A SWINGING TIME — The Pampa Fire Department staged a rescue attempt this morning to mark the observance of Fire Prevention Week currently underway. Fire Chief Finace Dyer, bottom, holds the rope steady as a fireman on top of the Rose Building prepares to lower Kenneth Gordon down to the street. Shoppers downtown stopped to watch the demonstration, many of them unaware it was not for real.

Future Of Thieu Appears To Be Secret Talk Topic

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House indicated today Henry Kissinger's secret Paris talks with the North Vietnamese will go into an unprecedented third day.

"I would anticipate there would be a third day of meetings," said presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler as he drew even tighter the curtain of secrecy surrounding the Vietnam peace talks.

In turning aside questions at a White House briefing, Ziegler referred to an agreement with the North Vietnamese not to discuss content of the negotiations. He said he was applying that standard "to all questions on the subject of the situation in South Vietnam," regardless of whether they related to the Paris negotiations.

It appeared that the future of South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu was the chief issue under discussion. But Ziegler said "I have no new statement of policy to give you today."

Kissinger, Nixon's national security adviser, and his top assistant, Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., flew to Paris on Saturday and met Sunday with Le Duc Tho of the North Vietnamese Politburo, and Xuan Thuy, chief of the North Vietnamese delegation to the Paris peace talks.

This was Kissinger's 19th secret meeting with the North Vietnamese and marks the second time the sessions have lasted two days. The secret talks have never gone into a third day. Responding to questions, Ziegler said he anticipated talks will extend to a third day "but I think it is unlikely it will go beyond that."

Thieu again rejected the Communist demand Sunday that he quit and make way for a coalition government including the Communists. The White House also has termed news stories that Thieu would resign sheer speculation.

But the belief that Thieu's future was being discussed in Paris was heightened by the presence of Gen. Haig. It was his first appearance at the secret talks, and he returned on Wednesday from talks in Saigon with Thieu and other high-ranking officials.

Kissinger's last meeting with Le Duc Tho and Xuan Thuy was on Sept. 26-27.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said Sunday the Paris talks were in "a very serious, significant and sensitive stage" but there was nothing to indicate any early cease-fire in Vietnam.

He asserted, however, that Nixon's broad peace plans were a "near reality" and "there's no question that we are on the road to peace."

Sen. George McGovern, the Democratic presidential candidate, said in campaign appearances during the weekend that he does not find it accidental "that the peace rumors are flying as the campaign nears its showdown phase...

"I don't believe that Mr. Nixon is going to end the war," McGovern said. "I think the peace rumors are flying to coincide with the closing days of this campaign. If I become the president there isn't any doubt at all that the war will end quickly."

Viet Cong Still Holding 3 Hamlets Near Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — From 250 to 500 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong still held Huong Phuong village and three hamlets 15 to 20 miles north of Saigon today despite heavy air strikes.

The enemy force occupied the hamlets Friday and Huong Phuong on Saturday, cutting Highway 13 between Saigon and a big South Vietnamese military headquarters at Lai Khe, 30 miles north of the capital.

"I don't think anyone regards the threat to Saigon itself as significant because of the relative capabilities of the two sides," said one U.S. source. "The South Vietnamese territorial forces and regular units have good defensive capabilities. The North Vietnamese units are still under strength from previous combat. They are still capable of terror, attacks by fire, sapper attacks and perhaps small infiltration efforts, but the likelihood of any main attack on Saigon is rather remote."

Other American and South Vietnamese officers thought the small-scale attacks might be designed to keep government troops busy while larger enemy forces slipped past to attack such important targets as the big base at Bien Hoa, Saigon and its Tan Son Nhut Air Base.

U.S. B52 bombers attacked troop positions, base camps and infiltration routes on all sides of Saigon. Some of the raids were only four miles east of Huong Phuong and of Highway 13.

Despite the secret Vietnam peace talks in Paris, the United States also kept up its heavy air strikes across North Vietnam, and the Communist forces showed no signs of pulling back from battlefields in South Vietnam.

"We are continuing to carry on the same operations as we have all along," said one American source. "We have had no directives to do anything different. There is no indication that any of the 14 North Vietnamese divisions in South Vietnam are pulling out, withdrawing or discontinuing offensive operations."

The B52s dropped nearly 3,000 tons of bombs Sunday and today on munitions stockpiles, troop positions and supply lines near the North Vietnamese cities of Vinh and Dong Hoi and around Saigon.

Although falling well short of the shattering victory that apparently was its ultimate goal, Hanoi's 1972 offensive in South Vietnam has greatly improved the Communist side's strategic position for a settlement—military or political.

And while battlefield reverses have forced numerous changes in the original plan, there are no signs the North Vietnamese campaign is letting up. Instead it is moving into a new phase.

The lull that followed the recapture of Quang Tri City by the South Vietnamese last month has ended in a new surge of Communist attacks. The "center" of gravity," as one senior American officer phrased it, has shifted south to the region around Saigon.

Military commanders expect a rising level of enemy attacks in the vicinity of Saigon and perhaps even on the capital itself, timed to coincide with the U.S. election in an attempt to embarrass President Nixon.

But officials say they find no indications that North Vietnamese regulars elsewhere in the country are pulling back from the areas which they have seized in the last six months.

"The Communist units are rebuilding their former base areas to maintain their presence and to declare, 'we're here,'" said one U.S. officer. "They are here to stay."

As soon as they are refitted and resupplied, the North Vietnamese could launch another major offensive push. This time they would have the advantage of starting from positions far forward of where they were when they launched their offensive last March 30.

Viewed politically, the control the Communists have won of large areas of South Vietnam and a sizable number of its people would be a crucial factor if current maneuvering produced a standstill cease-fire.

This apparently is why President Nguyen Van Thieu recently reemphasized that any cease-fire must cover all of Indochina, it must be internationally supervised, and the North Vietnamese must pull all of their forces back within their own borders.

Some 408,600 persons were officially listed under Communist control at the end of August, the most recent month for which such figures have been disclosed.

One official cited coastal Binh Dinh Province, where three heavily populated districts were lost in the early days of the Communist drive. He said government troops made a token recapture of one district headquarters and then pulled out.

"If anybody is there now, it's the other side," he said.

Hughes Described As Having A Beard Down To His Waist

MIAMI (AP) — Billionaire recluse Howard Hughes had a beard down to his waist and hair flowing over his shoulders when he made a secret trip from the Bahamas to Miami last February, according to the Miami Herald.

His toenails "were so long they curled up," the newspaper quoted a yacht captain as saying.

Capt. Bob Rehak, 55, former skipper of the yacht Cygnus, said in a copyright story published Sunday that he spent 22 hours with Hughes and his entourage on the trip.

Rehak and Donald Lawrence Hout, a 34-year-old Miami houseboat designer, served as dual captains on the yacht.

The mysterious 66-year-old Hughes left Nassau, where he had lived under a veil of secrecy in the posh Britannia Beach Hotel, and reached Miami Beach on Feb. 17 at 4:30 a.m. U.S. Customs officials confirmed Hughes' arrival in the predawn hours.

Hughes later left on a chartered Eastern Air Lines jet for Managua, Nicaragua—where he is now after a brief sojourn in Vancouver, British Columbia.

"He had this real stringy beard, real thin, and it came down to almost his waist," Rehak said. "His hair was real fine, too, down over his shoulders."

Rehak said Hughes, a private doctor and four aides made the trip. "Three or four of them carried Hughes out of a panel truck on a stretcher, one of those ambulance stretchers that straighten up," Rehak said.

"The Nassau government was starting to snatch his men. They were putting the pressure on him, giving him so many hours to get there (for a residency claim appearance) and one of the security guys said he was not going to be pressured into anything. That's why he left," Rehak was quoted as saying.

Rehak described the group's arrival as "secretive" with "strict security." He said Hughes "had a white sheet over his body, not his face." Rehak added that "Hughes had on an old bathrobe, and didn't have a stitch on underneath, no pajamas, no nothing."

"And that's when I noticed his long toenails. They were so long they curled up," Rehak said. He estimated their length at two inches.

Rehak's description of camera-shy Hughes confirmed reports given by a son of a former Hughes' aide, Peter Maheu, to a Miami grand jury in December 1970.

Amtrak Plans Rail Services To S. Border

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amtrak still wants to provide direct railroad services to the Mexican border through Texas, but apparently it has discarded a recommendation by Congress that it tie the route to the New Orleans and Los Angeles route through San Antonio.

A spokesman for the National Railroad Passenger Corporation said in Washington that the New Orleans-Los Angeles train operates only three times a week and passes through San Antonio in the middle of the night so an extension from San Antonio to Nuevo Laredo would be impractical.

Instead, the spokesman went on, it would make much more sense to run the Laredo service off the Texas Chief at Temple, Tex.

The Texas Chief operates over the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad between Chicago, Kansas City, Mo., Oklahoma City, Fort Worth, Temple and Houston.

An operation south from Temple through Austin and San Antonio would involve service over Missouri Pacific tracks.

The spokesman confirmed that Amtrak president Roger Lewis had assured Rep. J. J. Pickle, D-Tex., that Austin would be included on any new route tying Mexican service into the Amtrak system.

Amtrak officials have been conferring on the proposed service with representatives of Texas, Arkansas, Mexico and several railroads.

Demonstration Held In Observance Of Pampa Fire Prevention Week

Pampa citizens shopping downtown at mid-morning today got to see the Pampa Fire Department in action as firemen "rescued" a man from the roof of the Rose Building.

With sirens sounding and police directing traffic, the firemen rushed to the south side of the building and began to prepare the equipment for the rescue.

Using an extension ladder, firemen climbed to the top of the building. There they gave aid to the "stranded" man on the top. He was then lowered to the street by means of a rope dangling from the top of the ladder.

Placed on a stretcher, he was then taken off in the Fire Department ambulance for "emergency treatment."

The demonstration, which many of the bystanders believed to be an actual rescue, was held in observance of Fire Prevention Week, which will end Saturday.

The rescue is one of the many demonstrations and exhibits which will be given during the week as firemen seek to make people more aware of the need to take steps to prevent fire and other accidents.

The Pampa Fire Department, under Fire Chief Finace Dyer, is sponsoring the week-long observance with the cooperation of the Chamber of Commerce, school and youth groups, service and civic organizations and merchants and business firms.

The fire stations will be open at 8 a.m. Wednesday for open houses throughout the day. The Central Fire Station in the downtown section will have coffee and doughnuts.

The schools will be holding fire drills during the week, with firemen conducting inspections throughout the city.

Sirens are being sounded at noon daily during the observance to remind the public of Fire Prevention Week.

Various films and exhibits are being shown at schools and clubs to promote fire prevention methods.

Although only one week has been set aside, Chief Dyer reminds people that fire prevention should be a year-round activity for each citizen.

Russia Said Suffering Serious Food Shortage

WASHINGTON (AP) — The food situation in the Soviet Union is so serious that Moscow reportedly is trying to buy huge amounts of potatoes and grain from Eastern Bloc countries in addition to the vast imports of wheat and feed from the United States, the Agriculture Department said today.

Citing a "number of sources," the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said drought and delays in harvesting 1972 crops have not only reduced grain supplies for food but have forced heavy sales of livestock because of dwindling feed supplies.

