Gov't Buying of Cattle Starts Here This Week

Purchase of drought-stricken cattle in Midland county may start this week.

A telegram from County Judge E. H. Barron, who went to Austin last week to work on the cattle buying program, road building and to investigate the pink boll worm delay, was received Saturday by the Midland chamber of commerce and read as follows:

"Prospects good for cattle buying program to start in 10 days. Advise Debnam." Debnam is Midland-Martin farm agent.

R. M. Taggart, relief administrator at Midland, received Saturday the following significant telegram from C. Z. Crain, director of commodity distribution for the Texas Relief commission:

"Advise your local freight agent to keep spotted at all times sufficient number cattle cars to care for shipments from your county. Advise by letter that you have done this and advise shipping point in your county. Report to this office by wire each day number cattle on hand."

Placing of Midland county in the emergency classification followed hard of the heels of this county's being designated for general drought relief.

Several months' effort was required by the Midland county commissioners' court, county farm agent and the chamber of commerce, working cooperatively and in conjunction with county judges and chambers of commerce with 10 other counties. However, only a few days elapsed from the time Midland was classified as a relief county through the aid of Senator Tom Connally, Congressman R. E. Thomason and Marvin Jones until the county was placed in the cattle buying classification.

Many cattlemen have said they wish to cull their herds by selling cattle to the government. They say the canner type that brings from $3 to $4 per head in Fort Worth are expected to bring from $12 to $14 per head from the government.

Some ranchers say the fight made by the county and chamber of commerce in securing the right for this county to share in road relief and cattle buying will mean much toward alleviating the drought condition and will be of particular importance in ending overstocked pasture conditions.

Their theory is that, while the government prices are far from ideal and are not calculated to make the industry profitable they are far better than nothing at all, and if the dry weather continues and prohibitive feed costs mount, the cattle industry without government buying would suffer far worse.

COTTON ALLOCATION FOR MIDLAND 4,537 BALES

WASHINGTON, June 23. (U.P.)—Secretary Wallace apportioned the 10,460,251-bale cotton production allowable for this year under the Bankhead act among the counties of 19 cotton producing states.

Texas gets 3,237,530 bales. Midland county was allocated 2,168,660 pounds of lint, or 4,537 bales.

Quotas represent cotton extent from the 50 per cent tax prescribed by the act.

Midland's average cotton production is unofficially around the 6000-bale mark, farmers said, the all-time peak having run close to 11,000 bales.

Midland Man Heads State Committee

Attendance at the next annual conference-school of Texas chamber of commerce managers in 1935 will be under general direction of Paul T. Vickrey, secretary of the Midland chamber of commerce. The Midland man was this week named chairman of the state attendance committee. The 1935 meeting at Brownsville is planned to be the biggest ever held by the organization in Texas.

New Penwell Still Under Construction

Manufacture of mineral seal oil will be started within a few days at the Phillips absorption plant at Penwell. The company has a new still under construction for making the oil from Ector county crude. The company has been shipping in mineral seal oil to use in refining its casing head gasoline.

TWO BOYS DROWN

MARSHALL, June 23. (U.P.)—Robert Green, 15, of Shreveport and Charles Mercer, 14, of this city, were drowned last night while swimming in the mouth of the Sabine river. Both sank when Green attempted to aid Mercer who was in trouble.

Bulletin

DALLAS, June 23. (U.P.)—Rumors that the East Texas oil field would be shut down were spiked today by all officials concerned.

Railroad Commissioners Lon Smith and Ernest Thompson said they "never heard of such a thing."

Commissioner C. N. Terrell in Austin said the same thing. Governor Ferguson knew nothing of such plans. Secretary Ickes denied knowledge, adding that the federal government lacked the power to issue such an order.

Taxpayers Begin Shelling Out as Deadline Nears

With the realization of tax payers they can save considerable amounts by getting receipts before July 1, a steady line formed in the tax collector's office last week when a total of $9,151.51 in taxes due for the last half of 1933 and including delinquencies was paid to avoid payment of extra penalty, interest and costs.

Penalties, interest and costs on delinquent taxes after July 1 will be assessed according to the old law prescribing 10 per cent penalties and a 6 per cent interest per year.

This means that on and after July 1, penalty and interest will be 6 per cent interest per annum from the date tax was first delinquent, 30 per cent will be added to 1930, 24 per cent to 1931 and 18 per cent delinquent taxes. A delinquent cost will also accrue in addition to the above.

SAVING OF $2,005.35 POSSIBLE TO TAXPAYERS.

Delinquent tax records of Midland county for all years from 1906 to 1932 show a total of $83,068.54, the amount covering state and county taxes.

This delinquent tax can be paid any time between now and July 1 at 6 per cent interest but with no penalties or costs. The original tax plus 6 per cent interest can be paid before July 1 for $88,081.27. On July 1, the original penalties, interest and costs prescribed by law will be attached to this $88,081.27, making a total of $128,086.62 necessary to pay the tax.

