Snyder hosting 31st Grand Ole Tour

Over 100 cars taking part in games, tours

Model A's, Model T's, classic cars, street rods and more — including a 1917 Detroit Electric — have wheeled into Snyder for the Big Spring Antique Automobile Club of America's Grand Ole Tour.

Club officials estimate that 100 cars and 350 people will be involved in the contests, games, a parade and tours of the area today and Saturday.

This morning, judging was taking place in the coliseum parking lot. Divided into 10 catergories, the cars are evaluated on originality, paint and engines.

Car games were to take place at 2 p.m. today in the parking lot.

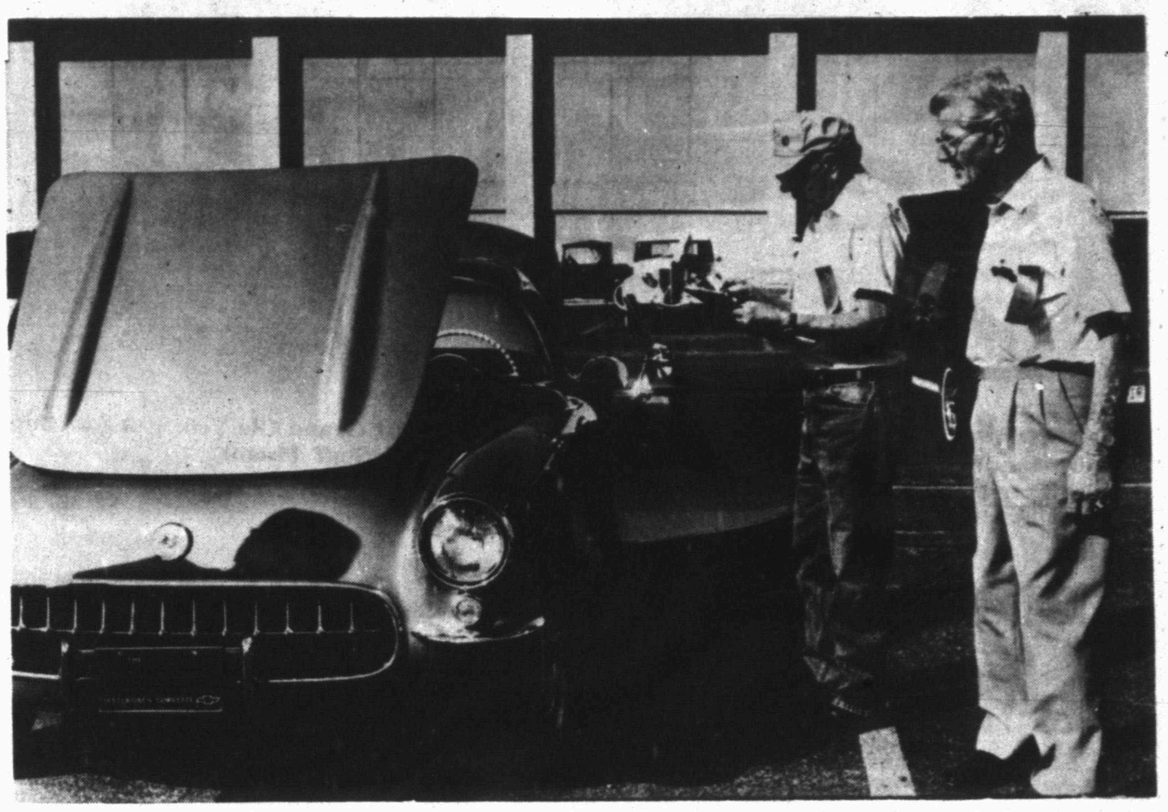

A style show and banquet for Big Spring AACA members is set for 7 this evening at Martha Ann Woman's Club.

Saturday morning, two Grand Ole Tours will take off for Jack Greene's residence around 8:30. The cars are to be divided into two groups, each taking a different route at 9 and 9:30 a.m. The shorter tour, estimated to be 35 miles, will travel through Dunn and Round Top Acres before proceeding back to the coliseum. China Grove, Dunn, Ira and Lake J. B. Thomas are sites included in the longer, 65-mile, route.

At 2 p.m. Saturday, the cars will parade from the coliseum through the downtown area. The public is welcome to follow the group back to the coliseum where the cars will again be on display.

An awards banquet is set for 7 p.m. Saturday at Martha Ann Woman's Club.

Formed in November of 1967, the Big Spring AACA currently has 102 members from Big Spring, Snyder, Lamesa, Colorado City, Ackerly, Welch, Tahoka and Euless, and Hobbs, N.M.

In Brief

Income down

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans' personal income stagnated in June but they kept on spending anyway, the government said today.

Personal income was unchanged at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $5.3 trillion, breaking a string of six consecutive increases, the Commerce Department said.

Income last failed to increase in November, when it also was unchanged. It had risen 0.5 percent in May and 0.2 percent in April.

Spending, meanwhile, rose 0.6 percent to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $4.32 trillion. It was the third consecutive increase, following gains of 0.4 percent in May and 1.3 percent in April.

Autistic child

GARLAND (AP) — The Dallas County Medical Examiner's Office was examining a partially decomposed body to determine if it is that of an autistic boy who has been missing since July 18.

Two Mesquite residents found the body in a field in Mesquite, a suburb east of Dallas, about 6:10 p.m. Thursday. The area is about 10 miles from where 8-year-old Kim Nguyen vanished from his parents' Garland home, Officer Larry Rollins said.

County court hammering out contract for airport operator

Commissioners today have set a session for 4 p.m. in an attempt to finalize an agreement with an airport operator from Victoria to contract to manage Scurry County's airport.

Commissioners this morning were going over details of the agreement and talking by telephone with Jerry Dean Halton, who is interested in contracting with the county to operate the airport and to do mechanic work.

Under the contract, the person would be responsible for hiring and paying any employees at the airport. The county would expect the airport to be open 70 hours a week and the repair shop to operate on a regular schedule.

The operator could charge no more than $30 per hour for mechanic work.

The two parties have yet to land on an exact figure for the contract, expected to be less than $40,000 annually, which could result in a labor savings to the county of between $5,000 and $10,000.

Commissioner Roy Idom said the contract could allow the airport to break even or possibly show a small profit during 1994.

The county would still derive the income from fuel sold and from airport hanger rentals. The contactor would be responsible for labor for maintenance, and the county would provide the equipment such as mowers and other supplies.

Also this morning, commissioners continued their budget workshop by reviewing the budgets of the Scurry County Coliseum, the parks department and building maintenance.

Jay Wesson, coliseum manager, presented a 1994 budget almost identical to the current one. The proposed spending at the coliseum would total $265,690.

In the parks department, the proposed budget is down about $4,700. H.C. Walker, maintenance supervisor, said use of inmate labor has allowed for a reduction of part-time labor. Added to the budget was $3,900 for dumpsters at the community centers.

The proposed budget for building maintenance totals $245,101, an increase of about $14,000 over the current year. Insurance expense accounted for $8,000 of the increase and allowance for utilities were increased $2,000. Also added was $1,680 for elevator maintenance.

Commissioners discussed briefly the need for action to reduce utility costs at the courthouse and senior citizens center.

The court asked Walker to see about curtailing night and weekend activity at the two county facilities when heating and cooling for the entire building must be left in operation.

Wednesday afternoon, commissioners reviewed proposed road and bridge expenses for each precinct, noting that the overall budget is down by about $40,000.

County Auditor Eddie McHaney said the current year road and bridge budget is $1,189,384 and the proposed budget is $1,145,975.

