School board accepts bids for computers

The Lockney School Board of Directors met for a regular meeting Tuesday, September 13, in the school board room.

Following the invocation by Kelton Shaw, the board approved the minutes of the last meeting and approved payment of current bills. Tax report #12 was also approved.

During the superintendents report each of the school principals gave current enrollment reports. Elementary school has 351 enrolled, which is down 14 from last year. Junior high has 166 presently enrolled. The peak in junior high last year was 201. High school has 193 enrolled and had a peak enrollment last year of 207.

The board accepted the resignation of Deanna McConnell as a high school aide. The McConnells have moved to Oklahoma.

The board approved participation in the South Plains School Board Association. They also approved the State estimate of 1983-84 foundation funding.

The board then reviewed bids on the remodeling of the windows in junior high and high school. This remodeling would entail closing in the windows and covering them with 26 gauge steel panels. In closing in the windows the schools would save money on heating and cooling costs. Bids reviewed were such a price range difference that the board members suspected that the specifications set up were not clear enough for all bidders to understand exactly what the board is wanting that the board members decided to reject all bids and draw up new specs and advertise for new bids. There was a difference in over $20,000 in the highest and lowest bids.

The board then reviewed and accepted the bid from Radio Shack on computers for the junior high and high school. The bid was for $9392.00 and was the only bid sent in. These new computers will be the same models now in use at the schools.

It was approved by the board for the bus insurance to remain with Floyd County Insurance Agency.

The board discussed plans for the State School Board convention. Members of the board who will be attending are Keith Jackson, Jim Bob Martin, and Eddie Foster. Superintendent W.H. Hallmark will also be attending.

PERSPECTIVES

By the Rev. Michael O'Connor

Recently, I saw a story on the television news about the efforts of some to establish grapes as a cash crop in this area. Apparently there has been work in this area along these lines for some time, but now work is increasing to go big time with the growing of grapes.

Sometime ago, I had the opportunity to hear more on the subject at the meeting of an organization I belong to. The program on that particular day was on growing grapes, and seeing the report on television reminded me of that program.

Much work and some financial investment will get a farmer into the grape growing business, and when the investment pays off, if it does, then the rewards are significant financially. There is a hitch to the whole situation, however.

This area is not particularly suited to the growing of table grapes, the kind you get at the supermarket to just sit around and eat. Instead the grapes that do the best around here are those which are used in the production of wines. And, from all accounts, the grapes grown in this area can produce award winning wines.

I would hate to see a large scale growing of wine grapes in this area for the primary reason that they are indeed wine grapes. I know all the arguments for responsible drinking; I've used most of them myself. But we are in an age when alcohol has assumed a major role in our society. At the same time, alcohol has also caused untold misery to individuals and financial disaster to the nation, a toll taken in lost work hours, highway deaths, broken families, and on and on.

It would be tragic for our farmers to think that the growing of wine grapes would hold out any real hope for economic survival. Faust sold his soul to the devil, mostly for personal gain. We must not do the same through becoming part of the wine grape industry.

SPS files rate change

To comply with a new Texas law and new Public Utility Commission (PUC) Rules, Southwestern Public Service Company has filed new rates for its electrical energy customers in Floydada, Crosbyton, and Lubbock.

"The new rates would decrease the monthly electric bills for some classes of service and increase others," said Lewis McDaniel, Manager for Southwestern Public Service (SPS) in Floydada.

"The average residential billing under the proposed rates in Floydada will decrease -- by $3.85 a month, or 6.26%," McDaniel said.

Average residential use of electricity here is about 750 kilowatt-hours monthly, he said.

The new rate structure is subject to approval of the city governments, and, if approved, would become effective with the SPS November billing.

The Floydada rates need to be changed to make them conform with the new regulations that the PUC has made effective throughout the Texas area served by SPS, McDaniel said.

SPS serves in the South Plains and the Panhandle of Texas.

"The new rates are necessary," McDaniel said, "because the Public Utility Commission now requires public utility companies in Texas to estimate their power plant fuel purchase costs for 12-month periods, and to add the fuel cost to their 'base rate' for electricity."

"For the past several years, the 'base rate' did not include the cost of coal and natural gas purchased by SPS to fuel the boilers at the Company's electrical generating stations," McDaniel said.

"The fuel charges were added to monthly electric bills only in the amount needed to reimburse SPS for its fuel purchases over each monthly period."

