Walker And Merchant Reach Final Round Of Greenbelt Golf Tournament

JINX FINALLY ENDS MARCH OF FRANKFOXHALL

Gallant Medalist Strikes Row of Hard Luck In Quarter Final

MATCHES THRILLING

Panhandle Players Hold Scores Down After Eliminations

By FRED THOMPSON
Record News Sports Editor

CLARENDON, Texas, May 20.—At the end of a wild day of upsets, L. S. (City) Walker and Ira (Country) Merchant, went to the finals today in the sixth annual Greenbelt Golf association tournament.

The gallant Frank Foxhall, whose superior brand of golf gave him medalist honors and made him a favorite to win his third successive Greenbelt crown, was defeated by Walker, also two time champion of the Greenbelt, in the quarter final round early this afternoon. The score was two up. Walker followed this victory by bowling over young Bill Rogers of Vernon, dark horse of the tournament, 2 and 1, in the semi-finals.

Victories Unexpected

Both of Walker's victories were unexpected. Rogers had advanced to the semi-finals by whipping Al Cooke of Clarendon, 2 and 1, a match that was also an upset. It marked the second victory Rogers had registered over a member of the Cooke family, his decision over Dick Cooke Tuesday in the second round having been one of the early round sensations.

In the lower bracket Merchant went to the finals by a close victory over Jack Parr of Electra, 2 and 1. Parr had gone into the semi-finals by a 2 and 1 victory over C. Haynes of Frederick, Okla., and Merchant had won the privilege of playing Parr by defeating a Blanton of Childress, 4 and 3.

The semi-final matches were thrillers, Rogers battled Walker all the way going out. They were all square until the sixth hole, when Walker took a birdie two to Rogers' par three. Walker won the seventh hole with a par four to Rogers' five, putting Walker two up, but Rogers rallied and won the eighth with a par four on the ninth. Rogers' third shot put him behind a sand trap, the top of which he hit trying to pitch, the ball falling just short of the green. Walker's second shot landed him in the same trap, but on his third shot he wielded the old niblick to perfection and pitched square on the green, about 12 feet from the cup.

Walker's Putt Falls

Rogers was six feet from the cup in four. Walker's putt then fell a foot and a half short, but Rogers' putt from six feet out fell two inches short and he missed the chance to square the match. Rogers holed out in six and Walker in five, to put the Quanah entry two up at the turn.

Walker got two birdies to Rogers' one on the first nine. The cards going out:

Walker .....5 4 5 3 5 2 4 6 5—39
Rogers .....5 4 5 3 5 3 5 4 6—40

The victory finally went to Walker after he and Rogers had battled seven holes on the back nine. They halved the first two. Walker went three up when he won the third by a stroke; lost the fourth to lead by two up; held this advantage when they halved the fifth; went three up by winning the sixth and when he went four up on the seventh Rogers conceded.

The cards coming in:

Walker 4 5 5 4 4 3 4
Rogers 4 5 6 3 4 4 5

Parr and Merchant

Jack Parr and Merchant were all square going into the eighth on the first nine, but Merchant won the eighth to go one up. Parr's 11-foot putt on the ninth green squared the match and they went out on the second nine. Both shot 39 the first nine holes, Parr living up to his name in shoting par golf on six holes, while Merchant turned in

'Too Beautiful To Be Bad' Says French Jury In Nirdlinger Trial

By ROBERT MILTON
Universal Service Special Cable

NICE, France, May 20.—It took a French jury just 16 minutes today to decide that Mrs. Charlotte Nixon-Nirdlinger is "too beautiful to be bad."

The jury acquitted the former St. Louis beauty queen of manslaughter in the shooting of her husband, Fred G. Nixon-Nirdlinger, Philadelphia and New York theater magnate.

Tonight, just 10 weeks to the day since she was jailed, Charlotte, again a free woman, was re-united with her two children and mother.

Escapes Jail

The jury's verdict cleared Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger of murderous intent when she levelled a revolver at her husband in their Riviera villa and fired three shots into his body. It substantiated her account of the shooting—tearfully repeated on the witness stand today—that she fired in self-defense at a husband enraged by unfounded jealousy.

In returning a verdict of "not guilty," the jury disregarded the prosecution's plea that she be found guilty of "murder with provocation." Conviction on this count would have sent her to jail for from two to five years.

Red-eyed from weeping and trembling with emotion, Charlotte and her mother, Mrs. James B. Nash of St. Louis, hurried from the court into a waiting motor car, when Judge Herwards, who presided at the trial, ordered her released.

Crowd Cheers

The cheers of a crowded courtroom—the day's trial had been eagerly followed by French residents and Anglo-American holiday makers alike—still rang in the lovely defendant's ears as she sped off for the meeting with her children, whom friends have kept in seclusion.

Even as she rushed off with her daughter, Mrs. Nash paused for a moment at the door of the courtroom to throw her arms around

There are two pictures of the beauty which a French jury Wednesday held incompatable with "badness" when it acquitted Mrs. Fred G. Nixon-Nirdlinger, former Atlantic City bathing beauty, of the murder of her aged and wealthy husband at Nice, France.

Texas Labor Forces Hotly Protest Wage Slashes in El Paso Meeting

Regulation of Oil Workers' Hours and Stand Against Prohibition Proposed in Resolutions

EL PASO, May 20. (AP)—The storm of protest against arbitrary wage reductions grew in intensity at the annual convention of the Texas State Federation of Labor here today.

It overshadowed action of the organization in removing its headquarters from Dallas to Austin and the introduction of resolutions advocating modification of the Volstead act and organization of oil field workers and automobile mechanics.

In a telegram, William Green, president of the American Federation of labor, urged the state organization to oppose wage cuts with all its power and cooperate with other labor groups to bring about the five-day week and shorter working hours.

What he described as a general movement to reduce wages even where businesses were showing a profit was denounced by Peter Beisel of Webster Grove, Mo., representative of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers International union.

He advocated a return to the original fighting principles of trade unionism with an intensive campaign of organization in those cities of the state where as a result of weakness employers had been able to manipulate wages to the detriment of the worker.

A. Gordon of Baltimore, general organizer for the United Garment Workers of America, severely criticized a clothing manufacturing company at Sherman, Texas, for recently cutting wages, lengthening hours of employes and adopting the open shop principle.

A resolution introduced and referred to committee asked that the executive secretary of the state federation give attention to enforcement of the prevailing wage provisions of a congressional act applicable to construction for the United States government.

Dry Law Change

Modification of the Volstead act as a means of creating more jobs and "putting millions of dollars into circulation and thousands of persons to work" was sought in a resolution signed by a dozen delegates and referred to the resolutions committee. It declared the 18th amend-

BERLIN LOSES LEAGUE PLEA

German Withdrawal Feared After Refusal

GENEVA, May 20. (US)—The world disarmament conference, fixed for February, 1932, at Geneva, today received its first blow, and for the second time in the 63rd session of the council of the League of Nations, Germany was made to remember she was vanquished in the world war.

The blow delivered to the disarmament conference, heralded in some quarters as a peace-maker and in others as a makeshift, came when Germany's demand that information on trained reserves, war materials in service, on stock and in reserve, be laid before the conference by each state was virtually turned down.

While being distasteful to Germany, this action is also a body blow to the agenda of the world conference, and although formal voting is postponed until Friday, views so far expressed are overwhelmingly against Germany.

The question of trained reserves came up in the league council in consideration of the form and scope of a questionnaire for the draft convention of the conference.

In circles close to the British, concern is professed that there is real danger of the Germans eventually withdrawing from the league, and that this time the report is not mere talk.

RUSSIA UPSETS WHEAT PARLEY

Soviet Favors Quota Plan Opposed by U. S.

LONDON, May 20. (AP)—The Russian delegation to the world wheat conference today indicated that the Soviet Union would favor the "quota plan" of Poland and the Danube countries as a solution of the world wheat problem, rather than the proposal of Samuel R. McKelvie, of the American contingent, for restriction of acreage.

Exposition of the Russian position created a minor impasse in the conference which developed into an issue on which the meeting finds itself unable to agree.

Americans Opposed

The Americans have repeatedly voiced opposition to any quota plan or international export restrictions, on the ground it would be against sound marketing policies. Observers do not believe this attitude will be changed.

In addition to Russia's approval of the "quota plan" there was an indication she might expect someone to finance her grain held off the market, at present estimated at approximately 190,000,000 bushels.

Decision Postponed

A decision was postponed pending further study.

After reception of the Russian views the conference was adjourned until Friday morning, but the committees will continue their work tomorrow.

Neither the Russian delegation nor the Americans would discuss the trend of the conference tonight, but it was understood the United States group did not welcome the quota proposals.

Meanwhile the official Russian statement was withheld.

During the discussions the Russians mentioned the 1909-1914 average exports as a basis for any future plan to fix export quotas. This is expected to bring considerable opposition from Argentina, Canada and Australia.

For 1926 to 1930 the five-year average of Canada's export was 304,000,000 bushels against 94,000,000 for the pre-war period of 1909-1914; Argentina exported 174,000,000 against 85,000,000 and Australia exported 86,000,000 against 50,000,000.

Thus it is pointed out that any realignment or export markets for these countries is bound to meet with considerable resistance.

Bandit Trio Loots Bank Near Guthrie

GUTHRIE, Okla., May 20. (AP)—The First State bank of Pleasant Valley, near here, was robbed of approximately $750 this afternoon by three young men.

The robbers, described as poorly dressed, escaped south out of town in a small car.

Daughter of Charles Dawes Goes On Operating Table After Court Bow

LONDON, May 20. (US)—Virginia Dawes, 18-year-old daughter of U. S. Ambassador Charles Gates Dawes, set a new mark for American grit today.

She was presented to King George and Queen Mary at the first royal court of the season in Buckingham palace last night and this morning went on the operating table for the removal of her appendix.

Ambassador Dawes decided that the operation should not be performed in a hospital, and one room was fitted up for surgery with special lights and etherizing machinery and other appliances in the American embassy in Princes Gate, London.

Virginia returned from Buckingham palace near midnight and slept soundly, and faced this morning's ordeal with a smile.

Sir Crisp English, noted consulting surgeon attached to St. George's hospital and the Hospital of St. John and St. Elizabeth, performed the operation successfully.

Virginia was first aware of the necessity of the operation when she returned with her father from a recent visit to the United States, but she insisted that the operation be postponed until after the great event at Buckingham.

Miss Dawes was reported convalescing tonight, and her condition fine. Sir Crisp English characterized her display of grit as "superb."

CITY UTILITY NEEDS MAPPED AT SEYMOUR

Municipal League Urges Home-Owned Power Organizations

BILL VETO SOUGHT

Convention Opposes Petsh Measure as Hindering Program

By FRED L. HASKETT
The Record News Staff

SEYMOUR, Texas, May 20.—Discussion of problems and advancement of public ownership of municipal utilities was discussed here today at the fifth annual convention of the Municipal Utilities league of Texas. One of the first things done by the members was to send a telegram to Gov. Ross Sterling asking that he veto the newly enacted Petsch bill, known as house bill 132 on the ground that it contains several clauses which would handicap cities in operating or acquiring utility systems.

All Sections Represented

The convention is attended by 60 or more delegates from almost every section of Texas. It was reported in convention that there are now in operation in this state some 60 municipal power plants, and that most of them are being sucessfully operated at a saving to the customers.

J. B. Lawson, manager of the J. C. Penney store at Vernon, spoke in the Wednesday night session on "Loyalty of Your Home Town," pleading for patronage of home-owned institutions and utility plants.

Senator W. D. McFarlane of Graham, accused the Texas press of being subsidised by the utility companies, both in the advertising and editorial columns. He urged expansion of municipal owned plants and said that nothing could be gained by an appeal to the present legislature.

Repeal Predicted

The meeting is being presided over by Mayor H. D. Hockersmith of Vernon, Pat N. Roberts of Denton, is secretary. The morning session was taken over by registration of delegates and discussion of the Petsch bill. Mayor Hockersmith stated that no one knows the outcome of municipal operation of plants that have competition. He spoke highly of the machinery representatives present, stating that it

Low-Priced Beef Urged For American Tables

WASHINGTON, May 20. (US)—American housewives were urged today by C. B. Denman, member of the federal farm board, to buy beef at present low prices in order to help the beef cattle market.

Denman said retail prices at Chicago ranged from 27 to 40 per cent below what they were a year ago. He added:

"A year ago a dollar would buy two and one-tenth pounds of sirloin steak while now it will buy three pounds. A check of prices on Philadelphia and New York showed comparable reductions and similar reductions no doubt obtain in other markets."

Trio Held for Inciting Riot Against Negroes

FAIRVIEW, Okla., May 20. (AP)—Three men were charged here today with inciting to riot as a result of an alleged attempt to drive negro laborers from their community.

Bill Lyon and Sam Koehn were released under $2,500 bonds and Jimmy Johnson was held. All live at Isabella. Officers said they went to the home of B. A. Boehs, employer of the negroes, threatened him and forced him to accompany a crowd of men to the shack of two negroes, who fled.

Greenwood Blames Tariff For Farmers Losses

WASHINGTON, May 20. (US)—Farm life under the Underwood tariff act of the Wilson administration was much happier than it is under the "demoralized price variations" of the Hawley-Smoot act, Representative Greenwood, Democrat, of Indiana, declared today.

Striking back at speeches made by Republicans in the farm belt in support of the Hawley-Smoot tariff, Greenwood said the farmers were $25,000,000,000 better off under the Underwood tariff than they are at present.

Issued through the Democratic national committee, Greenwood's statement cited commerce department figures showing a heavy drop in foreign trade since adoption of the Hawley-Smoot act.

Famous Caricaturist Leaves Lenghty Note Explaining Suicide

By DOROTHY ROE

NEW YORK, May 20. (US)—Ralph Barton, the brilliant young caricaturist who shot himself to death today in his luxurious uptown penthouse, wrote his own obituary in a typewritten note found beside his body. His bitter and dramatic farewell to a world which gave him fame and at one time, riches, is as follows:

"Everyone who has known me and who hears of this will have a different hypothesis to offer, to explain why I did it.

"Practically all of these hypotheses will be dramatic and completely wrong.

"Any sane doctor knows that the reasons for suicide are invariably psycho-pathological and the true suicide type manufactures his own difficulties.

"Few Troubles"

"I have had few real difficulties. I have had on the contrary an exceptionally glamorous life, as life goes, and I have had more than my share of affection and appreciation.

"The most charming, intelligent and important people I have known have liked me and the list of my enemies is very flattering to me. I have always had excellent health, but since my early childhood I have suffered from a melancholia which, since the past five years, has begun to show definite signs of maniac depressive insanity. It has prevented my getting anything like the full value out of my work, and for the past three years has made work a torture to do at all.

"It has made it impossible for me to enjoy the simple pleasures of life that seem to get other people through.

"I have run from wife to wife, from house to house and from country to country in a ridiculous effort to escape from myself. In doing so I am very much afraid that I have brought a great deal of unhappiness to those who have loved me.

"Only Woman"

"In particular my remorse is bitter over my failure to appreciate my beautiful lost angel, Carlotta (Carlotta Monterey), the only woman I ever loved, and whom I respect and admire above all the rest of the human race. She is the one person who could have saved me, had I been savable.

"She did her best. No one ever had a more devoted or more understanding wife. I do hope that she will understand what my malady was and forgive me a little.

"No one thing is responsible for this—except myself. If the gossips insist on something more definite and thrilling as a reason, let them choose my pending appointment with my dentist, or the fact that I happened to be painfully short of cash at the moment.

"No other single reason is more important or less temporary. After all, one has to choose a moment, and the air is always full of reasons at any given moment.

Too Many Hours

"I did it because I am fed up with inventing devices for getting through 24 hours every day and with bridging over a few months periodically with some beautiful, artificial interest, such as a new girl who annoyed me to the point where I forgot my own troubles.

"I present the remains, with my compliments, to any medical school that fancies them, or let soap be made of them.

"I have not the slightest interest in them except that I want them to cause as little bother as possible.

"I kiss my dear children—and Carlotta."

The artist, whose work is widely known both in America and Europe, recently returned from Paris, where he and his fourth wife, Germaine Taillieferro Barton, were divorced a month ago.

Barton, who would have been 40 years old in August, was divorced from his wife, Marie Jennings Barton, in 1917. His second wife, Anne Barton, divorced him in 1923. He then married Carlotta, the "dear Carlotta" mentioned in his note, who is the present wife of Eugene O'Neill. They were divorced in 1926.

Barton's greatest fame came with his illustrations for Anita Loos' "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes."

106-Year-Old Woman Commends Hard Work

BELLEVILLE, N. J., May 20. (US)—Mrs. Rose Harden celebrated her 106th birthday at her home here today. There were a cake and tea, but Mrs. Harden didn't think the anniversary any occasion for special ceremonies. She said she still does housework and sewing, and declared hard work is the means to longevity. Her uncle is said to have lived to the age of 135.

Wheat and Rye Grow To Height of Man's Head In Byers Area

Special to The Record News.

BYERS, Texas, May 20.—Bearded wheat heads high enough to tickle a man's nose and rye heads out of reach of a man's arm are flourishing in valley farms near Byers. The inch rain which fell here Monday night has turned the farmers' worries from harvest to prices, wheat, oats, and rye all promising bumper yields.

In fear of low prices, cut into by threshing and hauling costs, many growers in the valley are eplarging granaries and some plan to stack the grain for holding rather than allowing it to be dumped on a gorged market.

HOUSE DOWNS BOND ISSUE

Three-Vote Margin Defeats Amendment

AUSTIN, May 20. (AP)—The proposed constitutional amendment to issue $212,000,000 in bonds for state highway purposes failed of being submitted to popular vote by the house today by three votes. A total of 97 votes was registered for the resolution and 46 against it. One member voted present and not voting.

The resolution required 100 votes.

Representative Hubbard of New Boston, joint author and house stated no further attempt would be made to bring the bond issue up again this session. The session will end Friday.

Four members who had consistently opposed the amendment voted for it on final passage. They were Representative Hughes of Dallas, Englehard of Eagle Lake, Moffett of Chillicothe and Burns of Brady.

The amendment was adopted several weeks ago by the senate. Several agreed amendment were added in the house and would have required senate concurrence. Bond proponents in the senate, however, had agreed to the amendments.

Opponents attempted to prevent consideration of the amendment today by raising a point of order that it had been killed by previous action of the house. The point of order was overruled by Speaker Fred Minor.

CEMENT TAX MAY DEFEAT PEDDLERS BILL

AUSTIN, May 20. (AP)—The house today concurred in all but one of the senate amendments to the peddler tax bill. The exception was made on the amendment levying a tax of 20 cents per barrel on cement, on which a free conference committee was asked. Should the

Kansas City Reserve Bank Cuts Paper Rate

WASHINGTON, May 20. (AP)—The federal reserve board announced today that the federal reserve bank of Kansas City had reduced its rediscount rate from 3½ to 2 per cent on all classes of paper of all maturities effective tomorrow.

The action of the Kansas City bank made nine of the 12 banks which have reduced rates in the last month. The three which have not done so are Atlanta, which maintains a 3 per cent rate, Minneapolis, 3½ per cent, and San Francisco, 3 per cent.

Youth Gets Suspended Sentence for Murder

MARSHALL, May 20. (AP)—Benjamin Bell, 17, Panola county, was given a two-year suspended sentence today upon conviction on murder charges for the slaying of Albert Tiller, 25. The jury deliberated less than an hour.

Ruins Yield Body of U. S. General Who Died to Save Farm Woman

TOURS, France, May 20. (AP)—Ruins of the stone age cavern in which he perished in a futile endeavor to save the life of a peasant woman today gave up the body of Brigadier General Robert H. Dunlap, of the United States marine corps.

After almost 24 hours of digging rescue workers headed by French army engineers came upon the mangled form of the American officer where he was trapped yesterday by an avalanche which engulfed the cave near Cinq Mars where the woman and her husband made their home. The body of Denis Briant, husband of the woman, who rushed with Brigadier General Dunlap to save her as the fall of rock and stone started, was recovered also. Mme. Briant was rescued alive but badly injured.

