Sales Tax Foes Defeat Leaders

Estate Tax Provision Of New Revenue Bill Raised To Record Height; Opponents Confident Of Defeating Measure

BY CECIL B. DICKSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 22. (AP)—Unrelenting anti-sales tax forces again bowled over house party leaders today and raised to record heights the estate tax provision of the new revenue bill.

Confident they could defeat the 2.25 per cent levy that forms the base of the $1,096,000,000 bill, the bi-partisan sales tax foes unsuccessfully attempted to keep the house in session when it was proposed a decision be postponed until Thursday.

Intense feeling ran through the membership on the crowded floor during four hours of acrimonious debate.

By careful strategy the opposition forced the leaders to take up the controverted estate and sales tax provisions for quick disposition. For the fourth time during considera tion of the bill they struck hard at the wealthy and compelled the agitated house to accept the Ramseyer estate tax boost amendment by a a teller vote of 190 to 149.

The amendment, sponsored by Representative Ramseyer (R., Iowa) called for a maximum 45 per cent rate on estate of more than $10,000,000 graduated from one per cent on estates of $50,000.

It was estimated by the Iowan to yield between $500,000,000 and $600,000,000 after three years, but not more than $100,000.00 in the first year because the values of estate would not be fixed until 18 months after debate.

West Texas C-C Will Oppose Soldiers Bonus In Tax Fight

Opposition Announced When Organizations Hold Conference At Fort Worth On Tax Reduction Program

(By The Associated Press)

FORT WORTH, March 22.—Opposition to the soldiers' bonus was announced by officials of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce today simultaneously with a conference of organizations on tax reduction here.

"The government's budget, not yet appropriated for, is over $4,000,000,000, while our present revenues are estimated at $2,000,000,000. This does not include the soldiers' bonus which is being agitated and is favored by many of our congressmen in spite of the plight of the tax payers and the necessity of balancing our budget," the officials say in a letter to members of all local tax committees of the West Texas organization.

Only Way Cited

"The only way to cut the federal budget and stop the soldiers' bonus is through congress. Let's do our part and let congress know what we think."

C. N. Bassett, El Paso, chairman, public expenditure and taxation committee of the regional organization, and Van Zandt Jarvis, Fort Worth, vice chairman, signed the communication.

The East Texas Chamber of Commerce, represented at today's conference by Hubert Harrison, manager, the South Texas C. of C., though not represented at the session, and the West Texas chamber will go forward with a program of forming local committees in their respective territories on taxation. The activities will be fostered by a central committee in each organization, these central committees in turn to co-ordinate the work throughout the state, said D. A. Bandeen, West Texas Chamber of Commerce manager.

Four hundred and fifty local chambers will be included in the Texas-wide effort to reduce taxes local, state and national, he said after the executive conference.

Senate Wets Seek Election

Repeal Or Modification Of Eighteenth Amendment Is Asked In Petition; Drys Challenge Movement

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 22. — Senate anti-prohibitionists today served notice they would seek a vote on repeal or modification of the Eighteenth amendment and dry leaders confidently challenged them to proceed with their plans.

Earlier, Senator Blaine (R., Wis.), moved to strike from the justice department appropriation measure the $11,000,000 dry enforcement fund and was defeated without a record vote.

Then Senator Tydings (D., Md.), presented a petition signed by 24 members asking the judiciary committee to submit to the senate for a vote one of the varied resolutions proposing repeal or modification of the 18th amendment.

The submission of a petition is unnecessary to bring a measure from committee for a vote. A motion may been entered any time and a majority vote of the senate is all that is required.

No Clue Is Found In Kidnaping Raid

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 22. (AP)—A spectacular raid on a New York apartment, the visit of a prominent Chicagoan with confidential information, and more than the usual flood of "hot tips" all apparently had failed tonight to bring the Lindbergh kidnaping case any nearer solution.

After keeping a Bronx apartment under surveillance for days, detectives rushed the place in hope of capturing Harry Fleischer, Detroit Purple gangster, wanted here for questioning about the kidnaping and in Detroit in connection with slaying of three racketeers.

But instead of Fleischer, the raiders found only two women, an 8-year old boy and a jobless man in the place. All were released after questioning.

Irish Breaking Oath Of British Loyalty

Situation Seen As "Grave" By Great Britain

Oath Of Allegiance To King Is To Be Abolished By New Government Under Eamon De Valera Rule

Is Final Tie

Free State Commissioner Says People's Vote Was Signal For Doing Away With Oath Regulation

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, March 22.—The Irish Free state served notice on an anxious England today that the oath of allegiance to the king, almost the last tie that binds Erin to Great Britain, would be abolished.

The Irish situation, which J. H. Thomas, British secretary for dominions, described in parliament as "grave," will be discussed at a cabinet meeting tomorrow.

Voted Removal Mandates

J. W. Dulanty, high commissioner in London for the free state, informed Mr. Thomas that the Irish people by overwhelming vote in the last election had made mandatory the oath's removal.

His statement, which admitteedly made the Irish situation serious after ten years of peace, was in answer to a request of the dominions secretary for "correct information" as to the intentions of the new Irish government of President Eamon De Valera.

Purely Irish Matter

Mr. Dulanty said that whether the oath to the British crown should be retained was purely an Irish matter and the people had signified their wish in the vote that raised De Valera, Republican leader, to power.

"The new government has no desire whatever to be on unfriendly terms with Great Britain," the commissioner said. "Quite to the contrary. But the British government must realize that real peace in Ireland is impossible so long as a full representative of the people in their parliament is rendered impossible by a test of this character."

At least one resident of the Hunter community, 15 miles south of Brownfield, is being treated for rabies at the Pasteur institute in Austin, and seven other persons from the same community are believed being treated.

Famine And Pestilence Are Sweeping Crowded Camps Of War-Torn China As Foreigners Fall Victim Of Smallpox

BY MORRIS J. HARRIS,
Associated Press Staff Correspondent.

SHANGHAI, March 22 (AP)—Famine and pestilence in the form of smallpox, which menaced foreigners, were sweeping over the crowded camps of warfare's refugees in China today.

Foreigners are particularly susceptible to the type of smallpox prevalent here, said Dr. Wu Lien-Teh, director of the Chinese maritime quarantine service. Hundreds of them have undergone vaccination.

The disease was in a very virulent form, with half the cases thus far fatal, Dr. Wu said. At Hong Kong, Saigon and other refugee centers 142 cases were reported last week. E. Koechlin, French consul-general, was one who died of the disease.

Steamers entering and leaving Shanghai are required to take special precautions against smallpox while Hong Kong has ordered that all persons arriving there from Shanghai must be vaccinated before they may enter the port.

Famine, not a new condition in a China frequently visited by drought and floods, has driven the people again to eating the bark of trees, the chaff of thrashed grain and weeds, said Sir John Hope-Simpson, British director of the China famine commission.

