Serbs close in on Muslim 'safe areas;' U.N. works to avert more NATO strikes

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (NYT) — Defying NATO and United Nations warnings, Serbian nationalist forces renewed their offensive against the Muslim enclave of Gorazde on Friday, and were reported to be on the verge of overrunning the town.

The Serbian forces seized key points overlooking the riverfront town, and their commanders called on the Bosnian army defenders to surrender. A report by Serbia's official news agency said the Bosnian Serb army had offered to protect the estimated 65,000 soldiers and civilians, most of them Muslims, inside the enclave.

Gorazde was one of six areas designated by the United Nations Security Council last year as "safe areas" immune from attack.

Official: Pilots tried to check 'friend or foe'

■ Investigation into downed U.S. helicopters begins.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The U.S. fighter pilots who mistakenly shot down two U.S. helicopters in Iraq used an electronic signaling system to check whether the choppers were friend or foe, but got "no friendly response," officials said Friday.

That disclosure did not necessarily exonerate the pilots of responsibility for the tragedy, in which all 26 men and women aboard the choppers were killed. Defense Secretary William Perry pledged to discipline anyone found to be negligent; he said it could take weeks to determine exactly what happened.

Perry said all U.S. and allied fighter patrols of the "no-fly" zone in northern Iraq — established three years ago to protect Kurds from attacks by Iraqi government forces — were suspended Friday to review safety procedures.

AWACS radar control planes continued to fly, keeping a lookout for possible Iraqi violators of the zone, officials said. They could call on allied fighters in the area in the event they spotted suspicious flights, the officials said.

Perry said F-15 patrol flights were scheduled to resume today.

Year-round schools

Some think schedule is educational breakthrough, others say it's bad idea

By Elaine Louie
N.Y. Times News Service

As summer approaches, schoolchildren start to get restless; for most of them the school year is about to end. Their parents, on the other hand, start to worry. They fill out applications for summer camp, figure out vacations and wonder just how well their children will retain what they've learned during the long break.

For some children, though, the three-month summer vacation doesn't exist. They attend year-round schools, such as the private Beacon Schools in Oakland, Calif., where the 370 students have one of the nation's longest programs, attending classes 35 to 60 days a year more than the normal 180.

Such a schedule "cuts down on summer learning loss," said Charles Ballinger, executive director of the National Association for Year-Round Education, a nonprofit group based in San Diego, Calif.

Though year-round schools have gained their widest acceptance in more recent years, agreement with Ballinger's assertion goes back at least to 1904, when the community of Bluffton, Ind., opened the first one.

"A superintendent of schools there," Ballinger said, "felt that children needed more education." By the 1930s, he added, there were about 20 such schools in the nation. Some were designed to help immigrant children speed up their learning to speak English, but by the beginning of World War II interest in them began to flag. It did not pick up again until the late '60s.

Study: Outlook plays part in heart disease survival

By Daniel Q. Haney
Associated Press

BOSTON — A healthy outlook helps heal the heart, scientists say in a major study that found pessimism can be a killer.

The study released Friday identified optimism as a powerful predictor of who will live and who will die after the diagnosis of heart disease. It is the latest in a series of recent reports showing that people's emotions and friendships play a critical role in recovery.

"Optimism is a good thing," Dr. Daniel Mark said. "When people give up and feel they are not going to make it, it's usually a self-fulfilling prophesy."

Mark, a heart specialist at Duke University, based his findings on a follow-up on 1,719 men and

Mayor pushes child-abuse awareness at conference

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel
Staff Writer

Every day between two to eight Midland County children are abused or neglected.

That is just one of the startling statistics cited during a local press conference to promote child-abuse prevention.

As part of a local effort, Midland Mayor J.D. Faircloth proclaimed April 30 as blue ribbon day during a press conference at the Centers for Children and Families.

Blue ribbon day is an awareness campaign encouraging local citizens to wear a blue ribbon and join child-abuse prevention efforts.

The blue ribbon campaign was started in spring 1989 by a Virginia woman who tied a blue ribbon on the antennae of her van to increase awareness of

Arab rockets fall on northern Israel; ex-generals seek peace

JERUSALEM (AP) — Northern border towns went on alert and residents sought refuge in bomb shelters Friday after Katyusha rockets fired from Lebanon landed in Israel, breaking windows but causing no casualties.

Three barrages hit the northeastern tip of Israel before dawn and a fourth barrage landed in the part of southern Lebanon controlled by Israel, the army said.

The army warned it would take action to stop the Iranian-backed Hezbollah guerrillas blamed for the attacks. But the commander in charge of the Lebanese front, Maj. Gen. Yitzhak Mordechai, said the army would not let the situation escalate.

The same area was the site of attacks and counterattacks in northern Israel and southern Lebanon in July that killed two Israelis and 140 Lebanese. The United States and Syria brokered a cease-fire to end that cycle of attacks.

In Tel Aviv, 32 retired generals demonstrated on a street corner in favor of the government's peace talks, drawing both honks of support and curses of disdain from passersby.

In Lebanon, the United States stepped up diplomatic pressure to try to stop the hostilities from hurting the Mideast peace process.

More than 100 nations OK world trade deal

MARRAKESH, Morocco (AP) — More than 100 nations ended seven years of bargaining and arguing Friday by adopting a 26,000-page agreement that reforms international trade and could mean a $200 billion boost to the world economy.