Penalty, interest and costs in the sum of $2,005.35 will be added on July 1. If this amount were applied on the tax instead of being added as penalties, interest and costs, the total delinquency would be cut down to $126,081.27. Each tax payer who has a delinquent tax can make a substantial saving by making his payment before that date.

These delinquency figures are not alarming, it is pointed out by the tax collector's office, only a few counties of the state having less delinquency. More than two-thirds of the delinquency has accrued since the beginning of the depression, between the period from 1929 to 1932. In fact, the delinquent tax for several years, from 1906 to 1915, including the townships of Warfield and Slaughter amounts to less than $100 a year. For the years 1908, 1910, 1912, 1917, 1918, 1920, 1924, there is not a tract of delinquent taxes. Several other years have only one, two or three tracts.

Any delinquency can be paid before July 1 with 6 per cent interest only, afterward 1932 taxes can be paid with 18 per cent penalty and interest plus cost, which cost is $1 per tract and 50c for redemption. Penalty and interest increases at 6 per cent a year until 1906 taxes have accumulated to 174 per cent penalty and interest.

Logic indicates the value of executing a loan from a bank or a loan company and paying delinquent taxes as loans may be made for 8 and 10 per cent, whereas interest paid on delinquent taxes ranges from 18 to 174 per cent.

The county tax rate, out in 1933 from $1.50 to $1.10, cannot remain at that low figure unless collections are boosted over the 56 per cent of last year. Collections before the depression never were under 95 per cent. The tax collector's office gave figures to show the percentage collection for 1931 was 85, for 1932 was 71 and for 1933, when the rate was 40 cents a $100 less, only 56. This would indicate necessity for a raise in the county rate. This can be obtained, however, through early attention to delinquent taxes.

SAME RULING APPLIES ON SCHOOL TAXES

School authorities announced that the ruling governing paying of delinquent county tax governs those due the school district. Proportionate saving to the taxpayer will result in his payment of delinquent taxes before July 1.

Arbor Services To Begin Today

Battering Ram of Public Opinion Beats Fear into Film Producers

Rising Tide of Popular Criticism Is Making For Less "Box Office" for Sex Films

BY DAN THOMAS
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, June 23.—"We are making the kind of pictures the public wants."

As far back as I can remember, such statements have been coming from motion picture executives.

But the rising tide of criticism against the type of pictures we have seen seems to prove that these executives either have misinterpreted the actual desires of the movie-going public or have ignored the feelings of an increasing army of sane-thinking customers.

Their eyes glued on box office receipts, the executives felt that the movie theatre patrons approved the polyglot pictures the producers chose to give the world. But now those same box office receipts dwindling fast despite such "popular" pictures, are enough to prove to the executives that they were wrong.

Up to the present time, the attempt to satisfy public desires has gone no further than meaningless statements. To put it very bluntly, the film industry's product has consisted of pictures which a flock of self-satisfied executives have wanted to give the public.

Except in rare instances they haven't even attempted to find out what the public wanted. Firmly entrenched behind carved mahogany desks, they have been the know-it-alls to whom the United States was just so much waste territory.

Only the fact that it took four days to reach New York by train made them aware of the 3000 miles between them and the movie-going public. Not once have they considered the 110,000,000 persons in the vast area outside of New York and Los Angeles who for years have been paying their tremendous salaries.

Now, after making empty statements for years, the film producers are about to act upon them. They're going to make the kind of pictures the public wants.

Public Is Victorious
For several years a quiet battle has been raging between the public and the film moguls. During the last few months this fight has come out into the open and has grown considerably in size. As a result, the movie heads have admitted defeat.

In the future the public can dictate what kind of pictures it wants and get them. Studio executives are ready to promise to throw every bit of filth off the screen. In fact, they're ready to promise almost anything to get people back into their theatres.

The industry's own censor board, comprised of Joseph I. Breen, Dr. James W. W. Cullen and Geoffrey Shurlock, has become tremendously active during recent months. Although some objectionable films still reach the theatres, they aren't one-half as bad as they were before being viewed by this censor board.

Theory Now Practice
Every since information of the Will Hays organization producers theoretically have had to abide by its decisions. However, this plan worked in theory only. Hays made suggestions and in some cases demanded them or not, as they pleased. Now the Hays organization, of which Breen, Wingeat and Shurlock are a part, gives orders and they are obeyed by the censor board.

Needless to say, even more drastic censorship must be imposed upon movie makers. If they don't do it themselves, it will be done by outsiders. This has become apparent during the last few weeks. And the film industry, in order to avoid federal and state censorship, if that can be done at this late date, is prepared to accept the strictest kind of censoring from its own members.

