President endorses Panama agreement

By RICHARDE MEYER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter formally endorsed the new Panama Canal agreement Friday and stepped up his campaign to sell it to Congress and the nation by calling it important to American interests and vital for "a new day in hemispheric relations."

The President pledged to join Panama in studies to determine whether an entirely new canal is needed at sea level across Central America and to cooperate with the Panamanian government on possible improvements to the existing canal.

"Under the canal treaty that will now be prepared," Carter declared, "we will have operating control and the right to protect and defend the Panama Canal with our military forces until the end of this century.

"Under a separate neutrality treaty, we will have the right to assure the maintenance of the permanent neutrality of the canal as we may determine necessary," the President said. "Our warships are guaranteed the permanent right to expeditious passage without regard to propulsion or cargo."

Carter gave his endorsement in a prepared statement that he read with his two top Panama Canal treaty negotiators, Ambassadors Ellsworth Bunker and Sol Linowitz, at his side.

The President said the Joint Chiefs of Staff and other principal advisers have been involved in every stage of the Bunker-Linowitz negotiations with Panama that resulted in the agreement crowning 13 years of effort to reach a new pact.

"All of us believe that these agreements are good ones," Carter said, "and that the implementation of the treaties incorporating these agreements are important to our long term national interests. The treaties will be foundation for a new cooperative era in our relations with all of Latin America."

"We will work with Panama to assess the need for a sea level canal and will also cooperate on possible improvements to the existing canal," Carter said. "I believe these treaties will help to usher in a new day in hemispheric relations."

The agreement yields U.S. control of the waterway to the Panamanians by the year 2000 and guarantees access to the canal by U.S. merchant vessels and warships.

It grants Panama full control of the Canal Zone within three years after the treaty is ratified and provides for the phasing out of the 14 U.S. military bases there.

The agreement also provides a big increase in U.S. payments for use of the canal and gives Panama hundreds of millions of dollars in aid for the life of the pact.

"I'm very pleased with it," Carter has told his advisers.

Even before he completed his review, the President began a sales blitz to promote the agreement, which must be ratified by two-thirds vote in the Senate.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said Carter discussed it with former President Gerald R. Ford and former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

"It's safe to assume the President would like to have the support of others who have been involved in this process," said Powell, noting that Ford and Kissinger were among previous leaders who had sought a new canal agreement.

Powell said one of Carter's two top negotiators — and perhaps both — had briefed former California Gov. Ronald Reagan on the new pact.

During his primary election battle with Ford last year, Reagan made the Panama Canal a major issue.

Reagan approves biggers payments to Panama for use of the waterway but opposes yielding control.

But Reagan stopped short of saying the Senate should reject the agreement.

U.S., Britain give proposals on Rhodesia

By BARRY SCHWEID

LONDON (AP) — The United States and Britain presented their joint proposals to bring "one-man, one-vote" rule to Rhodesia Friday, but they failed to gain the influential endorsement of neighboring South Africa.

U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and British Foreign Secretary David Owen conferred and then met with South African Foreign Minister R.F. "Pik" Botha in 6½ hours of discussions on black majority rule.

There are some 273,000 whites and 6.2 million blacks in Rhodesia, the colony which broke away from Britain in 1965. The United States and Britain depend heavily on South Africa to push Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith toward early black rule by exerting its political and economic influence.

At a news conference after Friday's meeting, Owen said he thought there was a reasonable chance of persuading all parties to accept the Anglo-American approach for black majority rule in the breakaway British colony.

"What we have to do is to put forward proposals that are seen to be fair and honorable and offering a way forward to a negotiated settlement," said Owen, who conceded he was "not being exactly optimistic" about the chances of the plan being accepted.

Vance said the dispute involved "very, very complex issues" that were bound to take time.

Botha did not attend the session with reporters and Owen and Vance avoided characterizing South Africa's attitude in detail. But they both made it clear that Botha withheld any endorsement.

Owen acknowledged all elements of the still-undisclosed set of proposals will not satisfy everyone. He seemed to have Smith's white minority government most in mind.

Saturday morning Vance will call on Tanzanian President Julius

Psychiatric examination of 'Sam' suspect begins

By BOB MONROE

NEW YORK (AP) — Psychiatrists armed with notebook, pencil and years of training began Friday to study whether David Berkowitz, accused in the Son of Sam slayings, is competent to stand trial.

Berkowitz, 24, a postal clerk, will be questioned and observed for up to 30 days — longer if the judge deems necessary — to determine whether he understands the charges against him and can participate in his own defense.

If Berkowitz is indicted in the case, and if he is found mentally competent, he will stand trial. Whether he was sane at the time of the killings with which he is charged is a separate issue that could be raised in his defense at the trial.

Meanwhile, after two days of sensational disclosures about the conclusion of the hunt for the 44-caliber killer, a judge issued a gag order barring police from discussing the case with the news media.

And with the fear of another slaying removed, there were celebrations at discotheques in Queens and the Bronx as young women ended their self-imposed boycott and lined up to get in the clubs.

Berkowitz's home for now is a cement-walled cell with two barred windows, a single bed, a sink and a toilet in the Kings County Hospital prison ward. A wire mesh window in the door allows the 24-hour-a-day guard to keep him under constant observation.

For about two hours each day he will leave the cage under guard and go to a psychiatrist's office where "there will be conversation between doctor and patient with notes taken of his answers and of his thinking and behavior," said Dr. Daniel Schwartz, head of the forensic psychiatry unit.

He declined to say when the sessions would start but pointed out that "the examination really began the moment he entered" the hospital.

Psychological profiles drawn for detectives hunting the slayer who killed six persons and wounded seven others had predicted he would turn out to be an impotent male with low self esteem and a raging need to establish masculinity.

City gets sprinkle

In southeast Midland it rained "hardly enough to settle the dust," one resident said, and in parts of northeast Midland, it didn't rain a drop.

But the weatherman said the trace of rain which fell Friday in the Midland area is all the city can expect, at least for the next few days. "We missed our chance," the weatherman said.

Partly cloudy weather is expected through Sunday, the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal said.

The high today and Sunday should be in the upper 90s and the low tonight near 70. Winds are expected to be from the south at 5 to 10 mph.

Some rain was reported Friday night in Stanton and Odessa, and cloudy skies were reported in Andrews, Lamesa, Crane and Big Lake.

Whether these educated guesses will prove true of Berkowitz will only be determined as the examination proceeds.

The stark walls of the hospital ward contrasted sharply with the $265-a-month studio apartment in Yonkers where Berkowitz lived. There graffiti were scrawled next to a fist-high hole in the sheetrock wall.

One scribbled message said, "Hi. My name is Mr. Williams and I live in this hole. I have several children who I'm turning into killers. Wait til they grow up."

Alaska oil top price gets OK

By JAMES H. PHILLIPS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government decided Friday to allow oil companies to charge the highest possible price for oil from Alaska's North Slope, the same as currently paid for imported oil.

The action ends hopes that Alaska's vast oil reserves might someday result in a supply of low-cost oil for the United States.

At the same time, the Federal Energy Administration announced it would permit a slight increase in the price of oil produced in the lower 48 states. The FEA said this would mean an increase in gasoline prices at the pump of two-tenths of one cent per gallon over the next three months.

And in a third major oil-pricing decision, the FEA announced it would permit oil producers to receive the world market price for oil they produce through high-cost, high-risk methods that would otherwise be uneconomical.

The world-market price of imported oil today is about $14.60 per barrel. Under the FEA action, oil flowing through the recently completed Alaska oil pipeline would receive this price.

The FEA indicated this would give oil companies an opportunity to recoup some of the enormous costs of shipping Alaskan oil through the pipeline.

Domestic oil prices are now $10.97 per barrel for newly-produced oil and $5.17 per barrel for crude from wells that were producing prior to 1972. Under the actions announced Friday, the FEA intends to allow these domestic prices to rise to 1.71 barrel and $5.24 per barrel, respectively, by November 1977.

Slovik appeal rejected

By HAROLD J. LOGAN

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Army Secretary Clifford L. Alexander Friday rejected an appeal by the widow of Pvt. Eddie Slovik, the only American soldier executed for desertion since the Civil War, for a reversal of Slovik's conviction and payment of his GI insurance.

The Pentagon said Alexander affirmed a finding by the Army's Board for the Correction of Military Records that there is no reason to overturn Slovik's World War II conviction, and thus barred payment to his widow, Antoinette, of about $70,000 in life insurance.

Mrs. Slovik was informed of the decision about an hour before it was announced publicly. Her voice breaking over the telephone from a Washington hotel room, she called the decision "terrible, just terrible," and said, "a gross injustice has been done."

Her girls span eras, as did love of 'Lee'

Alma Roberson's attitude toward life shouldn't pose a burden on any soul around her.

Her spirits, like those of many older folks, are pretty well up.

She doesn't begrudge, or so she says, her loneliness, her pronounced limp or her age, 72.

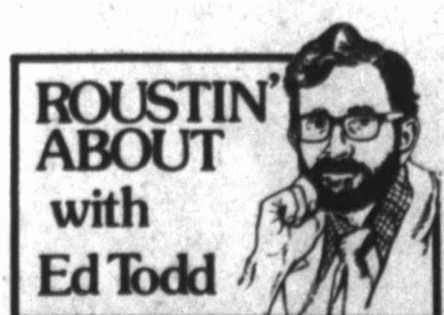

"Sympathy's something I don't want," she said in subdued lighting in the living room of her modest frame house here.

"I don't want nobody feeling sorry for me," she said. "I want them to love me . . . but not to feel sorry for me."

Mrs. Roberson is a great-great-grandmother. And, if her health holds out, she is planning on aging enough to add another "great" to her granny status.

The way things have been going, that may be in another 15 years. Her great-great-granddaughter, Dawnna Smith, is 10 months old.

Dawnna's mother, Kayla Smith, 17, was married at age 15. Her mother, Sharon Hale, 34, was hitched up at 16. And her mother, Louise Friday, now 52, was wedded at age 14.

The "granny," Mrs. Roberson, was married at age 18.

And her spirits really would be high were that man she married in 1923 still around.

She called him "Pa." He called her "Ma."

"Pa," L. V. "Lee" Roberson, a retired boot and shoe repairman, died in 1974. He was 72.

She still misses him and mourns his demise. But she doesn't curse the heavens because of his passing. Not at all.

"I ain't got no complaints," said the widow, who is sort of "wedded" to the

Buyer of 'Sam's' gun 'sick about situation'

By ROB WOOD

HOUSTON (AP) — A young Houston construction worker who purchased the gun used by a man who calls himself the Son of Sam during a year-long reign of terror in New York City said Friday, "I'm very sick about this situation."

On the advice of his attorney, Billy Dan Parker, 24, then refused to make any further statement.

Attorney Ralph Abercia said he had advised his client to say nothing about the purchase of the gun or his past friendship with David Berkowitz, now held in connection with the slaying of six persons and the wounding of seven others.

New York police recovered the .44 caliber bulldog revolver Wednesday night when they arrested Berkowitz in Yonkers.

Newsmen repeatedly asked Parker to give some hint as to Berkowitz' past attitudes, but he sat silently, flanked by attorneys.

Abercia read a statement in behalf of Parker, saying, "I met David Berkowitz while in the U.S. Army while in Louisiana and Korea. I have not seen him since June 1976. I am giving my full cooperation to the authorities in this case. On the advice of my attorneys I have no further statement to make."

Parker spent one hour and twenty minutes with New York City Asst. Dist. Atty. Paul Callen, and several agents of the U.S. Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Bureau.

DEATHS

Mrs. Ila Morris dies in Stanton

STANTON — Mrs. Ila Myrtle Morris, 83, a Stanton resident since 1914, died Friday morning in a Stanton nursing home after a lengthy illness.

Graveside services will be at 10 a.m. Monday in Mount Olive Cemetery in Big Spring directed by Glibreath Funeral Home.

Mrs. Morris was born June 26, 1894, in Limestone County and moved to Stanton in 1914 from Mitchell county.

She was the late Walter R. Morris, 23, 1923, in Stanton.

She was survived by one son, E. L. Morris; one daughter, Mrs. Mary Morris; a son of Rockport; a son of San Diego, Mr. L. N. Chesser; and a son, H. O. Lee of Rockport.

Four arrested in Odessa raid

ODESSA — Department of Public Safety and Ector County narcotics agents Friday arrested four persons, detained one juvenile and later charged four persons with possession of heroin.

Justice of the Peace Virgil Lumpsee said a search warrant issued about 5:30 p.m. Friday led to the arrests in a residence and body shop in the 6800 block of West 16th Street.

Arrested were Jose, Alfredo, Nieve and Maria Marcus, along with one juvenile, Lumpsee said. Bond on the four adults was set at $25,000 each. The juvenile's case will be handled separately.

Lumpsee said approximately 3/4 ounce of a substance believed to be heroin was recovered.

Airplane hijacker captured

BRINDISI, Italy (AP) — A 19-year-old Egyptian student hijacked a Cairo-bound Airbus jet and forced it to land here, but the pilot pushed him out of the cabin into the arms of police as the aircraft was being refueled early Saturday.

"It's all over," said a spokesman for the Interior Ministry. He identified the hijacker as Tarek el Khater, a student from Cairo, and said police were questioning him to determine his motive.

Passengers said the hijacker walked to the pilot's cabin and took over the wide-bodied Air France Airbus A300 about 10 minutes after it left a transit stop in Nice with 230 passengers and 12 crew aboard on a scheduled Paris-Cairo run.

The hijacker claimed to have several accomplices and enough dynamite to blow up the plane, but authorities said a box he carried was found to contain no explosives.

Negotiations were begun by radio after the plane set down here and the hijacker allowed about 20 persons — mostly women, children and elderly persons — to go free in exchange for fuel.

Control tower sources, in Rome said the wide-bodied jet, carrying 230 passengers and 12 crew, was denied landing clearance in Benghazi, Libya, and Athens, Greece. They said it was allowed to land in Brindisi in the heel of Italy because it had only minutes of fuel left in its tanks.