Georgia Prepares To Increase Roosevelt Democratic Lead

BY D. HAROLD OLIVER,
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 22. (AP)—The presidential boom for Speaker Garner reappeared today and meanwhile President Hoover was assured of Iowa's 25 convention delegates and Georgia got ready to increase Governor Roosevelt's lead for the Democratic nomination.

From William G. McAdoo came a prediction Mr. Garner had "an excellent chance" to be his party's standard bearer and an assertion that prohibition was not a party but a local issue.

He told the Texan at a brief conference that he would win California's delegation of 44 in the May primary over delegate slates pledged to Franklin D. Roosevelt and Alfred E. Smith.

While a movement began in Chicago to elect a bloc of Illinois delegates to the Republican convention pledged to prohibition repeal, President Hoover was called upon by Senator Bratton, New Mexico Democrat, to state his views definitely on prohibition.

In a statement issued through the Democratic national committee, Senator Bratton said:

"It seems to me that President Hoover has a duty toward his dry supporters, if not indeed toward the entire country, of stating definitely where he stands on this question."

Roosevelt, out in front for the Democratic banner with 57 of the 100 delegates chosen by his party to date, goes before the voters of Georgia tomorrow in a preference primary. He is assured of the southern state's 28 votes, although the delegates themselves will not be named until a state convention April 6.

The McAdoo-Garner conference lasted only a few minutes. Both said politics was not discussed, although McAdoo said he expressed opinion that while he "knew Garner was not seeking the nomination California would send an instructed delegation for him just the same."

Two vehicular accidents, one here and the other at Sweetwater, sent two persons to West Texas hospital Tuesday night.

The fifth grade Dupre school student was returning to his home on a bicycle. Driver of the truck, Mr. Mohr said, was E. A. Johnson, a city employe.

Mrs. J. R. Jameson, 2312 Broadway, suffered a shattered right knee cap when the light automobile driven by her daughter, Miss Catherine Jameson, collided with a small coupe between Sweetwater and Roscoe at about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. X-ray examination showed Mrs. Jameson's knee cap was broken into six pieces. She also suffered cuts and gashes from flying glass. Miss Jameson's face also was cut by glass. Mrs. Gayle Heatly and her daughter, Rose May, and the Jamesons were returning from Austin. Mrs. Heatly and her daughter were not hurt.

The Lubbock county officers reported Harwood turned his automobile in front of the Jameson machine without warning.

Novice Brings Plane To Safe Landing After Pilot Faints And Slumps Over

(By The Associated Press)

SAN DIEGO, Cal., March 22.—Faced with an emergency—5,000 feet in the air when the pilot of the plane in which he was a passenger slumped over the controls, unconscious—Corporal Himer N. Torner of the marine corp made a strange rescue.

Flying as a passenger with Staff Sergeant Oral S. Hoffer in a training plane, the corporal, who was a novice in the air, took off from North Island. When the plane was circling over Camp Kearny a few minutes later, Sergeant Hoffer became ill, fainted and fell forward against the controls.

Corporal Torner watched the plane begin a crazy descent. Then he crawled out of his cockpit, pulled the unconscious sergeant away from the controls, and took command.

His maneuvering probably would not have qualified him for a pilot's license, but it was effective enough to bring the plane out of a spin, and bring it down safely, on the wrong runway at the army flying field.

Huge Loss Wrought

Howling Winds Wreck Homes In Two Score Communities; Details Of Tragedy Delayed By Broken Lines

(By The Associated Press)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 22.—Two hundred and seventy-five persons were killed, hundreds of others were injured and made homeless and unestimated damage was wrought by a series of tornadoes that dipped into five southern states last night and early today.

Alabama bore the brunt of the storm, one of the south's major disasters. Here 220 persons lost their lives when the howling winds blew down their homes in two score communities.

Thirty four were killed in Georgia, 17 in Tennessee, two in Kentucky and two in South Carolina.

Death List Grows

Not until broken communication lines were restored today was the full extent of the storm's toll learned. The death list grew from only a few to more than a hundred during the night, but rescue crews aided by daylight and the restoration of communication, brought reports that sent the casualty list mounting.

The winds struck first near Marion, then at Northport, both in the west central portion of the state. Twenty eight were killed at Northport and scores were injured. At Marion 18 were killed. The storm then appeared at Demopolis, Paunsdale and Linden, all in the same area. It struck next in the central portion, sweeping over the towns of Lomax, Columbiana, Thorsby and communities.

PRAYER MEETING TONIGHT

Senior And Junior Twentieth Century, Athenaeum, Sorosis Clubs Meet

The Woman's Angle

BY BLANCHE E. BEAN
Avalanche Woman's Editor

GALVESTON—Loafing is an art that is easy to acquire down here. Lulled by the constant wash of waves against this island shore sleep is a thing one hates to disturb.

A drive down the island during any hour of the day reveals the interest that the sea holds. Cars are parked along while people sit and look out to sea by the hour. Where the channel is visible, there is the additional sight of watching large vessels crawl in from the sea or out from the port. On a foggy morning there is the constant hoarse call of horns.

TIME TO SWIM

FOLLOWING a cold spell, it is warming here and people are testing the weather by wading along the shore. A few impatient people have donned bathing suits and gone for a dip in the waves while others are counting the days until it is warm enough to go swimming again. Sunday before last, I am told, there were hundreds of bathers in the water and additional hundreds along the sea-wall promenade and on the beach below the wall.

For old timers, it is too early to swim and too early to drift to the beach. They maintain a certain dignity that keeps them away from the shore at this time of the year. Along about May they start going in. They look with some scorn, too on those who go to the beach now for picnic suppers and for strolls.

However, being a visitor, I've enjoyed the beach picnic. Last evening we went down and cooked bacon and eggs over a driftwood fire and then sat around the fire and talked into the night. For me it was nothing to scorn.

* * *

THINGS rust here with an unbelievable rapidity. Cars must be kept painted or the rust shows in a day or two. A special lead paint is used under fenders to keep them from rusting through.

THE ANTIQUES

THESE old homes in Galveston fascinate me. In immense rooms with ceilings as high as the roofs of many of our bungalows, massive furniture has been standing since the Nineteenth Century. Much of it would send shivers of delight through antique hunters, I am sure.

We called at a house the other evening that was as good as a museum to me. The conversation there may have been interesting, but I heard only a part of it because of my fascination with the room we were in. Whether it was library or parlor, I do not know but the walls were lined with bookcases filled with what looked to me like rare volumes. Around and in front of these cases were a hundred pieces of furniture and knick knacks.

