Mr. and Mrs. Brasher will make their home near Cranfills Gap. We welcome these young people to our community, and wish for them many years of happiness.

School opened at Cranfills Gap Monday morning, Sept. 25, with something over 300 pupils. The teachers were all present and ready to take up their duties. Supt. R. C. Moor made a short talk and introduced the teachers, after which books were issued and lessons assigned. The school runs seven busses and brings children from many miles around. The teachers, besides the superintendent, Mr. Moor, are: Mrs. R. C. Moor, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Dahl, Mr. and Mrs. D. Ludwick, Mr. Robert Stanley, Mr. Kruse, Mr. Ellengson, Miss Hanna Hoff, Miss Cornelius, and Mr. Rogers.

BRACKETED

By BRACK CURRY

President Roosevelt's pleas for abandonment of partisanship on a political basis for the duration of the Second World War has not met with unanimity of approval. What is the reason for this?

The reason is that all Americans are not convinced that the abandonment of partisanship will be a two-way proposition. Conservative Democrats and Republicans who have combined since the 1936 election to block many new deal measures in Congress wonder if the President, in asking for their support, is willing to make certain concessions on his own part.

If partisanship is to be discarded in the interest of keeping the U. S. out of war, what better place to start than at the top of the political ladder—with the President himself?

The President's opponents, as intensely loyal as the chief executive himself, realize the necessity of substituting principle for politics in the consideration of foreign policies while the nations of Europe are at war.

But they are not willing to abandon the battle front at home where they have waged unceasing warfare against new deal measures which they have believed to be inimical to the welfare of the country. They insist, and rightly, that the President make a distinction between foreign and domestic issues in pleading for abandonment of party politics in the consideration of new legislation.

The greatest step which the President could take in achieving the united front at home would be a frank and unequivocal declaration that he will not be a candidate for a third term in November, 1940.

Governor Landon enunciated this thesis last week when he said that the greatest single contribution President Roosevelt could make in the present emergency would be to tell the country that he did not want and would not accept a third term.

"I heartily agree with the President that . . . the Congress should adjourn partisan politics when it comes to consider what our attitude is to be in the face of the European war. But I submit that he himself should make the first move in that direction by removing the biggest stumbling block of all in the part of nonpartisan discussion, namely, the third term issue," Landon declared.

It must be remembered that the third term issue was brought to the fore after the present "emergency" arose by new dealers, not by administration opponents. Immediately upon the outbreak of war, leaders of the administration publicly stated that the European war would "insure" the re-election of Mr. Roosevelt in 1940.

The present unfortunate discussion of the third term issue cannot, therefore, be considered as a movement launched against the President by his critics, but rather as one provoked by his own supporters.

There could be only one reason to justify the re-election of Mr. Roosevelt in 1940. That reason would be that he could command unanimous support throughout the country in the face of the dangers abroad to the peace and welfare of the U. S.

If Mr. Roosevelt were not completing his first term, there is no doubt that he would be re-elected next year, in spite of the great opposition to his domestic program. But the very fact that he would be running for third term against a tradition as venerable to Americans as many which the English cherish in their political system precludes the unanimity of support which alone could justify his standing for re-election.

During the remainder of his second term the President must propose policies affecting the welfare of each and every American. His sincerity of purpose must be clearly and unequivocally established in the minds of the people and more specifically the members of Congress and the political leaders of the nation.

