Lubbock Battles Amarillo For Grid Title Today

Banker Fights Armed Bandit; Halts Robbery

Cotulla Man Is Arrested For Bold Attempt To Rob Bank; Cries For Help Bring Aid To Unarmed Official

Death Threatened

Threatening Note Presented; Suspicions Aroused Through Actions Of Man; Constable Hurries To Rescue

(By The Associated Press)

SAN ANTONIO, Dec. 2.—Charles H. Reagan, 35, Cotulla, was remanded to jail without bond, after he had waived a hearing of a charge of attempted robbery by assault with firearms on Adolph Groos, banker, today.

Reagan, said to be married and an automobile dealer at Cotulla, was arrested in the Groos National bank. He is alleged to have presented a note to Groos demanding $15,000 on pain of death. Groos leaped on the visitor and while he struggled with him the arrest was made. Reagan has refused to make any statements.

Identification Made

According to testimony taken by James Young, assistant district attorney, Reagan left Cotulla early this morning by rail for San Antonio. Arno Meyer, taxi driver, identified Reagan as the man who was picked up near the Missouri Pacific station by Meyer shortly after 9:30 and driven to the Groos National bank.

District Attorney Walter Tynan said that Reagan for many years had been identified with the San Antonio automobile trade and formerly held responsible local positions.

According to the banker's version of the attempted robbery, the whole affair lasted possibly only one minute.

Hand In Pocket

"His right hand was in his overcoat pocket," Groos said, "and with his left hand he unfolded a newspaper and spread it down on my desk. Inside the newspaper was a

Future Is Bright For Young Bandit

AMARILLO, Dec. 2. (AP)—The future looks brighter for John Loviesky, 19, Amarillo's "toy pistol bandit."

Loviesky, who recently was convicted on charges of robbing Dr. C. O. Hess, was tried today for assault with intent to rob a confectionary proprietor and was given a two-year suspended sentence.

His five-year sentence in the former case was set aside when Dan McGrath, local attorney, volunteered to file motion for new trial.

Bond was set at $1,000 and Dr. Hess, the victim, signed it.

Trial was postponed until the next term of court.

November Holidays Offer A Boost To Marriage Markets

November holidays — Armistice and Thanksgiving—proved an additional incentive to persons marrying in Lubbock county last month, records of Amos H. Howard, county clerk, show.

Last month, 46 persons gave notice of intention to marry, as compared with 18 in October. Nineteen marriage licenses were issued in November and twelve in October.

December is getting off to a good start, three notices of intention being made Wednesday.

Professor Einstein Plans To Spend Ten Weeks In U. S.

BERLIN, Dec. 2. (AP)—Professor Albert Einstein and Frau Einstein who are on their way to Los Angeles on the steamer Portland, expect to visit the United States for ten weeks, it was learned today.

They will arrive in Los Angeles on December 29 said sources close to the family, who asked that names be withheld lest the professor resent the revelation.

PLAY AT TEMPLE

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 2. (AP)—The Simmons university cowboy band from Abilene, Texas, played at the Four Square Gospel temple of Aimee Semple McPherson here tonight.

Didn't Feel It

Giles W. Garner, above, Snyder ranchman, is one man in a million. He lived for the last six months with a broken neck and didn't even feel it. Injured in an auto crash last May, he apparently recovered and only recently when he experienced pains in his neck did he learn that it was broken. This startling discovery was made upon a visit to Lubbock.

Xmas Trippers Find Interest In Four Towns

Cities Promise Delegations To Santa Claus Celebration To Be Staged In Lubbock On December 11

Townspeople of Abernathy, Hale Center, Plainview and Olton Wednesday received an invitation from Lubbock to attend the Christmas pageant here Friday, Dec. 11.

Interest and enthusiasm for the unusual spectacle was expressed in the towns visited by a committee of four from the chamber of commerce public relations committee. Making the trip were Charles A. Guy, T. C. Meinecke, Bert Pinson and J. H. Brock.

Conferences Held

Approximately 20 people, representing Olton, conferred with the Lubbock group at Olton courthouse and a committee from the Plainview Chamber of Commerce discussed the pageant with the visitors. Many people from all the places visited are planning to come to Lubbock December 11, it was said.

A similar trip to towns southeast of here was postponed until Friday because a member of the group which will make the trip was held here by business. Slaton, Southland, Post and possibly other towns will be visited.

Canvass Underway

The committeemen are seeking bands for competitive appearance in the parade and pageant sponsored by the Avalanche-Journal.

A canvass of Lubbock business houses to ask them to contribute for prizes to be awarded floats and out-of-town bands in the Christmas parade got under way today following a meeting at 9 o'clock Wednesday at chamber of commerce offices of a finance committee on the pageant. J. D. Hassell, jr., is

Local Delegates Return To City Following Conference

After discussing the relative merits of concrete and asphalt paving and costs of each type, members of a local delegation which went to Austin early this week to protest asphalt paving of highway 7 in Lubbock county returned Wednesday and reported they were satisfied with letting of contract by the state for asphalt and caliche improvement of the road through Shallowater.

Going to Austin were Commissioners L. C. Denton and J. T. Pinkston and J. H. Hankins and Joe Bowman. Rich beds of caliche in West Texas counties make cost of this type of improvement, with an asphalt topping, economical, it was pointed out. The commission also reported, according to a statement written Wednesday by Mr. Denton, that concrete is not proving entirely satisfactory in West Texas because it buckles and cannot be maintained cheaply.

City Tax Collections Show Increase During November

City tax collections for November increased slightly over October collections, R. A. Holland tax collector reported Wednesday.

Collections last month, both current and delinquent, totaled $12,556.24, and for October the total was $12,161.60. The November total was divided as follows: Current, $7,234.02, and delinquent, $5,322.22. The collections for November, 1930, however were considerably heavier than for this past month. One year ago the November total was $8,013.15 and $11,269.25 for delinquent taxes.

Home Building Is Keynote Of Hoover Speech

President Urges Easy Plan To Aid Home Owners Free From Terms And Risks Comparable To Pawn Credit

Problem Pressing

Home Owning Is Linked With Good Government; Problem Cited By Chief As Weakest Link In Chain

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2. (AP)—President Hoover tonight urged that some way be found for men to buy their homes on an easy installment plan free from "terms and risks comparable to the credit extended by a pawnbroker."

The chief executive asked a search for such a means in welcoming 1,000 delegates to his conference on home building and home ownership.

Find No Solution

Addressing the opening session, with Secretary Lamont beside him, he asserted building and loan associations had so far found no solution. He suggested that installment purchase be applied to homes upon the same terms as fur coats and radios, with initial payments as low as 20 per cent. He linked home owning with good government.

"There is a wide distinction between homes and mere housing," Mr. Hoover said. "Those immortal ballads, Home, Sweet Home, My Old Kentucky Home and the Little Gray Home in the West, were not written about tenements or apartments. They never sing songs about a pile of rent receipts."

Is Weakest Link

The president asserted flatly tonight he believed the problem of home building finance was the

Melvin A. Traylor Booed By Chicago Tax Strikers

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 2. (AP)—Almost one thousand real estate tax payers of Chicago today booed the assertion of Melvin A. Traylor, Chicago banker who yesterday addressed the legislature, that it would be impossible to fund 1930 taxes in Chicago as the bonds could not be sold. They paraded as "tax strikers" after a protest meeting.

Styled by their leaders, the "cream of Chicago tax strikers" they assembled in the state arsenal this afternoon, heard several speakers, and then paraded Springfield's streets.

Heavy Snows Blanket Areas In New Mexico; Lines Down

ROSWELL, N. M., Dec. 2. (AP)—Southeastern New Mexico today lay under snow ranging from twelve inches at Roswell to twenty two inches at Carlsbad and snow still was falling.

For thirty six hours Carlsbad and Artesia have been cut off from telephone and telegraph communication, although linemen for the companies have been working constantly to restore service. Telegrams to Carlsbad have been sent for nearly two days by train from Roswell.

TEXARKANA, Ark., Dec. 2. (AP)—Entering the Miller county circuit court today to listen to a trial, Johnnie Bryant, 20, of Texarkana, Texas, was arrested on an indictment charging store robbery. Bryant had returned home only a few days ago and did not know he was under indictment.

Opposing Mentors Look For Toughest Game Of Season On Tech Field Today

"We Don't Expect A Set-Up Tomorrow," States Cherry

BLAIR CHERRY, head mentor of the Golden Sandstorm, put his 30 charges to bed last night with instructions to dream about batting down or intercepting Lubbock passes. The Sandies also had instructions to concentrate on the open-type football they are slated to play today.

"We are here with the intention of giving the Westerners our best game of the year," Cherry said last night.

Toughest Battle

"We didn't defeat the real Westerner club at Amarillo last week; all of us feel that we face the toughest battle of the season," Cherry continued. "Our team is young and every young team is capable of one or two superb games a season. The one last week was that kind.

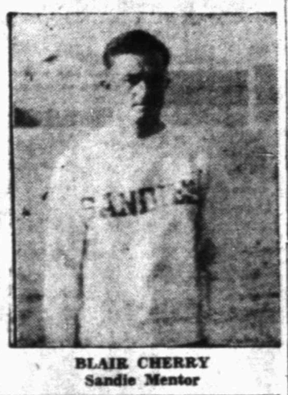
"However, some phases of our attack were not shown Thanksgiving day, and Amarillo really has a more wide-open ball club than Lubbock saw last week.

To Be Wide-Open

"That game will be wide-open and heads-up from start to finish. Lubbock has a lot of football tossing in their system and we are looking for it tomorrow. My boys are not expecting any set-up either. They have turned in a good game every time they have played this year, and you can look for them to play that way Thursday.

"They just now are beginning to coordinate their playing, their plays are better timed. We are shooting for yardage when it counts—and it's going to be a wide open game."

WELDON CHAPMAN
Westerner Coach



BLAIR CHERRY
Sandie Mentor

"We Have A Chance And We'll Fight," Says Chapman

"WE have a chance, a mighty slim chance, but we're going to fight like the devil to make it count for everything that's in it."

And that's about all Coach Weldon B. Chapman of the Lubbock High school Westerners had to volunteer last night following the final workout before the team meets Amarillo's Golden Sandstorm this afternoon.

Sees Little Hope

Coach Chapman, not a pessimistic man by nature, appears to see little hope for a victory. "If we can score on them and keep them from scoring too much, we shall have done a day's work," he said. He was talking about the Sandies

Chapman was somewhat pleased with the workout yesterday at Fair Park, the first outdoor work the Westerners have done since the game with Pampa Monday, but he would hazard no guess as to the possible outcome of the game nor would he indicate the possibility of Lubbock's ability to win over the vaunted Sandies.

Worried By Injuries

Injuries sustained by Gene Barnett and Captain Bob Crawford have worried the Westerner mentor since Monday Barnett sprained an ankle on the same foot which was broken in an earlier game and is none too spry to go into the game with Amarillo. Crawford suffers an injured thumb.

Pressed by questions, Coach Chapman suggested that the Westerners would have a more even chance due to the condition of the playing field, which is nice and dry under the canvas coverings. "But the muddy field was not all that defeated us at Amarillo," he said. "Amarillo has power and plenty of it. We've got a job to hold them under the score they made on their own field and maybe we can do a little better on a dry field."

Signs Of Strife Appearing In Ranks Of Democratic Leaders

Steering Committee To Direct Legislative Policy Planned By Three Members; Others Express Disapproval

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON Dec. 2.—Signs of strife appeared in Democratic house ranks today as three influential members planned to demand creation of a steering committee to direct the legislative policy.

The sponsors are Representative Byrns of Tennessee, Crisp of Georgia, and Ayres of Kansas. They will propose at the Democratic caucus Saturday the forming of a committee of 11, including the speaker and leader. The remaining nine would be representative of the party's elements and would be elected by the caucus.

Appeal To Committee

Representative Garner of Texas, Democratic speakership choice, is known to be opposed to a steering committee. This issue will be the biggest before the caucus. The party's house members are virtually unanimous for Garner for speaker.

In addition, Representative Rainey of Illinois, is the lone candidate for

Lowell Sherman Says Wife Refused To Let Him Sleep

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 2. (AP)—Charging Helen Costello of the films applied objectionable epithets to him in the presence of Mae Murray and other motion picture folk, Lowell Sherman, film actor, today filed suit for divorce.

Sherman and Miss Costello, daughter of Maurice Costello and sister of Dolores Costello, were married March 15, 1930 and separated last November 1. Sherman said while he was engaged in playing an exacting role last May and June, Miss Costello became violently intoxicated almost every night and refused to let him sleep.

Piano Movers Will Act As Pall Bearers

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—A crew of piano movers and a special hoisting apparatus will be employed tomorrow for the funeral and burial of Charles Bush, 49, whose weight was 632 pounds.

Bush, died of fatty degeneration of the heart. He had been a butcher in Chicago many years.

A specially constructed casket weighing 408 pounds had been ordered before Bush's death. Tomorrow the casket, containing Bush's body, will be lifted with a block and tackle from a large second floor window of his home. Six men from a piano moving company will assist ten palibearers lift the 1,038 pound burden into the hearse.

