City cancels action on UDAG proposal

By PAT BLAIR
Staff writer

Action on a proposal by Rockport officials to apply for a grant under the federal Urban Development Action program was halted at the suggestion of Mayor Burt Mills during a special meeting Wednesday afternoon after officials learned the city could not meet requirements of the grant application.

City officials were proposing that the city apply for a $6 million federal grant under the UDAG program which would require the money to be loaned to a new or existing developer, manufacturer or business at a low interest rate.

Under the program, half of the money returned to the city by the borrower would be used to fund capital improvements and the remaining monies would be placed in a fund for loan to other businesses on similar terms.

Rockport officials were proposing that the money for which Rockport was applying, if approved in a grant, would be loaned to Baker-Haldeman Development Company to be used in construction of the Nautical Towers project on Fulton Beach Road.

During Wednesday's emergency session, called at 2 p.m. at City Hall, Mills said he had received a call from Jerry Haldeman, managing partner for the development company, who said the loaner of the majority of funds for the estimated $45 to $50 million high-rise project would not sign a letter saying the project could not be built without the city's assistance.

That signature was one of the requirements in order for the Nautical Towers project to qualify as a recipient of the UDAG money.

At Mills' suggestion, the council moved then voted to cancel any further action on the project, including public hearings that had been scheduled for Monday and Tuesday, Aug. 8 and 9. Due to the time frame, and the need to get an application for the grant to the government by Aug. 31, city officials indicated they would not, at this time, consider another recipient for the grant funds.

Following the council's 5-0 vote to cancel action on the project, Alderman Richard Beck said, "I am personally not interested in pursuing this any further. I am philosophically opposed to this grant program."

Beck added there is not another project being developed in this area at this time of the magnitude of Nautical Towers.

Because of limitations under the grant program, city officials explained, the money the city would loan to a developer or business amounts to only about one-seventh of the total cost of the project. This is all the city would get in the federal grant.

Beck said if the project is too small, the amount the city would get in a grant would not be sufficient to offset the costs of applying for the grant.

Asked by a member of the audience at Wednesday's special session if the city would consider another project as a possible recipient of funds under the UDAG program, Alderman Murray McMillan said, "I think we'd look at any project, but I don't think we'll actively pursue it."

Haldeman, contacted Wednesday afternoon following the council meeting, said, "We (referring to Nautical Towers) were in a position that we were trying to help the city."

City officials emphasized in a meeting on the matter this past Monday, Aug. 1, that

Bait stand bid is awarded

By LESLIE ABRAMS
Staff writer

FULTON — The town council awarded Randy Bruce the bid on the bait-concession stand at L.E. Casterline Fishing Pier during a special meeting preceding the council's regular workshop meeting Tuesday evening, Aug. 2. Bruce's bid was the only one received by the council before the bidding was closed.

Bruce's offer to pay all utilities on the pier and stand plus 4 percent gross monthly income for a period of one year with a five-year option was unanimously approved by council members voting on an Alderwoman Pat Loflin-Alderman Elgin Dietz motion to accept the bid. The council also insisted that Bruce carry liability insurance on the stand and on the pier in addition to the policy carried by the town.

Fulton attorney Gene Garcia said he would have the papers ready for Bruce's review by Friday of this week. Bruce told council members that he wants to begin operation of the stand as soon as possible.

The workshop meeting following the special meeting covered discussion of the City of Rockport's decision last week to hold on to their extraterritorial jurisdiction over No Man's Land despite requests from some No Man's Land residents to release them. "I was really surprised because there was really no action required on their part," said Garcia.

Several council members said they were insulted by the way Rockport handled the situation and wanted to know where the No Man's Land residents who protested the relinquishing of the ETJ at Rockport's city council meeting were when the subject was being discussed by the Fulton council.

Garcia told the council that the next step is up to the residents of No Man's Land but "that ballgame is about over." Fulton Mayor L.E. Casterline then asked Garcia if the No Man's Land ETJ held by Rockport can be disannexed. Garcia replied that a similar question has been raised in Kingsville, but that it is very difficult from a legal standpoint since

THE ELECTRICAL SYSTEM to be used in the new electrical wiring project at Rockport Harbor is explained by electrical engineer Mike McCleskey of Goldston Engineering to the commissioners of the Aransas County Navigation District and members of the audience at their Aug. 2 meeting in Rockport.

Shrimper asks for closing of harbors

Rockport shrimper J. C. Harlan described two incidents in which boats were taken for joy rides, then asked the Aransas County Navigation District commissioners to issue identification cards to shrimp boat captains and crew members and restrict all others from Rockport and Fulton harbors.

Harlan said he wanted two cards issued per boat, "and keep everyone else away from those boats," he added in his request.

Commissioner Kirk Holman reminded the other commissioners of their earlier vote not to include lights in the new Rockport wiring project and added, "Those lights would probably help this problem."

Harlan said he was appearing for Lee Bateman who put the item on the agenda for discussion but could not appear at the Tuesday night meeting.

"... keep everyone else away from those boats ..."

Commissioner Hillis Dominguez said he had heard of cars pulling up to the harbors and people sleeping in them, but ACND Chairman Bobby Landrum said he thought some of those were crew members waiting for the captain to arrive.

Reese Rozzell, attorney for the ACND, said he didn't believe the harbors could be restricted to just captains and crew members of shrimp boats, and Harlan responded, "Why not? We lease those docks."

Holman reminded Harlan they lease the space the boat is in, not the docks.

Dominguez then questioned why anyone belonged on the docks, and Holman said he sees people walking on the docks through the harbors all the time. And he said they seem to enjoy it and they have a right to be there.

"But the best security is still to have everything lighted," said Holman.

Landrum said he thought the ACND had some identification cards and asked ACND Office Manager Nelda Covarrubias to type up the cards and issue them to the captain and crew of each boat.

Rockport zoning ordinance

Hearing called on amendments

A public hearing on the proposed rough draft of the amended city zoning ordinance has been called by the city planning and zoning commission at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 10, at Rockport's City Hall.

P&Z board members emphasized the hearing is on the rough draft of the ordinance only. The document is not yet ready for presentation to the city council which will have the final say in whether the proposed changes are adopted.

Some 13 changes are proposed in the zoning ordinance and zoning map, including the combination of an existing five ordinances into a single document dealing with zoning in the city.

Also proposed in the rough draft is a change in wording that will allow annexation of properties into the city with proper zoning designations to cover existing situations rather than as R-1, single-family residential.

Annexing property as R-1 results in a time-consuming rezoning process or allows the existence of non-conforming designations, according to P&Z board members. This proposal includes the rewording of the large scale plan submission and subdivision ordinances to include designation of zoning districts so that annexed properties will reflect this zoning from the beginning.

In a third change under the proposed zoning amendments, requirements relating to travel trailer parks have been modified to clarify wording and delete time limits, ground cover specifications, recreation room requirements and sign and fence requirements. Signs and fences are covered in other sections of the ordinance.

Tie downs will be required for all units left in a travel trailer park during the hurricane season.

Mobile home park requirements have been modified to clarify wording and delete sign and fence requirements covered elsewhere in the ordinance.

Mobile home/manufactured housing subdivision requirements have been deleted from the zoning ordinance and will be covered in the subdivision ordinance.

Requirements for special permits for mobile homes on private lots were changed so that the mobile homes must meet floor square footage requirements of the zone in which they are located and must meet 1976 federal standards of construction.

Guest houses and garage apartments would be allowed as accessory buildings if yard and parking requirements and zone designations are met.

Floor square footage requirements for districts would be included on a chart, eliminating the need for several subsections dealing with floor areas.

Front yard fences will be allowed, under proposed amendments to the zoning ordinance, provided they meet specified requirements for vision clearance on corners. An allowance of eight feet for industrial fencing was added.

The reference to a required number of stories was eliminated from height requirements under the ordinance but the ordinance still proposes maximum height restrictions of 35 feet for residential districts and 45 feet in business and industrial districts.

The fee for board of adjustment hearings would be raised to $25 to be in line with the same fee for a change of the zoning ordinance.

The following map changes are suggested:

— Block 34 S&W Subdivision (Pearl, Laurel, Ann, Liberty) from B-2 business zoning to more restrictive B-1 business.

— Little Bay Apartments in Little Bay Shores, from R-4 to R-5 residential.

— Block 207 S&W, lots 5-13, from R-1 residential to R-2.

The changes in the zoning ordinance also include minor changes in wording, some of the definitions and punctuation, for the purpose of clarifying the ordinance.

P&Z board members emphasize the ordinance as it is being considered Wednesday is a rough draft only and additional changes will be considered, based on Wednesday's hearing, before the document is presented to the city council for final action.

Rockport wiring goes forward

By TED NORMAN
Managing editor

In the final meeting before the Aug. 13 elections, the Aransas County Navigation District commissioners voted to approve the next step in the Rockport Harbor electrical system and have Goldston Engineering Corp. of Corpus Christi prepare an estimate of cost for an underground system.

Goldston Engineer Mike McCleskey, saying he wanted to emphasize the word "preliminary," gave a report to the commissioners and members of the audience offering several ways to approach the project as he went along.

As he explained several aspects of the city code that would need to be met, he offered means of accomplishing the task.

During the presentation, McCleskey suggested using a 20-amp system with the ability to offer higher ratings to those who request it.

The commissioners discussed the 20-amp system with several people, saying they felt a 30-amp system would be needed. McCleskey reminded them that using a 30-amp system would raise the cost of the project about 12 percent.

Rockport electrical engineer Lloyd Umflett, a member of the audience, said he thought a 30-amp system would increase the cost by as much as 20 percent or more.

Commissioner Kirk Holman said he thought the 20-amp system would be too small to service boats with battery chargers and small air conditioners.

At each step proposed for the system during his presenation, McCleskey explained the pluses and minuses, asking the commissioners to choose which system they would like to use.

McCleskey explained the differences in some panels, saying one was designed to withstand only falling rain while the other would withstand blowing rain and spray.

"Hopefully tonight you can decide which system you want and I can get an estimate on it," said McCleskey as he neared the end of his presentation.

McCleskey appeared before the commissioners after being awarded a contract to prepare an estimate for the ACND after a heated debate in the July 5 meeting in which Commissioner Dave Maguglin first made a motion to dismiss Goldston and hire Umfleet. Later Maguglin changed his mind and made a motion to continue with Goldston and get estimates on a system for the electrical project.

The commissioners then discussed the underground system and McCleskey asked them to decide if they wanted to go with the primary or secondary underground. He explained the advantages and disadvantages of

Editorial & opinion

And a fine good morning Mr. Obey

Rep. David R. Obey, D-Wis., said he thought his patriotism had been questioned by a Republican opponent — from an Associated Press news dispatch, Washington, July 29. Reference was to a house vote which cutoff aid in Nicaragua.

Well, David, I don't know whether you are patriotic or not. Too often in this day and age we have a tendency to use words such as unrealistic, uninformed in order to shy around such unpleasant words as unpatriotic, even treason. Unrealistic and uninformed are often polite words for dumb, stupid.

In any event, David, your unnamed colleague had the right and even the duty to criticize your patriotism. Ditto, I might add for that majority of the U.S. Congress who voted as you did. And here I must insert that my morning newspapers on this Friday did not report how Texas congressmen voted, but be assured that however they voted they shall be advised of my sentiments. Fat lot they will care, some of you may add, and no doubt quite rightly.

A day or so before the attack on Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941, the Congress passed an extension of the draft by a single vote, as I recall. Following the attack opponents to the draft were the most vocal in damning the Japanese. President Roosevelt, although aware that war had long been imminent, called it "A day of infamy." Nice political rhetoric, no doubt appropriate to the day, but otherwise baloney. We called it the "sneak attack." Again baloney. The history of war has been filled with sneak attacks, only they have more often been called "surprise attacks." Good old George Washington "sneaked" up on the Hessians on Christmas Eve at Valley Forge and "surprised" them. Jeb Stuart, one of my favorite military characters from the Civil War, was a master of the surprise attack. History as far back as you may care to go is full of sneak attacks. As to Pearl Harbor, any student of history will tell you that in this country, politicians, the Army and Navy, all but fell on their knees, begging to be attacked.

On Sept. 5, 1941 the S.S. Steel Seafarer was sunk by an aerial torpedo in the Red Sea, near the entrance to the Gulf of Suez. Mark that date, four months before Pearl Harbor. Brother. That sinking in terms of importance didn't amount to a pin prick when compared to Pearl Harbor. Ah, but how dastardly it was! It was nearly midnight, the moon was full, one could read a newspaper under its light. The white superstructure loomed in the moonlight and the huge American flags painted on either side and another big one covering the entire hatch were easily visible. Also, the ship's running lights were on. Wasn't the Seafarer safely in clearly and undisputably held British waters?