Fire razes land at Garden City

GARDEN CITY — Fire units from Garden City and Big Lake and area ranchers worked more than four hours Friday night to put out a fire which burned grass on at least two sections of land.

Glasscock County Sheriff Royce Pruitt said the fire started about 5:20 p.m. Although most of the fire was out by about 9:30 p.m., units were still on the scene at 10:15 p.m., Pruitt said.

"It spread awfully fast and it was unusually large," Pruitt said. He said he believes the fire was started by lightning.

church. She's religious and unquestioningly, or so it seems, goes along with fate, which she views as God's will.

"His will will be done, and I don't want to question it," she said. "I won't question it, even though it hurt to give him ('Pa') up."

Her husband suffered a heart attack in the Wichita Falls hospital room, where she was recovering from hip surgery that left her crippled but walking.

That was on the night of Feb. 7, 1974, and they were making some plans to travel across the country once she was able to get around.

Roberson was going to take her home, back to Vernon, in just a few days.

"He was just like a little boy with a new toy," she said. "He was feeling so well. He was going to take me home."

Then, that heart attack struck. He died three days later.

"If it was possible, we were closer on the day he died than on the day we married," Mrs. Roberson said.

"It was love, if you want to call it that," she said. "It grew stronger all the time — 50 years of it."

Two years after his death and after much "praying and thinking," Mrs. Roberson returned to Midland. She and her husband lived here from 1930 to 1960. (In 1960, they moved to Vernon, where the market was keen on the boot and shoe repair business. "That was the best move we ever made in our lives," she said. Midland was getting highly competitive in that business, she said.)

Besides, Roberson was buried in Midland. And this was their "church home."

"I'm an old, foot-washing Primitive Baptist," Mrs. Roberson said.

When "Ma" and "Pa" Roberson first came to Midland in 1930, times were rough.

"You know, that was during the Depression, and you did anything you could get to" in the way of work.

They came to Midland by way of Oklahoma and Clay County, Tex., where they lived for a spell.

"We just did anything — picked cotton, gathered pecans —, did anything we could to make a living," Mrs. Roberson said of their stay around Byers and Henrietta in Clay County.

In the late 1940s in Midland, Roberson bought into the footwear repair business. (In fact, today "Pa" and "Ma" Roberson's only son, Vaughn, is in that line of work in Midland.)

"He always said 'don't call a shoe repairman a cobbler,'" Mrs. Roberson said of her man. "They used to call them that, but now it insults them."

She worked in the shop.

"I ran the patch machine and waited on customers at the front," she said. "You name it, I done it — dyed shoes, shined shoes, dyed belts."

That's how they lived and worked — side by side, you might say. ("If he wasn't doing something, he wasn't happy," she said.)

"We were together 24 hours a day. We shared the work, and we shared the housekeeping," Mrs. Roberson said.

Now that he's gone, "It's awfully lonely. I don't think you ever get used to it," she said.

Still, she's in good spirits.

"Life's got to go on," she said, "until the good Lord calls me."

Billy Carter to quit the peanut business

ATLANTA (AP) — Billy Carter, the President's 40-year-old brother, said Friday he has resigned effective Sept. 1 as managing partner of the Carter peanut business in Plains, Ga., according to a published report.

The Atlanta Journal-Constitution said in its Saturday editions that Carter had notified Charles Kirbo, the Atlanta lawyer who is trustee for the President's portion of the business "some time in June" of his plans.

Carter said outside business interests, increased demands on his time since his brother's election and a desire to spend more time with his family prompted the decision, the paper said.

The newspaper also said Carter denied published reports that the President's 27-year-old son Chip would return to Plains to assume a managerial role in the peanut business.

It was reported Thursday that Chip resigned his $8,000-a-year post with the Democratic National Committee in Washington.

Carter could not be reached for further comment.

Carter still will retain his 15 per cent interest in the company, the newspaper said.

County tax rate will be decided

Midland County commissioners will meet at 1:30 p.m. Monday in the courthouse to set the county's 1977 tax rate.

That rate is expected to stay at the same level of 95 cents per $100 of assessed value with a 32 per cent of market value assessment.

The commissioners also are scheduled to discuss the financial status of the Midland County Law Library.

Three hopefuls vie in Andrews

ANDREWS — Three candidates are in the running today in an election to fill the Andrews city council post that opened up after the resignation of councilman Raymond Sharbutt.

Sharbutt moved to Odessa. He works for a lumber company.

Running for the post are Jim Bantz, a grocer, and Darrel Jackson and Les Emfinger, who both farm.

President seeing less of Lance

By JAMES GERSTENZANG

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has kept up his regular Monday meetings with Budget Director Bert Lance since the government began probing Lance's personal finances, but frequent lunches and conversations between them have been dropped, the White House said Friday.

In response to questions, White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said in a statement that Carter last spoke with Lance Aug. 1, when the director of the Office of Management and Budget attended the weekly Cabinet meeting and then held a regularly scheduled meeting with the President.

The press secretary said Friday that the two men would talk about budget-related matters when necessary.

John Heimann, comptroller of the currency, is investigating loans of $2.6 million made to Lance by Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. of New York and $3.4 million made to Lance by the First National Bank of Chicago, as well as any possible connections they may have had to accounts the National Bank of Georgia established with the two banks.

Before joining the administration, Lance was president of the Georgia bank.

The White House has steadfastly refused to give Lance any public expression of support, maintaining that any comments about the case could be seen as an attempt to interfere in the comptroller's investigation.

Lance and Carter flew to their homes in Georgia Friday, Aug. 5.

Both were out of Washington on Aug. 8, the Monday following their last meeting. Lance is not expected back in Washington until next Monday, when he is scheduled to meet with Carter to discuss government reorganization, one of his projects.

Until the investigation began, Lance frequently walked over to the White House from his quarters in the nearby Old Executive Office Building across a private street from the White House to meet with Carter. In addition, they were frequent lunch partners.

Although their frequent meetings have tapered off and their contacts have become limited to regularly scheduled Monday meetings and the weekly Cabinet meeting, Powell said there has been no attempt to isolate Lance.

Lance served in Carter's administration when Carter was governor of Georgia and has been one of his closest advisers and friends for many years.

Measles immunization program announced

By JACK STILLMAN

ATLANTA (AP) — A program to immunize at least 90 per cent of the nation's school children this fall for measles and other childhood diseases was announced Friday by the national Center for Disease Control.

The program will include a special effort to stem outbreaks of measles, which have increased markedly in some states this year.

The CDC said state public health officials will be urged to enforce school immunization laws more actively than ever before. Many states have laws requiring children to be immunized against measles in order to attend public schools, but the laws often go unenforced.

"Hopefully, we're going to try to get the older children (vaccinated) as well as those entering school for the first time," Dr. Neal Halsey, a medical epidemiologist in the CDC's division of immunization, said in an interview.

"If we can get the older children, I feel that we can stem the outbreak of measles," he said. "We have usually managed to vaccinate only about two-thirds or three-fourths of the kids in the past."

As of Aug. 6, the CDC's figures showed 52,290 cases of measles nationwide this year, compared with 33,701 at the same point in 1976.

Halsey said the CDC expects at least 60,000 cases by the end of the year. The record is 75,000 cases in 1971; the low was 22,000 in 1974.

The mortality rate from measles is about one in 1,000, but the disease can cause permanent brain damage.

States reporting major increases in measles to the CDC include: California, 9,159 this year compared with 1,842 at the same time last year; Virginia, 2,628 and 730; Kansas, 1,427 and 661; Iowa, 4,284 and 41; Minnesota, 2,617 and 389 and Missouri 945 and 17.

California law requires immunization, but officials say enforcement in some areas has been lax.

Immigration said still possible

By ISAAC A. LEVI

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — Ambassador to Mexico Patrick Lucey says Mexicans and other Latin Americans who want to go live in the United States still have a good chance of immigrating despite the reduction of quotas by the administration of former President Gerald Ford.

Lucey said a large portion of the Canadian quota is still unused and there will still be an additional 145,000 openings as a result of an unused Cuban refugee quota that a federal judge in Chicago recently ruled should be applied to the western hemisphere.

On top of that, the former Wisconsin governor told a news conference Thursday, the quota figures apply to adult immigrants and do not include their immediate families, such as a wife and children, who could enter the United States subsequently.

The United States last year sharply restricted legal immigration quotas for the western hemisphere. The issue has since been a sore point in Mexico. Mexicans currently constitute the bulk of immigrants. However, most of them are illegal.

The reduction limited the number of immigrants from any individual country to 20,000.

Court orders hearing

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — In a 2-1 split, the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has ordered a hearing at Dallas on the status of Mrs. Minda Satterwhite's clash with the City of Greenville, Tex.

Friday's decision marked the second time before the 5th for the class action on behalf of other female employees of the city.

In this round, the city asked the 5th for a rehearing, contending Mrs. Satterwhite cannot carry on the case if she is no longer party to the controversy.

The 5th sent the case back to U.S. District Court Judge William J. Taylor Jr. at Dallas for further development of the legal issues involved.

In dissent, Judge Thomas Gibbs Gee of Austin, Tex., said Mrs. Satterwhite is no longer part of the dispute and allowing it to continue as a class action "seems to me a concession to the notion that a class suit belongs to no one so much as to the plaintiff's lawyer."

WHICH DIAMOND RING IS YOURS?

You're right — all 3 rings look exactly alike.

You might not even be able to tell the rings apart in person — without a Gemprint. Your diamond has its own individual pattern of light reflections unique only to your stone. This diamond "fingerprint" can be recorded on a photograph by an amazing laser-optic instrument, the Gemprint.

Your ARDAN diamond consultant can make a Gemprint of your diamond, in or out of a setting, and it takes only seconds!

Think of the comfort of positive identification — one Gemprint is made for your file, another is registered in the computerized Central Registry in Chicago. If your stone is ever lost or stolen, many law enforcement agencies, including the FBI, are using Gemprint as a method of identifying recovered gems and returning them to their owners.

Remember, no two diamonds are alike; no two Gemprints are alike.

Officials say Con Ed had blackout warning

By MARTIN MERZER

NEW YORK (AP) — Thirty-two minutes before a systemwide failure caused a day-long blackout in New York City, Consolidated Edison officials ignored either an order or a strong suggestion from the state power pool to cut off electricity to a large part of the city, state officials said Friday.

If the communication to "shed load" had been promptly obeyed, parts of the city and its suburbs would have been without power for a few hours, but the total blackout of July 13 and 14 could have been avoided, the officials said.

"There is language (on a tape recording) where the New York Power Pool says: 'You better get rid of some load,'" said Lester Stuzin, director of the power division of the New York State Public Service Commission.

"Con Ed says, 'You're right, you're right,'" said Stuzin.

The conversation will be included in a PSC report due at the end of next week, he said.

The power pool, set up by the seven major electric utilities in New York to monitor demands and coordinate service, is based in Albany.

The conversation, according to Stuzin and other high-ranking PSC officials, occurred at about 9:02 p.m. EDT July 13, after lightning severed several major transmission lines carrying power to New York City.

The Energy Daily, a Washington-based newsletter, quoted unidentified sources at the Federal Power Commission as saying that Con Ed could have shed customers in the boroughs of Staten Island, Brooklyn, Queens and in suburban Westchester County.

But only voltage reductions and minor load-shedding in Westchester were made by Con Ed as the situation worsened. By 9:34 p.m., the whole city was without power. It wasn't until early the next morning that power was restored to any section of the city, and the last area to be restored was without power for 25 hours.

Surgeon says apartheid has made country 'scum'

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — South African heart surgeon Christian Barnard, frequently a defender of South Africa abroad, said Friday that his country has become the "scum" of the world through its implementation of racial segregation policies.

The pioneer of heart transplants said South Africa made a mistake in 1948 — when the ruling National party first came to power — in attempting to "unscramble the egg" and effect political and social separation of the races.

"This was a critical period in the history of the human race," said Barnard. "It was just after World War II and the stench of the Nazi concentration camps was still fresh in our nostrils."

"Yet we come along and talk about the purity of the white South African. It is no wonder that we are called Nazis, that we are called Fascists, because this is the impression that we give the world."

Barnard was addressing a white lobby group called the South African Freedom Foundation.

Listing other South African "mistakes," Barnard said the government attempted to implement racial separation in an "arrogant and ignorant way."

"We now broadcast our approach to doom by putting it in the law books," he added. "We have unleashed an anti-white South African campaign by the mass media that has no parallel. All whites have become the oppressors."

and all blacks the oppressed...

"South Africa has become the scum of the world community. Nobody wants to have anything to do with us. We rarely get invited to functions by other countries and if we do we are avoided like the plague by other members of the diplomatic corps," he said.

Atlanta ambassador courts New York industry

EDITOR'S NOTE — The good townspeople of New York City and regions already were affluous when the young stranger came to the city with the accented New York City's corporate wealth and riding in. Many of their biggest part-time emissaries or annual junkets by state officials. But none has attracted the attention, or look kindly on this suspicion, as has a young fellow from Atlanta who set up permanent camp smack in midtown Manhattan. He personifies the growing struggle between the emerging sunbelt and the waning snowbelt.

By TERRY KIRK-PATRICK
NEW YORK (AP) — yet, and he may never.

Dressed-up men to look British

NEW YORK (AP) — Men's fall and winter fashions will show a distinct British look in tailored clothing, while casualwear will be in an "antifreeze" mood: practical, functional and ruggedly stylish, reports the Men's Fashion Association.

A highly adaptable style that looks as good in the city as it does in the country, the "British Accent" features a well-defined but not too snug waist, softer shoulders, a slight flare to the skirt of the coat and a close-fitting chest. It is also going to be seen in double-breasted treatments.

The vest, which is not only popular with the British look, but with most other European and American-type models, might even be stronger than last year, says Chip Tolbert, MFA's fashion director. He predicts that 85 per cent of all winter suits sold in 1977 will be vested.

The British Accent ranges from worsteds in dressy darks for town wear to softly colored, earth-tone tweeds, shetlands and chevrons in subtle patterns for country looks and tailored sport coats.

Sportcoats in big, bold, softly shaded plaids will be found in typical English fabrics such as shetlands, and tweeds in herringbones and other neat, small effects. And blazers, English in origin, will remain solid fashion news.

