Engineers end park dam work

Herald staff report
Geotechnical work has been completed at the Comanche Lake Dam site, and engineers are preparing plans and specifications for a new dam, city officials said.

Geotechnical work includes discovering soil conditions and ground levels, ground flexibility, density and formations, and determining what type structure is needed, Mayor Cotton Mize said.

City Manager Mack Wofford said officials probably will seek bids within the next 45 to 60 days, and select a contractor within two to four weeks after that.

The dam was destroyed during extraordinarily heavy rains the weekend of Aug. 30, 1986. A breach in the dam released approximately two-thirds of the lake's water, which flooded nearby low-lying areas.

City approves Paredez Street name

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Northwest Fourth Street is to be renamed Sgt. Paredez Street, City Council decided Tuesday evening, when council passed on first reading an ordinance changing the street name.

The council also waived fees for the Christmas in April volunteer program, enacted a fee for defensive driving courses, denied a livestock permit and heard from citizens for and against more control of stray dogs.

Sgt. Paredez Street honors Sgt. Augustine Paredez of the First Cavalry Division, the first Big Spring veteran to be killed in the Vietnam War. He died Nov. 17, 1965, at age 24.

The name change is in conjunction with the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Wall visit, beginning Sept. 30.

Paredez grew up at 607 N.W.

Fourth St., where his mother lives today, said Council member Pat DeAnda, who proposed the change.

For the Christmas in April volunteer program to repair houses of the needy elderly and handicapped, the council agreed to waive building permit fees.

Public Works Director Tom Decell said the city intends to conduct the usual inspections on the repairs.

Bob Noyes, local Christmas in April president, said most of the work will be performed one April weekend each year, with heating and plumbing repairs considered throughout the year.

Materials will be purchased with donations and installed with volunteer labor, he said, adding that electrical and plumbing repairs will be performed by the qualified electricians and plumbers.

The council also decided to charge a $10 fee to traffic law violators who take a defensive driving course to have a traffic ticket dismissed.

City Attorney Hardy Wilkerson explained that the state began requiring additional paperwork for the course Sept. 1, and allowed municipalities to begin charging a fee as high as $10 to pay for the work.

The fee is in addition to any tuition. CITY page 2A

Jobless rate declines to 8.7 percent

Herald staff report

Unemployment in Howard County fell 1.2 percent in August, to 8.7 percent from 9.9 percent in July, according to figures from the Texas Employment Commission.

The figure is 3.5 percent lower than the 12.2 rate reported for August 1986.

The Big Spring unemployment rate is slightly higher, at 10 percent, compared to 11 percent for July, and 14 percent for August 1986, the local TEC office report states.

The total civilian labor force in Howard County is 15,879, slightly lower than July's 16,197 figure and slightly higher than last year's 15,766 figure.

The total number of employed in the county is 14,498 for August, compared to 14,645 for July, and 13,849 for August 1986.

The county had 1,381 unemployed, compared to 1,552 in July and 1,917 last year.

Glasscock County's unemployment rate rose from 3.2 to 3.5 percent from July to August, compared to the 2.2 percent rate last year.

Borden County's 10.1 percent rate is lower than the 12.7 percent rate reported for July, but higher than last year's August rate of 8.9 percent.

Dawson county had 9.9 percent unemployment, compared to 10.8 percent for July and 15.3 percent last year.

Repair contracts chosen by school board in Coahoma

Herald staff report

COAHOMA — Coahoma school board members awarded contracts to repair roofing and siding defects during their meeting Tuesday evening.

Texas Roofing of Odessa was awarded the roofing repair contract over two other bidders, according to Superintendent Gary Rotan. None of the bidders were local companies, he said.

The Odessa bid was the lowest for the kind of repair work needed, Rotan added.

The siding repair contract went to Golden Gate Improvement of Big Spring, again on the basis of being the low bidder, he said.

In other business, the board:
• Approved Stanley Whisenhunt and Pete Lollar as teacher appraisers for the 1987-88 school year. Rotan said there will be one announced appraisal this year.

Other appraisals will be unannounced, but teachers will be notified of a two-week period in which their classes will be observed, the superintendent added.

• Nominated Harold Pierce to the Howard County Consolidated Tax District Board of Directors. The different taxing agencies in the county will vote for the directors sometime in November, Rotan noted.

• Approved the hiring of Regina Franky as junior high history and earth science teacher. With the appointment, the district is fully staffed, he said.

• Approved a fee increase for tax certificates. The new fee will be $10.

• Gave permission for the student council to hold a dance at the elementary school cafeteria after this week's homecoming game. The board also approved an ex-student association request to have a reception in the high school student lounge after the game, Rotan said.

• Approved the policy for screening and treatment of dyslexia and related disorders. The district will follow the four-stage guidelines set by the state legislature this year, and is staffed to handle students with the problem, he added.

Sugary cotton candy, chili dogs and funnel cake meshed into one indistinguishable smell at the Howard County Fair Tuesday evening.

"The food's good," Keith Gibbons, 2604 East 16th St., said after taking a bite of a chili dog.

Funnel cakes by far were the most popular, as more than a dozen people stood in line to buy the swirled, fried batter, topped with powdered sugar.

"They're great," Howard County Extension Agent Gail Earls said while sharing a portion of her cake.

"But they're better when they're hot," said Earls, who was unable to finish her's before it had cooled.

Inside, families milled about, signing names to raffle tickets and drawings.

"Come and guess how many jelly beans are in the jar," Lea Lewis called from the Howard County Jaycees booth.

One man bent down, used a measuring tape, then declared he was going home and will fill a similar jar to get a better idea.

A woman approached the booth with her daughter.

"There are 2,073 she said, barely pausing to view the jar."

A small boy put the number at 65,000.

"What do I win?" another asked.

"You win the beans," Lewis replied, with a smile.

The boy crinkled his nose, but guessed anyway.

One woman who guessed declared she didn't like jelly beans, but said she'd send them to President Reagan if she won.

Outside, children's screams and laughter filled the warm night air as merchants sat nearby, displaying their wares.

Roy Adams of Madill, Okla., greeted passers-by from his lawn chair.

Business is "slow tonight," he said.

This is Adams' first visit to the Howard County Fair where he's selling carved wooden name plaques.

"I heard the Big Spring fair was good," he said, adding that he was confident business would improve as the weekend approached.

A gate separated merchants from the carnival rides nearby.

Two-year-old Matthew Medrano, son of Arturo and Noemi Medrano, 2606 Barksdale Drive, smiled in glee as he sat propped upon a merry-go-round horse — as dad held him steady.

Behind the merry-go-round, carnival games stood in a row.

Guardian procedures vary from county to county

Editor's note: This is the fourth in a series on the guardianship system in the United States, and Texas in particular. It was produced after a national investigation by a team of Associated Press reporters.

By JENNIFER DIXON
Associated Press Writer

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Pencil marks dot the annual accountings in adult guardianship cases on file in Dallas County, as auditors for the probate judges doublecheck spending of the wards' estates each year.

In Brownsville and probate courts in Texas' rural counties, however, guardianship cases linger on the books without any accountings. Often the last entry is the order establishing the guardianship. There are no annual reports of how the wards' money was spent or how the wards are doing, and no inventory of the wards' estates.

"It's a pity, if money is involved, and they (guardians) are spending that money, but what can we do here?" asks Esther Cornejo, Cameron County deputy county clerk.

Cornejo's feelings echo those of court officials across rural Texas, who say they have too much to do and too little money to ensure guardians are following state probate statutes.

The law requires an inventory of the ward's estate 60 days after a guardianship of the estate is opened. Thereafter, annual reports of the ward's status are required of guardians of the person, and annual accountings are required from guardians of the estate, often the same person.

"The problem is that once they get the order... they lose interest," said Gregg County Judge Henry Atkinson. "They don't want to pay the attorney" for filing the annual accountings.

But with the state's strapped economy, Atkinson, like many others statewide, can't afford to add any personnel, much less someone to just monitor guardianships.

"If you put on an additional employee just for that purpose, you'd be scorned," he said.

In some of the state's small counties, guardianship cases are just a fraction of the caseload of the county judge, an elected position that does not require a candidate to be an attorney.

Those judges also hear misdemeanor criminal cases, small civil suits and other probate cases, and serve as the county's chief executive officer and as chairman of the county commissioner's court.

Hill County Judge Charles Herd, who is not an attorney, does all those jobs with just one assistant.

"Yesterday, I handled 50 criminal cases in court," Herd said in June. "We're spread pretty thin."

"There are so many duties on a poor old county judge, and his duties are so varied, if you work at it you could probably spend 18 hours a day working," he said.

Head Start officials clarify policies

Herald staff report
Confusion over admittance policies at the local Head Start school have led to a clarification by a school official.

The Herald has received questions from parents concerning physical examinations for children enrolling in the program.

The parents who contacted the Herald wanted to know why certain students whose parents aren't receiving state support are allowed to enroll before students who are.

Parents who are receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children are required by Head Start officials to have their child medically examined before they are allowed to attend school, according to Mocarria Cantu, a secretary at the school.

Children of families not receiving AFDC support, however, have their examinations done by the school — and can attend classes before it is done, the parents noted. Cantu said the reason AFDC parents are required to get an examination done on their own is that AFDC pays for the physical.

Because it's the decision of the individual parent to schedule the appointment, Head Start will wait until the examination is completed before allowing AFDC children to attend classes, Cantu added.

tion for such course, which are conducted at Howard College and the YMCA, he said.

On control of stray dogs, the council heard from two citizens who expressed opposing opinions.

Paul Ballentine, 1505 Chickasaw St., complained that neighbors' dogs are too often in his yard.

"It's time you do something about it," he said. He suggested money to pay for increased collection of strays be paid for by fines, which dog owners should pay to have their animals released from the pound.

Margaret Lloyd, president of the Big Spring Humane Society, however, believes the proposed collection of dogs from people's property, after complaints have been made, would be a mistake.

The action would bring ill will among citizens, she said.

"I'm pleased with the way it's handled now," Lloyd said.

The issue arose when jogger Herbert Ward, 700 E. 13th St., complained that he continually is fighting off dogs, and presented a 1,200-signature petition urging city action.

The council also voted unanimously to deny a livestock permit to Maxine Overman, 800-802 S. San Antonio St., on recommendation by Health Inspector James Luck.

Overman applied for a permit to keep 15 animals, including chickens, a rabbit and a dog. However, Luck said that when he inspected the property, he found at least 20 chickens, plus ducks and geese.

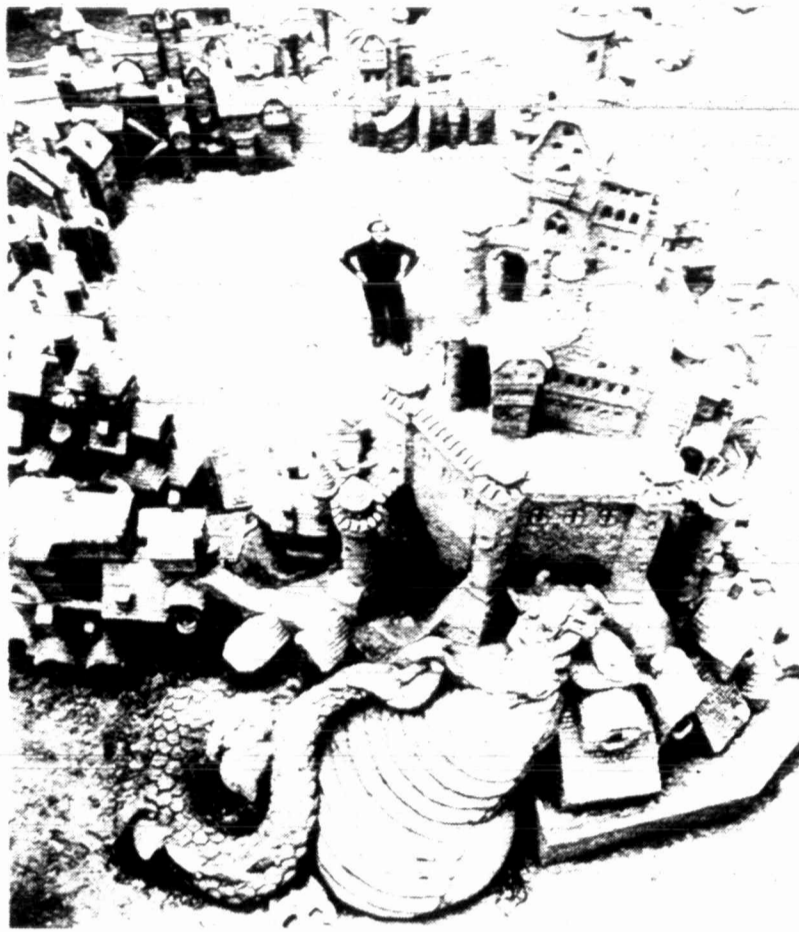

The issue arose when Luck discovered livestock were being kept there without a permit, he said.

DeAnda moved to refuse the permit, stating that more and more livestock are being allowed in the west area of town, turning that area into "a ranch."

Councilman Russ McEwen seconded the motion. He said too many farm animals makes the area "a less desirable place for people to locate."

In other business, the council:

- Adjourned into closed session to discuss the proposed lease of property at the Big Spring McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark near the end of the council meeting.
- Changed the city election date from the first Saturday in April to the first Saturday in May, and the date for a runoff, if necessary, the next to last Saturday in May.
- Finance Director Tom Ferguson said state legislation mandates the change.
- Heard from Karen McCarthy, who complimented the prison labor program's work on city park renovation — the result of work by inmates at the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp.

World's tallest
Todd Vander Pluym stands in the center of his 20-foot-high, 160-ton sandcastle, said to be the world's tallest, at Center Court, in Santa Monica, Calif., recently. The project was begun July 18 and consists of 34,650 shingles; 11,204 interior beams; 5,604 windows, and a 16-square-foot courtyard.

Weather

Forecast

West Texas - Mostly sunny through Thursday with slightly warmer afternoon temperatures. Fair tonight. Highs Thursday in the 80s except lower to mid 90s Big Bend valleys. Lows tonight in the 50s except mid 60s Big Bend valleys.

State

Clear skies and pleasant weather was reported across all of Texas for the first day of fall and forecasts indicated the good weather was expected to continue for several days.

