Silver Derrick Building Bought By Commission

Projected enlargement of the building now occupied by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission on Rockport Harbor has been shelved for an alternate plan in which the Commission is in process of purchasing the building formerly occupied by the Silver Derrick from Emory M. Spencer for the sum of $50,000 to furnish additional office space for personnel here.

When the Commission, then the Texas Game and Fish Commission, reorganized two or three years ago, the laboratory, which had been built in 1947 as a research facility, was made headquarters for Region 5 of the Commission's research and law enforcement divisions, and conditional additional personnel was moved here from elsewhere in the state, under leadership of Robert G. Mauermann, division director.

This influx of personnel crowded the facilities at the Marine Laboratory greatly, and with the addition of the boat maintenance personnel which takes care of the Commission's salt water division's boats, there was little room left to use for research.

Robert G. Mauermann was out of the city when the transaction was announced today, and unavailable by telephone. However, an informed source said that it was unlikely that there would be additional personnel moved here, as there was more than enough to fill the new acquisition, when enough were moved out of the laboratory to allow it to function as a laboratory and not as an office building.

The property in question is an extensive one-story brick building, which in the past functioned as a luxury restaurant, and later as a real estate office.

The interior will be remodeled into office space for Parks and Wildlife administrative personnel.

ROCKPORT PEOPLE TO ATTEND 60th ANNUAL COUNCIL

A number of Rockport people will attend the 60th annual council of the Episcopal Diocese of West Texas when it convenes at the Church of the Good Shepherd in Corpus Christi Feb. 6-8, led by the Right Rev. Everett H. Jones, San Antonio, Bishop of the Diocese for the past 21 years.

Principal speaker at the conference will be Rt. Rev. Robert R. Brown, Bishop of Arkansas, a brother of Rev. Joseph L. Brown, rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd.

Attending the council from St. Peter's Church in Rockport will be Harry Carter, acting lay minister, and Cecil H. Cole, delegate of the church. Major Gay Copeland (ret) is alternate delegate.

Mrs. Maurice Cochran, president of the Episcopal Churchwomen of the diocese, will also attend from Rockport.

ROCKPORT FIREMEN ANSWER TEN CALLS

The Rockport Fire Department has answered ten calls during the past week, and used 26 pieces of equipment in extinguishing the fires.

Sixty-four men answered the various calls, and they expended 87 man hours in extinguishing two house trailer fires, one car fire, aiding at one wreck, answering one false alarm, and fighting two brush fires, one of which broke out six times after firemen thought they had it under control.

At this fire, which was in Fulton, Fulton firemen broke a drive shaft on one of their pieces of apparatus, and burned out the clutch on their emergency wagon.

Fluorescent Rocks Are Attractive To Tourists and Others

Joe Hissong, at the Agate Shop, has just obtained a beautiful collection of fluorescent minerals, and wishes to invite all those who lately visited his shop and were disappointed because he had sold an earlier and smaller collection to see the new one.

The rocks in this new collection, Hissong says, come from the United States, England, Africa, Italy, Canada and Mexico. Comparatively dull in color under daylight, when they are exposed to black light they glow with beautiful colors of many shades.

Hissong says there is no charge for viewing the collection, and invites everyone that wishes to do so see the largest and most beautiful collection of its kind in this part of the United States.

ARANSAS GETS DEEP WILDCAT

R. W. McMahon & Associates of Corpus Christi have scheduled an 8,500-foot Aransas County wildcat one mile west of Fulton at the No. 1 D. G. Ferris and others.

The Frio explorer is 660 feet from the south line and 2,500 feet from the west line of a 151.95 acre lease and T. T. Williamson Survey, A-219. Location is approximately 1 1/4 miles east-southeast of production. Mercedes de Moore fee is on the east.

Tax Office to Be Open for Poll Tax Purchases

According to Mrs. Margaret Weber the county tax office will remain open on Friday, Jan. 31 until midnight for sale of poll taxes, and she also called attention to the fact that persons wishing to buy these by mail must be certain their application and payment are in her hands as tax assessor-collector by 12 p.m.

Mrs. Weber, county tax assessor-collector, said that the office is doing this as an accommodation to Aransas County voters.

On Monday, Feb. 3, she said, her office will begin issuing automobile license plates, and Mrs. Weber requests those who have made reservations for special numbers to bring in the necessary car papers as soon as possible, in order that these plates may be issued as the number comes up.

Necessary papers for registering vehicles are the certificate of title and the registration receipt from last year.

Mrs. Weber said her office also has a supply of pamphlets on hand from the Texas Department of Public Safety that explain briefly the recent changes in the safety responsibility law that went into effect the first of the year.

Each automobile owner will be given one of these pamphlets at the time the license is purchased, she said.