The Church Speaks
One might wonder why, after doing things in their own way for so many years, studio executives finally are ready to do whatever the public desires. The answer is the unified movement of religious organizations to clean up the movies. Such a combination is one the movie boys and their owners and heads of the business admit it.

There isn't the slightest doubt today but that we are due for an era of clean, wholesome pictures. The only question is by whom these films will be made. If our current executives don't fall in line very rapidly, they will be replaced with other executives who will make pictures the public wants. The film moguls have had their inning—now it's the public's turn.

Rabbit Ear Auctions To Be Held Saturday

Farmers, ranchers, oil men and other boys and men who are saving rabbit ears for the auction.

The biggest crowd seen in Midland since July 4 is expected to attend this sale.

Merchants are expected to have their gifts for the sale on vacant lots opposite the Ritz theatre not later than 1:15, or deliver them to the Midland Hardware store not later than 12:30, and they will be paraded in a truck by Ronald Morgan.

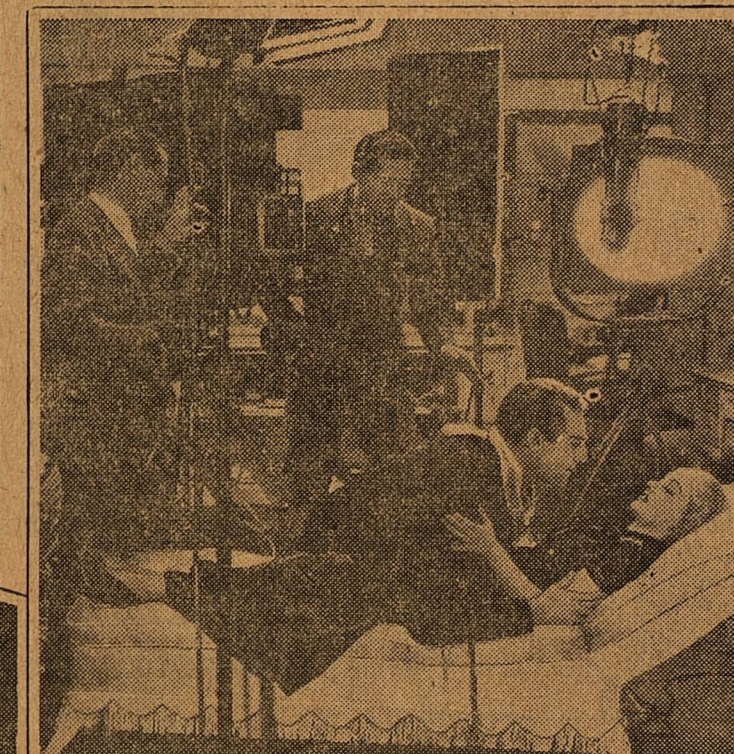

"Cap" Wallace will cry the sale and will make it snappy so that people will not have long to stand in the hot sun and so they may go about other business.

VAGUE REPLIES MEET QUERIES ON STATUS OF DEFICIENCY WARRANTS

"Only a few vouchers have been received from the pink boll worm compensation claims board," a telegram from State Comptroller Shepard to Peace Justice B. C. Girdley Saturday said. "The warrants will go forward as fast as final approval of claims can be had. Letter follows."

Girdley had wired the comptroller asking if Shepard had any definite idea when the deficiency warrants, to be issued farmers for expenses incurred in fighting worms in their former so-called pink boll worm area, will be mailed.

In the Saturday mail Sheriff A. C. Francis, who also has written urging that warrants be mailed before July 1 in order that the money may be used to pay taxes before

WOMAN AT E. P. CLAIMS SHE IS MRS. FIDANQUE

West Coast Officers Doubt Her Story, However

EL PASO, June 23. (U.P.)—Department of justice agents today sought kidnappers who a week ago abducted Mrs. Joseph Fidanque, 39, radio singer, from her San Jose, California, home.

The woman, recovering from nervous shock, was found at an El Paso hotel yesterday in a dazed condition. She said a man and a woman kidnapped and drugged her and brought her here. Few clues of the abductors were upturned. A systematic search was being conducted.

She said she believes the kidnappers let her out in El Paso, near a park, and that she first began to remember when she saw an El Paso sign containing the word "Panama"—she is the life of a prominent Panama canal zone business man. How she got to El Paso, she says she does not know, as she said she was forced to swallow and smell drugs, and that her mind "went blank."

She told El Paso officers a story of having been kidnapped from her home by a "man with a gun" and a woman he called "girlie" and "Mazie."

"My son had just left for a resort, when the door bell rang. I went to the door and a young woman, about 30, stood there. I asked her if she was looking for my son, and she said yes."

"I told her that he had just gone. Then she called to a big stranger to come on the porch. She called him Jim. He put a gun in my ribs and took me back into the house, where he picked up some of my clothes and put them in a bag."