Commissioners talked about taking all or part of the $40,000 and placing in it either in one depreciation budget or splitting it for individual precinct depreciation budgets.

Tax bill...

Gas increase pared to 4.3¢

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional Democratic leaders who have tentatively pared the gasoline-tax increase to 4.3 cents a gallon are trying to put the finishing touches on President Clinton's deficit-reduction bill. "I think we're going to make it," a top Clinton administration official predicted today.

Administration officials and House-Senate bargainers concluded Thursday that a boost of about 6 cents a gallon, which they had considered, could cost the votes of enough senators to bring the entire measure crashing down, said aides who spoke on condition of anonymity.

As a result, the total deficit reduction claimed in the compromise bill is expected to fall a bit below the $500 billion, five-year total Clinton and his Democratic allies have so often touted. But Democrats were expected to leave the figure above the $482 billion credited to the bipartisan 1990 budget agreement, the biggest such package in history.

"I think we're going to make it," Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen predicted today. "I think the forces are coming together, I believe we're going to be successful," Bentsen said on ABC.

"The probability is that the Senate gasoline tax will be where we end up, but not necessarily," Senate Finance Committee Chairman Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., told reporters, referring to the 4.3-cent boost the Senate initially approved last month.

Today's completion of the final bill would set the stage for a final congressional showdown over Clinton's legislative centerpiece for the year. Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, predicted that Congress would ship the final product to Clinton next week over solid Republican opposition.

But Democratic strategists, speaking on condition of anonymity, conceded that with conservative Democrats seeking deep spending cuts and liberals pushing for more generous treatment of social programs, the bill's fate would not be clear for days.

"We're feeling much more confident we have the votes in both the Senate and the House. ...," White House Budget Director Leon Panetta said today. "I think we can make it work and I think we can pass it next week," he said on CBS.

Ross Perot, however, said Congress should not be too quick to act. "What's the hurry?" the Texas billionaire asked today.

Perot, appearing on NBC, said Congress and Clinton should take a few weeks and work out a bipartisan effort to reach a balanced budget.

Small-town health care is alive and well. The Hood County News in Granbury reported that Hood General Hospital is considering a major expansion project. The price tag was estimated at $6 million.

The county-owned hospital wasn't the only facility running out of space. Commissioners agreed with hospital board members that the proposed indigent health clinic temporarily be located in the former Fred Astaire Dance Studio Building.

Snyder health care is expanding as well, as hospital officials here are preparing clinic space for two new doctors due to begin their practice here this summer.

Collider decision delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The super collider's management won't be overhauled this week, after all.

Energy Secretary Hazel O'Leary was expected to announce by the end of this week the result of her 30-day review of the $10 billion project's management. But she told a congressional committee Thursday that her decision will be delayed a week.

"I am now saying it will be slipping about a week or less," she told members of the House Science, Space and Technology Committee, when asked about her self-imposed deadline.

O'Leary said she would have a decision by the end of next week on whether to fire the collider's prime contractor, the non-profit Universities Research Association, or make contract changes.

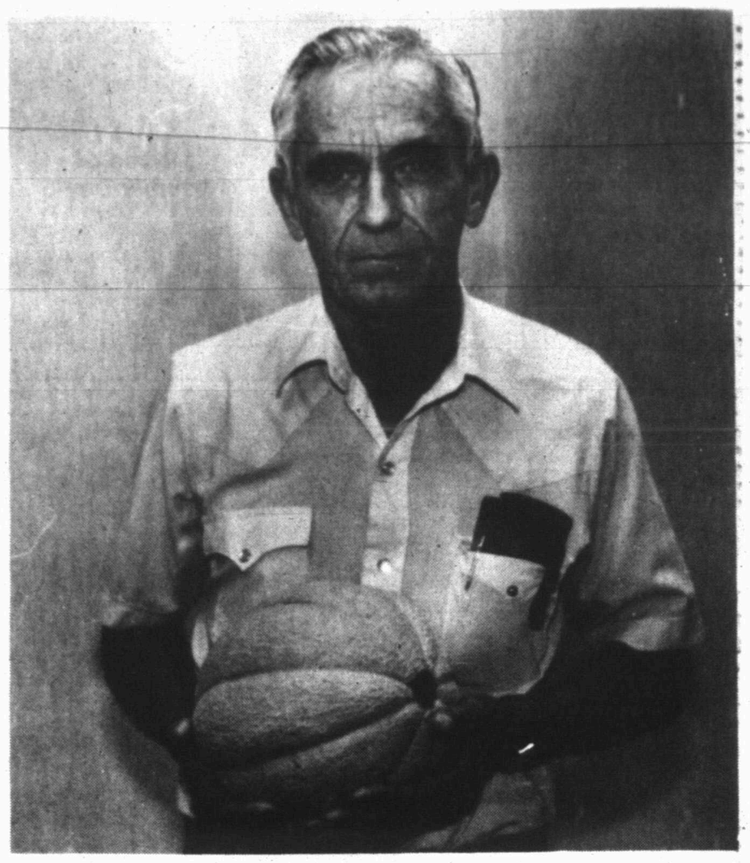

She initiated the review last month amid growing criticism of the project's overseers. The builder, the non-profit Universities Research Association, has come under attack from congressional investigators and lawmakers for inadequate accounting practices that auditors contend could lead to huge cost overruns.

O'Leary again reiterated her support for the giant atom smasher, as President Clinton did a day earlier. In a White House news conference with Texas reporters, the president said he was prepared to lobby in the Senate on behalf of a project he termed "quite important."

Senators are expected to debate collider funding in September, after they've returned from their summer break. Senate support for the project is crucial since the House voted last month to terminate funding, for the second year.

Clinton suggested that if the super collider survives this year's funding fight, he will seek ways to obtain a multi-year commitment from lawmakers.

The president said Congress' soul-searching each year over the project — and the resulting funding squabbles — have deterred other countries from participating in the collider's construction. Critics of the program often cite the lack of foreign participation as an argument to kill the program.

Immigration crackdown plan disappoints 'rights' advocates

AUSTIN (AP) — Human rights advocates in Texas are disappointed with President Clinton's proposed immigration crackdown.

They say the plan is fueled by a growing hysteria that blames newcomers for the nation's economic and social ills.

Clinton announced tough new measures this week that are intended to stem illegal immigration at U.S. borders and to make it harder for people seeking political asylum.

He calls for spending $172.5 million more next year to process political asylum requests, buy new equipment and increase U.S. Border Patrol efforts.

The policy is "rooted in panic and plays on the fears of Americans" worried about the threat of terrorism, job loss and the growing political clout of minority communities, said Pat Malone of Proyecto Libertad in Harlingen. The group provides legal assistance for people seeking political asylum.

Malone said growing anti-immigrant sentiment following the bombing of the World Trade Center in New York, an influx of Haitian and Chinese immigrants and California's continuing economic crisis apparently convinced Clinton it was time to show the American public he will get tough on illegal immigrants.

"We're living in a time when anti-immigrant feelings have probably never been higher," said Maria Jimenez, who monitors immigration law enforcement for the American Friends Services Committee, an international human rights group.

The policy, Ms. Jimenez said, is patterned after California's response to economic woes. California legislators introduced at least 10 bills during their last session intended to restrict state-funded public services for illegal immigrants. California Gov. Pete Wilson has been a vocal critic of federal laws requiring states to provide public education, medical treatment and other services to illegal immigrants.