A dome of high pressure centered over the state was responsible for the clear skies and moderate temperatures.

The only shower activity reported around the area was offshore in the Gulf of Mexico south of Brownsville.

At dawn, skies were clear over all of the state except in extreme South Texas where skies were mostly cloudy.

Lows tonight will be mostly in the 60s and 70s, ranging from the 50s in the mountains of Southwest Texas to the upper 70s and possibly lower 80s in extreme South Texas.

Herald staff report
A Lubbock woman was taken to Lamesa Hospital this morning after a one-vehicle accident 21 miles north of Big Spring on U.S. Highway 87.

Rafaela Moreno was released this morning after refusing treatment, according to a hospital spokeswoman.

The Howard County Sheriff's office was notified of the accident at 6:15 a.m. today, according to sheriff's reports.

The exact time of the accident, and information concerning the cause were unavailable at press time, according to a Department of Public Safety spokeswoman who said the accident is under investigation.

Farm safety week named

Farm and ranch safety week has been proclaimed for this week in Howard County by Judge Milton Kirby at the request of Michael Moates, Howard County Farm Bureau President.

This is the 44th annual observance of National Farm Safety Week, with the theme, "Farm safety makes good sense."

The American Farm Bureau and all state Farm Bureaus are serving as co-sponsors with the National Safety Council and the United States Department of Agriculture.

In the proclamation, Judge Kirby said, "Most accidents and work illnesses can be prevented, often by simple and inexpensive or no-cost measures."

"Protective equipment, used in many industries to help assure worker safety and health are equally useful on farm and ranches if always used when jobs or working conditions call for it," he added.

ten minutes passed without a customer.

It was a slow night for Eddie, who said he was at his first Howard County Fair — but one of hundreds of fairs he's worked at in his 28 years in the business.

"I like the small towns the best," the Kentucky native said.

"New York — that's not for me," Eddie said he's spent most of 1987 traveling with carnivals in Texas and Oklahoma.

He mentioned a favorite small town in Minnesota.

"Those people up there, they know how to party," he said.

At another booth, six youths gathered around a girl as she attempted to push a tilted beer bottle into an upright position with a small metal stick.

The trick was to apply just the right amount of pressure, evenly distributed, in order to stand the bottle up 10 times — using the two-pronged metal stick to guide the bottle.

"What is she doing?" another girl asked.

"Be quiet or you'll make her nervous — then she'll want a free prize," the carnival man said, jokingly.

After three successes, she failed — and went home without a stuffed animal.

Governor, speaker push SSC bonds

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements and House Speaker Gib Lewis are making a bipartisan pitch for voter approval of a $500 million bond issue to attract the superconducting supercollider.

"By all accounts, the super collider will be a tremendous boost to the Texas economy," the Republican governor said at a Tuesday news conference with Lewis, a Democrat, and Houston businessman Jack Blanton.

Blanton is chairman of the $800,000 campaign to pass the bond proposal on the Nov. 3 ballot.

The $4.4 billion atom-smasher would create thousands of jobs and make Texas a leader in scientific research, the officials said. It would pump about $20 billion into the state during the life of the project, they said.

"This once again proves that we are Texans above party when it comes to doing what is truly best for our state," Lewis said of the bipartisan campaign, which is supported by U.S. Sens. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, and Phil Gramm, R-Texas.

"The passage of Proposition 19 will send a clear message to Washington that Texans support and want this project in their state," Lewis said.

Proposition 19 would authorize the state to issue $500 million in general obligation bonds to help prepare the site if Texas wins the federal research project.

The 1987 Legislature already has authorized $500 million in revenue bonds to attract the super collider.

Texas is competing with 24 other states for the project. The state has proposed sites near Dallas-Fort Worth and Amarillo, and sites near El Paso and Midland have been proposed independently.

A final decision is scheduled to be announced in January 1989.

"Almost every scientific mind in the country equates this as equal to or more significant than the Johnson Space Center that we happen to also have in Texas," Blanton said.

The project will create 2,500 jobs for scientists, researchers and permanent support personnel. It also will create 4,500 construction jobs and 5,600 jobs in firms doing business with the project.

English only idea may be on ballot

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Republicans probably will vote in March on whether English should be made the state's official language, but Democrats probably won't get to voice a ballot-box opinion on the topic.

The American Ethnic Coalition, which is pushing the "official English" idea, on Tuesday asked each major party to put the issue on their primary ballots as a non-binding referendum.

John Weaver, director of the Texas Republican Party, said "odds are good" the State Republican Executive Committee will approve the request in November. The SREC last November approved a resolution endorsing the concept.

But Ed Martin, director of the Texas Democratic Party, said the State Democratic Executive Committee considers the proposal divisive and would reject it.

"It's the kind of issue that serves no purpose in our primary. It's relatively superfluous compared to issues voters are concerned about," Martin said.

"Each party occasionally puts issues on their primary ballots in the form of non-binding referenda. Sometimes those issues, often controversial, are used to try to attract

Corsicana man kills three, himself

DALLAS — A man dressed in Marine combat fatigues who had been nicknamed "Rambo" by his neighbors gunned down three people, including his wife, and terrorized customers of a restaurant in Corsicana before killing himself Tuesday afternoon, authorities said.

Frank Stewart, 37, a Corsicana man who had been fired from his job and left by his wife within the past two weeks, burst into the office of his former employer about 1:40 p.m. and fatally shot the man who had fired him, police said.

Stewart then drove to a restaurant where his wife worked as a waitress, and walked into the building waving two pistols and screaming for his wife, police said. Stewart fired several shots in the restaurant before fleeing, but no injuries were reported there, police said.

The ex-Marine then drove to a mobile home where his wife lived, shot a Louisiana man 10 times, cornered his wife in a bathroom and fatally shot her before walking outside and turning the gun on himself.

Police said the shootings took place in less than 30 minutes and that officers were scrambling to catch up with Stewart.

"By the time we got to one place, another report of a shooting would come in," Corsicana police, Sgt. Louis Palos said. "There was never actually a chase, but we were just one step behind him. It all happened so fast."

Palos said police are checking leads that Stewart may have been wanted by Missouri police in connection with a shooting there. Stewart was dressed in his old Marine battle fatigues and his pockets were crammed with gun clips and extra ammunition, police said.

"He was dressed for battle," Palos said. "It looks like he was really prepared."

Stewart's former boss, Dennis James Wade, was shot several times with a pistol in the office of Hulcher Services Inc. Wade was taken to Navarro Regional Hospital, where he later died.

Stewart had worked part-time for the company, which specializes in cleaning up after train derailments, but was fired by Wade two weeks ago, Palos said.

"The guy just showed up and blasted his boss," Palos said. "Apparently he had no warning."

Stewart then stole a company pickup truck and drove to the Western Sizzlin' restaurant on West 7th Street to look for his wife, Palos said. An assistant manager of the restaurant said several customers and employees were inside when Stewart came in but none were injured.

After leaving the restaurant, Stewart drove to the Schram Mobile Home Park at 4500 W. Park Road and went to a trailer where he had lived with his wife and two teenage sons Benjamin, 17, and Walker, 13. He forced his way inside and shot Edward Person.

Palos said Person was visiting Stewart's wife but police are unsure how long he had been there.

Brenda Stewart tried to hide in a bathroom but Stewart fired several shots through the door, forced his way inside and killed her, Palos said. Stewart then walked outside onto the front porch of the mobile home and shot himself once in the head, police said.

Neighbors described Stewart as a strange man who liked to wear camouflaged fatigues and often hunted rabbits in a nearby field. Kim Evans, who has lived in a house across the street from Stewart's trailer for more than a year, said people gave him the nickname Rambo.

"When we first moved in everyone told us 'That's Rambo's place' or 'He's Rambo,'" Evans said. "He had a lot of weapons and we'd hear gunshots all the time from him hunting rabbits."

Evans said Stewart worked sporadically, and Brenda Stewart often worked two jobs to support the family. Evans said Tuesday was Brenda Stewart's day off.

The Stewarts separated two weeks ago, after Stewart lost his part-time job at Hulcher, Evans said.

Another neighbor, Jeff Chappell, said Stewart was a short, stocky man who kept his blond hair cut short in a military style. Chappell rarely talked with Stewart but said he and other neighbors were concerned about Stewart's frequent rabbit hunts in a nearby field.

"I'd see him all the time heading out with a rifle in his hands," Chappell said. "You'd hear the gunshots all the time. We didn't like his little rabbit expeditions, but no one knew if there was anything we could do about it."

Stewart also had two pit bulls and liked to walk them through the neighborhood on a chain leash, neighbors said. Evans said Stewart once bragged to her about how vicious the dogs were.

"He told me they had a litter once but that he killed the puppies because they weren't tough enough," Evans said. "I thought he was pretty weird but I never thought he'd kill someone."

Small town welcomes prison plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Citizens of a small Texas town are urging the Federal Bureau of Prisons to build a 900-bed prison complex in their economically strapped region because it would provide up to 250 jobs, a spokeswoman said.

The bureau announced last week that it plans to start the environmental impact process at the four potential prison sites immediately, including a 300-acre site near Three Rivers in Live Oak County southeast of San Antonio.

"We are so economically depressed it's just unbelievable," said Rosie Jaffard, the city secretary, in a telephone interview Tuesday. "Live Oak County has just relied on the oil industry over the years. And now, the local industries are really having a tough time."

She said the entire area supports the prison, a minimum security facility with a "prison camp" for inmates nearing the end of their terms. The prison could be built near the Choke Canyon Reservoir seven miles east of Three Rivers.

Volunteers gather 215 tons of trash

AUSTIN (AP) — Volunteers who troled for trash on Texas beaches picked up almost 215 tons of debris in three hours, Land Commissioner Garry Mauro says.

But the Saturday cleanup was temporary at best, Mauro said Tuesday.

"Saturday afternoon, for the first time in many years, most of the beaches of Texas were clean. Unfortunately, that's changing right now. Every tide brings another load of garbage," he said.

Sixteen Texas beaches were cleaned during the 1987 Texas Coastal Cleanup, sponsored by the General Land Office and the Center for Environmental Education. Volunteer trash haulers filled out data cards that will be used by the CEE to publish a report on the project.

"We were thrilled with the response to the cleanup effort and wish to thank everyone who helped," said Linda Maraniss, CEE's regional director.

Wholesome fun can yield riches

Hey, hey, hey! Picture the cartoon character Fat Albert's reaction to hearing of his creator's wealth.

Forbes magazine reported that entertainer Bill Cosby may earn $84 million in 1986 and 1987 from his television shows, books, commercials, records and investments. His estimated earnings were published along with those of 39 other entertainers and sports figures who reportedly made more than $10 million each in the two-year period.

In Cosby's case, the estimate may have been conservative; it didn't include syndication values of his top-rated program "The Cosby Show," and some other investments as well.

By any measure, Cosby is a very wealthy man — on his way to becoming a billionaire, the magazine said.

Cosby gets more for making people laugh, and stimulating them to buy products he helps sell, than the highest-paid automobile executive gets for making cars. Chrysler Corp.'s Lee Iacocca received $32 million in the comparable period, according to Forbes.

Cosby is a gentle, non-violent, non-obscene entertainer. He is a wholesome role model at a time when wholesome role models are relatively rare.

Even so, his success doesn't necessarily mean that wholesomeness has triumphed. Sharing the pay spotlight with him were Sylvester Stallone, with $74 million, and Eddie Murphy, with $50 million. Stallone's "Rocky" and "Rambo" movies are heavy on violence. And Murphy, except for some of his over-the-air television work, trades as much on profanity and obscenity as Stallone does on violence.

Nonetheless, Cosby's achievement shows that an entertainer can succeed without being violent, crude or obscene. It suggests that the public will support high-quality programming that is decent.

The cookies may crumble, but bragging will continue

By ROBERT WERNSMAN
I may have stretched my neck across the chocolate chip chopping block.

Baking chocolate chip cookies has become something of a hobby for me. But I recognize my weaknesses involved with such a project: Perfectionism and a big mouth.

Sometimes my hobbies become exercises in frustration because of trying always to make the very best. It irritates me when a trayful of 12 formerly puffy, brown mounds of cookie dough is scorched so badly even the cat won't glance at them a second time.

Certainly I can do better.

The big mouth part is not about my eating them. By that time I've usually consumed enough dough that the baked ones are more fun to give away than eat.

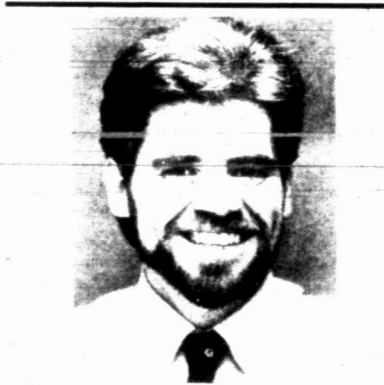

By now, also, I've convinced myself I can determine the quality of the product by the texture of the dough.

It's the talking about them that can get me in trouble — and I think it's about to again.

No one should be shy about a talent with which they're blessed. Artists should paint and create; seamstresses should sew and writers should have either an electronic terminal or a stack of pads, pencils and a battery-operated pencil sharpener.

So, I've not been shy.

As my confidence grew in my baking abilities, at least for this item, I began to enlarge my circle of tasters.

Just my type

There's been hardly a refusal. And the story that went with the cookies got stronger and bolder each time: I began boasting — without a single bit of evidence — that I could make some of the best in Big Spring.

Then, after a few months, the claim strengthened to the point that I stood before a roomful of adults a few evenings ago and blurted that one of my talents was making the softest, moistest chocolate chip cookies in Howard County.

Then I realized — "Buddy, you may have overstepped your limits with that claim."

How do you go about fortifying such a remark?

You can take the case to the people in a couple of ways, but Sunday it struck me that my real opportunity was just a few days away.

The County Fair.

I never took part in the County Fair when I was younger. I had the opportunities, but was never really interested in pursuing them.

Baseball, football or basketball — depending on the season — were regulars for me, but never any participation in the fair.

I'd considered entering something when I visited my first Howard County Fair last year. But the very thought of doing so the third week after having moved here was unappealing.

"Next year," I thought. "Another opportunity to procrastinate," I also thought.

Now, I feel like a kid at the county fair.

I had some degree of success with an entry early this week — a photograph of Nibbles, my favorite cat. He's my better mousetrap and stalwart friend.

