Wallace Unit inmate stabbed Tuesday night

A heavily tattooed Wallace Unit inmate sustained 18 puncture wounds in his chest and upper body in an attack Tuesday night during his first 24 hours at the unit.

Jose Villareal, 30, of Hidalgo County was being treated at Mitchell County Hospital late Tuesday, and witnesses said he did not appear to be in critical condition.

A Mitchell County EMS ambulance was summoned to the unit west of Colorado City at 9:11 p.m.

Witnesses of the assault were reportedly being questioned at the unit.

Sheriff Patrick Toombs, Chief Deputy Mike Redwine and Wallace Unit Warden Neal Webb were among the officials who were pursuing the investigation, along with two correctional officers.

Sheriff Toombs was at the unit late Tuesday, and Warden Webb, Deputy Redwine and Reserve Deputy Jimmy Browne were at the hospital, where Villareal was being treated by Dr. Dee Roach and Physician's Assistant Lorin Scott.

The sheriff said the attack was possibly gang related.

TXU rate hikes hang on Austin PUC decision

Mitchell Countians will be paying from $6 to $10 more a month for their electricity this fall if the Texas Public Utilities Commission (PUC) in Austin okays two rate hikes that TXU Electric Co. has requested.

A 6.7 percent "fuel factor adjustment" that would raise monthly bills by about $5 for customers who use 1,000 kilowatt hours (KWH's) is being asked to help offset projected future fuel costs, although most customers use less than that.

A 4.6 percent hike, or about a $4.38 monthly increase for the same customers, is needed to help cover the 100 percent increase in the cost of natural gas that the Dallas based company has experienced since January, said TXU spokesman Judy Suggs of Abilene.

However, the second rate bump would only last six months until the firm recovered $167 million that it claims its customers will be under-billed through November.

It would then be rescinded. The first hike would be permanent, increasing TXU's annual revenues by $494 million.

A typical TXU customer only uses 700 to 800 KWH's a month, so you can reduce the projected $9.38 increase by the applicable percentage if you fall into that category and the PUC grants both proposals.

Seventy percent of $9.38 is $6.57.

The first hike would go into

Warden O'Reilly backs raises & career ladder

The salary increases and new career ladder that the Texas Board of Criminal Justice is proposing directly address the recruitment and retention problems that the state prison system faces, Wallace-Ware Units Warden Tom O'Reilly says.

TBCJ members voted recently to ask the State Legislature in January to allocate $85 million for raises for correctional officers and other staff members in 2002 and $89 million in '03.

Led by Chairman Mac Stringfellow of San Antonio, the board wants the career ladder to be lengthened from six to 10 steps with a CO 2 making $23,748 after three months and a CO 5 earning $34,056 after 12 years, for example.

School enrollment drops slightly

Due mostly to an enrollment decrease at Kelley Elementary School, Colorado City schools began the new school year with 46 fewer students than they started 1999-2000 with, 1,077 to 1,123.

Kelley officials expect the school's traditionally later enrolling students to beef up the numbers after Labor Day.

With the exception of Loraine School District, where a 16 student increase was reported, Mitchell County's other schools basically held their own in comparisons of the two years.

County wide, the totals are 1,396 this year and 1,424 last year -- a decline of 28.

Colorado High School started last year with 348 students and stood at 338 last week, just under the Class 2-A limit of 345 and leaving unthreatened C-City's reclassification from 3-A last February.

CHS has 81 freshmen, 96 sophomores, 70 juniors and 91 seniors.

Registrar Melie Forbes said some teenagers moved away with their families, but others have transferred here from Loraine, New Braunfels and San Diego, Calif.

Colorado Middle School began with the same number as last year, 233.

Departing youngsters were replaced by two who had been being homeschooled, two who transferred from Lubbock Cooper High School, two from Snyder and one each from Loraine, Beeville, Independence, Kan., and Oklahoma, said CMS Counselor's Secretary Jerri Kimball.

Hutchinson Elementary School's beginning enrollment is also the same as last year's, 240.

Hospital project begins this fall

In an action packed and memorable meeting, Mitchell County Hospital Board members Tuesday night accepted a low bidder on a $7,350,000 bond issue to build a new hospital and doctors' offices and authorized an Austin architect to proceed with his already advanced plans for the project.

George Williford of the First Southwest Securities Corp. of Dallas reported that the bonds were rated BBB by the Standard & Poor Co. in New York City and sold Tuesday to Sun Trust Securities Co. of Miami, Fla.

He said a AAA rating was not achieved primarily because of the county's volatile oil and gas dependent tax base and because TXU Electric Co. has been devaluing its Morgan Creek Plant on Lake Colorado City.

However, he said Sun Trust will buy insurance to upgrade it to AAA.

Commissioners approve budget

Mitchell County commissioners Monday approved a $3.6 million budget for calendar 2001 and lowered the property tax rate from 68 to 66.3 cents per $100 in valuation.

County Auditor Susan Buckalew said the rate could be lowered because of improved valuations.

County employees are getting a five percent raise.

Taxpayers will receive a three percent discount for early payment in October, two percent in November and one percent in December.

Projected at $3,648,861 two weeks ago, Ms. Buckalew said 2001 expenditures have been further trimmed to $3,630,428. Revenues are expected to total $4,326,923 for a $700,000 surplus.

Other business in the 9 a.m. called meeting included the rejection of a proposal from Lone Wolf Resources General Manager Kim Hester for his company and the county to enter into a cooperative agreement to move soil and concrete between two sites.

Hester suggested that the county supply three trucks and drivers to move 20,000 to 25,000 tons of soil from LWR's North Pond area on the north side of West Hwy. 80 to the elevated Tank Farm area south of the Colorado River and concrete from the Tank Farm to the North Pond.

The county would have received a large amount of the company's asphalt stabilized base (ASB) in return, based on commercial trucking rates and the amount of soil and concrete that was moved each day.

Commissioners Bill Preston, Wendy Inman and Carl Guelker said they were not interested because the roadbase material has proved unsuitable for resurfacing county roads.

Hester said after the 20 minute meeting that he was not SILVER NATIVE David Lindsey, who now lives in Austin, has completed another book in his series of mystery novels. It will be released next spring.

Lindsey's new novel is ready for publication

A Colorado High School graduate who has written a string of successful mystery novels has finished his latest book, but owing to an exigency of the publishing business, it will not be released until next May.

David Lindsey, a native of Silver in south Mitchell County who graduated from CHS in 1963, said in an interview from his home in Austin last Friday that his new work, "Animosity," was completed about four months ago and would have ordinarily been published this fall.

But his publisher, Warner Books in New York City, wants to wait until after the paperback issuance of his popular previous work, "The Color of Night," in April.

"This one is quite different from anything I have ever done," Lindsey said. "A murder occurs in the book, but it's not really a mystery novel. There are no police investigations."

"It's about a sculptor, Ross Marteau, and three women who come in and out of his life."

"The mystery is wrapped up in the relationships with these four people."

Asked if one of the four is the murder victim, he laughed and said he did not want to give away the plot.

"The Color of Night" is a spy novel set in the European art world.

"Animosity" opens in Paris, France, and moves to a fictional Central Texas town in the Austin area called San Rafael, where the murder takes place.

"It's a good deal shorter than most of my other novels," Lindsey said. "It covers about nine months of their lives."

His other titles include "A Cold Mind," "Heat from Another Sun," "Spiral," "In the Lake of the Moon," "Mercy," "Body of Truth," "An Absence of Light" and "Requiem for a Glass Heart."