Before September 1, 1983, the effective date of the new law, the utilities simply collected and "passed through" fuel purchase expenses on a monthly basis, without profit, McDaniel said. As the fuel costs changed monthly, the amount collected each month was adjusted automatically in order to charge customers only for actual fuel costs.

"We do not like these new procedures," McDaniel said, "because it requires SPS to estimate its next 12-month fuel bill annually, the new structure likely could cost the customers more money in the long run."

"If the estimates turn out to be high, our customers will have overpaid their monthly bills for a full year and have been denied use of their own money, which eventually will have to be refunded. On the other hand, if the estimate proves to be low, then it will be necessary for SPS to borrow money to pay for the fuel, with the customers eventually paying the interest on the borrowed money -- because an electric company has no source of revenue other than its customers," McDaniel said.

Presently, power plant fuel purchase costs make up about 59% of the total paid by customers for electric service in this area.

SPS purchases all of its fuels -- coal and natural gas -- on the open market, and owns no coal mines, gas fields, or other fuel supply sources.

Horns rope Mustangs in a 31-12 victory

The Lockney Longhorn varsity scored its first win of the 1983 season Friday night in Olton against the Mustangs. Final score of the game was Lockney 31, Olton 12.

Lockney's first score of the game came in the first quarter with quarterback Brent Hallmark hitting receiver Robert Rendon with a 38 yard pass. Moses Blanco made the extra point.

During the second quarter Lockney scored 17 points. These came from a six yard run by Dickie Hernandez, a 35 yard field goal by Moses Blanco, and a 71 yard pass from Hallmark to Gary Kent. Blanco made the extra points on the Hernandez and Kent touchdowns.

In the third quarter Hallmark threw another touchdown pass to Kent for the fourth Lockney touchdown of the game and Blanco again converted for the extra point.

Olton scored two touchdowns, one in the third quarter and one in the fourth. They were not able to convert for extra points after either touchdown. Olton fumbled the ball five times during the game and all five were recovered by the Longhorns.

The Horns also intercepted five passes thrown by Olton. Those who intercepted were Robert Rendon, Terry Mathis, Hector Molina, and Gary Kent. The Horn defense played a major part in the win Friday night in recovering fumbles, intercepting the ball and holding Olton to only two touchdowns.

The offense lead by Brent Hallmark had 218 yards passing and 173 rushing. They also had 16 first downs. The offensive backs which played a major roll in Friday's game included Dickie Hernandez, Richie Thornton, Jerry Mathis, Chris Rodriguez, and leading rusher for the game Buffo Rodriguez.

Outstanding players in Friday's game were offensive backs Brent Hallmark and Gary Kent, offensive linemen Moses Blanco, defensive linebackers Terry Mathis and Randy Race and on the secondary Robert Rendon.

Coach Bob Purser said that the Horns played a very good game against Olton although they did make some mistakes they are improving more each week. Coach Purser also said that in order to beat Ralls tomorrow night the Horns are going to have to play some of the toughest ball they have ever played.

Go out and support the Horns Friday night here. Game starts at 7:30.

The JV extended their season to 2-0-1 Thursday by defeating the Olton Mustangs 22-0. Scoring in the first quarter was by Hector Flores who ran up the middle from five yards out for the TD. The extra points were from a pass to Raymon Cortez from Steven Cates.

Flores scored again in the second quarter with the extra point not good. The third score was a QB keep by Steven Cates who rambed 52 yards. A pass from Cates to David Lemons made the score 22-0. There was no scoring in the fourth quarter.

Cates was the offensive Horn of the Week while Hector Flores was defensive player of the week with two blocked punts. The defense was outstanding with Trent Gant, Ricky Key and Ronnie Ford picking off passes.

The first game of the year was between Lockney and Tulsa. The JV won 16-8. The Horn of the Week in that game was Dickie Hernandez.

The Lockney-Petersburg game was a defensive game with both teams failing to score. Lockney threatened in the second quarter, but a pass was picked off in the end zone to stop the drive. In the third quarter, Petersburg had a first down at the three-yard line. On the next three plays, the Buffaloes lost 20 yards. The game ended 0-0.

The offensive player of the week was Tony Banda, and Trent Gant was the defensive player.

The Longhorns next game is Thursday at Ralls with the game starting at 7:30 or 8:00 after the 7th and 8th-grade games. The game will be in Ralls.

