Settles owner, bank agree on settlement

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

The owner of the Hotel Settles has agreed to a court settlement with the Dallas bank holding an $800,000 lien on the property, he said Friday afternoon.

The settlement will become official next week when San Antonio developer Gil Cuadra signs the legal documents and M Bank of Dallas in turn releases its lien, Cuadra said.

Cuadra's company, MPG Management Inc., purchased the hotel in October 1984 for $20,000. The hotel property is valued at $284,000 on the 1984 tax roll.

The settlement in the civil lawsuit, filed Jan. 28 by Cuadra in 118th District Court in Howard County against M Bank, removes the major obstacle to Cuadra's efforts to renovate the hotel, he said.

Cuadra would not disclose the exact amount of the cash settlement, and would not comment on whether the amount of the settlement was less than the original offer to sell the lien for $40,000 made by bank vice president Randy Garcia.

"We are going to accept the proposal the bank made to us," he said. "We'll make an announcement next week, when we will have purchased the lien, if there is a lien."

Cuadra said he would sign the documents after his attorney examined them.

Cuadra's lawsuit claimed the bank actually did not have a lien on the property because the original lien to William Wortley and Harry Hawn was released Aug. 6, 1980.

According to Cuadra, Howard County records show no new lien, only a transfer of the deed of trust. One of the main pieces of evidence in the lawsuit is a letter dated Sept. 23, 1983, and written by Garcia in response to a suit for delinquent taxes on the property.

In that letter, Garcia stated that the bank had no financial interest in the property, a statement that attorney Hubert Johnson later called a "mistake." Johnson is a senior partner in the Dallas law firm of Johnson and Cravens, which is representing M Bank in the case.

According to Johnson, the "mistake" was caused by new account executives who were unfamiliar with the Settles account.

Cuadra, in town Friday, contacted both Howard County Tax Assessor-Collector Dorothy Moore and Don Green, tax collector for the Big Spring Independent School District.

According to Moore and Green, Cuadra has made arrangements to pay current and delinquent taxes on the hotel property within a year. Asked what the arrangements were, Cuadra joked: "My first kid and everything else."

The tax bill for all the taxing entities in Howard County — the Big Spring school district, the county, the city of Big Spring, the Howard County Junior College District — totals $92,000, which will be paid in installments, Cuadra said.

Green said the developer agreed to make payments of $3,000 a month, beginning May 15, to pay off a $35,398 bill that includes current and delinquent taxes.

"That's fantastic. The Settles is one of our largest delinquent accounts," Green said. "I don't know whether it is the largest."

"It's great, not just because he's paying the taxes. It indicates he plans to do something positive with the property, and that's fantastic," Green said.

Moore said Cuadra also would use an installment plan to pay back and current taxes "in excess of $52,000" owed to the city, college district and county. The money

Time for a change

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most Americans will have to spring forward with an hour's less sleep on Sunday, as our clocks perform their annual rite of passage into daylight-saving time.

In all of part of 48 states on Sunday, time will skip from 2 a.m. to 3 a.m., an artificial device designed to delay the arrival of the morning sun, and add that light onto the evening to provide more time for barbecues, yard work and other outdoor activities.

First instituted in World War I, the shift regularly generates controversy and legislation is introduced in Congress, almost every year, to change the practice, generally with little success.

Under the current rules, daylight-saving time extends from the last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in October.

Technically, however, there is no such thing as daylight-saving time, that's just the popular name for the change. Legally, standard time continues all year; it's just advanced an hour in the summer.

Daylight-saving time was instituted in 1918 to save fuel used in lighting in the evening. It was a step to improve the economy of the nation during wartime.

In various forms, it has remained in effect in most states since then, despite complaints of problems caused for farmers, officials trying to draw up transportation and radio and television schedules and parents of school children who would be riding buses in the dark.

However, states have the right to ignore the system if their legislature votes to do so — and that has occurred in Hawaii and Arizona.

In addition, Indiana, which is split between the Eastern and Central time zones, observes the change in only the western part of the state, meaning that clocks in all of Indiana read the same for the warm weather months.

The energy crunch of the early 1970s prompted an extension of daylight time year-round. But this drew sharp criticism from Northern states where children were forced to begin school in the dark. Eventually, the old dates were restored, when the energy saving was found to be negligible.

State prisons are bursting at seams

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

It's filling up and bursting at the seams.

The state's prison population is currently fluctuating around a 95 percent capacity level.

And some inmates could be eligible for early release when the capacity level exceeds 95 percent, according to 1983 legislation.

But state officials say the public need not be alarmed. Those who need to be detained will remain behind bars. And the state's criminal justice process does not need to modify or inhibit its normal flow.

"We're overcrowded, but we're not going to open the floodgates and say 'get out of here,'" said Charles Brown, a public information officer at the Texas Department of Corrections in Huntsville.

Last Tuesday's prison inmate count was 37,975. To reach a 95 percent occupancy rate, the inmate count would have to register at 38,456. The maximum number of prisoners TDC could house is 40,480, Brown said.

Brown said the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles is responsible for early parole of inmates, who earn "good time" through trustee programs.

The prison system is also ready to add new buildings to ease its expanding population, Brown said. The Wynne unit located near Huntsville will provide an additional 300 to 400 beds by mid May, and the Beto I unit in Anderson County will provide an additional 400 beds. Brown said the Beto I unit is scheduled for sometime this summer.

District Parole Officer David Harman of Big Spring said he is aware the prison system is filling up, but he has not been officially notified of a problem.

"I haven't been denied any warrants that I've asked for," Harman said.

The TDC recently released 145 inmates from its prison system

'White oil' rulings may end in tax loss

AUSTIN (AP) — State Comptroller Bob Bullock said Friday preliminary state and federal agency rulings on so-called "white oil" could result in a tax revenue loss of $100 million a year if those rules were applied statewide.

