Six Die Beneath Wreckage As Crack English Train Plunges From Tracks

ARCHER COUNTY DEEP WELL FLOWS NATURALLY

DE LUXE CARS STACK UP TO TRAP VICTIMS

Noted Grain Expert Killed As Speeding Limited Leaves Rails

CAUSE UNKNOWN

Fleet Express Mars Record For Safety in Long History

LEIGHTON-BUZZARD, England, March 22. (AP)—Three passengers and three of the train crew were killed today when the Royal Scot Express, one of the fastest and finest trains in the world, left the rails near here and piled up along the track.

One of the dead was Sir George Saltmarsh, grain expert who was vice chairman of the Allied Wheat Purchasing commission in 1915 and 1916. The engineer, the fireman and a dining car steward were killed and nine other passengers were seriously injured.

The cause of the accident was not immediately determined.

The accident, which occurred at 12:15 p. m., caused great excitement in this peaceful little countryside, 38 miles from London. Tangled wreckage blocked all traffic on the line.

Rescuers Work

Railroad men, firemen and others tore into the wreckage with hatchets, axes and crowbars in an effort to release those imprisoned. There was no great panic and, fortunately, there was no fire.

Among the bodies recivered were those of the engineer and fireman, the dining car cook, and three passengers, two of whom were unidentified. Railroad officials placed the number of seriously injured at nine.

Desperate efforts were made to save the engineer who was lying in his cab with escaping steam swirling around him, but he was scalded to death before his body was removed.

Women Trapped

Among those imprisoned were a Scottish woman, Mrs. Margaret Land, and her 18-year-old daughter, Dorothy, who were buried beneath the debris three hours. Both remained quiet during their agonizing wait and most of the time the girl's head was in her mother's lap. When finally extricated the mother was found not seriously hurt, but Miss Land suffered injuries that may necessitate the amputation of a leg.

The Royal Scot is one of the fastest trains in the world and about a month ago averaged 90 miles per hour for a 299-mile run from London to Carlisle, including time for slowing down and stopping at Carlisle. In 1928 it ran regularly 400 miles from London to Glasgow without stopping.

English railways have long prided themselves on their few serious accidents. The greatest disaster occurred in 1915 when a troop train ran into a stationary train at Gretna with the loss of 224 lives and 246 injuries.

Bodies of Air Crash Victims Recovered

PANAMA CITY, March 22. (US)—Killed when their plane crashed into Gatun lake during a severe electrical storm, the bodies of Paul Avril Wilson, Billings, Mont., navy pilot, first class, and George W. Vanegan, Minneapolis, a seaman passenger, were recovered by the U. S. S. Ellis today.

The accident occurred last night during navy aerial maneuvers. The plane plunged into the lake near Barro, Colorado island.

NEW YORK, March 22. (AP)—Protected by machine guns, millions of dollars moved through the Sunday morning deserted streets of the financial district today. About 125 policemen and special bank guards covered the path of the moving wealth.

Dies in Crash

Diminutive Arline Miller, Los Angeles aviatrix, lost her life Sunday when her plane cracked up at Glendale, Calif., also killing Ivan Devilles. Miss Miller held a transport pilot license, one of the few such ratings given women fliers. She was employed at selling airplanes by a Los Angeles concern.

GAS RUSHED TO RELIEF PLANE

Quest for Viking Victims Meets Delay

CORNER BROOK, N. F., March 22. (AP)—After a seven-hour flight from St. John, N. B., Bernt Balchen and his two companions, en route from Boston, Mass., to the scene of the Viking disaster, brought their amphibian down here today.

Hope of continuing immediately to Horse Island to start the search for two Americans and 24 other men presumably lost in the explosion that destroyed the sealing ship a week ago, was dissipated when the fliers found that the gasoline supply here was not suitable for the big plane.

It was revived almost immediately, however, when arrangements were put through for a special train with 25 casks of airplane gasoline to leave St. Johns, several hundred miles away on the east coast, within a few hours. Whether the fuel can arrive tomorrow, however, is problematical because of weather conditions.

Meanwhile a second plane, piloted H., carrying Al Mingalone, a commercial photographer, passed over Corner Brook shortly after the Balchen plane came down and was last reported well inland toward White bay and Horse Island. A third plane, piloted by C. F. Kent, who took off from Monston, N. B., Saturday with the intention of obtaining news pictures, was down at Pictou, N. S., with spark plug trouble.

Information from the vicinity of Horse Island was that the eight men who constituted the last of the survivors of the Viking, had been taken off this morning, six of them on stretchers, by 50 seamen under direction of a Dr. Patterson, one of the rescue ship surgeons.

Burglars Start Fire in Electra

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, March 22.—The home of M. J. Persky, 102 West Wharton, was damaged to the extent of $1,000 by fire shortly after midnight Saturday while the family was in Fort Worth. Police officials believe the fire was started accidently by burglars who broke in the home and stole approximately $50 in two savings banks, a shot gun and pistol.

Fire thought to have originated from a lighted cigar destroyed the home and most of the furnishings belonging to Tom Kinnebrew, 704 East Glisson, Sunday afternoon. The loss has been estimated at approximately $1,000 by J. T. Taylor, police chief.

SEVEN TRAPPED CHILDREN DIE IN HOME FIRE

Parents and Six Others Escape as Roof Crumbles

FLAMES CLAIM BABY

Crib Falls Into Blazing New Hampshire Dwelling

HOLDERNESS, N. H., March 22. (AP)—Seven children of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Avery died in the little parlor of their back roads home early today in a fire which consumed the building in less than a quarter of an hour.

The dead: Sperle, 20; George, 14; Harry, 10; Alfred, 9; Milton, 5; Daisy, 3, and Joseph, 5 months.

Three Injured

The parents and six other children, three of the latter severely burned, escaped. The burned children were John, 18; Frank, 17; and Thomas, 16. All were taken to a hospital in Plymouth, where it was believed they would recover.

Sperle, returning home early this morning, discovered smoke and roused the others. All except the 5-months-old Joseph had huddled together in the living room when some one inadvertently opened a door to the rear of the house. Instantly flames, carried by the draft, swept through, enveloping the group.

Mother Escapes

Mr. and Mrs. Avery, two small sons and a daughter, Violet, 8, escaped through the small door leading to the road. The others were enveloped by the flames and only three were able to fight their way free.

A few minutes later the upper floor gave way, carrying with it into the inferno the crib that held the baby.

Neighbors, roused by the flames, summoned the single motor truck that is Plymouth's only fire equipment but by the time it had arrived there was nothing that could be done.

Large Family

Mr. and Mrs. Avery had one of the largest families in the state. They have had nearly 20 children, several of whom are dead, while others have homes of their own.

The cause of the blaze could not be determined.

Avery, an odd-jobs man, had been ill for the past six months. The house was a two-story, wooden frame building in dilapidated condition.

Child Burned as Car Blazes After Collision

KANSAS CITY, March 22. (AP)—Burned as a motor car burst into flames after a head-on collision, Martha McGaughey, 3-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. McGaughey, died today.

Hobart Coen, 25, was killed today when thrown off a motorcycle which hit the rear of an automobile. Investigators said Coen's body landed upon a whisky bottle he was carrying. They blamed his death partly to a severe gash he suffered from the broken bottle.

Farmer Held in Fatal Dance Hall Shooting

TEXARKANA, Ark., March 22. (AP)—A 50-year-old Miller county farmer was in custody in connection with the fatal shooting of Bill Hodge, 32, at a dance hall east of Texarkana early today.

He was arrested 19 miles from Texarkana by Sheriff Walter Harris and Deputy Harry Oliver. They said his car had broken down. Filing of charges awaited completion of their investigation by officers.

Texas Woman Dies After Taking Poison

FORT WORTH, March 22. (AP)—Mrs. Mildred Matthews, 23, Waco, Texas, died here today from the effects of poison. She was found seated in an automobile, an empty bottle that had contained poison by her side, and was taken to a hospital, where she died about two hours later.

Officer on Wilkins Polar Submarine Is Swept Overboard and Drowned

NEW YORK, March 22. (AP)—The navy base in Brooklyn was informed today that Willard I. Grimmer, quartermaster of Sir Hubert Wilkins' polar submarine, Nautilus, was swept overboard and drowned while the submarine was off Swinburne island, in the lower bay, on its way to the navy yard from Claymont, Del., this afternoon. The submarine passed quarantine with its flag at half mast.

The Nautilus, which will be used by Sir Hubert on an arctic exploration cruise next summer, is on its way to the navy base, where it is to be christened Tuesday by Jean Jules Verne, grandson of the French novelist.

Commander Sloan Danenhower is in command of the undersea craft on its journey from Delaware.

Grimmer, whose name in first reports was also given as Giller, was 24 years old. His home is in Philadelphia.

Word of the drowning came in a radio message for help from the submarine, which was in tow of the tugboat. The Nautilus and the Caspian stopped while their crews searched for the body of the seaman. A police launch, a coast guard patrol boat and a hydroplane from Curtiss field and a police airplane arrived to help in the hunt.

The search, which was hampered by rough water and a stiff breeze, was abandoned after two and one-half hours.

PHILADELPHIA, March 22. (AP)—Willard I. Grimmer, a member of the crew of the polar submarine Nautilus who drowned off Swinburn island today, leaves a bride of less than three weeks, having been married here early this month to Miss Mary Fountain, 21.

Six Plunge To Death In Series Of Sunday Disasters In The Air

GLENDALE, Calif., March 22. (UP)—Dainty Arlene Miller, 22-year-old aviatrix, and Ivan Devilles, 25, were killed when their airplane was wrecked at Grand Central air terminal here today. A washout of landing gear was responsible for the crack-up, which cost the life of one of the tiniest woman fliers in the United States.

Weighing only 100 pounds and standing barely 4 feet, 11 inches tall Miss Miller was one of the few women holding a transport pilot license, the highest rating. She had recently taken a job as saleswoman for an airplane concern in Los Angeles.

PLANE HITS ELECTRIC WIRES

ST. LOUIS, March 22. (UP)—Horrified motorists late today saw a youthful national guard captain and his sweetheart in a tail-spinning airplane crash to their death on high tension wires paralleling one of the heaviest traveled roads leading from St. Louis.

Had the plane in which Capt. Ray Bowers, 24, of the Missouri national guard, and Miss Betty Eslinger, 21, were killed, fallen a few feet to the left, it would have crashed into a double stream of Sunday afternoon automobiists.

The ship had gone into a spin, zoomed close to the ground and was just being righted by Captain Bowers when it slid in a shower of sparks into the wires. The plane hovered about 20 feet above the ground for a moment, caught fire and crashed to earth in flames. Both Captain Bowers and Miss Eslinger were dead before their bodies could be pulled from the smouldering debris.

DOWNDRAFT CATCHES SHIP

BURKBANK, Calif., March 22. (UP)—A man and his wife were killed when the biplane in which they took off from the United airport here today struck a downdraft and plunged to the field.

Curious Indian Runs 1,000 Miles to See British Royal Heirs

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 22. (US)—Into the capital today came an Indian who said he had run 1,000 miles from his home in the interior to see the Prince of Wales, when the British heir and his brother, Prince George, arrive here from Montevideo Wednesday.

The princes are en route aboard the steamer Alcantara. Their official activities here have been reduced to a minimum in order to give them time for a hunting expedition into the interior.

BIRTH CONTROL VOTE FLAYED

Church Council Charged With 'Bartering'

DETROIT, March 22. (UP)—In approving birth control, the Federal Council of Churches of Christ of America, has "traded and bartered the people of this country to the god of political economy," the Rev. Chase Coughlin, pastor of the Shrine of the little flower, declared in an address broadcast over the Columbia system today.

Father Coughlin earnestly disputed the statement that the federal council "speaks for 22,000,000 Protestants," saying that instead it is "again writing buncombe for the wealthy."

Characterizing the council's action as "handing over the fundamentals of the natural law to the ideals of paganism," Father Coughlin said:

"Those of us who are acquainted with the activities of communistic doctrines in this country have long since breathed rather nervously at the activities of certain officials of the federal council in abetting the doctrines of Lenin and advocating the ideals of Bolshevism."

Theory Traced

The speaker then traced the theory of economic pressure as an argument for birth control through the histories of Greece and Rome, pointing out that as life became luxurious in those nations, "passions begin to dictate to reason."