"Then they made me sniff something. I don't remember very well what happened. They drove out of town. I remember when we were in one town the man said 'Hell, the dicks and the newspapers have got hold of this and now we've got to use our heads.'"

She said they stopped at one place and forced her to dye her black hair red. Then she said the man said "Now she's dead ringer for the guy we bumped off."

The woman said that her kidnappers bound her eyes with cotton and tape and made her wear smoked glasses.

"They told me, when they turned me loose, to register at a hotel under the name of Julia Travers," Mrs. Fidanque recalled.

One time the kidnappers tried to take her wedding ring. She stated when she pleaded that removal of the ring would bring bad luck.

Examinations by a county jail matron showed that the woman's body bore scars on the abdomen and back which San Jose police has listed as marks of identification. Later, she talked by long-distance telephone with her son, Jack, 20, in San Jose, and his recognition of her voice was considered by officers to have removed the last doubt of her identification.

San Jose officers however, believed the woman here is not Mrs. Fidanque. Chief of Police H. N. Black of San Jose said after he talked with El Paso officers, "That woman cannot be Mrs. Fidanque, as she said she registered at the hotel there June 16—that is the same day Mrs. Fidanque disappeared here."

Pipe Water Six Miles For Tests

Drilling will be facilitated in the Permian area of eastern New Mexico, particularly in the Jal field, by the piping of water a distance of six miles. Adequate water was found at less than 100 feet. Two to three water wells had to be drilled at the site of the oil well locations to get an adequate water supply for drilling but the new piped water will eliminate such delays and expense.

Supl. W. W. Lackey of the Midland Public Schools has accepted an invitation to deliver a lecture before educators and students of education classes at Texas Technological college at Lubbock later in July.

The local educator will speak on the subject of curriculum revision, which is occupying the spotlight of American education at present.

In sending the invitation to Superintendent Lackey, the Hardin & Simmons authorities show a recognition of his ability as an educator, inasmuch as the subject to be discussed is one of such import.

Also, Lackey will preside at one of the conferences to be held on the same subject at Texas Technological college at Lubbock later in July.

Dr. Fred C. Ayers, University of Texas authority on school administration and supervision, will be one of the principal speakers. State Superintendent L. A. Wood and other prominent school men of Texas will appear on the program.

The Lubbock conference will be attended by college men and leading school men of West Texas.

DESPITE ALL THE TALK, WAR ISN'T INEVITABLE

War talk has deluged the world during the last year in a rising flood. That fact in itself is probably a greater factor in the possibility of war than any other thing.

The professional observer, the political adventurer, the armament manufacturer, the propagandist, all these thrive on war talk. You would think, to read their outpourings, that there was no escape from another world war.

It is perfectly true that war armament is greater than it was before the World war. It is perfectly true that the government of states like Russia, Italy, France, and Germany consider it good policy to foment war talk because it helps to unite their peoples politically.

But underneath it all there is a growing conviction on the part of the inarticulate millions that it is all needless, useless, that it must not be. And, further, that there is nothing to be gained by it.

Because they speak for a growing number of people in every country in the world, the still small voices of a few who speak of peace and hope should get a wider hearing than they do. For instance, Frank B. Kellogg, former secretary of state, now nearly 80, doesn't believe at all that war on a world scale must come.

"I see no probability of a World war again," the co-author of the Kellogg-Briand anti-war pact says. "Nations and peoples have come to their senses, and have not forgotten and will not soon forget the awful horror, misery, and beastliness of the last conflict, which still has the world prostrate. . . . There has been a lot of war scare talk, but we haven't war yet."

"I came home from Europe a year ago to hear people predicting war within 30, 60, or 90 days. There is no war yet. . . . Every year that passes without war brings the world closer to the ultimate goal—universal peace."

Thomas Mann, distinguished German novelist, also believes war will not come inevitably. He believes its consequences are so unpredictable that even governments which rattle the sword freely will hesitate long and gravely before going in.

There is no use in sticking our heads in the sand, in kidding ourselves that war can be no more. It can, and it may. But it is equally silly, and far more dangerous, to let go unchallenged the talk that it must come.

The prophets of peace deserve their hearing no less than the prophets of war, that the people may decide which are the true prophets.

"HE JESTS AT SCARS . . ."

The supreme tragedy of the world is that nobody really learns anything except by experience—and then it is too late.

John Killeen, state commander of the Michigan G. A. R., was talking about the long-proposed but never-accomplished joint convention between Union and Confederate veterans.

"It's not that we veterans hold any grudge against each other," Killeen said. "But the younger generation and the women folk would never stand for it. They think we fought in the old days, and should still feel like fighting."

Killeen, who bears the scar of a saber wound received at Cedar Creek, adds, "I'd like to shake the hand of the fellow who wounded me, and tell him I respect him as a good soldier and a better hand with the saber than I was. . . ."