Bullock said, however, "At this time, we are unable to determine with any degree of certainty exactly when such a loss might occur."

He added that he does not anticipate changing his revenue estimate prior to the end of the legislative session May 27 as a result of the white oil issue.

Bullock, in a letter to Gov. Mark White, said his office had prepared an estimate a year ago that Texas could lose approximately $18 million a year if a large-scale shut-down of wells occurred in the Panhandle fields.

Since that time, Bullock said, the staffs of both the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission and the Texas Railroad Commission "have issued preliminary rulings in the case."

In January a FERC administrative judge ruled in favor of the Texas Railroad Commission, which contended that independent drillers were bringing up Dor-chester's natural gas.

On Feb. 1, a Railroad Commission hearing examiner recommended that hydrocarbons that are not liquids in the reservoir should not be counted as crude oil in classifying a well as an oil or gas well.

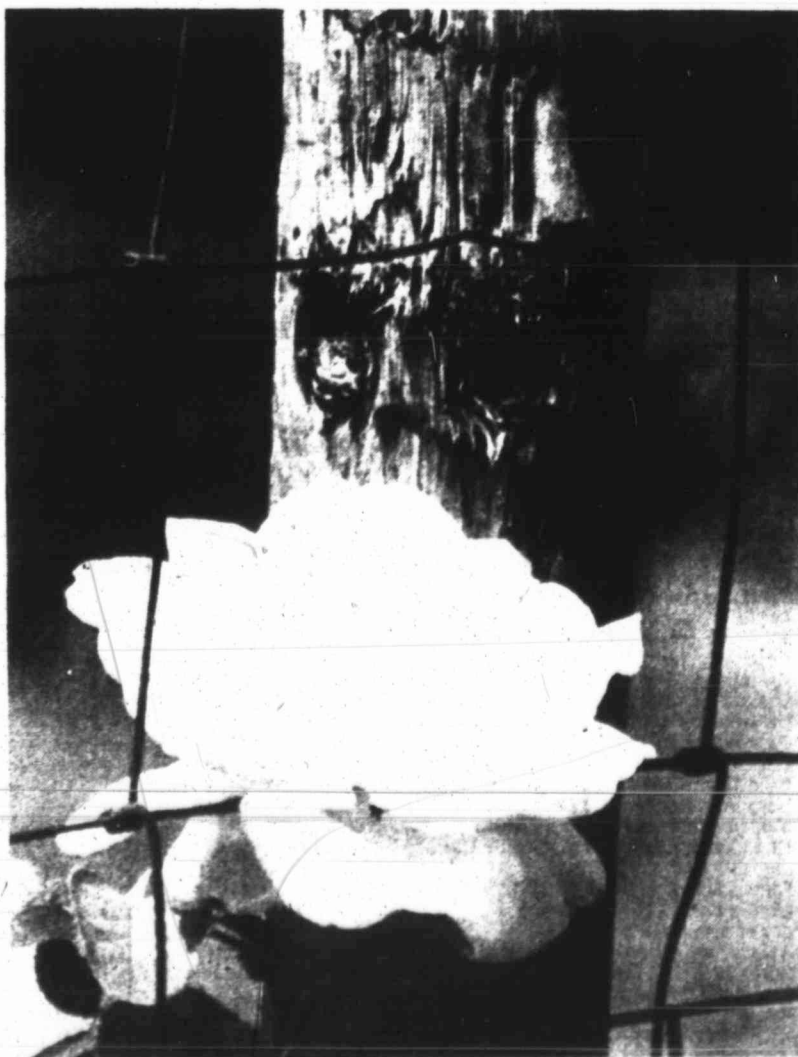

The issue arose when Phillips Petroleum Co. and others complained to the commission that independents were chilling portions of the gas stream and calling it oil.

The examiner noted while gas wells are required to include 640 acres in the Panhandle fields, oil wells may be drilled on units as small as 10 acres. There also are other advantages in having a well classified as an oil well, the examiner said.

The white-oilers say if the commission adopted the examiner's recommendation, they would be put out of business.

"If these rulings were applied broadly to the entire state and not just the Texas Panhandle, we estimate the loss in oil and gas severance taxes could top $100 million a year," Bullock said.

"Due to the unsettled nature of the entire matter, I am not making a change."

Rocket reunion

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. — Their numbers depleted by death and the exile of one man, 22 members of a German rocket team that helped start the U.S. space program gathered Friday to celebrate three anniversaries.

The survivors of the 118-member braintrust were marking the 40th anniversary of their arrival in America, the 35th anniversary of their move to Huntsville and the 25th anniversary since the creation of the Marshall Space Flight Center, where the team dreamed up America's lunar exploits.

All have retired from the space agency now, although some still serve as consultants.

Missile sites mullied

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon disclosed Friday it has selected 46 sites, including two in Texas, for further scrutiny as possible bases for the new Midgetman ballistic missile.

Among sites under consideration is Reese Air Force Base near Lubbock.

The potential sites, culled from a list of more than 4,200 locations, are all located on existing military bases operated by the Defense Department or on government reservations operated by the Department of Energy.

The 46 sites are spread among nine states, all located from Texas to the West with the exception of Florida.

"While decisions on how or where to base the first missiles will not be made until late 1986, after completion of technical, operational and environmental studies, it is essential to begin those studies now in order to comply" with congressional directives, the Pentagon said.

Brock approved

WASHINGTON — The Senate approved by unanimous voice vote Friday the nomination of U.S. Trade Representative William Brock to be secretary of labor.

Brock, 55, replaces former Secretary Raymond Donovan, who resigned March 15 after a New York judge ordered him to stand trial on fraud and larceny charges in connection with his former construction company.

The nomination of Brock, a former House member and senator from Tennessee, had been expected to breeze through the chamber following his unanimous endorsement earlier this week by the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee.

