Commissioners to decide Monday on jail renovations

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Midland County seems to be approaching the red-line on jail renovation and expansion.

"Let's zero in and make a decision on this thing," County Commissioner C. Wallace "Wally" Craig said Monday after the commissioners had listened to three presentations on satellite jails to complement the existing 85-bunk Midland County Jail.

The commissioners will meet in a special session at 9 a.m. Monday in the Midland County Courthouse to decide how to renovate the jail to make it meet standards mandated by the Texas Commission on Jail Standards and dictated by the voters in a $3 million bond election last May.

Commissioners also will discuss a satellite jail — a modular unit — to contain the overflow of inmates and possibly house federal prisoners in a revenue-generating scheme. At present, the county is transferring excess inmates to other county jails at a cost of $5,000 to $6,000 per week.

Commissioner Durward Wright proposed calling an election for voters to decide if any of that $3 million in bond money might be spent on a satellite jail and on where that auxiliary jail might be built.

In their decision-making process, the commissioners will be meeting with Midland architect Walter Pate and Sheriff Gary Painter.

"LET'S START early and talk 'til we're through," said Wright.

Craig noted that the county needs to "identify every dollar" it can muster toward building a modular jail either on the courthouse square near the courts and the existing jail, which is on the fifth-floor of the courthouse, or apart from the courthouse.

Wright asked Painter to "identify every dollar" in his $2.7-million budget that might be allotted toward the satellite project.

Earlier, the commissioners had considered three proposals on modular jails, which would serve as satellite or auxiliary units.

Kevin Spears, managing partner of the Midland-based Commercial Realty, proposed building a $2 million jail, leasing it to the county but essentially allowing the federal governmental to pay for the jail by leasing cells to it.

"We'll make money off the facility," Spears said, "and it will pay for itself."

"THE COUNTY would not pay anything for the housing of their inmates," he said. And in five years, the facility, built on county land, would be owned by the county. "At the end of five years, we'll sell it to the county for $5, and they can do anything they want to it — bulldoze it down and haul it off."

"It would not cost the county a cent for the building itself," Spears said.

He suggested the federal government might "guarantee" paying space for 75 or 100 pre-trial detainees and other prisoners. He said the federal government on the average is paying about $38.50 to lease jail space per prisoner per day. And his company would require $25 per prisoner day.

Spears said the concept of the private sector building and leasing jails "seems to be something that's sweeping the nation."

The satellite jail's design would be a "very simple and common-sense design," he said. The 140-by-164-foot facility would house 192 inmates.

Hurricane crossing Louisiana

AP Laserphoto

A Delacroix, La., resident paddles a boat through his front yard after Hurricane Juan hit this south Louisiana town.

MORGAN CITY, La. (AP) — Hurricane Juan, blamed for three deaths and the disappearance of nine people, moved over southeast Louisiana today with 75 mph winds driving floodwaters as the Coast Guard struggled to launch a second day of rescue efforts in forbidding seas.

Forecasters said the surprising late-season storm had moved well inland by late morning and was losing strength as less of its swirling mass remained over water. Juan, the third hurricane to hit the area this season, a battering unprecedented in National Hurricane Center records, spewed rain from the Atlantic coast to the Upper Mississippi Valley.

After stalling off the western Louisiana coast Monday, the storm began backtracking eastward, and its eye crossed over southeast Louisiana's desolate marshlands near Morgan City about 5 a.m. and moved toward more populated areas.

Thousands of people fled their homes as Juan battered the Gulf Coast, hundreds more were stranded and the Coast Guard said nearly 150 people were plucked from the Gulf of Mexico, including about 80 from a collapsed oil rig's escape capsule lifeboat.

Three people were dead and at least nine were missing, including five men aboard a 100-foot crew boat, the Gary Ellen, that was under tow until the storm snapped a towline early this morning and set it adrift, officials said.

A helicopter sent to search for the five, plus three others missing since Monday, was recalled because of high winds, said Coast Guard spokeswoman Debbie Westerberg.

Plan for Bid Resource Center presented to commissioners

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Steve Hardin

The search for a plan to bolster and diversify the Midland-Odessa economy, making the Permian Basin less dependent on the petroleum industry, could be answered with the Bid Resource Center.

The center would ferret out those goods and services which the federal government seeks bids on from the private sector. In turn, Midland-Odessa area businesses and industries would be encouraged to bid on that $167 billion in yearly federal contracts ranging from military armaments to janitorial services, said Steve Hardin Monday after a presentation of the plan to the Midland County Commissioners. The commissioners approved $25,000 in funding.

"Basically, the federal government spends $167 billion in buying from the private sector goods and services," said Hardin, manager of the economic development for the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

The Midland and Odessa chambers of commerce and the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission are setting up a satellite of the Beaumont-based Bid Resource Center. The Midland-Odessa satellite, he said, would be the first of six satellites of that center, which has an extensive library on federal government needs for goods and services.

"Beaumont will be doing all of our research work," he said.

In 2½ years, the Beaumont economy has been enriched by $78 million in federal contracts and that, Hardin said, is just a "dent" in federal contract offerings.

"The federal government buys everything on a bid basis," he said. "And in the final analysis, the low bid will win it." Hardin said since the "the federal government is going to buy goods and services," then why not encourage the government to spend its money in this region of West Texas "as opposed to somewhere else?"

The "beauty" of the concept is in the "promoting of non-petroleum-related growth," Hardin noted.

"This can be used not only as a job-retention tool but as a job-creation tool."

He noted that government contracts are not limited to manufacturing projects but also include legal, accounting and geological services.

"Some of them are short-term," Hardin noted, "and some of them are long-term, continuing contracts."

He cited three instances in which Beaumont, an inland city near the Gulf Coast and which heavily depends on the petro-chemical and oilfield supply industries, benefitted from government projects:

- An oil-field equipment company started making jet-engine parts.
- A janitorial service won cleaning contracts on U.S. Air Force Bases in Georgia and Florida.
- A plant nursery secured the upkeep of landscapes in federal parks and along federal highways.

Hardin noted that Beaumont has been "hit very hard" by the slump in the petroleum industry. And the Beaumont Bid Resource Center, so far the nation's only such center, is a method used by "enterprising" citizens there of "trying to lessen the deficiencies in the oil-field industry."

Absentee voting ends Friday

From Staff Reports

Only 174 absentee voters in Midland County have turned in their ballots and made a decision on the 14 amendments proposed for the Texas constitution, elections officials report.

Absentee voters have until 5 p.m. Friday to cast their ballots at the Midland Elections Administrators office, 709 W. Washington. The office is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day. Voters will decide the fate of the 14 constitutional amendments on Nov. 5.

The first two amendments on the ballot dealing with the state water plan are not connected to the Stacy Dam project that was decided by local voters in August.

State developing 'displaced' farmers program

By DAVID ELLIOT
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — One of every five family farmers in Texas will be out of business by 1987 if Congress enacts an "insane" farm plan, Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower said Monday.

A depressed agricultural economy has forced many farmers out of business, with little or no prospects for employment in another field. So state officials are developing a displaced farmers' program which will provide job training and placement services for farmers and ranchers.

"Last week in the state of Texas we lost 100 farms and ranches," Hightower said. "This week we'll lose another 100 and another 100 the week after that."

State officials designed the displaced farmers' program, which they hope to have in place by Jan. 1, after similar programs in six other states. To qualify for the program, farmers must prove they closed their farms because of foreclosure, bankruptcy or "inability to secure capital necessary to continue the business operation."

"A displaced farmer is a benign, bureaucratic euphemism that hides a lot of pain," Hightower said. "These farmers aren't just displaced, their lives are being torn apart."

Joe Rankin, president of the Texas Farmers' Union, pointed to the cotton industry as an example of the financial woes farmers face. Quoting a Texas Tech University study, Ran-

Gas prices expected to drop, trade group says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 45 million American families who heat their homes with natural gas can expect their bills this winter to drop an average 8.3 percent, or $37, below last year's levels unless it gets unseasonably cold, according to energy prognosticators.

The American Gas Association, a trade group of pipelines and local utilities who buy, transport and distribute the fuel, foresees residential gas rates this winter dropping by 49 cents per million Btus (British thermal units) to $5.41. A BTU is the amount of heat required to raise the temperature of a pound of water one degree Fahrenheit.

Michael Germain, a vice president of the association and its chief economist, said Monday that lower rates will bring the nationwide average gas heating bill for the six-month heating season — October through March — down from $444 last year to $407 this winter.

Germain cautioned that those figures are for residential space heating only, and do not include other home uses of gas — such as for cooking or fueling hot water heaters — that might send bills higher.

Bills also will be higher for consumers in areas of the country typically colder than the national average — the Northeast and Middle West — and lower than $407 for those in the warmer climates of the South and West which require less winter heating.

Black mob kills Zulu legislator after firebombing home

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A black mob gunned down a Zulu homeland legislator this morning after firebombing his home, the sixth death reported in renewed racial violence overnight, police said.

President P.W. Botha appealed to white voters to unite behind his governing National Party in five special parliamentary elections Wednesday, which Botha called tests of white support for gradual race reform.

Police said the legislator, Francis Diamini, 37, was killed by shotgun fire as he fled his burning home about 1:30 a.m. in Kwa-Mashu black township outside Durban. Diamini's son was shot in the shoulder but escaped.

Diamini is a member of the central committee of Inkatha, the Zulu cultural organization, and the Kwa-Zulu homeland legislative assembly, both led by Chief Mangosutho Buthelezi.

Inkatha has been locked in bitter conflict with the rival United Democratic Front, an anti-apartheid coalition that accuses Inkatha of collaborating with the white-led government. Members of both factions have died in skirmishes in recent months.

Police reported 10 clashes with black and mixed-race rioters late Monday and this morning in Natal and Cape provinces, including gasoline bombings and stonings of police vehicles.

In the Crossroads squatter camp near Cape Town the charred body of a black woman was found in a burned-out car, police said. A white farmer shot and killed a mixed-race man in a crowd that reportedly was stoning the farmer's truck, police said.

In black townships near Port Elizabeth, a mob attacked and stabbed to death a black youth and police shot and killed a man in a stone-throwing crowd, the police report said.

Botha's right-wing National Party ended its campaign Monday night to retain five parliamentary seats against challenges from two far-right parties, the Conservative Party and the Reformed National Party, and the more liberal Progressive Federal Party.

Botha told a rally in Vryburg that South Africa must unite against internal unrest and external forces seeking to hasten the end of apartheid, the legal system of racial segregation.

He said the government considered the votes an important gauge of support among whites for "evolutionary change."

Botha said his party was committed to sharing power with the black majority, but that it would not bow to foreign prescriptions.

"South Africans alone will solve our problems, and nobody else," he said. "I must warn that in times of difficulty, danger and crisis, all responsible people must stand together."

The five districts at stake include both rural and urban constituencies in all four provinces, making the ballots a fair cross-section of white opinion on Botha's tentative reforms.

Most analysts say the National Party, in power since 1948, will keep all five seats. It now has a two-thirds majority in Parliamert and a firm grip on policy.

The moderate Progressive Federal Party, with a large following among English-speakers, is contesting two seats. It hopes for a strong showing to prove that many whites believe Botha is not moving fast enough.

Concerns about 14 months of bloody unrest and a crippled economy are likely to draw some protest votes against the National Party, benefiting the right wing, said Chris Rencken, party information officer.

In Springs, an industrial area near Johannesburg, Conservative candidate Gert Parsons said many former National Party followers believe the government "has been weak and proved unable to control black unrest."

In Sasolburg, located in the Orange Free State, Reformed National Party candidate Louis Stofberg circulated 10,000 pamphlets warning voters that a mixed-race couple who now live in a caravan park "could live in your street...and their children could go to your schools."

Stofberg was referring to a white electrician and his mixed-race wife who married legally after the National Party repealed the law against mixed marriages earlier this year.

The South African Institute of Race Relations reported the rate of killings has more than doubled during South Africa's first 100 days under a state of emergency.

The institute said 334 people had been killed since the state of emergency was imposed July 21, compared with 509 people who died in the preceding 323 days of unrest that began Sept. 1, 1984.

FARMERS

kin said farmers operating in the High Plains of Texas must yield an average of 81 cents per pound of cotton to stay in business.

Last year, he said, farmers earned 64.6 cents a pound. This year, the average price per pound of cotton is expected to drop to 40 cents a pound. "We're getting half enough to stay in business," said Rankin, a Crosby County cotton farmer.

Twenty-two farmers have gone bankrupt this year in Crosby County, and Rankin said he expects another 22 farms to fold by the end of the year. Together, that represents almost 10 percent of the 468 farmers in the county.

The Texas Department of Agriculture recorded no farm foreclosures in Ector County from Jan. 1, 1984, to April 30, 1985. Statistics for Midland County were not available.

But Rankin cautioned that the statistics are misleading because they do not reflect the many farmers who "get out" before they reach the point of foreclosure or bankruptcy. "People just move away and you don't hear from them again," he said.

Hightower said the number of farmers who shut down operations before reaching the point of bankruptcy or foreclosure greatly exceeds the number of farmers forced out of business.

The displaced farmers' program will provide federal funds for career counseling, job training and placement services for unemployed farmers and ranchers. Hightower said he hopes the program will assist 1,000 Texas farmers its first year of operation. "That's not going to be all the need there is," he said.

Hightower also announced the creation of a farm crisis hotline, to be installed by Jan. 1. Private funds will pay for the line, which will provide legal, financial and mental health assistance as well as information on job training programs.

JUAN

Another chopper, operated by Offshore Logistics, an oilfield service company, defied the storm this morning, plucking 12 crew members off an oil drilling rig in the Gulf 75 miles south of Houma, a spokeswoman said.

The weather remained too rough late in the morning to permit resumption of other rescue efforts, the Coast Guard said.

At 10 a.m. CST, Juan's center was wobbling northward and was well inland about 70 miles west of New Orleans, the National Weather Service said. It was centered near latitude 30.1 north, 91.3 west.

Juan's maximum sustained winds weakened to 75 mph, mostly in squalls over the open water, the weather service said.

Louisiana Office for Emergency Preparedness operations officer D.C. Jensen said he believed that more than 2,000 state residents had fled their homes, as rivers, lakes and bayous spilled over their banks and topped levees after three days of heavy rains.

A Morgan City shelter for evacuees had to be evacuated itself as floodwaters entered, and in the town of Lafitte, flooding in a graveyard's mausoleums sent caskets bobbing away.

A wall of water pushed against levees by three days of Juan-spawned winds grew even higher today. Officials predicted tides as much as 10 feet above normal in some areas.

"It's the most water we've had in 35 to 40 years," said Don Gary of Terrebonne Parish Civil Defense, who said residents were worried.

"They're all shocked because we've been so fortunate so long. Now we're getting it. We've just had a little water. We had winds that tore up buildings before, but not the flooding. This is the hard part."

At Cocodrie, a trapping and fishing community about 60 miles southwest of New Orleans, tides were rolling 5 feet deep over roads that had been blocked on Monday. Road blocks were pulled back five miles from the town of Houma.

"Everybody who wanted out has come out, but there are a few diehards who wanted to ride it out," Gary said.

Of the 100,000 residents of Terrebonne Parish, 1,500 spent the night in shelters. More took refuge with friends and family or headed farther north to higher ground.

An estimated 5,000 to 6,000 coastal Mississippians moved to higher ground today, officials said.

"We thought we were rid of Juan on Monday but here it comes again, bringing the tides and rain that we certainly don't need," said Wade Guice, Harrison County's Civil Defense Chief.

The satellite station, possibly to be located at Midland Regional Airport, would be staffed by a director and a secretary and could be in operation by year's end. Initial funding already has been secured. The staff would be trained at the Beaumont Bid Resource Center.

The "key to the whole thing" — to successful bidding and the winning of contracts — is knowing how to contact federal agencies seeking bids.

Hardin noted "the main problem" is in seeking out and working with the government's 2,000 purchasing departments.

"And all the red tape and the paperwork you have to go though is enormous." But the Bid Resource Center will do the research and paperwork. For those services, the Midland-Odessa satellite would pay a $22,000 annual fee.

The first-year funding of $95,000 is projected to come from the Odessa Industrial Development Corp., the Midland Industrial Development Corp., the private-industry council of the PBRPC and the city of Midland, in addition to the county commissioners. Afterward, funding would be by fees exacted from successful bidders.

Hardin noted that on Oct. 17 several Midland chamber and community leaders visited the Bid Resource Center in Beaumont. They included Hardin; Jim Brown, Midland city manager; Charles Spence, president-publisher of the Midland Reporter-Telegram; Barry Welton of End Devices Inc.; Ron Schwisow of Teraco Inc.; Hank Henry of Texas Instruments, and Joe Kloesel, former chamber president and a management consultant.

Hardin said the Midland chamber and community leaders "realize the need for economic growth and diversification.

"And this is an excellent way to do both," he said. "We're really excited about it. Everybody stands to win from a center like this."

JAIL

Pate, the county-retained architect, had designed an $8.4 million jail initially to house 225 inmates but capable of accommodating an additional 75 prisoners. That $9.9 million proposal was rejected May 11 by voters who opted for the $3 million issue, which includes jail renovation.

Spears said he "honestly" doesn't know where those "costs come from."

"We have proposed a much simpler design" replete with "up-to-date, ultra-modern, high-technology" features for about $2 million.

Patrick Graham, vice president of Modular Jail Systems of Humble, proposed building a modular jail for 48 inmates at $1.3 million. Modular Jail Systems is a subsidiary of Brown Services Inc., which builds off-shore drilling platforms and dormitories for off-shore rig crews.

"I'm asking for an opportunity to design a package," Graham said.

GRAHAM SAID the modular unit could be built on the courthouse square or anywhere else the comissioners chose.

"Your plan is extremely well done," Wright told Graham. "Your flexibility is almost unbelievable."

In a third presentation, San Antonio detention consultant Guy F. Van Cleave and building contractor Merl A. Huebner offered the county their services.

"We're the right folks to deal with your jail problem," said Huebner, chairman of the board of Commercial Contracting Co. of San Antonio. "We're prepared to design, build and lease."

Van Cleve, former director of the Texas Commission on Jail Standards, said his company specializes in jail designs. Though he offered no costs on jail construction, Van Cleave said the value of the jail would only appreciate and the county possibly could sell the satellite jail for more than it cost to build.

"You will have no trouble hitting the market," he said.

Van Cleave said his jail design would meet or exceed standards set by the Jail Commission.

"We do not mess around with standards and laws," he said. "We meet or exceed them in every instance."

Commissioner Win Brown noted the "bottom line" in jail renovation and jail building is "the tax dollar." He cited the commissioners' responsibility to the taxpayers.

Brown, in noting the sentiment "to keep the jails close to the courts," suggested the satellite jail be built apart from the courthouse.

"What would be the problem of moving the district court to the jail?" he asked.

"People in our society do not like to walk a block," he said. "They like to drive up."

"Other counties are doing it (moving courts to the jails)," Brown said, "and that's not a bad idea. The judges love it; the jurors love it."

Another earthquake hits Mexico City

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A strong tremor hit this earthquake-ravaged capital at 9:08 a.m. today, lasting about 25 seconds.

No damage was immediately reported, and no phone calls were answered at the National Seismological Laboratory.

The quake was strong enough to dislodge ceiling tiles in some already damaged buildings.

On Sept. 19, an earthquake registering 8.1 on the Richter scale killed an estimated 7,000 people and collapsed or severely damaged about 3,000 buildings.

GAS

The gas association calculated its estimates of residential rates this winter after surveying the 25 largest pipeline companies on how much they were paying producers compared with last year.

Based on price adjustment filings with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, the association found that average producer prices have dropped 7.5 percent in the last year, from $2.79 to $2.58 per million Btus. Those gas acquisition prices to the pipeline companies ranged from a low of $1.92 to a high of $3.56 per million Btus.

The pipelines, who function as a wholesaler in buying gas from producers and selling it to local utilities, cut their resale prices to retail distributers even more — by 12.8 percent — from $3.87 to $3.38, the association said.

Meanwhile, those distributors have maintained their margin at $2.03, the same as last year.

Germain attributed the decreases to increased competition among both producers and pipelines due to the partial deregulation of natural gas completed last January and a still-present, three-year glut in supplies.

"I would argue that decontrol works, period," he said, attributing the 15 percent to 20 percent annual increases in residential rates between 1980 and 1983 to the complicated system of federal price controls. "The proof so far is that it at leasts works in a glut."

Soviet sailor awaits judgment on shore

NATION

BELLE CHASSE, La. (AP) — A Soviet merchant seaman who apparently tried to defect twice by swimming ashore was on American soil today, resting while U.S. officials determine whether he wants to remain in this country.

The State Department said more interviews were scheduled today with Miroslav Medvid, who was twice forcibly returned to the grain ship Marshal Koniev by orders of U.S officials.

Medvid had jumped into the Mississippi River on Thursday and Friday but was returned by Border Patrol agents who apparently could not communicate with him and thought he was a stowaway.

"Medvid has been removed to a nearby U.S. government facility to recover," from his ordeal, State Department spokeswoman Anita Stockman said today. After Medvid has "rested thoroughly," an interview will continue "to determine his desire to return voluntarily to the Soviet Union," she said.

"Representatives of the Soviet Embassy have been allowed to accompany Medvid," she said.

A Coast Guard official who spoke on condition of anonymity said the seaman was taken to the Naval Support Activity center in Algiers, a section of New Orleans.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Monday that administration officials discussed Medvid's case with Soviet officials both in Washington and aboard the ship, which was anchored downstream from New Orleans.

