Strategic missiles...

U.S., Soviets open new talks

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The United States tried to break the deadlock in the Strategic Arms Reduction Talks today by offering the Soviet Union a new proposal for reducing long-range nuclear arms.

Gen. Edward L. Rowny, the chief U.S. negotiator, said he would bring President Reagan's full proposal to Soviet negotiator Viktor L. Karpov.

The meeting of the full Soviet-U.S. delegations today opens a fifth round of 15-month-old talks aimed at reducing strategic nuclear weapons. They parallel the separate Intermediate Range Nuclear Force talks on limiting medium-range missiles in Europe.

Although Rowny and Karpov met cordially Wednesday, the official Soviet news agency Tass branded Reagan's new proposals "vague, obscure and unclear."

Reagan called for a "build-down," or destruction of at least 5 percent of each sides' strategic missiles a year, while offering to negotiate limits on long-range bombers and air-launched cruise missiles. The United States holds a 410 to 343 edge over the Soviet Union in bombers.

Reagan, who sought earlier to require substantial cutbacks in the heavy missiles that comprise two-thirds of the Soviet force, said his new plan to include the bombers "removed the dividing line" between the two U.S. proposals.

The "build-down" concept means old missiles would be destroyed faster than new ones are deployed. Senior U.S. officials say two intercontinental ballistic missiles might be scrapped for each new one, while submarine missiles would be updated on a three-for-two basis.

The Soviets have offered to limit each side to a total of 1,800 missiles and bombers and is calling for a freeze of U.S.-Soviet nuclear forces. The United States has about 1,600 missiles, while the Soviet Union has 2,340.

Tass, echoing charges by Karpov that the United States was using the START talks to cover its build-up of forces, charged Reagan's proposal actually amounted to a modernization program.

Citing U.S. defense spending, Reagan's proposal to build 100 MX Missiles, the

B-1 bomber and other arms, Tass concluded: "What is meant in fact is that the sides will get the right to deploy new, upgraded systems of mass annihilation as they phase out old, less effective ones."

In West Germany, millions of workers stopped work for five minutes Wednesday in a demonstration against nuclear missiles. The action was organized by the 8-million-member German Trade Union Federation, which is urging that an agreement be reached at U.S.-Soviet arms talks.

Writing entries to be accepted

Officials for a creative writing contest being conducted in conjunction with the local symposium focusing on the American cowboy say some late entries will be accepted.

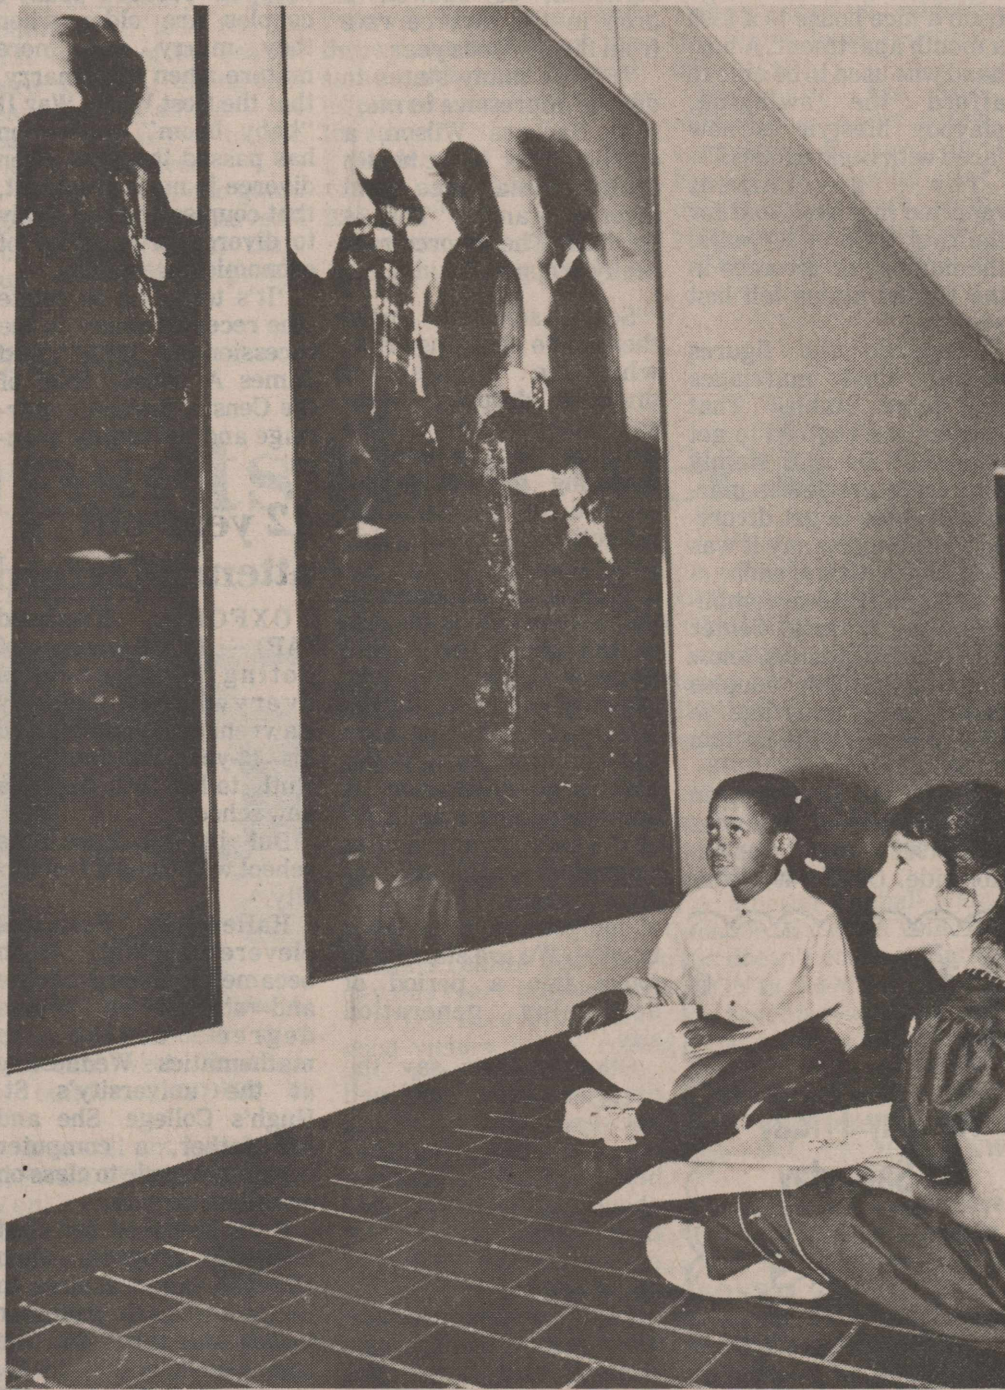

The deadline for entering is Thursday and while a good response has been reported, Eunice Irwin, museum executive director, said late entries will be taken through Oct. 14.

Subject for the contest is the American cowboy as he appears in history, folklore or the present day. Writings will be accepted in either non-fiction or fiction.

Age divisions for writing include grades K-3, 4-6, 7-8, 9-12, junior college age and adult. As of Thursday morning, entries had been received in all divisions except high school.

Winners of the writing contest will be announced Sunday, Oct. 16 at the Western Texas College fine arts theatre.

FOR KIDS ONLY — Part of the upcoming symposium sponsored through local museums is for kids only. Local youth may now pick up a children's activities book created by Snyder residents and available at the Scurry County Museum. It's all part of the upcoming "Where the Buffalo Roamed" celebration, which features photographs shown here by

'Cowboy' booklet prepared for youth

By Deanie Francis Mills
"You are going to use your imagination. Your imagination will make you become a cowboy, and it will take you out on the range and let you live a cowboy's life..."

So begins a children's activities book created by Snyder residents and now available at the Scurry County Museum. It's all part of the upcoming "Where the Buffalo Roamed" celebration, to be held in conjunction with Snyder's annual "White Buffalo Day."

The activities book, which describes the American cowboy in history and in the present, features photographs of the cowboy by Martin Schreiber, author of "Last of a Breed: Portraits of the Working Cowboy," published by Texas Monthly Press.

Scattered throughout the activities book are games about cowboys such as word scramblers, acrostics, guessing games and opportunities for children to draw and write their own ideas about the cowboy, including a chance to make up their own brands. Each page of the illustrated book is hand-lettered.

The words and music of "Git Along Little Dogie" are printed for group sings and a recipe for sourdough biscuits is included. A list of books and records — available at the Scurry County Library — is provided also.

Kids who complete the project, which includes a visit to the Scurry County and Diamond M Museum exhibit on the American Cowboy, will be awarded a certificate of completion by museum staffers. The exhibits will be in place Oct. 15-Nov. 20.

A thousand copies have been printed and are available at no charge to teachers, students and other interested individuals. Funding for the project is in part from a grant made available through the Texas Committee for the Humanities, a state program for the National Endowment for the Humanities.

The activities book is only one part of the museums' project including a creative writing contest that culminates with a celebration the weekend of Oct. 15.

The book, entitled "You're a Cowboy!" is a result of many volunteer hours by local residents who have pooled their skills. Research and text was provided by Lynn Finch, who holds a bachelor's degree in Southwest studies and a teacher's

Carriker group slates barbecue

Local residents are involved with a Democratic Party event planned in Roby to honor state representative for this area, Steve Carriker.