Neo-Nazis released

FORT SMITH, Ark. — Two members of a neo-Nazi group were released on their own recognizance Friday after pleading innocent to federal weapons charges.

James Wallington, 39, and Jefferson Butler, 43, members of The Order, were arrested Monday at the rugged encampment of a white-supremacist survivalist group calling itself the Covenant, the Sword and the Arm of the Lord.

President Reagan and Chun Doo Hwan leave for a meeting as their wives head off for a meeting of their own.

'Need for vigilance'

South Korean president meets with Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said Friday after a meeting with South Korean President Chun Doo-han that recent North Korean deployments close to the Demilitarized Zone "heighten the need for vigilance" against a possible attack.

At the same time, Reagan praised what he called Chun's "creative approach" in seeking to reduce tensions on the peninsula through direct talks with the North Koreans. The two sides soon will hold economic and trade talks and also plan separate discussions on the possibility of reunification of families which were separated during the Korean War.

A senior U.S. official who briefed reporters after Reagan's two-hour meeting with Chun said North Korea appeared to be following a two-track policy by agreeing to bilateral talks on the one hand while increasing its military presence near the DMZ on the other.

With Reagan standing at his side following their meeting at the White House, Chun expressed appreciation for the president's reaffirmation of the U.S. commitment to South Korea's defense.

"I am convinced a firm determination of the United States, in close cooperation with Korea, will resolutely cope with any military adventurism or terrorist attacks by North Korea against the peace of this region," Chun said through a translator.

He said South Korea is making a good-faith effort "through direct dialogue to do something about the antagonism and mutual distrust that have been allowed to accumulate over the years."

"We must ultimately achieve peaceful reunification of the divided land through democratic means," he said.

As the two leaders met, several dozen demonstrators protested Chun's visit beyond the White House gates, accusing him of repressive tactics.

Later, at a news conference, Pharis J. Harvey, head of the North American Coalition for Human Rights in Korea, said the government has tortured student dissidents and forced them to sign false confessions.

John O'Brien, World Student Christian Federation regional secretary, said 100 students were involved in the most recent phase of the alleged crackdown.

But Reagan said "considerable progress" has been made in protecting political liberties under Chun's leadership and he expressed support for the South Korean's commitment to a peaceful transfer of power when his term ends in 1988.

If Chun achieves that objective, it would be the first time that has occurred since South Korea became an independent nation in the late 1940s.

A U.S. official who briefed reporters on Thursday before Chun's arrival here indicated that the North Korean deployments close to the DMZ are a cause for concern but not alarm.

"They have been steadily and consistently taking actions that have the effect of increasing the offensive capability of their forces, such as introducing more tanks and more mechanized units of various kinds, adding artillery and generally deploying forces further forward in fortified positions very close to the DMZ," said the official, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Over time, he said, these actions have had the effect of reducing the warning time of a North Korean attack.

Chun's visit occurred at a time of unusually good relations between the two countries. The Reagan administration was pleased by the relative openness of the South Korean parliamentary elections in February and by the release of most political prisoners.

Gorbachev offers deal

WARSAW, Poland — Mikhail S. Gorbachev used the platform of the Soviet-led military alliance on Friday to offer a deal on deep mutual cuts in nuclear arsenals if the United States abandons its "Star Wars" space-defense project.

The Soviet leader was in Warsaw for a Soviet bloc summit meeting that voted a 20-year renewal of the Warsaw Pact, the alliance formed 30 years ago in response to NATO.

The seven-nation pact would have dissolved next month without the formal renewal.

14 seized in raid

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica — National security officials held 14 people on Friday, including two Americans, who were seized in a pre-dawn raid on what authorities said appeared to be an anti-Sandinista training camp.

Arrested in the swoop near the Nicaraguan border were nine Nicaraguans, two Americans, two Britons and a Frenchman, officials said.

No formal charges were filed following the Wednesday raid, but U.S. Embassy sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said those arrested conceivably could be charged with illegal possession of firearms and violation of Costa Rica's neutrality law.

Johnny Campos, vice minister of public security, said the case goes before the National Security Council on Monday. It has been in the hands of the Organization of Judicial Investigations, Costa Rica's equivalent of the FBI.

Airline hijacked

TAIPEI, Taiwan — An army sergeant who wanted to see his parents in Hong Kong tried to hijack a domestic airliner with 115 people aboard Friday, but members of the crew overpowered him, officials reported.

No injuries were reported in the incident aboard a China Airlines Boeing 737 flying from Taipei to the southern city of Kaohsiung. It carried 107 passengers and a crew of eight, the airline said.

Police said the hijacker — Lei Yao-hwa, 26, a Taiwan resident with a Hong Kong passport — was not carrying grenades, as he had claimed, and the flask of "acid" he brandished was really water.

Election problems

LIMA, Peru — Legislators searched Friday for a way to allow Alan Garcia of the social democratic Aprista party to enter the presidential palace without the runoff election required by the constitution.

The issue went to Congress when Alfonso Barrantes, the Marxist mayor of Lima who was Garcia's closest challenger in the first round of voting on April 14, announced he was withdrawing from a presidential runoff.

Reagan prepares to pressure Nicaraguan government

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan on Friday set in motion a review of political, economic and other measures to put pressure on Nicaragua's leftist government, saying that Congress has compromised the U.S. position in Central America.

The action comes in the wake of congressional rejection of Reagan's request for $14 million in assistance to the Contra rebels fighting the Sandinista government of Nicaragua, the largest country in Central America.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the review would not encompass any plans for use of U.S. troops in the region.

Speakes said Reagan ordered Secretary of State George P. Shultz and National Security Adviser Robert C. McFarlane "to begin a review of the full range of options with regard to U.S. policy toward Nicaragua. Over the next several days, the administration will be reviewing the full array of measures that can be taken to influence the situation in Nicaragua."