"Mercy" was made into a movie starring Ellen Barkin. Mitchell County Library has all of them except "Mercy" and "A Cold Mind."

All of Lindsey's novels have a Texas base, he noted, but they have also been set in Mexico, Guatemala, Western Europe and Russia -- "sort of all over the place."

He graduated with a degree in English from the University of North Texas at Denton and was an editor at the University of Texas Press in Austin when his first novel, "Black Gold, Red Death," was published.

"Animosity" will have a delayed publication, timed with the publication of "The Color of Night" in paperback in April," he said.

"Publishers like to have a paperback come out a month before the hardcover of a new novel."

A morning writer who works steadily but somewhat slowly, thoroughly polishing his work as he proceeds, he is already at work on a new novel, having finished three chapters, he said.

School prayer issue aired

If a constitutional amendment is what it will take to get prayer back in public schools, that's okay with Marcellus Allison of Memphis, Tenn., and David Film of Amarillo.

They and others in their informal "Wake Up, America," organization have 1.6 million signatures on a prayer amendment petition so far and are going for 25 million.

Film, 55, who has worked extensively in Christian education in his native Oklahoma, was in Colorado City Monday and left the petition at the Record.

He has gathered 8,000 signatures, 3,000 just since April, sleeping in his dilapidated van and living on donations and sales of an illustrated 16 by 23 inch Gospel of John.

Allison started the drive at his Delta Muffler Shop in Memphis, and Film learned of it 18 months ago while standing at the huge cross that was erected by the parents of Miami Dolphins linebacker Zach Thomas alongside Interstate 40 near Groom in the Panhandle.

"I think if everybody got as many as 8,000 in a year, we wouldn't have any trouble getting what we need," Film said.

He attributes the nation's moral and cultural decline to the 1962 Supreme Court decision that banned prayer from public schools.

"Since then, the morality, the economy and the education standards have all taken a turn for the worse," he said.

"A lot of things have gone downhill because it's created a mentality of humanism in the schools."

"We don't have a divine Creator to answer to anymore, and it has become essentially a state of chaos because there's no accountability."

Wake Up, America, invokes the school shootings at Jonesboro, Ark., and Littleton, Colo., as an example of what happens in a moral vacuum.

"The children are not to blame," the petition heading says.

"We let prayer be taken out of our schools. TV teaches violence."

"We need 25 million signatures to have the Constitution amended to put prayer back in our schools."

Allison's address is 2597 Lamar Ave., Memphis 38114.

The Tennessee man said he had consulted political leaders who told him that much support would be enough to pass the amendment.

Film, who has campaigned in San Antonio and other Texas cities, said he has been encouraged in some quarters and derided in others.

"The petition is not to force anyone to pray," he said.

"It's voluntary prayer. We're not trying to violate anyone's constitutional rights."

"All we're doing is getting names and Zip Codes -- no telephone numbers or addresses."

"I'm interested in turning the country around, and I think there is a need for this."

Parents at a number of schools across Texas and the South have promised to encourage football fans, some gathering at the goalposts and some in the stands, to recite the 23rd Psalm spontaneously before the starts of games as a replacement for the student led prayer that the Supreme Court voted 5-4 to ban last June.

Colorado City Supt. Buddy Compton said Monday that he had heard "not a word" of any such plans here leading up to the start of the Wolves' new season Friday night in Stamford.

"Hopefully, they won't tell me if they're going to do something like that because I can't be a part of it," he said.

"It has been a tradition for a long time, and I think it still should be. But nobody asked me."

"The basic concept is that nobody gets hurt on the field and everybody gets home safely."

After the Supreme Court's latest depressing ruling last summer, the Colorado School Board began having students lead the Pledge of Allegiance and a prayer at the beginning of each board meeting.

"They can tell us what to do at the games, but they can't tell us what to do in here," Board President Larry Blessingame said.

KCCCB ends "Yard of the Month" nominations Thursday afternoon

Keep Colorado City Beautiful Committee nominations for the August "Yard of the Month" will end Thursday afternoon at Fuller Foods, Alco, City National Bank and the First National Bank, where nominations and ballot boxes are kept.

The theme this month is "Best Use of Color in the Yard and Home," which implies the use of paint and flowers.

Thirty nominations were taken for the July contest that was won by Possum and Kim Mann of 2043 Hickory St.

Co-Chairman Bob Reilly Tuesday invited public participation in the group's 6 p.m. Thursday meeting at Mitchell County Library at 340 Oak St.

"Some day, I'd like to see us start giving trees away," he said, noting that the Keep Hereford Beautiful Committee has provided numerous trees at least two inches in diameter to citizens there.

"Abilene has had good luck with their crepe myrtle program."

Reilly said that while KCCB's program to keep lawns and weeds mowed has been successful this summer, the drought has discouraged many C-City homeowners from trying to keep their grass and flowers watered.

He said the relentless heat has been forcing him to water his lawn twice a day.

Reilly encouraged citizens to continue putting their empty aluminum cans and containers in the KCCB's collection trailer on East Second Street between Locust and Hickory Streets.

Cashed in at a collection center in Sweetwater, the cans have produced $300 to date for the purchase of paint brushes, scrapers and other supplies for downtown painting projects.

Football gives a lot to brothers

The fun of football is what the Colorado City Wolves' four Spear brothers love about the game, but the discipline, teamwork and self discovery it entails are the chief benefits their parents, Ted and Stephanie, see in it for them.

Few families have so intense an interest in the game here, and it's been that way for going on six years through middle school and now in high school.

All four boys play or can play quarterback, giving the Wolves the prospect of live arms in the backfield for the next four years.

Fleetfooted Andrew, a 17 year old senior, was a mainstay of the receivers' corps last year, and he has been switched to tailback and continues as the first backup to starting quarterback Chase Pharris.

Jonathan, a 15 year old sophomore, plays quarterback on the junior varsity black, or mostly sophomore, team while the 14 year old twins, Christopher and Patrick, play quarterback and wide receiver on the JV red, or freshman, team.

Christopher completed a pass to Patrick, his first backup at quarterback, in last Friday's scrimmage against the Coleman Bluecats.

So all four boys are quarterbacks, but two play other positions and serve as backups.

Dan Gainey, JV black head coach and first assistant varsity head coach, said Tuesday afternoon before practice, "The only problem with the Spear boys is, there aren't enough of them.

"They're good everywhere, on the field, in the classroom, on the court. . ."

Dr. Spear, pastor of the First Baptist Church since 1988, played for the Tulia Hornets in the Panhandle, and although he claims he "wasn't very good," he has remained a sports enthusiast and a believer in the value of competition.

"It teaches them to learn to face challenges and tests some of their limits," he said.

"They deal with situations that may be a little frightening at first, but they learn to stand up to the challenge and see what happens.

"There have been some bumps and bruises and a few cuts, but nothing's been real serious. We're very thankful for that. Hopefully, it will stay that way.

"There is lots of discipline and hard work involved, and that's of great value."

Dr. Spear, a graduate of Hardin Simmons University in Abilene and Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth, met his wife in Abilene, and they married a few years later when she was teaching at Saginaw, near Fort Worth.

Mrs. Spear, a second grade teacher at Kelley Elementary School, has learned to enjoy the sports oriented environment of her home.

She said the younger boys look up to Andrew, who sometimes gives them advice.

"They're all pumped up about the same things, so it makes going home at night pretty exciting," she said.

She and her husband went to Andrew's games and divided up the younger boys' middle school games with Dr. Spear going to the ones out of town.

So they're elated that the boys are now all in high school and the Thursday JV and Friday varsity games are in the same locations.