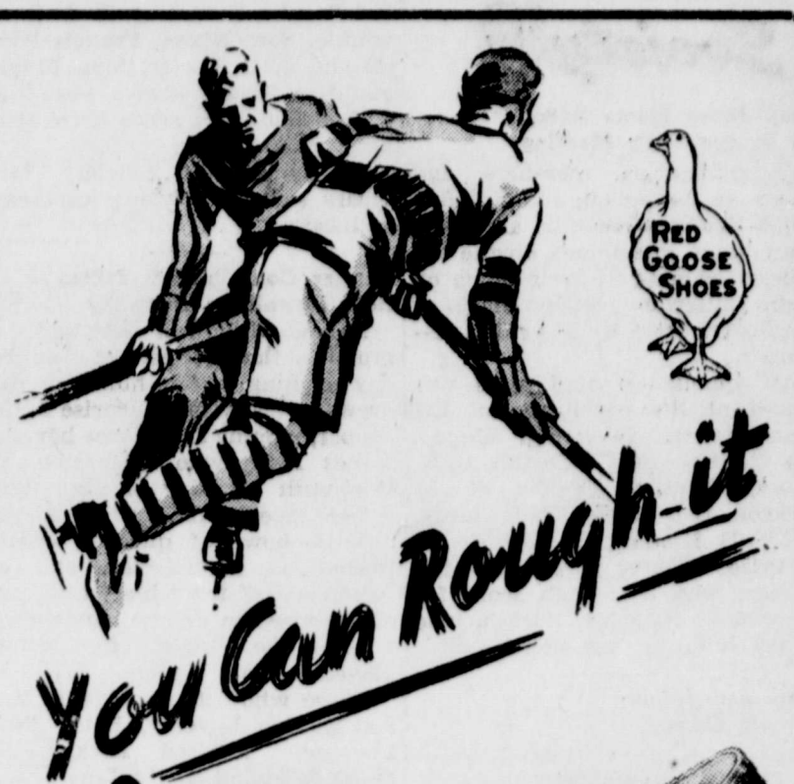

In order that this may be done, the spectre of the third term must be removed once and for all from the American political scene. Only one man can do this—Mr. Roosevelt.

As Governor Landon said, "In normal times it is altogether natural, politically speaking, that a president nearing the end of his term should hesitate to throw away one of his trump cards and remove himself from the political picture so long in advance of the conventions. But these are not normal times. Something far more important than mere party considerations is at stake . . ."

Heretofore the necessity of maintaining control over Congress has been used by the President's friends as justifying his refusal to declare against a third term. But there is no longer any need of holding the whiphand over Congress, made compliant by the crisis abroad.

It is noteworthy that the President's recommendations are favored by Senator Carter Glass of Virginia and a number of other conservatives, anti-new deal Democrats.

Then why not a statement from the President?

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
Edward S. Bayless, Pastor

Sunday School, 9:45. Mr. Frank Kelso, superintendent.

Morning Worship, 11:00.

Vesper Worship, 5:00

Boy Scouts, Monday at 7:30.

Woman's Auxiliary, Second and Fourth Tuesdays at 3:00

Mid-week Worship, Wednesday at 7:30.

"The Simplicity of It" is the subject of the sermon announced by the pastor for the Sunday evening (vesper) hour, at the First Presbyterian Church. The time is five o'clock.

The background of the sermon is laid in Romans 10:1-13 and is a presentation of the simplicity of the Christian way of salvation as contrasted with the difficult and confusing formula of other religions. The pastor would like to take this means of giving special invitation to any who may be confused and perplexed with this particular matter.

The morning hour of worship is given over to the Sunday School in the interest of a church-wide "Rally Day". The regular order of worship will be changed to suit the situation, and instead of a sermon, talks will be made by both children and adults of the Sunday School. The program, with the theme, "Neglected Neighbors" should be of interest to all who regularly worship with this congregation together with all parents and friends of the children of the Sunday School; and ought to be an occasion for increased attendance.

Mid-week worship will be resumed Wednesday after a two-weeks' interval occasioned by the Methodist meeting. The pastor will introduce a series of Home Mission studies to be carried thru the month of October. The time of this meeting, until further notice, will be 7:30.