Price Commissioner Is Seen By German Government Heads

BERLIN, Dec. 2. (AP)—Government authorities predicted today that a price commissioner having almost dictatorial powers over food costs will shortly be appointed.

President Paul Von Hindenburg, it was understood, will issue an emergency decree wiping out present wage agreements and substituting for them lower wage levels. The new scale of pay to labor will be conditioned on corresponding reductions by industry in the prices of articles of consumption.

Amarillo Telephone Problem Will Be Taken Up On Friday

AMARILLO, Dec. 2. (AP)—Negotiations for Amarillo's new telephone franchise will begin Friday, Mayor Ernest O. Thompson announced today.

The mayor said he was advised late today that attorneys for the Southwestern Bell Telephone company would arrive Friday to open negotiations.

Young Killer Seeks To Aid Suspect In Store Robbery

NEW YORK, Dec. 2. (AP)—From Sing Sing's death house, Francis Crowley, 20-year old killer of a policeman, was taken into court today and met unexpected opposition to his efforts to lift a prison sentence of 20 to 40 years from the shoulders of a young man who bears him a striking resemblance.

Crowley assumed full responsibility for a drug store holdup of last March for which Patrick O'Brien, 19, his "double," was convicted. "I wanted to help the kid—because he's innocent; just as innocent as he could be," said Crowley.

Unemployed Marchers Will Be Met By Police Officers

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2. (AP)—Unemployed marchers nearing the capital with demands upon President Hoover and congress for unemployment insurance will gain their first impression of Washington from the police.

Long before they reach the District of Columbia line police will meet the caravans, expected Saturday and Sunday.

They will be allowed to enter the city only over two specific routes. The police will be instructed to protect the rights of the marchers as well as to prevent any illegal or undue demonstration by them.

Suit Over Houston Paper Is Believed Settled Wednesday

HOUSTON, Dec. 2. (AP)—A suit involving control of the Houston Post Dispatch, descendant of one of the south's oldest newspapers, was settled out of court today.

Provided Governor Ross S. Sterling, the present publisher, approves today's actions, J. E. (Jack) Josey, insurance capitalist, and native Texan, will become owner of controlling interest in the paper.

Pampa Operator Is Assessed Three-Year Prison Sentence

PAMPA, Dec. 2. (AP)—Dawson P. Parker, linotype operator, was convicted of bigamy today and assessed a three-year sentence. Parker was married to a Pampa girl about a year ago. Testimony intended to show that he did not have a divorce from a previous marriage and that he had engaged in six matrimonial ventures was introduced.

Mayor James Walker Packs Bags For Return To Home

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 2. (AP)—With his pardon effort in behalf of Tom Mooney behind him, Mayor James J. Walker packed his trunks and bags today and prepared to return to New York.

His physician, Dr. John Galley, attended him again, but thought Walker had suffered no ill effects from his court room appearance yesterday, although his heavy cold continued to annoy him.

Genial Canvasser Pops Into Drug Store Suddenly, Man Spills Glass Of Water But Cash Is Forthcoming; Delicatessen Comes Next And Fund For Unemployed Grows Larger

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Now its Alfred E. Smith, canvasser. Puffing a black cigar but wearing a felt hat instead of the brown hard lid, the former governor trudged through his Greenwich Village neighborhood for the unemployed today.

Into I. L. Romanoff's drug store he popped so suddenly that an old gentleman sitting at the soda fountain spilled a glass of water on the ex-governor's trouser leg.

"I'm from the emergency unemployment fund," boomed Al's voice.

"I came to see if you wouldn't help out the hungry folks, Mr. Romanoff."

"I guess I can spare a fiver, governor," the druggist said.

To a delicatessen proprietor next door the approach was a little different.

"Your neighbor gave $5. What can you do?" Smith asked with a smile.

"Well, I guess I can double that," said the man.

"That's dandy. I always liked a delicatessen. It's the Lord's work, feeding people."

There were other donations, including $3 from a laundryman. And there were no refusals. It was a test of the house-to-house canvass possibilities of a city-wide committee Smith heads.

Cream Of Texas Football Will Be Offered Here As Two Teams Look To Honors In State Race

Special Train Carrying Sandie Fans Will Arrive At Noon Today And Parade Through Streets Will Follow; Game Is Called At 2:30; Amarillo Team Arrives On Wednesday

HIGHEST football award of District One hangs in the balance today as that unit's two best teams—the Lubbock Westerners and Amarillo's Golden Sandstorm—meet at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at Tech field.

The gridiron, on which from five to seven thousand people will watch a championship decided and the right won to seek additional honors in the state football race, is as dry as Lubbock fans and canvas covers could keep it.

The Sandies arrived in Lubbock at 9:50 o'clock last night, accompanied by a few fans, and the main delegation will arrive Thursday at 12:30 o'clock on a Santa Fe special train. Others will drive through.

Unless the weatherman has his fingers crossed, the sun will not see the game. Official forecast for Thursday calls for cloudy and unsettled weather.

Sale Is Brisk

More than 1,600 reserved seat tickets were sold late yesterday at Bowen's Hilton Pharmacy, approximately 1,000 tickets had been sold in Amarillo and ducats had been placed on sale to the high school students. Principal R. W. Matthews predicted 90 per cent of the student body would attend.

Owners of many local stores Wednesday agreed to close shop from 2 p. m. to 5:30 o'clock to enable their employes to see the game. High school students will be released from classes at noon to meet the incoming Amarillo special train.

The Amarilloans, assembling at the Santa Fe depot behind their 60-piece band and their pep squad, will march to the Hilton hotel, where they will be met by the local students. The Amarillo school board yesterday voted to pay fares for the band and pep squad.

Cars Meet Visitors

Courtesy cars taking the visitors to the game will begin arriving at the Hilton at 1 o'clock. The cars will arrive from the north on Texas avenue and pick up the Sandie fans on the south side of the hotel on Main street. The visitors will be returned to town after the game.

The special train probably will start the return trip to Amarillo about 7:30 o'clock, it was said yesterday.

It was a determined squad of Golden Sandies which arrived last night and took up headquarters at the Hilton hotel.

J. D. Boswell Is Arraigned In Shooting Of Negro At Dice Game; Bond, Not Yet Made, Is Set At $7,500

(By Staff Correspondent)

CROSBYTON, Dec. 2.—J. D. Boswell, prominent Crosbyton youth, today was placed under $7,500 bond on a charge of murder in connection with the slaying two weeks ago of T. C. Jackson, a negro, who was shot during the alleged holdup of a negro dice game near here.

Boswell was arraigned this afternoon before Justice A. A. Matchell. Durwood Bradley, district attorney and County Attorney Martin represented the state.

The justice of the peace set the bond at $7,500 after the district attorney had indicated a bond of $5,000 would be satisfactory to the state.

Farmers Plan To Can Many Calves

(By Staff Correspondent)

SPUD, Dec. 2.—Nearly 1,000 calves most of them milk fed steers from dairy herds, will be canned by Dickens county farmers during the winter. Already some farmers have started canning and after the holidays the work will become more general.

In a campaign staged last summer by the Spur Chamber of Commerce 610 calves were promised by 561 farmers. This figures represents only about two thirds of the total, it is estimated by Dewey Granberry, secretary.

Grady Lane, county agent and Miss Clara Pratt, home demonstration agent, have held six or seven beef killing demonstrations to show farmers how to kill and cure beef. Most of their time the next two months will be devoted to this work.

Hog killing is also included in the program. At least 1,000 hogs will be slaughtered and canned. The hams, shoulders and bacon will be cured and many entered in the Lubbock cured meat show in the spring.

Home canned meats will be standardised this winter, as well as cured meats.

Poultry Demonstrators At Spur Realize Good Profit

SPUR, Dec. 2. Four poultry demonstrators of the home demonstration clubs of the county averaged $1.17 per hen for the year just closed, in their demonstration work, Miss Clara Pratt, county home demonstration agent, reports.

The four women had 318 hens which produced 42,470 eggs during the year. The profit per hen was $1.17. Average egg production was 134.4 eggs per hen.

Mrs. Ed Martin, of Spur, had a flock that produced 171 eggs per hen during the year. She has white leghorns. The average of the flock of Mrs. H. L. Underwood of the Steel Hill club was 162 eggs per hen.

The women average 75 to 100 pullets that began laying this fall.

Lubbock!

Here we Come.....

Three thousand strong, we Amarilloans are invading your fair city Thursday. We've been living and breathing "Victory" for the past week, and we're dead set on seeing our Golden Sandies as District Champions.

We'll never concede the game until the last whistle has blown. But when and if defeat becomes a reality, you'll quickly learn there are no gamer losers in all the world than Amarillo folks. We're mighty glad to have an opportunity to visit the "Hub of the Plains," and we're proud of Lubbock because it is a part of this great country. Here we come, Lubbock, determined to win that football game. But win or lose, we hope Amarillo will always enjoy your esteemed friendship.

Town Of Santa Claus Is Planning For Greatest Christmas Rush In History

SANTA CLAUS, Ind., Dec. 2. (AP)—The little fourth-class postoffice in this town, five miles from a railroad station, is making plans for the greatest Christmas rush in its history.

Heretofore letters addressed by children to the patron saint of Christmas which found their way here have been the greatest problem of the postoffice staff, but this year outgoing mail will cause unprecedented congestion.

Direct-by-mail advertisers and firms which mail Christmas cards and gifts for clients have notified the postoffice department at Washington they plan extensive mailing from here this year so the lette's and packages will be postmarked "Santa Claus."

As a result, two special mailing machines capable of postmarking 40,000 letters per hour are being shipped here, and special clerks familiar with their operation will swell the postoffice staff.

This development in the growing popularity of Santa Claus, Ind., has caused reports that steps will be taken by postoffice officials at Washington to have the name of the office changed.

But this year the officials can only grin and bear it, and arrange for many more than the almost one million pieces of mail sent from here last year by people who first thought of the "Santa Claus" postmark idea.

John Deere Company Plans To Employ 1,000 Workers

WATERLOO, Ia., Dec. 2. (AP)—The John Deere Tractor company, will return to work 1,000 employes here December 7 on a two-day week basis.

The temporary manufacturing schedule was announced by Allen H. Head, vice-president.

"The men who will be asked to report have been selected carefully in an effort to extend the limited work to those needing it most," he said.

Former Tennesseans now in Oklahoma have formed an Oklahoma-Tennessee Murray for President club.

New Evidence In Death Unearthed

BOSTON, Dec. 2. (AP)—The Boston American in a copyrighted story says that as a result of new evidence discovered in the investigation of the death of Starr Faithful, whose body was washed ashore Long Island, N. Y., last June, two Boston men are sought as her slayers.

The newspaper advances the theory that in an argumnt the men beat the beautiful young woman unconscious and, believing her dead, threw her into the sea.

The American says the two men, whose names were not disclosed, were seen with the girl at a Long Beach, N. Y., cafe the day she disappeared. The newspaper advances the theory that the men demanded of the girl evidence with which they hoped to blackmail a prominent Bostonian who previously had paid the Faithful family a sum of money.

MAN INJURED

HARLINGEN, Dec. 2. (AP)—Mack Henderson of Pharr was in a Harlingen hospital with one buckshot in his left lung and two others in his back because he failed to stop when hailed on the highway near here by three men early this morning.

He was expected to recover. No arrests were made.

MEETING SUNDAY

DALLAS, Dec. 2. (AP)—The annual meeting of the Texas Daily Press League will be held here Sunday, President S. W. Papert announced that publishers of some 50 member papers would attend. A business session and a dinner were planned.

ELECTED DIRECTOR

SNYDER, (Special)—E. E. Kerr, superintendent of schools at Hermleigh, was elected director for the Scurry County Interscholastic league. He succeeds W. C. Hooks, of Dunn. Dates for the spring meets will be set early in 1932.

Motion pictures were used as evidence in a court case at Charlotte, N. C., for the first time in the state's history.

VETERAN JANITOR RESIGNS

TAHOKA, Dec. 2. (Special)—Tom Higgins, veteran janitor at the courthouse, is leaving January 1. The commissioners' court is planning a reduction in salary. His successor is not yet named.

Westerners Are Carving Football History For The Great South Plains!

And the confidence that has always pushed the great South Plains forward is placed in this fighting Lubbock High School football team.

They have confidence in themselves, and the condition of the weather will have nothing to do with the fighting spirit of the charging team of Lubbock youth.

The conditions under which they will play will be equal, a good sod field with the same kind of football equipment that is made for wet weather playing.

Lubbock High will go out to win and the hardest fought football game of the season will bring victory for the Westerners.

Westerners, again we assure you our confidence and support with The Plainsman and the thousands of Lubbock fans.

We wish to congratulate The Plainsman for the spirit in which he paid the debt to old Tack, famous columnist of the Amarillo Globe-News.

And on the day you clash with the Amarillo High—Lubbock people will live every minute and ever down with you, they will grit their teeth and fight for you—they will be out there on the football field rain, sleet, hail, blizzard or sunshine.