"We will not be specific on the options under consideration," he said. "They do include political, economic and other measures."

Speakes said one option could be to seek money from outside groups for the rebels.

As for the possibility of U.S. military action, he said, "I wouldn't raise that scare tactic." Later, asked whether he would say that the options under review excluded use of military force, he replied, "I have said that."

might include economic sanctions, an economic blockade or the breaking of diplomatic relations, Speakes answered, "I wouldn't go into any of the options except to say the full family of measures, which includes political, economic and others."

Speakes said rejection of aid to the Contras by the Democratic-dominated House "in a way has compromised the U.S. position as far as Central America and I think it is now back on the shoulders of the administration to execute its policy there. Without congressional cooperation there, as evidenced by the House vote this week, it is back on our shoulders to take some initiative."

"The goal of the policy review is to influence the behavior of the Nicaraguan government, to influence the situation in Nicaragua, to achieve our policy goals there of a free society where they are ready to have free elections — the immediate goal being an opportunity for the Sandinistas to talk with the people who have problems with the way they are running the government," the presidential spokesman said.

Democratic opponents of aid to the rebels charge that the Contras are guilty of widespread brutality against Nicaraguan citizens. The Sandinistas, meanwhile, deny the U.S. charges that their government is totalitarian and have refused to negotiate directly with the rebels, saying the Contras are merely a creation of the CIA.

Reagan asked to cancel cemetery trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — With 80 senators sponsoring the measure, the Senate Friday asked President Reagan to consider canceling his planned visit to a German military cemetery where 49 members of Adolf Hitler's elite SS are buried.

The Senate, by voice vote, adopted a resolution hailing the reconciliation between the United States and West Germany 40 years after the end of World II and calling on Reagan to reassess his plans to lay a wreath at the Bitburg cemetery.

Instead, the resolution said, Reagan should visit a symbol of German democracy.

The resolution also said Reagan's trip to West Germany was a fitting gesture, and that the U.S. government should honor "the memories of the millions of innocent civilians and hundreds of thousands of American and allied soldiers who suffered and died at the hands of the Nazis."

Reagan has brushed aside any suggestion that he cancel the trip to Bitburg and Chancellor Helmut Kohl of West Germany has praised him for not yielding to pressure from critics of the trip. But Bitburg Mayor Theo Hallett said Friday that the people of Bitburg "find unbearable the gushing forth of abuse and slander on our city and especially on the soldiers lying in the cemetery" and may themselves cancel the visit, scheduled for May 5. The resolution's co-sponsors included Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., the Senate majority leader, who told the chamber "the record is clear that this is not an effort to jump on the president."

"It's an expression of the Senate that we should pay homage to the memories of the millions of civilians and the American and Allied soldiers who suffered and died at the hands of the Nazis.

"We want reconciliation. The German people have been our friends."

In the moments before the vote, senator after senator called on Kohl for action "to take our president off the hook."

Springtime brings pleasures, problems

By DON RICHARDSON
County Extension Agent

It looks like spring is bursting out all over. Wild flowers are blooming, the fishing hand is itching, the IRS is looking over our shoulders and the sand is blowing!! But really, what a nice time of the year spring is.

We've had many calls lately about Arizona Ash trees. They appear to be another casualty of the combined forces of Mother Nature's devastating back-to-back severe winters plus a severe drought. About all we can do is wait until we are sure all the new growth possible has put out and then do a lot of late season pruning and removal of dead wood in the trees. Keep in mind to try to preserve or promote a good natural shape to the trees. Remember also, no topping!!

Shrubbery again took a set-back due to our 1985 winter. Many have called in complaining of constant replacement of shrubs and asking for substitutions. Have you thought about the incorporation of many colorful annuals now available? Some annuals that have been around awhile but have developed newer and improved varieties with more disease and insect resistance include Zenias, Marigolds and Cannas. Even though the season is almost past, you might plan ahead for next year using many of the all time favorites of the "poor-man's orchids," the Iris. They do great in West Texas and now is a good time to observe the many colors and varieties available as they are in full bloom now.

Watch for Spider mites on tomatoes, Marigolds, and other bedding plants. Treat with Kelthane if any are found.

Thrips are hitting roses now. Treat with Diazinon if they are a problem.

Check for Iron Chlorosis on lawn. Iron Sulfate has been proven to be the least costly and equally effective.

Important money matters — insurance, savings, investments, real estate — create lots of paperwork. Once you sign those papers you may forget about them. And then when you need them the most they may be nowhere to be found.

It's just good household management to periodically take inventory of your valuable papers. It will help you locate the papers when they are needed, direct someone else to them in case of emergency and evaluate your financial affairs on a routine basis.

Prepare an inventory of valuable documents on paper or your home computer. Review it at least once a year and update it whenever important changes occur. You might also want to prepare an inventory for an older relative, since you could be the person who needs to locate his or her important papers.

An inventory could include the following categories:

- A family record listing names, birthdates and where the birth is recorded for each family member.
- The name, address and telephone number of persons who should be notified in case of serious emergency.
- The name, address and telephone number of a person to whom you have given power of attorney.
- The names, addresses and telephone numbers of your family advisors. These may include an accountant, banker, broker, financial planner, insurance agent, doctor, clergy and attorney.

• The location of your valuable papers including wills and instructions, personal papers, property papers and real estate papers.

• A list of all financial accounts, including the name and address of the firm, the identification or account number and in whose name the account is carried. This may include accounts with banks, savings and loan associations and credit unions.

• A list of real estate and business interests you own, including mortgages.

Basic information for each property would include the kind of property, location, ownership situation, the date acquired and purchase price.

• A list of your stocks, bonds, securities, mutual funds, property insurance, life insurance and annuities; accident, disability and hospital insurance; and other personal property you own, such as household furnishings and automobiles.