Numerous changes have been made in the law, Mrs. Weber stated, and to help the driving public become familiar with these new provisions, the tax office is making the pamphlet available to the county's drivers.

SAN PATRICIO COUNTY COUNCIL TO MEET HERE

The next meeting of the San Patricio County Council of the Veterans of Foreign Wars will be held in Rockport next Monday night, Feb. 3, starting at 7:30 p.m., with approximately 60 delegates expected from the various posts throughout San Patricio and Aransas counties.

The local Ladies' Auxiliary is preparing the dinner for the delegates.

Charlie Garrett said all members who haven't been initiated should make a special effort to attend this meeting, to receive their obligation from the ritual team that will be here to perform the ceremony.

All members are urged to be present.

ARANSAS COUNTY BOND SALES OUTSTRIP QUOTA

Aransas County sales of Government E&H bonds during December, 1963, amounted to $4,348, according to Fred Bracht, local chairman in charge of sales, who said that this brought the year's total to $87,988, or 146.6 of the quota set at the beginning of the year.

In District 7, headed by Allen Wood, of Corpus Christi, Aransas County led the other nine percentage-wise, although several others outstripped it in total money spent for bonds.

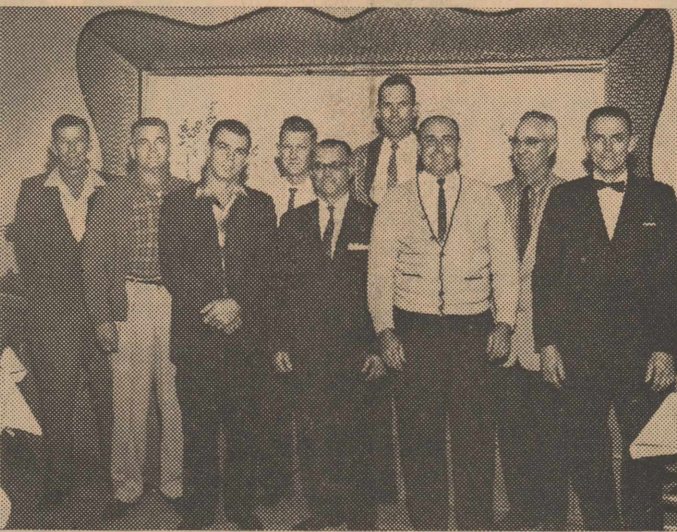

Nueces County sold 119.4% of its quota for a total of $4,552,105; next high was Brooks County, with 108.1% of its quota; followed by Live Oak, with 106.7%; Bee, 103%; Kenedy, 100%; Kleberg, with 85.7%; San Patricio, 63%; and Jim Wells County with 62.6%. McMullen County, the only other one in the district bought no bonds.

Navigation Board Member Explains Rules On Rentals

Navigation Board member Charles Schindler explained this morning that there was no intention of making it hard on any individual in the Board's drive to collect overdue rents, but merely an attempt to correct a problem.

At one time, he said, overdue rentals on boat space had reached around $5,000, and this continued over a considerable period.

The present drive to collect these back rentals and to keep accounts current, he said, is not designed to work a hardship on anyone. It is merely an attempt by members of the Navigation District to correct a situation that was getting completely out of hand.

He explained the procedure used. All rents are due and payable in advance, as set forth in published rules, and boat owners are billed on the first of every month for that month.

Under the procedure set up (Continued on page 8)

DIRECTORS CHOSEN FOR CHAMBER OF COMMERCE IN 1964

Five directors have been chosen for the Rockport Chamber of Commerce and will be installed at the next meeting of the Board, on Feb. 4.

They are Miss Lola Bonner, vice president, whose term expired this year, and who was re-elected; John Ross, assistant manager of Central Power and Light Co. in Rockport; Carl Krueger, developer of the Florida type subdivision, Key Allegro; Burl P. Wagley, owner of Wagley Lumber Co.; and William R. Wright, oil company employee.

The last four are new to the Board. Officers of the Chamber for the coming year will be chosen at the same meeting in which the new directors are installed.

Fishing Contest Winners Named For Two Weeks

Winners in the Rockport Winter Tourist contest for the past two weeks have been announced by Mrs. Mary Juergens, manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

For the week ending Jan. 18, Elton Page, of Poteet, Texas, brought in a winner in the trout division. This week he was ahead with a five pound, nine ounce fish.

In the redfish division, a man from Webster, S.D., Chris Henson, was tops with a four pound 11 ounce red.

For the week ending Jan. 26, there were winners in three divisions, including the heaviest fish of the contest up till now.

Winfield J. Smith, of Edmond, Okla., won the trout division with a fish weighing four pounds and three ounces.

Jack Littrell, of Houston, Kans., registered a 29 pound, 14 ounce drum, the heaviest fish weighed in so far, to take the prize in that category.