"Birth control," he continued, "was advocated by the cultured lest the nation perish."

"Wherever the pagan spirit of Greece and Rome, China, Japan and India exists today, there is found a counterpart of the theory that economic pressure bears the right to kill the unborn child or to prevent conception because the father is unable to support his offspring on the unjust and unlivevable wages which have followed in the wake of mass production.

"Both shortage of money and the shortage of food," he concluded, "are due solely to the criminal perverseness that refuses a sound plan of distribution for the world's goods."

KANSAS PREACHERS TAKE STAND

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 22. (UP)—Birth control is a problem confronting churches, Kansas City ministers of different denominations agreed today. Although every minister interviewed by the United Press believed the economic status of the country generally made a degree of birth control necessary, they differed as to their personal views.

"The well-to-do class now has birth control while the poverty-stricken do not," said Dr. Burris Jenkins of the Linwood Boulevard Christian church. "As a mercy to mothers, I believe in birth control and a granting of wider knowledge concerning control to the masses."

"Churches must take a stand one way or the other on birth control," said Dr. G. Charles Gray of the Westminister Congregational church. "I agree with the majority report of the federal council of Churches of Christ in America."

Dr. J. Layton Mauze, minister to the Central Presbyterian church, South, and president of the Kansas City Council of Churches, agreed with the minority report, which endorses abstinence to control birth rather than contraceptives.

Tax Battle Seen Today In Oklahoma Senate

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 22. (UP)—A battle of administration and anti-administration forces tonight appeared imminent in the Oklahoma state senate for tomorrow over Gov. W. H. Murray's proposed tax on cigars and cigarets.

The bill, providing a tax of 2 cents for each package of cigarets and 10 per cent of the retail price of cigars, failed to pass in the senate Saturday.

Senator Chamberlain announced he would re-submit the bill again Monday. Several senators were absent Saturday when the bill roll was called.

GUTHRIE, Okla., March 22. (AP)—Retrial of P. V. Ruch, county attorney of Tillman county, charged with conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws through working with a "liquor ring" in the manufacture and distribution of whisky and beer, is scheduled to get under way in federal court here tomorrow.

Ruch's first trial at Oklahoma City several months ago, which was held jointly with that of a large number of other defendants, ended in a deadlocked jury. A constable, former constable and the then sheriff of Tillman county pleaded guilty to the liquor conspiracy.

Search for Missing U. S. Aviator Abandoned

MANILA, March 22. (AP)—A fruitless search for Glenn W. Brophy, Los Angeles aviator, who disappeared Thursday while flying from the Chinese coast to Manila, ended today with the return of three destroyers which had combed the South China sea. A search by army planes ended yesterday after a greater part of the island of Luzon had been covered.

It was generally felt here Brophy was forced down shortly after leaving Macao, China, and hope he still remained alive was based on the belief he may have been picked up by a Japanese or Chinese fishing boat.

San Antonio Ranks With Seven Oldest U. S. Cities

WASHINGTON, March 22. (US)—San Antonio is one of only seven cities in America with a population of more than 200,000 that can boast of 200 years of municipal existence, the National Geographic society disclosed today.

Calling attention to the recent 200th anniversary celebration of the Texas town of the Alamo, the article pointed out that San Antonio had 50 years of history behind it before settlements were made at San Francisco and Los Angeles, and 75 years before the forts which later became Chicago and Buffalo were founded.

The automobile, traveling at high speed, struck a snowbank and careened into the approaching street car.

FORCES GATHER FOR DECISIVE OIL CURB FIGHT

State Proration Hearing on Tuesday Draws Producers

PRELIMINARIES SET

Sterling's Commission Bill To Be Aired in House Tonight

AUSTIN, March 22. (AP)—Oil was expected to be one of the dominant subjects here this week as it was in the week ended yesterday.

More than 1,000 producers and royalty owners were expected to attend the proration hearing before the railroad commission Tuesday. The hearing will be held on the roof of a downtown hotel and even that may not be big enough to accommodate the crowd. The central proration committee, which recommends the production figures, will meet tomorrow afternoon or night. A large group of East Texans represented by former Governor Moody and others, is opposing proration of the new Rusk-Gregg county area at this time. It had been hinted that in case the railroad commission should prorate, the East Texans might carry their fight to the courts.

Hearing on Bill

Governor Sterling last week asked the legislature to create an appointive oil conservation commission to take over the railroad commission's duty of regulating oil and gas.

A hearing on a bill carrying out the governor's plan will be held tomorrow night before the house oil, gas and mining committee. Representative Hardy of Breckenridge, chairman of the committee, had announced his opposition to an appointive commission.

Proponents of the bill exempting small oil wells from proration perhaps will attempt to have the house pass the proposal tomorrow. The

FATHER FACES DEATH TRIAL

Girl's Suicide Blamed for Beaumont Slaying

BEAUMONT, Texas, March 22. (UP)—Most of Beaumont's Methodist church members will be in district court here tomorrow for the trial of A. B. Johnson, 40, a devout Methodist father who says that he killed Otis Lee Adams, 22, a Sunday school teacher at the same church, because he caused Elizabeth Johnson, 17, daughter of the defendant to kill herself in front of the church.

The girl's fiance, Robert L. Williams, 18, University of Texas sophomore and a son of Rev. S. W. Williams, former Beaumont Methodist pastor, said that he left her in his car while he went into Rev. Glenn Flinn's study and begged the minister to intercede in a lovers' quarrel over attentions which Otis Lee Adams, a married man separated from his wife, had been paying the girl.

Williams said that he returned to find his sweetheart mortally shot in the breast. A murder charge was filed against the youth but a grand jury subsequently exonerated him. Three weeks later, Johnson, team foreman for the Gulf Refining company, sought out Adams, a clerk in the medical department of the same company.

The father found the man he believed responsible for his daughter's death in a cleaning shop. Johnson began firing without a word.

Johnson then drove to the police station and surrendered. He was later released on $10,000 bond without making any statement other than that he had killed the man he believed responsible for his daughter's death.

For 1929 the company reported net earnings of $4,720,856, equal to $12.63 a share.

ESTIMATE PUTS PRODUCTION AT 700 BARRELS

Increasing Gas Pressure Brings Out 250 Barrels By Heads

CROWD JAMS LEASE

New Development Bodes Rich New Field for Archer County

ARCHER CITY, Texas, March 22.—The Deep Oil Development company's No. 1 L. F. Wilson, four miles north of Archer City, started flowing by heads late Sunday afternoon, spouting an estimated 250 barrels of oil across the slush pit in the first 12 minutes of its voluntary performance.

After the first head was emitted, the fluid settled in the hole and the 10-inch shaft started filling again.

Hundreds of spectators at the well, many of them oil men, were convinced deep oil production in Archer county had become a reality. Harry Hines, of the Deep Oil company, said the production as indicated in the first flow woud be 700 barrels per day. Other oil men ran their estimates as high as 1,000 barrels.

Total depth of the well is 2214½ feet. It has 144 feet of open hole and the walls have caved badly since the oil sand was picked up at 2212 feet. The natural flow Sunday indicated the increased gas pressure was cleaning out the hole despite constant cavings.

To Drill More Sand

Mr. Hines said an eight-inch liner will be run Monday to shut off the cavings. The hole will then be cleaned out and more sand will be drilled. The operators do not know the thickness of the sand, having penetrated it only two and a half feet when a bailing test was made Saturday.

The well bailed 12 barrels per hour without lowering the fluid in the hole. It stood untouched overnight but visitors on the lease Sunday could hear the noise of the increasing gas flow and the cavings. The oil rose steadily in the hole throughout the day until about 4:30 o'clock when it belched out the first cloud of oil spray.

The oil flew across the 250-foot slush pit and a strong wind carried some of the spray on across a nearby wheat field.

Some of the spectators shouted with joy at the sight. Drillers and company officials were congratulated on every hand.

After the flow subsided many of the spectators settled down to await subsequent flows and an endless line of automobiles added hundreds to the crowd which numbered close to 1,000 persons as darkness fell.

Three Oil Formations

Three formations carrying oil have been encountered in the well. The first was at 2208-2210 feet and baled out five barrels per hour. Then a hard oil sand at 2210-2212 feet was tested, increasing the output to nine barrels per hour.

Proceeding carefully, the crew resumed drilling and immediately the bit encountered a soft, oil-saturated sand and the bailer was run again. This time the rush of oil into the bottom of the hole and increased until it was impossible to lower the fluid level by bailing. This operation was continued until cavings barred the path of the bailer.

It had been planned to celan out and swab the well in, but the natural flow of Sunday caused a change in the plans.

The well is in the old Chalk Hill shallow field and in block 76, Wilson lands. It is surrounded by shallow producers and dry holes. On the lease itself, three 1500-foot dry holes were drilled several years ago.

Radio Entertainer's Death Brings Charge

'Child Bride of Confederacy' Dies With 'Memory Chain' Unfinished

WASHINGTON, March 22. (AP)—Mrs. La Salle Corbell Pickett, widow of Gen. George E. Pickett, leader of the last Confederate charge at Gettysburg, died today at a peaceful private hospital in Rockville, Md., suburb of this city.

For several months she had been under treatment, but her death was hastened by injury in an accidental fall.

As "the child bride of the Confederacy" she was the toast of the romantic South during civil war days, and she carried forward her husband's fame through a half century of widowhood.

The stirring story of Gettysburg came vividly from her lips, and she told it on chautauqua platforms from coast to coast, and between the covers of several books.

As the years passed her title became "Mother Pickett." She sent a son to the Spanish war and a grandson to the world war. And through it all she proudly carried the tradition of her type—the gentlewoman of the old South.

Presidents fondly referred to her as "Mother Pickett." She knew them all from Lincoln. Diplomats, actors, authors came to her drawing room. She wrote intimate reminiscences of Julia Ward Howe, Mrs. Jefferson Davis, Mrs. Robert E. Lee, Lucy Larcom, Clara Barton, Louisa May Alcott, and Celia Thaxter.

To the time of her death she was still weaving word pictures of the characters she found interesting—and who found her interesting. Most colorful of all her manuscripts was the one she left unfinished, "My Memory Chain." Its chapters were to have been the human-in-

VERNON COURT OPENS TODAY

Donohoe Death Case Set for Term

Special to The Record News

VERNON, Texas, March 22.—The March term of the 46th district court will open Monday morning with Judge W. N. Stokes on the bench. District Attorney John Myers announced two criminal cases already set down for trial by Judge Stokes.

James Foster, charged with seduction, will go on trial Monday, March 30.

Verner Donohoe, charged with murder, will be given his third trial on Monday, April 6. Mr. Donohoe is charged with the murder of Herman Walden in February, 1929. Both men were working in the oil fields around Rock Crossing and young Walden disappeared one Sunday night. His bullet riddled body was found the following Friday on the banks of Minnas creek south of Rock Crossing. Donohue was arrested a few days later and tried in the April term of court in 1929. He was sentenced to 25 years in the penitentiary.

His case was appealed and he was placed in jail at Fort Worth where he remained until the summer of 1930. His case was reversed and a new trial granted. During the summer of 1930 after he had been brought back to Vernon four men broke jail and Donohue gave the alarm. A few days later Judge Stokes reduced his bond which he made and was released from jail after 18 months.

In the January, 1931, term of court Donohoe was again tried and the jury was unable to agree on a verdict and was discharged.

Hall Terracing Show Draws Crowd

Special to The Record News

MEMPHIS, Texas, March 22.—Despite the threatening weather, the terracing demonstration, held at the T. M. Isham farm, one and one-half miles northwest of Lakeview, was a decided success. There were about 150 or 200 farmers and business men of both Memphis and Lakeview present.

Preceding the demonstration, there was a meeting of the interested parties at the courthouse Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The first speaker of the evening was M. B. Oates, of the Fort Worth and Denver railroad, one of the sponsors of the demonstration. This speech was followed by one from Mr. Bennitt from the A. and M. college, another sponsor, on the waste of soil in the farms not terraced and the benefit of terracing and crop rotation. A. K. Short followed this speaker, on the importance of terracing and crop rotation. Mr. Short represented the Federal Land bank of Houston, still another sponsor of the demonstration.

This demonstration was given to promote the idea of terracing and rotation of crops in Hall county.