• Information concerning social security, retirement, pension and profit sharing plans. Dates of employment and employers are frequently needed for filling applications and settling estates.

• A list of money owed, and owed to you, size of debt and terms of payment.

Making an inventory of valuable papers is a major task. Once you set up a system, however, updating as changes occur is not as formidable.

A variety of forms and computer software programs for financial inventories are available from commercial outlets. Your county Extension home economics agent has detailed papers to get you started on a financial inventory.

Financial planning aid

By JOHNNIE LOU AVERY

Do you need help with financial planning? On Saturday, May 4, a day-long seminar on personal and family financial planning will be held at the University of Texas Permian Basin in Odessa.

Conducted by CPA Alfred Hill, it will provide unbiased and comprehensive information in six areas: insurance and short-term savings, long-range financial security, tax reduction and inflation erosion, retirement plans, investments and estate planning.

The seminar is planned to help participants develop a strategy to gain financial security. For registration information call 563-2400, ext. 2381, or extension 2342. Class size is limited and married couples are encouraged to attend the seminar together. There is a small cost.

Last Monday, SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf instructor Steve Baldwin joined a small, elite circle of recipients of the prestigious Texas Cultural Annual Award. At the banquet, held at the San Angelo Sheraton, with 200 people in attendance, a slide presentation was shown on Steve's life and cultural contributions.

He was chosen for this award because of his extensive playwriting in the theater for the deaf. Eighteen people from Big Spring attended the dinner to watch Steve receive the accolades and large silver loving cup. Bob Coltrane served as interpreter. It was a special evening.

The banquet was held in conjunction with the annual West Texas Chamber of Commerce meeting. Ralph McLaughlin was elected district vice president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, and new directors include Big Springers Owen Ivie.

You'll be hearing a lot in the days ahead about the Children's Trust Fund. It's a special fund proposed in a bill soon to be voted on in the State Legislature to prevent child abuse and neglect in all areas of Texas. Funding will come from several sources: an increase in marriage license fees, grants and contributions. It will work in conjunction with the Department of Human Resources. Call your legislators Shaw and Montford to express your opinions about the establishment of this fund.

Coahoma Elementary School each year holds a unique career day for fourth through sixth graders. Teacher Virginia Allen headed up this project last week that saw six area business and professional people come in and discuss their career fields. The students are enthusiastic and responsive. A good cooperative effort between education and business.

Malone-Hogan volunteers and staff hosted 670 kindergartners last week in a visit to the hospital. They watched a pretend tonsillectomy. This is the ninth year of this program and nursing director Carmen Phillips said, "Children who have been through this tour and learning program are decidedly less frightened when they have to have hospital services. Dorothy Blackwell, director of volunteers, and Suzie Anderson headed up the host committee. Schools participating were Lakeview, St. Mary's, Golden Rule, Westside, Elbow, Coahoma, Marcy, Jack and Jill, Hillcrest, Lancaster, Big Spring Christian and Kentwood.

Four people from Big Spring Symphony Guild are attending the Texas Association of Symphony Orchestras in Abilene this week. Suzanne Haney, Donna Fields, Lisa Nichols, and Phyllis Graumann are prime movers in the symphony efforts for Big Spring.

LULAC is sponsoring the Cinco De Mayo celebration to be held May 4-5 at Comanche Trail Park. There will be booths, cultural events, sports activities, entertainment and a menu cookoff. The public is invited. Call Pat Deanda for more information at 267-7839.

Finally, one service can connect you with current occupational information, trends and statistics for the entire state. The State Occupational Information Coordinating Committee has just been established for the purpose of providing Texans with a single source of career, occupational and educational information. The toll-free phone is 1-800-822-7538.

The information has been developed by the Texas Employment Commission, Texas Education Agency, Texas Rehabilitation Commission, State Job Training Coordinating Council, Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System and other sources. It will be constantly updated. It will benefit career planners, students, employers, professional data users and job training professionals.

Texas Veterans have access to a special state scholarship college program called the Hazlewood Act. It pays tuition and fees at state colleges. See Howard College or UTPB financial aid officers.

Comptroller asks business leaders about state economy

AUSTIN (AP) — Although pessimism is increasing, business leaders still expect the Texas economy to outperform the U.S. economy over the next six months, a new survey by the state comptroller showed Friday.

The comptroller's index of future business conditions fell 3.1 points in the spring quarter survey, the largest drop ever, continuing a slide that began last summer.

John Moore, spokesman for Comptroller Bob Bullock, said the overall index was at 59.1 in the winter survey, but fell to 56.0 in the spring poll.

Despite that drop, the comptroller's spring quarter survey found that more than half the businesses — 53 percent — expect the state's economy to top the national economy.

The comptroller's office every three months polls major Texas employers to see what top businessmen expect from the economy. Answers are indexed on a scale from zero to 100, with values greater than 50 showing positive expectations about future business conditions.

Companies polled include construction, manufacturing, wholesale, retail, oil and gas firms and utilities. Some are Texas-based while others do business in the state but have headquarters elsewhere. "Retail and construction companies are the most optimistic about Texas," the report said, with 66 percent of retailers and 60 percent of the construction companies saying the state would run ahead of the nation.

But 18 percent of the firms expected Texas to lag behind the nation. Manufacturers were the most pessimistic group, with 33 percent saying the Texas economy will be weaker.

Several business leaders voiced concern about the future of oil prices, the survey said.

Twenty-eight percent of the firms surveyed said they anticipate the state economy to do about the same as the national economy, the survey found.

The survey found that 42 percent of Texas firms plan to hire more people over the next six months, with retailers topping that list. Some 53 percent of Texas retailers expect to hire more.

None of the drilling and mining companies expect to hire new employees in the next six months. Most don't expect layoffs, either, the survey found.