"Drought in certain areas is being called the worst since the 1930s; the slaughter of cattle is said to be taxing slaughterhouse facilities in some districts," the FAS said in a report.

Further, planting of winter grain for harvest next year is running behind schedule, the report noted. The USDA said last week in other reports that 1972-crop harvests had been delayed and that fall planting was about one-fourth behind schedule.

Today's report said Moscow may be planning to import more food from satellite countries because of the quickening seriousness of the situation.

"Poland has reportedly agreed to ship a sizable tonnage of potatoes, especially for the Moscow area, a highly unusual step, if the reports are true," the FAS said.

"Arrangements are reported to be in process, though not yet finalized, whereby as much as one million tons of wheat, rye and barley may be sold to the USSR by Germany," the report said.

Federal Agency May Announce Superport Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Maritime Administration soon is expected to announce that offshore docking facilities—Superports—are the best way for the United States to import the oil it needs to stave off an energy crisis.

Top priority, according to a preliminary report, will be given to a site off Delaware—near the oil-hungry refineries of the East Coast that depend on foreign crude-oil for more than 50 per cent of their production.

But the final report also is expected to recommend a site somewhere off the Gulf Coast.

And it could arouse environmentalists, who earlier were instrumental in getting Delaware to ban a deep-water transfer facility in Delaware Bay.

Important Role Of Satellites Cited At IAC

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — A U.S. scientist said today that "satellites are likely to change our value and social priorities in the future as much as the automobile did."

H. Guyford Stever, director of the U.S. National Science Foundation, told the 23rd International Astronautical Congress, that satellites would "play an ever-increasing role in the effort to maintain the natural systems on which we all depend."

Stever declared that the global communication satellites, had "more impact on world development than any other space activity."

He underlined possibilities inherent in the system of "remote sensing of earth's resources by satellites," explaining that the present experimental phase was marked by the recent launching of the Earth Resources Technology Satellite. Stever predicted that when satellite earth sensing systems join "the family of space applications for world development," the following can be expected:

"Developing countries which may be cautious about investing substantial scarce resources in space activities can in fact acquire the product or benefits from space activities at a very nominal cost.

Nation's Top Candidates Seeking Votes From Columbus Day Crowds

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

President Nixon, Sen. George McGovern and Sargent Shriver have been seeking votes from Columbus Day crowds as the presidential election campaign approaches its final four weeks.

Of the top four candidates, only Vice President Spiro T. Agnew did not campaign Sunday, but he planned to resume campaigning tonight at a rally at Anaheim, Calif.

One Sunday campaigner, Eunice Kennedy Shriver, wife of Democratic vice presidential candidate Sargent Shriver, won a tug-of-war for a microphone before making herself heard in Baltimore.

President Nixon praised labor leaders and paid tribute to ethnic groups at a Columbus Day dinner sponsored by Italian-American organizations in Washington.

Millions of immigrants have learned, Nixon said, that "America is a country in which a man or woman has an equal chance at the starting line and an equal chance to get to the top."

"Let us be proud to be Americans," he said to cheers. He praised AFL-CIO President George Meany as among labor leaders who "stand up for America."

Nixon's only other announced campaign appearance this week is a quick trip to Atlanta on Thursday.

Sen. McGovern, the Democratic candidate for president, headed for New York City today for the annual Columbus Day parade. He was to go to Detroit later in the day on another coast-to-coast campaign swing.

McGovern taped Sunday a television speech on his proposals for a Vietnam peace. Scheduled for viewing Tuesday night, the speech is said to contain a step-by-step plan for U.S. withdrawal from Indochina.

Shriver participated in a Columbus Day parade in Providence, R.I., Sunday, winning a belated endorsement from state Democratic Chairman Lawrence McGarry.

Shriver also made a reference to the poor showing by the Democratic ticket in most polls. He said that if Columbus had listened to the polls he would never have set out on his journey to the New World because the indications would have been that the world was flat.

Shriver planned to attend a breakfast with labor leaders in Baltimore today and then go to Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Shriver engaged in a brief struggle with a state Democratic party official who tried to take the microphone from her at a Sunday beer party in Baltimore.

The Fair Campaign Practices Committee said today that the 1972 campaign "will be the dirtiest in recent years." It said it has handled "more complaints about dirty politics in the five weeks of the 1972 campaign than in any comparable period in any year since it started keeping statistics.

Big Political Contributor Faces Legal Difficulties

BRYAN, Tex. (AP) — The year's biggest listed political contributor gave hundreds of thousands of dollars first to Hubert H. Humphrey, then to President Nixon at the same time he had trouble paying bills and faced legal and federal difficulties.

Walter T. Duncan, a land speculator who was unknown to political fund-raisers and little known even to his neighbors, burst into prominence in June as a $300,000 contributor to the Minnesota senator's presidential primary campaign.

Two months after Humphrey lost the Democratic nomination, Duncan showed up on Nixon financial reports as contributing a total of $257,000 to dozens of the President's fund-raising committees.

Repeated efforts to interview Duncan failed. He did not respond to telephone inquiries left at his office and with associates, nor did he reply to a written inquiry and interview questions left with an office secretary. Duncan's lawyer, Henry Haltom of Houston, said, after being apprised of the questions, "I don't think he'll talk to you."

Dozens of interviews with persons in six states and an examination of public records in locations from bustling Houston to the West Texas cowtown of Marfa show:

—Four days after Duncan handed a $200,000 check to a Humphrey fund raiser in June, a 220-acre parcel of land he owned on the outskirts of Austin was sold on the courthouse steps because Duncan failed to make all of a $104,000 installment payment. He had paid $25,000 of the amount due.

—As Duncan was distributing $6,000 checks to the Nixon committees in August, he was sued in state court at Dallas for $2.27 million arising from the same land deal. The suit is partly on behalf of a federal corporation. Duncan so far has not responded to the suit.

—Before Duncan made his contributions, federal agents were quietly investigating his role as the second-largest borrower from National Bankers Life Insurance Co., which collapsed along with Sharpstown State Bank of Houston in a 1971 scandal that toppled leaders in the Texas Democratic party.

—After his contributions to Humphrey became public, Internal Revenue Service agents joined in looking at Duncan's affairs, specifically at whether he might be obligated to pay gift tax because of the contributions.

—Federal and state grand juries also have been inquiring into an alleged kickback scheme involving some apartments Duncan owned. He received a clean bill of health from the Harris County (Houston) Grand Jury.

—Duncan is being sued in federal district court in Houston for alleged failure to make good his guarantee of a $150,000 promissory note to a now bankrupt Indiana finance company. Although two attorneys say he was paid $25,000 cash for his signature and he has responded that he did sign the guarantee, he says he doesn't owe the money.

—A suit against Duncan connected with some of the same people involved in the $150,000 guarantee, among them a leading contributor to Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Inc., was settled in 1970. Duncan still is paying off the $205,000 owed to a Wisconsin man who says he "is not happy" with the Texan's payoff record on a separate debt.

—Duncan also is being sued in two separate actions in state court in Houston. A carpeting company seeks $14,000, alleging he failed to honor a promissory note. He claims the company installed inferior carpeting in an apartment project. An insurance agency seeks $40,000 from Duncan and two associates for evicting it from an office building. Duncan says the agency was behind in its rent.

Duncan, 45, is a native Texan who served briefly in the Navy at the end of World War II. After managing Texas real estate for Gulf Oil in the late 1950s, he and his wife bought a motel, later sold it for a profit and branched out into real-estate speculation.

He is said to have dealt profitably in second mortgages during the mid-1960s. He moved to his East Texas area about 10 years ago. But after his sudden prominence he moved with his wife and son to San Antonio where he has an unlisted home phone number.

Although Duncan became a principal stockholder in a Bryan bank, owned a $90,000 home and was helping develop an upper-income subdivision, he operated so quietly that even his father, a retired college professor, says he was stunned when Duncan emerged as a major political contributor.

"I really don't think he gave that kind of money," John T. Duncan of Bryan told a local reporter soon after the Humphrey contribution became known. "I have my serious doubts about that."

Asked in a later telephone interview if he were surprised also by the size of the Nixon contributions, the father said, "What would you think?" He declined further comment.

Duncan's only previous recorded political contributions were $50 to Humphrey in 1968 and $500 this year to Texas Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes's unsuccessful campaign for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. County records show Duncan voted in the May 6 Texas Democratic primary.

Duncan's closest associates also appeared surprised at his large contributions.

"I knew he had some friends in high places but I didn't know he was that politically involved," said J. Stanley Stephen, executive vice president of Bryan's First Bank and Trust Co.

Duncan and Stephen are members of the group that controls the bank and have associated in at least one big land deal.

Glass Of Windows Reported Broken, Vandalism Blamed

Vandals left a trail of broken glass about town over the weekend with an unofficial damage estimate near $1,000, according to police reports.

Warmup for the weekend came earlier in the week when nine juveniles age nine through 14 broke a number of window panes, damaged some workshop equipment and a bowling ball at a residence on Darby St.

Eight of these have been released to the custody of their families; six of them admitting to the forced entry and the damage. A ninth has not been apprehended. They will be turned over to the juvenile officer for disposition.

Saturday night, three boys, 12 and 13 years old, broke windows from a dwelling on E. Browning. They maintained they were only breaking glass already damaged. They were released to the mother of one of them at whose home they were staying.

The driver of a delivery truck told officers he parked his vehicle at the intersection of Wynne and Atchison Sts. and returned to find the left door glass broken. The instrument causing the damage was not found.

Sunday night, officers responded to the burglar alarm at a department store and found nothing amiss other than BB pellet holes in a window. It was assumed the vibration of the shot set off the alarm.

At the school system's Carver Center, 24 panes of glass were broken from windows in the building. School officials found no other damage or loss but figured the glass bill at about $150.

Otherwise, the city was quiet during the period according to all official reports.

"Adam's Apple"

The projecting cartilage of the larynx in the throat received its name of "Adam's apple" from the belief that a piece of the apple that Eve gave to Adam stuck in his throat.

TEXAS WEEKEND

31 Persons Lose Lives In Traffic And Shooting

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A single traffic accident in Waco that killed six persons and a spectacular crash at the Texas World Speedway in College Station that killed a race driver caused Texas weekend violent deaths to skyrocket Sunday.

Police said the Waco accident occurred when one car swerved to miss a motorcycle and then collided with a second on-coming car.

The dead, all Waco residents, were listed as Yolanda Smith, six months; her sister Cathy, 15; Tweety Pryor, 22; Martin Harnel, 72; Mrs. Harnel, 72 and Edward Haywood, 20.

Race driver Louis Wusterhausen, 36, of Austin, was killed in the Royal Trito 300 race of the American Racing Club of America. Wusterhausen's car collided with one driven by Cleve Smith of Indiana.

Early today, the Associated Press weekend violent death count, which started at 6 p.m. Friday and includes deaths through midnight Sunday, stood at 31, including 19 motor vehicle fatalities.

Six persons were shot to death, two drowned and one each was stabbed to death, electrocuted and beaten to death. Another man was found dead in the Ranger city jail.

Herbert Lierman, 62, of Waco was accidentally electrocuted at his home Sunday morning. Police said family members told them Lierman had gone to the attic at his home to fix an electrical wire. About an hour later, his wife heard a noise and went to investigate, and found Lierman on the floor dead.