State Deaths

G. T. GRIGSBY

Special to The Record News

QUANAH, Texas, March 22.—G. T. Grigsby, 61, died here at home of his brother, W. E. Grigsby, owner of Cinderella Cake shop, and was buried Friday in Quanah cemetery.

Born in Sulphur Springs, Mr. Grigsby had spent his entire life in Texas, most of it in West Texas. He farmed for 10 years near Lubbock. For the past 18 months he had made his home here with his brother. He had never married.

Besides his brother, W. E., he is survived by a sister, Mrs. May Vance, Taylor, Texas.

Refiners Find Distress Outlet

Special to The Record News.

TULSA, Okla., March 22.—The optimistic tone of the Oklahoma refinery market continues to grow as the excess material is absorbed, and a check by prominent brokers and jobbers revealed that 3¾ cents was the bottom for the distress material. Options at that figure could be obtained only for shipment within 10 days and it is understood few of these contracts were made.

A further check reveals that April delivery ranges from 3½ cents up, indicating that the bright side of the picture again is presenting itself to refiners and sales managers.

Refiners also are optimistic for the most part regarding the situation in East Texas and little actual fear is held by the industry as a whole, members believing that the fight can end but one way.

Such a view has given additional strength to the market. Jobbers from out of a state seeking bargains Friday were sorely disappointed as large inquiries tightened the sagging places in the market.

One marketer has finished the purchase of 175 cars of strictly U. S. motor specification gasoline. There also is further indication that jobber buying for storage is not far off.

Natural gasolines are firming up with one of the large manufacturers withdrawing from the market for the next six weeks because output has been contracted. Jobbers also are a bit active in this list.

Burning oils continue fair, with gas oils and distillates leading the way. In spite of the low price of crude oil, fuel oils are firming up.

Coming Events Anticipated By Wichita Falls Society

More than the usual number of entertaining social and club events are scheduled on the social calendar for the coming week. The joint meeting of the three divisions making up the Fine Arts department will start Woman's Forum activities. Local artists will have the past year's work hanging at this time and probably through the week and at ten following the musical and dramatic program to be given Tuesday at 3 o'clock, they will be introduced and give gallery talks.

Mrs. W. E. Young has announced a delightful program for that date, including a two-piano number by Mesdames Ben Bell and Lester Jones, a one-act play by Mrs. Thomas Korn, assisted by Misses Marian Proctor and Mary Louise Yeargin, and particularly lovely musical selections to close the program.

Mrs. W. P. Killingsworth will introduce the artists and tea will be served. This meeting is open to all forum members and hostesses include Mesdames E. H. Eddleman, J. A. Richolt, T. W. Roberts, Marvin Smith, R. L. Underwood, F. P. Warren and Fred Weeks.

Luncheon Wednesday

The annual luncheon given as a final courtesy by the general forum each spring to honor members who live outside Wichita Falls will be given at noon Wednesday. Beautiful decorations have been arranged for this occasion and "Madame Butterfly" will be presented on a stage where lanterns, cherry blossoms and wistaria make a perfect Japanese background.

Mrs. Newton Maer will give the synopsis of the play and Mrs. C. Y. Tully will give "Madame Butterfly" numbers and Mrs. Walter Priddy the songs of Syuki, each artist in costume. Mrs. Lucile Brooks Huff will accompany the singers with Mrs. Flora Anderson Greenwood playing the violin obligato.

Committees have been appointed for each phase of work and reservations are being taken by Mesdames J. C. Mytinger, 2-5755, and Phil Lesh, 9557.

Junior Forum Operetta

The annual mothers and daughters luncheon given by members of the Junior Forum will take place Saturday when members of the Fort Worth Junior Woman's club will be guests of the local organization.

Under the supervision of Mesdames Darrold Kahn, Lloyd Taylor and Miss Marjorie Bright, a program unique in interest and colorful in each number will be presented.

"Opera Versus Jazz," the title of the production which was written and adapted to music by Mrs. Darrold Kahn assisted by Mrs. Taylor as accompanist and Miss Bright as stage manager promises to be as brilliant as any given by local talent.

The eight scenes of the clever operetta will be given against backgrounds appropriate for each number. Song, dance and stage arrangements will combine to produce an annual fete worth remembering.

Reservations for the luncheon, which will be served for 40 cents, may be made with Mrs. T. A. Hicks, 5625, and Miss Mary Tancred, 9131.

Membership Campaign

The annual membership campaign for the next club year has already been inaugurated and those joining now will be privileged to attend the remainder of the forum meetings. There will be several junior forum meetings, as the juniors' season lasts longer than that of the senior forum. The Emily Newell Blair lecture to be given in April is a forum attraction that has been anticipated with pleasure during the entire season. New members may attend that and all department meetings.

Miss Moore Honoree

Miss Ruth Moore, the charming bride-elect whose engagement and approaching marriage to Gordon Fulcher, to take place April 4, has been announced, will be extended a number of pretty pre-nuptial courtesies during the week.

The pretty announcement luncheon given by her mother Saturday was the opportunity desired by many friends to show their friendship for this popular member of the young society set. Breakfasts, luncheons and showers have already been announced and up to the date of the marriage, one pretty party will follow fast upon another.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

Mrs. L. N. Cason,
Editor of "Peeps at People."
Dear Mrs. Cason:

"Peeps at People" is a spicy little column that makes one rush to the front porch to get the morning paper. It is entertaining as well as inspirational.

It is said "a rose by any other name would smell as sweet."—be that as it may—I do not believe your little column would hold the same interest under any other name.

We do not have time in this old busy world of ours, to do or see all the things we would like to, but, a "peep" into this little column starts the day with zest, and all day we find ourselves "peeping" around for lovely things after reading "Peeps at People."

Cordially,
PEARLE MOORE STEVENS.

◆ ◆ ◆

It seems that the debate about changing the name of our column is almost over without the negative side stating a case. We had in the same mail with Mrs. Steven's letter, a longer one written by Mrs. Pearl Gilman, route two, Olney, Texas, who says she has been reading the column for more than a year and ends a most encouraging epistle with "so just keep peeping."

◆ ◆ ◆

Then C. E. Johnson, superintendent of mails, warned us Saturday that if there were really danger of changing the column's name, he intended to enter a protest. We must not antagonize federal employes. Mr. Johnson said, after this warning—as if in explanation—"You know men read your column," and we've been wondering ever since if he meant men can do their "peeping" only through a woman's eyes. The most indefatigable "peeper" of whom we know was one Samuel Pepys.

◆ ◆ ◆

But enough of this. With the encouragement we've had, we hand to you a bit of romance we learned just because our public knows we're all agog for interesting news.

◆ ◆ ◆

Not so many years ago, one of the young married couples of Wichita Falls journeyed back to a little town in East Tennessee to participate in the wedding of the husband's "kid sister," as he called her.

◆ ◆ ◆

It was a typical small town wedding, with all the trimmings. The little First Christian church was filled with flowers and ferns and at the proper moment, with the accompaniment of the immortal wedding music, down the aisle came the self conscious ushers and the fluttery bridesmaids, the maid of honor and the more important members of the wedding party.

◆ ◆ ◆

A charming little miss, neighbor and chum of the bride, just as fluttery and excited as the others, stood on the rostrum of the church and sang in a sweet, wistful voice "Oh Promise Me."

◆ ◆ ◆

No one commented particularly on the charm of the singer's voice. The wedding was the thing! And the singer was just one of the girls whose singing in the choir and in church, school and social affairs, was taken as a matter of course.

◆ ◆ ◆

But probably by mutual understanding between the bride and her chum, it was the singer who caught the bride's bouquet when that time honored rite was observed.

On Sunday night, March 15, the Wichita Falls couple who went to take part in that wedding sat in their home on Hayes street and over NBC chain heard their sister's former chum—that little girl who sang at her wedding, proclaimed as one of the most popular and talented singers of the Metropolitan opera in New York.

And last Wednesday night, they heard her again and saw her—Grace Moore with the beautiful voice in beautiful songs in "The New Moon" at the Majestic theater.

Really a star high in the firmament of success, we thought. All that Mr. and Mrs. Porter Oakes thought also, but first of all to them, the "kid sister's" chum, who sang at her wedding a few years ago, back in the little mountain town of Jellico, Tenn.

When You
CAN'T QUIT

Fatigue is the signal to rest. Obey it if you can. When you can't, keep cool and carry-on in comfort.

Bayer Aspirin was meant for just such times, for it insures your comfort. Freedom from those pains that nag at nerves and wear you down. One tablet will block that threatening headache while it is still just a threat. Take two or three tablets when you've caught a cold, and that's usually the end of it.

Carry Bayer Aspirin when you travel. Have some at home and keep some at the office. Like an efficient secretary, it will often "save the day" and spare you many uncomfortable, unproductive hours. Perfectly harmless, so keep it handy, keep it in mind, and use it. No man of affairs can afford to ignore the score and more of uses explained in the proven directions. From a grumbling tooth to those rheumatic pains which seem almost to bend the bones, Bayer Aspirin is ready with its quick relief—and always works. Neuralgia. Neuritis. Any nagging, needless pain.

Bayer-Tablets Aspirin Genuine

Get the genuine tablets, stamped with the Bayer cross. They are of perfect purity, absolute uniformity, and have the same action every time. Why experiment with imitations costing a few cents less? The saving is too little. There is too much at stake. But there is economy in the purchase of genuine Bayer Aspirin tablets in the large bottles.

Fischer Appeals For Support for 'Anti' Candidates

The following statement was issued Sunday by F. W. Fischer, urging support of P. B. Cox, W. B. Corlett and Fred Cone in the race for city aldermen:

"I intend to vigorously support P. B. Cox, W. B. Corlett and F. L. Cone for positions on the city board of aldermen, for I believe that only by their election will the citizens of Wichita Falls be able to obtain any relief from the present high cost of the city administration and the abnormally high gas and other utility rates, and also have our water department repaired and improved immediately without placing additional tax burdens upon our citizens.

Attacks Administration

"It is true these gentlemen have not amassed great fortunes but as far as their intelligence and integrity are concerned, they are surpassed by no one. C. E. McCutchen, R. O. Harvey and J. M. Spoonts, the administration candidates, are excellent gentlemen whose integrity cannot be questioned, but it is evident from what they have already said and done, that if they are re-elected, they intend to do nothing that would bring about a reduction in the gas and other utility rates. In fact, they have already with the other two members of the council and the city manager, committed themselves to the proposition that nothing can be done about the high utility rates and the people must wait until the different utility corporations that are serving us with gas, electricity and telephones, voluntarily reduce their respective rates. These gentlemen have taken this position honestly and because they believe the utility rates in Wichita Falls are not excessive. This is because they occupy an entirely different station in life from that of the average man. To these gentlemen it is of little importance whether the gas company receives 75 cents per 1,000 cubic feet for its gas, which it is now receiving, or 50 cents per 1,000 cubic feet. But to the average man this difference means a great deal for it would go a long way toward paying his grocery bill. To the administration candidates, it is of no importance whether the electric company receives 12 cents per kilowatt for electricity, which is the rate it now receives, or six cents, which is the average rate over the United States; but to the average man this difference would go a long way toward clothing his children. To the administration candidates it is of no importance whether they pay $3.50 per month for residence telephone service, which is the average rate now being charged in Wichita Falls, or $1.50 per month, which is reasonable under present conditions. But this difference would go a long way in furnishing shoes for the children of the average man. The present utility rates were established during the inflation period following the war, when a dollar was worth only 47 cents, but a dollar is now worth $1.43. Yet these utility corporations insist that their rates are reasonable and the administration candidates agree with them and have already declared that if they are re-elected nothing will be attempted to bring about a reduction in these rates.

Salary Cuts

"Cox, Corlett and Cone have declared that if they are elected, they will do everything within their power to reduce these utility rates and I know to a certainty that if they are elected, the gas rates in Wichita Falls on Oct. 1, 1931, will not be more than 50 cents per 1,000 cubic feet and we will receive gas that has at least 1,000 B. T. U. heat units and not the character of gas that we have been burning the past winter which has been practically stripped of its heat qualities.

"The administration candidates have already manifested their intention of retaining the services of the present city manager at a salary that is three times more than his services are worth, and also keeping in effect the high salaries being paid the heads of various departments of the city. A few days ago, the city manager, evidently under the direction of the city council and because of the coming election, made a reduction of 10 per cent in the salaries of all city employes. This left the city manager the insignificant sum of $8,750 per year as his salary, and took from each of the firemen and policemen from $12 to $17 per month. To the gentlemen now composing the council and the city manager with his princely salary, such amounts are nothings, but to the families of these brave men who daily expose themselves to danger in protecting our homes and property, this reduction in their salaries means everything above a mere existence. This is not only unjust, but unspeakably cruel.