UNITY PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, T'VILLE

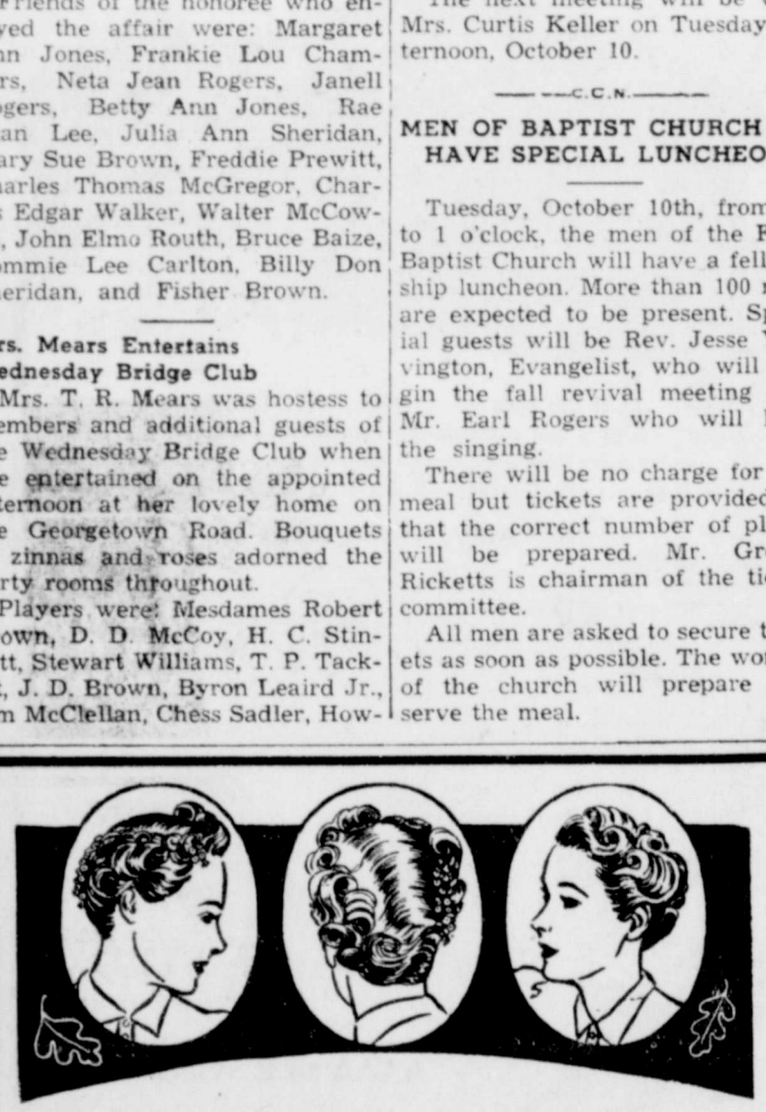

A Rally Day program in the Sunday School, in which the entire School will take part; celebration of the Lord's Supper at the morning church hour; and a special sermon Sunday night by the pastor in keeping with a Church-wide "Sabbath Observance Day" are features announced for Sunday by the Unity Presbyterian Church, Turnersville.

Throughout the Church, Sunday is being observed as a day of special effort in "rallying" the forces of Sunday School and church. In keeping with the special emphasis being placed this year on evangelism, the Southern Presbyterian Church has prepared program material setting forth the present challenge to the Church in the field of Sunday School expansion. Various classes and individuals in the Sunday School are responsible for the program planned to take the entire Sunday School period, beginning at ten o'clock.

The pastor will preach at the morning hour on "Thinking in World Terms." Members of any church which holds Jesus Christ to be Savior and Lord are cordially invited by church and pastor to take part in the Communion, which will be served after the sermon.

"Remember the Sabbath" is the subject of the sermon for Sunday night.

A party, composed of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Mayes, Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Palmer, and Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Diserens and family, spent Sunday at Buchanan Dam.

October 1, 1934 will always stand out as a memorable day in the life of Willis Jones, of Gatesville, this particular date marking his retirement as mail-carrier after 30 years of service. During his 30 years of service Mr. Jones has traveled on his route more than 330,000 miles without crossing the county line. Considering the total distance traveled, if Mr. Jones had made his journeys in a straight continuous line, he would have gone around the world thirteen times.

ARW

Gatesville redeemed her record of 1933 in the season's openers Friday afternoon on the local field when the comparatively and inexperienced team turned back a much heavier Moody club, 18-6. The Hornets took the field with a spirit that caused spectators to gasp with awe, and it was this same spirit of renewed determination that led the locals to their first victory since 1932.

The Snooper checks up on college antics: Charles Baker was home over the week end. He claimed he came home to get a hair cut. Charles, a poor excuse is better than none, but deep down in your heart you know the reason you came home. Byron Leaird McClellan was not home this week end, but was here the week end before. There is something here that attracts Byron's attention, but he is going over in a big way at Baylor. Luck to you, slime. Faye Hamilton, student in John Tarleton, still likes to receive her long distance calls from a localite.

Earl Huddleston, of Oglesby, and legislator from this district, assured a representative of the News Monday afternoon that he would continue to support the Texas Centennial, explaining that he felt that the vote of Coryell people on the amendment two years ago indicated they were for the Centennial.