Stop And Think About Your Christmas Buying

For many this year, Christmas buying will be placed on a conservative basis, and still you want to bring comfort and good cheer to the whole family.

Or, may we ask this question? Who in your family does not ride in the family auto?

And if your automobile tires are doubtful there is nothing more economical and serviceable than a set of Goodrich Tires at the present world lowest prices.

With a set of new Goodrich Tires the safety over the winter icey roads is assured for the whole family and at the same time you have supplied yourself with a necessity.

Every car needs tires, and Goodrich Tires are 58% better with prices on an all time new low.

Special Christmas trade-in allowance that gives you more for your old tires.

Mesdames Watkins And Moxley Honor Recent Bride With Luncheon

Twenty-Five Are Guests For Lovely Affair On Wednesday

Mrs. John Keathley, Formerly Miss Kate Boyd, Is Named Honoree; Appointments Of Gold And Rose Used

Mrs. John A. Keathley, the former Miss Kate Boyd, was honored at a pretty luncheon given by Mrs. R. D. Moxley and Mrs. Winfield D. Watkins, jr., Wednesday afternoon at one o'clock in Mrs. Moxley's home at 1805 14th street.

A color scheme of gold and rose was used in appointments throughout the entertaining rooms.

The table in the dining room was covered with yellow and orchid damask and centered with a silver bowl of pink roses and yellow chrysanthemums. Mrs. Keathley and several of her girlhood friends were seated at this table. Corsages were yellow chrysanthemums and orchid sweet peas.

Five foursome tables were arranged in other rooms and each was centered with a silver bowl of flowers and laid with corsages as place favors.

Silver candlesticks on the buffet held white tapers.

The hostesses presented the honoree with a gift and she was presented a shower of glassware by the guests.

The guest list included Mesdames Dick Mims, H. G. Fehleison, Weldon Hankins, Rose McWhorter, Gaylord Hankins, John Dalrymple, A. V. Weaver, J. S. Johnson, Walter P. Jennings, T. B. Duggan, J. D. Hassell, Clarence Wiginton, J. H. Stiles, D. K. Bondurant, William Evans, L. E. Davis, Earl Collins, the honoree and Misses John Anna Boyd, Mary Lee Bardwell, Mary Allen, Dorothy Rushing, Catherine Jameson, Hazel Ligon and Anne Snyder.

Benefit Party Is For Church Group

Women in Circles one and four of the First Christian General Aid society attended a benefit tacky party at the church Tuesday evening.

Costuming of those who attended added much to the color of the party. Paper flowers and kerosene lamps were used in preparing the parlors for the affair.

Various games were played and refreshments were served.

Ross Edwards' orchestra played during the evening.

Mrs. T. A. White Is To Be In Charge Of Program At Club

Mrs. T. A. White is to be leader of the Lu Beta Delphian program this afternoon at the Hilton hotel. Mrs. Arthur L. Brown, is to discuss "The Anglican Litany"; Mrs. Geo. Simmons is to talk on "Elizabethan Music—Some Famous Musicians" and Mrs. W. L. Stangel is to discuss "Virginial and Other Music."

Mrs. J. E. Hamilton is scheduled to talk on "Predecessors of the Opera" and Mrs. O. K. Peters is to talk on "The Rise of Opera." The general discussion will be led by Mrs. C. O. Akard.

An old English love song, "'Tis Not True," wil be sung by Mrs. Harry Blocker and Mrs. Jake Lewis.

"Mary" Christmas Coming With Santa Claus Expedition To Lubbock; Party Is Rapidly Approaching This Section

Old Santa Claus and his expedition of people from the far north are rapidly nearing Lubbock and will be on time on Friday, December 11, according to word received from the party Thursday. Santa and his men are in Idaho and will soon be crossing the Rockies toward the middle western states, the dispatch said.

Upon his arrival here, December 11, the grand old gentlemen will be seen in a big Christmas spectacle and parade which is being sponsored by the Avalanche-Journal.

Prince of Love, the official messenger of the expedition, informed the Avalanche-Journal that "Mary" Christmas is coming with Santa again this year as she has in the previous pre-Christmas visits to the United States and that she will be seen in the parade here.

This year "Mary" will be seen riding a camel. She will be high up above the crowds so all may have a good view of her as she waves kisses to the happy young ones as well as to the enthusiastic older admirers.

Kind Acts For Young And Old

It is "Mary" Christmas who advises with Santa Claus regarding the many interesting playthings and useful presents for boys and girls. However, "Mary" gives more attention to the wants and needs of little girls than to those of little boys. It really requires the experience and consideration of a motherly woman to know just what is best for little girls and that is the reason Santa has been so gad to seek "Mary's" advice in such things. Then too, "Mary" and Santa work together in matters pertaining to old folks—that is, the very aged, like some of our grand parents. The old people love "Mary" very dearly and many of them from this section of the country will visit the parade to find pleasure in just waiving to Santa and "Mary."

Some people who have never seen "Mary" are under the impression that she is very old and bent with years. Such is not the case, for while she is old enough to know the pains and joys of life she is still young enough to appreciate the problems of the little tots and understand the difficulties of older children.

Wins Popularity Everywhere

She has a face like a pretty doll which smiles out from beneath a bright brown kissed with gray curls. She wins the hearts of all who know her for she has found continual youth through thinking only of the goodness of people and doing kind deeds for others.

Everyone can keep young and be happier if they will think of the good traits of their friends and relatives and pay less attention to the faults of others. Kind acts towards others also pays in a full measure of happiness to those who practice the golden rule. The happiest people are those who think more of the comforts of others and less of their own troubles.

Merchants Are Conscientious

The most successful merchants are the ones who try to please their customers and work hard to give full measure in all their dealings. That is why the merchants of Lubbock enjoy and deserve the patronage of the people of this entire section for no one needs to send elsewhere for anything as the stores here are stocked with just as good merchandise as can be found in any other city in the country, and at just as fair prices.

The young lady shown above is "Mary" Christmas, one of the members of the Santa Claus expedition which will be seen in a gigantic Christmas spectacle here on Friday, December 11. She is to be seen riding a camel in the parade through Lubbock streets.

New York Production

It is interesting to know that the spectacle coming here is an imported production, having been originated by the producer, Albert H. Thacher, head of Thacher Production of New York City. Thacher conceived the idea of arranging Pre-Christmas visits of Santa Claus some six or seven years ago and the popularity of the program has not with such universal success that the demand for the production necessitates, arrangements being made early in the year. Lubbock is one of the few principal cities included in the Itinerary of the 1931 Spectacle and the Avalanche-Journal was fortunate in arranging the booking several months ago.

Daily Mail Route Is Given Rerouting; Increase Seen

LOCKNEY, Dec. 2. (Special.) — The daily mail route between Lockney and Quitaque has been rerouted in accordance with the suggestions of Homer Howard, postmaster, the postmaster general has advised.

The evening route has been increased to include Grey Mule and Fairmount, two communities under the caprock, on the return trip from Quitaque. Forty more families will be served with daily mail service the postmaster announced.

Chicago Planning City Loan Drives

CHICAGO, Dec. 2. (AP)—A campaign designed after the "liberty loan" drives of war days will be held by Chicago to aid 23,000 paydayless city employes.

Mayor Anton J. Cermak announced such a plan after interviewing 50 of Chicago's wealthiest business men.

Most of the millionaire manufacturers, merchants, property owners and public utility men promised to buy of the $30,000,000 worth of 1930 tax anticipation warrants "until it hurt."

Unless such purchasing takes place, Mayor Cermak pointed out, 23,000 city employes will receive no cash next payday and 18,000 school teachers and other board of education employes whose salaries have not been forthcoming since last May, will continue in want.

Two Night Schools Planned For Rural Community Zones

(By Staff Correspondent)

RALLS, Dec. 2. — Two night schools for rural people, in the Fairview and Owens communities, are being planned by J. H. Taylor, vocational agriculture teacher in the Ralls high school.

Each school is expected to last about two weeks. Dates have not been decided upon.

Fresh water shrimp culture will be tried in waters of eastern North Carolina.

Druggists Find New Way To Stop Headaches

Realizing that no one drug can conquer all headaches, as they come from so many causes, two North Carolina druggists developed a combination of several ingredients which function together, giving three-minute, safe relief for any kind of headache, neuralgic sciatic or rheumatic pain quiets the nerves and leaves you normally buoyant, without depression or bad after effects.

This combination of pain relieving ingredients, so efficient for women also at special times, may be found at any drug store or soda fount under the name "B-C" (10c and 25c) ready for use in easing pains and quieting nerves in three minutes. "B-C" is the most amazing preparation of its kind ever discovered and is guaranteed harmless. (Adv.)

Undergraduates at Missouri School of Mines, Rolla, Mo., have started a campaign to have their school called by its correct name instead of "Rolla Miners."

Made FRESH

never parched, never toasted

CAMELS are KEPT Fresh!

You probably know that heat is used in the treatment of all cigarette tobaccos.

But you know too that excessive heat can destroy freshness and fragrance.

That's why there could be no truly fresh cigarette except for scientifically developed methods of applying heat.

Reynolds is proud of having discovered and perfected methods for getting the benefits of heat treatments and still avoiding ever parching or toasting.

With every assurance we tell you, Camels are truly fresh. They're made fresh — not parched or toasted — and then they're kept fresh in the Camel Humidor Pack.

If you wish to know why the swing to Camels is nationwide and steadily growing — switch to them for just one day — then leave them, if you can.

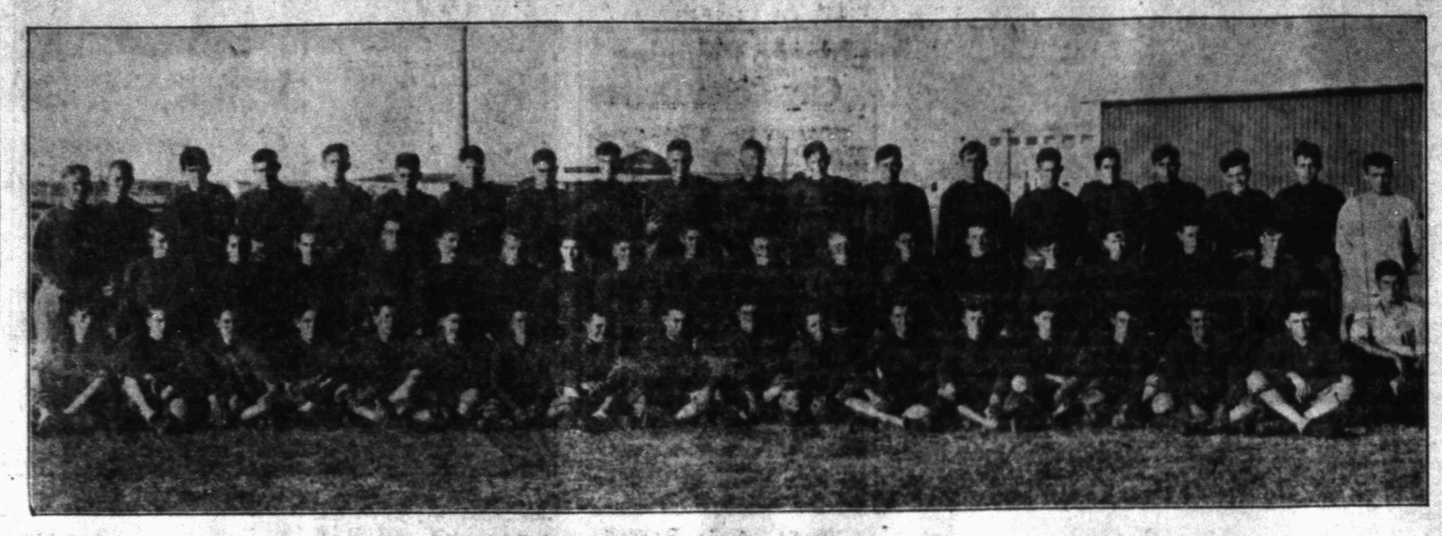
Amarillo Sandies Favored To Repeat Win Over Lubbock

Tragedy Stalks Through 1931 Grid Season To Claim Thirty-One Lives

One Of These Teams Will Win A District Championship Today



Above is pictured the Lubbock High school Westerners of 1931, who meet the Golden Sandstorm of Amarillo this afternoon at 2:30 to play for the championship of District 1. The Amarillo Sandies are shown below as they took on the eve of the game. Doped to repeat their victory of last week over Lubbock, the Sandies arrived last night by train and retired early for a night of sleep. The winner of today's game will meet the Quanah Indians on Saturday in a bi-district scrap.

Lubbock Club Weaker

...k ago Coach Chapman could ...aced a team on the football ... good, perhaps better, than ...ven men Coach Cherry could ...ustered. But times have ..., as they say in scientific ...ories, and it will be extreme- ly difficult for the Westerner mentor to shoot a team on the field today that can take another severe pounding in the neck, and like it. Whereas, the Sandies have had occasion to rest and recuperate, to plan and persuade, to iron out wrinkles and get in shape.

And Amarillo's reserve power! Therein lies the secret of a football team's success. Amarillo has it, Lubbock has it not, at least not on any big scale. The least thought about it now the better we can feel during the game.

