trio made its debut in Town Hall, Jan. 25, 1926, under the management of the late H. Godfrey Turner. The organization was a splendid success and a busy season followed. The name of Burger being an old established one in Texas, he again took the family name upon his return. Mr. Burger sings fluently in six languages and has a very large repertoire.

Christian Endeavor Has Good Program At Meeting Sunday

"The Challenge of Christ to the Youth of the World" was the theme for discussion at the meeting of the young people's group of Christian Endeavor at the First Presbyterian church Sunday evening.

Fetna Bivens, who was leader for the evening, brought out in her talk that Christ challenged the youth in His purpose, and in His courage. He stood for His ideas and was true to His followers.

Aldis King talked on "Jesus and His Own Time" and explained that Jesus spoke in parables that people could understand. He told people about God and would have them "Love thy neighbor as thyself."

Jane Cameron who spoke on "The World's Needs" asserted that the world needs God, more common understanding, more religion, more morality, and more salvation. Melba Ruth Stehlik discussed "Christ's Challenge for Today."

Myra Humphries and Mrs. John Ross Haley gave solos, accompanied by Ruby Brown at the piano. Larry Robertson read the Scripture.

On Thursday night the young people will have a social in their new parlor starting at 7:30. On Friday night a number will go to Burkburnett where the county union is having a social in the Central Christian church of that city.

At the close of endeavor an executive council meeting was held with Lydia Krizan, president, in charge. It was decided to have quarterly meetings of the committee in the future.

Wife Has Advantage Over All Other Women in Vamping Hubby

Can a Wife Win Her Husband's Love?—Freedom That Ended in Misery—A Wise Youth Who Plans His Married Life in Advance.

Dear Miss Dix—Do men ever fall in love with their wives? My husband says he doesn't love me now and doesn't think he ever really did. He says he was lonesome and discouraged when he met me and needed comfort, and because I gave him that he thought he loved me. He is an honest fellow, true and loyal, and I love him with all my heart. He says he hopes to love me, too, some day, but is it possible? We are great pals, but I am so young, only 17, and I want his love terribly. We have a baby that he is devoted to.

—JUST HIS PAL.

Answer: Of course a man can fall in love with his wife, and he is pretty sure to do it if she is willing to take the trouble to vamp him.

No other woman in the world has such a chance to win a man's affections as his wife. All the gods fight on her side. To begin with, she has the advantage of propinquity. Throw a man with any woman day after day, and if she has any attractions whatever he is almost sure to fall in love with her. The wife has this opportunity always at hand, and if she doesn't use it to charm her man it is her own fault. Then the wife who wishes to sell herself to her husband knows exactly along what line to approach him. She knows his weaknesses, his prejudices, his likes and his dislikes, and so is able to play upon him as upon a harp with a thousand strings.

What every man looks for, from the cradle to the grave, is some woman who understands him. Some woman who will listen with rapt attention while he talks about himself, his business, his hopes, aspirations and plans. Some woman who believes in him and who jollies him along. Any wife can make her husband eat out of her hand if she will only feed him on a few grains of sympathy and appreciation.

Still another advantage that the wife has over other women is that the mere fact that she belongs to him and bears his name throws a halo around her and puts her in the best light before him. He picked her out for a wife from among all other women. She represents his taste and judgment, and the same sort of vanity that makes him think that the particular car he drives is the best car that is made and that the town he lives in is the greatest town on earth makes him overlook defects in his wife that he would criticise in any other woman.

Why, half the husbands you know still speak of their wives as "little women" after they have got so fat they refuse to be weighed any more. Generally speaking, the last man to find out that a woman has lost her good looks is her husband, and he never finds it out so long as she wears pretty frocks and is amiable and jolly.

Likewise, the wife has the advantage of becoming a habit with her husband. A great deal of nonsense is talked about men tiring of their wives and seeking fresh faces, and so on. As a matter of fact, men don't like change. Look how they stick to the same fashion in clothes year after year. Look how they go to the same places. Frequent the same amusements. Eat the same food. Why, there are men who can eat three-minute eggs for breakfast and roast beef, medium rare, and potatoes and apple pie every day of their lives without tiring of them or varying their menu. The average man doesn't even like to travel. It is women who like variety, and not men.

So the wife who wants to win her husband's love has it in her favor that he doesn't like to change. He is accustomed to her. She is a habit, and if she will only make herself a pleasant habit, one that is easy on the eyes and as comfortable to live with as an old shoe, she is bound to win out.

In your case, Little Pal, you have the added advantage of youth and of a child that his father loves, and, believe me, the most powerful agent in the world in drawing a man to a woman is baby hands. They have a giant's strength, and no man whose soul is not utterly dead ever looks at his children's mother without a tenderness that he feels for no other woman in the world. You say that you and your husband are companionable. You are great friends. After all, that is what married love comes to be when it settles down to everyday living. Romance wears out. Passion dies of satiety.

You no longer thrill and palpitate at the sound of a footstep that you hear continually, but you get something better than that, when you get a true and tried friendship with one who understands and sympathizes with you and with whom you never get talked out because you have every interest in common.

My diagnosis of your case is that your husband mistakes his symptoms and that he really loves you. At any rate, it won't do any harm for you to keep on trynig to vamp him. Husbands can stand a lot of that kind of thing.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I know a young man who won't go out with a girl if her religion isn't the same as his, because he says that married people have enough to fight about without bringing in the church. He will have nothing to do with girls who drink and smoke and pet, because he says he doesn't want that kind of wife. Recently he has become engaged to a girl, but as they can't marry for five or more years he lets her go out with other fellows. Is this fellow wise or foolish?

—A BOY FRIEND.

Answer: Very, very wise. Wise beyond his years. He has avoided the temptation of falling in love with a girl who does not possess the qualities that he wants in a wife. He will not make the mistake of marrying an extravagant girl when he wants a thrifty wife or a wild girl when he wants a domestic wife, nor will he get a wife whom he will quarrel over religious matters.

He is wise enough to know that long engagements generally wear themselves out, and so if he and the girl develop along different lines and come to the place where they have nothing in common or if they weary of each other they will have no hesitation about breaking a bond that no longer binds, because he has not segregated the girl from all other men and prevented her from making a good marriage.

Hostess Days Will Begin With Unique Program Wednesday

Wednesday at 12:30 o'clock will be the first of the "hostess' days" which are inaugurated for the spring months at the Woman's Forum clubehouse, it was announced. The feature of the program will be the style show, sponsored by the Orchid shop, when living models will display the newest and loviest creations for the coming spring. The models will pass around the tables in cabaret style while the luncheon is being served and ample time will be given to discuss the article before the next garment is shown.

Special music will be another interesting feature to the program. A great deal of interest is being shown by Forum members in the show and the coming attraction, as spring styles are novel enough to be of interest to all women.

Special hostesses for this occasion will be the board of directors, which includes Mesdames G. D. Anderson, J. C. A. Guest, Ola G. Hamlin, Hubert Harrison, T. A. Hicks, T. T. T. Reese, Carrie Joline, P. P. Langford, Newton Maer, Ben G. Oneal, H. B. Patterson and W. W. Silk.

This feature is being sponsored by the house committee, which consists of Mesdames Ola G. Hamlin, C. P. Burton and T. A. Hicks. Any person who wishes to make reservations for herself or a party of friends, whether a Forum member or not, may do so by calling Mrs. Bain at the Forum clubhouse or Mrs. T. A. Hicks, chairman of arrangements. Tables will be reserved for one or more, as desired.

LISTERINE

THE SAFE ANTISEPTIC

I Saw It Myself

By C. W. ROGERS
Record News Staff Correspondent

The suspicion arises that some of these old-time cow men out here in this country who have wound up with enough dinero to keep the traditional wolf at a respectful distance, and have nothing much to do other than "enjoy life," are not as happy as might be.

Down at Archer City t'other day we met John Turbeville, who in the long ago worked with various cow outfits in Northwest Texas, went up the trail with herds of longhorns to be fattened on grass in Montana and the Dakotas, bossed outfits in the Indian country and matched wits with the redskins and in later days chaperoned trainloads of cattle to the midwestern markets.

Mention was made of the stockyards hotel at Kansas City, hard by the railroad tracks on which engines snorted and whistled and bumped cars all night long, giving a fellow not city broke no more chance to sleep than a "jump jawed" steer would have in getting past an inspector's eye.

That led to talk of Major Drumm, George Barse, the Tamms, Witherspoons and a whole bunch of the commission men of those days.

Then the talk trailed off to the old days of the big outfits, the trails up to the Indian country; of days when the "shore-nuff" cow man figured he did right well when he had a "soogin" or "tarp" to sleep on and no bad weather to disturb him; when the yell from the chuck wagon of "Come and git it or I'll throw it away" sounded sweeter than any music on earth if it might be excepted the fiddles sawing away on "Sally Goodin" or "Arkansas Traveler" at one of the old-time balles.

Well, it was plumb plain to be seen that the poor man had his mind on them days away back yonder and not much on the flavor of Curley's coffee in the cafe in which we were visiting.

Recalling a song that was sung in the long ago by a gal in Frank DeReque's temple of Thespis in Fort Worth, "There Ain't Any Wild West Any More," suggests a paraphrase of a line from "The Old Gray Mare" —"Archer City Ain't What She Used to Be." Not a livery stable in sight, not a horse shoer's shop, not a hitching post, not a watering trough. Now the "square" is surrounded by brick buildings housing all lines of business, hundreds of automobiles whizz hither and yon, streets are crowded with folks—the county seat of Archer is so cityfied that it's no wonder the old-time Archer cow man gets restless and wishes he was out where there is room enough to turn around.

We visited with another pioneer in these parts, Joseph D. Powell, for 16 years sheriff of Archer county. During an interval between terms he reaped out with some of the outfits in this section and perhaps better than any other man who was around Archer 50 years ago knows the history of the cattle outfits and the men who were with them. He possesses a marvelously retentive memory. Now that is not extraordinary in a natural born law officer whose business makes it necessary that he keep his memory whetted, but to be able to give offhand all the details of varied cattle outfits of two score years and more ago is unusual in any man, sheriff or cowman.

This suggests a challenge to the old-time cow men out this way that will provide them with a little amusement between now and next grass time. We'll lay the best dinner with all the trimmin's that can be had in Fort Worth, Wichita or Abilene against a sack of Bull Durham that none of them can give the names of the owners of all the brands in the list that follows: J buckle, cross heart, diamond A, block, TX, long S, Spade, flying W, turkey track, YD, book, church, cross, maltese cross, swastika pitchfork, rake, ladder, curry comb, bridle bit, spur, anvil, plow, tomahawk, hayhook, I owe you, seven up, lazy J, tumbling T, flying V, bar XL, ace of clubs, four sixes, diamond five, diamond deuce, diamond trey, ace of diamonds, square and compass, three links, question mark, dollar mark, and so forth mark, rocking chair, jug, pitcher, boot, door key, frying pan, crutch, kite, hat, bell, dagger, horseshoe, anchor, tree, hog eye, pig pen, barbecue, fish hook, snake, rising sun, turtle, moon, star, two hearts, goose egg and JPOTS.

The list looks easy, hop to it, men. To make the game better, to the sender of the first list of 80 per cent correct, we'll buy you something—well, you'll be surprised.

Inspectors are not barred on the first proposition. The list was compiled by a man who saw these brands nigh on to 50 years ago. It may be easy to call the turn on 80 per cent of them but not to spot all of them.

Coolidge Signs Grain Adjustment

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. (INS)—President Coolidge today signed the joint resolution authorizing the adjustment and payment of certain claims against grain and elevator firms to cover insurance and interest on wheat during 1919 and 1920 under a guarantee contained in the wartime grain administration act.

The resolution affects independent and farmer grain firms and elevators in Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, Nebraska, Kansas, Iowa, Missouri, Wyoming and Oklahoma.

Aid of Attorney General Asked in Hotel Case

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 4. (UP)—How a man, his wife and child are "beating" hotels was reported to the attorney general's office today by Bertha Lewis, the Hotel Crescent, Crescent, Okla.

The hotel keeper asked how she might go about receiving payment of the check owed her by the family who remained a number of weeks in her hotel then left without leaving security on pleas that they would pay as soon as his first check from a new job came in.

She said other hotels were being fooled by the man. The attorney general advised her to consult her county attorney.