And there you have it. The younger generation, it seems, can not know until it finds it out itself, the mutual respect and common feeling of adversaries who have fought well and buried bitterness.

The disarmament conference is a failure, since some of the nations would rather lock arms on the battle field than block arms in the conference room.

A Security That Has Nothing to Do With Armament

Letters to Editor

Sweetwater, Texas,
June 12, 1934.

My Dear Mr. Barron:

Just as one newspaper man to another, I want to recommend to you one of my fellow townsmen, Hon. George H. Sheppard, who is a candidate to succeed himself as state controller.

His record at Austin, of course, is his greatest recommendation, and one of which the entire state is proud. Yet, we in his "old home town" want to leave no stone unturned to see him returned to office. We believe his contribution to the state have been most marvelous.

Before being appointed to the state position, he was honored in his own county and city with various offices, for several years serving Sweetwater as mayor. Any contests you might extend Sheppard will be appreciated, and, in the long run, the writer believes his being returned to office will reflect creditably on our state.

Believe me when I declare that furthering Sheppard's candidacy is a patriotic contribution to the state. Hoping you can extend a helping hand, and with best wishes, I am, Fraternally yours, Millard Cope, Publisher.

Texas Gets More Workers Employed

HOUSTON (U.P.)—Texas led the nation in the number of men employed directly on federal highway projects at the close of May, according to a report received here from Public Works Administrator Harold Ickes. The number totaled 18,875 during the month.

At the end of May, the bureau of public roads reported, Texas had 506 public works highway projects advertised for contract. Of this number, 494 had been awarded to contract.

Of the projects advertised, $21,121,000 or 87.1 per cent represented PWA funds allotted the state under the NRA, the report revealed.

The estimated total cost of the work advertised for contract was given at $23,651,000. Of the 494 Texas highway projects awarded to contract, $20,689,000 represented PWA funds, or 85.3 per cent.

Further check of public works highway building progress in Texas by the bureau showed 232 projects under construction and 177 completed.

Work under construction represented $15,016,000 of PWA money, while projects completely represented $3,864,000 from that agency.

The estimated total cost of work under construction was placed at $16,374,000, while total cost of completed work was estimated at $1,758,000.

The federal aid highway program, including work under way and completed in the entire country involved 90 per cent of the $400,000,000 PWA road fund at the close of the month, the report showed.

It was away down state and an old country boy who surely was a country boy became a candidate for some office. And he was at a political rally when his opponent referred to him as being "illiterate."

And the old country boy wanted to kill him. A dozen hen had to hold him down.

"Why, I'm the second child in the family!" he bellowed as tears streamed down his face.

TO ACCOMPANY DANIELS

SAN BENITO (U.P.)—Edward L. Reid, chief of the division of Mexican affairs in the department of state, is expected to accompany Josephus Daniels, U. S. ambassador to Mexico, to the Lower Rio Grande valley for a study of its irrigation problems before the ambassador returns to Mexico City.

The lower valley is anxious for a treaty with Mexico for division of waters in the Rio Grande and Daniels has been invited to visit this section in order to acquaint himself with the situation, said Frank S. Robertson, secretary of the Valley Water Conservation association, who conferred recently with Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Daniels at Washington.

After all, some of the good old rules are the right rules for today, despite the classy remarks of some of the modern young fools who think all old rules were devised by stubborn old mules.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, June 24.

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "And God saw every thing that he had made, and behold it was very good... Thus the heavens and the earth were finished, and all the host of them" (Genesis 1:31, 2:1).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "God creates all forms of reality. His thoughts are spiritual realities... nothing exists beyond the range of all-inclusive infinity, in which and of which God is the sole creator" (page 513).

This is the Street

By Helen Welshimer

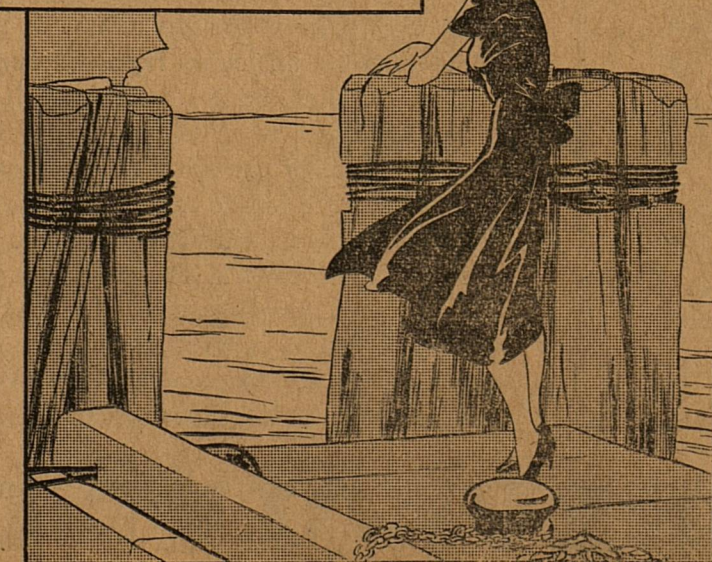

THIS is the street that we used to take
On a long, slow summer's night,
Wandering down to the river's edge;
This is the dusty light

THAT shed faint magic upon a pier
Hunting a path to the open sea,
Waiting beyond the town.