The big bomber came in a long low glide over the mainmast. The captain who happened to be on the bridge was later reported to have observed to the officer on watch: "Must be an observation plane." A moment later the explosion, then the smell of cordite. Fifteen minutes later the bow of the ship disappeared forever, beneath the sea. Sneak attack? For the third time in this piece, baloney. Nearly half the ship's cargo was ammunition, 5,000 tons, destined for the British in the Western Desert. The remainder of the cargo was also for those forces. The pilot of that attacking aircraft may not have had a manifest of the Seafarer's cargo in his cockpit but he was not so daft as not to know that any ship in that area had to be his enemy, no matter the display of flags.

Irresponsible congressmen, forebearers of David R. Obey, bear the blame for that incident, even as they do for Pearl Harbor, Corregidor and the tens of thousands of American lives that were lost because our nation was not ready, prepared.

The sinking of the S.S. Steel Seafarer made some headlines back in the states, even a few paragraphs in Time mag, but the word "sneak" hadn't yet been ressurected from the dictionary. Crew reaction? The best words came a few days later from the captain of the British cruiser Coventry who greeted the Seafarer's skipper at his gangway: "Damned clever cheeky b. . .s." He got a solemn nod in reply. And so Rep. Obey, and all your colleagues who voted with you, I'll not call you a traitor, but by the same token I'm bound not to call you a patriot. But forget that, let me soften things a bit. You and your kind are just plain not very bright.

The military forces of this country are constantly on alert for a sudden attack, even as those who oppose us. Actually, and this is only layman opinion, but I much doubt that either this country or Russia are likely to ever make a deliberate and direct attack against each other. Both are too well aware of the consequences. But none of this has, or is likely, ever to halt the Russians in their efforts to spread their "religion" to the world, even as in Central America today. Russian leaders believe, even as Lenin predicted, that someday the United States will fall to their will without a shot. The current Congress, if nothing else, strengthens that conviction. The Kremlin must be all smiles this morning. Ah yes, and a fine good morning to you, Mr. Obey and company.

I don't know how much willpower is left in this country

Editor's note: The Live Oak Philosopher on his grassburr farm discusses willpower this week, as best he can.

Dear Editor:

One argument about why Americans are being out-competed by Japan and some other countries in some areas such as automobiles and high school diplomas, is that Americans have lost their will. They can't keep from eating too much, they can't make themselves take enough exercise, they watch too much television and go fishing on election days.

I don't know how much willpower is left in this country, Congress hasn't funded a committee to measure it. I guess because nobody has thought of it, but if you're short of the commodity there's a way around it.

If you don't have any willpower of your own, you can buy some.

That's right. In big cities now top business executives, actors, models, TV announcers and other overpaid people are hiring individual trainers to come to their homes and make them exercise and eat right. At say about 7 a.m. the trainer shows up, rousts them out of bed if they're still sleeping away and makes them do the calisthenics they don't have the willpower to do on their own. Then, as far as I know, he tells them what to eat for breakfast. Don't know if he shows up at the other two meals to see they don't go for seconds.

I can imagine one business executive saying of another: "Hmmm, I notice he's getting flabby, his business must be on the rocks, can't afford to hire somebody to make him exercise."

As for TV anchor people having to hire somebody else's willpower to keep them looking trim on camera, I'd turn off the set when they come on and pick up a newspaper, if I had more willpower.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

And you call them idiots

Concerning the article entitled Austin at Wharf, July 30.

The author mentions a picture of a group in Austin displaying a sign reading "U.S. out of El Salvador" and calls them "idiots."

There may be a very good case for the U.S. involvement in Central America. The defense of our country is an important issue.

At the same time it is worth considering the people living in the countries where we strongarm our policies. The government we support in El Salvador dutifully butchers unarmed men, women and children. When the U.S. supplies arms, ammunition and training for the soldiers who kill and cripple civilians, I think a caring human being should bring their opinions forward.

Also the number of responsible, thinking people who demonstrated during the 60s and 70s far outnumbered the "kooks and weirdos." There are incidence of beatings and killings of demonstrators in this country at that time by uniformed police, as well as murders of civilian women and children by U.S. soldiers in Vietnam. There are always a few people on both sides of the fence.

There is no guarantee that the U.S. will be secure regardless of what happens in El Salvador. We all have our opinions. Your opinion is no better or worse than the group holding that sign in the picture. Just different. Idiots? I doubt it. A little less name calling and a little more understanding could help both sides.

One thing is for certain, innocent people are dying in the name of peace.

To rearrange the Gibbon quote — perhaps today we preserve war by constantly preparing for peace.

All-stars say thanks

The Senior League girls from Rockport-Fulton that were chosen to go to Harlingen to play in the Regional Tournament wish to thank the following for helping make the trip possible.

Thank you to CP&L, First National Bank, Allied Live Oak Bank, Islander Interior, B. Franklin Kite Co. and Sundries, Sand and Sea Co., Estelie Stairs' Gallery, Ray's Texaco and the Gray Fox Shrimp Boat.

The girls also wish to thank these individuals: Mr. James, Anita Dingenary, Tina Buenano, Lane and Wes Adkison, Pat Randall, Shannon Liggett and Sarilyn Taylor.

The All-Star girls appreciate Rockport-Fulton's efforts in making the trip possible.

We the undersigned

We, the undersigned, wives of the present commissioners, are disgusted with the malicious publicity written in the news media about our husbands.

The inference of their dishonesty and integrity is despicable, untrue, misleading, unreasonable, unrighteous and unjust to the point of ridiculous.

The insinuations are more than we can endure. Why, if all the statements are true, don't they state facts? Why? Because none of it is true. Their attempts to smear and defeat honest conscientious men is brought about by a DEMAGOG - a defeated candidate - who has no principles and seeks to demoralize the actions of those who were elected.

This radical uses the media to avenge his "defeat" at the polls two years ago. And as for qualifications to serve as a navigation commissioner, was he any more qualified than those elected?

FACT — Let's set the record straight. The defeated candidate owes the navigation district for a years lease he reneged on years ago. His retaliation is to blast those who kept their payments current and subleased for profit, isn't that what business is all about? This person is vindictive, vicious and a poor loser.

FACT — The navigation commissioners have worked with representatives of the recreation people. Other involvements and equally important to the area, are bird watchers, art association and maritime museum. These are all essential and must be recognized on their merits and their contribution to the community.

FACT — The harbors and recreation areas are and always will be the responsibility of the public, for whose use they are intended. The cooperation of the users of these public areas is essential and they, working with the navigation commissioners, can still have a unique and beautiful area to enjoy.

FACT — The Grand Jury "NO BILLED" the navigation commissioners that there was NO CORRUPTION, COERCION or DISHONESTY.

FACT — We believe the VOTERS are intelligent and will weigh the issues when they go to the polls on Aug. 13th, an not be influenced by such rumors and innuendos.

An open letter

U.S. Congressman Bill Patman
Dear Sir:

Noting the recent hearings at Rockport of the Aransas County Navigation District's (ACND) request for some $2,000,000 for improvement of the Lydia Ann Channel, I would like to voice my objections to this project.

1. Such an operation would presently be a typical "road to nowhere." The Cove Harbor, through neglect by the ACND commissioners, has become so badly shoaled that no sizable crafts are presently able to use this harbor. The Lydia Ann Channel is part of the present Intercoastal waterway and is perfectly adequate. The expenditure is actually aimed at creating a special marine roadway from Lydia Ann to Cove Harbor, a roadway that would have little or no value until the harbor is dredged and bulkheaded, a project which would involve another $1,500,000.

2. This "road to nowhere" is seemingly a ploy by the navigation commissioners to place themselves in a position where they could force the taxpayers of this area to approve a bond issue to improve the harbor in order not to waste the several million of dollars that must be spent on the so-called "Lydia Ann Channel Project."

3. The commission, as it is now constituted, has been under extreme pressure for the scandals involving the granting of prime leases at Cove Harbor to favored political cronies who have then sub-leased these properties for sums up to 10 times the amounts accruing to the publically owned district. In 1981 the district received only $67,000 in harbor rentals at the Cove, a property worth a minimum of $10,000,000. This is less than 7/10ths of 1 percent (.007) return on the value of our harbor.

4. The "Lydia Ann Channel Project," while probably badly needed in the future, should now be removed from consideration until the ACND can purge themselves of the political bondage in which they are held and public approval can be gained to rebuild the Cove Harbor if it is economically feasible.

In view of the new commercial harbors recently built to the south of Cove Harbor, there is seemingly little need for the public, tax-owned district to compete with private industry by rebuilding Cove Harbor into a commercial industrial harbor, although a strong case might be made for converting the Cove, at a much lower cost, into a shrimp boat harbor.

The shakedown cruise

By TED NORMAN
Managing editor

No matter how large or small the boat, I an now a believer that the most important sail you will ever have on any boat is the shakedown cruise. That lesson really came home to me last Sunday after sailing my new yellow, and yet-unnamed, boat

After an hour of hard work, the little yellow boat was muscled from the trailer and onto a small ramp I had built to hold her, then the mast was stepped and she was launched.

A friend and I rigged the sheets and tuned the stays and after a hard two hours of work we were on our way down Redfish Canal and, with a mild breeze on the port quarter, we entered Little Bay for the first sail on the new boat.

After only a few minutes, I was very disappointed with the boat and the way it was performing, or not performing in this case.

It seemed the boat just wasn't handling well or pointing like I thought it should. By mid-afternoon the pleasant little breeze had become a strong tropical wind and small whitecaps were forming on the windward side of the bay.

After visually inspecting the boat, I determined that the mainsheet was rigged wrong and the jib was hoisted too high and wouldn't set right. These two things alone would cause the boat to lose performance as well as pointing ability.

On every tack, the centerboard would jump out of the slot and cause one of us to divert our attention to it.

The hiking straps, something not needed on this boat, kept a permanent grip on my angles most of the afternoon and I made a mental note to remove them, if we got back from this trip.

My friend, an inexperienced sailor, spent most of the afternoon helping to unwrap the jib sheet from the cleats on the mast where they would tangle on every tack.

It had been too many years since I had rigged the mainsheet on a small boat — those things are so apparent on larger boats — and any landlubber worth his afternoon grog could see I had rigged it wrong.

One sheeve on the traveler had been omitted and the sail could only be pulled about halfway in. In frustration I reached out and grabbed the sheet at the boom and wrestled the sail in, and the little yellow boat took off like it had been scared by a Hobie Cat.

So we knew the thing would go if given a chance.

Knowing that something had to be done to resolve the problem, we sailed over to the windward side of the bay, to give ourselves working room, and as we tried to heave to, I attempted to rig the mainsheet the way the designer had intended for it to be rigged.

My friend couldn't understand what I wanted done with the jib to keep the boat weathercocked and we drifted rapidly to the leeward side of the bay.

With no mainsheet now, I pulled the main in by holding onto the boom, and we once again made our way back to the windward side.

In a mad desperate grab, I hooked the sheet to the boom, jibbed under moderate control and raced madly back across the bay, my friend believing less each moment all the stories I had related about my experiences sailing on the high seas.

Trying once again for searoom to attach the sheet to the boom, we hove to, but the wind had picked up and would jerk the boom from my hand as I tried to thread the line through the blocks.

Images of my friend and I towing a boat that had turned turtle popped into my mind and it was apparent that we needed to solve the problem, now.

In all my years of blue water cruising, I had only yelled for the Coast Guard once and I didn't want a casual day's sail in Little Bay to be number two.

After one more try with the sheet I scanned the bay for an empty dock where we could rig the boat properly in a quiet and safe manner.

An empty dock was spotted in front of the old art gallery that I thought would be as near an ideal situation as we were going to find.

Unfortunately the dock was perpendicular to the wind and two pilings were outboard of it — not an ideal situation but a do-able one, I thought.

Looking at the complicated docking situation brought forth memories of dockings of larger boats under worse conditions, and when asked by my friend if we could do it I made the reassuring remark that it would be a walk in the park.

As we sailed for the dock, on a starboard tack, I tried to give a quick briefing of what it was we were about to attempt as well as assign duties I knew would need to be done.

If we missed the dock I would have to jib without a mainsheet and it seemed apparent we would end up in the water, probably with a dismasted boat.

My friend got a glassy stare and white knuckles and I knew I had to pull this off or all my brilliant sea tales would immediately lose all their credibility.

As we approached the dock I dodged one piling then, with a slight zig and a zag, the other piling, spun the boat on the centerboard and laid the little yellow boat gently next to the dock. My friend grabbed a cleat and made the bowline fast and we traded smiles.