Army's Blimp Wants To Be Made Known

Doctors Disagree

When children are irritable and peevish, grind their teeth and sleep restlessly, have digestive pains and disturbances, lack of appetite, and have itching eyes, nose and fingers, doctors will not always agree that they are suffering from worms. Many mothers, too, will not believe that their carefully brought up children can have worms. The fact remains that these symptoms will yield, in a great majority of cases, to a few doses of White's Cream Vermifuge, the sure expellant of round and pin worms. If your child has any of these symptoms, try this harmless, old fashioned remedy, which you can get at 35c per bottle from Miller Drug Store.—Adv.

CORN FED BOYS BEST SAILORS

Merchant Marine Dotes on Youths of Mid-West

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. (INS)—Young men from the broad farms of the Middle West make the best sailors and the United States merchant marine can't get enough of them, according to Capt. George Fried, commander of the liner America, whose latest rescue at sea has brought him world-wide commendation.

Speaking at a luncheon tendered him in the capital, Capt. Fried declared the weakness of the U. S. merchant marine lay in its inability to obtain men of the right type.

Doctor Found Women and Children Sick More Often than Men

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of Dr. Caldwell's 47 years' practice, he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and placed it on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a public success as it previously had in Dr. Caldwell's private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us it helped when everything else failed.

While women, children and elderly people are especially benefited by Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, its mild, gentle action is promptly effective on the most robust constipation and in the most obstinate cases. Containing neither opiates nor narcotics, it is safe for the tiniest baby. Children like it and take it willingly. Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.—Adv.

"FLU"

Some Sensible Advice

1. Avoid crowds.
2. Avoid chilling.
3. Avoid fatigue.
4. Avoid anyone who is sneezing or coughing.
5. Take plenty of fluids.
6. Take plenty of nourishment.
7. Keep nasal passages clean.
8. Keep the bowels open.
9. If you catch cold do something about it at once! Remember, "Flu" usually develops from a cold. At the first sneeze, chill or headache, take Hill's Cascara-Quinine.

Hill's stops a cold in one day because it does the four necessary things in one:

1. Checks the cold germs.
2. Allays the fever.
3. Opens the bowels.
4. Tones the system.

That's the complete action a cold requires, and Hill's supplies it! Look for the red box—all druggists.

do your children's hands suffer from the cold and alkali?

Northern winds and biting cold Coarsen skin and make it old

MOST youngsters suffer from raw, chapped hands just as soon as our changeable winter weather starts. When that happens, smooth in Hinds Honey & Almond Cream. It will relieve immediately. Help heal the skin and make it soft again.

Hinds Cream also prevents chapping. Keep a bottle on the bathroom shelf within easy reach of your children. Then every time they wash themselves, let them smooth it on their faces and hands. It will protect their sensitive skin from cold and wind and alkali dust. For Hinds Cream keeps the skin soft under any and all conditions.

The large size (11 ounce) is a good one for family use—and the most economical. You will find Hinds Cream at every toilet goods counter. Lehn & Fink, Inc., Bloomfield, New Jersey.

Hearts That Respond

NOT LONG AGO the newspapers printed a brief story about a little boy in the Middle West who is confined to his bed by a puzzling malady, and whose only fun comes from reading postcards sent him by friends.

Shortly thereafter the little chap began to be flooded by a new stream of cards and letters sent in by widely separated newspaper readers. People living all the way from Maine to California took the time to sit down and write to the lad.

Similarly, it isn't so long since a newspaper story about a little slum girl who kidnaped a baby because she didn't have any dolls to play with brought letters from a number of people, offering to buy the little girl the best doll that could be found.

It's the easiest thing in the world to touch the heart strings of people with a story of misfortune or loneliness. There is an enormous fund of human kindness and charity in the world waiting to be tapped. It's not hard to reach. Ask for it and you'll get it.

Why is it, then, that so much loneliness and suffering go unrelieved? Why do so many people go about yearning for a bit of sympathy or unexpected friendliness and forever failing to get it?

Simply because they're afraid to reach out for it.

Most of us start out in life with pretty trusting, confiding natures. We expect the best from everybody—and, unfortunately, we get let down rather hard pretty often. The experience isn't pleasant; rebuffs hurt. So we adopt a sort of protective armor of reticence, and resolve to let the other fellow make the first overture. We'll not risk hurting ourselves again.

The result is that we get reserved and cold. We make contacts with people, but we fail to make the most of them. We go through life in isolation—like a starving man who goes groping in a fog past half a dozen soup kitchens without knowing that they're there. All around us are reservoirs of charity and kindness—but we don't see them.

The person who is over-trustful gets his bumps, of course. There is plenty of meanness in the world, to say nothing of blindness and carelessness. If you go about with the assumption that everyone you meet has intentions as good as yours, you're bound to come a cropper now and then.

But that isn't so bad as walling yourself up in distrust and frigid suspicion. You miss the hurts that way—but you also miss a great deal of casual, friendly warmth.

It isn't pleasant to come to grief because you expect too much of your fellowman. But it's far worse to go about in isolated loneliness because you expect too little.

Fining a Minister

A NEW JERSEY minister, convicted of circulating the bogus "Knights of Columbus oath" during the recent presidential campaign, has been fined $250 for criminal libel. In addition, his congregation has forced him to resign.

In fining him, the judge told him:

"You have borne false witness against your neighbor. People of your type should help to suppress religious intolerance and not stir it up."

That states the case pretty fairly. If you're not familiar with all the facts, however, you might remember this in addition:

That famous "oath" has been proved to be a rank forgery—proved, before the congress of the United States, by a committee of Masons. Anyone who circulates it is either ignorant or wilfully mischievous. There is no excuse for anyone paying any attention to the thing any longer.

The New Jersey pastor got exactly what he deserved.

A Fishermen's School

THE "DOWN EAST" fisherman is popularly supposed to know all there is to know about his own particular calling, and sending such a person to a school to learn scientific practices sounds a good deal like a joke.

It's being done, however, and it's no joke at all. Nineteen fishermen are now attending a six weeks' course at Halifax, Nova Scotia, under the direction of the biological board of Canada. They are being taught how to run their jobs scientifically—the best way to preserve pickled fish, how to care for and operate a gasoline motor, how to use the great science of navigation, and so on. This sort of thing will make them more efficient in their age-old tasks—which means, of course, that they will get more money for the same amount of work.

The old ways aren't apt to be the best, even if they have stood the test of time. Modern science can give a few good tips to almost any profession.

THE PLACE OF A COUNTY'S BUSINESS

While the grand jury commented upon poor sanitary conditions of the jail, it is surprising to note that they made no comment on the courthouse generally.

This term of court has helped to bring to the fore again the need of Childress for a new courthouse.

It was found that it lacks the facilities for properly holding court. There is no room for waiting witnesses and jurors, and many minor repairs and replacements had to be made while court was in session and the need for them arose.

The appearance of the courthouse itself is not creditable, although it occupies a position of importance in our city. The interior is far from imposing.

Citizens have shown signs of impatience because the Denver railroad, an outside corporation, has been slow in bringing to completion plans for a new station which would be a credit to Childress.

How easy it would be for the railroad to say: "We were merely following the example of the citizens of Childress county. Look at their courthouse."

As a matter of fact, our county and its government are an important business. Our county is worthy of the pride of its citizens. And yet, it is hard to be proud or even respectful to a business which is housed in an antiquated and worn-out building.

"Send dem up? Vot does madame think? I have a fleet of delivery trucks?"

The Day Book of a New Yorker

Broadway Chatter by Grant Dixon

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—If there is any place in New York City where human interest centers most it must be the information desk of either one of the two large railroad terminals. In the rotunda of the New York Central station or the central area of the Pennsylvania, you'll see humanity in its most varied phases. Nor is the human comedy to be noted only at the points of information seeking. Incoming as well as out-going trains bring their quotas of people to the gates, and with them come all the human emotions.

On sad errands and happy ones, on business trips or those arranged for the purposes of sight-seeing, you'll see folks hustling hither and thither, stopping to seek information of all kinds. And the scenes of joy or sorrow—as one leaves another arrives. Find the rendezvous element—many such never using the huge stations for the purpose for which they were orignally meant. "Meet me at the information desk" is an old call.

Traveler's Aid society attendants, too, can tell a tale of their very own. Runaway girls arriving with insufficient funds. Unfortunates appealing for the wherewithal with which to proceed along the way of life.

And the strangers to the Big City—what they ask. A young and pretty girl eyeing her dusty pumps—where can she get a good brushing? Or a stout, yes—over-fed, well dressed, middle-aged man wonders: "Say, where can I get a good old-fashioned oyster stew around here?"

"What's the bill at the Hippodrome now?", from a neatly dressed up-stater. "Vaudeville and the movies? Why, what became of those big shows—in the tank—saw them about, let me see—must be about ten years ago—yes, all of that—about 1917 or 1918, wasn't it? So they gave it up—darn good show that man Thomason put on at that time. Or was it Burnside—forgot which. That hotel Manhattan—used to be right across the street from the station—Forty-second street. They moved? Gone out of business? The Waldorf, too? Ye Gods—this town has changed some, hasn't it?"

Now there is a gathering of baggage—children being rounded up. The family clusters about the head of the clan, who produces the little paste-boards shortly to be shown at the gate, around which has congregated the crowd about to depart upon the Twentieth Century Limited. From high above the main floor of the station, a voice comes through a megaphone:

"——2:45 leaving for Albany Utica, Syracuse, Rochester and Buffalo. Track No. 11—first stop—" and on he drones. With ears strained the crowd listens. "What did he say—Track Number what?"

"Have your tickets ready—" from the gateman, and one by one the travelers pass in. A shy little old lady in widow's weeds, a mid-Victorian type, cautiously approaches a porter, sweeping—always sweeping. The gentle old soul asks: "I beg your pardon—when does the 3:20 leave for Blanktown?" And she is so very embarrassed at her mistake!

"Say, when does the 2:20 come in—is it late again?" grunts a fussy old gentleman at the gate. Two-twenty—from where? Blankville? Wrong time—three-twenty reads the time-table. And the fussy one fumes for a brief second, after which he seeks a sedate lady of uncertain years, seated upon one of the benches placed for waiting patrons.

"Almira, didn't I tell you it was three-twenty? Why can't you get things straight? Now we can sit here and wait an hour."

Children munching candy and begging for more. Young flappers storming the magazine stands for love stories, ghost stories or any other kind. Gay young blades in raccoon coats, pearl gray spats and iron hats. The varsity crowd! A band of thespians—company number two taking to the road to play one night stands. Thus life dribbles along in a railroad station of a big city.

During the Christmas and Easter holidays—a story in itself, as is also that of summer vacation days. The saddest scenes of all—funeral parties taking back home the body of some beloved departed. And the gayest—wedding guests—speeding departed honey-mooners!

In front of one of New York's Broadway motion picture palaces on a recent evening there stood an elderly couple reading the huge electric lighted signs spanning its entrance. The readers were strangers to the Big City, a fact apparent from the hesitancy of their movements. No one would have mistaken them for New Yorkers—ever a reckless breed.

"Come Mother—let's go in. Guess this place is as good as any." And the speaker steered his mate toward the ticket booth flanked by one of those gorgeously uniformed factotums standing some six feet two, directing the crowds seeking entrance.

Suddenly the out-of-towner lost interest in buying tickets. He seemed rooted to the spot. The expression upon his face was a study. Things must move in New York—crowds included. So the attendant, noting the halt in the long line of waiting patrons, hustled the elderly couple along.

By this time, the wife had made inquiries regarding the unexpected state of affairs, and as her eyes traveled in the direction taken by those of her staring husband, she gasped:

"Well of all—" but she got no further, deciding to voice her sentiments less audibly. What was it that had attracted their attention? A small-town dandy, in the flesh, upon whose arm rested a flashily gotten-up blonde—painted, and how! The sporting male was absolutely beaten, evidently never having expected to meet with this particular elderly couple—back home folks.

"Well, Hank—how did you get here?" blurted forth the older man. A meeker greeting from his spouse. Then a terribly embarrassed "Hank" explained his presence on Broadway with—er—the lady friend. The philanderer told of a business deal which had brought him to New York—leaving home unexpectedly—returning there upon the next day—er—pleasant weather-er-adieus, and the two couples took leave of one another. The movie-bound two still stood upon Broadway, gazing after the departing ones. Finally the husband half sighed:

"Hank—well I'll be hanged—I wonder if Lizzie knows anything about this?" "Oh, father," gasped the gentle wife, "let's forget about it." Together the astonished two entered the house of amusement. Nor did they ever notice the funny little by-play going on just then at the curb, in front of the theater.