"I think the Clinton administration decided it had nothing to lose by focusing primarily on an enforcement policy" Ms. Jimenez said. She and other immigrant rights advocates support a "regulatory" approach to the immigration problem, such as registering and taxing Mexican citizens who enter the United States in search of low-paying, manual labor jobs, instead of arresting them and punishing their employers.

Readers Sink Their Teeth Into Debate Over Dentures

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1993 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: In response to the lady who was offended at her church's annual mother-daughter banquet because a prize was given to the oldest mother present with her own teeth:

Obviously, she has never taken part in planning the games and entertainment. It's not easy to come up with something new and entertaining every year.

A couple of years ago, we offered a prize to the woman present with the largest bra size. It took only seconds for one of our good-natured members to jump up and claim the prize. I believe she was a 44 D. The applause was thunderous!

Please don't use my name. Not everyone present thought it was funny.

PROGRAM CHAIRMAN

DEAR CHAIRMAN: Not everyone who read the item in my column thought it was funny. For example:

DEAR ABBY: I was appalled at the letter from "No Town, Please," regarding the mother-and-daughter banquet where they made a joke about wearing dentures.

To many people, dentures are a more personal topic than one's artificial limb or one's underwear. They enhance a person's smile, contribute to one's sex appeal, not to mention that they help a person chew. I have known some women who have never let their husbands see them without their dentures.

Making a game out of the fact that one wears dentures is neither funny nor churchlike. I hope the insensitive woman who caused this unnecessary embarrassment can find a more appropriate game to play in the future.

WARD F. GRAVEL, D.D.S., BEDFORD, N.H.

DEAR ABBY: About the annual mother-and-daughter banquet at church where they asked all the mothers who wore dentures to stand up, then they were asked their ages, and the oldest mother who had her own teeth got a prize: I have never heard of anything so ridiculous — not to mention humiliating.

I am a 62-year-old grandmother who has worn dentures since I was 30 years old — and I had partial plates for years before that. Very few of my friends and relatives know this.

Just last week my next-door neighbor of 25 years mentioned something that caused me to tell her that I wore dentures. She was totally flabbergasted.

If anyone should be so crass as to ask me if these are my own teeth, I'll say, "They damn well better be; I paid enough for them!"

I agree with you, Abby; that contest was rude, crude and insensitive. The woman who organized it should be asked if she is still beating her husband.

FUMING IN AUSTELL, GA.

DEAR ABBY: In response to the lady who was sensitive about the fact that she wore dentures: I am somewhat amused that anyone would feel that way because I have always been very proud of mine. Perhaps it's because my natural teeth were very poor. They were also crooked and yellowish and gave me a lot of trouble. Out of necessity, I had them all pulled when I was quite young.

I am now 66 years young and people still ask me if those are my own teeth.

My reply: "Of course they are ... who else's would they be?"

BABS

DEAR ABBY: It's no joke to wear dentures, but aren't we lucky someone invented them — otherwise, we'd be sucking our meals through a straw. I've worn them for years, and I don't mind telling anyone I do.

My false teeth are my claim to fame with my grandchildren. They say, "Hi, Gram ... show us your teeth!" I take them out and they scream with laughter, and then I get some hugs.

Experts debunk 'no pain, no gain' theory

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fitness experts are aiming to persuade millions of Americans to change their lifestyles with their pronouncement that even moderate exercise yields big health benefits.

In fact, the experts said Thursday, a person can stay fit with a total of 30 minutes of moderate, intermittent exercise most days. And that could amount to walking briskly, climbing the stairs, gardening or raking leaves.

In other words, you don't need an hour-long, heart-pounding workout in the gym or some home exercise contraption just to stay in shape.

Past exercise edicts "overemphasized the important of high-intensity exercise," said the new advice from the American College of Sports Medicine and the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

The change of tone caught some fitness buffs by surprise. But at a big gym in downtown Washington, Mark Mlynek said he didn't expect it to cut into his business.

Some people exercise, rather than diet, to burn off excess fat, "and moderate exercise won't do that for them," said Mlynek, 24, program director for a Bally's Holiday Spa that draws up to 1,000 people a day to its weight machines, step-climbers, cycles and treadmills.

Tom McMillen, the former Maryland congressman and new co-chair of the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports, said only 40 million Americans exercise regularly and the trend has been downwards in recent years.

The new advice could help convince the other 200 million-plus that fitness is within their reach, he said.

The new exercise credo is: "Every American adult should accumulate 30 minutes or more of moderate intensity physical activity over the course of most days of the week."

"Activities that can contribute to the 30-minute total include walking up stairs instead of taking the elevator, gardening, raking leaves, dancing and walking part or all of the way to work," the experts said.

Jogging, playing tennis, swimming and cycling will all do the trick, but so will a brisk, two-mile walk at a pace of 15 to 20 minutes a mile.

"You don't need to be an athlete in order to get the health benefits of physical activity," said Dr. Walter R. Dowdle, acting director of the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Steven N. Blair, director of epidemiology at the Cooper Institute for Aerobics Research in Dallas, said several calorie-burning bursts of activity over the course of a day are just as good as one prolonged, sweat-drenched workout.

The American College of Sport Medicine's old recommendations were that people engage in at least 20 minutes of continuous aerobic activity, which stimulates the heart and lungs, three to five days a week.

The experts said the new recommendations were not meant to encourage anyone to abandon rigorous exercise.

"No one can say it's exactly the same," said Blair, who has a Ph.D. in epidemiology. "But indeed we do have evidence that the accumulation of short bouts produces significant and important changes in physiologic function and in health benefit."

Pleads guilty

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Former "Diff'rent Strokes" star Todd Bridges pleaded guilty to narcotics and weapons charges.

The 27-year-old former child star could get up to five years in prison at sentencing Aug. 31. He remained free on $10,000 bail.

Bridges, who pleaded guilty Thursday, was arrested Dec. 29 after Burbank police found 11/2 grams of methamphetamine and a loaded 9mm gun in a car he was driving. Bridges said that the car wasn't his and that he didn't know what was in it.

How to mislead your opponents

A friend, Peter Law, once said, "You can fool Alder people some of the time, but you cannot fool Alder people all the time." But at the bridge table there is nothing more pleasurable than fooling an opponent with a well-timed false-card. Several books have been written on the subject. One of the best is "Clever Bridge Tricks" by Englishman Brian Senior. It has just been republished as a Faber & Faber paperback ($12.45, The Bridge World, 39 West 94th Street, New York, NY 10025-7124).

The author deals with situations that occur with reasonable frequency. He keeps the text intelligible and he includes quizzes so you can check that you are getting the idea. This deal from the book features a play that is usually effective at the table.

Against your contract of six clubs, West leads the diamond two. If the heart finesse is working, you have no problems. But what if it is losing?

South's opening bid was an Acol two-bid, strong and forcing for one round. Two no-trump was the negative response.

You could try to sneak a spade past East's ace. As you didn't use Blackwood, he might place you with a void. But whatever your plan, you must start by playing the diamond queen from the dummy at trick one. Make it appear as if you have ace doubleton. When East covers with the king, win with the ace, play a club to dummy's jack and take the heart finesse. West might well try to cash his partner's diamond jack.

Readers are invited to send card-play questions to Phillip Alder, in care of this newspaper. They can be answered only through the column.

Grapefruit doesn't guarantee health

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: A recent magazine article recommended two grapefruit daily to lower blood cholesterol levels and help control arteriosclerosis. Your comments, please.

DEAR READER: Grapefruit is nutritious and, with other fruits, is beneficial to health. It does not, however, possess any magical qualities to lower cholesterol or retard arteriosclerosis. Also, eating two grapefruits a day every day would be quite a feat. I'll wager that few adults could maintain this commitment without becoming absolutely fed up with grapefruit and sick to death of its taste.