"They all love sports," she said, "and their dad is a sports nut. They have always been driven by it. At home, it's just always been our focal point."

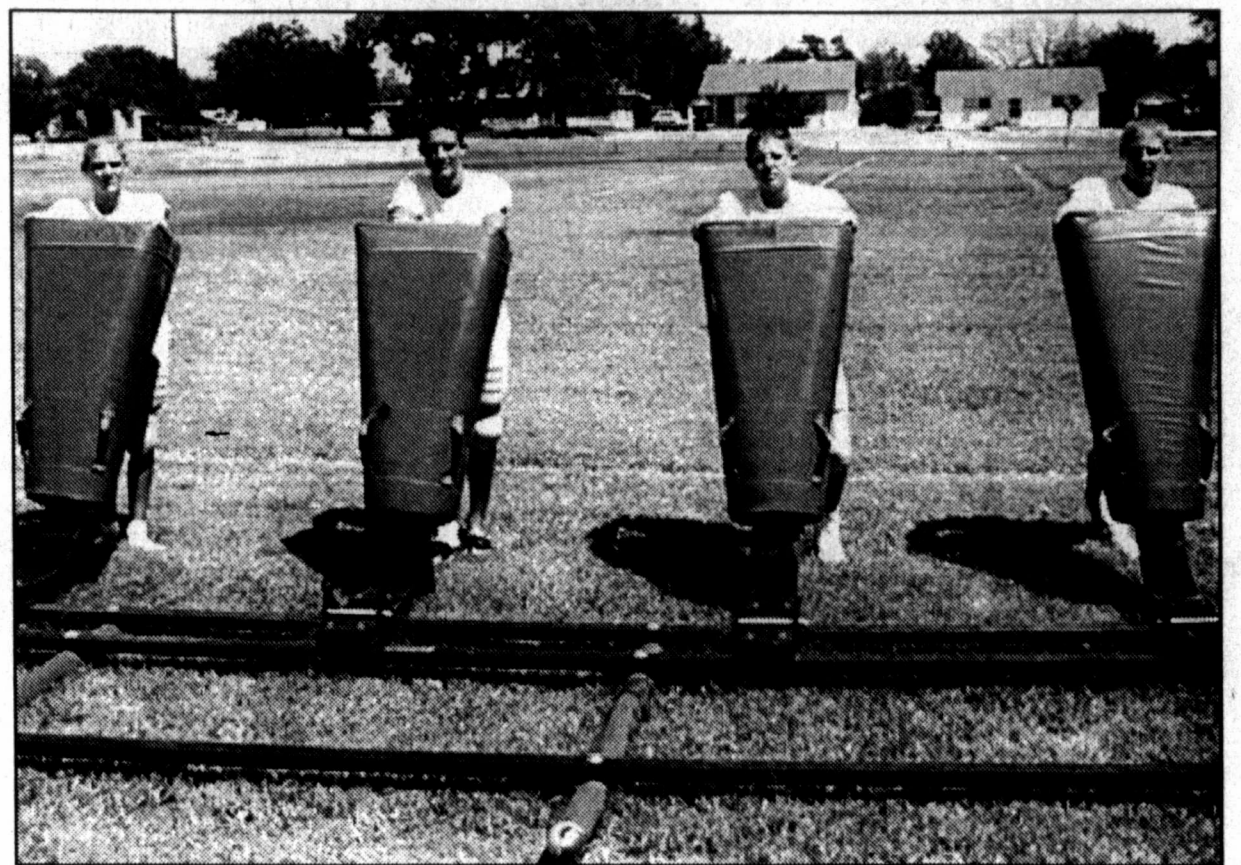

The boys read newspaper sports sections intensely and keep up with area teams and athletes.

Dr. Spear did not intend to raise four quarterbacks, but "we usually had balls of all sorts around the house from the earliest days -- whatever was in season," he said.

When the boys were very small, Ted and Stephanie went to games at halftime to watch the band and the second half, and the youngsters would run up and down the stands, soaking up the atmosphere while their parents sat on the visitors' side to avoid disturbing the home fans.

"In a West Texas small town, usually everybody has some interest in it," Spear said.

"We enjoy going to the

THE SPEAR BOYS, from left, Patrick, Andrew, Jonathan and Christopher, are all quarterbacks or backup quarterbacks who play other positions on Wolves' football teams this fall. games, and we hope they have some measure of success as a team, with no injuries, and learn the value of playing together, competing and facing challenges just to see how well they do."

After almost a month of practices in hot weather and scrimmages the past two weeks versus Munday and Coleman, the Wolves begin their season Friday night against the Stamford Bulldogs in Stamford.

basically the same two-back offense and some of the same plays that we do," said Wolves head coach Gerald James. "Their defense is similar to our 4-3 defense."

The Wolves offense will be led by quarterback Chase Pharris who threw for 1573 yards last season, and added another 434 yards on the ground. Pharris has a fine group of receivers to choose from, including big play wide-out Marquise Lenard, who averaged 20 yards a catch on 15 receptions last season.

Aaron Waldrip, Albert Luera and Danny Torres should each get their share of receptions in what is expected to be a wide open offense.

Andrew Spear and Adan Leanos will be the ball carriers for the Wolves, with Jed Anderson and Brent Moore providing key blocks at fullback. Spear led the Wolves in receiving last season with 24 receptions for 453 yards, and should be a double threat coming out of the backfield.

The Wolves are small on size, but big on effort on the offensive and defensive lines.

Julian Macedo, Adam Ramoz, J.P. Castillo, Chase Ratliff, Samad Abdur-Razzaq, Tino Silva and Bo Everett will do the dirty work in the trenches for Colorado City.

Pre-season injuries may put the Wolves at a disadvantage going into the Stamford game this week. Everett is expected to miss three weeks with a torn ligament in his ankle. Razzaq has a knee injury and will miss a week. Silva is battling back problems and tight end-linebacker Nick Rodriguez will have an MRI done this week on his ailing knee.

"The injuries leaves us thin on depth, but the other kids won't have any problem stepping up," said Coach James. "Everybody will have to play more."

Stamford is the first game in a tough non-district schedule for the Wolves that includes Crane, Merkel, Ballinger and Grape Creek.

"We've been playing Stamford for several years," said Coach James. "It's always a great ballgame."

Young criminals romp

City police have had their hands full with misbehaving juvenile boys and girls lately, including five who did $1,000 in damages to new playground equipment at Hutchinson Elementary School at 440 Cedar St.

Investigator Charles Rice reported charging two boys, 13 and 14, and three girls, 14, 15 and 16, in connection with the

Tuesday, Aug. 15, incident in which "numerous pieces of new playground equipment suffered damage from graffiti."

The equipment was purchased and installed last year. Officer Rice is also investigating the breakage of two tempered glass windows in the front of the Colorado High School Auditorium.

Estimated at $500, the damages were discovered at 8 a.m. Monday, Aug. 21.

"On Friday, Aug. 25, at 4:28 p.m., an assault occurred in the 1400 block of Walnut Street," Officer Melissa Butts said.

"The victim and suspect are 15 year old males from Colorado City. The victim was taken to the Mitchell County Hospital emergency room for medical treatment of broken bones in his face.

"The suspect was taken into custody and held in the juvenile detention center in Sweetwater pending a disposition hearing."

A flamboyant -- and thirsty -- suspect is being sought in connection with a 10:44 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 20, theft at the Skinny's convenience store at 395 E. Second St.

Officer George Oliver said a Mexican American man wearing white shorts with a white T shirt and having "numerous tattoos and bleached blond hair" stole two 18 packs of Budweiser beer and drove away in a Chevrolet S 10 extended cab pickup truck with tinted windows.