This house must represent the splendor of another age. I was told that the family is of the old aristocracy. The large, unpainted old gabled house surrounded by an iron fence and a yard too full of palms, ferns and other shrubs was dingy and dark to me from outside. I expected to see a barren interior and was surprised by the room in which we sat.

* * *

Ornate crystal candlesticks that stood on either side of the large mantel were elaborate enough to serve for a ball room. They were almost lost, however, in the maze of marble statuary, sandalwood boxes, rare tea sets, pictures, leatherbound books, handsome tables, odd chairs, tidies, fernstands and whatnots.

An arched window that reached from floor to ceiling had an upper sash of colored glass and intricate railing work where it broke the wall line. From this railing were several hanging baskets and in the center a toy airplane was hung as an incongruous note in the midst of antiques.

It was the sort of room in which beautiful and hideous articles were grouped without order and in which one could explore by the day, finding new treasures.

Phils Prepare New Label For Their Brand Of Baseball

Best Prospect In Years Face Philly Skipper

The Grey Fox Is Teaching His Boys "Inside Stuff" About Baseball; Phils Are Even Stealing The Bases

BY ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., March 22. (AP)— Whether or not the country goes democratic in the National Elections this year, the hillies will change the label on their brand of baseball.

After years of slugging from their shoe tops, Burt Shotton, the Gray Fox, is teaching his boys "inside stuff."

The Phillies are not only running the bases but actually stealing them. This correspondent was an eye witness to an almost incredible day's work in which the Phils produced a double steal, worked the sacrifice for the hit and the run and finally wound up by executing the squeeze play with a rookie catcher, Al Todd, at bat.

Good Pitching Prospects

With the best pitching prospects he has had in years, a first class infield, good catching and hopes for a better outfield defense, Shotton believes his club will show improvement.

It has not pennant hallucinations but it has a chance to break into the first division if Clise Dudley comes through to make a pitching "big four" with Phil Collins, Ray Benge and Jumbo Jim Elliott, who won 19 games last season.

Roy Hansen Is Up

Dudley won only eight games last season whereas the other three averaged 15 apiece. He should do much better this year. In addition, Shotton has a trio of exceptionally bright prospects in Roy Hanson, southpaw from Dallas; Reg Grabowski, picked up as a free agent; and Edgar Holley, who won 14 games for Kansas City in 1931 and looks like a real find. Bob Adams, former Jacksonville boy who twirled for Richmond last season, is another good prospect although he needs more seasoning. Stew Bolen, southpaw, and Frank Watt, right-hander, both may be retained.

Although already well fortified behind the bat with big Virgil Davis, a heavy hitter, and Harry McCurdy, one of the best blockers in the backstopping business, Shotton has picked up a great looking catcher in Al Todd, the boy who hung the knockout wallop on Dizzy Dean in the Texas League.

Les Mallon, Too

Shotton has no infield worries with a smooth working quartet consisting of Don Hurst, Les Mallon, Dick Bartel and Captain Pinkey Whitney, but he is very much in need of outfield support for the great Chuck Klein. Klein never has looked better in training.

George Davis, former New York University boy, who hit .343 with St. Paul last year, is getting a thorough trial in center and may make the grade. Hal Lee looks to have the call in left. Fred Brickell and the veteran Rube Bressler, who also can sub at first base, are in reserve.

Davis said the horse definitely would race at Chicago, appearing at Washington Park in May and Arlington in June.

Featuring Gladys Radcliff as their offensive star, the Jacksonville Florida Pirates swept to a 35-33 victory over Harris, La. ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 22.—(AP)—With Herb Pennock and George Pipgras pitching three-hit ball, the New York Yankees defeated the Boston Braves 2-0 today.

MACK AND SHOTTON SEND IRREGULARS INTO FRAY

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 22. (AP)—Two teams, billed at the Athletics and the Phillies, but looking unlike either, met in a bit of exercise here today, and the Athletics won, 15-7.

Connie Mack used few regulars, while Burt Shotton brought mostly substitutes over the 110-mile trail for Winter Haven. The Phillies allowed the Athletics a five-run opening inning, improving this generosity in the seventh when the A's made six off Ed Fallenstein. Homers were hit by Bishop, with two on, and by George Davis and Rube Bressler for the Phils.

DICK PORTER ON SPOT AS INDIAN LEAD-OFF MAN

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 22. (AP)—Dick Porter today was "put on the spot" as the Indian's leadoff man when the American League baseball season opens in about 3 weeks.

Although ball players generally shy at the lead off job in that it cuts their chances at slugging and batting in runs, Porter welcomed the offer, recalling that as a lead off man with the Baltimore Orioles his batting average fell off 30 points but that Manager Jack Dunn raised his salary the next year.

FORT WORTH, March 22 (AP) — If the Ft. Worth Panthers invite the T. C. U. Horned Frogs back to La Grave field, they'll have to leave Hersel Kinsey at home. But six innings was all the Frog sophomore was scheduled to work and the Panthers took after his successor for a 5-1 victory this afternoon.

Invitations To Tech Relays In U. S. Mail Today

Head Coach P. W. Cawthon and Assistant Coach Dutchy Smith of Texas Tech will today place in the mails approximately 500 letters of invitation and entry blanks for prospective placers in the second annual running of the Texas Tech High school relays.

The relays are to be held on the Tech track, Saturday, April 9. Deadline for entries has been set as April 5. Coaches of high school track teams are expected to fill out an official entry blank or compose one of their own and mail to Coach Dutchy Smith as early as possible. There is no entrance fee attached. Forty-eight prizes, valued at $387.55, will be awarded winners.

The letters which the Tech coaches are mailing contain three sheets; one gives detailed information as to time, date, place, entry blanks, etc.; another deals with the various events which compose the entry blank and the third lists the prizes, which have been subscribed by Lubbock business firms and the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce.

The Avalanche-Journal Publishing company will follow up the practice established last year by awarding top prize, large silver plaque mounted on oak, which will go to the winning team. The Avalanche-Journal trophy went to Lamesa High school last year.

While official invitations and entry blanks are being mailed, it does not mean that schools which do not receive an invitation are not welcome to take part in the tournament. All high school and academy teams anywhere are eligible, though Texas Interscholastic league rules probably will govern the races. The official entry blank will be printed later this week in the Avalanche and Daily Journal.

High schools in Minnesota are considering enlarging the state finals basketball tournament to a 16-team affair instead of eight.

They DROVE from Spokane to Coeur d'Alene
Without OIL...and Without Damage
.....Proving the Value of the GERM PROCESSED "Hidden Quart"

Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, is 33 miles from Spokane, Washington. A Ford Model A coupe, in which Conoco Germ Processed Oil had been used, was driven from Spokane to Coeur d'Alene with the crankcase completely drained of oil!

Ford mechanics at Coeur d'Alene dismantled the motor—and found it in perfect mechanical condition, unharmed by a 33-mile run with the crankcase empty!