Other reported violent deaths included Epolite Charles, 48, of San Angelo. Department of Public Safety officers said Charles was struck by a car and killed Sunday on old U.S. 67 north of San Angelo.

In Houston Virgil Q. Yawn, 63, was killed Sunday when the car he was driving slammed into another vehicle on a Houston Freeway.

A woman, identified as Mrs. Beatrice Flores Garza, 36, was shot in the head as she sat in a car with her husband and several other persons in what police said was the aftermath of an argument in a bar.

Also in Houston, James Wright, 46, was killed when the car in which he was a passenger collided with another vehicle.

In Grand Prairie three persons died in a two car accident that claimed the lives of Charles Bradford, 40, of Grand Prairie, Ronnie Wood, 17, of Arlington; and Darrel Lynn McGee, 17, also of Arlington.

Amber D. Hindman, 3, of Blackwell, was killed Friday in a one-car accident on FM 1170 two miles west of Blackwell. Police said the young girl's mother Mrs. Billy Don Hindman lost control of the car while attempting to shut a door on the car.

Mexico Train Wreck Deaths Rise To 204

SALTILLO, Mexico (AP) — Rescue crews have finished their work at the site of Mexico's second worst rail disaster and authorities put the number of confirmed dead at 204 and injured at 1,098.

Police Chief Genaro Gutierrez Devila said Sunday the teams had also collected parts of bodies maimed beyond recognition that could have belonged to 10 more victims, but he said there was no way of confirming this.

The train's engineer, Melchor Sanchez Echeverria, and at least one other member of his crew face charges of homicide.

Officials said blood tests showed they had been drinking before eight of the 24 cars hurtled off a downhill curve at more than 70 miles an hour Thursday night. Four cars caught fire.

The seven-man crew claimed the brakes failed, but officials of the Mexican National Railways said an investigation by experts disproved this. Six of the crew are under arrest and police are searching for the seventh.

Deputy Celso Delgado, head of a congressional commission investigating the wreck, said he would call the railway chief, Victor Manuel Villasenor, to testify before his group.

Texas Oilmen Will Review 'Situation'

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas oil operators, large and small, meet Monday and Tuesday to check the health of their industry.

They know in advance their findings will be on the gloomy side.

Texas oil production has had a 100 per cent allowable since April but still cannot meet demand.

Natural gas also is in short supply.

Texas drilling explorations are at a depressed level with no indication of an upward swing.

Higher quotas for crude oil and petroleum products imports became effective Oct. 1.

The 600 oilmen attending the 53rd meeting of the Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association will be seeking incentives which would reverse such trends. The statewide organization of oil and gas producers accounts for about 90 per cent of Texas petroleum output.

With a few exceptions dictated by reservoir conditions, Texas oil field allowables were placed in April at 100 per cent of their rated capacity for the first time since the Korean War days of 1948. Current production, however, is averaging only 3.5 million barrels a day compared with 3.3 million a year ago.

This is a sharp contrast with 1967 when Texas turned to its reserve producing capacity and increased its output more than 400,000 barrels a day in less than three months when the Arab-Israeli war closed the Suez Canal and threatened Western Europe with a critical shortage of oil.

Robert A. Buschman of San Antonio, the Texas Mid-Continent president, says the 100 per cent allowable ordered in April amounted to official recognition Texas oil fields no longer will be able to make a significant response to a national or international emergency as in 1967.

"The ability of Texas fields to produce has been steadily declining for years due to the lack of economic incentives to explore for new oil and gas reservoirs," Buschman says.

Buschman is to review the Texas situation in a presidential report at a Tuesday general session.

Harry Bridges, president of Shell Oil Co., will discuss the industry's increasing technological capability. Wilton E. Scott, Tenneco, Inc., executive vice president will discuss the potential for finding new oil and gas reserves.

Since Texas became an oil producing state, field discoveries have been estimated to have held a total of 145 billion barrels. Cumulative production has absorbed 33 billion barrels. Current recoverable reserves, however, are estimated at only 13 billion barrels, leaving 99 billion barrels of oil not recoverable under existing practices and technology.

Natural forces will hold most of the 99 billion barrels in the ground but many Texas operators believe known technology backed by new state legislation would permit production of about 2 billion barrels and new technology eventually will permit recovery of another 7 billion.

A number of the operators attending the Monday and Tuesday meetings will be members of the Texas Conservation Committee for Unitization, a group formed last month to seek new legislation that would assist in recovering as much of the 99 billion barrels as possible.

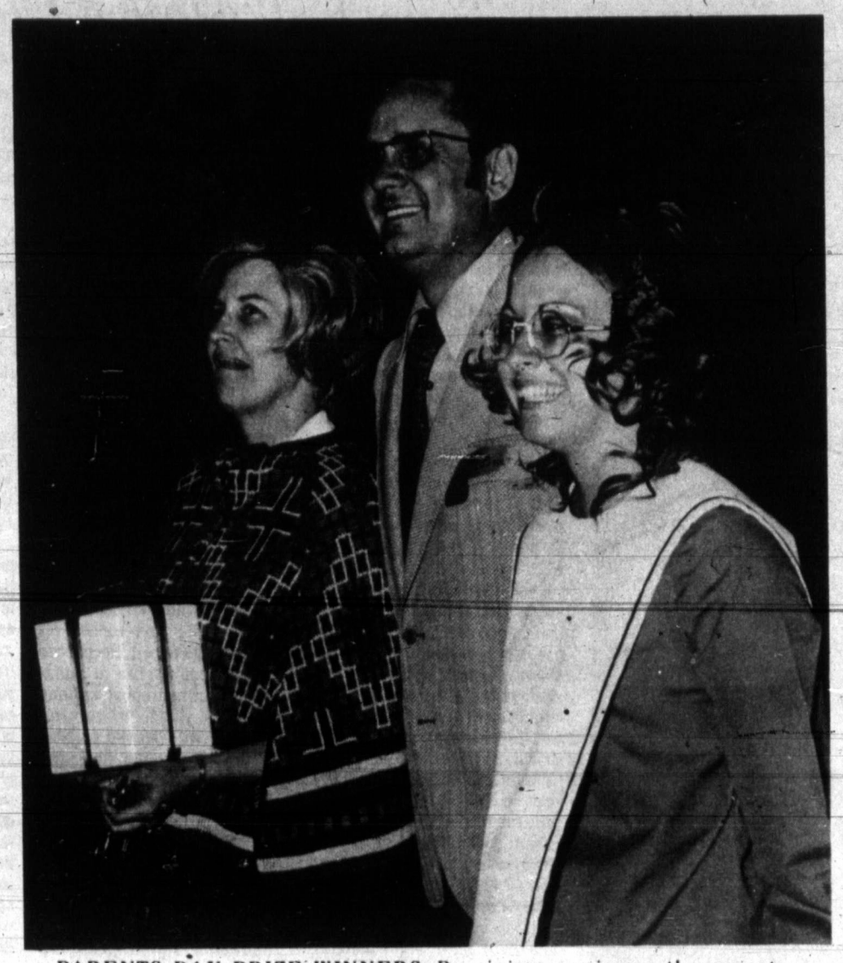

The committee's objective is a statute that would permit regulatory authorities to require that a field be operated as a single unit. Texas is the only major oil producing state without such a statute.

The committee contends many secondary recovery projects are not feasible unless a reservoir is managed as a single unit.

Unitization has been a Texas controversy for years, however, and the state legislature has authorized only voluntary unitization.

A year ago, Texas Mid-Continent called for "a compromising spirit" that would result in acceptance of fieldwide unitization.

Every uranium atom that splits in nuclear fission releases two or three neutrons. One neutron may split another uranium atom. Therefore, uranium in fission may produce enough neutrons to offset the loss of those which leak out or are absorbed by impurities or nonfission reactions. This is called a chain reaction.

THE PLOG REPORT

WHAT AMERICANS THINK

Do Voters Mean What They Say?

By STANLEY C. PLOG, Ph.D.
President, Behavior Science Corp. (BASICO), Los Angeles
© 1972 by Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Although voters say the 1972 election is critical to the future of America, at the same time they believe President Nixon has already won and, as a result, they are not as concerned about the election as they profess to be.

This apparent dichotomy was established in a series of studies conducted recently by the Behavior Science Corp. (BASICO). Our investigating team of senior psychologists conducted an in-depth analysis of a selected sample of voters throughout the country, a cross-section of our citizenry. The research included personal interviews, intensive discussions with groups of voters, psychological questionnaires and projective testing.

Dr. Plog

While survey results indicated an unusually high intensity of feeling about the election, BASICO psychologists who conducted the in-depth interviews came to a surprising and somewhat different conclusion.

As part of the interview technique, each psychologist evaluated the believability of the participants' statements. These evaluations are based on an assessment of the underlying emotional commitment of the individual. Do the beliefs really agree with the words? In this case, our psychologists said no.

The strong indication was that most voters do not feel as concerned about the election as they say they do. Voters of both parties believe the polls and they are convinced that the election has already been won.

Republicans are confident that, bearing some unforeseen catastrophe, Mr. Nixon's second term is assured. George McGovern's backers are drawing the same conclusion; many feel that he cannot win and their main hope is that his campaign will plant the seeds of ideas that will be nourished by future candidates in future elections.

When asked, voters say that the election is important. One of the questions in the BASICO study was: "Comparing this election to others in the past, how important do you believe it is for the future of America?"

The response was:

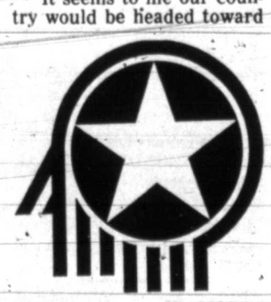

Importance	Pct. Response
Very important	83
Somewhat important	12
Not very important	4
Not important at all	1

The research showed no significant difference among voter groups—young and old, college educated or not, white collar or blue collar, black or white. The study results showed that the explanations given for this interest focus around two primary concerns: a fear that America's social problems are growing faster than our ability to solve them and a belief that the two candidates offer dramatically different approaches to solving these problems.

Many of those who supported Mr. Nixon said they feared an irreversible national catastrophe would occur if McGovern won. Some of their comments:

"This country could go bankrupt in a hurry if McGovern gets in."

"It seems to me our country would be headed toward (becoming) a socialist state with McGovern."

"Of all the elections I have been involved in, this is the most important."

McGovern's supporters say they are equally concerned, but for different reasons.

Most of them believe that his election offers an opportunity to restructure the basic political power blocs in the United States and to give priority to new and important social issues. They refer constantly to a gap in equality and opportunity between various segments of our society, a lack of participation in the political process by disadvantaged groups and a need to pay attention to domestic social problems rather than world affairs. These beliefs were stated most strongly by college-educated young people:

"This election is more important than others because unless some drastic changes are made, it will just be more of the same."

"Politically, this country isn't ready for McGovern. But, boy, do we need him."

"We've got to get the right man in this time or Nixon's going to make this country into a bunch of old-line conservatives and we'll never get social justice for everyone."