A more appropriate program to lower cholesterol would include the following: reduce your intake of animal fat by trimming meat, avoid liver and bacon and sausage, switch from butter to margarine, go easy on cheese, drink skimmed milk, avoid processed foods containing tropical oils (which can raise cholesterol), and exercise regularly. Enjoy a grapefruit as part of an overall healthful diet.

To give you more information, I am sending you free copies of my Health Reports "Understanding Cholesterol" and "Eating Right For a Healthy Heart." Other readers who would like copies should send $1.25 for each report plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title(s).

DEAR DR. GOTT: Over two years ago I was diagnosed by a dermatologist as having bullous pemphigoid. I understand it is not contagious and there is no cure, but I know little else. Can you fill in the blanks?

DEAR READER: Bullous pemphigoid is a chronic skin disease of unknown cause, marked by the appearance of large blisters that may itch. In general, the surrounding skin is normal and the disorder does not reflect an underlying disease. The diagnosis requires a biopsy. The main significance of this harmless (but irritating) skin disorder is that it must be differentiated from other, more serious skin diseases, such as pemphigus, and drug reactions.

Because pemphigoid is believed to be an auto-immune disease, in which patients become allergic to their own normal skin, it usually improves with cortisone therapy.

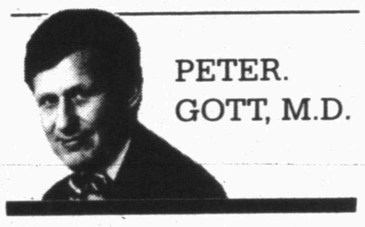

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 70-year-old female and sometimes feel a numbness in my left hand. Do I have anything to worry about?

DEAR READER: Hand numbness ordinarily means that a nerve is being pinched or compressed. This can occur in the neck (from arthritis), in the arm (from neuropathies), or in the hand itself (from carpal tunnel syndrome, for example).

Without knowing the cause of your problem, I cannot reassure you. I suggest that you bring the numbness to your doctor's attention. He will obtain X-rays and blood tests to establish a diagnosis.

Man who harassed Krueger, family released from prison

NEW BRAUNFELS (AP) — Former U.S. Sen. Bob Krueger says he hopes a man who served his sentence for harassing the Krueger family has learned a lesson.

The man, Thomas Humphrey, left prison about 8:15 a.m. Thursday, said Jeff Smith, executive assistant at the Federal Correctional Center in El Reno, Okla.

Smith said Humphrey would be under the supervision of a probation officer in Austin.

"I wish him no ill," Krueger said. "My only hope is that he will have learned from this experience that the restriction on his freedom in prison was the result of the restrictions on freedom and happiness of others that resulted from his threats."

"It is my understanding that under the federal guidelines, the federal government is virtually required to grant him release at this time," Krueger said. "One simply must hope that he has in this process learned and can get on with his life in a positive fashion."

Krueger, who lost the special Senate election June 5, testified in court last year that Humphrey began making unwanted contacts with his family and threatening him shortly after Krueger's unsuccessful 1984 U.S. Senate race.

Humphrey, 38, had been Krueger's pilot during that campaign.

U.S. District Judge Ed Prado last year sentenced Humphrey to 18 months in prison, although Humphrey pleaded with the judge not to send him back to jail because he said it would not help.

Humphrey, on probation for previous threats to Krueger, could not promise Prado he would stop bothering the Krueger family if he were allowed to remain free on probation.

Gov. Richards welcomes once missing 'First Dog'

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Ann Richards welcomed Max — the state's "first stepdog" — back to the Governor's Mansion with a pat on the head and a bite of lunch.

The charcoal gray French poodle, which has spent every workday at the mansion for eight years, had been missing since Sunday.

"I saved him a piece of my salmon from lunch," Richards told Max's owner, Anne DeBois, administrator of Governor's Mansion.

"Max came running in and had his leash in his mouth as if to say 'I'm not going anywhere — tie me up!' " the governor said.

Max pranced around the mansion's lawn Thursday, lapping up puddles and seeking attention from Ms. DeBois and reporters.

Ms. DeBois, who has served under three governors, said Max disappeared because "either there was a female around or somebody tried to catch him."

She said Max "was aware that I was looking for him."

Ms. DeBois said she received several telephone calls regarding Max's whereabouts after news reports about his disappearance and a $500 reward being offered.

"People called and some of the locations were too far away and so we ruled those out," Ms. DeBois said. "But the ones that were accurate were very accurate."

She found the dog Wednesday, when she located Max roaming the streets of south Austin. Max, who rides to and from work with Ms. DeBois, was in good condition but tired, she said.

While popular fellow, Max isn't the official First Dog of Texas, since he doesn't belong to Richards or live at the mansion, the governor's office said.

"He's the dog in residence at the mansion," said Richards spokeswoman Margaret Justus. "He can't really be the First Dog of Texas since it's not really her dog. He can be the First Stepdog of Texas."

Eugene O'Neil's last play, "A Moon for the Misbegotten," opened in 1957 on Broadway.

Tops Brownwood, 9-1...

Snyder heads to title game

By PHIL RIDDLE
SDN Sports Editor

Snyder joined Crockett in todays 5 p.m. championship game of the Texas State Senior Teenage League Baseball Tournament with a 9-1 victory over Brownwood this morning.

Crockett took the inside track to the championship of the tourney Thursday by handing host Snyder a 5-2 semifinal loss.

Terry Clemmer went five innings for this morning's Snyder win, but the hero of the game was Raymond House.

House slapped a pair of RBI singles, scored twice, got the save with two innings of 1-hit ball, had four defensive assists and picked off Brownwood's Walter Bardwell at second base for the game's final out.

Snyder will have to win back-to-back meetings with Crockett to claim the championship of the double-elimination tournament, being played at Moffett Field.

In other games Thursday, Ennis ousted Eastland from the tourney with a 5-0 win, then Brownwood sent Ennis home with a 5-3 victory in the 8 p.m. nightcap.

Crockett 5, Snyder 3

Crockett, the only undefeated team left in the tourney, took the lead for good Thursday with a 3-run burst in the fifth inning to earn a spot in today's title game.

Crockett drew first blood in the second inning when James Black slammed a 2-run homer off Snyder's Reagan Key, driving in Christopher Kelly, who had walked.

Snyder tied the score in the bottom of the fourth on a Jimmy Henry double that scored Terry Clemmer, who reached on a fielder's choice, and an RBI ground out from Brad Hart that plated Tory Stephens.

Thad Hargett tripled and drove in Bruce McKnight to key Crockett's fifth-inning surge. Demond Denman followed with an RBI single, then scored on an error and a Black single.

James Driskell got the win for Crockett, going seven innings, scattering five hits, striking out six and walking just one.

Driskell was also Crockett's offensive leader, going 2-for-4 in the game with a triple and a single.

Key went the distance for Snyder and was saddled with the loss in spite of his eight Ks and just one base on balls.

Snyder lost first baseman Clint Wilson, who severely twisted his ankle in the last of the sixth chasing a foul ball near the fence in shallow rightfield.

Wilson was helped off the field and was treated and released from Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

Ennis 5, Eastland 0

Ennis' Cory Dill tossed a seven-hit shutout, eliminating Eastland from the tournament.

Ennis' charge was led by Rodrick Seanz, who drilled a pair of doubles, and Jeremiah Graff who paced a 4-run seventh-inning barrage with an RBI two-bagger.