Speakes refused to say whether President Reagan had ordered the ship held in U.S. waters pending resolution of the dispute.

Later, the State Department said a government doctor examined Medvid aboard the vessel. The doctor found Medvid "anxious" during the examination but said he had only a minor injury to his left arm, the department said, adding that there was no evidence that he was drugged.

It said the examination did not satisfy the department's condition that Medvid be interviewed in a "nonthreatening environment."

Medvid was taken Monday afternoon from the Marshal Koniev to the Coast Guard cutter Salvia, where a State Department official who speaks Russian and other U.S. representatives began interviewing him, State Department spokesman Peter Martinez said.

The Coast Guard official said late Monday he did not know the condition of the sailor. He said Medvid was accompanied by two doctors when he was taken to the Naval Support Activity Center in New Orleans.

The official said he could not say whether the seaman, who has attracted international attention, was in the custody of State Department or Soviet officials.

Mike Flad, an employee of Universal Shipping Agents Inc. and a U.S. agent for the Soviet vessel, said it could proceed upriver as early as tonight to load grain at Reserve. The vessel, with a 43-member crew, remained at anchor early today.

About five hours after Medvid left the ship, at least a dozen people were transferred to a Coast Guard launch, which traveled toward the Naval facility. Immigration and Navy officials would not comment.

Also on Monday, a national organization of Ukrainian-Americans criticized Border Patrol agents for returning Medvid to the freighter. The Ukrainian Congress Committee of America, claiming to represent 1.2 million Americans of Ukrainian descent, said it had contacted the State Department and offered to be Medvid's sponsor and to pay all necessary expenses if he is granted asylum.

State Department officials have been aboard the Marshal Koniev since Friday, when they first determined Medvid might have been trying to defect.

They were cued by a boat operator who tried to ferry Medvid back to the ship on Thursday after he leaped into the river the first time.

Dr. William Pierce, right rear, prepares to remove the Penn State artificial temporary heart from Anthony Mandia Monday night at the Milton S. Hershey Medical Center in Hershey, Pa.

Artificial-heart patients may reject donor hearts

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — Doctors watched today for signs that a man kept alive for 11 days by a Penn State artificial heart might reject a human heart, and said that a man who spent four days on a Jarvik-7 pump before receiving a transplant had survival "well within his grasp."

Anthony Mandia, the first recipient of the Penn State heart, was in critical but unstable condition today after receiving the heart of a 155-pound woman who died in West Virginia.

Across the state in Pittsburgh, Jarvik-7 heart recipient Thomas J. Gaidosh also was in critical condition. Gaidosh, 47, a factory worker, received a human heart earlier Monday that had been offered to Mandia but rejected as too big.

Meanwhile, in San Francisco, 33-year-old Richard Dallara of Sonoma was in serious but stable condition Monday night as he was kept alive by two fist-size external pumps while doctors sought a donor heart.

The five-hour surgery Monday night for Mandia, 44, of Philadelphia, took longer than expected because of bleeding, said Hershey Medical Center spokesman Dr. John W. Burnside. "We were a bit surprised at this oozing," he said, comparing it to the kind of bleeding that follows a brush burn.

Burnside said the bleeding may have been caused by medication used to prevent blood clots and the transplant coming 10 days after the initial implant surgery.

Mandia has received the anti-rejection drug Cyclosporin, and doctors say the immediate dangers are rejection of the donor heart, bleeding and infection. He likely will remain in the hospital at least two more weeks, Burnside said.

Treasury may dip into Social Security coffers

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats, under increasing pressure from the White House, are struggling to respond to the GOP-led balanced budget initiative in Congress before the Treasury starts choking some government programs.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., told Democrats Monday he wants them by Wednesday to start offering alternatives and modifications to the balanced-budget plan.

A House-Senate conference committee, in its third week, has made little progress. The plan is attached to a month-overdue bill needed to raise the national debt, which is at its limit, with the government managing to pay its bills only through extraordinary bookkeeping actions.

President Reagan warned Monday that the next action will be picking the pocket of the Social Security trust fund. The government is scheduled to send checks to the 36 million Social Security recipients on Friday.

"We're running up against the possibility that we might have to disinvest the Social Security trust fund, shortchanging that trust fund of accumulated interest, all because of the inexcusable dithering and delay in meeting the responsibilities about raising the debt ceiling," the president added.

Administration officials are studying other ways to prod Congress, through temporarily halting spending on some federal programs.

House Democrats met through the afternoon Monday but failed to settle on a strategy. They agreed, however, that alternatives must be offered this week to keep the administration away from the Social Security fund.

"We would be irresponsible if we allowed borrowing from trust-fund accounts," said Rep. Vic Fazio, D-Calif.

"Reagan and (Treasury Secretary James) Baker will start shooting hostages on Friday," quipped Christopher Matthews, O'Neill's spokesman.

Fazio, speaking with reporters after the Democratic meeting, said members felt strongly they must make changes in the balanced-budget plan sponsored in the Senate by Phil Gramm, R-Texas, Warren Rudman, R-N.H., and Ernest Hollings, D-S.C.

The Gramm-Rudman-Hollings plan would mandate lower deficits each year, starting with $180 billion in fiscal 1986, which began Oct. 1, until a balanced budget is reached by fiscal 1991. If Congress and the president fail to approve a budget to meet the statutory targets, the plan requires the president to impose spending cuts.

Democrats, while applauding the goal of the plan, have objected to giving the president power to make the spending cuts, even though sponsors of the plan say he would have little discretion in following the plan's across-the-board design.

They have also raised questions about the practicality of cutting into defense contracts, and whether the economy would be hurt by automatic cutbacks occurring at the same time as a recession.

Fazio said the Democrats will almost certainly try to change the effective dates in the plan, which they contend are now designed to delay spending cuts until after next year's election. Republicans, the Democrats contend, are trying to improve their chances of keeping control of the Senate that way.

Agreement on a deficit plan would allow passage of a new debt ceiling of more than $2 trillion — more than twice the red ink that existed before Reagan took office.

Reagan on Monday again blamed Congress for the current troubles.

"I must warn the Congress that their unwillingness to deal with the debt ceiling and to take responsible action on the deficit is creating a large and unnecessary problem," Reagan said.

4 ◇	Pass	4 ♠	Pass

Opening lead: King of ◇.

We continue to hear from readers that our hands bear no relation to those that come up at the table. Not so. Had the declarer on this hand from a recent national championship been a regular reader of our column, he would surely have landed his slam.

Once North raised South's second suit, despite only three-card support, a slam became a near certainty. It needed only two cue-bids to get the partnership to six hearts.

West led the king of diamonds, ruffed by declarer. It would seem that a successful finesse in either major suit would guarantee 12 tricks, so South entered dummy with the king of trumps and tried the finesse. West won the queen and tapped declarer again with a diamond. Declarer ruffed again, drew the last trump and tried the spade finesse. East won and three more diamond tricks spelled utter disaster.

Since declarer almost surely needed a 3-2 trump split for his contract, he could have gotten home by not taking either finesse. After ruffing the first diamond, declarer should simply draw two rounds of trumps with the ace and king. If the queen doesn't fall, declarer abandons trumps in favor of running the club suit.

Best defense is for West to ruff the third club as dummy sluffs a spade, then shift to a spade, but that doesn't faze declarer one bit. He simply rises with the ace of spades, comes to hand with a diamond ruff and cashes three more winning clubs to discard the rest of the table's spades. Now declarer can simply ruff his spade loser on the board to bring his trick total to the required 12.

Who needs to know how to finesse!

Cosby: Film industry often, racist happier on stage or TV

Bill Cosby

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Cosby, star of the top-rated NBC comedy "The Cosby Show," says the film industry is often racist and he's much happier working on television or on stage.

"Black people certainly are primitive, aren't they? If you want proof, just send in a white filmmaker," Cosby said in an interview published in the December issue of Playboy magazine.

Cosby, 48, who has starred in such films as "Uptown Saturday Night," said "Year of the Dragon" and "The Gods Must Be Crazy" were examples of racist films. In the first, a white man decimates New York's Chinatown, Cosby said, and the second "shows that if you just drop a Coke bottle out of an airplane, you can pretty much shake up an entire African culture."

Cosby said, "I never cared about being a movie star...In reality, the TV series is exactly what I enjoy doing."

LONDON (AP) — Britain's Royal Opera is continuing its discussions with Placido Domingo to save a new production of Verdi's Otello starring the tenor superstar this season.

Sir Claus Moser, chairman of the Royal Opera House said Monday he expected to make an announcement shortly on the future of the production, one of the highlights of the 1985-86 season.

After the earthquake in Mexico City last month, Domingo threw international opera houses into a panic when he announced he was suspending his singing commitments to raise money for quake victims.

Betty Ford

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former first lady Betty Ford, who has already written one autobiography, plans a second book about whipping her alcohol and drug dependency, her literary agent says.

Profits from the as-yet untitled book will go to the Betty Ford Center and other addiction treatment centers designated by Mrs. Ford, said Norman Brokaw, who with Owen Laster represented her for the William Morris Agency.

Mrs. Ford has signed a contract with Doubleday & Co. to deliver the book for publication in spring 1987, Brokaw said Monday. It will be written in collaboration with Chris Chase, who worked with Mrs. Ford on her 1978 book, "Times of My Life."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Elvira, the campy-creepy hostess of the syndicated "Movie Macabre" television show, says her Flashy Lashes and Daring Dazzle Hairspray sell briskly this time of year.

"We read in the paper that the two most popular costumes in the country were E.T. and Elvira," said the actress, whose real name is Cassandra Peterson.

Ms. Peterson launched her own costume company, which has resulted in more than $1 million in wholesale orders for imitations of Elvira's trademark black bouffant wig and clingy low-cut gown.

"I would say maybe my competition is Vincent Price, and we're certainly not that much in the same realm," said Ms. Peterson, whose show appears in 60 markets nationwide. "He's a very nice person. He probably gets a lot more money than I do, so maybe I'm a bargain-basement Vincent Price."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Board of Supervisors will be asked to call for a state inquiry into the 1962 death of actress Marilyn Monroe if the grand jury does not re-examine the case, a county official says.

Sam Cordova, a grand jury foreman who had called for an inquiry was replaced Monday just minutes before he held a news conference calling for appointment of a special prosecutor to initiate a new investigation.

Court officials and District Attorney Reiner denied the switch was linked to Cordova's call for a new inquiry into the actress' death.

Cordova insisted that his ouster was directly related to the Monroe case.

"I have no doubt that that's what it's all about," he said.

The new grand jury foreman, Charles Richardson, said he doubted there would be a new investigation of the death, officially ruled a suicide by barbiturate overdose.

Last week, county Supervisor Mike Antonovich sent a letter from Robert Slatzer, author of a book about Miss Monroe, to the grand jury with a note suggesting the panel might want to look into Slatzer's concerns about how and where the actress died.

Antonovich said Monday that if the grand jury decided not to reopen the case, he would consider asking the Board of Supervisors to request an inquiry by the state attorney general's office.

"There are several people who need to be questioned under oath in this matter," Antonovich said.

The last probe was conducted in 1982 by then-District Attorney John Van de Kamp, now the attorney general.

However, new books and a BBC television documentary have renewed interest in circumstances surrounding Miss Monroe's death and reported love affairs with former President John F. Kennedy and his brother, Robert.

Cordova in a news conference Monday morning repeated his call for appointment of a special prosecutor, but Reiner said Superior Court Judge Aurelio Munoz already had removed Cordova as foreman when he spoke.

The district attorney said Cordova had represented himself as being on grand jury business when he was not, used grand jury stationery improperly and had been "presenting himself to various outsiders in private matters" as the foreman.

Cordova denied the allegations.

"Our office is not going to reopen the investigation," Reiner said. He said neither his office nor the grand jury could properly investigate unless there was a reasonable likelihood of uncovering a prosecutable crime.

"There is absolutely nothing of any substance that would point to a homicide, absolutely nothing," Reiner said.

Slatzer, who says he was married briefly to the actress, claims to have proof she died at Santa Monica Hospital, while the official record states that she died at her home.

Besides Slatzer's book, "The Life and Curious Death of Marilyn Monroe," a book by Anthony Summers, "Goddess: The Secret Lives of Marilyn Monroe," and a British Broadcasting Corp. documentary contended that Miss Monroe had affairs with the Kennedys and was heartbroken when Robert Kennedy would not marry her.

Vote no on two

When Texas voters go to the polls Tuesday, Nov. 5th, they'll be considering 14 proposed constitutional amendments. Six of those amendments are discussed here: Proposed Amendments 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8. We believe voters should approve four of the amendments, but should reject numbers 5 and 8.

Amendment 3 would authorize the Legislature to enact laws permitting a city or town to spend public funds and levy assessments for the relocation or replacement of water laterals on private property. This amendment is similar to one approved by voters last November regarding replacement or relocation of sanitary sewer laterals.

There appears to be a need in a number of Texas communities for such water and sewer line updating, and the proposed amendment seems to offer property owners enough protection to ensure that the authorization will not be utilized unfairly. For example, before a municipality can contract for replacement or relocation of laterals, the municipality must get the property owner's consent to the making of the contract. And there are advantages. Since municipalities can contract collectively for the work by way of the amendment, it probably will benefit taxpayers through a better price.

Amendment 4 would allow the proceeds from the sale of permanent school land to be used to purchase other land for the school fund. This has been a highly successful program down through the years and the proposed amendment would allow the permanent school fund to take advantage of a changing real estate market to maintain and enhance the value of the fund.

The inability to take advantage of changing market conditions effectively limits the growth of the school fund now, but no change in procedure can be made without approval of the amendment because the constitutions of Texas since 1866 have limited investments as a result of losses the fund suffered years ago from bad investments.

Amendment 5 is an attempt to standardize the provision of health care in hospital districts throughout the state. While that's not necessarily bad, since there are hospital districts in areas of the state that are not providing adequate care to indigents, it would tend to overregulate particular hospital districts, such as Midland, that are providing adequate care — possibly to the extent of requiring tax increases.

In this instance, we believe that the treatment of indigents is better left to individual districts, that can better assess their own needs and provide care to meet those needs.

Amendment 6 is badly needed for a couple of reasons. It would allow inmates from the Texas Department of Corrections to be transferred to correctional facilities in other states if such need arises.

A prohibition to such transfer dates back to English law and the practices of outlawry and transportation, under which prisoners were deprived of their legal rights and protections or were sent out of their native country in a form of exile. Now, however, because of the burgeoning Texas inmate population and, hand-in-hand, prison rioting and rebellion, it actually may benefit Texas prisons to transfer troublesome prisoners out of state or to do so to a number of prisoners simply to reduce an overcrowding problem.

Amendment 7 is one of those troublesome amendments that really should be decided by the people of Chambers County. But first all Texans must agree to allow the voters in that county to decide.

If approved, the amendment will allow the voters in Chambers County to increase the number of justices of the peace serving one of its precincts in order to deal with a large influx of tourists in the summer months. Allowing Chambers County voters to make this decision would be in the best tradition of local self-government.

Amendment 8, at first inspection, appears to be only authorization to allow the Legislature to provide an additional $500 million in bonds for the veterans' housing assistance program. In that regard, it's understandable that many Texans would support it.

But unlike earlier constitutional amendments providing for bonding authority for veterans' housing assistance, this proposal does not specify who would be eligible. In fact, it would allow the Legislature "to define an eligible veteran for the purposes of those programs." That's too indefinite when that much money is involved, and voters should reject this proposal.

Non-nuclear threats

President Reagan, addressing the United Nations General Assembly, properly shifted the focus on November's Soviet-American summit meeting from nuclear arms to regional flashpoints in the Third World.

Mr. Reagan wants as much as any world leader — and certainly more so than the Soviet Union's Mikhail Gorbachev — to scrap nuclear weapons. The president realizes, however, that devoting all our attention to possible arms control agreements detracts from public awareness that Soviet aggression is relentlessly stamping out freedom around the globe through more conventional means of warfare.

The president, for example, cited these facts:

— 118,000 Soviet troops are fighting against the people of Afghanistan.

— 140,000 Soviet-backed Vietnamese soldiers are waging a war of occupation in Cambodia.

— 1,700 Soviet advisers and 2,500 Cuban combat troops are in the field in Ethiopia.

— 1,200 Soviet military advisers and 35,000 Cuban troops are in Angola.

— 8,000 Soviet-bloc and Cuban personnel, including some 3,500 military and secret police specialists, are helping to subjugate the people of Nicaragua.

Not a single nuclear device has been exploded in any of these areas, which proves the folly of pinning all our hopes for world peace on missile reduction talks.

As Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega listened, President Reagan noted that the rise of communism in Third World hot spots has created regimes that are at war with their own people.

"And in each case," the president continued, "Marxism-Leninism's war with the people becomes war with their neighbors."

Mr. Ortega, who recently has been jogging in Central Park and appearing on U.S. talk shows, is one of the world's better examples of a local puppet imposing a foreign ideology on his own people. Like many others who cynically use the United Nations as a political forum, however, Comrade Oretega dismissed the American president's statements as lies.

Mr. Reagan proposes that the Soviet Union join the United States in trying to settle regional conflicts.

It cannot realistically be expected that Moscow will heed the White House call to promote peace rather than subversion, but neither is it likely the Soviets will agree to any meaningful arms control agreement that they do not fully intend to violate.

Mr. Reagan's proposal to bring peace to areas targeted for communist takeover may not succeed, but at least he has reminded the world that nuclear missiles are not the only threat to freedom.

Rolf Mengele cashing in on father

WASHINGTON — While Dr. Josef Mengele was sending pregnant women to gas chambers at Auschwitz during World War II, he conceived a son of his own, who is alive and well and living in West Germany. This is the story of Rolf Mengele, the only child of the Nazi "Angel of Death," whose remains were exhumed in Brazil this year.

Jack Anderson

In magazine articles and public appearances, Rolf Mengele has tried to put distance between himself and his notorious father. He says he has nothing in common with the cold-blooded quack who decreed death for hundreds of thousands of innocents and a living hell of laboratory experimentation for uncounted others. He has even said he wished he had had a different father.

Yet the son shielded his father from justice for more than 20 years, knowing his whereabouts in South American exile and corresponding with him regularly. And he withheld from authorities the report of his father's death for six years while an international search was going on.

Our associate Lucette Lagnado recently discovered another contradiction in Rolf Mengele. Though he bemoans the worldwide attention that has been turned on him since the discovery of his father's remains, and claims that he has suffered for the sins of his father, Rolf is perfectly willing to make a buck from the notoriety that attached to the Mengele name. In fact, he insists on it.

Our associate learned this the hard way after she received an unexpected trans-Atlantic phone call from Mengele not long ago. She had requested an interview months earlier and been rejected.

But now Mengele had called out of the blue and asked if she were still interested. She said yes, and they agreed that she would fly to Germany.

Mengele called a second time to confirm the arrangement — and to bring up the delicate subject of "remuneration." Our associate said she had no money to pay him. We do not practice "checkbook journalism." Mengele was non-committal, and the subject was left up in the air.

When our associate arrived at the door of Mengele's law office at the appointed time, she was met, not by him, but by a burly go-between named Peter Strober. After a brief interrogation into her background and intentions, our associate was told bluntly that there were "practical matters" that had to be settled before the interview could take place.

The price was $1,000, up front. Our associate said she didn't have it. Strober seemed upset. He took her to lunch, called Mengele and reported back: no money, no interview.

Mengele himself called her later at her hotel. Gone was the warmth and charm of the earlier conversations. He was cold, snappish, adamant: no free interview. After 15 minutes of fruitless negotiating, Mengele announced that his time was valuable and hung up.

Others have had similar experiences. Mengele reportedly demanded $500,000 for the movie rights to his father's story, but the deal fell through after Jewish groups protested to the would-be producer.

Rolf Mengele's dreams of getting rich on his father's shame are now more modest: peddling his father's diaries, notebooks and letters for whatever the market will bring. The banality of evil, it seems, lasts beyond the grave. Josef Mengele's legacy is a souvenir stand.

CAMPAIGN FEVER CHILLS: Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., the supply-side guru who is already crisscrossing the country for his 1988 presidential bid, seems to be avoiding his constituents back in Buffalo. As the sole member of the New York congressional delegation to endorse eliminating the federal income tax deduction for state and local taxes, Kemp has been much in demand to debate the issue in front of the home folks. But so far he has eluded all attempts to pin him down to a time and place, pleading his busy schedule. Technically, that's true. Kemp is busy expounding on the deduction in forums as far away as Iowa.

SPACE CHILD: A frustrated 11-year-old, named Linda, has complained to the Young Astronaut Council about her first encounter with bureaucracy. She applied to NASA, simply enough, to be the first child in space. "I wrote three times to NASA," Linda reported. "Finally they sent back a job brochure, and it said you had to have a college diploma and had to be a certain height and weight range. How am I going to get a college diploma, gain weight and grow? After all, I'm only 11. Also to be the first child in space you have to be more a child, not an adult."

Who will realign the Texas GOP?

SHERMAN, Texas — A vivid moment of truth during a Republican women's club ice cream social here last week pointed to what may determine the choice of the party leader to head the GOP drive for party realignment in Texas.

Rowland Evans

Ex-representative Kent Hance, 42, the Boll Weevil Democrat-turned-Republican, was about to take a question from the audience when former governor Bill Clements' frozen smile vanished. "Sit down," snapped the 68-year-old Clements, Hance's rival in the 1986 campaign for governor. "I'll take this one."

