New Threat To Auto Speeders

A new curb on auto speeders that promises startling results is shown in operation here—the Massachusetts State College highway speed meter. As a car passes the first of the two light source poles shown across the road, it starts the meter and as it passes the econd, 18 inches distant, the recording instrument's operation is stopped, giving the speed within the fraction of a mile at 30 and within two miles an hour at 60.

Baptist Revival To Close Tonight

The annual summer revival of the First Baptist Church, which has been underway for the past two weeks, will close tonight.

"We anticipate a great Sunday night closing service," declared Rev. O. K. Webb, the church's pastor who has been conducting the evangelistic services. "Mr. Prosser, who has been leading the singing and the young people and juniors in their work has grown into the life and esteem of the people in a great way."

PROSSER

Mr. Prosser, who is musical director of the Broadway Baptist Church in Fort Worth, will speak to the combined young people's and adult departments at the Sunday School hour this morning. It will be an assembled meeting in the auditorium.

This evening he will speak to the young people on "Problems of the Social Life." All intermediates and young people are invited to this service, which begins at 7:15.

Rev. Webb will preach two evangelistic sermons Sunday. Everyone is cordially invited. The musical service, held for 30 minutes preceding the sermon, has been particularly outstanding during the revival.

Large crowds have attended the services and much interest has been manifest thoughout the two weeks of the meeting, Rev. Webb stated.

BANKING CLAUSE MAY BE CHOPPED

Provision To Permit Deposit Banks to Underwrite Securities in Controversy

WASHINGTON, July 13.—Predictions were heard today that Congress will eliminate the provision in the compromise omnibus banking bill permitting banks of deposit to conduct a limited business in underwriting securities.

President Roosevelt yesterday expressed strong opposition to it. Members of the Senate banking committee said it is immaterial with them whether the underwriting authority is retained or stricken out.

A special committee of the American bankers association declined to take a stand for or against the provision.

Production Credit Loans for Half Year Are Greater Than Entire 1934

Most of the production credit associations in Texas have more loans on their books at the half way mark in 1935 than were made during the entire year of 1934, and a number of the associations have more than doubled their volume of business this year. This record of achievement was brought out in the address of Virgil P. Lee, Vice-President of the Production Credit Corporation of Houston, who was principal speaker at a meeting of representatives of production credit associations held in Amarillo July 12.

J. H. Smith, Secretary-Treasurer, of the Memphis Production Credit Association, reported that representatives from five associations in this part of the state were in attendance.

Mr. Lee also discussed the four permanent units of The Farm Credit Administration of Houston and pointed out the benefits Texas agriculture has derived from the tremendous volume of credit that these institutions have extended to the farmers and stockmen of the state. Credits and collections and various other problems of production credit were touched on by the speaker and later came up for round-table discussion by the group.

In addition to Mr. Smith, the Memphis Production Credit Association, which serves Hall, Donley, Collingsworth, Childress, Motley, Cottle, Foard, Hardeman, and part of Briscoe Counties, was represented at the meeting by H. W. Stringer, Memphis, C. E. Fletcher, Childress, W. O. Jones, Paducah and T. M. Haney, Thalia.

Mrs. Waley Convicted

Shows No Emotion as Jury Returns Verdict

By Associated Press

TACOMA, Wash., July 13.—Mrs. Margaret Waley was convicted under the Lindbergh law and conspiracy charges by a federal jury today for her part in the $200,000 kidnaping of George Weyerhaeuser.

The jury of two women and 10 men deliberated four hours and 45 minutes after taking the 19-year-old woman's case.

In reaching a verdict, the jury ruled that the nine-year-old timber fortune heir was taken across the Washington-Idaho state line warranting application of the Lindbergh law.

It also ruled that the woman assisted actively in transporting the boy and that she conspired with her husband, Harmon G. Waley, and Fugitive William Dainard, alias Mahan, to snatch the boy and collect the ransom.

The plump stolid woman who was described by her attorneys as a child of abject poverty, took the verdict without a flicker of emotion. She was nervous, however, as she talked with United States Marshall A. J. Chitty. A few hours earlier Chitty said while he was leading her from the court room she said to him, "My God, I hope the jury doesn't acquit me."

Coincidentaly with the verdict, United States Attorney J. Charles Dennis issued a statement that "on behalf of the Department of Justice, I hereby serve notice upon each and every member of

'SWAMP MURDER' STORY CHECKED

By Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 13.—Police turned to science today to check the story of Mrs. Blanche Dunkel 42, that the "swamp murder" of Ervin Lang, her son-in-law, was done by Mrs. Evelyn Smith, 35, for $500.