What dramatic proof that Conoco Germ Processed Oil gives safer lubrication at all times than oils not Germ Processed. An oil that could stand such a test will give you surer protection in every-day driving!

Conoco Germ Processed Oil is the only oil that actually penetrates and combines with metal surfaces. A "Hidden Quart" stays up in your motor and never drains away! This ever-present film cuts down costly starting wear. It saves gas. It gives your motor longer life, with fewer repair bills.

For the surest protection, change to Conoco Germ Processed Oil at the sign of the Conoco Red Triangle.

We neither encourage "dry crankcase" experiments nor guarantee success under all conditions. But unsolicited letters from motorists, now in our files, tell of this and hundreds of other runs with empty crankcases but without damage.

Who Cares 'Bout Dat?

THE MORNING AVALANCHE is not particularly excited over the recent statement by a British scientist to the effect that man does not use his brain to half its capacity.

Waiving the point that the savant statement is not accompanied by verifying evidence and assuming that he refers to the "average man," it is a fair query to put—"what of it?"

Is there any organ or factor or element of the body that he habitually uses to full capacity? Lungs, muscles, heart are used only to part capacity. Use of them at full capacity would subject a man to severe strain, helpfulness of which might be questionable.

If a man has a fair share of brains and half uses them, he will make fair progress.

Were he to use his brains 100 per cent, as the scientist suggests that he should, might that strain not wreck the delicate, soul-filled matter that is man?

VANITY VINDICATED

Once more the ladies win. This time gallant science steps to their rescue and breaks a lance in their behalf against British alarmists who hold that beautifying preparations menace their users with cancer. The American scientist goes the whole way and absolves lip stick, rouge box and powder puff of each offense.

If the women choose to rugy-fy their lips or to lily-fy and rosy-fy their cheeks or to dull the shine of the nose, they can do so without fear of horrible affliction. It is woman's prerogative to be as beautiful as possible, and it will take more than an exploded cancer-bugaboo to make her forsake the first aids that she packs in her vanity case.

A NATIONALIST'S CAUSE

In widely circulated contemporary writing cases are becoming numerous in which foreign trade is minimized as a factor in the prosperity of the United States. In them are noted glaring perversions or misstatements of fact. The evidences are ample of the existence of a propaganda aimed at contenting its readers with business planning and politics which well nigh solely consider the home markets. Obviously, the objective is retention and extention of our record-breaking high tariff system.

In one case the reasoning in a widely circulated article pivoted upon a statement that prior to the 1929-30 depression the export trade of the United States amounted to only 5 per cent of its total trade. The intent was to have it appear a small factor in our whole structure of business and industry.

The leaders of the automobile industry testify and readily demonstrate that up to and including 1929 the value of their exports amount to more than 15 per cent of the value of their total production. For all United States products, raw and manufactured, the United States Statistical Abstract puts the value of exports in 1929 at about 10 per cent of the value of the total production.

Did President Hoover promulgate a falsehood when in 1928 he stated that our export trade provided livelihood for 2,400,000 American families?

Our exports in 1929 brought into the United States more than five billion dollars. Export and import values combined amounted to 10 billion. The loss in both since the depression comes to 50 per cent. It means that in both accounts the turn-over of five billion a year has been lost to payrolls, industrial earnings, freight and steamship earnings, interest and dividends. The per cent of loss is much higher, of course, among the makers of high value goods which had the lion's share of export demand for manufacturers—automobiles, radios, refrigerators, electric appliances, tires, typewriters, etc. From the families formerly dependent on export trade, the contribution to unemployment is all too obvious.

None can assume to find it the one and only cause of the depression. But that here lies one large cause—the enactment of the Hawley-Smoot tariff and the consequent retaliations by other nations closing their markets to our exports—is so plain, we think, that it should not need the restatement which under the circumstances are necessary.

Nor, as though from under the hat, may any politicians be expected to produce another law and at once work the miracle which would restore the former conditions. But our thought and facts can be kept straight. Emphasis can rest on ways and means to encourage foreign trade resumption. More high tariffs can be resisted. We can examine the best proposals of the politicians which offer aid toward foreign trade revival. For one large thing, we can watch with interest and sympathy the development of another tariff reciprocity movement.

And we can isolate and denounce the bunk being circulated, another of which would cast on advocates of foreign trade planning the odium which, for other reasons, now attaches to the so-called "internationalists." In a case wherein 92 per cent of the world's population lives outside the United States and possesses only 25 per cent of the world's motor vehicles, is he of this country an internationalist, who realizes the meaning and demands political and business policy which will help him put men to work making cars for the potentially vast world market?

Today's One-Minute Sermon

Every word of God is pure: he is a shield unto them that put their trust on him.—Proverbs, xxx, 5.

Law's Powerlessness Cited

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON March 22.—"In our horror of the atrocity itself," says Congressman Charles A. Karch of East St. Louis (Ill.), "let us not lose sight of a still more horrifying state of affairs revealed to us by the Lindbergh baby kidnaping.

CHAS P STEWART

"It is bad enough that such a crime is possible.

"It is many times worse that everyone is so prompt to recognize the law's powerlessness to combat these raids against society.

"Consider the Lindbergh case—

"The first alarm was to the police—from force of habit.

"Sober second thought brought realization that the only real hope lay in an appeal to an entirely different authority—to the overlords of embattled gangland, which is holding its own quite successfully against organized government."

"TO BE SURE, conceded the congressman, "organized government has its prisoners of war.

"It has a notable one in Al Capone, who was willing to ransom himself with a pledge of his best efforts to find the Lindbergh baby among his tribesmen and restore him to his parents.

"And (lo and behold!) we are told that this offer actually was discussed at a meeting of the president of the United States with his cabinet.

"Perhaps it was not seriously considered. I don't know. It was discussed, anyway—and discussed with sufficient seriousness for the attorney general of the United States to deem it fitting to issue a statement to the press, canvassing the 'pros and cons' of the proposition.

"Imagine a discussion, at any cabinet meeting in our past history, of an offer from a criminal, under sentence to a long penitentiary term, to buy freedom by employing his influence with the underworld to return a kidnaped baby!"

"REGARDLESS of the outcome of 'the affair,' said the Illinois representative, "the virtual declaration by the police of a hands-off policy and carte blanche to Salvatore Spitale and Irving Bitz, in their quest for the Lindbergh baby, marked society's complete surrender to gang-rule in America.

"In fact, the greatest danger which most folks have sensed from the first was the danger that the kidnaping might not prove to be of gang origin, but the act of a lone criminal, or possibly a lunatic.

"Gangland has its responsibilities.

"In emergencies like the Scurlands' outrage, the chief difficulty is to establish contact with the right leader. That accomplished, he can be treated with as an independent sovereign."