Robert Novak

Hance's managers count on Clements breaking his good-guy pledge dozens of times between now and next May's Republican primary. That would confirm the argument that Clements, the only Republican Texans ever elected governor, would be unable to take advantage of the rising Republican tide to beat Democratic governor Mark White next year.

The tide is unmistakable. Polls show this once solidly Democratic daughter of the Confederacy is now an evenly-divided two-party state — about 35 percent each, with the rest independent. The state's anti-authoritarian bias runs against White's sponsorship of higher taxes, mandatory seat belts and academic requirements for high school football. But White is one of the most astute politicians and campaigners ever to live in the Texas governor's mansion.

Anticipating a repeat of 1982, when White out-campaigned Clements, State Republican Executive Committee members are lining up for the candidate who became a Republican only on May 3, after narrowly losing last year's Democratic nomination for the Senate.

But it will take a realignment leap-of-faith for rank-and-file Republicans to buy Hance. His congressional voting record during his last year was 75 percent pro-labor (distorted, he says, by absences while campaigning for the Senate). He endorsed Jimmy Carter and Walter Mondale for president but then, he told us, voted for Ronald Reagan both times.

What may make Hance palatable is the "winability" question underlined by that vivid moment of truth. A July poll taken for Hance showed Clements would carry only 64.2 percent of Texas Republicans against White's 28.1 percent.

The problem is neither ideology nor competence. Republicans complain about personality traits described variously as harshness, abrasiveness and arrogance. But early campaigning has highlighted Clements as so congenial he is scarcely recognized by those who knew him as a millionaire Dallas oil executive or Richard Nixon's deputy secretary of defense.

His wife Rita, Clements told the Republicans at Sherman, informed him "you're going to have to smile more." He smiled nearly incessantly. Masterfully marhsalling his facts, he hammered away at White and tried to ignore Hance. He could not resist, however, suggesting that after another four years of Clements as governor, "Kent Hance will have enough experience to be a good candidate."

Besides disappearing when Hance answered first on too many questions, the smile turned to "no coment" when asked by reporters why a lifelong friend — oilman and Dallas Cowboys owner Bum Bright — is supporting Hance.

A few days earlier, Clements had slammed down the telephone on his fellow millionaire when Bright refused to deny that Clements had told him football scandals would spread beyond the former governor's school, Southern Methodist, to other Texas universities. The famed Clements temper surfaced a week earlier at a Republican fund-raising dinner in Dallas addressed by Jeane Kirkpatrick. Clements walked out when he found his seats occupied by somebody else.

Of such trivia are primary campaigns made. Hance plays the good ol' boy with the same countrified humor he used as a Democrat. He brags about sponsoring the 1981 Reagan tax cut and, commenting on his newness as a Republican, delivers this sure applause-getter: "Merit gave us Ronald Reagan; seniority gave us Tip O'Neill."

Hance's Republican credentials are questioned privately by Clements and more or less publicly by the third Republican candidate, Rep. Tom Loeffler — chief deputy House GOP whip but unkown in Texas outside his district. When Republicans tell Loeffler agents they lean to Hance, the response is: "Have you looked at his voting record?"

That record shows Hance with a zero House rating on opposing abortion. Even so, the new Freedom Council of television evangelist (and potential presidential candidate) Pat Robertson is conferring with born-again Baptist Hance about supporting him.

Such suppport makes Hance a viable candidate though he badly trails Clements in polls. Hance believes he can bring up to 100,000 extra Democrats into the Republican primary. Even without them, 1986 will be a record GOP primary turnout, topping a half-million. With realignment in the air, the outcome may depend on whether Bill Clements can keep smiling at Kent Hance for six more months of ice cream socials.

ART BUCHWALD

Soviets noodle interview

Every TV network is feverishly competing to get a presummit interview with Mikhail Gorbachev.

Art Buchwald

The person who will make the final decision is the incomparable Soviet image maker, Mik Deavervitch (cq). It was Deavervitch who sold the Russian people on the fact that style was more important than substance. As Gorbachev's press chief during the recent Soviet elections, Deavervitch came up with the catchy slogan, "Vote for somebody who is red, but not dead."

So effective was Deavervitch's political strategy that when Konstantin Chernenko died, Gorbachev was elected less than five hours later — in a landslide. Since then Deavervitch has been consulted on everything Gorbachev does. He was responsible for advancing the Secretary's trips to London and Paris as well as setting up photo opportunities with Margaret Thatcher, Francois Mitterrand and Tip O'Neill.

Deavervitch has posed Gorbachev talking to nurses in a Lenin hospital, listening to hardhats in a Lenin auto works, and shaking hands at a university with Lenin grads (cq).

Not only does Deavervitch serve Gorbachev, but he also works for the Soviet leader's wife. Moscow watchers say that Raisa Gorbachev, who is the real power in the Kremlin, does not make a move without first checking it out with Deavervitch.

This being the case I decided to pick up the phone and speak to the man. It was much easier than I thought.

The Soviet operator put me right through, after saying, "Thank you for using ST&T."

"Mr. Deavervitch, I'm calling about the selection you have to make concerning the Secretary's first American television appearance."

"We are noodling it. Goodbye."

"Wait a minute. How will you arrive at your decision?"

"I just received the overnight ratings from our KGB man in New York. Daniel Rather defeated Peter Jennings and Thomas Brokaw. What kind of a man is this Rather?"

"He's a very decent sort, but then again so are Jennings and Brokaw. The three are only a point apart."

"Our mole at ABC says a point means a million viewers. I cannot allow the Secretary to appear in a vast wasteland."

"So you're putting your boy on the 'Evening News'?"

"Not necessarily. We are also considering one of the morning shows. The Secretary likes Phyllis George very much."

"Phyllis is a fine interviewer, but unfortunately she no longer works on the CBS morning show. What about late night? Ted Koppel is hot right now."

"The Secretary doesn't want to go head-to-head with Johnny Carson. Since our leader is making only one TV appearance we're hoping to make the top ten."

"Would Mr. Gorbachev consider a walk-on part in 'Dallas'?"

"No, our Bulgarian agent in Hollywood reports it is full of filthy double-crossing capitalists. What other shows would you suggest?"

"There is 'Entertainment Tonight,' 'Miami Vice,' 'The Phil Donahue Show,' and then my favorite, 'Wheel of Fortune.' The best thing about 'Wheel of Fortune' is Gorbachev will not only have a large audience, but he can also win some very valuable prizes."

"It's not dignified. Tell me, Comrade, what is this Howard Cosell like?"

"He tells it like it is," I said.

"How do you mean 'like it is'?"

"Remember when Khrushchev took off his shoe and banged it on the table? Well, if Howard doesn't agree with the person he is talking to, he does the same thing."

German play raises spectre of Holocaust

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — The premiere of a Rainer Werner Fassbinder play about a "rich Jew" land speculator has touched raw nerves in a nation haunted by the Holocaust.

Jewish groups say the play could renew anti-Semitism among Germans, while supporters say the play shows that it never left.

"Der Muell, die Stadt and der Tod" (Garbage, the City and Death), which opens Thursday, is set in Frankfurt in the 1970s and portrays a predatory Jewish real estate speculator, known only as "the rich Jew."

The "rich Jew" buys up old houses, tears them down and sells the property at a nice profit to banks and businesses, which erect high-rises. At the end of the play, he kills a prostitute with whom he had been having an affair.

A tenant in the play says during a four-minute monologue: "He sucks us dry, the Jew. He drinks our blood and puts us in the wrong because he's a Jew and we carry the blame...If he had stayed where he came from, or if we had gassed him, I could sleep better today."

WORLD

The words are stark reminders of Adolf Hitler's Third Reich, which crumbled 40 years ago. The Nazi regime killed about 6 million Jews between 1933 and 1945, most of them in the gas ovens of concentration camps. About 28,000 Jews live in West Germany today.

Jewish organizations, mainstream politicians and church leaders have denounced Fassbinder's play as anti-Semitic and are planning to stage demonstrations Thursday outside the city playhouse, whose 180 seats are sold out.

Jewish community leaders told a news conference Monday they had obtained 12 tickets and would try to stop the premiere after the curtain rises.

Ignatz Bubis, chairman of the Frankfurt Jewish Community, said Monday that Fassbinder's play "slanders and defames" Jews and would "awaken and harden (anti-Semitic) prejudice."

But Pinchas Lapide, a Jewish theologian in Frankfurt, said in a radio interview last Sunday he was "totally convinced that Jewish-Christian and German-Jewish relations have matured in the last few decades and will not suffer from this play."

He added, "There will be many people who previously held no opinion but now will be pressed to form one. This play will clarify certain things."

The play's dramatic adviser, Heiko Holefleisch, has said Fassbinder intended to probe "latent" anti-Jewish feeling in West Germany that has lingered despite the Holocaust.

"I know of no other postwar drama that deals with a more unpleasant problem (contemporary anti-Semitism)," Guenther Ruehle, Frankfurt's chief of city theater affairs, told Stern magazine in an interview Oct. 23.

He called the drama Fassbinder's "most poetic, visionary play."

West German sensitivity about the Holocaust was magnified this year by a spate of government ceremonies marking the 40th anniversary of World War II's end. The rites dwelled on postwar reconciliation with the Jews and a promise that Nazism and the Holocaust could never recur.

Fassbinder, best known for films such as "Lili Marleen," "Berlin Alexanderplatz," and "The Bitter Tears of Petra von Kant," is not able to answer the charges of anti-Semitism. He died in 1982 at age 36 from an apparent overdose of drugs and alcohol.

He had become one of postwar Germany's most critically acclaimed and controversial film directors and playwrights.

AIDS fear causes foreigners turned out of Tokyo bath

TOKYO (AP) — A Tokyo "sento" or public bath recently turned away a foreign resident of Japan who had grown to like the neighborhood spa's relaxing steam. The reason: fear of AIDS.

Although only eight Japanese have been stricken by the deadly disease, its spread in the United States and Europe has spurred steps, some of them misguided, to keep AIDS a foreign problem.

Some doctors warn that the virus thought to cause AIDS already has found its way into Japanese blood. They believe the island nation will soon face an outbreak of acquired immune deficiency syndrome, lifting the number of victims from a handful to perhaps a thousand.

The disease, which destroys the body's ability to resist infection, is spread through the exchange of blood or other bodily fluids, but not through casual contact. It is most prevalent among homosexual men and intravenous drug users, but has also been contracted by hemophiliacs and patients who received tainted blood in transfusions.

A recent survey by the country's National Institute of Health indicated 30 percent of Japan's 5,400 hemophiliacs carry positive antibodies to the AIDS virus, a sign of exposure to the disease. Most of them will not become ill, but "we can expect that next year, many more hemophiliacs will begin to show the symptoms of AIDS," said Takahashi Kitamura, chief of the institute's virus research section.

"Within four years the number could reach a thousand," he added.

In contrast, as of Oct. 21, AIDS had struck 14,288 people in the United States, according to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control figures.

Japan's Health and Welfare Ministry, believing the hemophiliacs caught the virus from tainted blood plasma imported from the United States, rushed to safeguard the purity of Japan's blood supply by more careful selection of donors and testing of samples.

The ministry also doubled to 400 milliliters (12 fluid ounces) the amount of blood a donor may offer, aiming to cut Japan's 85 percent dependence on foreign blood.

Its AIDS Research and Countermeasures Council ordered 600 health offices nationwide to report in depth on suspected victims and launched a research project into the virus. It also distributed to health centers pamphlets describing current research and how to avoid AIDS.

"We've taken nearly all the steps we can at this point," said ministry official Fujio Kumagaiya, "and must now confront the problem as it appears."

French police find none of stolen paintings insured

PARIS (AP) — Police predicted a "long and difficult" investigation into the broad-daylight armed theft of nine impressionist paintings worth more than $12 million, and museum officials ruled out one possible motive by saying none was insured.

Police on Monday took testimony from guards and visitors who were forced to lie on the floor at Paris' Marmottan Museum a day earlier while at least five thieves stole the paintings, including Monet's priceless "Impression Soleil Levant." Police combed the museum for fingerprints.

The Academie des Beaux Arts, which oversees the Marmottan, revealed Monday that none of the stolen paintings stolen was insured, thus ruling out what one French expert said was one of the more common motives among art thieves — extorting insurance money.

No paintings in French museums are insured unless they are loaned out to other museums, the Academie said.

Police indicated they had few solid clues but an array of possible motives.

"It will be a long and difficult investigation," Superintendent Thierry Boulouque, of the unit charged with the investigation, said in a telephone interview.

"For the moment, no one hypothesis is being excluded...extortion, whatever. Everything is envisaged, everything is possible."

Culture Minister Jack Lang said France will not yield to blackmail or extortion to recover the paintings.

"There will be no question of acceding to any sort of extortion," Lang said over French radio. "I know the French police are active and remarkably organized to do the impossible to find the (culprits) and, above all, the artwork."

STATE

Hurricane Juan moved eastward early today, away from the Texas coast, but the erratic storm was continuing to spread some light rain over scattered sections of North Central Texas, Southeast Texas and along the upper Texas coast.

Forecasters said the greatest danger from Hurricane Juan was the area along the Louisiana and Mississippi coast, possibly even the Florida Panhandle.

The flash flood watches and flood watches that covered much of the eastern half of Texas Monday were cancelled early today as the National Hurricane Center reported the east, northeast movement of Juan. The storm had spent much of Monday just off the Louisiana coast south of Layfayette and posed more of a threat to the Texas coast.

Forecasters, however, warned at dawn that some rain would continue to fall over Southeast Texas and some could be locally heavy enough to cause some flooding problems because of soil saturated from extensive recent rainfall.

A travelers advisory was posted for the Texas Panhandle and South Plains early today because of fog. Some areas reported near zero visibility while Amarillo and Lubbock had visibility of about one-fourth of a mile.

NATION

Rain dampened the nation from the South to the Midwest today, while much of the Northeast was chilly.

Rainshowers and thunderstorms extended over Georgia and Alabama, from southern Illinois across Mississippi, from southern Missouri through Louisiana and from eastern Texas to southeast Kansas.

Hurricane Juan pushed strong winds and rain into the Gulf Coast region.

Pricey game may leave Yuppies 'Saab'-ing for all they hold sacred

BOSTON (AP) — Don't ever say that yuppies have it easy. A perfectly ripe slab of Brie can be hard to find. A superlative Saab mechanic is rare. Spring skiing conditions can be so unpredictable.

And now yuppies have one more burden: a new board game that pokes fun at all those things they hold sacred, from gourmet mushrooms to $500 Persian kittens.

The Yuppie Game, which hits the shelves of toy stores nationwide this week, was invented by two Boston entrepreneurs who admit they are yuppies themselves.

"I've got a fast-track job and I'm a gourmet cook," said one of the inventors, Robin Landerman, a TV producer. "Some of my best friends are investment bankers. I have many characteristics of a young urban professional, but I like to think of myself as a yuppie with a conscience."

Landerman and artist Ann Benson, who drives a Volvo station wagon and lives in a renovated Victorian house, said their game is a tongue-in-cheek parody of yuppie life.

"We're making fun of the pretentiousness, the $800 soup pot, the $5,000 imported dog," said Landerman, 28.

The $19.95 game is relatively simple to understand: Each player starts with $50,000 and a "Yuppie Express" card and travels around the board collecting dividends, paying tuitions, buying cars and meeting potential "marriage partners."

The game requires no skill, just luck. A player rolls the dice, lands on a space and must follow the directions of a card drawn from one of five stacks: lifestyle, investments, possessions, "yupheavals" or family and career.

Raiders take motto seriously, whip Chargers

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer

LOS ANGELES — The signs around the Los Angeles Coliseum proclaim the motto of the Los Angeles Raiders: "Commitment to Excellence." Halfway through the National Football League season, the Raiders are beginning to fulfill that commitment.

"We're halfway through and tied for first. That's not a bad place to be," said Coach Tom Flores after the Raiders won their fifth straight game Monday night, dismantling the San Diego Chargers 34-21 to join Denver in a tie for first place in the AFC West with a 6-2 record.

It marked their longest winning streak since 1983, the year the Raiders won their last Super Bowl, and was the latest in a long line of Monday night triumphs — the Raiders are now 23-3-1 in the prime-time showcase.

The victory also ran their streak against the Chargers to 7-0 since they moved from Oakland in 1982.

MOREOVER, THE Raiders accomplished it with something they haven't had much of lately — offense — although they did it against a team that entered the game ranked 27th defensively in the 28-team NFL. With Marcus Allen rushing for 111 yards and three short touchdowns and Marc Wilson throwing for 258 yards, they jumped to a quick 10-0 lead, expanded it to 24-7 at halftime, then spent the second half running out the clock.

The defense, meanwhile, didn't do so badly either.

Led by Howie Long and Rod Martin, it registered six sacks and harried Dan Fouts all night in the San Diego quarterback's first start since injuring a knee a month ago.

"We have a great defense," said Wilson. "They've been carrying us, taking a lot of pressure off us. It felt good to score some points and take some of the pressure off them."

"I think the offense is coming along," said tight end Todd Christensen, who caught seven passes for 134 yards, including a 48-yarder that set up the Raiders' third touchdown. "And that's a good thing because you want to peak when it counts."

THE RAIDERS controlled the game from the outset, holding San Diego without a first down on its first four possessions and scoring 10 points. The first score was a 20-yard field goal by Chris Bahr set up by Mike Haynes' interception of a Fouts pass. The second came on a 13-yard reverse to Jessie Hester, the rookie wide receiver, which culminated a 36-yard drive set up by Long's third-down sack that pushed the Chargers back to their own nine.

After Fouts cut it to 10-7 with a 52-yard bomb to Gary Anderson on the first play of the second quarter, the Raiders opened it up again on two scores by Allen.

The first, a 3-yard plunge, was again set up by the defense — the Raiders got the ball at the San Diego 35 after sacks by Brad Van Pelt and Martin pushed the Chargers back to the seven. San Diego almost got out of trouble — Ralf Mojsiejenko's 68-yard punt was nullified by an illegal man downfield and he squibbed the re-kick out of bounds at the 35.

Christensen's 48-yard reception set up the next score. Allen's 1-yard dive made it 24-7 at the half.

Anderson's 4-yard run early in the third quarter cut it to 24-14. But Allen sealed it with a 4-yard score at the end of a 56-yard drive engineered primarily on passes from Wilson to Christensen and Frank Hawkins.

BAHR HAD a 25-yard field goal in the fourth quarter and Fouts closed out the scoring with a 1-yard toss to Jesse Bendross with 2:20 left in the game.

"That's the best team we've played all season, no question about it," said San Diego Coach Don Coryell, whose team fell to 3-5.

The game was also the first start of the season for San Diego's All-Pro tight end Kellen Winslow, who seriously injured a knee against the Raiders a year ago and made his 1985 debut against Minnesota last week.

"It's fine," said Winslow, who caught five passes for 48 yards before taking himself out in the fourth quarter when he felt tired. "I felt a little pain behind the knee late in the game, but basically I feel good."

The Raiders felt even better.

"The attitude has gotten very good for these last five games," said Allen. "These games are bringing out the little boys in all of us. I think we need that fire in our eyes and it's been reflected in our play."

A loser in the World Series, Herzog cops skipper of year

NEW YORK (AP) — Whitey Herzog, who skippered the St. Louis Cardinals to within one game of a World Series title, edged Cincinnati's Pete Rose by two votes as The Associated Press' Manager of the Year in balloting announced today.

Herzog received 44 of a possible 117 votes from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Third in the balloting was Bobby Cox, who resigned as manager of the Toronto Blue Jays to become general manager of the Atlanta Braves.

Few gave the Cardinals much of a chance to win the National League's East Division title after ace reliever Bruce Sutter took his 45 saves and signed as a free agent with Atlanta on Dec. 7, 1984.

But the ever-versatile Herzog convened a "bullpen by committee" and a stepped-up offense to produce 101 victories and the National League crown.

"Nobody expected us to go anywhere," said Herzog after the Cardinals dropped the seventh game of the World Series 11-0 to the Kansas City Royals. "We ended up losing the seventh game of the World Series. We just didn't hit very well."

Rose not only had the burden of being in his first full season as player-manager of the Reds, but he had the chase of Ty Cobb's hit mark and the thousands of interviews that went with it.

Rose got the record, fielded the questions and guided the Reds to an 89-72 mark and a second-place finish behind the Los Angeles Dodgers in the NL West.

Other managers receiving votes were: Tom Lasorda, Los Angeles, (8); Dave Johnson, New York Mets, (5); and Billy Martin, dismissed as New York Yankee Manager on Sunday, (5).

Dwight Gooden of the New York Mets, who dominated National League batters en route to a 24-4 record, scored another landslide victory when he was named today to The Associated Press' major-league baseball All-Star team.

Gooden received 114 of a possible 117 votes from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters to nail down the right-handed pitcher's spot on the squad. St. Louis' John Tudor beat out the New York Yankees' Ron Guidry, 80-26, as the left-handed hurler.

Gooden paced the the NL in victories; earned-run average, 1.53; complete games, 16; innings pitched, 276 2-3; and strikeouts, 268. He also reached double figures in strikeouts 11 times, running his two-year career total to 26.

"Even when he's not getting double figures, he's amazing," said the Mets' Gary Carter of Gooden. "When he gets into trouble, how can you not be excited by what he can do to bail himself out."

At 20 years, 9 months, 9 days Gooden became the youngest pitcher to win 20 games, besting Bob Feller's major-league mark and Christy Mathewson's National League standard set at age 21 in 1901.