A chair, found in the Smith woman's apartment, named by Mrs. Dunkel as the scene of crime, was sent to the crime detection laboratory of Northwestern University for examination. Mrs. Dunkel alleged claim that Mrs. Smith strangled Lang left the police skeptical.

Banister recently tendered his resignation in order to accept the ministry of the Second and Adams Street Church at Elk City, Okla., and plans to move there first of the week.

Peace Moves Gain Spotlight Saturday

Peace moves gained a portion of the Italy-Ethiopian "war" spotlight Saturday as Secretary Hull of the United States declared in support of the Briand-Kellogg pact. The action evoked comment in London circles that a "united front" with Great Britain against war in Ethiopia would be possible if the United States joined Great Britain in the opposition of such war.

In Rome, Italian authorities declared that they had "in no way" violated the Kellogg pact. Military preparations on the part of Italy moved forward with unabated intensity.

Anti-Liquor Forces Plan To Fight Against Repeal

Panhandle anti-whiskey forces have announced their intention to develop an organized fight against the repeal of the state's prohibition law, according to Rev. O. K. Webb, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Memphis, whose aid in the crusade has been solicited by the Texas League Against Whiskey.

The 31st senatorial district, which embraces 26 Panhandle counties, will be organized for the cause of continued prohibition at a meeting to be held Wednesday at the First Baptist Church in Amarillo. A morning session will begin at 10:30 and the meeting will continue through the afternoon and evening.

County Organization

The county organization already has been effected, with Rev. O. K. Webb as chairman.

Each precinct in the county has a chairman, as follows: Precinct 1, J. M. Elliott; Precinct 2, Rev. G. H. Gattis, Lakeview; Precinct 3, Tom Cope, Parnell; Precinct 4, Cecil Reavis, Turkey.

The women's work in the county has been organized under Mrs. D. A. Grundy, of Memphis.

"It is important that all the chairman and leaders is the county organization should be present at the Amarillo meeting," Rev. Webb said, "and all other interested people are urged to be present."

Organized Effort

"The Texas League Against Whiskey," says E. A. Maness, district organizer, of Childress, "is an organized effort of prohibitionists to prevent the repeal of the state's present constitutional provision that prohibits the beverage use of whiskey.

"Every prohibitionist in the 31st senatorial district is invited to attend the convention and take part in its deliberations. Join this great uprising against the ravages of hard liquor and attend the convention at Amarillo next Wednesday, July 17."

Rev. E. A. Maness, senatorial chairman, presiding. 10:30: Song, America; Opening prayer, Rev. O. K. Webb, Memphis; Scripture reading, Rev. J. O. Haymes, Amarillo; Planning the County Campaign, Henry S. Bishop, Amarillo; Planning the Work in the Precinct, Rev. C. E. Jameson, Shamrock; Planning the Youth Campaign in the County, H. D. Torrid Weather Is Broken By Shower

Rain which began falling at 8:45 Friday night totaled .39 of an inch at 6 o'clock Saturday morning. An additional shower early Saturday morning brought the total to .51 of an inch.

The precipitation was considered highly beneficial to the growing cotton crop which apparently is improving daily.

June had five rainy days that brought 1.94 inches more moisture.

Three of July's first 13 days have been wet, adding 1.38 inches more.

Total rainfall since May 1 has been 10.52 inches.

Welcome relief came yesterday from the intensive heat of the last several days. The temperature's peak was 91, rising from a low of 70 Saturday morning, according to records of J. J. McMickin, local government weather observer.

OUT OUR WAY — By "Cowboy" Williams

SUN-TAN

By Nard Jones

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JO DARIEN, finishing her first year in college, learns her father is out of work. Jo gets a job as bookkeeper in a small marine supply house. She is engaged to BRET PAUL, athletic star.

DOUGLAS MARSH, handsome, wealthy, comes to the store to buy equipment for the summer colony he is establishing at Crest Lake. Jo works overtime, assisting with the order, and Marsh asks her to have dinner with him. She agrees. When Bret telephones Jo tells him she has extra work to do that night.

Marsh takes her to a fashionable restaurant. He tells her about his summer colony at Crest Lake and offers Jo the job of hostess there. Scarcely able to believe such good luck, she accepts.