The boat was rigged, the jib adjusted and some water bailed out. During the tack to the dock we laid the port rail in the under and took on a little water, six gallons.

Another half hour on the bay and we were convinced the Puffer could really perform, when rigged properly, so we headed back up Redfish Canal and home.

During my sailing career I have taken many boats, one 120-footer, on shakedown cruises and I thought I had a great appreciation for this one important sail but the little Puffer convinced me even more of the importance of that first sail on any boat.

Hopefully the boat will be back on the bay this weekend. Maybe everything will be rigged right and we will have a chance to see what that little yellow boat can really do.

Sonic is under new management

Brett Covey and his wife Valeta moved to Rockport July 22 when Brett took over as manager of the Sonic Drive-In on Highway 35 north.

The Coveys came to Rockport from Fredricksberg were Bret worked at assistant manager of a Sonic.

The new manager, showing some real enthusiasm for his new position says he, Valeta and the Sonic employees are working very hard to get the cleanliness and quality up to where he believes it should be.

Brett says that many customers complained of the Rockport Sonic being dirty but he proudly displays a newly cleaned kitchen, service and drive area.

Brett says at present there are no specials, just a lot of nice employees trying to get the old customers to come back and try the Sonic again.

The Sonic will be open from 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. Sunday through Thursday and from 10 a.m. to 12 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

Brett says he hopes anyone having suggestions, complaints or compliments will tell him or an employee.

He says call-in orders are welcome and will be ready to pick up when you arrive.

Is this the time to sell?

By Scott Burns

Now that we're surrounded by reassuring statistics about an improving economy, we may get a stock market correction.

Which makes you wonder if this is the time to sell.

One answer comes from Robert Colby, founder of Colby Equity Valuations in Boston. Using a technique he calls "absolute value analysis," Colby examines corporate earning power and compares it to the income investors can get from bonds.

While the mathematics are complicated, the basic idea is pragmatic: People seek out the highest secure returns.

Here's how Colby sees us heading for a market correction:

The return any of us get from owning a common stock comes from three different components:

— Dividend Income. The company earns money and pays out some of it as dividends. A typical company now offers a dividend yield under 4 percent.

— Apparent Return. Money not paid out in dividends is also a form of return. Although we don't have it to spend, the company whose shares we own can use the retained earnings to earn still more money. If what the market is willing to pay for a dollar of earnings doesn't change, your total return will always equal the sum of the dividend income and earnings growth.

— Valuation Return. This is the return most investors dream about. A year ago, investors were willing to pay only $8 for $1 of earnings in a typical company. Today, they are willing to pay almost $16. The problem, Colby says, is that the more investors pay for a dollar of earnings, the longer it will take for them to recover their original investment — the "payback" period stretches with growing optimism.

To establish a standard, Colby uses long-term bond rates to find out how long it will take an investor to recover his investment. A bond yielding 11 percent, for instance, will pay back in nine years.

Then he does the same thing for the earnings on a common stock, allowing for growth through cycles.

Finally, he adjusts both figures for inflation.

His findings are worrisome.

Since 1958 the Standard and Poor's 400 index had a payback that was 65 to 95 percent of the payback for corporate bonds. At this time last year, stocks were a bargain, with a 66 percent value relative to bonds.

Now, only 12 months later, stocks are at a 115 percent value relative to bonds — way out of their normal range.

The figures below show how stocks performed relative to bonds in the year following low and high relative values. As you can see, the odds favor a market correction.

To justify current stock prices, Colby says, the S&P 400 companies would have to increase their earning power dramatically to about a 20 percent return on shareholder equity. "The highest ever achieved," he says, "was in 1946 when it was 16.9 percent."

Is there another way to avoid a probable decline?

Yes. If interest rates drop substantially.

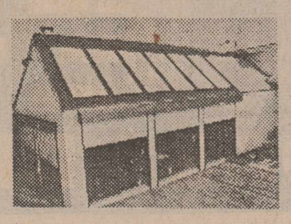

This situation, of course, doesn't affect all stocks equally.

"The distortions in 1972," Colby says, "were caused by the overvaluation of the biggest companies. We have just the opposite today.... There's a definite tendency for investors to be enamored of small companies because they are small. As a result, the old 'Nifty 50' companies are fairly undervalued while the 'emerging growth' companies are overvalued."

The bottom line: Don't rush for the door — this economy has a long way to grow — but don't feel you've got to invest every dime yesterday, either.

1 million acres to be sold by land board

AUSTIN — Texas Land Commissioner Gary Mauro has announced the School Land Board will offer more than one million acres of public lands for lease at the Oct. 4 semi-annual lease sale.

"This will be the largest offering since October 1980," Mauro said. "We will offer 1,045,957 acres including tracts in uplands, riverbeds, bays and inlets and in the Gulf of Mexico." Mauro serves as chairman of the School Land Board.

A total of 1,423 tracts will be listed in the October sale for the production and exploration of oil and gas. An additional 10 tracts totalling 3,800 acres will be offered for the exploration and production of sulfur.

The areas offered in the October lease sale are as follows: uplands — 48 tracts, 12,181 acres; riverbeds — 75 tracts, 6,246 acres; bays and inlets — 616 tracts, 314,156 acres; Gulf of Mexico — 684 tracts, 713,374 acres.

All bonuses and royalties paid on public school lands are placed into the Permanent School Fund. The fund currently totals more than $3.8 billion.

"Money earned from the leasing of our public lands goes directly for the education of the school children of Texas," Mauro said. "Last year, this fund provided over $600 for each public school student in this state. This is money we do not have to raise from additional taxes for our public school system."

July report

New construction drops

Despite a drop in new construction during July, construction values in Rockport so far this year are looking good, with new construction totalling more than $4.9 million started through July 31.

New construction for August in the city got off to a good start with a permit issued Monday, Aug. 1, for construction of another residence in Rockport Country Club Estates Unit 1 with an estimated value of $87,894.

Only one new residence was started in July, according to building permits on file at Rockport City Hall. This was for a house in Harbor Oaks Unit 1, valued at $98,083.

Total construction values for the month in July were in excess of $130,000, including commercial construction valued at $4,500, residential remodeling valued at $13,900 and construction of a swimming pool in Harbor Oaks valued at $13,900.

July building totals brought Rockport's total building valuations for the year to more than $4.94 million, a figure that already exceeds construction values for the year for 1979, '80 and '81. Last year, 1982, was the best for Rockport in the past five years, with new construction totalling $6,045,762.

Construction started in 1979 totalled more than $2.8 million. The construction values dropped to just under $2.5 million in 1980 then climbed in 1981 to just under $2.7 million.

By Ann Thomas

Summer weather calls for cool, light desserts. These definitely qualify. The preparation is even cool and easy.

CREAM PUFFS

Easy to make, these shouldn't be reserved just for special occasions.

½ cup butter or oleo
1 cup boiling water
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup sifted flour
4 large eggs

Mix butter and water; add sifted flour and salt. Stir until the mixture leaves the sides of the pan; then remove from heat. Beat in one egg at a time, beating until mixture is smooth and stiff.

Drop by the tablespoonful onto a greased baking sheet, 2 inches apart. Bake in a 350° oven 45-50 minutes. Lower heat to 275° and bake an additional 10-15 minutes. Cool on a rack and fill with your choice of filling.

CREAM PUFF FILLING

½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ cup flour
1½ cups milk
2 large egg yolks
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix salt, flour and sugar in the top of a double boiler. Whisk in the milk. Cool until thick. Slightly beat the egg yolks, then whisk them in. Cook 2 minutes longer and remove from heat. Allow to cool and add vanilla.

You can split the cream puffs and use a pastry tube to fill them or you can fill them with a spoon. Powdered sugar sifted on them is an added touch of elegance. After all, you and your family deserve the best, don't you?

ICE BOX PIE

There are many recipes for this pie — this is my favorite. It's quickly prepared, but should be chilled several hours prior to serving. This makes a very large pie.

2 cans sweetened condensed milk
1 small can frozen lemon, lime or orange juice
2 egg yolks
1½ cups whipped cream

Empty milk into large bowl; stir in the juice and egg yolks. Mix well. Fold in the whipped cream. Pour into prepared pie crust, top with additional whipped cream. Chill several hours before serving.

Bon appetit!

Morales wins national contest

Rhea Morales of Rockport recently won second place in a national "Great Ideas" contest sponsored by Family Circle Magazine. A photograph of the sweater she entered in the contest appeared in the July issue of the magazine.

Morales, 18, was awarded a Touchtronic 2010 Singer sewing machine worth $1,300. She said she was "a little down" when she found out she had won second place instead of first, which was a trip to New York.

The sweater is a classic cardigan made of leftover baby yarn in pink, blue, yellow and white. A variety of stitches were used and the sweater displays unique detail both front and back.

A 1983 graduate of Rockport-Fulton High School, Morales says that one reason she began designing her own sweaters was that the patterns she found in magazines usually contained mistakes, something she does not have to be concerned with when using her own.

Morales was notified last February that she was one of 50 finalists in the contest. She received notification that the had won in April, but it was not published in the magazine until July.

Morales will enter Trinity University in San Antonio this fall.

Volunteers needed to lead voyages into 19th century history

VICTORIA — The McNamara House Museum is looking for volunteers to lead school children on voyages of discovery back to the year 1876. The first program in the museum's Opening Doors to the Past educational series, entitled "One Day in 1876," is scheduled to begin in October of this year and it will give local fifth graders an opportunity to experience life as it was lived by their great-great-grandparents. The program will continue throughout the school year.

Volunteers will go into the classroom equipped with slides and artifacts in order to introduce children to some of the important themes in late 19th century history. Among the areas to be covered will be family life, immigration, technological development and recreation and leisure.

Following the classroom visit, schoolchildren will visit McNamara House where volunteers will not only lead a question and answer tour of the site, but also "direct" visiting students in short dramatizations of daily life in South Texas more than 100 years ago.

Volunteers will be asked to contribute at least two mornings per month to the "One Day in 1876" program. An orientation session for museum volunteers is scheduled for Monday, Aug. 22, from 9 to 11:30 a.m. Training sessions for "One Day in 1876" volunteers are scheduled for the six consecutive Friday mornings beginning Sept. 2.

No previous experience or training in history or education is required. Men and women wishing to volunteer should enjoy helping children to discover the world about them, be a little creative and have a desire to learn about late 19th century history and culture. Persons who are interested in volunteering or who would like to know more about how they can help "open doors to the past" should call Glenn Jessee, the curator of McNamara House, at 575-8227.

Diabetics should question study

A recent research study is being misinterpreted to mean that diabetics no longer have to worry about their sugar intake, says Dr. Alice Hunt, a foods and nutrition specialist with Texas A&M University's Agricultural Extension Service.

The study, which was published last month in the New England Journal of Medicine, has been widely publicized as good news for diabetics.

But according to Hunt, the limitations of the study have not been thoroughly discussed in reports of the results.

For example, the study used only 10-12 insulin-requiring diabetics, an equal number of adult-onset diabetics and a control group. This is a small number from which to generalize to the more than four to five million American diabetics.

"It's still important to divide both complex and simple carbohydrates into at least three meals a day to be consumed with other foods," warns the specialist.

Simple carbohydrates such as soda or candy consumed by themselves as a snack, will dangerously increase the diabetic's blood sugar level, she adds.

Insulin-requiring diabetics should consult with their physicians before making changes in their diets, and all other diabetics should be wary of any radical changes, cautions Hunt.

Stained glass to adorn new church sanctuary

"I was going to use four Christian symbols, but Rev. (Richard) Giller liked the doves, so they're getting four doves," says Liz Devenney.

"They" are the congregation of Fulton's Community Church and the doves are the centerpiece of the stained glass windows that Liz designed and she and Roy Olbrich of Rockport are making for the new church sanctuary now under construction.