SOME day we'd go along, we said,
As the sea-battered craft slipped past.
The world was a globe for our hearts to spin,
Long as our love would last.

WHERE did you go, dear roving lad?
Was there passage for only one
On the ship that sailed to a lush green shore
Haunted by flagrant sun?

DID somebody whisper of dusky maids,
With lips that were never sweet...
Once in awhile I seek the pier sweet,
At the edge of the little street.

Woods, with Average of .609, Leads Sockballers

By JESS RODGERS.

With 14 hits out of 23 trips to the platter, E. N. Woods of Scruggs Motors was easily head and shoulders above the 55 sockball batters who played in at least three games during the first quarter of the night session.

The big lead-off man's imposing average is .609. He played in five games and went to bat 23 times. Only one other player faced the pitcher's box that many times, Rick Lewellen, and Rick played in seven games.

Woods also had the honor of having scored nine runs, a total shared by only one other player, Eb Estes, who bats right after Woods.

Home Brewed

BY R. C. HANKINS

Sitting up there in a shaded seat with a cooling breeze sweeping into the stand from the screen of green mesquite across the field, this defendant could close his eyes during the Odessa-Midland game and feel he was living four years in the past. The days when Cheeves and Sangui- net, Big Ed Kallina, and Senor "Lucky" Lagunas lined out hits that peeled stucco, and plaster from houses just over the fence from the old West Texas league park in East Midland.

There were Mark Hanna and Lefty Briggs, the latter wearing the wrong uniform, to be sure—but West Texas league timber. And there were Suratt and White, Sax-on and Ray, Jacks and Harris, as well as other classy players who might, except for the difference in uniform, have stepped out of the West Texas league past.

Without any attempt to editorialize or to cause anyone injury through suggestion of acrobatics, Midland people should pat themselves on their own backs at their good fortune in getting a municipally owned grandstand. It is not the value of the stand so much as the invoking again of baseball consciousness, the unity of a holiday or carnival spirit it brings, the release in the playment of those prosaic bothers of business or lack of it—with a resultant recharging of faculties for work next day. Nothing possibly is so valuable as the great American pastime, with its attendant razzing of the umpire and good-natured rivalry, as a hectic afternoon in the stands, drinking pop, eating peanuts, getting cigarette ashes down the neck of the woman in front and shaking hands across several people. The free-masonry even extends to candidates—those omnipresent gents you keep a sharp lookout for in sauer moments.

Midland's stand is built right. It is anchored, on tested footings, erected of heavy lumber and so arranged that additional seating space can be joined without sacrificing visibility. Every seat faces directly to the pitcher's box. Eight hundred can be seated in comfort. Since it's municipally owned, it will not be torn down like those other parks—not unless the water works go too and its bonded indebtedness is repudiated. There's just one thing this agency can see to make it complete—a fence. Baseball is simply not baseball when a batter hits one a mile into the bushes and then has to bank under full throttle to make four bases. The fence likely will come, sooner or later.

A word for the umpiring. Most club managers accept Fletcher Curry as an official who will call a ball or a strike or a close play just as he sees it. He had to call several plays Friday we'd have hated deciding for a pigny club, but he did not hesitate. We learn from those who had closer views of the plays in question he was right in each instance. There were two close decisions on base, one on first when Miller Harris was called out in the first inning and one in the ninth when Ray went first in a cloud of dust into third. Both men appeared safe to this scribe, particularly Harris; but the fan's license to jabber and get jittery at an official does not extend to the score book. At any rate, everyone gives credit to the two umpires for calling the game as they saw it—and admits the affair was well handled. Had Harris been called safe at first, however, Odessa would have scored one more run.

easy. He parked himself under everything except one too far over and too low. What many did not know was he was playing the sun field and had to look down several seconds at the ground to get his sight back after waiting for a rain-maker to come back to earth. The crowd gave Odessa's manager a rousing ovation after he was called out of the dugout to take a bow. One of the sockball followers said he was hit so hard in the stomach by a ball the other night he couldn't cuss.