David Smith, 18, of 705 E. Seventh St. told Officer Tommy Dill on Sunday, Aug. 20, that his 1985 Chevrolet S 10 had been burglarized and a Jensen four channel AM-FM radio and CD player stolen.

Officer Rice took an 8:20 a.m. Tuesday, Aug. 22, report from Steven Callaway of 505 E. Fourth St. that two pieces of lawn equipment, a Weed Eater string trimmer and leaf blower worth $209, were missing.

"One of the items has been recovered, and a suspect has been identified," the investigator said. "Charges of theft are pending in Mitchell County Court."

ENROLLMENT

"We had some students move away, but we will pick up some after Labor Day," said School Secretary Virginia Mendoza.

Loraine schools started 1999-2000 with 158 and ended with 159 last spring, but then enrolled 174 this fall.

"We had some transfers, but we have also had some families move into the area," School Secretary Debbie Finley said.

"We've really come up from the end of school."

Ms. Finley noted that Loraine has six children in its new pre kindergarten class and 11 kindergartners.

Loraine High School has 17 freshmen, 12 sophomores, 14 juniors and only seven seniors after graduating 16 seniors last spring.

It has 50 high schoolers, compared to 51 at this time last year. Westbrook schools added two students to a total of 145 with 56 in high school, which is also an increase of two over last year.

"We gained some new kids and lost some, so it was a wash," said Principal Doc Rowell.

"Seven or eight are teachers' kids."

Those include the senior daughter and junior son of new girls' basketball coach and football assistant Frank Miguel.

Westbrook High School graduated 17 seniors last spring and, in a pattern similar to Loraine's, has only nine seniors this year.

Sergeants would go from $29,352 to $35,220 and lieutenants from $30,360 to $36,456, among other improvements.

"It's a great opportunity if you want to make it a career and work here for 25 years," Warden O'Reilly said.

"You won't get rich working for the state, but we have excellent retirement, insurance and opportunities for advancement."

Warden O'Reilly is pleased that a dozen correctional officer candidates who are presently enrolled in the Western Texas College training school in Snyder will go to work at the Wallace and Ware Units.

WTC has a contract with the Texas Department of Criminal Justice in Huntsville to train CO's like the TDCJ Academy at Beeville in South Texas, where the candidates are paid while going to school.

A total of 62 are enrolled in Snyder now with former TDCJ Capt. Jim Petty of Colorado City as the instructor.

It's a 3 1/2 week course, and its graduates will help alleviate a 55 officer shortage at the C-City units.

Warden O'Reilly said recruitment efforts have been stepped up because the TDCJ's annual staff turnover rate increased from 18 percent last year to 22 percent in the fiscal year ending this month.

Having lost 519 employees in May and 513 in June, the department is about 1,700 officers short of its authorized strength of 28,376 CO's and ranking staff members, he said.

"I think everybody realizes the problems we're having, and I think the Legislature is going to help us out this session," the warden said.

"The proposals Mr. Stringfellow told you about are needed because if you look at the first few years of employment, we're close to the top of the national average."

"But without the career ladder that some of the other states have, after five or six years we drop dramatically."

"I think things are going to get better for us, recruiting new people with a lot of recruiting efforts throughout the nation and the state."

"Our folks out here deserve a substantial raise because they haven't had a substantial raise in six years."

You may apply to become a TDCJ correctional officer on the department's Internet Web site at www.tdcj.state.tx.us/ or at any Texas Workforce office.

El mejor detector de fugas de gas es usted.

Usted nació con el mejor equipo para detectar una situación de emergencia con un ducto de gas natural – sus ojos, oídos y nariz.

La Nariz

Las aromas inusuales alrededor de su propiedad que se parecen a huevos podridos, zorrillo (mofeta), o azufre podrían indicar una fuga de gas natural.

Los Oídos

Preste atención si oye en su propiedad un silbido agudo, un soplo fuerte, o un rugido. Todos estos ruidos pueden ser señal de una emergencia de gas natural a alta presión.

Los Ojos

Las señales visibles de una emergencia de gas incluyen agua o tierra soplando en el aire, vegetación descolorida o un burbujeo constante que emerge de agua reposada.

Tómese el Tiempo Necesario para Llamar.

Si usted descubre alguna señal o todas las señales mencionadas arriba, sálgase del área inmediatamente. No opere ningún vehículo de motor o equipo cerca del área, y absténgase de cualquier actividad que pudiera generar una chispa. Usted debe contactar de inmediato a las autoridades locales de emergencia y también a Westex al 1.800.562.5879, o al operador del ducto en cuestión.

Al emplear los dispositivos de detección innatos, usted puede prevenir los desastres asociados con fugas en ductos de gas natural.

Q & A Substance Abuse Trends

(In response to a growing concern among parents, educators and other members of the community, Colorado City Record, in cooperation with Al-Anon support groups and the Snyder Area Council on Alcohol and Drug Abuse, is devoting this column to your questions about the increasing threat of substance abuse.)

What is Cocaine?

Cocaine is a powerfully addictive stimulant that directly affects the brain. Cocaine has been labeled the drug of the 1980s and '90s, because of its extensive popularity and use during this period. However, cocaine is not a new drug. In fact, it is one of the oldest known drugs. The pure chemical, cocaine hydrochloride, has been an abused substance for more than 100 years, and coca leaves, the source of cocaine, have been ingested for thousands of years.

In the early 1900s, it became the main stimulant drug used in most of the tonics/elixirs that were developed to treat a wide variety of illnesses. Today, cocaine is a Schedule II drug, meaning that it has high potential for abuse, but can be administered by a doctor for legitimate medical uses, such as a local anesthetic for some eye, ear, and throat surgeries.

There are basically two chemical forms of cocaine: the hydrochloride salt and the "freebase." The hydrochloride salt, or powdered form of cocaine, dissolves in water and, when abused, can be taken intravenously (by vein) or intranasal (in the nose). Freebase refers to a compound that has not been neutralized by an acid to make the hydrochloride salt. The freebase form of cocaine is smokeable.

Cocaine is generally sold on the street as a fine, white, crystalline powder, known as "coke," "C," "snow," "flake," or "blow." Street dealers generally dilute it with such inert substances as cornstarch, talcum powder, and/or sugar, or with such active drugs as procaine (a chemically-related local anesthetic) or with such other stimulants as amphetamines.

What are the short-term effects of cocaine use?

Cocaine's effects appear almost immediately after a single dose, and disappear within a few minutes or hours. Taken in small amounts (up to 100 mg), cocaine usually makes the user feel euphoric, energetic, talkative, and mentally alert, especially to the sensations of sight, sound, and touch. It can also temporarily decrease the need for food and sleep. Some users find that the drug helps them to perform simple physical and intellectual tasks more quickly, while others can experience the opposite effect.

The duration of cocaine's immediate euphoric effects depends upon the route of administration. The faster the absorption, the more intense the high. Also, the faster the absorption, the shorter the duration of action. The high from snorting is relatively slow in onset, and may last 15 to 30 minutes, while that from smoking may last 5 to 10 minutes.

The short-term physiological effects of cocaine include constricted blood vessels; dilated pupils; and increased temperature, heart rate, and blood pressure. Large amounts (several hundred milligrams or more) intensify the user's high, but may also lead to bizarre, erratic, and violent behavior. These users may experience tremors, vertigo, muscle twitches, paranoia, or, with repeated doses, a toxic reaction closely resembling amphetamine poisoning. Some users of cocaine report feelings of restlessness, irritability, and anxiety. In rare instances, sudden death can occur on the first use of cocaine or unexpectedly thereafter. Cocaine-related deaths are often a result of cardiac arrest or seizures followed by respiratory arrest.