Lockney Care Center Capers

By Mavis Barton & Mary Jo Fielding

Sunday, Sept. 11th: I went home again, had another day off. We pondered whether to go home or the "Air Show" at Plainview. Then we decided it was going to be hot and not close to rest rooms, so we went home. I am glad we did, we took a ride to the field, and Bud said look at those tracks. He stopped the pickup and he said, "Looks like a herd of deer, coyote, raccoon, and skunk tracks." We went on and looked at the cotton, it was still holding up good in places but still crying out for rain.

Monday, 12th: When we got up this morning it was a little cool. After breakfast we had exercise and church and then lunch. Everybody told me they had a good time yesterday. Mrs. Mary Green had breakfast then left for the day with her niece and she had a good time, and tell me all about it. She didn't get back until almost supper time. She went again today and they had lunch at her own home. I thought that was a real nice time and she will be going out everyday after breakfast for the next three weeks. So she is making hay while the sun shines!

Well the clouds picked up again like they did Sunday when we were home. I was writing in the lobby and Granny Self and Hattie Arnold were talking with John Smith outside, the clouds were getting heavy and the wind started to blow and all of them came in. Esker Pyle had the sprinkler going. Angie, a nurses aide, hurried and turned it off. Betty Aey our night nurse had to go out and I guess she went to close the windows in her car. Then Esker Pyle came to turn the sprinkler off, we told him who did and he picked up his cushion he had left outside. Boy did it blow, trees all whipping and paper sacks were blowing over the home and dust was so thick we couldn't see the road and the trees in front. Then it started raining it was so dark we couldn't see the rain, but it rained hard. I don't know how much we got here, but it was sure bad for the crops.

Tuesday, Sept. 13th: There was bingo this afternoon. Diana called and we surely had an assortment of fruit to take as prizes -- pears, plums, apples and bananas. Mavis and I had our table to ourselves. Hallie Roberts is still in the hospital and Mary Green had gone somewhere with her niece. Mary McCracken won the blackout prize and this time she chose a sack of candy.

We were in the lobby this morning and Nena Loudermilk came in for church, she was looking a lot better than the last time I saw her before she went to the hospital, it was good to see her. But Ada Hopper is still in the hospital. Our prayers go out to Ada. Please get better, I want to see you get better and come back home and have talks like we used to. And Hallie Roberts, please get better and come home too, we all miss you so very much.

Wednesday, 14th: It was cold this morning, when we got up and sweaters and light coats are coming out of the moth balls. Gloria our nurse was giving out the pills at breakfast and said, "The bus to Plainview has been cancelled, and also Kim Sherman won't be coming today, they had a fire in the recreational building and destroyed a lot of records, so they have a lot of paperwork to do." We were looking forward to her coming and we shall miss her very much.

Thursday, 15th: I was up earlier this morning and Lee the laundry lady was waiting for her morning cup of coffee and we got to talking about the weather. She says she couldn't see anything when she comes to work, because it is dark. But when she left to go home, she said between Lockney and Muncy, she guessed there was a strip about 1/4 mile wide maybe more, that it hailed hard and there was nothing left of the crops but stalks. By the way, Lee and her husband live at Floydada and her husband works at the sale barn. That, to me, was a heart breaking piece of news.

Mr. Pyle and I have been raising "Ole Glory" each morning and after we lower it in the evening I fold it. Well, it wasn't until today that I learned that I had been folding it improperly. John Smith, a resident here, was in service during the war, and he showed me how to fold it when two persons were holding the flag between them. He started folding it in a triangle and the Star's were visible from the top when he got through. I had been folding it in a triangle but 'the stars' weren't showing from the fold.

Friday, 16th: Well yesterday and the day before, we (meaning) Mary McCracken, Mary Jo Fielding, Jackie Gerhardt, myself and today Mary Green not forgetting Nena Loudermilk, were working like mad, making flowers for our float, we were going to ride in the parade. We were depicting "Hawaii" our fiftieth state. We worked on them all day and late tonight, when we ran out of pipe cleaners. Mrs. Green went to bed early, but Mary McCracken, Mary Jo Fielding and myself just sat and talked, then Granny comes to see what was going on. Mary Jo went to bed and the others did one by one. So that left just the three of us, Mary McCracken and Granny did all the talking, I just listened, until the nurse, Myrtle Gibson came to see what was going on. That did it we had to go to bed too.