Persons interested in attending the barbecue and fund raiser should contact either June McGlaun or Enid Turner for tickets.

The event is planned Tuesday at the Fisher County Fair Building in Roby. A "legislative office open house" is slated from 5 until 6:30 p.m. with Carriker visiting with constituents.

At 6:30 p.m., a barbecue will be served to include entertainment provided by the Cole Younger Band.

Events sponsors say it is scheduled to show appreciation to first term representative Carriker for "a job well done." It will also help kickoff the coming political season.

Tickets are priced at $10 each.

In Brief

Golding wins Nobel Prize

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — British writer William Golding, whose novels included "Lord of the Flies," won the 1983 Nobel Prize in literature today, the Swedish Nobel Committee announced.

Golding was cited "for his novels, which with the perspicuity of realistic narrative art and diversity and universality of myth, illuminate the human condition in the world today."

In "Lord of the Flies," his best-known work, he describes the nightmarish adventures of a group of English schoolboys stranded on an island and traces their degeneration from a state of innocence to one of blood lust and savagery.

His later works include "The Inheritors," "Pincher Martin," "Free Fall," "The Spire," "The Pyramid," and "The Scorpion God."

Militia commander killed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — An Israeli-backed militia commander in southern Lebanon was assassinated today, police reported.

The victim was identified as Hussein Wahbe, a Shiite Moslem who headed a local militia backed by the Israeli army in the Adloun district south of Sidon, provincial capital of south Lebanon.

Police said Wahbe was killed at 8:15 a.m. local time as he was traveling in his Mercedes Benz on the coastal highway linking Sidon with Lebanon's southernmost port of Tyre. Reports conflicted on how he was killed.

One report received by police headquarters in Sidon said Wahbe died in a hail of machine gun fire as his car left Adloun. Another report, also received by the Sidon police station, said an explosive charge was set off by remote control as Wahbe's car drove past, burning him to death and seriously injuring his wife.

Prospect of default recedes

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — An appeals court has stripped a local judge of jurisdiction in a case involving Argentina's huge foreign debt and the judge freed the government's top banker from jail, easing fears the nation would soon default.

The Federal Appeals Court in Comodoro Rivadavia, 1,100 miles south of here, agreed Wednesday to consider the government's appeal of Judge Federico Pinto Kramer's order to suspend negotiations on part of Argentina's $40 billion foreign debt.

Enrique Billote, president of the appeals court, told the official Argentine news agency Telam the appeal by the executive branch was "well-founded" and that Pinto Kramer's order was "an offense" to the executive.

A reversal of Pinto Kramer's order presumably would clear the way for the receipt of fresh foreign credit needed to avoid default but held up by the judge's action.

Fire damages hay barn

A hay barn in north Snyder sustained extensive fire damage Wednesday afternoon.

According to fire officials, local units were summoned to extinguish the fire in a hay barn owned by John Hernandez, Jr. at 309 N Ave. Y. The fire alarm sounded around 4:20 p.m.

Most of the building was reported destroyed by the blaze before firefighters were able to reach the scene.

The SDN Column

by Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "A few people get up bright and early, but most just get up early."

That front-page picture in Sunday's SDN got considerable attention. The photo in question was to help promote the western symposium set Oct. 15 at the Scurry County Museum.

Title of the symposium, "Where the Buffalo Roamed," will include exhibits of cowboy-style photographs. One such photograph we published Sunday showed the cowboy with his head cut off.

We admit to not being very artistic nor do we understand art. But there seems to be others with the same problem in Snyder. Several thought we had goofed with regards to the photo.

Howard Limmer, manager of Anthony's, said in the future his family will have greater respect for his photographs. "We have albums full of pictures with the heads chopped off."

While we're on the subject of art, did you see the news item about the woman who paid $1,000 for a painting. Showing it off to a friend, the friend commented it looked like it was painted by a duck.

The buyer called back to the art gallery and found that to be the case. A duck got loose in the artist's studio, got his feet in paint and walked around the canvas.

The woman was having no success getting her money back.

There was one other item in the news that shouldn't be a surprise to anyone. It was reported that at the Ohio State Fair, the cow chip throwing contest was won by a politician.

That's not fair. We don't think they ought to let professionals enter those amateur contests.

Experts disagree on reasons...

U.S. divorce rate declining

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jim and Jane have been married more than a decade. They've got a lovely home, a swimming pool and a hot tub. He collects antiques. They are unhappily married. But they have no interest in divorce.

The names are fictitious, but the case is real, and the experts say they illustrate one of several reasons why the divorce rate has fallen for the first time in two decades.

"I have no doubt in my mind that the divorce rate is down because of the economy," said Jean Arbuckle, a marriage and family counselor in Arlington, Va.

"They (Jim and Jane) don't want to go from a nice house to a $300 a month apartment. A husband who used to be able to afford the swinging, playboy lifestyle is now faced with cockroaches."

The government reported this week that for the first time in 20 years, the number of divorces in the United States fell last year.

What do the figures mean? That marriages are more stable? That couples can't afford to get divorced? Or is it simply that there are fewer married couples to get divorced? The experts say it was probably a little of each.

The new figures, compiled by the National Center for Health Statistics, show that 1.2 million couples ended their marriage in 1982, 3 percent fewer than in 1981.

It was the first drop in the number of divorces since 1962 — and it was nationwide. Of the 49 states that reported 1982 divorce statistics, 38 showed a drop in the divorce rate from the previous year.

"For so many states to drop is impressive to me," said Barbara Wilson, a demographer in the health center's marriage and divorce branch. "This is no fluke. The divorce rate really dropped."

Social scientists insist there is no easy answer to why the number of divorces dropped. Most say they are unsure whether it reflects a changing attitude about divorce or a statistical reflection of an aging population.

"One of the influences on the divorce rate is the size of the generation," said Richard Easterlin, a professor of economics at the University of Southern California in Los Angeles. "When a generation is numerous as it was in recent years, it aggravates economic problems for young people. There's lots of competition in the labor market. We are starting to move into a period of decreasing generation size."

Other experts say the divorce rate declined because more young couples live together before making a decision about marriage and that their break-ups are not reflected in divorce statistics.

"A lot of divorces take place early on in marriages," said James McCarthy, a demographer at the Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene and Public Health in Baltimore. "Now a lot of people are living together. It's a trial period. Maybe they get together, live together and break up in a year."

Some social scientists say the divorce rate has dropped because today's couples are older when they marry and more mature when they marry, that the Post World War II "baby boom" generation has passed the ages when divorce is most prevalent, that couples are less likely to divorce in a period of economic uncertainty.

"It's tempting to relate (the recent decline) to the recession of 1982," said James A. Weed, chief of the Census Bureau's marriage and the family branch.

12 year-old attends Oxford

OXFORD, England (AP) — In the manner of doting parents everywhere, Harry Lawrence accompanied his 12-year-old daughter, Ruth, to her first day at a new school.

But in this case, the school was Oxford University.

Hailed as Britain's cleverest child, Ruth became an undergraduate and started an honors degree course in mathematics Wednesday at the university's St. Hugh's College. She and her father, a computer consultant, rode to class on a tandem bicycle.

Ruth prepared her first computer program when she was 6 and aspires to become a math professor before she turns 20. She won a scholarship to St. Hugh's by topping 530 other candidates in a mathematics entrance exam usually taken by 18-year-olds.

"Ruth is very happy and likes Oxford very much. She is keen to get going and we don't want any more publicity," said her father after dodging newsmen through the afternoon.

Lawrence and his wife, Sylvia, also a computer consultant, have moved to Oxford to be with their daughter, whom they taught at home.

The college has given the Lawrence family the use of a flat close to the college grounds.

At Wit's End

by erma bombeck

In the beauty shop recently, a girl leaned over and said to me, "I'll bet you're an autumn, aren't you?"

"Actually, I do favor cooler weather."

"No, no," she said, "I'm referring to your color chart."

When I looked puzzled she said, "Do you mean to tell me you have never been drapped?"

"For what purpose?"

To find out what colors you should be buying for your clothes, your car, your home. A color consultant tries different fabrics next to your skin and you can tell what colors wash you out and make you invisible and what colors make a statement. Then you're given a personal color spectrum that you put in your purse and never leave home without.

Noone will get reward

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — It doesn't look as though anyone will get the $1,000 reward put up by Australia yacht syndicate head Alan Bond for the recovery of his wife's watch, police say, because apparently the $50,000, diamond-studded timepiece already has been found.

The watch was reported stolen from Eileen Bond during the celebration the night Australia II won the America's Cup here.

But it turned up sometime Saturday in Newport, said police Capt. Ronald Dunbar on Wednesday.

"In our opinion, it is positively Mrs. Bond's watch," said Dunbar. "But we haven't had her or anyone from her insurance company identify it. So we can't say positively it is hers until someone identifies it."

Dunbar said the watch was in good condition, except for a band that apparently broke when Mrs. Bond lost it.

During a news conference after the race, Mrs. Bond had to be pulled into the room as officials tried to keep hordes of onlookers outside. Her arm with the watch was last inside the room and she said she thought that was when someone pulled off the watch.

Dunbar declined to give details about how the watch was recovered, but said no arrests have been made.

It should be consulted before you buy anything!"