Eastland's Lance Curry was 2-for-4 on the night to lead the Seminoles.

Brownwood 5, Ennis 3

The Polecats' Charles Shaw hammered a 3-run home run in the sixth inning to break a 2-2 tie and send Ennis packing.

Shaw's blast drove in Jeremy Boyd, who singled, and winning pitcher Steven Gleaton, who walked.

Gleaton went the distance ringing up 13 strikeouts. However, his pitching performance was almost overshadowed by an umpire's call in the bottom of the sixth.

With the bases loaded, Ennis' Chad Caldwell hit a come-backer to Gleaton at the mound. Gleaton tossed to catcher Boyd for the force on Aaron Graff at home plate.

Graff slid into Boyd, knocking down the Brownwood backstop, and was ejected from the game, causing an uproar on the Ennis side of the bleachers.

Gleaton pitched himself into a jam in the last of the seventh.

Ennis, trailing by two, loaded the bags when Chad Parma was hit by a pitch, and Kelly Arteaga and Seanz walked.

Jeremiah Graff worked Gleaton to a 3-2 count with two outs before Gleaton sneaked in a called strike to end the game.

Dallas claims 12-0 win over Houston

AUSTIN (AP) — It was clearly Dallas Cowboys territory — on and off the field.

Third-string quarterback Jason Garrett threw two touchdown passes in a controlled scrimmage for a 12-0 victory over Houston Thursday night, making the Oilers' new defense look ragged.

The Cowboys were clear favorites for the 15,147 fans who filled Burger Field to capacity, waving banners and cheering every move their heroes made.

"I'm really pleased with the scrimmage considering we practiced the last three days against the (Los Angeles) Raiders," said Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson.

With starting running back Emmitt Smith still a contract holdout, Derrick Lassic was impressive at the position, rushing for 54 yards on six carries.

"I'm happy with Lassic the way he ran the ball," Johnson said. "Defensively, the one guy who stood out was Brock Marion. He's a playmaker and that's what he did out there tonight."

Marion, a seventh-round draft pick from Nevada-Reno, spoiled Houston's best drive of the scrimmage with an interception on a fourth-down pass by Bucky Richardson into the end zone.

Johnson even had the last laugh on Oilers defensive coordinator Buddy Ryan, a former rival when he coached the Philadelphia Eagles.

Ryan had bragged earlier in the week "that Jimmy couldn't beat me" and Johnson said, "Ryan was a pretty good coach and might win a playoff game some day."

Before the game, the coaches chatted for about 10 minutes, then shook hands.

But after the final gun sounded, Ryan sprinted off the field and returned immediately to the Oilers' training camp in San Antonio.

"It's pretty obvious that we needed this scrimmage," Houston coach Jack Pardee said. "It's obvious the things that we need to work on. There were some breakdowns on the offensive line."

Houston's first-round pick Brad Hopkins was on the sidelines after signing a four-year contract Wednesday. Starting right tackle David Williams remains a contract holdout.

Garrett had a more productive game than Hugh Millen, who was picked up from New England to be the Cowboys' primary backup. Millen has since become the preseason starter while Super Bowl MVP Troy Aikman recovers from back surgery.

Jimmy Smith, hoping to be the Cowboys third down receiver to replace departed free agent Kelvin Martin, caught a 5-yard touchdown pass from Garrett.

Then Garrett came right back and found 11th-round pick Tim Daniel of Florida A&M on a 15-yard scoring pass.

Harnisch handcuffs Atlanta

HOUSTON (AP) — Just because Houston's Pete Harnisch shut out Atlanta on four hits doesn't mean the hot-hitting Braves have cooled off.

"Harnisch was tough," Braves manager Bobby Cox said after Harnisch's complete game 2-0 victory Thursday night. "He was really popping. He didn't give our guys a chance.

"It wasn't our failure to hit. It was a case of an outstanding pitcher who had his stuff tonight. That's the best control I've seen him have. He was outstanding."

Harnisch (10-7) never gave the Braves much of a chance to add to their amazing power numbers since the All-Star break. He struck out nine and walked two, retired 17 of the last 19 batters he faced.

"It was a dandy of a performance," manager Art Howe said.

The Astros, winning for the sixth time in nine games, got a leadoff walk in the first from Craig Biggio. He took third on a double by Steve Finley before Bagwell's decisive hit.

Collier scores 59 on saddle bronc

GILLETTE, Wyo. — Snyder saddle bronc rider Bronc Collier took second place in Thursday's session of the National High School Finals Rodeo.

Collier, the reigning Texas state high school saddle bronc champion, scored 59 points to trail just Licking, Mo. cowboy Otey McCloy, who wound up with a 65, in the go-round.

Buffalo visits Detroit in exhibition opener

by The Associated Press

For Detroit's Wayne Fontes and Buffalo's Marv Levy, the 1993 NFL season couldn't have come sooner.

Detroit, one win shy of reaching the Super Bowl in 1991, stumbled to a 5-11 record last season and fifth place in the NFC Central Division. Buffalo made a third straight trip to the Super Bowl, only to get stomped 52-17 by Dallas.

Both teams get a chance to put 1992 disappointments aside when they open the NFL exhibition season tonight at 7:30 EDT at the Silverdome in Pontiac, Mich.

"I'm excited about this game," said Fontes, entering his fifth full season as coach. "This is a good opportunity to see how far we've come."

Rodney Peete, tabbed the No. 1 quarterback in training camp, will start for the Lions. Running back Barry Sanders will join Peete in the backfield.

Levy, in his eighth year with the Bills, has said all four of his quarterbacks will see an equal amount of time against Detroit. The expected rotation is: Jim Kelly, Frank Reich, Gale Gilbert and Matt Rodgers.

Thurman Thomas, who recently signed a four-year, $13.5 million contract making him the highest-paid running back in the league, is not expected to see significant playing time.

Tonight's Buffalo-Detroit game is one of five exhibition contests this weekend. On Saturday, the Los Angeles Raiders play Green Bay in the Hall of Fame game in Canton, Ohio, while New Orleans plays Philadelphia in Tokyo. On Sunday, Pittsburgh plays San Francisco in Barcelona, Spain, and Minnesota visits Dallas.

McRae charges Texas dugout

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Brian McRae is on the cutting edge of baseball brawls.

Instead of charging the mound in the eighth inning Thursday when a suspicious-looking pitch plunked him on the backside, McRae charged Texas manager Kevin Kennedy, who had virtually promised retaliation the night before.

Two players and coach Willie Upshaw grabbed McRae on the dugout steps and put a bearhug on the Kansas City outfielder as benches and bullpens spilled onto the field.

An ugly, dangerous scene appeared to be taking shape. But after a few minutes of milling around, everybody separated and no punches were thrown.

"I was going after Kennedy but I couldn't get to him," said McRae, who was also hit in the arm in the fifth inning of Kansas City's 9-4 victory.

"I figured since he was the one doing all the talking last night that he'd be the best guy to go after. He's probably the guy who gave the orders. Hopefully, it's done and over with. But if they want to continue it, we're not going to back down."

The near-brawl culminated an intense five-game, four-day series that grew tense when Kansas City's George Brett and Gary Gaetti were hit during the Royals' doubleheader sweep Monday.

Kennedy, angry over Rafael Palmeiro's being hit in the kneecap Wednesday night after hitting three home runs in two games against the Royals, had warned that Royals hitter not dig in too deep at the plate.

Nobody thought it came in the fifth when McRae was hit in the arm by a pitch that loaded the bases.