Still, while many of the voters express strong opinions, it turns out that few are really committed to backing up their beliefs with actions. Our psychologists found a significant lack of emotional involvement at the grass roots level, where the campaign is not as intense as it might appear.

If the unforeseen were to happen—if the race should suddenly appear to the voters to be much closer than it does now—the psychology of the voters could change dramatically.

With the complacency of President Nixon's supporters shattered and new hope in the McGovern camp, we could see the kind of once-in-a-lifetime battle of political philosophies about which the voters are talking. But if this does not take place, the 1972 presidential election will probably prove to be calmer and less intense than the Nixon-Humphrey contest of 1968.

Some hot information that could save your life

By Abigail Van Buren

(c 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR READERS: Even if statistics bore you, please read this. I ran it last year and had hundreds of requests to repeat it. The information may come in handy if you're ever on a quiz show. It could even save your life:

Q. When was the Chicago fire?

A. Oct. 9, 1871. Exactly 101 years ago today!

But let's get more current, shall we? Did you know that last year more than half a million fires occurred in the United States? More than 12,500 lives were lost. Even more tragically, a large percentage of deaths were children, elderly persons and invalids who had been left alone for just a few minutes.

The chief causes of fires, in order of the toll taken, were:

1.] smoking, 2.] electrical wiring, 3.] heating and cooking equipment, 4.] children playing with matches, 5.] open flames and sparks, 6.] flammable liquids, 7.] suspicion of arson, 8.] chimneys and flues, 9.] lightning, 10.] spontaneous ignition.

The total fire loss in 1971 was an estimated $2.845 billion. [No misprint—that's two billion, eight hundred forty-five million dollars.]

Now for some tips that could save your life:

● Be sure your cigaret is out. Matches, too. And never leave matches or lighters within the reach of children.

● Don't overload electrical outlets with too many appliances.

● Don't run cords under rugs or over radiators where they may get damaged. And replace a cord if it is frayed.

● Never leave small children alone in the house. Not even for a few minutes.

● Have your wiring and electrical installations done by a professional.

● Store oily rags and paints in a cool place in tightly sealed metal containers.

● Never use flammable liquids for dry cleaning indoors.

● Never smoke in bed.

● Have a fire drill in your home to be sure everyone knows what to do in case of fire.

● Invest in a compact, easy-to-use fire extinguisher and keep it handy in your kitchen, or be a sport and buy one for your cottage, car, boat and the back bedroom, too.

NOW, in case of fire:

Most fires occur between midnight and 6 a. m., so always sleep with your bedroom door closed. If you suspect fire, feel the top of the door. If it's hot, don't open it. Escape thru the window. But first alert the rest of the household.

If you can't open the window, break it with a chair. Cover the rough edges with a blanket and sit on the window ledge with one leg hanging outside and one inside, and wait for help.

The phone number of your fire department should be taped on every telephone. If it isn't, don't fumble around trying to call them. Call from a neighbor's house.

If you live in an apartment building, use the stairway. Don't take a chance on the elevator. If it fails, you're trapped.

Once out, stay out. No treasure—not even the family pet—is worth risking a human life.

It took less than three minutes to read this column. Was it worth it? I hope so. God bless. Have a good day!

Turn Fall House Cleaning Into Home Hazard Hunt

NEW YORK, N. Y., --Home. It's where you most often are but also one of the most hazardous places you can be. Approximately, 29,000 Americans die annually and 20 million more are injured as a result of home accidents.

Metropolitan Life Insurance Company suggests turning this year's fall cleaning into a home hazard hunt to ensure that your home is safe as well as clean. Here are some safety suggestions.

In the halls or on the stairway--Never put scatter rugs at the head or foot of the stairs, and use rubber backing or non-skid mats under small rugs. Also, be sure to tack down curled rug edges and mend tears. If you're waxing the floor, apply the wax evenly and rub in well; don't ever wax the stairs. If there are children in your house, you should have folding gates at the top and bottom of the stairway. Stairs should have sturdy full-length railings and a light switch at the top and bottom. And remember—things left on stairs, such as bundles or toys, may save a trip up, but may also result in a fast, bone-breaking trip down.

Living room—Avoid balancing acts when hanging curtains, changing bulbs, etc., and use a sturdy house-hold stepstool instead of a shaky chair. Arrange the furniture so that there are clear paths in which to move around. Sparks, flames and hot ashes cause burned tables, rugs, even a burned home, so have enough large ashtrays in the right places and a screen that really covers the fireplace, if you have one. Use care with candles, lanterns and other festive flamethrowers. If electric cords are showing signs of wear, replace them--the same applies to faulty plugs, outlets and switches.

Bedroom--Again, arrange furniture so that there is a clear path from door to bed, with light switches at both places. All screens should be securely fastened lest children lean against them and fall to the ground, and windows, preferably, should be open from the top. Auxiliary heating devices should be used with extreme care and turned off before you go to bed. People are often trapped by fire at night. Closing your bedroom door may prevent your becoming overcome with smoke or heat and may delay the fire until help arrives. The entire family should know what to do in case of fire including alternate escape routes if fire should ever block the hall or stairs. And despite frequent warnings, smoking in bed still causes many deaths.

Bathroom--The bathroom is a favorite for accidents. Prevent slipping by using a rubber suction mat in the tub and a bath mat on the floor. Have a handrail for support while getting in and out of the bathtub. Electrical appliances are a hazard in a bathroom particularly should they fall into the sink or tub or touched with wet hands. Don't leave young children alone in the tub. Keep only what you need in the medicine cabinet and keep all medicines out of children's reach.

Kitchen--So many good things come out of the kitchen, it's a wonder that so much bad can happen in it. Be a careful chef. Keep burnable things such as curtains, towels, cookbooks, cooking oil, etc., away from the stove. Keep a pot holder handy for quick use. Wipe up spilled grease at once. Watch that kettles don't boil over and put out a gas flame; and before leaving the kitchen, check to see that all burners are off. Keep a fire extinguisher handy.

The kitchen is a dangerous place for children, so while there, his or her safest place is in a high chair or playpen. Here are some additional suggestions that could prevent your child from becoming harmed. When you're cooking, use the stove's back units, with pot handles out of reach. Wipe up spills at once to prevent slipping. If you break glass or china, wrap it in a newspaper before throwing it out. Keep household cleaners such as lye, disinfectants, ammonia and other poisons away from food or children's reach. Keep sharp knives in a wall rack rather than loose in drawers.

Metropolitan Life offers free a checklist so you can score your home's safety. To obtain a "Check for Home Safety" just write to Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, Health and Welfare Divison, 1 Madison Avenue, New York, N. Y. 10010.

Oswald: "In competitive situations when each side has its own suit and approximately half the high-card strength no one knows exactly what he or his opponents can make. In such situations, the winning player is the man with that indefinable something known as 'feel of the table'."

Jim: "East could have jumped right to four hearts over North's spade bid, but East wanted to get to play at four hearts. Also East wanted to find out something about the enemy strength to help him decide about the possibility of saving at five hearts. Therefore, he just bid three hearts."

Oswald: "North decided to compete to three spades and East went on to the four hearts he had wanted to bid from the start."

Jim: "South passed. He had good defense against hearts but nothing that looked like a double. This put it right up to North. North knew his partner wouldn't be hurt at four spades and went to four spades."

Oswald: "This threw the ball back to East. Was North bidding four spades to make or as a save? Finally, East decided North was saving but East did not double. He was going to be satisfied to beat the hand one trick undoubled which is just what he did."

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Taking matters into your own hands is more likely than not an excess which you cannot sustain later. Shelve drastic moves.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Events differ from expectations. Sudden reactions are not appropriate unless you restrain yourself long enough to formulate plans.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Take full advantage of a moving situation, seek new contacts with no preconceived notions of what they have to be or do.

Capricorn [Dec. 22 - Jan. 19]: What appears to be erratic behavior is response to factors unknown to you. Criticism from your point of view is unwarranted.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Nothing seems sacred today: Long established facts may no longer be so. Further information is needed before you move.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Speculative ideas and ventures now riding high will burst like bubbles. Map out alternative courses and be ready for change.

Polly's Pointers

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY —Like Mrs. D.E. I, too, had trouble with female puppy stains on my kitchen floor. She could soil the floor faster than I could clean it. Sprinkle salt on the spots and then just enough water to dampen it. This will loosen the soil in about a minute. Mop with warm soapy water (a good wash detergent), then add a drop of a good liquid household cleaner such as used for heavy jobs like woodwork, etc. I skim off the excess suds. When the floor is clean and dry, cover the entire floor with old newspapers.

—FRANCES

DEAR POLLY —I want to tell Mrs. D.E. that I use pure white vinegar, just as it comes from the bottle, and it works perfectly for removing puppy stains from my linoleum floor and deodorizes as well. The puppy will not use the same place again if she cannot smell her own odor after the cleanup. I always clean up such a spot just as soon as I see it.

—J.L.R.

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY —I have a large white carrara marble head that has yellowed along the neckline. Will someone kindly tell me how to clean and whiten this beautiful piece?

—MRS. J.P.

DEAR POLLY —My Pet Peeve is with manufacturers who discontinue making a product that we have grown to like and that they sold us on in the first place. I like a good-sized freezer in my refrigerator at the BOTTOM but cannot find them any more. The refrigerator part is used three or four times as much as the freezer and they should realize this arrangement is more convenient. Side-by-side models take up too much room and it is impossible to get a cookie sheet, cake pan or large turkey in the narrow freezer side of such a model.

Adventures in Sewing

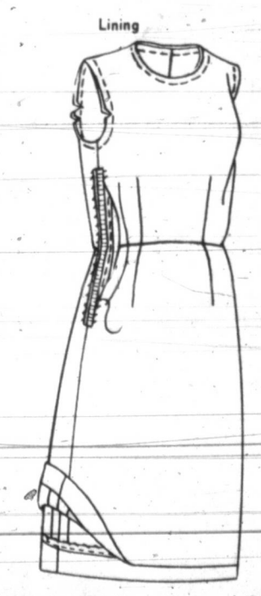

Linings Add Finish to 'Undercover' Story

(Seventh in a Series)

By Mabel S. Obenchain

An interfacing is placed along an edge between facing and outer garment. It is used to mold and shape a garment and to reinforce areas subject to wear as in buttonholes, collars and belts. It is used in addition to underfacing or backing. Interfacing comes in several weights for use in outer fabrics of different weights. It can be woven or non-woven. The non-woven material is usually a little stiffer and one variety has an all-bias quality. There is also a non-woven press-on type which can be used for extra reinforcement for small areas. Interfacing should never be heavier than the garment fabric.

A lining is an inside finish to a garment covering the seams. The lining sections are seamed together separately, then sewn into the completed garment, joining the two at the major seams. When lining a dress, use a fairly lightweight material . . . china silk, sheath lining, synthetic flat crepes as well as the trade-name fabrics on the market are all suitable.

A dress lining is cut from the same pattern pieces as for the dress omitting the facings. Sleeves usually are not lined on dresses. Assemble the lining sections as you did on the dress. Stay stitch the armhole and neck edges at seam line. Slip the lining into the dress, wrong sides together. Pin at shoulders. Tack the armhole edges of the lining and dress together carefully. Clip neck edges of lining, turn toward dress and slip stitch to dress along neckline. Turn in seam allowance of lining and slip stitch along both sides of zipper tape. After adjusting hem of dress, cut lining one inch shorter and hem separately.