Dressy slacks for the fall show a move toward plaids, checks and tartans as well as a host of twills, flannels and other unpatterned fabrics. Many will be pleated, Tolbert notes.

The "British Warm," chesterfields and wool versions of the trench coat, plus a continuing revival of the camel hair polo coat, will be among tailored topcoat and overcoat options. In rainwear, single and double-breasted trenchcoats, plus very full cut balmacaans will be some of the stay-dry choices for men, with many featuring removable linings and collars in fleece or flannel. And the color range: big.

Accessories also will be affected by the British Accent, beginning with shirts returning to classic British stripings, tattersall checks and small checks. Also expected to show some growth are Oxford cloth shirts in classic colors and patterns. The collar styles, for most, will be button-down or typically British pin or spread models.

Dress gloves will be classic in concept in either smooth glace leathers or soft suedes. Designed with a minimum of detail, many will be lined. Most casual gloves will be lined in either fleece or knitted fabrics and will appear in rugged brushed suedes, grained leathers and knits.

The dress shoes complementing the British look will be such familiar styles as wing tips, cap toes, buckled monk straps and a host of slip-ons. Socks are over-the-calf in length and include rib-knits, cable panels and neat all-over patterns.

The casual look in shoes reveals a return to the classic penny loafer and lots of boots sporting a work gear influence. Ranging from just above the ankle to just below the knee, many will have quilted or fleece linings. Socks will take after those worn by hunters, ideal teammates for boots.

Jewelry is basically understated, with the definite revival of the watch chain attributed to the popularity of the vest.

Hats dress up the British look with down-all-around brims, classic snap brims, dressy town hats and a host of caps for country and sportswear. Easy living hats include the Irish fisherman hats, warm woolen knits — many with matching mufflers — and an assortment of caps and dressy Tyrolean felts.

One way men will be keeping warm this year will be by layering bulky, fancy-stitched sweaters, such as cardigans and pullover blousons, over soft suede and suede-type tops, shirts worn over shirts and shirts topping turtle-necks.

To accommodate the layered look, tops will be full and roomy, with many reaching down to the hips. Sweaters will be big, bulky and patterned, in an array of knits. Flannel outerwear will be seen in big, classic buffalo plaids and plaids inspired by mountain climbers.

Slacks to be worn with the look are often pleated and frequently found in corduroys, tweeds and flannels.

The "survival look" in antifreeze fashions will make use of warm wool coats in varied lengths, lightweight, down-filled coats and vests, coats in beefy fabrics, both plain and patterned, sherpa linings and the typical shearlings worn by ranchers in the bitter cold regions of the American West.

In keeping with the rugged, practical mood, the vast majority of style details will be functional: hand warmer pockets, parka hoods and big collars. Waist definitions for winter outerwear will often be achieved via cinch buckles, rope ties and belts.

In anticipation of lowered thermostats and cooler homes, many men will be taking advantage of the new loungewear offerings for 1977.

Ranging from kimono tops with matching trousers in silklike fabrics to pullover tops and trousers of corduroy or velour, with some even utilizing sweater tops, the selection covers the gamut of fireside warmth and elegance for the home. Underwear will be brightly colored and often patterned, but thermal styles are expected to be hot sellers.

But he has learned first more, than his last hand why some com- apartment in Atlanta. And at night, when he comes into New York. If you have a kid, you're talking about $650 a month for an apartment. It's tough to raise a child. Connecticut's been able to breed off New York because of it."

Gaines feeds his clients facts and figures on income and real estate taxes in Atlanta, availability of land, transportation routes, climate, potential markets in the Southeast, and wage costs. "I don't talk down New York," he said. "I'll never do that. I'm not here to convince a corporation to move from New York, but I'll talk to them if they want to. We're not here to pick on New York. Its survival is important to every other city."

"New York is a beautiful city. It's got the worst and the best of everything. If you hate New York, you hate the world, because it's got everything in the world." For another thing, his mission is not so much to steal the headquarters of a corporation as to steer to Atlanta a company already planning a southern branch. His hunting ground extends beyond New York, from Baltimore to Boston.

Part of the job is ensuring that companies already in Atlanta stay there. Gaines says that 430 of the 500 largest industrial firms have some kind of operation in Atlanta.

Decisions by big, well-known corporations to move their headquarters from New York draw much publicity, but they are not the city's biggest problem, according to Frank Corbin of the city's Economic Development Administration.

Their exodus in recent years has accounted for only about 10 per cent of the city's loss of 650,000 jobs since 1969, Corbin says. Bankruptcies and layoffs among small companies are the real problem. Of the 190,000 businesses in the city, 98 per cent have fewer than 100 employees and 90 per cent have fewer than 20.

City officials have never counted the states that stalk business prey on their streets, most through share representatives or public relations firms or annual junkets to New York. None has drawn the attention Gaines has, however.

And New York soon will have its own Alex Gaineses on the road: A traveling ambassador corps of executives is included in plans for a multimillion-dollar campaign to sell businessmen elsewhere on the idea of moving to the city.

Ruling says Blue Cross subject to antitrust laws

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A lawsuit filed by 18 independent San Antonio, Tex., pharmacies against the Texas Blue Cross Blue Shield health insurance group is still alive.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has ruled that the Blue Cross-Blue Shield group is not exempt from antitrust laws, opening the way for further proceedings in the pharmacies' suit.

That suit accuses Blue Cross Blue Shield of conspiring to fix the retail price of drugs and pharmaceuticals.

The drug stores challenged a Blue Shield plan in which policies are issued covering the cost of prescription drugs.

Under the plan, if the drug is bought from a store which has entered into a pharmacy agreement with Blue Shield, the only charge to the policy holder is an automatic $2 deductible.

If the prescription is bought at a drugstore which has no agreement with Blue Shield, the policy holder pays the full price charged by the pharmacy, plus the $2 deductible — and then applies for reinsurance.

Judge John H. Wood Jr. had entered judgment for Blue Cross-Blue Shield, formally known as Group Life and Health Ins. Co., holding that federal antitrust laws did not apply in this issue.

Blue Shield reimburses for only 75 per cent of the usual and customary charge for the drug, less the $2 deductible.

The 5th said it concludes that "Blue Shield is no more obligated to fix the retail prices of pharmaceuticals than an automobile insurer is obligated to its insureds having deductible policies to fix the prices charged for parts and labor."

"We conclude, therefore, that Blue Shield's Pharmacy Agreement is not a part of the business of insurance and is not shielded from antitrust scrutiny even though it may have some effect upon the company's policyholders and rates," the 5th said.

The pharmacists who sued complain they can't make their customary profit on the markup permitted under the pharmacy agreement.

They also contend that "the agreement fixes the retail price of drugs at a level which eliminates the only effective means by which small independent pharmacies can compete with large chains — the provision of services."

Back in 1969, when the drug insurance policy was introduced, there was little public opposition from pharmacists because few sales were covered. Things have changed dramatically.

In 1972, Blue Shield

processed only 1,000 prescription claims a month. Since then, there has been a 3,100 per cent increase, with claims rising to 31,000 a month in 1975.

In addition to Blue 17 other drug stores.

Bumper crops start storage bins bonanza

By PAUL STEVENS
Associated Press Writer

Storage bins are being erected at a rapid pace on farms in the nation's grain belt as farmers attempt to make room for a bumper fall harvest.

The summer building boom has been spurred by the anticipation of near-record corn and wheat crops that some producers feel will find no room in already half-full commercial elevators.

To ease the crowded commercial picture, created largely by a 1.1 billion bushel carryover of wheat, the Agriculture Department has relaxed its requirements on storage facility loans.

Hinting that better times are ahead in moving grain surpluses into the market, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland urged farmers this week to "build graineries on the farm, store it and hold it back. We think better times are coming."

And as most bin manufacturers can attest, farmers are responding in unprecedented numbers.

One county in Illinois already has $700,000 in outstanding loan applications for the steel bin structures, which range in capacity from 1,000 bushels to 150,000 bushels. An average 5,000-bushel bin will cost from $2,000 to $3,000 to install.

In Missouri, "People are putting up bins faster than they can get them," said Agriculture Department Director Jack Runyan. "You can't buy one now."

Several counties in North Dakota have more than 100 loan applications each. And in Kansas, 204 loans were made in June, compared with 17 for the same month a year ago.

"The stampede is on," said Bob Swanson of the Minnesota Agriculture Department. "We've never seen such a demand for grain bins."

Some storage bin manufacturers are putting their plants on 24-hour, seven-day-a-week operation to meet the demand, but several say backlogs on orders range from one to two months.

"As far as I know, everyone's selling practically every bin they can manufacture," said Robert Gingery, a Farmland Industries executive in Kansas City who is chairman of the Grain Bin Manufacturers Council of the Farm and Industrial Equipment Institute of Chicago.

"I think the consensus is we expect this to run into next year," he added.

At Butler Manufacturing Co., the leading producer of the grain storage facilities, an around-the-clock operation has been in effect for three months. Still, a spokesman said, the Kansas City plant's backlog is up considerably and an order received this week could not be filled until late September.

Farmland Industries' bin plant in Hutchinson, Kan., also is operating continuously, but is experiencing four-week delays in filling orders, Gingery said.

Storage on farms is a common practice, allowing farmers to keep on hand supplies of feed for livestock and serving as a temporary holding point before taking their grain to the country or terminal elevators for sale.

But the recent buildup of the two most abundant grains, corn and wheat, has resulted because of such factors as overplanting and diminishing export trade.

Recognizing the farmers' dilemma, the USDA on April 4 made several changes in its loan policy for grain storage and drying facilities. The amount it would loan was increased from 70 to 85 per cent of the purchase price; the interest rate was dropped to 7 per cent, and the maximum amount of loans was raised from $25,000 to $50,000.

At the same time, Bergland instituted an extended loan program for 1976 wheat in which farmers could elect to keep their wheat under government loan, using the crop as collateral to borrow money, for a three-year period.

The producer is paid 20 cents a bushel per year for wheat he stores under the program, regardless of whether it is kept on the farm or in a commercial facility.

Dick McChesney, price support specialist with the Kansas office of the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service, said that if farmers use commercial storage, they pay at least 24-25 cents a bushel to store their wheat.

San Angelo college pilot dies in crash

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Stewart Payne Duncan, 21, a San Angelo college senior, died Thursday when his small plane crashed beside Airport Blvd. in northeast Austin.

No other injuries were reported. Police closed the thoroughfare to rush-hour traffic briefly while investigating the crash.

Municipal airport authorities said Duncan has just landed his boss, E.Y. Murphy of Southwest Aircraft Sales Co. in San Angelo, and took off alone, apparently for the return trip.

Soon after takeoff Duncan radioed that he was having engine trouble and was returning.

Witnesses said the plane nosedived into a ditch beside Airport Blvd. and exploded in a ball of flames. Duncan's body was thrown about 60 feet from the plane.

Crane celebrates

Big doings are taking place in our neighboring city of Crane today as its residents and visitors celebrate the 50th anniversary of Crane as a city and county.

The Golden Anniversary Jubilee got under way Friday night with a "Miss Crane" contest, followed by a dance.

Today, however, is the big day, with special events, beginning at 10 a.m., following one right after another on into the night. A play, "The Ups and Downs of Crane," written by Crane's own historian, Paul Patterson, will be staged tonight as a celebration highlight. Church-sponsored activities are planned for Sunday, rounding out the big birthday weekend party.

A tremendous amount of work has been done by a great many Crane residents over a period of time in planning, arranging and staging the huge festival, which undoubtedly will attract a large number of visitors to Crane. This is something which also pulls residents of a community closer together in working and planning for the future. Congratulations are in order for all those persons who have had parts small and large in this particular project. The actual staging of the jubilee reflects a job well and nobly done.

Former residents of the City and County of Crane are scattered all over the Permian Basin Empire, and beyond, and many of them undoubtedly are on hand for the birthday party.

The Crane News on Thursday published a 64-page historical edition, which is exceptionally well done in every respect. Publishers Thomas R. and Roberta J. Stagg and members of their staff are due congratulations and commendation on publication of the birthday edition.

Midland and Midlanders join with other neighbors and friends everywhere in extending congratulations and all best wishes to the City and County of Crane and their residents on this very special, momentous and happy 50th Anniversary occasion.

Albania stands alone

Europe may have to contend with something new in the way of Eurocommunism. Enver Hoxha and his hard-line Communist government in Albania are filing for divorce from Peking.

Hoxha long has been at odds with the Tito government in neighboring Yugoslavia. He broke with the Soviet Union and the Warsaw Pact when Nikita Khrushchev launched the de-Stalinization campaign in the 1950s. He sided with the Chinese in the ideological split between Peking and Moscow, relying on Chinese aid and trade to develop an industrial economy for Albania.

Now, the purging of the so-called radicals in the Chinese Communist Party — Mao Tse-tung's widow and the "Gang of Four" — apparently has convinced Hoxha that even Peking cannot be trusted. The Albanian party is criticizing Chinese leaders for dealing with the Capitalist United States, and Chinese aid missions in Albania are being sent home.

This could be viewed as an amusing domestic squabble in the Communist household, except that nothing which affects political alliances in the Balkans can be taken lightly.

First the Russians and then the Chinese had provided Albania with an economic lifeline and a degree of "big brother" protection. Once part of the Ottoman empire, Albania's independence has been challenged numerous times — most recently when Marshal Tito came to power after World War II and sought to incorporate the country into Yugoslavia.

Albania is the kind of weak state which needs alliances to survive. Where it will find them with a policy of studied hostility toward both the Communist and the non-Communist powers is an intriguing question for students of Balkan politics — and a potentially upsetting issue as the advanced age of Marshal Tito portends an historic change in Yugoslavia.

This may be the time when Albania may have to give a little bit, one way or the other, in developing new "friendships."

Fed watchdogs sit on 'scandal'

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — Federal regulators are sitting on a multimillion-dollar nuclear scandal, which has the smell of a corporate Watergate. The story is told in confidential documents that bristle with such words as "manipulations" and "blackmail."