Dancing with Marsh, Jo sees BABS MONTGOMERY, a school acquaintance. Jo is sure Babs will tell Bret about seeing Jo with Marsh.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VII

When Douglas Marsh's car had been brought to the curb of the Olympic Bowl and he and Jo had stepped inside, Marsh asked, "Would you like to ride around a bit before I take you back to the apartment?"

"It's a heavenly night for it," Jo admitted. "But—the truth is, I'm just a little tired. I think it's from the shock of being appointed the hostess at Crest Lake Inn. I know I won't believe it when I wake up in the morning!"

"In that case I'll telephone just to reassure you. Say about 9?"

Jo nodded. "I'm afraid I'll need the reassurance, Mr. Marsh."

They were soon before the Fendale, and Marsh hopped from the roadster to see Jo to the door.

"Really," Jo said, "I can't thank you enough for a delightful evening—and for the opportunity at Crest Lake."

"I didn't mean to make a business conference of it," Marsh laughed. "But I'm leaving for the lake tomorrow afternoon and I thought I'd better arrange everything tonight. Do you suppose you could come down day after tomorrow?"

"I think so."

"I'll see that your ticket is delivered to the apartment by tomorrow afternoon. And I'll make arrangements at Lyteen's for things to be charged to Crest Lake Inn. If they don't have just what you want I'm sure they'll get it for you." He held out his hand. "Good night, Miss Darien—but couldn't I call you Janet?"

"Janet?"

"Isn't that it?" he laughed. "I noticed the initials 'J. D.' on your hand bag at Brown's this morning, and I'm just guessing. Suppose you give me the right name?"

"It's Jo."

He smiled. "I like that . . . Jo." Once again he took her hand for the fraction of a moment. "Good night, Jo. I'll see you at Crest Lake day after tomorrow."

"Right," said Jo. "Good night."

* * *

Next morning she awoke with the first pink streaks of dawn, and lay abed reviewing the events of last night. Wide awake, she looked at her wrist. It was hardly 5 o'clock.

"Four hours until he telephones," she told herself. "And I actually won't believe it until he does telephone."

But Jo Darien was too young and alive not to believe that good fortune is always a possibility. After a delicious stretch between the covers she leaped from bed and took a quick shower. Then, stepping into her mules and throwing a robe around her slenderness, she sat down to write her mother and father. She knew that they would find it hard to understand just what had happened, so her letter to them was lengthy and involved, telling them the story from the time she had started to work for Brown until she heard the offer of still another position from the astonishing Douglas Marsh.

Her letter was lengthy, telling the whole story up to the offer from the astonishing Douglas Marsh.

"He's really a very charming person," Jo wrote her mother, "and just because I know you're always worrying I want to tell you that Mrs. Marsh, his mother, is at Crest Lake. They say she's rather a forbidding person, so I doubt if there's much chance of my having an affair with a millionaire, even if I wanted to!"

Jo thought it best not to mention the matter of the new clothes. That would be a little difficult to explain to Mrs. Arthur L. Darien, who had very definite ideas about such things.

She had just finished addressing the envelope when the telephone rang. It was just seven—two hours before Marsh had promised to call—and Jo wondered who could be telephoning her at this hour.

It was Tubby; and just a bit excited.

"What's this story I hear about your being at the Olympic Bowl last night with Douglas Marsh?"

"Well," Jo laughed. "It's true. You certainly get your news fast, Tubby."

"A bunch of us were in the University Inn last night when Babs Montgomery and Stanley Phipps came in from the Olympic Bowl. Babs was announcing it here and there in loud tones. She probably thought it would get to Bret eventually."

"It will, eventually," Jo said. "In fact, I'm going to tell him about it tonight. It was strictly business. I'm going to work for douglas Marsh."

* * *

Tubby's gasp was audible over the wire. "What do you mean?"

Jo told her ex-roommate the whole story, and when she had finished Tubby could only exclaim, "Well, all I can say is that you must have four-leaf clovers embroidered on your scanties. I never heard of such luck!"

"Nor I," Jo confesed. "You'll have to spend a week at Crest Lake this summer, Tubby."

"I'll try my best. I finally got everything packed, and I'm taking the afternoon train for home," Tubby told her.

Jo replaced the receiver after Tubby's reiterated promise that she would try to plan at least a few days at Crest Lake. It would be fun to have Tubby there for a while, Jo told herself. She was likely to get lonely with so many strangers about—all friends of Marsh, and therefore people with a lot of money, no doubt.

She'd really need some decent things to wear. Marsh had been right about that, and it would be part of her job to see herself well dressed. A day at Lytsen's would be like a dream come true, for it was the most expensive and exclusive establishment in the city. All Jo had ever bought there was a pair of gloves—and today she was going to order a complete summer wardrobe!