WHERE THEY STAND

THE ISSUES OF THE 1972 CAMPAIGN

Defense

REPUBLICANS	DEMOCRATS
By adhering to a defense policy based on strength at home, partnership abroad and a willingness to negotiate everywhere, we hold that lasting peace is now achievable. We will not let America become a second-class power, dependent for survival on the good will of adversaries. We draw a sharp distinction between prudent reductions in defense spending and the meat-ax slashes with which some Americans are now beguiled by the political opposition. We wholeheartedly support an all-volunteer armed force and expect to end the draft by July 1, 1973. We will continue to pursue arms-control agreements — but we recognize that this can be successful only if we maintain sufficient strength.	Maintain adequate military forces for deterrence and effective support of our international position, but reduce military spending where consistent with national security, and reduce overseas bases and forces. Reject calls to use the SALT (strategic-arms-limitation treaty) agreement as an excuse for wasteful and dangerous acceleration of our military spending. For workers and industries dependent on defense spending, we pledge reconversion policies and Government resources to assure jobs and new industrial opportunities. We urge abolition of the draft.

The positions above were extracted from the official 1972 platforms of the Republican and Democratic Parties.

Busing and Desegregation

REPUBLICANS	DEMOCRATS
We are committed to guaranteeing equality of educational opportunity and to completing the process of ending de jure (by law) school segregation. At the same time, we are irrevocably opposed to busing for racial balance . . . We regard it as unnecessary, counterproductive and wrong . . . If it is necessary to halt such busing we would favor consideration of an appropriate amendment to the Constitution.	Support the goal of desegregation as a means to achieve equal access to quality education for all our children. There are many ways to desegregate schools. School attendance lines may be redrawn; schools may be paired; larger physical facilities may be built to serve larger, more diverse enrollments; magnet schools or educational parks may be used. Transportation of students is another tool to accomplish desegregation. It must continue to be available according to Supreme Court decisions.

The positions above were extracted from the official 1972 platforms of the Republican and Democratic Parties.

'Gifted' Comedinne Tomlin To Make Appearance At WT

CANYON—"Comedy documentaries" are what rubber-faced comedienne Lily Tomlin says she creates when she transforms into everything from a 1950s bobby-socks queen to a persnickety telephone operator or the "world's oldest beauty expert."

The talented performer of television's Laugh-in will perform Saturday at 2 p.m. in the West Texas State University Fieldhouse.

Miss Tomlin's humor has been dissected and inspected by critics throughout the country. The San Francisco Chronicle's John Wasserman has called her a female equivalent to Lenny Bruce and Mort Sahl. A Michigan critic characterizes her jam-faced waif, Edith Ann, as a new "Baby Snooks, only more self-assured and knowledgeable" than the late Fanny Brice's comic creation.

Her humor ranges from conventional comedy to "mystifying grotesqueries," such as a female "rubber addict" who when cured becomes a "normal, socially-accepted alcoholic," or a life-of-the-party type who disrupts a funeral with such lines as "last one to the cemetery's a rotten egg."

Many of her characters are drawn from her own life-espicially from her childhood in Detroit. Her first public performance was a walk-on in "Mad Woman of Chaillot" presented at Wayne State College.

After a number of stints in New York night clubs, she made a smash debut in 1969 as the nasal-voiced telephone operator Ernestine who intoned such funnies as "Oh, Mr. Jedgar Hoover, I want to tell you I just love your vacuum cleaner..."

Described in Newsweek as "perhaps the most gifted, original satiric actress since the late Ruth Draper," the 32-year old performer has scored hit after hit in college performances and public appearances such as one held recently in Carnegie Hall in New York.

Describing herself as a "strong feminist and intensely political," the comedienne recently walked off the Dick Cavett show when she says another guest "boasted about his possessions, including horses, dogs and wife."

Her performance credits also include appearances on children's shows in which she raps with the under-12 set and gives them the opportunity to come on the stage and do imitations of her imitations.

The rakish Edith Ann is also the main character in Miss Tomlin's album, "And That's the Truth," which was recorded before a live audience. The album has Edith Ann telling listeners, among other things, that "the little boys on her block play war, dropping water bags from their windows down to the street, where they kill innocent little girls with dolls."

Appearing on the bill with Miss Tomlin at WTSU will be singer composer Kenny Rankin, a New Yorker who has been a frequent guest on the Johnny Carson show.

Rankin, who has produced two albums on the Columbia label, sings and writes of the terror of the hard drug experience, which he went through for several years befoe being cured at the Phoenix House drug rehabilitation center in southern California.

Tickets for the show are $2 for WT students and $3 for the general public. Reservations may be made by writing Box 825, W.T. Station, care of the WTSU Student Activities Countil or the Ex-Students Association.

Tickets also will be available at the Activities Center box office until 10 a.m. Saturday.

The Tax Rebellion: 'Why Should I Be a Sucker . . ?'

(Last of Three Parts.)

By RAY DE CRANE

(Ray De Crane, business editor of the Cleveland Press, is author of the annual tax guide, "Cut Your Own Taxes." The new edition to be released this December will be available through many newspapers.)

CLEVELAND—(NEA)—In France, in Italy and in certain South American countries cheating on taxes has become almost a way of life.

It has become a game, with citizens openly bragging about what they are getting away with, coupled with a degree of government tolerance over what is going on.

This country has always prided itself on the way its citizens voluntarily assess themselves and pay their taxes annually. Since the advent of withholding this degree of "voluntary compliance" has become somewhat of a fiction, since for most working people at least substantially all of their tax obligation has been deducted from their earnings before they even get it.

Even so, Internal Revenue officials like to report that about 98 per cent of all Americans correctly report all their income every year, compute their own taxes and willingly settle their accounts.

In recent years a new problem has arisen. More taxpayers seem willing to take a chance on getting away with something.

It's not just individuals who are involved. Internal Revenue Commissioner Johnnie M. Walters said in Detroit recently that "alarming" abuses are prompting a careful look "for tax fraud in corporation returns."

Where warranted, the commissioner said, "the Service will recommend prosecution of officers or employes responsible for corporate evasion."

Citing a number of examples, Walters said "it is not merely astounding that large publicly-held corporations engage in such schemes, it is indeed shocking."

Tax cheating generally results either from the feeling some people are getting away without paying their fair share or a rebellion created by the feeling the tax load has become too heavy.

In the first instance, the resulting attitude is: "Why should I be a sucker when so many millionaires or racketeers are getting away without paying?"

When the feeling that too much in taxes is being taken away becomes a conviction, there is a tendency on the part of some to see what they can get away with.

They attempt to justify their actions by insisting they can't get by if they pay all the government wants—that too little will be left for them.

A new element entered the tax picture during the past year, causing great concern to IRS officialdom. Not only are an increasing number of taxpayers attempting to get away with something, they are receiving encouragement and professional help in cheating from some tax preparation firms.

In a bulletin released just before the last April 15 filing deadline, IRS reported "widespread evidence of fraudulent practices by a significant number of return preparers."

To combat the trend, IRS greatly expanded its free service to puzzled taxpayers and, at the same time launched a nationwide crackdown of the tax preparation firms — the so-called tax experts.

To its dismay IRS discovered in a nationwide investigation that "over half of tax preparers investigated so far may have aided or abetted taxpayers around the country in the filing of fraudulent returns."

Many of the tax preparers went to prison, others received fines for their illegal conduct. The tax cheating encouraged by professional preparers renewed moves for some form of testing and licensing for those who prepare tax returns for a fee.

The government investigation disclosed the practice on the part of some fly-by-night tax preparers of basing their fee on "a percentage of what I save you."

The more cheating, then, the greater the savings and the higher the fee.

Partly to end this feeling that some of the more wealthy taxpayers are getting away without paying their fair share, both presidential candidates and congressional leaders are promising a tax reform program to be enacted next year which hopefully will close still more loopholes in the tax laws.

The revenue sharing bill, which has just been passed by Congress, is another attempt to end some of the bitterness over high taxes. With more of the federal tax revenue to be shared with the cities and states, the measure offers the promise of some relief from some of the locally-imposed high taxes.

"Holy Toledo!"

In the expression "Holy Toledo," Toledo refers to Toledo, Spain, one of the great centers of Christian culture after its liberation from the Moors in 1085. Its Gothic cathedral is the seat of the Cardinal Archbishop of Spain.

Zero Milestone

The zero milestone is a small marker situated just south of the White House in Washington. It marks the beginning of all our national highways and all distances are measured from this spot.

Filly or Mare?

A filly is a female horse less than four years old; a mare is a female horse more than four years old.

Better to See

The honeybee has five eyes —three small ones in a triangle on top of its head and a large compound eye on each side of its head.

Bloodstone

Medieval folk believe that the bloodstone received its coloring from Christ's own blood falling upon a green stone at the foot of the Cross.

Russ Launch Save-Bread Campaign

MOSCOW (AP)—Russia's save-the-bread campaign spread to Red army barracks Saturday as dismal weather battered this year's unharvested wheat crop and delays in autumn plowing threatened next year's.

The Defense Ministry newspaper, Red Star, said mess halls had a "negligent attitude toward bread."

It urged that cooks and KPs or mess orderlies slice the bread thinner and serve less of it to avoid waste. On the surface it appeared to be a mild form of rationing.

On the pages of Pravda, the Communist party organ, letters from readers exhorted consumers to economize on the staff of life.

"We, the people of the older generation, who experienced wartime conditions, when there was a lack of bread, realize the worth of each gram of bread," one letter declared.

A bad harvest, worsened by disorganization, has forced the Russians to go abroad and buy wheat for their people.

The Soviet public still has not been told that more than a billion dollars worth of grain was bought from the United States, Canada and Australia.

Additional purchases from the Soviet gold and hard currency hoard are a possibility.

Square House Museum Sets Record In '72

With three months left in the year, The Square House Museum of Carson County at Panhandle, has tied the best records it has made on a yearly basis, since it was founded. On big days at the museum, like Pioneer Day, Crafts Fair, dedications and barbecues, many visitors do not register in the guest book. Hostesses have found, individuals, families, and neighborhood groups usually register as they enter the building.

When half or more of the visitors miss the guest book on days the attendance is high, it is quite impossible to give an accurate number of people at the museum complex on such occasions. About 6200 persons have registered at the square House since Jan. 1, 1972, but there easily could have been twice that number visiting the museum up to Oct. 1.

Those who have registered this year visited the museum from 40 of the 50 states of the nation. In addition to men, women and children from every part of Texas, there have been other guests from Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, the District of Columbia, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Utah, Virgina, Washington, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

The Square House has had among its visitors this year, friends from nine foreign countries. The register has shown guests from nine countires during an entire year a time or two earlier but never before that many in nine months. This year the visitors were From Australia, Austria, Canada, England, France, Guatamala, Marshall Island, New Zealand and Nigeria.

Miami Dolphins Remain Pro's Unbeaten Team

By Associated Press

Miami's well-produced, well-directed Dolphins have wowed them on the road with four-star ratings before audiences in Kansas City, Minnesota and New York.

That was supposed to be the tough part.