The widow left by train for Paris this afternoon. Her husband's coffin, covered with an American flag, lay tonight in a private mortuary chapel here. It will be accompanied to Paris tomorrow by Vice Consul Randolph Harrison Jr.

The officer's body will lie in state in the American church in Paris until plans are completed to send it to America. Burial probably will be in Washington, D. C., or in Arlington cemetery.

Killer Flees After Firing Fatal Shots in Office Of Real Estate Man

SEEKING 'LOW-DOWN'

Newspaperman's Deposit Box Holds Names of Men He Had Most Feared

LOS ANGELES, May 20. (AP)—Charles Crawford, real estate executive and politician, wounded late today by a gunman who killed Herbert Spencer, Los Angeles newspaperman, while they sat in Crawford's office died tonight after an emergency operation in an attempt to save his life.

LOS ANGELES, May 20. (AP)—The newspaper career of Herbert Spencer once a veteran police reporter was ended today by gunmen's bullets as he followed the sinister trail of gangland in an attempt to expose activities of alleged criminals.

Sitting in the office of Charles Crawford, real lestate executive and long a figure in city politics, Spencer was shot down and Crawford was wounded probably mortally.

Killer Escapes

A gunman who entered the office and fired point blank at his victims escaped in an automobile.

An hour before he died with a bullet in the heart, Spencer, editor of a local magazine on which he had worked since he resigned as city editor of the Los Angeles Express some months ago, left his office and told an associate:

"I'm going out to get some more underworld stuff."

The gunman was ushered into Crawford's office after he had asked Ray J. Radke, secretary, to see Crawford. Radke said Crawford, Spencer and the men talked together for some minutes and Crawford then came out to inquire about some "minor matter." He rejoined the two men and Radke said a moment later two shots rang out. The door burst open and the gunman raced through the office, leaped in the automobile and disappeared. A good description of him was given to police.

Crawford Collapses

Radke leaped to his feet and ran to the door of Crawford's office as his employer staggered toward it and collapsed. He was shot through the abdomen.

A series of articles recently had been written by Spencer for the magazine in which he named a former police officer as "the Al Capone of Los Angeles." In one article Spencer said his life had been threatened and wrote that if anything happened there would be found in a safety deposit box "in a certain bank" the names of those whom he had warred against. Police began a search for the box in the hope it might reveal the slayer's identity.

Spencer was about 40 years old. He is survived by his widow and a son. Crawford was more than 50 years old. Spencer had been a police reporter here 15 years and had made some notable exposes of crime. He was city editor of the Express for six years.

Crawford had been involved in recent years in several sensational criminal cases. He was indicted in the Julian oil scandals but the charges were dismissed and he figured in the arrest of Morris Lavine, Los Angeles reporter in a $300,000 extortion plot in connection with the Julian case.

World Farm Loan Bank Proposed by League

GENEVA, May 20. (US)—Delegates to the Pan-European commission of the League of Nations today adopted a resolution to create an international farm loan bank. Approval must come from the league council.

Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commissar for foreign affairs, protested the project on grounds that it was designed to aid only "big proprietors."

CITY POWER NEEDS MAPPED

Municipal League Meets At Seymour

was through these men that municipal plants have been installed.

In discussion of the Petsch bill Mayor B. W. McKenzie of Denton gave as his opinion that Governor Sterling will approve the bill as enacted. He said amendments had been promised but he doubted if they had been added and attributed success of the bill to lack of interest in reading and studying by members of the senate and house. He predicted that it will be repealed within a few years.

Banker Speaks

"Building for the Future of the Small City," was the subject discussed by L. I. Caldwell, banker and member of the city council at Garland. He stated that municipal power plants can be more profitable operated in combination with waterworks and in small cities. He stated the installation cost per capita would be less than in larger cities. He dwelt upon the study of financing and said that the ruin of most cities could be dated to failure of agriculture. The plant at Garland has not built rural lines.

Mayor B. W. McKenzie of Denton, and the leader of municipal ownership of public utilities in Texas, spoke on "When Is a City Justified in Installing its Utilities." He supported his direct statements with reports appearing in newspapers and magazines. He told of the progress made in Denton, also quoting reduction in prices of ice and gas and the plan now to install a municipal gas system if proper sources of supply can be obtained, unless rates are lowered. He claimed that the citizens of Denton, through various sources are being saved between $150,000 to $200,000 annually and that this year valuations are being reduced and the tax rate will be lowered.

Committees Named

Three committees were appointed with three members each. The members of the resolution committee are T. S. Mitchell, commissioner of Greenville; D. E. Cornelius, city manager of Commerce; Mayor T. J. Wright of Bowie. Nomination committee includes B. W. McKenzie, mayor of Denton; W. H. Cherry, mayor of Granbury; T. E. Craddock, superintendent of utilities, Seymour. The ways and means committee includes L. B. Burrows, superintendent of utilities of Spur; Sid Hildreth, mayor of Farmersville; Edward Geeslin, superintendent of utilities at Brady.

The committees are to make their report at Thursday morning's session. President Hockersmith said that the ways and means committee was named to work out a system of financing the association and to give greater publicity to the accomplishments of the league. The committee members were informed to make a close study and report at the sixth annual convention.

Wednesday evening's session was taken up with a talk made by J. B. Lawson of Vernon on "Loyalty to Your Home Town." Hon. W. D. McFarlane of Graham, also gave an address.

Thursday Breakfast

Thursday morning the delegates will be the guests of a breakfast to be served in the municipal building by the chamber of commerce of Seymour. There follows a round table discussion, report of committees, election of officers and adjournment for a fish fry at Lake Kemp at noon.

Delegates attending the convention are as follows:

Harry Cowen Provides 50-Year Endowment for Awards to Students in English, History and Mathematics

Harry M. Cowan of Santa Monica, Calif., nephew of the late A. Zundelowitz, Wednesday presented the Zundelowitz Junior High school with a 50-year endowment for the annual A. Zundelowitz awards to the most outstanding students in English, history and mathematics. The award this year was used for the establishment of a bronze tablet as a memorial of Mr. Zundelowitz. The plate will contain the school creed and the names of the three students winning the honor certificates. Those who were awarded certificates were Lorena Janeway, English; James Hankerson, history; and Estle Ward, mathematics.

Mr. Cowen originally presented the awards as a 10-year program, but announced Wednesday that through an endowment policy, he had arranged for the continuation of the annual gifts for a period of 50 years.

Patrick Henry Jr., delivered the graduation address to approximately 150 seniors at the annual commencement exercises Wednesday afternoon, and J. T. Harrell presented the diplomas.

The school orchestra and glee club provided the music for the program, under the direction of Miss Minnie T. Baker, director of music at Zundelowitz.

Letters for leadership, scholarship and for worthy representation of the school were presented a number of the graduates by T. W. Brumbalow, and H. A. Glass made the presentation of the current events medals to Richard Poll and Bonnie Jean Lincoln, the ribbons for outstanding work in English to Porter Oakes, Lorena Janeway, Nubel Hamilton and Joan Parshall, and the Marlow medal to Jean Bowie. The presentation of the Zundelowitz award was made by Lester Jones.

The nine honored students to receive leadership letters were Josephine Sullivan, Mary Ann Walker, Jean Bowie, Joan Woofter, Marjorie Acton, Theodore Bratton, Ruth Tucker, Laura Fritz and Louise Hall. Letters for worthy representation of the school in interscholastic events were presented to Richard Poll, Ralph Dickson, Louise Hall, Roberta Lincoln, Sibyl Herring, John Russell, Howard Ragland, Mary Esabella Crowell Elizabeth Sue McHam, Virginia Clair, Phil Mosley, Harry Thompson, Marjorie Acton, Lorena Janeway, Otho Eason and Elizabeth Runyon.

Scholarship letters were awarded to Marjorie Acton, Mary Louise Bailey, Earl Barnes, Jean Bowie, Margaret Brenaman, Phoebe Jane Chenault, Ruth Mary Connor, Winnie Lee Davis, Pearl Dickson, Otho Eason, Dan Green, Nancy Haggard, Louise Hall, William Hamilton, Mary Lynn Herald, Mary Frances Hoffman, Lorena Janeway, Austin Lea, Roberta Lincoln, Helen McCormick, Pattie Gene McDaniel, Patsy McGregor, Elizabeth Sue McHam, Bobby Moran, Betty Ann Morrison, Phil Mosley, Arline Murph, Porter Oakes, Flo Owens, Bobby Parker, Adelle Pate, Elizabeth Perkins, Richard Poll, Elizabeth Runyon, Mary Shappard, Harry Smith, Katherine Smith, Mary Elizabeth Smith, Edna Marie Stout, LaVerne Sullivan, Nellie Tarr, Hermione Vaughan, Gwendolyn Voelcker, Mary Ann Walker, Rudelle Webb, Herold Weller, Everett Whatley, Dorothea Whitehead, Peggy Williamson, Roberta Willingham and Joan Woofter.

JURY FREES PRETTY KILLER

Beauty Acquitted of Slaying Husband

the neck of Louis Gassin, chief defense attorney, and kiss him on the cheek. Again the crowd cheered.

It was Gassin who summed up the case for the defense and sent the jury to its deliberations with the assurance that Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger "is too beautiful to be bad."

The trial began this morning and was one of the shortest murder actions in recent French criminal court history.

'Affair' Cited

The prosecution based its case on the testimony of Graham Scully, of Philadelphia, secretary to the dead theater magnate, and letters written by Nixon-Nirdlinger. Scully testified that Charlotte had had an affair with an Egyptian two years ago, but asserted "Nixon-Nirdlinger was not jealous." In one of the letters, written to his lawyer, Nixon-Nirdlinger said: "I want to change my will. I will cut off this wife who is a faithless coquette."

The high point in the defense's case was Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger's testimony. Dressed in a smart tight-fitting gown of black and white, and nervously fingering a black-bordered white handkerchief, the 26-year-old widow took the stand looking pale and worn after her 70 days in jail.

Frequently she broke down in sobs and it was almost hysterically that she described the shooting. When she came to tell of firing the shots, she cried:

"Didn't Mean to Kill"

"I can't remember what did happen when my husband grasped me by the throat," sinking her head in her arms on a table in front of her and weeping unrestrainedly. Then turning to the jury she added:

"I did not mean to kill my husband, so I leave the case in your hands, confident of justice."

In his opening examination, Judge Herwards accused Charlotte of being "flighty in your thoughts and too much occupied with pretty dresses and dancing." He admitted, however, that an investigation into the defandant's morals had proved them beyond reproach.

National School Band Contest Opens in Tulsa

TULSA, Okla., May 20. (AP)—Martial music filled the air in Tulsa business district today as high school bands, arriving to compete in a national contest, paraded the streets.

Preliminary events will start tomorrow.

A. M. Perkins Captures Louisiana Target Shoot

SHREVEPORT, La., May 20. (AP)—With a score of 94 hits out of 50 pair doubles at 16-yard targets, A. M. Perkins, Baton Rouge, won the doubles trapshooting championship of Louisiana today.

First place money for out-of-state shooters in doubles went to E. F. Woodward of Houston who turned in a score of 98. His son, H. E. Woodward, was next high scorer with 95 double hits.

LABOR FIGHTS SALARY CUTS

Federation to Act on Dry Law Change

ment and the Volstead act had failed to achieve the purpose for which they were enacted, had deprived many persons of means of livelihood and had increased crime.

A similar resolution was introduced at the convention of 1922, also in El Paso, but was defeated. Delegates predicted the resolution would again engender considerable discord.

Charges that oil field workers in many parts of Texas were working 12 hours a day and seven days a week while thousands of men were needing jobs were contained in another resolution also sent to committee for recommendation. It would instruct officers of the federation to confer with the United States department of labor and officials of federations in states adjoining Texas in order to arrange a conference with oil operators looking toward the institution of an eight-hour day and a six-day week in the oil fields.

Air Licensing

Still another resolution asked that a bill providing for licensing of automobile and air craft mechanics and creating a board for the administration of the act together with penalties was introduced and sent to the committee. It was presented by Charles H. Poe of the International Association of Machinists.

Decision to remove the headquarters from Dallas to Austin was reached after stormy discussion in which advocates of the change pleaded economy and accessibility to the legislature and opponents asserted the Dallas open shop adherents would claim they had driven organized labor from that city.

Speakers pointed out that with the lengthened sessions of the legislature the expense of maintaining a representative at the capitol and communicating with the Dallas headquarters had been greatly increased and approximately $450 a year would be saved by the move.

A telegram from Gov. Ross Sterling inviting the federation to hold its next convention in Austin was read.

North American Cup Matches Open

MONTREAL, May 20. (AP)—The United States and Canada will open their Davis cup battle for final honors in the North American zone tomorrow with two young New Yorkers opposing a veteran pair of Canadian players in the opening singles matches.

True to the predictions based on half a week of practice matches here, Bernon S. Prentice, non-playing captain of the United States team, selected Frank X. Shields and Sydney B. Wood Jr., while Alan C. Dunlop, who holds the same position on the Canadian team, chose Dr. Jack A. Wright, Toronto, and Marcel Rainville, Montreal. The draw for tomorrow's two matches sends Shields against Canada's No. 1 player, Dr. Wright, and Wood against Rainville.

The matches will continue through Friday and Saturday, the winner of the best three out of five winning the right to meet Argentina, South American zone victors, in the American final.

Crime has increased in England about 25 per cent since the world war.

Postoffice Heads Called In Economy Conclave

WASHINGTON, May 20. (AP)—Officials of the postoffice department were requested by president Hoover today to meet him this week-end at his Rapidan camp for conferences on possible economies.

The postal authorities will be the third group to meet with Mr. Hoover in as many weekends at his camp to study ways and means of curtailing expenditures in the administrative branches of the government.

Two weeks ago war department chiefs were summoned and last week interior department heads met with the president.

Four Wichita Falls Artists Give Pleasing Recital at Parish House

Hearers which comfortably filled the Episcopal parish house Wednesday night responded with genuine warmth to one of the season's most pleasing student recitals, given by Miss Elsie Shindler, contralto, assisted by Miss Gwendolin Garrett and James Hull, violinists, Miss Nelda Corridon, reader, and Miss Erie Ward, accompanist. Miss Shindler was presented by Mrs. Lois Parker, voice teacher.

Numbers included in Miss Shindlers' song program were well chosen to reflect the technical skill of the singer in using a voice of excellent quality, as well as to please a representative audience. Dramatic brilliance was outstanding in the striking Grieg number, "Ich, Liebe Dich," while the deeper voice feelingly interpreted the emotional "Calm as the Night," by Carl Bohm. Completing the first group, Miss Shindler presented Lisa Lehmann's "There Are Fairies at the Bottom of My Garden" with a fanciful lightness flowing through an easy, flexible delivery.

Featuring a smooth legato and a tonal quality rich in feeling, the second voice group included Gounod's "Ave Maria" and Carrie Jacob Bond's "His Lullaby." Transition from low register to the higher passages was accomplished with unusual smoothness, and with a commendable uniformity in quality.

Popular program songs comprised the closing group with Wells' "Little Elf Man" sharing honors with a wistful love song by Rudolph Friml, "Silver Moon."

Kipling's "On the Road to Mandalay" provided a pleasing innovation as presented Wednesday night. Instead of the usual baritone solo, it was given as a reading by Miss Corridon with piano accompaniment. Its intensely dramatic text received full justice in Miss Corridon's realistic presentation of the story.

Following Miss Shindler's first song group, Miss Garrett and Mr. Hull played "Serenade" by Drigo. Feeling for the number was delightfully mutual, and was beautifully expressed through adequate technique of both young artists.

Miss Ward's accompaniments afforded an important and always sympathetic background for the programmed numbers. Her embellishment of Miss Corridon's "Mandalay" was particularly effective. Miss Shindler and Miss Garrett are graduate students of the Academy of Mary Immaculate in the class of 1931.

WORLD TRACED TO ONE ATOM

Scientist Explains Creation In New Theory

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

NEW YORK, May 20.—A daring idea that creation began in one single, vast atom is advanced by Abbe G. Lemaitre, astronmer, of Louvain, Belgium.

Lemaitre's cosmology, or theory of creation recently has supplanted those of Einstein and De Sitter in the favor of many scientists.

He explains the single atom origin in nature in the Journal of British Science, under the title: "The Beginning of the World From the Point of Quantum Theory."

The quantum theory holds that all energy is made up of separate packages, called quanta. Thus a stove radiating heat does not give off a continuous flow. It has been demonstrated that the heat flows out in jerks, made up of separate quanta bundles. The stove cools in a series of steps.

Lemaitre points out that these quanta packages are constantly increasing in number, although the total amount of energy in the universe remains constant. This means that the energy is being transferred from larger into smaller bundles.

Tracing this process backward toward its beginnings, Lemaitre finds there were less quanta a long time ago, and that it may be reasonable to suppose that the beginning was one single quantum.

"We could conceive the beginning of the universe," he says, "in the form of a unique atom, the atomic weight of which is the total mass of the universe. This highly unstable atom would divide in smaller and smaller atoms by a kind of super-radioactive process."

Lemaitre says it is conceivable that time and space did not begin until after the original atom had divided into a sufficient number of quanta.

"The notions of time and space," he says, "would altogether fail to have any meaning at the beginning.

"Clearly the original quantum could not conceal in itself the whole course of evolution. The whole story of the world need not have been written down in the first quantum like a song on the disc of a phonograph. The whole matter of the world must have been present at the beginning, but the story it has to tell may be written step by step."

HOUSE ADOPTS TAX MEASURE

But Cement Levy Debate May Kill Bill

committee be unable to agree on the cement tax the entire bill would be killed.

Among the amendments accepted by the house was one levying a tax of 75 cents per ton on sulphur. The present tax is 55 cents per ton.

Three members who were for the issue were absent. Had they been present the issue would have gained sufficient votes to be submitted.

Action of the house in accepting all but the cement tax will require the conference committee to concentrate its efforts toward an adjustment of differences on this point and preclude consideration of other items in the bill.

The vote to concur in all but the cement tax was taken after one of the most intricate parliamentary tangles seen in the house this session. The tangle resulted when a motion to concur in the amendments was tabled by one vote. A motion that the house not concur was made by Representative Holder of Lancaster. It also lost by one vote.

The motion to accept all amendments except the cement tax was made by Representative Sanders of Nacogdoches after the tangle had been unwound and preparations made to vote again on the motion not to concur. Sanders' motion prevailed, 71 to 58.

Lafayette Franks Leads In Lakewood Tourney

DALLAS, May 20. (AP)—Lafayette Franks, Cedar Crest Country club of Dallas, shooting one over par, led the qualifying field today in the first annual Lakewood Country club invitation golf tournament with a card of 35-36—7. Franks went out in 35 to go one over par, but he finished the back nine with a par 36. Gus Moreland, also of Cedar Crest, finished second to Franks with 37-35—72.

An entry field of 107 qualified today, but it was composed mostly of Dallas golfers. It required an 83 to make the championship flight lr. which match play competition starts tomorrow and continues through to Saturday. Dennis Lavender, Dallas, and 1931 state champion, had trouble with his tee shots, finishing with an 83.

MOTHERS now learn value of MAGNESIA

Because it is so helpful in keeping babies and children healthy and happy, every mother should learn all about Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

This harmless, almost tasteless preparation is most effective in relieving those symptoms of babies and children generally caused by souring food in the little digestive tract, such as sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, colic. As a mild laxative, it acts gently, but certainly, to open the little bowels in constipation, colds, children's diseases.

A teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia does the work of half a pint of lime water in neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding, and preventing hard curds. Its many uses for mother and child are fully explained in the interesting book "Useful Information." It will be sent you, FREE. Write The Phillips Co., 170 Varick St., New York, N. Y.

In buying, be sure to get only genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.—Adv.