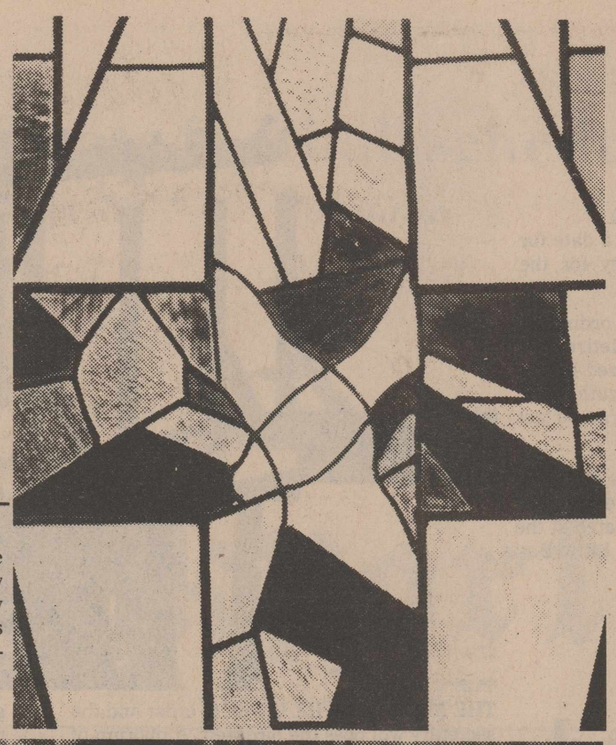

Liz, a Fulton resident, and Roy started work on the windows about three weeks ago as their contribution to the new sanctuary which will increase the seating capacity of the Fulton church to about 300.

She credits Roy with doing most of the work on the windows which feature a multicolored cross with a white dove in flight centered where the crosspieces meet.

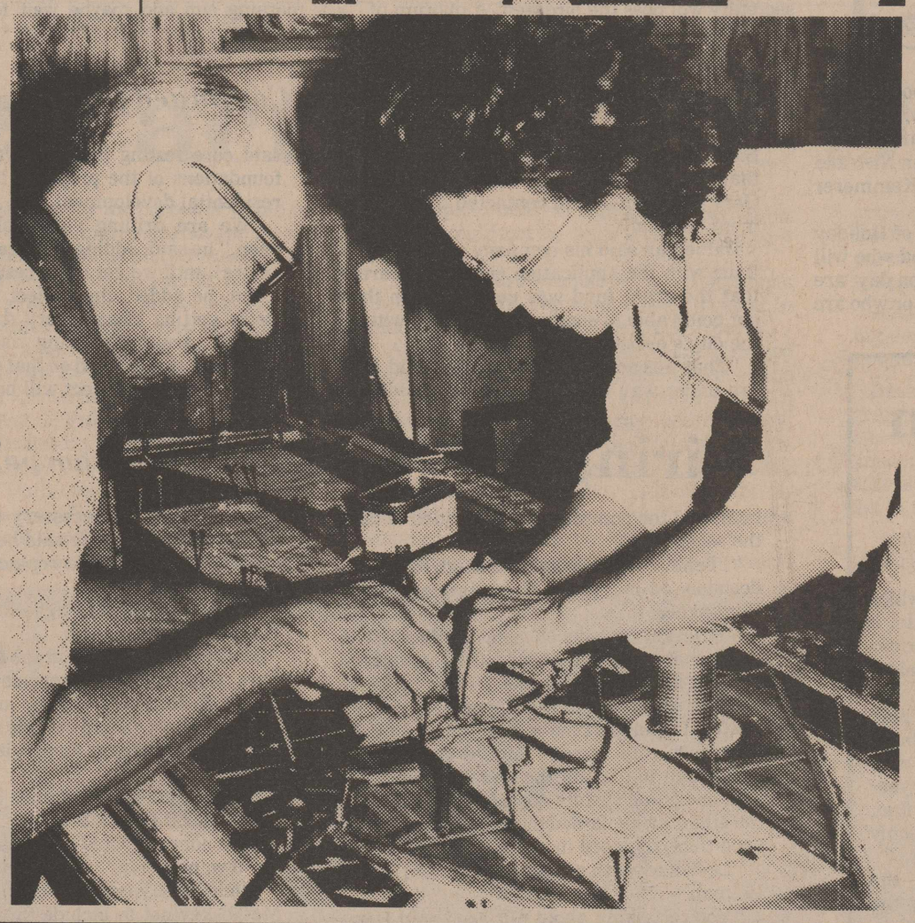

It takes about 12 to 15 hours to make one window, says Olbrich. A major holdup in making the windows for the Fulton church has been a problem in getting the white glass that is used not only for the doves but in the design surrounding the crosses.

However, Roy and Liz anticipate having that problem solved by this coming week.

Olbrich has been working with stained glass for about eight years now, he said. Liz got hooked on the art form three or four months ago when she became his pupil.

Roy and Liz work on the fourth — and last — window for Fulton's Community Church, below. At right is center detail of finished product.

Local congregation attends Campmeeting

Rev. Percy Lewis, pastor of the Rockport Church of God, and members of the church's congregation participated in week of fellowship at the 64th annual Hallettsville Campmeeting of the Church of God.

The meeting was July 18-24 and featured the Rev. Horace W. Sheppard of Philadelphia, Penn., as speaker. The Rev. and Mrs. Lewis led the older youth (over age 17) in conference classes during the week, and Susie Odoms of Rockport was leader of the "Young Married" conference classes.

Others from the Rockport church participating in the campmeeting included Cora Lewis and Mrs. Odoms, singing in the state choir; and Elsie Mae Huff who offered the prayer during Women of the Church Day observances on July 20.

Rockport church members L. C. Huff and Rachel Luddington are in the board of directors of the Hallettsville Campmeeting Association, and Huff serves on the Association's board of Christian Education.

Members of the Rockport Church of God took their turn preparing the meals for those attending the campmeeting on July 20 with a menu that included homemade biscuits, eggs, bacon and sausage for breakfast and fish, potato salad, green beans, peach cobbler and bread for lunch.

Ruby Mitchell, state W.C.G. courtesy committee chairman, was in charge of the table for the W.C.G.'s 50th anniversary celebration during the campmeeting.

Sunday School division directors are named

Four new positions — directors for each of the four Sunday School divisions of Rockport First Baptist Church — have been added to the church for the coming fall, according to Dale Pogue, church minister of education.

Pogue will serve as director of the adult Sunday School Division. Also named as division directors are Pam Balentine, preschool; Brenda Arthur, children; and Bobbie Mills, youth.

The division directors will have the responsibility of working with the church nominating committee in enlisting Sunday School workers and will work with the minister of education in training, encouraging and leading the workers to reach, teach, win and develop the pupils in their respective departments.

The new Sunday School year begins Oct. 1 at the church. Sunday School attendance for the church on July 31 was 230 with 38 in preschool, 36 in the children's division, 32 youth and 124 adults.

Bank annexation on city council agenda

A decision on whether to proceed with annexation of Allied Live Oak Bank into Rockport city limits is scheduled for consideration at Tuesday night's, Aug. 9, meeting of the Rockport City Council. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m.

If the council decides to proceed with the annexation — requested by bank officials last month — dates will be set for two public hearings on the proposal, one at City Hall and a second one at the bank.

Also on Tuesday's agenda will be a decision by the council on whether to proceed with the closing of Live Oak Street between 2nd and 3rd streets and final reading of an ordinance that will increase the mowing fees charged by the city from a minimum $25 to $40.

The council will consider setting a date for opening bids for a city depository for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1.

First reading is scheduled for an ordinance updating the Texas Municipal Retirement System service credits as authorized by the last Texas Legislature. Authorization for preparation of the ordinance was granted last month.

Also scheduled on the agenda as of Thursday morning was a request from residents of the area for a street light to be located at the corner of Bay and Shores Lane in Little Bay Shores Subdivision.

Four absentee votes in Holiday Beach recorded

HOLIDAY BEACH — Four absentee votes were recorded as of Thursday morning in elections for three directors to the board of the Aransas County Water Control & Improvement District No. 1 in Holiday Beach.

Absentee voting will continue through Tuesday, Aug. 9, at the Lingner Real Estate Office on Hwy. 35 North. Regular elections are set for Saturday, Aug. 13, with polls open from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m. in the Lee Miller Recreation Building in Holiday Beach.

Voting is to fill three directors' posts on the board. Candidates, in order in which their names will appear on the ballot, are Hilmar E. Flowers and incumbents M. Joan Nish and Wilson R. Burns. Incumbent Jane Kemmerer is not seeking re-election.

Absentee voting is for residents of Holiday Beach who are qualified voters and who will not be in Aransas County on election day, are physically unable to go to the polls or who are age 65 or over.

Bentsen pledges crackdown on drug-smuggling pilots

WASHINGTON — Senator Lloyd Bentsen said Tuesday, August 2, that, in the wake of committee approval, he will push for swift action by the full Senate on his bill clamping down on pilots involved in drug smuggling.

Bentsen commented after the Senate Commerce Committee voted unanimously Tuesday to recommend Senate passage of the legislation.

"Pilots who smuggle drugs not only add to the serious problem of drug abuse in this country, they also pose a definite threat to air safety," Bentsen said.

"My bill will help in our efforts to put them out of business."

"According to the U.S. Customs Service, 1.3 million pounds of drugs — cocaine, heroin, marijuana, methaqualone and others — will enter the country illegally by private aircraft this year. Ninety percent of that will come across our southern border."

"Not surprisingly, given the conditions under which small private aircraft used to smuggle drugs are flown, many crash for lack of fuel, because they are overloaded or because the pilots attempt to take off from or land on unmarked, deserted airfields."

"The Federal Aviation Administration informs me that between 1980 and 1982 there were 491 aircraft crashes in which drugs had been on board. Drugs aside, it seems to me we also have a very serious aviation safety problem," Bentsen said.

The Bentsen bill would require the F.A.A. to revoke the certificate of a pilot convicted of illegal drug trafficking. Under current law the only action the F.A.A. may take against a convicted pilot is a one year certificate suspension and a $1,000 fine. Such action was taken by the F.A.A. only 17 times last year.

In addition, the bill empowers the F.A.A. to suspend for 1-5 years the certificate of a pilot who has not been convicted but who is found by the administrator to have engaged in illegal drug trafficking. The Administrator could also suspend for 1-5 years the registration of an aircraft used in illegal drug trafficking.

"The administrator already has authority under law to suspend or revoke a license for safety violations and, as demonstrated by the large number of drug-related crashes, smuggling illegal drugs by air is clearly unsafe," Bentsen said.

"My legislation will not solve the drug problem in this country. What it will do, however, is put aircraft owners and pilots on notice that a license to fly is not a license to smuggle drugs," Senator Bentsen said.

For hurricanes

High-risk months to come

The most dangerous months for hurricanes along the Texas Gulf Coast are August and September, during which time hurricanes strike with the greatest frequency and the most destructive force, both in terms of loss of life and property.

Of the 11 major hurricanes which have struck the Texas coast since 1900, nine occurred in August and September, killing a total of 6,712 persons.

According to Don Manthe, chairman of the Texas Catastrophe Property Insurance Association (TCPIA), hurricanes hit the Texas coast on an average of one every two and a half years, with a major hurricane striking about every 10 years.

"Newcomers to the coast are particularly vulnerable because they are unfamiliar with tropical storms and do not know the importance of taking steps to protect their lives and property," Manthe said.

Manthe estimates that as many as one-third of Texas coastal residents have never experienced a hurricane.

"The growth in coastal population and the larger potential for flooding due to increased development along the waterfront create a situation ripe for a major disaster," Manthe said.

To help inform coastal reasidents of precautions to take during hurricane season, TCPIA and the Insurance Information Institute are distributing free of charge a brochure entitled "Texas Coastal Hurricane Preparedness Information". The brochure outlines steps to save lives and property before, during and after a hurricane, and includes a tracking chart and a storm travel guide.

To obtain a copy of the brochure, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Insurance Institute, 100 N. Interregional, Suite 3200, Austin, Texas 78701.

"This hurricane information is intended to remind longtime residents and inform the newcomers of hurricane hazards," Manthe said. "We do not intend to alarm but to inform.

Grant

Baker-Haldeman had not come to the city but that the city — through the intervention of Gary Chatham — had contacted the development company.

Haldeman said his company could not continue with the application once they learned that the grant fund was contingent on their not being able to continue the project without the city's assistance.

"That was not a fact," Haldeman said. "We are under way (on the project)." Haldeman said core testing is under way now for the foundations of the proposed high-rise retail-residential development.

"We are drilling eight holes at 125 feet deep," he said, adding, "We can't do anything (more) until we get those results."

But, he added, the project is "on track — we're getting closer every day." He said a formal groundbreaking is planned for sometime this fall and on that day, major construction of the project will begin.

Wiring

both, and the commissioners decided to bury the secondary.

"I believe we have heard enough to make a decision on it," said Commissioner Hillis Dominguez.

McCleskey introduced some hardware with lights on it and asked if the board would like to go with lights on the docks. "I don't believe we need lights," said Dominguez.

After Dominguez made a motion to proceed with a 20-amp system, McCleskey said he would like to explain the panel systems. He said one panel system costs $1,400 more than the other but explained the cheaper one would need to be replaced in about three years.

"Let's stay with a first-class system," said Holman.

"You're talking about $10,000," said Dominguez.