George L. Allen, Hughes, Spring, Texas, was winner of the redfish division, with a minnow weighing only two pounds and 15 ounces, which is a mighty small red. However, like football, it's not the statistics but the name that goes up as winner on the score board that counts.

Judge Miller Rules Against Hewes In Suit

The first Aransas County lawsuit of the 1964 political season came this week when Robert Hewes, chief deputy in the sheriff's office requested the Democratic executive board to accept his attempt to file as a candidate for sheriff of the county.

Hewes, the Democratic board said, had not been in the county long enough to become eligible as a candidate by the deadline on Feb. 3.

In his suit, Hewes named Pat. H. Greene, county chairman, and Precinct chairmen Miss Lola Bonner, C. L. Grant, Ernest Jones and E. N. Adams, as members of the executive committee, and attached their refusal on grounds that the law governing such filings was unconstitutional.

The case was heard in Judge Miller's 36th District Court and, after listening to the arguments presented by Hewes' attorney, Joe Caldwell, Judge Miller ruled against Hewes.

New Causeway To Cost $2,481,078

Austin Bridge Company of Dallas Apparent Low Bidder When Bids Were Opened Last Thursday In Highway Department In Austin

The long-awaited Copano Causeway moved a step near completion last week, as bids were opened by the Texas Highway Department on Thursday morning, and the low bidder was found to be a Dallas firm, Austin Bridge Co., with a tender of $2,481,078.

The bridge, six miles north of Rockport, carries Highway 35 across the junction of Aransas and Copano bays, for a distance of 2.5 miles, and, despite incorrect newspaper reports to the contrary, lies wholly within Aransas County, joining Live Oak and Lamar peninsulas.

The old causeway was erected in the 1920's, and has long been the subject of discussion, because of the bottleneck it has formed to develop the area. Within recent years, it was unable to handle the heavy loads of modern traffic, and many of the trucks now in use were unable to cross with even light loads.

Early in 1962, County Judge John D. Wendell led a delegation of Aransas County citizens to Austin, and to present the request of this county to the Highway Department for a new bridge.

Their trip was favorably received, and preliminary work began on soundings in 1962, while engineering plans were being drawn, and tentative plans called for construction to start in the latter half of 1963.

In July, 1962, the Highway Department approved a new, two year consolidated highway program for Texas, to be financed jointly by the state and federal governments.

At that time, T. O. Foster, Jr., District Highway Engineer, said the program authorized expenditures of $2,420,000 for the causeway, which has a approximate length of 2.3 miles where it crosses between Copano and Aransas Bays.

In November, 1962, the Highway Department asked the U. S. Engineers for a construction permit. Plans showed a concrete pile causeway stretching for 919.13 feet, with a humped navigation span with horizontal clearance between fenders of 75 feet and a vertical clearance of 45 feet above

Texas Poll Tax Voting Data Given

State Comptroller Robert S. Calvert issued instructions Friday to help county tax collectors register voters who want to ballot only on candidates for federal office.

The directive, drafted with help from the attorney general, outlines issuance of free poll tax receipts marked "poll tax not paid" during a 30-day registration period.

The registration period begins upon certification by federal officials that the amendment to ban the poll tax as a voting requirement is a part of the federal constitution. The amendment was ratified last Thursday.

Calvert said the collectors may begin issuance of the free receipts to qualified voters as soon as they learn of the certification through the news media or other reliable sources.

Calvert pointed out that persons who pay poll taxes by Jan. 31 "are not required to obtain any further certificate to make them eligible to vote for federal offices in the 1964 elections."

Calvert emphasized that exemption certificates will be issued only through Jan. 31 and are not affected by the federal amendment.

He also told collectors they can add notations along with the required words "poll tax not paid" to show that the receipt does not entitle the holder to vote on anything except federal officers.

For each free receipt issued, counties can retain 15 cents out of money received on poll tax payments, as the law provides for issuance of poll tax receipts and exemption certificates.

The 25-cent fee which some counties add to the $1.50 poll tax cannot be levied on the free receipts, Calvert said.

Old Story Of McKinley's Shooting Found

Contemporary accounts of the shooting of President Lincoln were part of the newspaper background for the recent tragedy in Dallas, when President Kennedy was shot, but few people remember the shooting of President McKinley nor the newspaper stories that went along with it.

Perhaps it is a little more real to the writer because his own father was the first surgeon to reach McKinley's side after the shot, although McKinley's own personal surgeon arrived almost immediately and took charge. However, in running through some old files, the following story of the third president to be assassinated was located in a copy of the Century Magazine.