Saturday, 17th: This morning was a mad house, getting breakfast over and trying to get the float fixed up with volcano and colored rocks, and a palm tree. Jackie said she tried everywhere and couldn't get any dry ice to make the smoke come from the volcano. I think everybody from the "Home" that was able to get on the float, was on it.

We were all ready for the parade. After moving all of us into position on the trailer then somebody else wanted to ride and Laverne had to move everybody again and again. We pulled out and waited for our place in the parade. The Honey Queen Deon Zumwalt came and was introduced to all of us and gave us four little honey bears filled with honey for the tables.

The wind played the chickens with our palm tree, it almost turned it inside out and also our volcano had its trouble too. But it was a colorful float and we

Farabee reminds residents of new hunting rules

With the approach of hunting season, Senator Ray Farabee of Wichita Falls reminded 30th District residents that this year's hunting seasons and regulations may be different from last year's.

"While some of the counties' hunting and fishing seasons will not change, others will change considerably because of the enactment of the Wildlife Conservation Act of 1983," Farabee said.

The Act, passed by the 68th Legislature, allows the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission to repeal current county regulations and set more uniform game and fish regulations for all counties. In the past, up to 71 counties had allowed their commissioners authority to override regulations made by the state agency.

Dove hunting season in the Panhandle Zone, which includes all District 30 counties except for parts of Callahan and Mitchell, started September 1 and will continue through November 9, 1983. Hunting in the southern parts of Callahan and Mitchell counties also started September 1 and will continue through October 30. A second season in this area starts January 7 and runs through January 16, 1984.

Other hunting seasons for Floyd County are listed below:

Antelope -- Oct. 1-Oct. 9; 1 antelope by permit.

Aoudad Sheep -- Nov. 5-Nov. 18 and Jan. 7-Jan. 22; 1 aoudad sheep.

Deer -- Archery, Oct. 1-Oct. 30. Regular, Nov. 19-Dec. 4. Limit 1 deer (Archery, buck only. Regular, buck or antlerless, antlerless by permit).

Mule Deer -- Archery, Oct. 1-Oct. 30. Regular, Nov. 19-Nov. 27. Limit 2 mule deer, nor more than 1 buck (Archery, buck only. Regular, buck or antlerless, antlerless by permit).

Squirrel -- May 1-July 1 and Oct. 1-Dec. 1; 5 per day, 5 poss.

Pheasant -- Dec. 10-Dec. 25; 2 cocks per day, 4 poss.

Quail -- Oct. 20-Jan. 29.

Turkey -- Archery, Oct. 1-Oct. 30. Regular, Nov. 19-Dec. 4. Limit 1 turkey, either sex. Spring season, Apr. 14-Apr. 29; 1 gobbler.

Senator Farabee added that his office will be sending out information on the migratory fowl hunting seasons before November 1.

COTTON TALKS

FROM PLAINS COTTON GROWERS, INC.

Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., Lubbock, for the time being is holding all options open with regard to the need for a Payment-in-Kind program for cotton in 1984.

This is what Donald Johnson, PCG Executive Vice President, told ginners and related industry people September 10 in Lubbock at the Plains Ginners Association annual meeting. A final decision is being withheld, he said, pending a better indication of what the supply-demand picture may be at the end of this marketing year next July 31.

However, Johnson added, if in the final analysis "any significant acreage reduction is needed and is to be achieved in 1984, a PIK program in some form may be the only way to get it." Under current law, he pointed out, participation in any paid or so-called "required" acreage diversion program must be strictly on a voluntary basis, with loss of loan and program payment eligibility the only penalty for non-compliance.

That fact, along with the existing

$50,000 payment limitation, Johnson believes, will mean a lot of larger farmers on the Plains and elsewhere in the Cotton Belt will not participate in the program, just as they didn't participate in the acreage diversion programs of 1982. And, Johnson said, "the larger the per-pound paid diversion payment and the per-pound deficiency payment, the larger will be the number of farmers who go outside, the program because of the payment limit."

The Department of Agriculture's attitude, according to Johnson, points to a slim chance for a PIK program in 1984, regardless of producer wishes. "Unless there is a drastic change in the currently expected carryover of cotton on July 31 next year, USDA has made it plain that a PIK program is highly unlikely," he said.