The spring survey also found that 40 percent of the companies plan to increase capital spending, down from 47 percent in the winter survey.

American Petrofina posts first quarter losses of $2.7 million

DALLAS (AP) — American Petrofina Inc. said this week that it has posted a first quarter net loss of $2.7 million, a turnaround from earnings for the same period of last year of $10.3 million.

The loss per share for the quarter ending March 31 was 23 cents, compared with net income in the first quarter of 1984 of 95 cents a share.

The company said that March profits were unable to overcome losses in January and February.

P.D. Meek, chairman of the board and chief operating officer, blamed a decline in crude oil revenues, low refined product margins, reduced margins in petrochemicals and plastics and two "unfortunate, minor" fires for the loss.

The company said the refining and marketing division as well as the petrochemicals and plastics division both reported losses in the quarter. Operating income from production and exploration also fell.

Petrofina said the petrochemical and plastics division, which posted a profit in the first quarter of last year, lost money because "intense competition in the market place and a slowdown in growth of the U.S. economy prevented the company from passing through increased raw materials costs."

A fire in the company's Big Spring refinery resulted in a loss of production that could not be offset in the quarter, he said, and a fire at High Island A-571 during February hurt gas and liquid production.

Tenneco reports decline in first-quarter earnings

HOUSTON (AP) — Tenneco Inc. reported Friday a decline in first-quarter earnings over the same period last year and adopted measures to ward off possible corporate raiders.

Board Chairman J.L. Ketelsen said the company does not anticipate any takeover attempt but is concerned about the type of takeover that could occur.

"We are not the likely corporation to have a takeover," Ketelsen said after the company's annual shareholders' meeting. "But we are taking the measure to prevent inequitable offers to shareholders."

The Houston-based company does not believe in two-tiered deals in which some shareholders receive one value in cash and others receive another value often in highly leveraged "junk" bonds, Ketelsen said.

"What we are trying to do is to ensure that if there is to be any acquisition of Tenneco, it will be at an adequate price and all shareholders will be treated fairly," he said.

Tom Peters on Excellence

Improving performance records

By TOM PETERS

Why write about ships at sea in a business column? The answer is that the principles espoused in "In Search of Excellence" are applicable in settings other than large corporations. In fact, the truest test of their usefulness is their "transportability" into other areas, such as schools, hospitals, city governments and even ships at sea.

I recently read a report, "Excellence in the Surface Navy," by Cmdr. Gregory Gullickson and Lt. Cmdr. Richard Chenette. The report profiles several ships seen by senior commanders as standing head and shoulders above their peers. The authors identify several factors as the reason for these ships' excellent performance record.

The first factor, at the top of the list, was the role of the commanding officer (CO). According to the authors, the best CO's "knew what excellence looked like." They had a clear vision and lived it obsessively. (The vision, of course, varied from man to man, but its clarity and intensity did not vary.) That vision was instilled by the practice of MBWA (Managing By Wandering Around), which the authors call "being out and about."

Further, the top CO's had a distinct view of their limits. They worked obsessively on what they could do and didn't waste precious time fretting about the things they had no power to change.

The top bosses also were superb delegators. They insisted that their subordinates delegate, too. The subordinates, in turn, granted especially great autonomy to their Chief Petty Officers ("Chiefs") who responded by having a level of commitment and a strong sense of job "ownership."

The top leaders also had a great sense of the symbolic and the dramatic; they were known for "flair." One who especially caught my attention devoted a great deal of time to "searching out victories" — manageable opportunities for his shipmates to prove themselves winners. One of those opportunities was the holding of contests to determine the cleanest berths.

Finally, the cream of the crop were risk takers. One CO himself described the importance of taking chances. The authors report, "He (the CO) said that if a commanding officer played it safe and worried a lot about what he could and could not do, he would, at best, have an average, safe, uneventful and uninspired command tour. 'You can't worry about your career. You must be comfortable with yourself. You can't have both the security of doing it by the book and the energy that comes from doing it the way it should be done. Command of a ship should be seen as an end in itself (not just a stepping stone).'"

The second factor responsible for the excellence of the best ships was that the sailors on these ships were given top priority by the ship's leaders. "Self-development (of sailors), not just paper training" was the prime objective of the leaders of those ships. One CO, for instance, would cajole admirals from adjacent bases to participate in awards ceremonies for sailors who had completed high school equivalency courses.

Small tokens of respect marked the best ships: "(On one ship) it was standard procedure that a new man's rack (bunk) be made up and his name stenciled on both his rack and his locker before he was taken to his berthing compartment for the first time. This relatively insignificant act was felt to have a powerful impact on newly reporting sailors and old hands. It symbolized the command's concern for its personnel." Another token of respect on the excellent ships was extensive sharing of information with the sailors about what was going on and why it was going on. This focus on the sailors gave them a sense of commitment and ownership that was evident in the language they used. They spoke of "my ship," "my space," "my job" rather than the typical "the ship," "the job," etc.

The third key factor was that all crew members had a bias to act, rather than to blame others. People on the winning ships wanted to take care of problems now, by themselves. They valued action and self-sufficiency.

Pride, among all crew members, was a fourth trait that marked the excellent ships. Superiors made a constant effort to recognize good performance. The authors report that one CO commented: "For every man who was disciplined, at least 10 would be commended." Moreover, the top CO's insisted that their subordinates (especially the Chiefs) use recognition for a job well done rather than punishment for mistakes as their chief motivator.

Teamwork was the fifth prime factor. The excellent CO's demanded it; they would simply get rid of people who couldn't learn to be team players. The authors note many instances of not-involvement functions supporting groups on the spot during critical readiness inspections (i.e., supply people doing anything they could to support engineers). The authors also heard of departments heads praising other departments (which is as uncommon in the Navy as it is in industry).