What are the long-term effects of cocaine use?

Cocaine is a powerfully addictive drug. Once having tried cocaine, an individual may have difficulty predicting or controlling the extent to which he or she will continue to use the drug. Cocaine's stimulant and addictive effects are thought to be primarily a result of its ability to inhibit the reabsorption of dopamine by nerve cells. Dopamine is released as part of the brain's reward system, and is either directly or indirectly involved in the addictive properties of every major drug of abuse.

An appreciable tolerance to cocaine's high may develop, with many addicts reporting that they seek but fail to achieve as much pleasure as they did from their first experience. Some users will frequently increase their doses to intensify and prolong the euphoric effects. While tolerance to the high can occur, users can also become more sensitive (sensitization) to cocaine's anesthetic and convulsant effects, without increasing the dose taken. This increased sensitivity may explain some deaths occurring after apparently low doses of cocaine.

Use of cocaine in a binge, during which the drug is taken repeatedly and at increasingly high doses, leads to a state of increasing irritability, restlessness, and paranoia. This may result in a full-blown paranoid psychosis, in which the individual loses touch with reality and experiences auditory hallucinations.

Please send your questions on drugs or addiction to P.O. Box 695, Snyder, Texas 79550. All questions and personal inquiries may be submitted anonymously. Twenty-four-hour confidential information is available by calling (915) 573-1141 or 1-800-658-6722. TXU's natural gas customers would not be affected.

"Periodically, TXU reviews fuel costs and applies when necessary to the PUC," said Ms. Suggs.

"This is the first increase since 1993."

She said half of the company's fuel for its electrical generation plants is from coal and nuclear power, but the other half is from natural gas.

The 1998 state legislation that deregulated the electric utility industry froze retail residential and small commercial base rates until Jan. 1, 2002, when they will be reduced by six percent, including fuel costs, and then frozen for another five years.

But the law allows the fuel factor to be adjusted to reflect market prices during both periods.

C-City PD investigates 2 accidents

Police investigated two traffic accidents on Aug. 16 and 24 in which no one was injured.

Investigator Charles Rice said a 1988 Oldsmobile driven by Beatrice Looney of 604 S. Main St. was in collision at 9:45 a.m. Wednesday, Aug. 16, in the 1600 block of Hickory Street with a 1993 Chevrolet pickup driven by Johnny Gonzales of 319 E. 18th St.

The northbound Oldsmobile and southbound pickup collided when the Oldsmobile turned left, he said.

"On Thursday, Aug. 24, a collision occurred on the Colorado High School parking lot," Officer Rice reported.

"A 2000 Pontiac driven by Brandon Hoback was stopped in a traffic lane when a parked and unattended 1995 Ford pickup owned by Sammy Calvio of 200 E. 15th St. rolled into the side of the Pontiac."

TDCJ facts, fiction are separated

By Mac Stringfellow,
Chairman, Texas Board of Criminal Justice

There are many misconceptions about the Texas Department of Criminal Justice (TDCJ).

First and foremost is that TDCJ is the state's prison system.

Granted, the prison system makes up a large portion of the agency, but there are many other areas of equal importance.

The Texas Department of Criminal Justice also operates the state jail system and parole supervision and provides funding and certain oversight of adult probation, which is now known as community supervision.

Myth -- The Texas Board of Criminal Justice (TBCJ) and the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles (BPP) are one and the same.

Fact -- The TBCJ consists of nine members, appointed by the governor, to oversee the agency, TDCJ. The TBCJ sets rules and policy for the agency and sets standards for community supervision and parole supervision services.

Fact -- The BPP is an 18 member board, also appointed by the governor, with three primary functions, 1) to approve or deny the release of eligible offenders, 2) to impose special conditions or sanctions on a parolee and 3) to revoke an offender's parole due to a technical or criminal violation.

Myth -- The Texas Board of Criminal Justice members are paid employees of the state.

Fact -- The only compensation TBCJ members receive is reimbursement for travel expenses to agency related business, provided they make that claim. These people provide their services on their own time and with their own money.

Myth -- Any and all offenders are sent to TDCJ.

Fact -- County jails and juvenile supervision do not fall under the agency's review. The Commission on Jail Standards manages county jails while the Texas Youth Commission governs the juvenile justice system.

Myth -- TDCJ consists of only prisons.

Fact -- Prisons are only part of the agency. There are four major divisions, the Community Justice Assistance Division, or adult probation, the Institutional Division, or prisons, and the Parole and State Jail Divisions.

Myth -- Offenders watch television all day.

Fact -- Television is a privilege and is only available in dayrooms, except at one unit. Every eligible offender either works or attends school or does both. On the average, 73 percent of offenders work every day while approximately 21 percent attend school. A typical day begins anywhere from 3:30 a.m. to 6 a.m.

Myth -- The units are air conditioned.

Fact -- Only the prison hospital and psychiatric units are air conditioned.

Myth -- Victims have no voice in the criminal justice system.

Fact -- In 1997, the Victim Services Division was established within TDCJ, offering services such as the Crime Victim Clearinghouse, a valuable resource for information, victim-offender mediation and dialogue and conducting victim awareness and victim sensitivity training.

The Back Forty

Education is the hot-button issue for this presidential campaign. One candidate thinks he invented education, another says school funding is his top priority, and a third wants to build a one-room school for every kid in America.

Everyone is on the bandwagon. The only people not in favor of more education are the kids.

I don't know where Congress and the presidential candidates expect to get all of that money, but they sure make a lot of promises with it.

That's the problem with education today. Everybody wants to throw money at it.

A major goal for state and federal governments is to reduce the disparity between richer school districts and poorer districts. The U.S. General Accounting Office reports rich districts spend 24 percent more per pupil than poor districts.

Most of the rich districts are in urban areas, and most of the poor districts are rural. So what does that tell us?

You can't give rural school districts the same funding as urban districts. Rural people aren't used to spending that much money.

They don't call these rich schools and poor schools, though. That would be in bad taste.

The school I attended was declared a "low wealth" district several years ago. I'm not sure what that means, but all those poor people around there might have something to do with it.

Soon after the district was declared low wealth, the board got a big grant to build a new elementary school. That confirms what my teachers always said, "There's nothing wrong with being poor."

Nobody knew we were "low wealth" when I was a kid. We just knew the first string got uniforms and the rest of us were shirts or skins.

I remember when our school got big enough to have a football team. The skinny kids were the only ones who got pads. The coach figured the chubby ones had all they needed.

Our teachers tried to protect us from the grim reality of our financial condition. They never talked about money the way people do today.

Any reference to money was couched in a parable of some sort. My third grade teacher was especially good at this.

"You farm kids won't ever have to worry about jobs or money," she would say. "Whenever you get hungry, you can just go out and kill a pig."

We didn't swallow that entirely. "What happens when we run out of pigs?" we asked.

I think of my old teachers when business is slow or my computer is busted. In times of stress I tell myself, "I may have to tighten my belt and cut back on expenses; but at least I won't have to go out and kill a pig."

The Language in Movies

By Tumbleweed Smith

I don't know about you, but I've had it up to here with the poor level of cussing in movies. It is not creative. I have friends who have turned profanity into an art.

It is common these days in movies to hear the same three cuss words repeated at least six thousand times during the one hundred minute movie.

Come on, Hollywood. If you must use that kind of language, please work on it a little bit. Go to some web site that deals in this sort of thing and learn a few new words.