But now, the Dolphins take their smash hit home to the Orange Bowl as the unbeaten and currently unchallenged sensations of the American Conference East in the National Football League.

"We think we can win every game," said Garo Yepremian, the balding field goal whiz of the Dolphins.

Sunday, Miami chopped down the New York Jets 27-17 to run its record to 4-0 and open a two-game division lead in the only early runaway among the six NFL races.

Dallas rallied to nudge Pittsburgh 17-13 and Washington blanked winless Philadelphia 14-0 as the Redskins and world champion Cowboys remained tied at 3-1 in the National Conference Eastern Division.

Detroit and Green Bay are deadlocked with 3-1 records in the NFL Central. The Lions outlasted Atlanta 26-23 and the Packers nudged the Chicago Bears 20-17.

The Los Angeles Rams squashed San Francisco 31-7 to snatch the NFC West top spot from the 49ers. San Francisco and Atlanta are a half game behind the Rams.

Cincinnati broke a tie with Cleveland in the AFC Central by belting Denver 21-10 while the Browns were bowing to Kansas City 31-7.

The Chiefs needed a victory to retain the Western Division lead over much-improved San Diego. The Chargers nipped the slumping Baltimore Colts 23-20 and trail Kansas City by a half game.

Oakland, 1-1-1, can tie San Diego for the runnerup spot in the American Conference West by downing Houston, 1-2, in tonight's nationally televised match in the Astrodome at 9 p.m., EDT.

In other Sunday games, Buffalo smashed New England 38-14, the New York Giants massacred mistake-prone and winless New Orleans 45-21 and St. Louis spilled struggling Minnesota 19-17.

Miami quarterback Bob Griese won a superstar showdown with Joe Namath of the Jets, picking apart a weak New York secondary to connect on 15 of 27 throws for 220 yards, including a 16-yard payoff toss to Howard Twilley.

Namath was bothered by a three-man Dolphin rush and an extra defender in the secondary, not to mention several dropped passes by his teammates. Joe was 12 of 25 for only 125 yards and didn't toss for a score.

Burly Larry Csonka rushed for 102 yards and sidekick Jim Kiick ran for two touchdowns for Coach Don Shula's wonder gang from the land of the sun.

Allison Triumphs In National 500

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Bobby Allison outscored Buddy Baker 5-3 in the final eight laps of the National 500 stock car race Sunday and posted his eighth victory of the season.

Allison in a Chevrolet and Baker in a Dodge finished as the only contenders for the $19,825 first place check after 490 miles of racing. This $123,000 fall classic at Charlotte Motor Speedway had been a routine race most of the way, with five drivers exhcanging the lead at times but with Allison and Baker dominating, until the blazing windup.

The stage was set when Richard Petty, stock car racing's all-time money and events winner, ran into his usual bad luck at Charlotte and wrecked his Dodge while chasing Allison from second place.

That brought out the seventh yellow light of the day and allowed the remaining runners to bunch up behind the pace car. Baker moved into second place and at the restart was a car length behind Allison.

During the next eight laps, Allison held the front spot three times for five laps and Baker held the lead twice for three circuits. But the final four laps were Allison's, though he never could get the 6-foot-3 Baker off his rear bumper.

Sunday's payoff boosted Allison's 29-race total to $238,025. Petty, credited with an 11th place finish, picked up only $1,375 and now stands at $185,155.

Two Glen Wood Mercurys started in the first three positions but could do no better than third and fourth place in the race. David Pearson had the lead Mercury and A.J. Foyt the fourth place car.

Fifth place went to Butch Hartman, winner of the last two United States Auto Club stock car titles, in a Ford.

Auburn And Florida Continue Winning Ways

By Associated Press

The latest Cinderella teams—Auburn and Florida—get to try on college football's glass slipper for real next weekend.

Auburn, 19-13 conqueror of 18th-ranked Mississippi Saturday after upsetting Tennessee the previous week, now travels to Louisiana State while Florida, fresh from a shocking 42-13 rout of 13th-ranked Florida State, visits Alabama. Both LSU and Alabama are in The Associated Press Top Ten.

"Every man who played made a major contribution," Auburn's Shug Jordan said after the unheralded but now 17th-ranked Tigers overtook favored Ole Miss with a 16-point outburst in the third period.

Florida's Doug Dickey told much the same same tale after the Gators broke open a tight game with three second-period touchdowns, including runs of 46 and seven yards by speedy sophomore Nat Moore.

"The defense just did a super job of getting us the ball," Dickey said after watching Florida State lose six fumbles and four interceptions.

The only other member of The AP's Top Twenty to taste defeat was No. 15 Stanford, a 30-21 loser to top-ranked Southern California's revenge-minded Coach John McKay.

Elsewhere, while second-ranked Oklahoma, sixth-rated Nebraska and No. 20 Iowa State all were idle, third-ranked Ohio State rallied from a 9-3 halftime deficit on three-third-period touchdowns by sophomore fullback Harold Henson and beat California 35-18.

Alabama, rated fourth, pulled away from a 7-0 halftime lead and trimmed Georgia 25-7.

Fifth-ranked Michigan erupted for 28 points in the third period and sank Navy 357.

A pair of walk-on placekickers starred for No. 7 Notre Dame and No. 8 Louisiana State. Bob Thomas booted field goals of 47, 24 and 26 yards as the Irish blanked Michigan State 16-0 and Juan Roca connected from 46 and 53 yards in LSU's 12-6 struggle over Rice.

Texas, rated No. 9, was held to a 10-9 halftime lead by Utah State but got fourth-quarter touchdowns from Tommy Landry and Alan Lowry to beat the Aggies 27-12 and set up next Saturday's battle of the unbeatens with Oklahoma.

Haskel Stanback's three touchdowns and Art Reynolds' 96-yard run with an interception paced No. 10 Tennessee past Memphis State 38-6.

Sonny Sixkiller hit for three touchdown passes—two to John Brady—but 11th-ranked Washington needed Cal Jones' deflection of an Oregon pass in the end zone with 12 seconds left to subdue the Ducks 23-17.

No. 12 Colorado rebounded from its loss to Oklahoma State with a 38-17 decision over Kansas State.

Kermit Johnson scored twice as UCLA, No. 14, rallied in the second half to beat stubborn Arizona 42-31; No. 16 Penn State, which hadn't scored a first-half point in three previous games, exploded for 28 points and whipped Illinois 35-17.

Air Force, ranked 19th, leveled Colorado State 52-13.

Parker Wins Championship

David Parker won the open gross division of the Pampa Country Club's club championship Sunday with a two-round total of 139. Eddie Duenkel was runnerup at 144.

The net division ended up in a tie between M.L. Hall and Wylie Reynolds at 135.

In the senior division Max Hickey won with a 145 and Deck Woldt finished second at 146.

Jeff Bearden and Marvin Harris tied for the seniors net division at 134.

There were 68 participants in the club event played Saturday and Sunday under beautiful weather conditions.

Lefors Ties Pampa JV 6-6

Pampa's junior varsity and Lefors dead-locked 6-6 in a game at Pirate stadium Saturday night.

Both of the teams' scores came in the first half of play in a game that was marked by many turnovers on the part of each squad.

Pampa's Allen Keeton scored first on an 11-yard run at the end of the first quarter. The score was set up by a pass interception by Tony Frogge', one of three thefts made by Pampa in the game. The extra point kick was no good.

Robert Gifford scored midway through the second period on a one-yard run. That touchdown was set up when Pirate Bill Bates recovered a bad Pampa pitchout on the Pampa six-yard line. The conversion kick was blocked.

Lefors lost three fumbles to Pampa in addition to the three pass interceptions, while the Pampa team gave up the ball on three fumbles and one pass interception.

Hutcherson Wins

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Defending national champion Ron Hutcherson has added the Royal Tirton Automobile Racing Club of America 300 race crown to his collection by defeating two close challengers in a race marred by the death of a car racer.

Hutcherson, of Keokuk, Iowa, took the lead at the beginning of the race Sunday in his 1971 Mercury and stayed ahead of H. B. Bailey of Houston, in a 1972 Firebird, and Iggy Kotona, of Willis, Mich., in a 1970 Dodge.

Gay Brewer Wins Pacific Masters Golf

INZAI, Japan (AP) — A short putt on a short hole in a sudden death playoff was Australian David Graham's undoing, and American Gay Brewer walked off with the $65,000 first prize after an even battle in golf's richest tournament.

Brewer took a one-stroke lead into the final round Sunday of the $300,000 Taiheiyo Pacific Masters Tournament and was two strokes ahead after nine holes.

But Graham caught up, firing a one-under-par 70 to Brewer's 71 and the two tied at 276, eight under par, after the regulation 72 holes.

In a three-hole playoff over the 16th, 17th and 18th holes, both were one over par.

Then it was back to the 16th, a 214-yard, par-three hole both had parred moments earlier, for sudden death. Brewer hit the green with his drive and two-putted.

Graham hit the left edge, chipped to within 4½ feet—and missed the putt.

"I was lucky," said the 40-year-old Brewer of Palm Springs, Calif. "Graham gave me one stroke. A combination of confidence and power gave me the victory."

Graham, who won $32,500 for second, said he didn't like sudden death playoffs, since they allow no chance to overcome a bad hole.

Charles Coody of Apopka, Fla., surged into third place with a final round 67 which gave him a 278 total and won $20,000.

Hubert Green of Birmingham, Ala., and Homero Blancas of Houston each had 280. Green finished with 67 and Blancas with a 69.

Gene Littler, playing his first tournament in six months following a cancer operation on his left arm, shot a one-under-par 70 Sunday for a 282. He shared seventh place with Bob Murphy of Bartow, Fla., Graham Marsh of Australia and Takashi Murakami of Japan.

Athletics Hope To Sweep Series Tuesday

By Associated Press

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Athletics, with a zero popularity rating in Detroit, would like to end the American League playoffs in Tiger Stadium Tuesday and get out of town quickly.

They moved within one victory of a three-game sweep in the best-of-5 series Sunday when John "Blue Moon" Odom threw a three-hitter to beat the Tigers 5-0 here.

The teams had today off, but American League President Joe Cronin had a decision to make—whether to take any disciplinary action against A's shortstop Bert Campaneris.

The Cuban infielder got the A's their first run Sunday and later got himself kicked out of the game for throwing his bat at Tigers' reliever Lerrin LaGrow.

Cronin, one of the 30,088 spectators, said he would get full reports from the umpires "and then sleep on it" before deciding what action to take.

"That was the dirtiest thing I ever saw in the game of baseball," Tigers' Manager Billy Martin said. "He's got to be suspended for the rest of the playoffs."

Cronin said, "The way I feel personally, any time you swing your bat at another ballplayer, it's something that doesn't belong in baseball."

Campaneris was hit on the left ankle by a LaGrow pitch in the seventh inning. After picking himself out of the dirt, he flung his bat at the mound but missed the pitcher. The umpires prevented a fight between the teams and restrained Martin as he tried to reach Campaneris.

The A's shortstop went to a hospital for X-rays, which were negative.

Campaneris singled to open the A's first inning, stole second and third bases and scored on Joe Rudi's single. He got two more hits, including one in the A's four-run fifth inning.