HE WAS LUCKY

FORT WORTH (UP)—Motorcycle Officer T. J. McDaniel is thanking his lucky star, his courtrooms approach and Bonnie Parker's hesitancy for his life. McDaniel has learned, he said, he gave Clyde Barrow, erstwhile Southwest desperado, a ticket for speeding here April 29, a month before Barrow and Parker were killed in Louisiana. A Dallas informant, who knew Barrow, McDaniel said, told him Bonnie's gun was trained on him as he wrote out the summons. McDaniel said there was no doubt that it was Barrow, although at the time he had no idea it was. The car had been stolen that day in Dallas, he said. The driver gave his name as "Harry Rose" of Dallas" and signed the ticket at the officers request. The ticket was never answered. Darkness prevented possible recognition of Barrow, the officer said.

ADOPTS NEW RULES

EL PASO (UP)—The Texas College of Mines faculty boards' decision to adopt the border conference rules for the next football season will leave the school with but nine men to represent it on the gridiron. The conference rules bar freshmen. Only full junior college transfers and second year men are eligible. Texas Tech, New Mexico A. & M. and other schools are conference members. Athletic committee members at the College of Mines said their only hope for a team was to obtain a number of junior college graduates.

FISH WAS "EASY"

FORT WORTH (UP)—A frisky two-pound bass took a high leap into the air in the Trinity river as Roy Simpson and J. J. Colleen back rowed up the river, seeking bullfrogs. The bass landed in their boat, making their catch for the day "one bass and no frogs."

MARK HANNA, MIDLAND'S NEW LEFT HANDER KEEPS HITS SCATTERED AND MIDLAND'S BIG GUNS GET THE RANGE

BY JESS RODGERS

"Lefty" Mark Hanna's slants and some timely extra-base hitting by his mates gave Midland a 4-2 edge on Odessa's first half winners of the Permian Basin league, as Midland's municipal grandstand was ceremoniously dedicated Friday afternoon.

Midland scored two runs in each the first and third innings, and was never headed. Odessa scored one run in the second, another in the eighth and got two men on base in the ninth, but the last frame saw Hanna bear down and whiff Sorrell and Travis after Ray had been caught sliding into third.

Five hundred fifty fans yelled in concerted ecstasy as Surratt, flashy shortstop and leadoff man for the Colts, belted the ball over Horton, left fielder, for a first inning triple. White, first baseman, doubled to score Surratt after Rose had popped out and Cramer swung at a third strike. Richter, right gardener, doubled to score White.

Odessa's first run came when Jacks, who alternated with Stan Kenzy at first base for TCU, singled and was scored from second by Ray. Lefty Briggs, former pitcher for Midland in the West Texas league, singled, but Ray was out sliding home for the last out.

In the third, Surratt and L. Rose singled and were scored on White's second double. The big first baseman hit a triple later in the afternoon, to account for three hits in four trips. Surratt, with two hits in four times at bat, was paced by Ray. Odessa's classy shortstop for second hours with the bigdemon.

Odessa's last run came in the eighth, when Soroginus singled and Miller Harris hit a long triple.

Hanna gave up eight hits, Briggs 10. Each whiffed five batsmen and had plenty on the ball. Hanna, elongated Abilenean, kept the hits better scattered, however, and gave up fewer in extra-base denotation.

Mayor M. C. Ulmer made a dedicatory speech to start a brief christening service preceding the game. Jane Butler broke a bottle of grape juice on a pillar of the stand, and Dr. John B. Thomas, after winding up considerably, tossed the first ball.

Initial Endeavour

A pretty sight, to be sure, but not one to cause the American yachtsmen to turn handsprings. For that fast traveling yacht you see in the foreground pulling away from her nearest competitor at Harwich, England, is T. O. M. Sopwith's Endeavour, which will soon come to the United States in an effort to capture the America's Cup. The race was the Endeavour's debut in racing competition.

LIQUOR FILLS COFFERS OF SEVERAL STATES BUT CONTROL IS DIFFICULT

By WILLIS THORNTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

Twenty-eight states today are 28 laboratories for experimenting with new ways of controlling John Barleycorn. That is the first noteworthy result of prohibition repeal. The state control plans show remarkable variety, and a willingness to experiment and learn by trying. This spirit is evident in a conference to be held in mid-June in Chicago, the first post-repeal national conference of liquor control enforcement officials.

Some 18 states with new liquor laws replied favorably to the invitation of J. M. Braude, associate director of finance of Illinois, Standardization of liquor, exchange of ideas on enforcement, plans for collection of state gallonage taxes on interstate shipments, and other problems arising out of state enforcement, will be discussed.

When the federal government stepped out of the limelight of liquor with repeal of constitutional prohibition the states found themselves in varying positions.

Systems Vary Widely

Some had prohibition written into their state constitutions in such way that it was hard to get out. Some let their state laws stand, and just stopped enforcing. Some remained dry just as firmly as they had been before national prohibition. But most set out in an honest effort to solve the problem from the new angle.