Maguglin joined the discussion asking Holman, "Why do you recommend we spend that kind of money?"

"Both meet code, both work, let's go with the cheaper one," said Dominguez.

"I think the cheaper one is the better one. We may have to replace them; let's go with the cheaper one," said Commissioner Hal B. McKnight.

In his report to the commissioners, McCleskey said if they choose the cheaper model, it may be necessary to replace it in two or three years. He said he didn't know of anyone ever having to replace the more expensive model.

The commissioners agreed to go with the cheaper service panels.

McCleskey asked about the overhead power lines that presently service the five bait stands in Rockport Harbor and asked if the wiring project should include removing these wires and replacing them with underground wires.

He was told the bait stands have a contract with Central Power & Light.

"It's none of CPL's business what we do on our own property," said Maguglin.

After discussion, the commissioners told McCleskey not to include the bait stand wiring in the project.

"One more question," said McCleskey. "There are a lot of bait boxes, drums and other things along the docks. What do we do with that?"

"That's strictly against marina rules. We will take care of that," said Holman.

Dominguez made a motion to proceed with the project and let Goldston Engineering Corp. provide an estimate for the project. Maguglin made a second to the motion and it carried.

it must be proved that the city is not providing any services to the area.

Annexation to the west of the town limits will proceed as planned with one public hearing at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 16, at the Fulton town hall and the other at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 23 at Woody Acres Trailer Park.

On the agenda for next week's regular meeting of the council will be discussion of a subdivision ordinance, discussion of an application for a sewer grant, continued discussion of annexation proceedings and discussion of a parade float for the town.

The float was brought up during the workshop meeting. Garcia advised that it will have to be let for bids since the cost will exceed $3,000. The council agreed that specs must be drawn up before it is let for bids. The design committee met with a representative of a firm which builds floats Thursday evening, Aug. 4. The committee plans to ask the firm's representative to draw the specs for the float.

Council members were given a copy of last year's budget and a list of the current year's expenditures to date so that they may study them this week. A budget workshop is set for Aug. 30.

New track record set at La Bahia Downs

After six exciting days of horse races during Goliad's La Bahia Downs Summer Meet, the record books have been rewritten. Perhaps the most impressive record was the Texas Bred Feature gross purse record of $158,700, breaking the old record set in 1982 of $153,000. The Texas Bred winner was Speed Galore owned by the Angelina Cattle Co. of Laredo. Speed Galore set a second impressive new record — a new track record for 300 yards with a dazzling 15.49 clocking. The time was doubly impressive considering Feins Tiddie Bar had just established a new 300-yard mark in the trails of 15.52.

The winner's share of the rich purse was another record setting $45,934 this summer.

There were many other exciting stake and feature races the final weekend. On Saturday, July 30, the South Texas Sprint Series Number Three at 330 yards was won by Facog—owned by Melvin Smith of Ackerly — in a fine 17.23 seconds. The co-feature was the Heza Charger Sprint finals also at 330 yards and it was won by Miss Sagey Top owned by Inken Willis of Beeville in a time of 17.38.

In addition to the Texas Bred Feature Finals, Sunday features included The Goliad Tiger Dash at 350 yards won by Sittin Sassy, owned by Bryan Story of Floresville with a 18.14 clocking. Other features were the Three Ohs Dash, also at 350 yards and won by Scotty Te, owned by Bruce Norris at Seguin in 18.42; the Championship Number Three at 440 yards won by Go Flight Rainmist in 22.19. The championship winner is owned by Melvin Smith of Ackerly. The Texas Bred Feature Consolation was won by Finish Your Glass owned by L.H. Von Dohlen of Goliad in a time of 15.72 for 300 yards.

Good crowds and hot weather made for good racing this summer. The ground crews had the track in top condition evidenced by the 29 won in AAA time.

The final meet of the 1983 Season at La Bahia Downs will be run Sept. 24-25 and Oct. 1-2. The feature stakes are the $5,000-added Goliad Futurity at 350 yards and the $3,000-added La Bahia Derby at 400 yards.

Social Security aid to be available here

A representative of the Social Security Administration will be in Rockport Wednesday, Aug. 17.

The representative will be at the Aransas County Courthouse at 9 a.m. to answer questions and help claimants file for regular Social Security and Supplemental Security Income benefits.

Heart to God

Hand to Man

WHILE THE REST of us were at work some lucky young people (and one older person) were enjoying a game of volleyball at the beach near the saltwater pool Wednesday afternoon. Those of us who hold jobs will probably be able to enjoy some volleyball this weekend if the weather stays nice.

AAU experience valuable

Lewis gets fifth place, Gurley takes seventh at national meet

"I'm glad I went," sums up Darren Gurley, returning to Rockport after competing in last week's Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) National Junior Olympics. Gurley and Demetrius Lewis traveled to Notre Dame University in South Bend, Ind., for the national track meet where they both competed in discus competition.

Lewis, in the Intermediate division, placed fifth with a 138-foot throw and in the Senior division, Gurley took seventh with a throw of 148 feet.

The boys qualified their way to the nationals from area AAU Summer Track meets, the regional competition in San Antonio and at the tri-state meet in New Orleans, La., where Lewis threw 131' 2" for a second and Gurley got a third place with 139' 3".

Of the meet at Notre Dame, Gurley says, "It was good . . . more competitive than what we were used to." He expected to do better than he did. "I was nervous and I ended up scratching two throws."

After traveling to Indiana by bus, the athletes competed Saturday and Sunday, July 30 and 31, then returned home Tuesday. Says Gurley, "Sure, I'd do it again . . . but I'd fly next time."

The athletes were funded by local businesses and individuals including Allied Live Oak Bank, which donated $150 the day before their departure for the meet.

Both athletes are members of the Rockport-Fulton high school track and football teams. Lewis was on the junior varsity track team last year and will compete on varsity for the first time this year; Gurley will be a senior this year and remains on the varsity team. High school track coach Bill Daws says of their AAU performances, "It's great. It's a real plus for their football season as well as track. They're all pumped up now after this."

During the regular track season, Gurley's best throw was a 152' 10" at the regional meet for a fifth place. Lewis' best of the year was 144' at the Sinton meet.

Daws states the obvious in regards to the boys' AAU record, saying, "This was quite an honor. They were competing with the top of the nation. This will take some of the pressure off them this year in competition. It's a real big plus for their athletic careers."

He adds, "They worked hard at this but they've both still got a long way to go."

"This did nothing but help us in football," says the coach of the AAU experience. The football season begins on Sept. 2 — Lewis will play offensive guard and linebacker and Gurley will be offensive and defensive tackle.

Football is just around the corner

The 1983 Rockport-Fulton Pirate football season is just around the corner and head coach Aubrey Schulz and his staff are busy already.

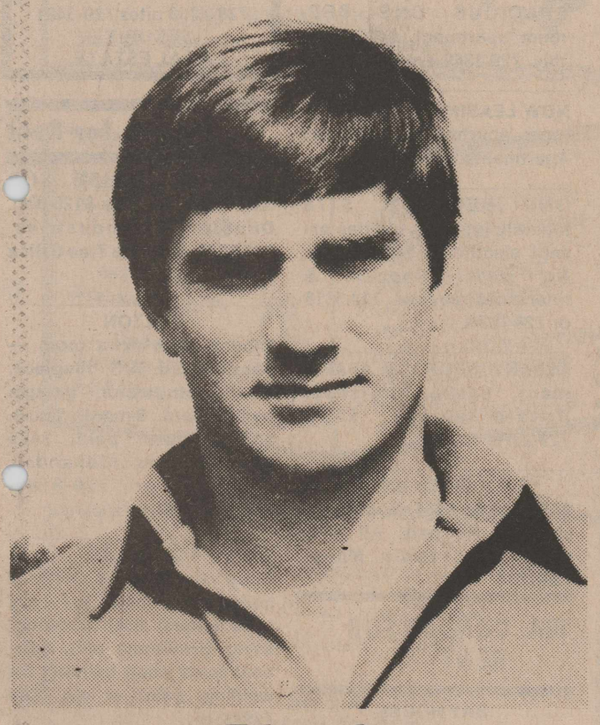

The first game of the season will be Sept. 2. Shoes and other items were issued to players this week — non-contact drills begin this Monday, Aug. 8. After Friday, Aug. 12, contact drills with pads will be held Monday through Saturday, twice a day until the first scrimmage of the year, played Friday, Aug. 19, with Ingleside.

A photo day for parents and press will be held the next day, Saturday, Aug. 20, and Schulz encourages players' families to attend.

This year's staff is augmented with four new coaches — Blake Edwards, first assistant to Schulz and defensive coordinator; Tom Carrera, varsity assistant and head junior varsity coach, as well as assistant junior varsity baseball coach; Mark Hiller, head freshmen coach in addition to his duties as head baseball coach and Mike Sandell, seventh grade football coach. These four join Schulz and coaches Bill Daws, Bob Gore, Ronnie Ormand, Mike Robbins, Tim Tate and Randy Hoyer.

The 1983 varsity football schedule begins Sept. 2 with a game in Rockport against Aransas Pass. The next game, Sept. 9, is in Port Lavaca. West Oso, there, on Sept. 16 follows. Sept. 23 is here against Refugio; Sept. 30 is against Robstown, there and Oct. 7 is here against Flour Bluff.

Oct. 14 is open, Oct. 21 is in Tuloso-Midway, Oct. 28 is here against Beeville, followed on Nov. 4 against Sinton, here; and Nov. 11 against Calallen, there.

Flotilla 79 offers boating course

The key to boating safety is keeping out of trouble rather than getting out of trouble after you get into it.

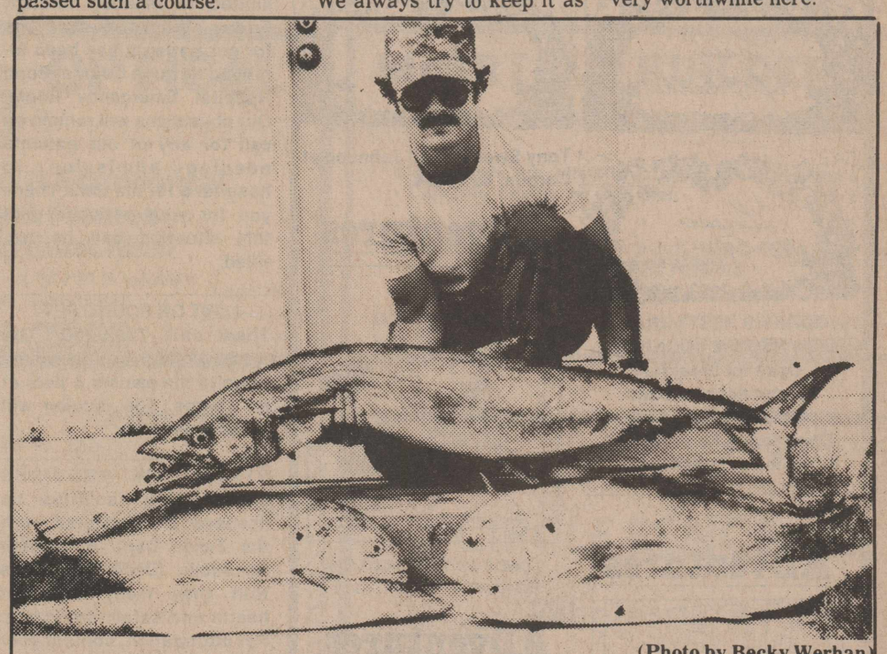

To that end, local Flotilla 79 of the United States Coast Guard Auxiliary twice annually sponsors a course in boating skills and seamanship. Tuesday, Oct. 4, is the first of 12 two-hour sessions to be held this fall in the Allied Live Oak Bank Center. The course will run through Nov. 15.

According to Coast Guard auxiliarian George Moore, "The course is especially good for new boat owners, but it's great for experienced boat owners who need to brush up on their seamanship, too." Young people are especially welcome to the sessions, which will cover subjects such as general safe boating, boaters' language, boat handling, legal requirements, rules of the road and navigation aids.

Also covered in the course are piloting, marine engines, marlinspike, sailing, weather and radiotelephone instruction. A final examination is scheduled for the end of the sessions and students passing the test will be given a Coast Guard certificate. According to Moore, many insurance firms will give a 10 percent discount on boat insurance to those who have passed such a course.

Moore encourages all area boaters to take the course, which will be held in the evenings each Tuesday. "We have a real pleasant time. We always try to keep it as entertaining as possible while still getting all the information through to the public.

"We're offering something very worthwhile here."