Rudi, who had two hits Sunday, recalled later that he was under a pile of bodies in a fight that occurred the last time the A's played in Detroit.

"I don't know if there's bad blood between these teams. But I've been with the A's since 1968 and I can't think of a year we haven't had a fight with the Tigers," he said.

Oakland will pitch left-hander Ken Holtzman, 19-11 in the regular season for the West Division champions, against the Tigers' Joe Coleman, 19-14, in Tuesday's third game.

Cincinnati Reds Even Series With Pittsburg

By Associated Press

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson talks like all he has to worry about is who will represent the American League in baseball's World Series.

Anderson's Reds used a pair of first-inning two-run doubles by Bobby Tolan and Tony Perez and solid relief pitching by Tom Hall to beat Pittsburgh Sunday 5-3 and even the National League's best-of-5 playoff series at 1-1.

The third game will be played here today.

"I said if we won today (Sunday) we would win it (the National League pennant)," said Anderson, now a picture of confidence. "I still think it will go five games and we'll win it."

The Cincinnati boss added: "I'm not being smart about it or popping off, I just feel that way. We're going home and that gives us an advantage."

Pittsburgh Manager Bill Vierdon reacted predictably when informed of Anderson's words. "If they think they're home free, they've got another think coming," snapped the Pirates' skipper.

Anderson's biggest move in Sunday's victory at Pittsburgh was relieving starter Jack Billingham with two outs and runners at first and third in the fifth inning.

Hall pitched 4 1-3 innings of two-hit, one-run baseball to earn the victory.

Yet, if you looked at the statistics, bringing in Hall could have been devastating to the Reds.

During the season, Hall had worked five innings against Pittsburgh and posted an ERA of 10.43. He almost blew a 7-1 lead in one game, and in another one served a three-run homer to Willie Stargell. It looked as if Anderson was feeding the Christians to the lions ... uh Pirates.

Would you believe that the first batter Hall had to face was Stargell?

Anderson said he never even thought about the last time Hall pitched to Stargell. "Tom Hall's record speaks for itself this year," said the Reds' manager. Hall was 10-1 with eight saves and a 2.61 ERA.

"Some managers keep cards on those things," Anderson said. "I ain't smart enough to keep cards."

Hall came in with a 2-0 count on Stargell and worked it to a full count.

Now came the big pitch, a slider down and away for a called strike three. Hall controlled the game the rest of the way.

Stargell said of the strike-three slider, "It might have been a ball, but it was a hell of a pitch. Even if I do swing at it, how the hell do I hit it? I guess my judgment was bad."

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces can he develop to his utmost capability.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Housewife Vs. State

A taxpayer-financed propaganda pamphlet points out that school busing did not become unpopular until it came to be used for desegragation. The pamphlet was issued by the United States Commission on Civil Rights and is a skillful defense for the use of buses as instruments for desegregating of classrooms.

"The basic issue is not busing but integration," the commission exhorted. "Either we continue moving toward the goal of integration, or we reject it and hold onto the separate schooling outlawed in the Brown decisions. In rejecting busing in the racially segregated situation in which most Americans live today, we also reject integration."

In spite of the plausible manner in which the commission phrases its tax-supported propaganda, we believe the typical mother and housewife will see through it.

For, if segregation is the issue, why do you find so many persons of all ethnic groups—blacks, caucasians of Mexican and Spanish extraction, Anglos, nordics, Chinese etc.—opposed to busing? Our estimate is that the housewife sees the basic issue not as integration, but as survival of the neighborhood school. Her family invested its treasure in a house located close to a specific schoolbuilding, and that is the place in which she expects her children to attend classes. She is fearful of the largely unsupervised situation within a school bus. She sees the travel time as a needless tax upon the child's study hours and upon his energy. She believes that her children can learn to get along with black, brown, yellow, or white schoolmates. Her concern is that the place of schooling be close enough to home so that the parent will be readily available in case of injury, sickness or dispute.

Of course, the housewife's case also has a weakness. By her favoritism for the tax-supported neighborhood school, the mother really is saying, "I am willing for the state to school my children provided the state does so in a manner that is convenient both to the children and to myself." Such an attitude amounts to a bargain between the individual and a powerful organization. In the event of a subsequent disagreement, the powerful organization is certain to prevail. When the mother gives her child in the hands of the state for what she believes are schooling purposes, she has no sure way of knowing that the state will continue to limit its authority thereto. To the contrary, she has every reason to know that political authority always tends to enlarge.

The tax-supported school that can command you to surrender your child for classwork, or to pay the tax as if you had surrendered your child, has precedent and muscle to select the location where that classwork shall take place. This is why The News continues to explain that tax-supported schooling is not compatible with freedom.

Goodbye To 'Meter Man'

Scratch another bit of Americana.

The utility meter reader, who has been making his appointed rounds of American homes since candles and fireplaces gave way to gas and electricity, is about to be replaced by technology.

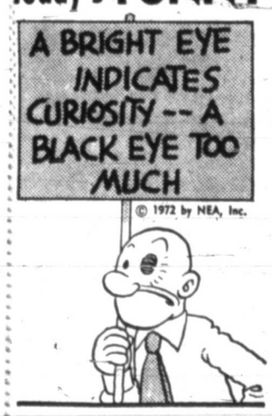

According to a New York Times report, utility firms are developing a number of automatic reading systems to cut manpower costs and ensure accurate readings. These include a device which, plugged into a master box, reads individual meters in an entire apartment building or residential development.

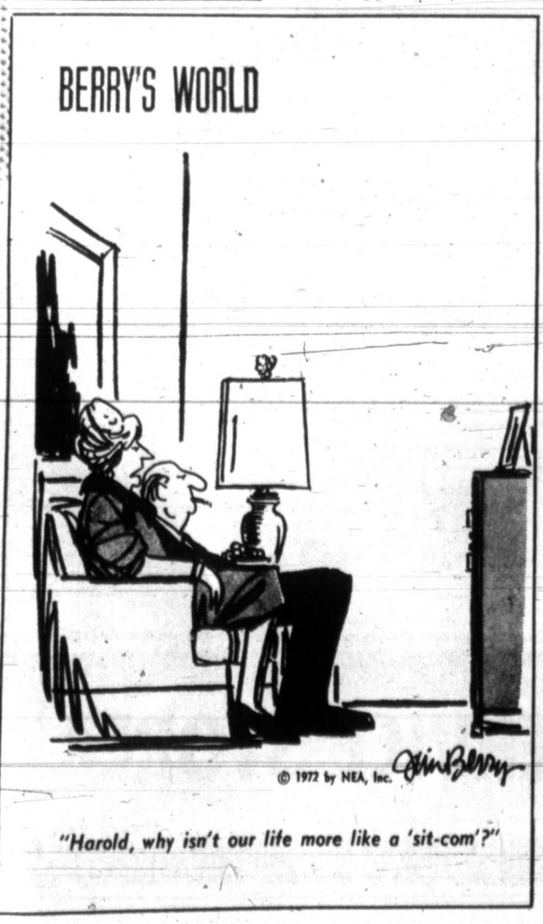

The most high-flying scheme—literally—involves aircraft equipped with remote-sensing receivers which would fly over an area calling in and storing on tape readings from thousands of meters almost simultaneously.

A lot of readjustments to this technological advance is obviously going to be necessary. The current meter-reading force can, of course, easily be retrained for other talks. And housewives eventually will get accustomed to not being startled by the call of "meter man!" at mildly or greatly inconvenient moments.

But how are they ever going to get millions of dogs to start barking and snapping at a high-flying plane?

Housing For The Poor Is Good Slogan

By MARION MANION

"Housing for the poor!" How many candidates are mouthing that slogan this year? No one would dare take the opposite view; imagine being against housing the poor! Yet someone must object, for Federal public housing has cost millions of dollars, many of which have not gone to build homes for the poor—or anybody else.

Father Daniel Lyons, who is the editor of the National Catholic Weekly, Twin Circle, described some Federal building boondoggles when he appeared on a recent Manion Forum radio program. Read it and weep:

"You cannot take even a drug store or small department store and turn it over to a government agency and expect it to operate at a profit. It's going to operate at the expense of the taxpayers. One project that I would like to mention is called Pruitt-Igoe. It was a big housing project in St. Louis. The government came in, 20 years ago, and tore down all kinds of old housing.

"They build 2,870 apartments, in 33 high-rise buildings, in downtown St. Louis. The Federal Government put in more than $50 million to provide housing for the poor. Now, 20 years later, two-thirds of this housing has been abandoned. Only 600 of 3,000 apartments are being used.

"When they first started out, whether it was right or not, they decided they would put the whites in the Pruitt part and the colored in the Igoe part. Of course, the Supreme Court came along and said, no, you can't do that; you've got to mix them up. Well, they mixed them up for a short time. The crime was so bad that every white person moved out. The Supreme Court had its way; it integrated the whole place—except the whites left.

"By 1964, the Federal Government spent $7 million to repair the damage and also to provide some three and four bedroom units. You see, they didn't realize that poor people have average size families. They had built all one and two bedroom apartments.

"So they appropriated $7 million, but only spent $5 million before they had to give up. The vandalism was so bad that they couldn't repair the buildings as fast as they were being destroyed. So they closed up two-thirds of the buildings and boarded up the bottom three floors to keep vandals out. That didn't work. The vandals just came in and pried the boards off. So they spent $250,000 to put metal sheathing around the first three floors. Now I have never seen people like Metropolitan Life Insurance Company and so on squander money like this. They don't. They run it in a business like way when they put up a housing project.

"Pruitt-Igoe is one of the worst fiascoes that has ever happened in our country. The Federal Government has spent $52 million to get it started. They spent $8 million buying the land and the land is now worth 10 percent of what it was then.

"The question now is whether they should tear it down; it would take $38 million.

"There it stands, a project that physically should be good for 150 or 200 years and in less than 20 years two-thirds of it is empty and they simply haven't the slightest idea what to do with it. Only government bureaucracy can make such atrocious blunders, and yet, they want to run the whole country."

Agnew's Switch: Attacks McGovern

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

WITH AGNEW CAMPAIGN (NEA)—The Plan to have Vice President Spiro Agnew devote his campaign time to making earthy appeals to drifting Democratic workers of ethnic-Catholic background has been shoved aside for a time. He's busy knocking Sen. George McGovern on foreign policy.

On his swing into Texas and Illinois, the President's running mate hasn't been within hailing distance of the hard hat guy with sleeves rolled up and glass of beer in hand. Yet all the advance notices said he was going to concentrate on this fellow, to remind him of his disenchantment with the Democratic party and keep him from slipping back into his old Democratic voting habit.

Evidently it has proved more tempting to hit at McGovern in another vulnerable spot. Polls show that, for all his stress on ending the Vietnam war and cutting back U.S. defenses, McGovern is not registering well with voters as the "peace candidate."

Mr. Nixon is being given high credit for having removed 510,000 troops from Vietnam, for cutting our casualties, for ending our combat role. He is also making strong points on his new approaches to China and Russia.

So Agnew, as always delivering his speeches like a corporate board chairman calmly totting up the year's profit and loss, recites the Nixon strong points. And, in the process, he puts the rap on McGovern as a man he portrays as incapable of doing the job.