In the photo, which took second place, Nibbles is doing his impression of a cat in pure, majestic setting, as he perched on a bathroom window sill.

That's when I began telling everyone who would listen that the big day was fast approaching. I'd bake cookies on Wednesday night and deliver them carefully on Thursday.

Then, if all went as well as I hoped, there would be evidence without contradiction for county bragging.

And if the judges are not so kind in their verdicts?

I can only hope that no one remembers I even mentioned it.

Of course, only Nibbles will ever know for sure — and he never tells.

Lewis Grizzard Next morning reveals true drinker status

By LEWIS GRIZZARD
A lot of people are turning away from alcohol these days, including my friend Rigby, the former lush, who phoned to tell me of his plans to stop drinking.

"How long have you been drinking?" I asked him.

"Professionally, 25 years," he said.

"What is the difference between a professional and an amateur drinker?"

"A professional," Rigby began, "drinks every night except New Year's Eve, which is amateur night. A professional never drinks anything with an umbrella or a cherry in it, and a professional awakens at least ten times a year in a Holiday Inn in a different time zone and doesn't remember getting there."

For others who may be considering stopping drinking, I asked Rigby for some tell-tale signs one should look for in determining whether or not one has stepped over the qualifying line.

"It's the morning after that says it all," Rigby said.

"Start with your tongue. If you have to shave it, then you had way too much to drink the night before."

"Then, there's your money. Look at any bills you might have left over, and if they have been wadded into tiny little balls and you find them in strange places like your shoe or your ear, son, you got down to some serious drinking the night before."

"What else?" I asked.

"Check your clothing. Did you remember to take it off before you passed out? Check to make certain the clothing you have on is the same clothing you had on when you left for the evening."

"If you are wearing a fez, it was a big night. If you are wearing a Royal Canadian Mountie's hat, then you had an even bigger night."

"And if the Mountie's horse is down in the living room, grazing on house plants, call AA immediately and see if they deliver because you won't be able to get anywhere in your condition."

"There are a few other things to look for, too," Rigby continued.

• "Check any credit card receipts you can find, if they are for charges at a Frederick's of Hollywood, at an arms dealer, or with a foreign airline, you've got troubles."

• "Look at your checkbook. If checks 1562 through 1568 are missing and you don't remember writing them, call the bank and stop payment as soon as you are able to operate a telephone."

• "And this one is very important: Check your body for any unexplained tattoos."

"If you find one you didn't have before and it's a heart with an arrow through it and includes the names Doris, Trixie, Mona, or Grover, make up your mind to stop drinking forever, but call your attorney first."

I thanked Rigby for his hints and I hope they have been of a public service.

To sobriety then. It just might catch on.

Citizen expresses disappointment

To the editor:
Many of us felt keen disappointment that our present school board did not choose Barbara Davis to fill the position left vacant when Dock Voorhies moved to California. It appears that these six men had an opportunity to select a highly qualified young black woman. Instead, they chose one "like unto themselves."

Billy Pineda was an exception. He recognizes how difficult it is for a minority voice to be heard in Big Spring. He voted for Ms. Davis, who was the person Dock Voorhies highly recommended to replace him.

This is a case when a minority person with excellent qualifications was passed over for another qualified person who will fit in better with the "establishment."

Ideally a school board represents the viewpoints of all segments of a community. Some of us in minority segments would have liked to see Barbara Davis, a second generation community leader, on our Big Spring School Board.

Thanks should be given to the Herald for consistent and thorough coverage of school board meetings and affairs.

Bork hearings draw rhetoric label

To the editor:
As we begin to witness the confirmation hearings on the Bork nomination for the Supreme Court, instead of seeing factual unbiased questions designed to determine the true qualifications of the nominee, we are subjected to political rhetoric designed to further someone's political ambitions or represent the desires of special interest groups and not the nation as a whole.

The true design of these hearings is to determine whether the nominee truly meets the qualifications necessary to protect and depend the constitution as it is written — without bias to political party or special interest groups.

Hopefully, the majority of the American people, prior to deciding whether to support the Bork nomination, will sift through the rhetoric and political jockeying, listen to the facts and make intelligent decisions based on these facts.

He who answers before listening That is his folly and his shame. (Proverbs 18:13, NIV)

Debris at spring disappoints visitor

To the editor:
When I was in grade school I lived south of Big Spring near Elbow. I remember in those early years going to the city park in Big Spring. The first monkeys I ever saw were in the monkey house at the park.

I remember when the swimming pool first opened in the park in the late '30s or early '40s, and going to the wading pool in the park. I also remember my Dad playing fast pitch softball at the park.

We moved away from this area in 1941, but because I have kinfolks in the area I average coming back here at least two or three times a year. In all of those years I had never been to or seen the Big Spring.

So today, because I had a few hours while waiting for an appointment, I went out of the spring. I was very impressed and thought how welcome a sight it must have been to the early travelers and settlers in this area. I was, however, very disappointed at all of the litter and garbage that was in the spring.

It is a real shame that people have so little respect for our environment. It would seem that people could throw the beer cans and pop cans in a proper place.

"I suspect, in their heart of hearts, Americans rather regret that they don't have any royalty." — George Iain Murray, the 10th Duke of Atholl, who visited Athol, Mass., named by his ancestor 225 years ago, and marched down Main Street with his 73 Highlanders in kilts.

Protecting the candidates

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA
WASHINGTON — In special training camps, the U.S. Secret Service is preparing a small army of 1,500 agents to protect the biggest crop of presidential contenders in recent memory.

And service officials are worried that even this impressive number of highly trained bodyguards may not be enough, according to agency sources.

With eight Democrats and six Republicans already planning to throw their hats into the ring, the Secret Service faces its biggest political protection assignment in history.

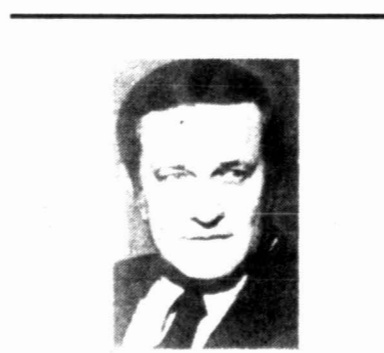

The large number of candidates is because this is the first time since 1968 that an incumbent president isn't running. The assassination of Sen. Robert Kennedy, D-N.Y., that same year prompted President Lyndon Johnson (and the Congress) to order Secret Service protection for all "major candidates" for president.

That choice of words has given the resolutely apolitical Secret Service a judgmental role usually assumed by pundits and party leaders. How does the service decide who is a "major candidate?"

Which contenders will acquire the instant prestige of Secret Service protection, thus certified as candidates to be taken seriously?

Agency sources have told us how the judgments will be made:

An advisory committee of political pros will meet in November to make the determination. This unofficial committee will include the speaker of the House, the majority and minority of both House and Senate (even though Senate Minority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., is himself a candidate), the secretary of the Treasury (the Secret Service's boss) and an unnamed additional member chosen by the committee.

Protection of the designated candidates is scheduled to begin Feb. 1, 1988. Each contender will have two Secret Service teams assigned — an A and B team. The bodyguards will provide 24-hour protection in four shifts, on a 20-day rotation cycle per team.

Command posts will be established as close as possible to the candidates' homes, which will be guarded whether anyone is there or not.

Each candidate will be accompanied by about seven agents while traveling, and will move about on the ground only in mini-motorcades. The federal government pays the Secret Service agents' salaries and expenses, but nothing more.

Each agent will be assigned a Secret Service code name, primarily for use in radio communication between bodyguards. In 1976, for example, Dole's code name was "Ramrod," and his wife, now Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole, was referred to as "Rainbow."

The senator probably will not have the same code name this time, and neither his wife nor the Democratic candidate who might like the code name, Rev. Jesse Jackson, will be designated "Rainbow." That's because the moniker has been assigned to First Lady Nancy Reagan.

Jackson incidentally, was known as "Thunder" in the 1984 campaign, while Vice President George Bush's code is "Timberwolf."

The Secret Service is respected widely for its professionalism and dedication. Agents must qualify with a small arsenal of weapons, including revolvers and the Uzi submachineguns they carry in briefcases or over-the-shoulder bags.

They also are trained in karate, firefighting, crime detection, escape driving and the identification of potential assailants by psychological profile.

Growth in responsibilities has led to a huge increase in the Secret Service's manpower and budget. When President John Kennedy was assassinated in 1963, the service had about 350 agents and an $8 million annual budget. Today it has 1,915 agents and a $323 million budget.

Biden urged to quit

WASHINGTON — Sen. Joseph Biden, strongly urged by close aides and relatives to give up his damaged campaign for the 1988 Democratic presidential nomination, intends to make a statement of his plans later today, sources said.

These sources, who refused to be identified by name, said Biden would make an afternoon announcement. Aides did nothing to dampen speculation that the senator would drop out of the race in the wake of his admission that he committed plagiarism in law school and exaggerated his academic accomplishments during campaign appearances.

The senator had no comment as he arrived to chair Senate Judiciary Committee confirmation hearings of Supreme Court nominee Robert H. Bork.

Burger defends Bork

WASHINGTON — Former Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, in an unusual Senate appearance on behalf of a Supreme Court nominee, said today, "If Judge Bork is not in the mainstream then neither am I."

The white-haired Burger, holding a small book with the words of the Constitution in his hands, told the Senate Judiciary Committee over and over that Robert H. Bork is not an extremist.

Speaking off the cuff, Burger said he has never seen a confirmation hearing "with more hype and more disinformation."

House OKs Contra aid

WASHINGTON — The House voted today to give $3.5 million in "humanitarian" aid to Nicaragua's Contra rebels and Speaker Jim Wright said it probably will be the last U.S. aid ever provided to the rebels.

The lawmakers, on a voice vote, approved ground rules for debate on a 41-day stopgap spending measure to keep the government running past the end of the current fiscal year on Sept. 30. The Contra aid money was included in the ground rules.

Consumer costs jump

WASHINGTON — Consumer prices jumped 0.5 percent in August, as still-rebounding energy prices overwhelmed a small drop in food costs, the government reported today.

The increase in the Labor Department's consumer price index followed a 0.2 percent increase in July. It was the steepest climb since a 0.7 percent rise last January.

For the first eight months of 1987, inflation at the retail level has been running at an annual rate of 5.1 percent, nudged up by the August figures from the 5 percent level that had prevailed through July.

An Iranian seaman from the landing craft Iran Ajr, which was immobilized by machine gun and rocket fire from a U.S. helicopter, lies under guard with his wrists bound aboard the USS Lasalle Tuesday. Evidence of the mining was released today and the prisoners will be released soon, officials said.

Mining

U.S. claims firm evidence

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger today said the "evidence is all before the world" to prove Iran was sowing mines in the Persian Gulf and he expressed hope it would help persuade the United Nations to impose sanctions against Iran.

Weinberger, interviewed today on NBC-TV's "Today" show and ABC-TV's "Good Morning America," also said the Navy within a few days will release the detained Iranian crew members for repatriation to Iran.

"We saw some of the mines being put overboard and the crew confirms that they had laid mines," Weinberger said on the NBC show in summing up the U.S. evidence of Iranian mine-sowing.

"The simple fact of the matter is that the evidence is all before the world and if anybody — an have any doubt after a ship is seen laying mines and they find 10 more (mines) on board, that's enough for us," he added.

Weinberger said the captured crew members from the Iran Ajr made statements implicating themselves after the Monday attack, adding, "since it was an international criminal act, we would call them confessions."

Weinberger, who leaves today for a five-day trip to the gulf region, said on the ABC program he is hopeful the evidence will be "very persuasive" as the United States urges the U.N. to adopt a resolution imposing an arms embargo on Iran for failing to agree to a cease-fire in the gulf.

"The nations can see that the stories that the Iranians put out are total complete fabrications and I would hope that the nations would see that a country like Iran that behaves in this outlaw, completely terrorist way needs to be controlled by an arms embargo."

The Pentagon said three Iranians were killed and two were listed as missing, while 26 Iranians were rescued, four of them wounded. It said a Navy boarding party found 10 mines aboard the Iran Ajr, a 1,662-ton amphibious landing craft.

Reporters in a Pentagon press pool who were allowed to visit the Iranian vessel said there were three large gashes in the hull and deck and that it was pockmarked by machine-gun fire and stained with blood. They quoted sources as saying it appeared the crew had destroyed documents before abandoning the ship. News photos showed mines sitting on the ship's deck.

Aircraft shoots plane

NAPLES, Italy — A U.S. Air Force reconnaissance plane was accidentally shot down by a U.S. Navy aircraft during military exercises in the western Mediterranean, a U.S. 6th Fleet spokesman said today.

Another accident involving a U.S. military aircraft occurred in West Germany when an Army helicopter crashed during NATO maneuvers, slightly injuring two soldiers. Maj. Peter van Geldorp said the helicopter went down near Doehle, a town about 60 miles south of Hamburg. The identities of the injured soldiers were not released.

No one was hurt in the accident over the Mediterranean, which occurred Tuesday afternoon during the Display Determination exercises being conducted by the allied forces of southern Europe, said Lt. David Morris.

Israel marks new year

JERUSALEM — Israelis celebrated the start of the Jewish New Year today, with rabbis blowing the traditional ram's horn and soldiers on alert for the possibility of terrorist attacks.

The two-day Rosh Hashana holiday brought a reprieve to a two-month-long religious-secular dispute in Jerusalem that has become known as the "Sabbath Wars."

It also coincided with the 40th anniversary of the birth of the modern Jewish state.

President Chaim Herzog noted that the new year, 5748, was supposed to be the "year of joy." On the Hebrew calendar, years and other dates are spelled out in letters and 5748 forms the word "sameah," or "joy."

Force to fight rebels

MANILA, Philippines — The army said today it was sending an elite scout ranger battalion to southeastern Luzon, where transportation has been nearly cut off by attacks by Communist rebels.

In Manila, meanwhile, a former Cabinet member today charged that several companies conspired with the administration of former President Ferdinand Marcos to defraud International Monetary Fund auditors.

Chinese watch eclipse

BEIJING — People throughout China watched a solar eclipse this morning, the last eclipse expected in the country this century.

For three hours most of the nation could see partial eclipses, as the moon passed in front of the sun. A full annular eclipse, in which the moon blots out all but a ring of light from the perimeter of the sun, was visible from Shanghai to China's far west. The sky did not noticeably darken.