Friday night of this week the high school girls are having a slumber party. Miss Adams, our new homemaking teacher, is chaperoning the group and we are looking forward to a pleasant time. The senior class has not yet become organized. We plan to elect a sponsor and organize our year's activities this week. There have been twenty-eight students to enroll, and we expect others to join us.

Friday at noon we are having a pep rally for the football team in the gym. We are planning to give the boys a good send-off for the game with Flat, Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Davis Melton, who has spent the summer in the W. A. Melton home, is visiting relatives in Shreveport, Lake Charles, and Houma, Louisiana. She will sail for Havana, Cuba, Oct. 2 to join her husband, and will spend the remainder of the year there.

Pep Leaders and Mascots Named

At a recent meeting of the Gatesville Hornet pep squad, the three leaders were elected, and also the mascots were named. Head yell leader is Miss Bettye Burdette, daughter of Mrs. Doc. Rutherford of this city, and her assistants are Miss Melba Hardin, daughter of Mrs. Henry Wiegand of Plainview, and Miss Frances Reesing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Reesing of this city. Misses Hardin and Burdette are seniors and Miss Reesing is a jnior.

The leaders will be dressed in white uniforms; the head leader will wear a white flannel bolero with a Hornet emblem on the back.

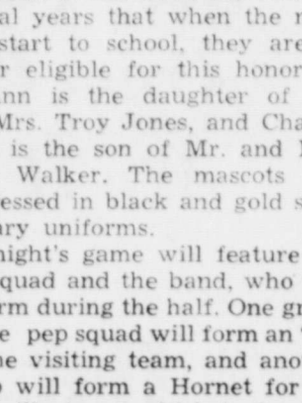

Mascots for the year will be Charles Luke Walker and Joann Jones; Joann replaces Belva Jean Patterson, who started to school this year. It has been the rule for several years that when the mascots start to school, they are no longer eligible for this honor.

Joann is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Troy Jones, and Charles Luke is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Luke Walker. The mascots will be dressed in black and gold satin military uniforms.

Tonight's game will feature the pep squad and the band, who will preform during the half. One group of the pep squad will form an "M" for the visiting team, and another group will form a Hornet for the Gatesville team, which is the first time this has been done. They will be accompanied by the Gatesville Band.

Drum Major Carl Floyd will lead the band. Majorettes are: Misses Adeline Powell, Sara Frances Graham, Gene Stinnett, Mary Margaret Holmes, and June Marie Chamlee; they will wear gold and white uniforms.

C. H. WALLACE AWARDED MEDAL BY EDISON ELECTRIC INSTITUTE

C. H. Wallace, above, and the Edison Electric Institute Medal which he was awarded recently for resuscitating 9-year-old Billie Doris White, of Gatesville, April 5, after she had been rendered unconscious by electric shock sustained when she came in contact with a live conductor.

At a division meeting of Community Public Service Company employees in Clifton, September 23, Claude Wallace, district manager of the company here, was awarded the Edison Electric Institute Medal for saving the life of 9-year-old Billie Doris White, of Gatesville, by application of the prone pressure method of artificial respiration.

It was on April 5, 1939, that Mr. Wallace, on his way home to lunch, found little Billie Doris lying in the bottom of a ditch, unconscious and burned on the hands from contact with an underground electrical conductor. Acting quickly, he released her from the wire by making a sling of her dress, applied artificial respiration until she was consciousness and sent her to a doctor for treatment and observation. After it was ascertained that she was out of danger, full particulars of the accident were forwarded to the Edison Electric Institute by the company's safety director, and led to the awarding of the medal, an honor accorded to only a handful of men in the electrical industry each year.

The medal awarded to Mr. Wallace is of historical significance, having in its composition copper taken from the original mains laid down in New York City by Thomas Alva Edison in 1881, as part of the first underground distribution system in the world supplying current for electric light and power. It was accompanied by a Certificate of Award.

The presentation was made before approximately 60 Community Public Service Company employees and their wives, and a number of prominent Clifton residents, including Mayor and Mrs. H. P. Jones.

JOHN KNOTT'S CARTOONS WILL BE SHOWN AT FAIR

Two famous collections of John Knott's original cartoons will be featured in the Historical Exhibit in the Hall of State during the 1939 State Fair, Oct. 7 to 22, it has been announced by Professor Herbert Gambrell, curator of the exhibits at the Hall of State. All of the original Knott's Cartoons on the World War which appeared in the Dallas News will be exhibited as will a display of original cartoons he has done on the State Fair of Texas.