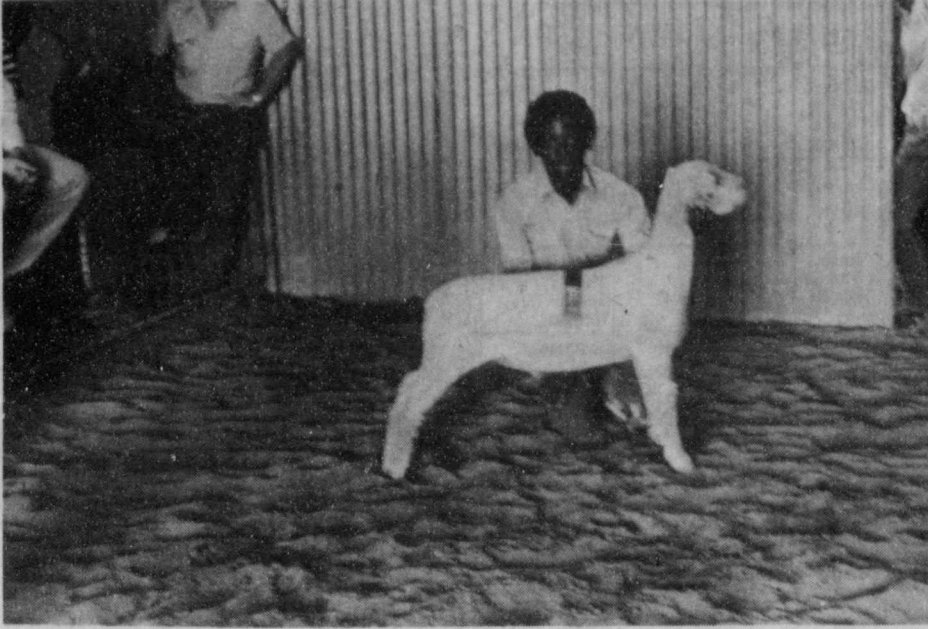

And, he continued, "I think we can be absolutely certain that any PIK program that might be in effect for 1984 will (1) be considerably less attractive to producers than this year and (2) be structured in such a manner as to bring about a much less dramatic reduction in planted acreage than was seen in 1983."

USDA's latest "Cotton and Wool Outlook and Situation Summary" gives rounded figures that indicate a 1983 carryover of about 4.6 million bales, down from the 1982 carryover of 7.9 million. The 1983 surplus projection is based on the August 1 estimate of a 7.8 million bale crop and estimates of domestic use at 5.9 million bales and exports at 5.3 million. No allowance, however, was made in the Summary for widely reported crop deterioration in the hot dry weather that was prevalent in the Delta and in the Texas and Oklahoma Plains since the August 1 estimate. A new USDA crop estimate for 1983 is due September 12.

Condensing his thoughts on 1984 cotton acreage, Johnson told the ginners "...at this point I don't think there can be any doubt that the number of acres planted to cotton, or at least intended for cotton, will be much more to your liking as ginners in 1984 than it was this year."

Landscape & Gardening

BENNY BUTLER

There's an old saying about planting seeds goes "One for the black bird, one for the crow, one for the cutworm and one to grow." Well, it's no longer appropriate if you use today's better varieties and advanced gardening know how. Most seed today can be counted on to sprout and produce a vigorous plant if the seeds are planted correctly and adequately watered.

However, after the seedlings are up, the plants must be thinned to the proper spacing. Too many seedlings in a row will act just like weeds and compete with each other for water, light, and nutrients.

The problem of over-crowding often occurs with many of the popular fall vegetables such as lettuce, carrots, beets, radishes, and spinach. These crops must have room to develop into good-quality, high-producing vegetables. Otherwise you'll end up with a small or twisted and misshapen product. Also, the cooler temperatures and high humidity associated with fall gardening can cause disease problems, especially if the plants are grown too close together. You'll find that fewer plants properly spaced will produce better yields than a lot of over-crowded plants. Be sure to check planting instructions and make a real effort this year to give your fall vegetable garden plants plenty of room to grow.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serves people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Study to improve cotton yields is underway

A three-year special project to identify ways to improve cotton yields and lower production costs was announced at the National Cotton Council Board of Directors meeting in Lubbock September 8.

In announcing the study, Tommy Funk, Harlingen, cotton producer and president of The Cotton Foundation, explained that cotton yields in the U.S. have not increased during the past 15 years. He pointed out that potential world markets for cotton are forecast to increase at 1.3 million bales per year compared with 1 million in recent years.