HAM TASTES BETTER WHEN BOILED OR BAKED WITH SUGAR

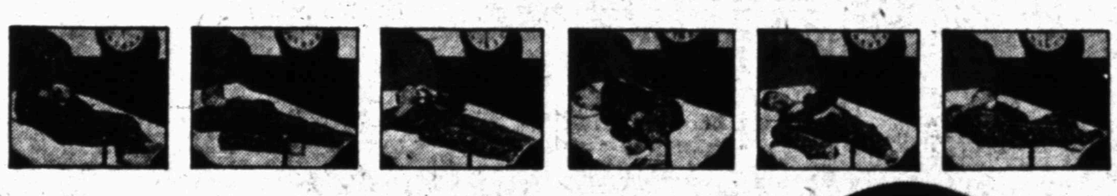

Sugar Combines Ideally with Salty Tang of Smoked Ham

There are few meats that can surpass ham in taste-appeal and popularity. When it comes from the oven glazed with sugar and dotted with cloves, it is tantalizing to have to wait for a pink, savory-sweet slice.

To develop the flavor of ham to the utmost, put half a cup of sugar and half a cup of vinegar in the water in which your half or whole ham simmers. Then after the ham is tender let it remain in the water until cool. The result is a delicious, savory flavor.

Ham, however, is but one of the many foods where sugar can be used to advantage. In seasoning meat stews and pot-roasts, canned or fresh vegetables, a dash of sugar to a pinch of salt greatly improves the flavor. Salt by itself merely overcomes flatness. It is the sugar that "brings out" the flavor. Most foods are more delicious with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

Sleeping "LIKE A LOG" is wrong... motion picture cameras prove

Investigation indicates millions of mattresses now in use are enemies of vitalizing rest . . .

MOTION PICTURE CAMERAS recorded the positions and movements of sleepers during the investigation. The sleep habits of 150 persons were studied. More than 2,000,000 observations were made—all this information pointing to the need of a new, more responsive type of mattress.

NOW it is known that no one sleeps "like a log"—and if he did, he would wake up far from rested.

In a 6-year investigation of sleep by a group of scientists at Mellon Institute, motion picture cameras proved that sleepers take from 10 to 15 different positions during the night—and change position from 20 to 45 times.

We "rest in parts." One position rests one set of muscles and organs. Other positions rest other groups. Only by shifting frequently can we get complete rest.

Millions of mattresses now in use are enemies of vitalizing rest. They pad down. They form bumps and hollows. They limit the number of comfortable positions that can be taken. If your mattress is handicapping you during your precious sleeping hours, don't put up with it longer. Throw it out!

New-type mattress needed

The investigation pointed to a new type of mattress as ideal—the Beautyrest, or Deepsleep, both made by Simmons. Inside these mattresses are hundreds of springy, cushioned coils. Always "alive." Always responsive to every change in position. Always completely comfortable. They encourage the vitalizing rest that leads to successful days!

See the Beautyrest and Deepsleep at any good furniture store. Test their comfort—give yourself the benefits they offer!

H. M. Johnson, Ph. D., head of the Investigation of Sleep at Mellon Institute, has written a helpful booklet, "Bodily Positions in Restful Sleep." Send for it . . . to the Simmons Company, 222 North Bank Drive, Chicago, Illinois.

GREEN WARNS AGAINST CUTS

Labor Chief Urges Salary Maintenance

HOUSTON, May 20. (AP)—William E. Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, addressing officers and directors of the Houston Chamber of Commerce today, said he had faith employers of the nation would find a way to avoid, in the future, "shocks of these refurring cyclical periods of depression."

Green told the gathering that he did not want to see "this crisis aggravated by reduction of wages."

"Reduction of wages will mean a great reduction in America's purchasing power," he said. "The way out, it seems to me, is to develop our purchasing strength; develop, not reduce our purchasing power."

WILBUR SUPPORTS WAGE SCALE

BOSTON, May 20. (INS)—The Hoover administration will do its utmost to maintain the high standard of wages for American workers, Secretary of Interior Ray Wilbur said today, speaking at a Harvard club gathering.

High wages mean more spending power, he said.

"We could have prosperity tomorrow," he continued, "if the people would abandon the dead center in which they stand and begin to buy at once."

Secretary Wilbur predicted an upward trend of business beginning in June.

The declaration of Secretary Wilbur followed a statement by President William Green of the American Federation of Labor in Texas yesterday urging continuance of high standards for American workers.

Railroads to Seek Present Cotton Rates

AUSTIN, May 20. (AP)—Representatives of railroads said today they would ask for virtually the same rates on cotton to Houston, Galveston, Beaumont and Texas City for another year as apply at present.

The railroad commission yesterday approved an extension of present rates from May 27 to June 15. That will give the rail carriers time to prepare their proposed schedule until June 15, 1932, which will be virtually the same as at present railroad representatives said.

State Health Officer Addresses Undertakers

SAN ANTONIO, May 20. (AP)—Dr. J. C. Anderson, state health officer of Austin, and George F. Weiland of Dallas, president, addressed the annual convention of Texas Funeral Directors and Embalmers association today.

T. S. Wright of Temple, president of the National Funeral Directors and Embalmers association, will address the Texas body tomorrow.

How Army Blimp Looked After Crash in Fog

Here's what happened to a baby blimp that stayed out late at night. The army craft, TC 10-252, was cruising in the vicinity of Chesapeake Bay after midnight, when it encountered a dense fog. It crashed, so gently that none of its crew of seven were injured, but hard enough to puncture and deflate its nose. This unusual picture shows the result, with the forward end collapsed and dragging in the water while the undamaged fabric at the rear retains enough gas to hold the car and it motors high and dry.

COTTON BELT ROAD INDICTED

Illegal Rebates to Shippers Charged

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 20. (AP)—The St. Louis Southwestern railroad, known as the "Cotton Belt," was indicted by a federal grand jury here today on 20 counts charging illegal rebates to shippers through the subsidiary Southwestern Transportation company, the line's motor bus division.

The counts charge illegal rebates to Memphis shippers, totaling $3,600. Other counts alleged unauthorized allowances and failure to observe published rates.

W. J. Flood, special attorney for the Interstate Commerce commission, presented the cases to the grand jury.

Fines totaling $400,000 could be assessed with conviction on all 10 counts, federal officers said. Each alleged offense is punishable by a $20,000 fine. More than 200 shippers, mostly Memphis individuals and firms here were mentioned in the indictments.

O. U. REGENTS MEET

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 20. (UP)—The board of regents of the University of Oklahoma will hold its first meeting since the removal of Frank Buttram as chairman tomorrow. The salary reductions of faculty members voted in the blanket cut of 7.5 per cent by the legislature are expected to be made.

WHAT IS A "SCOOP"

The word "scoop" is a newspaper term which means publishing an outstanding news story before the other paper has the news. It is always regarded as a journalistic victory. "Scoops" however, are not always confined to the newspaper world. The term is commonly applied today to signal achievements in other lines of industry. For instance, the fact that "St.Joseph's Genuine Pure Aspirin is the largest selling aspirin in the world for 10c" is in reality a "scoop" of first rank. St.Joseph's Genuine Pure Aspirin meets every government standard and is as pure as money can buy. The fact that more than nine million boxes of St.Joseph's Pure Aspirin have been sold in a single year proves conclusively that people everywhere now realize that it is neither sensible nor necessary to pay more than 10c for twelve 5-grain tablets of genuine pure aspirin. Always ask for "St.Joseph's."

GRAIN EXPORTS GAIN IN WEEK

But 1930 Figures Are Far Higher

WASHINGTON, May 20. (AP)—Exports of United States grains during the week ended May 16 totaled 1,586,000 bushels as compared with 1,215,000 the preceding week and 3,023,000 in the corresponding week of last year.

Barley exports for the week ended May 16 totaled 352,000 against 712,000 in the same week of 1930; corn 28,000 against 108,000; oats 4,000 against 49,000, and wheat 1,202,000 against 2,082,000.

United States wheat flour exports totaled 95,000 barrels against 253,000 and Canadian wheat flour in transit totaled 19,000 barrels against 32,000.

Waco Woman Heads Texas Colonial Dames

DALLAS, May 20. (AP)—Mrs. William E. Darden of Waco today was re-elected president of the Texas Chapter of the Colonial Dames of America at the annual one-day state session here. The meeting was attended by approximately 100 members from over the state.

Other state officers elected included: Mrs. J. M. Winterbotham of Galveston, a vice president; Mrs. D. K. Woodward, Mrs. N. A. Stedman and Mrs. Paul Cruseman, all of Austin, new members of the board of managers, their terms to expire in 1934.

GEERS ADMITS TWO CRIMES

Murder and Bank Robbery Are Cleared Up

JOPLIN, Mo., May 20. (INS)—W. H. Geers, alias Jimmy Jones, liquor runner of south Coffeyville, Okla., today confessed to the slaying Saturday night of Coyne Hatten, son of a Webb City capitalist, and the $27,000 robbery of the Hastings, Neb., National bank.

In his confession of the two crimes to Ed Portley, chief of detectives, Geers said he shot Hatten because he "didn't like his looks." In another part of his confession he stated that he was drunk the night of the slaying and "just wanted to kill some one."

Geers, according to Portley, had been living in Joplin since the Hastings robbery, hiding out. Geers was charged with first degree murder for the Hatten killing yesterday after a coroner's jury returned a verdict naming him as the slayer.

Geers also admitted that he was a member of the Tommy Hill gang of liquor and vice racketeers of South Coffeyville, Okla.

Eunice Jenkins Honoree At Pretty Bridge Shower

Misses Sibyl Wiley and Bonnie Holmgren were joint hostesses Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Jozach Easley on Speedway honoring Miss Eunice Jenkins before her departure for Greenville where she will make her home. American beauty roses and bluebonnets completed a lovely color scheme planned in rose and blue.

Bridge tables were covered with rose and blue and tallies and score cards noted the same shades. In the games, Miss Edna Smith was winner of high score and was presented with a handsome block print picture which she gave to the honoree.

Just before the refreshments were served, the honoree's sister, Shirley Jenkins, came in with a large suit case filled with lovely presents. The shower was a surprise to the honor guest.

Ices in the shapes of spots on cards were served with other dainty refreshments on plates that stressed the chosen colors in every touch.

Those present were the honoree, Miss Eunice Jenkins, Misses Sibyl Wiley, Bonnie Holmgren, Edna Smith, Margaret Kendall, Norita Horn, Martha Blankenship, Lucille Malacord, Eula Hardeman, Hylma Clark, Wilma Thomas, Jean Fiske, Inez Terrill, Mesdames Jozach Easley, Jim Dale, John Tyson, L. E. Swain, Charles Spragins Jr., Charles Willenberg and Horace Downing.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

Several years ago I saw a print of an English thatched cottage with the yard a wilderness of poppies, larkspur, hollyhocks and every other sweet and beautiful old fashioned flower. It was such a gorgeous riot of color, I could not believe it true. "Nothing living can be so rich," I said.

Then today, as I went round the smooth paved driveway of Mrs. Frank Timberlake's home on Miramar, I saw another such spot. It took my breath with beauty.

Everyone who knows Mrs. Timberlake knows what a lover of flowers she is. Not a lover of their beauty alone but she tends and nurses them and watches their progress with the care many mothers give only to their children. There are at least 25 varieties of flowers blooming in her garden now, many of these in different colors.

There are forget-me-nots and corn flowers and great blossoming plants of anchusa in shades of celestial blue—shades that make one dream of heaven. The enormous bushes of Spanish broom, so beautiful for hedges, are full of vivid yellow blossom and nestling at their roots, calendula that has bloomed all winter long is still bright with flowers.

One great bed filled with poppies, larkspur, forget-me-nots, anchusa, spicy little red carnation pinks and even a touch of vivid red verbena, —oh that bed should be in a sunny corner of a meadow of heaven. The colors are so radiantly beautiful that looking at them, your heart comes up in your throat.

The great pink poppies at the front of the house came up of their own accord just where the wind blew the seed. Mrs. Timberlake said she just did not have the heart to pull them up. There's Mrs. Timberlake; a deft and gentle hand, a tender heart and a genuine love of beauty.

The fish pond that stands in the center of the wide pavement of the back yard, has been changed into a flower bed. It is filled with plants sent the garden owner when she was ill—a little bed of love and memory.

Arizona cypress stand silver green-gray in the background. Tall poplars lean against the creamy walls. There is a southern laurel hedge with shining dark green foliage. There's columbine a'bloom and from the roof of the garage the purple and lavendar wistaria and the red honeysuckle droop together.

Alongside the flagstones, thriving Burbank daisies will flower later and back of them chrysanthemums will follow. The rose garden has all varieties in it, the red and pink radiance bushes are doing themselves proud. There's a Los Angeles too that's a lovely saffron color.

Zinnias will be followed by chrysanthemums; the garden is planned not for a month but for a season. When ever there's a need for flowers, people go to Mrs. Timberlake. Her garden has made more tables beautiful than probably any other in town. She cuts roses by the bushel now; she will be clipping daisies and zinnias and chrysanthemums in the same way later on.

One particularly lovely thing is her delight in sharing them. They are to her, as one of her friends said, like the loaves and fishes; the more she gives away, the more she has.

BAD BREATH
may be due to biliousness

"My breath would get bad, and often I would get up in the morning with an awful taste in my mouth," says Mr. Silas Hamblin, of Cambria, Va. "My skin was yellow, and I felt pretty poorly, generally. An old friend recommended that I try Black-Draught for this. I found it an excellent medicine and have used it ever since, when I needed anything for constipation. I find a small dose, taken occasionally, keeps me in good shape." rss-11

Our Children

By ANGELO PATRI

By ANGELO PATRI

Fear

We can scarcely define fear beyond saying that it is an emotion. Who can describe an emotion, tell what it is, where it comes from and where it goes? It is, and then it is not. The emotion of fear is within the spirit of every man, sometimes spurring to noble action, sometimes degrading to criminal cowardice. It can be a way of salvation, and it can kill with deadly, sinister power.

All children suffer from fear in some form or other. Some fears are helpful in that they save a child from hurt. It is right to fear evil. It is right that a child fear fire, unknown forces, crime. In that fear lies his greater safety.

But fear must be subordinated to the place where it is but the brake on the driving wheel, at hand for emergency, to be called on only in the moment of necessity. It must not hamper activity, dull the initiative of the children. It must not enter their association with other people, nor into the silences of their own spirits.

What makes a child afraid in the dark? I don't know. There is no way of finding out what frightened a child. I do not believe that darkness of itself ever frightens children but it may be that something unpleasant that happened in the darkness frightened them and they associate the darkness with the unpleasant experience. I don't know. I don't know what makes them afraid of harmless people, of certain noises, of being alone, of touching fur or feathers. These fears rise to hamper the children and all we can do is to train the fear out and do all we can to substitute confidence for the fear.

Confidence grows out of a feeling of competency. When one feels himself able to command the situation he knows no fear. When he believes himself unable to face the emergency he is possessed by fear. We have to struggle to remain adequate, to help the children to feel so. To that end we build up their bodies. Health gives a child a feeling of well-being. The child with a good bowiful of cereal and milk inside him, with a chest that stands high, a stomach that is all-sufficient to itself, can hold his own anywhere. For that child fear is unknown. Health and courage are likely to grow together. Not a hundred per cent true, but oftener than not. Often enough to make us careful to build up a healthy body against the threat of fear.

Until you can build up physical health and its reflection, mental health, deal gently with the child who is under fear. Speak gently. Avoid occasion for fear. Teach the child to turn on the lights as he goes through the house in the dark. The very fact that he has the power to light his own way in the darkness gives him courage. Go with him in the dark and encourage him—as you would like to be encouraged during the dark hours that beset your spirit.

Courage kills fear. Work toward that but in silence. Words spoken to child in fear ought to be the words of faith and encouragement and should have no reference to the trouble that is in him. Speak of courage, confidence, hope, and turn on the light. Fear is an unreality. It dies when confidence approaches and confidence is born of health.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, inclosing stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Danger in accepting unknown substitutes for Kotex

WHEN substitution may endanger health, beware! When considering a substitute for Kotex, pause. Ask yourself: "What do I know of the hygiene of this sanitary pad? Who made it? Where?"

These questions remain unanswered when you accept a substitute of whose makers you know nothing. Yet they must be answered for your safety.

The answer, of course, is Kotex. Always Kotex. Then you're safe. Kotex is made in hospital-like surroundings. More than ten million Kotex pads were used by hospitals last year. This assurance of safety is beyond price.

Kotex is adjustable. Shaped to fit. May be worn on either side with safety.

Spanish War Memorial Services Scheduled for Granite May 31

Special to The Record News

MANGUM, Okla., May 20.—Several hundred veterans of the Spanish-American war and the Philippine insurrection will assemble from the 11 counties of the seventh congressional district for memorial services on May 31. The largest veterans group ever assembled in Southwest Oklahoma is expected to gather from Ellis, Dewey, Roger Mills, Custer, Beckham, Washita, Greer, Kiowa, Tillman, Harmon, and Jackson counties. Visitors from other sections of the state and from Texas are invited.

In connection with the memorial services, dedicated to the men who lost their lives in the wars 33 years ago, efforts will be made to strengthen the veteran's organization through the section and to organize a woman's auxiliary to the camps. Officers will be elected and the place for the 1932 meeting selected.

Plans include a basket lunch to be served on picnic grounds being prepared by the Greer county veterans. The crowd, expected to exceed 400, will gather at Granite at 10 o'clock and proceed to the grounds where a program of music and speaking will be arranged. State Commander J. Frank Ferguson, Enid, will be asked to speak and other well known veterans will have places on the program. The orchestra from the reformatory will be invited to furnish music.

Open Safety Pin Taken From Baby's Throat by Quanah Doctor

Special to The Record News.

QUANAH, Texas, May 20.—Removing an open safety pin from the throat of a 9-month-old baby, and a five-cent piece from the throat of a 2-year-old child, were two delicate operations performed by Dr. J. J. Hanna, eye, ear, nose and throat specialist, at the Quanah hospital recently with the aid of a bronchoscope, the only instrument of its kind in this part of the state.

The safety pin had lodged in the throat of Ernest Tye, 9-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Tye, of Paducah, and the baby was rushed here. The point of the pin had pierced the tissues of the throat but the child seemingly suffered no ill effects from the removal of the pin.

The second patient also was from Paducah, Billy Joyce Criswell, 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Criswell, who had swallowed the five-cent piece.

Trainmen Discuss Brotherhood Pensions

HOUSTON, May 20. (AP)—Matters dealing with the pension system of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen were discussed at today's session of the convention.

President A. F. Whitney and other officers of the grand lodge of the brotherhood attended a luncheon given for William E. Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

Mr. Green, in an address to the trainmen yesterday, urged the affiliation of the brotherhood with the A. F. of L. It was not learned whether the delegates would vote on the proposal. Entry of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, largest of the transportation brotherhoods, has been voted down at conventions in the past.

THEY CHEERED him like mad on the baseball field—but kept away from him in the classroom. At parties, too, not a girl wanted to dance with him. In spite of his pleasant manners, his fine athletic record, he was unpopular.

Then one day his gym instructor had a frank talk with him about "B.O.," the polite name for a condition people dislike even to mention—body odor. Suggested a simple safeguard . . . What a difference it has made! Today he is prominent in class affairs, liked by everyone. He knows the easy way to end perspiration odor.

"B.O." a serious handicap

In school, in business, in society—people always shun the "B.O." offender. And the worst of it is, the guilty one seldom realizes why he is unpopular. Though pores give off a quart of odor-causing waste daily, we don't notice "B.O." in ourselves because we soon become used to an ever-present odor. DUKE TO HEAR M'CLINTIC

Special to The Record News.

ALTUS, Okla., May 20.—Commencement exercises for graduating seniors of the Duke High school will be held in the school auditorium at 8 p. m. Friday, May 22.

Congressman J. V. McClintic has been secured to make the address and the complete program has been outlined.

Mrs. B. M. Skidmore will play the processional, Mrs. J. F. Stockton will entertain with a harp solo; the salutatory address will be given by Margaret Madden and the valedictory by Vernon Andrus.

A duet, "Perfect Day," will be sung by Wilma McLaughlin and Lelia Walker just before the address by Congressman McClintic.