Carter topped the catcher's list with 75 votes, 35 more than Carlton Fisk of the Chicago White Sox. Carter, who was obtained from Montreal last winter, led the Mets with 32 homers and 100 RBIs.

Tudor, who started the season at 1-7 and went on to win 20 of 21 decisions, wasn't far behind Gooden in most categories. His 10 shutouts led the majors and were the most since Bob Gibson posted 13 for the Cardinals in 1968.

The closest race was for AP Manager of the Year, where St. Louis' Whitey Herzog edged Cincinnati's Pete Rose 44-42. Herzog guided the Cardinals to 101 victories, the NL pennant, and within one game of a world championship.

After Gooden, the next highest vote-getter was first baseman Don Mattingly of the New York Yankees, who received 107 votes.

Mattingly supplemented his major-league leading 145 RBIs with a .324 batting average, 35 homers, 48 doubles and 21 game-winning RBIs.

Mattingly's 48 doubles were the most by a Yankee since Lou Gehrig hit 52 in 1927, and he is the first AL player to lead the majors in doubles in consecutive years since Tris Speaker completed a four-year run in 1923.

The Cardinals' Tommy Herr, who with eight homers and 110 RBIs became the first player since Detroit's George Kell in 1950 to drive in more than 100 runs with less than 10 homers, beat out the Cubs' Ryne Sandberg 84-30 at second base.

The voters chose offense over defense at shortstop by going with Baltimore's Cal Ripken over St. Louis' Ozzie Smith, 67-48.

Just as they battled most of the season for the American League's batting crown, Boston's Wade Boggs and Kansas City's George Brett staged a tight race at third base. Despite Boggs' .368 average and 240 hits, Brett won out by an 11-vote margin, 63-52.

Brett hit .335 and belted a career-high 30 homers while driving in 112 runs. He also led the AL with a .585 slugging percentage while leading the Royals to a world title with some spectacular post-season play.

Whitey Herzog

"What makes me popular?" asked Brett. "Is it hitting a home run against (Goose) Gossage? Is it the pine-tar incident?

"I've gotten some big hits in big games, but it's hard to pinpoint what makes me more popular than other players."

The three outfield positions went to the Cardinals' Willie McGee, with 86 votes; Rickey Henderson of the Yankees, 79 votes; and the Dodgers' Pedro Guerrero, 64 votes.

Atlanta's Dale Murphy, the top vote-getter two of the last three seasons, was fourth with 50 votes, while Cincinnati's Dave Parker collected 45.

McGee broke the highest previous average for a National League switch-hitter with a .353 mark to lead the league. The former record by a switch-hitter in the NL was .348 by Rose in 1969, and Frankie Frisch in 1923.

"I want to succeed personally because I feel the better I do the better it helps the team," said McGee, who also posted a .503 slugging average.

The relief pitcher spot was a tie at 39 votes for Montreal's Jeff Reardon and Kansas City's Dan Quisenberry.

Detroit's Darrell Evans was voted top designated hitter, edging Oakland's Dave Kingman, 21-17. Evans led the AL with 40 homers, and at the age of 38 became the oldest player to lead the league. He was also the first major-leaguer to hit 40 homers in both leagues.

The Class A Munday Moguls, for the second time this season, and 3A Navasota, in its second week with a No. 1 rank, have received the unanimous vote as the top-ranked teams in their divisions of The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll.

Munday, the defending Class A champion with a 24-game winning streak, gained all 25 first place votes by The AP's panel of sportswriters and sportscasters for a 250-209 point advantage over new runner-up Goldthwaite.

Navasota, which knocked off previously No. 1 ranked Hempstead last week, also was a unanimous pick by a 250-212 margin over No. 2 ranked Daingerfield.

Houston Yates in 5A, Tomball in 4A, and Electra in 2A also retained their top billings.

Yates, the top-scoring Class 5A team in the state with a 46.3 per game average, blasted Houston Davis 72-0 and received 21 first place votes for a comfortable lead over No. 2 ranked Houston Aldine.

Odessa Permian, 7-0-1, formerly ranked No. 1 in 5A, crept within two points of Aldine but remained third followed by West Orange Stark and San Antonio Clark. Midland Lee received some voter consideration after stopping Abilene High but did not crack into the poll.

TOMBALL, WHICH blanked Houston Furr 40-0, nonetheless was almost overtaken by No. 2 Denison, which beat Terrell 55-7.

Tomball received 15 first place votes to nine for Denison, but Tomball retained its No. 1 rank by only a 219-217 margin.

Fourth ranked Cameron was tied 7-7 by Hearne and No. 7 Cuero lost to district rival Refugio 20-15 on the Class 3A list. Cameron dropped to eighth on the new list and Cuero was replaced in the No. 10 position by Refugio, 7-0-1.

Groveton, ranked No. 4 in 2A last week, blasted third-ranked Alton 40-7 and moved up one notch to third while Alton fell to 10th.

The only other ranked loser was Union Hill, rated No. 2 in Class A last week, which fell to Carlisle 18-16 and dropped to 10th.

Leaf has Badgers zeroing in on target

By ERIC SCHURER
Sports Writer

Coach Buster Leaf of District 8-2A leading McCamey zeroed in on a goal before this season and his Badgers are closing in on making it a reality.

Last week's 24-6 win over Greenwood, the Badgers' seventh straight, left Leaf's club all alone on top of the district with a 3-0 mark.

"Three down and two to go!" exclaimed Leaf after the win. "We've taken each game one step at a time: Step 1, Step 2, Step 3 and the fourth is really the step when we can say it is for the district championship because if we win this week against Eldorado we'll have at least a tie for the district championship."

After the important win over the Rangers, you could almost forgive the Badgers if they had a letdown this week. But Leaf's Badgers aren't going to be satisfied with second place or a co-championship, their goal was to be undefeated.

"The goal we set on 'Day One' is now reachable, it's in our sight," Leaf said. "We know if we win on Friday we're going to the playoffs. If the kids can't get fired up for that, they shouldn't be out here playing football."

Area Football

WINS IN the next two weeks over Eldorado and Stanton will make Leaf's goal come true — an undefeated season. A win in just one of the next two games and the Badgers are assured a share of the district title. Once that feat is accomplished, Leaf will turn his attention to returning to the state semifinals where McCamey advanced in 1983.

"The biggest thing for us now is to get ready for the playoffs by winning the next two games, that would be the best preparation for us," Leaf said.

The Badgers are the only area team virtually assured of a playoff spot with two weeks remaining in the regular season. Even if they were to lose their final two games, the Badgers are likely to end up in a tie for second. Having beaten both Greenwood and Reagan County, McCamey would win a tie with either of those clubs. The Badgers would be vulnerable in a tiebreaker only to Stanton or Eldorado if they were to lose both games.

THE WAY Leaf has his team playing, it's not likely they will lose either game, let alone both games.

A look ahead for McCamey shows only bright spots on the horizon. Tailback Rodney Terry, injured in the Reagan County game, could be back for possible playoff action. Terry is far and away the fastest runner in the McCamey backfield and is a dangerous outside threat.

The junior has been hobbled with a removeable cast for a broken talus bone in his left ankle. Because it is removeable, Terry is able to work out on a stationary bicycle to keep his legs strong so when the bone is healed the rehab time will be short.

"If we are fortunate to make the playoffs, Rodney will get to play some. If we get him sooner, that would be great," Leaf said.

AREA RUMBLINGS: With McCamey taking to the forefront in the District 8-2A race, Reagan County and Greenwood will take to the mat this week for the inside track on the second playoff spot.

The Owls bounced back with an impressive 29-13 whipping of Stanton thanks to a rejuvenated offense directed by sophomore Scott Lipsey. Lipsey was only five of 15 passing, but two went for first half touchdowns. Coach Ronnie Reeger is beginning to like what he sees in his new quarterback.

Meanwhile, the Reagan County running attack continues to be strong. Last week, fullback Tim Tatum led all rushers with 75 of a team total of 242 yards. The Owls' running game ate up the clock in a second half drive that kept Stanton from getting their hands on the ball...

The Buffs, 1-2, 3-5, now take to the role of a spoiler in the district race, first lining up with Wall this week then McCamey in the final week of play. Derek Sorley came alive against the Owls, catching six passes from quarterback Kevin Glaspie, including a diving, one-handed grab of a touchdown in the third quarter...

Greenwood now 2-1, 6-2, gets ready for the Reagan County game after a disappointing showing at McCamey. The Rangers could look to the quickness of backs Steve Popham and Garrett Mattison and the throwing of quarterback Chad Longley to counter the size disadvantage they will have against the Owls.

If you like fights, go see Marvin Hagler. In tennis, you could do worse than Lendl.

But, if you want somebody to hit a baseball for you, George Howard Brett is your man.

Nobody in baseball history ever struck a baseball any better than Mister Brett — not Rogers Hornsby, Cobb, Ted Williams, Stan Musial, Mays, Mantle, any of them.

No third baseman ever came close.

THE KANSAS City Royals are baseball champions of the world today largely because of George Howard Brett. They are his lengthened shadow as an institution.

Oh, it was not the four consecutive hits, the stolen base, the run scored in Game 7 Sunday night. It wasn't that he kept the rallies going, the fires burning, the victory possible.

It's just that George Brett has been doing that since he hit this town.

That, by the way, the year he hit this town, was 1974.

Know how many pennants the Royals have hung up in the years since Brett joined them? Six. In 11 years. Players have come and players have gone. Managers there were seven.

The one constant has been George Brett.

It's been no secret around the league. Stop Brett and you stop the Royals. "Don't let George Brett beat you no ball games," is the standard baseball double-negative for players of Brett's caliber.

No one has stopped Brett yet.

Someone asked in the interview room the other night if the Royals were a dynasty. Rival Manager Whitey Herzog's reply was unprintable.

The Royals aren't a dynasty. George Brett is a dynasty.

HE'S ALWAYS there in the middle of that lineup with that big bat, that quick weight shift, the catlike adjustment. You need a base hit to left, you get it from George. You need a home run, he can do that, too.

He can play third base as well as it has to be played, too. No one notices. It's like noticing whether Caruso can dance.

George Brett is as sure a bet for Cooperstown as Pete Rose. You get the same intensity, the same drive, the same sheer enjoyment of the fun of the game.

So, how come he isn't as famous? The 4000 hits? Well, yes. But, also because no one was paying attention because George Brett was doing what he was doing in, of all places, Kansas City – that funny little franchise out there on the end of the cattle drive. Cowtown USA. Let's see, The Blues, right? No, the Royals, that's it. The team with the delusions of grandeur that the Yankees keep bopping over every October.

Only, they keep coming back. Because they have Brett.

Of course, he can't do it all himself. Not even Ruth could do that.

But, consider the things Brett has done. He led the league in hitting the year Kansas City won its first Western Division title. He batted .390 the year they went to their first World Series. You heard me. No third baseman in this century batted .390 and not many players from any position.

HE ALMOST single-handedly used to stand off the Yankees in playoffs. He batted .444 in the first one. He hit .389 in another one. He hit .375 in his only World Series – with hemorrhoids so bad he couldn't drive a car.

If Brett did what he did in New York, he'd be a candy bar. If he did it in California, he'd be a junior high school.

As much as anybody, he brought this town its first world championship this month. You have to go back to Frank Merriwell to find exploits like his. You don't usually find them off the pages of a kids' book.

First of all, he batted second in the league this year with a .335 average. He was in the top ten in home runs with 30, fifth in runs-batted-in with 112, fifth in runs-scored and third in walks with 103.

But, it's when he smells a pennant that Brett turns really predatory, like a tiger who sees a staked water buffalo.

In the last six games of the regular season, at a time when his team was still a game behind the California Angels, George Howard Brett took out the A game. He went 9 for 21 with 5 home runs and 10 runs-batted-in. The Angels never had a chance.

THE TORONTO Blue Jays never had a chance. In the playoff series, they got as far in front as they could get. They walked Brett once when it all but put a tying run across the plate. But, nothing worked. Just when they seemed to be in reach of the pennant, George hit two home runs in a single game. He went 8-for-23 in the seven playoff games. There wouldn't have been seven without George Brett.

In career post season play up to Sunday night, George Brett was 50 for 157 in hits with 10 home runs and 23 runs-batted-in.

Sunday night, George Brett only hit safely his first four times up, stole a base, scored a run, won a World Series.

It is clear he knows something about hitting a baseball under pressure not many men know. Whatever the alchemy that makes a man a superlative striker of the baseball, George Brett has it in abundance.

The surfer kid from the beaches of California can hit baseballs with the best tobacco-chewers, cane-cutters or street-fighters who ever played this game in any era. He may be the best ballplayer ever to come out of Los Angeles, native-born, that is. He ranks with Harry Truman and Tom Watson in the parts of Missouri that touch Kansas. But he could probably walk the streets of his winter town of Palm Springs and have to show ID to charge a lunch.

BUT IF you want a baseball hit, look no further. If it's piano-playing you want, go to Carnegie Hall. But, if it's a world championship you want, try this kid with the Santa Monica beach-blue eyes and uniform to match and the No. 5 on his back. He'll give you a recital with a bat Toscanini would be proud of. If baseball is your bag, Brett is your boy. If everything is up to date in Kansas City, he's a reason. If they've gone about as far as they can go – he took them there.

Miners kick sand in face of BYU; Air Force takes reins of WAC

Associated Press

Thanks to Texas-El Paso, college football's 98-pound weakling, there's a new heavyweight in the Western Athletic Conference.

UTEP, loser of 107 of 121 games in the last 11 years, pulled off one of the biggest upsets ever — a 23-16 shocker over defending national champion Brigham Young. The loss not only dropped BYU 10 places, to 17th, in the Associated Press poll, but left No. 7 Air Force alone atop the WAC roost.

Air Force, a 32-15 winner over Utah, is 8-0 overall and 4-0 in the WAC, a game better than BYU. Not since 1975 has Brigham Young failed to garner at least a share of the WAC title, but the Cougars face an uphill task in trying to throttle the high-flying Falcons.

"I was as surprised as you were," Air Force Coach Fisher DeBerry said of BYU's demise. "But that same thing could happen to us in any of the four games remaining on our schedule. It could happen to anybody. Aren't the Chicago Bears the only unbeaten team in the NFL?

"We don't want anyone else to do our work for us," DeBerry added. "We're going to play this thing out one game at a time."

THE FALL of Brigham Young accounted for the only significant change in this week's poll. The top six positions remained the same, with Iowa again a unanimous choice as No. 1.

The Hawkeyes, 7-0 after a 49-10 pounding of Northwestern, received all 58 first-place votes and a perfect 1,160 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters in the Associated Press poll.

Over the last 13 years, the only other team to be voted a unanimous No. 1 for two consecutive weeks was Nebraska early in the 1983 season.

Florida is again second, collecting 1,060 points after a 35-18 defeat of Virginia Tech, and Penn State got 1,025 points after a 27-0 blanking of West Virginia.

Fourth-ranked Michigan, which trounced Indiana 42-15, collected 994 points and Nebraska rounded out the top five with 912 after defeating Colorado 17-7.

Auburn remained sixth with 866 points after turning back Mississippi State 21-9.

Air Force collected 764 points to finish ahead of Ohio State, which improved one spot to eighth after a 23-19 decision over last week's No. 20 team, Minnesota. Ohio State received 682 points.

OKLAHOMA MOVED up from 10th to ninth with 655 points by crushing Iowa State 59-14, and Florida State went from 11th to 10th with 592 points by rallying to beat North Carolina 20-10.

The Second Ten consists of Miami (Fla.), Oklahoma State, Baylor, Arkansas, UCLA, LSU, BYU, Georgia, Tennessee and Southern Methodist.

Last week, it was Florida State, Oklahoma State, Baylor, Arkansas, Miami, Tennessee, UCLA, LSU, Texas and Minnesota.

Texas fell out after being drubbed by SMU 44-14, while Minnesota lost to Ohio State. SMU made the rankings at No. 20 after a two-week absence, and Georgia, which had been missing for just the last week, reappeared as No. 18 by defeating Kentucky 26-6.

Cowboys' Tony Dorsett, here pushing over Buddy Curry of Atlanta, is listed as 'probable' for Monday's game with the St. Louis Cardinals because of bruised knees and hands.

Pokes enjoying proving critics wrong

IRVING (AP) — Picked to finish fourth in the National Conference Eastern Division, the Dallas Cowboys own a one-game lead with a 6-2 record after Sunday's 24-10 victory over the Atlanta Falcons and defensive back Dennis Thurman says "It's nice to be on top."

"I don't think anybody expected us to be where we are right now," said Thurman. "It's gratifying, but it's only halfway over. We're getting ready to go into St. Louis and Washington, two very tough places to play."

Defensive tackle Randy White said, "We'll be OK as long as we keep playing as a team. That's the best thing we have going this year. We have a good, aggressive attitude."

Give Dallas Coach Tom Landry a 6-2 record in the second half of the season and he'd take a hike.

"I'd go fishing or play golf if you'd give me 6-2 again," said Landry. "I'm very happy to be at 6-2 at this point. I never thought it would be."

A sore-ribbed Danny White was far from perfect in his return to the Dallas lineup, but he offset three interceptions by running for a touchdown, passing for another and hitting 27 of 47 passes for 362 yards against the Falcons.

White was listed as "probable" for the Nov. 4 Monday night National Football League game against the St. Louis Cardinals.

Running back Tony Dorsett was also listed as probable because officials said he had bruises on both knees and hands.

TONY HILL caught a 35-yard touchdown pass and had 10 receptions for 161 yards. Tony Dorsett gained 90 yards, 60 of them on a touchdown burst up the middle.

"Danny did have three turnovers but that's not surprising when you consider the harassment he was under," said Landry. "Still he made the big plays for us. His experience enabled him to make those big plays."

Landry said he feels good about his team.

"We'll go to the playoffs for sure if we keep playing like this," he said.

Dallas strong safety Dextor Clinkscale, who had two interceptions, said, "I thought we'd be 8-0, but I'll settle for 6-2. We have a very good football team, but we need to stay intense. We need to play enthused."

Clinkscale said the Cardinals, who have been slumping lately, will be tough at home.

"It'll be a great game for the country to see," he said.

Akers credits SMU score to official's block

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN — The Southern Methodist touchdown that seemed to deflate Texas in a 30-point SMU victory would never have happened if a game official had not thrown a "block," says Texas Coach Fred Akers.

Akers said Monday safety Richard Peavy, with 16 tackles, had been named by coaches as Texas' most valuable defensive player in the 44-14 loss to SMU, and Akers added, "He (Peavy) probably would have tackled that fullback on the weird play if the umpire hadn't blocked him — in fact, I know he would have."

Texas trailed 20-6, and SMU was on its 5-yard-line when fullback Cobby Morrison broke to the Texas 30, fumbled, and teammate Jeffrey Jacobs grabbed the ball on the bounce and completed a 95-yard touchdown, apparently the longest scoring play ever from scrimmage against Texas.

IN SCORING a single touchdown, its first in three games, Texas' offense failed on third-and-1 at the SMU 15-yard-line, on third-and-1 at the SMU 26 and fourth-and-1 at the SMU 3.

"We didn't do very well at all in short-yardage situations, and that really hurt, really hurt," Akers told his weekly news conference Monday.

Asked if officials might have spotted the ball wrong on quarterback Bret Stafford's run preceding the goal line failure, Akers said, "There were a couple of times when there were some curious spots." Another time, he said, was on Charles Hunter's run for no gain at the 26, which was followed by a Texas field goal.

Akers also said he "had problems" with a pass interference call that set up SMU's second touchdown, but he added, "Those things happen in games all the time. You're not going to play a perfect ball game and you're not going to call a perfect ball game. It just happened to hurt us more this year."

THE LONGHORNS lost safety John Hagy, who will have knee surgery Wednesday, and Akers said five of his six defensive tackles and several other defensive backs are hurt. "We're paper thin," he said.

"These last three weeks have been awfully tough. We've faced three of the top teams physically in the country, and that it takes its toll, I guess," Akers said.

Texas lost to nationally ranked Oklahoma 14-7 and upset nationally ranked Arkansas 15-13 before losing to SMU, which was highly ranked in preseason.

Asked how he hoped to revive his squad after the most decisive SMU victory over Texas in the 65-game series, Akers said, "Well, one way is to look at the film and decide how disappointed you are in your performance and do something about it.

"There's enough motivation in the film, plus we have one loss in the conference, and we're very much still in the hunt" for the Southwest Conference football title.

ASKED IF the SMU loss was one of the more disappointing losses of his career, Akers said, "Any of them are disappointing. ... It's just the most recent. I remember it better than I do the others. What's disappointing about it is we're getting a lot of these players banged up. That's really disappointing."

Texas, 2-1 in the SWC, plays Texas Tech, 0-4, in a regionally televised game here Saturday. Kickoff is at 12:05 p.m., CST.

TV changes game times

DALLAS (AP) — A pair of Southwest Conference games have been given new kickoff times to accommodate the television networks that will broadcast them in weekend action.

The first is the kickoff of the Texas-Texas Tech conference game at Memorial Stadium in Austin this Saturday which has been moved from 1 p.m. to 12:04 p.m. so it can be regionally televised by Raycom Sports, it was announced Monday by the SWC office.

Raycom had originally been scheduled to televise the SMU-Texas A&M game but ESPN decided to air that game nationally and moved it to 6:45 p.m. Saturday from Kyle Field.

SMU-Texas A&M had been scheduled as an afternoon game in College Station, Texas Saturday's Southern Methodist-Texas A&M game and the Nov. 9 contest between South Carolina and Florida State will be televised by ESPN.