Two commercial giants, Dow Chemical and Consumers Power, are partners in a nuclear project. Its financial foundation, however, has become shaky. This has come to the attention of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, whose rulings could cost the partnership hundreds of millions of dollars.

Consumers Power, thus confronted with a public body in its path, has sought to circumvent it. The giant utility, a la Watergate, allegedly has tried to prevent witnesses from giving information to federal investigators, has laundered testimony that might be damaging and has given the regulatory tribunal incomplete information.

Here is a corporate cat that may need a bell tied to it. But first, some background. Back in 1967, Consumers and Dow teamed up to construct a nuclear power plant in Midland, Mich. But environmentalists forced Consumers to upgrade the project's safety system. By 1977, stricter federal standards and repeated delays had shot up the cost from $350 million to an alarming $1.7 billion.

Consumers Power began to buckle under the financial burden and its partner began to waver. Dow tried to wriggle out of the deal if the plant wasn't completed by a fixed date. But Consumers sternly warned Dow of its contractual obligations. This little disagreement strained the relations between the two companies.

Then out of the blue—a federal court ordered the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to review the project for possible safety and environmental deficiencies. The hot breath of a federal judge on their necks made the commissioners apprehensive. They would have to rule, they agreed, whether to halt construction until the review was completed.

This possibility caused panic in the backrooms of Consumers. Another construction delay might force the company to scuttle the project altogether, with staggering losses. The corporate brass were eager, therefore, to reassure the commissioners that all was well and that construction should continue.

But all was not well; differences between the two partners were boiling beneath the surface. This would not be reassuring, the Consumers executives agreed, to the regulatory commission. They tried to keep the trouble from bubbling up, therefore, from below to bother the calm surface.

At a private meeting, secret Dow documents allege, Consumers threatened to sue Dow for damages if the chemical company did not support Consumers. If anyone from Dow gave testimony that resulted in the suspension or cancellation of the construction permit, Consumers warned, Dow would be held legally responsible.

District of Columbia really isn't all bad

By BENJAMIN SHORE

Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — Criticism always is more fashionable than praise, more fun to read and more difficult to refute.

So it is with professional trepidation that one utters a note of dissent against recent criticism of the people and institutions that make up Washington, D.C.

It is a popular theme that provides grist for columns and articles. Sen. Proxmire's "golden fleece of the month" award to a silly and expensive bit of bureaucracy is well received around the country simply because most editors and their readers automatically nod in general understanding that all Washington is like that.

But this summer's criticism of Washington began on a higher plane. It began with the highly regarded New Republic magazine devoting its entire issue recently to a collection of essays slicing up the capital's way of life.

This liberal weekly, long headquartered here, won instant attention because it seemed to be attacking the very institutions that it philosophically has counted on to save the world.

The Wall Street Journal planted an editorial kiss on the magazine for saying such things as: "Many Washingtonians don't really appreciate the value of money, having done nothing productive to earn it." This, the journal noted, explains the anti-business tone of Democratic Congresses and administrations.

Benjamin Shore

Insulated from the real world by their expense-account lunches in posh, trendy restaurants, these nonproductive workers remain out of touch while making abstract decisions affecting the "real" people of the nation and the world. Or so the recurring argument goes.

What is so abstract about the real pollutants dumped into the water and air by real corporate executives at their productive best? What is so abstract about misleading advertising and shoddy products foisted on the public by persons doing productive work? What is so abstract about school districts, drought-clobbered farmers and blighted cities all looking to the federal Treasury for some real money?

These are among the problems that get dumped on Washington's doorstep daily.

The problems are brought here by your mayors and governors, by your congressmen and senators. Your local industries pay executives big money to work here lobbying the agencies and Congress.

It is not uncommon to see a $70,000-a-year corporate lobbyist taking a $35,000-a-year government lawyer to lunch so the lobbyist can help the lawyer understand the businessman's point of view before a certain government regulation is drafted.

(There's a rumor going around Washington that this sort of thing goes on out there in the rest of the country, involving city councilmen and state legislators, but we don't believe it for a moment.)

And is that lawyer overpaid at $35,000? Compared to what? Compared to what he could make working for the lobbyist's corporation or for a decent big-city law firm? Doubtful.

New Republic also seemed upset that "almost nobody who comes to Washington ever leaves." Again, that fact of Washington life is portrayed as boding ill for the nation. We suspect, however, that the desire to stay here says more for the quality of life offered by this increasingly diverse and cosmopolitan city.

And if you were making around $50,000 as a congressman or bureaucrat, one should not be surprised if you seek similar income in your new lawyer, lobbyist, consultant or bureaucrat job here.

We haven't even mentioned the $12,000-a-year civil servant raising his kids in one of the costliest cities in the country.

Or the IBM executive out in the suburban Virginia plant that was moved down from real New York.

Everything described by New Republic is here. But there's a lot more, and it's not all that mysterious or abstract.

INSIDE REPORT:

The really big question: To defend or not defend

By ROLAND EVANS

And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — A draft presidential directive on defense strategy was amended last week by adding six words that seemingly reassert the U.S. commitment to defend Central Europe but actually raise contradictions that can only be resolved by Jimmy Carter himself.

The original draft prepared last month contained this ambiguous policy for meeting a Soviet attack against West Germany: "Consonant with present NATO strategy, including forward defense, the U.S. is committed to minimum loss of territory in the event of a Warsaw Pact conventional attack."

A revised version drafted last week was strengthened to read that "the U.S. is committed to having the capability, in conjunction with its allies, to stop a Warsaw Pact attack with minimum loss of territory, and ultimately to restore prewar boundaries." Most important are those last six words — "and ultimately to restore prewar boundaries" — meaning that any Soviet invasion would be rolled back to the Communist bloc's present borders.

According to some defense sources, those six words were slipped into the directive after our recent column reported a U.S. strategy conceding the loss of one-third of West Germany to a Soviet invasion. Whatever the timing, the revision raises two serious questions.

Question No. 1: PRM-10, the

voluminous national strategy paper upon which the six-page presidential directive is based, says a Soviet attack in Central Europe can be rolled back to "prewar boundaries" only if defense spending is increased beyond a level acceptable to the U.S. public. As we reported earlier, national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski echoed that view before the Security Coordinating Council (SCC), which made no dissent. So, how will the pledge in the presidential directive be made good?

Question No. 2: Both PRM-10 and Dr. Brzezinski (at the SCC meeting) suggest covering military weakness with strong rhetoric. So, were the six reassuring words added merely in pursuance of this dubious tactic?

What is involved here is not merely scholarly consideration of future options but an official appraisal of present reality. PRM-10 says: "The study concludes that the change of NATO stopping an attack with minimal loss of territory and then achieving its full objective of recovering that land which had been lost appears remote at the present time."

The four alternative strategies indicated by PRM-10 as the ones most acceptable to the American public would continue this situation. In addition, PRM-10 says the strategies "provide only a moderate conventional capability to confront the Soviets worldwide in the event a major war erupts" and indicates the existing capability to do this is "uncertain." That undermines the New York Times report, attributed to "a senior White House official," that U.S. attacks on Soviet "assets" outside Europe would force Moscow to surrender German territory gained in an invasion.

To compensate for this weakness, both PRM-10 and Brzezinski propose public reaffirmation of present NATO strategy while privately admitting inadequate means to pursue it. PRM-10 urges that the U.S. "publicly support MC-14/3 (official NATO strategy), particularly with reference to forward defense and restoration of the status quo ante." Hence, the latest draft of the presidential directive is less than convincing when it declares "the U.S. reaffirms U.S. strategy as expressed in MC-14/3."

The alternative to such deception is described by PRM-10 as a minimum of 33 army divisions (compared to the present 16) in the U.S. force structure.

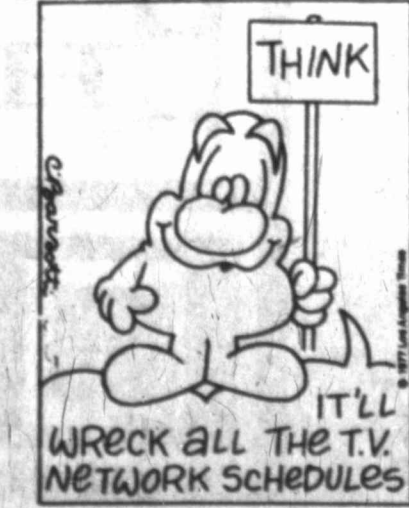

Even a 27-division structure, says the document, could not recapture the one-third of West Germany lost to Soviet invasion.

This grossly misstates the problem. In the view of most military experts — such as retired Gen. James Hollingsworth. In his 1976 study for the Senate, Hollingsworth put less stress on additional manpower than on additional firepower. Nowhere in the hundreds of pages of PRM-10 is it even suggested that standardized, more powerful rockets and guns might defend Central Europe without massive increases in defense spending.

PRM-10, the product of newly-appointed civilians at the Pentagon, is regarded by uniformed officers not so much as ideologically impure as professionally shoddy. Secretary of Defense Harold Brown has been chary about giving it his full endorsement and has privately criticized aspects of it. Yet nobody has repudiated it as a source of vast potential mischief, and the fact remains that Brzezinski has embraced its NATO strategy.

One additional contradiction: whereas the draft presidential directive reaffirms President Carter's promise to NATO of a 3 per cent annual increase in real U.S. defense spending, the Office of Management and Budget has put a 1 per cent increase ceiling on next year's defense budget. The gap between what this administration says and what it does on defense questions is widening.

Rape charge filed against center operator

ODESSA, Tex. (AP) — The 66-year-old operator of a children's day care center in this West Texas city was charged Friday with the rape of a child and sexual abuse of a child, authorities said.

Marion Cross Boynton appeared before Justice of the Peace Jimmy Harris, who set bonds totaling $30,000 on the charges. Harris said Boynton posted bond and was released.

Boynton, who ran the Moma Mills Day Care center, had been charged Thursday night with one count of indecency with a child, officials said.

Jerry Davis, investigator for the Ector County district attorney's office, said the charges against Boynton involved different children.

Davis said the investigation had been under way for several months and that more charges were expected to be filed in the case.

Texas Supreme Court justice resigning

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Justice Tom Reavley gave Gov. Dolph Briscoe another supreme court vacancy to fill Friday by resigning effective Oct. 5 to practice law privately and teach.

"I want to do something different," Reavley said in a telephone interview.

This will be the second vacancy for Briscoe to fill on the high court this year.

Briscoe recently named Justice Charles Barrow to replace Don Yarbrough, who resigned from the court at the beginning of legislative proceedings to remove him.

Reavley, 58, served four years as an Austin district judge before joining the supreme court nine years ago. He was Texas secretary of state from 1955 to 1957.

He said he will join the Austin law firm of Wallace Scott and Frank Douglas.

Reavley said he will teach next year at Baylor law school and also present lectures to Baylor undergraduates "on the impact of law on culture and civilization."

"That ought to give me enough running room," he said.

Serving on the supreme court "is a great job and I enjoy it enormously. But it is confining. If you read all the briefs that come in here, you don't have time to do other things," he said.

In his job "of counsel" to the Wallace and Douglas law firm, Reavley said he planned to try cases in court and do all the things any lawyer would do.

Reavley was born in Quitman in 1921, attended Stephen F. Austin State University in Nacogdoches, graduated from the University of Texas at Austin and received his law degree from Harvard in 1948.

He served as an assistant district attorney in Dallas and as Nacogdoches County attorney.

He reached the supreme court by gubernatorial appointment when Justice James R. Norvell resigned in 1968. Reavley ran for the post and was elected the same year and was re-elected in 1974.

Alleged sex relationships said one reason for firing

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — James Ashley was fired by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. for reasons that included alleged sexual relationships with female employees, his former boss testified Friday.

C.L. Todd, vice president and general manager for Southwestern Bell in San Antonio, told a state district court jury here he was instructed by corporate officials to suspend Ashley on Oct. 9, 1974.

The corporate officials gave Todd a list of reasons for the action, he testified.

Those reasons included allegations of Ashley's sexual involvement with female employees, use of sexual favors as a factor in promotions and misuse of company funds.

Ashley was fired from his $55,000 a year job in San Antonio on Oct. 31, 1974. Todd's testimony came in the trial of a $29 million damage suit against Southwestern Bell by Ashley and the family of T.O. Gravitt, who was Bell's top Texas executive when he committed suicide Oct. 17, 1974.

The suit alleges the company drove Gravitt to his death and wrongfully fired Ashley as a result of an improper internal company investigation.

Todd said he gave Ashley the reasons for his suspension as he drove Ashley to a San Antonio hotel where Ashley was interviewed by two Bell security men.

A report by the security officers of the interview showed that Ashley was indignant over his suspension, denied all the accusations and warned that they could be the basis of a lawsuit.

The investigators' report to Todd also said that Ashley disclosed he had information that could be "very damaging" to Southwestern Bell.

Todd said Ashley told him that he felt "the penalty is too great for what I've done" and that he felt Bell was making an example of him.

Todd, who began testifying Wednesday afternoon, left the witness stand Friday morning.

Portions of a deposition by Bell district manager Louis Sommer of Waco taken Feb. 14, 1975 were read into testimony.

Sommer said that Ashley had complained at times about the company's method for figuring the rates it should charge customers.

Sommer also said Gravitt was critical of some of the methods.

The Waco Bell official said company security men had interviewed him in early October 1974 and asked him if he knew whether Ashley or Gravitt were receiving kickback payments or whether he helped arrange dates with women for the two executives.

Sommer said he knew nothing about either allegation.

He said that he had later told Gravitt about the questions he had been asked.

Union official says phone strike possible Sunday

HOUSTON (AP) — A union official said Friday a disagreement over downgrading certain job classifications could cause a five-state Sunday strike by 61,000 employees of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

"We're not anywhere close to agreement," said M. E. Nichols, president of Communications Workers Local 12222.

A Houston spokesman for Southwestern Bell said negotiations have intensified.

"We're still confident and optimistic," he said. A tentative national agreement with American Telephone and Telegraph last Saturday left one week for settlement of local issues within the Bell system.