She looked at her watch again. Seven-thirty. She'd have time to dress and go out for breakfast before Marsh telephoned. To her faint discomfort she found herself looking forward to the sound of his pleasant voice. She wondered idly if already she were attracted by him, like any silly school girl; and then, facing herself suddenly in the mirror, she denied this self-doubt hotly.

This morning she found a new and somewhat expensive restaurant for breakfast, treating herself to orange juice, cold and sweet; to thin slices of toast with marmalade; and then an omelet as light as a feather—topping it all with the best coffee she had tasted in ages. When she received her check without dismay Jo could not help but be amused by the sudden difference in her attitude. Yesterday she had been thinking frugally, while this morning she had deliberately sought the most expensive, looking restaurant in the neighborhood of the Fendale.

Suddenly she thought: "Wouldn't it be terrible if I went back to the apartment and found a message from Douglas Marsh saying the whole thing was off?"

But when she reached the door of her apartment the telephone was ringing frantically. A little breathless, Jo answered it.

"Good morning!" Marsh said. "I was afraid for a moment that you'd run away from your new job—and me."

"Well, I'm telephoning to tell you that it's still all perfectly true. It wasn't the music and it wasn't the cocktails. I'm sending over your ticket to Crest Lake this afternoon. And they're expecting you at Lytsen's."

"I'll be there," said Jo gayly. And then, as a pang of conscience struck her: "Oh, and Mr. Brown. Did you tell him?"

"I'm telephoning from there now. Everything's fixed. He thinks I've picked a splendid addition to Crest Lake."

"Please let me talk to him," Jo said. When she heard Brown's gruff voice on the wire she went on, "I hope you're not angry with me, Mr. Brown, but you see—"

"Sure," he interrupted her. "It's all right. I'm mighty glad you got a good job. I guess I owe you a morning's wages, too."

"You don't owe me anything," Jo assured him. "If I hadn't been in your office yesterday morning I'd never have had this chance . . . Goodby, and good luck."

She turned from the telephone and walked to her window, looked down at the hurrying crowds below. For one dreadful moment she could not believe that this had happened to her, out of all the young women down there who wanted it to happen to them. If only Bret—

But Bret would be at Placid Beach.

Jo lifted her eyes and saw, beckoning over the roof tops, the huge sign which crowned Lytsen's.

Facts About Proposed Amendments

By Gerald C. Mann, Secetary of State

With this issue The Democrat is publishing one proposed amendment to the Texas Constitution, one to be published each issue until the seven are published, as written by Gerald C. Mann, secretary of state. Mr. Mann proposes to give a brief, concise and accurate summary of each amendment to be voted on in August. He does not endorse or oppose any of them, but is striving to acquaint the people with the contents rather than the merits of them.—Editor.

NO. 1.—OLD AGE PENSIONS

The first proposition to be found on the ballot in the August 24th Special Election on Constitutional Amendments is the so-called Old-Age Pension Amendment. This year, for the first time, the amendments will be numbered, according to Secretary of State Gerald C. Mann.

The Old Age Pension Amendment proposes to give the Legislature the authority to pay these pensions to persons over the age of 65, who are not habitual drunkards nor habitual criminals, nor inmates of any state supported institution. Those who are eligible must have lived in Texas at least five years, during the nine immediately preceding application and in the state continuously for one year.

All other restrictions and limitations would have to be set up by the Legislature.

The amendment authorizes the Legislature to accept money from the federal government for the same purpose. It is presumed that Federal funds would match state funds. The total pension amount to be paid by the state would be $15 per person per month. It is presumed that the federal government would match staate funds. The total pension per person per month in this case it is presumed would be $30. The amounts might be smaller, however; but not larger.

It is estimated that the cost of this pension to the state would run between forty and fifty million dollars annually. No provision is made for the income. It would be up to the Legislature to determine where the money would come from. The Legislature would have to enact such laws as it deemed proper to utilize the right granted by the amendment. The Legislature might do this at once, or some time later—or for that matter not at all. The amendment is permissive and not mandatory, though few doubt that some form of old age pensions would be enacted if the amendment is adopted in August.

SIX PATROLMEN WILL CONDUCT TESTS HERE

General Inspection Of Autos Will Be Made on Street

Local motorists are all looking forward to the traffic tests to be made in this city Wednesday, July 24, as a part of the State Highway Department's safety campaign.