In addition to these famous cartoon collections, many other interesting historical exhibits will be displayed. Prof. Gambrell, who is building an old fashioned newspaper plant said he might have some of the material gathered for this display on exhibit.

BAYLOR BEARS TO MEET S.W. PIRATES SATURDAY

The Baylor Bears are all set for their first test of the season here Saturday when they go up against the Southwestern Pirates from G orgetown.

Head Coach Morley Jennings was still doubtful as to the actual strength of this year's eleven as scrimmage play during the past week has been very ragged at times. Passing seems to be the thing that is giving the Bear mentor his biggest worry.

This fall, there will be no Billy Patterson to take care of the chunking end of the overhead play and the Bruins will have to rely upon Jack Wilson and Dwight Parks, both sophomores and James Witt, letterman back to take over the passing chores.

This year's running attack should be greatly improved over that of last fall's eleven with hard running sophomores just waiting for a chance to prove their ability. It is in this department that Jennings hopes to pack enough power to make the aerial game come easier.

Scrimmage sessions during the week indicated that Jennings would start a veteran lineup in the Southwestern clash with Sherman Barnes and W. J. Wimpee, ends; Franks Marx and Bennett Edwards, tackles; Bobby Taylor and Leonard Akin, guards; Robert Nelson, center; and a backfield made up of Fred Graham, Jack Wilson, Jimmy Witt and Milton Merka.

At intervals during the 16 days of the Fair short programs have been arranged at the chemurgic exhibit when those interested in the science will explain their work.

Elmore L. Torn of Longview, has been loaned by the East Texas Chamber of Commerce to direct the exhibit both here and at the South Texas Fair in Beaumont. The exhibit will occupy 3,000 sq. feet of space. Exhibits will come from various Southern States, Canada and Mexico.

KEEP HER EYES YOUNG
with Better Light for Better Sight

HOW I. E. S. LAMPS HELP EYES

Translucent glass bowl conceals bulb, filters out harmful glare, eliminates harsh contrasts of light and shadow. Specially designed shade intensifies downward light and spreads it over broad area. Ask for free trial.

They say you can tell a woman's age by her eyes. And if that's true the time to start keeping your daughter's eyes young is when she first starts using them for close seeing. For if there's anything that's destructive to beauty, it's the crow's-feet and wrinkles that come from squinting in poor light.

Begin by giving your child an I. E. S. Study Lamp for her study table. Have better light elsewhere in the house, too. Place an I. E. S. Floor Lamp beside your easy chair. See that lamp bulbs are the proper size and type for easy seeing; that bare bulbs are properly shaded. We'll be glad to help you with free light conditioning suggestions.

Chapter One

"Extra! First edition of the Darthmouth Graphic! Free today! All about the Winter Carnival!"

The freshman "heeler", hawking his papers, trotted in and out among the heavily clad men who were hoisting the great street banner across Main Street — the banner that announced the coming of Winter Carnival. It was early February in Dartmouth — a time when, each year, the college is given over to the most spectacular winter sports festival in America.

Through the town the heeler went, handing out his papers — and then across the snow-covered campus, where the boys had congregated in groups, some discussing the delectable "babes" they had invited to Carnival, others busily erecting the huge snow statue of Dartmouth's founder, Eleazar Wheelock, without which no Winter Carnival is complete.

A man just past his middle twenties ambled across the campus, accepted one of the papers (Compliments of the Editor!") and glanced over it as he walked. He stopped to greet a busy-looking student who paraded by with a retinue of sensation-mongering newsmen, had once been a sweet young Queen of the Winter Carnival of Dartmouth. But what he did not know was that she had, at the same time, been engaged to John Weldon, then a Dartmouth ski champ, now a leading light of the faculty!

"Miss Baxter — hey, Miss Baxter! Just one minute please, Miss Baxter!"

The young girl ran fleetly through the Grand Central Station, the pack of reporters at her heels. It was Ann Baxter, younger but scarcely less beautiful sister of Jill.

With the deftness born of experience she eluded the news hounds, riding triumphantly through the train gates on a passing baggage truck and clambering onto the waiting train — the Darthmouth Carnival Special.

The gate outside the track was the scene of a bedlam of leave-taking as young girls bade goodbye to their fluttering mammas and ran to catch the train that would bear them to their "dates" at the Carnival.