Southwestern Bell and union representatives from Texas, Arkansas, Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma are negotiating in St. Louis.

Nichols said lack of an agreement could send about 10,000 Houston workers on strike at 12:01 a.m. Sunday.

Although other issues are in dispute, Nichols said the primary problem involves downgrading of job classifications and wages for certain clerical and craft positions. He

Threat brings armed guards

MARSHALL, Tex. (AP) — Armed guards escorted a Harrison County commissioner from his home to the courthouse Friday after a telephone death threat was received by the commissioner's wife.

On Thursday morning an anonymous caller told Mrs. B.C. Ferrell to persuade her husband not to vote for a local attorney seeking the county judge seat, according to Chief Deputy Sheriff J.C. Norman.

The county judge post was vacated Monday when Don Stokes resigned to take the newly created county court-at-law post here.

Norman said his office and Texas Ranger Glenn Elliott are investigating the case and charges may be filed early next week.

Mrs. Ferrell said the caller told her that her husband and two youngest children would be killed if he voted for Allen.

Ferrell, who previously said he supported Allen, said he did not change his vote because of the threat.

Attorneys fail to complete jury in Davis trial

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — The state has three and the defense four remaining "strikes," the vehicle by which they can dismiss a prospective juror without cause.

The 11th juror was selected Tuesday and principals in the case had said they expected to seat the final member before the weekend.

State and defense lawyers depleted the first panel of prospective jurors Friday afternoon, bringing to 138 the total number examined since the trial began June 27.

State Dist. Court Judge George Dowlen recessed the trial until 9 a.m. Monday when a new panel of prospects will be summoned.

Davis, 43, is accused of capital murder in the slayings last summer of his step-daughter, Andrea Wilborn, 12, and Stan Farr, 30. Two others were wounded in the shooting spree at the Davis mansion in Fort Worth. The current trial deals only with the Wilborn slaying.

Tall buildings issue in recall election

HOUSTON (AP) — It will be skyscrapers versus suburban Bellaire. Opponents of high rise office structures want to kick Mayor Joe Poin- dexter and four councilmen out of office.

Those who forced the recall election want Bellaire to remain a city of homes. The municipality of 20,000 residents is completely surrounded by Houston.

A record 639 absentee ballots were cast. The old record was 110.

Several law suits are involved in the dispute that began after several office structures were built along Loop 610, a busy freeway that cuts through the heart of the southwest Houston area.

"This town is a can of worms, seething with distrust, with nonunderstanding," said Jack Gurwell, one of the four councilmen named in the recall petition.

"There are experts on every block corner," Gurwell said.

Other councilmen facing recall are David Dewhitt, Jim Hagood, and Edwin Milwee.

The recall move began after a February 5-2 council vote against a six-month moratorium on construction of high rise buildings on the Loop.

Councilmen Louis Ware and Rod Rethwisch favored the moratorium and were not named on the recall petitions signed by 2,400 residents.

Taylor Hicks, head of the Committee for Recall, said Bellaire is in serious danger of losing its residential status.

Bellaire residents, Hicks said, want to tell commercial developers "We're not going to be like Houston."

Hicks' group has reported $1,721 in campaign contributions and $864 in expenses, while the Committee to Keep Bellaire Independent reported $5,620 in expenses and $6,296 in contributions from those opposing recall.

Gospel officers' group aim

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Sgt. Jim Higgins, a 29-year veteran of the San Francisco Police Department, expresses despair at the "macho image" of insensitive, hard-drinking, boisterous policemen.

"A man can get a heart of stone doing police work and his love for others shrivels up and drifts away," said Higgins.

The burly sergeant is deeply involved in a small but growing group of law enforcement agents who have formed the Fellowship of Christian Peace Officers. Twenty-five officers belong to the San Francisco chapter with other units in Oakland, Los Angeles and other cities.

Sgt. Art Brandwood, president of the fellowship's 10 member Oakland chapter, said trying to spread the Gospel among policemen is a difficult challenge.

He said many officers look on Christianity as "a weakness, a crutch that's alright for women, children and old people — but not for the rugged, he-man type of guy."

However, Brandwood said "God is dealing with that attitude" through the example of others in police ranks who are respected for physical prowess and proven ability as cops "and who still love and serve Christ."

Higgins and his partner, Sgt. Jim Crowley, made an appeal for prayers last October on the Virginia-based Christian Television Network.

Film to begin seminars

The showing of a thought-provoking motion picture, "The Right To Die," is scheduled Tuesday night to initiate a series of discussions, seminars and special meetings aimed at improving the "value of life" in the community.

The Tuesday screening, scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in Christ Presbyterian Church, 2801 N. Garfield St., is being presented under auspices of the Midland Value of Life Committee. The film, which poses the question of when is man justified in refraining from medical intervention to forestall death, will be followed by a panel discussion by a physician, clergyman and attorney.

Panelists for the evening will be the Rev. Elmer Burrall and Dr. Ray Riddle, representing clergy; attorney Smith Ray and Dr. Dorothy Lowery or Dr. Francis Sims, representing the medical profession.

"The Right To Die" is a 60-minute documentary film in color which provides a well-balanced discussion of issues relating primarily to passive euthanasia. The film presents a balanced spectrum of positions about the justifiability of refraining from medical intervention to forestall death.

Evitation from the Rev. Paul Cox, host pastor, to hear the special program.

Starting time for Monday's screening of "The Rapture" and "Thief in the Night" will be 8 p.m. Pastor Cox announced.

Movie, vocal ensemble presentations planned

A vocal ensemble from Southwestern Assemblies of God College at Waxahachie will present a special program at 7 p.m. Sunday in Gardens Assembly of God, 2901 W. Kansas Ave.

On Monday night, Gardens Assembly is planning to present two special movies, "The Rapture" and "Thief in the Night." The double-feature will be open to the public at no charge, although a freewill offering will be taken.

The choral group from Waxahachie, the "Servants of Love," is made up of five young people from Southwestern Assemblies of God College, including a student from Midland, Shawn Verkerk. The group ministers through testimony as well as song and the public has an in-

Spiritual Explosion Crusade begins Monday

Faith Temple Church, 1605 N. Terrell St., will hold its third annual Spiritual Explosion Crusade next week.

The revival emphasis will begin Monday, continuing through Sunday, Aug. 21, said the Rev. W. C. Kenan, host pastor. Services will be at 8 p.m. daily, he said.

Initiating the special week's services will be a musical program Monday night, at which local and visiting choirs will participate. Special choral music will be a feature of services during the remainder of the crusade.

The Rev. Charles Tanner of Lubbock will be featured speaker at the Tuesday night service. Wednesday's event will have evangelist Juanita Sapp of Brooklyn, N. Y., as speaker, and Thursday's service will present evangelist Richard White of New Orleans. Friday's service will have the Rev. Ledell Thomas of Waco as the speaker, and Saturday's event will feature the Rev. Frank Smith of Dallas. The host pastor, Mr. Kenan, will preach at the concluding service on Aug. 21.

Joining featured speakers in the services each night will be evangelist Eddie Jernagin of Los Angeles.

In addition to the nightly services, there will be prayer and study-workshop sessions beginning at 10 a.m. daily. All morning and evening events will be open to the public, it was announced.

'Egg-candling' verse serves as yardstick

By CHARLIE SHEDD

"You're a good egg." That's a nice compliment, isn't it? Do you know where it came from?

When your grandfather worked in the country store, he candled eggs. Maybe your dad did it too, or your mom. They used a little box called the "egg-candler." It had a light bulb inside. On the top was a hole not quite large enough to let an egg go through.

When a farmer's wife brought her eggs to the grocer, someone held each egg up to the light to see if it was a good egg. Bad spots would show up immediately and these eggs were put in the "throw-away" basket. Then all the good ones would be for sale. 2FD&2 Galatians 5:22-23 is the Bible's egg candling verse. The King James version says: "The fruit of the spirit is love, joy, peace, long suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance." Other versions use such words as: "patience, kindness, faithfulness, self-control, tolerance, fidelity."

QUESTIONS FOR DISCUSSION:

What person do you know who can qualify for all of these characteristics?

Who comes close?

How much of the time do you feel these in your family?

In your own life? Nobody is perfect, but it's easy to see why Galatians 5:22-23 can be called the "egg candling verses." Any person, a group, the church, people everywhere can be tested right here. Are they "throw-away" basket? Does she made you glad? "Long suffering," "gentleness," "temperance" all have the feeling of tolerance. How tolerant are we? And applying it personally, how tolerant am I? How much stretch do we give other folks in our attitudes toward them?

Ponder that little word "fruit." These qualities are not "fruits." Because the word is singular, it is evident that we don't have to produce all these nice things. Our job is to let the Lord live in our hearts so that He can produce these traits, the fruit of the spirit.

PRAYER IN UNISON: Lord, live in our home; live in our hearts. Every day may we become more and more "good eggs" in your sight. Amen.

SHACKLED BY RELIGIOUS CREEDS?

Freedom in Christ is a priceless gift of God. Yet, many believers in Christ yield this freedom to the restrictions of denominational alliances and human traditions. They cannot understand that the church established by Jesus Christ, and described in the New Testament, was neither Protestant, Roman Catholic, nor Jewish—in the sense that men today tend to classify one another into religious categories.

The first century church of Christ, however, could be considered Jewish in the sense that its first members were Jews; it could be considered Protestant in the sense that its leaders and members would boldly protest any new doctrines or innovations; and it was catholic (universal) inasmuch as it was established for all peoples of the earth.

Members of the church in that age were called Christians. There were thousands of them, and they belonged to no denomination. They were all members only of that broad universal church for which Jesus died (Acts 20:28).

If this view of Christianity, so plainly set forth in the New Testament, had been maintained through the centuries, we would not have the divided warring factions that spend their energies fighting each other.

The New Testament view of Christianity is not a narrow-minded one. Under this view alone can men hold that every person who has been born again is a brother or sister in Christ. Any denominational view, regardless of how tolerant, is bound to be more restricting and narrow than the undenominational Christianity of the first century.

Men are free under God to believe and obey the commands of God without human restrictions. Every man is responsible to God alone for searching the Scriptures for himself and rendering loving obedience to the Father's will. When people follow this pattern, obey Christ's will, and associate themselves together for the purpose of worship and service—maintaining allegiance to Christ rather than men or creeds of men—this is truly the Lord's church.

Declarer took the ace of hearts, ruffed a heart, drew trumps and led dummy's queen of diamonds for a finesse.

West took the king of diamonds and returned a diamond to the ace. South led to the jack of diamonds and returned a club. When East played low, declarer played the eight of clubs.

NO SAFE RETURN

West had to win and had to give South a trick. If West returned a club, South's king would win a trick. If West led anything else, dummy would discard a club while South ruffed. Either way, South was sure to make the contract.

East should defeat the contract by playing the queen of clubs, his only high card, when declarer first led the suit from dummy. If South played the king, West would take three clubs immediately. If South played low, East would win the trick and lead another club.

The correct play became obvious when South cleared out both red suits from dummy and his own hand. If West had to win the first club trick he would be unable to get out safely. The only chance was to step up with the queen of clubs in the hope of rescuing West from the end play.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold: C-A9864; H-A5; D-QJ4; S-754. What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass. You have 11 points in high cards and 1 point for the doubleton, enough for an optional opening bid. In this case you refuse the option because you suit is only mediocre and because the distribution is likewise only so-so. You might open the bidding if you had three small diamonds and five spades headed by A-Q-J.

Villages in Africa
trying out sun oven

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Hundreds of tribeswomen across the West African republic of Upper Volta are testing out what probably is one of the world's simplest, cleanest, cheapest and most economical cookers — a sun oven.

Designed by a Danish engineer with financial support from the Lutheran Danish Church Aid Organization — Danchurchaid — the oven is a 15-square-foot parabolic concave mirror of polished aluminum or aluminum foil, a kettle or sauce-pan is suspended in the focal point of the sun's reflected rays.

"The idea is old, as any boy who toyed with a burning glass will know. But it works," said Axel Aller, the designer, who had returned from a sevenweek mission to Upper Volta to introduce the project.

"I saw a kettle with several liters of water boil in less than 20 minutes," he added. So far, 250 ovens have been distributed free of charge to villages in all regions of Upper Volta, and another 50 are in production.

Danchurchaid put up $17,000 for development, production and introduction of the oven and added another $14 million for a one-year followup and evaluation program now underway in cooperation with Upper Volta's Technological Research Center.

Aller was optimistic that the idea would catch on in Africa. He said he believed similar projects in India and Mexico had failed because they were too small-scale and not launched in the right way and with the proper followup.

He said the project, in which the Upper Volta government and U.N. Development Project officials cooperated, aimed not only at exploiting the free energy of the tropical sun, but also at preventing rapid deforestation of the country through unsparing use of firewood.

So U.N. officials working on a program for the education of girls and women in Upper Volta and similar countries take an active interest in the sun oven, too.

The type of sun oven now in use in Upper Volta has, under normal conditions, a heating power equivalent to 1,000 watts, the same as the biggest boiling plate on most electric stoves.

"The reflector is adjustable so as to always face the sun at right angles," Aller explained. "And it does, of course, require a clear sky, although I did see the sun oven work on days with a slight haze."

"During one of my visits to a village, a whole so-called 'official' dinner for eight persons was cooked in a sun oven," he added. "Pork chops fried in a matter of 10 minutes."

But Aller admitted that even in a tropical country like Upper Volta — which averages 335 days annually with more than eight hours of sunshine — the sun oven has its natural limitations and is no good for the cooking of presunrise breakfasts or postsunset suppers.

"So the sun oven must be seen as supplement, and to make full use of it, many Africans might have to change their cooking and eating habits," the Danish engineer said. "This is why the followup and evaluation of the social effects are so important."

Equally important, he said, is the launching of completely local production. For the ovens now distributed, a Danish factory made the parabolic mirror while local producers delivered the iron rack on which mirror and cooking utensils are mounted.

In Aller's calculations the production costs of the 150 sun ovens came to between $35 and $40 apiece for the model with polished aluminum mirror. The economy version, with aluminum foil on tin plate or similar metals, costs about $10 less, but its durability remains to be tested.