Diplomas will be presented by B. M. Skidmore, superintendent. Graduating seniors who will receive these diplomas are Annie Alexander, Ella McKibbin, Margaret Madden, Wilma Madden, Angalee Massad, Hallie White, Lily Mae Murphy, Hubert Conrad, Howard Darby, Vernon Andrus and Mildred Patton.

Graduating exercises for eighth grade graduates, the exact number of whom has not been determined, were held Wednesday with principal speaker Bill Allen, state representative, and editor of the Jackson County Tribune.

Iowa Park Lions Hear Creighton

Special to The Record News.

IOWA PARK, Texas, May 20.—Frank B. Creighton, Wichita Falls, scout executive, addressed Iowa Park Lions at their weekly luncheon Tuesday noon. Mr. Creighton pictured the boy of today as the potential citizen of tomorrow and stressed the importance of careful training. He also announced plans for an encampment early in June and stated that Iowa Park Boy Scouts were eligible to enroll for this outing. A trip through the Northwest later in the summer was explained and the Iowa Park unit of scouts was invited to send one boy on this trip which was planned to accommodate 30 boys.

Rev. Clark H. Russell, chairman of Iowa Park Lions Boy Scout council, stated that Iowa Park officials had made application for a scout charter and that the boys were meeting regularly. B. L. Bradford, chairman of the Lion scout finance committee, explained the need of equipment and Mr. Creighton suggested that the boys be given work to secure money to defray their expenses, rather than donations.

J. N. Sherrill, G. C. McGown and Jim Liles of Wichita Falls were visitors. Music was furnished by Misses Katherine Sue Ralston and Anna Mary Beville.

ELECTRA, Texas, May 20.—Mrs. Charles F. Birkhead was hostess when the little pupils of her kindergarten class entertained with a social honoring their mothers and friends.

The program included the songs, "What Is Birdie Doing?" "Naughty Mouse," and "Song of the Toothbrush," by the class; reading, "My Kitty," Bill Liniger; "Modern Boy Blue," Glen Birkhead; "Pockets," Bobbie Thiele; "Whole Duty of a Child," Billie Bryan Thompson; "Two Little Seeds," Jean Thiele; selections, "Good Morning, Dear Mothers," "Marching Song," and "What the Clock Says," by the toy orchestra.

At the close of the program the hostess assisted by Bobbie Thiele, Bill Liniger, Jean Thiele, Billie Bryan Thompson and Glen Birkhead served refreshments to the mothers, Mesdames J. D. Stroud, I. M. Dennis, Buster Stroud, Charles Liniger, Ed Thiele and to Marion Anderson, Jane Hamilton, Billy Curry, Raymond Thompson, Jean Liniger and Sandra Stroud. Outdoor games were also enjoyed.

AROUND THE RADIO CLOCK

(Time is central standard throughout).

NEW YORK, May 20. (AP)—President Hoover addresses the nation Thursday night as he speaks at the dinner celebrating the 50th anniversary of the American Red Cross in Washington.

Mr. Hoover will be heard over both the coast to coast networks of WJZ and WABC, starting at 8:30. He is to be introduced by Charles Evans Hughes, chief justice.

This talk is one of three the president is to make on the air in as many days.

The Prince of Wales also is to be on the air Thursday, speaking direct from London via the WABC chain at 2:20 p. m. His talk, to be picked up from a dinner at Dorchester house, is to be in connection with the Buenos Aires Trade expostion which the prince attended.

Otherwise your dials may be set for:

9:00—Rupert Hughes, author, guest of the Radio Home Makers, WABC hookup.

12:45 p. m.—Piano Moods with Lee Sims and Ilo May Bailey, WJZ and others.

6:00—Peggy Wood of musical comedy and Rudy Vallee's orchestra, WEAF network.

6:30—Robert Simmons, tenor, in the Salon orchestra program, WJZ stations.

7:00—Bert Lawn and his orchestra playing in the program with Browne and Llewelyn, WABC circuit.

7:30—Melody Moments with Alfred Wallenstein, cellist, as guest artist, WEAF hookup; John Charles Thomas, baritone, singing six numbers in orchestra melodies, WJZ network.

8:00—The Concordia Theological seminary students' chorus of 400 voices in the Lutheran program, WABC circuit.

TEXAS COTTON ORDERS GROW

Research Bureau Releases April Figures

Special to The Record News

AUSTIN, May 20.—Production of 4,132,000 yards of cotton goods in Texas was recorded during April, according to the bureau of business reaserch at the University of Texas. This figure showed a decline of 3 per cent from that of the preceding month, but the output during April was the largest during any month, with the exception of March, since July of last year, the bureau's report showed. Production remained 21 per cent below that of April, 1930, however.

"While sales fell off sharply, the April movement of cotton goods from manufacturers' hands was 13 per cent less than that of March, and the increase of 13 per cent in unfilled orders was sufficient to bring combined sales and unfilled orders up to 9,827,000 yards, compared to 8,871,000 yards in March and 11,380,000 yards in April of last year," the bureau said.

"Unfilled orders at the end of the month have been increasing each month since December, and during April reached the highest figure since the corresponding month of last year. The April total this year was 2.2 per cent less than that of last year, however."

A total of 5,000 bales of cotton was used by Texas mills during April, the same as in March but a decline of 8.3 per cent from the April, 1930, total.

Cleaners' Price War Causes Resignation

DALLAS, May 20. (AP)—W. C. Goodman resigned as president of the Independent Cleaners' and Dyers' association of Dallas today after one faction announced its intention of cutting prices still further and a second group moved to request intervention of the city in the controversy which has raged several weeks.

Independent cleaners met at the city hall last night and appointed a committee to assist Ranger Captain Tom Hickman and other officers in investigating the gunfire last week which shattered windows in two cleaning shops which had posted reduced prices.

FIRE DESTROYS TAR FACTORY

Explosion Causes Big Loss At Birmingham

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 20. (AP)—Flames that followed an explosion of a 10,000-gallon byproducts distillery of the American Tar company near Fairfield, at Birmingham suburb, burned beyond control for six hours today and did extensive damage.

Firemen brought the fire under control shortly before noon.

First reports placed the damage at $270,000 but later F. G. Owen, district manager of the American Tar company, refused to estimate the damage.

Tar and pitch in six tanks were released by the explosion and continued to burn this afternoon. A number of steel buildings were in ruins and tar and pitch, estimated by firemen at 100,000 gallons, were destroyed.

No one was injured. The blast was heard six miles away.

Burning tar was sprayed over the plant and into a creek nearby, which became a veritable river of fire.

PRISONERS ESCAPE

BURNET, Texas, May 20. (AP)—Sawing their way out, three young prisoners in the Burnett county jail escaped between midnight and dawn and were being sought by Central Texas officers.

Take "Pearls" to Soothe the KIDNEYS

Do your kidneys and bladder passages sometimes feel as if they were "on fire"? Do you get up at night, or have fierce back pains? Then you will welcome ONE OF THE MOST FAMOUS REMEDIES ON THE FACE OF THE EARTH—Santal Midy gelatine "pearls".

Each tasteless "pearl" capsule contains antiseptic oil that SOOTHES the organs and helps correct the condition. Remember kidney and bladder diseases cause 112,000 deaths every year in the U. S. A. Henrietta Music Students Broadcast

Special to The Record News.

HENRIETTA, Texas, May 20.—A motorcade of youthful Henrietta musicians, students of Mrs. C. B. McDonald, turned a radio concert tour to Fort Worth into a good will caravan, when the procession of decorated cars moved to the tune of jingling cowbells through the intervening cities.

Mrs. McDonald, teacher of instrumental music in the schools, presented her student orchestra and young soloists over WBAP. Through A. V. Slagle, school board superintendent, business men of the town backed the tour and provided decorations for the motorcade.

Yet you'll find me under the reading lamp"

Big game is big game whether you hunt it yourself or share the thrill from an open book, or the silver screen. Likewise, a good cigarette is a smoke. What you taste in Chesterfield is what you want to taste—milder and better tobaccos. The taste is there and the fragrance too, for these tobaccos are blended and cross-blended to bring out their full aroma and flavor, and there can't be anything better in a cigarette.

FOR NINETEEN years, our Research Department has kept intimate touch with every new development of Science that could be applied to the manufacture of cigarettes. During this period there has been no development of tested value or importance to the smoker which we have not incorporated into the making of Chesterfield cigarettes.

Our 'Mental' Depression Good for Breadliners Latin and Greek

By EMILE GAUVREAU

The Hon. Edwin Thompson, Liverpool's ornate lord mayor, found Jimmy Walker more entertaining than President Hoover, and perhaps more logical. The lord mayor reports the president told him that our great depression and financial crisis is "mostly mental."

This should console the tens of thousands of starving men in the breadlines in this country. Persuaded that there is really no such thing as mass unemployment, that they are well fed rather than hungry; persuaded that they have money in the bank rather than holes in their pockets, they might manage to pull through the day with a better spirit.

Many ills may be mental ills. Unemployment is decidedly not one of them. An empty pail will not come up steaming with coffee if you drop a few of President Hoover's "mentalities" into it. That fact remains, however one looks at it, hopefully or despairingly. President Hoover may deny the fact but that will not cure the evil. Such talk may get him out of the White House with more speed than dignity.

Something is happening at Yale after 230 years. The university decides that Latin and Greek are no longer requisites for its Bachelor of Arts degree. Yale also abolishes its Bachelor of Philosophy degree. The world do move!

Some claim that this decision is a triumph of the students over the faculty, and of the faculty over the Yale corporation. In other words, the triumph of the moderns and the semi-moderns over the dyed-in-the-wool classicists. Greek and Hebrew were long ago doomed. The Yale News, whose star reporters break their legs covering the chess team elections, gets all excited about it. "Similarly," it says, "the rigors of a competitive and practical age will exact their toll upon Latin."

The meaning of a "cultured man" will have to be revised. Twenty-five years ago any one who had not taken his Xenophon or Homer or his Herodotus in the Greek, or Horace and Virgil and Caesar in the Latin was classed as a boor. This was before the days when Greek gentlemen came over here and started restaurant chains and made fortunes, probably employing in the kitchen those who knew their Herodotus for $30 a week.

Soon a man will be accounted a boor who knows nothing about electro-dynamics or immunization or ballistics or interfefometry. The days of Zenodotus, the man who devoted his whole life to an edition of Homer, are evidently over. Ever heard of him? Probably not? But don't worry about it. Very few of us will mourn his passing. That sort of knowledge does not bring bread into the house or buy 75 cent highballs.

While Madrid churches burn, and mobs attack Jesuits, Alfonso, in his retreat at Fontainebleau, France, waits expectantly, perhaps too hopefully, for further news.

Revolution, dethronement, the setting up of a new regime, however successful, is bound to have its bloody aftermath. If Alfonso sees in the incendiarism and rioting of the anti-clericals and extremist republicans the signal that Spain is ready for restoration again, as it was some 50 years ago, he is misreading the signs of the times.

The pendulum of revolution is simply swinging to its farthest node, but it will not swing back to monarchy. If Spain should make a bid for Alfonso, it will want a different Alfonso from the one who sat on the throne recently. It will want another King George—and it is doubtful if Alfonso will care to be his own ghost.

Panama Changes

IF THE shades of the old-time sea rovers and adventurers ever see the American newspapers, they must have been extremely interested by a brief little item from Panama City that appeared the other day. This item said that the government of Panama has signed a contract with a Mexican promoter to convert the ancient city of Old Panama into a tourist resort.

Old Panama, in its heyday, was a famous city, and a great many men traveled long distances to get to it. But they were all there on business, from the government official who came out from Spain in a top-heavy galleon to the roving freebooter who sailed in to sack the place. One and all, they would have roared with mirth at the mere suggestion that the town could ever be a haven for the tourist.

However, there it is, the black and white. Panama City is to be a tourist resort. The city that was once considered the world's pest hole is to offer gay hotels, casinos, gambling halls and all the rest of the establishments by which care-free travelers are induced to get off of their ships and stay a while.

Obviously, the world has been changing. Man's knowledge of his environment and of the forces that operate in it has progressed so far that the killing of mosquitoes has turned the yellow fever capital into a place where tourists can stroll about at ease and say "How quaint!"

But what a lot of things had to happen before that change could be made! The number and scope of them are a fair measure of the progress of the race in the last three centuries.

Before Panama could become a health resort there had, first of all, to be huge political changes. The intermittent warfare of two and three centuries ago had to end, piracy had to be abolished and governments had to be stabilized.

Indeed, as far as that goes, the general prosperity of the average citizen had to be raised materially. There were no tourists when Panama was in its heyday; hardly anybody could afford to travel except on business.

Last and most important of all, yellow fever had to be wiped out; and before that could be done, the science of medicine had to advance immeasurably from what it was in the days of Drake and Morgan. The whole science of public health had to come into existence.

But there it is. All of these things have been done. Old Panama is to angle for the tourists—which means that the world, in three centuries, has changed almost beyond recognition.

A Great Scientist

THE SCIENTIFIC world numbered Dr. Albert A. Michelson among its greatest men. Among ordinary people, however, the famous physicist failed to get the recognition he deserved—because, probably, he confined his research to pure science.

Too often our idea of a scientist is a man who invents things. An Edison we can understand and admire; a dozen appliances of everyday life owe their existence to him. A. Michelson, devoting his years to the study of a problem that ordinary mortals cannot even understand, is beyond us.

However, it is to men like Dr. Michelson that science owes its noblest advances. The great goal of science is to increase the sum of human knowledge. To that work Dr. Michelson contributed greatly. He will be remembered when most of our "famous" persons of today have been completely forgotten.

The Cost of War

IN DECLARING that the current business depression is, in the last analysis, part of the price that is being paid for the world war, Secretary Mellon hits on a truth that is becoming more and more apparent to thinking men each day.

"I have lived through several crises," says Mr. Mellon, "and the conclusion I have come to is that they have been caused, either directly or remotely, by serious dislocations which were due, as a rule, to wars and their aftermath."

That cannot be repeated too often. War is a ruinously expensive business, and the smallest part of its cost is the money that is actually spent on armies and ammunition. General recognition of the fact ought, eventually, to make war between civilized nations impossible.

Quotations Worth Noting

It doesn't cost as much to be well dressed as people imagine. I am what is called an extravagant buyer, yet I can manage very comfortably on twenty thousand a year.—Lilyan Tashman.

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.: Mrs. Malin phoned. She said she had started divorce proceedings, but that she doesn't know anything about Jean's movements. And would you call her?... Jimmy Durante wishes you would clear up the situation about the trio splitting...It appears that the parting is only temporary—for the six months he is in Hollywood...And that they will reunite for vaudeville or shows...I see Joe Cook's divorce made the front pages... Like?...Well, it serves you right for promising people things... What's happened to your argument that news always "leaks"?...Before I forget, please leave the $2—the quarter for the aspirin I bought you Monday, 60 cents for the messenger service (from M. L.), 15 cents for cigarets, and the dollar you borrowed two weeks ago... Mrs. W. phoned to tell you to please stop in at that toy store on 57th St., and bring home a sliding board—it costs $12.98...Seems that little Walda has discovered a new way to hurt herself by sliding down the stone rail of the stoop...And comes in almost hourly for a new pair of soandsos.

Saw Charlie Shaw and George Jean Nathan last night at the Blue Ribbon, they asked about you. Charlie wanted to know what your routine was these days, whether you were getting up in the afternoons or just going to sleep. I think Nathan is cute...I hear they are putting a bill through the Pennsylvania legislature to prevent ghost-writing...And someone is trying to put over a bill at Washington to prevent lawyers from heckling witnesses, which would be a welcome law if you asked me, and even if you didn't!...The Frederick A. Stokes Co., which published Pershing's Memwars, is dickering to put Mr. Coolidge's newspaper articles between covers...Tommy Lyman is now at the new 61 Club...A Miss Peggy O'Neal phoned and would like to have Patricia Caron's address...They want you upstairs to take new pictures.

That wage slice you mentioned on that newspaper only affects the business departments, not the editorial staff...You mentioned a split infinitive in the foreword to the "Public Enemy" picture...How about their use of "strata" when they meant "Stratum"?...Why don't you let the "Eili, Eili" controversy drop?...Only two lines were taken from the Old Testament. It is not a hymn, at all... Anyhow it is in Yiddish, according to one of my Joosh boy friends, and Prayers and Hymns are always in Hebrew...Dr. I. P. Thomas was correct and Miss Halperin was wrong...I am also supposed to inform you that in Quincy, Mass., at 4 Phillips St., there is a girl named Trudy Vallee.

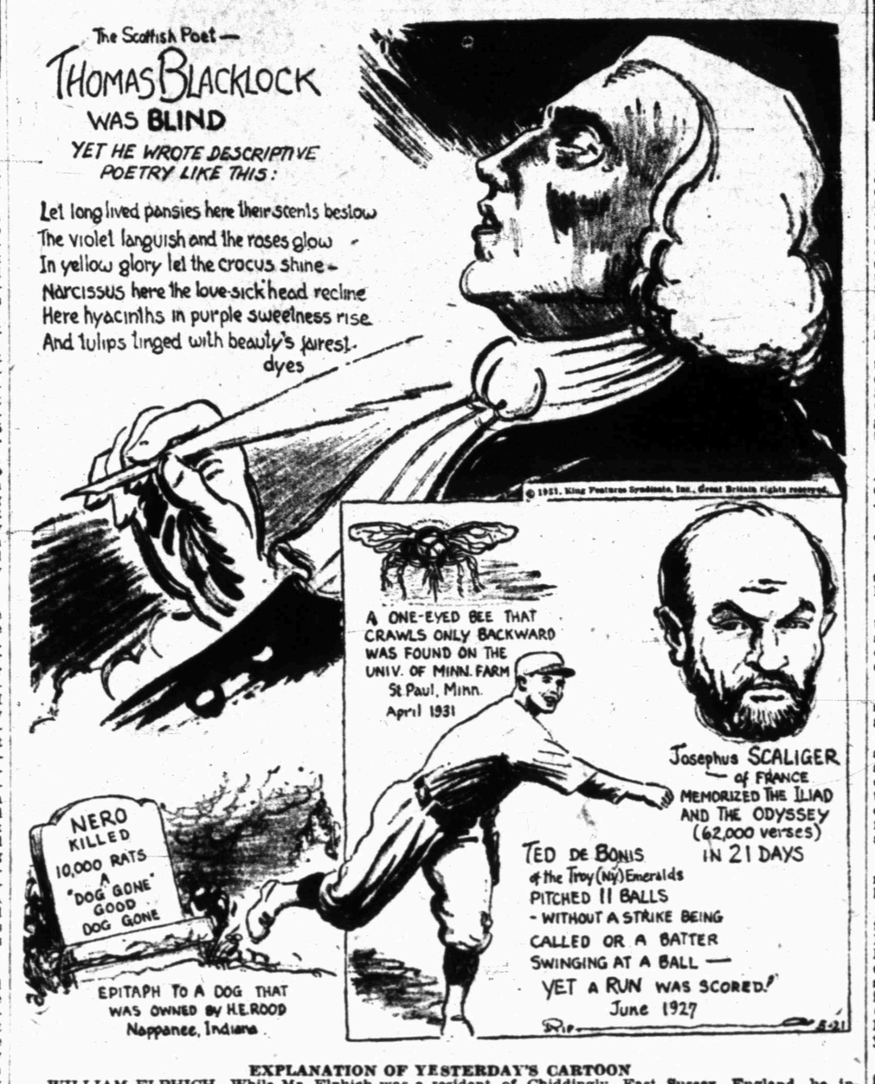

Did you see "The Secret Six" movie?... In one scene Jean Harlow is rushing after John M. Brown, who has just stepped off a subway train. The train is pulling out of the station with the doors open so she can get on. When the train is almost out of the station, the doors are still open, so the gangsters can get on, too... Veriwell, let it go, let it go... I was merely trying to help you... I have a letter asking who wrote "The Song of the Flame"—Friml or Gershwin?... Did you know that mackerel have to keep moving in order to live?... The breathing apparatus on the fish stops functioning when it stops moving... Jack Osterman called. Wants you to know he opens at the Paramount Grill next week... See Variety page 75.