I was obviously the last woman in North America to know this. Since then, I have been "draped" and my life will never be the same again. My color consultant discovered my colors are beige and gray. They are perfect for me.

As a definite "autumn" I realize there are only two things in my closet I can wear with confidence: a beige T-shirt with a message "SO MANY MEN ... SO LITTLE TIME" on it and a nightgown that came out gray when I washed it with a pair of the boy's trousers.

The rest has to go. Unless I can replace my entire wardrobe, the only other place I can work is to enlist in the Army, as Khaki is a smashing color with my reddish hair and beige skin.

My car, which I have just soaked $500 into to get it to run, is wrong, wrong, wrong for me. When people see me in that color of car, they will think I am too sick to drive it.

The house will have to go on the market as soon as possible. The exterior white can only compliment a "winter," and I'm four months and two hair shades short of that.

The interior of the house can only sap my self-confidence and give me a bad self-image. It just doesn't "work" for me.

My husband found me in a state of deep depression, eating something beige and gray from the refrigerator.

"What's the matter?" he asked.

"My whole life has to change," I said. "The way I look, the way I live and the way I travel."

"We can manage that, can't we?"

"We?" I said. "I don't know how to tell you, but I think you're a spring!"

Dodgers keep series even

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Some predicted that a loss by the Los Angeles Dodgers to the Philadelphia Phillies in Game 2 of the National League Championships would, in effect, mean the end of the series.

"It was a very tough game; it was very important that we win the second game here," Dodger pitcher Fernando Valenzuela said Wednesday night after notching the win as the Dodgers downed the Phillies 4-1 to square the best-of-five playoffs at one game each.

Had the Dodgers lost, they would have faced the difficult task of having to sweep the Phillies in Philadelphia this weekend.

Los Angeles' Bob Welch, 15-12 during the regular season, will face Philadelphia rookie Charles Hudson, 8-8, in Friday afternoon's third game.

The Dodgers, blanked 1-0 by Steve Carlton in the series opener at Dodger Stadium, got a good pitching performance from Valenzuela, a clutch triple from Pedro Guerrero, and some solid fielding to win the second game.

Valenzuela scattered seven hits and held the Phillies to one run, Gary Matthews' second-inning homer, before he yielded to reliever Tom Niedenfuer with one on and none out in the ninth inning.

Guerrero snapped a 1-1 tie when he tripled into the rightfield corner with two away and two on in the fifth inning. The Dodgers' defensive effort included three double plays to end Philadelphia scoring threats, and Mike Marshall's sliding catch in the eighth.

John Denny, who led the league with a 19-6 record this season, got the loss despite allowing no earned runs on five hits during the six innings he worked.

Chicago broke a scoreless tie in the third on three consecutive two-out singles by Rudy Law, Carlton Fisk and Tom Paciorek.

In the sixth, the White Sox made it 2-0 when Paciorek walked, moved to third on a fielding error by first baseman Eddie Murray on a twisting grounder by Greg Luzinski, and scored as Ron Kittle grounded into a double play.

Cats tangle with Lamesa

Snyder underclassmen are squared off against Golden Tornado teams tonight, both here and in Lamesa.

On the road, Snyder's eighth graders will vie against the Tors at 4 and 5:30. The freshman will also play in Lamesa, at 6:30.

At home, action begins at 4 o'clock as a seventh grade squad entertains at Tiger Stadium. That will be followed by another seventh grade game at 5:15 and a junior varsity game at 7.

Westerners scrimmage McMurry

ABILENE - Western Texas College's Westerners scrimmage McMurry College in basketball today at 3:30 here.

The WTC men's team will also scrimmage Wayland Baptist in Plainview on the 15th, Lubbock Christian in Lubbock on the 20th and Panola in Abilene on the 21st.

Vie Friday night...

Tigers-Tors similar teams

LAMESA - Cloaked in an air of mystery, Snyder continues to look for its first victory of the season here Friday, taking on a team that is similar - at least on paper - to the Tigers themselves.

"They've won one game this season and we haven't won any, but other than that, we really are pretty similar," said Snyder Coach George Byerly. "We've both run and thrown the ball about the same (ratio-wise). Both of us played Lake View about the same."

Snyder lost 21-6 to the Chiefs while Lamesa lost 25-0.

Lamesa has scored 40 points this season, but 34 of those were in its win over Lubbock High, the only victory either of tonight's two teams have recorded this season.

Meanwhile, the Tornadoes can expect a few surprises Friday, but Byerly isn't talking - for the record, at least - until after the final gun sounds.

"We'll talk all about it after the game," the coach grinned.

Whether the changes will help bolster an offense that has had trouble scoring or are more designed with Lamesa in mind will have to wait.

Statistically, the similarities are strong. Snyder is averaging 226.5 yards a game; Lamesa 226.3. The Tigers are giving up 288.3 yards, slightly less than Lamesa's 316.

Both teams throw the ball about a third of the time. Kreg Bryant is 14 of 38 in passing for 273 yards and two touchdowns. Snyder's Jimmy Cain has thrown complete 14 of 47 times for one TD.

Despite being ranked seventh offensively in District 2-4A, Snyder boasts the top receiver and the fifth leading rusher. Chad Peterson, who also punts for the Tigers, has caught 13 passes for 203 yards, or an average of over 50 yards a game. Norman Malone has run for 323 yards on 65 carries, a 5.0 average per run, 80.75 per game. Malone has also tucked in six passes for 60 yards out of the backfield.

The Tornadoes are led on the ground by sophomore Kenneth Williams, who rates sixth in the district with 318 yards on 67 carries.

Gilbert Arredondo has 150 yards on 30 carries.

A difference between the teams comes at quarterback, where Cain has posed a threat in running for 139 yards. Bryant has run for only 24 yards this season.

"They have a real good rushing attack," said Byerly. "Nobody has really stopped them. They've stopped them from scoring, but not from moving the ball. They run a lot of power sweeps and we've got to be able to stop that or they'll hold the ball."

Kickoff is set for 8 p.m.

LAMESA TORS

Sideline glances...

No upsets this week

By BILL MCCLELLAN
SDN Sports Editor

I could start by saying "from the guy that gave you Washington over the Raiders," but since I'd also have to say, "from the guy that screwed up and picked Minnesota over Dallas," well...

Speaking of predictions, last week was a worst-yet 12 right, 8 wrong for .600. For the season, it's 67-33 for .670. No relief in sight either. Take a look:

Snyder at Lamesa: The win-loss column doesn't show it, but the Tigers are improving each week. Hopefully this will be a confidence builder...SNYDER 26, LAMESA 7.

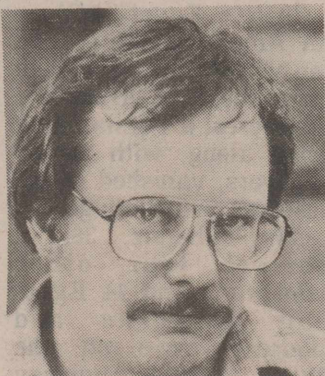

Sweetwater at Ft Stockton: I've still got faith in the Panthers...FT STOCKTON 17, SWEETWATER 14.

Pecos at Andrews: Yep, and in Andrews too...MUSTANGS 25, EAGLES 14.

Monahans at Lake View: Some are saying Monahans is the team to beat now. But I'm not so sure...CHIEFS 21, LOBOES 7.

Paint Creek at Ira: Homecoming at Ira against a winless team after a heartbreaking defeat. What else?...IRA 54, PAINT CREEK 6.

Borden Co at Trent: A win here would give the

Homecoming sparks 2-1A

IRA - Ira celebrates one and Borden County hopes to disrupt one Friday night as District 2-1A battles continue at a new time.

District 2-1A moves its games up an hour - to 7 o'clock - for the remainder of the season this week, a week dominated by homecoming games.

Ira, which saw its unbeaten string snapped by Borden County last week, hopes to bounce back by hosting winless Paint Creek for homecoming. The 'Dogs are 4-1 for the season.

Meanwhile, Borden County has its most important game of the season coming up against undefeated Trent, which also celebrates its homecoming Friday. Borden is 2-1 in district play and while most teams in the loop offer solid competition, it's no secret the Coyotes' competition eases up somewhat after this week. Borden has already played Highland, Leuders-Avoca and, of course, Ira.

In other 2-1A games Friday, Leuders is at Highland and McCauley is at Hermleigh.

Halloween not banned

VALLEY, Neb. (AP) — The ghost-and-goblin lobby won the day — or night — in City Council, after a civic group tried to convince city leaders to ban Halloween trick-or-treating.

The Lioness Club, concerned about the safety of children on Halloween night, wanted the city to co-sponsor a party for children up to age 12.

"We came up with the idea because we wanted to keep the kids from getting hurt," said club member

Pat Landgren, adding that there was no one incident or problem in Valley that had led to the club's concern.

But the City Council took no action Tuesday night, and children will have the run of the streets as usual.

"There were two things. One, we questioned whether it was legal for the city to ban trick-or-treating," said Mayor John Sullivan. "Two, all the council members felt the parents and kids really enjoy it."

Inmates uncertain after stay

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Texas Death Row inmates were delighted that one of their own was spared death, but said they are uncertain how their own cases will be affected by the legal arguments that produced a last minute execution stay for condemned murderer James David Autry.

"It's just like Russian roulette. The gun keeps spinning and spinning and if it clicks, it clicks," inmate Thomas Andy Barefoot, who came within 12 hours of execution in January, said Wednesday. In Austin, Attorney General Jim Mattox predicted Autry's stay will keep Texas from executing its convicts for some time.