A 41-POUND KINGFISH, TWO 30-pound jacks and five more smaller kings in the 8 - 20 pound range highlighted Rod Spivey's catch Friday. Fishing in the gulf, out of Redfish Bay Marina on the Mr. Les were Spivey, his father, Les Spivey, and his brothers. The party brought the fish in on ribbon fish and squid heads.

Kids need help handling competition

While children's involvement in sports has the possibility of teaching many good things such as self-control and team spirit, it also can teach a child selfishness, fear and failure, says a professor of sport sociology and psychology at Texas Christian University.

Dr. Roger Rees says, "It all depends on how the process of competition is handled."

The child's coach, parents and peers all play an important part in how the experience will be translated for the child.

"The kid is looking for feedback from the significant people in the environment. The significant people are the coach and the parents. And the kid processes that information," he said. "It can be verbal; it can be just a facial gesture."

The most important thing in sports for a young child is for him or her to have an enjoyable and successful experience.

"If you define success as winning, you're in trouble because you've made it very difficult to win. The problem with defining success in a youth context as victory is that, at best, you have a 50 percent change of success. From an educational and psychological viewpoint, that doesn't make a lot of sense," said Rees.

"There is a more intrinsic enjoyment of physical activity in our society now," said Rees, a British native. "I came to American in 1970. I'm a tennis player, and I could always go out on a court in 1970 and play a game of tennis, no matter what time it was.

"Now things have changed a great deal. There's much more interest in the process of physical activity as part of the quality of life," noted Rees. "And that's very different from the idea of physical activity as a means to becoming Number One."

Second St. Charles tournament set

The second annual St. Charles Bay Marina Bay Fishing Tournament will get under way Friday, Aug. 26 with a Calcutta party, street dance and barbecue, followed by two days of tournament fishing on Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 27-28.

The tournament will have redfish and trout divisions, with prizes for first, second and third place total weight in each.

Contestants in two-man-per-boat teams will pay a $100 per boat registration fee. No airboats will be allowed and all tournament boats must leave out of and return to the St. Charles Bay Marina weigh station. Fishing times are sunrise to 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday and weigh-in time is 5-6 p.m. each day.

Friday's party will be highlighted by a special door prize for contestants — a 25-horsepower Johnson outboard motor. The Calcutta will begin at 6 p.m. and the street dance will start at 8 p.m.

Area fishing report

Copano Causeway — 729-8633 — "Pretty fair." Mostly trout, with a few reds or flounder every once in a while. Reds have been either too little or too big to keep. Day fishing is "real good" on the north side about three-fourths of a mile from the building. Will have very little live bait for the weekend but plenty of everything else.

Palm Harbor — 729-8540 — Some nice reds and trout, almost all keepers. Just a few flounder. May have live bait for the weekend but get there early.

Key Allegro Marina — 729-2761 — Pretty good this week. Solid trout out of Aransas Bay and the kings are still being brought in.

Fulton Harbor Bait — 729-8532 — Real good at night between 10 p.m. and 6 a.m. off the big pier. Sand trout, some specks. Will have plenty of dead bait and live bait early in the morning during the weekend.

Sandollar — 729-8562 — Pretty good. Lots of specks late at night on live bait. One nice flounder brought in Wednesday, caught near well.

Beach Road Bait House — 729-8614 — "Real good!" Nice flounder, all over 15 inches, brought in Tuesday off pier. Some 5-pound trout and a 16-inch redfish off pier also.

Sand Bar — 729-4046 — Been good in the late afternoon and in the morning. 21-inch red brought in Wednesday. Will have some live bait — first come, first serve — for the weekend.

Barb Toombs & Jerry Balderee

Make it "Clean & Gleam"

Clean & Gleam are what boats look like when Barb Toombs and Jerry Balderee get through with them. Both women have been in the boat cleaning business since April.

Jerry is a former surgical nurse who has also dabbled in construction. She went into the boat cleaning business because she wanted to work outside and choose her own hours.

Barb spent 11 years in the automotive industry and when Jerry suggested that they start a boat cleaning business, she really agreed.

They credit a boat captain by the name of Floyd Smith with helping to get them started. Floyd is very well-known, says Jerry, and he began recommending them to boat owners.

Clean & Gleam begins at the highest point of a boat or yacht and uses extra-gentle soaps to clean the exterior. Extra care is taken with chrome, and waxing is Barb's and Jerry's specialty. Teak is the most difficult they say, since its care involves cleaning, dressing, sealing and finally oiling.

Jerry emphasizes that the wood must dry completely between steps. In addition, they will clean the inside of a vessel as well.

"It's fun, but it's hard work," says Barb. They emphasize that the key thing is drying everything to prevent water spots.

Clean & Gleam is available to clean boats and yachts Monday through Friday, beginning at 8 a.m. Since Barb and Jerry are gone all day long, interested persons need to call before 7 a.m. or after 9 p.m. Jerry's phone number is 729-5612 and Barb's phone number is 729-4131.

REAL ESTATE FACTS

By Meceal Casterline,
President of the Rockport
Area Board of REALTORS®

The Rockport Area Board of REALTORS® responds to questions on two-income families and first-time homebuying.

Q. My wife and I both work full-time and want to buy our first home. But with high interest rates and the tight credit conditions, isn't it true that first-time buyers can no longer afford a home in today's market?

A. No. A reasonably-priced home is not necessarily out of the financial reach of a young working couple. Of course the problem of affordability due to relatively high interest rates and down payment requirements does affect first-time buyers more than repeat buyers who have accumulated equity in their previous homes. Over the past ten months, however, housing affordability has improved significantly.

Since May 1982, the gap between the actual median family income and the income necessary to qualify to purchase the median-priced resale home has narrowed dramatically. The NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS® ' Housing Affordability Index for March showed the U.S. family earning the median income of $24,150 had 81.8 percent of the income needed to qualify for a median-priced home, which was $69,300. In addition, lower interest rates combined with relatively stable home prices reduced the median monthly principal and interest payments another $6 to $615. That's a cumulative decrease of $119 since May 1982. All this translates to improved housing affordability for everyone - especially first-time buyers.

Q. What percentage of homes are purchased by two income families?

A. Statistics compiled by the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS® show nearly one-half of homes sold are bought by two income families. Many young couples have been able to achieve their goal of homeownership by relying on two incomes. In fact, a recent nationwide study by the National Science Foundation found that the percentage of working couples in their lates 20s who owned their homes by 1980 was 60.9 percent - a 6.5 percent increase from 1974. The study said this upward trend is expected to intensify in the coming decade as more women enter the workforce.

Q. Although we are anxious to buy now, shouldn't we wait for interest rates to drop further?

A. No. According to the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS® ' April ''Outlook for Housing and the Economy,'' interest rates are expected to fall only slightly during the second half of this year. Furthermore, as the economic recovery accelerates and the federal deficit continues to grow, interest rates are likely to stay at high levels. In addition, the current supply of homes available is excellent. Once the demand for homes catches up with the supply, home prices will go up. Playing the waiting game can be very risky - now is a good time to buy your first home.

If you have any questions relating to real estate send them to the Rockport Area Board of REALTORS® at P.O. Box 636. Questions of general interest will be answered in future columns. However, the Rockport Area Board of REALTORS® cannot guarantee a response to all questions.

POINTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

SHINGLE WARRANTIES: THEY'RE NOT ALL THE SAME

Differences can be interesting...but when you're a homeowner buying fiber glass shingles for your roof, the difference in the warranties on those shingles really warrants your interest.

A recent survey of fiber glass shingle warranties conducted by Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. revealed some startling differences in the liabilities that six leading shingle manufacturers assume under a 20-year warranty.

The best warranty seems to be one that replaces shingles at current cost.

''Even though the warranties are of equal duration,'' said Fred Franklin, marketing manager for Owens-Corning's Residential Roofing Operating Division, ''various exceptions and stipulations in the warranty agreements limit the manufacturer's responsibility for replacing damaged shingles. And because warranties are dynamic agreements, with liability depending upon the age of the roof, it is extremely important for homeowners to check with the manufacturer, contractor or roofing supply dealer on the warranty's limitations before making a purchase.''

Pro-rating: The Essential Ingredient

All manufacturers prorate their warranties, deducting part of the cost of shingles for each month the shingles are actually in service. However, the best warranty is the one that replaces shingles at current cost, and protects the homeowner against any future increase in the price of labor and materials. Owens-Corning, for example, offers a warranty which is prorated according to replacement costs, including both labor and materials. At the other extreme, some shingles manufacturers cover replacement based on original cost or at a predetermined flat rate that is reduced every month for the length of the warranty period.

Thus, if shingles were to fail fifteen years into the warranty, the manufacturer's liability would not cover the cost of replacement at current prices. A predetermined flat rate warranty or one based on original cost could leave the homeowner responsible for a much larger portion of the replacement cost. None of the manufacturer's warranties covers flashing or metalwork, damage from acts of God, application failure or shading differences.

This sort of warranty information can be as useful to the builder or contractor as it can to the homeowner himself. For the seller with the best warranty can show the prospective homebuyer or homeowner the advantages of that document in dollars and cents.

Department of Agriculture to reopen cotton bidding

By Congressman BILL PATMAN

Congressman Bill Patman welcomed word Monday, Aug. 1, that the USDA will reopen bidding for cotton to meet the government's commitment to farmers under the payment-in-kind program for 1983.

''We will take bids for at least two weeks, with no limit on it (the bid price),'' Roy Cozart, assistant deputy administrator for the USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), told Patman's office.

Cozart said the USDA was ''working very feverishly'' to issue its announcement today or by Tuesday morning at the latest.

The reason for reopening the bidding is that the USDA estimates it is 1.1 to 1.3 million bales short of satisfying its commitments to farmers under the 1983 PIK program. USDA announced June 17 that it would require farmers to use their 1983 cotton crop to make up the shortage that developed when not enough old-crop cotton was offered to USDA in an earlier 7 percent bid program.

Agriculture Secretary John R. Block compounded the problem by announcing in a recent letter to House Agriculture Committee Chairman Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, that the cotton bid price would be capped at 59 cents a pound — about 10 cents less than the maximum they might expect without a cap.

Many South Texas farmers are caught in the bind that they already have contracted their 1983 crop to buyers. Their PIK agreement with the USDA would require them to break those contracts to fulfill USDA needs.

Whether the reopening of bids will solve the problem is uncertain.

''There's plenty of cotton out there, but how much will be available for bid — that's the $64,000 question. A lot of it has already been contracted,'' Cozart said.

Should USDA still come up short, farmers would have to break those early contracts, Cozart said. He said all farmers will be treated fairly and equitably, if this happens — ''whether they're in Texas, California or anywhere else.''

USDA decided to reopen bidding after receiving protests from farm organizations and many members of Congress. Patman and other Texas congressmen joined Sen. Lloyd Bentsen in a detailed letter of protest last week urging the reopening.

''We must solve the problems rising out of the PIK program, which the administration put together too hastily,'' Patman said.

Barbecue honors Patman

Citizens of seven area counties will join forces in Brenham on Thursday, Aug. 11, to express their appreciation to Congressman Bill Patman, D-Ganado. Patman has represented the 14th district in the U.S. House of Representatives since 1980, having been reelected by a landslide margin in 1982.

The event — a barbecue in Firemen's Park starting at 6:30 p.m. — is being planned and organized by county and city officials from the northeastern area of the 22-county, 17,000 square mile district. It is expected to include broad-based participation from Austin, Burleson, Colorado, Fayette, Lee, Waller and Washington counties.

A steering committee composed of all the county judges in the seven-county area has issued the following statement:
do.''

''Congressman Patman has been extremely responsive to our local concerns and needs. He has stayed in close touch with folks at the grassroots level here. He has visited us often. He sends us regular reports of what's going on in Washington that affects our interest. And, certainly, he has helped the local officials with our problems whenever we've called on him. We appreciate that very much. We thought it was time to let him know we do.

''Judging from the response so far, we believe the Congressman can expect a large and enthusiastic turnout.''

Tickets to the event are priced at $5 a person.

Milton Gaskamp of Brenham, a Washington County spokesperson for the event, said ''We realize that Congressman Patman has many friends from outside the sponsoring area who might like to attend, and, certainly, we welcome their participation.''

Tickets may be obtained by writing to ''Patman Appreciation Party'' c/o Milton Gaskamp, 508 West 6th Street, Brenham, Texas 77833 or by calling 409/836-2707 or 512/771-3303.

I felt I had to do something for my community

By PAT BLAIR
Staff writer

"I felt I needed to do something for my community and the way to do it was to become informed then help inform others."

That, says Mollie Freeborn, is one reason she became involved in the Democratic Party in Aransas County. Another reason is her strong belief in the two-party system of government, "and if you're going to have two parties, somebody needs to be involved. You need a nucleus of people to keep the party going — so I became a Democratic Party activist."