Guardianship

JUDGE DAVID JACKSON

In the larger counties, probate judges hear guardianship cases and have enough staff to maintain accountings.

In Dallas County, all three probate judges have auditors, and in Tarrant County, both judges have an auditor and share a second person who helps with audits.

Auditors in those counties tally the annual accountings and send letters when accountings are overdue. A judge can remove a guardian for failing to fulfill the duties, including failure to file accountings.

Not one of the state's 254 counties has a court investigator who makes visits and tries to ensure the information in the accountings truly reflects the status of the ward's estate or well-being, said former Dallas County Probate Judge David Jackson, now in private legal practice.

"Even though the law requires annual accountings, there is no way a judge can verify the truth of the statements in there, other than to rely on the affidavits attached," Jackson said.

Although the larger counties have bigger staffs, Jackson said he thinks inequities slip by more easily in the big counties.

In a small county, "Everybody knows everybody, and everybody knows what everybody is doing and they would know when someone is being taken advantage of," Jackson said.

"Our guardianship laws are adequate," he said. "It's the people who enforce the laws who are inadequate."

Another difference between the metropolitan and rural counties is the metropolitan judges' insistence on medical statements attesting to a ward's incompetence before a guardianship can be opened.

Although the law does not require medical statements for permanent guardianships — only in cases in which the guardians gain limited powers — some judges insist on physicians' statements.

Tarrant County Judge Pat Ferchill said he won't establish a guardianship without the statement of a medical doctor or doctor of osteopathy.

In Dallas County, probate judges routinely appoint an attorney to represent the proposed ward in a permanent guardianship proceeding, but appointing what are known as "ad litem" attorneys is extremely rare in rural Texas.

The appointment is optional under the law in permanent guardianships.

"I'd sure hate to see a case where they didn't have an ad litem," said Dallas attorney Wayne Melton, who has done such work.

Does mother know best on matters of marriage?

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: As a 79-year-old male, I protest your advising that 22-year-old girl to marry Sammy against her mother's wishes. Who else is more interested in the girl's future happiness than her own mother? And who is better qualified to advise in this matter? Sammy can find happiness with another mate, and the girl can find happiness with another man. She should consider the risks involved, and let her head rule her heart this time.

CHARLES J. BURCH, VERO BEACH, FLA.
DEAR CHARLES: What risks? The man she loves with all her heart happens to be short, poor and Jewish. The girl says he's a good person from a dirt-poor family, and he's working two jobs to put himself through college. I don't question the mother's interest in her daughter's future happiness, but she is far from qualified to advise her in the choice of a husband if she "hates" a man because he's poor, short and Jewish. It appears that Sammy is the one taking the risk. He'll have a mother-in-law who's bigoted, snobbish and ignorant.

DEAR ABBY: Are we losing our minds, or has "Eileen," our 39-year-old daughter, lost hers? Eileen never married, and has not lived at home for 21 years. She has just informed us that she is going to marry the divorced man she's been living with for the last seven years.

He is a 57-year-old grandfather. She wants to be married in the city where she has resided for the last 21 years because that's where all her friends are. (Incidentally, it's 1,500 miles from here.) We understand this, and have no objections to that whatsoever, but she has informed us that it is "customary" for the parents to pay for their daughter's wedding and reception — as long as it is her first. The estimated cost (she says) will be about $15,000.

Abby, we are retired and living comfortably on a pension, but we are not able to finance a $15,000 wedding. Please tell us what our obligations are in this case.

UNABLE TO OBLIGE IN WEST TEXAS

DEAR UNABLE: Obligations? You have none. Your daughter's demands are not only unreasonable, they're outrageous.

Two success stories

Last year, when the Big Spring Steers won the District 2-4A football championship, many people thought the main reason Big Spring was so successful was because of the drop from 5A to 4A.

I'm a firm believer that Big Spring had one of the best teams in the state simply because they had top caliber players on that team.

Just how good were the players the Steers had last season?

A good indication of their talent is that two of last year's players are starting at four-year schools as freshmen.

I did a little research and found that former Steers Todd Coker and Charley Ogle have earned themselves starting jobs at National Association Intercollegiate Athletic schools.

Coker was an all-district and all-crossroads country selection at noseguard last season. This season, the 6-0, 210-pounder is the starting inside linebacker for Greenville College in Illinois.

This is Greenville's first season to have a football program and Coker won a starting job right away, according to Greenville defensive coordinator Joe Palmisano.

Greenville, playing an independent schedule, is off to a good start, defeating Washington University 48-7 and Miliken University 7-0.

Coker has been the defensive leader so far. He made 15 tackles against Washington in his first college start. Last week against Miliken he made 10 tackles, including two behind the line of scrimmage, and batted down one pass.

Thus far he's the leading tackler on a stingy Panthers' defense that is allowing just 139 yards per game.

And Coker is playing with a broken bone in his wrist. He protects the wrist by playing with a rubber cast.

Coach Palmisano is quite impressed with Coker's play. "He wears number 44 and he's a little bit like Bosworth," said Palmisano, comparing Coker to Seattle Seahawks' line backer Brian Bosworth.

"Todd had no problems making the transition from linemen to linebacker. He's doing a great job. His biggest strength is chasing down the ball. He likes getting after it," said Palmisano.

Coker is one of nine freshmen starting for the team.

"These guys are not acting like freshmen. They are accepting their responsibilities and playing hard. We're surprising a lot of people," said Palmisano.

Ogle stayed in Texas, where he took his services to McMurry College in Abilene, a member of the Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

Ogle was an all-district and all-crossroads country center last season. This season the 6-1, 215-pounder has won himself a starting job on the Indians' offensive line.

The Indians' starting center, junior Brent Patton, was injured at the first of workouts and is coming off knee surgery. This left McMurry coach Cliff Odenwald with a dilemma, since Ogle and another freshman were the other two centers.

But Ogle stepped in and has been doing a bang-up job, said Odenwald. He started in McMurry's 28-7 win over Kansas Wesleyan, and in last week's 35-9 victory over Lambuth College in Tennessee.

In those two games the Indians' offense is averaging 385 yards.

"It was a scary situation when we lost our starting center," said Odenwald. "But Charley came to the top. He's done a real good job for us. He's only one of two freshmen starters we have and he's accepted his role well. He grew up in a hurry," said Odenwald.

"What put Charley ahead of the other guy is that he's a good scramble blocker, and a good good low blocker. We do a lot of zone blocking and they did the same thing at Big Spring, so Charley was use to it.

"That tells what a good job his offensive line coach did with him at Big Spring. Usually the offensive line is the hardest place for a freshmen to start because of the experience factor."

Not that Patton is back from knee surgery, coach Odenwald will have to make some changes.

"Brent Patton is a good ballplayer. He's 6-1, 255 and we need him on the line. But Charley's been doing such a good job we may have to move Brent to a guard or tackle," said Odenwald.

So there's two little success stories that show why the Big Spring Steers are the defending 2-4A football champions.

Win escapes Lady Steers

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

The Big Spring Lady Steers' search in quest of a league volleyball win continues.

Tuesday night at Steer Gym the Lady Steers and Monahans Lobos locked up in an hour-and-a-half war. When it was all over the hustling Lady Steers came out on the short end, 15-11, 4-15, 15-10.

The marathon was the sixth district loss for coach Elaine Stone's crew.

For the fans, however, the watch was well worth its time limit. Both teams put on a show as if there was no tomorrow. The contest had everything, from power-packed spikes to headfirst dives and saved loose balls.

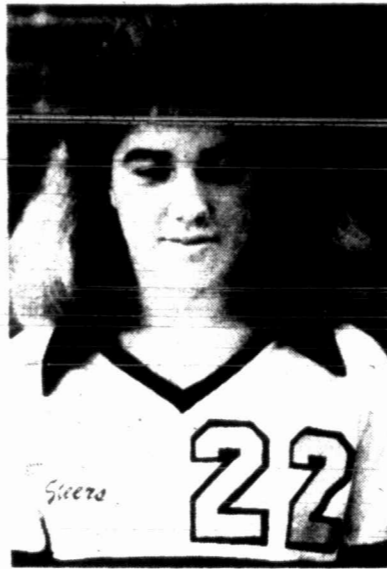

In the first game Big Spring fell behind midway through the match, but rallied to outscore Monahans 7-1 down the stretch.

Cary Brooks keyed the rally, downing two kills and blocking three Monahans' spike attempts. Tracy Schaffner was deadly at the line. Her hard, low serves resulted in the last four Big Spring points. Monahans mishandled two of her serves, and she aces two others.

In the second game Monahans' senior spiker Linda McNutt got hot and banged away at the Big Spring defense. It was all well-earned though, as Brooks and Michelle LeGrand met her with several strong blocks.

McNutt downed five of 11 kills in the game and Monahans won handily 15-4.

"We relaxed too much in the second game," said a calm Lady Steers coach Elaine Stone. "We got so up for the first game. We thought that second game was going to be easy. One thing I can say is, our defense was good," she said.

Indeed, the Lady Steers did play good defense. Monahans tried 73 spikes and downed 29 for 40 percent. On the other hand, Big Spring was good on 22 of 57 attempts for 39 percent.

Time and time again Monahans spikers McNutt, Cheryl Montgomery, Linda Bravo and Jackie Montgomery hit hard spikes at Big Spring, and most of the time the Lady Steers resounded.

Lady Steers' LeGrand, Lisa Alvarez and Melissa Martinez made great saves on the hard hits. LeGrand was also active at the net, as was Brooks. Both got eight blocks each in the match.

In the "rubber match," Big Spring fell behind early and rallied back to within 11-10 before falling 15-10.

Trailing 11-6, Big Spring rallied behind four service points by Martinez. But in the end it was five services into the net that did in the Lady Steers.

"Those five missed serves killed us. That's five chances we didn't even have to score points," said

Stone. "We finally got our defense the way we want it; now we must get our serves and offense working.

"Our front row had trouble hitting sets off the net. We've got to be able to handle those as well as we do the sets on the nets," she said.

Brooks led Big Spring in spiking, downing five of 10 attempts. LeGrand followed with eight kills in 23 tries. Martinez downed three of five attempts. Angie Dees and Pam Pulver downed two spikes each.

Senior Jackie Montgomery led Monahans, downing six of 14 attempts. Sophomore sister Cheryl downed five of 12 attempts and McNutt finished the game with 10 kills in 26 tries.

Big Spring falls to 4-11 overall. Monahans is now 3-3 in district play.

FROSH WIN, JV LOSE

The Big Spring freshmen romped in two straight games, 15-1, 15-8. The junior varsity was defeated 15-12, 15-13.

Saturday the Lady Steers travel to Andrews to take on the Mustangs. Frosh action begins at 1 p.m., followed by junior varsity at 2 and varsity at 3.

BS netters defeat Andrews

The Big Spring High School tennis teams won its first district match of the season by defeating Andrews 11-7 in team tennis play Tuesday afternoon at Figure 7 Tennis Center.

The win gives Big Spring a 1-2 record. It was the first time in five seasons Big Spring had defeated Andrews.

"We really got after it," said a happy Big Spring coach John Strahl. "The boys really came out fired up. Andrews had about the same type team as last year. We just played well," said Strahl.

The Big Spring boys dominated the match, winning seven matches and losing only two. Rocky Tubb, Taff Wennik, Troy Simonek, Dan Whitehead, Dan Ditto and Eric McKinney won their singles matches.

Tubb and Wennik and Ditto and Whitehead combined for doubles wins.

Amber Logback and Kim Shyrack were Big Spring girls singles winners. The teams of Lara Cunningham and Shyrack and Tammie Mason and Tracey Owen won their doubles matches.

Big Spring's next competition will be Saturday when they host

Big Spring High school tennis player Taff Wennik returns a backhand during singles play against Andrews Tuesday afternoon at Figure 7 Tennis Center. Wennik defeated Andrews' Scott Brewer 6-0, 6-0.

Grady defenders share defensive honors

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

Sometimes it's simply not clear who was THE top offensive or defensive player in the area after a given weekend.

So this week some players are going to have to be content to share.

Six Grady Wildcats are our Defensive Player(s) of the Week. The recent history of the Wildcats has been well chronicled, but it bears repeating.

Last year the Wildcats could well have been the youngest and smallest team in the state — the great majority of starters were freshmen. Consequently, the Wildcats got whipped every game.

Grady is still young and small, but as sophomores they're bigger and stronger than they were as freshmen.

Last Friday the young Wildcats finally experienced victory, and it's a sure bet they'll experience it with increasing frequency in the next two years.

Highland scored just 14 points against the first team Grady defense, and that's not much in the high scoring six-man game. Grady won 64-35, and that's why their six starting defenders share this week's Defensive Player of the Week honors.

The Grady defenders, all sophomores, are Chad Wells, Scott Glaze, David White, Tim Stone, Julian Valle and Danny Valle.

Grady coach Mike Mathis said his group hit hard and beat up on the bigger Hornets.

"When a 180-pound senior gets knocked off his feet by a 150-pound sophomore, it's pretty demoralizing," Mathis said.

This week's Offensive Player(s) of the Week honor will also be shared.

Sands' running back Jay Fryar ran 15 times for 155 yards and three touchdowns, and completed three of six passes for 85 yards and two touchdowns as Sands defeated Blackwell 44-22. That's not a bad night.

Coahoma's Matt Rowell had an equally strong effort. Rowell carried the ball 25 times for 145 yards and two touchdowns, caught two passes for 34 yards, and returned two kicks for 114 yards — including a 94-yard touchdown return to open the second half — as Coahoma beat Forsan 26-20.

Fryar and Rowell are thereby co-winners of this week's offensive honors.

They weren't, however, the only area players to have big games.

In the Bulldogs' win, sophomore quarterback Curtis Hudson completed seven of 11 passes for 87 yards and no interceptions. Just as important was the fact that Coahoma did not have a turnover.

Forsan's quarterback, Brant Nichols, also had a good game. Nichols ran the ball for 64 yards, and it would have been 74 without a sack. He completed 11 of 21 passes for 121 yards and two touchdowns. He also had a 44-yard touchdown pass called back.

His top receiver was Brandy GRADY page 2B

Steers Spotlight

Big Spring duo planning to stay on right side of coin

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

Matt Burrow and Danny Williams are two Steer footballers who have seen both sides of the coin.