"Three Presidents shot within the vivid memory of Americans not old! This is the record in the freest country on earth. But the latest, and in all the fourth murderous attack on a President is the most significant and threatening. The earlier assassins were moved by temporary conditions; the latest acted on a theory which, consistently carried out, would subject to foul murder all public officials whomsoever; and this theory is one known to be held not only by a single miscreant, but by other foreigners in various parts of this country, whose sense of 'duty'—the very word used both by Czolgoz (who shot McKinley) and by the assassin of the Empress of Austria—may at any time lead to a performance as dastardly as that at Buffalo (where McKinley was shot on the platform of a railroad station).

"No wonder that the whole nation has been profoundly stirred, not merely by sympathy, grief and indignation, but by a sense of danger and a desire to do whatever may be wisely and safely done to prevent a spread of that disease of the mind and morals which leads to such far-reaching crimes.

"While lawyers and laymen, statesmen, legislators and others are debating as to possible legal remedies, a great deal of good is being done by discussions in the press and elsewhere of general and moral, rather than legal and specific remedies. It is very much to be hoped that these discussions may have a powerful effect upon that public opinion which is the ultimate and supreme lawmaker and ruler of communities.

"In the first place, the guardians of public morals have been given a text from which to preach against all forms of violence. The wretch who attacked President McKinley seems to have been inspired directly by the enunciation of anarchical doctrines; but in a country where illegal, violent and murderous acts are constantly being performed by mobs of citizens who take the law into their own hands and hang, shoot and burn human beings 'for the public good,' in such a country how can it be expected that individuals will not sometimes act on their own peculiar theories of 'public good' and perform executions with warrant of law?

"So much as to the possible effect of conspicuous and illegal acts of violence. But violence of speech, as is now clearly shown, and was shown also, in the case of the Chicago anarchists—leads surely to violent action. The ravings of anarchists, it is evident again, lead directly to murders by anarchists. Cause and effect work exactly in the psycho-logical as in the obviously physical domain.

"There is a wholesome appreciation, moreover, at the present crisis, of the fact that professed anarchists are not the only promoters of anarchical sentiment in America. The sordid and assumed friendship of 'yellow journalism' with the working man whom it deceives and deludes had led to utterances which may prove as dangerous as any emanating from the convinced, or demented, or solely criminal advocates of anarchy. Now and again the decent portion of the community has a period of intense realization of the demoralizing influence of the 'loathsome press'; such a period is now upon us; it will be interesting to note how long this revival of indignation will last.

"Again there is a new sense of the danger of allowing proper and patriotic criticism of the public action of a national executive to pass over into abuse so violent as to be little less than an instigation to murder. This is an outrage difficult to regulate by law, but easily regulated by public opinion. Personal vilification and gross caricature of a nation's chosen representative and chief magistrate should be abhorrent and unendurable to a self-respecting people.

"The words 'Liberty and Happiness' were always being in the speeches and writings of the founders of the republic. The phrase represented the ideal towards which the world, by its most liberal and sympathetic readers, earnestly and hopefully strove. 'Liberty and Happiness' were supposed to have been established by the written constitutions of the United States and certain other countries, and by the unwritten constitutions of others; and indeed there has been a genuine advance, we believe, in human liberty and human happiness.

But this country is finding out, through painful experiences, that our 'free government' does not make certain all forms of happiness; it does not insure our system against attack on its rulers; it does not make our whole Senate pure; it does not, in itself, save all our State and municipal governments from corruption. When a people has obtained its freedom it may be only beginning to learn the lesson of self-government. There are ill-regulated minds, even in a republic like ours, that interpret freedom as license, and would make free speech the handmaid to free murder.

"The opening of the 20th century is crowded with events that should induce sober reflections and lead to strenuous efforts to supplement our liberty with those virtues that alone can preserve a state and make the happiness of its people an inalienable possession."

(Except for the fact that the above was written over 60 years ago at the death of a President named McKinley, rather than within the last couple of months at the death of a President named Kennedy, there's not much difference! Editors note.)

ALIEN ADDRESS REPORT UNDERWAY

Aliens in the United States who have not yet reported their United States addresses must do so by Jan. 31, the Port Isabel district office of the Immigration and Naturalization Service again reminded today. The address card is available at any post office or immigration station. It does not require a postage stamp, since it is not to be mailed.

The district office reports that some resident aliens who are temporarily outside the United States and will not be back until after Jan. 31 have asked how they are to get the address cards. They could not meet the January 31 deadline, but are required to report their addresses within 10 days after their return.

The immigration office emphasized that the alien address report is a strong requirement of the alien registration laws, and that willful failure to comply can incur a fine, a jail sentence, and deportation. All aliens are equally liable to those penalties, whether they are here on a temporary basis or for permanent residence. The only ones who are exempted from making the reports are temporary agricultural laborers (braceros) and officials of foreign governments or international organizations who are here on their official business.