"If Cox, Corlett and Cone are elected, the former salaries of these men will be restored, and the salaries of the city manager and the heads of the various departments who have desk jobs will be reduced to what their services are worth, by which, and with the other savings effected by the elimination of other unnecessary expenses now being borne by the city, sufficient funds will readily be available so that work can commence immediately upon the repair and improvement of the water system without increasing the tax or water rate in any respect, whether such work is done gradually or all at once.

Water Improvement

"If the administration candidates are re-elected, it is certain that we can expect no repair or improvement of our water system as they have repeatedly declared that such improvement is impossible without the issuance of $1,000,000 worth of bonds.

"As the great majority of our citizens are not willing to do this, then if we are to have our water system repaired and improved without a million dollar bond issue, it follows that we must turn the job over to some one other than the present council.

"P. B. Cox, W. B. Corlett and F. L. Cone are average men; they think and feel with the average man; what effects the average man affects them. As to the average man is the one who in the end bears the burden of the cost of our city administration, it is high time that he has some representation upon our governing body. Therefore, it is obvious that the average men of the city and all those who desire a reduction in their tax and utility rates ought to be united in their support of these gentlemen."

Dutch Oven Goodness

The secret of Dutch Oven cooking was not lost—just forgotten for a while because women don't have the time to take the infinite care which old-fashioned Dutch Oven cooking requires.

But modern women have found a way to duplicate the famous goodness of Dutch Oven cooking, and less time is required than in ordinary cooking. The Westinghouse Flavor Zone Oven cooks foods in a retained heat that gradually recedes. It cooks automatically, without the slightest bit of attention. No basting, no tending, no watching—just place the food in the oven and the automatic clock will start the food cooking at any time you choose.

Cooking by electricity is the simplest, best and most satisfactory way of preparing foods.

The QUICK COOK Unit

Curie or Chaplin
An Australian Dream
Mr. Hill's Million
He Earned It

By EMILE GAUVREAU

Mme. Curie, world famed scientist, and Charlie Chaplin, famous comedian, have both been asked by the University of Madrid to lecture there. Some would prefer to hear and see Mme. Curie. But the crowds that will gather in the university halls on the occasion will be attracted there by the clown rather than the savant. Which is fair enough. The world probably owes a greater debt to the person who makes it laugh than to the one who makes it think.

A case where people builded worse than they knew rather than better, and where visualization of greatness outran the most sanguine possibilities of it, is the Australian capital city of Canberra. This built-to-order seat of the federal government cost $66,000,000. It was built on such a grand scale that every possible contingency of growth and expansion was provided for. Unfortunately, the contingencies did not arise, and it looks as if they never will. Today, as a result, one has to walk a mile for a tube of paste.

Canberra has become such a white elephant that the premier of Tasmania, the acting premier of Western Australia, the leader of the New South Wales National party, and other leaders, financial and political, are agreed on scrapping it. The million dollar parliament houses, the palatial hotels, the imposing residences erected to house distinguished emissaries from foreign countries stand tenantless or only spasmodically occupied. Canberra has become the "bottomless pit of finance."

The question whether a man can actually earn $1,000,000 a year as compensation for his services is still a moot one, although it has been argued to death recently when Eugene G. Grace's annual earnings of a million and a half were made public. Another executive who joins Mr. Grace in the million-a-year business leaders' class is G. W. Hill, president of the American Tobacco company. His salary and bonus for the year 1930 tip the million dollar mark with a wide away $275,000 and still qualify.

Granted that Mr. Hill is entitled to the products of his labors, the next question is: How will he dispose of this vast fortune which will flow annually into his pockets? Some busybodies will say it is more important that the government control, in a manner, the spending of this money than put a kink in the earning of it. After all, this wealth that Mr. Hill earns is wealth created by the people. He can only regard himself as a trustee of it, rather than the owner. But his brains earned the money. And brains such as Mr. Hill's are scarce indeed.

Cosmo Hamilton, Gilbert K. Chesterton, John Galsworthy, Sinclair Lewis are all "suspicious" characters to the Daughters of the American Revolution. The author of "Elmer Gantry," scheduled to deliver a lecture at Washington hall, the capitol, on "American Literature Comes of Age," will not be permitted to deliver that lecture. No reason has been given for the ban, but the reason may easily be surmised. Mr. Lewis is a radical.

Freedom of speech is still theoretic in America, not real. When men like Chesterton have to be censored, there must be something provincial and measly about our ideas of intellectual freedom. Russia bans Bibles. Are we going to ban men who write our best books, men whom Europe knows enough to honor and be proud of?

When building their nests birds seldom use bright-colored or conspicuous materials, as these would draw attention to their homes, so making discovery by an enemy possible.

65 Years at One Task

FOR 65 years Sarah Thompson of Hendrysburg, Ohio, has been piecing together bright squares of cloth to make a quilt. Now the quilt is finished.

Sarah was 10 years old when she began cutting and sewing together the bright colored squares of cloth. The quilt was designed for her hope chest. Back in the 1860's, sewing for a hope chest was the proper occupation for all young girls. They learned thus to make neat, even stitches and to take a sober, practical view of the future.

It was an ambitious pattern which Sarah Thompson chose for her quilt—a handsome pattern. There were times as the months and years passed when Sarah sewed diligently and other times when the work was neglected. Gradually time passed and it became evident that the quilt was not to take its place in a bride's hope chest. Miss Thompson never married.

Sixty-five years is a long time to devote to a single task. The 65-year-old quilt takes on the character of a life work. Ever since childhood the aged woman has had before her as a goal the day when her ambitious quilt should be completed.

Now the time has come. Sixty-five years of sewing bright colored scraps of cloth together are at an end. It is almost certain that the quilt maker will find something missing from her life now that the task is finished. Other men and women who have undertaken long drawn out objectives have felt the same. It is an ancient truth again demonstrated. Work, against which the human family is inclined to rail so often, takes on the glamour of a privilege once the worker is deprived of it.

Jim Thorpe—Ditch Digger

SOMEHOW you can't help admiring Jim Thorpe.

Once the greatest athlete in the world, Jim was discovered the other day out in Los Angeles, a common laborer, swinging pick and shovel in a ditch.

In football, baseball, and track and field sports, none was greater than Thorpe in his day. Money came easy after he turned his talents to professional sport. But the money dwindled away.

Many men of the world of sports, when their hey-day of quick, easy money passes, continue to seek money in some sort of cheap racket or near-racket, rather than work. The habit of easy-come, easy-go is too hard to break. They never amount to anything after that one brief moment of sporting triumph. They have forgotten, or have never learned, how to work.

But not Jim Thorpe. When need came, Jim rolled up his sleeves and took a pick in his hand. And he's been supporting a wife and two fine kids on his earnings. He doesn't earn much, but it's honest money. Many opportunities must have come to Thorpe to get money in devious ways, trading the last rags of his great name to some cheap racketeer, bootlegger, or flim-flam promoter. But Jim digs with his hands instead.

A man who can do that must have stuff in him. Jim Thorpe deserves a break.

A School for Politicians

ONE of the gravest of governmental ills is the holding of public office by men deficient in political training and experience. In American politics it is customary to presume that men who know how to get votes also know how to administer a city or state. Voters have later found to their sorrow that this does not always hold.

In an effort to place capable men in office in Spain, a branch of the liberal-conservative coalition party there has established in Madrid a school for politicians for the instruction of aspiring city councilmen.

The problem of electing men qualified to hold public office is not as simple as it seems. It has concerned philosophers through the ages. Plato urged that men be prepared for it.

The only one in this country, so far as we know, who has agitated for a method such as Plato urged, is Will Durant, the writer. He suggests that a school for political training, analogous to that just founded in Madrid, be established here, to be owned and operated by the government. He would call it a civil academy.

Graduates of the academy, the "equipped and winnowed best" of them, would be the men put up for public office. Then the voters could take their pick. That, in substance, is the scheme. How it would work out, no one can say.

But it seems very improbable that the results of such elections could be as sorry as some of those we have had in the past.

Proposition

Pursued by the thought that your evident beauty
Has markedly altered the course of my life
I am disposed to regard as a duty
The business of seeking you out as a life.
Strike up the drum and the marital fife!
Maybe I ought to and maybe I ortn't
Shoulder the woes of connubial strife:
You are not bright, but it isn't important.

Since you are truly the queen of the queenies,
I think you're entitled to pleasures, my pet—
Ride, if you choose, in Issotta-Fraschinis
Belonging to some of the people you've met.
I, as your husband, am willing to let
The barriers fall in respect to my station,
And play around with you, in order to get
The merited fruits of the married relation.

—Robert Newcomb.

Obviously

The death of the rich spinster Wendel has revived interest in her alleged night club visit, said to have happened at La Guinan's last month. A story about the Wendel call at the club appeared in The Nyker. Now all concerned (except Miss Wendel, of course) are wondering if she really went gay at Guinan's asylum.

La Guinan, it appears, sent her representative to the funeral "to make sure that the woman in the casket was the woman in her night club."

"I would have gone myself," she explained, "but I had five shows to do that day."

It seems to some of us that if the late Miss Wendel went to that night club she must have been the woman in the casket!

Capsule Criticism

Added to our crisp cracks from critical cusses dep't is Harrold M' Bone's: ". . . the show has its high spots, but then, too, it often sags worse than Heywood Broun's trousers."

How Embarrassing!

". . . I like New York," columns Helen Rowland for ever so many newspapers, "for its ability to mind its own business. There is no other city in the world in which there is so little gossip. Your life, your ways, your morals and your secrets are your own business—and nothing goes over the back fence!"

Is my space read????

Reportorial Inaccuracy

"Not so long ago," reports The Old Roue in The New York Press, "Walter Winchell had a squib in the paper to the effect that the Nate Spingolds had phffft. More recently, however, Winchell himself was at Palm Beach a house guest of the Spingolds. This is not so much a checkup on Winchell's veracity as it is applause for Spingold's diplomacy."

We never were in the Spingolds house in our life, but this is not so much a checkup on The Old Roue's diplomacy as it is on his veracity.

Overheard

"Is he embarrassed? You could hit him with an egg and cook it!"

Repartee

An editorial writer was showing off before a lobby crowd the other night. "I am going to write a piece," he growled, "and give hell to the people who come late to the theater."

"Please don't," interrupted a ticket speculator; "they are infinitely preferable to those who do not come at all!"

Honesty's Dividend

A prominent society woman lost an earring in the Metropolitan opera house the other day. She discovered the loss while in her car and dashed madly back to look for it. A man approached her. "Are you looking for something?" he asked. "Yes," she replied, "I lost an earring."

"Is this it?" he said after he inspected the mate.

"Thanks so much," the grateful woman answered, "won't you please give me your name and address?"

"I think I know what you intend doing," he said, "but please don't."

"I must reward you in some way," she urged.

"If you know Otto Kahn," he said meekly, "you might introduce me to him. I have a score that no one will look at. Perhaps Mr. Kahn's influence—"

Some night next week a distinguished group will give at a hearing at Mr. Kahn's home.

The Squelch Horrible

It was a long show, according to Chas. K. O'Neill, and nearly midnight when the curtain was rung up on the last act, disclosing an actor sitting wearily at a table. All was stillness. Not a word had been spoken for three minutes.

Finally a spectator expressed the sentiments of the audience.

"I trust, sir," he shouted, "we are not keeping you up!"

The Morning Mail

"What steams me up," complains T. F. Durning of 44 Elm avenue, Manchester, N. H., "is the way you pan Vallee and praise Harry Richman. Vallee was in the navy during the war—and where was Richman?"

In the navy.

Trap

Charley Ray tells about the two producers who were enemies. They were on the same committee, however, to better conditions in the theater. "There are a hundred ways of making money in show business," said the first.

"Yes," reminded the other, "but only one honest way."

"And what is that?" asked the fellow.

"Ah," was the vicious retort, "I thought you wouldn't know it!"

Ouch!

Broadway simply can't be bothered with temperament, although a lot of people never discover that they have it until they get to Broadway. Take the case of the high strung chin-ema star who had an appointment with a swanky hairdresser and failed to show up.