"I would say that unless the stay is overturned, there will not be an execution in Texas" this year, Mattox said.

Autry, a 29-year-old drifter from Amarillo who was convicted in the 1980 slaying of a Port Arthur convenience store clerk, was snatched from the brink of execution Tuesday night. He had already been strapped to a gurney and attendants had inserted into his arms the two intravenous needles that were to carry the heart-stopping chemicals into his body.

The execution was scheduled to begin at 12:01 a.m. CDT Wednesday, but U.S. Supreme Court Justice Byron White issued a stay half an hour before. Autry remained on the gurney for another half hour while the stay was confirmed and then was returned to a holding cell.

White's stay was based on an argument that punishment should be proportionally meted out to assure that condemned prisoners in one area of the state are getting the same sentences for the same crime as those in another area.

The state tried but failed to have the stay overturned. The high court refused to accept a verbal motion and Texas officials did not have enough time to submit written motions to each of the justices, Mattox said.

Autry was moved Wednesday morning from the Walls unit holding cell a few feet from the death chamber back to the Ellis Unit, 13 miles away.

He declined to talk to a dozen reporters on Wednesday, the only day media representatives are allowed interviews with death row inmates.

But other inmates said Death Row echoed with cheers and applause after Autry had been spared by the 11th-hour stay.

"We're all happy to see him back here," inmate Billy Hughes said. "We'd like to go slap him on the back and shake his hand and ask him to talk about it. But getting him to talk is hard because he's so shy to begin with."

Search begins for lost army

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — An American writer has set off into the Sahara to find "the Lost Army" of Cambyses, a Persian king who, along with 30,000 followers, vanished in the desert 25 centuries ago.

Gary Chafetz, 36, of Boston, four other Americans and 14 Egyptian geologists and laborers drove off the Bahariya Oasis Highway on Wednesday, about 90 miles south of Cairo, and headed west for the Siwa Oasis, 250 miles away.

By the end of the week, they plan to link up with three leased camels that will pull $50,000 worth of radar units across a 120-square-mile patch of the great sand sea where Chafetz believes the army was buried in a sandstorm.

"We're going to stay in the desert about five months until the middle of March, because then we will be chased out by the same winds that destroyed the army," he said before departing in a convoy of three jeeps and two trucks.

The inauguration of the expedition culminates three years of preparation by Chafetz, who got the idea while researching a fictional character based on Orde Wingate, a British army officer who unsuccessfully searched for Cambyses' army around 1930.

The fate of the army is one of the great mysteries of Egypt's 7,000-year-old civilization.

Cambyses, son of Cyrus the Great, conquered Egypt's Pharaonic dynasty in 525 B.C., and dispatched an army from the ancient Egyptian capital of Thebes, now known as Luxor, for the temple and oracle of Amun at Siwa Oasis, 625 miles to the northwest. They planned to sack the temple site.

But, according to the Greek historian Herodotus, whose sources were the people of Siwa, "a southerly wind of extreme violence drove the sand over them in heaps as they were taking their mid-day meal, so that they disappeared forever."

Herodotus said the army consisted of 50,000 troops, but Chafetz estimates a more realistic number is 30,000 people — a third of them soldiers and the rest slaves, concubines, children, smithies, technicians, soothsayers, hostages and drivers.

Chafetz said that the wind in which the army perished was the only southerly that blows in the Sahara — the khamsin — a powerful, hot, dry storm that sweeps across the desert during March and April.

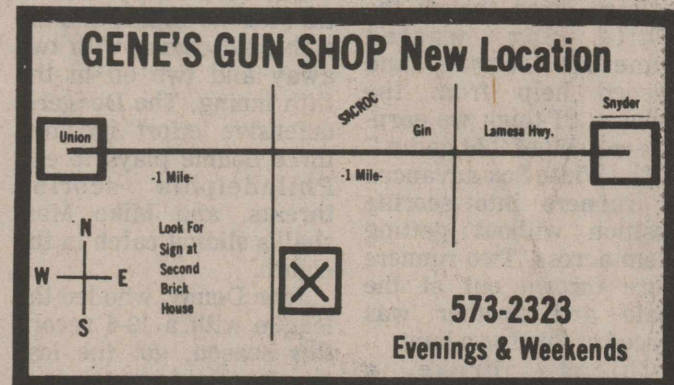

Most of the army's route was across a flat plain of packed gravel that has changed little in thousands of years. Chafetz theorizes the only place the army could have vanished and stayed hidden for 2,500 years is in the great sand sea, an expansive maze of long, serpentine intersecting sand dunes, some of them 100 meters high.

He believes the army is buried in an area about 53 miles south of Siwa, where the sea of sand is only about 15 miles wide. Just south of this point, there are 125 mysterious large stone cairns — rock piles erected to mark paths in the desolate wilderness — built in parallel rows that point toward Siwa.

Chafetz plans to pull his radar equipment across the depressions in the dunes. The equipment emits microwaves into the sand and detects any foreign objects up to a depth of 10 meters.

Hamlet was not too good a bridge player. In particular his habit of soliloquizing when fast play was imperative cost him many tricks. Ophelia, sitting West, opened the queen of spades. The deuce was played by North and Hamlet signaled come-on with his eight. Spades were continued. Polonius ruffed the third spade, led a club to dummy and played the jack of diamonds.

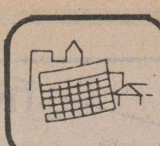

Polonius, the best player in Denmark, could read Hamlet's mind as he thought, "To cover, or not to cover; that is the question."

Finally, Hamlet covered. Polonius took his ace, cashed one high trump, entered dummy with the second high club, finessed successfully against the trump queen, drew the last trump, conceded a diamond and had his game.

If Hamlet had finished his soliloquy, he would have ducked that jack of diamonds. South would let it ride to West's queen. West could shift to a club and South would be in dummy for the last time. He could take a trump finesse or a diamond finesse, but would not be able to take both. He would have to lose the contract in one suit or the other.

Use pastry bag for ladyfingers

By Cecily Brownstone
AP Food Editor

A number of cooks who have acquired pastry bags have asked me to give a recipe for ladyfingers that may be pressed out of such bags. Apparently nowadays there are more pastry bags in kitchens than old-fashioned ladyfinger pans.

The following recipe gives directions for making ladyfingers with a pastry bag and a plain round tube that is one-half inch wide. The ladyfingers that result are delicious. They may be used for trifle and other desserts. Or served with chocolate mousse or fruit.

LADYFINGERS

1/2 cup sifted unbleached all-purpose flour

3 tablespoons sifted cornstarch

3 large eggs, separated

1/2 cup sugar

1 teaspoon vanilla

Confectioners' sugar

Grease and flour two large cookie sheets.

On wax paper sift together the flour and cornstarch; reserve.

In a bowl of an electric mixer at high speed beat the egg whites until soft peaks form. Gradually beat in 1/4 cup of the sugar until stiff peaks form.

Without washing beater, in another bowl with mixer at high speed beat egg yolks, remaining 1/4 cup sugar and vanilla until thickened and lemon color. With mixer at low speed, gradually beat in the reserved flour mixture until blended. Gently fold in the egg whites, about 1-3rd at a time, until blended.

Spoon batter, a portion at a time, into a pastry bag fitted with a plain round tube (1/2-inch wide). Holding the bag diagonally at a 45-degree angle, press the batter onto the prepared cookie sheets into "fingers," each about 3 1/2 inches long and 1 inch wide, well apart from one another. Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar. Let stand 5 minutes. Sprinkle again with confectioners' sugar.

Bake one cookie sheet at a time in a preheated 350-degree oven until set and tinged with gold — 8 to 10 minutes. With a metal spatula remove from cookie sheet to wire rack. Cool completely. Store in an airtight container.

Makes about 2 dozen single ladyfingers.

NOTICE OF INTENTION To engage in Weather Modification Operations within the State of Texas.

Prepared: September 19, 1983

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT the Colorado River Municipal Water District of P. O. Box 869, Big Spring, Texas 79720, holder of Weather Modification License No. 83-1 of the State of Texas, has applied for a permit to engage in an operation to change or attempt to change by artificial methods the natural development of appropriate atmospheric cloud forms or precipitation forms which occur in the troposphere. An application has been filed with the Texas Department of Water Resources for consideration to conduct a weather modification operation to increase precipitation within the area described and by the method stated below:

1. The equipment, materials and methods to be used to conduct this operation include: a weather radar set, meteorological analysis information, a twin-engine aircraft, air-to-ground radio communications, and wing-mounted racks to hold silver iodide flares; a meteorologist directs the aircraft to a radar-selected cloud to begin cloud-seeding at cloud base to increase rainfall in the target area.

2. The area intended to be affected by the operation is the target area which is bounded by a line beginning at a point of origin at Big Spring, Texas and running along Highway 87 in a northwesterly direction to Lamesa, thence north-northeast on Highway 87 to the north border of Dawson County, thence east along the northern boundary lines of Dawson, Borden and Scurry Counties to Highway 84; thence southeast along Highway 84 to Roscoe, in Nolan County; thence south-southeast to Maryneal; thence southwest to Silver in Coke County; thence South-southwest to Highway 87 at a point approximately 13 miles north of Sterling City; thence northwesterly along Highway 87 to the point of origin at Big Spring, Texas.