A waiting taxi-driver, witnessing the little scene from real life caused much laughter upon the part of by-standers when he gave vent to a vociferous—"Whoouse!"

As Told by Them to
FRANK E. NICHOLSON

By CHARLES WINNINGER

Charlie Winninger was literally cradled in a wardrobe trunk, for his father, a German trouper of the tent shows, had the family trave with him. Charlie was taught the "trade" as soon as he could walk. A singer, dancer, acrobat, actor and German dialect monologuist he toiled up the dusty path of ten-shows, traveling stock companies, vaudeville and musical comedy to his present eminence as one of the best bets on Broadway.

CHAS. WINNINGER

His favorite story is a joke on his own father, whom he loved as few sons do. The veteran Winninger was intensely proud of being German, and when he was trouping with the children he made them speak German. When he retired he wrote to them on the road in German, but a few years later, they, young Americans, were impatient with the Gothic script and lapsed into English in their letters of reply.

"One day," Charlie told me, "I wrote dad and asked him to abandon the German. My father sadly consented—and did his best in reading and answering my letters. But his English wasn't what it should be.

"A while later I wrote him 'We are now putting on "The Squaw Man," and I want you to look in that old trunk of mine and send me my riding pants.'

"My father's reply, painfully written in the unfamiliar English, was: 'Dear Charlie, I look in your trunk and find no riding pants, but find two fountain pants, which I send you.'"

The VICARION

The Astounding Story of an Invention Greater Than the Movies

Copyright by Gardner Hunting

By Gardner Hunting

Serialized by Ledger Syndicate

In the year 1935 Radley Brainard has invented the Vicarion, a device with which it is possible to re-create scenes out of the past. The invention is a sensational success, with all the theaters installing it in place of motion pictures. Complete illusions, Inc., which at that time controls all the improvements on the movie, faces ruin, but when Ferdinand Mortimer and Jerry Ballard, heads of the company, call on him, Brainard refuses to make terms.

Brainard's records of the past are contained in "bombs," which hold liquid air and while he is projecting one of the "bombs," which was unmarked, he sees a beautiful gossamer-clad girl, with whom he falls in love, although he is engaged to Phyllis Norman. During the first demonstration of the Vicarion, with Phyllis and her family looking on, a strange man staggers in the studio. He is unable to tell who he is and Brainard names him Van Winkle, and makes him his aide.

Brainard calls in the operator who made the unmarked record, but gains no information from him. He orders Van Winkle to investigate the making of the bomb. Brainard projects one of the three remaining bombs containing the woodland scene in which the girl with whom he is infatuated appears and decides the records were made by Jeffry Homer, a criminal whom he has employed. Homer dies of fright while listening to the voice of his dead brother which Brainard projects by means of the Vicarion and Homer's secret of the "bomb," which contains the "sunrise nymph" passes into the hands of Mortimer and Ballard.

"But whatever I am elsewhere, here I'm merely the other end of a disembodied spirit—and queer as I feel when I reflect that I am not here, wherever I really am it must seem still funnier to be me!"

He went away, apparently as unconcerned as he said. If he was not innocent, he had covered his tracks. It would make an interesting pastime to dig out his story—some day.

But pain in Brainard's arm seemed strangely insistent to come from a wound that was supposed to be clean. The doctors had advised him to rest; but they were always advising him to rest. For a moment he meditated upon how easy it would be for an enemy to get at him through the physician he employed. Then he went out and told Miss Ashcroft to find some one to take Miss Arden's place. She said she thought Miss Arden had gone home ill. Brainard thought this was quite likely, but did not enlarge upon it. And Miss Ashcroft turned away from him with scared eyes.

Illness

Then he terrified Ushigi by going in and going to bed. But when the frightened Jap hovered around him persistently, he ordered him away. After a time he fell into a heavy sleep. He did not awaken till next morning, and found himself dizzy and sick. Dr. Carmichael came and looked anxiously at his wound. Brainard was too ill to study it himself. Later he dropped off into a dream of some heavy, troubled sort—and when he woke again they told him he had been delirious for a week. His wound had been aggravated by some strange infection, but the surgeon had succeeded in overcoming it at last.

It required another week for him to get up and about. And during the whole time no one came to see him except Van Winkle and Rex Welling. The latter had gone back to live at his own place. But there were plenty who might have come. Ushigi managed to impart to him at last, had he not himself given strict orders in the early hours of his mental wandering that he "would not have any damned meddlers messing about!" Ushigi had communicated this wish informally over the telephone to inquirers; Brainard was too weary to investigate as to just how it had been done. Discounting a sick man's pique at imagined neglect, and arguing that no one could be blamed for standing aloof from a man who had left such a message to be gracefully couched by a Jap, he yet nursed a sense that it was strange no one had broken over the barrier of a mere prohibition when he had been so ill.

He got back upon his feet with a feeling that his illness had completely severed former attachments. His strength seemed to come back to him rather suddenly; and with it came a new disposition to the Machiavellian method toward any untractable portion of his subject world. He found every evidence that his power was spreading by leaps and bounds. It had become a problem to care for the money that was accumulating. He had banks and vaults full of it. So much was flowing in that he was indifferent to losses, extravagances, robbery! He found parasites fastening to him on all sides; but he found many faithful employes, too.

There were plenty of men who would do anything he asked, for any one of half a dozen reasons. There were those who believed it fundamental to their interests to preserve his. Some of his organizers had developed genius, and with unlimited power furnished them, were dealing effectively with the giant problems of supplying a world with liquid life. He had everything—except the one thing to which his mind came back with a sickening sense of utter void!

When his arm was unbandaged again he went out and about to theaters alone, unrecognized. He went to the great airdrome and witnessed the spectacle within a spectacle there. He saw the enormous crowd see the battle of Trafalgar, the Johnstown Flood, Napoleon's frightful Russian retreat and a typhoon on the Indian ocean. He wondered if Aunt Relief Brainard saw these, and if so what might now be her ideas of dramatic wholes!

And then he went back and sat in his small studio again at last and put out a feeler to see what Jerry Ballard was doing—and learned that Jerry Ballard and Ferdinand Mortimer had disappeared!

They had vanished in a night, these two, each from his own house under cover of darkness and fog which had swallowed them utterly. And they did not return.

Inquiry directed to their office elicited the information that they had gone abroad. And nothing Brainard could pick up in the time he had patience to give told him anything to the contrary.

As well search directly for the Dawn Maiden as for them! So there came suddenly a time again when for 38 crazed hours he searched for her. With no clue! He knew too little of soils and trees and grasses to form any notion in his memory of these as to zone or clime of his woodland dell. Her garb? It was like pixies' weaving! If real it might have been from ancient harem or modern dancing school. And the woman? She was only a woman—sun-kissed, white skinned, inimitable! And lost!

He tried to rest again, and did fitfully for a day or two. Then he could try no more. Driven to activity, he found himself with nothing to do. Nothing to do—and his whole nature screaming for deeds! His enemy had disappeared, his beloved had vanished. He was without outlet for hatred or for love! Passions roused to utmost pitch—and balked! Hatred as well as love centered upon an object—and the object gone! Passion—itself single, a unit, a whole, that could not scatter without frustration! A consuming fire, turned in upon himself!

He stood alone in his studio again—and realized how alone he was. A king, with a world between his finger and his thumb! With people dancing to the string he pulled! And no prospect for himself! As well command nothing as not to command the object of desire. What ghastly trick had life played him, leading him on to this! Dangling all things before him till he reached for them, then hiding them away—good God!—as if with a wisp of rag!

He reached a time when the products of reasoning began to mix with the products of delirious vaporings in his brain.

He remembered then what Relief Brainard had said to him about recording something from his brain—his blood! What was it? Oh, yes, it would tell him what manner of man he was! Perhaps in that would lie the secret of his fate. If he could tap his brain perhaps he could get at the memory records stored there. Perhaps he could project them by the Vicarion's means. Perhaps he could find the index of each! All that he had had and lost was there!

Delirium

But it would kill him to tap his brain. Why not the blood? The blood flowed to and from the brain—and what was blood if not the liquid of life? In a hazy hour he actually tapped a tiny vein and brought a glass retort from his laboratory in which to distill its product. Then he dropped into his chair and stared through his gauze curtain, fancying that something was already projected there. And beings came from behind that sheer veil and turned real, as Phyllis had done—as real as she; only he could not see them! What was wrong with them? Had they no bodies then, that the Vicarion should not get them? They stood before him, he knew they were there—but he could not make them out!

They told him that he could not reverse history. He answered that this was what he had already done. They laughed at him; did he not know that he could upset no natural laws, but only bring on penalties because he tried? They set a glass case over him, called Consciousness, and told him to notice that he himself was not inside. He roared with laughter at them. But they showed him that what he saw there in the case was only the moving, breathing body of a man—like Van Winkle—like the figures the Vicarion resurrected from the past; that this mere moving body was not himself—that he ranged outside, elsewhere, everywhere, at will! It was absurd! But when he tried to attract the attention of that thing in the case, it gave him no heed! Then they laughed at him again. How could that other thing he thought was he respond to him? It was nothing but a bundle of five little short-armed senses preoccupied with themselves—while out here was Life, rushing by!

His delirium passed. The beings he could not see were gone. Before him in the glass retort, the little pool of blood had merely dried and burned. What had he expected to find there? Oh, yes, what manner of man he was! The ultimate thing he was! Fool! From the beginning of time men had tried to get at the ultimate thing in themselves or other men by means of blood! From the world's flagellants to its headsmen, its Cains, its Catherines, its ruthless rulers, its rebellious Reds! Muddlers or meddlers, all! Missing the whole meaning—the meaning of the whole!

No, the Vicarion would never present the drama of Life.

He leaped to his feet. Was he being left behind here with the dead—because all that had mattered in them and him was outside, rushing by?

He flung open his studio door. For hours it had been locked. It was night. The halls of the building were dark. Strange!

He felt his way across, toward the doors of his living apartments. No signs of light were there. He opened a door and called Ushigi. There was no answer, no thud of running feet. He stepped inside and listened. He put out his hand to find an electric switch. His ears became aware of sound—distant sound—outside somewhere—in the street below!

A vast volume of sound—like low thunder, threatening, terrifying. He started across to the north windows, where a strange light was rising—red—like the light of a blood-shot moon! Sounds seemed instantly to become distinct, shouting, a roar of it, the drumming of machines, a deep-toned hiss as of steam. He came opposite the door of an east room—and stopped. The whole eastern sky was aflame. He ran through, and to the windows on that side.

Below him, 11 floors, was the street. There was light enough for him to see. The pavements were black with swarming hordes of people. Above across the roofs of the city, as far as his eyes could reach—fire!

During the two weeks of Brainard's illness and convalescence, Phyllis realized more and more that the world itself was sick. And more and more clearly she understood that its wound, if not his, was poisoned. Whatever was wrong with the Vicarion, it was the the Vicarion, or the use to which it had been put, that was wrong with the people. What was it? Clearly it was a venom of which all normal conditions could die—were dying!

Barred from going to see Radley—shut away from him as it were by a gate of many bars—she agonized over the fact that the mere being with him through what she knew must be the crisis impending was denied her. But it had done him no good for her to rush to him before. It had done her no good. Physical nearness brought no spiritual contact. At his side she was still infinitely separated from him—separated by a barrier as awful as the Vicarion's sheer gauze screen. Why was it that continually, continually, the conditions surrounding the Vicarion paralleled terrifyingly the conditions of life? Was it because its liquid visions were, after all, life's true presentation? And if so, was it any marvel that the world was sick—sick of life itself?

Conditions were swiftly becoming intolerable. Problems of living were rapidly becoming acute, while people still spent their time as spectators of past events.

And two phases of the passion that swayed them were as evident as the effects of all deep reaching stimulants. Greed grew for more and more of the thing upon which the appetite only increased; and a subtle cowardice, born of vague recognition of the chimera looming ruinously over them, accompanied it. People knew, while they gluted, that disaster impended. Variously they interpreted it—or not at all. Some were aware that physical necessities must be attended to, if dire results were to be avoided. Some understood that the very fear of each other, developed and progressively augmented by constant exposures of private life, must lead to some catastrophe. Some saw the reaction would follow as inevitably as night the day when a people, or a race, rushed to any mad extreme. Yet no one could foresee or forecast the end.