Presbyterian Young People Tell of Trip

Three youthful members of the Presbyterian Church took a ten-day trip through Mexico immediately after Christmas as part of a group from the South Texas Presbytery to examine the Presbyterian Church of Mexico, and came back with a totally new concept of the land, its people, and the part the Protestant Church is playing in that country.

The three, Misses Niki Dick and Nan Jackson, and N. F. Jackson, told members of the congregation about it Sunday morning as part of the worship, which was led by PYF and SHF groups.

Their trip was a comprehensive one, made by air, with the Rev. and Mrs. Howard C. Blake, and Miss Janella Gutierrez as leaders. The group left from McAllen, crossing to Reynosa and flying from there to Mexico City, where they were welcomed by Daniel Garcia, D.C.E., National Church of Mexico. Orientation was by Richard Bass, a missionary of the U.S. Presbyterian Church, both of whom had been assigned by the Board of World Missions to be hosts for the group.

The next morning, there was a breakfast conference on "The Background History of Mexico" led by Jorge Lara-Braud, Dean of the Presbyterian Theological Seminary. Following this, the young people were taken on a bus trip to the shrine of Our Lady of Guadalupe and to the Aztec pyramids of the city.

On the morning of Dec. 28, the breakfast conference dealt with "Education in Mexico" and was led by Casper Dangella, Student Worker Director, of the National Church of Mexico, and the conference was then followed by a trip to the University of Mexico, one of the oldest on the North American continent.

"One of the most interesting things about this," said N. F. Jackson, "was the better understanding we gained of the part played by the Presbyterian Church in leading and liberalizing educational thought in Latin America. Protestants have led the way in this and while for many years, there was bitter opposition between the Catholic and Protestant churches of Mexico, there are some signs that this is changing. However, many of the Protestant clergy and laymen regard this apparent change with suspicion in the view of the emmity between the two churches in the past."

All the churches in Mexico are property of the government. This dates back to the anticlerical legislation of the so-called Reform, amplified and implemented by the constitution of 1917. In this, the church buildings were declared to belong to the government; priests had to register with civil authorities; and were forbidden to organize political parties or to control primary schools; religious ceremonies outside churches were prohibited; aliens were forbidden to serve as priests; and the state legislatures were to have the power to regulate the number of clergy who might officiate within their jurisdictions.

On Sunday, Dec. 29, members of the party attended church services in various Mexico churches, and one of the things most noticeable, said Niki Dick, "was the complete lack of any ornamentation or any of the Christian symbols we are accustomed to use in our church here. They wanted nothing that would interfere with their worship, and apparently no symbol that could be used instead of Christianity itself. They seemed so sincere, and to get so much more out of their religion, perhaps, because it was so hard for them to be Protestants in a country that has been predominantly Catholic for so long."

In the late afternoon, the young people attended the Folk Ballet at Mexico City's magnificent opera house.

Monday morning, Dec. 30, the breakfast conference concerned "Mexico's Government," and the discussion was led by Dr. Diaz Rubio, the first Presbyterian member of the Mexican Congress. They also were invited to visit the Chamber of Deputies while it was in session, a privilege extended to few people.

"All my life I've heard of Southern hospitality," said Niki, "but beside the hospitality we met in Mexico, it's pretty pale. The people there treated us fabulously."

In the afternoon of the same day, the young people were guests at the Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Bible School, and headquarters of the National (Presbyterian) Church in Mexico.

"They're expanding this seminary," said Nan Jackson, "because one of their great needs is for missionaries and clergy trained in Mexico. The level of the education of the Latin American and American personnel is high, and there are many Ph.D.'s and others who have obtained their degrees in the United States. However, there is a prejudice against such degrees, and people must be trained in Mexico for the work there."

On Dec. 31, the breakfast conference, led by a Methodist, Dr. Gonzalo Baenz-Carmargo, the leading Protestant churchman in Mexico, dealt with "Protestantism in Latin America." That day, the group left Mexico City by sleeping car for an overnight run to Morelia.

There they were welcomed by Dr. J. Hervey Ross, a missionary of the U. S. Presbyterian Church and their host while in Morelia.

This, the young people told members of the Presbyterian congregation Sunday, was a visit to a typical provincial capital, where the University of Michoacan was also situated, along with a Presbyterian Hospital, where student nurses of all religions were trained.

"It is a 130-bed hospital," Nan Jackson said, "operated with Presbyterian funds, and the nurses training school is affiliated with the University of Mexico. Next year they will have 90 student nurses in training. Up till now their training has been free, next year they may have to pay $8 a month."

From Morelia, the young people returned to Mexico City where they spent a leisurely day, shopping, sight-seeing and visiting the Museum of National History at the Castle of Chapultepec. On Jan. 4, they returned to Reynosa and McAllen and from there home.