3. The area in which the equipment is to be operated includes the operational area and the target area. The operational area is the land-area between an outer boundary which is defined by a line that encompasses the block of counties of Lynn, Garza, Kent, Fisher, Nolan, Coke, Sterling, Glasscock, Martin and Dawson, and an inner boundary which is that of the target area.

4. The persons approved by the Department to be in control and in charge of the operation are Ray Pat Jones and Owen H. Ivie, P.E.

5. The period of the operation is expected to be March 1 through November 30 during the years 1984, 1985, 1986, 1987.

6. The initial Texas Weather Modification License was issued to the Colorado River Municipal Water District Dec. 18, 1974, and has been renewed each year.

The Commission shall, if requested by at least 25 persons, hold a public hearing in the area where the operation is to be conducted prior to the issuance of the permit. No public hearing will be held on this application unless a request for a hearing is made within 20 days following the date of publication of the first of three consecutive weekly notices of intention to engage in weather modification operations. Request for further information concerning any aspect of the application should be submitted in writing to the Weather and Climate Section, Texas

Department of Water Resources, P.O. Box 13087, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711. Telephone (512) 475-6318

Requests for a public hearing should be submitted in writing to the General Counsel, Texas Department of Water Resources, P.O. Box 13087, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711. (512) 475-7836.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR FLUID INJECTION WELL PERMIT

Deminex U.S. Oil Company, 700 Pearl, Lock Box 340, Dallas, Texas 75201 has applied to the Railroad Commission of Texas for a permit to inject fluid into a formation which is productive of oil or gas. The applicant proposes to inject fluid into the San Andres, (Formation), Chapman #1 (Lease), Well Number 3. The proposed injection well is located 3 1/2 miles SE from Ira in the Sharon Ridge (1700) Field, in Scurry County. Fluid will be injected into strata in the subsurface depth interval from 1680 to 1710 feet.

LEGAL AUTHORITY: Chapter 27 of the Texas Water Code, as amended, Title 3 of the Natural Resources Code, as amended, and the Statewide Rules of the Oil and Gas Division of the Railroad Commission of Texas.

Requests for a public hearing from persons who can show they are adversely affected, or requests for further information concerning any aspect of the application should be submitted in writing, within fifteen days of publication, to the Underground Injection Control Section, Oil and Gas Division, Railroad Commission of Texas, Drawer 12987, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711 (Telephone 512/445-1373).

NOTICE TO CREDITORS THE STATE OF TEXAS, COUNTY OF SCURRY

To those indebted to, or holding claims against the estate of E. E. SHULER, Deceased, Probate case Number 4170. The undersigned having been duly appointed Independent Executrix of the estate of E. E. Of 'Tender Mercies'...

Harper enjoys success

DALLAS (AP) — A role opposite Robert Duvall two years ago has changed the life of Tess Harper.

Until that role as Rosa Lee in "Tender Mercies," she was working half days as a typist and doing double duty as a cocktail waitress, taking classes and going to auditions in between, sometimes landing an acting job on the stage or in an industrial film.

In 10 years of struggling to be taken seriously as an actress, the closest she had come to film success was almost getting the part of a murder victim in a Chuck Norris kung-fu movie.

"I was trying to get people to take me seriously as an actress," she told the Dallas Times Herald. "But it's hard to even take yourself seriously when you're standing there serving drinks to someone and telling them you're an actress, and they're saying, 'Yeah, well, sure you are, honey.'"

All that changed for the Arkansas native in 1981 when she landed the part in "Tender Mercies," much of which was cast in Dallas and shot in and around Waxahachie, Texas.

Ms. Harper now lives in Los Angeles but was back in Dallas for the filming of the NBC mini-series "Celebrity," based on the late Tommy Thompson's novel of the same name. Symbolically, she is now ensconced in a star-quality suite at a local hotel.

Tender Mercies "opened a lot of doors for me," she said.

She said when she told her mother in her home town of Mammoth Springs, Ark., that she was going to be in a movie with Robert Duvall, her mother didn't know who he was.

"I told her he was the one who played Boo Radley in 'To Kill a Mockingbird,'" said Ms. Harper. "There was a pause, and then she said, 'But isn't he retarded?'"

Even though "Tender Mercies" wasn't scheduled to be released for some months after filming was completed in Waxahachie, Ms. Harper said she headed to Los Angeles to start promoting herself.

"They had no idea who I was," she said, "so I spent all my time meeting people, telling them I'd just done a movie with Robert Duvall. I laid a lot of groundwork so that when the movie finally came out, they would know who I was."

She landed a role in a made-for-television movie, "Kentucky Woman," in which she said she played "a slut coal miner" opposite Cheryl Ladd's crusading feminist.

Next she played Lee Majors' wife in "Starflight One."

"He leaves me for Lauren Hutton — I can't imagine why in the world he would dump me for her," she said.

She followed with a small part in "Silkwood," filmed in Dallas.

Then "Tender Mercies" was released and three more projects, including "Celebrity," followed with no audition needed.

"We just had a meeting to find out if I would be interested in working for them," she said.

"I've come to terms with who I am," Ms. Harper says. "There are actresses who are prettier, and there are actresses who have better bodies. I'm the type that people feel comfortable with. I could be anyone's next-door neighbor."

Now that Hollywood has recognized that quality, she says her parents are "thrilled" by her success, even though she hasn't gotten everything she has gone after.

"I called my mother recently and told her, 'Now, Mother, I know I'm not going to get the part because I'm totally wrong for it, but I've got to tell you who I met with last week.' She said, 'Who?,' and I said, 'Burt Reynolds.'"

"But I said, 'I'm wrong for the part, I'm not going to get it, but I just want you to know that I'm still getting rejected, but I'm getting rejected by a better class of people.'"

Arraignment set for man accused of 2 killings

MARSHALL, Minn. (AP) — Steven Jenkins, described by friends as quiet, hard-working and well-behaved, faced arraignment today on murder charges in the shooting deaths of two bank officers.

Jenkins, 18, and his father, James L. Jenkins, have been accused of killing Rudolph Blythe, 42, and Deems Thulin, 37, president and vice president, respectively, of the Buffalo Ridge State Bank of Ruthon, Minn. The bankers were killed at a farm owned by the elder Jenkins until the bank claimed it in a foreclosure four years ago.

James Jenkins' body was found on a deserted farm near Paducah, Texas, Sunday night after his son turned himself in to law enforcement officers. The father's death has been ruled a suicide.

In a copyright story in today's editions, the Minneapolis Star and Tribune quoted an attorney who formerly represented James Jenkins as saying he underwent a dramatic personality change after he suffered head injuries in an automobile accident 23 years ago.

Jenkins, once "mild-mannered," became prone to "wild fits of temper," said Clint Grose, now an attorney in Minneapolis. Grose said he sent Jenkins to a doctor, who recommended that he consult a neuro-specialist, but he never visited the recommended physician.

Lincoln County Sheriff Abe Thompson and other law enforcement officers flew back to Minnesota from Texas with Steven Jenkins on Wednesday. Jenkins, wearing handcuffs, a gray, sleeveless shirt and baggy olive drab pants, was taken to the county jail in Ivanhoe.

He later was transferred to the Lyon County jail in Marshall, where he was to appear today at a preliminary hearing in district court.

In a criminal complaint filed Monday, authorities described Steven Jenkins as a young man obsessed with guns and military trappings. The complaint said he collected guns and explosives and wore military fatigues with a knife strapped to his leg and dummy grenades clipped to his belt. It said he set up a dummy dressed as a person to use for target practice.

But friends, relatives and former teachers described a different Jenkins in interviews Wednesday.

"He really didn't do that much target practice. He just liked shooting at things," said Dale VanDerostyne, 19, one of Jenkins' former classmates. "He always wore those military clothes. I asked him why and he didn't know why himself."

"He was very polite," said Gary Brosz, principal at Russell-Tyler High School, where Jenkins attended junior high and part of high school. "He never was a troublemaker or a disciplinary problem."

Brosz said Jenkins did not show an inordinate interest in guns when he was in junior high. "He went hunting like any other kid in Minnesota," the principal said.

VanDerostyne said Jenkins was not a partygoer. "He was pretty straight. He never touched alcohol," he said.

The youth's grandfather, Clayton Jenkins, said the boy was upset after his parents divorced when he was 15. He said Steven divided his time among his grandparents, his mother and his father.

"Divorce — it's a terrible thing for kids that age," Clayton Jenkins said. "Steve thought a lot of his father, but he stayed mostly with his mother or with us."

"He was a very good boy," said another relative, who asked not to be identified. "He never got in trouble, and he loved his father."

Clayton Jenkins said his grandson wanted to join the Marines, but could not pass the physical due to a ruptured spleen he suffered in a bicycle accident in September 1980.

That fall, he transferred to Marshall High School as a sophomore. He later dropped out, according to VanDerostyne.

"He wasn't getting along with his teacher and was getting a bad time about his attitude, the clothes he wore," VanDerostyne said, adding that teachers thought he was "weird."

He said Jenkins was a "hard worker" on the farm. "I just couldn't believe it. I never thought he could do something like that."

Brosz said Jenkins was an average student and was not involved in any extracurricular activities.

"I guess like a lot of people, I was pretty shocked ... to me, knowing Steve, he could not be involved in something like this. He just didn't seem like that kind of person," Brosz said.