The duo went through the hard times when the Steers were in rugged District 4-5A. Now they're experiencing the good times in 2-4A. Both were sophomore varsity lettermen two years ago when Big Spring finished 3-7 in District 4-5A. Last year as juniors they were two reasons why the Steers won District 2-4A.

This year they are two of the senior leaders who are being expected to help lead an inexperienced Steer team to the winning side of the coin again this year. Both players talk about the team like the seasoned veterans they are.

Burrow, an all-state offensive tackle last year, has been asked by the coaches to make the transition to linebacker. Williams is coming off knee surgery that left him sidelined from his safety spot for half of last season.

"The team has more potential this year. But we're not as intense," said Burrow. "We wait for that big challenge from a team that is as good as we are. Then we get fired up," he said.

"Our main problem is getting fired up for every game," echoed Williams. "We got pumped up for Estacado because they embarrassed us last year. We didn't get fired up for Lake View. We beat them last year and we knew could beat them this year, and we almost didn't. We just have to get fired up for everybody," said Williams.

MATT BURROW

While the duo has to make sure their teammates stay in the right frame of mind, they are also battling other obstacles. For Burrow, it's learning a new position. For Williams, it's coming back from ligament surgery.

Burrow's move is a good one, considering his future. College scouts have shown interest in him, but have indicated they want to play him at linebacker.

"It's always been a position I've wanted to play," said the 6-2, 200-pounder. "If I'm going to play college ball, that would be the position I would have to play. I may not have the success I had last year at tackle, but I'm getting better every game."

"At tackle I knew exactly where I was going and I was confident. At linebacker you don't know where you're going until you get your read," said Burrow.

But for the first time this season, Burrow will get back to his old offensive ways. Starting this week Burrow will begin sharing time. Last season the 5-9, 160-pound Williams missed the first seven weeks of the regular season after he injured his knee in the Lubbock Dunbar scrimmage. It was a depressing moment in his athletic career.

Now Williams has worked his knee into top condition, although he still doesn't know if he'll ever be as quick as he once was.

"Before I got hurt, I felt I could catch anybody. Now I don't know. I just go all out."

So far Williams' play in the secondary has netted him a league-leading three interceptions. He knows the Steers' secondary will be put to the test all season.

"Every since that Riverside game, I think everybody will test our secondary. They can't run up front so they'll try us. I've got all the confidence in the world in the guys up front. If they want to throw at us that's fine. We need all the balls we can get," he said confidently.

As far as Sweetwater and the rest of the season goes, the senior duo knows what they must do to stay on the winning track.

"Sweetwater and the whole town will be fired up for us. We won't have any problem getting pumped up for them either," said Burrow. "We've got to be more intense on the field. We need to blow people away instead of just winning," said Burrow.

"I agree with Matt," stated Williams. "A lot of that begins with practice. We've got to really practice hard every week. If we do that we'll all come together as one. If we do that we'll repeat as district champions."

They sound like two players who want to stay on the right side of the coin.

Leaders to meet to discuss strike

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Day I of the NFL strike found players and teams alike reluctant at best to follow their leaders. Day II finds the leaders ready to meet again in efforts to cut the walkout short.

And there were increasing indications that a settlement might be near, in part due to Commissioner Pete Rozelle, the "mystery man" alluded to by union head Gene Upshaw when he ordered the players to walk out Tuesday.

The two sides were to meet today midway between their Washington and New York headquarters with Tex Schramm of the Dallas Cowboys and Dan Rooney of the Pittsburgh Steelers joining the negotiating team. Rooney is credited with helping settle the 1982 strike, which lasted 57 days. The main negotiators until now have been Upshaw and Jack Donlan, the executive director of the NFL Management Council.

"We plan to meet around the clock," Upshaw said Tuesday night after arriving at NFLPA headquarters in Washington. "We have a format set up where we have the owners in one room, the players in one room, Jack and I in the middle and we're going to try to hammer this thing out."

Upshaw also indicated there was still a chance for the players to be on the field this weekend in the regularly scheduled games.

Edberg wins easily in first round

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Top-seeded Stefan Edberg easily won his first-round match in the $315,000 Volvo Tennis tournament, while fourth seed Scott Davis was defeated by unseeded Gary Muller.

Pokes' linemen won't strike

IRVING (AP) — Defensive linemen Randy White and Don Smerek told Dallas team officials Tuesday they will cross picket lines set up by their Cowboy teammates.

None of the Cowboys showed up for a scheduled afternoon team meeting, and President Tex Schramm said the club will begin issuing uniforms to 45 free agents who are expected to report. Coach Tom Landry said two-a-day practices would start Wednesday after physicals.

Team spokesman Greg Aiello said White and Smerek will cross the picket lines on Wednesday.

"I'm going back to work on Wednesday," White said during a team meeting. "I don't believe in the strike. I have my family to worry about. I don't know that a strike would help me."

A club official said both White and Smerek also sent letters of resignation to the NFL Players Association.

Quarterback Danny White, an outspoken critic of the 1982 NFL players' strike, said he would honor the picket lines which will be set up outside the Cowboys' Valley Ranch headquarters.

"It's not an easy decision because I'm losing $45,000 a game," Danny White said. "But I support the team. I'm not a supporter of the union or management."

The quarterback admitted he would take it day by day.

"It's a one day at a time deal for me," White said. "If at some point my family becomes more important than the team, then I might come back."

Running back Tony Dorsett stands to lose $28,000 per game missed.

"Nobody wants to strike and we want to get this resolved," Dorsett said. "I feel the strike should have been avoided, (but) I'll be there with a picket sign in my hand."

The Cowboys will be joined on the line by the local chapter of the AFL-CIO.

"We will picket with the Cowboys," said Jim McCasland, secretary-treasurer of the Dallas chapter of the AFL-CIO. "We want to show our support."

Bryan, who caught the nullified 44-yarder. Bryan also had four catches for 73 yards that counted.

In Garden City's 17-14 win over Irion County, Mike Kenyon ran the ball 12 times for 85 yards. Quarterback Codie Scott passed for 115 yards, including a 70-yard TD to Juan Morales. Scott also kicked the game-winning field goal with no time remaining.

Though Stanton lost 19-8 to Greenwood, 145-pound speedster Steve Scurlack ran for 85 yards and a touchdown. Despite losing 40-6 to Post, Colorado City quarterback Ismael Silva completed 12 of 28 passes for 198 yards. Duane Jones caught four of them for 60 yards.

There were plenty of strong defensive performances in the area as well.

Garden City freshman Leo Garcia had two interceptions, including one with seconds remaining that provided the Bearkats with their game-winning field goal opportunity.

Teammate Sergio Rosas, though he left the game with a concussion after the third quarter, had 11 tackles, and his performance at center was graded as the best of the Bearkat linemen.

Coahoma had several strong defensive performances and a lot of assisted tackles. That means gang tackling, and happy coaches.

Rowell had 13 assists and four solos, and pressured the Forsan quarterback with blitzes all night. Roman Pedron had 13 assists and two solos; Anthony Hernandez had 14 assists and one solo; Scott Thomas had 10 assists; and Gordon Daniels had nine assists, one sack and one fumble recovery.

For Sands, Chad Nichols had 17 tackles, including three sacks.

Other notable performances were turned in by Forsan linebacker John Roman, who was in on 17 tackles; and Borden County defenders Shannon Bond and Jimmy Rios, who were in on 14 tackles apiece.

WILD BUNCH ROAMING STANTON — The county seat of Martin County experienced a population boom two months ago with the arrival in the downtown area of a mama, papa and 19 baby wild turkeys. Among the capers staged by the turkeys were their eating of Henry Louder's grapes, some vegetables in Richard Barnes' garden, plus corn after James Mashburn shredded his corn field. Numerous Stanton residents tried to photograph the turkeys for the Herald. Mary Kathryn Bristow got close enough to make one picture that was nearly printable. Stanton Herald Photographer Roy Lee Barnhill has spent at least $40 on film trying to "shoot" the elusive wild birds. We kept telling people in Big Spring, Midland and Odessa, especially camera buffs, about the wild turkeys in Stanton. Many suggested some residents in Stanton were guzzling too many drinks of Wild Turkey, an expensive whisky. They were informed that Martin County was a dry county. Then, miracle of miracles, Roy Lee, with the help of Oliver Boyce, captured the wild family on film.

EMS makes house calls in Stanton

EMS — Emergency Medical Services. It's that vital link between the ill or injured patient out there, and the physician in the hospital emergency department. EMS providers function as the eyes, ears and hands of the physician, where the physician can't be — with the patient, at the emergency, when it happens.

Thousands of times each day across the United States this same scene is played. Response units from sophisticated EMS systems go to airports, bus stations, restaurants, busy street intersections, lonely farm roads, and your home in response to the call for help.

Once there, these highly trained professionals act quickly to stabilize and correct life threatening problems experienced by you, your families and your neighbors. The actions of these EMS professionals have saved an untold number of lives since the birth of modern day EMS in the early 1970's.

EMS has become an inseparable part of the health care community in this country during the last decade. More and more in recent years, the ill or injured patient's first contact with the Medical profession in EMS. Since its inception, EMS has had a profound and positive impact on the long-term survival and quality of life of the American citizen.

Early intervention at the scene of auto accidents, heart attacks, drownings, and other emergencies has resulted in delivery of a living, stable patient to the medical facility. Physicians and allied health professionals have worked together to return that patient to a productive life in the community.

The advent of modern EMS has assured that state of the art professional medical care can be delivered to the patient, when and where the emergency occurs. That prehospital care, and the continuing care in the hospital, has resulted in the return of many thousands of productive lives to the mainstream of society.

The Texas Department of Health is honoring EMS personnel across the state by sponsoring EMS Week, Sept. 20-26.

Almost 37,000 individuals in Texas are certified at four levels of training — Emergency Care Attendant, Emergency Medical Technician, EMT Special Skills, and Paramedic.

These prehospital medical technicians are skilled at various procedures, according to their level of certification, ranging from bandaging and splinting, cardiopulmonary resuscitation, and oxygen administration, through intravenous drug therapy, cardiac defibrillation, and intubation.

EMS services vary in organization across the state. Nearly half of the some 1,100 services are a type of volunteer service — either a free-standing community-organized service that depends on volunteers and donations or an EMS service organized as part of the volunteer fire department.

Some communities benefit from governmental support for the service — either wholly or in part. And in other areas, commercial private firms provide prehospital emergency service.

Half of Texas' population is covered by advanced life support services because the large metropolitan areas of Houston, (See EMS, Page 2)

Stanton students observe Constitution

Stanton Junior High and Senior High Schools observed the Bicentennial of the Constitution with a joint assembly program at the SHS auditorium last Wednesday. Roy Pickett, veteran attorney, was the featured speaker for the observance. Pickett is serving as chairman for the local Constitution Bicentennial Commission. In his address, Pickett stressed the Bill of Rights, and illustrated the importance of these rights.

Pickett said, "The Bible, in particular the Law of Moses, and The Sermon on the Mount, is the only written document I place ahead of the Constitution. Great Britain's Magna Carta would rank along with our Constitution."

The American Legion Color Guard opened the program with the Presentation of the Colors. Pennie Clevenger sang the National Anthem, with the Rev. Dennis Tolfano of the First Baptist Church in Stanton, giving the Invocation.

Mrs. Clevenger, accompanied by Jerry Lewis, led the group in singing "America the Beautiful" and "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Following Pickett's address, Myrl Mitchell lead the Pledge to the Flag, with the Rev. Tommy Ewing, First United Methodist Church in Stanton, giving the Benediction.

Tobacco budworm battle waged

By RICHARD MINZENMAYER
 Extension Agent-Entomology (PM)
 Martin, Midland, & Howard Counties

The tobacco budworm, a serious pest of cotton, has been gaining ground in recent years in developing resistance to pyrethroid insecticides, the newest and best insecticides available. So the Texas Agricultural Extension Service is working hard to devise a battle plan to combat the pest.

No effective replacements for pyrethroid insecticides are now available or can be expected in the next 10 years. Therefore, farmers, entomologists and chemical company representatives have put together a plan aimed at slowing the development and spread of resistant insects and helping farmers to successfully and economically manage these pests.

Entomologists with the Extension Service working with Texas Agricultural Experiment Station scientists have provided growers with a plan aimed at delaying the development and spread of resistant populations of the tobacco budworm. Extension recommendations on planting date, variety selection, soil fertilization, irrigation and crop harvest all focus on speeding up crop maturation to avoid the most damaging and most resistant tobacco budworm populations — those that occur in late summer and early fall.

Extension entomologists are also working with producers on insecticide use. Checking fields regularly and using insecticides only when damaging insect populations are known to be present has long been a recommended practice. Choosing insecticides that are right for the job is becoming increasingly important.

Predatory insects and spiders often can be preserved to help suppress damaging pest populations. Judicious use of insecticides when spraying is needed will inflict minimum damage to these beneficial insects and allow for economical crop production and minimal environmental disruption.

Use of pyrethroids is not recommended for a 45-day period in mid-season. This strategy avoids exposing multiple generations of tobacco budworms to these chemicals, thereby avoiding increased levels of resistance present in their populations. When resistant populations of tobacco budworms are suspected, tank mixes of insecticides from various chemical classes provide the best control and effectively slow resistance development.

A method of monitoring adult moths of the tobacco budworm to determine levels of population resistance has been developed so as to warn farmers when resistant pests are present. This test for tobacco budworm resistance is being used across the state not only for early warning of insecticide resistance, but also to learn more about how resistance develops in these populations.

Right now, the ability of tobacco budworm populations to adapt to insecticides and other management schemes is beginning to give the pests the edge in the battle for who gets the crop. Research, product development and farmer education by entomologists and the agricultural chemical industry plus farmer adherence to certain management strategies are our best means of preventing the tobacco budworm from gaining the upper hand in the cotton field.