Some, whose cars are in good shape, are not worrying, but those who fear their vehicles cannot pass the tests are planning to have them worked over and put in condition to meet the requirements.

On that day, from 1 o'clock in the afternoon until dark, six highway patrolmen will be in the city making the tests.

A traffic lane will be laid off on the north side of the square, along which motorists must pass, to ascertain if their brakes, lights, horn and muffler meet the state requirements, which are as follows:

The brakes must meet only one test, that they are capable of stopping the car in 45 feet when traveling 20 miles per hour.

All cars must have two headlights and a tail light, all burning and properly adjusted. Commercial trucks over 70 inches wide must have, in addition to the above lights, a white clearance light on the right rear corner, poems will be destroyed.

The horn must be audible for a distance of 300 feet.

All cars and trucks must be equipped with an efficient muffler, no matter what the length of the exhaust pipe. The use of muffler cutouts are illegal.

If your car fails to meet the requirements in any respect, you will be given a court subpoena. However, if within a reasonable time—two or three days—the motorist presents evidence to a local officer, showing that he has had the defects remedied, the subpoena will be destroped.

Every motorist contracted on the 24th will be required to pass through the traffic lane, and local officers will later be on the lookout for cars which were not tested, and will force compliance with the requirements.

The tests to be made here are part of a three days drive in the Childress district, which comprises Quanah, Wellington, Childress and Memphis.

What You'll Get

If your car passes all tests July 24 you will receive a sticker for your windshield, showing that your car is suitable to be used on the state highways.

THE VOICE OF THE UPPER RED RIVER VALLEY

THE RECKLESS AUTOMOBILE DRIVER

RECKLESS driving is the cause of more automobile accidents than all the defects of mechanism, blow outs, and bad roads.

The Democrat called attention Wednesday to the number of accidents happening during the course of a year, resulting in loss of life, injury and property damage, and said the greatest number of them are caused by the automobile drivers.

Attention is again called to the matter because it is serious and needs to be repeated often until the drivers become safe-conscious — taking into consideration the rights and demands of the general public.

"Science and industry have done their part in producing the automobile," says the Rotarian Magazine, "and hardly 15 per cent of all accidents can be laid to automobile defects. The culprit is the driver. Collectively, he has not yet mastered the new device, has not adjusted his nervous organism to its demands, has not yet mastered the technique of making this invention a part of his social routine with the economy of human wastage. He is, in short, not yet civilized."

The Rotarian lays a lot of the blame to the driver who does not know the driving customs and regulations. Lacking such knowledge he does not know how to signal to give intimation to the driver behind—such as putting a hand out—that he is about to do something other than proceed straight ahead. He will just this time pass a car on a curve or near the crest of a hill, and will take the chance that the other fellow will slow down at intersections, and himself will speed on through. He lacks courtesy—consideration for other people. "Courtesy is a product of the fine sort of imagination that instinctively pictures other people desiring the treatment you yourself want. To be complete, it needs the will power to do what you would like to have them do if the circumstances were reversed. It is not the cloak to be exhibited upon occasion for admiration of friends; it is a way-of-doing so regularly practiced that it best may be described as a habit."

There is another angle to the problem which the Rotarian did not discuss—the drunken driver. No one knows how to consider him. He may be courteous instinctively and may be a perfectly safe driver when not under the influence of an intoxicant. When liquor holds the wheel, courtesy may still prevail, but a warped judgment of speed, distance, and safety go into the discard. The result may be accident, injury, death or propety damage.

DICTATORS AWAIT CRUCIAL TEST

THE lost liberties of the world have been lost only for a while, and not for keeps.

So says Dr. Ellis Paxton Oberholtzer, Philadelphia historian, in an address before the University of Virginia Institute of Public Affairs.

It is Dr. Oberholtzer's notion that we are now progressing through a painful cycle in human affairs in which, distressed by the fix into which we have got ourselves, we are looking for miracles. Being unable to accomplish any miracles of our own volition, he continues, we tend to turn to dictators who promise that they can do what we cannot do.

We get, therefore, in one country after another, dictatorship.

Italy puts its fate in the hands of Mussolini, Germany follows Hitler, Russia goes to Stalin, and other nations find themselves turning toward similar men. And out of it all has grown a feeling that the democratic idea has been worked out, that people are not and cannot be capable of solving their own problems in a complex modern world, and that a regime in which there is a relentless driving power applied to the attainment of some simply and clearly defined goal is the only regime that offers mankind any hope.