Use Strange Jersies

Again the teams will switch jersies. By some trick of fate, the colors of Amarillo and Lubbock are the same. One is Black and Gold, the other is Gold and Black. They will be neither today. As in the game at Amarillo a week ago, the Lubbock Westerners will blossom out in bright blue jersies this afternoon. The Sandies will wear the white jersies in which they downed the Westerners. But that's the color of another horse.

The Westerners engaged in a spirited workout yesterday. There was everything but overconfidence on the faces and in the words and actions of the gridders and coaches. There was not enough confidence to make the scattered curbstone coaches go out and give twenty points. With the exception of Gene Barnett, fullback; Captain Bob Crawford, center; Melvin Griggs, halfback, Bill Davidson, halfback and Mack Scoggin, halfback, the team is in pretty fair condition. Each of these are suffering minor injuries and ailments. There may be other ailling ones, but the probable lineup is printed above.

Westerners Prepared To Fight

With only a slim chance at the most, the Westerners will go into today's game fired with the old ambition of winning a district title. They have learned valuable lessons in previous games and they have profited by mistakes. They are due to put up a greater stand against Amarillo today then they did on Butler Field a week ago. They have not let down in courage and spirit.

The winner of today's game must meet the Quanah High school Indians on Saturday in a bi-district title game. The Indians are undefeated this season, united save for a 7-7 deadlock with Vernon in the most important game of the district. With two weeks of rest behind them, the Indians will be in good shape for the District 1 winner on Saturday. The game very likely will be played at Quanah.

That is all. You must go out to Tech Field to see the rest. It's going to be a scrap, a lively one. The field should be dry, having been protected by a coverlet of canvas since Monday. You should get your money's worth, win, lose or draw. After all, it's football, championship or no championship.

Fordham Youth Dies Following Bucknell Clash

Football's Toll Of Fatalities Sets New Record This Year; Fordham Tackle Hurt 10 Days Ago In Big Game

BY GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 2. (AP)—Football's toll of fatalities for 1931 reached the unprecedented total of 31 with the death early today of Cornelius Murphy, jr., of Greenfield, Mass., brilliant tackle and prospective captain-elect of next year's Fordham University eleven.

Murphy's death came swiftly after he apparently had recovered from injuries received in Fordham's closing game against Bucknell ten days ago. It supplied a tragic aftermath to one of the school's most successful seasons of the gridiron and climaxed a series of fatalities and serious injuries that have caused nationwide concern.

Carried unconscious from the polo grounds in the second half of the Bucknell game, Murphy was confined to the Fordham hospital four days, receiving treatment for concussion of the brain. Last Wednesday he was removed to the university infirmary, sufficiently recovered to walk about. Two of his teammates, John Szymanski and Paul Howell, injured in the same game, were thought to be in far more danger.

An autopsy revealed death was caused by the rupture of a blood vessel at the base of the brain, the result of a heavy blow.

Murphy stood six feet, two inches, and weighed 185 pounds, and was considered a certainty to captain next year's eleven.

Murphy is the fourth player on a prominent university team to receive fatal injuries on the gridiron this year. Cadet Richard B. Sheridan, jr., end on the Army eleven, died Oct. 26, of a broken neck received in a game against Yale; C. V. Smith, tackle of Millsaps college, suffered fatal neck injuries in a game against Stetson Nov. 11; James Nichols, center of the Alabama University freshman team, died Nov. 17 of injuries received in practice.

Twenty-seven other deaths recorded by the Associated Press have occurred in school and sand lot football since September.

Andy High To Go To Cincy; Others Trade

Mike Sexton And John Farrell To Be Retired As Result Of Minor League Uprising; Nick Cullop Goes To Columbus

BY PAUL MICKELSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

WEST BADEN, Ind., Dec. 2.—Minor league club owners today formally opened their first fight to retire the present officers of their governing body, the National Association of professional baseball leagues, while the player mart, both major and minor, started to produce business.

A resolution was placed before the convention by the club owners to retire two of its veteran officers, Mike Sexton, Rock Island, Ill., president of the association for 22 years, and John Farrell, Auburn, N. Y., its secretary-treasurer from the beginning. Under the resolution, action on which was postponed to tomorrow's meeting, both Sexton and Farrell would be retired with a full year's salary for 1932 and their duties turned over to a committee of five, three from the Class AA leaders and two from the leagues of lower classification.

There was no doubt tonight that the resolution would be adopted. Branch Rickey, vice president of the St. Louis Cardinals, was the leading exponent of the resolution.

Several minor league sales were announced today but the Cincinnati Reds stole the honors of the day by buying Andy High, utility third baseman from the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Reds, in turn, sold outfielder Nick Cullop to the Columbus American Association club, a Cardinal farm, for $12,500, one of the fanciest minor league prices in history. Cullop came to the Reds last year from Minneapolis where he broke the American Association record for home runs. The Reds also sold Ed Strelecki, a pitcher, and Clyde Beck, an infielder, to St. Paul.

Salary Reduction Move

The first general move to reduce player's salaries was made by the three Class AA groups, the American Association, International and Pacific Coast leagues, today. The owners unanimously voted to reduce all players' salaries "substantially" for 1932 because of business conditions. All the minor leagues expected to follow suit while it was known a similar move was sweeping the majors which meet in Chicago next week.

The Class A leagues refused to make an estimate on the maximum salaries but some estimated it would be around the six hundred a month limit. To enforce that limit, some suggested the Texas League plan whereby any player receiving additional salary on the side would be declared a free agent.

Crosbyton And Ralls To Send Fans To Lubbock-Amarillo Go At Tech Field This Afternoon

(By Staff Correspondent)

CROSBYTON, Dec. 2. — Crosbyton football fans will be well represented at the Amarillo-Lubbock district 1 title contest in Lubbock Thursday.

A number of tickets have been sold and many others expect to purchase the pasteboards on their arrival in Lubbock Thursday. A bright day will increase the crowd, it is said here.

RALLS, Dec. 2. (AP)—Football fans here will drive to Lubbock Thursday to back the Westerners in their district title contest with Amarillo high school.

A large number of tickets have been ordered here. Fans say that in the event there is no rain Wednesday night or Thursday morning that eight or ten car loads, possibly more, would make the trip. Enough tickets are reported in sight for four or five cars it was said.

RED SOX BUY PITCHER

WEST BADEN, Ind., Dec. 2. (AP)—The Boston Red Sox today announced purchase of John Michaels, left handed pitcher, from Buffalo of the International League. In the deal, the Sox gave cash and two players, Jack Smith, utility first baseman, and John Winsett utility outfielder.

Marion Hammon To See Mustangs Play Gaels In Role Of Sports Scribe; Is To Represent Newspaper Of Dallas

DALLAS, Dec. 2. (AP) — Marion Hammon, star tackle of the Southern Methodist University football team, will be among those present when the Mustangs play St. Mary's at San Francisco Saturday.

But not in the role of a spectator or prayer. An ankle fracture, suffered in the Navy game, definitely eliminated him as a player. And his own loyalty to his team removed his name from the list of men to be taken on the trip. He claimed that a man "in condition to play should go along to give the Ponies all the reserve strength possible." So Charlie Hearon, diminutive backfielder, was given his place.

Nevertheless, Hammon will be present, this time in the role of a sport writer. The Dallas Times-Herald arranged to have him represent the paper and tell how he sees the game. He will leave tomorrow by American Airways plane, joining the Mustangs at Los Angeles.

Lamesa Squad Leaves Today For Big Game

Golden Tornadoes Meet Broncs Of Clarendon High In Game To Settle Bi-District Title There Tomorrow

LAMESA, Dec. 2. (Special)—The Golden Tornadoes, local high school football team, has been handicapped in training this week for the bi-district scramble with the Clarendon Broncs on account of wet and snowy weather conditions. Skull practice is about all the locals could resort to.

The team, with a number of fans, will leave here Thursday morning for Clarendon where the game will be played Friday afternoon at 2:30.

Although expecting to give the Clarendon team a scrap for the bi-district title, it is doped that the Broncs have the edge for this game by at least two touchdowns. According to Coach McCollum, the local team is outweighed by the Broncs by fifteen pounds to the man. A decided contrast is in the two captains and fullbacks of the teams, Nichols of Clarendon tops the scales at 190, while Treadway, Tornado full, only weighs 128 pounds.

The winner of the Clarendon-Lamesa game will meet the winner of the Olney-Masonic Home game for Class B sectional title. Lamesa won the right to compete against Clarendon for the bi-district title by defeating Floydada with a score of 6 to 0 here Turkey day, while Clarendon defeated Dalhart the same day, scoring 7 to 0.

Dates For Ralls Cage Joust Named

RALLS, Dec. 2. (Special.) —Sixty high schools over the South Plains and in West Texas are to be invited to attend the first annual boy's basketball tournament Thursday, Friday and Saturday, January 21, 22 and 23, James M. Rankin, superintendent of schools, said in announcing the dates.

"Coach C. B. Hendricks has just decided on the dates for the tournament," Mr. Rankin said. "We have the best place in this section to hold a tournament in our municipal auditorium where we can have a standard sized court and also room to seat about a thousand people."

Arrangements for housing the visitors for two nights will be made by representative of the Rotary club and the chamber of commerce. It is expected several hundred out of town boys will be here for the three days.

Suitable prizes will be awarded, but these details have not been settled.

Invitations are being prepared and will be mailed shortly so as to give the teams plenty of time to get ready for the meet.

RALLS, Dec. 2. — Dates for the third annual girl's basketball tournament sponsored by the Ralls high school have not been set but it probably will be held late in January, following the boy's tourney, according to James M. Rankin, superintendent of schools.

Miss Clara White, director of athletics for the girls of the Ralls High school, is to decide on the date, Mr. Rankin said.

Girl's teams from a wide area in West Texas will be invited to participate. Last year's tourney was a very successful one and it is believed by school authorities that this year's meet will be still larger.

The meet will be held in the city auditorium. A standard sized court is available. Out of town teams from a distance are to be entertained in the homes.

Man In Hurry Leaves Coat For Officers

Lubbock police Wednesday night held a rain-coat which an unidentified man hastily left yesterday afternoon at an Avenue Q tailor shop.

In a pocket were found a new shirt and two new handkerchiefs, all wrapped in green paper as though recently purchased.

The man was reported to have been watched as he ran several blocks, attempted to enter the back doors of two business houses on Avenue and later darted into the tailor shop. After leaving the overcoat, he left, walking rapidly south on Avenue Q.

Police theory is that the raincoat possibly was taken from an automobile.

Four Enlist For Service In Army

Four South Plains men enlisted in the army the last week in November when recruiting was resumed after the ranks had been closed three months, Sergeant M. J. Miner of the Lubbock recruiting office has reported.

The recruits were Harold W. Faire, son of Mrs. Edd McCollum, route No. 4, Lubbock; Jack White, son of H. E. White, star route, Ralls; J. Frank Hillyrd, son of H. J. Hillyrd, Ralls, all of whom went to cavalry at Fort Bliss, Texas; and Jefferson M. Moore, son of R. H. Moore, 1819 Avenue R, Lubbock, who was enlisted for the 82nd field artillery at Fort Bliss.

Men will be accepted for the army at these stations: Fort F. E. Warren, Cheyenne, Wyo., Fort Sill, Oklahoma; Fort Sam Houston, Fort Bliss, Fort Clark, Fort D. A. Russell and Fort Brown, all in Texas and for William Beaumont general hospital at El Paso.

A total of 800,000 bushels of apples was produced this year from the Mahoning apple district of Ohio.

Traffic commissioners of the Southern Area of Scotland will compel those conducting tours for visitors to carry out all promises made to tourists.

$100,000, Please, For Charm, Poise

Young Girl, Suing Wealthy Woman, Insists She's Entitled To Huge Sum, Saying She Was Employed To Save "Richest College Boy In The World" From Broadway Siren

BY ETHEL BEDFORD

BOSTON, Dec. 2. — If blue eyed auburn-haired Mildred King had worn a price tag marked "$100,000 for charm and poise" as I interviewed her at her swanky Back Bay apartment here, I probably would have exclaimed: "What a bargain!"

Mildred's charm and poise were "leased" by the wealthy dowager, Mrs. Henrietta G. Hartford, to steer the love of her son, George Huntington Hartford II, "the richest college boy in the world," from Broadway safely to Beacon Hill and Newport, Mildred alleges.

Mildred charmed him all right, she admits, and intrigued him with her poise.

Mrs. Hartford Denies All

But, now, that Mildred has presented her bill to George's mother for her services, Mrs. Hartford is much perturbed, and has issued sweeping denials of Mildred's claims. Mildred therefore, declaring "the matter was strictly a business proposition," has filed suit in federal court in Boston, requesting $100,000.

This laughing-eyed "love pilot" has more than average charm and poise. Wearing a becoming blue frock, which brought out the gardenia-like tints of her skin and the deep bronze lights of her hair, she appeared to have no doubts whatever concerning her rights in the matter.

"Why, Mrs. Hartford herself introduced me to her son," said Miss King. "And I in turn introduced him to several nice girls."