The tone for teamwork was set at the top. The senior managers are consistently viewed by their people as "approachable and open to suggestion." CO's were seen as "willing to change their minds when one of the other team members had a better way of approaching a problem."

The team approach resulted in everyone's being given a chance to grow. One example in the report captures this trait exceptionally well and also emphasizes the difference between a short-term focus or "inspection mentality" is the Navy's equivalent of the quarterly results-obsession in the private sector. The authors write, "(One ship) conducted its annual naval gunfire support qualification using members of the 'second team' on the computer consoles ... As one department head put it, 'When we are off of Lebanon and standing on III (crisis) watches, it very likely will be one of the junior men sitting on the gunfire console who will have to perform. We knew our first team could do their jobs well, and we knew that the second and third teams needed the practice the most. Therefore, the second and third teams were the ones who got the training when we fired for qualification ... This ship was driven not only by a desire to excel but also by a vision of battle readiness being the standard by which excellence ultimately would be judged. Therefore, lower scores of an exercise could and had to be tolerated in order to enhance the ship's battle readiness.'"

The sixth and final factor underlying the success of the excellent ships was that they got the most out of "ordinary" people. These ships, the authors point out did "not need an all-star team. They needed fine (i.e., average) people and the belief of leaders that adjacent people, well led, can create minor (or major) miracles."

The six common-sense traits discussed above describe excellent companies like IBM as well as they describe excellent ships at sea. Do they characterize your company, whatever field or industry you are in?

The Federal Reserve Board said Thursday that M1, the basic money supply measure of funds readily available for spending, slipped $300 million in the week ended April 15, but still remained above its growth targets.

Long-term interest rates, which had climbed prior to the Fed's report late Thursday, nudged even higher after the figures were released.

Analysts were divided on whether other figures in the report provided evidence that the Fed had moved recently to accommodate lower interest rates. But they agreed a further shift in credit policy was unlikely until clear evidence appeared on the course of the economy.

M1 included cash in circulation, checking deposits and non-bank travelers checks.

The McLennan Community College Highlanders scored two runs in the seventh inning and one run in the ninth and went on and downed the Howard College Hawks 8-5 in an important Region V clash.

The Highlanders blew open the 5-5 contest by scoring the two tallies in the seventh, one of the runs were unearned. Jason Bridges started the inning off for MCC by reaching base on an error, one of four the Hawks committed in the contest. Chad Patterson then got his second RBI of the game when he singled and brought in Bridges.

JIMMY GARCIA
... belts 8th home run

Pinch runner Anthony Baldwin, who was running for Patterson, scored on a double by Yancy Eubanks. That meant curtains for Howard starter Chris Segrist, who lasted six and two-third innings. The curveballer pitched a admirable game, allowing four earned runs and nine hits. He was relieved by Bryan Willis.

But the damage was already done as MCC starter Daryl Fry shut the Hawks down the remainder of the contest.

Fry, a sophomore left hander, pitched a fine game for the visitors. He constantly kept the Hawks batters off balance with a sweeping curve good fastball. While raising his record to 16-1, Fry went the distance, allowing six hits and walking five.

In fact, the only two Hawks that had any consistent success against Fry was shortstop Jim Garcia and third baseman Roland Gonzales. Both players collected two hits each. Eddie Citronelli and Joe Cuellar's doubles were the other two hits for the Hawks.

After MCC got a unearned run in the first inning, Howard tied the contest up in the fourth inning, thanks to Garcia. The sophomore from San Antonio took Fry's second pitch deep over the left field fence for his eighth homer of the season.

In the top of the fifth inning MCC rallied for four runs on three singles, one infield hit and one Howard error. Suddenly the visitor's lead was 5-1.

But Howard retaliated back with four runs of their own in the bottom of the fifth. Cuellar led things off with a double. Following a out by Joey Ortiz, Gonzales got a infield hit and Michael Byrd reached base on an error, loading them up for Dan Lanfear. Lanfear struck out for the second out, bringing Citronelli to the plate.

OLAND GONZALEZ
... two hits

The HC catcher drove Fry's offering into the left-center field gap, scoring Cuellar, Gonzales and Byrd. This tied the contest at 5-5 and set the stage for MCC's comeback win.

The loss was Segrist's first of the season in five outings. It drops Howard's conference record to 14-5 while MCC is now 17-2 in conference. Howard is 29-9 overall while MCC pushes its record to a sparkling 41-10.

The two teams will square off in a doubleheader tomorrow starting at 1 p.m. at Hawks Field. At 12:45 the field will be dedicated to local resident Jack Barber.

JIM SIMONS tees off from the ninth hole during second round action at the Houston Open. SIMONS was the second round leader with an 8-under par 136.

Simons leads Houston

THE WOODLANDS, Texas (AP) — Jim Simons, playing with a sore left shoulder, ignored rain showers and a soggy Tournament Players Course at The Woodlands Friday for a five under par 67 to take a two-shot lead in the unfinished second round of the $500,000 Houston Open.

Second round play was halted at 6:50 p.m. after the day's round started one and one-half hours late because of heavy rains that fell throughout the night.

The incomplete rounds will be finished early Saturday prior to the start of the third round.

Simons, plagued by a shoulder ailment throughout his 13-year pro career, said he had been receiving treatment twice daily since arriving for the tournament.

"To tell the truth, I almost didn't come here because of the shoulder," Simons said. "But I've been going to the trailer twice a day and it feels better."

Simons shot a three under par 69 in Thursday's opening round for a 136 total after 36 holes.

Rookie David Frost of South Africa, shot a second round one under par 71 for a 138 total to share second place with Wayne Levi, who finished just before darkness with a 67. Thirty-six players were still on the course when play halted.

Five others were another stroke back at 139 including Roger Maltbie with a second round 67, Calvin Peete, 72, Keith Fergus, 72, Bob Murphy, 68 and Chip Beck, 66.