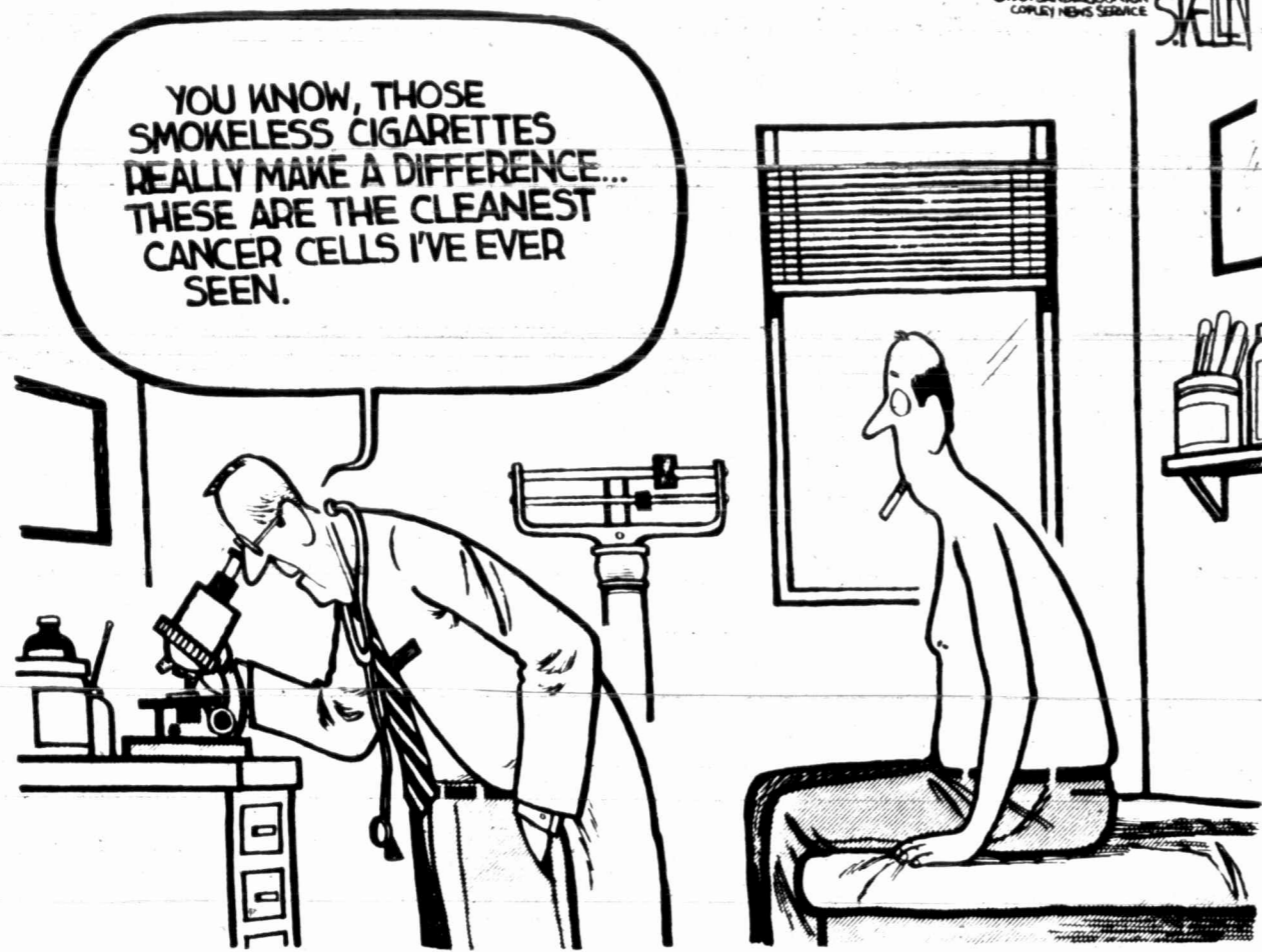

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Jack Benny missed attention

Thoughts while trying to figure out where to borrow enough money to attend the OU-Texas "game." Lose as if you enjoy it; win as if you are used to it.

Women don't live longer than men — they just don't do it as fast.

The hold football has an our land is clearly demonstrated by a controversial song by Buddy Bare. It's called:

"Drop Kick Me, Jesus. Through the Goal Post of Life."

With my luck, the devil would block the kick. Bare overlooked the extra point, and heaven and hell both know we'd need that.

Roy Lee Barnhill, Stanton snapper, asks:

"What's the best reply you've heard an artist give to a critic?"

Max Rerger, a German composer, reportedly wrote a rebuttal to a review. He said:

"I am sitting in the smallest room in my house. I have your review in front of me. Soon it will be behind me."

The trouble with the Presidential race is that there's no consolation prize, except a long trip home.

What they need is a consolation prize, like Miss Congeniality. But as I understand that, some of the congressmen have already grabbed them.

That trvelin' man Kenneth Hart writes:

Over-all Surveyers are on the level

Carpenters on the square Whatever your occupation The I.R.S. is there. Ain't it the truth Kenneth?

I heard from my calculating cousin, Jim Ladd, who sent me one of those "Have a Happy Day" signs which read:

"This is the tomorrow you worried about yesterday."

Under that, some realist had carefully printed:

And Now You Know Why.

In his book, "Jack Benny," Irving A. Fein wrote "Benny loved his fans but occasionally he was unhappy with the excessive attention and the lack of privacy."

Fein said Benny was in Miami where his overzealous admirers wouldn't allow him to relax so he decided to go to Havana.

In Havana The Cuban tourist bureau gave him the best suite at the leading hotel, dinner at a gourmet restaurant and tickets to shows and two leading night clubs.

Fein had a marvelous time, but no one asked Benny for an autograph, no one stopped him on the street and no one recognized him.

The reason was his TV shows didn't reach Havana and nobody recognized Jack from the movies.

After two days, Jack told Fein "Let's get out of here. Nobody knows me and I hate it."

My bashful aunt, Marie Chastain, seized upon a Dallas headline: Student Spanking Sore Spot with Teachers

That reminds me of one of my dad's comments. When he finally got angry enough to put me over his knee for a "spanking" with a razor strap, the spankee, always complained, "That hurt dad!" And dad always replied: "Son, it hurt me more than it did you."

And I never knew that was true until I had to spank my children occasionally.

That working man, Lee Evans, rolls out a few jokes.

Doctor: Have you been living a normal life?

Patient: Yes. Doctor: In that case you'd better cut it out for a while.

Bride: What will I get if I cook like this everyday?

Groom: My insurance.

Mother: Well, Johnny, what did they teach you in school today?

Johnny: Not much, I've got to go back tomorrow.

Abused wife: Some day you're going too far — and I hope you never return.

When I was 40, I was five feet, seven inches tall and I weighed 145 pounds.

Now that I'm in the neighborhood of 60 (well, it's a big neighborhood), I weigh a little more. Oh, all right, I'm fat. So I have gone on a diet.

It's a medically approved diet called "Are you really serious about losing weight?" It starts out "If you are dreading your new dietary program, cheer up. New foods and new knowledge about foods have taken most of the dullness out of dieting.

mother as its leader, and if you don't think she can be a hard case, ask the Argentinians.

So, it's like I said to Bubba, "There's going to be a woman in the Oval Office as sure as you're sitting on the bar stool" — to which Bubba replied: "Oh, yeah? Then tell her to do the windows before she leaves."

I guess Bubba has a right to be bitter. His wife fired him last week down at the plant.

WALT FINLEY

"Gone are the days when the person who wanted to reduce had to be resigned to living on lettuce and cottage cheese."

"Whatever diet your doctor gives you, it's bound to contain many delicious foods."

Well, that was a relief. I thought happily, "I'll bet I can have hot fudge sundaes once in awhile and surely a little potato salad or mashed potatoes and gravy won't hurt."

I started the list of delicious foods. I can have as much fresh watermelon, peaches, strawberries and gooseberries as I want. I also can eat an unlimited amount of cucumbers, dandelion greens, summer squash and cabbage.

As a special treat, I'm allowed a "limited" amount of rutabaga and turnips.

Nowhere is this diet there any provision whatsoever for chocolate-covered peanuts. What's more, the booklet tells me that once I get down to the desired weight, I can never look back.

Gone forever are spaghetti, fried chicken, cake and pie and all the things that make life worthwhile.

The booklet says, "Overweight persons who lose excess weight live longer." As the saying goes, it just seems longer. Ain't that right radio heavyweights?

Pope earns respect

Pope John Paul II has come and gone from Texas, leaving an imprint that will be felt in ways big and small for years to come.

San Antonio was a main stop on the tour for the pope, who is visiting the United States until Saturday. Indeed, it was in San Antonio that he got to celebrate Sunday Mass, along with a throng of 300,000.

Many thought the pope would somewhat temper his usual hard-line stances on the church and marriage, contraception, abortion and the priesthood to ease the dissension within the U.S. Catholic Church. Many U.S. Catholics reject these traditional views.

But instead, he has held fast to his beliefs, a position that one has to admire, even if one doesn't agree. No waffling from this pope.

And the pope's choice of San Antonio and other cities with large numbers of Hispanics underscores not only the importance of Hispanics in the church, but the growing influence on this country as a whole.

Hispanics account for 25 to 30 percent of the Catholic population by church estimates. Latin Americans account for 42 percent of the world total. And the number of Hispanics in this country has grown by 30 percent since 1980 — to 18.8 million — according to the U.S. Census Bureau. The pope's bilingual homily Sunday emphasized Hispanics and their place in the U.S. community.

Says Bork hearings gives lesson

How appropriate that the Senate Judiciary Committee should begin its hearings on the nomination of Judge Robert Bork for the Supreme court this ... 200th anniversary of the Constitution by the state delegations in Philadelphia.

The Bork hearings provide the nation with a dramatic civics lesson about what the Constitution means, and how it has survived all these years as the nation's basic charter.

The composition of the Supreme Court has a lot to do with how well the Constitution serves the people — and what the Constitution is construed to mean. For that reason, the Bork nomination is extremely important.

A strict constructionist of conservative philosophical and ideological bent, Bork could tip the court majority on many vital social issues. The appeals court judge is 60; given reasonably good health, he could serve 20 or more years, and contribute to changing the direction of the American government.

The Bork hearings are, in short, a primer on American government, how it has evolved, and where it may go in the future.

At the end of the exercise, odds are Bork will be confirmed — and that, once confirmed, he will occasionally confound both supporters and critics with subsequent decisions. Meanwhile, the hearings amount to a great debate — or at least, the greatest one going at the moment — on the Constitution and its past, present and future.

Fish to fry, so put off running race

State Treasurer Ann Richards is right: No one has been ordained as the Democratic candidate in the next Texas gubernatorial election. Because Richards is well-qualified and has considerable support, she should be weighing such a race.

Attorney General Jim Mattox is wrong: A Richards candidacy would not be a bad thing for her or for the party. When it comes to qualified candidates, the more the better. The voters should have a choice.

Mattox, of course, is already in the race, whether he has officially announced it or not. From his standpoint, he naturally would prefer to be unopposed. But we are talking about 1990, three years hence.

Richards is also right that the talk about a governor's race is premature. Officeholders priming themselves to run in 1990 have a lot other business that should occupy their energies in the meantime.

Running for governor is becoming akin to running for president: The wearing process threatens to consume the candidates and the electorate long before it is time to vote.

The more the merrier, yes. But there is plenty of time, and other fish to fry.

Fort Worth Star-Telegram

Gives example of tax abatement

If anyone doubts that tax abatement is an effective way for governmental entities to attract new businesses, we refer them to the recent example of the J.C. Penney Co. and the city of Plano.

The J.C. Penney Co. plans to move its headquarters from New York City to Plano, a suburb of Dallas. Although tax abatement was not a condition for Plano to receive his juicy economic plum (4,000 jobs), the city did tell J.C. Penney that it would make a good-faith effort to reduce its taxes. The result was a tax abatement deal that seems to have benefitted both parties.

If the proposal is approved, Penney would receive a 25 percent annual tax break for 15 years ...

Taxing entities in Southeast Texas probably won't be offering any deals of this magnitude, but the principle remains the same. In the highly competitive arena of attracting new businesses, tax abatement can be a powerful marketing advantage for cities, counties and school districts...

For record, paper protests habit

Just for the record, let it be noted that Congress has not passed one — not one — of the 13 annual spending bills due to be acted on by Oct. 1.

This is not all that unusual. Congress has fallen into the habit of passing a catchall continuing resolution to cover spending and a last-minute bill to cover increased borrowing.

Still, the failure of Congress to address this nation's budget problems has to be protested, just as crime and sin have to be protested, not tolerated.

Just for the record, we protest.

Speaking of women for president

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

Some of the guys were talking politics over a few beers the other night and I brought up the fact that I believe we will, one day, have a woman president.

They got in the Kiwanis Club, didn't they?

There was a lot of comment. Earl said, "Long as they stay off the golf course, women can do whatever they please."

Harold asked, "What would we call her husband, First Man?"

Bubba belched and said, "Gimme another beer, Leon. This fool is crazy to be talkin' about something like that."

As I said to Bubba, "No, I ain't, either."

It's coming. As sure as Gloria

Steinem is a Democrat, we're going to have a woman president, and I don't think it will be that far into the future.

We've already got women mayors, women governors, and I got my gas pumped by a woman at a service station the other day.

Her name was Mildred and it was written right there on her shirt, and she asked, "Check under the hood?" — the same as any man would.

Look at other countries who have or once did have women in the top spot. There was Indira Gandhi of India and Golda Meir of Israel, who gave the Arabs all the hell they could take, and then there's Margaret Thatcher of England.

Our own mother country has a mother as its leader, and if you don't think she can be a hard case, ask the Argentinians.

So, it's like I said to Bubba, "There's going to be a woman in the Oval Office as sure as you're sitting on the bar stool" — to which Bubba replied: "Oh, yeah? Then tell her to do the windows before she leaves."

I guess Bubba has a right to be bitter. His wife fired him last week down at the plant.

BE SURE YOUR CHILDREN'S VOCABULARY INCLUDES THE WORD "NO"

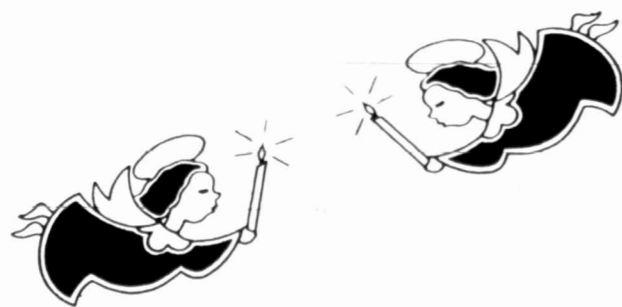

It's time to send your children off to school again, to prepare them for the world they must one day confront. The school will do a good job of this, but your cooperation is also needed in order to make sure that they don't learn the wrong things. As everyone knows, we are living in an era where drug abuse is rampant, and the children are being lured into this trap at a shockingly early age. Don't fail to warn them about this, as a part of their preparation for the new school year, for it can be vastly more important than their clothes or books. Moreover, you can reinforce your efforts by enrolling them in the Sunday school at your House of Worship. With all this, you can rest assured that the vocabulary your children develop in school will include the proper use of the word "NO", as the password to a happier, healthier and longer life.