You see, this, Mildred claims, is just what Mrs. Hartford desired her to do—to take her son's mind off a certain Broadway girl.

Studied Music

Mildred—who plays the piano well—was a student at the swanky New England Conservatory of Music, where Mrs. Hartford in effect conducted a "charm and poise" contest, Mildred avers, that she might select a girl to lure her son from Broadway.

Mildred was seelcted for the job, she insists.

And you only need one look at this auburn-haired, slenderly beautiful girl to know she could render such a service!

The Kings have been a proud race—and so when Mother Hartford said something about adopting Mildred shook her bronze curls, she relates. A cash settlement was then agreed upon, she contends, because —"the matter was strictly a business proposition."

"All the time I spent with him," Mildred said, was devoted to accomplishing the work his mother assigned me. From time to time I communicated with her, reporting progress. She seemed pleased."

Little did the dapper George realize, Mildred points out, that the "rushing" he was getting from the Boston and Newport girls was largely due to her own management and the "big sister" attitude she says she adopted.

MILDRED KING

MRS. HENRIETTA HARTFORD

GEORGE H. HARTFORD

Mildred Is Peeved

In no time young George stopped week-ending in Manhattan.

"Mrs. Hartford then neglected to pay me," Mildred stated, "for successful and faithfully performed services requested by her."

Well, is Mildred peeved! Her blue eyes sparkle with bits of fire when she talks about the whole affair.

"In fact, I hate to talk about it! I really don't like to think about it —that's why I've turned it all over to my lawyers!"

At that she stepped over to her piano and struck a series of chords with her long, white fingers. Her straight, slim back defied you to ask another question. And the forceful manner in which she struck those chords served as exclamation points.

Young Hartford is a sophomore at Harvard, and one day will inherit the $300,000,000 fortune of a chain of grocery stores, built up by his father.

Mrs. Hartford vigorously denies the truth of Miss King's story. She has said that she knows nothing of Miss King's claims and adds deprecatingly, "Rich persons frequently have to put up with that sort of thing."

A New Romance

Young Hartford's latest romance will have no effect on the "love plot" suit brought by Miss King. He and his mother have been visiting Dr. and Mrs. G. T. Epling of Welch, W. Va., lending strength to the rumor of George's interest in their daughter, Mary Lee. The two met on shipboard, on the way to Honolulu, and under the tropical moon their friendship ripened. When Miss Epling returned to her home she brought George with her. Later Mrs. Hartford joined him as the Epling's guest.

An announcement of their engagement is anticipated.

Some Potatoes

Tahoka Man's Vine Grows 'Em Big

TAHOKA, Dec. 2. (Special.) T. R. Cathcart exhibited a Porto Rico yam here that weighed an ounce less than eight pounds.

On the vine where Mr. Cathcart found the yam there were several other potatoes weighing three pounds or more. He found several hills that contained a peck of sweet potatoes. The patch was on the old Leedy place south of town, near a big lake.

TO SPEND WINTER

LITTLEFIELD, Dec. 2. (Special.) W. H. Badger, general manager of the Yellowhouse Land company, at Austin, will spend the winter here. They had planned to spend it in Austin.

Man Confesses Store Robbery

Claude Newton, Paroled From Oklahoma Penitentiary, Is Held At Fort Worth; Four Others Arrested

FORT WORTH, Dec. 2. (AP)—Claude Newton, paroled from the Oklahoma penitentiary after serving part of his sentence for killing Briggs Chumley, an Oklahoma City policeman, today confessed the robbery of a store at Kerrville Friday night.

He was arrested here last night, together with two other men and two women. He first gave his name as Charley McDonald but admitted his identity after his fingerprints were checked.

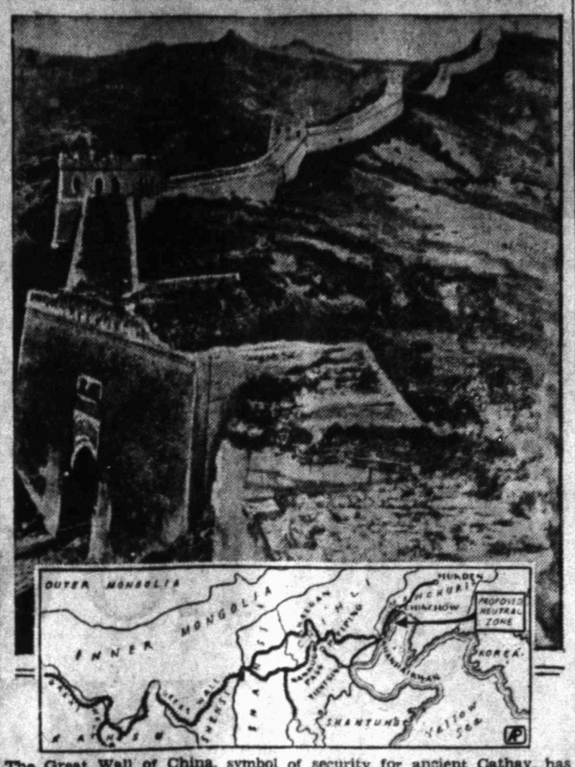
Newton said he gave clothing taken in the robbery to his companions. About $2,000 worth of clothing was recovered. He said the men with him had no part in the burglary. One of them was identified as an escaped Oklahoma convict. The other is a former Texas convict. They were being questioned about a robbery here.

Newton was paroled July 30, by Governor William H. Murray. He was serving a life sentence. It was reported from Oklahoma City today that the parole would be revoked if he confessed the burglary or was convicted of it.

An experiment with the so-called "truth serum" resulted in some newspaper notice of Newton. He discussed the serum today with interviewers. He said a drug was injected into his left arm and he was questioned while semi-conscious. He said he did not know what answer he made until he read newspaper accounts of the experiment.

Newton was serving a life sentence when he was paroled to relatives at Waco, Texas, on condition he would not return to Oklahoma for 12 months.

Chinese Withdrawal Demanded



The Great Wall of China, symbol of security for ancient Cathay, has been named by Japan as the boundary behind which Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang's government as well as his troops must be withdrawn. The announcement Wednesday threw fresh alarm into League of Nations quarters. Above is shown a section of the Great Wall and a map of its extent.

KEEPS WATER FROM GAS

WASHINGTON,—The U. S. Army Air Corps has adopted a new device to separate water from gasoline and oil in airplane engines. The device, known as a "segregator," works on the natural tendency of these fluids to separate due to the difference in their specific gravity. It was invented by an Air Corps sergeant and is not to be offered commercially.

AC COLLEGE COLUMN

By LOIS JACQUES, TECH CORRESPONDENT

SALE OPENS

The annual Christmas sale, sponsored by the Home Economics club, opened this week in the home economics building. The sale is for benefit of the club and to add to the loan fund which the organization maintains.

Most of the articles on sale are imported from Europe and reflect colorful travels. There are hand made linens cross-stitched and embroidered in true peasant style, amusing jointed figures carved from soft white wood, tiny leather bound date books, and strings of rosy coral beads. There are many other articles displayed whose prices run upwards from 25c and which would fit many Christmas gift lists.

Miss Mabel D. Erwin is in charge of the sale, which will close Friday.

ART EXHIBIT ARRIVES

The second exhibition of paintings sponsored by the college this year arrived Wednesday and will be open to the public Friday in the engineering auditorium. It will remain at least through December 14.

This collection came to Tech from Porto Rico, being sent out by the College Art association. It shows the two diverse tendencies of contemporary American artists, such painters as George Biddle, Romano, Harold Weston, Lathrop, Churchill and Yarnall Abbott being represented. All pictures are the original paintings, perhaps the most outstanding one being "The Stagecoach" by Max Bohm.

In the group are 35 oils, five water colors, and [illegible] prints.

TO GIVE PLAYLET

Members of Miss Harriet Tilden's class in costume design are working out a project to dramatize the things they have learned this term. They plan to present a playlet and style show combined, portraying correct costuming of the college girl as to different personality types. The program will be given Monday, December 14, at five o'clock in room 205, home ec building.

All members of the class will take part in the playlet, which they wrote themselves, and the following girls will act as models: Elaine Henry, Kathleen Harmon, Freddis Adkins and Ruby Rae Williamson. Costumes will be furnished by the class and their friends.

TO HAVE ESSAY CONTEST

Any student in college is eligible to compete in the essay contest which is being held in connection with the art exhibit in the engineering auditorium this week and next, Prof. F. A. Kleinschmidt has announced.

The essay is to be critical in nature and may have as its subject any of the oils, watercolors, or prints on display. First prize will be the winter's choice of any one of five prints, which will be shown in the collection. The exhibition opens Friday and is free to the public. First place winner in the contest will have his essay published in the magazine, Parnassus.

PRE-LAWS TRY CASE

Invitations to attend the trial of the Johnson-Clements case have been extended members of the Pre-Law club and onyone interested. It will be held at 7:30 tonight in room 202 with Glynne R. Coker acting as judge.

Doris Ladd Johnson, senior government major from Eastland, is suing Solon Clements, graduate student in the government department, for breach of promise. The mock trial will be complete in every detail as attorneys for both sides have been working on the case for the past two weeks.

DISCUSS OLYMPIC GAMES

The history of Greek and Roman Olympic games was discussed at the meeting of the Latin club this week by Walter Pendleton, and Luther Williams told of their survival in modern times.

Following the talks a short play was given by Donald Peden, Marjorie Whitnack and Loy S. House. Agnes Klein, president, presided over a short business session.

ELECTED TO OFFICE

Miss Margaret W. Weeks, dean of the school of home economics, was chosen president of the Texas Vocational association of the State Teachers association at the convention held in Amarillo last week.

The group is composed of vocation home economics and agriculture teachers, teachers of trades and industries and industrial arts.

Miss Weeks recently received an invitation from President Hoover to attend a conference on home building and home ownership called in Washington, D. C., December 2 to 5. Invitations were extended leading educators and technical experts in the field of homemaking in the United States.

TO INITIATE NEW MEMBERS

New members of the Double Key, honorary home economics society, are to be initiated at a meeting tonight in the home of Miss Margaret Weeks and Miss Mabel D. Erwin. Irene Jackson is president of the society.

TEACH ART APPRECIATION

"Art Appreciation," a new unit in the orientation course for freshman girls in the home economics school, was begun this week under the direction of Miss Harriet Tilden, associate professor of applied art.

The classes meet at 11 and 1 o'clock Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and anyone interested in hearing the lectures is invited to come. They are illustrated with lantern slides.

Prominent Society Woman Planning Lonesome Trek Into Alaskan Wilds

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 2. (AP)—Mrs. Edward M. Biddle, priminent society woman of this city, today told of a lone trek she will soon make into central Alaska to study customs and living conditions of native women for six months this winter.

Mrs. Biddle will carry two guns, a sleeping bag and two suitcases with cameras and photographic equipment. Though she is considered an experienced hunter, she has never before traveled in such wild country, she said. In Alaska she will wear the hooded fur jacket, trousers and muklok of the Eskimo.

She said she expects to leave New York next week on the first lap of her trip to Seattle.

Ralls School Totals Lower

Enrollment For First Month Shows 600, About 41 Less Than For Close Of Period During 1930

(By Staff Correspondent)

RALLS, Dec. 2. —Enrollment for the first month of the Ralls Independent school district is 600, about 41 less than for the close of the first month in 1930, James M. Rankin, superintendent of schools, declared.

There are 140 students in the high schools in Ralls and about 35 more in the wing schools of the district, the superintendent said.

In the school grade buildings there are about 250 pupils, with 175 in the wing schools.

Four days will be devoted to the Christmas holidays this year, Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, December 24 to 27. School will resume on Monday December 28. No vacation is planned for New Year's day.

"We start to teaching on Saturdays the first Saturday in the new year," Mr. Rankin said. "I think we will be able to complete our full nine months early in June.

"We have had very splendid cooperation on the part of the teaching staff and the patrons of the district. So far this year we have met all salary warrants and I believe we will be able to do so."

AIR MAIL INCREASES

WASHINGTON, — Air mail and express poundage on American air lines increased during the first six months of this year 514,716 pounds over that carried during the corresponding period of 1930, the U. S. Department of Commerce has announced. This increase was divided into 500,000 pounds of mail and the remainder express.

Buiding permits issued in Belgium are greater than a year ago.

Explosive English Tragedian States Fort Worth Is A Very Vulgar Place

Philip Ben Greet Is Frank In Difficult Interview Here

SHAKESPEARE'S plays will live indefinitely unless the actors kill them; playing of the Bard of Avon's dramas in modern dress is "horrible;" the outlook of the legitimate stage is wonderful; Fort Worth is a "vulgar place;" and school children, by all means, should learn to speak English.

These are opinions of Sir Philip Ben Greet, outstanding Shakespeare student of England, expressed Wednesday afternoon in a three-scene interview—in a local hotel lobby, in a taxi enroute to Lubbock high high school auditorium and in Sir Philip's improvised dressing room backstage.

Interview Difficult

It was with some difficulty the interview was arranged. Sir Philip was asleep until 2:30, and he penned several leters before he went to the auditorium.