It is precisely in this connection that Dr. Oberholtzer is worth listening to; for he insists that this is only a passing phase, and not a new, long-time trend in human affairs.

Eventually, he predicts, the dictators will demonstrate that they no more possess the magic password to a better world than the people en masse possess it; and when that day comes, humanity will shake itself vigorously and the dictators will go flying off like drops of water from the coat of an energetic spaniel.

Social Planning vs. Rugged Individualism Again

HEALTH

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Omit from you daily diet any one of a number of substances that you may think are inconsequential, and your life may be profoundly disordered as a result. Add certain appropriate foods, even though the diet otherwise may seem to be entirely satisfactory, and your life may be greatly improved.

This important fact was brought out recently when Dr. James S. McLester, in his presidential adddress before the American Medical Association, prophesied that man's place in future history will depend in no small degree on the food he eats.

Improvement of man and of animals has already been established as possible by improvement of the diet.

For instance, the children of immigrants to the United States are of a finer stock physically than are their ancestors. Chinese living under improved food conditions in Hawaii grow larger than people of the same racial strain in China.

* * *

From Japan comes the report that, when groups of children in Tokyo were given milk as a supplement to their diets, there was observed not only an increase in their weight and height but the children were more cheerful and happy and turned in better records than those who did not receive the additional milk.

Dr. McLester emphasized particularly the importance of educating people properly in the subject of diet. Much of our malnutrition comes from unenlightened selection of foods made by mothers who have to restrict the budget for food too greatly.

"It is unfortunate," says Doctor McLester, "that many of the cheaper foods, such as the potato, which carry the greatest number of calories and have the highest satiety value, fall far short of providing in sufficient quantities such essential food factors as vitamins, minerals and good proteins.

* * *

Vitamins and minerals can be obtained in abundance in fruits and vegetables, while proteins of high biologic value are found in meats, eggs and milk; but these are all among the more costly foods."

It is important, therefore, in selecting foods to be certain that you do not pay more for foods of lesser food value.

Most of our diets are still determined by the habits of our ancestors. If the food habits of any group of people are faulty because of prejudices, a gradual deterioration of that group of people will occur.

It is not possible, however, to select a suitable diet on the basis of prejudices. It must be selected on an exact knowledge of the constituents in the foods concerned and their values in the human diet.

Britian's national output of electricity increased 3 per cent in the past five years.

Trees that line some German highways have been painted with bands of phosphorescent paint so they will glow at night to warn automobile drivers.

Most fish have teeth, which they shed many times during life. New teeth are always grown to replace the old ones.

More than 2,000 kinds of articles are now being plated with chromium.

A national research committee has estmiated that the earth is at least two thousand million years old.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON, July 13. — Democratic leaders in Congress exert great power and are allowed to pick men for hundreds of federal jobs. If the voters boot them out of elective office, they can be sure of soft presidential appointments.

Cast your eyes on Majority Leaders Joe Robinson and Pat Harrison in the Senate, then on Speaker Joe Byrns and Rules Chairman John J. O'Connor in the House. The two senators, their friends, and their beliefs are of the most conservative hue.

Byrns is of the same stripe. O'Connor is a son of Tammany Hall, whose game has always been to scatter crumbs to the poor while collecting from wealthy special interests.

Times without number, these gents have writhed and held their noses as they helped push through New Deal measures so liberal as to be abhorrent to them all. What used to be principles with them succumbed to party regularity and the proceeds thereof.

* * *

Faithful Through Torture

Robinson and Harrison have been especially faithful. True, Harrison let out of his Finance Committee the bill which had virtually killed NRA before the U. S. Supreme Court did the job—but only after Roosevelt himself had weakened on the issue.

And Robinson could hardly stomach the holding company bill, which was such anathema to his close friends and associates in the power business—but he left a pair for the bill when he left town.

No two leaders ever took a harder blow on the chin than when Roosevelt, after being told at a press conference that Harrison and Robinson had said he wanted immediate action on his new tax program in connection with the nuisance tax extension which must pass in five days, declared the story was made up of "whole cloth." But, aside from their private expression, they kept quiet.

In defending the administration, the two Southern leaders have incurred the hatred of Huey Long.

Looks Will Count Centennial Year In Farm Contest

Special to The Democrat

DALLAS, July 13.—A Texas landscape decorated with farm and ranch homes as brightly gay as the hearts of Texas in Centennial year, is the goal of an enterprise recently launched by the A. & M. College under the sponsorship of the Dallas Morning News and Semi-Weekly Farm News.