"THE DEVELOPMENT of this situation," continued the congressman, "I don't for an instant hesitate to attribute wholly to prohibition.

"As United States district attorney at East St. Louis until just before Volsteadism's advent, I can testify that neither gangsterism nor racketeering in any form existed in western Illinois, where now they are rampant.

"Dry law modification will not extinguish them immediately. Nevertheless, bootlegging is their basis. That is the soil they grow in. Without it they can be cut down gradually and cannot spring up again. The gangster primarily is a bootlegger and it is as a bootlegger that he is tolerated. As a gangster exclusively, toleration of him will not last long.

"POST-WAR economic stress," answers Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas, the eighteenth amendment's author, "is the cause and the only cause of gangsterism and racketeering.

"Thorough investigation has shown that prohibition has had nothing to do with them.

"Kidnaping is a crime highly typical of the present depression.

"Yes it is true that the racketeer dates back to the period of so-called prosperity preceding the crash of 1929. That was a prosperity however, almost purely of the stock market. It was not prosperity for the masses.

"Far from being better, conditions today would be vastly worse, were it not for prohibition."

You can't fool a woman by lying to her, unless it's a compliment.

Practical Health Problems

DANGERS OF CARBON MONOXIDE

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of two articles by Dr. Fishbein on the danger of driving an automobile.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, And of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

ONE of the large divisions of the British Medical Association recently assembled to pay special attention to the danger of motoring. Motoring in Britain is not what it is in this country. Since cars are taxed by horsepower, they are not built to go as fast as they do in this country.

Furthermore, it is the custom in England to drive on the wrong side of the street, that is, wrong so far as we are concerned.

The introduction of new machines brings new hazards to human life. The motor car has brought hazards so serious that it is beginning to be placed among the leading causes of death. In opening consideration of this subject, Dr. Zachary Cope said that most of the minor mischiefs of motoring were closely related to medicine, and the major mischiefs to surgery.

Without doubt, the noise and vibration of motor cars is not a healthful factor in human life.

The constant drumming in the human ear means constant stimuli to a sensitive organ.

Much attention has been given to the possibility of poisoning from motor exhaust gas both to those in the car and to those on the street. Long exposure to low concentrations of carbon monoxide in motor exhaust gas produces dizziness, headache, lassitude and nausea.

One British doctor has described the common occurrence in women of what is called "shopping" headache, which Dr. Cope believes is probably due to the toxic effects of carbon monoxide derived from polluted air which in sultry summer weather is kept close to the ground.

All sorts of suggestions have been developed for getting rid of the menace of exhaust gas, varying from a special exhaust pipe that will release the gas high in the air to special devices for adequately ventilating cars and busses.

In narrow streets bordered by extremely high buildings, the concentration of monoxide gas at the street level becomes exceedingly great.

AN AIRPLANE CAN TRAVEL FASTER THAN A BULLET:

The fact that M. Jacques Schneider, the donor of the Schneider Trophy, was the head of a French firearms company lends the proper background for my comparison.

Lieutenant Stainforth, who sped at the record-smashing rate of 404 miles per hour over a 5840-foot course (Schneider Trophy Races of 1931) sustained a velocity of better than 592 feet per second. The initial velocity of a .38 Long Colt, Gallery, Lead cartridge fired from a pistol is only 554 foot-seconds. The Remington Special 22 B. B. Rifle Cartridge has an initial velocity of 600 feet per second, equal to an actual or instrumental velocity of 582 feet per second applicable for purposes of this comparison.

BY JOAN CLAYTON

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Beautiful ELLEN ROSSITER, a salesgirl in Barclay's Department Store, works nights as a dance hall hostess. She lives with her mother, MOLLY ROSSITER, her elder sister, MYRA, and her baby brother, MIKE.

At Dreamland she meets and falls in love with handsome LARRY HARROWGATE, an artist. Later she learns Larry is engaged to ELIZABETH BOWES, a debutante.

STEVEN BARCLAY, 57 and Ellen's employer, is in love with her. Without Ellen's knowledge her mother invites Barclay to make the apartment more attractive. Ellen is furious, but when Barclay arrives she is compelled to be friendly.

That night he asks Ellen to marry him and she refuses. Unwittingly she leaves him with hope of winning her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXI

LORENE ELCOTT proved to be a smart, thin woman who carried a lorgnette and had never quite learned to manage it. After several questions nervously asked and nervously answered she pronounced herself satisfied. There had been no discussion of salary between Ellen and Steven, but Lorene had her instructions and Ellen, naive and ignorant, was stupefied with delight to learn that as an assistant buyer she would receive $50 a week. That was $30 more than a salesgirl in cretonnes received.

"Are you sure it's $50 a week?" Ellen managed to say.

"Perfectly sure," Lorene responded with a cryptic smile. Inwardly the older woman sighed a little for her own lost youth and lost enthusiasm. Years ago $30 extra each week would have changed entirely the course of Lorene Elcott's life. Now a raise meant only that she could invest a little more in safe bonds. She roused from her dream of long ago and smiled at Ellen.

"I hope $50 a week will be satisfactory."

"Satisfacory? Oh!" Ellen stammered. "That's not the word at all. It's simply perfect. You can't know how perfect it is. Just wait till my mother hears this!"

Then and then only a sudden doubt smote her. She flushed furiously.

"Is there something else you want to ask?" Lorene said.

"Why, yes," Ellen conceded in a low tone. She struggled a moment and finally got it out. "Is that the regular starting salary for assistant buyers?"

"It's the regular salary," Lorene replied promptly and untruthfully. Since receiving Barclay's instructions Lorene, not unnaturally, had been prepared to dislike the recipient of his favor, Ellen's innocent, embarrassed and proud little question had changed all that, had promptly made a place for her in Lorene's affections.

Entirely reassured, Ellen ran to telephone her mother. Molly was in the seventh heaven. Everything was marvelous. When the girl returned to the basement to remove her belongings, she was so lighthearted she felt almost giddy. What did she care for the other girls now! She was an assistant buyer! An assistant buyer with a salary of $50 a week. In no time at all the insurance would be paid again. Fifty dollars a week. That was wealth!

Jenny was consumed with curiousity, eager to apologize, and to make friends again, but Ellen gave her no chance. She gathered up her comb, brush and the mirror she kept tucked away under the counter. She was pretending that Jenny, Mrs. Bondy and all the others had nothing to do with her.

She knew well enough that scandalous inference could and probably would be drawn from her sudden rise in the world but she would not think of that. Nothing should be permitted to spoil her pleasure. What the others said could not affect her.

It could, of course. But not then.

Turning away from the counter, her arms full of her small possessions, Ellen walked straight into someone.

"I beg your pardon!" she said quickly.

"Aren't you even going to give me a glance?" Larry Harrowgate exclaimed.