Neal Nelson, who taught Jenkins in social studies, physical education and health classes, remembers him as a boy who did not participate in sports but enjoyed gym class.

Nelson said Jenkins was interested in hunting, "which was rather common with boys at his age at the time."

A British European Airways Trident jetliner plunged into a field June 18, 1972, minutes after takeoff from London's Heathrow Airport, killing all 118 aboard.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Diuretics and strokes

DEAR DR. LAMB — I had a stroke a year ago. My doctor told me to cut down my diuretic pill from one pill to a half pill a day. Shortly after that I got the stroke.

Please tell me if he should not have recommended this to me. Every day on TV they tell people not to stop taking the pills once they have started. Is this true?

Also, someone told me I should take aspirin every day. Would you advise this?

DEAR READER — Since strokes and heart attacks are unpredictable diseases, we never know when a patient may have one. And the occurrence usually has nothing to do with medicine. The probabilities are that you would have had a stroke despite continuing the same dosage of your diuretic.

Having said that, I must add that I am concerned about patients taking too much medicine. Diuretics work by washing out sodium and water from your body. That lowers blood pressure. It also decreases the blood volume and makes your blood more concentrated.

When you have less blood you may not be able to maintain a good blood flow to your brain. In that way diuretics could actually contribute to strokes. And there are studies that show that increasing the blood volume reverses the paralysis and findings of a stroke when this is done at the onset of the stroke.

Still other studies show that more concentrated blood may make circulation through small arteries more difficult. So the liberal use of diuretics in individuals susceptible to strokes may not always be wise. That is why I am delighted to see a swing to using other medications to control high blood pressure, such as the beta blockers and calcium blockers that do not affect blood volume or blood concentration.

I do not routinely recommend aspirin for strokes. Large doses of aspirin may even be harmful. You should let your doctor guide you on what is best for your case.

But I am sending you The Health Letter 16-6, What You Need To Know About Strokes, to give you more information. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

No, I do not agree that once you start blood pressure medicine you must take it for life. A recent study reported at the last American Heart Association meeting showed this is not true. But you do need to let your doctor decide.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like to know if there is any harm to the skin when a person cleans his face with full-strength alcohol?

DEAR READER — Alcohol does have some penetrating ability but the relatively hard cell layers at the surface of the skin will minimize absorption. The small absorption may help control some bacteria lives just under the skin surface. That could be helpful.

It is an astringent and will dry the skin. If your skin gets too dry from full-strength alcohol you might dilute it half and half with water.

The drying effect can be helpful in controlling mild cases of acne. Alcohol also mixes well with oils and helps to remove excess oil from the skin. That is part of the way it helps in controlling mild cases of acne.

Court issue spared Autry

WASHINGTON (AP) — The life of condemned Texas murder James David Autry was spared — at least temporarily — by a death penalty controversy already before the Supreme Court.

In deciding to spare Autry's life minutes before the Texas death row inmate was to die by lethal injection, Justice Byron R. White cited the similarity between legal arguments in Autry's plea and a California case that the high court has scheduled for a Nov. 7 hearing.

As a result, Autry — one of about 170 Texas convicts who are under a death sentence — apparently will survive at least until the high court decides whether convicted murderers may be executed before a state court studies what punishment others receive for similar crimes.

Autry's latest legal maneuver raised that "proportionality review" issue, which the court is to decide by July in a case from California.

The justices will hear arguments next month in the case of Robert Alton Harris, who in 1978 abducted two teen-age boys from a San Diego hamburger drive-in, killed them and used their car in a bank robbery.

Jurors had no trouble convicting Harris, who prosecutors said laughed about gunning down his victims, John Mayeski and Michael Baker, while he ate the meals they never finished. He was sentenced to die in the gas chamber.

Deanie Mills...at work

Writing class starts Oct. 13

"Writing for pleasure and profit" will be offered again this fall, running Thursdays, 6:30-9:30 p.m. from Oct. 13-Nov. 17. Fee will be $25.

All aspects of commercial writing will be covered, both fiction and non-fiction, including how to prepare a manuscript for submission, studying the markets, editing your own work, the key to successful fiction, handling the "dejection of rejection" and improving overall writing.

As part of the course, each student will complete at least one manuscript in the area of his or her choice, which will be evaluated by the instructor and critiqued by fellow students (although the students will not know whose work they are reading.).

Instructor for the course is Deanie Mills, a local freelance writer and former English teacher who has written over 60 articles and short stories, with sales to such magazines as "Good Housekeeping," "Parents," "Woman's World," and "Family Life Today," and numerous regional magazines such as "The Cattlemans," "Police Product News," and "Towns West." She serves as a Texas and southwest correspondent to the "Dallas Morning News," and is at work on her second novel, "Do Not Go Gentle," a thriller.

"My goal for the course is for each student to have a manuscript ready for submission at the end of the six weeks, and for at least one person to make a sale as a result," says Mills. "I've met many talented writers right here in Scurry County, and most of them hide their material in the closet. 'Writing for pleasure and profit' is designed to bring out those closet writers, show them how to treat writing as a craft and as a business and how to make money doing what they love."

Students are to pre-register by calling the Continuing Education office at 573-8511, ext. 240.

B-6 overdose causes illness

DALLAS (AP) — A 33-year-old Dallas woman has complained that she experienced numbness in her hands and legs and had difficulty walking after she began taking vitamin B-6 in "mega-doses" to reduce water retention.

Diane Caldwell, the owner of a Dallas executive search firm, began taking vitamin B-6, she said, after she went to her family doctor in August of 1982, and he recommended she take it to help her with a water retention problem.

But he didn't specify an amount, she said Wednesday, adding, "I began taking them in mega-doses. I believed you had to use them that way — it's the in-thing for the 1980s."

When it failed to remedy her problem, she said, her doctor told her to increase the dosage.

"I didn't bother to ask him what he meant by high doses. I just started taking more," she said. She began taking between six and 12 grams of the vitamin each day.

The minimum daily requirement for the currently popular vitamin, known as pyridoxine, is about two to four milligrams. Ms. Caldwell was taking 3,000 to 4,000 times the amount needed.

By December, she had tingling in her feet. By April, she couldn't hold a fork or sign her name, she said.

"I couldn't get down the steps to my business. My feet felt like there were 50-pound weights tied to them," she said.

Doctors believe the huge doses of B-6 she consumed contributed to, and perhaps caused, her debilitating illness.

The New England Journal of Medicine recently published a study in which a group of New York doctors reported on seven patients who experienced nervous system problems after taking extremely high doses (two grams or more daily) of vitamin B-6.

The authors concluded that heavy consumption of vitamin B-6 is unsafe and recommended that its use be limited.

Water district's income increases

Water deliveries declined slightly in September from the same month a year ago, but revenues for the Colorado River Municipal Water District were up appreciably.

Total deliveries were 1.7 billion gallons for September, a decline of 108 million gallons or 5.9 percent. Municipal deliveries of 1.5 billion were off only .18 of one percent, but deliveries of 23 million gallons to oil companies were off 12 percent.

Revenues amounted to $1 million for September compared with $954,000 the previous September. Of receipts, $914,000 came from municipal customers, a gain of about $85,000 due partly to rate increases, but also to Midland catching up to Odessa's 1982 rate.

In September, Midland used 387 million gallons; down 2.1 percent; Big Spring used 297 million, up 5.4 percent; Odessa 735 million, down 6.9 percent; San Angelo, 5 million, up 53.3 percent; Snyder 129 million, up 25 percent; Stanton, 9.3 million, down 37.8 percent; Poyote and West Texas Children's Home, 8 million, down 10 percent.

Comptroller charges 3 businesses

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Based on "two or three" complaints from Texas, state Comptroller Gerald Lewis Wednesday ordered three South Florida precious metals firms to halt alleged violations of the state Securities Act.

Lewis charged that the companies sold securities without a license and violated anti-fraud provisions by failing to warn consumers that precious metals investment is risky.

All three firms are controlled by former employees of the International Gold Bullion Exchange of Fort Lauderdale, which filed for protection from its creditors in bankruptcy court earlier this year, owing thousands of investors millions of dollars, Lewis said.

"This appears to us to look like a substantially similar program," Lewis said.

"The complaints we have had are from people who haven't gotten any gold," Lewis said.

The complaints, admittedly small in number, have all come from Texas. But Lewis said he believes that once the allegations have been publicized the state may hear from people in other areas of the country. At this point, Lewis said he cannot tell how many consumers or how much money may be involved.

The three companies to which he issued cease and desist orders and their principals are:

—Precious Metals Acquisitions Inc. of Deerfield Beach, Abdul Salam and Paul Greenberg.

—American Gold Alliance Inc. of Fort Lauderdale, Sanford Greenwald, Helga Sorger and David P. Vanderpol.

—First International

Metals Inc. of Boca Raton, Larry Schwartz and Kenneth P. Kaye.

Representatives of all three firms said they didn't know anything about the comptroller's orders.

"I can only tell you this company deals only in physical metal," said Schwartz.

Third Time's No Charm For Two-Timing Husband

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Last December I married a man who told me that he had been married once before. (It was my second marriage.) We had a small wedding with only family members from both sides.

While he was courting me, several of my friends told me that he was still married, and when I asked him about it, he denied it emphatically.