Grady sophs end streak

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

LENORAH — As Grady head coach Mike Mathis said, it was a long time coming.

His Wildcats combined a speedy offense with an opportunistic defense to pummel the Highland Hornets, 64-35. In doing so, they snapped a 13-game losing streak dating back to 1985.

In a contest between Grady speed and Highland size, it was the Wildcats' quickness that made the difference Friday night. They struck early and often in the game, amassing 28 first-quarter points en route to victory.

Grady wasted no time in getting untracked, scoring before several of the fans had settled into their seats.

After receiving the opening kick off, Highland was held on downs and forced to punt. Wildcat sophomore Julian Valle took the line-drive kick and promptly scampered along the left sideline for 47-yard touchdown run.

After the two-point conversion, Grady led 8-0 with 8:04 left in the opening quarter — but the 'Cats weren't finished by a long shot.

Once again the Hornets were forced to punt, and once again the victory-starved Wildcats wasted little time in scoring.

The highlight of the three play, 55-yard drive was a pass from Scott Glaze to Baldomar Cortez that brought Grady to the Highland one-yard line. Clay Black did the scoring honors on the next play, led 14-0.

Things went from bad to worse for Highland on its next drive when the Hornet quarterback fumbled, giving the Wildcats the ball on Highland's 20. On the next play, Scott Terrell took a pitch out from Glaze and scooted into the end zone to give Grady a 20-0 lead at the close of the first quarter.

Highland received the kickoff and a little bit of luck when a Glaze interception of a Jimmy Johns' pass was nullified by an off-sides call. Heartened by this piece of good fortune, the Hornets mounted their first sustained drive of the evening.

The Hornets' luck soured deep in Grady territory, however, as the Wildcat defense stiffened and stopped Highland on downs — (See GRADY, Page 8)

Last minute field goal fires Bearkats to win

MERTZON — Garden City kicker Codie Scott was perfect Friday night, and it was his last kick that handed the Garden City Bearkats a 17-14 District 6-A opening win over the Irion County Hornets.

Scott, the son of Garden City coach Sam Scott, booted a 30-yard field goal with two seconds left in the game. A late-hit penalty by Irion County set up Garden City's winning field goal. Irion County threw a pass interception on the last play of the game as time ran out.

With Irion County leading 6-0, Garden City took the lead when Scott threw a 67-yard scoring pass to Juan Morales. Scott's extra point gave the Bearkats a 7-6 lead. Garden City pushed the lead to 14-6 when Mike Kenyon scored on a 12-yard run in the third period. But Irion County tied the game in the final quarter on a pass play. The two-point run tied the score at 14-14, setting the stage for Scott's last-second heroics.

Kenyon led Garden City in rushing with 65 yards in 18 carries. Weldon Hillger finished with 35 yards in five attempts. Morales caught three passes for 95 yards.

The Bearkats, now 2-1 for the season, will host Robert Lee Friday at 8 p.m.

Stanton JVs pop Greenwood, 34-7

By REGINA NEWKIRK

Thursday night the Stanton JV hosted Greenwood. Stanton walked away with a victory with a score of 34 to 7. In the first quarter, the score was Stanton 6 to Greenwood's 7. Our first points were made by Randy Nevarez, a two yard plunge.

With Stanton holding Greenwood to their 7 points, George Reyna had a five yard run for the second touchdown to make it 12 to 7.

Then Ronnie McCauley got an 8 yard run for a score of 18 to 7, and George Reyna came up with a 2 yard conversion to make the half time score of Stanton 20 and Greenwood 7.

In the third quarter Gary Don

Thompson made a 15 yd. run which was the longest run of the night, to make the score 26 to 7. With help from Kevin Anderson's 2 point conversion the Buffalo third quarter end Stanton 28 to Greenwood's 7. In the fourth quarter Randy Nevarez finished the game with a one yard run. That ended the game Stanton 34 to Greenwood's 7.

During the game Stanton walked away with 4 interceptions and one fumble recovery. Two of the interceptions were by Allen Carby, one by Kevin Anderson, and the last was by Kelly Inman. The fumble recovery was made by George Reyna. Next week they will play Coahoma here.

Cougars nudge Bulldogs

IRA — The Klondike Cougars roared to their second win in three tries as they dumped the Ira Bulldogs 28-20 in non-district six-man football action Friday night.

The equally-balanced Klondike offense was paced by the rushing of Clint Kirkland and Steve Cope, and the passing combinations of quarterback Kirt Tidwell to receivers Jason Sutton and Wesley O'Brien.

Kirkland led the Klondike rushing attack with 79 yards on 13 carries and Cope followed with 75 yards on 17 carries.

Tidwell completed 17 of 27 passes for 176 yards and three TD's.

Klondike scored first in the second quarter on an eight yard run by Cope. Tidwell added the two-point kick. The Cougars added two more scores in the third period as Tidwell hooked up with Sutton for TD plays of six and 18 yards. Tidwell connected on one two-point kick during the scores.

The final Klondike TD was a six-yard scoring pass from Tidwell to Kirkland.

Sutton was the leading Klondike receiver, catching five passes for 68 yards. O'Brien caught five passes for 53 yards.

Chamber Chatter

By GERRY YARDLEY
Does being on a college campus make one feel like a student again? NOT ON Your Life! We had to park way over here and walk to the dorm to meet my daughter-student; then walk across a soccer field covered with wet grass to meet a son-student; stand and watch part of a tag-football game. Then walk back to car and go "shopping"; and my idea of shopping is different from most everyone I know. Like, know what you want, know where it is, go get it and then go home and prop up your feet. But the daughter comes home this weekend so things will go more my way.

Speaking of this coming weekend are you aware that it is SHS Homecoming?? Lots of EX's are going to be here and I certainly hope they all attend the Buffalo football game Friday night against Plains.
We have talked with two or three parents of college students and hope we can get a complete listing of where ex-SHS students are going to college and publish it in next week's Herald.
If you want to call in and give us anyone's name we might forget please feel free to call 756-3386 so we'll be sure and get as many as possible.

Now be sure and go to the game and vote for the Coming-Home Queen. And by all means go early — between 5:00 and 7:00 p.m. to the SHS cafeteria and eat a delicious supper prepared by the Courtney-Stanton Ex-Student Association.
You will help out that group of people and you'll be sure to be at the game on time.
SEE YOU AT HOMECOMING NEXT FRIDAY NIGHT!!

Grady

and once again Grady kicked its scoring machine into operation.
The 60-yard drive's climax came when Valle out-wrestled a Highland defender for Glaze's pass and trotted into the end zone for a 41-yard scoring play. After the conversion made the score 28-0, it was beginning to seem like the Wildcats would halt the losing streak in a big way.
It was a balanced attack that brought victory to Grady Friday, as the Wildcats amassed 375 yards of offense — almost evenly divided between running and passing.
Black led the Wildcat rushing attack, gaining 72 yards on six carries. Glaze was particularly effective passing, completing seven of 19 passes for 178 yards and four touchdowns. His statistics would have been even better if several passes hadn't been dropped by receivers.
The Hornets threatened to make a game of it in the second quarter as they struck for two quick touchdowns, trimming Grady's lead in half, 28-14.
The 'Cats responded with two touchdowns of their own, however, to take a 42-14 lead into the dressing room at halftime.
Grady back Danny Valle highlighted a three-play, 47-yard scoring drive with a 27-yard scamper through the Hornet defense. On the next play, Glaze connected with Terrell for the touchdown, boosting the Wildcats' lead to 36-14.
Mistakes plagued Highland on the ensuing kickoff, as a Grady defender pounced on a Justin Hester fumble. On the next play, Glaze spotted Black deep and connected for a 39-yard touchdown pass to end the scoring for the half.
The two teams traded touchdowns in the second half, scoring three apiece.
Grady highlights included two touchdowns by Ferrell — one on a 45-yard pass from Glaze, and the other on a 47-yard run immediately after a Hornet score. Black ended the Wildcat scoring with a 56-yard scamper to make the score 64-27.
Highland scored a meaningless touchdown in the last half-minute of the fourth quarter, and Grady had secured its first victory in 13 tries.
You'd have thought they won the Super Bowl.
Since it is illegal to have alcoholic beverages in high school dressing rooms, the 'Cats had to drench their coach with water bottles. Afterward, a thoroughly soaked Mike Mathis praised the group effort of his "worms" — his sometime-affectionate nickname for the team.
"This has been a long time coming," he said. "The kids played super both offensively and defensively."
"We just wanted it more," Mathis replied when asked for the major reason his team won. "The kids played real well the last two games, but they've been out-weighted. This time, they made the plays they had to."

Mathis refused to praise individual performances, concentrating instead on the Wildcats' team effort.
"The defense played well all night. Last year, we had a good of defense but no defense," he noted. "We got good quickness and effort from all the kids tonight."
With many more efforts like the one Friday, Mathis may have several more wet evenings — and the Wildcats more wins.

Depot news

By RAMSEY ABBOTT
Thursday evening, September 24th is a welcome back party for our new director Wanda Oglesby. Seniors and community members, alike, are invited to join the festivities and get acquainted with Wanda.

Last week, the band traveled to Midland and played for a combined dinner meeting of all the women's study clubs in that city. The ladies were lovely and appreciative and it was a delightful occasion. Everyone got into the spirit. The band played, the women clapped and sang and the mistress of ceremonies told the band it was the best entertainment of the year.

Our band is getting quite a name for itself and has a back log of requests from different organizations and groups to perform. Thanks to the nice people at the Co-op for the invitation to their annual luncheon. The good food and fellowship was enjoyed by everyone.

Charlene Jones and children of Odessa were in town to visit her mother, Lillian Bevers.

Russell Oglesby and son, William are visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Oglesby. Russell is in the Air Force, stationed at Alamogordo.

Ola Mae Maxwell visited relatives in Lubbock.

Alva Presley spent a few days with children and grandchildren in Midland. The occasion was a family get together and birthday celebration.

Mrs. Goldie Mayberry and Ramsey Abbott drove to Midland for a nice visit with their nephew and cousin, Roy Roberts and wife Betty.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Douglas and Mr. and Mrs. Willis Oglesby attended the Cap Rock Electric's meeting at the Holiday Inn Convention Center in Midland. There was a huge crowd and they described it as a fun time and exciting event.

The Depot band is in need of another instrument. If you have an old fashioned metal rubboard, you would like to donate or know where one can be obtained, please let us know.

On the third Wednesday of each month, Bessie Estrada, from the Health Center, comes over to check blood pressure. This is part of an ongoing health and fitness program at the Depot.

High blood pressure is a major cause of stroke, heart failure and kidney failure. It is a silent health problem because people can feel well and be unaware that they have it.

Blood pressure checks on a regular basis should be a part of every Senior's routine health care and all Seniors are strongly urged to take advantage of this program.

A new quilt is in the frames. Mattie Lauder donated a top to the Martin County Fair Committee and the Quilting Bees are quilting it. The quilt is to be the prize for a drawing and will be on display at the Fair.

Oct. 1st will be the out reach supper. We will have special entertainment and a special meat dish will be provided by the Depot.

This is our big party of the season and you will not want to miss it. So mark your calendar.

Sign up today to receive the Home Economics Newsletter. The letter features the latest information on nutrition, family relations, clothing, housing, and economics. This month's newsletter features statistics on the Child Day Care Crisis in Texas. The letter has not been sent out this past year because of Extension postage cuts. However, we have requested additional funding and feel sure we will be able to send out at least 6 issues this coming year.

We would like all Martin County families to receive this letter. To receive the letter all you need to do is call the County Extension Office (756-3316) and ask to be put on the mailing list. There are no charges for receiving the newsletter. The newsletter also has a list of upcoming Extension educational programs for each month.

4-H TRASH PICK-UP:
Martin County 4-H'ers will be picking up trash Saturday, Sept. 26 on Highway 137. We will meet at the south end of our 2 mile stretch at 10:00 a.m. A safety meeting will be conducted at that time. Parents are urged to help 4-H'ers with this project. Wear work gloves, closed-toed shoes, and other appropriate clothing. Safety vest will be furnished for your protection.

EXTENSION HOMEMAKERS:

Martin County Extension Homemakers hosted a recruitment event Tuesday at Cap Rock Auditorium. Forty-three women from across the county attended. Katie Hughes set up refreshments; Tere Garlington greeted people at the registration table. Mary Kathryn Bristow and Marsha Todd did an excellent job of explaining how to piece a log cabin quilt on the sewing machine. The technique is great for our fast paced society. Quilts are comforting. They add coziness and warmth to our surroundings. They usually bring up comforting thoughts that add peace to our hurried day.

Invitations to join the 6 Extension Homemaker Clubs in Martin County were extended to each person who attended. If you missed the recruitment event, you are still welcome to join an E.H. Club. Lunch 'n Learn meets the 2nd Wednesday of each month at Louisa's Restaurant. Career Girl meets the 2nd Thursday at 7:00 p.m.; Grady meets the 2nd and 4th Thursday at 2:00 p.m.; Koffee Kup meets the 2nd Tuesday at 9:30 a.m.; Lakeview meets the 1st and 3rd Thursday at 2:00 p.m.; and Stanton Club meets the 1st Tuesday at 10:00 a.m. You are welcome to visit or join any of these clubs. For locations of meetings call the County Extension Office. Dues are optional. Extension Homemaker Clubs are dedicated to improving family life. We need you to make our organization stronger.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

The next regular meeting will be Oct. 20, at 3 p.m. at the museum. Anyone interested in volunteering some time at the museum or Old Jail is cordially invited to attend these meetings.

Manuel Rodriguez wins $25

Pickers pick few

Manuel Rodriguez of Stanton won first place in the Stanton Herald Football Contest this week. He won $25.

He missed one game, but only missed the point spread guess by one. Texas Tech trounced Lamar, 43-14.