I have a letter from a woman who read the line last week about you needing a new suit because yours was shiny... She says it is all very well for people like you to buy a new suit, but that her husband is desperate and needs one, too, but can't afford it... She says she has seen your picture and that you are slim like her husband and would you send her the old one?... Okay?... You know Cedric Worth. He's on the Post... He has done a book called "The Bank Fails" for Brewer, Warren & Putnam... Cedric has been in the hospital with pneumonia... Mention the book, please?... Winnie Sheehan of Fox Films was up to the Hollywood the other night and picked Barbara Smith out of that simply gorgeous group for a test. Ziegfeld also has her for the "Follies"... She sends her regards... A voice called and said they overheard Norma Taylor in the Stork Club say almost immediately after her elopment yesterday that she was going to have it annulled... Zmatter with her?

I'll have a startling divorce for you in a few days... Musn't tell yet, I gave my word of honor... In fact you printed it last year, but they denied it... I wonder if the "Wayward Press" dep't in the New-yorker will cover the "Five-Gun" Crowley case... I hope so, it was a thriller in the papers, and Bob would make it more exciting... I see Ray E. Goetz about with his old flame, Judith Anderson a lot... How come you haven't mentioned that chap, Fred Monroe, at the 300 Club?... I saw him last night and he's very clever, really... He apes various stars, but so much better than Albert Hackett or even Venita Gould, etc... I hear he gets less a week than the chorus girls there, but you may tell him for me not to lose heart. He'll be a Somebody some day... Now, if you were a good fellow, you would say so, and attract the attention of the agents and producers... Remember the column you wrote once, in which you admitted somebody gave you a push upstairs?

Harriet Hagman of the current Lucky Strike ad, who supposedly hails from Finland, is really Flatbush's gift to "Vanities"... I was just thinking that you could kid the city officials a little about their warnings to people to conserve water, because the city is threatened with a water shortage... Well, we have had a lot of rain in the past week, but did you notice that in spite of the heavy rains the cleaners still sprinkled the streets?... William Faro, the publisher, called to say that Sumner had arrested him on Feb. 24 for obscenity in publishing "Celestine—The Diary of a Chambermaid," by Octave Mirbeau... And that he won the case last Thursday. Decision awarded by Judge Wm. Dodge... The twist being that the same book, in its original form, was suppressed in 1900 and in 1931, still in its original, was declared not obscene by the courts... Oh, I knew I had a smile for you... Theodore Dreiser wears safety pins, and not suspenders!

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

WILLIAM ELPHICH—While Mr. Elphich was a resident of Chiddingly, East Sussex, England, he indulged his fancy for his curiously prolonged ringing of a bell at Hailsham, about four miles away. He had a church bell rung continuously over his head for 8,766 hours. The history of Mr. Elphich's curious record is contained in Thomas Haines' "Parrish of Sussex."

THE REPTILE BIRD—The Australian jungle fowl, belonging to the class of mound builders (megapodidae), builds a huge mound for a nest. Within this mound the eggs are left to be hatched by the heat which the decay of vegetable matter generates within. The young escape by digging through the side of the mound. They are well-developed, fully feathered and able to fly the minute they leave the egg.

THE PHENOMENON OF EAST LAKE—A peculiar condition, which is locally called "The Paradox," exists in the southwestern section of Lake Placid, New York, where a tide ebbs and flows during the day—though the lake has no direct connection with the sea. This phenomenon is so regular, and its force so great, that it is dangerous when covered with ice during the winter.

Tomorrow—"The man who had a golden nose."

Eleven Times Wed, Rich Louisiana Woman Hopes New Union Will Be Her Last

ALEXANDRIA, La., May 20.—Hopkins Joyce, who is supposed to know all about marriage, could learn a few pointers on matrimony from Mrs. Caroline McDonald-Walters-Bronson-Burgess-Chavallier-Gardner-White-Luigi-Hatfield-Willis-Paschal of the nearby village of Urania, La., who has just taken her 11th husband two days after being divorced from her 10th.

He is Louis Paschal and, according to the new Mrs. Paschal: "He's been mighty nice—I haven't found any faults with him yet." Seven of his predecessors as her husband have been divorced by her, and she has never been to Reno, either. The three others died.

Neighbors hereabouts don't try to remember the new bride by all the names she has had in the past 44 years—lots of them just call her "Mrs. Etc." and let it go at that. But this doesn't trouble her, because she is busy caring for her estate, estimated as high as $250,000, which came from oil found on her land.

She was dubious, it is said, when the first gusher welled up some years ago. According to one story, she looked at the "flowing gold" and remarked:

"Well, sir, that has spoiled one good cow lot."

Now she's satisfied it was a lucky strike, although she has some difficulty in keeping her accounts straight. However, she has decided opinions on husbands. Her experience has made her an authority.

"Three Good, Seven Bad"

"I've had three of the best men God ever made," she declares. "And I've had seven others of about the meanest men He ever turned out. I hope this one will be the last."

She has had so many husbands she sometimes gets a bit confused in summing up their characteristics, some good, more bad. But she is confident every woman needs a man.

"Having 11 husbands is nothing to be ashamed of," she says. "I know a lot of widows who have been longing for a man for 10 years and haven't even got a proposal. I've had so many I couldn't answer the letters. Can't marry but one at a time, that's a cinch."

She still gets a thrill out of being a bride, although she admits "marriage isn't what it's cracked up to be."

Mr. Paschal explains it this way: "Caroline ain't nobody's fool. Seven husbands have tried to chisel in on her wealth, but ain't a one succeeded. I'm not after her money. I admire her. I told her I needed a wife and she said she reckoned she needed a man about the place, so we got spliced."

How No. 10 Departed

She's had plenty of trouble with her husbands and usually she has got rid of them in quick time—and she didn't go to Reno either. Her recent squabble with J. W. Willis, her tenth, was the most startling.

When affairs reached such a crisis they were aired in the courts. He declared she refused to abide by their nuptial agreement regarding division of $75,000, oil royalties and stocks and bonds. She denied it.

"He was the laziest and most disagreeable of all my husbands," she stated. "In the winter he said it was too cold to work and in the summer it was too hot. He announced he wanted part of the money he helped to 'create' but he didn't 'create' enough to pay for his suit and tobacco."

She started learning about husbands at 14 and now at 58 she's still going strong. She has tried many nationalities and now she believes "a good man's a good man, whatever he is."

Born on Jan. 1, 1868, in Jackson parish as Caroline Frost, she was left an orphan while a young girl. She plunged into love, marriage and eventually the oil business with only three months of schooling.

Wed 16 Years First Time

Her first husband, Duff McDonald, was a "fine husband," but he died and left her "nothing but half a dozen children," she says. Three children died during their 16 years of marriage. Her second, Lee Walters, got in trouble and ran away, but her third, E. C. Bronson, she pictures as her "favorite husband."

"I don't suppose any woman has been through as much as I have," she says as she recalls her "bad" husbands. "I don't know as any women have been as happy as I have at times, and I know they haven't been as miserable as I have at other times."

She regards B. Hatfield of Monroe, as "one of her favorite husbands," but she doesn't care much for memories of the others. Besides it's difficult to remember everything about them—when there are so many.

Shown here with her newest husband, Louis Paschal, is Mrs. Caroline McDonald-Walters-Bronson-Burgess-Chavallier-Gardner-White-Luigi-Hatfield-Willis-Paschal. She wed Mr. Paschal 48 hours after she divorced Mr. Willis.

Commenting upon a son recently divorced, she says:

"My son got a divorce—it runs in the family—and proposed we resolve not to marry any more. 'Son,' I told him, 'You live your life and I'll live mine. If I see a nice man who wants to do the right thing, I'll take him on'—and I did."

Aimee Answers Card From Estranged Mother

LOS ANGELES, May 20. (US)—Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist and healer, who is on the outs with her mother, "Ma" Kennedy, has acknowledged a greeting card that she received from the little house across the street from Angelus temple, but that is all.

"I have been advised of your illness, mother," the evangelist wrote, "and I am sorry for you and hope you will soon recover. May God bless you.—Aimee."

"Ma" sent her greeting card upon Aimee's return to the temple last Saturday from a six months' trip abroad.

Answers to Questions

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

This great service is maintained by the Record-News for the benefit of its readers who may use it every day without cost to themselves. All they have to do is ask for any information desired and they will receive prompt answers by mail. Questions must be clearly written and stated as briefly as possible. Enclose two-cent stamp for return postage and address the Record-News Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, Director, Washington, D. C.

Q.—What is a kibitzer in a bridge game?—A. R.

A.—Kibitzer is a Yiddish slang term for one who meddles with others affairs. In bridge playing it is specifically a person who, although not a player, makes suggestions and gives unasked advice to the players.

Q.—What year did the Grand Army of the Republic hold its first encampment in Washington, D. C.?—W. A. S.

A.—It was the fourth national encampment, May 11-12, 1870.

Q.—What fish-eating birds are seen in the Florida Everglades?—H. F.

A.—The biological survey says that the following are among those seen: Snake-birds, curlews, ibises, cranes, king-fishers, herons, wild ducks and geese.

Q.—How long does it take to assemble a Ford model A motor and a passenger car?—S. S.

A.—The Ford Motor company says that under normal production schedule it requires approximately one hour 55 minutes to assemble the model A motor. Under similar conditions a passenger car spends from 35 to 40 minutes on the final assembly line.

Q.—From what plants is the straw made which is used in women's hats?—I. S. W.

A.—Some of the straws are bayou from the pandanus plant in Java; Manilla hemp, from abaca in the Philippines; Leghorn, Turin, Florentine, from wheat straw in Italy; split bamboo, pandan, from bamboo in Java; Panama from carludovica (looks like palm) in Colombia and Ecuador; Porto Rican straw from yaray palm in Porto Rico.

Q.—What is the cost of operation in retail hardware stores?—J. C. R.

A.—The National Retail Hardware association says that the cost of doing business of the average retailer is 23.73 per cent of the net sales. There are 37,211 retail hardware dealers in the United States.

Q.—How far from London are Windsor castle and Hampton-court?—J. H.

A.—Windsor is about 21 miles from London and Hampton court about 15.

Q.—What is the amount of rainfall in Africa and what is the population of that continent?—A. M.

A.—The rainfall of Africa varies considerably in the different localities. On the Egyptian desert there are appreciable falls only once in a number of years, while in the Cameroons the average is 360 inches a year. On either side of the equator there is a belt of heavy rainfall, diminishing north and southward. The estimated population of Africa in 1930 was 15,000,000.

Q.—Did the Indians use horses before the coming of the white man?—K. R.

A.—They did not. The horse was unknown on this continent before the coming of the Spaniards. There are traces of horse-like animals in geological deposits in various parts of the Americas, but for some reason the horse never reached the development which it did in Asia and became extinct long before the historical era.

Q.—What purpose does a postmark serve?—S. S. L.

A.—Postmarks were first placed on envelopes as an official marking. Later they were used to cancel the postage stamps and give place and time of mailing. The postoffice department says that the records of the postoffice department do not show when the postmark was first used. As early as 1798 the postal laws and regulations required postmasters to mark letters deposited in their offices for mailing with the name of the office. This mark might be either stamped or written. Up to 1840 in some cases, written postmarks were still in use.

Q.—If a man has been in this country for 20 years, does he automatically become a citizen?—E. H.

A.—No alien ever automatically becomes a citizen of the United States because of length of residence.

Q.—Is there a permanent record of the Indian sign language?—C. D. A.

A.—A government department is making a film that will preserve the Indian sign language. Maj. Gen. Hugh L. Scott, retired, is doing the sound recording explaining the picture.

The Record News Offers A New Edition of the Fifteenth Census

When the government finally publishes the complete 1930 census figures it will be in a ponderous tome that is as unwieldy as an unabridged dictionary. In the booklet now offered readers of The Record News, much of the important census data is condensed in the most compact form possible, making it available for ready reference. It includes, in addition to total population figures and populations of the various states, the 200 leading cities of the United States in the order of their rank and all the cities of 2,500 and over in the country. The figures are official.

Sally Blair, $20 a Week Typist, Scorns Love

THE NAME OF THIS STORY IS
"$20 a Week"
By Rob Eden

'Business, Success, Beautiful Clothes Are More Tempting'

CHAPTER I

"I'm sick of this." Sally cried impatiently, as she discovered another run in the stocking she was mending, and flung it down on the couch.

Ann Seymour glanced up from the letter she was writing, and a frown gathered on her soft features. "I know, Sally, but there's nothing else we can do." Her voice was soothing, purposely. Sally had been a bit irritable all day.

Sunday was a difficult day, anyhow. So much to do. All their pressing, washing, ironing, mending for the coming week. The two of them cooped up in the small room, falling over each other every time they moved, getting on each other's nerves.

"We can't afford a larger place," Ann continued, putting down her pen, and pushing the ink farther over on the table. When Sally was in this mood you had to humor her, talk to her.

"This is my last pair of good stockings — hopeless." Sally Blair picked up the stockings again, looked at them closely, then laid them down with a sigh. "It isn't only the stockings and the apartment, Ann. It's everything. I'm fed up with everything, I tell you. My job, the way we have to live, and eat and exist. The struggle we have—every day, every minute."

The Crowded Apartment

Her eyes traveled bitterly around the crowded room. Really it was three rooms in one, kitchenette, living room and bedroom. The kitchenette part of it consisted of a narrow, shallow cupboard against the back wall, fitted out with three shelves, the lower one holding a two-burner electric stove, the other two showing a few cracked dishes and supplies. A screen of dull green burlap conveniently concealed the implements of cooking.

The living room proper was apparent by the too-old and too-worn davenport on which Sally was sitting; a straight backed chair which Ann was using, a scarred, tiny gate leg table with an imitation parchment lamp never resting very firmly on its frame, and now teetering dangerously. In a corner was a veneered walnut chest of drawers, resembling a buffet, but really a dresser.

The living room could be transformed into a bedroom in five minutes. That is if the davenport didn't stick. If it did, it took perhaps 15 minutes to pull it out and get it arranged for the night. Sally and Ann had learned its temperamental tricks in about a week, but at first it had been a thing of horror to them. One of them pulled it out at night, and the other pushed it together in the morning and packed the two pillows in the infinitesimal closet that held both of their wardrobes.

Home for Working Girls

Before the couch could be converted into a bed, however, the table had to be placed flush with the wall, and the chair had to be moved. For the davenport, when it finally became a bed, took up most of the available floor space.

A bathroom, tubless, but boasting a small cracked tile shower, completed the suite.

The girls called it an apartment, and it was classed as that in the rental lists. "Small, attractively furnished apartment, conveniently located. Ideal for working girls. Tile bath and kitchenette. Rent $60, including light and heat."

When Sally and Ann, lured by the advertisement, had come to see it six months before, they had had their choice of four identical apartments, even to the frayed rayon curtains at the one window, the nasturtium decked cups in the cupboard, the shabby tapestry on the couch, the silhouette of the dancing nymph on the lamp. They had finally taken 525 because they thought it would be quieter, and they imagined somehow, that the tiles in the bath were a little fresher.

Sally Is Serious

Sally had immediately taken down the pictures from the wall—two bad prints—washed the curtains, and made a few bright pillows for the couch. But it hadn't helped much. The room was practically the same, drab, dark, uninviting. Now and then with a little extra money she bought flowers, only to be sorry afterward. The flowers seemed out of place in the room, and they died so quickly. Her latest experiment was a bowl of goldfish on the window ledge.

Whether the fish didn't like the outlook into the narrow, window-laden court, or whether the New York summer was too much for them, all four had died and now the glass globe was empty, and the porcelain castle deserted.

"Don't talk like that, Sally, you know you don't mean it," Ann admonished, quietly.

"I do mean it!" she cried tensely, running one of her white hands through her brown hair.

Wisely Ann said nothing, but she looked more closely at her roommate, thinking, as she studied the familiar face, that Sally was prettier tonight than she had ever seen her before. And Sally was always pretty, even when her hair was tied up in a towel, and she was creaming her face. Even when in an old house dress, she went scurrying about the apartment cleaning and dusting.

Sally's Moods Are Frequent

Ann liked her eyes best of all. Not as they were tonight, with her restlessness, her discontent showing in them, but as they usually were, when Sally was normal, happy. Large eyes, grey, laughing one minute, somber the next. Languorous, then alert. Something so straight, so clean, so frank about her eyes. Rather widely spaced, they were fringed by short thick lashes. Above them, brows, splendidly curved, tapering to a fine thin line near her temples.

Then her mouth. Ann liked that, next to her eyes. Rather a full mouth for a girl. Generous, and sensuous. A mouth that trembled slightly when Sally laughed, and when she cried, although she seldom cried. Ann had only seen tears in her eyes once in the year she had known her. Sally wasn't the kind who cried. Ann was. She wept when she quarreled with Mac Tierney. She wept when she was tired. And sometimes she wept when she

"I know only too well. We're paying plenty for this—dump." She clasped her hands tightly across the kimono clad knees, and rocked her tense body. "Each of us, $30 a month. And we only earn $20 a week, apiece. Do you realize, Ann, that I'm 20 years old and only earning $20 a week?"

"Well, you've only been at Davidson's six months—" Ann stopped abruptly. She had been working for the Davidson Insurance company for a year, and was still earning $20 a week. She hoped Sally wouldn't remind her of it. It would only make matters worse.

A Routine Job

"Do you like to type from 8:30 in the morning until 5:30 at night, with an hour for lunch?" Sally demanded afresh. She got to her feet, and started to walk across the room. Her body was slim, and supple, her beautiful shoulders erect. She tossed the mop of curly brown hair fiercely, and pulled the kimono closer about her.

"No, I can't say I do—" Ann answered softly. Sally would keep asking and asking if she didn't answer, so she might as well. Of course, she didn't like the work. Did anyone? Any of the 20 girls who sat in the stiff chairs, before the metal desks in the sales department of Davidson's? It wasn't interesting work. Merely mechanical, that was all. You typed all morning, then you went out to lunch, and after you came back you typed all afternoon.

You had Saturday afternoon off, and all holidays. It was a clean place to work. Good equipment, excellent typewriters, splendid light, better than most offices. Ann had never thought about it especially before. She knew, however, that she didn't like her work. She did it because she had to. Because she had to live and eat, and buy clothing to wear. She wished that Sally wouldn't remind her too poignantly of the routine of it. She'd like to forget that. Better to forget. When you thought about it too much, you got to brooding, as Sally was brooding now.

"You aren't the only girl who is working," she said mildly, hoping to put Sally off the track.

Ann Is Hopeful

"I know. I could quit, of course, and look for another job. A job that paid more, so that I could live decently. But I don't dare do that, Ann. Summer, and jobs are scarce, and I'd probably land one that was no better than the one I have at Davidson's. All these past six months I've been expecting a better one to turn up. How I don't know. Thought it would wander my way, I suppose . . ."

"Maybe you'll get a raise—" Ann suggested.

"What good would $2.50 a week do me? Ann, don't you want things?" Sally had put aside her belligerent attitude, and was almost beseeching Ann to answer.

"What do you mean?"

"Oh, everything. Clothes you see in the stores, perfume, furs. Luxuries. Don't you want to be able to buy more than one pair of stockings at a time? Don't you want for once to buy a hat upstairs in a store, instead of in a basement? Wouldn't you like to go into a dress department and say 'I'll take that'—and know you have the money, the cash money to pay for it? Do you know, Ann, that I've never paid more than $16 for a dress in my life? Never. And I've had to struggle to pay that. I can only afford $5 hats.

"And coats. I'm still paying for my winter coat on installments, and so are you. And the coat's worn out now, because it was shoddy, material in the beginning, and I'm tired of it—"

Ann Writes Her Mother

The rebellion was gone from Sally's voice. She was talking earnestly, reciting facts. She sat down quietly, on the couch, and crossed one knee, carefully.

"Do you ever wonder, Ann, dear, whether you'll have luxuries some day?"

"I—don't think much about them, Sally. Of course, I want them, but—"

"Well, I want them, and I've been wanting them more and more lately. That's what's made me so hard to get along with. I've been a trial this last week, I know." Her head fell back on the couch, and her eyes studied the ceiling intently, blinking unconsciously when they struck a far corner, stained, the plaster crumbling.