For a second she was bewildered. Then her face lighted and her heart leaped upward.

"Larry!"

"I've been hanging around for 15 minutes," he was saying excitedly. "I thought you'd never come. Here—lemme help!"

He attempted to relieve her of the jumbled assortment in her arms. Conscious of Jenny's open mouth and equally open curiosity, Ellen flushed and shook her head.

"You shouldn't have come here," she said quietly, moving away.

"Aren't you glad to see me?"

"Of course I am, silly," she told him with a confused laugh.

How handsome he was! She loved the way he kept in step with her. She loved his calm obliviousness to the stir they were causing on the floor. They did look a trifle odd—the handsome youth in flannel and the girl in workaday store costume with near paper cuffs and sensible shoes. Ellen knew that. But she felt a delicious flutter as he explained that he had learned from Salomon where she worked day times. That must mean something! It would certainly mean something if anyone other than Larry were concerned. But for that harum-

Letters To The Editor

Dallas Man Disagrees With Editorial On Redistricting

Dear Editor: The writer has read with interest your editorial, "Remember When You Vote!" in your good paper of the 12th inst.

Texans and our legislators have always been generous and thoughtful of the South Plains country in good times as well as in the recent two years of depression. We are proud of Texas Tech and the contribution it is making to our young people.

In your ultimatum to the voters of Texas to swat certain members of your senate, you primarily overlook or fail to know that 16 is a majority of 31 members—not 13.

The South Plains is not and never has been a dominant voting factor, either as a deciding majority or minority in elections. The people of East, North and South Texas must also be reckoned with.

Your two announced candidates for congress are indeed most capable and estimable gentlemen. In their visits to Dallas and other parts of the state they have never expressed, exhibited nor implied the narrow partisan sectional feeling and spirit you so violently declare in the above mentioned editorial.

You also state in your editorial "Nothing succeeds in politics like exacting an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth." We can assume, by that statement, that you are willing to abide by the same rules that you yourself suggest and it would be a very easy matter, since there are more daily papers published in other than the South Plains country, for partisan friends of Senators Purl and Holbrook, et al to preach your same sermon and ask the voters to vote against Senator Parrish and Mayor Thompson. Your highly respected paper is exhibiting the same spirit of generosity in asking the voters of all Texas to select two out of three of the congressmen-at-large from the Plains country, that your representatives asked in redistricting the state. Despite the fact that there are five great sections of this state namely: North, East, South, West and Central Texas and there are only three additional congressmen to be selected—and you just want two for yourself and one for the other four sections.

Of course, I do not expect you to publish this letter, but will state that it is not copyrighted.

Yours truly,
Ewing S. Moseley,
7132 Turtle Creek Blvd.,
Dallas, Texas.

(Dear Mr. Moseley: Thanks for your good letter. We don't let the mere fact that a reader disagrees keep us from printing his ideas, along with ours, on public questions. In the redistricting vote 13 Senators constituted a majority. The vote was 13-11 and some of the boys were hiding behind the door because they didn't want to get on record. The population figures, which you can secure from the census bureau, will show you that the population gain—upon which Texas' additional representation is based—was largely made in West Texas. At least enough of it was made out here to entitle West Texas to two of the three new seats that the discriminating Senators declined to give us as the law sets forth. It might interest you to know the editorial you question has been reproduced in practically every leading newspaper in West Texas. Kindest regards.—The Editor.)

Contract Let For Texas U. Memorial

AUSTIN, March 22. (AP)—Contract for construction of the Littlefield memorial on the University of Texas campus, a project that had hung fire for a number of years, has been awarded by the board of regents.

J. F. Johnsson of Austin was given the project on a bid of $118,600. The memorial will be located between the main building and 21st street at the head of University avenue.

Six statues of Texas and national heroes, done by Pompeo Coppini, sculptor, have been in the rotunda of the state capitol for several years awaiting completion of plans for the memorial. They are of James Stephen Hogg, John H. Reagan, Robert E. Lee, Albert Sidney Johnston, Jefferson Davis and Woodrow Wilson. Additional art work will be shipped from the Coppini studio in New York.

The memorial was made possible through creation of a trust fund of $250,000 by the late George W. Littlefield of Austin.

carum, she already knew to have an impulse was to obey it.

"Our old friend Salomon was convinced my intentions were dishonorable," he remarked impudently, glancing sidewise at her. "I had to tell him that I only meant to carry you off to lunch. By the way, am carrying you off to lunch?"

"I'm afraid not," Ellen explained with a serious and businesslike air. "I've a new job and I mean to learn so much that I won't have time today."

"Nonsense," he protested. "Surely you aren't saying you prefer a career to me. I'll be back at 12 sharp."

Ellen saw that he did not for a minute believe she had refused his invitation.

"You don't understand," she persisted half-heartedly. "I simply can't go with you today. It's my first day at this job—I'm to be a buyer—or an assistant buyer, I should say."

Her tone rose triumphantly. But it was evident that being a buyer meant nothing to Larry. They had reached the elevator. When Ellen rang the bell he became convinced of her earnestness, and, at the same time, abruptly cross.

"You aren't telling me," he began in annoyance, "that after I've hung around in that stuffy basement all morning waiting for you I can't take you to lunch because of some stupid job!"

"Just that," she assured him.

"I certainly rate with you, don't I? I've a job too, you know. Three orders for pictures and haven't done a tap on any of them. But I was glad enough to take time off."

"Maybe you're better able to take time off," she replied somberly.

The elevator descended and the doors opened. Early shoppers straggled inside. Ellen said a stiff goodby. For a moment she thought he meant to say something further, then he bowed coldly and moved away.

Larry had destroyed her pleasure in the new job. The afternoon seemed long and dull and profitless. Lorene's chatter and constant references to Steven Barclay grew disproportionately irksome. Ellen vaguely realized that she wanted to love Steven and to hate Larry and that much of her discontent and dissatisfaction with the world was due to her double failure. The realization did not better matters.

That night at Dreamland she did not expect Larry. All the afternoon she had tried to make herself understand that it was entirely possible she might never see him again. So the evening was stale and flat to her; the dancing boring and her own popularity boring. She hated dancing with the men who frequented Dreamland, hated the pink and gilt hall, the tinny, mechanical music. But it was her job—even if it was to last only a short time now—and she set herself resolutely at it.

Toward 10 o'clock she was dancing with a blank-faced, blue-eyed chap and attempting to ignore his soiled collar and dubious conversation, when she happened to glance toward the stairway to see Larry entering. Her heart missed a beat; her feet missed a step. Larry caught her eye. The two young people smiled contentedly and to Ellen the night burst into bloom. She could hardly contain herself until the dance was over and she could rush to the table where Larry was impatiently awaiting her.

"I'm awfully sorry about this morning," he said immediately.