A fund aggregating already $2,500 has been contributed by more than 40 Texas business institutions to be awarded as prizes to families who develop the most beautiful homes between now and next June. It is probable that the total awards to be distributed to winners in nine districts will be considerably increased.

It is the bold purpose of the farm and beautification campaign to make the Texas countryside as attractive to the millions who come here next year as the hospitable freedom loving Texans of San Jacinto and the Alamo would have willed it.

Sponsors and contributors to the contest are making an investment in a movement to make Texas as heartening to the eye as it was 100 years ago. Manifestations of an impulse to tidy up the whole State to welcome next year's visitors already are in evidence and there will be substantial rewards for those who excel in making their premises spic and span and bright.

The farm and home demonstration contest is open to any family and living along any state or federal designated highway in the State and that includes families whose homes adjoin such highways in towns of not more than 2,500 inhabitants. Probably between 75,000 and 100,000 families are eligible to compete for the money prizes. Information about the contest already is being disseminated by 150 women county home demonstration agents and 231 county agricultural agents and these workers long trained in home demonstration association with the rural families of Texas will render every possible service during the campaign.

As a further incentive to families to improve their households in celebration of Centennial year, plans for supplemental county beautification contests are being worked out through other agencies. Under the plans devised for the contest sponsored by The News publications, prizes will be awarded for the most excellent homes in the nine districts into which the extension service has divided its state service and in the state as a unit.

In the state contest a total of fifty-four prizes will be awarded to that number of families. On the present basis of a total of $2,500 in prize awards, first prize in each of the nine districts will be $75, with a first prize of $250 in the state, making a total of $325 for a home that wins first award in the district and first in the state. The scale of prizes will be revised upward to correspond with increased contributions.

The table of prizes follows:

State prizes:
First prize	$250
Second prize	175
Third prize	125
Fourth prize	25
Fifth prize	25
Sixth prize	25
Seventh prize	25
Eighth prize	25
Ninth prize	25
District prizes:
First prize	$75
Second prize	50
Third prize	25
Fourth prize	25
Fifth prize	25

Contest Regulations

Detailed rules and regulations for the contest and a breakdown of the table of 10,000 scoring points on which prizes are to be awarded may be obtained from The Dallas News or A. & M. College at College Station.

The contest contemplates a far broader program of home improvement than simply beautification of landscape and premises. Points to be taken into consideration in grading farm homes includes the building and physical equipment, the grounds, the soil, the crops, the livestock and the food supply and other resources. More than forty experts in agriculture were brought into council in making up the table of points and long hours were given to effecting a proper balance among the various items that go to make ideal living conditions and to present wholesome appearance to the outside world.

Time for Improvement

Hearty interest in the Centennial Farm and Home Demonstration Contest was expressed by Dr. T. O. Walton, president of A. & M. College, who has had a hand in directing the extension service almost from its beginning.

"It is altogether a fitting season for such an enterprise," Dr. Walton said, "and the contest can but result in blessing for every farm and ranch family in the state that engages in it. For more than a quarter of a century it has been my business to observe the changing Texas scene. Long ago, when I was district agent, I recall the impatient exclamation of a visiting English agriculturist who was in the habit of looking out upon some ramshackle makeshift of a Texas farm home and observing, 'They built as though they intended to remain no longer than overnight.' We have made great advances, but the average Texas farm home still needs more of the appearance of a place where it is intended that the persons of this generation and of succeeding generations shall abide in comfort and in happiness for themselves and for those whose eyes rest upon the scene.

"It is a work that challenges the best in the women and the men who are agents of the extension service, and they are of timer to promote it splendidly. I congratulate them on their opportunity for service and I congratulate The News on another demonstration of its loyal support of a better order in Texas."

INTRODUCING the Smallest Member OF THE BUDGET FAMILY

THE BUDGET FAMILY

My big brothers, TAXES, Food, Clothing and Rent,
Grow great on the money they've caused to be spent.
The biggest of all, brother TAXES, looks down---
"Electricity, it gets smaller," says he with a frown
"It is always so handy: it works day and night,
Politicians attack it with main and with might,
But they don't notice ME--the biggest of all.
Electricity is tiny and willing, and yet
I'm jealous of all the attention it gets.
But, perhaps that is better for ME after all.
For if I get attention, 'twill end in a squall
Which will stop ME from growing, and THAT isn't all--
The voters will clamor to cut down MY size.
So let Utility 'take it'--till people get wise."