Beck's 66 was the best 18-hole total of the second round and equaled the six-under par 66 shot on Thursday by first day leader Payne Stewart.

Stewart dipped as low as five under par during Friday's round with a double bogey on No. 18 but he rallied and was six under par with two holes to play when play was suspended.

"I've been playing poorly the last few months and I feel I'm starting to play better, I'm sure working hard on a few fundamentals," Beck said.

Beck had six birdies in his round in addition to an eagle on No. 15, the result of a three-wood to within two feet of the hole, and a double bogie on No. 17 when his second shot went into the water hazard in front of the green.

Razorbacks run wild at Penn Relays

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Arkansas, anchored by NCAA indoor 1,500 meter champion Paul Donovan, won its third straight distance medley relay Friday at the 91st annual Penn Relays.

Donovan started the final 1,600 meter leg with a 20-yard lead and increased it to 25 on the second lap. He was ahead by 15 as the field started the gun lap, then had to withstand a late challenge from George Mason anchor Abde Bile that made the winning margin about 10 yards.

Arkansas ran the 1,200, 400, 800, 1,600 meter distance in 9:28.2, with George Mason second in 9:28, Georgetown third (9:32.6), and Arizona State fourth (9:37.1).

Doug Consiglio ran the leadoff

1,200 meters and was fourth when he handed the baton to Roddie Haley for the 400. Haley, however, gave Arkansas a 5-yard lead after his leg, and Gary Taylor increased it to 20 yards after the 800. Arizona State was second and Mason third at that point.

Haley, a freshman who earlier ran on the 400 and 800 meter relay qualifiers, ran a personal best of 44.2 in giving Arkansas the lead for good.

When asked if he was concerned about taking the baton in fourth place, Haley said, "I wasn't worried too much. There was no panic at all because I think the fastest leg in there was about 45.8."

Earlier, Kevin Henderson, a 20-year-old Auburn sophomore, set a meet record of 49.24 in the 400 meter hurdles. He broke the mark of 49.51, set in 1979 by Auburn's James Walker.

Henderson, whose mother had come from Cleveland to see the race, went directly to his hotel to rest for his leg on the Auburn mile relay team. Bernard Williams of LSU (50.24) was second.

Arkansas, a pre-meet favorite to become the fourth team in Penn Relay history to win four relay titles, qualified in the 400 and 800 for Saturday finals.

The Arkansas team of Fred Cleary, Haley, Mike Conley and Wallace Spearman, set a record of 39.47 in the 400, bettering the mark of 39.57 set by Arizona State in top of the sixth. Jeff Wright drew a walk and stole second base to open the inning. Dodd retired the next two batters on fly balls, but Wright scored when second baseman Jerry Anderson couldn't find the handle on Paul Chavez's sharp grounder.

The Steers padded their lead in the bottom of the fifth, scoring on a walk, a stolen base and an error. Randy Hayworth drew a two out base-on-balls and came around to score when Odessa second baseman Rodney Roman lost Olivias' pop fly in the sun. Hayworth scored from second standing up before a Broncho right fielder could get to the ball.

Odessa made a seventh inning run at the Steers behind a couple of two out walks by Dodd and an RBI single by pinch hitter Joe Jacques. With runners at second and third, Dodd faced catcher Tom Phelps and was up to the task, striking him out to end the game. Odessa coach Ronnie White was thrown out of the game at the start of the inning for excessive complaining to the home plate umpire.

Big Spring ran its season record to 11-13 on the year. The Steers are 5-9 in 4-5A. The Steers will close the season in San Angelo this afternoon when they take on the Central Bobcats. Jay Pirkle will get the starting nod for the Steers. Dodd is expected to see some relief action.

DeVincenzo team ahead in Austin Masters

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Roberto De Vincenzo and Ken Still fired a 6-under par 64 Friday to tie defending champions Billy Casper and Gay Brewer at the 36-hole mark of the $500,000 Liberty Mutual Legends of Golf Tournament.

Both teams were 13-under par 127 over the Par 35-35-70 Onion Creek Golf Club course.

Kathy Whitworth and Mickey Wright's head-to-head challenge with the men ended in disaster with a 2-over par 72 that put them 10 shots behind the leaders.

Argentina's De Vincenzo, a two-time winner here with two different partners, birdied four holes to highlight the better ball round.

"The course played much harder because of the overnight rains," he said.

"We're very happy with the round," said Still, a last minute substitute for Rod Funseth who has cancer.

Brewer and Casper bogeyed the easy 530-yard Par 5 hole but birdied the next four holes in a row to finish at 5-under par 65.

"That bogey got our attention like a two-by-four and a donkey," said Casper, who holed birdie putts of 25, 18, and 8 feet.

"It was a long day out there," said Brewer.

Wright and Whitworth, representing women for the first time in a sanctioned PGA tournament on an equal basis against men, shot themselves out of the 72-hole tournament but said they weren't dejected.

"Yesterday was just so exciting when we shot 65 that we had a let-down," said the 50-year-old Wright. "It's hard to follow a great round with another. We'll do OK tomorrow."

The soggy, wind-swept Onion Creek course played longer than its 6,584-yards and Whitworth said "I'm just not strong enough to hit it out of wet fairways. The course definitely played longer."

At times, the women were hitting woods from the fairway while playing partners Don January and Gene Littler had mid-irons.

Sam Snead said "women just aren't as good as men in any department. If women beat us, we'd have to go hide."

Miller Barber and Bob Goalyby shot 64 to move into a second place tie with Art Wall and Doug Sanders just two shots behind the leaders at 129.

Wall and Sanders shot 5-under par 65.

Just another shot back at 128 were Don January-Gene Littler, Jim Ferree-Charlie Sifford, and Snead-Lee Elder. Littler-January shot 65, Snead-Elder shot 64, and Sifford-Ferree shot 67.