"Complete local production will bring down the costs, and that is necessary," Aller said.

Nickels trickle to Capitol Hill

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A new verb is being heard on Capitol Hill these days: to nickel. It's transitive, and some 80 congressmen are the direct object.

Doing the nickeling are Ralph Nader and a coalition of consumer groups. In June they announced a major effort to lobby congressmen they find weaving on the consumer protection agency bill by sending them nickels. The legislation, termed by Nader and friends "the most important consumer issue of the decade," is now stalled in Congress.

The bill, which is supported by President Carter, was expected to pass Congress easily this year, but met intense and effective lobbying from business interests and the Chamber of Commerce. The proposed agency would have the authority to represent consumers before government boards and regulatory agencies and challenge adverse court decisions.

The consumer coalition, which also includes Common Cause, the Consumer Federation of America and the AFL-CIO, chose to send nickels because they say the proposed $15 million agency would cost each American only five cents.

Last week the White House announced a reorganization plan to abolish or consolidate into the proposed agency 26 consumer-oriented government units, and said that would save $5 million.

Mark Green, of Nader's Congress Watch, estimates that about 40,000 letters with nickels attached have been sent to the 80 undecided congressmen. Their reaction is not enthusiastic.

"This strikes me as a highly improper way for anyone to lobby for legislation," said Rep. Samuel Stratton (D-N.Y.), who is still undecided about the proposed agency. "If it has had any effect on me, it would tend to make me vote against the bill. For Common Cause to be sending out money on legislation isn't very funny."

Stratton has returned the 360 nickels his office has received.

Other congressmen are a little more light-hearted about the novel lobbying effort, but no one has said publicly that it has changed any minds.

"We've certainly paid attention to the nickel campaign," said an aide to Rep. Margaret Heckler (R-Mass.), "but she's still on the fence." Her office has received almost 1,100 nickels, which she plans to return to the people who sent them, with a letter saying the agency would be paid for out of the Treasury's general fund and not by nickels from individuals.

Green said he didn't expect any congressional minds to be changed because of the nickels. "Our purpose was to get a high enough level of support to free them to vote their conscience," he said. "And if they want to say they changed their mind because of the weather, that's fine."

The nickels may not have changed many minds, but they've left a lot of congressional staffers wondering what to do with the sudden influx of coin.

Aides in Harold Hollenbeck's (R-N.J.) office didn't know what to do with the $13.55 he received. In "exasperation," they finally called the House Administration Committee, which recommended they send the money to the House Finance Office. That office turned it over to the Treasury as an anonymous contribution.

Norman D'Amours (D-N.H.) says he was "mistargeted," because he has supported the bill all along. He's returning his 500 nickels — including a wooden nickel that has an Indian on one side and a buffalo on the other.

"I don't know whether that was from a supporter or an opponent" of the bill, an aide said.

Fred Rooney (D-Pa.) says he too has supported the consumer bill. He's sending his 1,200 nickels to the Good Shepherd Home in Allentown, and matching each nickel with a quarter of his own.

An aide to James Hanley (D-N.Y.) said he has issued a statement against the bill. His office doesn't know what to do with its 500 nickels because many came without return addresses.

"Getting nickeled," the aide said, "doesn't change his mind. His objection doesn't have anything to do with cost, but with adding another layer of bureaucracy."

Products treated with Tris return to store shelves

WASHINGTON (AP) — Products treated with Tris, the flame retardant linked to cancer in animal tests, are reappearing on store shelves, and the government is powerless to intervene.

S. John Byington, chairman of the Consumer Product Safety Commission, said this week his agency cannot stop the sales because a federal district court in June voided the commission's ban on production and sale of children's sleepwear treated with the chemical.

"When we had a ban in effect, the amount of Tris-treated garments on the market place were being significantly reduced by the day," Byington said in a telephone interview.

"We did not want a large number of these garments coming back on the market. We're damned concerned about it. But at this point in time we cannot take enforcement action because we were ordered by the court not to."

Byington and the private Environmental Defense Fund urged quick court action to restore the ban pending a hearing by a federal appeals court in Richmond.

The defense fund, a nonprofit group with 44,000 members, filed affidavits with the court citing four studies showing that Tris products are still on sale. The chemical has been widely used in children's sleepwear.

The private group said two of the studies, conducted by the product safety commission in July, showed that one-fifth of the retail outlets checked were still selling Tris-treated garments.

The commission ban, announced in April, was voided June 24 by U.S. District Judge Robert Chapman in Columbia S.C.

He said the agency had not met several procedural requirements in approving the ban, which was announced after Tris was found to cause cancer in laboratory animals.

Consumers fearful of buying Tris garments should see if the label says they are made from polyester, acetate or tri-acetate. If so, they may contain Tris.

The fund also announced settlement of a lawsuit it had brought against the commission over the safety of washed Tris-treated clothes.

The commission has said three washings remove most of the risk, but the private group has contended the products were dangerous even after washing.

While Byington said his view hasn't changed, the commission as part of the settlement issued a news release that acknowledged some Tris can remain on the garments after washing.

Oklahoma escapees'
extradition upheld

SALEM, Ore. (WP) — Two escapees from the Oklahoma State Penitentiary at McAlester will be taken to Arkansas to face murder charges unless their lawyers can further delay their extradition.

The Oregon Court of Appeals this week upheld the extradition order for Paul Ruiz, 27, and Earl Van Denton, 29, who were arrested in Portland July 11 by FBI agents.

Ruiz and Denton had appealed on grounds they should have been given the Miranda warning that they had a right to remain silent before they verbally identified themselves to officers.

Lawyers Stuart Teicher, for Denton, and Douglas S. Green, for Ruiz, said they would have to talk to the men before deciding whether to ask the Oregon Supreme Court to stay the extradition pending a review of the Appeals Court decision.

Court records show Ruiz and Denton admitted they escaped from the Oklahoma prison June 23 and identified themselves verbally.

Van Denton was serving a life term for murder and Ruiz, a life sentence for robbery.

They were charged in Boonville, Ark., with the shooting deaths of Town Marshal Marvin Richie of Magazine, Ark., and Opal James, an Army Corps of Engineers ranger.

They also are wanted in Louisiana for questioning in the disappearance of two fishermen and in Oklahoma in the death of a taxi driver.

OFFERING GOOD FISHING, scenic wonders and plenty of elbow room is the Pecos arm of Amistad Recreation Area near Del Rio. The National Park Service manages the recreational facilities and activities—which include hunting, scuba or skin diving, swimming, hiking, boating, camping and, most of all, angling for several species of gamefish.

Littler takes two-stroke lead in PGA

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Gene Littler, reeling off pars with the machine-like monotony that has been his trademark, again sidestepped the subtle terrors of Pebble Beach with a three-under-par 69 and stretched his lead to two strokes Friday in the second round of the PGA National Championship.

The 47-year-old Littler, the only player in the field who has not made a bogey, completed 36 holes in 138, an impressive eight strokes below par for his two, conservative, slow-paced strolls over the 6,806-yard Pebble Beach Golf Links that winds through towering eucalyptus trees and along the rocky cliffs and crags of Carmel Bay.

Jack Nicklaus, seeking a record-tying fifth PGA championship, was assessing his round of 71 and his 140 total while Littler played the 18th hole.

"Actually I played fairly well—just nothing much happened," Nicklaus said. "With 36 holes to go, I'm obviously in good position at only three strokes back."

He paused while a volunteer worker changed Littler's sub-par total from a red seven to a red eight, signifying a birdie on his final hole.

"As I was saying," Nicklaus said, "Four strokes back isn't bad."

THAT BIRDIE, on a 15-foot putt, ended a string of 11 consecutive pars for Littler, who had been sidelined with an aching back for six weeks coming into this, the last of the year's Big Four events that also include the Masters, U.S. Open and British Open.

Littler, however, said he was not surprised—"that's not a very good word"—to be leading the tournament. "I've played fairly decently, not too bad, for three or four days now," he said in typically low-key fashion.

Jerry McGee, who came to Pebble Beach primarily for a second honeymoon and to celebrate his recent victory in the Philadelphia Classic, was second at 138 after a second round 70.

"Because of commitments, we didn't get a chance to celebrate winning in Philadelphia," he said. "This is my wife's favorite place. We came here sort of on a second honeymoon. Left our 2-year-old at home.

"Now I'm back in the golf tournament, I've got to decide whether to end the honeymoon or let it continue."

Nicklaus and Lanny Wadkins, who shot a 71, were another two shots back.

NEXT CAME a group at 141, headed by Tom Watson, the game's outstanding player this year who was forced to use borrowed clubs when two of his own sets of irons were declared illegal.

Watson, who used the clubs now deemed illegal to win the British Open, the Masters, three other American titles and more than $274,000 this year, was tied with former Masters champion Charles Coody, Joe Inman and Al Geiberger, author of a record 59 earlier this year. Coody had an erratic 71, Geiberger a 70 and Inman a 69 in the chilly, foggy, occasionally drizzly weather.

Johnny Miller and Lee Trevino were at par 144, Miller with a second-round 74, Trevino with a 73 that included a double bogey seven on the last hole.

ARNOLD PALMER was 73-145. Hale Irwin was 75-149, Tom Weiskopf 72-149, defending champion Dave Stockton 75-150, and U.S. Open winner Hubert Green and South African Gary Player both had 77-151.

All survived the cut for the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday. The third round pairings will have Littler, Wadkins and Coody in the final group. Watson and Nicklaus, who staged one of the greatest exhibitions in the history of the game in a head-to-head confrontation in the British Open, again will be in the same group, along with McGee, immediately ahead of Littler, Wadkins and Coody.

Littler, who scored one of the great comebacks in sports history with his triumph over cancer in the early 1970's, followed his game-plan to perfection against the demanding course that is among the nation's most revered.

Snyder girl opens with no-hitter

By BOB DILLON

Connie Weber of Snyder threw a no-hitter and Midland's Mary Sanchez a three-hitter to highlight the opening round of action in the Major and Senior Regional Miss Softball America Tournament at Lancaster Park Friday.

Miss Weber led the Snyder Major Division All-stars in throwing her gem against Hobbs, N.M., in a 7-2 victory while Miss Sanchez came through for the Midland Senior All-Stars in blanking Snyder, 13-0.

In other first round games Friday, Snyder's Major team won their second game of the tourney, beating Midland Gold, 4-3 in eight innings and Denison blasted Midland Blue, 16-3. Midland Blue was then eliminated in the evening game Friday, losing to Hobbs, N.M., 13-5.

SNYDER'S WIN over Midland Gold was a tough one for the Tall City team which lost it in the bottom of the eighth inning when the centerfielder fell down after a single by catcher Norma Garcia.

Weber had singled sharply into left and Garcia hit a looping ball into center which fell in for a hit, but Weber scored when the unfortunate play came in the outfield.

Midland Gold had rallied by scoring two runs in the fifth after trailing 3-1. Chris Orwig of the Gold team had doubled in the sixth inning, but was left stranded at third without scoring.

Kelly Roberts of the Midland Blue team had a double while Karen Kuykendall and Victoria Scott also had singles. Teammate Shelly Paxton had a pair of hits as the Blue team was eliminated from tourney play.

DENISON HAD ripped Midland Blue, 16-3 with Sharla Heironimus and Cathy Clay leading the way with a pair of hits each.

A big seven-run outburst in the first inning which included six walks and two errors, was the downfall for the Blue outfit.

Weber struck out nine Hobbs batters in her no-hit performance and also slammed a pair of doubles for Snyder.

In Snyder's 4-3 victory over

Midland Gold in the Majors Division, second baseman Kim Harlin had a two-bagger for the winners who are now 2-0 in the tourney and face Denison (1-0) in the game of unbeatens at 9 a.m. today on Field No. 1.

Midland showed plenty of class in its big 13-0 win in the Senior Division game with Snyder.

JULIE OCHSNER got off to a slow start for the Tall City team, but finished strongly at the plate with a single and double.

Teammate Cindy Crow also had a two-bagger for Midland and that came in the second inning during a three-run outburst.

Miss Sanchez fanned six Snyder batters as Midland outthit Snyder, 9-3 during the rout.

Today, Midland faces powerful Hobbs, a 6-3 winner over Denison in the big Senior Division shootout. The Midland-Denison game will probably be the key with the winner taking over the driver's seat in a bid for a berth in the National Miss Softball America Tourney in Richmond, Va. later this month.

Hobbs was also impressive in its Senior Division win over Denison with first baseman Kandy Tindle blasting a home run over the center field fence with two teammates on base in the first inning.

ANNETTA CAMPBELL had a double for Denison, but it was a four-run rally by Snyder in the sixth inning that spelled the end for Denison.

Senior teams left in the tourney include Midland, Hobbs and Snyder with Denison sitting on the sidelines.

Denison, Snyder, Midland Gold and Hobbs remain in the Majors Division Tourney with the Gold team squaring off with Hobbs at 9 a.m. today and the loser being eliminated from the meet.

Finals are on tap Sunday at 1:30 p.m. in both divisions unless an extra game is needed of somebody comes up through the loser's bracket.

Tickets are $1 per adults and 50 cents per child for each session. Lancaster Park is located at the corner of Kansas and Alpine Streets.

Davis pays Texas a visit

By PAUL DOMOWITZ

Anyone who's ever met Al Davis, knows it's almost impossible to form a middle-of-the-road opinion of the man. He inspires either your best or your worst feelings. You may love him or you may hate him, but seldom nothing in between.

People have labeled him brash, cocky, pompous and bigmouthed. And you know what? They're probably right. But others have called him a winner, a great leader and a gridiron genius. And they too are not speaking very far from the truth.

In my own mind, the jury's still deliberating on Davis, the 47-year-old managing partner of the world champion Oakland Raiders, but a love-hate verdict is due any day now, as soon as I sort out a few more facts.

I MET Davis quite by accident last Saturday night at the Dallas-San Diego game at Texas Stadium. As I sat down in the press box to crank out a story for my newspaper's midnight deadline (it was 11:45), I happened to notice Davis sitting two chairs away.