Thunderous applause erupted as Foreign Minister Sergio Abreu Bonilla of Uruguay banged the gavel to signify approval of the "Uruguay Round" accords, which were reached in Geneva in December.

"Ministers salute the historic achievement ... which they believe will strengthen the world economy and lead to more trade, investment, employment and income growth," said the declaration, which closed the round of trade talks.

The agreement was signed by ministers from 109 countries in a chandeliered chamber fringed with ornamental palm trees in this lush oasis city. Fifteen more countries are expected to sign the accord later in Geneva.

The package is expected to increase global income by more than $200 billion in 10 years. It will cut barriers to trade in everything from computer chips to potato chips, phase out agricultural subsidies that affect international competiton, and open up services like tourism and transportation to foreign companies.

Despite the celebrations, not all trade disputes were resolved. An accompanying statement set out a shopping list of problems that must be tackled, including labor policy, immigration and trade sanctions.

Ministers also had the chance to sign up for membership in the World Trade Organization, which is to begin Jan. 1 as a replacement for the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

The United States and Japan were among the nations that said they would not sign the WTO agreement until after their national legislatures ratified the entire package.

Vice President Al Gore and Japanese Foreign Minister Tsutomu Hata, in speeches to the conference Thursday, both stressed they would strive for ratification before the end of the year.

If Congress is unable — or unwilling — to ratify the package promptly, this would delay implementation of the international accords.

The final documentation spread out on the table during the singing ceremony totaled more than 26,000 pages — including a mind-boggling list of hundreds of thousands of new, lower customs duties.

The Uruguay Round agreement, named after the country in which it was launched in 1986, was clinched in December. It was three years late because of a fight between the United States and Europe over farm subsidy reform.

The head of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, Peter Sutherland, a former Irish attorney general who steered through the accords, was jubilant.

"I'm tempted to answer that by doing an Irish jig on the table," Sutherland said when asked how he felt.

But both he and the Uruguayan chairman, Abreu, stressed the future challenges.

Abreu read to delegates a list of issues that governments want to put on the agenda of the World Trade Organization, which is to be a stronger version of GATT in monitoring global trade.

These include the relationship between the trading system and internationally recognized labor standards, immigration policies, political stability and the alleviation of poverty.

Suicide attacks prompt arrests

GAZA CITY, Occupied Gaza Strip (AP) — Israel is arresting scores of young Islamic activists who are susceptible to calls for holy war, after two suicide attacks killed 12 Israelis, sources close to a radical Islamic group said Friday.

The government appears to be searching for a way to halt the attacks by the Islamic Resistance Movement, or Hamas, without jeopardizing the peace talks due to lead to a measure of Palestinian self-rule by May.

About 40 men have been rounded up in Gaza City this week, said one activist, speaking on condition of anonymity. Those arrested, most aged between 17 and 22, were not prominent members of the group. Instead they were impressionable youths, easy to lure with promises of paradise for waging holy war against Israel, including suicide missions, the source said.

In Jerusalem, Israeli sources said they arrested a top Hamas leader in Gaza, Ghassam Siyam, described as the key logistics planner. His arrest lead to the detention of many others.

Department expands drug testing

Staff Report

New Department of Transportation drug and alcohol regulations will expand drug testing to include intrastate drivers, make changes in the existing regulations and add alcohol testing to those industries already subject to DOT drug testing regulations.

Harrison Laboratories is sponsoring a one-day seminar on these new regulations from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. on April 28 at the Holiday Inn Convention Center.

Guest speaker will be Lamar Allen, senior program analyst for drug enforcement/program compliance with the Department of Transportation.

The seminar will also feature exhibits by several manufacturers of evidentiary breathing testing equipment for alcohol testing and a discussion of laboratory services and medical review officer services.

A question-and-answer session will conclude the seminar.

Wednesday is the deadline to register. Cost of the seminar is $25, which includes continental breakfast, luncheon, refreshments at meeting breaks and printed guidelines and handouts.

All persons required to have a commercial drivers license, including drivers who were previously exempted, will now be subject to the new drug and alcohol rules, which were published in the Feb. 15 Federal Register.

Split specimen collections will become mandatory in most industries and use of evidentiary breath testing devices for alcohol testing will be mandatory, according to the new rules.

A tornado in Crosby, Texas, 20 miles northeast of Houston, injured at least a dozen people.

The most severe damage in Kentucky was at Bowling Green, where a thunderstorm spawned a series of small tornadoes, the National Weather Service reported.

Wind damaged mobile homes and injured two people in an overturned camper in Illinois, and scattered tornadoes in Indiana damaged trees and buildings and injured three people, state officials said.

Thunderstorms that tracked across much of Missouri brought high wind, tornadoes and golfball-sized hail, but failed to reverse the downward trend of rivers and streams in the eastern part of the state.

Most other streams that have flooded this week from Oklahoma up the Ohio Valley also were receding.

Cycle accident kills Snyder man

BIG SPRING — Snyder motorcyclist Larry Alan Blumenstock, 47, was killed about 9:30 p.m. Thursday after his 1993 Harley-Davidson motorcycle left the roadway at a curve on Farm-to-Market Road 669 eight miles north of Big Spring, flipped, and hurled Blumenstock, according to the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Blumenstock, who was not wearing a helmet, suffered head and neck injuries, the DPS said.

He was pronounced dead by Justice of the Peace China Long.

The accident was investigated by DPS Trooper Mike Dawson.