"Actors are busy people, always busy," Sir Philip explained in a gruff, but none-the-less friendly manner, as he bought airmail stamps in the hotel lobby. "They always are traveling—have to put up with all sorts of things. In Fort Worth only last week—" Sir Philip hesitated until he seated himself in the taxi, Then,

"Fort Worth is a very vulgar place. One of my players was thrown to the ground by a policeman there and struck several times, without provocation. The papers carried the story. Most annoying."

Actors Horrible

What of actors playing Shakespeare in present-day clothing?

"Horrible," replied Sir Philip. "Only word for it—horrible. Hamlet in a dinner jacket! What guys they looked. Farcical. Lady Macbeth drinking whisky and soda. Can you beat that?"

Sir Philip, who plays comedy roles chiefly, mimicked Lady Macbeth drinking whisky and soda—as good an imitation as ever given in a taxi.

"But Shakespeare's plays will never stop while they are decently acted," he said. "Never. Their future depends on the actors. There have been many very good actors of Shakespeare. No, I can't name the best. We have had great audiences in America. Americans like Shakespeare."

Future Is Bright

As he was entering the school building he said.

"The future of the legitimate stage is bright. The little theatre movement is most commendable, and in Dallas recently I saw the best little theatre playing I have found.

"Wonderful stage," said Sir Philip as he examined the high school stage. "Your schools and city auditoriums have better stages than most theatres." He examined the settings approvingly. "Gray for tragedy and bright colors for comedy."

The Ben Greet players present Shakespearean drama with the simplest of stage property.

"Told you we put up with everything. I am property man here," the actor said as he entered an improvised dressing room backstage. A property room, containing folded chairs, stage sets and other equipment, was littered with grease paint tubes, costumes, wigs and other of Sir Phillip's belongings.

Influence Cited

An admirer of Sir Philip came into the room. "I first say you play twenty years ago—started me reading Shakespeare," the man said.

"There you are," Sir Philip beamed. "That's our influence."

His parting shot was:

"In God's name let them—your school children—learn to speak the English language correctly. That is my daily prayer."

Wednesday afternoon Sir Philip played Malvolio in "Twelfth Night," and in the evening he was Casca in "Julius Caesar."

Sir Philip, knighted recently by Great Britain because of his 50 years on the stage, most of that time in Shakespeare roles, is heavily set. He speaks explosively. His shock of white hair stands out sharply.

NEWS BRIEFS

La Verne Moss, 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Moss of White Face, was reported resting well at Lubbock sanitarium Wednesday after treatment for a fractured skull suffered when he and a playmate ran together while playing at school. An operation was performed to relieve pressure on the brain.

Texas Technological college athletes Wednesday received certificates for miniature gold footballs and football letters at the last fall term convocation in the college gymnasium. The secretary of the Texas Y. M. C. A., J. H. Henry, was principal speaker. The Matador band played.

Evelyn Daily, 15, who died early Wednesday at her home six miles southwest of Lubbock, will be buried in Lubbock cemetery this afternoon following funeral services held at 3 o'clock. John T. Smith, minister of the Church of Christ, will conduct the services.

Miss Daily died of scarlet fever. She is survived by her parents and one brother. The Rix funeral home was in charge of arrangements.

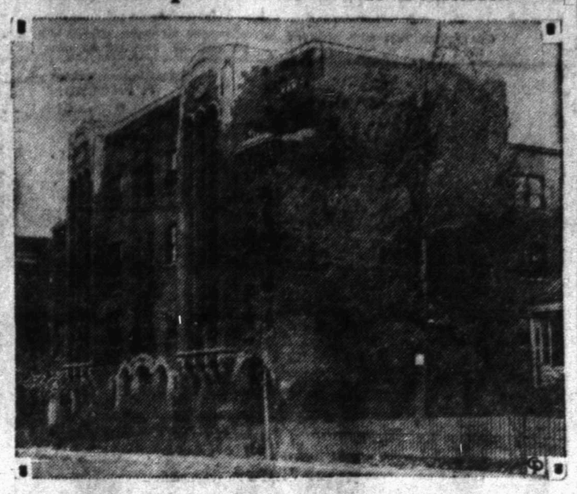
R. N. McClain, assistant county agent, has aided in the preparation and canning meat at two farm homes this week. Beeves have been canned at the Roberson farm, eight miles west of Lubbock, and at the Douglas Pound home at Acuff.

Mrs. Mattie E. Thomas, 77, who died at Meadow early Wednesday, will be buried at Clarendon Thursday afternoon, it was said here. Mrs. Thomas was the grandmother of Mrs. Jewel Hall of Lubbock.

The body of Mrs. Thomas was sent to Clarendon Wednesday afternoon by the Rix funeral home here.

T. A. Bradford, 51, of near Anton died at a local hospital Wednesday afternoon. Funeral arrangements, in charge of the Bynum-Morgan funeral home, had not been made last night.

Move Apartment With Tenants



Tenants of this apartment are to be given a $212,000 joy ride at the expense of the city of Cleveland. The building is to be moved to an adjoining parcel to make room for a street extension to lighten traffic on other main arteries. While the structure is being moved tenants will be supplied with electricity, gas and water. Some years ago the lot was offered the city for a nominal sum.

ARM AMPUTATED

SOUTHLAND, (Special)—Fred Kiessel, employed at the Farmer's gin narrowly escaped death when his hand caught in a burr at the gin. His left arm was so seriously mangled that it was amputated in Lubbock, where he was taken after the accident.

CLAIMS RECORD

CROSBYTON, (Special) — Comes now Oliver Freeman, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. I. V. Freeman, with a cotton picking record. Oliver picked 209 pounds of cotton on the farm of J. W. McDonald, in less than a day.

EXPENSES CUT

MATADOR, (Special)—A reduction of $230 per month was made in expenses of the general fund of Motley county by the commissioners' court at a special meeting of the court. Insufficient funds and delinquent taxes caused the commissioners to take the step.

O'DONNELL, (Special)—W. H. Thornhill, owner of a variety store here, is opening a store in Tahoka. He has leased a building and will manage it himself while Mrs. Thornhill manages the local store. Mr. and Mrs. George Fowler of Fort Worth will assist in both stores.

Pastor Plans 4 Weeks Revival

Rev. R. M. Hocker, above, pastor of the Nazarene church, Fourteenth street and Avenue Q, has a huge task ahead of him. He is to preach in a four-weeks revival meeting beginning Sunday, December 6 at eleven o'clock. Two services will be held each day, at 10 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. W. E. Ellis, assisted by two soloists and a quartet, will be in charge of the song services.

Mr. Ely Speaks Again!

"LET the highway department bull dthis road like it wants to and we will turn back some of the money to the county for use in paying off the bonds or additional improvements," Chairman W. R. Ely of the Texas highway commission told a Lubbock county delegation in Austin Wednesday in connection with Lubbock's efforts to have Highway 7 northwest from Lubbock paved in concrete instead of asphalt with caliche base as specified in contracts left Monday.

Again the iron hand of the state highway department crushes the wishes of the people.

The Lubbock county bond issue campaign was waged and carried through successfully on the strength of concrete roads. The leaders of the campaign thought that only concrete roads would be put down in the county and the voters thought the same thing when they passed the bonds.

And now comes Mr. Ely and his commission, ruling that, no matter what the people want, the "construction as planned by the state would give Lubbock county a much better road at considerable less expense and leave the county with sufficient funds to materially improve other roads." He based his contention on the fact that a wealth of local material would reduce maintenance on the route to a minimum and that the asphalt and caliche would be in good condition for "several years" where concrete paving would deteriorate rapidly.

Imagine a man going into a tailor's shop and ordering a $125 Tuxedo suit and then coming back later and hearing the tailor say: "Let us fix you the suit like we want to and we will turn you back some of the money to pay off your debts or buy a shirt or something." Imagine the tailor bringing out a pair of overalls and $25 and saying," "Here's your suit and here's some of your money back."

That's just exactly the situation in which Lubbock county has been put in regards to the material construction of Highway 7.

The Morning Avalanche believes there is a motive other than cutting the cost and maintenance to a minimum behind the highway commission's action. Lubbock county voters wanted concrete roads when they voted for them just as the man in the tailor's suited a Tuxedo.

But instead we get overalls and "some of our money back."

FOUR PUBLIC ENEMIES

Amazing progress has been made during the last century in prolonging the average span of human life. But science is not yet satisfied. The reasonable expectation of life for a person who lives to adult years is still considerably short of the biblical ideal of threescore years and ten. In spite of all progress, the average age of death for those who reach manhood is fifty-eight. This figure does not allow for deaths in infancy and childhood, which greatly lower the average.

Dr. George W. Crile and Dr. Charles H. Mayo, speaking before the American College of Surgeons in New York, agreed in blaming this poor record on spiritual rather than purely physical reasons. They have been seeking beyond the fatal diseases for their essential causes. And they claim to have discovered three of the culprits in four familiar weaknesses of human nature. They find that health is seriously endangered and disease directly encouraged by giving way to the passions of hate, worry, fear and anger.

It is to be noted that this is not a philosophical speculation which the doctors are advancing. They are speaking in the cool and calculated terms of science, based on experience and experiment. They are definite in specifying the diseases which come from mental habits. Exophthalmic goiter, neurasthenia, diabetes, stomach ulcers, high blood pressure and heart disease are the physical consequences of undisciplined thought and emotion. And these diseases take a very heavy toll among men and women in advancing years.

The conclusion is that it is not merely a social duty to be calm and reasonable, to be tolerant and well disposed toward others, to maintain faith and a cheerful heart. These are also remedies and preventives of the ills which flesh is heir to. They are the only effective antidote to the insidious poisons produced by the pace of today's civilization.

There was a time when only the bold and mighty went in for chemical loveliness, but now it's the good dye young.

Laughter shook the rafters in a courtroom when Eddie Cantor testified. Nearly brought the house down.

Practical Health Problems

SEMI-ANNUAL EXAMINATIONS

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, And of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

THE object of an annual or semi-annual survey of health by a physician is to find out whether or not any conditions detrimental to health or to life have begun their ravages, in order that they may be controlled before they reach the point beyond which control is impossible.

Today mothers are receiving splendid information in the care of their children. However, as Dr. Joseph Goodgood recently pointed out, it is high time that beginning be made in a systematic and effective manner in the instruction of mothers so as to give them the same protection that the children receive. Up to 1900, more than 30 per cent of mothers who were seen in one surgical clinic reported that they had abscesses of the breast because they had not been taught how to take care of the breast properly while nursing their infants. Today the number of mothers with this condition is less than five per cent, and among those who are educated it is less than one per cent.

• • •

OTHERS should know that injuries and chronic conditions incident to the birth of a child, no matter how trivial, should be attended to promptly. Immediately after the birth of the child the mother should have sufficient care to bring her tissues back to nearly normal a condition as is possible. Much of the cancer affecting women concerns the tissues involved in birth. These tissues are as easily accessible to the physician as is the skin. If a woman is disfigured by an unsightly birthmark or mole on her face she immediately gives it attention, because it is easily visible and accessible. We should not neglect conditions which are not visible, but which are more dangerous to life.

Many people avoid medical attention until they are suffering with some condition that brings about distress and pain. The early stages of cancer are as uncomfortable as a common cold and cer-tainly not as painful as acute indigestion. It would be better for the health and life of mankind if people would manifest their fear in such an obvious man-

Jap Government Queer

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Who said so can't be told (for one of diplomacy's first rules is secrecy, whether there is any sense in it or not), but Japan has a mighty queer government to deal with. This information is authentic; I had it direct from a state department official, who has been up to his neck for weeks in negotiations with Tokio concerning the island empire's Manchurian activities.

Premier Wakatsuki

He continued thus:

On paper Emperor Hirohito is a strictly constitutional ruler.

Besides a diet, for lawmaking purposes, he has a cabinet (more like England's than this country's) with a premier, whose job nominally is about on a par with Premier Ramsay MacDonald's in London.

England also has a king, just as Japan has an emperor, but between England's king and Japan's emperor there is a difference, which is all the more confusing to occidental diplomats, in such negotiations as the recent ones over Manchuria, because it does not show on the surface.

• • •

KING GEORGE figures very prominently in the English governmental picture, but all persons who are at all familiar with its details are perfectly aware that he possesses no authority whatever; actual executive authority is vested in the premier, approximately as it is vested in the president here in the United States.

In Japan the emperor is, in fact, absolute.

The constitution, the cabinet, the premier, the diet, the whole outfit exist simply upon Hirohito's sufferance.

The Japanese system would be easy enough for occidental negotiators to adapt their policies to if the Japanese themselves would admit it as a reality.

But they refuse to do so.

From the emperor on down, they insist that their monarchy is precisely what it amuses them to make believe that it is. They recognize that absolute monarchies are out of date and do not propose to concede that theirs lingers in the world, a belated survival.

• • •

INDEED, there are a few Japanese who play at constitutionality with an enthusiasm that suggests downright acceptance of it as a fully established institution.