To Phyllis the idea became a haunting obsession that this vast ocean of the past that had been tapped was running in upon living people like the flood at the growing break in the dike! The vision of a world drowning in a flood of life—too much life!—the whole life of all time sweeping down upon one little generation!—was paralyzing. She, like others who had an inkling of the truth, could only stand still. Nowhere might one run with human feet from deluge!

Relief Brainard was her only companion now who could be called a companion. Sometimes they talked together, when they could even discuss the spectacle.

"Give them enough of it and they will learn that reality lies in something the Vicarion will never touch!" the older woman tried again to phrase it. But it sounded as weak and paltry as all attempts to put such things under blanket formulae.

"But you'd think it might change people for the better somehow, instead of for the worse," Phyllis answered. "If seeing the crime and horror of the world can't terrify us into being good, I should think seeing our own careers—as others see them—would!"

"Men can't be scared into being good," said Relief Brainard sapiently and quite unaware of humor. "Men become good when they are shown that they are better than they think they are."

How the world loved to make phrases. And rules! Prescriptions, recipes, formulae, for and about living! How men could tell each other how!

Pent Passions

But one thing was gradually impressed upon Phyllis—a thing she had heard phrased in one way or another and a thousand times, but a thing that had to be seen to be understood. The mass of the people, sometimes seeming whole like the body of a single creature, responded to conditions about it like a sensitive and impulsive child. Quick in its affections, as sudden in its resentment, unbound by obligations, unworn by favors, highly sensitive to wrongs, worshiping heroes, furious at being grossed, gullible in trifles but with tremendous instinct against being ultimately befooled! The crowd—like an overgrown, unruly boy—governed against its own wish self-assertion by its simplest emotions, unaware of its own strength, blind to its own interests, led by glitter, stumbling with its own clumsiness, capable beyond its wildest dreams!

But the question kept coming back—the question she had asked herself that memorable night at the Swan: Who is the crowd? And why does each forever think it is someone else? Why do we stand apart and say, "There it is, the crowd"? Why is it so seldom, "Here we are, the crowd"? What is it gives men power? Some trick that bestows on them a whip for the mob? Or is it the principle of ruthlessness in using advantage that comes once to every man—advantage that slips from the hands of the weak and grasps the prizes for the strong!

No, no, not that!—or men would never have needed a capital to identify the Inquisition—nor have made a common noun of waterloo! What truly makes a man stand forever out from men? His sense of oneness with them?

But as days and more days went by, the girl came to feel that the people's mood was like so much scattered powder lying open to a spark. What was it in them?—fear of the whip? Passions roused, dammed, pent? The blind, gathering menace of a miscredited force? Whatever it was, everywhere hung a sultry atmosphere charged with storm. She felt it as one feels the oppression of the rising thundercloud while the sun still shines.

On a night it broke. Someone came to the house at midnight. Phyllis, wakeful, had yet heard no alarm till the bell of the front house-door rang and rang again, unanswered, and with that persistence that soon constitutes alarm. The silence of the great house unresponsive to that insistent summons drove her from her bed.

She had known that none of the others was at home when she had gone to her room. Now as she ran through the upper hall, the emptiness of her home about her was like the chill hollow of some great crypt, white-walled with terror. Father and mother absent—in the still night! And John! Servants gone! She was alone! And here was some dire thing—some cruel event reaching in here out of the far darkness like a hand snatching at the strings of her life. How trustfully she had slept, unwitting that a guarded life may lose its wonted protection like a slipping coverlet!

NEW PANAMA CANAL WANTED

Congressional Sanction Asked for Route Survey

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4 (US)—Backed by strong support congressional sanction for the proposed Nicaraguan canal survey before adjournment of the short session appeared certain today as senate and house began to grind through the final month of the Coolidge regime.

The resolution for the survey provides that the investigation shall be done by army engineers at the direction of the secretary of war and the chief of engineers at a cost not to exceed $150,000.

Senator Walter E. Edge, Republican of New Jersey, sponsoring the resolution, was confident that it will get through congress. He has found no real reason advanced why this government should not survey the right of way it purchased for $8,000,000 years ago. He has had no objection raised why the survey of the Nicaraguan canal route and a survey on the enlargement of the Panama canal should not go hand in hand.

"Both are interrelated. Edge pointed out. The Panama canal traffic has been increasing at an astounding rate in recent years. The time is rapidly approaching when this traffic will reach its limit.

Therefore, Edge stated, no time should be lost in investigating the Nicaraguan canal route and the problem of enlarging the Panama canal, in order that congress may have the facts and deal with the problem.

Part of the opposition against the Nicaraguan survey comes from the little group opposed to retaining the marines in Nicaragua. They see in any Nicaraguan move further need for keeping the marines there.

$80,000 For His Discovery

Formula for Stomach Antiseptic Brings Large Sum

This is G. M. Gordon, widely known Dallas, Texas, pharmacist, who spent twenty years developing Gordon's (formerly Gordon's Antiseptic), an Internal Antiseptic for the stomach and bowels, for which he received $80,000 for the rights to the secret process of compounding.

"The greatest obstacle to the successful treatment of stomach troubles," said Mr. Gordon, "was fermentation (souring of food matter in the stomach and bowels), which inflames and irritates these organs and produces gas that causes much distress. Fermentation can be stopped only with an antiseptic."

Gordon's goes right to the seat of the trouble, because it exercises a distinctly antiseptic as well as a digestive effect. It stops and prevents fermentation, soothes and heals any irritated or inflamed condition and will bring quick relief in cases of indigestion, gas, dyspepsia, heartburn, bloating, excess acid, "that tired feeling," bad breath, constipation, sick headache, and nervousness, when caused by faulty digestion. It will tone up the digestive organs and stimulate the stomach and bowels to their normal functions. The first dose will convince you.

Gordon's is made in liquid form. A large 8-ounce bottle, price $1.50—less than 3 cents a dose—at druggists.

Attendance Stressed as First Duty of Member of Civic Club

Development of a pleasant inter-club relations and a constantly growing respect among business men for the various service clubs were named by Luther Hoffman Monday in his speech to the Kiwanis club as the outstanding achievements of such civic organizations in recent years.

Vocal numbers were given by John Flynn, Kate Early Parker and Ed Reeder, with Mrs. Lois Parker playing the accompaniments.

Kenneth Bebb, chairman of the inter-club relations committee, and Lawrence Elkins, head of the attendance committee, were in charge of the program Monday. Silent prayer for the recovery of the parents of W. E. Young, who are seriously ill at their home in Kentucky, closed the meeting.

Snow Freezes Refinery Trade

TULSA, Okla., Feb. 4.—The snowstorm that struck the mid-continent late Friday night was felt all over the area, and refiners reported little or no business following the blizzard.

North Texas refiners were quoting U. S. motor grade of gasoline as low as 6¾ to 7 cents, while Oklahoma prices are still bottomed at 7 cents. West Texas gasoline, having a large sulphur content, is quoted at 6¼c.

The 60-62, 400 endpoint grade is quoted at 7½ cents in Oklahoma, with the 64-66, 375 endpoint at 8 cents, and the 64-66 390 endpoint at 7¾ cents.

Natural gasolines were so upset that manufacturers did not know what the market should be. Some "AA" grade material was quoted at 7 cents, with no sales; "BB" and "C" grades were reported at 5¾ cents.

Zero cold test fuel oils are very scarce and in good demand. Some 24-26 fuel sold at 75 cents a barrel and 28-gravity brought 95 cents. West Texas fuel oil, namely 18 gravity, sold for 50 cents and 20 gravity at 55 cents a barrel. Distillates and gas oils are still tight and in demand.

At the repair shop of the London General Omnibus company a bus can be stripped down to the last nut, thoroughly overhauled, and rebuilt in 12 hours.

C.-C. PRESIDENT CALLS MEET

Directors to Plan Quarterly Membership Gathering

Members of the board of directors of the chamber of commerce have been called by Orville Bullington, president, to meet at the Wichita club Thursday evening at 6:30 o'clock for dinner, following which a short business session will be held for the purpose of planning the quarterly meetings of the membership provided by a referendum taken last week.

A total of 716 ballots on the matter of substituting four membership meetings for the weekly business council sessions were distributed, and approximately 80 per cent of those returned voted in favor of the change. Expressions given to chamber of commerce officials on the question indicated a belief that frequent meetings of all the members would make the organization considerably more democratic. The January meeting, which will be featured by the annual banquet and election of directors, will be one largely given to entertainment, while the meetings to be held in April, July and October will be business sessions.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

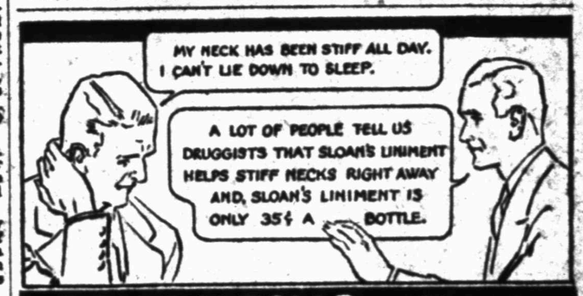

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

"Sickness all around us .... but my family escaped"

"Lifebuoy's antiseptic lather was a real help,"— says Mrs. W. L. Mezger

"WE HAVE been using Lifebuoy Soap for years, so many that I fail to remember the time our household was without it," says Mrs. W. L. Mezger, charming mother of a husky nine year old son, Billy, and aunt of little Martha.

"My husband used it before we were married and when we had a boy large enough to enjoy a close acquaintance with Mother Earth we found it most indispensable. Small cousins use it also, so it is a genuine family friend.

"It does more than cleanse. With its antiseptic qualities, Lifebuoy is a real help in guarding against germs. Our hands can't help coming in contact with germs every day, especially during months like these when lots of people are sick and there are more germs than ever about.

"But you do feel so much safer using Lifebuoy. Our household has always been singularly free from illness. In fact, many times there was sickness all around us, but my family escaped." Mrs. W. L. Mezger, 5131 Forest Ave., Kansas City, Mo.

Mrs. Mezger is typical of the millions of mothers who rely upon Lifebuoy to help them guard family health.

Is your family safeguarded?

Are you denying your family such a vital means of health protection? Remember that no one escapes contact with germs. Every day you and your loved ones must touch things that others also have to handle—money, toys, doorknobs and many more things may transfer germs to hands. But Lifebuoy's gentle antiseptic lather removes germs! It guards against the 27 germ diseases that the Life Extension Institute says hands may spread.

Your family has to wash with some toilet soap anyway, so why not use Lifebuoy which gives added health protection—at no extra cost? You'll quickly learn to love Lifebuoy's pleasant extra clean scent, which tells you Lifebuoy purifies, and which vanishes as you rinse. Adopt the Lifebuoy health habit today.

MEHLHORN'S 70 WINS HOT SPRINGS GOLF MEET IN PLAYOFF

SMITH SCORES 72 FOR SECOND

2,000 See Title Decided; Cruickshank Shoots 75

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 4. (AP)—Wild William Mehlhorn, bedazzler of the golf world the past fortnight, added new luster to his record today by winning the South Central open, his third successive major winter tournament.

After tieing Bobby Cruickshank, veteran Scott, and Horton Smith, young Joplin, Mo., professional, with a 72-hole card of 290 yesterday, Mehlhorn came back to repulse them at every turn today in an 18-hole play off for the title. With 36-34—70, two below par, he was two strokes ahead of Smith and six better off than Cruickshank. Mehlhorn's card compared with par:

Par Out	343-434-344—36
Mehlhorn out	344-444-344—36
Par in	344-553-444—36—72
Mehlhorn in	344-443-444—34—36—70

Since the first of the year, Mehlhorn's achievements include a record 271 for competitive gold to win the El Paso open, a 277 record card for the eight-year old Texas open at San Antonio and a 290 here with a par slashing round in the playoff.