CLOSE: Serbs move in on Muslim 'safe area'

observer team in the town were wounded, one fatally, the commander of peacekeeping forces in Bosnia asked for a third round of bombing by NATO planes in an effort to protect the observers and halt the Serbian advance.

The commander, Lt. Gen. Sir Michael Rose, was overruled by the senior U.N. official in the region.

Previous NATO air raids, Sunday and Monday, had brought a three-day respite in the Serbian attack.

But it was unclear whether even a heavy NATO bombardment could have halted the Serbs on Friday.

Ham radio reports from Gorazde said the Serbs were using rockets, howitzers, tanks and mortars to rout the Bosnian army forces from the east side of the Drina River, and had advanced from the north to within 500 yards of the local hospital, in the center of town.

Bosnian government officials said the shelling made it impossible to give an accurate casualty count for Friday's attack.

Just three days ago, Serbian leaders gave assurances to a Russian special envoy, Vitaly I. Churkin, that they would halt their offensive against Gorazde, which has been surrounded by the Serbs since last May.

This week, the top U.N. civilian official in Bosnia, Yasushi Akashi, delegated authority to order air strikes on Gorazde to Lt. Gen. Bertrand de Lapresle, who as the U.N. commander for Bosnia, Croatia and Yugoslavia is Rose's immediate superior.

Rose obtained de Lapresle's permission Friday. But perhaps because Akashi was in the Bosnian Serb headquarters in Pale, holding talks with the leadership there, Rose also made contact with him.

According to a tape of part of the conversation, Rose told an adjutant to Akashi that the United Nations observers in Gorazde had been fired on.

"We've got casualties," Rose said. "We've got to use Blue Sword to get them out. Otherwise they'll all be killed." Blue Sword is the code name for the NATO air operation to protect U.N. personnel in Bosnia.

LONG: Educators, parents disagree on year-round school

(From 1A)

The concept was reintroduced in Park Elementary School in Hayward, Calif., in 1968. By the 1992-93 school year, year-round education had attracted a record 2,048 schools. This year, the total declined, to 1,941, of which 34 are private schools.

California has by far the most, with 1,200. Texas is next, with 220, and Florida is third, with 105.

Around 400 of the 650 schools in the Los Angeles area dropped the idea this year, but about 300 in other parts of the country signed on, Ballinger said. Steve Walters, administrative coordinator in charge of year-round programs in the Los Angeles Unified School District, said the schools there had gone back to a September-to-June school year and a three-month vacation because the administrators did not like operating without air-conditioning in mid-August, and they were not experiencing excess enrollments.

The private Beacon elementary and high schools in Oakland have one of the longest compulsory school years, 215 days for the high school and 240 days for elementary school.

Except for a two-week family vacation scheduled at the students' discretion, the children in the elementary school spend nearly their entire summer in school. Elementary and high school students both get an additional 15 days off, and the high school students take four weeks off in August and one week in April.

In the 11 years the elementary school has been in existence, the student body has grown from 7 to 280. In the two and a half years that the high school has been open, its enrollment has tripled, from 30 to 90.

Next year there will be 115 students in the high school, and by 1999 250 are expected, said Leslie Medine, who, with Thelma Farley, is co-founder and co-director of the schools.

Besides learning to read, write and do arithmetic, students in both schools choreograph, write plays and compose music. In the elementary school, pupils proceed at their own pace and receive no homework assignments, because, Ms. Medine said, they go to school enough days to learn the material in the regular program, which ends at 3 p.m.

At the ninth grade, classes expand from 45 minutes to an hour and 45 minutes — and consequently the children plunge more deeply into them.

Instead of taking six classes a day, as students would in a traditional high school, they take three and complete a year's worth of work in 15 weeks, in what educators call the "block" system. Last June, the first two students graduated. One is now a freshman at Sarah Lawrence College in Bronxville, N.Y.; the other is at Arizona State University at Tempe.

"There's lots more time to talk to the teacher, to get help from other students, and more time for discussion," said Kiel Harkness, 16. Students also may initiate study projects and even classes.

Students at Beacon are tested in both traditional and non-traditional ways. Every year a student does an integrated studies project and has to solve a problem. Last year Eli Myrick, 17, who had studied physics, technology and sailing, was given a full-size broken sailboat.

"He had to study the boat, figure it out, rebuild the boat, and make it sail," Ms. Medine said.

In the elementary school, the children take traditional examinations at the end of each unit. At the end of every trimester, they get a report card with a written and a number evaluation. They are graded 1 through 4, where 1 means age-appropriate and 4 means gifted.

INVESTIGATE: Pilots tried to establish 'friend or foe'

(From 1A)

friend or foe" systems as required.

"IFF interrogation was conducted and no friendly response was received," said Shalikashvili, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. He said it was not yet known whether the pilots received a nonstandard response from the choppers, or none at all.

The "friend or foe" identification system normally works automatically if activated. That is, once the F-15 pilots had used their system to "interrogate" the choppers below them, the system on board the choppers should have automatically sent back a coded signal saying, in effect, "We're friendlies."

Shalikashvili said one of the aims of the investigation was to determine why no proper reply was received by the F-15s.

Officials have said the pilots reported that from visual inspection of the choppers they believed they were Iraqi Hind aircraft. It was not clear Friday whether the F-15 pilots asked the AWACS for confirmation or for permission to fire.