When Clark Gable uttered the words, "Frankly, my dear, I don't give a damn," in GONE WITH THE WIND, he had no idea what he was unleashing on the theater-going public. The producers of that movie had to pay some language-screening board $5,000 to use the word.

Boy! Just think if today's movie makers had to pay that kind of fee to use cuss words. The price of movie making would increase to astronomical heights.

Maybe a tax on cuss words in films might not be a bad idea. The proceeds would go to rehabilitate young prisoners who were put behind bars because they learned about the hard life through movies.

I sort of wanted to see Jim Carey's latest movie. When I got to the box office, I saw a disclaimer posted on the window. The theater management was apologizing for the rough language in the film, and was showing it only because of a contractual obligation.

I decided not to see it.

I remember seeing the movie MASH years ago. I expected to hear profanity in that movie because I am an Army veteran and heard that exact same language while I was in uniform. The cussing in MASH didn't bother me. In fact, I laughed in several places because I identified with it and thought the film presented a true picture of how things were in the military at that time.

Movie cussing does not reflect the language we hear in everyday activities. Unless you hang around with criminals or gang members who like to shoot guns and blow up things.

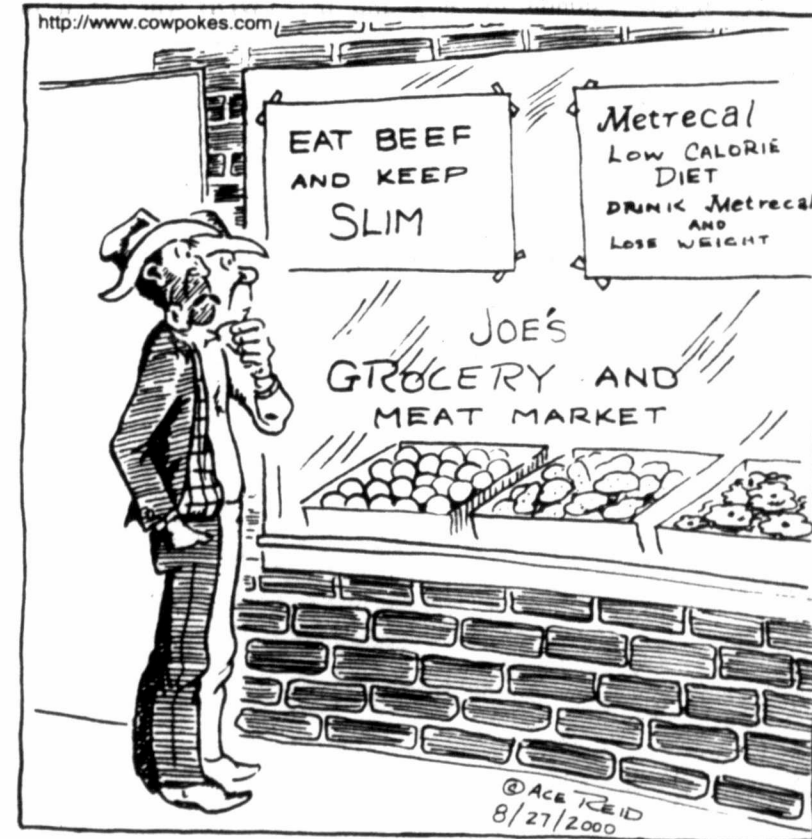

The military used to be the place where new weapons of war were developed. The way the movies have so much violence in them, I wonder if Hollywood has taken over that chore of introducing new instruments of destruction.

And while I'm ranting and raving, it's an uncomfortable feeling to see on the screen a man and a woman who in years past showed their first attraction to each other by a kiss now in bed together moments after meeting.

Movie makers try to shock, to see what they can get away with. We all know they can get away with anything. By trying to shock us they have desensitized us to where explosions and death and raw sex don't shock us anymore. I think it all started with language.

Water plan hearings slated in San Angelo

The draft water plan for the Region F Regional Water Planning Area has been completed and hearings will be held on September 5th in San Angelo and September 6th in Odessa to receive public comment, according to John Grant, Region F chairman.

The meetings will be conducted Tuesday, September 5, at 6:00 pm at the Texas A&M Research and Extension Center, 7887 U.S. Highway 87 North in San Angelo; and the next day, Wednesday, September 6, at 6 pm at the UTPB Center for Energy and Economic Diversification, 1400 North FM 1788 in Odessa. The hearings are one of the final steps in the development of a water plan for the future of the 32-county region.

"In June 1997, Governor George Bush signed Senate Bill 1 into law, mandating that the Texas Water Development Board take the lead in development of a comprehensive state water plan," Grant said. "The TWDB divided the state into 16 regional planning areas, and selected individuals in each region representing different interest groups to actually prepare the plan for their region."

Grant said that the "bottom up" method recognizes that the people in each region, representing groups like municipalities, agriculture, small businesses, water districts, river authorities, utilities, industry and environmental groups are best equipped to understand the issues in their geographic area.

"Given the state's vulnerability to drought, and the fact that Texas' population is expected to almost double by the year 2050, water development, conservation and drought planning are essential to the state," Grant said. He noted that the plan is to be updated every five years.

Region F is composed of the counties of Andrews, Borden, Brown, Coke, Coleman, Concho, Crane, Crockett, Ector, Glasscock, Howard, Irion, Kimble, Loving, Martin, Mason, McCulloch, Menard, Midland, Mitchell, Pecos, Reagan, Reeves, Runnels, Schleicher, Scurry, Sterling, Sutton, Tom Green, Upton, Ward and Winkler.

"The Region F group has been meeting, working and conducting studies and public meetings since March of 1998 to compile a comprehensive overview of water supplies and plans for the wise use of those resources," Grant said. The group's tasks included identifying and quantifying both available and potential water resources, projecting future water demand, identifying threats to natural resources and planning for development of water supplies and drought contingencies.

The chairman said that the two major Region F problems identified in the draft plan were the shortage of water available for irrigated agriculture in some of the counties, and regulations the Environmental Protection Agency may adopt pertaining to radio nuclei in public water supplies that could eliminate the Hickory Aquifer as a regional water source.

"Radio nuclei is present in water from the aquifer, located primarily in McCulloch County," Grant said. "If the EPA rules are stringent, several communities in the area may be forced to discontinue municipal use of the water."

Grant said it is vital that the plan be as complete and correct as possible, since its recommendations will be a key component in both regional and state-wide water planning.

The Texas Legislature will refer to the plan's recommendations when considering water issues and financial assistance, and the TWDB will use it in determining availability of low-interest loans to finance water supply projects.

The draft plan be viewed in the county clerk's offices and public libraries in each of the counties, as well as on the internet at www.freese.com/senbill1/regionf/index.htm. Grant said that oral and written comments from the hearings will be given consideration as the Region F plan is finalized.

Cave-in dangers reviewed

According to the Texas Workforce Commission, over 560,000 Texas workers were employed in the construction industry in June. The National Safety Council has rated excavation and trenching as the most hazardous jobs in the construction industry, reporting that cave-ins kill 300 workers annually and twice as many are so severely injured they cannot return to work. When a company fails to follow excavation safety regulations, OSHA may issue fines. Lawsuits from failure to follow OSHA safety regulations can be a major financial liability for a contractor.

The Texas Workers' Compensation Commission reminds employers and employees to exercise caution and employ safety measures to prevent injuries at an excavation site. A basic rule for excavation is, "plan your dig, then dig you plan." If you encounter something unplanned for - stop and replan.