His work today was as near perfect as was ever witnessed in the five-year old South Central tournament, with a remarkable putting touch and iron and wood shots near perfect. Cards of Smith and Cruickshank:

Smith out	544-454-344—37
Smith in	345-443-444—35—72
Cruickshank	353-444-445—38
In	454-343-454—38—38—76

Cruickshank broke in the outgoing nine. Playing even through the sixth, he took a 4, one over regular on the short seventh when his putting went awry. At number nine he again was one over when he had a sliced tee shot and a hard approach. From then out he was never really a serious threat to overtake Mehlhorn, while Smith's chances faded after the 12th hole episode.

The day was fine from a gallery standpoint, the temperature being moderate with no sun to bother the vision of the long shots. Some 2,000 formed the gallery.

Walton League To Meet Tuesday Night

Plansky never has played much baseball.

Baer Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—The following dialogue is reprinted from the shorthand notes of a federal court stenographer.

The attorney for the defiance is cross-crissing two federal prohibition agents.

"Before you went to the Gumbo club did you visit any other joints?"

"Sure. We stopped at several clubs."

"How many drinks did you have?"

"About forty-three."

At this statement the judge fell off his stepladder. He had been busy papering the room with injunctions.

"How many did you have at the Gumbo?"

"About 10 more."

That made 26 drinks a man. And an extra one for emergencies.

The shorthand stenographer dashed out to have the contents of his fountain pen analyzed by a roving chemist.

While we may have scrambled the dictation a trifle, the conversation was legal. Fifty-three drinks divided among two earnest students of statistics are enough to make a pocket lighter look like the aurora boreali.

We would toss the case loose from court on the grounds that no man can count over three of the average drinks they peddle today.

One drink seems to be a clue, two are corroboration and six are irrefutable evidence.

When you blow your breath on the court you are pleading guilty.

A hip pocket is Mount Etna working day and night shifts.

A hicough is the dictaphone that informs the jury that your stomach is turning state's evidence.

A red nose is the light that stops your traffic.

What we would like to know is why a bootlootcher isn't guilty on the first drink.

Fifty-three indicates that you aren't sure whether you want to arrest him or drown him.

Probably the two agents hadn't finished their job. Maybe they were on their way to 57, a number always associated with pickles.

And how can you take a man to court unless he happens to be staggering your way?

We bow the skull to the two agents who could take 53 slugs of paints, oil and varnishes and still remember that somewhere on their suspenders there were brightly polished badges.

NATIONAL LOOP MOGULS MEET

Umpires to Be Named And Schedule Approved

NEW YORK, Feb. 4. (UP)—Little business will come before the National league meeting at the Waldorf tomorrow.

A schedule which includes Sunday dates at Boston will be approved and referred back to President Heydler for publication Feb. 14.

The recent joint meeting of the major leagues in Chicago approved some minor changes in waiver prices and periods, so the National league owners will have to amend their own constitution to conform. The umpires for 1929 will be announced.

Sites of Basket Ball and Track Meets Set

Special to The Record News

VERNON, Texas, Feb. 4.—At a meeting held here, dates for the annual meet of the county interscholastic league were announced and schedules were drawn up for basket ball eliminations and the final championship games for the county title.

The dates for the annual interscholastic meet to be held under the auspices of the league were fixed for Friday and Saturday, March 22 and 23. The meet will be held in Vernon.

The junior boys' basket ball tournament will be held in Harrold on March 1 and 2, and the age limit for participation in these events was raised from 14 to 16 years. It was explained that students who became 16 years of age after Sept. 1, will be allowed to participate in the contests.

Girls' basket ball tournament will be held in Harrold March 8 and 9.

The senior boys' basket ball eliminations were arranged on a round robin basis, to be played off during the next two weeks on schedules already worked out by school authorities. Harrold, Oklaunion, Fargo and Vernon called the big four schools of the county, are excepted from this arrangement.

The winner of the games in the group outside these four schools will meet the winning team from the big four for the county championship. The championship will be played in Harrold March 19.

Finalist for the county championship from among the big four group will be determined on a percentage basis and the following schedule will be carried out, all games being played at Harrold, except in instances where both teams agree to play elsewhere:

Tuesday, Feb. 5 and Feb. 12—Vernon vs. Fargo, Harrold vs. Oklaunion.

Friday, Feb. 8 and Feb. 15—Fargo vs. Harrold, Vernon vs. Oklaunion.

Saturday, Feb. 9 and Feb. 16—Fargo vs. Oklaunion and Vernon vs. Harrold.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 4. (US)—Jack Dempsey today announced the following list of possible referees of the Sharkey-Stribling bout here:

Tom Reilly, Philadelphia, who refereed the Philadelphia Dempsey-Tunney encounter; Dave Miller and Walter Eckersall both of Chicago; Ed Dickerson, Grand Rapids; Lou Magnolia and Jack O. Sullivan, both of New York; Matt Hinkle, Cleveland; Slim McClennan, Detroit, and two Massachusetts referees as yet unidentified.

The list will be submitted to both Stribling and Sharkey. If the fighters cannot agree on a referee a week before the fight, Dempsey will arbitrarily name the man.

Bud Taylor to Battle Al Singer Friday Night

NEW YORK, Feb. 4. (UP)—Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, once regarded as the bantam champion by the National Boxing association, is in town for a featherweight fight with Al Singer, New York's latest 126-pound sensation, at Madison Square garden next Friday night.

Singer's championship possibilities in the rather muddled featherweight division will be tested by the Terre Haute boxer, but in view of the New Yorker's excellent showing against Tony Canzoneri, whom he held to a draw, Al will probably be a strong favorite.

Schmeling Signs 2-Year Contract With Garden

NEW YORK, Feb. 4. (AP)—Max Schmeling, young German who jumped into the top rank by knocking out Johnny Risko Friday night, signed a two-year contract today to fight exclusively for the Madison Square Garden corporation.

Hoover to Be Sought as Mediator In Army and Navy Athletic Row

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. (UP)—Congressional leaders tonight were planning to urge President-elect Hoover to act as peace-maker in the dispute of the U. S. Military academy vs. the U. S. Naval academy over athletic relations.

Resumption of the Army and Navy football contest in 1929 or at least by 1930 is the objective.

House leaders interested in the academies indicated Hoover would be asked to direct the secretaries of war and navy in his cabinet to iron out the difficulties that caused suspension of sport competition.

Solons Are Optimistic

Chairman Britten of the naval affairs committee said it was hoped the controversy could be settled early this year so athletic relations could be resumed by fall.

Representative James, Republican, Michigan, who will be military affairs committee chairman next session, said there was no reason why the schools could not get together and be on friendly athletic terms.

Break Over Football

The controversy between Annapolis and West Point arose over eligibility rules when Navy refused to play football with Army unless the three-year eligibility rule as used by colleges was accepted. Strained relations resulted and all athletic activities, baseball, football, basket ball, tennis, lacrosse, and other sports, in competition between the two were suspended.

Representatives from every section of the country and especially the military and naval affairs committees have been receiving many letters from sport enthusiasts urging the two academies to get together and resume friendship.

"It is a bad state of affairs when these two great institutions are at odds," Britten said.

Kearns Sidestepped Wills Battle For Dempsey and Firpo Came Along

Jack Smartest Manager in Ring History, Rickard Discovered, but He Blundered in Barring Harry

By JACK LAWRENCE

(Copyright, 1929, by the New York American, Inc., and Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Tex Rickard always admitted that Jack Kearns was the smartest fight manager he ever met. He knew shrewd men when he saw them and he liked to have shrewd men around him.

There were three of his associates for whom he had unlimited admiration. This was because each one of them was able to out-think him on occasions. One was John Chapman, who always seemed to have Rickard on his hip; another was Mike Jacobs, who could size up a show months in advance and predict within a few dollars of what it would draw, and the other was Jack Kearns, the only man that ever measured up to Tex in the matter of background and dramatic color.

In writing this biography of Tex Rickard, it has occurred to me more than once that the life of Jack Kearns would make interesting reading. Fearless, brutal and adroit, Kearns was a master at his trade. Where angels feared to tread Jack Kearns waded through, and he waded in a winning manner. He made as few enemies as he could, but when they were established they could get no quarter.

Tex Rickard and Jack Kearns matched wits for years, and the truth about the parting of the ways probably is that Tex found Jack too smart for him. If ever a gambler had a more grim and uncompromising visage than Tex Rickard it was Jack Kearns. The only difference in those hard, fixed poker faces was that Kearns, under pressure, could pull a smile.

Tex Rickard's smile reminded you of a flat note. It was pale and sickly and had no suggestion of mirth in it.

While Kearns may be regarded as one of the smartest fight managers that ever lived, it is a matter of record that he was guilty of two monumental blunders. One was his sidestepping of a match between Jack Dempsey and Harry Wills, the colored challenger, and the other was his refusal to do business on a percentage basis when Dempsey met Georges Carpentier at Boyle's Thirty Acres in Jersey City.

Kearns demanded a guaranty of $300,000 for that match. The battle drew more than a million and a half. It is not necessary to comment further on that faux pas Kearns was always afraid of Wills, but he knows now that if he had accepted Wills as the challenger instead of going out of his way to get Tunney, Jack Dempsey would probably still be heavyweight champion of the world.

No boxer who steps in and engages in drives to the body could expect to stand up very long against Jack Dempsey. And that goes for Dempsey as he is today. Wills, with his unalterable habit of holding with his left and banging away with his right to the body, would have been a bargain for Dempsey. He couldn't have lasted more than a couple of rounds.

The Wills-Dempsey fight never came off because, to wit:

Kearns was afraid of Wills.

Tex Rickard was afraid of another mixed bout for the heavyweight championship of the world, knowing what he did about the promotion of the Jeffries-Johnson fight.

William Muldoon informed both Kearns and Rickard that such a fight would probably kill boxing in New York state and probably throughout the country.

The questionable elimination of Harry Wills faced Rickard with the problem of digging up another contender. Once more luck played right into his lap. Up from the Argentine, where Tex had left so much money tied up in unprofitable ranches, came a fistic leviathan in the person of Luis Angel Firpo. That gigantic figure in the annals of heavyweight history was probably best described by Hype Igoe, who called him a "gorilla moving through the jungle."

Firpo was carefully and cleverly built up for the tituler contest with Jack Dempsey. Rickard sent him against one pushover after another until the Argentine giant was finally matched with Jess Willard, the man who had been beaten for the heavyweight title by Jack Dempsey.

The morning of that fight which took place in Boyle's Thirty Acres in Jersey City, I can recall very distinctly riding up in the rickety old elevator that wandered in a haphazard way into the tower of the old garden. Sometimes you got there and sometimes you didn't. The only other passenger in the car that morning was Tex Rickard.

"I'd like to make a bet," I said, "but I'm rather in doubt as to how to place my money."

Rickard turned one of those quizzical, probeless looks upon me and said, chewing on a half-smoked cigar:

"I never bet on fights. But if I were betting on this fight today I would bet on Luis Angel Firpo."

Being beautifully dumb, I bet on Willard. And Willard took a dive into the resin dust and remained there long enough to take the count and then bounced to his feet and bowed to the photographers, apparently as fresh as he was when he entered the ring. It was just one of those things.

This bout paved the way to the greatest heavyweight battle that ever occurred in this country, which was the match between Dempsey and Luis Angel Firpo at the Polo Grounds, Sept. 14, 1923.

Vet Tosser Dead; Set Fielding Mark

DANVERS, Mass., Feb. 4. (AP)—Thorndike P. Hawks, 76, who played baseball back in the early days of the National league, is dead at his home here.

Hawks played second base for the Troy, N. Y., club of the National league, in 1879, and on July 30 of that year, established two fielding records for second basemen that never have been equalled in the major leagues. On that day he accepted 18 chances without an error—one record. Twelve of the chances were putouts—another record.

Hawks' lightning plays at second base brought heated disputes over umpires' decisions and finally resulted in having an umpire placed behind the pitcher's box, to be able better to watch fielding plays. From this move came the umpire staff of three men now in vogue in the major leagues.

Muehlbach Declines Kansas City, Kan., Bid

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 4. (UP)—A proposition offered him to operate a Western league franchise in Kansas City, Kan., was rejected in a letter written to the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce by George Muehlbach, owner of the Kansas City, Mo., club of the American association.

According to the plan presented Muehlbach, he was to take over a club in the Western league and lease a park which would be built by a party who is interested in the project and who owns sufficient ground for a diamond. Muehlbach said he believed the terms were exorbitant.