Shalikashvili said procedures used in allied operations over northern Iraq did not require the F-15 pilots to ask the AWACS for permission to fire, once they had established visual identification and used the "friend or foe" electronic systems.

Also, Perry said the F-15 pilots did not try to establish radio contact with their targets before firing, and that this was not required by procedures.

Even so, it remains a mystery why the F-15 pilots took no additional steps to confirm the choppers' identity, especially since the choppers' flight plan had been briefed in detail the day before to all concerned — including the F-15 pilots, and the helicopters posed no apparent security threat to the fighters. Also, no Iraqi helicopters had ever been seen flying that far north.

Perry said many questions remain to be answered about the incident, and that "if individuals are found culpable, we will discipline them."

Perry stressed that the F-15 and AWACS crews' rights would be protected during the investigation.

"We will not rush to judgment," he said.

The on-sight investigation is being headed by U.S. Maj. Gen. James G. Andrus, commander of the Third Air Force, based at RAF Mildenhall in Britain, officials said. The team will include F-15 and AWACS aircraft experts, Army aviation experts, Army and Air Force legal specialists and "associate members" from Britain, France and Turkey, Perry said.

Perry said he was waiting for an answer to the question, "How could this possibly have happened?"

"We do not yet have the answer to that question," he said.

AWARE: Conference deals with child abuse

child abuse after her grandson's battered body was found.

Since then, the campaign has been launched in communities across the nation.

Before reading his proclamation, Faircloth commented on daily headlines about the tragedy of child abuse.

"People don't think it happens here, but it does happen in Midland County," he said.

In reading the city proclamation, Faircloth said that preventing child abuse is the responsibility of all citizens; community action is needed to help families break the cycle of abuse.

"We must all get involved. This is not an isolated problem. It touches all of us. The fact is, that many child-abuse victims grow up to inflict violence on others," said Jim Huggins, president of Centers for Children and Families.

Statistics from the Texas Coalition for the Prevention of Child Abuse indicate that 93 percent of felons convicted of violent crimes state that they grew up under the strains of child abuse.

"By hosting this blue ribbon day, Centers wants to encourage parents, community leaders, teachers, businessmen, religious leaders and all citizens to take action in child-abuse prevention and to promote healthy parenting practices," Huggins said.

He said most people know someone who was abused or were abused themselves.

"You know the terror, the powerlessness, the pain a child feels at the hands of adults," Huggins said.

In Midland County, 835 children were reported abused or neglected in Midland County in 1993.

While Centers provides therapy for abused children and their families, Huggins said therapy and treatment is not going to stop the problem.

"We need everyone to become aware of child abuse and what a terrible thing it is," Huggins said.

He encouraged everyone to wear a blue ribbon from now through the end of April — National Child Abuse Prevention Month. He said that although wearing a ribbon is not much, it can increase the public's awareness of the problem.

Huggins said he has been wearing his ribbon and people have asked him what it symbolizes, so he gets an opportunity to explain.

"Stop and think about it for a moment. Some child somewhere is suffering today because of child abuse," Huggins said. "Through education and awareness we can stop child abuse."

MC names winners of Creative Writing Contest

Staff Report

Eileen M. Wilks was a multiple winner in the recent Midland College Creative Writing Contest. She won first place in the essay category with "Only the Dance," and locked up the poetry competiton by winning first, second and third places and an honorable mention.

Winners in the three categories of judging — essay, poetry and short story — were announced following a dinner Friday night at Midland College.

Nancy Calhoun was winner of the first-place award in the short story contest with her entry "Slides."

Other winners in the short story division were Rebel G. Sowell, second place for "The Familiar Stranger," and Tanya Warnick with third place for "The Sighting."

Honorable mentions went to Sowell for "Silent Hours" and R.A. Warnick for "Matthew."

In the poetry division Ms. Wilks' entries "Awakening" and "La Loba" tied for first place. Her poem "Crossing the Threshhold" won second, "The Janus Door" won third and "Magic Marker" received an honorable mention.

Other poetry honorable mentions went to Carol Bradshaw for "Southwestern Spirits in Palo Duro Canyon" and to Craig Bill for "Indigo."

Awards for essay were given to Ms. Wilks' "Only the Dance." Second place went to Beverly Wilburn for "No More Rows of Laundry," and third place to Virginia Rutte for "The Hyphen."

Honorable mentions were awarded to Tonya G. Bullard for "A Strong Tribute," and Jana Morrison for "Let Them Have Their Day."

Award winners received cash awards of $60 for first place, $40 for second place, and $20 for third place in each category, certificates of award, and gift certificates from Pages & Prints Bookstore.

Pages & Prints provided the gift certificates and helped to underwrite the awards dinner.

"This is the first year that I know of that we have appealed to a member of Midland's business community for backing in the contest," said Pamela Howell, Midland College teacher and contest coordinator.

"Working with Pages & Prints in this and other creative writing efforts is what puts greater significance in the concept of 'community college,' Ms. Howell said.

Speaker for the awards program was Midlander Wayne Barton, a prolific author and co-author of Western novels.

Judges for the contest were Karen Pape, Myra Salcedo and Ed Todd.

Ms. Pape, an MC graduate and a recipient of a master's of arts degree from the University of Texas of the Permian Basin, served as poetry judge for the fourth year. She has won several awards over the years. Some of her poems have been published in River's Edge and Maverick Press.