So when she called a week later the place went to no pains to please her. The impatient star gave the hairdresser a piece of her alleged mind.

"Listen here," snapped the hairdresser, "you may be a screen star out in Hollywood, dearie, but here you are just another marcel!"

Big Business Girl . . . By One of Them

Synopsis of Preceding Installments

Claire MacIntyre, known as Mac, whose beauty and charm have made her the toast of State university, determines upon a business career after graduation. Johnny tries to dissuade Mac from her career, but she is determined to succeed in business. Johnny, who is musically talented, would not be able to support her, Mac believes. Johnny goes to Paris at the head of a college orchestra, and Mac goes to Chicago. She enters the dry cleaning establishment of R. J. Clayton. The firm is having trouble with racketeers. Mac lunches with a racketeer leader and diplomatically secures a truce, but a rival gang destroys one of the Clayton trucks. Mac's cleverness has so intrigued Clayton, however, that he invites her to a party at his home. Johnny arrives from Paris. He and Mac have an ecstatic love meeting, but Johnny grows ill-tempered when he learns that she is going to her employer's party that night. They have a violent quarrel, and Mac determines to flirt with her employer.

INSTALLMENT XIII

Luke lived at his club in Evanston, so Mac had begged him not to come away into the city for her, especially after the events of the morning.

When she swept down the steps of the old house, everyone passing paid her the tribute of a long stare. She was a startling vision, fragile and beautiful in white with a creamy Italian shawl wrapped around her. She wanted to be Mac tonight, not "Miss MacIntyre," and she had even changed her coiffure to show Luke and R. J. that she could be lovely and intriguing as well as efficient. Etched crystal earrings swung away from her ears. Tangerine opera pumps with large crystal buckles relieved the virginity of her costume. She knew that she looked alluring and stepped into the cab with all the bouffante grace and femininity of her great grandmother stepping into a victoria.

The idea of a party didn't excite her very much, but when she measured what she could do socially with R. J. and what she had not been able to do in the office, she was immediately very keen to be there.

The house was on a curve of the drive and looked very substantial and large as they came toward it. It was of gray stone, a driveway on one side and a wide, uncovered veranda disappearing along the other which overlooked Lake Michigan.

Mac was let in by a maid and asked to go upstairs to the right to leave her wrap and tuck in the escaping wisps of her soft dark hair, if she wished. So sat down at a dressing table and dipped her fingers into the rouge that matched her slippers. She widened the curve of her upper lip to wipe away the office expression, and she dropped her lashes a moment as she caught sight of a large photograph of a younger edition of R. J., framed in Venetian leather. This, then, must be Mrs. Clayton's room, not a guest room. But she must love him very much to have his picture on her dressing table! And they had been married, Mac knew, 15 years.

He was very handsome in an ugly way—eyes rather protruding like a frog's, but very black and humorous. Mac couldn't make up her mind about his mouth—the lips were full but restraint hovered about them. He held his teeth together when he laughed and had a deep dimple in one cheek. His skin was naturally dark in addition to the perpetual tanning it received on the links.

She could hear quite a bit of laughing downstairs and decided that she was probably the last one to arrive. Mac went down, then, conscious of being young and poised and smart. Hattie had been listening for her and met her at the foot of the stairs.

"Oh, Miss MacIntyre, I'm Mrs. Clayton. Mr. Clayton has spoken about you often and I'm so glad you could come. The others are all here and Luke has been telling us about your perfectly awful morning. Come right in." Hattie Clayton hadn't missed a detail of Mac's costume, and Mac decided it would be a pretty good pose to be shy.

"Well, it was pretty bad, Mrs. Clayton, and now I'm afraid we're in for a lot of adjustments." Stick to business with R. J.'s wife, she thought.

Luke was talking with a very theatrical blonde and raised his eyebrows at Mac. She smiled at him under her lashes. R. J. was conferring with the white-coated West Indian who had brought in a tray of silver cocktail cups and a plate of stuffed olives on toothpicks, wrapped in slivers of bacon. When he saw Mac, he crossed the room and took her hand. He did not act as though there was anything unusual about seeing her like this.

"Miss MacIntyre, Mrs. Elfstron and Mrs. John. Miss Jardka, Miss MacIntyre. Miss MacIntyre, Mr. Donovan and Mr. Walker."

Mac knew Mr. Elfstron, the plant superintendent, and she had, of course, heard of Mrs. Harper Johns through the society columns. But Miss Jardka was something else, as was Morton Walker. She heard Mrs. Johns call him Morton and decided that he belonged, in some way to this woman who was 20 years his senior. Luke stood beside Miss Jardka's chair and seemed unable to get away. Certainly Marsha Jardka was a fake of some sort.

"How you eet sees, Donny?" she appealed to Mr. Donovan. Her eyelashes were stiffly beaded around her baby blue eyes. Her hair was bleached almost white and she wore it in a long bob, brushing her shoulders. "We never have olives on sticks in Warsaw." Mac wondered if she could stand up. She must be a Polish motion picture actress.

"Miss Jardka," Luke pronounced it with a "y" and looked so innocent Mac knew he was up to something, "is the famous Marsha Jardka who wears the jet costume every one is talking about, in the Follies."

Miss Jardka smiled sweetly.

"Miss Jardka," resumed Luke, "was in the breadline in Warsaw during the revolution. She was, of course, only 8 or 9 years old, and at that time supported her mother and father by dancing in the streets." Mac recognized the phrasing of a certain malicious dramatic critic who appreciated Marsha only too well.

Miss Jardka stirred luxuriously at this attention. There had been no attempt to hide her light under a bushel. She seemed to be getting along all right now, Mac noted, because at least two of the six diamond and emerald bracelets on her left wrist were real.

"Warsaw is a wonderful city, don't you think, Miss Jardka?" Mac asked in such a genuine manner that Marsha never suspected her. "I was there for three or four days last summer and it fascinated me."

Mac decided that Marsha Jardka had never been beyond New York.

She sipped her Bacardi cocktail and liked it more for being in a silver chalice. She accepted a caviar cracker and heard Mrs. Harper Johns say to her: "I overheard you say you were in Europe last summer, Miss MacIntyre. Student tour, I suppose? Did you go to Deauville?"

"I wore Deauville sandals but I didn't get to Deauville," Mac laughed. "No, I went alone and spent most of my time in southern Italy." Mac retaliated by smiling suggestively at Morton Walker. She despised him at once. He looked like a chorus man. He was tall and paper thin, with heavily lashed eyes and waving wheat-colored hair. Effeminate, Mac stamped him. They went out to dinner on the porch overlooking the lake.

"Miss MacIntyre, will you sit there beside Mr. Clayton? Mrs. Johns on this side of him. Then Mr. Walker, Mrs. Elfstron, Mr. Winters on this side of me, Mr. Elfstron, Miss Jardka, Mr. Donovan."

That took care of all of them and placed Luke far enough away so that Mac needn't fear his interruption. Mr. Donovan, she knew, would be easy to handle and would be leaning flatly against Marsha Jardka. He was laughing at everything anybody said in a "ho-ho-ho" fashion, ending his outbursts in a violent fit of asthmatic coughing. Mac saw that Hattie Clayton was watching her without seeming to and that she would have to be very careful. Their laughter and conversation insulted the restraint of the night. Mac could see the dew blanketing the grass in a cobwebby mist. She looked out over the water and strained her ears to its splashing until she became conscious of R. J. bending toward her in a new way.

"Claire," she heard him say, and it was the first time he had called her that, "I wish I could have spared you all that unpleasantness today. How do you honestly feel now?"

Mac decided to be facetious about the melodramatic morning behind her.

"I honestly haven't been thinking about racketeers. You know, Mr. Clayton, I park my business worries in the alley at 6 o'clock, and I am numb from the ears up for the rest of the night."

She lifted her chin so that the candle-light would find the curve of her cheek and make deep jewels of her eyes. She wanted to reveal to R. J. that there were no lines. She smiled a gamin smile at him out of the corner of her bright mouth. It was the first time she had flirted with him and the moment was almost ruined when she looked away and found Hattie narrowing her eyes at her.

Mrs. Elfstron had heard Mac say "racketeers" and was ready with her story which she had been preserving for just this moment. Mac thought she was a beautiful woman but a little ingenue for her age and her height.

"You know," she said, addressing R. J. and Mac, "the milkman who delivers my baby's milk at our apartment house was waylaid last week and slugged by two gangsters."

"Racketeers, dear," interrupted Mr. Elfstron who always corrected his wife with the air of a teacher addressing a backward pupil.

"These racketeers, then," she persisted, "waylaid this milkman because he had been warned that he mustn't deliver milk any longer to me, and it seems that he had gone right on in spite of it." She let the story rest there, although she had not made her point.

The conversation was neither brilliant nor witty. Mac knew that everyone was slightly dazed by too much Bacardi and gin, and Morton Walker had lost his appetite entirely and was turning paler and paler. Hattie Clayton was trying to cover this up with a shrill and endless dialogue with which she was favoring Luke. She kept nodding to the West Indian to fill up the wine glasses, so that no one would suspect that the dinner was dull.

"In a few moments I am going to show you the garden, Claire—that is, if you are interested in gardens. Gardens are my hobby. I walk out there every morning before breakfast." He nodded toward the back of the house where Mac could see clusters of bushels and white arches picked out by the moonlight.

The Record News Offers A Booklet on Fish And Seafoods

Twenty billion pounds of fish are taken from the sea every year and many more millions of pounds from rivers, creeks, lakes and ponds. The annual take for the United States and Alaska is estimated at three billion pounds, so it is seen that this country has proportionately its full share of this delicious and healthful food supply. However, more Americans would eat more fish if they knew more about the food, and to this end The Record News is offering its readers a 24-page illustrated booklet that contains a wealth of information.

A copy of this booklet will be sent to any address. Fill out the coupon below and enclose 10 cents in coin or stamps to cover cost and postage.

Health and Diet Advice

Is a Change of Climate Necessary?

It used to be the fashion for doctors to prescribe a change of climate for anyone suffering from a chronic disease. Neurasthenics especially were advised to take trips to the mountains or seashore or, in fact, any place where they were not living at the time.

It is true that a change of climate sometimes gives a temporary relief in such diseases as tuberculosis, asthma, hay fever and heart trouble, but I have seen patients suffering from these troubles cured in almost every climate and altitude simply by making the necessary dietetic changes.

It is so easy to try to blame the climate or some external condition for troubles which originate from our own ignorance or lack of care.

In the year 1503 Ponce de Leon searched for the fountain of youth in Fiordia rather than searching for it at home. All he got for his trouble was a poisoned arrow. Men have always been searching for a relief from the laws of nature in order to enjoy health which they have not earned. It is true that occasionally we hear of a person who had benefited his health by taking a trip to some distant part, but I believe that this is usually because the patient leaves behind some irritating friends or relatives, or because the vacation gives him more time to play and brings about a change of living habits.

As a rule, the relief produced by moving to a different climate or environment is only temporary, for the old habits remain and soon bring back the old troubles.

Everyone should realize that the main cause of disease is always found in bad habits. It is these wrong habits which weaken the resistance so that disease can affect the body. Bad habits can be just as bad in Fiordia or California as in New York or Nova Scotia or Alaska. One cannot run away from one's own bad habits by changing the place of abode, and the same imprudent methods of living which you practiced at home will invariably tend to create the same symptoms if continued in other climates.

I receive thousands of letters from people asking me if it will help them to take a trip for the change of climate, but my reply to them is usually to make a change in their habits of living and eating, and that the climate is not so important.

You can search the world over and you will not discover any hidden places for the health you have been seeking. The only place you will find health is to turn your attention upon yourself and search out the things which have been causing ill health, and you will be surprised and delighted to find that health is easily within your grasp without taking a train ride or automobile tour.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Salt Water

Question: G. M. asks: "Is there any harm in drinking a quart of warm water with a teaspoonful of salt for a bowel elimination?"

Answer: The use of hot salt water has an effect in stimulating peristalsis through irritation. It might be harmful in some cases, but in general the effect is the same as taking laxatives and purgatives. It is far better to find the cause of constipation and achieve a real cure by following the proper rules regarding exercising, dieting, etc.

Lima Bean Bread

Question: R. A. L. asks: "How does the lima bean bread now on the market compare with other breads?"