Three weeks ago, I learned quite by accident that my husband had been married three times before he married me — also that his divorce from his third wife was not final until two months after he married me! When I confronted him with the evidence, he admitted it, and said he didn't realize that his divorce was not final until after he received his divorce papers in the mail. When I asked him why he didn't tell me as soon as he found out, he said he had been waiting for the right moment. (This was months ago, and he had never found the "right moment.") I have caught him in several other lies, but none was as important as this one.

Now he wants to marry me again to make it legal. Should I marry him again? I don't think I can trust him. How does one go about rebuilding trust?

HAVING MY DOUBTS

DEAR HAVING: Don't marry him until you are sure beyond a shadow of a doubt that you can trust him. It is his job to prove by his actions that he is trustworthy.

I know "One swallow does not a summer make," but two undisclosed marriages are a lot for you to swallow.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are expecting our first child in three months, and my problem is that we have both kept our own last names (which are rather lengthy) and now we don't know which surname to give our child. Both my husband and my in-laws think he should have his father's name, but that doesn't seem right. Nor does it seem fair to give our child my surname. (I have had amniocentesis, so we know the child is male.)

We've considered combining our names, but that would make for a 20-letter last name!

If you have advised others in this predicament, how did you handle it?

DUE IN THREE MONTHS

DEAR DUE: Since it is customary in this country for a legitimate child to take his father's surname, I would recommend that the mother utilize her surname for the child's first or middle name. Example:

Mother: Janet Bronstein
Father: Peter Clarkson
Child: Bronstein Clarkson or John Bronstein Clarkson.

DEAR ABBY: Have you ever heard of anything so rude as people who will attend a beautiful, expensive, formal wedding and sit-down dinner, and send no wedding gift?

I am shocked and cannot believe that people who are supposed to be good friends can be so cheap or thoughtless, whichever the case may be.

Our wedding took place last December, so they have had plenty of time to send a gift. I have not spoken to these people since the wedding and have no intention of ever doing so again. So what do I have to lose by writing them a note telling them how rude I think they are? I am just dying to get this off my chest.

MAD IN OHIO

DEAR MAD: To write an angry letter telling your former "good friends" that you think they are rude or thoughtless for failing to send you a wedding gift would show poor judgment, and worse manners. Skip it.

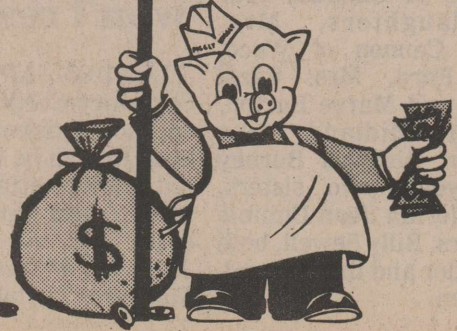

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (37 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Watts future looking dim

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leading Senate Republicans say support for Interior Secretary James Watt has eroded to the point where a strong no-confidence vote may be inevitable unless he resigns soon, but President Reagan says a "stupid remark" by the interior secretary isn't grounds for his dismissal.

New rumors that Watt might be on the verge of quitting were fueled Wednesday by reports that he had lost more ground among Senate Republicans than had been previously believed by leaders of the GOP-run chamber.

Close Watt associates claimed the embattled Cabinet officer has no intentions of quitting. And, Reagan, in a question-and-answer session with The Associated Press board of directors, defended Watt anew, saying he "has done a fine job."

The president said Watt made "a stupid remark" two weeks ago when he referred to an advisory panel on coal leasing as "a black ... a woman, two Jews and a cripple."

"I recognize that a mistake was made," the president told the AP directors. "He (Watt) recognizes that, too. What he was trying to say was not based on any malice, any prejudice of any kind If there was any bigotry or malice in the man, prejudice of any kind, he wouldn't be a part of the administration."

Watt met early Wednesday with presidential counselor Edwin Meese III for "a general discussion of the Senate situation," then left town for "a long-planned vacation," according to Douglas Baldwin, the secretary's chief spokesman. Baldwin said Watt "is not reassessing" his plans and continues to believe he is an asset to the administration.

But, according to The Washington Times, both Meese and White House chief of staff James A. Baker III met with Watt on Wednesday as the interior secretary was preparing a letter of resignation. They convinced Watt to leave town for a week to rethink his plan to quit, the Times quoted unidentified sources as saying.

Thomas J. Barrack, a horse rancher in California's Santa Ynez Valley, said that Watt and his wife were staying at his ranch for an indefinite period of time and that Watt was not granting interviews.

Senate sources said Majority Leader Howard Baker Jr., R-Tenn., realizing that he doesn't have the votes to block a Democratic-sponsored vote on a "sense of the Senate" resolution calling for Watt's ouster, had privately appealed to Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., to hold off on the measure until after Congress returns on Oct. 18 from its week-long Columbus Day recess.

Byrd indicated he would be willing to delay action on the anti-Watt resolution — if it appeared that a resignation was forthcoming.

Even Watt's most vocal Senate supporter, Assistant GOP Leader Ted Stevens of Alaska, conceded Wednesday that "an increasing number of members of the majority are of the opinion that a change will ultimately have to be made."

There's a dentist in the house

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Lena Hagemeister insists on good care for her teeth, despite the fact that she's a few months shy of her 101st birthday.

But a failing heart and continuing troubles with a previously broken hip make it extremely difficult for her to visit a dentist's office.

Instead, her dentist brings his office to her.

Dr. Marvin Farrimond packs portable versions of most dental tools into two suitcase-sized containers, puts them in the back of his Chevrolet Blazer and takes them to the Four Seasons Nursing Center, where Mrs. Hagemeister has lived for more than a year.

"It means a whole lot to me," said the great-great-grandmother, who feared 10 children of her own on a ranch in Yoakum.

Mrs. Hagemeister is one of nearly 50 patients being served either in their own homes or in nursing homes through a dental group formed by Farrimond a year ago.

The practice was the first in the state — and only the second in the nation — catering to homebound patients.

"I think certainly the dental community needed to have a service of this type available," said Dr. John D. Cochran, president of the San Antonio District Dental Society, which approved Farrimond's program in May 1982.

A similar plan is under way in Houston, and a home-care dental practice is expected to open in October in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, said Dr. Frederick W. Radke, a San Antonio-based dental consultant who instigated the program here, as well as the first one in New Orleans nearly three years ago.

Radke, a former professor of geriatric dentistry at Louisiana State University, finds experienced dentists in cities with large numbers of older people and teaches them how to take care of the older clients and use the new portable equipment, available for the past three years.

He currently is training dentists in Little Rock, Kansas City and Des Moines to treat patients either confined to their homes or living in nursing homes.

"The big thing here is the tremendous number of people who are in this category," Radke said. He estimated at least 20,000 people in San Antonio are homebound or patients in nursing homes.

Within the next decade, Radke said he expects the dental needs of older Americans to increase markedly.

Formerly, only three out of 10 patients in nursing homes had most of their teeth left, Radke said. But by the early 1990s, because of improvements in dentistry and more preventative treatment, seven out of 10 nursing home patients are expected to still have their teeth, he said.

Farrimond's program, which started with just two other dentists, has expanded to include three others.

He said he has been visiting patients in nursing homes ever since he came to San Antonio 21 years ago, but "on a very limited basis."

Fillings could be checked, as could the basic state of the teeth.

White criticizes system

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White says it's "ridiculous" that the James David Autry case — which was the subject of 12 previous court rulings — kept the judicial system in doubt until the final hour.

"It seems regrettable we cannot handle the judicial appeals without waiting until the last 20 minutes before the execution was to be carried out," White said Wednesday, several hours after U.S. Supreme Court Justice Byron White stated Autry's execution.

"I was sorry to see these matters have to be resolved at the last moment," said White. "I think that certainly judicial wisdom has to be applied in these cases. But it seems these matters could be brought to the attention of these courts in a more orderly fashion."

Autry was to die early Wednesday for the 1980 murder of a Port Arthur woman. Justice White, citing a pending decision in a California death case, decided Autry should not be killed until the other case is resolved.

Autry was in the death chamber strapped to a gurney when the stay was issued.

Gov. White said he would not have stopped the execution. State law gives him the right to issue a 30-day stay, but the governor said he had seen "no information" that would have justified a delay.

He said judicial appeals "can be done more efficiently and effectively if we would be able to set some better timetable."

John Duncan, director of the Texas Civil Liberties Union, said the stay blocks all Texas executions until at least January, when the U.S. Supreme Court probably will rule on the California case.

Duncan said the argument that brought Autry off his death bed was ignored in the final hours before Charlie Brooks Jr. was executed on Dec. 7.

"Both of the issues we raised in the Brooks case now have been accepted for review in subsequent cases," said Duncan, "and Charlie Brooks is dead."

"Charlie Brooks is going to haunt the judicial system for many years," he predicted.

Gov. White aimed his criticism at the courts' handling of the Autry case.

"It seems ridiculous that all the lawyers that have been brought to bear on this case and all the judges couldn't have done a better job," he said.

White wants probe finished

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White says he wants allegations of prison brutality "cleared up as quickly as possible," and has turned the matter over to the chairman of the Texas Board of Corrections.

White said Board Chairman Bob Gunn was "dedicated to take all necessary steps to see that there's no recurrence of those problems. That's what the inquiry will be, and I think where there is any substance to it, the prison officials will see that effective action is taken."