Injuries force Oilers to look for new faces

HOUSTON (AP) — Injuries are forcing new faces into the Houston Oiler lineup and Coach Hugh Campbell is pleased with the progress of the replacements.

The Oilers were reduced to one healthy running back in Sunday's 20-10 victory over St. Louis, forcing tight end Chris Dressel to line up as a blocking back.

He didn't carry the ball, but Campbell said Dressel provided superior blocking.

"Chris is a better blocker than the backs normally block so there is some strength there," Campbell said, celebrating the Oilers' second consecutive victory.

Starting fullback Larry Moriarty and backup running back Stan Edwards missed the game with injuries and Mike Rozier suffered an ankle sprain on his first carry.

THAT LEFT the Oilers with Butch Woolfolk as the lone healthy running back.

"I told Butch it didn't matter if he got hurt, that he was going to play anyway," Campbell said.

Moriarty, sidelined with painfully bruised ribs, may return for Sunday's game in the Astrodome against the Kansas City Chiefs.

"I think we'll have Larry back this week but if we don't it will be more of Dressel in the backfield."

Defensively, the Oilers lost cornerback Steve Brown, who suffered a sprained arch in his foot. The Oilers shifted to a zone coverage and went with rookie Richard Johnson.

Another rookie, Frank Bush, is starting for injured outside linebacker Johnny Meads.

Yields up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Yields on short-term Treasury securities rose for the second straight week in Monday's auctions, pushing rates on three-month bills to their highest level since August.

The Treasury Department sold $7.1 billion in three-month bills at an average discount rate of 7.24 percent, up from 7.18 percent last week. Another $7.1 billion was sold in six-month bills at an average discount rate of 7.37 percent, up from 7.32 percent last week.

The rates were the highest since three-month bills sold for 7.3 percent on Aug. 5 and six-month bills averaged 7.39 percent on Sept. 9.

The new discount rates understate the actual return to investors — 7.48 percent for three-month bills and 7.76 percent for six-month bills.

Dollar down

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar was down against most major currencies in quiet European trading today. Gold prices were little changed.

The dollar sank against the Japanese yen for a third consecutive day in Asian trading and Frankfurt dealers said they saw no new influences to push the dollar out of its narrow trading range.

Some Tokyo dealers said there were rumors that the Bank of Japan had sold small amounts of dollars to support the yen, but there was no confirmation of such action.

In Tokyo, where trading ends as Europe's business day begins, the dollar fell to 212.90 Japanese yen from 213.70 Monday.

In London, the dollar was down very slightly against the British pound. It cost $1.429 to buy one British pound in early trading today, more expensive than $1.427 in late trading Monday.

Other dollar rates at midmorning, compared with late Monday:

—2.6335 West German marks, down from 2.6425

—2.158 Swiss francs, down from 2.1655

—8.025 French francs, down from 8.0525

—2.9722 Dutch guilders, down from 2.9815

"Nothing has been happening at all this morning," said one bullion dealer in London. "As for the rest of the day, I can't see anything happening."

Gold opened in London at a bid price of $326.30 a troy ounce, compared with late Monday's $326.50. At midmorning, the city's five major bullion dealers fixed a recommended price of $326.55.

In Zurich, Europe's biggest bullion market, the bid price was $326.50, down from $327 late Monday.

Earlier, in Hong Kong, gold fell 18 cents to close at a bid price of $327.10.

Silver was quoted in London Tuesday at a bid price of $6.16 a troy ounce, down from Monday's $6.20.

Oklahoma City man to head IPAA board

By JOHN PAUL PITTS
Business/Oil Editor

SAN ANTONIO — Raymond H. Hefner, an independent oil and natural gas producer from Oklahoma City, was elected Chairman of the Board of the Independent Producers Association of America, the national trade association representing America's 15,000 independent wildcatters.

Hefner, who was elected at the Association's 56th annual meeting here Monday, succeeds Jon Rex Jones of Houston, to the post of Chief Executive Officer.

The Association also elected IPAA Executive Vice President Lloyd N. Unsell to the position of President. Unsell was first elected Executive Vice President in 1976, and remains the Association's chief staff officer. The position of Executive Vice President was eliminated following membership action, which created the office of Chairman of the Board for the trade association.

The IPAA membership also elected H.B. "Bud" Scoggins to the position of president-elect. Scoggins will succeed Unsell upon his retirement in 1987. Scoggins has been with the IPAA since 1974, and is currently vice president for government relations and general counsel. He is also responsible for overseeing the Association's tax policy. He was named to the post following a national search for Unsell's successor.

Commenting on the changes, IPAA chairman Raymond Hefner said, "I believe we are taking a positive step toward making our association even more responsive to the members, while positioning ourselves favorably for the long term."

Hefner emphasized that the changes would have little, if any, impact on the day-to-day operation of the association, which he said Lloyd Unsell would continue to oversee.

In his farewell speech to the membership of the IPAA, outgoing president Jon Rex Jones lambasted the administration for its proposed tax reforms.

"It is time the oil industry called the tax reforms exactly what they are," said Jones. "A bad deal. It is bad for America. This president bought a bad deal, and the sooner we stand up and say so, the better." Jones said every president since World War II, except Reagan, had rejected the notion that you can apply the same tax treatment to the drilling of an oilwell as you would the construction of a building.

Jones also said the problem was that nobody wanted to be the one to stand up against a highly popular president, and oppose the popular notion of tax reform.

Said Jones: "We in the industry used to be able to walk the halls of Congress and know who our friends and enemies were, but it's getting harder all the time now."

Jones said the industry could not expect fair treatment from the Ways and Means committee, because of chairman Dan Rostenkowski's statement that the "acid test" of tax reform would be the treatment of the oil industry.

"Neither can we expect a proposed tax reform bill passed by the House to be straightened out in the Senate. If you think that's going to happen, I have a nice little mission down the street I would like to sell you," said Jones, pointing toward the Alamo.

The Jones family was doubly honored at the meeting, which saw A.V. Jones, brother of Jon Rex Jones, and himself a former president of IPAA, named as Chief Roughneck. The title is an honor bestowed annually by Lone Star Steel upon a member of the oil and gas industry who has been an outstanding example in the industry.

Spokesman says stripper well industry may worsen

By JOHN PAUL PITTS
Business/Oil Editor

SAN ANTONIO — In a report at the annual meeting of the Independent Petroleum Association of America here Monday, Glen Michel, executive vice president of the National Stripper Well Association, said the state of the ailing stripper well industry would only worsen if Congress took away its tax incentive.

Michel said the number of stripper wells plugged in 1984 was double that of those plugged in 1980, and that the production from the remaining wells had fallen from an average of 2.93 barrels of oil per day to 2.80 barrels of oil per day. He said the inventory of 452,453 stripper wells was shrinking at the rate of three percent (or by 14,170 wells) annually, and the U.S. could not afford to lose even this small amount of production.

Putting the problem in perspective, Michel said: "If those 14,170 wells each produced 2.8 barrels of oil daily, that would amount to 39,676 barrels daily, or 14,481,470 barrels annually. Put a price of $26 per barrel replacement cost from overseas, and it worsens the balance of payments by $376,525,240," explained Michel, who said the situation could only get worse each year.

He said if conditions worsened in the stripper industry, (stripper wells are wells producing less than ten barrels per day), it would be because of the regulatory actions of Congress and state government.

"Now is the time for the energy industry to speak loud and clear, and let Congress know what tools we need to get the job done," said Michel.

Commerce says Japan may buy Alaskan crude

WASHINGTON (AP) — Japan is expected to be one of the buyers when the United States becomes an oil exporter for the first time, probably early next year, a Commerce Department spokesman said Sunday.

President Reagan is expected to seek seek Commerce department approval to export Alaskan crude oil from the Cook Inlet area, said department spokesman B. Jay Cooper.

The amount involved would be only about 6,000 barrels a day, Cooper said. Such sales would generate approximately $61 million in annual revenues.

It will take about 75 days to obtain the export license, Cooper said. The process includes printing a notice, publishing amendments to existing regulations, and a 30-day public comment period.

Cooper said he did not believe the license application had been formally filed yet, but "the decision has apparently been made that the president wants to sell Cook Inlet oil."

Word of the export plan came from Alaska Gov. Bill Sheffield, who met briefly with Japanese Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone last week. The Japanese leader was in Anchorage Friday for a one-hour refueling stop on his way home from New York.

Sheffield said he had earlier asked Nakasone to bring up the oil sale issue with Reagan, and Nakasone told him the two leaders had discussed it.

"He (Nakasone) assured me that Alaska would be able to soon ship oil to Japan," Sheffield said Sunday.

The amount of oil involved is less than could be carried by two tankers. But Sheffield said the export could be a harbinger of more Japan-Alaska trade.

The U.S. trade deficit with Japan is estimated at $50 billion this year.

Cooper said there had been no change in the situation involving sales of North Slope oil, which would involve much larger amounts of crude. Congressional approval would be required for such export.

Joe Lincecum, a patient at the Texas Rehabilitation Center, tries out Wal-Mart's "Sit & Shop," a wheelchair with a basket attached, designed to make shopping easier for those with mobility problems.

Local store provides chair for disabled

By MELLA McEWEN
Business/Oil Writer

Approximately 12 million Americans suffer various physical disabilities, hindering many from fully enjoying shopping due to mobility problems.

The Midland Wal-Mart hopes to alleviate this situation by providing the "Sit and Shop," a wheelchair with a shopping basket attached, recently developed by American Distributing Co., of Garland.

"The wheelchair shows that Wal-mart is committed to providing access to shopping for all its customers," stated Steve Turner, assistant manager at the Midland store. "Providing access to the handicapped is a definite trend with Wal-Mart." The store also provides a wheelchair lane for its wheelchair-bound shoppers, he said, and sometimes store personnel will take the chair out to a handicapped person's car.

The chair, which is parked by the front door at all times, is good business for Wal-Mart, Turner said, because it increases customer access, and increased customers equate to more sales.

Joe Lincecum, who has been physically impaired for almost ten years, agreed, saying the "Sit and Shop" would benefit the store and its employees because "The more the handicapped can do for themselves, the more confidence they have. They won't have to keep asking for assistance all the time."

Lincecum, who does about 80 to 85 percent of his own shopping, recently tried the chair for the first time, and liked it, saying it was easy to use, and more convenient. "It gets hard to push around those large carts, especially when they're loaded with groceries. Sometimes, when you're trying to turn, the cart goes one way, and you go another."

According to American Distributing, six percent of a store's potential customers could benefit from the chair. There are approximately 36 million people over the age of 62, 18 percent of which require a wheelchair. This age group spent 28 billion dollars in grocery stores alone last year, and are the fasted consumer group in America today, the company noted. Not only the aged, but approximately six million adults who use wheelchairs for mobility, young and old with heart or breathing problems, are only a few who could benefit from the "Sit and Shop," the company has stated.

Turner noted that not all the people who use it are necesarily wheelchair bound. Some elderly people, such as those with walkers and unable to walk throughout the store sometimes use it to complete their shopping.

Wal-Mart presently has only one chair, which is being used more frequently as handicapped shoppers learn about it, but may buy more if demand merits, Turner said.

"I've worked with the handicapped since I was 12," Lincecum noted. "I used to think I knew what they were going through. I had an idea, but I didn't really understand until it happened to me. Anything I can do for the handicapped, I'll do it. I've had to put up with some inconveniences."

"You have to learn to accept handicap, and realize that others will be glad to help. You have to learn to let go of your ego, and accept help," he advised.

Analyst says gasoline prices fall first time since July

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gasoline retail prices edged up for the first time in 3½ months, and an oil industry analyst says that means the cost of getting the lead out of gas has finally reached the pump and more increases are in store.

Dan Lundberg, publisher of the Lundberg Letter, said Sunday that retail prices rose less than a fifth of a cent in the last two weeks, while wholesale prices rose 1.08 cents per gallon, cutting into retailers' profits.

Full-serve regular leaded was $1.309, up nearly a tenth of a cent; regular unleaded was $1.376.

Arco profits up; Unocal net drops

Drop in earnings blamed on low gas prices

Los Angeles Times —
Washington Post News Service

LOS ANGELES — Atlantic Richfield reported Monday improved earnings in the third quarter, but Unocal said earnings dropped by 12.4 percent.

Arco, which reported an operating loss a year earlier, said it earned $403 million in the third quarter. Quarterly revenue fell to $5.5 billion from $6 billion a year earlier.

Unocal reported earnings of $158.7 million, down from the $181.2 million that it earned in the third quarter a year earlier. The company said operating earnings were down only 8 percent for the quarter. Earnings per share increased to $1.37 a share from $1.04 a year ago because there are 33 percent fewer shares outstanding.

Unocal blamed its earnings decline on lower prices for natural gas, oil and chemicals and lower foreign petroleum earnings. Quarterly sales for Los Angeles-based Unocal increased to $3.04 billion from $2.89 billion a year ago.

Arco, also based in Los Angeles, attributed its improved earnings to higher profits on petroleum products and lower oil and gas exploration expenses. The company reduced its exploration budget by one-third this year.

Additionally, it said operating costs are lower. It has recently disposed of its East Coast operations and has trimmed its work force by one-fifth.

Arco said operating income for the quarter ended Sept. 30 more than doubled to $403 million, compared to $151 million a year earlier.

The company suffered a net loss of $519 million a year ago because of a $836-million charge on its metals businesses. Excluding that charge, Arco said its income in the third quarter of 1984 would have been $317 million.

The company's petroleum refining and marketing business showed the strongest improvement, earning $99 million before taxes, compared to $11 million a year ago, reflecting stronger performance in the industry.

Arco said results in its natural gas and chemical businesses continued to be weak.

Arco said it had spent $2.2 billion of the $4 billion that it planned to spend to repurchase its stock.

For the first nine months of 1985, Arco reported a loss of $344 million on sales of $17 billion. A year ago, Arco reported earnings of $282 million on sales of $18.6 billion.

Arco reported a $1.09 billion loss in the second quarter of 1985, the result of a $1.5 billion charge related to the company's restructuring.

Unocal said that petroleum product sales increased 4 percent for nine months ended Sept. 30 and that refining and marketing margins increased.

Unocal does not report quarterly earnings by business group.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, Unocal reported earnings of $459 million on sales of $8.7 billion. A year ago, Unocal reported sales of $547 million on sales of $8.6 billion.

Unocal said that a $91 million after-tax gain on the sale of units in Union Exploration Partners, the company's new oil and gas limited partnership, was offset by various expenses.

Those expenses were incurred in fighting a takeover attempt by T. Boone Pickens Jr. and include the $11 million net premium paid to redeem $4.2 billion in secured notes. Unocal recently refinanced the debt that it took on to fight Pickens through a combination of bank debt and private financing.

Transco sees loss for quarter

HOUSTON (SWN) — Transco Exploration Partners, Ltd. has announced a net loss of $7.2 million for the third quarter of 1985, or $0.12 per unit. This compares with third quarter 1984 net income of $21.8 million, or $0.39 per unit, that included the recording of reimbursed production-related costs of approximately $16.2 million, or $0.29 per unit. TXP's net loss for the nine months ended September 30, 1985, was $2.4 million, or $0.04 per unit, compared with net income of $42.1 million, or $0.77 per unit for the same period last year.

Revenues for the quarter were $72.4 million and funds provided from operations were $30.8 million, compared with revenues of $115.3 million and funds provided from operations of $79.5 million for the same period last year. Revenues and funds provided from operations for the nine-month period ended September 30, 1985, were $262.9 million and $154.7 million, respectively, compared to revenues of $330.4 million and funds provided from operations of $224.7 million for the same period last year.

Transco Exploration Company president and chief operating officer John H. Lollar noted that TXP's third quarter results continued to reflect current weak market conditions for gas. However, TXP was again successful in adding proved reserves in excess of production, replacing an estimated 112 percent of production for the third quarter and 150 percent for the first nine months of 1985.

Sales of natural gas and liquids (oil, condensate and plant products) declined 20 percent from the third quarter of 1984, averaging 152 million cubic feet per day (MMcf/d) of natural gas and 12,265 barrels per day (B/d), respectively. These compare with sales of 196 MMcf/d and 14,496 B/d in the third quarter of 1984. For the nine months ended September 30, 1985, daily natural gas and liquid sales averaged 191 MMcf/d and 13,551 B/d, respectively, compared with 216 MMcf/d and 14,696 B/d for the first nine months of 1984.

Free county water testing will end Jan. 1

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Midland and Ector County health departments won't be testing potable water specimens for free after Jan. 1.

The Legislature, in an effort to further compensate for diminishing state revenues, mandated the state health department begin recovering costs for several services it provides the general public, including the free testing of public and private water samples.

Ector County Commissioners Monday approved a request from Toby Cross, health department director, to charge $5 for the testing of water specimens.

Cross explained that water samples submitted to the county health department for bacteriological tests are transported to the Midland Health Department laboratory, which does testing for Midland, Ector and Howard counties.

According to Cross, this costs Ector County about $4,000 per year. Of the $5 fee paid for testing samples, he said, the Midland Health Department lab will rebate $1 to Ector County to help defray transportation costs.

Midland Health Department lab director Jim Davis explained the $5 fee for testing water samples is expected to only partially offset laboratory costs which, he estimated, run about $5.97.

Davis said it will take about six months to determine the actual cost of the service because the state health department has been providing the water sample kits. The agency has been purchasing these sample kits in quantities sufficient to supply all local health units, he noted, and this has reduced cost of the kits to 57 cents.

It's not known if the health department will continue to do this. If each local unit is forced to begin purchasing its own sample kits the cost will more than double, according to Davis.

Under the legislative mandate, Davis said, it will be necessary to also determine personnel costs involved in sample testing. Once all cost factors are determined, he said, it will probably be necessary to increase the testing fee.

Davis pointed out that Houston and several other cities have set their water sample testing fees at $8.

In other action Monday, Ector commissioners ordered an investigation of about 10.5 miles of roads built by developers in six county areas, most of them located in western parts of the county.

During the court's Oct. 14 meeting commissioners rejected a request to upgrade and maintain roads in the Webber subdivision after county engineer Don Bonifay reported the roads were never brought up to county specifications by the developer. County standards require roads have a 6-inch layer of compacted caliche before roads are accepted by the county for maintenance.

Dropouts get second chance in Odessa

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Giving school dropouts and youths who don't fit into highly structured school environments a "second chance" is the goal of Permian Basin Alternative Education.

The location on the ground floor of InterFirst Bank Building downtown was chosen because it will expose students to a professional atmosphere where they will be treated as adults, says PBAE director Joe Hernandez, and signs encourage students to dress in a professional manner.

The center's grand opening is scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday, with first classes beginning Nov. 4.

The center is sponsored by the Private Industry Council, which was founded under the Job Training Partnership Act, the Reagan Administration's successor to the Comprehensive Employment Training Act.

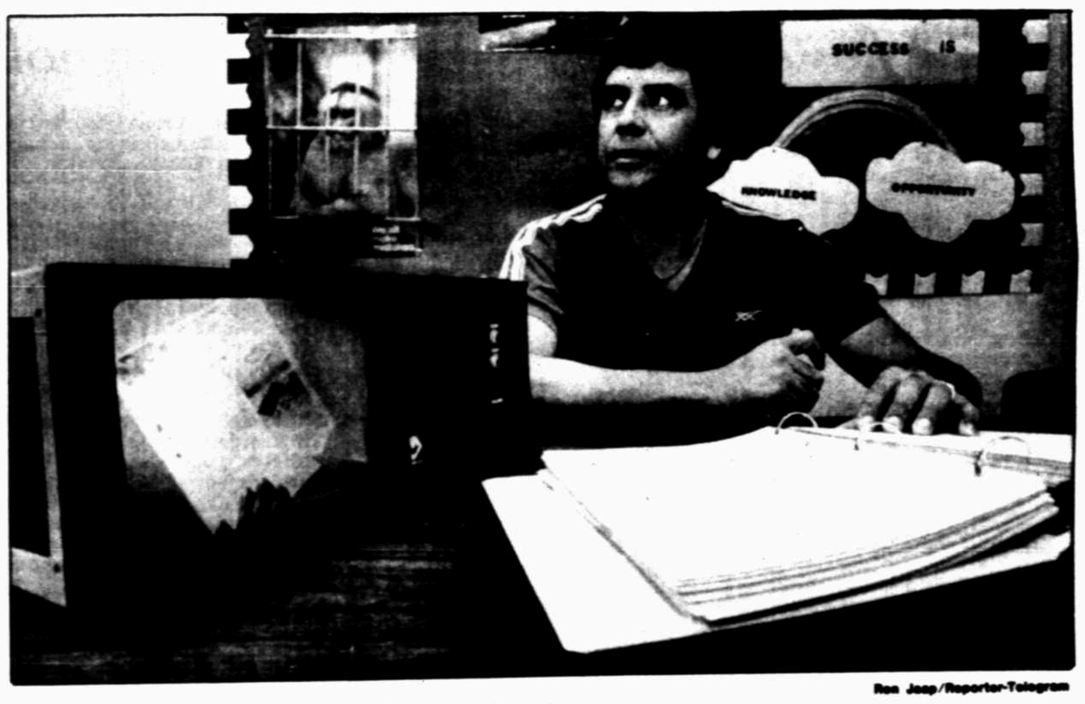
Initial funding of $135,000, Hernandez says, allowed him to lease space from InterFirst Bank, hire a staff, purchase equipment, textbooks and audio-visual training aids to support a diversified curriculum.