Heeney's Manager Claims World Title For Tom

NEW YORK, Feb. 4. (UP)—Charlie Harvey injected Tom Heeney, the softened "hard rock from down under," back into the heavyweight boxing situation tonight with a statement claiming in Tom's behalf the championship of the world.

Harvey, as Heeney's manager, is a firm believer—along, he says, with many of the old school—that when a champion retires his title reverts to the old title holder.

Besides the Australian championship, Heeney's only title to date has been that of runner-up to Flat Phil Scott, champion of England.

Harvey points out how Heeeny worked himself up to the position of foil for Tunney's jabs in last year's fight, and says that unless Dempsey comes back the nominee is Heeney, "the next most logical man, who eliminated all others and through his honest efforts gained the right to fight the champion, Gene Tunney.

Six Bouts Carded Tomorrow Night

Alex Ross Bills Another Interesting Show

Thirty-six rounds of boxing, comprising six bouts, will be offered tomorrow night by Promoter Alex Ross at his gym, 821 Indiana avenue. Cyclone Hall, a very apt moniker for the hard-punching Childress middleweight, meets Russell Beckwith, from Oklahoma, another hard hitter, in the 10-round main event.

Howard Scott, the clever Electra featherweight, faces Corporal Barnes, a rugged lad from Fort Sill, Okla., in the eight-round semi-windup.

A six-round scrap, a return go, also should be a feature. It will bring together Jimmy Wilson of Oklahoma City and Virgil Oden of Wichita Falls. They engaged in a slugging duel last week over the four-round distance.

Looks like lots of action at Mr. Ross' emporium of sock.

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

A NEW foreign menace looms on the pugilistic horizon. He is Max Schmeling, the German heavyweight, and to all accounts, a real threat to the American and other fighters seeking the throne vacated by his majesty, James J. Tunney. Unlike the many other foreign "contenders" of recent years, such as the ballyhooed Phaling Phil Scott, the Englishman, it seems that Schmeling really can fight. Indeed, the boys who write pieces for New York newspapers already are hailing him as a foremost challenger.

Schmeling bears a striking resemblance to Jack Dempsey. He is said to possess the most terrific socking right hand of a heavyweight in recent years. The Teuton does not have the speed of Dempsey. Indeed, he is a slow-moving, rather slow-thinking fellow, just the type one would expect of a German fighter.

But there is no denying that he can punch, and, except for Sharkey, Stribling and Dempsey, he looms as the leading heavyweight. Possibly within a year or two he may fight his way to the top. And then, perhaps, out of the memories of more than decade ago will come Gene Tunney.

"The Yanks are coming,
The Yanks are coming."

And Gene Tunney may fight against the menace of Germany.

THE history of boxing is replete with the tragic story of many a promising young fighter who was rushed along too fast. Boys who were potential champions, and were ruined by their avaricious managers, who matched them against foes of far too great experience and skill, or too often. Babe Hunt, the Oklahoma heavyweight, a few months ago loomed as one of the most promising of the young fighters. Notice was taken by fistic critics throughout the country of his rapid rise as probably the outstanding heavyweight of the Southwest and as a young man of exceptional ring promise.

Hunt was, and is, in great demand in Kansas and Oklahoma. He fights twice a month, sometimes more frequently. Recently he was beaten at Wichita, Kan., by Red Fitzsimmons, the Pacific coast puncher. Fitzsimmons, a rugged, dangerous fellow, gave Hunt a shellacking. It probably was the most decisive defeat ever sustained by the Ponca City battler. It may not mean a thing. Possibly Babe had an off night. And Fitzsimmons himself, as pointed out above, is no palooka. Still, one would expect Hunt to beat Fitz, if he is as good a fighter as he once seemed.

Many men who know boxing believe Hunt is being "fought out." That is, that he is called upon to fight tough fellows too often. The success of Babe in his fights in the near future will be watched with interest.

MICHIGAN FIVE TO MEET OHIO

Big Ten Leaders Play Buckeyes Saturday

CHICAGO, Feb. 4. (UP)—After a week of inactivity, the Big Ten conference basket ball race, will be revived this week when four games are on schedule.

One game was played the past week in which the only development was to bring Iowa forward as a serious contender for the first division. Iowa defeated Chicago Saturday, 23 to 21, and by so doing went into a tie for fourth place with Ohio State, each having won three games and lost two.

The outstanding game on this week's schedule will bring together Michigan, now holding an undisputed grip on first place, and Ohio State. The game will be played on the Wolverines' floor next Saturday.

Purdue and Wisconsin who follow in a tie for second place have no games scheduled this week but would profit by a Michigan loss. Each has played more games than Michigan and would hold a percentage advantage over the Wolverines in event the Buckeyes triumph at Ann Arbor.

Northwestern will meet Indiana on the latter's floor Tuesday night, the result of which will break a three-cornered tie and send the victor into fourth place.

Other games this week bring Illinois and Chicago and Indiana and Iowa together next Saturday.

Loughran Faces Emanuel Tonight

Fighters to Scale-In Over Light Heavy Poundage

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4. (UP)—Tommy Loughran, the Philadelphia holder of the light heavyweight championship, will meet the Pacific coast's outstanding heavyweight here Tuesday night when he fights Armand Emanuel, San Francisco lawyer.

A capacity house of 11,500 will see them battle ten rounds for the second time in seven months. There will be no title at stake, as both boxers will be well over the light heavyweight poundage of 175.

Emanuel looms as tough opposition for Loughran, who is considered a likely successor to the title relinquished by Gene Tunney.

Loughran and Emanuel met once before, in New York, and Tommy got the decision, although some thought it might have been called a draw.

SOME CARROT RECIPES

By persistent cultivation, the carrot, which is a vegetable of the parsley family, has been transformed from a bitter, acrid, fibrous root into the succulent vegetable of agreeable flavor so familiar to us all. The most palatable carrots are those which are still young, since, as they become older, they contain some starch and are tough and not as tasteful.

Carrots are very rich in all of the alkaline elements, especially potassium, sodium, calcium, magnesium and iron. For this reason, they are a valuable addition to the diet. When they are finely grated, the juice can be extracted and in this form it is easily digested by even the most delicate digestions, and is especially suitable to babies suffering from digestive disturbances or malnutrition. Children should be encouraged to eat raw carrots.

When larger, the carrot must be considered as a starchy vegetable, and should be combined only according to the food combination rule. Carrots have a large vitamin content and are especially good for furnishing bone forming elements. The large coarse varieties make excellent cattle feed, causing the production of large amounts of rich, creamy milk.

Baked Vegetables

To one bunch of carrots, washed and diced, add two turnips sliced, two medium sized potatoes cut into eighths, one chopped head of cauliflower, and a few of the chopped leaves. Place this in a baking dish with a cauliflower leaf lying flat across the top. Bake in a moderate oven for about an hour, add butter and salt just before serving.

Baked Carrots

By selecting the largest carrots one can, bake them in the oven just like potatoes, and prepared in this manner they have a much richer flavor than when boiled.

Carrot Soup

Boil a bunch of medium sized carrots in a close fitting pot with enough water to cover them. When cooked thoroughly, mash the carrots in the water in which they have been cooked, add one-half cup of milk and allow them to simmer very slowly. In a dry frying pan, place one tablespoon of wholewheat flour and one-fourth teaspoon of salt. Place over a moderate fire and stir constantly until the flour has browned thoroughly, but do not permit it to burn. To this browned flour, add three tablespoonfuls of cream and one tablespoonful of butter. Mix with the carrots, while stirring rapidly to prevent lumps forming. If desired, celery may be added to and boiled with the carrots.

Carrot Pudding

Grate a sufficient quantity of small, tender, raw carrots and to each cupful add one-fourth of a cupful of dates cut into small pieces. Mix together thoroughly and bake in custard cups or pudding dish for 10 or 15 minutes. Remove from the oven and cover with a meringue which has been slightly sweetened with a little honey and place in the oven until the egg white becomes a light golden brown. Serve warm or cold with plain or unsweetened whipped cream.

Tomatoes Stuffed With Carrots

Scoop out the contents of some medium sized tomatoes and fill them with a mixture of finely grated small carrots and fresh cottage cheese. Sprinkle with parsley, place an olive on top and serve on lettuce leaves.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Books on Psychology

Question: Janet asks: Will you publish the names of several books along the lines of developing personality?"

Answer: I suggest that you consult your public librarian since there are so many good books on this subject. I believe that every book on psychology, personality and behaviorism has some good quality. By comparing them one with another you can obtain the greatest benefit.

Milk and Stewed Fruit

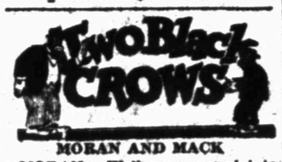

Question: Mrs. R. D. H. asks: "Does milk combine with raisins, dates and figs, and is banana squash as starchy as the Hubbard squash?"

Answer: Milk combines well with dates, raisins, figs, or in fact, any other fruit. Banana squash is practically as starchy as the Hubbard squash.

Liver Spots

Question: Miss W. F. T. asks: "Would you advise an orange juice diet for the removal of liver spots? If not, what would you suggest?"

Answer: A fast on citrus fruit is a good treatment for any kind of liver derangements, although "liver spots" are probably not caused by anything wrong with the liver. They are undoubtedly caused by an acidosis which is caused by wrong eating and which is always present with the different liver derangements.

MORAN AND MACK

MORAN: Well any complaints about my cookin' today?

MACK: Man says they wuz a tooth in th' puddin'.

MORAN: "Tell 'em to see a dentist.

MACK: Feller says he don't mind yo' skimming th' milk on th' top.

MORAN: Everybody does that.

MACK: But he got sore when yo' turn th' milk over an' skin it on t' BOTTOM too.

MORAN: What wuz he sayin' about th' rabbit stew?

MACK: He says it wuz half-and-hal'.

MORAN: That's good, ain't it?

MACK: Nope. He says it wuz half a rabbit an' half a horse.

MORAN: Anything else wrong?

MACK: Yes, them seedless raisins.

MORAN: They only cost 'em a dime.

MACK: Yes, but he says he never SEED LESS raisins for th' money in his life.

The customer may not have been grammatical when he said he never seed less raisins in his life. But we know what he meant. Looks like Big Boy's lunch wagon will soon make a non-stop flight to the junkyard.

South Plains Towns Move Poultry Here

Large quantities of eggs are now beginning to come into Wichita Falls from the nearby communities from which thousands of chickens have been shipped here recently, according to local dealers.

A large carload of chickens, ducks, geese and guineas, made up at Quitaque and Silverton on the new South Plains railway of the Fort Worth & Denver system, arrived Monday at the platform of the Wichita Poultry & Egg company. The birds remain in the batteries of the local plant for from four to 12 days on a diet of much rest and more food before moving to eastern points in the form of dressed poultry.

A solid carload of Delicious apples, comprising 156 cases, from the Yakima valley in Washington, were unloaded Monday at the Texas Produce company's platform. Engineering plays a vital part in bringing produce from remote sections of the country to the points of greater demand. The cars containing apples and other fruits coming from the northwest at this season are heated by steam lines from the locomotives which move the trains, while the vegetable and fruits arriving from the Rio Grande valley are shipped in refrigerator cars. Ample supplies of Texas grapefruit are now being supplied to the local market, as well as increasing number of strawberries from the same territory.

Northcott Sells All His Clothes As Trial Progresses

COURTROOM, RIVERSIDE, Calif., Feb. 4. (AP)—Gordon Stewart Northcott today revealed that he has sold all his clothes except those he has been wearing in court—a costume consisting of corduroy trousers and rough lumberjack shirt.

"If I get life imprisonment or am hanged, I won't have any use for clothes," the young Canadian, charged with boy murders at his Wineville, Calif., ranch, declared. "If I go free I never want to wear those clothes again anyway. They would bring back unpleasant memories."

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Feb. 4. (AP)—The cotton market was lower today in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables. There were also complaints of poor spot demand, which may have influenced later trading. May contracts sold off to 19.65, net decline of 22 points at that figure. The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 20 to 24 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of 6 to 12 points under selling on the relatively easy showing of Liverpool. After showing net declines of about 10 to 15 points, prices steadied up from the lowest on trading buying and covering. The bulges of 7 or 8 points met renewed liquidation and the market weakened again in the afternoon.