The result was speedy enactment of control laws by 17 states, leaving sale of liquor in private hands, but under license and regulation designed to control the traffic and yield the state needed revenue. They are: Arizona, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Missouri, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, Rhode Island, and Wisconsin.

Nine states took over the liquor business for themselves, setting up a state monopoly in the sale of hard liquor: Iowa, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Montana, Virginia, Vermont, Oregon, and Washington.

Two states found themselves, more or less by accident, without any state liquor law at all. They are Louisiana and Nevada.

No Control in Louisiana

A row between Huey Long and anti-long factions is blamed for the Louisiana situation. Long's opponents claiming that he refused to permit the legislature to be called in special session for it would attack his governor, O. K. Allen.

So despite the open sale of all kinds of liquor, the state does not get a penny of revenue from this source, or exercise any control. County, and city, and village license and tax liquor shops, and New Orleans alone is taxing 1645 of them. The present legislature may pass a state liquor law.

Nevada, old-time saloons are running full blast. This state used to have a stringent dry law, which was repealed when prohibition was substituted, and a less severe law substituted.

But this latter was declared unconstitutional, leaving county and municipal authorities the only check on the liquor traffic.

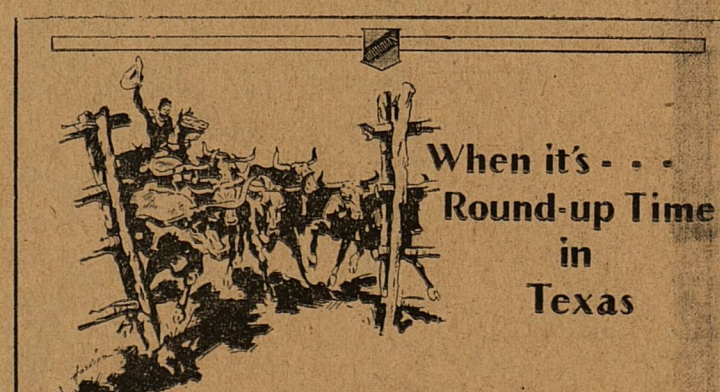

Drunkness Falls Off

Oddly enough, reports from both Reno and New Orleans, center-points of these two unregulated states, indicate a falling off in drunkenness, and "under-the-influence" auto accidents.

Several states license the drinker. In Oregon a drinker's license costs $1; in Washington, 50 cents a year. New Mexico, which tried out a $3 drinker's license, repealed this provision.

New Mexico altered its state law in other respects. The original plan to sell liquor only with meals failed completely. Sandwiches were interpreted as meals, and sandwiches the size of crackers, shopworn with repeated servings, were furnished.

It became a joke, as did the $3 drinker's license, because of a provision exempting medicinal

When it's "Round-up Time in Texas"—an old familiar song sung by cowboys of the plains, long before the debut of the modern hotel. Then their "round-ups" were held in the great open spaces. The old "round-up" continues today and did then, however there is another kind of "round-up" now which is equally familiar to cowmen, the "get-together" which they stage at various Hilton Hotels. Most any day you can see these pioneers of the plains hobnobbing with one another, talking over old times in the coffee shops and lobbies of our hotels. They enjoy Hilton Hospitality and profit by our never changing rates of $2.00, $2.50, and $3.00.

PACKED STAND IS WANTED FOR TODAY

Midland's rejuvenated ball club will be seen in action for the second consecutive day when the Colts play host in their new park at 3:30 this afternoon to McCamey.

Leonard Rose, who is believed to have rounded back into shape after a back injury, will be on the mound, and McCamey likely will oppose him with either Charles Bryan or Bill Duncan.

With facilities in the grandstand offering comfort to about 800 fans, officials of the club are making a special appeal for support.

"We have 550 in the stand Friday, but pre-game expenses were heavy, and we barely cleared expenses," treasurer John Butler said. "If the public will continue to support the club we will give Midland a winning ball club."

Developments in equipment of this nature, the new busses provide maximum travel comfort plus added protection against road failures, as a result dual engine features which operate together or independently of each other.

With the addition of these new busses by the Southwestern Greyhound lines, the Dallas-El Paso territory will continue to enjoy bus transportation equal to the best in the nation. Ten additional new busses have been ordered and will be placed in operation between Dallas and St. Louis via Tulsa within the next two weeks, providing service from St. Louis to El Paso without a change of buses, and requiring only one change (at El Paso) between St. Louis and Los Angeles.

Free Lunch Comes Back

Indiana unwittingly brought back the lunch counter by way, its law says that food must be dispensed with liquor, but it doesn't say it must be paid for, so back came the blind robin, the swiss chaser, and the hissing hen.

Wisconsin has netted a half million from whisky, and a million and a half from beer; Colorado a half million in license fees; Connecticut nearly a million since last June. So the revenues to states, though in some cases disappointing, have been helpful to those states; which went out after them.