Ms. Salcedo, who attended MC and later earned a bachelor's of arts degree with a double major in communications and literature from UTPB, has been a short story judge for the contest for the past nine years. She is a former multiple winner of the contest and is a reporter with the Reporter-Telegram.

Todd, a writer and columnist for the Reporter-Telegram for 20 years, served for the first time as a judge for the essay contest. He earned bachelor's of science and master's of science degrees in journalism from East Texas State University in Commerce.

Contest entrants had to be current Midland College students, or enrolled at Midland College during the past two years.

OPTIMIST: Outlook may lead to survival

women who had undergone heart catheterization, a common procedure used to check the arteries for clogging. He outlined the results at a meeting of the Society of Behavioral Medicine.

The patients typically underwent the test because of chest pain, and all had heart disease. When interviewed, 14 percent said they doubted they would recover enough to resume their daily routines.

After one year, 12 percent of these pessimists had died, compared with 5 percent of those who were optimistic about getting better.

Even when the severity of people's conditions was taken into account, outlook was a crucial factor in survival. In fact, optimism often seemed to have little bearing on how sick people were. Some of those with very mild heart disease had the grimmest views of their prospects.

"The mind is a tremendous tool or weapon, depending on your point of view," Mark said.

In his study, pessimism appeared to be even more damaging to recovery than depression, which is also shown to be bad for heart patients.

Dr. Nancy Frasure-Smith of the Montreal Heart Institute presented follow-up data on the effect of negative emotions on 222 patients, most of them in their 60s, who were recovering from heart attacks.

They were given a psychological test that measures feelings of sadness and depression. Those who scored high on this were eight times more likely than more upbeat folks to die during the following 18 months. Feeling anxious tripled the risk, as did holding in anger.

Less clear, however, is what to do about these black moods in heart patients.

"We don't know how to change negative emotions," Frasure-Smith said. "And if we try to intervene, we don't know if we will change prognosis."

Other factors that appear to have an effect on heart disease survival include feeling hostile, being unmarried and having no one at home to talk to.

Even personality types appear to be linked. Dr. Larry Gorkin of the Institute for Behavioral Medicine found, for instance, that hard-driven Type A people are more likely to suffer initial heart attacks. But laid-back Type B's are more apt to die once heart disease becomes apparent.

It's possible, he said, that "Type A's take it as a wake up call. They work more diligently in cardiac rehabilitation than do Type B's."

Dr. Peter G. Kaufman, chief of behavioral medicine at the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute, said the accumulating evidence fits together well.

"All of this work is pointing in the same direction, which is a tremendous thing," he said. "So often, we have data that conflict."

Just how emotions harm the heart is still unclear. Heart attacks usually occur when a bit of fatty buildup, called plaque, breaks in a heart artery. A blood clot sticks to this wound, plugging the artery and choking off the heart's oxygen supply.

Researchers speculate that emotions may increase levels of hormones that put strain on the artery walls or make the blood more likely to clot.

Ultranationalist Zhirinovsky thinks West is out to destroy Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — Russian ultranationalist Vladimir Zhirinovsky has a theory about his missing fisherman's cap: It has become a valuable collector's item. He also has a theory about the West: It is out to destroy Russia.

Zhirinovsky thinks the cap is valuable because he is a great man. He thinks the West wants to destroy Russia because it could become a great empire again — with him in charge.

He elaborated on both theories Friday after returning from a Council of Europe meeting in Strasbourg, France, where he shocked his hosts by pelting demonstrators with plants and pebbles.

Zhirinovsky left France raging about a blue fisherman's cap that he claimed was stolen from a cloak room at a council reception Wednesday. He said the theft "showed the moral level" of the other delegates.

He came back to Moscow Friday ranting about the West and saying Russia should steer clear of Western alliances as a matter of self-preservation.

Western groups have "beautiful slogans" about democracy and human rights, he told a news conference, but Western nations traffic in the body parts of kidnapped children.

"First they destroy countries. They allow families to be destroyed," he warned. "Then orphans are captured by criminals who use their organs for transplants in Western Europe."

Zhirinovsky has been ridiculed as a political buffoon or a Hitler wanna-be, but his party won 23.5 percent of the national vote in December's parliamentary elections. And his oratory has helped push Russian foreign policy away from automatic cooperation with the West.

He said Friday he plans to travel to Baghdad later this month to honor another leading exponent of anti-American sentiment: Iraqi President Saddam Hussein. Accompanying him will be a group of soccer players and a folklore dance group to make a "true holiday" for the Iraqi people.

Zhirinovsky now basks openly in his new prominence, reading every outcry or insult, including the alleged theft of his signature cap, as a sign of his growing influence and importance.

He certainly got attention Monday when he uprooted garden plants and stones at the Russian consulate in Strasbourg and lobbed them at mostly Jewish demonstrators who were screaming that he was a neo-Nazi.

Marauding youths with machetes kill hundreds in Rwandan capital

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Marauding gangs of youths armed with machetes roamed the bloody streets of the Rwandan capital again Friday, adding new bodies to the piles of decaying corpses already fouling the air.

U.N. spokesman Moctar Gueye said Rwanda's Hutu-dominated government and predominatly Tutsi rebels agreed to direct talks that U.N. officials hoped would lead to a cease-fire. But the two sides continued to duel for control of Kigali with mortars and rockets.

New reports of massacres emerged from the Rwandan bloodbath, including an account of more than 1,000 men, women and children shot and hacked to death in a church where they sought refuge.