Greg Gagne hit a grand slam in the seventh to give the Royals a big lead. In the eighth inning of the eventful afternoon, Juan Gonzalez hit a two-run homer and caught Seattle's Ken Griffey Jr. for the league lead while becoming the first Texas player ever to post two 30-homer seasons.

The most serious injury was entirely accidental. All-star catcher Ivan Rodriguez, one hit shy of the Rangers' record for consecutive base hits, was struck in the side of the head by Hubie Brooks during his backswing.

Doctors said Rodriguez sustained a fracture of a bone in his face and could be out for as long as 3-6 weeks.

"I know that was not intentional," Kennedy said. "It was just one of those freakish things."

The Rangers took a 2-0 lead off Tom Gordon (6-2) in the third on Butch Davis' RBI double and a sacrifice fly by Palmeiro, who was limping after getting hit Wednesday night.

Six of the Royals' hits were for extra bases, including a one-out triple in the fourth by Brett, who scored on Macfarlane's infield out.

Vaughn to compete at Festival

SAN ANTONIO — Former Snyder High School track standout Ricky Vaughn is scheduled to compete in the hammer throw today at 3:30 p.m. at the U.S. Olympic Festival here.

Vaughn, assistant track coach at Ashland University in Ashland, Ohio, will represent the South team.

The 1989 Angelo State University graduate was an All-America hammer thrower in college, taking second place nationally as a senior. He also qualified for nationals in both the hammer and discus in 1986 and was the Lone Star Conference hammer champ in 1988.

Senate panel approves Elders

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate committee today voted 13-4 to approve Dr. Joycelyn Elders as surgeon general and Democrats vowed to seek final approval in the full Senate by next week.

Three Republicans joined all the committee Democrats in sending the nomination to the Senate floor, and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy said he would press for a final vote before the planned summer recess.

Republicans have attacked Elders' advocacy of sex education, condom distribution, abortion rights and some of her financial dealings.

"After all she has been through, it would be unconscionable to delay her confirmation until September," Kennedy said. "The Senate owes her an apology, not a filibuster. It is time for this harassment to end."

But even one of Elders' supporters indicated reservations.

Sen. Harris Wofford, D-Pa., said that he supported her but did not "agree with every statement that she's made."

Short of a filibuster, it would be possible to use Senate rules to delay a vote on Elders' nomination beyond next week, by which time senators hope to be out of town. Sen. Orrin Hatch, who voted against her nomination but does not plan to lead the opposition, said her nomination may not be brought to the floor before Tuesday, and then the consideration could take at least three days.

Even without Elders, the Senate's plate next week already is pretty full: confirmation votes on a Supreme Court Justice and an FBI director, the administration's deficit-reduction bill and 13 appropriations bills.

Sen. Dan Coats, R-Ind., who voted against Elders, said he found her statements "profoundly disturbing and profoundly offensive to many groups."

Police note felony arrest

Police made one arrest and worked a criminal mischief case Thursday.

Officers arrested 31-year-old David Cloyce Gibbins at 10:32 p.m. in the 2200 block of 36th Street for felony driving while intoxicated and driving with a suspended license.

At 8:38 a.m. Thursday, Gary Landes contacted officers in reference to someone breaking six front glass windows at Landes Furniture. A report for 3rd degree felony criminal mischief was filed.

Officers worked a two-vehicle accident in the 2600 block of College Avenue at 1:13 p.m. Involved were a 1992 Chrysler driven by Rhonda Richardson Saenz of 2108 40th St. and a 1989 Ford driven by Horace Earl Aylor of 2017 40th St.

Police were contacted at 6:48 p.m. in reference to a player being injured at Moffett Field. Snyder EMS transported 18-year-old Clint Wilson to Cogdell Memorial Hospital emergency room where he was treated for an ankle sprain and released.

Shortly before 4:30 p.m. Thursday, 10-year-old Leslie Hancock was taken to the emergency room after suffering a fall on a bicycle. She was diagnosed as having a closed head injury and contusions and was admitted for 23-hour observation.

FD responds to two fires

Snyder Fire Department responded to a couple of fires Thursday.

At 11:54 a.m., firemen were called to a car fire at 113 Browning. The fire, which was out on arrival, damaged a 1979 Ford LTD owned by Lisa Rodriquez.

At 5:58 p.m., firemen responded to a grass fire seven miles northwest of Snyder on property owned by Morris and Betty Browning. The fire was apparently caused by an electrical line.

The department has responded to 58 calls this month.

U.S. weighs broader use of air power

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Clinton administration is seeking NATO and Russian approval for the use of air strikes to force Bosnian Serbs to halt their attacks on Sarajevo, a State Department official said today.

Consultations are under way with the British and French and the official, speaking only on condition of anonymity, said discussions would take place this weekend with the Spanish, Dutch, Germans and Russians, as well as with members of Congress.

The official said the move toward military action was an acknowledgement that "the diplomatic track" had failed to secure safe areas for the Bosnian Muslims.

The proposed action would go beyond the plan to call on NATO air power to protect United Nationspeace keeping forces when they come under attack in Bosnia.

He said that the allies could conduct a far more aggressive air campaign than previously contemplated, striking at Serbian positions without waiting for further provocation.

At the White House, presidential press secretary Dee Dee Myers said, "We are continuing to talk with our allies on what we can do about the deteriorating humanitarian situation" in Bosnia.

She did not dispute reports that the administration was looking at wider roles for air power than just defending U.N. peacekeepers, saying the United States was committed to protecting the relief effort.

President Clinton said earlier this week he was ready to approve air strikes if requested by the United Nations.

It also was learned that U.S. officials were discussing the use of air power to protect humanitarian convoys.

The Washington Post said today that urgent consultations between the United States, France and Britain began Thursday afternoon with the aim of preserving Sarajevo as the capital of a reduced-size Muslim state in Bosnia.

Floods nearly splits Missouri in two as bridges are closed

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The flood of 1993 has virtually split the state of Missouri in two.

Surges on the swollen Missouri River, which cuts straight across the state's midsection, knocked out or closed all but one bridge for the more than 200 miles between Kansas City and St. Louis.

And the rising waters continued to spill into small rural towns. In some swamped communities, it was the third round of flooding in the last two months.

"The flooding will just continue," said Army Corps of Engineers spokesman George Hanley. "It's going to be worse. But what's worse? If you're already wet, what's another foot?"

The only bridge still open across the Missouri was the Interstate 70 crossing near Rocheport, a small town smack in the middle of the state. But even its westbound lanes were shut temporarily Thursday, backing up traffic for miles.

The closings have made for traveling nightmares. Commutes into this capital city, which lost the use of its twin bridge Thursday, grew from only a few miles to hundreds of miles because of detours.

On Thursday night, power to the Statehouse was shut off temporarily while workers moved electrical equipment 2 feet higher to keep it away from rising waters expected from this weekend's record river crest.

"The state Capitol building is kind of a symbol of the state and we can't let it be knocked out of power and admit defeat to the flood," Union Electric Co. spokesman Mike Cleary said.

Israeli attacks claim more casualties on the sixth day

SIDON, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli bombs and artillery shells peppered south Lebanon for a sixth day today, forcing more families to flee in what the Lebanese government has called a "human catastrophe of tragic magnitude."

Police said eight people were killed and 28 wounded this morning.

That brought the overall toll to at least 108 dead and 468 wounded since Sunday, when Israel launched the operation following attacks by Shiite Muslim and Palestinian guerrillas trying to expel Israeli troops from southern Lebanon.

Most of the victims have been Lebanese civilians, police and U.N. officials say. It is Israel's bloodiest and broadest military operation here since its 1982 invasion of Lebanon.