Specific OSHA requirements regarding excavation can be found in the Code of Federal Regulations (CFR), section 29, subsection 1926.651, and cover such considerations as: surface encumbrances; underground utilities; access and egress; exposure to vehicular traffic; exposure to falling loads; warning systems; hazardous atmospheres; water accumulation hazards; stability of adjacent structures; loose rock and soil protection; inspections; and fall protection.

The Texas Workers' Compensation Commission offers resources to help employers prevent trenching and shoring injuries. Free training materials and video loans are available through the Safety and Health Resource Center at 512-804-4620 or by email at Resource-Center@twcc.state.tx.us. Employers can request a free on-site safety consultation by calling 1-800-687-7080. Affordable on-site training can be provided by the Commission's professional trainers. For other health and safety information, visit the Commission's website at www.twcc.state.tx.us.

The purpose of a public meeting is to provide the opportunity to submit comments or to ask questions about the application. The TNRCC will hold a public meeting if the executive director determines that there is a significant degree of public interest in the application or if requested by a local legislator. A public meeting is not a contested case hearing.

Written public comments or requests for public meeting must be submitted to the Office of the Chief Clerk, MC 105, TNRCC, P.O. Box 13087, Austin, TX 78711-3087.

ADDITIONAL NOTICE. After technical review of the application is complete, the executive director may prepare a draft permit and will issue a preliminary decision on the application. If comments are received, the mailing will also provide instructions for requesting reconsideration of the executive director's decision and for requesting a contested case hearing. A contested case hearing is a legal proceeding similar to a civil trial in a state district court.

A contested case hearing will only be granted based on disputed issues of fact that are relevant and material to the Commission's decision on the application. Further, the Commission will only grant a hearing on issues that were raised during the public comment period and not withdrawn. The TNRCC may act on an application to renew a permit for discharge of wastewater without providing an opportunity for a contested case hearing if certain criteria are met.

INFORMATION. If you need more information about this permit application or the permitting process, please call the TNRCC Office of Public Assistance, Toll Free, at 1-800-687-4040. General information about the TNRCC can be found at our web site at www.tnrcc.state.tx.us.

HOSPITAL

Williford recommended the company's offer of 5.5322 percent, which provides a lower than expected annual payment of $606,015 for the hospital district.

He said an interest rate of no better than 5.9 percent was forecast just a few months ago, with a $618,000 annual payment "so the timing played very well for us."

The executive said the deal will close on Oct. 3 after a 30 day review by the attorney general of Texas and the money will immediately be delivered in time for construction to start in November.

The project at Rogers Road and the South Interstate 20 Access Road, northeast of the Wallace-Ware Units, is scheduled to take 11 months.

Hospital Administrator Rick Rickard said the district expects to use $1.2 million of its $3 million in reserves to cover site preparation work and expand some rooms in the hospital and doctors' clinic.

Austin architect Robert Cox taped plans to the north wall of the board room, saying all department heads have been consulted.

He said the clinic's examination room has been enlarged from eight by 10 to 10 by 12 feet, and the 30 10 by 12 foot rooms in the in patient building will offer more than 20 more square feet of floor space than most rooms in the old hospital.

Cox and Project Manager Bob Wallace of Lockhart, near Austin, have been fielding preliminary inquiries from general contractors throughout the state and from as far away as Madison, Wis., Atlanta, Ga., and Phoenix, Ariz.

"Your project is so attractive that I think you'll see tremendous competition on it," he said.

"The area companies are not going to want to see Atlanta, Ga., doing this in their backyard."

He said the bids will probably be in by early October, and Rickard said after the meeting that a special meeting might be called then to award a bid.

Other business at the 6 p.m. regular meeting, at which board member Kenneth Rogers was 25 minutes late, included approval of the district's 2000-2001 budget and, on a split vote, the property tax rate.

The budget is increasing from $11,202,621 in the fiscal year ending Aug. 31 to $11,630,717.

Board member Shirley Clifton moved to leave the tax rate as it is at 39.6 cents per $100 in valuation, seconded by Rogers.

In a voice vote called by Board President Kent Boyd, Dale Geiger and Lee Roy Miller Jr. voted "no" and were overridden by Corky Houston, Larry DeBusk, Rogers and Ms. Clifton.

Leaving the rate the same will produce almost five percent more revenues in the coming year because oil property valuations have risen.

The board held a public hearing on the rate last Thursday night that no one but board members and hospital officials attended.

Rickard's annual evaluation was begun in an executive session that ran from 8:05 to 8:45 p.m., after which the board reconvened, took no action and adjourned at 8:48.

Boyd said afterwards that it had insufficient information to complete the evaluation and will take it up again at a future meeting.

Rickard is in the midst of a three year contract that pays him about $94,000 a year, a third of that for his services as a pharmacist.

The contract will expire in April 2002 if it is not extended before then.

City National Bank's contract as the district's depository institution was extended for another two years.

CNB President Royce D. Clay and First National Bank President Mark Waldrip attended the meeting to tender their respective bids with CNB offering .55 basis points over the three month Treasury Bill rate and First National .24.

Comptroller Brad Burnett recommended the CNB bid because it offers a higher interest rate on deposits.

The board heard a report on the Rural Health Clinic on South Main Street in Loraine and voted to continue operations there on a month to month basis, paying a $500 a month building rent and utilities.

Ernestine Odell and Lovess Curlee were accepted as new members of the Hospital Auxiliary, and a licensed vocational nurse's scholarship was approved for former HealthStyles program massage therapist Carmen Whitesides.

Stenholm tries to avoid urbanization of district

LUBBOCK -- The impetus of Texas congressional redistricting would ordinarily be to push U. S. Rep. Charles Stenholm's 17th District east toward Fort Worth and Dallas to pick up more constituents. But leaders of the State Redistricting Committee were told at a hearing here Friday that Rep. Stenholm, who represents Mitchell County, does not want that because it would change the character of his district from rural to urban.

Mark Lundgren of Stamford, Rep. Stenholm's district manager, told the CCR after the 11 a.m. hearing in the International Culture Center at Texas Tech University that the congressman prefers to take in more territory to the south or west.

Stenholm, a Democrat, represents the northern halves of Tom Green County and San Angelo now and would like to have the whole county.

Mitchell County is expected to stay in the 17th District.

The hearing was presided over by House Redistricting Chairman Delwin Jones of Lubbock and Senate Redistricting Co-Chairmen Mario Gallegos of Houston and Troy Fraser of Marble Falls, who also represents Mitchell County.

Stenholm currently represents 556,000 people, and his constituency will be expanded to about 639,000.

He does not want to go farther east than Mineral Wells and Palo Pinto County, and he would not mind picking up Tahoka and Lynn County because he has represented them in the past, Lundgren said.

He said that with the southern half of Tom Green County being in San Antonio Republican Rep. Lamar Smith's 21st District, many San Angeliots do not know who their congressman is.

"Our concern is that, Democrat or Republican, you need to keep a rural seat representing rural people," Lundgren said.

"If you go east into the Metroplex, it would more than likely become a metropolitan seat.

"It's going to be interesting."

"With Lubbock and Amarillo, it's going to be tight to get enough people up there to make those numbers work for District 13 and Larry Combest's district."

He referred to Republican Congressman Mac Thornberry of Amarillo, whose 13th District reaches more than 100 miles south to include party of East Lubbock, and Rep. Combest, a Republican who represents the 19th District.

Lundgren said Rep. Stenholm is also not averse to going west toward Midland, where the 17th District abuts the 23rd District of San Antonio Rep. Henry Bonilla.