"My ski shoes! Mother, did you pack my ski shoes?"..."Now don't worry, I won't catch cold"..."Goodbye, goodbye". . . . "Are you sure you've got everything?"..."So long, Mom, see you Monday"..."Be a good girl now."

"You could see your old heartbeat, Johnny Weldon," she coaxed.

bundle of clothes on his shoulder.

"Hello, Mickey. All dated up for the Carnival?"

"Between the ski races and my pressing business," grinned Mickey, "a date would only get in my hair...Say, Johnny, have you seen that paper? You're supposed to be faculty adviser. What does that punk of an editor think he's doing?"

He pointed to the screaming headlines and luried pictures spattered over the front page of the tabloid paper.

"Take it easy, Mickey," said Professor John Weldon. "I think the college will survive it. Good luck in the ski races tomorrow."

Don Reynolds, the student editor who had converted the once-dignified college paper into a sensational tabloid, was an cocksure youth bent on showing the world how a newspaper really should be run. The son of "Tiger" Reynolds, a famous Dartmouth football player who had subsequently become an ace newspaperman, Don had resolved to build up a huge circulation by hippodroming his paper and the news it carried.

To faculty adviser John Weldon's mild protest, Reynolds replied belligerently: "There's only one proof of success in this game — circulation. Watch up grow!"

He picked up a New York tabloid and spread it on his desk. The headline shrieked: "NO MORE DUKES," SAYS DUCHESS JILL. "I'LL GET HER BACK," VOWS DUKE. The front page was devoted to pictures of "Duchess" Jill Baxter, a truly gorgeous young creature, and the streamlined Duke she had just divorced.

The smart young collegiate editor knew that Jill Baxter, now being pursued across the continent by her ducal ex-husband and a Sudden changes of temperature during the treacherous months of cold weather are dangerous. If you follow the old-fashioned practice of "huddling" in one or two rooms while the rest of the house remains unheated — YOU ARE TAKING CHANCES WITH YOUR FAMILY'S HEALTH. Plan now to have adequate heat and healthful temperatures in every room in the home this winter. It's the modern way to fight the "common cold."

"Jill!"

"Gosh, Rookie, what've they been feeding you this year? You're as big as I am."

"Gee, it's fun to see you! After I got your phone call from Chicago I couldn't sleep a wink. Do you know who was waiting at the station? The Duke — still trailing you!"

Ann exulted at the thought of having her sister with her at the Winter Carnival, and offered her one of her three "dates" — but Jill, it appeared, had other, larger plans.

"Thanks — I've got my own date — with a deck chair on the S.S. Brittania, out of Montreal."

"But this train only goes as far as Dartmouth."

"Yes — but the Montrealer comes through four hours later."

"You could see your old heartbeat, Johnny Weldon," Ann coaxed mischievously. "He's a big shot on the faculty now."

"So he stuck to his guns, just as he said he would," mused Jill.

"Then you will come?"

Jill snapped out of her reverie. "The date with the deck chair still goes."

But now . . .

with natural gas service, winter can be just another pleasant, healthful season in the modern home

A timely reminder

The tag end of summer warns that treacherous days of winter are on the way.

DO you remember the old days? Old-fashioned methods of heating . . children wore heavy underwear and long stockings in order to keep warm . . . members of the family "huddled" in one or two rooms during cold weather . . mother went shivering about the house with a shawl around her shoulders . . someone was always "catching cold" — Remember?

There is a direct relationship between your family's health during winter months and the way you heat your home.

melee tonight. Nobody's sayin anything or making any predictions.

That is, nobody with much sense. It ought to be about M. E. Home ?, Hornets,?. That's about as much a guess as we'll venture.

However, along this score, Coach Worley, and everyone of the boys, from the newest scrub to the oldest man on the team have been really "putting out" during these "sweating times" these last two or three weeks. They're physically ready. Other than that, who can say. One can say that the Hornets are definitely the underdogs, one can!

All of which means, you're just as likely to see the Hornets give the M. E. Home Boys a run for their money, and come out with the heavy end of the score. On the other hand, in this untried 5-letterman team, they could "blow" the first rap out of the box, and all but get run out of the "Butter" Bowl, without as much as a single yard gained.

I don't think so!

I think, or—is it a hope—they, the GHS Hornets will come thru this game with just about a 12 to 7 lead.