The Jewish state has said its goal is to drive Lebanese civilians from their homes in the south to clear the way for military operations and to put pressure on the Lebanese government to curb the guerrillas.

Some 500,000 Lebanese — more than one-tenth of the nation's population — reportedly have fled north.

About 100 Israeli armored personnel carriers and Merkava tanks were seen crossing the Israeli border Thursday night, raising fears the Jewish state was considering supplementing air, sea and artillery attacks with ground action.

The Israeli navy was also trying to blockade the coast to cut off supplies to the guerrillas.

Kiryat Shemona residents react to Demjanjuk ruling

KIRYAT SHEMONA, Israel (AP) — Yehudit Damar was so anxious to hear the John Demjanjuk ruling that she had her husband preset the video recorder in case they were in a bomb shelter when it was broadcast.

Thursday's Supreme Court decision to acquit the retired Ohio autoworker of charges of being "Ivan the Terrible" temporarily forced news of Israel's action in Lebanon out of the headlines, and aroused memories of the Holocaust.

For many, it underlined the importance of the Jewish state, founded in 1948 shortly after the Nazis exterminated six million Jews.

Phoebe Vaknin sat up on her bunk bed in the bomb shelter she shares with the Damars. "I am happy we have an army, the Holocaust should never happen again," she said.

"Then we weren't organized," Ms. Vaknin added. "If the six million were organized, they wouldn't have been slaughtered."

The Supreme Court's Thursday ruling overturned Demjanjuk's 1988 conviction and death sentence for being "Ivan the Terrible," the sadistic gas chamber operator at the Treblinka death camp.

But the ruling did not dominate headlines for long.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's announced that Israel would not agree to international demands for a cease-fire unless rocket attacks on Israel ceased. Then came reports that Israel was reinforcing its troops in south Lebanon.

Life in northern Israel has been at a standstill since Sunday, when Israel launched its largest offensive against Lebanon since it invaded in 1982.

Two Israelis — both from Kiryat Shemona — have been killed in Katyusha rocket attacks fired by the Iranian-backed Hezbollah in south Lebanon. Army figures say more than 210 Katyushas have hit Israel since Sunday.

But the rocket attacks did not dampen Ms. Damar's eagerness to see the television broadcast of the court ruling on Demjanjuk's appeal. Like thousands of others, Ms. Damar has followed the case closely since Demjanjuk was extradicted to Israel in 1986.

Her husband, Yossi, said the trial had given him a new perspective on Israel's action in Lebanon.

"Don't let anyone tell you Israel is like Germany," he said, folding up a newspaper's worn sports section. "If you have bad people among you like the Hezbollah, you throw them out."

In Lebanon at least 100 are reported dead and more than 440 wounded in Israeli air strikes and artillery barrages against the Hezbollah guerrillas. Most of the victims are civilians, Lebanese police and U.N. officials say.

The Israeli attacks have also sent nearly 500,000 of south Lebanon's 800,000 people fleeing northward to Beirut, a Lebanese minister said Thursday.

Pays bail

SOUTHBURY, Conn. (AP) — Dan Aykroyd bailed out a man charged with growing about $400,000 worth of marijuana.

"Anyone that knows Mr. Aykroyd knows that he would never turn his back on a friend," his publicist, Susan Patricola, said Thursday. She would not elaborate.

Aykroyd provided the $100,000 bond to get John Murtha, 46, of Milford, out of the New Haven Correctional Center last week, authorities said.

Murtha and his girlfriend, Dorothy Young, 37, face a variety of drug charges after a July 21 raid on the house where marijuana allegedly was grown.

Young remained in jail on $130,000 bail.

Police said Aykroyd also bailed Murtha out in 1991, equipment with," said Commissioner Ralph Trevey. "If this had been started 20 years ago, we'd be a lot better off right now."

The proposed budget for Precinct 1 is $208,489, some $5,298 less than the current budget. Salaries, retirement, insurance and Social Security make up $106,689 of the total.

Precinct 2 proposes an increase of $5,009, up from $217,519 in the current budget. Commissioner Roy Idom noted that "controllables" — items other than salary and benefits — are down $101. Salaries and benefits comprise $114,928 of the Precinct 2 budget, which will see a jump in insurance from $14,000 to $20,000.

Insurance also figures predominately in Precinct 3's proposed budget of $267,205, which is down $107,638 from the current year. A major increase, however, is a hike of $11,000 in insurance. Salaries and benefits amount to $140,758.

The current year budget was up due to the purchase of a front end loader. Therefore, capital outlay in the proposed budget reflects a decrease of $110,000.

In contrast, Precinct 4's proposed budget includes an increase of $98,118, primarily due to the purchase of a motor grader for $88,365, with trade-in. The budget, of $401,724, also reflects a $9,500 hike in insurance.

Salaries and benefits amount to $175,908.

Commissioners agreed to keep their consolidated department, referred to as Precinct 6, in the budget for joint projects such as sealcoating and shared equipment. The budget, $41,028, is down some $38,500 from the current budget. The major decrease is a $20,000 reduction in contingency. Repairs are down $7,000.

Survey: most school districts in Texas prefer to send check

AUSTIN (AP) — About two-thirds of the school districts that must share some wealth under a new law prefer to send funds to the state or contract to educate other districts' students, a new survey says.

Of the 99 property-rich school districts, 45 have decided to seek voter approval for sending a check to the state, according to the Texas Association of School Boards' poll released Thursday.

Another seven want their voters' OK to educate other districts' students, while 13 more are putting both options on the ballot.

That's a total of 65 of the districts.

Just one school district — of 95 responding to the survey — reported a different choice: Tuloso-Midway Independent School District is moving some of its taxable property to Corpus Christi ISD's tax base, according to the school board association.

Twenty-nine districts haven't yet decided, the survey found, and four didn't respond.

Other wealth-sharing options allowed under the new law are merging tax bases with one or more poorer districts, which would require an election; or consolidating voluntarily, which would not. No school districts have reported choosing those options.

School districts could accept a plan that doesn't require an election if their first choice doesn't get voter approval.

The new law is meant to address a Texas Supreme Court order to even out funding available to school districts of differing property wealth. Schools rely on state aid, local taxes and some federal money.

The measure is meant to ensure that none of Texas' 1,000-plus school districts has more than $280,000 in property wealth per student.

If the richest school districts don't choose an option, the state education commissioner will transfer some commercial property for them. If that still doesn't get districts below $280,000 in per-student wealth, they will be forced to consolidate.

The two most popular options are also the ones that could be most easily abandoned, which may be an important point for school officials who have seen several finance plans tossed out by state courts.

The current plan is under court challenge by property-rich and poor districts.

"It's easier to undo, and it's easier to stay as wealthy as you can" by choosing one of those options, said association spokeswoman Margaret LaMontagne. For example, it may be harder to find a piece of property to transfer that will bring a district's wealth down to right around $280,000.

Some have warned that the elections may not stand a very good chance, considering that voters in May overwhelmingly turned down a share-the-wealth school funding proposal.

But two small districts already have won voter approval to send money to the state. The proposal passed 385-8 in Canadian ISD, and 128-10 in Miami ISD.

Independent oil producers eye oil imports

HOUSTON (AP) — Independent American oil producers watching their industry shrink due to imports want the Clinton administration to come up with a national energy policy that will allow them to better compete.

About three dozen executives representing what they said were 10,000 independent producers from around the country met Thursday in Houston to promote their proposals for Energy Secretary Hazel O'Leary, who has been given until Labor Day to submit a national energy policy to President Clinton.