The program is limited to 40 students, who will be split evenly in two half-day sessions, according to Hernandez, a former Ector County Independent School District teacher who spent seven years at the former Blackshear High School teaching English and coaching football, basketball and track until he left to enter retail sales.

Hernandez says the program is available to anyone 16 to 23, although he expects to see youths who have dropped out of high school, tried to get jobs and learned that many jobs require a high school diploma or its equivalent.

Before beginning classes Nov. 4, Hernandez said each student will be tested to determine his or her strengths and weaknesses and a program will be designed to meet each student's needs.

A primary goal will be to prepare youths who dropped out of school to take and pass general educational development tests that will give them the equivalency of a high school diploma. In addition to upgrading academic skills, says Hernandez, the center will teach students "coping skills," such as how to fill out a job application, balance a checkbook and develop a budget, and buy their first car and insurance.



Ron Jeap/Reporter-Telegram

Permian Basin Alternative Education Center Director Joe Hernandez demonstrates an audiovisual unit in one of the classrooms. The school in Odessa is having its grand opening Wednesday and Thursday.

The center allows students to work their way through textbooks with the help of audio-visual aids and a personal instructor as needed.

Students will also learn to study on the 12 computers situated in an open classroom area, Hernandez says. The computers will enable each student to move at his or her own speed for as long as it takes to master a subject.

Most of the 35 students applying for enrollment so far, says Hernandez, have heard about the program through the media, word-of-mouth, or from some of the center's employees.

ECISD has agreed to cooperate with the center by referring dropouts and youths who have difficulty functioning in a normal public school environment. The program was presented to school trustees during an August board meeting by Joe Rutledge, Permian High School assistant principal, a PIC district coordinator, and Dave Cox, owner of the Freight Damage Furniture Store and chairman of the PIC Permian Basin Chapter.

The center will provide help for referred youths who have failed grades and dropped out of school, according to Hernandez. Students who have dropped out will be tested to determine their deficiencies, he says. A student weak in math but proficient in reading will follow a program concentrating on math skills.

School district officials have indicated advanced placement testing will be offered students who do well in the program and credit can be earned toward graduation.

Hernandez describes the alternative education program as "like college," in the sense that each student has chosen to attend. Students, however, will be required to punch a time clock in and out of classes. The reason for this, he says, is that time cards on each student will allow him to document the actual number of hours a student has devoted to the program.

Volunteer relays information on new direction

They also serve who stand and point.

I am not a runner. Oh, I'll run to get out of the way of an oncoming car in the Midland Park Mall parking lot and I've run down the seemingly endless corridors of DFW Airport trying to catch a connecting flight. Basically, though, I'm the type of person who considers running more of a survival mode rather than a cheap form of entertainment.

I don't, however, have anything against people who do run for fun. In fact, I volunteered last weekend to help them out during the MRT-YMCA Run and Relay.

I figured I'd probably be stationed near the start/finish line to help register runners, pass out commemorative T-shirts or some similar chore.

I was slightly surprised to instead find myself standing alone — in some of the thickest fog I've ever seen in West Texas — near the intersection of Green Tree Boulevard and Rustic Trail at a little before 9 a.m. Saturday morning.

My assigned duty was essentially to serve as a human compass. When runners came speeding up along Green Tree Boulevard, I was to point north along semicircular Rustic Trail and say "Turn left here and go around this loop."

It sounded like a semi-important job and — never having participated in a marathon in any fashion before — I thought it might be fairly interesting.

So, I took out my omnipresent reporter's pad and started to take notes about this new experience. Of course, I didn't really have too much to take notes on until the runners actually reached my intersection, which took somewhat longer than I had anticipated. Here are some excerpts from my notes:

— "9 a.m.: Nothing happening. Can't see much of anything. Fog incredibly dense, like in a horror movie."

— "9:08 a.m.: Still nothing going on."

— "9:15 a.m.: Bored enough that I've taken one of my business cards from my billfold and folded it into a paper airplane."

— "9:20 a.m.: After several abortive flights, concluded that business card doesn't have enough surface area to be aerodynamically stable. Tore sheet from notebook and folded it into new airplane. Flies much better."

— "9:25 a.m.: Got briefly excited a couple of minutes ago when a man came running up. I immediately sprang into action, shouting 'Turn left here and go around this loop,' while pointing energetically. Was chagrined to learn he was a relay team member who was just warming up and had no interest in turning left or going around Rustic Trail yet. He disappeared back into fog bank, leaving me almost bitterly disappointed."

— "9:30 a.m.: Still nothing happening."

Shortly after 9:30, I gave up on keeping notes. Fortunately, I didn't have to wait much longer for something to do. At approximately 9:40 a.m., the first runner hit my intersection, followed by a steady trickle of others.

At first I felt terribly official, but after 45 minutes saying "Turn left here and go around this loop" lost some of its novelty.

It's not that there weren't any variations on my lines. For example, when my employer, who ran in the half-marathon, came speeding by I'm reasonably sure I said, "Turn left here and go around this loop, sir."

There were also many very attractive women running in the race. Unfortunately, my conversation with them was rather hampered by the fact that they were all running past as fast as they possibly could. At least, under the circumstances, I knew I didn't have to take their haste personally.

Still, it would have taken a much more aggressive guy than I to develop meaningful relationships with women who were usually past me and around the corner onto Rustic Trail in 7.5 seconds.

I made the best of the situation by giving the fleet-footed women a smile and saying "Turn left here and go around this loop" in as suave and debonair a fashion as I could muster.

None of them seemed terribly impressed.

Perhaps, though, it's just as well. After all, when I was just a child my parents warned me about "fast women."

HEARING

The meeting at Pease Elementary School cafeteria, 1700 E. Magnolia Ave., will collect public opinions on a proposed plan to guide the city through its growth up to the year 2000.

The areas to be reviewed tonight include:

Community Area 4 - This 2.9-square-mile area is bordered roughly by Wadley Avenue on the north, Fairgrounds Road on the east, U.S. Highway 80 on the south and Big Spring Street on the west.

Filling up vacant lots with homes and redeveloping older areas are among several suggestions for Area 4. About 30 percent of Area 4 is vacant, with lots divided or platted for houses. Home building and paving of some streets should be encouraged for these platted areas, the plan says.

The land south of Cuthbert Avenue contains most of the dilapidated housing that needs redevelopment, the plan says. Abandonment of some streets south of Cuthbert is recommended to encourage redevelopment.

Two more shopping centers are recommended as this neighborhood develops. The area is served by one shopping center at Big Spring and Scharbauer Drive. The plan suggests that the two future shopping areas be built at the northeast corner of Fairgrounds and Hemlock Drive, and Lamesa Road and U.S. Highway 80.

Community Area C - This 6.9-square-mile area is bounded by the Midland-Martin County Line on the north, State Highway 349 on the west and Loop 250 on the south.

Midland Air Park will be relocated to the north of this area. The design of the air park and its runway locations will determine how the airport noise affects area C's northern section, the plan says.

Construction of single-family homes, townhouses and apartments are recommended in the future for this presently undeveloped area.

Community Area D - This 5.1-square-mile area is bordered by Loop 250 on the north, U.S. Highway 80 on the south and Fairgrounds Road on the east.

Twenty-one percent of this area is outside city limits and as the community develops, annexation should be considered.

Area D is expected to consist mainly of single family homes.

As development occurs, a shopping center should be built at the northeast corner of Area D at Loop 250, the plan says.

A petrochemical plant south of U.S. Highway 80 will impair quality homes on the north side, the plan says.

PBAE

PBAE will not function as a job placement center, says Hernandez, but local Texas Employment Commission officials have indicated they will work to place individuals once they acquire their high school equivalency or diplomas. He also said some members of the PIC have indicated they would be interested in looking at qualified applicants referred by the alternative education center.

According to Hernandez, the Odessa-based alternative education center is one of about 70 such centers in the nation that are using what he terms the comprehensive competency program.

Rutledge has indicated funds are available to initiate a comparable program in Midland, as well as other cities in the Permian Basin.

Welch makes AIDS major issue in race

HOUSTON (AP) — The major issue facing Houston voters Nov. 5 is public health and the threat of AIDS, mayoral candidate Louie Welch said during a televised debate with Mayor Kathy Whitmire.

"I don't believe 95 percent of our people who are heterosexual have to suffer the exposure of the less than 5 percent that are homosexual," Welch said during a KHOU-TV debate Monday. "The problem has to be addressed on the basis of today and the emergencies that exist."

Welch, Houston's mayor from 1964-1974, wants people arrested for prostitution to be tested for AIDS and wants so-called "bathhouses" closed.

"My opponent believes it's easy to snap his fingers and have a place closed," responded Mrs. Whitmire, who is seeking her third two-year term.

"It's difficult," Welch acknowledged. "But you've got to begin somewhere."

Welch has called AIDS in Houston an epidemic, a term disputed by health officials.

In the six-county Houston area, statistics this month showed 370 confirmed AIDS cases since 1980.

Welch, 66, gained national attention last week when he was preparing for a live television interview about his plan to halt the spread of acquired immune deficiency syndrome and said one way to curb the disease is to "shoot the queers." The microphone was live and his comment was carried on the air.

"I think that has got as much circulation as it probably is going to get," he said in response to a question during Monday's debate. "I think it already has gone into the category of the kind of slip that has made the program 'Bloopers' famous.

"What I do fear is that the media attention may take away the real issue, the interest in public health, which was the topic I was addressing," Welch said. "The problem of public health is not going to go away."

Mrs. Whitmire, 39, given the opportunity to respond to Welch's answer, repeated somewhat the same reply she made last week.

"I would certainly hope that neither one of us would make any statement in the campaign that would reflect badly on our city," she said.

However, she added that part of the aggressive campaign being waged between herself and the former five-term mayor is "to improve the national news coverage that we receive in Houston.

Teacher keeps job despite strip search

CEDAR HILL, Texas (AP) — With a crowd of bystanders in the hallway outside, the Cedar Hill school district board met behind closed doors and decided not to fire a physical education teacher and an administrator over the strip search of 15 junior high girls for a missing $1.85.

Some parents of the Cedar Hill Middle School students who were searched were enraged by the action and asked the board at its Monday night meeting to fire teacher Janice Ellis and Jeanne Cothran, an assistant principal who was involved with the search.

The meeting room was packed but, before the crucial vote, the board went into a closed executive session, leaving spectators to debate the matter among themselves while board members made their decision inside.

The board voted to transfer Mrs. Ellis to another school and place reprimands in the files of both educators.

Students were ordered to remove their clothing Thursday when a girl in a seventh-grade physical education class reported $1.85 missing. The missing money was not found.

Even the girl whose money was stolen, Michelle Younger, 13, said she felt "humiliated and embarrassed" over the search.

Other parents have said they still support Mrs. Ellis.

The teacher acted out of frustration after several thefts occurred during the year, the parents said.

One parent, Pat Stamper, noted Monday night that the physical education teacher has seen the students in various states of undress before in the locker room.

"I have no problems with that," Ms. Stamper said.

On Friday, Ms. Cothran said the decision to search the students was made in haste and frustration.

"She (Mrs. Ellis) was very frustrated. It was the third day in a row that money was stolen," Ms. Cothran said. "In the back of my mind, I thought it might not be the right thing to do."

At least one girl was asked to strip completely while others were asked to strip down to their undergarments, parents said. Still others were asked to remove their bras.

Murder charges to be filed against Midlander

From Staff Reports

A 35-year-old Midland man held in city jail since Saturday morning was expected to be charged with murder today, according to Midland County District Attorney Al Schorre.

The man was arrested at 1105 E. Illinois Saturday after police found the body of 32-year-old Joe Ollie Russell Jr. in the yard in front of the house about 1:10 a.m. Russell, 1710 E. Maple, had been stabbed 23 times, police said.

In other courthouse action, a 41-year-old Midland woman pleaded guilty Monday in 238th District Court to aggravated assault after shooting her husband in the abdomen June 20 with a .410-gauge shotgun.

Rose Anna Glosson had been charged with attempted murder after shooting 49-year-old Milton Glosson, who was critically wounded but recovered. But because the shooting followed a domestic dispute, said Schorre, "It really fell more within an aggravated assault case. She didn't intend to kill him."

Judge Vann Culp sentenced Ms. Glosson to 10 years in state prison, the maximum penalty for aggravated assault. She has been held in county jail in lieu of a $25,000 bond since the June incident, and will receive credit for time served, Culp said.

In other reports, a 31-year-old Midland man was listed in critical condition in Midland Memorial Hospital this morning after a Monday motorcycle accident on the Loop 250 off ramp to West Highway 80, according to hospital and police reports.

John E. Duppenthaler, 3600 N. Loop 250, was southbound on a 1980 Kawasaki 650 when he lost control as he entered the west off ramp from the Loop about 12:58 p.m. He struck the guardrail and was thrown off the bike, suffering compound fractures of all four limbs and various other injuries, according to police and EMS reports.

Amber Sawyers, 4410 Lanham, remains in critical condition but has been taken out of the intensive-care unit, an MMH spokeswoman said. Ms. Sawyers, 21, was injured Oct. 10 when the car she was riding in struck a utility pole at Midland Drive and Cuthbert Avenue.

Robert Kyle Wells, 4500 Sinclair, reported a Monday burglary in which property worth about $1,375 was taken.

A $300 pair of snow skis, $900 worth of record albums and $100 worth of cassette tapes were among the items taken, reports said.

Rogers Ford, 4200 W. Highway 80, reported the loss of a $410 tailgate for a Ford Ranger. The burglary occurred Monday, reports said.

Ex-nursing home inspector says patient tied to chair

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A former state nursing home inspector says she saw a patient tied to a chair for an entire day at the Autumn Hills nursing home in Texas City.

Testifying in the murder-by-neglect trial of Autumn Hills Convalescent Centers Ins. and five of its current or former employees, Betty Korndorffer said she also noticed another patient who was moved only once in her bed during an entire day.

The trial involves the death of 87-year-old Elnora Breed on Nov. 20, 1978, who the defense said died of cancer 47 days after she entered the Gulf Coast home.

Ms. Korndorffer testified Monday that she saw a patient in a straitjacket-type restraint, tied to a chair during an inspection in February 1978.

"She stayed in that chair all day long and was never moved," she said.

During the same visit, she said, she found one patient who was being given drugs without a doctor's consent. The February 1978 inspection, Ms. Korndorffer said, showed "a deterioration from August of 1977" when the last inspection was made.

"We noticed weight loss among the patients, poor catheter care. The patients were not as clean or well-groomed. There was a strong urine odor throughout the skilled wing," she said.

After the February inspection, Ms. Korndorffer said the facility was placed on "vendor hold," a term which means Medicaid funds are withheld until problems are corrected.

When she returned March 13, "everything looked much better. It didn't smell as bad. We commended them..."

Ms. Korndorffer testified she investigated several complaints against the nursing home and met several times with Autumn Hills employees.

Crime-Stoppers seeks data on house burglary

This week Crime Stoppers is seeking information on a burglary of a house at 2612 N. A Street.

On Saturday, Oct. 12, the home of Allie Luccous was entered sometime between 2 and 6 p.m. by burglars who broke out a glass pane and raised the window. They took several pieces of jewelry, some coin collections, including sets of quarters, dimes, nickels and pennies, and a Sharp videotape recorder.

Witnesses told police a green 1950s model short-bed pickup was observed about 2:30 p.m. in Luccous' driveway. The pickup's paint job appeared to have been done by hand with a brush.

Crime Stoppers will pay a $1,000 cash reward for information leading to the arrest and indictment of the person or persons responsible for this burglary.

Call Crime Stoppers in Midland at 694-TIPS or in Odessa at 333-TIPS. Callers need not reveal their identities to collect the rewards.

A petition signed by 58 property owners in the Webber subdivision area contends residents are "all workers attempting to support our families and lack financial resources to improve and maintain these roads."

Bonifay's report indicated it would cost the county $225,375 to improve the roads to meet county standards.

Commissioners said they want to determine if developers can be forced to bring roads in the six areas up to minimum county standards.

Commissioners also approved a resolution that endorsed two amendments concerning the state water plan that will be on the Nov. 5 general election ballot.

One amendment authorizes issuance of $980 million in revenue bonds to finance water projects statewide, including reservoirs, water treatment plants and flood control. The second amendment would authorize issuance of $200 million in bonds to provide low-interest loans to farmers for the purchase of irrigation systems that would conserve water.

Two Odessa women held in robbery of jewelry store

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — Two women remained in the city jail this morning in lieu of bond on theft charges in connection with the robbery of Alsobrook Jewelers Oct. 22.

Sandra Lee Arnold, 17, 419 E. Odessa, was arrested in the 100-block of East 4th Street and arraigned on a charge of theft before Ector County Peace Justice Manuel Valles, who set her bond at $15,000, according to police spokesman Rusty Baker.

Baker said 27-year-old Mary Lynn Graves, 2550 W. 8th, No. 68, surrendered to police about 10 a.m. Monday. She was arraigned before Municipal Court Judge J.E. Weatherly, who set her bond at $5,000.

Detri Arnold, 21, 419 E. Odessa, who was arrested late Sunday night in connection with the theft of about $15,000 in men's rings, was arraigned before Ector County Peace Justice Jimmy Harris, who set bond at $15,000. She was transferred to the Ector County Jail late Monday afternoon and released after posting bond.

Store owner Bennie Alsobrook, according to police reports, told investigating officers the rings were found missing from a display case after two women entered the store at 1541 Parkway Blvd. and asked to look at women's rings on the same display case.

Alsobrook estimated value of the missing rings at about $15,000.

Jury finds Andrews man innocent of men's deaths in auto accident

From Staff Reports

An Andrews man has been found innocent of involuntary manslaughter involving the death of two Midland men in a 1984 Christmas Eve car accident.

A 12-member Andrews jury deliberated about seven hours Thursday evening before finding 28-year-old Darrell Wayne Dagenhart innocent of involuntary manslaughter and drunk driving. Dagenhart was charged with two counts of involuntary manslaughter after a 1984 head-on collision left two Midlanders dead and three people injured.

Midlanders William Lawrence Clark, 67, and Claud Milton Thompson, 62, were returning to Midland from their Andrews business on Christmas Eve when they were killed, said Andrews District Attorney Jim Rex. The accident occurred about two miles southeast of Andrews on Allbright Road.

Others injured in the accident included Dagenhart and Ellis Hardaway, 30, both of Andrews, and 27-year-old Jan Thompson of Midland.

Dagenhart's trial began Oct. 22 in the 109th District Court with Judge James Clark presiding.

Juan moves away from Texas coast

HOUSTON (AP) — Erratic Hurricane Juan began moving to the east-northeast early today, away from the Texas coast, prompting the National Weather Service to extend the hurricane warning eastward.

The hurricane warning extended from east of Port Arthur to Mobile, Alabama. Earlier the warning extended only eastward to the mouth of the Mississippi River.

Highest winds were 85 mph, forecaster said.

The National Weather Service also cancelled flash flood watches and flood watches that had been in effect over portions of Southeast Texas and East Texas, but warned that additional rainfall during the day could cause flooding.

The heavy rains and the threat of street flooding Monday morning caused school officials in Orange and Jefferson counties to dismiss schools by early afternoon. The Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation also closed Texas Highway 87 because of high tides.

Officials in the Golden Triangle area earlier said they are taking a "wait and see" attitude before preparing to activate emergency services. Only one of 10 evacuation centers set up along the Texas Gulf Coast remained open Monday night.

Hurricane warnings remain in effect from east of Port Arthur to Mobile, Albama. Gale warnings are in effect from Port Arthur to Brownsville.

Forecasters said earlier they were especially concerned about the threat of heavier rains because most of Southeast Texas already has recorded rainfall nearly every day for the past two weeks.

Hearings on Delta crash to begin

GRAPEVINE (AP) — National Transportation Safety Board chairman Jim Burnett took a tour of Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport runway, where Delta Flight 191 crashed, to prepare for upcoming hearings on the disaster.

"Basically, I have this morning been engaged in familiarization with the terrain, topography and physical points of the various things that are going to be referred to in the testimony so that I have a better understanding of it when it is received," he said.

The four-day hearings open today with testimony from the chief NTSB investigator of the Aug. 2 crash. At least two of the 29 survivors of the crash will follow with their stories.

Delta Flight 191 crashed near the airport runway as it was attempting to land. The plane hit the ground once, killing a motorist on a nearby highway, bounced back, slid into a muddy field and hit two water tanks. It then broke in two and burst into flames. The crash killed 137 people.

Burnett said he also toured Federal Aviation Administration facilities and the tower.

He said he went to the FAA offices to get a "better perspective of the crash site from the tower and get a sense of where various witnesses were and what they could have seen at the time in which they were describing."

Burnett said he has never presided over a crash inquiry in which "I did not get substantially new information."

He declined to discuss lines of questioning that will be discussed during the public hearing, saying he did not want to call attention to any specific area.

Burnett said the investigator in charge Tuesday "will give an assessment to the board of inquiry of what we have learned to this point."

Agency officials have said the hearing's purpose is not to assess blame, but to design safety recommendations that would help prevent further tragedies.

Unemployment to be extended to more farmers

By GARY RASP
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The number of Texas farm and ranch hands eligible for unemployment compensation will increase significantly beginning Jan. 1, thanks to an expanded definition of the state's unemployment tax.

Under current law, agricultural employers who pay wages of $20,000 or less per quarter are exempt from unemployment taxes. The new law caps that exemption at $7,500 next year, and at $6,250 in 1987.

The law requires farmers and ranchers who employ four or more workers for 20 weeks to pay unemployment taxes in 1986. In 1987, employers who hire three or more workers for 20 weeks or more will have to pay taxes.