One thing all three of them agree upon; they came back with a new concept of their own religion and of the Mexican people.

NEW CAUSEWAY—

Finished deck elevation of the trestle approaches to the navigation span will be 23 feet about mean sea level.

What would normally have cleared within a few weeks time was held up by unrealistic protests on the part of Refugio County organizations and individuals, who asked for clearance greater than those now allowed in the Nueces Bay Causeways. However, within recent weeks, action by County Judge John D. Wendell and members of the Aransas County Planning and Development Board has been instrumental in having these protests withdrawn.

At the same time that a new causeway was discussed, local sportsmen saw an opportunity to obtain something long wanted in this community, a public fishing pier, and immediately approached the legislative representatives in this district to have the old causeway put to this use.

A bill sponsored by State Senator W. N. Patman and State Representative Leroy Wieting passed both houses of the legislature during the present session, and is now awaiting the governor's signature.

On May 30, 1963, Congressman John Young phoned from Washington to say that the Chief of the Corps of Engineers, U.S. Army, had approved the plans for the causeway, and had instructed the District Office at Galveston to transmit this approval to the State Highway Department, and to issue a permit for construction of the facility.

This should have given the project the green light, and it did to the extent that the State Highway Department's engineers went ahead with the final planning, which had been held up by the Refugio County protests.

On September 12, T. O. Foster, District Engineer in charge of the Highway Department's Corpus Christi office, told Judge Wendell that the causeway would take approximately 2½ years to build, during a conference between Highway Department and county officials concerning the amount of roadway to be removed from the old fishing pier. He also outlined some changes that had been made in the new bridge. Instead of being 28 feet wide, arches ar closed by white as originally planned, it will have a 30-foot roadway, flanked on either side by walkways 18 inches wide.

Another thing, Foster said, was the fact that the Copano Bay Causeway would be built on what is known as a floating foundation. The piling driven would depend on friction of the surrounding material to hold them in place, and would never reach a solid foundation. This is feasible and common, he stated, but to make a good job, it would be necessary to dredge a trench along the course of the new causeway, removing all the silt and refilling the cut with sand similar to that which lay below the silt, which is about ten feet thick.

The meeting was called originally to consider the length of the old bridge that would be removed once the new one was finished. Foster stated that he did not want to remove any that would interfere with use of the old causeway as a fishing pier, or that would miss any of the reefs.

A study of aerial maps, and of charts prepared by Ernest Simmons, of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission, showed that some 500 feet of the center could be removed without interfering with fishing in any manner. This would amount to approximately 250 feet on either side of the present bascule bridge, which will also be removed. Foster said that the old causeway was built in 15 foot sections, and that between 16 and 17 of these would be removed on either side of the present span.

Apparently everything was rosy, and in December the Highway Department asked for the necessary permits from the U.S. Engineers to begin construction on the subsurface work needed for the bridge foundation.

In the plans accompanying the request to the engineers, the Highway Department said that it proposes to dredge two areas, construct three dikes, and place other unsuitable material from the dredging bayward from the zero contour at the bridge location.

The two dredged areas were to be located in Aransas Bay in proximity to the approaches of the bridge. An estimated 93,000 cubic yards of embankment to be used on the north approach was to be removed from the area, adjacent to the northern shore, and 72,000 cubic yards for the south approach was to come from that bay area.

The two dikes will be constructed about 200 feet bayward and parallel to the north and south right-of-way boundary lines of the Texas Highway Department on the shores of Copano Bay. Approximately 31,000 cubic yards of material unsuitable for the proposed dike were to be placed bayward from the proposed dike and zero contour at the north end of the causeway, and approximately 33,000 cubic yards was to be disposed of in like manner on the south end. The third dike was to be constructed 800 feet north from the dike at the south end, to protect an existing channel and boat ramp. No material was to be removed from the borrow areas below elevation minus 25 feet at mean low tide.

In the sketch map accompanying these specifications, the new causeway was shown as approximately 100 feet to the eastward of the present one. The high level middle span was to be protected by a fender system constructed of piling and timbers. The fenders were to be sixty feet long, with 36-foot wings extending shoreward at a 30-degree angle at each end.

This permit request sparked more trouble.

Despite the fact that the only three comprehensive surveys that have ever been made of the situation by competent biologists show that it is possible, under most circumstances, to dredge within 300 feet of oyster reefs without damaging them, another protest was entered by one of the fish and wildlife agencies who, either unaware of these surveys, or ignoring them, was all upset over the possible damage to oyster reefs in the area.

So far as is known, no survey was made by the agency of the situation by the agency that filed the protest who did it as a routine matter, to protect its own skirts. Be that as it may, the net effect was to place another stumbling block in the way of the causeway, and to cause the State Highway Department to fear that it would not be possible to call for bids last Thursday.