In addition to liquidation of long contracts, there was local and southern selling on the decline, which carried March off to 19.59 and new October contracts to 19.04 in late trading. The close was at the lowest prices of the day on most positions. Buying on an early decline may have been encouraged by reports of better prospects for a settlement of the disputs in Lancashire without suspension of mill activity. This report, however, seemed to be offset by other reports that spinners of Egyptian cotton and Lancashire were considering curtailment of production and complaints of disappointing demand for cotton cloth from India and China.

A private report saying that it was still too early for a definite estimate but that prospects pointed to an increase of from 1 to 2 per cent in acreage came in for no general comment as a market factor.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 4. (AP)—Declines of slightly more than $1 a bale followed moderate selling in the cotton market today and although sufficient trade buying on scale down orders developed from time to time and rallied prices a few points, the market was on the downgrade for practically the entire session. The lows of the day were reached in final trading when May contracts sold at 19.02, or 21 points down. The option closed at 19.04 with the general market steady at net losses of 1 to 21 points.

Liverpool cables were lower than due at the start here and first trades showed declines of 6 to 18 points. Prices continued to ease off during the morning until selling stimulated by a private report that crop preparations were up to the average for this period of the season and, although there was more or less trade buying on the scale down, March sold off to 19.05, May 19.09 and July 19.08, or 11 to 15 points below Saturday's close.

There was a rally of 5 to 7 points from these figures but when the demand was supplied a cable from Bombay, India, saying that mills there were closed down due to riots brought out renewed selling which carried prices to new lows for the day 20 to 22 points net down. Final prices were 1 to 2 points above the lowest.

Report from London of prospects for the peaceful settlement of labor disputes in Lanchasire mills exerted little influence in the market probably being off-set by the shutdown in India and the favorable crop preparation report.

Money Tension Makes Stock Market Action Irregular; Motors Climb

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Feb. 4 (US)—Tight money kept the stock market irregular, in fairly active trading today. It was late in the afternoon when the call rate was advanced to 8 per cent from renewal of 7 per cent but fear of such increase influenced liquidation in industrial leaders throughout the session. Some covering developed in the motors late in the afternoon that closed General Motors, Packard and others higher, but Steel lost over a point net, while Montgomery Ward dropped 3, General Electric 4½, Johns Manville 6 and National Cash register 1⅞. Curtiss gained over 9 points and other airplane stocks displayed good demand. Railroads somewhat irregular, and the oils dipped lower also, but met better support than in recent trading.

Advance in the call rate to 8 per cent was no surprise. As the banks called loans there was widespread warning that such increase was coming. It was due to the necessity of banks meeting checks for Feb. 1 payments coming through the clearing house and therefore was looked upon as a temporary condition. Lower rate was confidently expected for the next few days. London advices also were a reassuring influence in that they indicated no increase in the Bank of England rate for the next few weeks. It is thought that our rate will remain unchanged so long as no increase is made in London. The British banking powers do not want to raise their rate if they can help it, as business in England is none too good. However, should the reserve authorities here decide that the New York rediscount rate must be advanced, then the Bank of England will be compelled to take action.

Goldman Sachs' Trading Corporation was the sensation of the day with its skyrocketing flight to a new high record. The advance is almost an expression of confidence in the management, as the corporation has power to do almost anything. The record of Goldman Sachs' stocks outshines all others, and for that reason practically all of the trading corporation stock has been taken up by long-pull holders.

International Cement continued the topic of favorable advices, it being stated that the new interests who took a position last week were ready to start more aggressive operations.

Lambert's further rise was partly in sympathy with the Goldman Sachs' Trading move, but mostly due to recognition of its investment position. There was rumor that Industrial Alcohol and Hiram Walker would merge. First, however, Walker is expected to split up, and the new shares be admitted to trading on the big board. Advance Rumely continued to reflect the reported fight for control. Bethlehem Steel's further advance was regarded as reflecting realization of its improving earnings as outlined here last week. There was some quiet absorption of Liggett & Myers which on showing in recent earnings report seems behind other tobaccos. Chrysler again labored under burden of expectation of poor showing in forthcoming report. The statement is about ready to be issued and should come out within the next day or so, as Walter Chrysler is expected to sail on an extended vacation the end of the week. With write-offs resulting from Dodge acquisition taken care of Chrysler's showing this quarter should be better.

There was further good absorption of such rails as Baltimore & Ohio, Pittsburgh & West Virginia, Reading, Wabash, Western Maryland and others due to the belief that merger possibilities had not been fully discounted. The most important railroad merger news, however, is not likely to be forthcoming until after the inauguration. It is expected that President Hoover's first address to congress will stress the railroad situation, emphasizing the benefits to be derived by business from consummation of plans to group the principal carriers.

Wars Will Continue Until People Are Really Free, Ludendorff Declares

'Brains' of German Army, Now Thorough Pacifist, Says Secret Forces Are Constantly Stirring Up Hatred

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND
(Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service)

MUNICH, Germany, Feb. 4—"Wars between nations will end when people come to the realization that they are the tools and the fools of the hidden war-makers; when the peoples become actually free, when they have shaken off the hidden powers and really govern themselves. Then and not until then, will there be world peace."

Gen. Erich Ludendorff, ex-warlord and militarist, the brains of the imperial German armies in the world conflict, speaking!

I was sitting in the drawing room of his villa on Prince Ludwig Heights on the outskirts of Munich, where I had sat many times before chatting with the man who indisputably was one of the greatest figures in the world war, perhaps the greatest strategist in it, who had stood off so large a part of the world and who only succumbed after America threw its tremendous energy, men and money into the scale against him.

And this man had turned apostle of peace! Advocate and prophet of rule by the people! I had asked him what he, one of the greatest living experts on armaments and war, who had directed millions of men into battle as an orchestra director leads his orchestra, what he thought of the nervousness in Europe, the increased arming going on on all sides, the chances of war in 1929.

"I am not well enough informed on the armaments to really discuss them," he answered. "I am not interested in war of armaments. I am interested only in peace, in revealing to the peoples who the war-makers are—the 'super-national powers.' Above all I want to see the German people a free people again."

"Do I understand, general, that you are now against all war?" I asked.

Opposes War

"I am against war," he replied with all the vigour of his dynamic energy. "I can conceive a moral war on two grounds: by an oppressed people for their liberty and independence, in which your American revolution against the English probably would come, and, war in the defense of the preservation of a nation attacked."

Late War "Moral" One

Then with great vehemence Ludendorff declared, "Germany's war in the world conflict was a moral war, for we were attacked on all sides and were to be crushed if not annihilated. The Versailles treaty, the outlines of which had been decided upon long before, is ample proof. The plan was for the armies of the East, that is Russia, and the armies of the West, to meet in Berlin. We foiled that." Something of the old military ardour, was stirring in Ludendorff.

"Your entrance into the conflict, America's war against Germany, was a grossly immoral or unmoral war, for you had nothing against us. We were known to you as a gentle, industrious, hardworking people and progressive nation. Your own statistics of the millions of our race that are in the United States, show that they are among the most law abiding, industrious and thrifty elements in your population. How did we suddenly become to you huns, boches, beasts, who cut off children's hands, women's breasts, tried out in kettles the bodies of our honored dead and yours on the battle fields? I ask you, how could a people with our history and our culture so suddenly be transformed in your eyes into that which we were painted and the American people believed? It was the hidden powers—the secret forces—those forces which make for war and to the unmasking of which I shall devote the rest of my life."

Like a refrain—like the iteration of a man obsessed—came again and again from the great battle conductor—"super-national powers"—"hidden forces."

Poor Politician

"I am afraid, general, that you have undertaken a bigger job than when you fought against the world with the German armies," I remarked.

"No, don't shake your head. I know I am called a poor politician. Some say worse things of me. I have gone deep into this subject. I maintain that the greatest enemy of peace are the things politically and in statecraft done in the dark; secrecy, secret diplomacy, secret pacts and pacts made in secrecy by hidden hands and forces to the peoples invisible.

"The American people had nothing against the German people and we certainly had nothing against you. Do you suppose for a moment that in the present Anglo-American tension that the English people as such want to kill the Americans or make war on you or that the American people want to kill off any of the British? Certainly not. They do not dream of it. In this day and age civilized peoples do not want to make war on one another. Why should they kill one another? Because they are made to see 'red,' so to speak."

"Then your excellency believes in the possibility of war between England and America?" I suggested.

Conflict Possible

"Possible?" the famous military chieftain raised his eyebrows high. "Possible, certainly. More possible than war seemed possible between America and Germany years ago. For, between America and Britain, ther are undeniable strongly conflicting interests and policies. There were none between America and Germany. But, one thing the English people and the men behind the scenes in London may be quite certain of. That is, that war with America will bring revolution in its wake in England no matter what the outcome of the war may be. In the end the sword will be turned against England herself just as it was with us after we had smashed Russia."

"Then what is your idea of peace can best be maintained and wars prevented?"

"First, that the people govern, but really govern and have their will carried out. Governments of today and the democracies as they now exist are deceptions and too often just a mask for those who pull the wires. Secondly, the glaring light of publicity, ruthless publicity, focused on all acts of diplomacy and statecraft. Tear away the curtain that conceals the secret powers and hidden forces on the stage of secret diplomacy, secret lodges, secret statecraft. Direct the light of pitiless publicity into the dark corners, drag out into the light the war-makers and let the people see them!

"War like crime is made in the dark—in secrecy. Why did Chamberlain and Briand make their Anglo-French naval pact in secrecy? If its intent was good why should it have been secret? Both are representatives of so-called democratic systems where the people live in the illusion that they govern themselves. Was Chamberlain carrying out the will of the British people when he made in secrecy that pact which obviously was directed against America on one hand and Germany on the other. Judging from the storm it raised in England one must conclude that he was not and could not, since the people knew nothing about it. Then whose will was he carrying out? Who are the hidden forces behind that pact? The act of the Hearst newspapers in dragging that pact into public light was promptly followed by popular repudiation in England. That was a splendid journalistic achievement in the interest of peace.

His View of 1929

"What is your view of possible events in the new year?" I asked.

"I greet every new year with welcome, for it will mean another year in which the peoples will learn to think more and the more they think the more they will realize how they are being deceived, made tools and fools of."

"That sounds very revolutionary, general."

"I do not want the shedding of blood, but if the people arise as one man there will be no blood shed. Those who have deceived and exploited the people will run for their holes and be glad to get away. Rumania is an example of what I mean when a nation is ripe for throwing off the yoke that is on the people. There was no bloodshed when Manlu so splendidly and peaceably overthrew the regime there. So it will come in time in other countries too. First we must learn to think differently. That is hard. It takes time."

"Do you think the coming year will bring war?"

"War against Russia is in the foreground of the hidden powers. Externally they are seen in certain elements in France and England. But we will prevent it, we will prevent it." The last he added with great vehemence.

ROME—On the road to Tivoli, a few miles from this city, has been unearthed an ancient tomb, presumably of an old patrician Roman family. Next to the tomb is a sanctuary dedicated to the worship of Mithras, the god of light.

CLUB CONCERT HERE TONIGHT

Local Artists to Appear In Elaborate Program

With the announcement that Joseph Burger, concert and operatic baritone, will be present to sing Mrs. Harwood Stacy's prize-winning song, "Whither," preparations were completed Monday for the varied program of instrumental and vocal music to be given at the Junior college auditorium Tuesday night at 8:15 under the auspices of the Musicians club.

Mrs. C. E. Beavers, past president of the Musicians club, who has been active in arranging the affair, declared Monday that the entertainment to be presented Tuesday night is the finest program which that organization ever has offered the people of this city. With the exception of Mrs. Stacy and Mr. Burger, all persons figuring in the musicale are now residents of Wichita Falls.

The first part of the program will be given by the Wichita Falls Symphony orchestra of 45 pieces, under the direction of Ethel Allen Nelson, which is now in its second year of work. The organization of the orchestra less than two years ago was accomplished largely through the efforts of Mr. Nelson, and the several performances given last year set a standard which assures its hearers Tuesday night a period of delightful ensemble music. The personnel of the organization represents both the professional and amateur talent of the city. Numbers for the first part of the program are chosen from the works of old European masters, and include also "Marche Funebre," inspired by the spirit of realism and composed by Mr. Nelson.