Texas Employment Commission spokesman Bill McCorkle said the lower cap on wages should bring in about 10 times the number of employers that now pay unemployment taxes.

The legislation also adds migrant farmworkers to the list of employees eligible for unemployment benefits for the first time. Seasonal workers are also included under the expanded coverage, provided they work on vegetable farms, orchards or vineyards, or if they do the same work as migrants.

"It more or less equalizes coverage to people unemployed through no fault of their own," McCorkle said. "There is no exemption for temporary workers — for a lot of people that's the only to make a living."

Joe Maley, director of state affairs for the Texas Farm Bureau, said the organization opposed changes in the unemployment tax system during the 69th session. Maley said the farm group helped develop a compromise bill that kept the wage cap at a reasonable level.

"We tried to get the best we could, and given the political climate, we did OK," he said.

Maley said the bureau opposed extending unemployment insurance coverage to migrant farm hands because of the temporary nature of the work.

"It's extremely difficult to keep track of these employees," he said.

Pete McRae, who worked on the compromise bill as director of legislative programs for the Texas Farmers Union, said the group favors extending umeployment coverage to agricultural workers but would have preferred an exemption for small farmers.

"We would have liked to have seen a higher cap," he said. "But the law that passed is probably the best" lawmakers could enact.

McRae said the expansion will "cause financial hardship in some cases, but I don't think it'll put too many (farmers) out of business."

Hance fails to pass conservative PAC's litmus test

AUSTIN (AP) — A conservative political action committee says Texas Republicans should pick U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler over Kent Hance in next year's GOP gubernatorial primary because Hance isn't conservative enough.

"Few candidates have captured the hearts and the votes of Texans like Ronald Reagan...The record clearly shows Rep. Tom Loeffler is far closer to Ronald Reagan than Kent Hance is," says a brochure distributed Monday by the Texas Conservative Action Fund.

Included in the mailing to nearly 9,000 Republican leaders was a letter from conservative GOP activist Bert Hurlbut criticizing Hance for his ties with liberal Democrats when the former Lubbock congressman was a Democrat.

Hance switched parties earlier this year and announced plans in early October to run for governor.

Loeffler, the third-ranking Republican in the U.S. House, and former Gov. Bill Clements all are seeking the Republican nomination to challenge incumbent Democratic Gov. Mark White.

"Texas is a conservative state and conservative candidates win in Texas," the Austin-based PAC's mailing said.

The brochure noted that Clements' 1978 victory made him the first Republican since Reconstruction. "Now, the entire nation is watching Texas to find out whether that 1978 victory was a fluke, or a sign that the South is changing," it said.

Ice tea, hot tea, soft drinks, coffee, milk, fortune cookies, cake and ice cream top off a wonderful all-you-can-eat meal.

After 4:30 p.m. it gets even better. Mongolian Barbeque is prepared right before your eyes. This type of food was originally prepared in Mongolia. Mongolia was previously a part of China, thus the food is very similar to Chinese food and very unlike what most Americans know as barbeque. "Barbeque" is simply the name for the way the dish is presented.

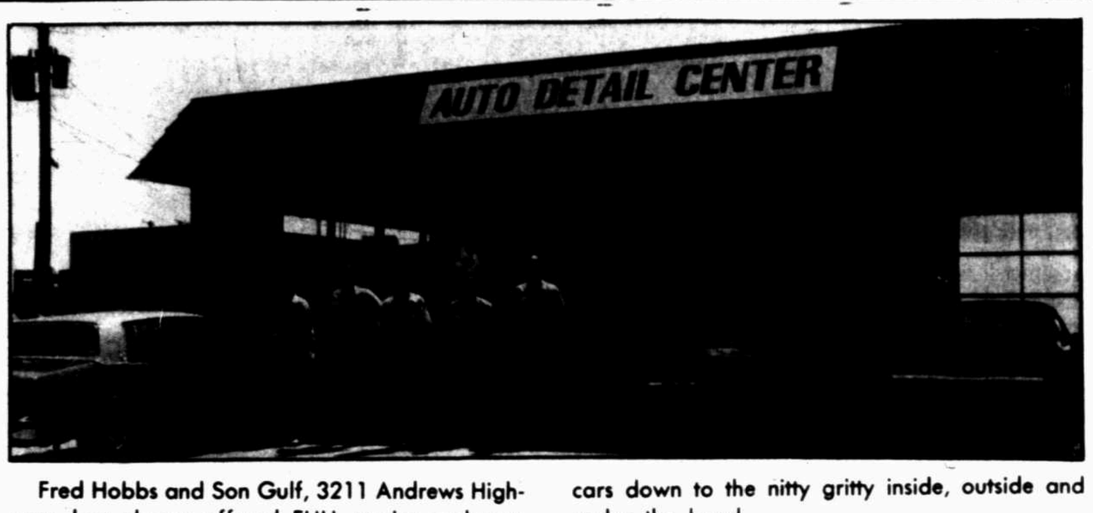
What is it like experiencing real MONGOLIAN BAR—B—QUE? Well, find out for yourself. Take a bowl and pick your favorites from among the wide selection of cabbage, bean sprouts, celery, broccoli, onion, bell pepper, yellow squash, zucchini and mushrooms. Add your choice of sliced chicken breast, tenderloin beef, sliced pork or barbeque pork. Top it off with one of these sauces: mandarin brown, teriyaki, garlic, sesame oil, sherry wine, ginger or vegetable oil. Then, sit back and watch the chef stir-fry your very own Mongolian bar-be-que.

And then? Then, there's still the super buffet to enjoy. You will find seafood galore on the buffet from 4 p.m. to 10 p.m., Monday-Saturday. Don't forget the beverages and ice cream are always included in the all-you-can price of $5.47.

Sunday is the day of the extra good buffet. From 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. the super buffet is yours is prepared for you.

When you can enjoy the BUFFET KING for so little, why stay home and wash dishes? Many senior citizens and families have already discovered how BUFFET KING got its name.

Buffet King's owner William Wou demonstrates how chefs prepare Mongolian barbeque each evening while customers watch in the La Villita Shopping Center.



Fred Hobbs and Son Gulf, 3211 Andrews Highway, has always offered FULL service and now their Auto Detail Center enables them to clean cars down to the nitty gritty inside, outside and under the hood.

Auto Detail Center cares about your car

Fred Hobbs and Son Gulf Station, famous as Midland's only real FULL service station, now has an Auto Detail Center.

"We care about cars and we want to help owners keep their cars as valuable as we can," says Fred Hobbs.

That's why they've always given full service including vacuuming, cleaning all windows and checking all fluid and air levels when their customers fill up at the full service pumps. Now, to be able to help their customers maintain their automobiles even better Fred and Kerry Hobbs have started Auto Detail Center at the same convenient location, Andrews Highway and Midkiff.

"When you spend $10,000 to $20,000 or more on a new car, why not keep the value up?" Kerry asks.

Besides, a good detail job can "raise the resale value of a car by $500 to $700," Kerry says.

Auto Detail Center cleans down to the nitty gritty of the exterior, interior and engine area. They'll do it all for you or just the part you want done.

Kerry warns that if your car was flooded during the recent rains, the carpet may require special attention to avoid mildew. He explains that you may soak up the water out of the carpet, but if the mat is left wet it may mildew as it dries. Auto Detail Center is prepared to help you avoid this.

For cars which are less than 90 days old, Auto Detail Center is the exclusive Permian Basin dealer (except for auto dealerships) for Chrysler's Master Shield.

Master Shield is an incredible paint sealant which comes with Chrysler's own THREE YEAR Warranty. Unlike many paint sealers, Master Shield is not a lacquer which prevents paint from breathing and causes cracking. This revolutionary product gives your new car a showroom shine for three years with NO waxing. It protects paint from discoloration, oxidation and flaking.

Kerry says of Master Shield, "I've never been impressed with anything like I am that (Master Shield)."

If your car is over 90 days old, the friendly staff at Auto Detail Center can still take care of its exterior with one year wax. And when these professionals wax and buff your car, it'll come out shining with a one year warranty.

To protect the interior of your new car (less than 90 days old), Auto Detail Center has Chrysler's fabric protector, which has a THREE year warranty, just like the Master Shield product. This fabric protector goes down into the fibers to make them resist soiling and spills.

For older cars, Fred and Kerry say they have a quality one year fabric protector which they warranty.

Auto Detail Center is also equipped to steam clean the engine area. All that grease and grime disappears and a spray of clear lacquer makes it look like new.

Noting the fact that they also do tune-ups, minor repairs, state inspections and oil changes at the station, Kerry sums it up "It's a one stop car care center."

Stop by 3211 Andrews Highway, Monday-Friday, 8 a.m.-5 p.m. It will be refreshing to experience such friendly, efficient service from the whole staff.

Vacuum Cleaner City brings 28 years experience to Midland

For 28 years Vacuum Cleaner City has been serving the Permian Basin through their Odessa store. NOW, Vacuum Cleaner City has come to Midland! Coveniently located at 3304 W. Illinois, these experts offer top name brands like Hoover, Eureka, Panasonic and Royal.

Don't let bargain prices lure you into no service or at best substandard service. The professionals at Vacuum Cleaner City know that service after the sale is what really counts.

Many consumers have discovered that door-to-door salesmen keep their prices artificially high. Moreover, they usually offer only one brand of vacuum cleaner, regardless of your personal needs. The chance for service? That usually ends with the close of the car trunk.

At Vacuum Cleaner City you are assured of friendly, eager sevice backed by 28 years in the Midland/Odessa area and a one year service warranty. Complete repair shops and qualified repairmen are available at both locations and one day service is available in most cases.

This consistent service record is important, because just as your automobile needs regular servicing to ensure high performance,so does your vacuum cleaner.

Vacuum Cleaner City sells and repairs all brands of "A" line vacuum cleaners. With these machines you'll find full warranties you can rely upon.

Between now and Christmas, Vacuum Cleaner City isare featuring Hoover, Eureka and Panasonic. Dick says, "As Midland's "other" only authorized Royal dealer, we are offering the Royal 880 upright with a five year factory warranty at the low price of $249.95."

Vacuum Cleaner City also sells and services the fabulous Rainbow. This machine of tomorrow traps household dirt and dust in water, making it ideal for allergy sufferers.

Be sure to watch the Midland Reporter-Telegram for special service and repair coupons which will save you money on complete clean and service.

This is your opportunity to meet the friendly professionals at Vacuum Cleaner City. So go by and see 'city manager' Jeanie, 'city engineer' Dick, and Nita, the 'meter maid.' They will introduce you to some of the popular residents of Vacuum Cleaner City - Hoover, Eureka, Kirby, Panasonic, Royal, Compact, Electrolux and many, many others.

At Vacuum Cleaner City you can trade in your old vacuum, use MasterCard, Visa or layaway. They also offer a 90 day plan that's the same as cash. Go by Vacuum Cleaner City, 3304 W. Illinois, Mon.-Fri. 10 a.m.-6 p.m. or Sat. 10 a.m.-6 p.m. It's time to meet a fine new neighbor!

Hartwig "Twiggy" Endisch will be the instructor for Adventure Dive Travel's November 17 trip to the Cayman Islands. He can certify you PADI or NAUI. Call 684-4838 to find more.

Adventure Dive Travel invites you to discover the wonderful sport of diving

Adventure Dive Travel invites you to dive into eight days and seven nights of fun-filled learning and diving in the Cayman Islands, November 17-24. Divers will enjoy the Island's traditional friendliness in a relaxed atmosphere of comfort and modern accommodations at the Sunset House. Certifications all the way through that of Assistant Instructor can be attained and special courses like underwater photography can be enjoyed.

Now is the time to sign up for this tremendous trip, whether you are a certified diver or not. A package that would normally cost you $1500 - $3000 for one week, can be yours, including instruction, for just $900 from Midland Air Terminal. Adventure Dive Travel experts say this is a tremendous value because November is a good time to dive in the Caymans, yet in-season prices don't go into effect until December.

November 3 is the deadline to sign up for this trip to the place dive magazines recognize as the number 1 diving spot in the world. There's practically no current and the island is ideal for family enjoyment.

Hartwig "Twiggy" Endisch will be the instructor for this dive trip and he can certify you PADI (Professional Association of Diving Instructors) or NAUI (National Association of Underwater Instructors). Once you are certified you will automatically be a member of PADI or NAUI. Experienced divers can attain the certification of Assistant Instructor on this trip. Private instruction will be available. Families get a discount with a son or daughter under 15 years old learning for free.

Twiggy says many people fear that diving is dangerous, but with proper instruction that just isn't true. Perhaps, that's why diving has been the fastest growing sport for the last two years.

Twiggy was first exposed to the sport of diving in 1981 when he was working as a master chef in the Caymqn Islands. He enjoyed it so much that by 1982 he was making his living as a diver. Twiggy says he spent time diving for Mel Fisher, who recently discovered two Spanish ships. In 1984 Twiggy completed requirements at PADI headquarters to be a fully certified scuba dive instructor.

"This well-trained instructor says, "It's (diving) not hard to learn. It's a very easy and safe sport even if you have a minor handicap like a stiff leg."

Classroom work can be arranged before the trip or during the trip. Either way, you won't miss any diving time. Completing the classroom portion before the trip, assures you of more personal time. So, plan to start the classroom part about 10 days before departure. Twiggy and his safety diver, Reed Ellis, say the instruction book is very specific about what you need to know and the test is simple.

For your dive, Adventure Dive Travel wil furnish all you equipment, except mask, fins and snorkle.

Six days a boat will take you out. Each of those days you can make two dives off the boat. Unlimited air will be available for shore diving and night dives will be available for those who are certified divers. After all the new divers have been certified, there will be a treasure hunt (shore dive). The treasure will be a secret prize.

Diving is guaranteed, Reed says. If you happen to encounter bad weather, the dives will be switched to another island.

Call 684-4838, Monday-Friday 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. or Saturday 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. It's time to look into the adventurous sport of diving - a whole new world is waiting for you.

Fledgling designers need moxie, marketing sense

Students at the Fashion Institute of Technology in New York work on designs in a draping class. To make it in the fast-track world of fashion, top design instructors say, newcomers need plenty of moxie and marketing sense.

NEW YORK (AP) — Overnight success is virtually unheard of in the fast-track world of fashion. To succeed, top design instructors say, newcomers need two things: plenty of moxie and marketing sense.

"Good designers can be very talented, but if they don't push to succeed, they're not going to make it," said Mary Barnard, director of fashion at the Ray College of Design in Chicago.

No amount of exposure is too much for a fledgling designer, the instructors say, and the best vehicle for it is awards and contests offered by industry and design schools.

Fashion awards "help get corporations involved with the schools and get them to know about the talent in the school," said Rosemary Brantley, from Otis-Parsons School of Design in Los Angeles.

"Winning an award is very prestigious. It gives exposure. No matter how good you are, if nobody sees it it doesn't account for much," echoed Selma Rosen from New York's Fashion Institute of Technology.

ALTHOUGH AWARDS like the Cutty Sark, The Fashion Designers of America and the once coveted but now defunct Coty offer little or no cash reward, the prestige of winning them can be enough to launch a career.

Jhane Barnes, a 1975 FIT graduate, peddled her wares from store to store before winning a Coty at age 25. That same year she also won a Cutty Sark award for her menswear designs, and suddenly the industry took notice.

A licensing company approached her offering a contract but she turned it down, opting to try to make it on her own.

But finding financial backing was difficult and a few years later, after winning a second Coty, the Holbrook Co. offered to license her designs. This time she did not refuse.

Financing is often the biggest stumbling block for newcomers.

"To get into the big time, you really need a million dollars," said Ms. Barnes, who at 31 may not yet be a household name but is fast winning the respect of the industry and recognition from the public.

FANS OF TELEVISION'S trendy cop drama "Miami Vice" know Ms. Barnes through her designs used in the show.

"No company is going to license a designer unless they have won a lot of awards. It's almost like it's a criteria," she said.

Ms. Barnes feels it is essential for design students to learn the business end of the industry by taking marketing courses, something she says most design schools underscore.

For Ms. Barnes, hard work paid off, but luck — or being in the right place at the right time — also had something to do with it.

After her final fashion show at FIT, Ms. Barnes gave the clothes to a male friend who modeled for her. Not long afterward, the friend was spotted by a fashion buyer in a Manhattan hair salon wearing one of her outfits. He instantly liked what he saw, ordered 1,000 pairs of Barnes pants and put them in several major department stores.

Like Ms. Barnes, students from Otis-Parsons, Ray and FIT agreed that their schools did much to prepare them for life after school.

DEVIN BURT of Otis-Parsons, who has been entered by his school in a new design awards contest for fashion newcomers, says that in addition to winning awards, students benefit by working with established designers willing to critique their work.

"The best thing school provides is the exposure with the (established designers) because we get first-hand experience with them," said Burt. In effect that lets students "start our career now, not when we graduate," he added.

Graduates from the three top design schools are guaranteed some type of job in the industry through the schools' placement programs, which continue to assist them years after they have left.

"The bulk of (graduating) students are placed in the assistant designer position," which could mean anything from sketching and draping to working with salesmen, Ms. Rosen says, and most will hold two or three jobs before winning some recognition.

HOW MANY STUDENTS actually make it? That depends on your definition of success, the three school heads say.

FIT, whose most famous alumni is Calvin Klein, estimates about 50 percent of its graduates achieve success but never become household names.

"The number of people who work very successfully for big houses and are known in the industry is a fairly large percentage," Ms. Rosen says. "If you make a six-figure salary that's successful even if your name is not on a label."

Ms. Brantley of Otis-Parsons, sister school of the Parsons School of Design in New York, says a third of their graduates "will find work very easily, a third will have to look pretty hard and a third will find it difficult."

At Ray College, Ms. Barnard says, 85 to 90 percent of their students achieve some type of success.

Years of anonymous design work pay off for fashion newcomer

By ULA ILNYTZKY

NEW YORK (AP) — With his china blue eyes, patrician features and blond hair, designer Roger Baugh looks more like a model than the man behind the model.

Tall, dapper and sophisticated, Baugh, at 37, is one of the struggling new designers who after striking out on his own five months ago is beginning to carve a name for himself in the forest of fashion logos.

His couture-style clothing already sells at Saks Fifth Avenue stores in major cities around the country.

However, Baugh's arrival as a recognizable designer comes only after years of ambitious and diverse work in the business.

One of nine siblings born in Wise, Va., Baugh studied interior design and architecture and began his career designing rugs in Atlanta.

"I knew nothing about carpeting but I feel I can design anything. There is always a mechanic to help with the technical end of things," the self-assured designer said in an interview at his Madison Avenue office.

His success there led to a job at Burlington Industries where he was director of home fashions, supervising design for 15 divisions.

Baugh said his years at Burlington provided him with the best credentials for entering men's fashion. That experience gave me a great sense of color," he said.

His first experience with clothing was for Kassar Corp., an Egyptian manufacturer of ready-to-wear apparel. Despite the opportunity to work with Jihan Sadat, wife of the slain Egyptian president, Baugh left Kassar because of the hectic monthly trips to Egypt.

His career also included designing Egyptian-inspired bed linen for the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York and a line of English handmade belts.

The belt business went astray when a company approached him about licensing. Mass production "just destroyed the product," Baugh said.

Though many designers sell their names to be used on products they personally do not design, Baugh is not one of them.

He dislikes licensing products in part because of the failed belt venture and a 1982 attempt to launch a collection for Murjani using his name. The failures strengthened his resolve to start his own company last spring.

The road to success as a name designer has been long. But Baugh, who was fortunate to get financial backing for his company from two friends, sees it as part of the growing process.

"Calvin Klein did not make it overnight," said Baugh.

Fashion trends change, but basic pumps remain same

What if Cinderella had worn tennis shoes, penny loafers or T-straps the night she went to the ball?

I mean, we all know Cinderella wore dainty mid-heeled pumps with the dreams ball gown her fairy godmother whipped up with a stick and some ridiculous phrases like "bibbity, bobbity, boo."

So when we want to feel extra pretty, extra special, what do we women wear? Simple pumps.

In the '40s women wore pumps with everything.

In the '50s there was a lot of hoopla because WWII was over, and women like Marilyn Monroe and Elizabeth Taylor were reminding women it was OK to be sexy.

Then came the '60s, the Pepsi Generation. In the early '60s teenagers and their mothers liked dressing up looking very ladylike in their suits and pumps. This was a strange time.

As the '60s faded into the '70s, skirts became mini and maxi. Neither style looked good with pumps, and perhaps the drug scene and sexual freedom clouded the fantasy of sweet innocent Cinderella. Maybe it was a time when our bubble burst and left us with the Vietnam war and divorced parents.

Whatever the reason, the '70s were colorful, with purple and yellow wedge shoes that tied around the ankle and plastic platform shoes with artificial fruits stapled on the toe.

The psychedelic generation grew up in the '80s, became Yuppies and joined the establishment, where success wardrobes are based upon a pair of basic pumps — just like the ones you teased your mom about a few years ago.

But there's a new generation coming up the ranks with some new ideas about shoes and the clothes to be worn with them.

The shoe styles are myriad, but the rules are simple. White tennis shoes, hi-topped black and white sneakers, penny loafers, kiltie mocs, cowboy boots, Robin Hood boots, patent leather flats, jellies — and pumps — all go with anything. And don't be shocked if your teenage daughter wants to wear cotton anklets with her pumps to the homecoming ball.