Some fast footwork on the part of the department's engineers took place, however, with rearrangement of spoil disposal areas, and the way was finally opened for contractors to bid on the facility Austin Bridge Company was the apparent low bidder, and though awarding such contracts always takes some time, there appears to be little doubt the bid will be accepted and the company's work crews will start sometime within the next month or so.

So, at long last, Aransas County will have two of the longest fishing piers in the world, and a new causeway will cross east of the old one. This will bring development of U. S. Highway 11 nearer to realization also. This highway, which will eventually reach from Maine to the Mexican border, using Highway 35 and Copano Causeway as one of its important links, will pour tourists and dollars into South Texas.

ROCKPORT B&PW HOLDS MEETING

The Rockport Business and Professional Woman's Club met Monday night, Jan. 27, at the home of Mrs. Kay Bergel. Business was conducted with the club contributing to the Mary O. Lillystrom fund. This fund is a state federation project which provides for the schooling of two foreign students at the University of Texas. This year's recipients are young ladies from Chile and Italy.

The club is planning to obtain a film from the National Federation on the U. S. foreign policy with plans to hold an open meeting so the public can also attend this showing. Plans also include the purchase of a filmstrip-record on "Resources of Leadership," interviews with leading women in governmental positions.

The program for the evening was a resume of a speech made by Mrs. Louise Bushness at the state convention in Corpus Christi last June. Her topic was "Shifting Responsibility," a speech concerned with the Latin American situation. Mrs. Bushness is with the National Association of Manufacturers, from New York.

Cemetery Association Elects New Officers

The annual meeting of the Rockport Cemetery Association was held Monday afternoon at the home of Misses Mabel and Genevieve Bracht. Preceding the business session, a social hour was enjoyed by twelve members in attendance.

Quarterly and annual reports were heard. The treasurer reported that a substantial check had been received from the Aransas County Commissioners and the secretary instructed to acknowledge same with thanks.

Officers were elected and include Mrs. W. B. Allen, president; Mrs. C. R. Gibson, first vice president; Mayor Herman Johnson, second vice president; Judge John D. Wendell, third vice president; Miss Vivien Picton, fourth vice president; Mrs. S. F. Jackson, secretary and Mrs. Harry Mills, treasurer.

Appointed by the president were Mrs. T. H. Ratliff, local membership chairman; Mrs. J. H. Mills, non resident members; Miss Mabel Bracht, memorials; Mrs. Crompton Sowerbutts, chaplain and Mrs. Joe Valdez, chairman of the Latin-American division of the cemetery.

The organization voted to pipe water to the Latin-American section of the cemetery.

The Police Beat . . .

Two Waco men were arrested Tuesday on Highway 35, south of Rockport, by deputy sheriffs Kilgore, Haynes and Chief Deputy Sheriff Hewes, and State Highway Patrolman Don Carr, after an alert had been issued by Assistant Chief Patterson of the Aransas Pass Police Department asking for their arrest. The men had left a filling station at Portland without paying for the gas they had purchased and the service station attendant had identified them as being possible suspects in a Corpus Christi armed robbery. A pistol was found in their car, but they were turned loose by the Corpus Christi police department after the person held up was unable to identify either of them.

Three Rockport youths were arrested in Laredo on Monday, while returning from Mexico in a Thunderbird belonging to Henry Munoz, and stolen from Sartor's Garage. Chief Deputy Hewes went to Laredo to return them to Rockport and jail them. Two were released after questioning, but the third is still in jail. Further questioning developed the information that one of the youths had written and passed a check in a Portland service station, and this information was passed along to Sheriff Homer R. Hunt, of San Patricio County, who is continuing the investigation.

Two 22-year-old men from Orange, Texas were apprehended during the week by Deputy Sheriff Joe Earl Hunt and members of the Aransas Pass Police Department in Aransas Pass, after Rockport Chief of Police Ernest Staustzenberger had obtained information that they had taken a tire and wheel from a car at the Campus Drive Inn.

They had a case full of beer, 48 cans—in their car, which they said had been given to them in Orange. A telephone call by Deputy Sheriff Hunt to Orange developed the information that they had not been given any beer, and further investigation showed that they had stolen the beer off a truck between Bay City and Blessing. They are being held for the Matagorda sheriff.

Several items stolen in Kingsville have been recovered for the police department of that city by Deputy Sheriff Kilgore. These items were sold in the Rockport area by a man who is being held by Kingsville police.

Deputy Sheriff Kilgore went to Angleton and picked up Steve Olsen, wanted for burglary of a fish house on Conn Brown Harbor in Aransas Pass. Olsen is being held in the Aransas County jail in lieu of $1500 bond, awaiting grand jury action.