I couldn't place him at first, but I knew I had seen him someplace before. Nobody could forget a dude who's hair looks like it's been slicked down with four bottles of vaseline. I was just about to ask him if he played with Sha-na-na, when his real identity suddenly became apparent to me.

Davis was one of the few spectators in Texas Stadium Saturday night, who wasn't the least bit interested in watching Tony Dorsett make his NFL debut. Instead, he was there to scout the San Diego Chargers, who figure to give Oakland some kind of battle for the AFC Western Division crown this season, although after watching them stumble around for four quarters against the Cowboys, it seems very doubtful that they'll be giving anybody a battle.

IT HAD been nearly two weeks since the trial involving George Atkinson's $2 million slander suit against Pittsburgh Steeler Coach Chuck Noll had ended, but the whole affair, which had dragged the game of professional football through the mud, was still fresh in Davis' mind. While he refused to admit it, he may have been using these few days away from the Bay area to try and put the entire incident behind him, although that's going to be very difficult for Davis or professional football to do for quite some time.

"There's really no bitterness towards Noll or any of the Steelers," Davis explained. "I thought it was very conciliatory of Chuck to name his own players among the 'criminal element' in the game. I don't really know if he did it to be conciliatory or just to save his own neck. But I think it diluted the aspect of George (Atkinson) being a criminal, and that's the important thing."

That's quite debatable. If that were true, then a murderer's admission that he had five other guys help him slit a woman's throat makes him that much less of a murderer. Come on, Al. Face facts. Atkinson is bad news.

If Atkinson's only notoriety in the cheap blow department had been his crushing forearm to Steeler Lynn Swann's skull last September, this whole thing might blow over in a couple months. But it isn't, and it won't. Old George has a knack for doing his dirty work just when the national television cameras are on him, and millions of viewers saw him break the nose of Russ Francis, the big, tight end for the New England Patriots, during a playoff game last year.

IF YOU stood Swann and Francis side-by-side, you would notice a very basic difference which Atkinson obviously overlooked. Francis is four inches taller and 60 pounds heavier. And his plans for Atkinson don't include a court battle.

"I won't get him the way he got me — with a cheap shot," promised Francis. "I'll get him the right way, and when I do, I'm going to blast him."

"I won't run around crazy looking for him," he said as he plotted the whole scene out in his mind. "Then I'd be playing his game. He likes to get you mad so you forget about playing football."

"What I'd really like to see is us ahead by three touchdowns late in the game, with them not having a chance to beat us. Then I'd like to see him make a lucky interception. It would have to be lucky because he doesn't have the ability to do it otherwise. But once he got the ball, he'd be fair game."

"Then I'd like to break him in two. I'd be doing everyone in football a favor."

The Raiders and Patriots aren't scheduled for a regular season meeting, so the only way Francis could pull off his plan is if the two teams meet again in the playoffs later this year.

DAVIS, AWARE of Francis' threats, was unconcerned. In fact, he was even looking forward to a rematch.

"I really hope we play the New England Patriots this year," he said licking his chops. "I'm looking forward to it. It would be a good football game, and it's good for professional football. Besides, it would also mean we'd be probably playing for the AFC championship. And you'd have to be crazy not to be hoping for that."

I think I'm almost ready to formulate a permanent opinion of that guy.

Dillard wins PGA Juniors

DENTON, Tex. (AP) — Andy Dillard of Tyler parred the second hole of a sudden death playoff Friday to capture the Texas PGA State Juniors championship.

Dillard, who had led or shared the lead through four rounds, fired a final round 69 for a 284 total and a tie with Houston's Ed Depperschmidt, who carded a 73 for the last 18 holes.

Cowboys go after number two

SEATTLE (AP) — The Seattle Seahawks, in the unaccustomed role of an unbeaten, will try to knock the powerful Dallas Cowboys from the undefeated ranks when the two meet in a National Football League exhibition game Saturday night.

A crowd of between 57,000 and 60,000 is expected in the Kingdome for the 6 p.m. PDT contest. It is the second preseason game for both clubs.

Seattle, 2-12 a year ago in its first NFL season, opened its 1977 pre-season last Sunday at San Francisco, where second-year quarterback Steve Myer came off the bench to engineer two fourth quarter touchdown drives as the Seahawks surprised the 49ers 34-24.

It was Myer's first game experience since the fourth preseason game last year against Denver when the former New Mexico star completed six of 10 passes for 51 yards. Against the 49ers, Myer replaced Seattle starter Jim Zorn, who had completed 11 of 13 passes for 115 yards and one touchdown before taking a rest.

Jack Patera, Seattle's head coach, said Myer may see more action against Dallas.

"I'd like to see Myer play a little more," Patera said. "Last week we wanted to see if he is capable of playing. We didn't see anything to alter our estimation of his ability."

Patera said he doesn't plan to employ any set substitution plan against Dallas. "Although we might look at more people than we did last week. But the game itself dictates that. I don't want to be locked in."

Dallas, 11-3 last season before losing to Los Angeles in the National Conference playoffs, will go with a patchwork lineup Saturday night because of a rash of injuries.

Coach Tom Landry said Doug Dennison and Scott Laidlaw will open at running back, replacing Preston Pearson, who has a groin injury, and Robert Newhouse, who strained a leg.

Seattle fans will not get a chance to see the Cowboys' $1.2 million rookie running back, Tony Dorsett, who aggravated a bruised left knee in Dallas' 34-14 victory over San Diego last week. He originally injured the knee July 21 in a rookie scrimmage against the Chargers.

Dorsett said earlier this week he could play against Seattle, but that Landry wanted him to rest the ailing knee.

The 1976 Heisman Trophy winner from Pittsburgh became Dallas' No. 1 draft choice in a controversial trade with Seattle. The Seahawks traded the draft rights to Dorsett to Dallas for four top Cowboys draft choices.

Landry said veteran quarterback Roger Staubach will play the first half against Seattle with Danny White scheduled to open the second half.

Staubach completed five of eight passes for 60 yards and one score against San Diego. White completed eight of 10 passes for 87 yards and two TDs. Speedster Drew Pearson was the leading receiver against the Chargers with four catches for 40 yards and two touchdowns.

In their only previous meeting, Dallas beat Seattle 28-13 in a regular season game here last year.

Connors gets by Stockton in marathon net struggle

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Stung by a first set loss, top-seeded Jimmy Connors withstood a strong challenge by Dick Stockton Friday to win a three-hour quarter-final match 2-6, 6-4, 10-8 in the 67th U.S. Clay Court tennis tournament here.

Stockton's service was broken in the first and third games of the final set, including a double fault to drop the latter game.

Connors opened a 5-1 advantage before Stockton rallied to capture the next three games, including a service break in the eighth game. Stockton broke Connors' service twice to tie the match at 5-5 and then took a 6-5 advantage.

Connors tied it 6-6 and 7-7, then both men traded service breaks to knot it 8-8.

Connors broke Stockton to take a 9-8 advantage before holding service to end the match.

Stockton broke Connors twice in winning the first set. Connors broke Stockton in the opening game of the second set and the two held service for the remainder of the set.

In other men's quarter-final matches, No. 8 seed Phil Dent of Australia avenged a Wimbledon quarter-final loss by ousting 18-year-old John McEnroe of Douglaston, N.Y., 6-4, 7-6 and second-seeded Manuel Orantes of Spain topped Terry Moor, Monroe, La., 6-1, 6-2.

Eleventh-seeded Balazs Taroczy upset third-ranked Harold Solomon in straight sets 6-4, 6-2.

Connors plays Dent in one of Saturday's semifinals with Orantes meeting Taroczy in the other.

Six-time winner Nancy Richey earned another chance at the title, getting past Iris Riedel of West Germany 6-2, 6-3 in women's play. Miss Richey, who turns 35 later this month, meets third-seeded Laura DuPont of Matthews, N.C. in Saturday night's championship match.

Miss DuPont rallied to defeat Cynthia Doerner of Australia 57, 6-4, 6-3 in her semifinal match.

Due to rain which has plagued the tournament all week, most of the men had to play third round and quarter-final matches Friday.

Orantes completed his rain-suspended match of Thursday with a 6-4, 6-3 triumph over Victor Amaya, Holland, Mich.

In Friday's other third round matches, Solomon outlasted an upset bid by two-time champion Zeljko Franulovic of Yugoslavia 5-7, 6-4, 6-2. Moor upset sixth-seeded Eddie Dibbs 2-6, 6-2, 7-5. Connors slipped past Brian Teacher 7-6, 6-4. Stockton handled Buster Mottram of England 6-4, 4-6, 6-3. McEnroe scored a 6-3, 7-5 decision over Bill Scanlon of Dallas and Dent defeated Alvaro Betancur of Colombia 6-3, 6-2.

Jimmy Connors really does seem to have his eye on the ball here during his hard-fought quarterfinal match Friday with Dick Stockton in the U.S. Clay Court

Championships in Indianapolis. Connors is the defending champion. (AP Laserphoto)

King making royal debut

HAUPPAUGE, N.Y. (AP) — Betsy King, playing in her first Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament, shot a five-under-par 67 Friday for a two-round total of 138 and took the lead at the midway point of the $100,000 Long Island Charity Classic.

Miss King, who will be 22 Saturday, held a one-stroke lead over Mary Mills. Miss Mills, the opening round leader with a 68, carded a 71 Friday over the Colonie Hill Golf Club course.

Miss Mills, from Laurel, Miss., opened with a 31 on the front nine Friday, but zoomed to a 40 on the back side.

Tied for third at 140 were LPGA Hall of Famer Kathy Whitworth of Richardson, Tex., Sandra Post of Canada, Jo Ann Washam of Auburn, Wash., and Jane Blalock of Portsmouth, N.H.

Jan Stephenson of Australia had a 70 and was at 141, one stroke ahead of Amy Alcott of Kansas City and rookie Nancy Lopez of Rosewell, N.M.

Friday's best round on the par 72, 6,520-yard layout was a 66 by Sue Roberts of Oak Park, Ill. But she had started with an 80 Thursday and was at 146.

Miss Roberts, however, made the cutoff of 150. A total of 63 advanced for the final 36 holes and a shot at the top prize of $15,000.

Miss King, from Reading, Pa., registered five birdies and missed only one green in recording her best round since she started playing golf 12 years.

"I only got my card two weeks ago," said the blonde who graduated from Furman University two months ago. "When I shot my 71 (Thursday), I had three bogeys. I also triple-putted twice. 'Frankly, I was surprised that I played this well today. I haven't been in the 60s that much.'"

Miss King, low amateur in last year's U.S. Open where she tied for eighth place, had contemplated waiting until next winter before joining the LPGA.

"Two things changed my mind," she explained. "First of all, the better weather at this time of the year allows me to play more golf."

Guillermo just keeps rolling along

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Guillermo Vilas, with a remarkable 32-match winning streak on clay and 24-match string on all surfaces, reached the quarterfinals of the $125,000 tennis classic at Muirfield Village Friday by winning two matches.

The Argentine defeated Yugoslavia's Nikk Spear 6-4, 6-2 in an early match, then scored a 6-3, 6-1 victory over Brian Fairlie of New Zealand as the weather cleared at the rain-plagued tournament.

A service break by Vilas in the fifth game of the first set decided the set. In the second set, Vilas allowed Spear only four points in the last four games.

Against Fairlie, Vilas trailed 3-2 in the first set, but he won 10 of the last 11 games and nine in a row at one point.

Vilas was extremely pleased after the match and said, "I played very well. I thought. I felt better than I have the entire tournament."

Vilas will face Tim Gullikson, a 2-6, 6-3, 7-5 upset winner over Stan Smith, in the quarterfinals Saturday.

Gullikson, from Lutz, San Clemente, Calif., defeated Bruce Foxworth, St. Louis, 6-3, 6-2; eighth-seeded Jeff Borowiak, Tiburon, Calif., beat Ismail el Shafel, Egypt, 7-6, 6-0; Billy Martin, Palos Verdes, Calif., defeated John Lloyd, England, 6-3, 6-4, and Sherwood Moore, South Africa, 6-1, 6-2; sixth-seeded Bob

In other matches, top-seeded Brian Gottfried of Lauderhill, Fla., defeated Ricardo Cano, Argentina, 6-0, 6-2; third-seeded Raul Ramirez, Mexico, 6-4, and Sherwood beat 15th-seeded Ray Stewart, Goosenek, 6-1, 6-2; sixth-seeded Bob closed out the match with a par four at 16. Mrs. Hammer bogeyed the hole to lose for the second time in nine years in the semifinals.

Miss Daniel dropped a five-foot birdie putt on the opening hole.

"My back got to me. I thought the pain would go away. It never did. What could I do?" said the victim of the worst 18-hole semifinal defeat in the Amateur which began 1895.

Miss Daniel lost a 2-up lead and then rallied on the back nine to reach the finals for the second time in three years.

The wife of a Foothill, Ont., factory worker, swept the first eight holes and was one under par for the 10 holes.

Miss Daniel, the daughter of a soft-drink executive, sank birdie putts on 12 and 14 and

Naber, Spitz live worlds apart

By BETTY GUNIBERTI
The Washington Post

Mark Spitz, who earned an unprecedented seven gold medals in the 1972 Olympic Games in Munich, was vacationing in Hawaii recently taking a breather after a yacht race. He was surrounded by the luxury made possible when he converted his Olympic gold into business contracts and endorsements worth $5 million.

As Spitz basked in tropical splendor, John Naber was quite possibly helping his mother carry groceries from her station wagon to their house in suburban Menlo Park, Calif. After winning four gold medals and one silver last summer in Montreal, Naber answered the attention with a giggle and returned unceremoniously to school.

Financially, Naber is a pauper compared with Spitz. But his decision not to turn professional after the Olympics won him the public affection Spitz couldn't beg, steal or buy.

THE RELATIONSHIP between Spitz and Naber is complex. In one breath Naber says that, "The world does look at Mark as not all together upstairs. In my opinion, he's not excessively intelligent. He started to believe his own publicity. I don't respect him much as a human being. I wouldn't want him to be my roommate."