Thousands of people were still trying to flee Kigali, forming an 8-mile-long column of refugees, and thousands more remained huddled in hiding with little or no food.

"There are hundreds of thousands of people cut off from anything decent or human. People are starving to death in their own houses. Babies have starved to death in their own homes. People are in hiding and cannot find food. Hospitals are not functioning," Gueye said by telephone from Kigali.

More than 20,000 people are estimated to have died in a week of fighting rooted in the decades-old feud between Rwanda's majority Hutu and minority Tutsi ethnic groups. Many have been hacked to death by gangs with machetes, knives and spears.

At least 12,000 people were under U.N. protection at Kigali's national stadium and at the main King Faisal Hospital. But Gueye said the mostly unarmed U.N. peacekeepers did not have the resources to cope with the refugees.

There was no safe refuge for people fleeing the ethnic slaughter.

Belgian news media reported that nearly 1,200 Tutsis, more than half of them children, were massacred Wednesday at a church in Musha, 25 miles east of Kigali. It was the largest reported massacre so far in the fighting.

Gueye said the United Nations received reports of the massacre but had not been able to confirm it. "We have received many, many reports of that nature, but our forces are stretched to the maximum," he said.

Radio Vlaanderen Internationaal in Belgium and reporters in Kigali for the Belgian newspapers Het Volk and De Morgen said the Hutu-dominated presidential guard was being blamed for the massacre.

"At 6:30 Wednesday morning, they suddenly came into our church. They kicked in the door and immediately opened fire with semi-automatic weapons and threw grenades," the pastor, Danko Litrick, told Het Volk.

Gunmen attack Mexican army checkpoint

MEXICO CITY (NYT) — A small group of gunmen attacked an army checkpoint early Friday on the outskirts of Tuxtla Gutierrez, capital of the state of Chiapas, killing one soldier and setting off an hourlong firefight, the National Defense Secretariat said.

The attack by an unidentified civilian group began at 7:30 a.m. EDT at a roadblock near La Canada, about six miles west of the state capital, and ended at 6:20 a.m., the military reported in a press release. The gunfight was the first involving the army since a Jan. 12 cease-fire put an end to a New Year's Day uprising by the rebel Zapatista National Liberation Army.

Chiapas Gov. Javier Lopez Moreno said the attack was not tied to the Zapatistas. "This was totally unrelated to the (Zapatistas), and we continue working toward achieving peace," Lopez said.

Army helicopters flew over the site of the firefight. The highway from San Fernando to Lake Chicoasen, where a large hydroelectric plant is located, was closed for several hours, reopening at mid-day, state officials said.

Students evacuated from a nearby school later returned to classes, the Televisa network reported.

The victim, identified as Army Sgt. Ciceron Gutierrez Perez, died at the regional military hospital in Tuxtla Gutierrez.

No civilians were wounded.

The secretariat did not say how many soldiers or aggressors were involved or whether any attackers were wounded.

Gen. Miguel Angel Godinez Bravo, commander of the 7th army zone in Tuxtla Gutierrez, said the attackers used several types of guns, including high-powered weapons. "This was a provocation, but it is not a motive for breaking the cease-fire," Godinez told reporters at the scene.

A high-ranking state official discounted theories that the aggressors might be drug smugglers.

Russia, Ukraine reach agreement on Black Sea Fleet

MOSCOW (NYT) — President Boris N. Yeltsin of Russia and President Leonid M. Kravchuk of Ukraine reached a new agreement Friday on the division of the much-disputed Black Sea Fleet after a week in which the two-year quarrel threatened for the first time to lead to armed conflict.

A spokesman for Yeltsin said the agreement provides for 15 to 20 percent of the fleet's 300-odd ships to be handed over to Ukraine and acknowledges the rights of both countries to separate bases for their Black Sea navies.

Previous high-level accords all failed to resolve one of the most durable irritants in the touchy Russian-Ukrainian relationship. The issue took on new urgency after Russian officers commandeered one of the fleet's radar ships at the Ukrainian port city of Odessa and headed for Sevastopol, the headquarters of the fleet's pro-Russian command.

In retaliation, Ukrainian troops moved to arrest Russian officers in Odessa, prompting Sevastopol to send a warship with orders to evacuate the officers' families. The ship was eventually turned back, but the incident prompted the two leaders to schedule a special meeting Friday to stem the diplomatic damage.

Thunderstorms, tornadoes hit South, Midwest

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. (AP) — Thunderstorms packing tornadoes blew across parts of the South and Midwest on Friday, smashing the glass dome of a Bowling Green shopping mall and damaging residential neighborhoods in the city.

Three deaths were blamed on the storms, one elsewhere in Kentucky and two in Tennessee.

The most severe damage in Kentucky was in Bowling Green, where a thunderstorm spawned a series of small tornadoes, the National Weather Service reported. The weather service could not confirm whether the tornadoes touched down.

The storm shattered a glass dome at Greenwood Mall, the city's largest., The mall had just opened when the storm struck.

"I was just coming in the door and I heard glass crash, and the wind started blowing and I just hit the floor," said Frances Graham, who works at the mall.

"It broke all the car windows out of our cars out front, and I really don't know what the extent of the damage is."

The mall was evacuated because of a gas leak.

The storm caused damage in other business and residential areas of Bowling Green, overturning cars and mobile homes.

Elsewhere across Kentucky, thunderstorms downed trees and power lines and damaged homes and farm buildings in several counties.