"That's all right," she told him, feeling irrationally, idiotically happy.

"No, it isn't all right. There's more to it than that," he said suddenly after they were both sitting. "I'm very much afraid that you and I had better watch our step."

His expression was odd and constrained. He leaned over and began to play with a bangle she wore on her arm. She watched him expectantly.

"What do you mean?" she asked.

"What do you mean?" he echoed foolishly.

Ellen looked at him sharply. She wondered for a moment if he had been drinking. The lights had been dimmed for a moonlight waltz. The single shaft of light from the artifical moon fell across the table but his face was in the shadow.

"I just wanted to know," she resumed in a strained way, "what you meant by saying that we'd have to watch our step?"

"Oh, that!"

He laughed. The lights came up as the music stopped and she saw that his mysterious confusion had left him. She saw too that he had not been drinking. He was simple and natural, at ease again.

"Don't you know, Ellen?"

"No, I don't know.

Her heart was beginning to pound.

"Well, I was jealous as the very deuce this morning," he confessed smiling at her. "Jealous of your job and you're being more interested in that than in having lunch with me! You know what that means, I suppose?"

"What?"

He drew a long breath.

"Don't you think it's possible you and I might fall in love?" he asked with an uncertain laugh.

"What if we did?" she demanded carelessly, not quite liking the lightness of his tone.

"That'd be the devil all around, wouldn't it?" he said nervously.

"Suppose it would."

"My mother—"

"You mean your mother has other plans for you," Ellen interrupted. "Well, so has mine for me!"

Her tone matched his for indifference but she was furious.

"That's easy enough to see," he laughed. "Remember that time she put me out of your apartment? She hates me, doesn't she?"

"She doesn't think you work enough," said Ellen pointedly.

"Besides that you've probably a dozen other clamoring sweethearts," he said easily, seeming to lose interest.

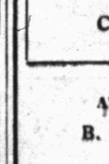

"Only one," she assured him coolly.

He leaned over and caught her hands, laughed and accused her of trying to make him jealous. As the girl laughed with him she wondered forlornly if anything, anything would ever make him serious.

Cotton — Cotton Drops In Moderate Trading | Livestock — Little Activity In Cattle Trade | Grain — Cash Grain Shows Declines Tuesday

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, March 22. (AP)—Cotton worked lower today in rather moderate trading. While prices were easier with stocks at times, the main cause of the decline was the report that the farm loan board was desirous of exporting its wheat holdings. Prices moved downward most of the session with occasional brief rallies, until May showed a loss of 21 points under its high while other active months showed losses of 12 points from the highs. There was a slight rally at the end and the close was steady, showing net declines for the day of 14-16 points.

May closed at 6.61, down 15 points net for the day, while July closed at 6.78, down 14 points net.

Liverpool is due tomorrow on New Orleans 5 penny points down.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, March 22. (AP)—Aside from a few very feeble rallies, cotton prices were on the down grade today.

The market was at new low levels for the month, and as far as most of the active positions were concerned, established new low record since January. May sold down to 6.60, closing there for a decline of 15 points, while the market generally closed barely steady at 13-15 points net lower.

Weakness in the stock and wheat markets during the day contributed to the action of values but the principal depressing factor seemed to be a general feeling of nervousness over what step, if any, may be taken by the government agencies relative to the disposition of the large surplus stocks.

Reasonably Good Resistance Offered By Stocks To Resumption Of Decline

BY JOHN L. COOLEY,
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, March 22. (AP)—Stocks had several unfavorable factors to contend with today, but in the main offered reasonably good resistance to a resumption of the decline.

Afternoon short covering reduced early losses to moderate proportions, and in a few instances was robust enough to bring about small net gains. By and large, however, leaders closed lower. Motors and metals acted rather discouraged most of the day, while American Telephone, Royal Dutch and several preferred issues displayed greater than average heaviness. Turnover increased slightly to 1,098,000 shares.

The break in wheat, reflecting the farm board advisory committee's recommendation that surplus be sold quickly in non-competitive foreign markets, and a weak market for German bonds were unsettling developments. In addition, financial needs of railroads received emphasis from Baltimore and Ohio's application for a $35,000,000 reconstruction finance corporation loan, while uncertainty over the tax bill still seemed to have dampening effect.

Livestock

KANSAS CITY LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, March 22. (AP) U. S. Dept. Agri.—Cattle trade did not display as much activity as yesterday's session, but values again worked on a steady to 25 higher basis. Monday's general storm tended to reduce receipts at most centers with arrivals of 22,700 at eleven markets numbering around 6,000 less than the same day last week. Majority of fed steers and yearlings were of quality to sell at 5.25-6.75 while several loads rating good to choice brought 7.00-8.25. Most offerings in the latter price spread were of medium or heavy weight. Chicago scored up to 8.75 for choice heavy weight beeves. Kansas City noted a few loads of fed South Texas steers showing the effect of a Brahma breeding at 5.35-65. Stockers and feeders maintained a steady outlet with most replacements steers at 4.25-5.75 and several sales of feeders at 6.00.

Calves Arrive For Show Here

Other Entries Are Expected Today In The Annual South Plains Calf, Pig And Meat Show Which Opens Thursday

Seventy-six of the South Plains' finest beef calves were bedded down in fresh straw at the agriculture building at the fair grounds Tuesday. The animals were sent here by Four-H club members and vocational agriculture students for the second annual South Plains Calf, Pig and Meat show which opens here Thursday.

Many other entries, in the fat calf, pig and cured meats divisions, are expected here today. The calves already here are from Hockley county, which sent 35, Spur, King county, Post, Silverton and Lamb county. Nine pigs, all from Hockley county, also have arrived.

An effort is being made to pledge sale of all calves and pigs entered. The sales committee will meet at the chamber of commerce office this morning at 9 o'clock, George A. Simmons, chairman, said. Late Tuesday sale of 33 calves and 70 pigs had been pledged. One local firm has indicated it will bid high for the grand champion pig, and the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs have arranged a fund for purchase of the grand champion calf. Members of the purchasing committee are: W. L. Stangel, Sam C. Arnett, Alex McDonald, A. R. Hendricks, and A. B. Taff. Those desiring to buy an animal are asked to call the chamber of commerce or any committee member.

All canned meats must be in place at 9 o'clock this morning, when judging will be started by Miss Zetha McInnis, home industry of the Texas extension service. Calf judging, by Roy Weeman and Carl Reppeto, both of Fort Worth will begin at 9 a. m. Friday, and K. F. Warner, of the meats investigation department, of Washington, will begin ranking cured meats at 9 a. m. Thursday. Ray C. Mowery will begin judging pigs at 2 p. m. Thursday.