Answer: Lima bean bread is a great improvement over the ordinary breads, containing a much larger amount of protein and enough minerals to be considered an alkaline food. Soy bean bread has the same good qualities, and one with acidosis may wisely substitute these breads for the ordinary white bread.

Distilled Water

Question: J. H. F. asks: "Do you think distilled water is better for a person having arthritis deposits in the joints of the hands, instead of drinking live water or boiled water? Does distilled water saturate itself with the hard deposits in the body and thereby help to carry off that calcium deposit?"

Answer: Distilled water is the only absolute pure water. We do not find pure water in nature. However, I do not believe that it makes any difference what kind of water is used in the treatment of arthritis as long as you use plenty of it. The city water from the hydrant may be depended upon to be free from dangerous bacteria, and usually tests as pure as any water, with the exception of that which has been distilled and has had every trace of foreign matter removed.

Altus Veterans Conserve Loans

Special to The Record News.

ALTUS, Okla., March 22.—Altus world war veterans are being very conservative with money advanced on their certificates, it is believed by American Legion officials.

Each of a number of men questioned said money was being used to pay debts, meet outstanding obligations and buy the necessities of life.

"Of course there are some people who take advantage of the loan and spend the money foolishly," one man said.

One example was cited on a negro ex-service man who quit shining shoes as soon as he received the loan on his certificates.

Of the 850 ex-service men in Jackson county, 90 per cent are expected to apply for the loan when sufficient blanks are received. It is estimated that 550 or 65 per cent of the applications have been mailed to the veterans' bureau.

In urgent cases when Legion officials signed an affidavit that there was an immediate need of funds, money has been received within three days after notes were mailed.

SPUDDERS EVEN SERIES WITH STEERS BY 5 TO 3 VICTORY

HURLING STAFF DRAWS PRAISE

Experts Say Moundsters Better Than 1930 Crew

Special to The Record News.

DALLAS, March 22.—Defeating the Dallas Steers here Sunday afternoon, 5 to 3, in the second and final game of their set, Carl Williams' Wichita Falls Spudders got an even break in their first exhibition series of the 1931 season. Bunched hits coupled with Dallas errors were responsible for the triumph although some very effective twirling was contributed by Bob Cooney and Vincent, young Spudder right-handers. The performance of this pair, following some fine looking twirling by Hillin and the Taylor boys, Doyle and Howard, Saturday gave rise among the experts who witnessed the two fracases the belief Wichita Falls will have a mound staff vastly improved over the chunking brigade that tried to struggle along with what otherwise was one of the greatest clubs in Texas league history last season.

Bob Cooney Starts

Cooney toiled the first four sessions Sunday and gave up only three hits and one run, which was unearned. Vincent finished and after getting by the first two batsmen to face him he was well nigh invincible. The Steers paraded three twirlers to the hill, Lester Rouprich, a right-hander, and Ralph Erickson and Jimmy Minogue, southpaws, all youngsters and nonclass men. Their support was wobbly at times and contributed partly to their downfall although the visitors would have won if only earned tallies were counted.

Neither aggregation displayed very much offensive strength and there were only eight base knocks on each side. These included a double apiece for Herb Kelly of the Spudders and Bruce Campbell of the locals and a home run for Bernie Tesmer, Dallas backstop.

Dallas took the lead in the first inning when Stewart's walk started a rally after Harrell popped out. Campbell banged a hit to right and Stewart raced for third. He was safe when Garms dropped Fuss' beautiful long throw but Cooney was backing him up and he relayed to Allday in time to get Campbell who tried to make it to second. Blakesley slammed out a single to right to score Stewart.

Spuds Even Count

Wichita Falls evened the score in the third when Cooney started his own rally with a single through the right side. He advanced to third on Garm's single to center and the latter moved to second when Short booted the ball. After Allday hoisted to Campbell, Kelly grounded to Stewart and Cooney scored on the play. Bradbury's single to left opening the fourth paved the way for another Spudder run. He went to third when Rouprich threw the ball away trying to force him on Fuss' roller that looked like a made-to-order double play. Bradbury scored after Blakesley caught Martin's long fly.

Garms legged out a bunt to lead off the fifth, took second while Rouprich was tossing out Allday and scored when Kelly pounded a two-bagger through third. Badgro whiffed but Bradbury walked and Kelly scored when Holman let Fuss' hopper through him.

It was in the last half of this stanza that the Steers registered their last two markers. Vincent was just ascending to the mound and the first man he faced, Short, nicked him for a single to right. Tesmer followed with a mighty homer into the left field bleachers, scoring Short ahead. Thereafter the locals were able to do little with the slants of Vincent, who showed a lot of stuff and fair enough control.

Scharein Starts Things

The Spudders capped off their scoring in the sixth, which Scharein started with a base knock through the middle. Vincent was called out on strikes and Garms forced Scharein. Allday walked and Garms legged home when Kelly rapped a single past Holman.

Manager Happ Morse of the Steers shook things up plenty in an effort to pull the game out of the loss column and used 16 men, including four pinch hitters but they could not deliver, not even Albert Boeer, the self-styled Wow from Weimar, Texas, and the Dallas club sustained its first defeat of the season. As a result of their five-game winning streak being broken, Happ ordered his gang out for morning practice Monday.

Robins Winging Pennantward, And No Foolin', Says Uncle Robbie

By WILLIAM BRAUCHER
NEA Service Sports Writer

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 22.—There sat Uncle Robbie himself. His throne was a rickety bench in the leaky-roof little ball park here. The scene was a practice game between Regulars and Yanns.

He wore an outfit of golf knickers. In his right cheek was parked half a package of scrap tobacco. Suddenly he leaped up. He has a way of suddenly leaping up, bawling some order to the lieutenants of those Flatbush Fusiliers, and as suddenly subsiding.

"Hey, there, Otto!" he called to Coach Otto Miller, "get ol' Shootey warmed up for next innin'."

"Ol' Shootey" was none other than Joe Shaute, whose arm collapsed last year while he was pitching for the Cleveland Indians. Shaute came back with Toronto and now he says his old left souper feels like new.

Big bats were ringing a song of basehits that was sweet to the ears of Uncle Robbie. Babe Herman had just borrowed a chew from the boss, stepped up to the plate and slammed one of the new raised-seam, less-lively baseballs over the right field wall where it bounced high in the street beyound.

The next batter was the sinister Lefty O'Doul, brought to Brooklyn in a trade with the Phutile Phile.

Uncle Robbie jumped up again.

"Hey, there, Lefty," he called, "feller here just said this is your birthday. Yours and Vance's. Two birthdays on this team same day. Guess Vance is older'n you, ain't he?"

Lefty looked around and Robbie called out. "Toodle-oodle," in high school girl form, and waved at the big boy with his stump of a little finger on the right hand.

Here was Uncle Robbie, manager of the Brooklyn National league baseball team, in perfect form, with the big bats of the Dodger clan banging baseballs over the fence at an alarming rate.

"Well there, Red," he greeted me, "you want to know all about this ball club, eh? Sure I remember you. Miss a few names now and then, but don't forget a face, least of all not any faces like yours.

"Suppose you want a lineup, don't you? Well, gimme a roster and I'll mark it for you. All right. Leadoff: Frederick. Thought for a while I'd let Thompson lead off, but Frederick hits too many balls through second base. Double play balls. All right, Frederick first and Thompson second. He's second baseman and bats second.

"Third, Herman. Sure, Herman, why not? Then comes ol' Lefty. After O'Doul comes Glenn Wright, right-handed batter right in the middle of the line-up. Say, can they beat that? Talk about southpaws beatin' Brooklyn!

"Well, next is Bissonette, another left-hander—Hey there, Shootey, come over here!"

(Pause while Shaute comes over).

"Listen here, Pete," said Robbie, who always calls his players by strange first names, "lay off that fast one in there next innin'. It's early yet, an' I'd rather see that fast one workin' against Boston than against these guys."

Then he went on with the story of his team.

"Let's see, where were we? Oh yes, Bissonette. After him comes Wally Gilbert, third baseman. Then catchers and pitchers. Hey! There goes one to center field. That's hit nine miles. Watch that Parham and see if he takes it!"

It happened to be a very bad day for Rookie Bob Parham from Atlanta, who was playing center field. Despite his glasses, the sun was in his eyes, and he became blinded.

"Hey," Robbie resumed, "that guy looked more like ham than Parham on that one!"

Babe Herman came to the dugout.

"Got a chew, Robbie?"

"No, send a boy over to the clubhouse—got a pack over there; get a boy. Hey! Boy!"

The boy came and Robbie subsided for an instant.

"I was rooting for you when you were up there last year," I said, "and it was too bad about that slump!"

"Yeah," replied Robbie, regretfully, "we got some bad breaks. Bad breaks an' Bad Bill; I mean that Hallahan, that 1-to-0 game he pitched against Ol' Dazz. Some game! Beat us right there! Boys never could get goin' after that.

"Well, I'm goin' to win a pennant this year, with this team, Red, and that's no joke. Watch! Don't forget!"

I left him, hoping that he would.

SUNNY JIM IS HITTING AGAIN

So Gabby Street's Main Worry Is Over

By GAYLE TALBOT JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

BRADENTON, Fla., March 22.—As best the experts have been able to make out, Manager Charles (Gabby) Street of the St. Louis Cardinals never had more than one serious problem on his mind this spring, and now even that appears to have been effectually removed.

If there was any one thing the pilot of the National league champs could have laid awake nights about, it was the condition of Sunny Jim Bottomley's batting eye. The big first baseman failed to hit anything like the size of his hat in last fall's classic against the Athletic's, and there had been considerable speculation as to what he would do this season, if anything.

He's Hitting 'Em Now

Any doubt of the sunny one's status now is a thing of the past. He has been clouting the sphere with all his old fervor, both in practice and in the exhibition bouts, and any question as to who will hold down first base for the Cards elicits only a broad smile from Manager Street. He believes Bottomley is all set to come back and have a spacious season, just as he thinks the Red Birds will steamroller their way to a pennant.

Bottomley's poor showing against the Athletics, it seems, was traceable to an injured hand that hampered his swing. The member is sound again, though, and any chances Jim Collins, the International league slugger, had of usurping the initial sack appear remote.

The Cards promise to have a potent punch in their infield. The brilliant Frankie Frisch, who did .346 last season; Charlie Gelbert, who compiled a .304 mark for the year and hammered the cover off the ball in the big series, and Sparky Adams, a .314 clubber last season, round out one of the niftiest inner works in the game. Ed Delker, a big base hit man from Rochester, has been making a mighty effort to displace Adams at third, but neither Frisch nor Gelbert has any real competition.

Any weakness in infield reserve strength was cured by the return of Andy High, who refused to report to Rochester this spring.

Chick Hafey's reluctance to sign a contract has set Street's outfield plans back a bit, but has occasioned no real alarm. The regular left fielder, who hit .336 last year, is expected to be in the fold shortly. Right field is strongly fortified, with Ray Blades and George Watkins dividing the chores, and Taylor Douthit occupies center without an argument.

Indications are the senior league champs will have even better pitching than last year, when it was good enough for all practical purposes. Paul Derringer and Jerome (Dizzy) Dean, the two sellar recruits, have lived up to all advance notices so far, and Al Grabowski, who worked only 10 games in 1930, has shown such form that Street is counting on him to take a regular turn. The "big six," composed of Hallahan, Grimes, Haines, Johnson, Lindsey and Rhem, is intact, every wing is in working order.

International Team Matches Open Today

NEW YORK, March 22. (AP)—Having made a clean sweep of the indoor tennis championships of the United States in last week's campaign, the invading French forces are out to capture their international team match against a somewhat stronger set of American racquet wielders he next three days. Jean Borotra, the bounding basque who captured the national indoor singles title for the fourth time yesterday, Christian Boussus, who paired with him in winning the doubles title, and young Pierre Landry carry the tricilor in a three-day team copetition along the lines of the Davis cup matches. The competition opens tomorrow night with the singles encounters and will be continued at the Seventh Regiment armory on Tuesday and Wednesday.

The draw for the opening night pits Borotra against Francis X. Shields, husky New Yorker, who was expected to meet the French ace in the national singles final until he was upset by Berkeley Bell, the runner-up from Texas, and Boussus against Bell. George M. Lott Jr. and John Van Ryn, Davis cup stars, complete the American team.