The number to be sung by Mr. Burger is that with which Mrs. Stacy won the state contest conducted recently at San Antonio, and which was given its first performance last week with the same artist interpreting the song to Mrs. Stacy's accompaniment. Mr. Burger is purely an American product, from a musical standpoint, having been born in San Antonio and trained by some of the foremost voice teachers in this country.

Violin solos by Mr. Nelson, and the "Blue Danube Waltz," played by Floyd Ard Jr., complete the program of instrumental numbers.

A group of solos by Miss Modena Howell, soprano, including Schubert's "Serenade," with violin obligato by Mrs. T. B. Greenwood, opens the second part of the program, which closes with several selections from Liza Lehmann's song cycle "In a Persian Garden," to be sung by a quartet composed of Mrs. Kenneth Bebb, soprano; Mrs. A. H. Mahaffey, contralto; W. L. Underwood, tenor, and Lester F. Aldrich, baritone.

Mrs. Stacy and Mrs. J. W. Akin Jr. will be accompanists for the various soloists.

Members of the Musicians club reported Monday that the sale of tickets, which are priced at 50 cents, promise a large attendance Tuesday night.

Oklahomans Want Farm Relief, Not Cruisers

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 4. (UP)—A resolution memorializing congress not to pass the "Coolidge Cruiser Bill" but to use the money for agricultural relief was introduced in the Oklahoma legislature today by Senators Thomas, Ray, Rexroat and Pullen.

The resolution points out that the Coolidge bill provides for 15 cruisers and congress has previously declared that the country was without funds for agricultural relief.

Proceedings Against Baking Firm Looms

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. (UP)—The LaFollette resolution calling upon the federal trade commission to reinstatee anti-trust proceedings against the Continental Baking corporation was reported favorably today by the senate judiciary committee.

The so-called bread trust case was dropped by the federal trade commission almost simultaneously with the dismissal of a similar suit brought against the department of justice.

How Best To Use Vicks VapoRub In Case Of Flu

Begin This Simple External Treatment at First Sign of Any Cough or Cold

If possible, go home and go to bed. Take a laxative and a hot lemonade. Apply hot wet towels over throat and chest until the skin is thoroughly reddened. Then rub vigorously with Vicks. Spread on thickly and cover with warm flannel.

Leave the bed-covering loose, so that the vapors, released by the body-warmth, may be freely inhaled. At the same time, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice.

Repeat this treatment every few hours, eat lightly, and stay in bed until the cold is broken. Complete rest helps the body throw off the cold more quickly.

Mothers especially appreciate Vicks for the children. As it is applied externally it can be used freely and often, without upsetting delicate digestions, as too much "dosing" is so apt to do.

As in 1918, in spite of tripled capacity, the Vicks laboratories are now operating all night long. The public is demanding over 375,000 jars every 24 hours.—Adv.

By The Record News Critic

The United States may not be the oldest nation in the world, but because it put power behind a broad, general vision and ideal, it is the world's leader today, and it combines quality with its leadership.

Paramount may not have been the first organization to make a movie, but it is the kingdom of the movie world. Its first all talking picture, "Interference," now playing here at the Strand theater, is the equivalent of the name of the company, Paramount.

The play "Interference" is adapted from the stage play of the same name which ran for two years in London, a year in New York and for long periods of time elsewhere. For downright sheer drama, the screen has seldom seen its equal.

William Powell is the despoiler, the central character whose return from the dead kills one woman and almost wrecks the happiness of another, yet his is a sympathetic role.

Evelyn Brent is Powell's former sweetheart. She is a cruel and calculating woman whose love for Powell is deep and constant. Clive Brook is a famed and respected surgeon and Doris Kenyon is his wife.

These are the four main characters, and their acting is the best we have seen in the talkies to date.

The story cannot be told as it would tend to diminish the theatergoer's pleasure at seeing the show.

Cruiser Time Limit Stays

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. (UP)—President Coolidge's effort to strike the time limit from the cruiser bill was defeated by the senate today in favor of the congressional plan for laying the 15 new keels, five a year for three years.

An amendment to the cruiser bill by Senator Harrison, Mississippi Democrat, which would have carried out President Coolidge's wish to strike the time limit from the bill, was rejected by a majority made up largely of "big navy" Republicans. The vote was 28 to 54.

Defeat of the amendment settles the question, the house previously having voted to make mandatory construction of the cruisers within three years. When the bill goes to conference for adjustment of differences between the house and senate, the Coolidge recommendation for striking out the time limit cannot be discussed under the rules governing conference committees.

Republican leaders expect Mr. Coolidge to sign the bill despite the adverse action of congress in this one feature of the measure.

With passage of the bill assured, Senator Curtis, Republican floor leader, moved to recess over the protest of Chairman Hale of the naval affairs committee in charge of the bill. The Curtis motion was adopted without a record vote.

Those who stood for the president's plan and voted for the Harrison amendment included 16 Republicans, 11 Democrats and one Farmer-Laborite.

When Senator Reed of Missouri proposed a complicated amendment to the Borah amendment for codification of maritime law senators demanded a recess be taken until noon tomorrow to permit study of the amendment.

Mayfield and Sheppard of Texas were among the 11 Democrats voting to eliminate the time provision.

Tax Collector Finds 49 "Hot Checks" in His Mail Tuesday

Charles R. Parker, deputy tax collector, was more than confirmed in his determination to prosecute all persons giving hot checks in payment for automobile licenses by the arrival of no less than 49 returned checks in the mail Tuesday.

Fingering the stack of worthless documents, the collector issued his final warning. "Any man who knows he has given a bad check had better show up here with the funds at once, or the matter goes into the hands of the county attorney," he declared.

RAMPANT BRIBE PRACTICE MADE

Investigation Into Pardon Bares Payments To Officials

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Feb. 4. (UP)—That bribery was rampant in the exercise of duties of the state government was charged today before the Oklahoma house investigating committee.

The charge today involved the payment of $1,400 to procure a pardon for R. Dewey Crosthwaite, convicted murderer and escaped convict at the time the pardon was granted. The pardoning of Crosthwaite was one of the 11 charges upon which Henry S. Johnston was impeached.

The charge was made by Ed Sandlin, vice president of an Ardmore bank, who testified that T. N. Crosthwaite, the convict's father, had cashed two checks, one for $1,200 and another for $200, the day the pardon was granted. Bank records were introduced showing that on this day a member of the law firm, who testified his firm had received but $50 for obtaining the fugitive's pardon, had deposited $400 in currency in an Ardmore bank. Other records showed that another member of this firm had deposited $300 that day.

Friends of Johnston today were confident they had enough votes to block the suspended governor's impeachment when he comes to trial a week from today. It was claimed 17 of the 44 senators would stand by Johnston. Thirty votes are required to remove him. Fifteen will sustain him. His opponents say he will not be able to rally 10 votes.

Investigation of the supreme court continued unabated today. The committee examined court records and compared them with testimony taken last week.

Opinion Gives Rules For Chartering Town

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 4. (UP)—Acting Gov. W. J. Holloway was advised by the attorney general's office today the process by which the city of Watonga may secure a charter for a city of the first class.

The opinion held that a formal census must be taken showing the city to have 2,000 inhabitants. An election must then be held following petition of 35 per cent of the qualified voters.

Hoover Cleared Upon Sugar Price Charges

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. COULDN'T GET FAR

SLAYER'S LOVE AFFAIR HIDDEN

Northcott's Mother Refuses To Give Details

RIVERSIDE, Calif., Feb. 4. (US)—Mrs. Louise Northcott stuck by "her boy" today at his murder trial here when, under a severe crossexamination, she refused to reveal details regarding his love affair with a mystery girl known as Helen Williams.

And, while Gordon Stewart Northcott 21-year-old Wineville rancher charged with the murders of young boys, excitedly interposed objections, Mrs. Northcott engaged in a word battle with Deputy District Attorney Earl Redwine, in charge of the prosecution.

The gray-haired woman brought here as a defense witness from San Quentin prison, where she is serving a life sentence for the confessed murder of Walter Collins, repudiated her confessed guilt in its entirety.

From the witness stand she charged that she was practically forced into the murder confession in the belief that it would help Northcott to escape from the gallows.

She almost screamed to the jury that both she and Northcott, who she previously had testified was her "grandson," was innocent of any murders.

"I don't belong in San Quentin anymore than you do," she shouted, as she pointed her finger at Redwine.

Northcott acting as his own attorney, jumped to his feet, and pleading "Mother, dear, calm yourself. You are upsetting everything—I know you are suffering under a terrible strain, but you must not lose your temper."

Mrs. Northcott was then taken over for redirect examination by Northcott, and finally excused from the stand.

Northcott created a mild sensation shortly before court adjourned when he recalled Sanford Clark, his 15-year-old nephew, to the stand. Sanford, the state's chief witness and whose story brought about Northcott's arrest, had previously testified as to how Northcott had murdered young boys on his poultry ranch near here.

In an effort to impeach the boy's testimony, Northcott attempted to show that it was Sanford Clark who spilled the blood on the Northcott automobile and who brought a ukelele to the ranch. But Sanford refused to change his story.

The Moores live here.

Booth Seeks to Gain Power Over High Council

LONDON, Feb. 4. (UP)—Salvation Army headquarters announced today that Gen. W. Bramwell Booth, who has left a sick bed to fight the attempt to depose him as head of the army, had started legal proceedings to have the 1904 "deed poll" of the army declared invalid.

The general's latest strategic move, if successful, would strip the army's high council of any power to force him out, and leave Booth with sole power to name his successor.

Texas House Votes To Seat Montgomery

AUSTIN, Feb. 4 (AP)—Acting on a motion by Beck of Fort Worth, the house today voted to seat Rep. W. R. Montbomery of Edinburg, whose right to serve in the 41st legislature had been assailed by E. M. Smith of Hidalgo county.

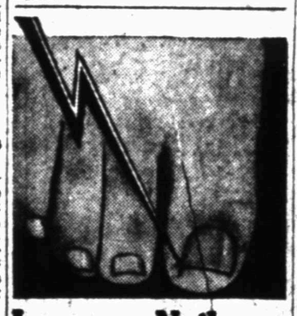

Smith, Montgomery's general election opponent, alleged Montgomery had been swept into the office on a tide of illegal balloting.

Ingrown Nail Turns Right Out!

Pain Stops Instantly!

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.—Adv.

Britain to Send Largest Plane Ever Built on Flight to Africa

LONDON, Feb. 4 (US)—Britain has evolved an airplane which is confidently expected to make a non-stop flight between Croyden airdrome and Capetown, South Africa, a distance of 6,000 miles. If these hopes are realized in the trial shortly to be made, this Fairey monoplane will have broken the world's non-stop flight record.

Today's report leaking from the jealously guarded aerodrome at Cranwell, where this latest long-distance sky traveler is being tuned up for trial flights, is that, once the trials are over, she will be taken to Capetown by easy flights and thence will make the supreme effort to fly back to Croydon without coming to earth. The reason for this reverse flight is that prevalent winds at this season of the year would assist the south-to-north flight, whereas they would prove a great handicap if the new machine were to make its test flight from England to the Cape.

This Fairey monoplane represents some remarkably revolutionary features in construction. For one thing, the more than three tons weight of gasoline necessary to lift the machine from the Cape to Croydon are to be carried in tanks situated in both wings, which are built in reference to the body on the "cantilever system" with a hitherto secret method of construction to guard against the twisting in flight common to this type of wing structure. The wing span over all is 82 feet, with a chord—that is, from front to rear—of 16 feet.

The fuselage is remarkably short for so big a plane—48½ feet, and very narrow. The tail plane, which is adjustable, is also set on the cantilever system. The cabin, though narrow, provides a comfortable seat and folding table for the navigator, with racks for charts and food supplies. A collapsible pneumatic bed can be stretched along the cabin floor.

High Power Radio Stations Defended

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4 (AP)—Commissioner LaFount, of the federal radio commission, told the senate interstate commerce committee today that the radio public generally wants to hear programs broadcast over chain hook-ups. The committee, which is considering a proposal to prolong the federal radio commission for another year, questioned LaFount as to the need of high powered stations. He said, while the 50,000 watts stations may not be heard in a territory much larger than a 10,000 watt station, the reception is clearer.

Home-Made, but Ends Bad Cough In a Hurry

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a home-made medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Put this into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and soothes away the inflammation. At the same time it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in obstinate bronchial coughs and "flu" coughs.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.