High wind overturned a mobile home and killed a woman in Hardin County, authorities said.

One man was found dead underneath his house after a string of tornadoes swept across southeastern Tennessee. Another body was found in a nearby field, said Randy Hill of the Tennessee Emergency Management Agency.

"All the power lines and telephone lines are down in the area, so we're having a hard time getting information right now," he said.

Carl Sturgill, emergency preparedness coordinator for Tennessee's McMinn County, said two people were seriously injured there. Two mobile homes and four houses were damaged, he said.

Wind damaged mobile homes and injured two people in an overturned camper in Illinois, and scattered tornadoes in Indiana damaged trees and farm buildings and injured three people, state officials said. Scattered blackouts were reported in Chicago after thunderstorms.

Thunderstorms also hit southwestern Ohio at midday, but no funnel clouds touched down. Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co. said about 7,000 customers were without power in southwestern Ohio and northern Kentucky.

Thunderstorms also raked parts of Missouri early Friday, peeling off roofs, downing power lines and tree limbs, and pelting some areas with golfball-sized hail. No injuries were reported. Possible tornado damage was reported along a 20-mile swath southwest of St. Louis.

Sick Onassis goes to hospital for treatments

NEW YORK (AP) — Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, who is suffering from cancer of the lymph system, was hospitalized for treatment.

Onassis

"She is expected to be here for several days," said Myrna Manners, a spokeswoman for New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center.

Manners would not say what kind of treatment the former first lady was receiving nor when she was admitted.

Kennedy family spokeswoman Nancy Tuckerman did not immediately return telephone calls.

Onassis, 64, announced in February that she was suffering from non-Hodgkins lymphoma. Tuckerman said then that doctors thought they had caught the cancer in its early stages when it was diagnosed in January.

American Cancer Society statistics predict that 45,000 Americans will develop non-Hodgkins lymphoma this year and that 52 percent of them will survive for at least five years.

Depending on the subtype of lymphoma, it may be treated with chemotherapy, with radiation, or with a combination of the two.

Dr. Harmon Eyre, the society's chief medical officer, said in February that Mrs. Onassis underwent only chemotherapy.

The non-Hodgkins lymphoma, which typically strikes people in their 60s and 70s, is the third most rapidly increasing cancer in the country, after lung cancer in women and malignant melanoma.

It typically is detected from a painless enlargement of lymph nodes, often in the neck.

King's confessed assassin gets OK to call witnesses

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — After 25 years, the confessed killer of Martin Luther King Jr. won a judge's permission Friday to call witnesses and put on evidence in court to try to prove his innocence.

James Earl Ray has been trying unsuccessfully to take back his guilty plea and go to trial since shortly after he confessed in 1969 to murdering the civil rights leader April 4, 1968.

Criminal Court Judge Joseph Brown rejected Ray's latest plea for a trial but agreed to let his lawyers question witnesses and put on other courtroom evidence to prepare an appeal of that rejection.

"What's it been going on? A quarter of a century so far? A few more months won't hurt one way or the other," Brown said. "Let the historical record be cleared up."

Such a process will not overturn Ray's conviction or free him from prison where he is serving a 99-year sentence.

But it will give him his first chance since his guilty plea to compel witnesses to testify and to have that testimony under oath.

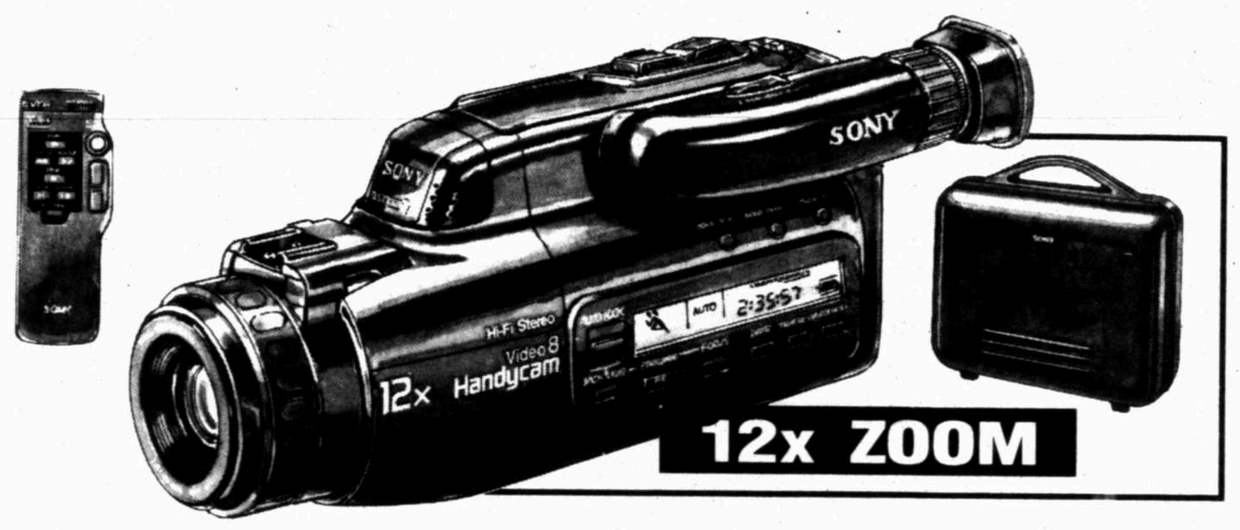

Brown said he hopes to help clear up questions, including claims of a conspiracy, that have festered since King was felled by a rifle slug on a balcony of The Lorraine Motel in Memphis.