After a while, when her companion did not resume her conversation, Ann went back to her letter. The room was very quiet, except for the scratching of her pen, and the tap of Sally's heel on the floor.

Now and then Sally looked at Ann's pale blonde head, bent over the table. Watched her fingers move slowly. She was writing a letter to her mother, Sally knew. She wrote a letter to her mother every Sunday night.

Sally wished she had a mother to write to. Anybody, for that matter. She had been so alone since her Aunt Martha had died three years before. The last of the Blairs, Aunt Martha was wont to say a little bitterly. Toward the end Aunt Martha was very bitter.

Sally's Aunt Martha

"But you won't be a Blair long with your looks, Sally." The girl had felt uncomfortable at that. Strangely enough her father's sister was proud of going through the span of her life, as Martha Blair, spinster. So fiercely independent about her maidenhood.

The years she had spent with Aunt Martha seemed now so indefinite and at times so impossible. Almost as if she had dreamed them. Years alone with Aunt Martha, in the stuffy little flat in Brooklyn. Years of poverty, not endurable poverty but horribly genteel poverty. Aunt Martha barely making enough money for herself, and having to support an extra person. No wonder her tongue was sharp, her patience short.

A "writer," Miss Blair called herself, and when she died, she willed to Sally a trunkful of her manuscripts and a small life insurance policy. The girl had the trunk still, a musty cow-hide trunk. It was in the store room in the basement. The policy had put her through business college, and kept her going until she found her first job. Five hundred dollars. Sally had thought it a fortune at first. Thought it ought to last forever. Somehow, she didn't know how now—that was in the past that was so dim, because it was still so close—she had stretched it out for a year and a week, living on it, eating on it and paying her tuition at school.

She knew Aunt Martha would have been disappointed in the way she had spent the money. She could almost see the anger in those grey eyes which, surprising enough, she had inherited. Aunt Martha thought it was nonsense for women to go into business. She didn't approve of business schools, and her fondest hope during her lifetime was that some wind fall would come to her, and that her niece could go to college. Sally had only finished high school when the aunt died. Luckily for her, she had no desire to go to college.

Sally Thinks of the Future

She had wanted to work while her aunt was alive, but Miss Blair wouldn't have it. And when Miss Blair said no, she meant it. Sally had learned this as a child of 10, when her mother and father had been killed in an auto accident, and she had come to live with her aunt. At first it had been hard, because Sally had a decided will of her own, probably inherited with the gray eyes from Martha.

"Have you finished?" she asked Ann suddenly. Ann was sealing the envelope that would bring Mrs. Seymour in Nebraska news that her daughter was happy, working, and that for the present she and Mac had decided to put off plans for their wedding. Ann didn't tell Mrs. Seymour that the reason the plans were postponed was that she and Mac couldn't afford to be married. No use to worry her mother. She sighed as she pressed the stamp on the white surface. Terrible when you wanted so badly to be married and you couldn't. When you knew you'd have to wait years and years. And at 19 years seem to stretch into ages.

"Yes, I've finished. What do you want?"

"I want to talk to you some more."

"About what?" Ann's heart sank. Hadn't Sally forgotten yet?

"About my future, Ann. I've no one else to talk to. I've decided it's about time I did something."

"What?"

"To get me out of this rut I'm in."

Ann frowned and folded her hands, her eyes seeking the alarm clock on top of the dresser. Ten o'clock. She was tired, and wanted to go to bed. Monday morning was always hard at the office, harder than any other morning.

"I am in a rut, Ann, and you know it. You are, too, but you've something ahead, something to look forward to. You're going to marry Mac—"

Ann's Plans

"Not very soon." Ann broke in, a hint of impatience in her usually calm voice. How could you get married when you didn't have any money? When she was only making $20 a week, and Mac was only making $30? Unless, of course, Mac let her go on working. But last night Mac Tierney had said very definitely that his wife wasn't going to work after they were married.

That put off the wedding — for years. It wasn't that Mac couldn't earn more. He could, but he was young, only 22. It took time to earn a decent salary, Ann knew that.

"Well, some time, though. You have something to anticipate. I haven't—yet." Sally's eyes were very bright, and her lips very red. "Ann, what would you say if I told you I was going to get what I want?"

"I don't understand—"

"Of course you don't—yet. Here toss me that pen, and a piece of paper."

Ann complied, and Sally scribbled for a few minutes on the sheet of white note paper. When she finished, she read over what she had written, pressed her lips together determinedly, and passed over the sheet to Ann.

"That's a list of the things I want, Ann."

A Goal Is Set

Ann read over the items and looked blankly at Sally, then studied the list again. She might have been making out a carefully planned grocery order.

1. A decent, attractive apartment.
2. Good clothes.
3. Handmade French lingerie.
4. A squirrel coat.
5. A job paying at least $75 a week.
6. A millionaire husband.

"I take it you don't think much of my list?" Sally laughed shakily.

"I think it's pretty impossible," Ann said hesitatingly. She didn't want to discourage Sally altogether. "Just a dream, isn't it?"

"Now it's a dream, but it's a dream that is going to come true in a year," Sally said firmly. "I've set a time limit on it. By June 10 next year, the list will be a reality."

"We all dream things like this, Sally. Before I met Mac I thought I was going to marry a millionaire—"

"My dream is coming true. You wait and see. I've been telling you for weeks that I'm sick of all this—" her hand swept the room in decided distaste—"but it's no use talking about it unless I do something. That's what I'm going to do."

"Do you mean to say that in a year you're going to have all those things on your foolish list?"

"It isn't a foolish list, Ann. I'm deadly serious about it. I've had an idea in my mind for a long time—it's been growing and growing—an idea that if you want a thing badly enough, and work for it with all your heart and soul, you'll get it. And I'm going to start right now, working on my future. Every bit of my energy is going into it. I'm going to make it my job."

"And what if you fall in love during the year? Fall in love with somebody who is poor—like Mac?"

Sally Plans to Work Hard

"Love isn't entering into my calculations, Ann. It can't. I'm going ahead cold bloodedly to get the things I want out of life. Nothing is going to hinder me."

"What about happiness?"

"I'll be happy when I have the things I want. All my life I've been poor. Poor with Aunt Martha, poor now when I'm earning my own living. I'm not going to be poor any longer." Sally's fist came down fiercely on the hard padding of the davenport. "I've a goal now, and a time limit."

"You'll have to find your millionaire first."

"I've found him — but he comes last on my program, as you noticed. First I've got to earn the things I want. I'm going to work for everything on my list, Ann. Work hard. That's why I'm giving myself a year. I'm a good stenographer, probably one of the best in the office. I'm not saying that to brag."

Ann nodded. Sally was an exceptional stenographer. Her speed was twice as fast as Ann's, and she didn't sacrifice neatness or efficiency for that speed.

"I like business, or would if I had something interesting to do. A job where I could use my initiative. Aunt Martha gave me the best groundwork in English that I could have. She was a crank about English. Then, I'm attractive—not beautiful, but attractive."

Ann wanted to say she was gorgeous now, with her eyes shining, her hair tumbling over her shoulders, brown curls of it her chin tilted so the white of her throat gleamed against the dull red of her kimono.

Sally Is Confident

A strange Sally. A new Sally. Could this be the girl she had worked with, lived with for the past six months? The girl she thought she knew as she knew her sisters in Nebraska? It was as if someone else were sitting on the couch talking in that low vibrant voice that was Sally's. Someone else with Sally's lovely body, her glowing face.

"I'm going to use my looks, my business efficiency, Ann, everything I have. It's fair. I'm going to play a little game of politics all my own. Politics for my own good, and advancement. I'm going to take everything men want to give me, and give them nothing in return. By everything I don't mean gifts. I mean chances for advancement. Opportunities."

"You'll be playing with fire," Ann warned quickly.

"I won't get burnt."

"You don't know."

"I do know, Ann. I know myself."

"Who is to be the millionaire husband?"

Sally hesitated, and looked closely at Ann's pale pretty face. Should she tell her and be ridiculed some more? Or should she keep this to herself?

The Millionaire Husband

"Well, Sally, I asked you a question."

"My millionaire husband is going to be Harvey T. Davidson, Ann."

"Sally!"

"Nothing wrong about that, is there? He's a widower—and a millionaire."

"And he has a daughter as old as you are, Sally! And you don't know him! You've never seen him!"

"I have—twice. Once getting into his car, and once entering his private elevator in the lobby."

What matter whom she chose? Whether it was Harvey T. Davidson, president of the Davidson Insurance company and chairman of the board of directors, the biggest boss of all, who didn't even know he had a typist in his sales department by the name of Sally Blair, or whether it was someone else. Anybody.

You had to have a definite aim to look forward to. That was what Sally wanted.

"Sally, are you crazy?" Ann demanded. Her face was paler than usual, and her blue eyes were wide with fright.

"Certainly not, darling. I'm perfectly sane. While I'm making my plans, I might as well make the best ones I can."

"I think you've been kidding me—"

Sally said no more as she got ready for bed. But before she turned out the lights she took the list from the table, read it again, and put it in her purse.

Tomorrow she was going to start on her campaign. Ann might not believe her, but that didn't matter. She was going ahead with it.

A year to get the things she wanted. The luxuries she craved. A year. Was that too short a time?

Read about the first day of Sally's campaign in Friday's Record News.

"I take it you don't think much of my list?" Sally laughed shakily.

HURRYING HURTFUL WITHOUT RELAXATION

The other day a baby was born in an aeroplane. He has the modern spirit of rush. He was in such a hurry he couldn't wait for the hospital. The American race is noted for its hurry. It is said that the average American will hurry to catch a train even when leaving to take a "rest cure." There are many successful men in New York City who hurry so hard all day that at night they cannot sleep without drugs. Constant hurry may lead to nerve fag, or a "nervous" stomach or "nervous" heart.

People with much trouble are probably chronic sufferers from "Hurry-itis." They cannot slow down. They become more and more enervated and fall prey to such diseases as neurasthenia, anemia, colds, etc.

Some people have the hurry habit in its worst form. They are oppressed by a feeling of having to hurry. Of the thousands of people who ask me for the different list of articles on how to regain health, you would be surprised how many hundreds of them are in such a hurry that they forget to put in the list!

Hurry causes many mistakes and accidents. The cook who is in a hurry with the biscuits may forget the baking powder, with the result that the biscuits will never rise very far in the world, while the man who is driving in too much of a hurry may try to save a few minutes and spend several weeks in the hospital.

Women in particular suffer from the habit of hurry. Yet, hurry will bring on a strain so that at the end of the day the hurried person will be on such a tension that it is hard to relax and enjoy the evening.

We should try never to be either mentally or physically hurried. It is good sign of mental control when we are able to live in this hurry-up, rushing world of today and still be calm and unflustered. One with calmness of mind will not allow himself to be hurried, and he is more likely to live and enjoy life longer than one who hurries. Most of those who live unhurried lives live to be very old, while many high-pressure business men burn themselves out at 55. If you have to choose between hurry and health, choose health. You will go farther, and like the tortoise who raced the hare you may arrive sooner.

When you find yourself loaded down with a sense of hurry, the best plan will be to learn to suggest to your mind that you are not hurried. Before going to sleep be careful to let the mind dwell on peace and calmness. Think of how much there is, and has been. Consider a tree; you never saw a tree hurry, and yet the trees which grow the slowest will live hundreds of years and still be young when you are old. Say to yourself, over and over, "I am not in a hurry. Nothing hurries me. I have plenty of time for everything." Look over these sayings: This one is from the Koran: "Haste is of the Devil." This is a Russian Proverb: "Hurry is only good for catching flies." Think of the homely phrases, "Haste makes waste," and "The longest way 'round is the shortest way home."

You will find that because hurry is a habit, it may be changed and something better substituted. You all of you understand how anything becomes a habit; first you do it once, then you repeat it, and after a while it becomes a habit. Instead of the habit of hurry, form the habit of being unhurried. Keep on repeating over and over that you are calm and filled with peace, and eventually you will find that hurry has left you for good, and in place of being always rushed and hurried you will be able to do your work with the best that you have in you.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Construction of Esophagus

Question: Mrs. B. W. writes—"My trouble is constriction of the esophagus. I had this trouble a year ago and this time it came on with a slight hoarseness and I always have the lump or fullness in my throat, and the sensation makes me frantic. Have been examined by several doctors and none find anything wrong with throat or tonsils, no adenoids, etc."

Answer—The constriction of your esophagus probably remains because of some local irritation, as you suggested it came on with a slight hoarseness. The best thing to do would be to follow the dieting regimen similar to that used in bronchitis, which I will be glad to send you if you will forward a large self-addressed stamped envelope. You must endeavor to build up your nervous system as much as possible by sleeping at least eight hours a night and avoiding needless mental strains and emotional excitement.

Dried Beans

Question: P. H. asks—"Are lima beans the best dried beans to use as a food? Or which kind of dried beans would be the best to use in an emergency? Also, the best way to prepare dried beans as a food so they will retain their flavor and the vitamins. Will long or hard boiling injure their vitamins. Would simmering be the best way?"

Answer—Any small dried beans may be used by those in good health. They should be cooked a long time by simmering or slow baking where only a low heat is used.

Prolapsus

Question—B. H. asks: "Can a dropped stomach be cured, and how?"

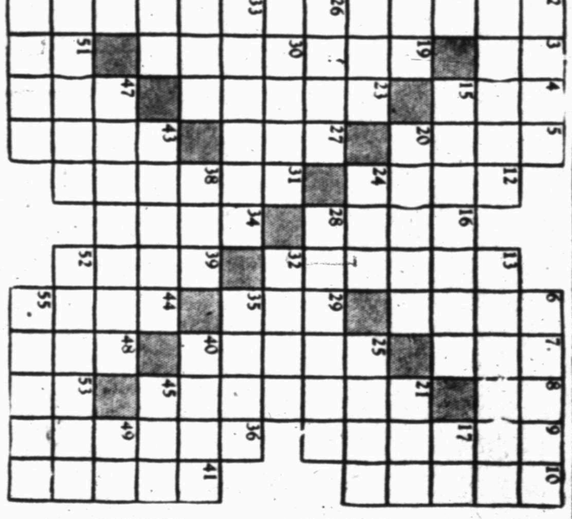

Answer—A prolapsed stomach can usually be raised to its proper position through taking the "setting up" exercises. If any adhesions exist which are holding the stomach down, these must be broken loose first by manipulative treatment.

FOUR SPUDDERS SCORE IN EIGHTH TO BUMP HOUSTON, 5-2

STEENGRAFE IN OLD TIME FORM

Beaumont Opens Stand At Park This Afternoon

By AL PARKER

Those strong finishing Spudders lost their bearings in the eighth inning yesterday at Athletic park. They thought it was the ninth and scored four times to defeat the Houston Buffs, 5 to 2, for a two to one edge in a series that proved one of the finest and most productive of thrills a Spudder club has ever staged. Each of the three games with the Buffs was a ding-dong battle, enlivened by late rallies by Carl Williams' band of youthful performers. A ninth inning rally won the opener, 5 to 4; tied the second and carried it into extra innings, but it remained for the final tilt to bring forth the pappa rally of the series.

The Buffs went into the eighth leading Milt Steengrafe and his cast by a 2 to 1 margin. Milt himself could do no more than fly to center to open the round, but Garms waited out a walk for the opening wedge. Allday shot a line drive off the left field fence, and Peel took the ball off the wall and held it to a single, Garms scooting to third. Stanton drove a line drive to deep left and Garms scored after the catch. Gullic flailed one out of the park that the wind carried foul by only a few feet and Elmer Hanson took the hint and issued a walk. Badgro lined a double into left center, scoring Allday and Gullic and putting the Spudders out in front.

Dean Stops It

Fuss and Scharein followed suit with singles and the great Dizzy Dean, who had been warming up since the start of the inning, had to be hustled into action to dispose of Bradbury, who grounded out, third to first, after drawing the great one into a two and two count.

So far as the Spudder attack was concerned, the ball game was wrapped up in that one big inning. Except for doubles by Garms and Stanton that had counted the only Wichita Falls run, Hanson had pitched brilliantly, allowing only one hit in the first six innings.

Steengrafe went the other way around and finished in grand fashion after yielding two runs, one of which was unearned, in the first three rounds. In the last six the Buffs could muster sufficient punch for only two hits. The California coffee king had his curve ball breaking right for the first time this season, and his splendid game is convincing evidence the club now has another winning pitcher to rotate with Hillin, Cooney and White.

The Spudders outhit the Buffs by only one blow, 8 to 7, but they put half of 'em into the big eighth inning, while the enemy was gathering two hits off Steengrafe in only one inning.

Houston Takes Lead

The Buffs did all their damage in the second and third. Selph, first up in the second, bunted in front of the plate and pulled up at second when Bradbury threw wild. Medwick doubled off the left field fence, scoring Selph and was left at third when Sanders popped to Stanton and Funk fanned. In the third Hock beat out a roller to short with one out, stole second and scored on Peel's pop single over short.

Hanson had the Spudders helpless through the first three. Stanton was the only hitter to reach first, his single in the first putting the only blemish on the big right-hander's pitching. Aside from Stanton's single, there was scarcely a hard hit ball.

Steengrafe settled down to his knitting after the third and Hanson's double was the only Houston riffle in the fourth, fifth and sixth, and he was left when Badgro made a fine catch of Hock's short fly and Fuss repeated on Sturdy's not so short drive to right.

Hanson's wizardry continued through the fifth, but Garms and Stanton found the combination in the sixth. With one away Garms doubled to left center and trotted in when Stanton socked his daily double into the same territory. Hanson whiffed Gullic for the second time and the third out of the inning.

Both teams passed up scoring chances in the seventh after their leadoff men had singled. Carey started it for the Buffs, but Funk and Hanson ended it after Sanders sacrificed. Badgro shot a single to left for the Spudders and was given second on a balk, but none of the next three could get the ball out of the infield and he was marooned at third.

Exporters Today

Sturdy drew a pass—the only one issued by Steengrafe—with one gone in the eighth and stole after Peel had flied to right. The theft was at the expense of Allday and Scharein, who failed to cover, but the lapse proved harmless as Selph fouled to Badgro.

The invaders passed out in order in the ninth, Scharein ending the game with a brilliant stop and throw of Pinch Hitter Rollings' sizzler close to the bag.

The Buffs moved out after yesterday's game and the second place Beaumont Exporters moved in for a two-day stand at Athletic park.

Americans Advance In French Tennis Play

AUTEUIL, France, May 20. (AP)—Paced by George Lott and Johnny Van Ryn, doubles favorites, all except two of the Americans mustered for the French hard courts tennis championships advanced today, some of them as far as the quarterfinal rounds.

The American Davis cup doubles team ran into unforeseen trouble in defeating Georges Glasser and Antoine Gentien, two of the younger Frenchmen, but managed to survive a third set uprising and win, 6-1, 6-3, 11-13, 6-3. Van Ryn was off his game and the Frenchmen broke through his service to keep the Americans on the defensive.

Teamed with Madame Rene Matheiu, France, Senorita De Alvarez, Spain, advanced to the semifinal round of the women's doubles by defeating Madame Contosavos Nicolopoulos and Madame Vlasto Serpieri, 6-1, 3-6, 6-4.

CORPUS CHRISTI WINS

M'ALLEN, Texas, May 20. (AP)—Albers' steam ball held McAllen batters down and hustling Corpus Christi base runners scored five runs to beat McAllen today, 5-2.

PANTHERS LIKE GAME AT NIGHT

Fort Worth Turns on Lights With 3-2 Win

FORT WORTH, May 20. (AP)—With one of the most masterful pitching performances seen here this season, the Fort Worth Panthers inaugurated night baseball here with a 3-2 victory over the Beaumont Exporters tonight. Five thousand fans gathered in the stands for the debut of the lights, cheered and urged Leon Chagnon on as he mowed down the challenging Exporters with monotony.

The victory enabled the Panthers to sweep the series with the Exporters and increase their lead to three full games over the Texas league field.