Two Students At Missouri Wounded

COLUMBIA, Mo., March 22. (AP)—Jerry Cebe, captain-elect of the University of Missouri wrestling team, and Frank Luckey, both students in the university school of engineering, were shot tonight and officers were questioning two or three students in the school of law. Luckey was reported seriously wounded. Four school of law students yesterday had appeared before a justice of peace and asked that four engineering students be required to give peace bonds following the "kidnaping" Saturday of Miss Mary Butterfield, Kansas City, whose coronation as St. Pat's queen at the engineering students' annual ball was prevented by the "abduction." Whether there was any connection between the "kidnaping" and and the shooting tonight could not be learned immediately, however.

Tornadoes

tornado took more than a score of lives, near Dalton, Bartersville, Athens and Rome. Single casualties attributable to the storm were reported at Decatur, Atlanta and Milledgeville, Ga.

A path a quarter of a mile long was left in Whitefield and Murray counties in north Georgia, and churches, homes and barns were wrecked. Ambulances at Dalton, Ga., in the vicinity of which five persons were killed, chugged over storm littered road, searching the nearby rural communities for dead and taking medical attention to the injured.

At Dalton an unidentified white man was blown to the top of a tree, the wind blowing a piece of wood through one of his arms. He hung suspended until daylight when he was rescued and taken to a hospital.

One man was killed near Spartanburg, S. C., and at Gaffney, S. C., a negro woman, lost her life in the collapse of her dwelling.

Rescue workers pressed into wrecked communities throughout the ravished area.

Senate Favors Pay Reductions Move

WASHINGTON, March 22.—In a drastic move for governmental economy, the senate today placed itself on record as favoring a ten per cent reduction in all government operating expenditures, at an estimated saving of at least $250,000,000.

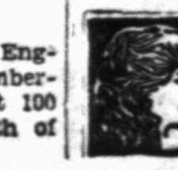

Confronted with figures showing the government spent twice as much money during the past year as it took in, the senate, voted 50 to 29 to send the state, justice, commerce and labor appropriation bill back to committee for a ten per cent reduction in its total of $124,000,000.

Party lines were shattered as the senate, now awaiting a huge tax increase bill, showed its determination to balance the budget as far as possible through reductions in expenditures.

It was the second of the annual supply bills the senate has sent back to committee in its unprecedented war on waste, last week the $37,000,000 interior department bill was returned for a ten per cent cut.

Indian Brave Is Sentenced

Mac Golney Seymour Protests He Is "Good Indian" When Judge Sends Him To Prison For Life Term

GLOBE, Ariz., March 22. (AP)—Mac Golney Seymour, White river Apache range rider, protesting he "was a real good Indian," was sentenced today to imprisonment for life for the murder of Henrietta Schmerler, Columbia university anthropology student.

Sentence was pronounced by Federal Judge Albert M. Sames after John H. Dougherty, Seymour's attorney, said he would not ask for a new trial.

Dougherty announced the case would be carried to the circuit court if Seymour's family and tribesmen desired it and an appeal can be financed.

The jury convicted Seymour and fixed the penalty at life imprisonment after deliberating four hours.

Miss Schmerler's body was found in a ravine on the White River Apache reservation last July 24.

Seymour was convicted of having killed her July 18, while escorting her to a dance at Canyon Dey, near Fort Apache. The girl had been on the reservation a month, sent there by Columbia university to study Indian arts and customs.

Death Threat Is Claimed In City

A Lubbock man has been named defendant in a charge of threatening to take life. The complaint was filed in county court. The complainant, a man living in the 800-block of Avenue D, accused the other of threatening to "blow your brains out," the county attorney's office reported.

The accused man allegedly made the threat at the complainants home, after the latter had told his wife he did not want her to continue association with the other man, who also is married. Assistant County Attorney William H. Evans said.

Miss Dorothy Pullen, of this city, is convalescing at the Lubbock sanitarium following a recent operation. Her mother, Mrs. F. M. Kennedy, of Plainview is visiting here.

Large Number Of Smiths Was No Hindrance

KANSAS CITY, March 22. (AP)—The large number of Smiths failed to deter R. L. Van Blarcom of Fort Worth from setting out on the trail of three of them who he alleged had failed to live up to an agreement in the promotion of a sandwich shop chain.

The three, Russell W. Smith, Kenneth W. Smith and C. L. Smith, were arrested on fugitive warrants here yesterday after Van Blarcom had trailed them from Fort Worth, through Dallas, Houston, Oklahoma City and finally Kansas City. Van Blarcom said the Smiths were not related.

The Texan informed local authorities that the men sold W. H. Willoughby of Fort Worth the right to open a chain of shops in 13 Texas counties for $250. He said he purchased a half interest in the venture. C. L. Smith, he said, had failed to deliver certain equipment within the time specified.

The men were arraigned and committed to the county jail in default of bond, set at $3,000 each. They declined to sign waivers of extradition.

Suit Echoes City's Administration Of Finances In '24-25

Handling of city finances in 1924 and 1925 is echoed in a suit being tried in 99th district court in which the Fidelity and Deposit company of Maryland is suing the Citizens National bank of Lubbock for $8,107.25.

Pleadings of the plaintiff, bondsman for J. R. Germany, former city secretary, set out that the company paid $8,000 to the city February 15, 1928, for money allegedly irregularly handled by Germany. The plaintiff alleges the Citizens bank illegally paid out the money now sought. Court costs amounting to $107.25 also are asked.

Germany, indicted for misapplication of city funds, eventually won dismissal of the indictments on motion of the district attorney. In a trial, Germany was convicted and given five years in the penitentiary, but on appeal to the state court of criminal appeals he won a reversal.

Demurrers and objections to pleadings—both of the plaintiff and the defendant—were argued before Judge Clark M. Mullican Tuesday. A jury was selected early Tuesday afternoon and dismissed to report Wednesday morning.

NEW SHREDDED BISCUITS CONTAIN IRON AND VITAMIN B

Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuit Certified for Food Value by Philadelphia Laboratory

Local grocers are featuring an improved shredded biscuit which contains both iron and Vitamin B. Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuits are made by a special process known as "pressure-cooking," which retains the full food value of the whole wheat. In fact, the Medical Arts Laboratory of Philadelphia certifies each package. "Pressure-cooking" likewise gives the biscuits a finer flavor and makes it easier to digest.

The new Kellogg's biscuits are also toasted on both top and bottom—not just one side. Naturally, they are much crisper and tastier, as well as more appetizing in appearance.

The biscuits are likewise a more convenient, economical size—two just fit the cereal bowl. And there are 15 to the package instead of the usual dozen.

Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuits are very popular for breakfast—and are finding increasing favor for lunch, children's suppers and late snacks. Especially enjoyable with fruits or sweetened with honey.

You can easily identify this improved cereal by the name, Kellogg's, and the familiar red-and-green package. Sold by grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.