He said interest in redistricting appears to be high because there were good crowds at the Lubbock hearing and at one two months ago in Abilene.

the weekend were Wen and Mary Reed of Ft. Worth and Mike and Rhonda Keller of Sweetwater.

Bea Lee and daughter, Billie Rutherford of Lubbock did some visiting at Spur, Texas then Bea will stay with Billie for a while in Lubbock.

Diane Sanders had family members visit last weekend from Hobbs, New Mexico, daughter Phyllis and son-in-law Don and granddaughter Sara Wilson. On Monday, the children were to go to Midland to keep a Dr.'s appointment.

Last week Margaret Brames' daughter, Debbie Zabica, her husband and their son Josh visited with her earlier they all had lunch at the center.

"Senior Center"

Last Friday, the center was covered in garage sale items from the front door to the back.

People began dropping by to see and buy before the sale even began on Saturday.

We are grateful to everyone who donated items, bought things and to those who helped with it.

The undertaking was a huge success and the proceeds will go toward our nutritional program.

The Big Spring line dancers whooped it up Monday. Sweetwater line dancers came over as well so there was a whole lot of shaking going on.

Gus Armstrong bought a lot of books at the sale. He is an avid reader.

Visiting with Irene Kidd over the weekend were her children Jean and Clovis Hale from Austin.

Guests in the home of Bertha Fay Snyder Monday were Ruth Eaton and her granddaughter, Mitzi Davis, both from San Angelo. Ruth Mitzi and Bertha Fay had lunch at the center Monday and visited with other friends. Ruth is now residing at a nursing care facility in San Angelo now.

"Just in Fun"

A New Yorker stopped in a southern state in the dead of December to see a "live nativity" scene in the city square. Moved by its beauty, but curious about the three men in red firemen's helmets, he stopped at a store to get an explanation.

The cashier looked at him in disgust and said, "ya'll don't listen to scripture at all, or you'd know that it says", Three wise men came from a far."

Take care and see you around town.

By Bessie Ann Vaughn

Greetings. Does your age bother you? Now that I have my big 70, I do think of it more.

I'm older than most everybody; the banker, my doctor, the doctor's nurse, my ophthalmologist and his nurse, the dentist and his nurse, my employers, the mayor, the president of the United States, etc.

Having another birthday reminds me of the old joke, "having some Halitosis are you? Well, that's better than having no breath at all!"

Visiting Elba Evans and having plans to attend the funeral of Neva Harmon were Mr. and Mrs. Christian Siebenhausen and sons, Christian and James, Mr. and Mrs. David Harmon, Sydney and Samantha Sawyer, Mr. and Mrs. Scott Crabtree, Cal and Madelyn, all from Greenville, TX.

Doris and Tharon Henderson recently visited with Wright Hock at Kristi Lee Manor. For visitation or a card, Wright is in room #309.

John, Ann and Chris Lee from Briscoe, Texas attended the reunion of the Miles family recently. Later, they visited with George Lee and spent the night with him.

We want to send condolences to Millie Rose and family as Clint Rose passed away Thursday, August 24. Clint was residing in Ft. Worth at the time of his death.

Visiting with Irene Kidd over the weekend were her children Jean and Clovis Hale from Austin.

She also competed in the Yearling Long Line Futurity with her yearling gelding.

R. Morris represents Texas on All-Star team

Robin Morris, a sophomore at Colorado High School was recently selected to represent Texas as a Wrangler All Star team member. The Wrangler All Star team comprises 150 outstanding American Quarter Horse Youth Association (AQHYA) members from across the United States and promotes a sense of camaraderie among youth while promoting upstanding moral character. AQHYA Wrangler All Star Team members are selected by the official AQHA Youth Affiliate Advisor based on their participation in AQHYA events, the Wrangler Star Program, academic venues and community service.

lished on the premise of expanding youth participation in and knowledge of the American Quarter Horse. Jameson recruited for WTC

Colorado City native, Margaret Ann Jameson, was recently recruited as a team member for the Western Texas College rodeo team in Snyder, Texas.

Jameson earned honors as the THSRA goat tying champion, a member of the Wrangler National All-Star Rodeo team, and vice president of AJRA. She was also the secretary and goat tying director for Region II THRA and a member of Who's Who Among American High School Students.

At Western Texas, she will compete with the squad which won the women's national title and came close to the men's crown last year. After such a successful year, WTC rodeo coach, Greg Rhodes says he searched for competitors who could keep WTC in the upper tier of college rodeo teams.

"I'm very pleased with our recruits," said Rhodes. "Their addition to the group of returnees that we have should make us strong again this year."

Competition for the team gets underway September 28 with the season opener at Sul Ross University in Alpine, Texas.

LORRAINE STUDENTS OF THE WEEK are (l-r) Dominic Vanderpool, Michael Walker, Kody Hurst and Brittany Holmes.

Childhood depression affects 10-15% of U.S. population

As children start the school year and are forced to give up their summer routines of late-night television and afternoons filled with water games or hanging out with friends, they may at first, act out of sorts.

But if the behavior continues for weeks, it could spell a different problem.

As parents, how do you decipher between the angst of growing pains - new classmates, different teachers, transition to a new school - and difficulties of a more grand scale? Deep-rooted emotional problems aren't limited to an 'Adults Only' diagnosis.

Childhood clinical depression affects between 10 and 15 percent of children and adolescents, according to the U.S. Surgeon General. School phobia - when children are extremely fearful of attending school - is more rare but is estimated to affect about 2 to 5 percent of school-aged children.

Most children experience some form of stress at the beginning of school, but it usually passes quickly or just appears before certain events - a test or cheerleading tryouts, Big Spring State Hospital Activities Director Gail Zilai said. Children who "can't seem to snap out of it" may be clinically depressed.

Divorce, a new school or the death of a loved one can affect a child's behavior for many years after the event, said Zilai, a licensed therapist.

"Many of us think that a child is able to get over a troubling event quickly, but that's not the case," she said. "We shouldn't dismiss how they feel, and we should recognize when they are hurting. A lot of times they will tell us they're OK and we believe it because it's uncomfortable for us to think our children aren't happy."

A staggering two-thirds of children with mental health problems do not receive treatment.

Children do give their parents signals that the stress may be evolving into clinical depression. They may be irritable at first, which can lead to outbursts of aggressive behavior.

- Other signs are:
- Lower grades.
 - Changes in eating and sleeping habits.
 - More trips to the office or nurse, complaining of headaches and stomachaches.
 - Constant criticism of themselves or believing that others are criticizing them.
 - Lack of energy and motivation about school, friends, activities or personal hygiene and appearance.
 - No sense of future for themselves.
 - Persistent sadness and hopelessness.

• Excessive absences.

Occasionally, but not always depression can lead to school phobia, sometimes referred to as school avoidance and school refusal in the professional literature, Zilai said. This usually occurs between the ages of six to 13 years of age. "These are children who refuse to attend or avoid school to stay in close contact with parents," Zilai said. "They are frequently anxious and fearful and inundated with thoughts, such as 'What are the kids thinking of me?' or 'I need to be at home to protect my family.'"

Children who did well at school may develop school phobia because of a recent crisis in the community or family, which makes them anxious or fearful. Others may develop it following a long illness or surgery where they're accustomed to staying home. Those most likely to suffer from school phobia are sensitive, overactive boys and girls who are unable to deal with their emotions, Zilai said.

Parents should try to find out if something is causing the problem, such as a test at school or a bully who is making their life miserable. Sitting down the teacher or counselor can usually help the child."

A parent's strongest resource is being aware of how long the behaviors have occurred.