Four Former Electra High Stars Set Records in College Contests

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, May 20.—Within one week, four former Electra High school star athletes set or tied records in four different college conferences according to reports received here.

On Saturday, May 9, at Fort Worth, Richard Houser of T. C. U. set a new Southwest conference record in the 100-yard dash with the time 9:6 seconds, breaking the record of 9:7 set by Bracey of Rice.

The following Monday, Bill Crass, representing Amarillo Junior college at the meet in Fort Worth, set a new junior conference record by putting the 16 pound shot, 42 feet, and seven and one-fourth inches. He also made nine points to help his team win the championship.

The next day at the T. I. A. A. meet in Denton, Henry Culpepper, representing North Texas State Teachers college, tied the existing records in the high hurdles with the time of 15.2 seconds.

Sylvan Cloniger representing Howard Payne college in the Texas conference meet at Brownwood last Friday, broke his own record set in 1930 in the pole vault with a leap of 12 feet, two inches. His record last year was 12 feet. He also made nine points in the meet to help his team win the championship for the fourth consecutive time.

Cloniger, Culpepper and Houser were members of the Electra High school Tiger team that ran away with the state meet in 1927. These three men and Louis Kent, accounted for the 19 1-3 points that gave Electra first place. Culpepper won first in the 120 high hurdles; Houser, third and fourth in the 100-yard dash and 220-yard dash. Cloniger tied for first place in the pole vault with 11 feet, six inches to his credit. Cloniger was captain of the football team in 1927; Culpepper, captain of the track team in 1928 and Crass was captain of 1929 football team. Cloniger has lettered the past three years at Howard Payne in football, basketball, and track. He is captain elect for next year's Yellow Jacket football team.

Merchant and Walker Meet Today For Greenbelt Golf Championship Title

five pars and a birdie. The cards on the first nine:

Parr .... 4 5 5 3 5 3 4 6 4—39
Merchant .... 4 4 4 3 5 4 5 5 5—39

The hard fighting Electran lost the match after eight holes on the back nine. They halved the first with par fours. Merchant took the second with a par four to Parr's five, and went one up. They halved the third with fives. Merchant went two up when he won the fourth with a par three. He lost the fifth by a stroke but won the sixth to again go in the lead, two up. The next two they halved and Parr conceded. The cards back nine:

Parr 4 5 5 4 4 4 4 5
Merchant 4 4 5 3 5 3 4 5

Foxhall Is Upset

The defeat of Foxhall in the quarter finals was a shock. City Walker won the Green Belt championship in 1926 and 1927, but when Raines West of Memphis superceded him in 1928 Walker was believed through. Foxhall was champion in 1929 and 1930 and his youth was regarded as one of his best assets.

Foxhall was the victim of hard luck in that quarter final round. A mean lie in a tricky sand trap on the 18th hole prevented him from squaring the match, and getting another shot at Walker.

Walker had Foxhall two up at the turn and increased his lead to four up and five to go at the start of the second nine. Foxhall then staged a fighting rally, winning the next three holes to put him only one down.

Ninth Hole Tells It

Then they teed off on the ninth, and, to Foxhall, the fatal hole. Foxhall made a brilliant drive of about 250 yards straight down the fairway but pitched too far on the next shot, his ball landing in a sand trap on the far side of the green. Walker made a miserable start, taking four shots to get on the green, but Foxhall was so wedged in the trap that it cost him two shots to get no further than the edge of the green. That sand trap spelled Foxhall's defeat. He tried desperately to square the match with a long distance putt, but the ball hit the edge of the cup and bounced away. Foxhall then conceded he was beaten and Walker took the hole, 5 and 6 to give him the decision, two up.

Walker has been known by the nickname "City" for long, but it was only today that Walker's foe in the finals, Ira Merchant, was dubbed "country." So "City" and "Country" Will meet at 9 o'clock Thursday morning to start the 36 hole championship match. "Country" Merchant has never won a Greenbelt crown, but has always been a mean shooter and a championship contender.

The fourth flight title was decided today, E. T. Griffin of Shamrock, winning over S. A. Cubine McLean, 4 and 3, in the finals. A. N. Wood won the title in the first flight of the senior division, defeating J. T. Patman, Clarendon, 2 and 1.

BROWNIES WIN, 8-4

ST. LOUIS, May 20. (AP)—St. Louis pounded two Boston pitchers out of the box in the early innings of today's game and defeated the Red Sox, 8 to 4, in the first of a two-game series. After Gaston and Moore had allowed seven runs, Kline hurled against the Browns for seven innings and held them to one run.

Pickering twice scored with home runs, but neither time was there a Boston runner on base. Score:

Joe Turnesa Tops Leeds Tournament

LEEDS, England, May 20. (AP)—By equalling the record round of 69 he shot over the Sand Moor links yesterday, Joe Turnesa, American professional headed the list of 32 qualifiers today for the thousand guineas professional golf tournament. R. E. Ballantine, British pro who also shot a 69 today, finished second to Turnesa's 138 with a 36-hole total of 141.

Marco Churio, of Argentina, and Joe Kirkwood, trick shot star, were third and fourth respectively among the qualifiers with totals of 142 and 143, completing the fine showing of the American continentals at the top of the list.

Two other transatlantic golfers also qualified, but by narrow margins. Tony Manero, American pro, shot a 72 today to bring his total to 148 while Joe Jurado, Argentina, got in under the wire with a 76 and a total of 149.

Horton Smith, the tall trapshooter from Missouri, just failed to qualify, turning in 152, two strokes above the limit. Twelve entrants tied at 150 for the last four qualifying places and will play off for the honors tomorrow morning before the start of match play.

Among the surprising British failures were British Ryder cup men, George Duncan and Herbert Holly, Fred Robson, Charles Whitcombe, Aubrey Boomer and the veteran Ted Ray were among the British qualifiers.

Voigt Drops Out of Match

WESTWARD HO! DEVON, Eng., May 20. (US)—The mantle of Robert Tyre Jones, Atlanta golf wizard who voluntarily relinquished his British amateur championship, slipped off the shoulders of George Voigt today and went in search of a British owner.

Voigt, Washington and New York simon-pure whose attempt to scale the heights of golfdom met with disaster at the hands of young Sidney Roper, British star, in the fifth round of the championship tourney, was outstanding in a day of upsets.

William Tulloch, of Catkins Braes, a comparative unknown, eliminated Roger Wethered with a 1 up victory, the same margin which spelled defeat for Voigt, only American to reach the fifth round.

Gems Removed

Tulloch entered the quarter finals with Capt. H. C. Tippett, who easily bested Cyril Tolley, 1920 and 1929 champion, 3 and 2. The defeat of Voigt, Wethered and Tolley took the gems of the tourney from a beautiful setting, for Voigt and Tolley were heralded as finalists in a brilliant Anglo-American final set for Saturday.

Voigt's defeat was even more of an upset because of the way in which he started out this morning in conquering Bernard Darwin, well-known British golf writer, 3 up and 2 to play. Experts predicted that Roper, 27-year-old insurance agent who formerly was a coal miner, would easily fall before Voigt's superior shot-making.

But experts forgot, it seemed, that Roper had carried the great Jones to the 16th hole last year at St. Andrews, and that Bobby had to shoot under par to shake off the young man who has now become the fair-haired boy of the gallery.

Roper Squares Match

Voigt was going great guns up to the turn against Roper, and stood 2 up as they came to the 10th. Roper squared the match by taking the next two holes, and although George came back to win the 12th, Roper's three on the 16th evened things again.

GRID OUTLOOK CHEERS ALTUS

Eleven Lettermen Out For Spring Training

Special to The Record News.

ALTUS, Okla., May 20.—With 11 football lettermen and 14 other candidates out for spring football practice, prospects are bright for a good football season for Altus Bulldogs next fall.

Five men are lost from the last year squad, including J. W. Stacy, veteran tackle, Thurman Bryce, Kelly Chisum, Tallar Fair and Red Posey.

Altus probably has the hardest schedule for next year that the team has ever had. The first game of the season will be with Classen High school of Oklahoma City. Classen was considered the best team in the state last fall. Only one man finished school, and prophets are predicting one of the greatest high school teams Oklahoma has ever produced at Classen next fall.

"I had much rather be beaten by a good team than defeat a weak team," Coach Frank Crider, said, in commenting on the difficult schedule.

"I have 11 good husky men and if I can get them to stay in there and play football they can hold their own with any 11," Crider said. Linemen are scarce but the backfield will be stronger than ever.

Practically all material at Altus last fall was raw and they just began to find themselves near the close of the season. Next year will be the second year for most of the players and a great improvement is expected over last fall.

Nase Hall, captain elect, who will pilot the Bulldogs through next season, is a one-year letterman. He showed remarkable ability near the close of last season. Kennth Little, ex-captain and two-year man; Harry Ellis, three-year man and Martin Anderson, two-year man will be on the backfield again next season.

Kenneth Blackstone is the only lineman who has had more than one year's experience. Owen Bryce, Floyd Cameron, Buddy Creed, Leon Smith, Jack Baucum and Nelson Chisum are among the one-year men who are showing up well in spring practice.

Jumping Joe Deal Wins Game for Noble-Little

The Noble-Little Hardware company team of the Commercial baseball league won a practice game at Katy park Wednesday afternoon at the expense of the Taxman Refining company aggregation. The score was 8 to 5. Jumping Joe Deal, pitching wizard, and Smith toiled for the hardware men while Taylor and Gossett carried the load for the vanquished team.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, May 20. (AP)—Cotton rallied sharply in the late trading today and closed steady at net advances of 17 to 21 points after a reaction that followed the opening advance.

The opening was very steady 14 to 21 points higher on covering which seemed to be combined with some trade and commission house buying promoted by steadiness in Liverpool, the firmer opening in the stock market and a feeling that the weather in the south was rather too cool and wet in some sections. The advance met considerable liquidation. It looked as though some long cotton which had been carried over the previous decline was coming on the market, while there also appeared to be some foreign selling.

The weakness of the stock market during the middle of the day stimulated the selling of cotton and the decline extended to 9.82 for May and 9.63 for December. The selling then tapered off as the liquidation had pretty well run its course, and there were sharp rallies during the last hour on trade buying and covering. Most months made new highs for the day on this late bulge, with May advancing to 9.15 and December 9.85.

The weekly report of the weather bureau was considered about a standoff and the revised figures on last year's acreage and yields attracted comparatively little comment.

Liverpool cables reported covering and buying for a reaction in that market and rumors of internal disturbances in Russia which were not confirmed.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, May 20. (AP)—Cotton was again fairly active here today. Prices fluctuated broadly and mostly in sympathy with stocks but developed no special trend. With cables better than due and the weather rather unsettled overnight, prices opened higher and continued to advance during the first half of the morning in sympathy with an early improvement in stocks and a rather bullish weekly weather, gaining 19 points over the previous close. Later in the morning prices reacted owing to a break in stocks and declined 18 to 19 points, wiping out all the earlier gain. The market turned active and firm in the late trading on buying and covering based on unfortunate weather in the western belt and prices advanced, some months making new highs 20 points above the earlier lows. The close was steady and near the highs showing net gains for the day of 17 to 22 points.

Liverpool came in two to seven penny points better than due. Private cables stated that shorts covered and in addition there was reactionary buying. It was rumored that there was an evolution in Russia. Manchester cabled that the cloth and yarn markets were discouraged, buyers and sellers holding off awaiting stability in prices.

The close was a shade under the best with July closing at 9.30 at a net advance of 19 points for the day and October at 9.62 or 17 points net higher.

Indecisive Day Finds Railroad Shares Higher at Market Close

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, May 20. (US)—The stock market continued today to hold within a narrow price range. Closing price changes were decidedly mixed. For the second day in succession, however, the railroad shares, on the average, closed net higher than the previous close, notwithstanding additional declines both in industrial and public utility stocks.

Firmness of the rails was particularly welcome to the constructive element since it has been widely recognized that a substantial part of the recent offerings of railroad stocks had represented distress liquidation or hurried selling from foreign sources.

Improvement in the railroad section was scored in the fact of a rather large decline reported in car loadings the past week, so that it was evident necessitous pressure had been lifted from this department of the market. Except in a few issues, some however of unusual importance, the trading was very orderly.

Determined efforts of bearish interests to force the public utility section of the market into new low ground for the bear market finally succeeded when, at the lowest average prices for the day, utility shares were selling under the extreme lows of Dec. 16, last. The group rallied, however, to close with a net loss of about half a point. Industrials were down about a point on the average.

Heaviest selling among the utilities developed in American Telephone and Telegraph, which closed down more than three points net. This stock, as so frequently commented upon here, has been unable to resist selling pressure which appears on even moderate rallies. Considerable selling today developed immediately upon declaration of the regular quarterly dividend on the stock. There were reports of Canadian liquidation in A. T. & T. but these could not be confirmed.

United Corporation, the Morgan holding enterprise for their utility interests, was also under steady pressure, probably in reflection of the sharp recession in price of Columbia Gas & Electric stock, in which United has an enormous investment. International Telephone was also subjected to persistent offerings, but closed only a fraction lower for the day.

Du Pont and General Motors, whose interests marketwise are inseparable, were both under pressure, the former selling almost three points net lower and motors being down a point.

There has been a most aggressive bear campaign for months in Du Pont. One well-known bear today pointed out that earnings of Du Pont, aside from its income from General Motors dividends, are very small compared to current price of the stock. There is no doubt but that the bears operating in Du Pont are counting upon a reduction in G. M.'s dividend to bring success to their campaign. Both Motors and Du Pont harbor enormous short interests.

The Iron Age Review indicating that demand for steel from automobile industry has reached a peak contributed to the selling of motors in the group including Chrysler which declined more than a full point.

American Can was forced to a new low and rallied only feebly from the bottom level of the day. It was down 2⅝ points. Can had rallied above 100 but when weakness developed in Continental Can the leading can issue immediately sold sharply lower.

Continental Can was down more than four points on an analysis stating gross earnings were down 20 per cent in the first quarter and net income for the period amounted to 21 cents a share. The analysis was disclaimed by officials of the company, who pointed out that first-quarter income forms only a very minor proportion of the year's earnings; the president of Continental expressed belief 1931 earnings would not vary much from previous years' income. Some short covering was invited by the decline but the selling seemed to be of distress character; the pool in the stock has furnished little support of late.

Steel common, to which the most important interests look for guidance to the entire market, closed unchanged after moving in a very narrow range throughout the day. Coupled with the relative firmness of the railroad list, the action of Steel undoubtedly will have an important influence upon the bears, particularly those who seek to catch intermediate swings of the market.

It is understood one of the leading bear operators who had become convinced that a turn for the better was impending, at least for the immediate future, has switched his operations. He is supposed to have covered a short line estimated as high as 200,000 shares and to have switched to the bull side to the extent possibly of half his former short line.

Settlement day in London, to which a good deal of selling over the past fortnight has been attributed, is counted upon by good judges of the market as possibly marking termination of the immediate downturn in prices. At least, if the fortnightly settlement abroad develops less than the generally anticipated unfortunate circumstances, it is likely that substantial covering will be witnessed.

It was widely reported that a good deal of recent selling of American securities had originated from the Sun Life Assurance company of Canada, usually described as the "world's greatest owner of American common stocks."

Specifically, this company was rumored to be liquidating American Telephone & Telegraph, but it is understood on excellent authority that "no truth whatever exists in the report" and that "the company has not sold a single share and would not think of doing so at present extremely low values."

Grain

TEXAS CASH GRAIN

FORT WORTH, May 20. (AP)—Cash grain demand, slow.

Quotations ranged as follows, basis carload delivered Texas common points, freight paid:

Wheat—No. 1 ordinary hard 80½@81½c.

Corn—No. 2 mixed 66@67c; No. 2 white or yellow 69@70c.

Oats—No. 2 red, 35@36c.

Barley—No. 2 nominally, 53@55c.

Sorhums—No. 2 milo, per 100 pounds, $1.33@1.35; No. 2 kaffir $1.23@1.25.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 20. (AP)—Active buying with sellers scarce, accompanied upturns in wheat prices today. The market was nervous over unconfirmed rumors of a revolution in Russia and because of predicted frost tonight in Kansas and Nebraska. Crop damage from freezing temperatures in Canada was also a bullish factor, and there were advices of crop deterioration in Southwestern Kansas owing to lack of moisture.

Wheat closed irregular, ⅛c off to ⅝c up, corn at ¾c decline to ½c advance, oats a shade to ⅝c higher, and provisions varying from two cents setback to seven cents gain.

Contributing to late advances in wheat were Winnipeg reports that some crop damage had been done by low temperatures in the Canadian prairie provinces. Assertions were also given attention that a serious deficiency or rainfall in Canada was yet to be made up, the total moisture supply for April and May being but little more than an inch, compared to a normal of 2½ to three inches.

Complaints that owing to cold wet weather the average planting date for corn this season would be no earlier than usual tended to rally the corn market. Spread trading, however, in which corn was sold and wheat bought, had an unsettling influence on corn. Oats were under relatively little selling pressure.

Provisions reflected firmness of hog values.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—July 59¾@61⅛c; Sept. 60c, 61¾c; Dec. 63⅝@65⅛c. Corn—July 56⅝@56¾c, 58⅛@58⅛c; Sept. 55⅝c, 57c; Dec. 58⅝@30⅛c.

PIT NOTES

CHICAGO, May 20. (US)—Raising of even slight doubts that conditions in the Kansas winter wheat belt are anything but perfection plus had an almost electric effect on the grain trade. Speculative interests have considered a record crop as grown, harvested and ready for delivery, or about that strong, and were turning their attention to foreign news and the spring crop as the only possibilities of bullish action.

With such a situation any deterioration of consequence could prove considerably more bullish than possibilities that the Canadian crop will be short of moisture. The two together would undoubtedly promote the most active market in months.

The high price in relation to other grains, the lack of storage room and favorable planting prospects have almost completely removed buying support from corn. The position was shown clearly today when the market made but little response to an active shipping demand and appeared to advance only under the influence of an upward trend in wheat.

Reports from the domestic northwest of need for moisture also began to trickle in today. It had been supposed in trade circles that rains recently had furnished enough moisture in that area, but it is said rain is still urgently needed in parts of North Dakota and Montana.

MIDWESTERN LIVESTOCK REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, May 20. (AP) (U.S.D.A.)—Some early action was reported in lightweight killing steers around the circuit with generally steady prices and at spots stronger. Sharply lower dressed trade, however, was a depressing influence later in the day and with few exceptions there was a general downturn in the late trade, especially with kinds with weight.

Combined arrivals numbered 33,700 as compared with 39,593 a week ago.

Lamb prices had a downward tendency today, liberal offerings at most centers influencing the decline. Both spring and wooled lambs ranged steady to 25c lower, while clippers showed a general loss of 25c. Mature sheep were unchanged. Receipts totalled 62,300, against 63,400 a week ago.

There was some recovery in prices for hogs today, markets ranging steady to 15c higher. Some points reported a slow market late. Total arrivals were 61,400 compared with 91,961 a week ago.

GAS MEN TALK OIL PRORATION

Frank L. Chase Explains Earlier Statement

Special to The Record News.

TULSA, Okla., May 20.—Proration, which was unexpectedly made an outstanding feature of the opening session of the 10th annual convention of the National Gasoline Association of America here yesterday, continued to be an all-absorbing topic of the meeting today, although still not officially on the program.

Dr. E. R. Lederer of Fort Worth, president of the association, at the convening of the meeting asked Frank L. Chase of Dallas, vice president of the Lone Star Gas company, to clarify his statement in which Chase criticized the whole proration program.

"I believe my remarks made here Tuesday afternoon regarding proration were misinterpreted," Chase said. "I do not want to stir up any factional friction on the subject now. With regard to proration, I do believe that proration seriously affects all of us in the industry insomuch as it reduces the amount of casing head gas produced. I did say that as a temporary expedient for the present condition of the oil industry that proration seemed to be the only remedy. However there is still a great difference of opinion on the subject."