"If we are to take advantage of the potential growth, we must increase yields both to have an adequate supply and to be a low-cost producer," Funk said.

The study will be based on USDA research concerning the cotton plant's response to changes in production inputs under controlled growth conditions. During the three-year project, additional information will be put into the model. This will include data on weather, soil conditions, tillage, insects, insecticides, herbicides, and other inputs, according to Funk.

"We expect that the most significant yield problems will be identified and the relative impact of each problem will be measured," he explained. "This will help guide what needs to be done next."

The Foundation president said five key USDA scientists will guide the project and numerous USDA personnel will participate in its execution.

Funding of the project will be through The Foundation by three of its member firms, Deere and Co., FMC Corporation, and Shell Chemical Company.

Another facet of the project will involve transforming the research model into a crop management tool. Completion of arrangements for this part of the project will put total funding above the $500,000 mark, Funk explained.

Robert D. Wismar of Deere and Co. told the meeting his company is "optimistic about the positive results this study can have on enhancing the profitability of the cotton producer."

Susan Wendler said FMC involvement is motivated by three important reasons: (1) the necessity that the U.S. be the low-cost quality producer, (2) the importance of exports to economic growth, and (3) the need for exchange of ideas and solutions to problems faced by producers.

Joe Anderson of Shell Chemical Company said the end result will be "new management tools that producers will be able to utilize in developing individualized strategies to optimize their own production."

T. J. Army, deputy director of USDA's Agricultural Research Service, hailed the project as an ideal example of how industry can add its expertise and leadership to the scientific knowledge within ARS to develop a more efficient agriculture.

Farm program costs average $266 million

Government expenditures for cotton programs, as now constituted, averaged only about $266 million annually over the past ten years, says the president of the National Cotton Council, Gerald Brewer of Fresno, California.

He made that state in Lubbock in rallying to the defense of the much-maligned payment-in-kind (PIK) and other farm programs.

"Without question, farm program costs have increased, but in all fairness, those outlays should be measured over a period of years and not just on the special conditions of the past two seasons," Brewer commented in a report opening the afternoon session of the Council's fall board meeting.

"But the important points are that supply and demand are being brought into better balance. We are beginning to see some price recovery and the cost of deficiency payments is going down."

"Despite its shortcomings, PIK can still be defended on the grounds it alleviated a crisis among farmers facing potential bankruptcy," the industry leader quoted from an editorial in the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal. The newspaper circulates throughout the world's heaviest cotton producing area.

Brewer reviewed the history of cotton programs since passage of the 1973 farm act, noting there were no deficiency payments for cotton for the first seven years. They were triggered for the first time in 1981 by a record yield coming onto the market in the deepest worldwide recession since the 1930's, he said.

"When people talk about $22-23 billion in farm program outlays, they generally include all price support loans in the bottom line," Brewer said. "What they fail to mention is that most of these loans are repaid with both interest and storage charges."

He noted that some $7 billion of the so-called cost is repaid.

Reiterating that current farm programs are designed to help farmers only when they need help, the Council president said, "It seems to me the government farm program is working as it was intended to work -- providing help to the farmer when he needs it."

M. Dean Ethridge, the Council's director of economic services, said the market's nervousness about cotton supplies this season is probably due to concern about the adequacy of medium staple, higher grade cottons.

"Users of the middle-range staple categories naturally don't want to have to substitute either shorter or long staple cotton in order to get the quality needed to manufacture their textile products.

"To the extent that such substitution becomes necessary, the price differentials among grades and staples will be more volatile and unpredictable than usual."

The economist said cotton stocks for the season ending July 31 totaled 8 million bales -- the largest carryover level in 15 years and twice as large as desired. He said stocks of 4.7 million bales are projected by USDA for the season ending July 31, 1984.

"Depending on whether production is somewhat less or exports are somewhat more than projected -- or perhaps a combination of these things -- it appears that ending stocks could fall somewhat below 4.7 million bales."

Guest speakers included Everett Rank, administrator of USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, and J. Nicholas Hahn, president of Cotton Incorporated.

Producers, ginners, and representatives of other cotton interests throughout the Plains area heard other reports on legislative developments, cotton dust regulations, boll weevil and pink bollworm programs, foreign market development, farm credit, and activities of the Producer Steering Committee and the Committee for the Advancement of Cotton.