Mollie has attended state and county conventions, has held office in the State Democratic Women's organization, has done "everything from door-knocking to holding office" — including serving as president of the Aransas County Democratic Women's Club for the past four years.

"I'm coming to the end of my term in that," she said during a recent interview at her home in Key Allegro North. "I'm planning to step down."

Mollie was born in Wharton County and lived there the first 10 years of her life. "I lived in and out of Frio County 'til I was married," she says, "and I lived briefly in a godforsaken place near Laredo called Miranda City." It was in Miranda City that she graduated from high school, in 1942, then she moved on to Frio County, to a little town called Dilly . . .

She taught school there and during the summer attended the University of Texas from which she received a degree in business administration in 1949. But her first job, before she got her degree, was teaching a pre-primer class in English to Mexican-American children in Dilly.

"In those days," she recalled, "the Latin American children went to a different school. I started work at mid-term in an old, old, old wood building — the only heat was from a mesquite-burning stove. The pipe was held up by baling wire, and the teacher had to do her own janitorial work."

She taught in various grades during those years, then after she got her degree from UT, she returned to Dilly and a job teaching business at the high school.

That was the job she was holding the year Marshall Freeborn came to Dilly looking for a friend of his. By chance, the friend was at Mollie's house that day, so Marshall went there . . .

"We had our first date on New Year's Eve and were married the following July," Mollie remembers.

Mollie describes herself and her husband as "very much Texas people." Mollie's father's family has lived in Texas for several generations and her mother's family has roots in central Texas going back to the 1830s. Marshall's grandfather established a ranch in Jim Wells County a little more than 100 years ago.

The Freeborns have roots, too, in Rockport, Mollie said. Marshall's parents started coming to Rockport with their parents as children back in the 1880s and in 1939, they began operating the Forest Park Cottages on Fulton Beach Road. It was these roots that eventually brought Mollie and Marshall "home" to Rockport.

Following their marriage, Mollie said, she and Marshall "took turns getting more education" at Texas A&I College in Kingsville. Marshall got his bachelor's degree and Mollie did all the work leading to a master's degree except writing the thesis. Both of them taught school in the southwest Texas area, Mathis, Bishop, George West . . .

"Marshall was helping his father on the family ranch" during this time, Mollie recalled, and the area was hit by the drouth years of the early 1950s. "Marshall and I were sort of the rebels in the family," she says: "We decided to move to East Texas."

They bought a farm in Nacogdoches and went into the cattle business there in 1954. After some time raising cattle, they went into the broiler business then turned to raising laying hens. Their children, a son who now is at the Jim Wells ranch and a daughter who recently moved from Rockport to Austin, were born during those years in East Texas. (The Freeborns' family now includes a grandchild, she added.)

She and Marshall spent 10 years in East Texas, "then we got rather disenchanted with trying to make a living there." In 1964, lured by the family ties with the area, the Freeborns packed up and moved to Rockport.

"Marshall taught school here five, six years, and I was home raising the children," she says. "That's when I first got into community involvement."

She started with membership in the Fulton PTA, holding "a number of offices" in that organization. After the PTA broke up, Mollie said, "I more or less stayed at home — I didn't do much for a number of years."

She did, however, become involved with the American Cancer Society, helping with fundraising drives for the ACS Aransas County unit.

Rockport attorney Lola L. Bonner had attended Kingsville A&I about the same time as Mollie and Marshall, and "somewhere around 1975," Mollie remembers, "I was in her office one day. We got into a discussion on politics. My father was a dyed-in-the-wool Democrat, and Lola got me to join the local Democratic Women's Club.

"From there on, I put my toes very carefully into the water, and before I knew it, I was in pretty deep."

Mollie found politics "a fascinating world — but I realized how little I knew about the election process. I felt that people needed to be better informed and I became determined to learn myself.

"I packed my suitcase one day and went to a University of Texas symposium." There, meeting people like Sen. John Tower, Lady Bird Johnson, Liz Carpenter, senators, representatives, members of the Washington press corps, Mollie became "intrigued with the whole political process — and very concerned about this idea of people people informed about what's going on in their world."

The Democratic party and the Aransas County unit of the ACS are Mollie's "primary involvements" but she has other interests as well. "Writing is my hobby — I dabble at songwriting, poetry — all for my own pleasure. And I'm an insatiable reader."

After she finishes her current term as Democratic Women's Club president, she would like to "take my car and camera and hit the byroads and talk to people and write." But even then, she figures, she'll still be involved in politics.

"I'll never quit being in politics."

Traffic accidents lead EMS calls for month of July

Traffic accidents led the reasons for calls to Aransas County's Emergency Medical Service (EMS) this past month, according to a report from Paramedic Director Bill Aston this week.

Auto accidents accounted for 26 calls to the EMS during July, motorcycle accidents accounted for another four calls and one call was to the scene of an auto-pedestrian accident.

Heart attacks accounted for 16 calls during the month, and another four were to aid victims of strokes. Nine calls were the result of industrial accidents and 12 were for recreational accidents. Two drowning calls were recorded.

Other reasons for calls during the month included falls, five; assaults, three; internal bleeding, six; childbirth/obstetrics, two; diabetic complications, one; respiratory distress, one; drug overdose, one; drunk calls, one; and poisoning, one.

Fourteen of the calls were listed as "miscellaneous" and one false alarm was reported.

EMS personnel used the Life Pak 32 times during the month, gave IVs to 22 patients and drugs to seven. One patient was intubated.

Fifty-two calls originated in Rockport, five in Fulton, 51 elsewhere in the county and three out of the county. Two EMS units were on the same scene 19 times during the month and all three units were on the same scene on three occasions.

Seventy-nine patients were transported, with 41 taken to Coastal Bend Hospital in Aransas Pass, 14 to Spohn Hospital and nine to Memorial Medical Center in Corpus Christi and five to Driscoll Children's Hospital in Corpus Christi.

Six were taken to Enterprise Medical Clinic in Rockport where they were either treated and released or stablized before being taken on to a hospital. Four patients were transported to other hospitals.

The EMS unit was cancelled enroute to a call four times during the month, the patient refused service on seven occasions and was gone on arrival on two calls. Patients were dead at the scene in three of the calls.

Through the end of July, the EMS had received 655 calls and logged a total of 32,617 miles for this year.

"THE PRISONER OF ZENDA" (1979) Peter Sellers, Elke Sommer, Lionel Jeffries. When the old king of Ruritania dies, a loyal general persuades a London cabby named Syd, who is a lookalike for Prince Rudolph, the rightful heir to the throne, to be a decoy in the event that Rudolph's half-brother, tries to usurp the crown; but when Rudolph is kidnapped by Michael, Syd must be crowned in Rudolph's place.

TUESDAY

"A MATTER OF LIFE AND DEATH" (1981) Linda Lavin, Tyne Daly, Salome Jens, Gail Strickland. Based on a true story of a nurse who is dedicated to treating the terminally ill patients at an urban hospital in Pennsylvania with honesty and respect, helping them to take control over what is left of their lives. Her unconventional views and treatments provoke tough opposition from the hospital staff and even from some members of the patients' families.

Bono's Astro-Vue

© By Lillian Bono

Week of August 7-13

ARIES

(March 21-April 20) Pay attention to details this week otherwise there's a possibility that mistakes will be made regarding records and bank accounts.

TAURUS

(April 21-May 21) Far-reaching repercussions await you if you aren't careful about your actions. Be discreet in every area of life but especially when around those who envy you.

GEMINI

(May 22-June 21) Answer correspondence and do not let household chores pile up. You will find yourself neglecting important outside matters while doing what should have been taken care of on a daily basis.

CANCER

(June 22-July 23) A friend in need is a friend indeed and you shall learn the meaning of this famous saying as the week progresses. Confide in one who has assisted you in the past.

LEO

(July 24-Aug. 23) The city lights may have great appeal for you and perhaps suburbia has become totally boring. Try to perk up your spirits by reading.

VIRGO

(Aug. 24-Sept. 23) You will want to purchase a costly but very attractive item for you or your home. It will probably bring good luck so enjoy it in silence.

LIBRA

(Sept. 24-Oct. 23) Some will engage in extreme forms of study at this time, areas that could lead to better paying positions within and outside of their present area of employment, much to their benefits.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A long-distance telephone call will bother you more than it should. Try to reason with yourself and don't get alarmed by what you hear.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Organize your lifestyle if you wish to meet the person of your dreams under favorable conditions. Confusion could scare off your loved one.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22-Jan. 20) You may want to take up cooking or gardening as your domestic instincts are being motivated by unusual aspects. This is a good time in which to prepare yourself for a feast of happiness.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 21-Feb. 19) The love triangle you may have been involved in could suddenly become "null and void" leaving you wondering what happened to bring your fantasy to an abrupt end.

PISCES

(Feb. 20-March 20) A lingering romance will not go any further than you want it to. Make up your mind and take a stand if you wish to experiment with another's heart and feelings.

Oenophile's Notebook

* The first Del Mar Fair competition offered medals to 88 California wines this year. Top award in Best of Varietal categories went to Buena Vista Winery 1979 Special Selection Sonoma Valley-Carneros for Cabernet Sauvignon, distinguished among 112 entries, and Preston Vineyards 1982 Cuvee de Fume Dry Creek Valley, Estate Bottled for Sauvignon Blanc. In the category of "Popular" (under $7) Best of Varietals, River Oaks Vineyards 1979 took the Gold Medal for Cabernet, while Almaden Vineyards 1980 Monterey won the Gold in the under-$5 Sauvignon Blanc judging.

* California's 131-year-old winery, Almaden, offers eighteen different wines in the popular jug containers, giving consumers lots of options in "big-bottle" wine-buying. The average cost of the 1.5-liter jugs is never more than $5, and vintages such as 1981 Chenin Blanc and 1980 Zinfandel are available in the Almaden jugs. And, the economy-sized bottlings don't always mean economical quality: Alamaden's Monterey Burgundy has won Gold Medals at the Los Angeles County Fair for two years in a row.

* If you'd like a guide to touring the great Italian vineyards by tasting premium Italian wines, write for a free booklet, "Tour the Great Italian Vineyards By-the-Glass." Address your request to Paterno Imports, Ltd., 2701 South Western Avenue, Chicago, Illinois 60608.

* Warm weather inspires a taste for chilled beverages, but that doesn't mean giving up all red wines. French Beaujolais is a light, fruity and dry red that benefits from light chilling, best accomplished by placing bottles in a filled ice bucket for about an hour before drinking.

HONOR ROLLS: Michael Tylo (Quint "Guiding Light") no sooner finished his standing-room-only run in "The Importance of Being Earnest" in Pennsylvania than he learned he'd been named most popular actor in a magazine's readership poll ... Cali Timmins is the lovely lady from Canada who won the honor of playing the role of Maggie Shelby, an exciting new character on the ever-more-exciting "Ryan's Hope." She was chosen by the delighted producers from a field of 400 actresses who auditioned for the part.

WEDLOCK, LOCK-UPS & KEYES: The actor's name is Daniel Keyes and on "Another World" when they say, "here comes the judge," they mean Danny. He played the judge who sentenced hapless Rachel (Victoria Wyndham) to jail a few years ago. Some weeks back, he was the judge who united Rachel and Mac (Douglass Watson) and Blaine and Sandy (Laura Malone and Christopher Rich) in matrimony.

CHRISTOPHER RICH

Kathleen Cullen (Amanda, "Guiding Light") may be leaving the soap, but her fans won't be leaving her. Reaction to the news that Kathleen is exiting the series may have wiped out the U.S. postal service deficit. But, let's reassure all those who wrote that Kathleen has lots of projects planned and says that although working on "GL" was one of the happiest periods of her life, and that although she'll always be close to those with whom she worked, sometimes it really is time to move on.

Teri Keane (Rose, "Loving") says of her TV character: "She's warm, earthy, smart, caring, strong and she has a great sense of humor. I like her." Teri was on radio soaps as a teenager. She played Chi Chi on "Life Can Be Beautiful" and the witchy (no one ever said "bitchy" in those days) Hope on "Big Sister." TV soap fans remember her brilliant characterizations in "Edge Of Night," "Search For Tomorrow," "As The World Turns," "One Life To Live" and other shows.

WAVING THE FANS' FARE: According to you, you prefer to see the following things happen: On "General Hospital" you want Holly and Scorpio (Emma Samms and Tristan Rogers) to stay married; you also want Vicki and Clint (Erica Slezak and Clint Ritchie) to remain wed on "One Life To Live." On "Search For Tomorrow" you want Warren (Michael Corbett) to tell Wendy (Lisa Peluso) to stay away from him ... You also want a fan club for Catherine Mary Stewart (Kayla, "Days"). A new one has been formed. Write to Catherine c/o NBC, 3000 W. Alameda Blvd., Burbank, CA 91523 and ask her about it.