DEAR ABBY

Organ donor's gift has no strings attached

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: When my driver's license was due for renewal this month, I decided that at age 70, it was time to do my bit for humanity and have "Organ Donor" stamped on my new license. When I told some friends what I had done, I was informed that at my demise it would be very costly to my heirs, as my estate would be charged for removing my organs and also for the cost of the transplants.

This is something I had not considered. Since you have access to information from the top sources, it would be a service to those who are considering donating our organs after death to have the facts. Thanks from — MARGATE, FLA.

DEAR MARGATE: I called the Living Bank, a national organ donor registry and placement service located in Houston, Texas.

Herma Breeden, referral coordinator, said: "Here we go again. Some people will believe whatever they hear, no matter how unreliable the source. As plainly as I can state it, there is no charge to the donor or the donor's family for organ donations. The donor hospital (where the donor died) bills the transplant facility that comes to recover the donated organs. The transplant facility that receives the donated organs pays the costs of organ donation, not the family of the donor.

"However, the next of kin will receive a bill from the hospital for the care the patient received when the hospital was trying to save his life. This bill is the same they would have received if the patient had lived or had not been a donor. You still have to pay for the care you receive when you are still alive in the hospital but NOT for the donation of the organs after you are declared dead.

"Some hospitals have not participated in the transplant program and do not know the proper procedures. The transplant facility instructs the donor facility to send the charges to it. If the donor hospital has sent any charges for donation to a family, they are in error, and the family should refuse to pay any bill for donation of the organs. The hospital should send the bill directly to the transplant facility, and the hospital will be reimbursed.

"The donor's family should NEVER be charged for the compassionate gesture of donating a better life to others. It is the policy of all transplant programs to pay for any additional costs entailed by the donation of organs."

DEAR ABBY: I hope I'm not too late to tell "Going Bananas" that there is definitely a correct way to eat a banana. I learned it in the late '50s when I was a graduate student at Smith College.

One evening when the dessert consisted of a fruit bowl including unpeeled bananas, our art instructor selected a banana, and showed us how to eat it. (She said she learned it in Switzerland.)

The banana is placed on one's fruit plate, concave side up. With the aid of a fruit knife, the stem edge is notched, then the uppermost strip of peel is removed, making the banana look like a "boat." The banana is then eaten from the "boat" with a teaspoon. — MARIAN W. WERNER, ROCHESTER, N.Y.

DEAR MARIAN: Eat a banana with a teaspoon? Well, I'll be a monkey's uncle!

Sunglasses trendy wear for socializing

NEW YORK (AP) — The latest "in" thing to do when clubbing is to wear the latest lightweight, wild-design sunglasses.

"Some people have 10 or 12 pairs to match every outfit, or sometimes even to go with a belt or a bracelet," says Margo Willits, a partner in the California-based L.A. Eyeworks.

Some of the Eyework frames sprout wings, some are elongated and others are striped or sparkled. Also popular are pairs that look like ski goggles.

Coast Guard searches for missing men

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — With nearly 150 people safely ashore after a grueling day of rescues across the Gulf of Mexico, the Coast Guard prepared today to look for two missing men.

"We're going to look for the men missing from the Miss Agnes," Petty Officer Debbie Westerberg said Monday night.

She said 146 people had been rescued from the Gulf of Mexico by nightfall, when the Coast Guard — which coordinated a search that used nearly every helicopter and oilfield supply boat in the area — suspended the search.

The Miss Agnes was among a number of crewboats that ran into trouble while ferrying people out of the Gulf to escape rising winds and seas Sunday night. Two other crewmen were rescued.

Ms. Westerberg said the Coast Guard hadn't decided whether to continue searching for a man who slipped trying to get onto a lifeboat sent to another crewboat which ran aground near the mouth of the Mississippi.

Coast Guard helicopters rescued 23 other people from that supply boat, the Sybil I, Spangler said.

It stopped looking Monday for an unidentified windsurfer reported missing Sunday on Lake Pontchartrain, said Petty Officer Keith Spangler.

One accident accounted for more than half the men rescued Monday. About 80 bailed off of two Penrod Drilling Co. rigs when one broke and began drifting toward the other shortly before midnight Sunday.

One drowned; the others were rescued.

The man who drowned was among about 20 who had to grope their way out of an upside-down rescue capsule and cling to its sides for hours because it flipped in high seas and started leaking, said Penrod spokesman Tom Whittaker.

"The capsule was buffeted by high seas and one crew member, who was wearing a life jacket, was swept away."

Penrod said the man's body was found. His name was not released.

Several of the rescued people suffered broken bones and other injuries, rescue workers said.

An oil and gas production platform owned by Ocean Drilling & Exploration Co., simply disappeared. Coast Guard Petty Officer Keith Spangler said people on a nearby drilling rig saw at daybreak that it was gone.

Pumping station levee collapses

GALLIANO, La. (AP) — Hurricane Juan's high tides and a weekend of heavy rain caused a canal levee beneath a pumping station to collapse, and officials said high winds and tons of water battering the canal made immediate repair attempts impossible.

Lafourche Parish President Cyrus "Bobby" Tardo warned the 5,000 residents to be prepared to evacuate after water poured through several breaks in a 10-foot levee wall Monday, undermining the pilings beneath the Bully Camp Pump Station, near Galliano.

"There was just too much water and tide, too much pressure and it didn't hold. Water is just flowing from levee break," Tardo said Monday.

The first break in the 100-foot stretch of the Forty Arpent Canal levee 1⅛ miles west of Bayou Lafourche appeared Sunday, and there were several by Monday night, Tardo said.

Many people didn't wait to see if Tardo would change his voluntary evacuation call to an order.

"We're in the process of stacking up and getting out of here," Carl "Roe" Pitre, a school board member from nearby Cut Off, said Monday afternoon.

Judge rejects request for Rajneesh to await trial in hospital

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Indian guru Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh, whose normal temperature-controlled, scent-free home and fleet of Rolls-Royces ensure his comfort, will spend three nights in a county jail awaiting a hearing on charges he tried to flee the country.

U.S. Magistrate Barbara DeLaney on Monday rejected a request by the guru's attorney that Rajneesh be allowed to wait for Thursday's hearing in a hospital at his own expense.

"I have been sleeping on a steel bench...not even a pillow," Rajneesh, 53, said Monday at a hearing following his arrest on federal charges of trying to flee the country to avoid prosecution on 35 alleged immigration violations.

Rajneesh, the spiritual leader of a sect that claims up to 500,000 adherents, mostly in the United States, Western Europe and Australia, was indicted Thursday in Oregon with seven followers in an alleged conspiracy to cover up sham marriages to keep illegal aliens in the United States.

In addition, federal complaints separate from the indictment charge Rajneesh with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution, and charge six of the people who flew with him from Oregon with harboring the guru.

Federal agents arrested Rajneesh and some followers early Monday when his jet stopped in Charlotte to refuel on what officials said was a flight to Bermuda from his central Oregon commune-city, Rajneeshpuram.

Four of those named in the indictment turned themselves in Monday in Portland, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Charles Turner.

If convicted of all federal charges, Rajneesh faces a maximum sentence of 175 years in prison and a $350,000 fine. Each of the other defendants named in the indictment faces a maximum sentence of 165 years in prison and a $330,000 fine.

Among those named in the federal indictment was Ma Anand Sheela, the guru's former personal secretary who abruptly left the commune for Europe in September, setting off turmoil in Rajneeshpuram.

Sheela and two other former Rajneesh aides were arrested Monday in West Germany in a separate Oregon indictment charging attempted murder, conspiracy to commit murder and first-degree assault, said Attorney General Dave Frohnmayer.

Rajneesh had claimed that Sheela and her lieutenants plotted to poison the water supply of a community near the commune and had poisoned the Jefferson County, Ore., district attorney.

Rubbing his back as he stood in the courtroom Monday wearing a turban and a silver-striped gown decorated with stars, Rajneesh said, "I cannot eat anything they can give."

Defense attorney Swami Prem Niren asked Ms. DeLaney to order Rajneesh held in a hospital at his own expense because of severe asthma, numerous allergies and back pain.

"He has been under a unique program of care in the United States, which was the reason for his visa in the first place," Niren said. "It's almost a 'bubble boy' situation."

Rajneesh complained during the hearing about the hard courtroom benches.

"Will we have to sit on this bench for three days?" Rajneesh said as he stood and rubbed his back. Ms. DeLaney suggested defense attorneys give him the pads from their chairs.

Niren said that at the commune Rajneesh was kept in a controlled environment without carpets and that no one was allowed in his presence unless they bathed with scent-free soap. He said Rajneesh used a Rolls-Royce for transportation because it was the only car seat he found comfortable.

Ms. DeLaney said doctors at the jail would ensure that Rajneesh's health needs were met. She also rejected a defense request that Rajneesh be allowed to wear his own clothes, saying if jail clothing caused an allergic reaction, hospital clothing could be substituted.

Ms. DeLaney ordered Rajneesh and six followers held in the Mecklenburg County Jail until Thursday for the hearings. Two other followers were released.

U.S. Marshal Ray Abrams said four pilots taken into custody from two Learjets, which had been tracked across the country, were released.

Frank Herrin, criminal investigator with the marshal's service, said a pistol recovered from the runway came from one of Rajneesh's aircraft.

Rajneesh was cooperating with authorities although his followers at first refused to give their names, Herrin said.

The followers were later identified in court documents as Christine Woolf Smith, Sandra Penelly Thomson, Jillian T. Johnston, Henlata Henry Desrosiers, George Alexander Meredith and Michael William O'Byrne.

"He smiles a lot," Herrin said of Rajneesh. "He's got these piercing eyes that look like he's looking right through you. I sort of admired his attitude."

In Rajneeshpuram, about 3,000 of the guru's followers packed a meeting hall Monday night to listen to a rock band and a brief speech by commune president Ma Prem Anuradha.

"We're going to keep on," she told the crowd. "Our commune is still a very viable operation."

House OKs plan to give states, cities choice in overtime payments

By PEGGY ROBERSON
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — The House of Representatives Monday agreed to give states and local governments flexibility to pay for overtime with money or with compensatory time off.

Last week, the Senate passed a slightly different version of the legislation. Now the Senate is expected to promptly accept the House bill or ask for a conference committee to work out differences. The bill has no significant opposition in either house, but Sen. Pete Wilson, R-Calif., a former San Diego mayor, predicted the compromise legislation would "come back to haunt us."

The legislation is intended to ease the impact of a February Supreme Court decision, in a San Antonio case, that would have required overtime pay for state and local government employees. A study by the Congressional Budget Office found the Supreme Court ruling could cost state and municipal governments $1.5 billion a year.

The Labor Department said it would start enforcing the decision in Garcia versus San Antonio Metropolitan Transit Authority, on Oct. 15, but Labor Secretary William E. Brock III postponed the effective date to Nov. 1 to give Congress time to act.

In the San Antonio case, the court ruled that state and local government workers come under minimum-wage and overtime provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA).

The Senate version allows employees, in addition to the time-and-a-half comensatory time provision, to be paid in cash for overtime after accumulating 480 hours of overtime.

Under the House bill, the 480-hour cap applies to policemen, firemen, emergency workers and seasonal employees. Others, including white collar employees, could collect cash after 180 hours' overtime.

Effective date for the changes is April 15.

Radiation treatment course 'dangerous'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Emergency Management Agency showed lack of concern for public safety in purchasing a course on emergency radiation treatment that an expert panel had warned contained potentially life-threatening advice, a House panel says.

A report by the House Government Operations Committee says FEMA bought the course from a publisher for $90,000, while ignoring the experts' warnings that following directives in its contents could endanger victims of radiation accidents.

After members of a nine-agency radiological health panel persisted in objecting to the course, FEMA put the material "on the shelf, where it remains today, resulting in a waste of public funds," the committee report said.

The committee was scheduled to vote today on accepting the draft report, a copy of which was obtained by The Associated Press.

FEMA, the nation's disaster relief agency, is responsible for training state and local emergency personnel. The course was designed for "first responders" to an accident involving radioactive materials.

The package included instructors' guides, student manuals and slides which contained information on first aid, contamination control, cargo identification and related subjects.

The course purchase is under investigation by the Justice Department as are other allegations of wrongdoing at FEMA, the report said.

All the events took place while Louis O. Giuffrida directed the agency. He submitted his resignation last July 24, a day before another House committee approved a report accusing him of mismanagement. Giuffrida denied any wrongdoing and said his resignation was unrelated to the report.

The Government Operations Committee report, titled "FEMA's Purchase of a Radiological Training Package: An Avoidable Disaster," said and expert panel attempted to warn FEMA of the potentially dangerous course content in August 1983. FEMA purchased the course on Oct. 31, 1983, from the Brady Communications Corp. of Greenbelt, Md.

"By disregarding the advice (of the panel)...the responsible FEMA officials demonstrated a lack of concern for the safety of the public," the report concluded.

In addition, the report said, FEMA officials acted improperly when they bought the course without giving any other firm the chance to bid for the contract.

The failure to "deal fully with the merits of Bradford's potential competitors, who had announced their interest...had the effect of unfairly eliminating competition," the report said.

Twelve companies expressed interest after FEMA published a legal notice about its intentions to contract for a course on radiation training and treatment, the report said.

NATION IN BRIEF

Ling-Ling to be Ma-Ma

WASHINGTON (AP) — Could Ling-Ling, the giant panda at the National Zoo, soon be a Ma-Ma?

Officials at the National Zoo hope so. Zoo spokesman Dr. Robert Hoage said Monday that officials have seen two signs that the 15-year-old panda may once again be pregnant.

Hoage said Ling-Ling's appetite has declined and a urine test showed hormones associated with pregnancy. Those are encouraging signs for scientists who have been trying for years to get the panda to give birth to a healthy cub.

"There are good indications that Ling-Ling may be pregnant," Hoage said. "If she is, then we can expect her to give birth anytime between next week and December."

Female giant pandas often weigh around 250 pounds, but their cubs weigh only 4 ounces at birth. As a result, pandas show no obvious outward signs of pregnancy.

De Lorean hospitalized

SOMERVILLE, N.J. (AP) — The divorce trial of John Z. De Lorean and Cristina Ferrare Thomopoulos was interrupted when the former automaker drove to the hospital suffering from dizziness and heart palpitations.

De Lorean, 60, was driving to meet his attorney for court Monday when he felt the symptoms and headed for Somerset Medical Center, his doctor said.

De Lorean walked into the emergency room and was to spend the night in the cardiac care unit, hospital spokeswoman Joanne Thorsen said. De Lorean, lawyer John Trombadore and De Lorean's cardiologist were scheduled to meet today to discuss the diagnosis, said Kathleen Mangan, another hospital spokeswoman.

"He certainly has been under stress and that may contribute to (the irregular heartbeat)," said Richard Berger, the emergency room physician who examined De Lorean.

Mine wastes seeping

CARBONDALE, Colo. (AP) — Toxic wastes seeping from the abandoned mines of the Rocky Mountains are destroying Western streams and rivers, and it may cost billions of dollars to repair the damage, experts say.

In Colorado alone, there are an estimated 10,000 abandoned mines leaking a variety of chemicals — a legacy from the 19th century mining boom, says state geologist John Rold. More than 480 miles of streams can't support fish because of the pollution.

But scientists are hopeful that a new method of purifying tainted water by using peat bogs and limestone may soon provide a cheap, simple way of cleaning up some of the waste.

"There's no one solution to mine waste," said Rob Walline, a chemist with the federal Environmental Protection Agency. "The main thrust now is expensive chemical treatment, but this (the peat bog-limestone method) is an attractive alternative."

Women's shelter burns

BOSTON (AP) — A fire in a kitchen sent smoke billowing through a shelter for battered women and their children, killing one mother and her infant son, and leaving another woman and her month-old child critically injured, officials said.

"It was just a fast-moving fire," said Boston Fire Commissioner Leo Stapleton, who was at the scene of the blaze late Monday in the city's South End section.

Mark Douville, the night administrator at Boston City Hospital, said Pat Morrison and her son, Jamal Morrison, who was about a year old, died in the hospital's emergency room from smoke inhalation.

Indonesia to campaign for male birth control

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — A birth-control program that has been highly successful among village women soon will be aimed at urban men in Indonesia.

Dr. Haryono Suyono, head of the National Family Planning Coordinating Board, says a major "social marketing campaign" is planned for early next year to promote the use of condoms.

"We want to reach all segments of the population," he said. "Our figures show that 95 percent of acceptors (users of contraceptives) now are women."

Indonesia is the world's fifth most populous nation with 168 million people. Sixty-two percent of them live on the islands of Java and Bali, which make up only 7 percent of the nation's land area. The government encourages migration to lightly populated outer islands but has had much more success with family planning.

Birth control at one time was frowned on in Indonesia. President Sukarno, who helped establish independent Indonesia in 1945 and died in 1970, barred government help for birth control during his years as leader. He regarded a large population as a component of national power and during his tenure, the population soared from 75 million to almost 120 million in two decades.

When President Suharto, Sukarno's successor, ordered the first formal birth control program in 1970, the population was expected to hit 300 million by the year 2000. Emil Salim, the Cabinet minister in charge of population and environment, says it now is expected to reach 212 million to 226 million by then.

Contraceptive use has gone from virtually zero 15 years ago to about 14 million people, Haryono said.

The program's success, officials say, is largely due to volunteers in every village. Local women were given responsibility for distributing contraceptives.

The hierarchical village structure, with its built-in social pressure to conform, helped. Officials say the approval of families, neighbors and friends means much since Indonesian villagers tend to view themselves as members of the community first and individuals second.

Under the plan, the home of one woman in each village is picked as a depot for storage and distribution of pills and other contraceptive devices. Detailed charts and records are kept so that every villager knows who uses what method of contraception. The pill is by far the most popular, officials said.

Some village groups that started in family planning expanded into community projects concerned with nutrition and education. Some became housewives' cooperatives involved in commercial enterprises such as weaving and raising chickens.

The Washington-based Population Reference Bureau called the 20 to 25 percent decline in fertility in Java and Bali between 1971 and 1976 "one of the most remarkable of all attempts to institute birth control on a mass scale." In 1971, Balinese women were producing on average 5.8 children. By 1976, the average was 3.8.

At the outset, some advisers had warned that rural incomes, health and literacy would have to improve before contraceptives would be widely accepted. This proved untrue once the program became part of the village social structure.

The mostly rural Javanese were once believed to oppose birth control for reasons of tradition, superstition and religion, but officials say this proved to be untrue.

While accepting family planning, the government opposes abortion on religious grounds. About 90 percent of the population is Moslem.

Officials hope to reduce population growth from the current 2.23 percent a year to less than 2 percent.

The condom campaign in part acknowledges that family planning generally has been less effective in big cities where the pressure to conform is less compelling than in villages.

Condoms will help urban couples space their offspring, Haryono said. Contraceptives are now free in rural areas but a small charge will be levied for condoms.

Imported condoms will be marketed until a $12.3 million factory is completed near Bandung in West Java in 1987 to produce 28.8 million condoms a year.

Haryono declined to say how much is budgeted for the campaign.

"It's a small thing (now), but it is the baby of an elephant," he said.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Canada, U.S. talk trade

TORONTO (AP) — The United States should be ready to open talks on a free-trade agreement with Canada early next year, U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz said.

After four hours of talks Monday with Canada's foreign secretary, Joe Clark, Shultz said an agreement wiping out nearly all trade barriers would benefit both countries, the world's largest trading partners.

"We have chosen to recognize that dealing with tough issues — remaining tariffs, non-tariff barriers, subsidies, and market access — will help us pave the way for greater economic efficiency and prosperity in both countries in the next century," Shultz told a luncheon audience.

"On the basis of these early talks, and with our statutory requirements for consulting with Congress and the private sector in mind, we believe it will be possible to begin formal bilateral negotiations in early 1986," Shultz said.

Trade between Canada and the United States amounted to nearly $120 billion last year, with a large and growing surplus in Canada's favor.

Pope urges cooperation

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II on Monday urged continued and growing understanding between Roman Catholics and Jews, and denounced the "ugly" specter of anti-Semitism.

Addressing a session of the International Committee of Cooperation Between the Catholic Church and Judaism, the pontiff said the two religions "really have made much headway in our relations."

But he urged "even greater dedication for constantly deeper mutual knowledge, for even greater interest in the legitimate concerns of each other..."

"By the same token," he added, "anti-Semitism in its ugly and sometimes violent manifestations should be completely eradicated.

"Better still, a positive view of each of our religions, with due respect for the identity of each, will surely emerge, as is already the case in so many places."

Sakharov's wife to travel

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet journalist said today reports that the wife of dissident physicist Andrei D. Sakharov will be allowed to travel to the West for medical care are true, and that the United States is a likely destination.

The West German newspaper Bild, quoting reliable sources in Moscow, said Monday that Yelena Bonner had been told by Soviet authorities she could "fly immediately to wherever she wants."

Victor Louis, a Soviet journalist who in the past has provided accurate information to Western journalists, said of the Bild report:

"That is what I understand. As far as I am concerned it is authentic, that she will be allowed to go, that it will not be a one-way ticket, that it is up to her when and where."

Mrs. Bonner, 60, has said she suffers from an eye ailment that threatens her vision, and that surgery to correct the problem is not available in the Soviet Union. She has sought the right to receive treatment in the West.

Peres wants joint rule

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — An Israeli newspaper reported today that Prime Minister Shimon Peres proposed to Jordan an interim peace plan calling for joint rule of the Israeli-occupied West Bank and autonomy for Palestinians who live there.

The report in the independent daily Haaretz said Jordan's King Hussein accepted main points of the secret plan but insisted on international approval as a condition for his final agreement.