A short time later Mr. Chase declared positively to friends "I am against proration. I do not think it either fair or just. As it cuts down the amount of gasoline which the natural gasoline industry makes it does hurt, but I have no intention of stirring up contention."

The meeting will adjourn tomorrow.

NEW YORK, May 20. (AP)—Adrian D. Joyce, president of the Glidden company, manufacturers of paints and varnishes, chemical and pigments and foods, said that the statement for the first six months of the fiscal year will show a profit. He added that Glidden's business made an upturn in March and prospects for the balance of the year are favorable.

O. C. Huffman, president of the Conti-Can company, said that while it is too early to form a correct opinion as to results for the year, from present indications and with average crops, earnings will not vary substantially from those of recent years.

The Dixie plant of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company at Gadsden, Ala., is operating day and night and production has been increased to 6,500 tires daily.

The New York, Chicago and St. Louis railroad reported for April net operating income of $478,618, compared with $658,619 for the like month of 1930.

NEWS of the FIELD

YOUNG DUSTER

The Texas company and McKanna No. A-4 J. K. Jeffery, located in section 42, T. E. & L. survey, south of Orth in Young county, missed the sand and was abandoned as a dry hole at a total depth of 838 feet.

NORTH OF NEWCASTLE

Beavers and associates completed their No. 7 Belknap Coal company test located in section 22, T. E. & L. survey, in Young county, as a 200 barreler from the sand at 694-712 feet.

NORTH OF ARCHER CITY

Deep Oil Development and Lindsay Drilling company No. A-5 L. F. Wilson, located in block 75, A. T. N. C. L. survey, Archer county, and 600 feet west of No. 1 deep well, has reached a depth of 600 feet. This well will drill to a contract depth of 5500 feet.

CARSON COUNTY COMPLETION

Gardner brothers, Wichita Falls contractors, have completed contract for the drilling of the Texas company No. 1 J. G. Bednorz well in Carson county as a gasser with an estimated flow of 17,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily. The well is located in the southwest corner of section 2, block 4, I. & G. N. R. R. survey. Sand was topped at 2700 feet.

Diplomas Presented To Grade Graduates

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, May 20.—Eighty-seven students were graduated from the high seventh grade and diplomas were presented to them Tuesday evening at the high school auditorium. The invocation was given by Rev. W. J. Spire, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, and the class song was sung. Miss Bernice Hastings gave the salutatory address, and a group of girls sang another selection. James Beasley gave the valedictory address, and the high school girls quartet composed of Thelma Moss, Corine Reed, Doris Owens, and Margaret Owens gave a vocal number.

J. V. Harrison, principal of the Waggoner Ward school, introduced Rev. M. Spire who spoke on the subject: "Character." Talks were also made by Mr. Harrison, C. M. Harvey, principal of the Thompson Ward school, and Supt. B. M. Dinsmore. The diplomas were presented by Messrs. Harvey and Harrison.

DAIRY EXHIBIT ENTRIES GROW

State Show to Open in Duncan Saturday

Special to The Record News.

DUNCAN, Okla., May 20.—Exhibits at the Oklahoma state dairy show which opens here Saturday will be far above the average of previous shows, a check of the entries received indicates. Animals are arriving for entry day, Saturday.

The average run of exhibits at the show will be better than last year. There probably will not be any better cattle in the top classes, but many exhibits below the average will be replaced by better cattle, County Agent J. A. Killough believes.

Exhibitors have learned that just any animal will not place in the money, Killough said, and are bringing only their better stuff.

Entries received indicate that the number of animals shown will exceed the 325 entered for the 1930 show. Many counties are cutting down on the number of animals entered and are bringing only their better class cattle, but more territory will be represented this year.

The number of 4-H club and vocational agriculture judging and demonstration teams entered exceed the number in the competition last year, and Killough expects the 1931 dairy show to mark the largest gathering of dairy club boys and girls ever held in Oklahoma.

Wilcox Buys Okla. Property

TULSA, Okla., May 20. (AP)—Purchase of the H. H. Patton properties in the Oklahoma City oil field, valued at close to $2,000,000, by the H. F. Wilcox Oil and Gas company was announced today by H. F. Wilcox, president of the company.

The properties include interests in the Stout lease in city block five, Schillings addition, on which are two completed wells with a potential production of 20,000 barrels each, and an interest in the Haynes lease in city block 7, Schillings addition, on which a test is drilling in the Wilcox sand.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

LESSON NO. 93

SECOND AND THIRD HAND BIDS IN CONTRACT BRIDGE

In Contract Bridge, contrary to Auction Bridge, second hand should make defensive bids because third hand bids, being for limit, often shut out a defensive bid from fourth hand. Third hand, in bidding, should bid the full strength of his hand at the first opportunity, regardless of intervening bids, except in the case of a forcing bid, which will be referred to tomorrow.

College Seniors To Hold Class Night Program

A recall of the old-fashioned comemncement exercises will be one of the most outstanding features of the traditional Junior college class night program at hte Junior college Thursday night, according to information given Wednesday by R. O. Jonas, faculty sponsor of the graduating class, at which the members of the freshmen class will be special guests.

The class will and prophecy will be read, and the golden-bladed spade with which the first soil was turned for the erection of the Junior college will be passed on to Bill Hord, president of the freshman class, by Randle Hanks, sophomore president, as a symbol of continuing junior college traditions.

Valedictory and salutatory honors will be announced during the program.

No admission will be charged. The program will begin at 8 o'clock.

TEXAS RANGES IN FINE SHAPE

State Reports Livestock In Good Condition

Range conditions throughout Texas which seldom have been equaled and a new all-time record for sheep movement through the Fort Worth markets are recorded in the monthly livestock report released this week by the United States department of agriculture.

Uniformly good conditions of grazing lands for cattle throughout the state is reflected in their rating at 91 per cent, three per cent better than one month ago, and 14 per cent above the rating one year ago. The present condition is appraised as being almost five per cent better than the five-year average. The outlook for summer grazing was described as ideal.

Natural forage for sheep and goats is reported as much more plentiful this spring than in 1930, and better by five per cent than the five-year average. Abundance of weeds and brush during the past few months were said to have put sheep in fat and marketable condition now, while moisture conditions assure summer ranges.

Both cattle and sheep have put on flesh rapidly on the grass in recent months, according to the report, and are now in good condition for the market. Cattlemen are holding most of their stock off the market in expectation of better prices, it was said, but 250,000 head of sheep handled at the Fort Worth markets during the past month was the largest run on record for a 30-day period.

Unfavorable range conditions during the breeding season in 1930 will effect a marked reduction in the calf crop this spring, the report said, but the quality is expected to be far above average because of the excellent condition of mother cows.

Texas shipments of grass fat yearlings and wethers in April were the largest recorded in any single month in the sheep market. Excellent feeding conditions promise the marketing of many March and April lambs in July and August.

Slot Machine Suit Opens in Court Here

Trial of the suit of C. Mills against Perry Browning, sheriff, for repossession of 10 slot machines recently condemned by Judge P. A. Martin of the 89th district court as gambling devices occupied all of Wednesday afternoon in the 78th district court before Judge W. W. Cook, according to L. V. Abernathy, county attorney.

Seized several weeks ago by the sheriff's department and subsequently slated for destruction by the court's condemnation order, the machines are sought by the plaintiff as the owner. The trial is to be resumed Thursday morning, it was said.

Water District Sued For Damages of $2,750

Suit was filed in district court Wednesday by J. F. Barricklow against the Wichita County Water Improvement District No. 1 for $2,750 damages, the petition alleging that 12 acres of land in this county has been seriously water-logged by seepage and overflow from irrigation canals.

Loss of cotton crops in 1929 and 1930 is charged in the plaintiff's petition to the presence of excessive moisture near the surface of the land in question.

STRAND: "Young Sinners" with Thomas Meighan, Hardie Albright and Dorothy Jordan. Slim Summerville comedy and sound news.

MAJESTIC: Claudette Colbert and Frederic March in "Honor Among Lovers." Short subjects and sound news.

GEM: "Condemned" with Ronald Colman. Comedy.

"Honor Among Lovers" is thrilling for its cast alone if not for its skilful progression from event to event. Five youngsters, none of whom were starred this time last year, make it a five-star event. (It doesn't matter whether Hollywood calls them stars or featured players—the entire five are considerably more entitled to first rank in the constellation than some of the boop-oop-a-doop babies that rate the big electric lights).

There'll be arguments as to the superiority of Claudette Colbert and Fredric March . . . it's really practically a tie. He is so charming and she is so beautiful and they both have such a delightful ways of handling one of these "sophisticated, parlor drama" things, with all the little meaningful menaces and delicate intonations and gestures.

As for downright hard jobs in this acting business—and as for a downright hard job done very, very well, it's Monroe Owsley who gets the medal. He is the realest weak person and does the welching so naturally that he arouses the proper mixture of sympathy and disgust from his audience.

Charlie Ruggles does just what he is expected to do, bringing in as his best wisecrack a vivid, brief description of a morning-after feeling. He appears just often enough to make one wish for more, which is a wise idea. Ginger Rogers is held down to a mere bit, but she manages to squirm out long enough to get in one clever scene.

Those are the five—it doesn't matter whether the author or director did anything unusual or not, although it seems as if they did—that quintet spelled success anyhow.

Special note to those who ask to be reminded: The negro Kentucky singers do a short subject at the Majestic that is even better than the first—two more days, Thursday and Friday.

RITES SET FOR WELL VICTIM

Barney Crabtree to Be Buried Today

Special to The Record News.

GRAHAM, Texas, May 20.—The body of Barney Crabtree, 35, Young county rancher killed in a plunge into a cistern at the Duff Prairie schoolhouse Tuesday, will be buried in the Graham cemetery Thursday afternoon. Services will be held from the home of W. A. Corbett, Crabtree's father-in-law, at 2 o'clock. Rev. B. A. Roark, pastor of the South Bend Baptist church, will officiate.

Crabtree's body, weighted with a heavy stone tied to the neck, was taken from the well by Mrs. Crabtree and neighbors. The ranchman, member of a family long prominent in Young and Stephens counties was reported to have been acting strangely since he changed his mind about visiting a sanitarium in Temple and returned to his home Monday. He had spent most of his life in this section where the family are extensive landowners. The father-in-law, W. A. Corbett, is president of the Graham National bank.

The widow and a brother, Mack Crabtree, survive.

Readers' Opinion

SHALL WE REMEMBER THEM?

Editor, The Record News: It seems to me that we are forgetting too soon those boys who gave their lives for their country in the late war. Saturday, May 30, is decoration day, but in the last few years, if you will remember, only small audiences have been attending the memorial services and decorating the graves. To forget our heroes would be the saddest thing imaginable. Memorial day is no impersonal affair, but sacred with personal ties that reach across continents and oceans.

Those boys died without thoughts for reward. The man who gives his services and thinks of reward, some one has said, does not belong in this company of heroes, for they offered all without a thought of recompense. They were ready to be forgotten, if that for which they fought might be remembered.

"They sleep in the land they made free, under the flag they rendered stainless . . . Earth may run red with other wars—but they are at peace. I have one sentiment for the soldiers, living and dead; cheers for the living, and tears for the dead."—Robert Ingersoll.

Let us be able to say that they did not die in vain. We have a debt to pay—a debt of remembrance. Let us teach our children the deeds of those who preserved our nation. Above all, let's have a more unified effort among the people of the towns, of the states, of America to observe Decoration day.

As James Terry White has put it in a poem:

And far off voices of the future sing.
"They shall remain in memory's diadem";
And winds of promise still are whispering
Through storied years: "We shall remember them."

Optimists Hear Y. M. C. A. Leader

Discussion of Y. M. C. A. work by John Henry of Dallas, state Y. M. C. A. executive secretary and musical numbers comprised the program given before members of the Optimist club Wednesday noon.

Assuring his hearers that the state organization will lend every possible aid at any time that Wichita Falls citizens wish to establish a Y. M. C. A. here, the speaker discussed at some length the work which is being done without buildings and equipment. Various conferences, clubs, high school organizations and the student volunteer movement were mentioned by Mr. Henry as coming within this field. He paid tribute to the work of the local Hi-Y club. Mr. Henry was introduced by Roy J. Daniel, Grover C. Good, associate secretary of the state Y. M. C. A. organization, also was a guest at the luncheon.

"The Legend of the Twilight Bell," a musical reading, was given by Miss Alice Marrs, accompanied by Miss Margaret Bone, pianist. Miss Katehrine Sue Ralston, soprano, accompanied by Miss Jewell Thompson, both of Iowa Park, sang several popular numbers.

'IRON HAND' RULES CUBA

Machado Now Virtual Dictator, Says Nelson

Mayor Walter Nelson Jr. returned Wednesday afternoon from a three-weeks' trip which included a stop of several days at Miami, Fla., and more than a week spent in and near Havana, Cuba.

Sightseeing played an important part in the program of the several thousand Kiwanians who met at Miami for the annual convention of Kiwanis International, according to Mr. Nelson.

Political conditions in Havana commanded the chief interest of visitors, Mr. Nelson said. Control approaching an outright dictatorship is being exercised by President Machado, it was stated, following his election recently for a second four-year term. The president's coterie of supporters, it was said, altered the constitution in order to permit his becoming president for a second term. Open discussion of political matters is being effectively suppressed by a veritable army of secret service men and state police, Mr. Nelson said.

DEATHS

MRS. MARY ELLEN CLARK

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Ellen Clark, 45, who died at a hospital here Tuesday morning following a brief illness, were held Wednesday afternoon from the Assembly of God. The Rev. Charles C. Robinson, pastor, officiated. Burial was in Riverside under the direction of the Hines mortuary.

When Crime's Glamor Vanished

All the glamor of being a "two-gun guy's" sweetheart was gone. And the grim reality of having to face the law's toll is reflected in the countenance of 16-year-old Helen Walsh, seen here as she took New York detectives to the "petter's lane" on Long Island where her companion, Francis Crowley, youthful desperado, is alleged to have shot and killed a policeman. She was with Crowley when the murder occurred and was captured with him later during a gun battle with police in a New York apartment house.

City Park Department to Open Summer Recreation Program Tuesday

The first free motion picture presented by the park department for the 1931 season will be given Tuesday evening on the lawn of the Memorial auditorium, it was announced by C. C. Bunnenberg, head of the department.

The feature will be a five reel western picture and will be followed by a two-reel comedy. The pictures will be given throughout the week in the following places: Tuesday at the Carrigan school; Wednesday at the Sam Houston school; Thursday, Jalonic ball park and O'Reilly park; Friday, Bowie and Washington schools, and Saturday at Scotland park.

The free vaudeville programs will open on the night of Wednesday, June 3, at which time an unusually good program will be given, while supervised playground activities will begin Monday morning under the direction of Miss Estlele Chandler and her assistants, Misses Olene Poe and Thelma Bridges, it was said.

Organization of junior baseball teams has already been started and more than 38 teams have been lined up, Mr. Bunnenberg said. The boys' work will be supervised by Marvin Robertson while Glen Wharton will have charge of the Scotland swimming pool again this year.

Widow of Rev. Joseph Keevil Named First Beneficiary of Pension Fund

INDIANAPOLIS, May 20 (AP)—Officials of the pension fund of the Disciples of Christ announced that the widow of the Rev. Joseph Keevil of Marfa, Texas, will be the first beneficiary of the fund. Mr. Keevil died Monday at Pecos, Texas, of injuries received in an automobile accident.

Mr. Keevil formerly was field secretary of the Disciples of Christ Restoration association at Cincinnati, was superintendent of city missions in New York in 1912-13, and has held pastorates at Brooklyn, N. Y., Jackson, Tenn., Gloversville, N. Y., Ratportage, Ont., Lexington, Ky., and Noblesville, Ind.

The Disciples of Christ are engaged in a campaign for $8,000,000 for the pension fund.

The Rev. Joseph Keevil was a brother of the late J. Lem Keevil of Wichita Falls. Mrs. Keevil is now in Marfa with Mrs. Joseph Keevil who was also injured in the accident. Funeral services will be held in Cincinnati, Ohio, Thursday.

OIL COMPANY GIVEN CHARTER

Stump Corporation to Buy Production

Organization of the Stump Oil corporation here, for the purpose of purchasing producing properties in the North Texas oil district was announced Wednesday by E. J. Stump, president of the new concern.

Capital stock of the corporation is 1,000,000 common shares, no par value, according to an Associated Press dispatch to The Record News. A state charter has been granted the firm, the dispatch said.

Mr. Stump said that the company would commence its operations of buying producing properties within the next 60 days. Organiastion of the concern is being made by Mr. Stump with Colorado and Illinois capitalists, it was explained. Funds amounting to $1,000,000 will be raised with which to conduct the operation of purchases.

Temporary co-organizers of the Stump Oil corporation are R. P. Bland and Guy Rogers.

Owners of Unrendered Property Given Warning

The attention of persons who have not yet rendered their personal property for the year 1930, was called Friday to article 125 under the penal code by W. Ralph Hyer, city tax collector.

The article provides that any person who refuses to give a rendition to an assesor who calls at his place of business before the deadline for renditions may be called before the grand jury and be assessed a penalty ranging from $20 to $1,000.

"While the public as a whole has been considerate in helping us to secure renditions, there are several establishments that have refused to make a rendition of any kind," Mr. Hyer said. In order to give these persons one more chance, their renditions will be taken until the first of June, Mr. Hyer said.

C-C Recreations Committee to Meet

Efforts will be made to remedy the lack of attendance at Texas league ball games here Thursday morning, when the sports and recreation committee of the chamber of commerce meets, according to the announcement of Carter McGregor, chairman.

Ways and means of securing better atendance at Spudder games will be discussed. A Texas league baseball club here, Mr. McGregor said, is one of Wichita Falls' most valuable assets. In order to keep a league team here, it was explained, citizens of Wichita Falls must give their support. The committee will hold its meeting in the chamber of commerce offices at 10:30 a. m.

Barron Speaks At Lions Luncheon

Constructive argument in support of increasing morality by law featured an address given Wednesday noon by Rev. J. D. Barron, assistant pastor of the First Methodist church, before members of the Lions club at the First Christian church.

Declaring that the oft-heard expression "You cannot make people moral by law" is a fallacy, the speaker pointed out that it is a pernicious quotation because it is half true, half false. Moral legislation, he said, has for its objective regulation rather than reformation, and through its effect expedites the practice of morality.

Rev. Mr. Barron also spoke of the rise of the temperance movement and present needs for its renewed activity.

Reports of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention held at Lubbock last week were given by the club's delegates, Dr. H. T. Wood and Cecil Metzger, club secretary.

Future meetings of the club will be held in the Wichita club on Wednesday noons, it was voted by members present.

Dog's Raid on Turkeys Brings Suit for $2,710

Suit for $2,710 for the alleged killing of a flock of turkeys by a German police dog was filed in district court Wednesday by E. K. Mathis against William B. Ward.

According to the plaintiff's pleading, a "vicious" dog belonging to the defendant gained entrance to an enclosure at the plaintiff's home and killed all of the turkeys kept therein. Damages were itemized as $210 for the turkeys, $1,000 for preparation of pens and enclosures, and $1,500 for estimated increase of the flock during 1931.

The plaintiff is represented by Davenport & Crain, local attorneys.

"A PURCHASE FROM THE INDEPENDENT DEALER* IS A VOTE FOR MY OWN INDEPENDENCE!"

"When I buy gas, oil or accessories from the independent dealer, I'm buying what I want—not what some distant manager says I must. The dealer is independent—and so am I!" C. H. Y.

Yes! The independent dealer is right on the ground—he knows what you want—and carries it. He gives you what you want—plus courteous service and fair dealing. Patronize him—and you'll be better satisfied.

And one sure way to recognize the independent is by the green-and-white Quaker State sign—the motor oil with the famous "Extra Quart." Use Quaker State. It lasts longer—costs less per mile of lubrication. And it lubricates better—makes your car last longer.

Keep this in mind. The independent isn't under obligation to anybody but you. Only one boss is going to tell him what gas, oil and accessories to carry—and that boss is you!

* The Quaker State Green and White Sign Identifies Independent Dealers Everywhere.