The all-conquering Borotra, despite numerous lapses in the week of championship play, is favored over Shields, while Bell, who gave the newly crowned champion a terrific struggle in the final yesterday, is expected to beat Boussus.

Chicago Hoss Wins Caliente Handicap

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, 22. (AP)—Springing a decided upset, Mike Hall of the Robert M. Eastman Stable, Chicago, today won the Agua Caliente handicap in its second renewal and took the net first place winnings of $100,000. He defeated the Choctaw by a neck, running the mile and a quarter in two minutes three seconds.

The winning time was one-fifth of a second better than the track record set by Victorian last year.

Plucky Play finished strong for a close third.

The Big Train, Sun Beau, racing for the right to be called the world's greatest money winner, was unable to stand the pace and finished far in the ruck, failing to get into the money.

Alexander Pantages finished fourth.

Sun Beau trailed in fifth, more than six lengths behind the leader. Only once, on the back stretch, did Willis Sharpe Kilmer's 5-year-old take the lead. The favorite by odds of 2 to 5 at post time was in trouble thereafter.

The antics of Caruso at the starting gate which delayed the start more than five minutes, probably had much to do with Sun Beau's weakening, for he carried an import of 129 pounds, 13 more than any of the other starters.

Mike Hall paid $28.80 to win on $2 pari mutuel tickets. He paid $6 to place and $4.20 to show. The Choctaw paid $6.60 to place and $4 to show, while Plucky Play paid $14.20 to finish third.

Electrans Defeat Coyote Netters

A group of Electra tennis players captured three out of four matches in a practice tennis tournament held on the high school courts Friday afternoon. Roy Curfman, Tiger football star, defeated Rufus King, the local singles champion, in a thrilling battle by a score of 7-5, 2-6, 6-2. The giant from Electra proved too good for the diminutive Rufus.

H. R. Hanks and Bruce Benton suffered defeat at the hands of an Electra entry by a score of 8-6 and 6-3. Curfman was again a big factor in the drubbing of the Coyote team.

In the girls' division Dorothy Cline and Betty Jane Sehmann won by the count of 6-3 and 6-4. This was the only match that was captured by a Coyote team. Irma Cline lost to the Electra entry in the girls' singles.

These same players will compete in a similar meet at the Country club at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Philadelphia Athletics

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 22. (AP)—Connie Mack's rookies have nothing to worry about—not yet, anyhow. They are sure to see Shibe park, home yard of the champion Athletics, for the big boss promised them there will be no cutting of the squad here. But after the city series with the Phillies most of the recruits will be handed railroad tickets home. Mack said he hadn't reached a decision about any of them yet.

Philadelphia Nationals

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., March 22. (AP)—Phil (Shiner) Collins, right hander with the Phillies last year, is expected to arrive from Chicago tomorrow. Fidgety Phil hasn't signed his contract, but he has accepted an invitation to come here and talk it over with President Ruch.

If Collins comes to terms, as Manager Shotton expects, Chuck Klein will be the remaining Phillie holdout.

(AP)—Joyner White's slashing tenth-inning double to left broke up the Sabbath ball game today between Beaumont and the New York Giants reserves, the Exporters sweeping the short series with a 9-8 victory. Bryan contributed a homer over right field fence for the visitors, the lustiest blow of the afternoon.

terest nuggets of a long literary lifetime.

Chronicle of an actual ornament it was, her best beloved necklace with a pendant for every link and every pendant the gift of an illustrious person. The chain itself was a memento of her husband's "Canadian exile," her gift to him when, after a hazardous journey with a small son, she joined him across the border.

Mrs. Pickett was born in Nansemond county, Virginia, daughter of Dr. John D. Corbell.

The civil war found her already famed as one of the prettiest girls of Virginia.

On July 3, 1863, Gen. George E. Pickett led a magnificent charge on Cemetery Ridge at Gettysburg, the failure of which decided the battle. On Sept. 15 of that same year the 18-year-old belle married him, at the height of his heroic fame. The general died in 1875.

National Girls' Tourney Opens at Dallas Today

DALLAS, March 22. (UP)—With the entry of the fast Missouri Pacific team of Kansas City a certainty, the 1931 national A. A. U. girl's basket ball tournament opening here tomorrow afternoon tonight was assured the largest number of contestants in the history of the tourney.

The Missouri team's first contest will be with the Mesquite, Texas, girls at 8:30 p. m. tomorrow.

A total of 34 teams will be seen in action on the courts at the state fair grounds during the week of play. Eight teams have been seeded on the basis of their showing in the 1930 national tournament and their showing this year. J. Lyman Bingham, assistant to the president of the American Amateur Athletic Union, is here to direct the tournament. A downtown parade will advertise the tournament and play will begin at 2 p. m. tomorrow.

YOUNGSTERS TO HELP TIGERS

Manager Harris Certain of Better Outfit in 1931

By BRIAN BELL

SACRAMENTO, Calif., March 22. (AP)—Flaming youth, battling for a place in the Detroit baseball picture, will make the Tigers of the American league a better team than that of last year.

The outfield is a merry battlefield as the opening approaches. Before the final decision can be rendered the open spaces of the ball park may be cluttered with casualties.

Roy Johnson, John Thomas Stone and Elias Funk, in spite of the fact they have service stripes on their uniforms, can not take their positions for granted. The Walker brothers, Hubby and Gerald, Frank Doljack and Ivey Shiver will be there or thereabouts when the baseball books are open for regular business.

Last year's infield will operate at the same old stand, Dale Alexander, giant first baseman, Charlie Gehringer, distinguished Michigan alumnus, Marty McManus, temporarily out of the game while he convalesces from an operation, and Bill Akers, the strong, silent shortstop.

It was no secret that Manager Stanley Raymond Harris was not satisfied with his catching staff last season. The situation has been made brighter by acquisition of Johnny Grabowski, former White Sox receiver, and Wally Schang, veteran of nearly 2,000 American league battles, who changes clubs from time to time, but never leaves the protection of the big top.

Manager Harris is expected to go along with nine pitchers. He has not given their names but a good guess would include Vic Sorrell, Waite Hoyt, Earl Whitehill, George Uhle, Charles Sullivan, Elon Hogsett, Whitelow Wyatt, Tom Bridges, and Guy Cantrell.

Harris, who led the Washington Senators to a world championship as the "boy manager," is hopeful. Too smart to suggest that he will have a great team, he believes it is certainly a good one.

Scene Laid for Oil Curb Battle

proposed measure, if enacted, would increase the daily flow from marginal wells about 60,000 barrels. Two other bills affecting the oil man had been reported favorably from the house committee, a proposal to drive the major companies out of the filling station business, and another to limit the pipe line earnings. Both propositions were expected to be bitterly contested on the floor.

Utilities Bill

Public utilities regulation bills perhaps will get out of committees this week. Governor Sterling had endorsed the general plan of the Petsch city commissioners bill.

Those interested in the proposed $200,000,000 state highway bond issue wondered when senate proponents would call the amendment from the table. It had been scheduled to be taken up last Wednesday but was not. There was little question that the amendment would be engrossed but the crux will come when its backers attempt to muster the two-thirds vote necessary for the resolution to pass finally.

The house last week engrossed two important proposed constitutional amendments, one giving counties the right of home rule and the other cutting the legislative representation of large counties. The home rule amendment was thought by its proponents to have been strengthened by the decision of the supreme court last week, interpreted to have held that the legislature was powerless to pass several types of local bills. However, the amendment fell 22 votes short of the 100 necessary for final passage. A bigger vote was rolled up for the other constitutional amendment proposal, and Representative Moffett of Chillicothe, its author, predicted that it would pass if he could ever get 140 of the 150 representatives present.

A $1 per ton tax on sulphur and a levy of three-eighths of a cent per thousand cubic feet on natural gas were recommended last week by the house revenue and taxation committee. Both proposals were due to receive stiff opposition on the floor.

Loughran Will Attempt Further Comeback in Griffith Bout Friday

NEW YORK, March 22. (AP)—The nation's fistic center shifts due west this week to Chicago where Tommy Loughran will try to edge a bit closer to a heavyweight title shot.

The clever Philadelphian, whose brilliant comeback has been the outstanding feature of the winter season, battles Tuffy Griffith, hard-socking Sioux City, Ia., youngster in the Chicago stadium's headline bout on Friday night. Loughran may get another shot at Jack Sharkey if he hurdles Griffith.

Madison Square garden's regular Friday night show here will be topped by a 10-rounder between Fidel La Barba, Los Angeles featherweight, and Kid Francis of Italy, recent conqueror of the heavy punching Chicagoan, Eddie Shea.

Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion, faces Tommy Grogan of Omaha, Neb., in a non-title bout in Philadelphia tomorrow night. Out on the Pacific coast, Tod Morgan, former junior lightweight title-holder, battles Goldie Hess of Redondo Beach, Calif., at Los Angeles Tuesday night. On the same card, Paulie Walker and Andy Divodi, New York welterweights, will meet in a 10-round re-match of their unsatisfactory bout of a week ago which Divodi won on a foul in the fourth round.

Bouts on the national schedule included:

Friday, at Chicago stadium, Tony Herrera, El Paso, vs. Hector McDonald, Pacific coast, lightweights, 10 rounds.

Dixon Hurler Whiffs 15 To Defeat Allendale, 13-2

Led by Phillip Powell, flashy right-hander who fanned 15 of his opponents and smacked out a home run, the Dixon Sign company sandlot team of the Junior league trounced the Allendale nine Sunday afternoon in a bitter contest on the Eighteenth and Holliday street diamond. It was a return game, the Dixons having traveled to Allendale last Sunday to defeat their hosts 12 to 8. The score of Sunday's game was 13 to 2.

Moudy of Allendale almost equalled Powell's strikeout record, whiffing 12 of the Dixons. In addition to Powell, Rusty Cunningham hit a home run for the Dixons.

Powell's battery-mate was Riley, and Moudy's Weekly and Doak.

Beggars Selected for Ceremonies at Madrid

MADRID, March 22. (AP)—Two dozen beggars, many blind, were selected today for the annual ceremony in which the king and queen, aided by Spain's grandees, humbly anoint their feet.

Bishop Sion, chief palace chaplain, selected 12 men and 12 women from several hundred candidates for the ceremony, which will take place in the palace on Holy Thursday, April 12.

King Alfonso and Queen Victoria will be seated on their thrones when the unfortunates are brought before them. Their majesties will then descend and anoint the feet of their poor subjects. Each supplicant also will receive food and clothing.

LA PORTE, Ind., March 22. (UP)—Rear Admiral Royal R. Ingersoll, U. S. N., retired, was reported critically ill at his home here tonight, suffering from uremic poisoning.

He graduated from the naval academy in 1868 and became a rear admiral in 1906. His son, Capt. R. E. Ingersoll, chief of staff of the United States fleet, now is homeward bound from Cuba.

Initials 'W. F. J. C.' On Belt Buckle Clue in Hijacking

FORT WORTH, March 22. (AP)—A new type of holdup was experienced by several parties in Fort Worth Saturday night when a group of youths held up three three bridge parties in private residences and also a family asleep in bed. In addition, an attempted robbery of a small cafe at an early hour today resulted in one of three robbers of another group getting a pistol bullet in the stomach, it is thought, though a check of hospitals did not show a wounded man. The robber fell twice on the sidewalk and was helped by a companion into an automobile.

Another development in the series of five robberies here was that N. O. Sheppard of Fort Worth was forced to drive three men to Dallas early Sunday while one of them kept a pistol pointed at him.

Loot in the five holdups here Saturday night and early today totaled about $3,000. One of the bridge holdup men had a belt buckle with the initials "W. F. J. C."

A flying tackle by G. Negrio brought down a white man armed with a shotgun who was engaged in robbing a chicken coop late Saturday night. Negrio held the man until police arrived.

Police here have standing orders that it is O.K. to bring hijackers in dead.

The initials "W. F. J. C." appearing on the belt buckle of a young hijacker at Fort Worth led police of that city to make inquiries in Wichita Falls concerning the initials. Wichita Falls police said similar buckles have been worn by students in Wichita Falls Junior college but were unable to lend any clues through the descriptions given by the Fort Worth authorities.

Austro-German Trade Pacts Brings Protest

VIENNA, March 22. (US)—France, Czecho-Slovakia, and Italy today united in a quick move to block the consummation of the Austro-German trade agreement by bringing diplomatic pressure to bear upon the Austrian government.