In another breath Naber says, "I judge Mark on his mental strength. I probably would have blown a fuse after the sixth gold medal. He is by far a better swimmer than I am. I feel sorry about his reputation. I don't think he's rotten, a nurd or a klutz. He might be a little bit of an oversold commodity, but that was all he had to fall back on. I would hate to join the ranks of people putting down Mark. I like him as a person. I see through the medals."

Spitz says, "John Naber makes a lot of statements that don't make a lot of sense." Gary Hall, who swam with both of them, spoke of a still-existing disillusionment with Spitz within the swimming fraternity.

"People resented Mark's attempt to make money," said Hall, now a fourth-year medical student in Cincinnati. "Endorsements are not looked upon as evil—it's how you do it. Mark came across (on his numerous television appearances) as saying, 'I deserve this. I won the world.' He came across as egotistical and he's really not that way."

"The mistake he made was turning his back on swimming. Mark just figured he'd make it without swimming."

SPITZ SAYS criticism doesn't bother him any more. But he disputes the more cutting accusations.

"I never turned my back on swimming," said Spitz. "With the endorsements and the attention I brought the sport, practically putting swimming on the map, I certainly gave everything back."

Spitz is writing his autobiography with writer-sportscaster Mickey Herskowitz, who says of the book, "It deals with how we make heroes and what happens to them. Mark was not prepared for what happened. He had lived his life in a bathtub. He suffered. Once you win seven gold medals in the most historic Olympics, where do you go? It's like walking on the moon."

Spitz's medals are locked in a bank vault.

Naber's medals are in a plastic bag in his mother's closet. The medals are hers now.

Naber lives with his parents in much the same way as before the Olympics. "I make my bed, clean my room and take the dishes to the sink," Naber said.

He has no regrets over his decision to turn down what would have been an immediate lucrative professional career to lead USC to the NCAA swim title, something Hall says was "trivial compared to the Olympics."

Hall, a close friend of Spitz, described the differences between the two swimmers.

"Mark's driving force was to be a winner, achieve stardom and fame. His father was very demanding, fortune probably never entered his mind. Naber is into his religious convictions. At times he says he swims for Christ. John is an extremely unselfish person. He swims best in the team relay. Mark 90 per cent of the time would swim best individually."

"John didn't dislike losing as much as Mark did. On the day before Mark's final event, he said 'You know, I'd rather be 6-0 than 6-1. I'm not sure I want to swim the last one.' He wanted to be remembered for a long time for what he did."

"John could take a third or fourth or fifth and be just as happy. Even in '76, I could sense a feeling of Mark missing the spotlight. John doesn't need it as much. He'd be perfectly happy off strumming his guitar somewhere."

NABER HAS been doing just that. In addition, since graduating from USC in June, he has spoken at several swimming clinics around the country for a few hundred dollars a shot, has done a religious talk show for free and continues to answer mail.

A swim-suit manufacturer wanted Naber to pose in a suit and his medals but he refused, partly because "it reminds me too much of Mark's poster."

His plans are to move to Southern California in September and share a two-bedroom apartment near the USC campus with three male friends. Each will ship in about $100 a month. There, Naber said, he would "love to sit by the phone and respond."

He wants to continue to give talks and clinics and is practically requesting the color job at the 1980 Olympics. He also has spoken with people at Disney Enterprises about a job as a marketing executive in the public relations department, "the thought people behind Disneyland."

His location, Naber points out, will also enable him to have his teeth capped at a discount by USC's dental school, and "They show movies on campus for a dollar. You can't beat it."

Spitz says he is "very happy" with his life.

Asked for his feelings on his Olympic experience, however, he said, "I think it's one I might not go through again."

Lauda impressive

ZELTWEG, Austria (AP) — Niki Lauda of Austria drove his Ferrari around the Osterreichring course in 1 minute, 39.2 seconds Friday to post the fastest lap time during the first official practice for Sunday's Grand Prix of Austria auto race.

Lauda edged world champion James Hunt of Britain, in a McLaren, by .22 seconds.

Lauda, who is leading in Formula 1 championship standings with a 10-point advantage over Jody Scheckter of South Africa, and the Briton first appeared the only diver to stay under 1:40 on the 3.7-mile track.

NACOGDOCHES, Tex. (AP) — The Houston Oilers trimmed five players Friday, including eighth-round draft choice Steve Davis, and added linebacker Mark Johnson.

Released in addition to Davis, a wide receiver from Georgia, were Gary Broussard, wide receiver from McNeese State; Chez Evans, defensive lineman from Oklahoma; Bobby Joe Easter, running back from Middle Tennessee; and Jack LeVeck, linebacker from Ohio University. All were free agent signees.

NCAA ruling cuts automatic tourney invites from 21 to 16

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Weak college basketball conferences that automatically send a team to the NCAA national tournament each year will lose that privilege after one more season.

The NCAA executive committee agreed Friday to a plan limiting automatic tournament berths to champions of the 16 conferences holding the best won-lost records in the previous five years of Division I tournament play.

The 10-man committee liked the recommendation of its basketball study committee so much that it voted to begin the plan with the 1979 tournament, a year earlier than called for in the original proposal.

The change will reduce the number of automatic bids from 21 to 16, leaving half the berths in the 32-team tournament on an at-large basis. A selection committee will fill those spots from independents and other conference-aligned schools.

"Philosophically I agree with this and think it makes sense," said Neils Thompson, president of the NCAA. "It enables you to turn to records rather than make subjective judgments."

The proposal had drawn opposition from some weaker conferences who feared losing tournament appearances, and with them the money

Rising stars top AAU bill

By BOB INGRAM
Swimming World Magazine

No John Naber, no Shirley Babashoff, but still the United States swimmers are going full steam ahead to qualify in the AAU Championships, Aug. 18-21, for berths on international teams that will meet East Germany and Russia following the national meet.

The U.S.-German Democratic Republic (East Germany) meet, Aug. 27-28, has been sold out for six months — all 8,500 seats. The East Berliners believe this will be their own mini-Olympics. A week later, the American swimmers and divers fly to Leningrad for a dual meet with the U.S.S.R., Sept. 3-4.

This could be the most impressive two weekends of swimming ever, considering 28 of 31 world records are held by swimmers from the three countries.

Without Naber's and Babashoff's nine Olympic medals from Montreal, how good are the American teams that will go 1978 Olympic coach George Haines says the men's team will remain the strongest in the world.

A year ago, U.S. men's Olympic swimming coach, Doc Counsilman, said boldly of his team, "I think I can say we have the greatest international team we've ever had."

It was a pretty accurate comment. All the U.S. men did at Montreal was collect 12 of 13 gold medals, 11 world records, 25 of 33 medals and nine 1-2 finishes out of 11 individual events.

And if anyone wants to make this summer's trip to the German Democratic Republic (DDR), and the U.S.S.R., in most cases they'll have a gold-medal-winning Olympian to contend with.

The U.S. women, concentrating more on heavy weight work, are improving, but they won't catch the DDR women this summer. Their confrontation with the Russians, however, might prove to be a bit more competitive.

Mark Schubert, whose Mission Viejo team won both the men's and women's team title at last year's Long Course Nationals, commented, "The U.S. women are becoming more competitive internationally in the stroke events (breaststroke and butterfly), and the individual medley. We've never lost our competitiveness in distance freestyle. In sprint freestyle and backstroke, we still have a long way to go."

Many of the "new faces" which emerged at Canton, Ohio at the AAU Short Course Nationals were young women like Nancy Hogshead, 14, of Jacksonville, Fla.; Tracy Caulkins, 14, of Nashville, Tenn.; and Alice Browne, 14, of Mission Viejo.

For the American women to begin their game of "catch-up" with DDR women, those breakthroughs will have to come at the Long Course Nationals from girls like Jill Sterkel, 15, of El Monte, Calif.; Stephanie Elkins, 13, of Jacksonville, Fla.; Wendy Boglioli, 22, of Ocean, N.J.; Jennifer Hooker, 18, of Mission Viejo; Alice Browne, 14, of Mission Viejo; Cynthia Woodhead, 13, of Riverside, Calif.; and Nicole Kramer, 15, of Mission Viejo, in the freestyle events.

Since Babashoff has departed, Sterkel has made some notable breakthroughs. But Schubert cautioned his women swimmers shouldn't look at Sterkel as the ultimate as they did with Babashoff.

Eighteen men and 18 women swimmers will have the fortune of representing the United States on this trip, made possible by funds provided by Phillips Petroleum, national sponsor of AAU senior swimming. They'll be competing for that honor with some 800 to 1,000 swimmers from all over the United States at the National Championships, at the Mission Viejo International Swim Complex.

Win your event and you're assured of making the team. Come in second and you have a "good chance."

The returning Olympic champs include Jim Montgomery, 22, of Madison, Wis., in the 100 meter freestyle; Bruce Furniss, 20, of Santa Ana, Calif., in the 200 freestyle; Brian Goodell, 18, of Mission Viejo, in the 400 and 1500 freestyle.

The Texas Sherchenko was between 60 and 100 miles inside the limit when it was boarded about noon Saturday by a party from the cutter Decatur, the Coast Guard said. The vessel was for allegedly catching and keeping about 3,500 pounds more than its licensing provisions, may account for only 1 per cent of the total processed.

Delaware OK's grid lottery

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — A federal judge here has ruled that Delaware can operate a lottery based on National Football League games, a court clerk said Friday.

The NFL had gone to court seeking an injunction to halt the state's Scoreboard lottery, which the league contended threatened the integrity of pro sports.

In the 44-page opinion, U.S. District Court Judge Walter E. Stapleton invalidated the state's Touchdown II game, which directly paralleled illegal football betting cards by including fixed prizes and a pre-announced betting line tied to game point spreads.

He also ruled that the state would be required to include a disclaimer on all promotional material, saying that the lottery was not sponsored or sanctioned by the professional football league.

Despite the favorable ruling for the state, Ralph Batch, director of the Delaware lottery, said the agency will not run the football lottery this fall.

"It is not in existence, not on the drawing board and we are not contemplating it in the immediate future," he said.

Among the reasons Batch cited for cancelling the game was the high legal costs for defending the system in court and the fact the lottery "payout exceeded what was designed."

The lottery was the first state-operated betting game on sports, other than horse and dog racing and jai alai, in the country.

The NFL had filed suit seeking damages and a permanent injunction against the betting operation.

During the weeklong trial last November, the NFL produced a parade of witnesses who testified that sports betting games hurt the image of pro sports through a forced association with gambling.

They also contended the games violated trademark and property rights and were counter to federal statutes concerning interstate gambling because some advertising crosses state lines.

Among those taking the witness stand was NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

The league argued that if Delaware's games were upheld other states would follow the lead until legalized betting on sports became widespread.

The state had filed a counterclaim against the NFL for alleged harassment.

Oliver suspended

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Pirate outfielder Al Oliver, who confirmed Friday that he'd been suspended and fined by the National League, said that maybe he should have gone all-out in his confrontation with umpire Bruce Froemming.

"Now that the fine and suspension have both been thrown upon me, I have second thoughts about not hitting him," Oliver said while seated on a table in the Pirate lockerroom before a doubleheader with the New York Mets.

"If you're going to be fined and suspended, you might as well be doing it right," added Oliver, whose penalty was meted out by league President Charles Feeney.

On Tuesday of this week, the Pirates lost shortstop Frank Taveras when he was suspended for five games for throwing his bat at pitcher Joe Hoerner last weekend in Cincinnati.

Oliver was fined an undisclosed sum and he received a four-day suspension. It will run Saturday through Tuesday and cause him to miss three games.

"In a way, the suspension came at a good time for me due to the fact that I have a bad knee," Oliver said.

PATIO SALE

Check your attic, basement, garage and closets for good, but no longer used items — furniture, tools, — the list goes on and on. Every item should be priced, of course. You may want to combine your sale with a friend or neighbor. Choose your days, get your signs ready and place your ad in the Classified section. Your ad should list a few key items, give the date, time, and good directions.

A friendly Classified Advisor will help you word your Garage Sale ad for maximum results.

SUCCEED IN OUR MANAGER TRAINING PROGRAM

CAFETERIAS

If you've ever lived in the Southwest you almost certainly know Furr's Cafeterias. Our quality cafeterias are located throughout Arizona, New Mexico, Texas, Oklahoma, Colorado, Kansas, and Arkansas. What you may not know is that Furr's Cafeterias is one of the fastest growing companies in America. And, we're currently the nation's second largest publicly owned cafeteria chain.

Thinking about a career in management? We can offer you excellent opportunities for personal advancement in our aggressive, expanding company. If you have drive and enthusiasm, if you are willing to learn, you'll find success with us in the dynamic food service industry. To qualify for the training program, you should have a high school diploma or G.E.D. equivalent. College or vocational school background will be a plus. Leadership ability is a must, since a self-starter can motivate others. A neat, well-groomed appearance is essential.

Experience in food service is preferable, but not necessary due to our extensive training program. Experience in other professions should prove helpful to you. We seek individuals who require the minimum of supervision to get the job done right the first time.

Our manager trainees receive in-depth, on-the-job training in all phases of cafeteria operations. The management training program leads to appointment as an assistant manager and then cafeteria manager based on the quality of your overall performance. Top performers can quickly move into key management positions. New management positions are not a hollow promise—our growth ensures these opportunities. We expanded from 33 cafeterias in 1970 to 66 in 1976. By 1982 we plan to have over 100 units!

As you progress into management you may have the chance to relocate to some of the fine cities where we have cafeterias. You should be willing to accept these opportunities.

The starting salary for Manager Trainees will be based on your background and experience. The minimum starting salary is $175 a week. As your career progresses and your responsibilities grow, you can expect a rapid growth in earnings. Assistant managers earn from $11,400 to $18,000 per year. Cafeteria managers earn from $22,000 to $45,000 per year.

BENEFITS with your employment include group health insurance, retirement plan, special manager's life insurance program and manager and assistant manager receive free meals while on duty. Paid vacations are 1 week after 1 year service, 2 weeks after 3 years, 3 weeks after 10 years and 4 weeks after 15 years service.

Approved applicants will be on a 30-day probation period during training.