PALACE

Will Rogers' fans of the city who saw the preview last night at the Palace of Will's latest production, "Life Begins at 40," were unanimous in declaring it the greatest and most hilarious thing he has ever done.

Rogers portrays a double-fisted, tender-hearted country editor who proves that the years after forty are the best and goes in quest of the fun-tain of youth. He launches series of situations that smash the funny bone to smithereens.

"Life Begins at 40" relates the romance of a young school teacher and a youth "railroaded" to prison. The shrewd country editor brings to light facts that clear the boy, and stirs up a hornet's nest of fun in the process.

Among the high spots in the picture are Will's efforts at hog calling, and his pistol duel which he wins through wisecracking.

RITZ

The current attraction at the Ritz is "The People's Enemy," which opened with a preview last night, and featured Lila Lee, Melvyn Douglas, Shirley Grey, Roscoe Ates and others.

"The People's Enemy" narrates the attempts of a notorious racketeer to avoid serving a nine-year term in the Federal penitentiary, to which he has been sent for evasion of income taxes. When the efforts of shrewd lawyers fail to bring about his release on parole, he escapes from prison through a ruse. He is trapped in his lawyer's office, the scene of action-packed climax.

STUNT FLIERS PERFORM TODAY

Lou Foote, well known stunt flyer, and Jean La Rene, girl transport pilot who remained in the air over eight days, performed in Memphis yesterday and will continue their air circus here today.

Passengers are being taken up in Foote's 225-horsepower plane for a nominal charge. Student instruction is also being offered.

Foote will be remembered as the pilot who flew Jim Boze, explosives pilot who experimented in rainmaking over Waxahachie last year. On one occasion his plane caught fire and Foote made a daring and spectacular landing to safety while his ship was in flames.

(MEGA-THEERY-UM)

AMONG THE MOST INTERESTING OF THE EXTINCT MAMMALS ARE THE HUGE GROUND SLOTHS, OF WHICH THE ONE PICTURED HERE, IS THE LARGEST KNOWN TO SCIENCE. IT ATTAINED THE SIZE OF AN ELEPHANT, WITH A TOTAL LENGTH OF EIGHTEEN FEET. IT SUBSISTED ON BRANCHES AND LEAVES - REARING ITSELF UPRIGHT AND PULLING THEM DOWN TO WITHIN REACH OF ITS LONG, PREHENSILE TONGUE.

NEXT WEEK THIS SPACE WILL BE DEVOTED TO AN ILLUSTRATED DEFINITION OF THE WORD "DINOSAUR."

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

by WILLIAM FERGUSON

The MULE DEER,

OR ROCKY MOUNTAIN BLACK TAIL, RANGES THROUGH THE BAD-LAND REGIONS OF THE ROCKY MOUNTAINS./ THE NAME "MULE DEER" COMES FROM THE LONG, BURRO-LIKE EARS.

(BLACK-TAIL) (COLUMBIA)

THE NAME "BLACK-TAIL" IS MISLEADING/ ONLY THE TIP OF THE TAIL IS BLACK/ THE COLUMBIA BLACK-TAIL, OF THE WEST, IS CORRECTLY NAMED "THE BLACK-TAIL."

THE BUCKS KEEP TO THEMSELVES DURING THE SUMMER... EITHER SINGLY, OR IN BANDS... WHILE GROWING THEIR NEW SETS OF ANTLERS

BY WINTER, THEY HAVE POLISHED ALL THE VELVET FROM THEIR ANTLERS, AND EACH BUCK GOES FORTH TO BATTLE FOR A MATE

LATER, THE BAND UNITES AND LIVES TOGETHER AS A PROTECTION AGAINST WILD ANIMALS

COUGARS TAKE A HEAVY TOLL OF MULE DEER LIVES.

THE FAWNS ARE BORN IN THE SPRINGTIME... HANDSOMELY SPOTTED, TO BLEND WITH THE SURROUNDINGS./ TWINS ARE THE GENERAL RULE.

I'M WORKING ON AN ELECTRIC LIGHT THAT WILL BRING ME FAME! IT GOES OUT BEFORE YOU PUSH THE BUTTON—AND THEN YOU DON'T HAVE TO PUSH THE BUTTON!

I'M TAKING YOU OVER TO SEE MY NEW ALARM CLOCK!—FOR INSTANCE, YOU SET IT TO RING AT SIX O'CLOCK, BUT IT GOES OFF AT FIVE—THEN YOU ROLL OVER AND SNOOZE FOR ANOTHER HOUR!