Baron Reijiro Wakatsuki, the present premier, for example, has behaved during the Manchurian crisis in a fashion which almost has convinced foreign diplomats that he considered himself a genuine premier—or, at any rate, that he was trying to become a genuine one.

Had the Manchurian issue not been of a nature to align the strongest rival influence in Nippon against him, it is even thought that the baron might have been successful in putting his office upon a permanently firmer basis.

• • •

HOWEVER, it happens (so, at least, the state department feels certain) that Japanese acquisition of Manchuria was an enterprise to which the dominent military element among the islanders was committed.

Now, it is among the anomalies of Japan's fictional constitution that the chief-of-staff of the islanders' army and the commanding admiral of their naval forces are independent of the jurisdiction of the cabinet ministries of war and the navy respectively; that they look instead to the emperor in person for their orders.

The war and navy ministers are supposed, to be sure, to shape their plans in harmony with the rest of the cabinet's, but whether or not they will be carried out depends on what instructions their technical subordinates have had or may get from an entirely different source.

• • •

THE TRUTH is, it is whispered in state department circles, it pays the emperor himself to make his commands conform to his chief fighting men's wishes.

That attempts to thwart the Japanese military leaders' ambitions may be actually dangerous is suggested by recent accounts (by no means discredited in official Washington) of the discovery of a plot among members of the army group to end interference with the Manchurian campaign by assassinating Premier Wakatsuki, Foreign Minister Baron Kijuro Shidehara and Count Nobuoki Makino, keeper of the privy seal and confidential adviser to the emperor—which brings the conspiracy pretty close to royalty.

There were arrests, it is reported, but apparently no punishments.

Anyway, various concessions which the League of Nations had been hoping for from Tokio at the time the story leaked out, failed to materialize.

TO SUMMARIZE:

Japan's constitutional government (the only government it has for diplomatic purposes) is constantly subject to the whims of an intangible but all-potent super-government, on the one hand; on the other hand it is subject to termination on short notice by assassination at the hands of an overwhelmingly superior and wholly irresponsible power for which it theoretically is answerable.

It is difficult to negotiate satisfactorily with such a government, according to the state department official whose name I mustn't mention.

A ZERO MAGIC SQUARE EQUALS NOTHING 52 DIFFERENT WAYS by A. L. Candy Univ. of Nebraska

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

WHERE YOU TRAVEL SIX MILES TO PROGRESS ONE: Because of the steep mountains in the Roldal Valley, Norway, highway engineers found it necessary to construct so many "switchbacks" to make an even grade that on the new road a traveler goes back and fourth six miles to make one mile of progress. This road is typical of several highways which have recently been constructed in Norway and Sweden. In the United States we have a number of such roads in the Alleghanies, Rockies, and Sierra Nevades.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Rich old Mrs. JUPITER is robbed and murdered during the engagement party she gave for her secretary, MARY HARKNESS. The thief fails to get the famous Jupiter necklace. Suspicion points to Mary's brother, EDDIE, who is killed by a car as he goes to meet her. Police drop the case, believing Eddie guilty. BOWEN, police reporter for the Star, conducts a private investigation. He discovers a race-track crook called THE FLY to whom Eddie owed money. Eddie's coat, found in the house, is recognised by the butler as one worn by a "gate-crasher" he ejected the night of the murder.

Mary's fiance, DIRK RUYTHER, believes Eddie guilty and forbids her to see Bowen, fearing further notoriety. They quarrel but make up and plan to marry at once. Mary meets Bowen in a speakeasy where The Fly is said to be hiding. Dirk comes to take her home. He is on his way to lock up the Jupiter necklace in his office safe. Dirk proves The Fly is not there. Mary clasps the necklace about her throat just as three strangers enter.

They leave, followed by Bowen, who fears an attempt on the necklace. Dirk does not. The two men quarrel. Just as Dirk locks up the necklace there is a crash in the street outside. Bowen lets the thieves smash into his car rather than overtake Mary and Dirk. Dirk still pooh-poohs the existence of The Fly and Mary goes off with Bowen. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXII

"You shouldn't have done that," Bowen objected. "Now how'll you get home?"

"I'm not going home just yet," Mary said. "You're going back to Shay's and get what fingerprints you can. Where are the ones you got off the gun?"

"In my hotel room."

"I'll go there and wait for you. I don't feel equal to Shay's again, right now. Besides, it might be better if you went alone."

"I'll get kicked out anyway," Bowen muttered morosely. "Look," he said, "you better not do this. You better make it up with him while you can, or there's liable not to be any wedding tomorrow."

"There isn't going to be anyhow!" Mary flamed. "Until I find out who's right. If those fingerprints tally, there won't be any, anyway, until that man's caught, one thing at a time, and that come first with me. If they don't—if you've just been giving me a—a cock-and-bull story"

"Why should I do that?"

"To get a sensational story."

"I haven't printed a line about you yet, have I?"

"Then, if that isn't the reason, Dirk said you had another—" she turned several shades of pink in quick succession, but blurted it out nevertheless — "he said you were making up excuses for sticking around because—you were in love with me."

It didn't faze Bowen.

"I don't say I'm not," he gritted, looking straight ahead.

"Oh, then—"

"Every blame word I've said is the truth, and you know it!" he cried bitterly. "And I'm tired of having my word doubted! I don't have to prove it. If you want to drop the matter, we'll drop it right here and now. Its entirely up to you. I hate the Fly's gizzard, but I can let my feelings go. You're the one most concerned."

Odd that it had never occurred to Dirk just that way!

"I'm going with you."

"Then come on."

Bowen's hotel was just around the corner in a side-street, nearer Sixth than Fifth Avenue. It was not fashionable but clean and warm. Bowen bought some magazines at the lobby stand, and giuded Mary gingerly by an elbow into a small, rose and gold room opening off the lobby.

An old woman in a soiled uniform crippled forward.

"Hello, Kate," Bowen greeted her. "Take good care of this for me, will you? Till I come back."

Kate's eyes took in Mary from head to toe, with cynical interest.

"Shure I will," she promised with enthusiasm. Kate had executed commissions for newspapermen before. She would soon know what this beautiful damsel in distress had been up to. Shot her lover, perhaps. Whatever it was she'd been crying about, it thrilled Kate that she should know about it before it came out in tomorrow's papers.

• • •

Mary established herself on the shabby divan with Town and Tattle and fell to reading, more to escape the old woman's questioning than anything else. Eventually the old soul hobbled away, muttering to herself about the uppityness of some people.

"When they get you in the jug, you'll talk, my fine girl," she threatened through the wall.

Mary read on, oblivious of having offended. It was rather fun making out who was meant by the people referred to in those small, scandalous paragraphs in the gossip magazine. No names were mentioned, of course, but it was usually made plain enough. This, for in-

Crosby County Farmer Harvests Two Crops Per Year And Gets Production

(By Staff Correspondent)

RALLS, Dec. 2.—Two crops a year is the record which Butler Adams, old timer here and one of the well known farmers of Crosby county, has made from a 150 acre farm he operates about six miles south of town.

Late in June Mr. Adams began harvesting his wheat. It was an average crop and he got through with his combine work about the first of July.

He then planted a crop of pinto beans in the wheat stubble. The beans produced 40,000 pounds of threshed crop. When harvest time came he plowed up the bushes, raked up the vines and windrowed them and then threshed out with a combine.

Beans have been selling around $3 to $3.50 a hundred pounds. The crop averaged better than 250 pounds to the acre or more than $7. Labor costs were very light so that his net was considerably larger than for the same work on almost any other crop.

Ralls Politics To Be Exciting

(By Staff Correspondent)

RALLS, Dec. 2.—Ralls is going to have a little excitement—politically speaking, some time in the early spring.

The bi-ennial election for city officers is to be held early in April, according to Bill Betts, city secretary.

Ike Moore is mayor. There are two commissioners, W. D. Watkins and Roy Cooper.

No mention has been made of any possible candidates. It is not yet known whether these three men will be candidates for office again or not.

stance:

"Why is it that we never appreciate what we have until it is another's? What child of great wealth—a bud of three seasons ago—is making rather a fool of herself over a childhood sweetheart whose devotion she was wont to ridicule until he took unto himself a fiancee? She is said to be relying heavily on the fact that the said fiancee is involved in a messy family scandal just now, which only the immense wealth and political pull of her sponsor has succeeded in squelching."

A cold prickle began to creep over Mary, and she sat upright on the couch, realising suddenly that it must be herself who was meant! Her eyes raced on:

"Both aspirants to the hand of the blue-blooded and personable young lawyer come to the post well equipped—the deb with this world's goods, and the fiancee with more than her share of looks. But if all Dame Rumor whispers is true, and the lucky girl's elderly sponsor makes legal and binding his promise to make her his heir, then the scales will tilt heavily in her favor, and she will be able to match her rival million for million, with a few extra for good measure.

"A curious outcome, indeed, in view of the fact that the elderly protector's own wife died under mysterious circumstances recently. But Croesus will hear no ill of his Cinderella, so they say."

Mary hurled the magazine as far as she could throw it, and took a turn around the room to cool off. The impudence of it! The cowardliness! How dare people publish nasty innuendo of that sort, and expect to escape punishment? A suit for libel would be the very least they could expect; if she were a man, if she had a father, or a brother—or, she added miserably, a fiance! Old-fashioned horsewhipping was too good for the purveyors of such slander!

The alert Katie looked in, but withdrew in affright before that terrible young face. Mary was still pacing restlessly about the room, from picture to picture, staring at the ugly oil landscapes with unseeing eyes, spelling out artists' names with moving lips, forgetting them as she uttered them. She was determined not to give way here, in this place, and add further fuel to the scandal.

Bowen should take her home at once, and the matter would be put before Mr. Jupiter. He would know what to do. "Immense wealth and political pull" indeed! If that were so, then they should be made to feel it!

But as her anger cooled she knew with sickening certainty that instead of showing it to Mr. Jupiter she must keep it from him. After all, was it any more than had been common talk for weeks? Everyone knew it was a scurrilous little sheet; everyone discounted its nasty little digs. She would only make matters worse if she made a row about it.

* * *

Bowen came hurrying in, his arms full of packages. In his left hand he held a whisky-bottle carefully by the neck.

"Sorry to be so long," he explained, "but I had to buy some powder and some other junk. . . . I got a pretty good thumb print, I think, but the rest are not so good . . . wanta wait here a little longer till I go up and develop this? I'll hurry. . . ."

"What's the bottle for?" Mary asked, bewildered.

"Don't touch it!" He drew it away from her pointing finger. "It's his—the Fly's. He drinks a special brand. Mike sneaked it for me while Jack's back was turned. Let me get upstairs with it, quick, before something happens to it." The was laboring under strong excitement. "Can y' imagine it? I been carrying this down the street like this. Afraid to wrap it up and smear the print. Wonder I wasn't pinched." He started off, and Mary followed.

"Oh, don't leave me here! One more black mark on my reputation won't hurt. I'm going up with you." In the elevator she asked bitterly, "Did you know what was in that magazine you gave me?"

When they were out of hearing of an exotic-looking couple who went up in the elevator with them she told him. Bowen did not seem impressed.

"Oh, who reads that lousy little sheet anyway? A handful of nitwits with more money than brains, who knows it anyhow, and about a million represented schoolteachers who won't understand it after they read it. Forget it."

"Emily Ann Ruyther reads it," Mary said worriedly. "I suppose she's in the midst of a pink fit by now."

"Forget it! We'll have Emily Ann begging your pardon on bended knee before we're through."

He propped the door of his room open with a book, and laid his purchases out on the table, the precious bottle occupying an open space all its own. After that, they did not bother to talk. Bowen set to work and Mary watched, absorbed. The thumb print came up clearly, the others were, as he had said, too faint to be of much good.

Presently he raised a flushed, perspiring countenance and said dramatically, "Now!" He laid on the table the sheet of paper containing the fingerprints obtained from the gun. Beside it he placed a fingerprint chart and a magnifying glass. Occupying the place of honor stood the whisky-bottle, erect its powder-blackened sides showing a variety of finger-smudges.

He bent his eye to the magnifying glass, moving it from one to the other, back and forth.

"I'm no expert," he said, at last, "but if those thumb-prints aren't identical, I'll eat 'em. I'll get an expert's opinion on it, if you want it. The boys in the identification bureau will do it for me."

"Do it, will you?" she asked eagerly. "I accept your word, but we must be absolutely certain.

"Right. Tomorrow, without fail. Well, Miss Sherlock Holmes, let's shut up shop for tonight."

He removed a pile of clean shirts from a dresser drawer laid his exhibits carefully away in the empty drawer, locked it, and they went out.

"It's only 10 o'clock," he whispered in the elevator. "You'll be home and in beddy-bye in an hour. What could be sweeter? And don't worry, your boy-friend'll come around all right. Keep a stiff upper lip, and remember what you've got now to knock sense into him with—that whisky bottle!"

She didn't want to hear him talk about it. She was more grateful than she could ever say for the surety he had just given her. It made her course clear. But personally, he had become faintly repulsive to her . . . that declaration of his was shocking, somehow, centered as her emotions were in Dirk, and Dirk only. Perhaps she drew away slightly; her feelings may have shown in her face.