Sample assault on McGovern's proposal to slash defense outlays by roughly a third:

"No reasonable, informed person can believe that our nation's defense expenditures can be slashed 30 per cent without inviting aggression and chaos in the world, dissolving our partnerships with other nations, and imperiling our security."

Agnew told an audience in San Antonio that proposals like McGovern's are so naive as to be "nothing short of frightening." Successful dealing with the heavily-armed Soviet Union, he said, is done from strength, and not through "drastic, unilateral disarmament." He added:

"The Soviet Union is not moved by mere smiles or frowns from any president of the United States..."

On his current swing, the vice-president has been talking to retired federal workers, farmers, Republican fat cats gathered to raise "victory funds," and outfits like the National Defense Transportation Association. But, no matter what the audience, he rarely can resist taking swats at McGovern as a foreign policy novice.

The Democratic nominee, he suggests, is a "Pied Piper" who, would not only have us throw away our guns but lead us down a path where he would either have to place "our trust in the enemy's good will" or, as in the oft-cited matter of our prisoners of war, go begging to Hanoi for their release.

"A strong nation," says Agnew, "need never beg at the bargaining table."

You could say that all this amounts to hitting a man when he's down, for there is hardly a scrap of evidence from the various polls to indicate McGovern is well regarded as a peace negotiator or a foreign policy manager.

You could also say that, in helping Nixon press his advantage in this field, Spiro Agnew is not simply confining himslef to the "issues" as he promised he would, but is striking hard at McGovern himself. By word and tone, he contrives to make McGovern seem like a green lad who couldn't get a "C" grade in foreign policy in a junior college.

It's understandable. After all, the Yankees won. He has the right to get excited.

REUNIFICATION

A television network recently carried a film story of representatives of North and South Korea sitting together to work out the problems of barriers that separate the people of their respective nations. The talks already had brought about visitation of families living on opposite sides of the 38th parallel. The handshakes of the representatives of the men of the North and the South seemed warm and their smiles were compassionate. In all, it was a heartening picture.

Communist designs and aggression separated the people of Korea in the 1950s. The strong will of South Korea and the U.S. kept the communists in check. Now there are straws in the wind suggesting that Korea may again be united. Blood ties are hard to subdue, the communist must have learned.

On the other side of the world, the German people are still divided after 27 years. It is a tragic situation. The Berlin wall is a hideous reminder that brutal communism still prevails in the Eastern sector.

Isn't it time this wall and all it stands for are torn down? A unified Germany is needed in Europe. The German people could bring great economic stimulus to the entire world.

The Russians, with all their military might, have nothing to fear from Germany. Reunification of Austria years ago worked to the advantage of both super powers. A united Germany could do the same thing.

Above all, there is the human element of Germany to be considered. Germans belong together, just as do the people of Korea. The same was true of citizens on both sides of the Mason-Dixon line in the 1860s.

Inside Washington

Liberals Slow to Support Rights of Soviet Jews

By Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON—Some of the Senate's most grandiloquent champions of human rights and freedom are seemingly having a hard time matching their deeds with their words. Foremost among them are Sens. Humphrey, Kennedy, Muskie, Charles Percy, R-Ill., Edward Brooke, R-Mass., Robert Taft, R-Ohio, Clifford Case, R-N.J.

Their singular pussyfooting is a fascinating backstage story.

As so often happens when Congress is noisily stampeding toward adjournment, the most significant and dramatic events transpire out of sight. A graphic instance is the liberals' unpublicized behind-the-scenes temporizing on an issue that directly challenges the validity and sincerity of their loudly professed convictions.

Their apparent discomfiture arises from an amendment being sponsored by Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., to the East-West Trade Relations Act which faces renewal next year. The amendment won't be considered until then. But in preparation for that legislative battle, Jackson, one of the most astute and forceful parliamentarians in Congress, has offered his amendment at this time to build up support for it—in and out of Congress.

For that purpose, his strategy is to line up as many bipartisan co-sponsors as possible.

So far, he has nearly one-half of the Senate--a truly remarkable achievement in view of the sensitive nature of Jackson's amendment.

What it does is add a new section to the East-West Trade Act barring "most-favored nation treatment...unless that country permits its citizens the opportunity to emigrate to a country of their choice."

This proposed provision is aimed squarely at Russia--and its iron-handed treatment of Jews who want to go to Israel and other lands.

Strikingly missing as yet from the list of co-sponsors of Jackson's blunt showdown amendment are loudly vocal liberal Sens. Humphrey, Kennedy, Muskie, Percy, Brooke, Taft, Case--and others.

Who's Backing It

The list of those joining Jackson as co-sponsors of his amendment runs the gamut of the Senate--from James Buckley, New York conservative, to Alan Cranston, California Democratic liberal and dove, to Strom Thurmond, South Carolina Republican and hawk.

Other co-sponsors are Sens. Clinton Anderson, D-N.M., Henry Bellmon, R-Okla., Alan Bible, D-Nev., Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., Edward Gurney, R-Fla., Vance Hartke, D-Ind., Thomas McIntyre, D-N.H., William Proxmire, D-Wis., William Roth, R-Del., William Spong, D-Fla.

Sens. Kennedy's aloofness is particularly intriguing because he is chairman of the Judiciary Subcommittee on Refugees.

In that role, he has clangorously championed a wide variety of unfortunates--Biafrans, Pakistani, Vietnamese, etc.--always accompanied by a big splash of publicity and fanfare.

In this hooplahed crusading, it is interesting to note that the Massachusetts Senator has somehow never gotten around to holding hearings on refugees from Eastern European countries, all under Communist rule, or on Jews in Syria, Egypt, Iraq, Libya and other Arab nations--to say nothing about Russia.

This curious ommission may explain why Kennedy has not signed as a co-sponsor of the Jackson amendment.

Why a number of other liberals are ducking is not known. They include.

Sens. Philip Hart, D-Mich., a leading advocate of unlimited student busing; Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, grandstanding discloser of classified Pentagon documents; Lee Metcalf, D-Mont., and Walter Mondale, D-Minn., both facing tough re-election contests; Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., Quentin Burdick, D-N.D.

What It's All About

In the backstage scrambling and maneuvering over Sen. Jackson's amendment, Sen. Humphrey apparently tried to get off the hook by producing a patently mealy-mouthed substitute.

It collapsed by its own weight--or perhaps lack of it.

It was so obviously meaningless and phony that Humphrey himself dropped it after it was derisively and contemptuously rejected.

It's an open secret that the Soviet embassy in Washington is closely following this dramatic backstage affair. It is known the Russians are carefully noting the co-sponsors and non-sponsors.

That's one reason why Jackson is laying so much stress on getting as many co-sponsors as possible. Clearly, an impressive number will have telling impact on the Soviets. And that in turn could appreciably affect their harsh policy and treatment of Jews and others who want to emigrate.

Jackson, who singlehandedly put over the amendment to the five-year interim agreement on strategic weapons requiring that the U.S. must have parity with the U.S.S.R. on strategic weapons in any agreement reached in the SALT II arms limitation negotiations, characterizes his Trade Act amendment "as rooted in our traditional commitment to the cuase of individual liberty; it is a simple plea for simple justice."

But while simple in substance, it has sharp teeth--which explains the backstage hemming and hawing by the usually loudly vocal breast-beaters.

"The most dramatic violation of basic human rights is the recent decision to demand a ransom from Jews wishing to leave the Soviet Union. The reaction to this decision in the West has been one of outrage and revulsion. It violates our most deeply held convictions about human freedom and dignity. Those of us who lived during the time of the Third Reich remember when Himmler sold exit permits for Jews."

Jackson warns that failure to forcefully oppose this Soviet despotism could lead to dire consequences.

Your Health

By Dr. Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Seeking Alternatives to the Pill

Dear Dr. Lamb—I donate blood to a blood bank once or twice a year. Do they check for syphilis? Should I be secure in not having a disease since I give blood? I recently broke up with a man I expected to marry as I am quite sure he's been cheating on me. I'm not promiscuous. I do get a physical about every six months. Would my doctor know through lab tests and pelvic exams that I am in good health. I'm in my 40s and am ashamed to say that I know so little about this subject. I do read about it and it scares me although I haven't any physical evidence to warrant my worries.

Dear Reader — Yes, the blook bank tests all blood it collects for syphilis. In the first few weeks of infection the tests can be negative and sometimes in individuals who have had it for several years, the tests can be negative. But with regular examinations such as you described it is most unlikely that you would have a negative test and still have syphilis.

Although a blood test is now being developed for gonorrhea, at present it is not available and the test has to be made from a culture obtained during the pelvic examination. Without the culture test the pelvic examination might be negative and the woman still could have gonorrhea.

About 80 per cent of the women who have gonorrhea have no symptoms, which is one reason that the disease has gotten out of hand and exists in epidemic proportions in this country. A new office culture test method is available now which should make it easy for practicing doctors to determine if a woman has gonorrhea or not, even if she has no symptoms and there's no good evidence of it on the physical examination. If you're worried about it, why don't you ask your doctor to test you for it.

Dear Dr. Lamb—Is there anything that can be done to remove a keloid scar. Recently I had some moles removed from my face and back and now they have healed into a keloid scar. My doctor says they are hereditary. They just look terrible.

Dear Reader — A keloid scar is an overgrowth of the scar tissue even to the point of forming masses or tumors. They more often occur before age 35 and particularly in individuals with dark skin.

If they are cut away, there is a great chance that they will just come back again, unless they are done in later years and then, with increased age, they are less likely to recur.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on the menopause send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "The Menopause" booklet.

People In The News

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has something new: "Republican golf balls—guaranteed to go right down the middle."

Agnew, clad in purple shirt, lavender pants and white shoes, was joined for a round of golf Sunday at the El Dorado course by comedians Bob Hope, Jack Benny and his weekend host, Frank Sinatra.

Joking in the 90-degree desert sun, Agnew belted several accurate practice shots and said "I think I'll go home" while he was ahead.

Benny replied that "at my age, if I make the tee I'm happy."

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — John Cardinal Krol who leaves Tuesday for Poland, the home of his parents, will be the first American Roman Catholic prelate to visit behind the Iron Curtain since World War II.

The 61-year-old cardinal has been invited by church officials to celebrate mass at Auschwitz. The mass will commemorate the first anniversary of the beatification of Father Maximilian M. Kolbe, a priest of the Franciscan Order who was martyred there Aug. 14, 1941.

Father Kilbe volunteered to die in place of a Polish army sergeant.

FURNITURE EXPORT

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli furniture exports should reach $3.5 million by the end of 1972, or more than double the foreign sales of previous years, Commerce Ministry officials predict.

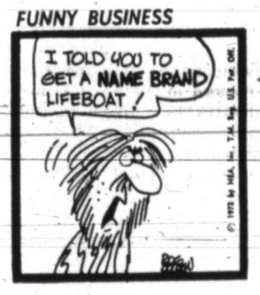

LOG ANGELES (AP) — Former astronaut Scott Carpenter has married Maria Roach, the daughter of motion-picture pioneer Hal Roach Sr.

The wedding Saturday took place in the Westwood United Methodist Church.

Carpenter, 47, the second American to go into orbit around the earth, now heads an oceanographic research and development company here. It was his second marriage.

His bride is a free-lance writer for magazines and films.