Carol Smith of Stanton, missed three games, but her tie-breaker guess totaled 49 points. Carol collected $17.50 the first week of the contest when she split first place money with Steve Stallings. Her second place finish is good for $15.

Rex Duke, that circulatory man, captured third place and $10. His point spread totaled 45, with three wrong.

Seven persons missed three games. The tie-breaker total provided the winning margin.

Twelve people missed four games.

The real oddity of the contest — no one missed two games.

A total of 82 entries were received at the Herald office in the third week's contest.

Winners will be announced in each week's edition of the Stanton Herald.

To enter all a person has to do is to mark your game selections on an entry blank published weekly in the Stanton Herald, print your name and address, then deposit the entry at the Stanton Herald, 203 N. St. Peter Street, by noon Friday. No Xerox entries, please.

Steers dodge scare to nudge fiesty Chiefs 28-26

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

It wasn't the most impressive win in the world, but the Big Spring Steers will take it anyway. Friday night at Memorial Stadium the Steers escaped with a 28-26 win over the San Angelo Lake View Chiefs — but not before the Steers had to fight off two Lake View scoring chances in the waning moments, and take a safety to run out the clock.

As far as the spectators were concerned, they got their money's worth. Both teams combined big plays and miscues to turn the game into a cliff-hanger.

"We played well from the standpoint that we made some big plays offensively," said Steers' coach Quinn Eudy, about his offensive unit that accounted for 366 total

Big Spring Steers' receiver Tony Lewis goes down after a hard hit in first quarter action of the Big Spring Steers' 28-26 win over San Angelo Lake View Friday night. The play was ruled an incomplete pass.

Lake View scored the only TD of the third quarter, following a 40-yard return of an interception by Silva, who was Lake View's defensive star. With his sure tackling he prevented numerous possible Big Spring long gainers from his cornerback position.

On the offensive end, Silva capped a 25-yard scoring drive by catching a 10-yard pass from Dumas. The kick gave the Chiefs a 24-14 lead, setting the stage for an erratic final 12 minutes of football.

Big Spring scored early to start the fourth quarter. It was Shellman's show. He started the 50-yard drive with an eight-yard run and ended it with a 42-yard dash. Molina's kick cut the lead to 24-21 with 11:15 remaining in the contest.

On the following Big Spring possession the Steers marched 59 yards in four plays. This time Jones was the key. After running for 12 yards, Jones took a pitch from Shellman and ran 28 yards for the winning score with 8:39 remaining.

From then on it was "turnover city" for both teams. Big Spring fumbled twice and Lake View had two passes intercepted.

Shellman had the wind knocked out of him and reserve quarterback Craig Knocke came in and ran the clock down for Big Spring in the final minute. Facing a fourth down and five from their own six with six seconds remaining, Steers' wide receiver Buddy Everett took the snap in punt formation and ran the clock out, taking a safety and preserving a Steers win.

"Craig Knocke and Buddy Everett came in and did good jobs," said Eudy. "Each had specific instructions and they carried them out. My coaches on the sidelines and in the press box did a good job by telling me to take the safety," said Eudy.

The Steers, now 2-1 for the season and 1-0 in district play, will travel to Sweetwater Friday to take on the Sweetwater Mustangs.

Fiddlers among fair highlights

Among the highlights of the Howard County Fair in Big Spring will be the fiddlers' contest. The co-chairman, Maxwell Green and Pete Jenkins, encourage all area and regional fiddlers to attend and participate.

The contest will begin at 4 p.m. on Friday in the entertainment tent at the Howard County fairgrounds. Don Tolle, a professional musician and fiddler, is chairman of the judging.

There will be two divisions — one for fiddlers 45 years of age and older, and one for fiddlers through 44 years of age. Prizes for each division will be $125 for first, $95 for second, $45 for third, $30 for fourth, and $15 for fifth.

$2,000 given to informants of area crimes

The local Crimestoppers organization Friday awarded two $1,000 rewards to confidential informants, including one for information that led to an arson indictment for the Moffat Carpet and Furniture fire.

LeRoy Tillery, executive vice president of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, reported the information.

The other $1,000 reward went to a Big Spring informant who provided information that led to the arrest in Austin of a man wanted on suspicion of engaging in organized crime, he said.

Ronald Lean Grissam, formerly of Big Spring, was wanted by the San Antonio Department of Public Safety Narcotics office.

Crimestoppers also paid three $200 rewards, Tillery said. One reward was given for information that led to the recovery of six rifles taken in a May 29 residential burglary.

The other $200 rewards were given to two informants who gave information that led to the arrests and indictments in the June 30 burglary of Farmers Co-op Gin.

yards. "Defensively we made the big plays when we had to. Offensively and defensively we didn't play as well as I expected. We have a lot of little things to correct," said Eudy.

When the Steers' offense did move the ball, it looked great. Big Spring got a balanced rushing attack from quarterback Shawn Shellman and running backs Charles White and Bruce Jones.

For the third straight week White led the Steers in rushing, gaining 134 yards on 18 carries. It was his second consecutive 100-yard performance.

Shellman wasn't far behind, gaining 125 yards on 11 carries. Jones added 72 yards on 14 attempts.

The Steers' defense, which has been vulnerable against the pass in the first two games, again had problems defending against the passing efforts of Lake View quarterback Eric Dumas. Dumas scorched the Steers for 172 yards in the air.

"We didn't pressure the quarterback enough," said Eudy. "We can't let the quarterback run around and expect our defensive backs to cover the receivers all day.

"But I have to give credit to their quarterback. He's a great athlete. He got out of a lot of heavy pressure on his own."

Big Spring did sack Dumas three times. Tackle Kyle Carroll got two sacks and Steve Raines added another.

The Big Spring secondary did manage to pick off four Dumas passes. Safety Danny Williams intercepted twice and Shellman and Byron McElreath stole one each. Williams' last theft and Shellman's pickoff came in the waning moments of the game to preserve the win.

The thefts capped off a wild three-minute span in which six turnovers were made.

The Steers' run defense was at its best though. It limited a Lake View offense that rushed for 397 yards last week to just 38 yards on the ground. Leading the defensive charge was noseguard Burr Settles, tackles Raines and Carroll, and linebackers Kenneth Banks and Matt Burrow.

Lake View struck first in the opening quarter when a bad snap went through Big Spring punter Johnny Landers' legs. Lake View recovered at the Big Spring nine yard-line. But the Steer defense held and the Chiefs had to settle for a 22-yard field goal by Todd Nemnich.

Late in the quarter Big Spring came back when White broke 66 yards for a score. White burst up the middle, broke two tackles, and outran everybody down the sidelines. Teddy Molina's extra point gave Big Spring a 7-3 lead with 1:34 left in the quarter.

Lake View regained the lead when Dumas capped a 56-yard drive by tossing a six-yard scoring pass to Hector Silva. Lake View padded its lead to 17-7 with a four play, 51-yard drive. The big play was a tipped pass by Steers' defensive end Robert Perez that fell into Eddie Gonzales' hands. The play covered 44 yards. Lake View scored on a two-yard run by Gonzales.

Big Spring brought the halftime score to 17-14 with an eight play, 90-yard drive of its own. Shellman keyed the drive, rushing for 21 yards and then scoring on a 30-yard run.

Fair's Country Store opens second season

Herald staff report
For the second year the Howard County Fair will feature a Country Store.

"To me, a county fair is homemade country items," said Helen Larson, chairman of the Country Store. It "brings back old memories," said Larson.

"We sell all kinds of arts and crafts, stuffed toys, quilts, candies, baked goods, ceramics, dolls and produce," said Larson.

The Country Store will be located in the county fair barns across from the Dora Roberts Barn, said Larson.

The Country Store will sell the Fair Cookbook featuring recipes from first and second place winning recipes, said Larson.

Exhibitors price their own merchandise.

"People need to think about how they price things, so they'll be able to sell their items. Some of the items were over priced last year," said Rhodes.

Proceeds from the store are divided between the participants and the Howard County Fair Association. Exhibitors will receive 80 percent of the price, with the remainder going to the Association.

"The Country Store made the fair a lot of money last year," said Zula Rhodes, superintendent of the ladies division.

"We cleared $370 last year — even after expenses," said Rhodes. "I was real happy with the turnout last year," said Larson.

"We had to close two nights last year because of electrical failure. We would have done even better if we had been open every night," said Larson. "I usually make baby quilts and wreaths," said Larson.

"It's an ego booster for some of these people," said Rhodes, adding that "We give people who make crafts a place to sell them."

For information about the Country Store, call Zula Rhodes, 398-5531 or Helen Larson, 263-3920.

The Coahoma "kick line" added their own flavor to Friday night West Texas football activity Friday night just before second half action between their Bulldogs and the Forsan Buffaloes.

Fair named to judicial committee

Municipal Judge Gwen Fair has been appointed to the Texas Municipal Judges Committee on the Code of Judicial Conduct.

The eight-member committee was scheduled to meet in Austin Saturday to study new laws in the code and recommend changes, she said.

The code is a set of rules by which judges operate, and will apply to state judges, justices of the peace and Constitutional County Courts, she said.

Fair said the committee is to make its recommendations to the state Supreme Court by Oct. 1.

Patterson wins song contest

Linda Kay Patterson, 205 Gunther St., a math instructor at Howard College, has won the 11th annual songwriting contest sponsored by Kentucky Fried Chicken and KBYG radio station, said Bob Taylor, sales manager at the radio station.

Patterson, who moved to Big Spring this past summer from Garland, won with a song titled "There's No Lonely." The song has been broadcast on KBYG, Taylor said.

Her prize was a radio/cassette stereo, he said.

Patterson's song goes next to the national contest in Nashville Oct. 1. The top two national winners will have their songs recorded by country singer Eddie Rabbit and released nationally, Taylor said.

Other songs entered in the national contest will be exposed to recording artists and publishers,

LINDA KAY PATTERSON

he said. National winners will be notified by Nov. 16, he said.

Case new Country Club manager

Bill Case is the new manager at the Big Spring Country Club. He replaces John Dabbs, who transferred to a country club in Salisbury, N.C.

Case, who has been in the position about a week, managed Vista Hills Country Club in El Paso the past three years, and previously managed Pacacho Hills Country Club in Las Cruces, N.M., four years. He has been in club management about 30 years, he said.

Case said he intends to stimulate Big Spring Country Club member participation through activities, and "put Big Spring back on the map."

He is a member of Optimist International. Case has a wife, Ann, and two daughters, Brenda and Candice, both of El Paso.

BUSINESS & INDUSTRY REVIEW

JOB OUTLOOK — In spite of a slower economy, there are still positions available locally, says Ruby Taroni of Big Spring Employment Agency. Employers depend on Ruby to send qualified applicants to them for interviews.

Employment Agency helps job hunters

Newcomers to Big Spring — both business firms and individuals — benefit from the 25 years of experience in the local market that Ruby Taroni brings to her job as personnel counselor at Big Spring Employment Agency.

Ruby is the owner of Big Spring's first and only private employment agency. She joined the firm in February, 1962, only a few months after it opened and rose to proprietorship about two years ago.

Over the years Ruby has developed many contacts at Big Spring business firms, and has her finger on current openings in temporary, parttime and fulltime positions for secretaries, bookkeepers, clerks, all types of sales, general office, technical workers and executives. In spite of the slow economy, new positions continue to open, Ruby said, and job seekers drop by her office regularly in search of work.

Ruby's personal knowledge of local companies is of great help in placing applicants — bringing together qualified applicants with compatible companies.

When new employers come into town, Big Spring Employment is the first place they call, in an effort to get a handle on the local manpower market. That's why it's helpful to job applicants to keep in touch with Ruby.

For office positions, Big Spring Employment qualifies applicants through tests for typing, shorthand and a battery of other tests. Frequently a newcomer to Big Spring in a specialty field can be guided by Ruby to the right employer. She can simply make a few telephone calls and set up an interview for the applicant, saving a great deal of time and misspent effort.

The atmosphere at Big Spring Employment is professional, but relaxed and friendly. Counseling the job seeker is an important part of the service.

Many highly-qualified job applicants prefer to use the services of a private employment agency, thus protecting their own identity. All services at Big Spring Employment are handled on a confidential basis.

For unrivaled knowledge of the local job market, call Ruby at 267-2535 or drop by her office in Coronado Plaza at 2600 Gregg.

Water is their business

Tex-Pure Drinking Water Systems, 1719 Gregg, is somewhat like a department store for water services and products.

The store's major product is water — reverse osmosis water — for drinking and food preparation. And of course, ice made from the water they produce.

They'll fill your containers, or you can buy bottles there.

Bagged ice in 10- and 20-pound sacks is ready-to-go, or they will bag any size from 5 to 50 pounds.

The store provides "curb service" for senior citizens or mothers with infants.

Their newest service is bottled water route deliveries. The firm's own truck will bring water right to the front door of a home or business.

For those who take their water drinking seriously, Tex-Pure leases or sells and installs reverse osmosis systems for the home. These are installed under the kitchen sink, continuously producing clear, good-tasting water, and can be hooked up to ice makers. Under the leasing arrangements, Tex-Pure handles all maintenance.

Heed this tip if you re-use water bottles

Ellouise Swinney reminds customers that when water goes through reverse osmosis, the chlorine is removed. Therefore, if water bottles and other containers are re-used, they should be sterilized periodically with chlorine bleach and a few drops of detergent to prevent growth of bacteria. Keep your bottles scrupulously fresh and sanitary!

available for purchasing or lease in a variety of styles: 1-spigot, tap water, $5 month (lease); 1-spigot, cold water, $10 month; 2-spigot, cold and tap, $11 month; 2-spigot, hot and cold, $12. The tap (room temperature) and hot water systems are convenient for food preparation. Plastic table top dispensers are available, as well as a handy battery-operated pump dispenser for five-gallon bottles.

Tex-Pure Water Systems is home-owned and operated by Ellouise and Don Swinney.

Tex-Pure submits a sample of its water product each month to the Howard County Health Department for testing at an independent laboratory in Midland, according to the Swinneys.

Bottled water for route deliveries is sealed in sterilized containers.

The Swinneys installed reverse osmosis systems for three years prior to opening the full service store on Gregg Street in April of 1985. They opened a store in Lamesa a few months later. Route deliveries, begun about six months ago, are prospering, and they are now hiring route drivers for Lamesa, Snyder and Colorado City.