The Aransas Auto Parts, near Aransas Pass, was burglarized over the weekend, and approximately $700 worth of used auto parts taken. Deputy Sheriff Kilgore is investigating the case, but no arrests have been made at this time.

Four men have been arrested, one by the Corpus Christi police department and the other three by the Highway Patrol, and are being held in the Aransas County Jail, after having been fined for intoxication.

Three Rockport's Are All Different Yet All The Same

Rockport, Maine, is a fishing port with houses high on rocky eminences above the harbor, where the tide rises, and falls as much as 10 or 15 feet a day. Charming, in its own way, it nevertheless possesses a grimness that not even the brightest summer day can altogether dispel.

Rockport, Mass., not far from Boston, also crowns hills above a rock girdled harbor, where the tides rise and fall so much that boats can only be moored to buoys in the basin, free to rise and fall with the tides.

In the middle of the harbor, there is an old red lobster house, beloved or artists, who are found everywhere around the town, both Sunday painters and permanent ones, sometimes asking astronomical prices for their canvases.

The streets of Rockport, Mass., are narrow and winding, lined with curio stores, and eating places, where lobster rolls can be purchased for half a dollar and the clam chowder is something to write about.

In summer, gaily-clad crowds from Boston and the metropolitan area around flood the streets every Sunday afternoon, and weekdays when they have time, flowing in and out of the stores and picnicking on the rocky foreshore that overlooks the harbor.

The harbor at Rockport, Mass., has 10 boats for every one at Rockport, Texas.

Instead of shrimp boats, there are lobstermen's craft that go and come during the day, running the long lines of gaily painted floats that mark the lobster traps from which many fishermen gain their living, and instead of the noisy and ubiquitous outboards of Rockport, Texas, there row after row of sailboats, swinging to their buoys, with enough scope on their lines to allow for changes of the wind.

Yet all three have much in common. The salt breath of the sea; the high brilliant sun; the soft, clinging fogs; the rumble of boat engines; the thump of feet against resounding hills, and much that can be said of one can be said of the other two. All of them are charming, each in its own way, yet are the same. The following poem, which appeared in the Christian Science Monitor on Jan. 9, can well apply to each of the three harbors, although it was doubtless written about Rockport, Mass., by George Sill Leonard. It says:

"The morning mist unveils the sun,
A seagull cries, and oarlock creaks,
The engine of a fishing boat
Knocks on the door of day.
The lazy harbor stirs and yawns
Nudged by the rising tide,
And gentle winds skim playfully
Across the imaged town
Upon the waters."

Spots of Interest

Biggest Chicken Coop In South Was at Rockport

Back in 1890 Rockport was a resort town, and sported the Aransas Hotel, built by Colonel Traylor, former Dallas mayor, in 1889. It covered an entire block, was three and one-half stories high, and was known among the gay young blades of those times as "the biggest chicken coop in Texas" because of the bevy of beauties that inhabited its balconies.

The town even had a gambling casino named "The Finish." In this beach front palace of pleasure, the hotshots of that day fortified their courage with nose paint in the basement bar, then ascended to the floor above to buck the games of chance.

MRS. GEORGIA CANTRELL HOME FROM HOSPITAL

"I never knew Rockport could look so good," said Mrs. Frazier Cantrell, "but when we struck the causeway I looked at the water and said to Frazier, 'Oh, isn't it pretty!' After 31 days in the hospital at Temple it's sure nice to be back."

"Everyone was so good to me, with flowers, cards, letters and visits and I appreciated every least bit of it, for a hospital can become pretty grim after you get over being real sick. But you can say I'm glad to be home."

Mrs. Cantrell, who has been in the Scott-White Hospital at Temple for over a month, came home Tuesday afternoon.

The trip will be climaxed with the naming of the 1964 Betty Crocker All-American Home-maker of Tomorrow. She will be chosen on the basis of her original test score together with personal observation and interviews during the trip. Her scholarship will be increased to $5,000. National runners-up will receive $4,000, $3,000, and $2,000 scholarships, respectively.

All time highs in the number of senior high school girls and schools enrolled marked this, the tenth annual Betty Crocker Search program. More than 484,000 girls in 14,000 of the nation's schools participated. Since the program was launched, more than three and a half million girls have participated and scholarships approximating one million dollars have been awarded.

The Betty Crocker Search is approved by the National Association of Secondary School principals. Judging is by Science Research Associates of Chicago, nationally known educational publishing and testing organization.

If this was not done by that time, the harbor master was instructed to take other action on the boat in question until the rent was paid.

"All but a very few people understood what we were trying to do, and we've had excellent cooperation from almost everyone. There have been a few people who have opposed us, and I suppose we'll always have those, but most of them, when they've understood what we're trying to do, went along with our action," Schindler said.