"Listen, forget what I said a while ago, will you?" he said. "I ought not to have—but hell, you asked for it! And I know it doesn't make any difference to you."

"Oh, I'd forgotten all about it!" she assured him, surprised at his perception.

They stepped out into the lobby.

"Hungry?" he asked. "Better have a cup of coffee before you go. You look done up. Did you eat anything at Shay's?"

"Not much," she confessed and followed him, almost wobbling with faintness and weariness, to the grill, which was empty except for the couple they had seen in the elevator. Mary recognized them without more than a brief glance. The odor of the woman's oriental perfume was overpowering. The man with her was odd-looking, too—foreign, apparently. Such of their talk as drifted to her ears was in French, and his clothes sloppily worn, his hair thick and long below his large black felt hat. He wore a small waxed mustache.

Mary began to feel a peculiar uneasiness. She had been unconventional in going to that room if anyone chose to be priggish about it. She would not have given it a second thought if it had not been for these exotic-looking people. Continentals of that type always made her rush for safety to the ideals of her Puritan ancestors.

She drank hot coffee gratefully. Bowen did not talk much.

"I was supposed to cover a Red riot in Jersey City tonight," he observed. And added complacently, "The hell with it." After that he did not talk at all.

The couple passed out of the room just ahead of them, pausing in the doorway to kiss passionately.

"Au revoir, my darling," muttered the siren, in a guttural voice with a marked accent. "Mut you go?"

"I must, sweet." He tore himself from her arms and hurried out.

Mary and Bowen made amused grimaces at each other. In the doorway they gave an exaggerated imitation of that parting—all but the kiss. And howled with laughter.

The dandified stranger, cane over his arm, small waxed mustache bristling, paced the curb impatiently as the doorman sought a cab. Mary and Bowen, waiting their turn for a taxi, watched him involuntarily. He was like something out of "La Vie Parisiene." When the cab came up, he said loudly, "Can you take me, please, to Jupiter House, at the Point, Pleasant Hills?

Mary clutched Bowen's arm. "I knew I'd seen him somewhere! It's Bruce Jupiter, come home!" she cried.

First Meeting Of Brothers In 30 Years Seen Wednesday

SALT LAKE CITY, Dec. 2. (AP)—Two brothers whose whereabouts had been unknown to each other for 30 years were reunited here today as the result of a chance meeting in an employment agency.

Phillips Harrington, 60, of Denver, came here in search of a job and entered the employment office. His brother, Austin, 62, walked into the agency a short time later. Their recognition was mutual.

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 2. (AP)—Cotton today experienced what was probably the dullest session of the season. Long intervals between trades was the rule and fluctuations were confined to a few points. There was some liquidation in advance of the government's final estimate due Tuesday next, but there was little hedge selling and very limited trade buying.

Cables were hardly as good as due and the opening here was irregular 2 points up to 2 down. The close was steady showing net losses for the day of 2 to 4 points.

Liverpool is due to come in tomorrow unchanged to 1 penny point down on New Orleans.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Dec. 2. (AP)—Trading in cotton was quiet today with prices holding fairly steady within a range of 6 or 8 points. The general market closed steady at net advances of 2 to 6 points.

The opening was steady 3 points higher to 2 points lower, with some trade buying and covering just about offset by local and southern selling. December sold up from 6.97@6.91 and May from 6.36@6.42. During the middle of the day, making net advances of about 3 to 6 points, but the comparative light demand was supplied by realizing or liquidation at the figures and later fluctuations were irregular with the market rather unsettled by the renewed weakness of the stock market.

January and July however, both made new highs for the day in the later trading when they appeared to be a little more local buying or covering. The close was 1 to 3 points off from the best on most of the active positions.

Principal Financial Markets Working Lower In A Session Of General Sales

BY JOHN I. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 2. (AP)—In a day of general selling which was interrupted by fitful rallies, the principal financial markets worked lower.

The stock market was met at its opening with the announcement of the Wabash railroad receivership, a development which caught many investors by surprise and caused early selling. This in turn was quickly followed by news from Canada that the Dominion's board of mediation in the rail wage controversy had recommended a general reduction of 10 per cent in pay. Cheerfulness replaced early gloominess and the struggle for ascendancy between the two continued on through the day until shortly before the close when word reached the market that action had been instituted in Baltimore seeking receivership for Radio-Keith-Orpheum. Further selling followed.

MIDWESTERN LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 2. (AP) — Many short fed cattle have been forced to market in recent days owing to excessive rainfall and snow. Feed lots became extremely muddy and general care of animals was difficult to manage. Various markets have reported sizable supplies of short fed cattle would on each successive day this week with values working lower as trading progressed. Some centers scored 50 to 75 or more lower values as compared with the close of last week with trade being very slow and indifferent. Today's market found another liberal supply of short feds offered and values worked on a steady to 25 lower basis, a range of $4.50@7.00 taking the bulk with a few loads of better grades at 7.50@8.00. Strictly good and choice long feds were in limited supply but held steady. Receipts of cattle around the eleven market circuit totalled 41,100 against 32,881 a week ago.

FORT WORTH LIVESTOCK

FORT WORTH, Dec. 2. (AP) — Hogs 600; truck hogs to small killers steady, rail butchers to packers 25 lower than Tuesday's market to small killers; medium to choice 175-260 lb. truck hogs 4.90@5.00; good to choice 263 lb. rail butchers 4.75, packing sows 3.75@4.00, or steady to 25 lower.

Cattle—2,700; plainer grades slaughter steers and low cutter cows steady to strong; other classes cattle mostly steady; grass slaughter steers 3.50@4.25; desirable fed steers 6.00; yearling market poorly tested; good fat cows 3.50; butcher sorts around 2.50@3.00; plain stock yearlings 4.25; stock cows 2.00@3.25; bulls very scarce; slaughter calves unchanged; heavies around 4.25 down.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 2. (AP)—Stop loss selling broke out late today in the wheat pit largely owing to uncertainties of British exchange blocking wheat export business from North America. A gap of more than 20 points, equal to 2 1-2 cents a bushel on wheat, developed between the low for sterling in London today and the high in New York. Stock market weakness was a contributing bearish influence.

Wheat closed shaky 1 1-2 to 2 1-8 cents under yesterday's finish. Corn 1 3-8 to 1 3-4 down, oats 1-4 to 1-2 off, and provisions unchanged to 5 cents lower.

weakest link in the nation's credit chain, and that "we have fairly creditably solved every other segment of our credit structure more effectively" than this one.

"We have in normal times through the savings banks, insurance companies, the building and loan associations, and others, provided abundant mobile finance for 50 per cent of the cost of a home through the first mortgage," he said. "But the definite problem is not presented by those who can find 50 per cent of the cost of a home.

Are Good Risk

"Our chief problem in finances relates to those who have an earnest desire for a home, who have a job and therefore possess sound character credit, but whose initial resources run to only 20 or 25 per cent. These people would willingly work and apply all their rent and all their savings to gain for themselves this independence and security and social well-being. Such people are a good risk. They are the very basis of stability to the nation."

The president recalled before the delegates that every phase of home building and ownership was to be considered, including design, zoning, taxes and transportation, he said he hoped the results of these studies would prove as beneficial and be as widely broadcast as those of his child health conference.

He made but a passing mention of his recent plan for a system of home loan discount banks, and said nothing of general economic problems or of unemployment.

All-Time Late Frost Record Is Set In Lubbock; Other Readings Unusual

LAST month set an all-time late frost record, adding nine days to the previous mark, Don L. Jones, superintendent of the state experiment station here, said Wednesday. Killing frost was reported Nov. 22, breaking the previous record of Nov. 13, 1922.

Mean temperature, at 52 degrees, was higher than usual, while the mean minimum temperature was the highest ever recorded for this month by the station. Maximum reading was 81 degrees and minimum temperature was 27 degrees, the latter registered Nov. 22.

Precipitation of 1.39 inches last month has been exceeded but three years in the 20 years records kept in Lubbock. The station reported twelve clear days, seven partly cloudy days and eleven cloudy days. Maximum relative humidity was 91.5 per cent, minimum relative humidity was 49.5 per cent; and mean relative humidity was 77.4 per cent.

Total wind run for last month was 3,824 miles as compared with 4,782 miles for the average November. Total evaporation was 2.204 inches.

Although the normal November rainfall of .63 of an inch was more than doubled, total rainfall to date, 17.9 inches, is .57 of an inch under the normal precipitation for the same period.

Poverty Stricken Tots Of Lubbock Will Get Christmas If Citizens Will Give Lions Of City Some Cooperation

THERE is no childhood disappointment equal to that of an empty stocking Christmas morning."

To change that disappointment of poor children to a happy Christmas is the object of Lions, Boy Scouts and members of the fire department who are to prepare toys for Lubbock children whom Santa Claus might overlook.

Persons who have old toys their children have discarded are asked to call 695, the scout office, and report the toys. Boy scouts will pick up the playthings Saturday, the firemen will mend and repair them and the Lions will distribute the toys at their annual Christmas party.

Calls must be made today and Friday, said Scout Executive Jennings. No calls were received Wednesday and Jennings expressed fear that children in indigent local families might be missed by Santa.

"I saw that there was apparently something out of the ordinary, and with my foot tried to locate the burglar alarm button.

"While doing this, I also opened the middle drawer of my desk and half arose. I made a grab for the suspect's right hand, as I now saw his overcoat pocket was bulging and the idea occurred to me that he might have a gun in his hand. As I grabbed, I yelled loudly for help.

"Constable J. H. Roberts sprang from the writing desk with his gun drawn, identified himself as an officer and demanded the surrender of the man I had grappled with. The officer's command was complied with."

Roberts said that when he placed the suspect under arrest that he searched him and found in his right hand overcoat pocket a pistol.

New Style X-Ray To Save Many Lives Is Being Exhibited; Improved Sight

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 2. (AP)—New style x-ray picture showing how to save many lives in case of stomach ulcer were explained to the radiological society of North America here.

This life saving possibility is due merely to the improved "eyesights" from the latest speed film x-ray's. Thse scientific eyes enables physicians to see inside the body in some instances almost as well as if treating a surface ailment.

Dr. Lewis Gregory Cole of New York, who presented this x-ray evidence, said studies indicated the possibility that this disease by itself need almost never be fatal. The rays are not used in treatment, but simply to guide physicians in choice of already well established methods of treatment.

An obstacle to choosing the proper treatment has been similarity in outward effects arising from stomach ulcer and stomach cancer Dr. Cole told of 56 cases of both disease viewed with x-ray pictures.

"Shuffle these pictures as one would shuffle a pack of cards," he said, "any one of you or all of you, can pick the cancers from the ulcers as readily as one can separate the reds from the blacks in a pack of playing cards.

"In each new pack of cards there is a joker and an advertising card and two blanks which may subsequently be used either as reds or blacks. So with the 56 cards, the proportion of jokers and blanks is almost exactly the same."

Lea Rancher Gives Army 100 Lambs

ROSWELL, N. M., Dec. 2. —(Special)—When Captain Cleve Irby of the local Salvation Army needs any lamb to give to needy folks, all he will have to do is to have some of his flock of lambs given him by M. E. Collier, slaughtered and dressed.

Recently Mr. Collier, who owns a ranch in Lea county between Tatum and Caprock, donated the army 100 head of lambs. They will be kept on the ranch and slaughtered as needed, Captain Irby says.

Mellon's Son Is Embarking Upon Business Career

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 2.(AP)—Paul Mellon, who once was inclined to follow literary leanings he exhibited at Yale, has embarked on a banking career.

The son of the secretary of the treasury was escorted into the Mellon National bank by his father here over the week-end to attend his private business.

"What are you going to do?" young Mellon was asked.

"I'm going to work. I'm going to learn the banking business," he replied.

"In what capacity?"

"Whatever they want me to do."

"What about these earlier reports of your literary ambitions?"

"That's all old stuff and it's all been explained."

Secretary Mellon was not asked whether he dissuaded his son from carrying out his literary ideas.

BIRTHDAY TODAY

She will be 16 years old tomorrow.

WESTERNERS

FIGHT 'EM HARD!

TURKEY.....

After the Westerners get through playing football, and we hope it is after they win the State Championship, a Turkey dinner will be served them. Piggly-Wiggly stores in Lubbock are going to furnish the Turkey for this dinner.

STORES CLOSED.....

In order that we may boost the Westerners one hundred per cent, and so that our employees may attend the game today, all Piggly-Wiggly and Helpy-Selfy stores will be closed from 2 p. m. until 5:30 p. m.

LICK THE SANDIES, WESTERNERS YOU CAN DO IT!

Christmas TURKEYS

It is approaching the time for December or Christmas turkey movement. There has been such a fluctuation in prices that we can't give any definite information as to what the price range will be, but we will pay highest cash prices at all times, give you most courteous and prompt service, and do our best to please you.

If there is a Mistletoe Cream Station in your territory, it is a Titman produce buying station. We urge you to get our prices before you sell.

The December turkey season probably will close a little earlier than did the Thanksgiving season. It is our honest opinion that you should sell your turkeys early.