"Saving America's oil and gas industry is what we're talking about," said Gene Ames, of San Antonio-based Venus Oil Co. "We're trying to level the playing field on our expenses."

The executives deplored falling oil prices and suggested that duties be put on imported oil.

Ames said 7.9 million barrels a day were imported two weeks ago, the highest level of imports for any week on record, while domestic production has fallen to the lowest level in 35 years. In addition, prices are the lowest in years and more than 400,000 energy industry jobs have been lost in the past decade.

The executives contended that imported oil was nearing more than 50 percent of the nation's consumption and asked the Clinton administration to take steps to rescue their industry.

"We feel this year for the first time we're going to cross that threshold, exceeding the old peril point of 50 percent," said Denise Bode, president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America. "We think it's a crisis in the making out there."

"A tanker transportation tax, an import fee disguised, is the best choice we have," said Houston oilman George Mitchell, of Mitchell Energy. "No doubt, there's a lot of opposition."

Mitchell and others grumbled that while they are forced to incorporate environmental costs and "social costs" as part of their expenses, imported oil escapes those charges. He speculated that charging $5 per barrel, or about 10 cents a gallon, would raise $14 billion annually.

Previous attempts at such a fee have been rebuffed, especially due to opposition from the Northeast, where heating oil is in greater demand than other parts of the country.

The independent producers also called for investment initiatives to expand domestic production, more coordinated government processes dealing with environmental regulations and support for development of reasonable land use policies.

Larry Nichols, president of Devon Energy of Oklahoma City, renewed an industry plea to broaden access to protected federal lands, saying more American jobs are lost every time additional land is shielded from drilling.

The oil executives posed in front of a lighted digital scoreboard that tallied what they said was the more than $30 billion spent on imported oil since the Clinton inauguration.

The total was growing by $110,000 per minute, they said.

Ray Plank, chairman of Apache Corp. and among a group of oilmen who endorsed Clinton last year, noted that then-candidate Clinton spoke in his campaign about curbing the decline in the domestic oil industry.

Your Birthday

Saturday, July 31, 1993

In the year ahead there are indications you could fare better in enterprises or endeavors where you can operate independently of others. Unproductive partners could do you in.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) There's a chance today you might overlook persons you really should help, but reward the undeserving. This is because your judgment could be faulty in this sensitive area. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Avoid social gatherings today where you feel you're compelled or obligated to be nice to persons you really don't like. Doing so could lower your self-esteem.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You'd better take a hard look at an objective you feel is of extreme importance at this time. Frankly, it might be something you won't want after you attain it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Underplay your knowledge instead of flaunting it if you realize you're a bit smarter than your associates today. You won't win friends if you belittle them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Avoid joint endeavors today where the ante is not equal for the parties involved. If the contributions aren't comparable, it is not apt to work.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Guard against inclinations today to be unreasonably suspicious of the motives of others. If you are, be honest with yourself and ask if you're projecting instead of evaluating.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your probabilities for being productive today will be substantially reduced if you take on more things than you can comfortably manage. It's best to do less, but do that well.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) The worse thing you could do today is to try to cover up your mistakes, especially where your career is concerned. Don't hide what needs to be fixed.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's best to keep relatives or in-laws out of your personal family matters today, especially situations where youngsters are involved.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) What people say today should not be taken verbatim. For example, someone might ask you to tell it like it is while really meaning they want the bitter truth sugar coated.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) To be on the safe side today, don't take anything for granted in your business dealings. Just when you think you have everything locked down, a small detail might derail it.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Persons who are usually in accord with your ideas and suggestions might be resistant to them today for strange reasons. Don't impose your thoughts on others.

Condemned killer Danny Harris is executed today

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Condemned killer Danny Harris was put to death early today for the fatal bludgeoning of a motorist who had stopped to help Harris and his brother with their disabled car nearly 15 years ago.

Harris' brother, Curtis, climbed on the same gurney 30 days ago to receive the same punishment for beating 27-year-old Timothy Merka with a tire iron and then robbing him. The case was dubbed the "Good Samaritan killing."

It marked the first time in Texas since the state resumed the death penalty in 1982 that brothers received lethal injection. Two brothers in Virginia were executed in the mid 1980s.

At least two other sets of brothers are on the 367-member Texas death row.

Danny Harris, who requested a final meal of "God's saving grace, love, truth, peace, freedom," expressed love for his family and for his victim's family in his final statement.

"I plead with all of the teenagers to stop the violence and to accept Jesus Christ and find victory," he said. Harris then began praying and the lethal drugs started flowing into his arms.

He was pronounced dead at 12:18 a.m. CDT, six minutes later.

The execution was carried out after the U.S. Supreme Court and state courts rejected requests from Harris' attorneys that it be blocked.

Harris, from Bryan, would have turned 33 on Saturday. He was 18 and his brother 17 when they were arrested for the Dec. 11, 1978 killing in rural Brazos County. Merka had stopped to help the Harris brothers and two others who were on the side of the road with a disabled car near Mumford.

Testimony showed Danny Harris held down Merka, who was pleading for his life, while Curtis beat the man with a tire iron. Court records also indicated Danny Harris devised the plan to kill Merka in order to steal the victim's pickup truck so he and his brother and two companions could return home to Bryan.

"To beat a good Samaritan to death ... it gives you a pretty good view of these people," Brazos County District Attorney Bill Turner, who has dealt with the Harris cases for more than a decade, said.

"If facing the death penalty caused him to reckon with his maker, so be it. I applaud him for that. But that doesn't make me think he's any less dangerous."

Both brothers were tried twice and convicted twice and had multiple execution dates.

DANIEL AND THE IDOL BEL

AS PROMISED, HERE IS THE OTHER OLDEST "DETECTIVE" STORY FROM THE APOCRYPHA. CYRUS, THE KING, EACH DAY, PROVIDED THE IDOL BEL WITH BUSHELS OF FINE FLOUR, MANY SHEEP, AND FIFTY GALLONS OF WINE, BECAUSE THIS WAS THE GOD CYRUS WORSHIPPED. WHEN THE KING ASKED DANIEL TO WORSHIP THE IDOL, DANIEL KNEW IT WAS HIGH TIME TO EXPOSE THE FAKE GOD AND THE SEVENTY PRIESTS WHO MADE A FINE LIVING AS THE REPRESENTATIVES OF BEL. CYRUS BELIEVED THAT BEL WAS REALLY A LIVING GOD BECAUSE ALL THE FOOD THAT WAS PROVIDED WAS ALWAYS CONSUMED OVERNIGHT. DANIEL KNEW DARN WELL THAT IT WAS THE PRIESTS AND THEIR FAMILIES WHO DID ALL THE EATING. BUT HOW TO EXPOSE THEM SO KING CYRUS WOULD KNOW THAT BEL WAS A FAKE GOD? WELL, DANIEL, IN TRUE DETECTIVE STORY STYLE, LAID A TRAP FOR THE PRIESTS AND PROVED CONCLUSIVELY TO KING CYRUS THAT THE IDOL WAS A FAKE AND THAT THE ONLY TRUE, LIVING GOD WAS THE LORD GOD WHOM DANIEL WORSHIPPED! HOW HE ACCOMPLISHED THIS FEAT IS DULY RECORDED IN THE BOOK OF APOCRYPHA AND IS WELL WORTH READING—IT CERTAINLY ESTABLISHES DANIEL AS A FIRST-GRADE DETECTIVE ALONG WITH THE BEST OF THEM! SO GO TO IT—READ IT AND SEE IF YOU DON'T AGREE!