Rumors are rampant that a major soap star is mulling an offer to return to a series on another network on which she hit the peak of her popularity years ago.

MEDICINE CHEST

Your Professional:
Troy True, Reg. Pharmacist

I need information on cough medicines which do not raise the blood pressure or increase the heart rate. — Mrs. C.D.

There are a few. If the cough medicine does NOT contain an antihistamine or a decongestant, chances are it's safe. For example: Terpin Hydrate Elixir, Robitussin (plain, A.C. or D.M.) or Cheracol and Cheracol D, do not contain these chemicals. These formulas also indicate they are low in salt — an extra plus for you.

What is the difference between natural foods which are sold in health stores and regular foods? — M.M.

Natural foods are completely free of additives, preservatives, emulsifiers and coloring agents. Moreover, they have never been subjected to insecticide sprays. Examples of health foods are unbleached flour, unpolished rice, raw sugar, fertile eggs and raw certified milk.

How important is a wetting solution for contact lenses? — B.M.

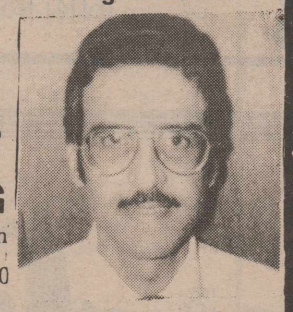

If it's comfort you want, you should use the wetting solution. This solution makes the lenses compatible with lacrimal fluid (tears). It cushions and lubricates between the inner surface of the eyelid, and between the cornea and lens surface.

What is a "fruit cocktail"? — C.H.

"Fruit cocktail" means a mixture of various tablets and capsules in one bowl. The bowl is passed around a group of drug abusers and each swallows a handful.

Dear Debbie

Letters to DEBORAH WHITE

DEAR DEBBIE:

I am 17 years old and I have a steady boyfriend. We've been together for three years and every time we go out together, I always have to use my money. My boyfriend hasn't been able to find a job and he has to turn to his parents for spending money. They always give him enough money for him, but they never give him money for me. They say they like me, but sometimes they say bad things about me.

For months, I have asked my boyfriend to say something to them, but when he does, they ignore him. I was brought up old-fashioned — to be polite and sweet, but I have just had enough embarrassment. It feels awful to go on a date and pay my own way all the time.

What should I do? I don't like the way they treat me, and if I say anything to them, I'm afraid they will not let us see each other again. Please help!

GOING CRAZY

DEAR GOING CRAZY:

I'm afraid what you have here is a case of misplaced blame. You are obviously holding your boyfriend's parents responsible for the fact that he doesn't have enough money to take you out. The fact is that they are not responsible. I find it awfully difficult to believe that your boyfriend hasn't been able to find some kind of job in three years. While unemployment is indeed up, I would think three years would be enough time to find a job, even a part-time job for students.

Perhaps his parents also feel this way. It is their duty as parents to make sure he is not deprived. On the other hand, any "fringe" benefits, such as date money, should be earned by him.

If you feel that strongly about always footing the bill, just don't go out until he finds a job. He might get the point then.

DEAR DEBBIE:

I am writing this letter to you at 3 a.m. I have been up all night, just pacing and thinking about what has just happened in my marriage. I am a 54-year-old executive. I am successful and until today, was happily married with three beautiful children. However, I came home from work early today to find my wife "entertaining" another man. To say that I am shocked and devastated is not even scratching the surface. My life is ruined. She was my only love and the reason for my being. How could she do this to me? I never even knew she was the least bit unhappy.

I ordered her out of the house, but she won't go. She's crying, even now, begging me to forgive her. I can't. Right now, I just feel like killing her and then doing myself in next. Please, help me sort this out.

THE FOOL

DEAR FOOL:

The fact that you could even write this letter at such a time points out that you do want to understand and perhaps forgive your wife. I salute you and admire that greatly.

You both are in need of marital counseling. Seek this help immediately. There, you will both be able to get to the bottom of things. Perhaps, your wife was unable to express herself to you about her feelings. A counselor will be able to bring that out. Counseling can also help you come to terms with all your negative feelings. None of this will be easy. It's going to be extremely painful to both of you. However, if I've read between the lines correctly, you feel your marriage is worth saving. Good luck.

Searching for Spock

By Kate Woods

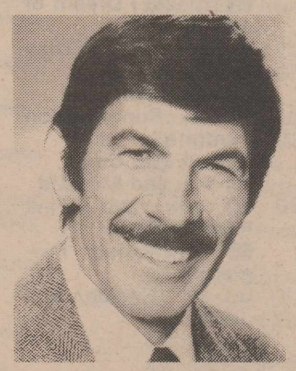

When are they going to make "The Search for Spock"? When will it be released? — W.W.

"Star Trek III, the Search for Spock," as it's officially known, goes before the cameras Aug. 15, with an eye toward a summer '84 release. In case you haven't heard, Leonard Nimoy, the Vulcan himself, will be directing this one.

MISSION POSSIBLE — Can you tell me the last names of all the "Misson: Impossible" characters? Jim Phelps is the only one I ever remembered. — D.M.K.

Steven Hill (1966-67) played Daniel Briggs, Barbara Bain and hubby Martin Landau (1966-69) were Cinnamon Carter and Rollin Hand, Greg Morris was Barney Collier, Peter Lupus was Willie Amitage, and among the late arrivals, Leonard Nimoy played Paris (sans a last name), Lesley Ann Warren was Dana Lambert and Lynda Day George was another one-named agent, Casey.

WHAT WESTERN WAS THAT? — What was the name of the Western series that Doug McClure and William Shatner starred in together about 10 years ago? — P.M.

Leonard Nimoy

"The Barbary Coast" was ABC's answer to "The Wild, Wild West," with Shatner doing the disguise bit made popular by Ross Martin. The series ran during the 1975-'76 season.

ROSEMARY'S HUBBY — Please refresh my memory. Who played the husband in "Rosemary's Baby"? — N.P.

John Cassavetes played the spouse who fell into bad company in Roman Polanski's 1968 horror thriller.

STAYING ALIVE, from Paramount Pictures. Directed by Sylvester Stallone, screenplay by Sylvester Stallone and Norman Wexler. Starring John Travolta, Cynthia Rhodes, Finola Hughes. Rated 'PG' ★ ★ ★

By J.T. YURKO

Of the many celebrated characters, both fictional and non-fictional, to have crossed the Brooklyn Bridge, few are more famous than "Saturday Night Fever's" Tony Manero. With wings on his feet and comb in hair, John Travolta played the Italian stallion who realized that being the best in Brooklyn is little more than the minor leagues when compared to Manhattan.

Off he goes, then, at the end of "SNF" to see if that fever can be sustained all week or to see whether he's just a palooka of the dance world.

This mixed metaphor of dance and boxing is appropriate as "Staying Alive," the sequel to "Saturday Night Fever," was scripted and directed by Sylvester Stallone, a.k.a. "Rocky." Having "choreographed" the boxing matches in three fight films, shooting genuine dancers seemed like a natural progression.

Unfortunately what Stallone knows about Broadway and dancing wouldn't fill a pointed shoe. Any resemblance to real theater is purely coincidental.

Travolta makes it to a Broadway show, a kind of rock version of Dante's "Inferno." It is intended as a dance display of the depths of hell, but ends up as the seventh level of silliness and sadism.

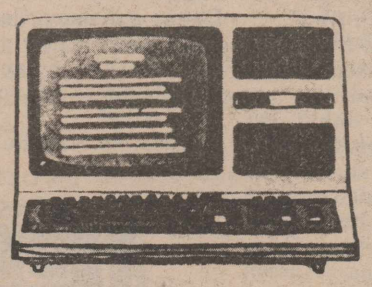

There's no question that Travolta moves well, but under Stallone's direction the dance sequences are as fake as the fights in the "Rocky" films.

Still, there is Travolta as Manero, and for many filmgoers that will be enough. As he walks the streets of Manhattan he is the ultimate urban cowboy, poised and flexed as if ready to draw from the hip, but his hips are already getting the message across. In his dancing clothes he is all sinew and sweat, smile and swagger.

Much of the music sounds the same, and were it not for a reprise of the original "Staying Alive" at the close of the film you might go away humming the score from "Flashdance." Travolta triumphs in Times Square, but whether he is good enough to carry the film will be left to the viewers to decide.

Before & after..... by Seli Groves

All My Children: Palmer called Nina and Steve back from their vacations to discuss a problem with Lars' company. Phoebe planned a ball as a way of regaining her position as Pine Valley's social leader. A newcomer replaced Tad in the modeling agency and he immediately fell for Jenny. Coming: Nina sees a "new" side to Steve that had eluded her before.

Another Life: Amber learned she was pregnant and said she wanted an abortion. Lori had a son. Webster told Peter he'd help him by pressuring Dan to leave Vicki alone. Coming: Lionel gives Monk a difficult decision to make.

Another World: Cleared of Alma's murder, Cecile vowed to get even with all of her "enemies" in Bay City. An unexpected guest turned up at the double wedding of Rachel and Mac and Blaine and Sandy. Julia dumped Felicia in the pool after being accused of betraying her. Coming: Stacey's life continues to be in danger as she hovers close to Mark.

As The World Turns: Ariel realized she could do something through Burke that would eventually affect James. Barbara felt uncomfortable about Nels' suggestion. Miranda came back to a surprise. Coming: Miranda senses she may have a new problem with Franny.

Capitol: Wally continued to concentrate on his own needs but promised Jordy he'd help when he could. Fran thought she might have to have a closer talk with Amy after all. Coming: Paula decides to take Myrna's advice again.

Days Of Our Lives: Eugene left town in an effort to track down Trista's family. Meanwhile, Bo and Kayla also searched for Trista, fearing she was in danger. At the same time, Trista was unaware that Alex had beaten her to the gun's hiding place. Coming: Eugene's whereabouts become a matter of concern.

Edge Of Night: Malcolm kidnapped Jody and Preacher. Chris recognized Barry. As she raced toward the stage of the Whitney Theater, Barry drew a gun and fired at her. He then used Mitzi as his shield in an attempt to escape. Coming: Nancy agrees to tell Mike more about her work with Gavin's play.

General Hospital: Grant was shocked at his new orders. Monica told Rick he has a tumor around his heart. Heather rebuffed Scotty and asked to see Jimmy Lee again. Coming: Luke begins to wonder about Natalie's real motives. Jackie sees Ian about Luke's candidacy.

Guiding Light: Trish blew up at Mindy's answers to her questions. Alan became concerned about Amanda's concern over the baby. He felt she was beinning to think of it as more her own son than what the child really was — her little brother. Coming: Bert gives Hope some much needed advice, but is it in time?

Loving: Merrill confounded and confused Roger who demanded an explanation but didn't get one. Noreen tried to confide her newest fears to Rose, but decided against it. Garth hid his newest personal problem. Coming: Mike and Noreen agree to talk things over, but Mike has set a limit on what he's prepared to tell.

One Life To Live: Dorian refused to admit that she still felt a strong attraction for David Reynolds. Clint decided to unlock the mystery of Gizelle.

Ryan's Hope: Rae, wounded by Neil's knife attack, was rushed to emergency. Bill and Siobhan warmed up to each other at Leigh's party. A jealous Una prepared to shoot Maeve when Neil died of a heart attack. Frank was hit instead. Coming: Charlotte's actions change things for Frank.

Search For Tomorrow: Joanne had been kidnapped by Warren's business associate who is haunted by fears their activities will be discovered. Travis and Liza stepped into a sabotaged car. Warren told Suzi he shared nothing more than a casual kiss with Wendy, but she refused to believe him. Coming: The new teenagers in town give Stu some reasons for concern.

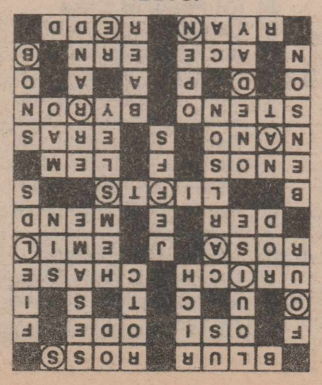

Young & The Restless: Jack decided he could approach Jill with a new suggestion and not risk being rejected before being heard. Gina decided she didn't need any more suggestions, much to Danny's dismay. Coming: Julia finds a new excuse to see Victor and he misinterprets her actions, or does he?