Gunn had no comment, but White said "I suspect it'll be outside personnel" who will conduct the investigation under Gunn's supervision. He said Gunn "will be taking a very aggressive stand in seeing that the review of those allegations will be cleared up as quickly as possible."

A federal court-

White urged a system to "let the lawyers for these people realize there are some time tables and don't wait until the last day."

"That places too much pressure on the prison officials and too much pressure on the individuals who may have been directly involved in the case — the victims," he said. "It's obviously an extreme pressure placed upon the defendant in the case."

Justice White's stay was based on a "proportionality" argument raised by the American Civil Liberties Union. The organization claimed the law requires equal punishment for similar crimes. The U.S. Supreme Court will appointed prison monitor issued a confidential report Sept. 13 citing instances of widespread brutality of convicts. The report was leaked to the press, after which White promised an "exhaustive inquiry" into the allegations.

The governor made his comments Wednesday after meeting privately for about an hour and a half with prison officials, key legislators, Attorney General Jim Mattox and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

"Primarily I called this meeting to review the matters that have been alleged in the prisoner abuse charges," White said.

Other matters discussed included a replacement for Texas Department of Corrections Director W. J. Estelle, who has announced he is stepping down from the job after 10 years but has not yet set a date of departure.

Estelle did not attend Wednesday's meeting, and White had no comment on any talk of a replacement.

Estelle's tenure as director of the prison system was marked by a surge in the prison population and a lengthy federal lawsuit in which inmates alleged conditions were so harsh as to violate their constitutional rights.

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler tried the prison lawsuit in Houston and agreed with much of the prisoners' complaints. Sweeping reforms were ordered in 1982, and monitors were appointed to oversee that they were carried out.

A reporter asked White if he were relieved that Estelle was leaving.

"He's already made that decision," White said. "Are you relieved?" the reporter repeated.

"I have no comment to make about that. I think he's served the state very well," White said.

White said he agreed with Gov. George Nigh of Oklahoma that the main purpose of the prison system was punishment, with rehabilitation coming second.

"But the punishment is the loss of freedom. No additional punishment is included in that loss of freedom," White said.

certificate in social studies. Carol Bullard, local artist, illustrated the book, and Denise Bode, administrative assistant to the Scurry County Museum, did the graphics. "We wanted this activities book to get kids interested in learning about such an important part of their West Texas heritage," said Finch. "We hope to get them out for the exhibits as well."

Museum workers note the number of books is limited and interested youth are urged to pick up their copy soon.

hear arguments next month in a California case concerning proportionality.

"Why death in this convenience store robbery in which a person was killed, as opposed to others?" Duncan asked about the Autry case.

Gov. White said the question was a "very important" one, "but that's an issue that's been raised before. It should have been disposed of earlier, and I thought it had been."

Cotton

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures No. 2 were lower at midday dealings today. The average prices for strict low middling 1 & 1-16 inch spot cotton advanced 115 points to 71.18 cents a pound Wednesday for the eight markets, according to the New York Cotton Exchange.

Midday prices were 25 cents to $1.35 a bale lower than the previous close, Oct. 7, 76.05, Dec. 77.82, Mar. 79.30, May 80.00, Jul. 80.35, Oct. 81.75, Dec. 74.50, and Mar. 77.00.

Wreck noted

A single minor traffic accident was reported in Snyder Wednesday. According to reports, Julie Yvonne Crow of 4503 College Ave. Apt. 16, called police at 7:50 p.m. and reported a hit and run accident. She told police that her 1980 Plymouth had been struck by an unidentified vehicle while parked at her residence. Damage was said minor.

Hope happy at dedication

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Comedian Bob Hope, in Oklahoma City for dedication of an eye-treatment center in his honor, said nice things have happened to him during his life "but today is at the top of the list."

Obituaries

Sizemore

Services for Paul Sizemore, 76, of 2707 36th Street will be at 2 p.m. Friday at the First United Methodist Church with the Rev. Bob Ford and the Rev. Miller Robinson officiating.

Burial will be in Hillside Memorial Gardens under direction of Bell-Seale Funeral Home. Masonic graveside services will be conducted.

He died at 4:14 p.m. Tuesday at Malone-Hogan Hospital in Big Spring after a lengthy illness.

Born in Tishomingo, Okla., he married Frances Henderson June 19, 1934 at Ft. Stockton. He attended Oklahoma A&M University. He graduated from the University of Houston with a degree in mechanical engineering. He was an oil field contractor and former owner of Arrow Construction Co. in Snyder.

Active in civic affairs, he was a member of the Snyder Lions Club and past president of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce, past president of the Gold Coats, a member of the Suez Masonic Lodge and was a Shriner. He built the bicentennial fountain at Scurry County Coliseum.

Survivors include his wife, and a brother, Riley of Rungling, Okla.

The family suggests memorials to the American Cancer Society or the West Texas Boys Ranch at San Angelo.

L. H. Burney

Burney

MIDLAND — A Midland police sergeant was found dead in his still-running car near Colorado City Tuesday, the victim of a heart attack.

According to the Department of Public Safety, Linon Burney, 48, of Midland was in his pick-up truck when it left U. S. Highway 350 about 30 miles north of Big Spring at 5:30 p.m. in Mitchell County.

The vehicle travelled about a quarter mile into a pasture before stopping, according to DPS reports, which noted the truck's motor was still running when law enforcement officials arrived at the scene.

Mitchell County Justice of the Peace ordered an autopsy and ruled the death due to a heart attack after receiving the results late Wednesday.

Services for Mr. Burney will be at 11 a.m. Friday at Kelview Baptist Church. He was born Dec. 5, 1934 in Scurry County. He was reared in Snyder, moving to Midland 27 years ago. At the time of his death he was a member of the Midland Police Department and had been for the past 19 years.

He is survived by his wife, Estelle; three stepsons, Jeffery Ford, Michael Ford and Michael Barton, all of Midland; a daughter, Mrs. Mary Phillips of Canada; four step-daughters, Mrs. Cathy Cannon of Waco, Julie Ford, Mrs. Carol Fuller and Maree Barton, all of Midland; one brother, Birdwell Burney of Snyder; two sisters, Mrs. Norma Jean Cumbe and Mrs. Billy Sewell, both of Snyder and three grandchildren.

"He was an exceptional patrol sergeant, a leader who was highly regarded by everyone," Midland Chief of Police Wayne Gideon said of Burney's unexpected death.

"His file is full of commendatory letters from the public," said Gideon. "He was an excellent leader and a positive influence on the younger officers. His superiors consistently rated him outstanding in his job performance."

Mr. Burney began his employment with the City of Midland as a fireman in 1958. He joined the police force in November of 1964 and was named Officer of the Year by the Midland Optimist club in 1938.

He was originally from Snyder and was a 1953 graduate of Ira High School, where he starred in baseball, basketball and football.

"He was a quiet, very private type person," said Gideon. "He will be missed."

Neie

Services for Norbert A. Neie, 81, of 3200 40th Street will be at 4 p.m. Friday at Bell-Seale Chapel with the Rev. Bob Ford officiating. Burial will follow in Snyder Cemetery under direction of Bell-Seale.

He died at approximately 1 p.m. Wednesday at Snyder Nursing Center. He was born Jan. 2, 1902 in Hamilton County, Tex. He had lived in Snyder for the past 12 years. He was retired from U. S. Gypsum Plant in Sweetwater after 27 years employment.

He was married to Beulah Stanford Nov. 3, 1923 in Hamilton, Tex.

He is survived by his wife; one daughter, Betty Sneed of Snyder; one son, E. J. Neie of Amarillo; five grandchildren; eight great-grandchildren; two sisters, Lillian Robinson of Dallas and Laura Malone of Houston; two brothers, Walter Neie of Ft. Worth and Melvin (Dick) of Longview.

Scholarship teacher fund open at SNB

Memorial gifts in honor of Alice M. Birdwell, longtime Snyder teacher, are being accepted at Snyder National Bank.

The funds will go toward a scholarship named in her honor. This will then be awarded to a Snyder school student planning to enter the teaching profession.

Family members note that the longtime Snyder teacher was aware that the scholarship would be implemented and that it was her wish to honor capable Snyder youth.

Persons wishing to make contributions are asked to contact Janelle Orr at SNB.

Window shot

Snyder police are investigating a single criminal mischief complaint filed Wednesday evening.

Phillip Fisher of 2101 41st St. called local authorities at 7:25 p.m. to report a window had been broken out of his residence sometime during the day. The window had apparently been shot out with a pellet gun.

City police also made two misdemeanor arrests, one for DWI and one for public intoxication, on an otherwise quiet Wednesday.

Secretary won't resign

LONDON (AP) — Trade Secretary Cecil Parkinson will not be asked to resign even though he has admitted to a love affair with his former secretary, who is expecting his child in January, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher says.

Tutor Typer®

While children play at the keyboard, they get the key to learning. It's a teaching typewriter. Press a key and a letter of the alphabet, or a number between 1 and 10 appears, with a picture and a word to illustrate each one. Keys and carriage really move, and bell rings. Tiny typers from 3 to 8 have fun while they learn numbers and the alphabet.

Reducing a power booster to a compact size without compromising power was no small feat. But the GE-50, designed primarily for compact and import cars is a small wonder. It boosts the entire frequency range with extraordinary distortion-free discipline. LED power level indicator bars dramatically monitor relative power output. Five slide controls with center detent adjust frequencies. A fader control balances front to rear speaker output.