The ambassadors of the three countries protested against the projected trade pact as a violation of the Geneva protocol of Oct. 4, 1922, by which Austria bound herself to maintain economic and political independence.

Austria's answer was that the agreement is not a "customs union" as the Berlin announcement made it, but a regional trade treaty, laying the foundation for a United States of Europe.

Kingsford-Smith Joins Search for Missing Ship

MELBOURNE, Australia, March 22. (US)—Flight Commander Charles Kingsford-Smith, famed globe-circling flier, today joined in the air search for the missing passenger plane which is believed to have carried two pilots and six passengers to their deaths.

The plane dropped out of sight during a storm that broke on its route from this city to Sydney. It was named the Southern Cross after the ship in which Kingsford-Smith last year crossed the Atlantic completing one world tour begun in 1928.

SHOOTING DEPLORED

JOLIET, Ill., March 22. (AP)—The killing of three escaping convicts at the state penitentiary here Feb. 22, was described as "needless slaughter," by Representative Michael Igoe during a stormy session of the legislative inquiry today into prison conditions.

The denunciation came during the questioning of Capt. George Erickson, a guard, involved in the shooting. The legislator brought out that the guards had known for as long as three weeks the escape was planned and who was involved, yet gave the convicts no warning.

INFORMATORY DOUBLES (CONT'D)

IN AUCTION, after dealer's One No Trump bid has been doubled by second hand, as described yesterday, it is imperative that fourth hand bid his best suit, regardless of how poor a hand he has. There is one exception to this, and that is when he also has a strong hand and feels that bidder can be set plenty, he passes, thus informing partner that he expects bidder to be set. This is called a "Business Pass" and changes an informatory double into a business double.

Leo Brothers Trial to Get Under Way Today

CHICAGO, March 22. (UP)—An interested citizenry probably will learn tomorrow why the "Lingle murder strategy board" thinks Leo V. Brothers a minor St. Louis gangster, killed Alfred J. Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter.

Brothers now is on trial for murder in connection with Lingle's assassination last June, but the prosecution and the battery of attorneys hired by The Tribune so far have not revealed why they believe he was the slayer.

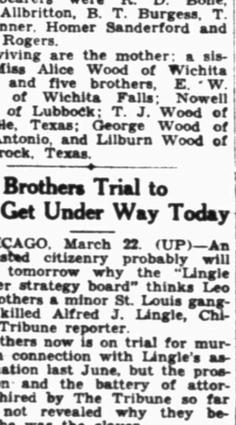

The jury in the case still is not completed, but the four remaining talesmen are expected to be selected in time for the state to make its eagerly awaited opening statement before court adjourns tomorrow.

Bank Failures During February on Decrease

WASHINGTON, March 22. (AP)—A sharp decrease in the number of bank failures in February as compared with January was reported today by the federal reserve board in its monthly review of business and financial conditions.

The board's tabulation showed there was 78 failures last month, against 199 in January, 344 in December, and a total 1,345 during 1930. The decrease bore out the board's statement a month ago that the 1930 depression had had the effect of adjusting the banking business and of treasury officials that the year had seen the elimination of most weak banks. The board said the banks were now in a strong position.

Parable Would Make America 'Nation of Fools,' Says Martin

Rich Men Pile Up Wealth Instead of Enjoying Life, Bible Class Told in Sunday Talk

Responsibility for the unequal distribution of economic wealth in the United States was attributed to gross covetousness by Judge P. A. Martin in his talk before members of the men's Bible class of the Floral Heights Methodist church Sunday morning.

Judged by the parable of the rich man who would "build greater barns and bigger granaries for increasing wealth," Judge Martin said that "Americans are largely a nation of fools." Intoxication with the possession of wealth drives the American to feverish endeavor for still greater acquisition, the speaker said, rather than suggesting to his mind the possibility of giving his remaining years to the art of living.

Best Investments

Churches and schools built during the past 10 years in this city represent one of the best investments of wealth realized here during active oil development, Judge Martin said.

His address follows:

"Today we have the lesson of the rich fool. God said he was a fool and we are justified in applying the same epithet to him. His sin was not that he was rich, but the sin of which he was guilty was the sin of covetousness. Most of the twelfth chapter of Luke's gospel is devoted to a warning against this mortal sin. It seems that Jesus was interrupted in his talk to the multitude by one who wanted him to speak to his brother and persuade him to divide the inheritance. The Master promptly answered him, 'Man, who made me a judge or a divider over you?' The Savior never attempted to adjust private differences or to enforce a law. They tried to get Him to pass judgment on the taxing power of Rome but He would not, simply saying, 'Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's.' They tried to get him to pass judgment upon the woman taken in adultery, but He only said, 'Let him who is guiltless cast the first stone.' He avoided every appearance of interference with temporal powers, but the request of the man who complained of his brother indicated covetousness, so He began to teach this great lesson against covetousness saying, 'Take heed and beware of the sin of covetousness, for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth.' And as an illustration He pronounces the parable of the rich fool.

"You are familiar with the story. A productive land had yielded her increase until the farmer's barns and granaries were all filled and yet there was more and more to be taken care of; so he planned to build greater barns and granaries and fill them and then say to his soul, 'Soul, take thine ease, eat, drink and be merry; for thou hast much goods laid up for many years.' And then God said, 'Thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee; then whose shall these things be which thou hast provided?'

"Judged by the standard of the parable we Americans are largely a nation of fools. A few outstanding individuals are exceptions, but a large majority of the rich men of America are building bigger barns, storing more millions for their own individual use only to approach the hour of death with a realization of a wasted life, in spite of their accumulations. Masters of men, princes of finance, wizards of commerce and organization, but 'fools' according to God's standard. The difference is that our very rich men, as a rule, haven't even the foresight to take time to 'eat, drink and be merry;' they are too busy accumulating more millions, building greater barns, organizing greater combinations and seeking to increase their power.

"The treasury report on income taxes paid in 1928 shows 511 men paying over $1,000,000 income taxes that year and 26 of these paid more than $5,000,000 each. It also shows that we have nearly 16,000 millionaires in the United States. Four per cent of the people own more of the wealth of this country than all the other 96 per cent. Most of this gigantic wealth is idle just now while from 5,000,000 to 6,000,000 men and women are out of employment. Now I am not a Communist, a radical or a 'Red.' It may take some change of our national policy; it will require such a change, but I have every hope and expectation that these inequalities will be remedied in the fullness of time; but before that time comes some of these souls will be required of these men. There is a good deal of truth in the old adage that it is only four generations from 'shirt-sleeves to shirt-sleeves.' Their sons and daughters who are doing the eating, drinking and making merry for the family now (especially the drinking) will eventually dissipate these immense fortunes and others coming up the ladder from below will have their inning. In the meantime these old money worshippers will pass on to the judgment.

Enjoy Life

"It is said that the French people have more money sense than any other people, not excepting the canny Scot. I am told that when a Frenchman accumulates enough in stocks and bonds to assure him a decent living from the interest coupons or the guaranteed dividends, he quits business and takes up real living, enjoying his books and paintings and his home and flower garden, letting his sons and daughters carve out their fortunes just as he did, by hard work and economy. The American positively will not do that; when he gets $50,000 he wants $100,000 and when he gets $100,000 he goes after his million and by that time he is so wedded to the almighty dollar that he craves everything in sight. I have known a number of good men who owned paying oil wells and other property in 1920; had plenty to quit on, but kept plugging away on dry holes until 1929 and saw everything go up in the smoke of the panic. They just coveted more and more wealth. We had wonderful opportunities to get wealth here. No place under the sun has been more greatly blessed; we all made money. Some of it was put to good use, too; not all of it was sunk in dry holes or worthless stocks. When I look upon our good churches and our school buildings I feel thankful that some of us invested some of it safely. The only investment, by the way, that many of us have on earth is these churches and school houses. But this is a better investment than many a rich fool possesses. They, at least, will do some good to the world at large."

'Matter' Subject of Scientist Sermon

The lesson-sermon subject in all Churches of Christ, Scientist Tuesday was "Matter."

The golden text was from Isaiah 42.8. "I am the Lord: that is My name: and My glory will I not give to another, neither My praise to graven images."

The service included the following passage from the Bible (Psalms 46.6): "The heathen raged, the kingdoms were moved; He uttered His voice, the earth melted."

These citations from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy (pp. 281 and 97), were also read: "Our false views of matter perish as we grasp the facts of Spirit . . . 'He uttered His voice, the earth melted.' This Scripture indicates that all matter will disappear before the supremacy of Spirit."

MAJESTIC: "Beau Ideal" with Ralph Forbes, Irene Rich, Loretta Young and Lester Vail. Dogville comedy, Marion Harris feature and sound news.

STRAND: Ruth Chatterton in "Unfaithful." Laurel and Hardy comedy and sound news.

GEM: "Half Shot at Sunrise" with Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey. Comedy.

It is going to be difficult to give all the reasons why I liked "Unfaithful." To say I like it is to disagree with many of the leading magazine and newspaper critics, but that means about as much as a perch disagreeing with a school of whales.

◇ ◇ ◇

In the first place, the name actually has something to do with the picture. The audience is not enticed into the house with a half-promise that the seventh commandment will be broken, and then disappointed . . . not this time. There is plenty of unfaithfulness.

◇ ◇ ◇

And then there is the exquisite Ruth Chatterton, whom some of the more critical critics have accused of being too "stagey" in this picture. Her "staginess" is a part of her, a part that everybody has liked as well as her thrilling voice and her grace of movement. And, besides, who has more right to be "stagey?"

◇ ◇ ◇

A third reason is Paul Lukas, who would steal the show if he were playing with anyone but Ruth Chatterton. No one else on the screen can put the same intensity into his action that Lukas does with those burning eyes and sharp, sensitive chin. His very calmness and concentration are as disturbing as a three-alarm fire.

◇ ◇ ◇

He is as exotic as the gorgeous pajamas he wears, while Miss Chatterton is as mysteriously beautiful as her pearls. What does it matter if "Unfaithful" is slightly melodramatic? Nobody else can use melodrama to such advantage as these two.

◇ ◇ ◇

Not even in "Anybody's Woman," where she played a chorus-girl part and got drunk and still retained the loveliness that American audiences have adored in her, did Miss Chatterton sing a blues song, as she does in "Unfaithful," and it may be difficult to reconcile oneself to the idea. It does, however, show her unusual versatility and adaptability to any part, and she certainly snaps out of it beautifully for the happy ending.

◇ ◇ ◇

It's no picture for children, but the rest of you may like it as well as I did.

BANK TRIALS OPEN MONDAY

Britton to Face Jury in Robbery Charge

Trial of Frank E. Britton, indicted by the grand jury at Graham last week for burglary in connection with the robbery of the bank at Loving several weeks ago, will begin at 9 o'clock Monday morning before Judge Allan D. Montgomery of the 30th district court for Young county, according to Sam B. Spence, district attorney.

Britton was arrested near this city last week after a prolonged search in this section of the country. Two men already have been convicted in the case, Earl Benson receiving a 15-year prison term, and Fred Jennings a 10-year sentence.

Following Britton's trial, J. H. Nelson will be tried as an accomplice to the robbery at Loving, Mr. Spence said.

Erwin Spicer, Hunter Russell, and Ikie Weathered, all now in jail at Graham, will be tried during the ensuing week for alleged robbery of the bank at Jean, also in Young county, it was stated.

The West Texas Utilities have announced lower electric rates, and correctly, the greatest benefit comes to the smaller customers.

CHANNEL MARKERS

IN THE earlier days of this country, spending the family budget used to be a hazardous business. It was only by harsh experience that a householder learned to steer clear of bad bargains and come into port with his money's worth.

There were snags and shoals aplenty. Inferior goods and unscrupulous merchandising methods made the channel dangerous. "Let the buyer beware" was an accepted slogan of trade.

Fortunately for millions of consumers, this condition has wholly changed in more recent years. The channel has been charted. Today advertised, trade-marked goods of known value are for sale in every city and hamlet. The buyer knows he can trust such products. He reads the advertisements in his paper, chooses the commodities he needs, and makes his purchases with the knowledge that he will get full value for his outlay.

The advertising columns of this newspaper point the way to satisfaction. If you make it a habit to read them daily you will save money, and save time.