The U.S. House Committee on Assassinations looked into King's murder and concluded in 1978 that Ray was the killer but may have been helped by others. The committee's records are sealed until the year 2029.

Brown said he was bound by state law to uphold Ray's conviction and reject his plea for a trial. There was no evidence that Ray's confession was other than freely given, Brown said.

Tinsel town plans passel of summertime blockbusters

By John Horn
AP Entertainment Writer

LOS ANGELES — If you can describe a movie in a sentence, odds are it's coming out this summer:

John Goodman IS Fred Flintstone. Bingo. "The Flintstones."

Eddie Murphy plays that detective again. No sweat. "Beverly Hills Cop III."

Mel Gibson remakes the James Garner TV Western. Easy. "Maverick."

The summer film season is packed with an assortment of no-brainers, easy-to-sell sequels and lowbrow star vehicles.

Billy Crystal returns in "City Slickers" and there's yet another "Karate Kid" update (without the Karate Kid himself, since he's now in his 30s). Watch for a movie version of "Lassie" and be warned now: Keanu Reeves has the title role in "Little Buddha."

Nearly 60 movies will be released nationally between Memorial Day and Labor Day. The most notable summer titles include Disney's animated "The Lion King," Arnold Schwarzenegger's $100 million gamble "True Lies" and the late comedian John Candy's last movie, "Wagons East."

It's the year's most profitable season,

Linda Davis: A Wynette for the '90s

By Jimmy Patterson
Special Projects Editor

It's encouraging that in the midst of the influx of all the pups trying to make a name for themselves in Nashville these days, occasionally the real thing emerges.

Davis

In spite of everything going for her, Linda Davis is the real thing.

At first glance, Davis appears to have had it all handed to her on a silver platter. She was back-up singer for Reba McEntire. Then came "Does He Love You," Davis' Academy of Country Music award-nominated duet with the pouty, McEntire.

She also has the looks that are virtually essential to make it these days in Music City, and a record company (Arista) that is firmly behind her.

With all that going for a new Nashville name, sometimes talent is gravy. But Davis does have the ability. Furthermore, what sets her apart from the crowd is a debut album, "Shoot for the Moon," that is loaded with good stuff.

Davis, who cut her country teeth at the Grapevine Opry, in assorted Nashville hotel lounges and on Kentucky Fried Chicken jingles, has some of the best

'Cops' OK, but far from great

By Yardena Arar
N.Y. Times News Service

■ Review

LOS ANGELES — "Cops and Robbersons," a family comedy starring Chevy Chase, isn't nearly as bad as the trailers make it look — or as you might think it would be given that Chase is not exactly on a career roll.

This isn't to say it's good — let's not get carried away here. But director Michael Ritchie, whose last project was Home Box Office's acclaimed "The Positively True Adventures of the Alleged Texas Cheerleader-Murdering Mom," knows his way around a comedy. There are some genuinely funny moments in this yarn about a suburban family whose home is commandeered by a pair of police officers on a stakeout.

Norman Robberson (Chase) is a hard-core police drama fan, so he's tickled to death when crotchety Jake (Jack Palance) and his rookie partner, Tony (David Barry Gray), track him down at the video Cobain fans remember the fallen star in a candlelight vigil.

Cobain screamed teen angst

By Lorraine Ali
N.Y. Times News Service

I can't recall exactly where I was when I heard the news that John Lennon had been shot. I just remember feeling an overall shock and sadness in the air and also feeling that something terribly wrong had happened.

But beyond normal human sympathy, I wasn't much moved. I was 15 years old, and his songs were already being played on Muzak stations. He was someone who had represented peace, love and a decade I was too young to remember, yet he died a violent death. It was all so symbolic.

Kurt Cobain of Nirvana is the first pop icon of mine to die tragically. He took his life in a very non-rock-star way — with a 12-gauge shotgun. I suppose that too will be symbolic to future generations, maybe as some meaningful anti-statement from the spokesman of Generation X. But right now, it feels so much more personal than that. Cobain's death hurts.

■ Appreciation

He meant something to me individually, as he did to the thousands of other depressed callers who flooded the phone lines of radio stations right after the news got out.

There's a sense of loss that goes beyond just the departure of a great artist. From every unpolished crack in Cobain's voice to the frequent blemishes on his face, he was real, someone I could identify with.

He conveyed the same crushed idealism, bruised sensitivity and abrasive sarcasm I feel, and like me, he didn't smile a lot, wasn't perky or outgoing and sometimes left the house in the clothes he slept in. Kurt Cobain was the first one of my generation able to break into the Whitney Houston-dominated mainstream while never shedding his skin for a more upbeat one along the way. He sang of things we cared about.

JIMMY PATTERSON

Queen of pop now figure of pathos

She sat there, a sad, pathetic figure, puffing on a cigar. She tried her best to shock those who were assembled, but all she did, really, was waste their valuable time, and expose herself as a figure of pity and ridicule.

Patterson

Once the queen of pop whose popularity levels reached staggering proportions in the 1980s, Madonna is now a laughing stock.

Her concerts have stopped drawing. Her record sales have fallen. And last year, she released a book full of nude photographs of herself that drew both commercial and critical snickers.

But all of that evidence suggesting Madonna is a thing of the past pale in comparison to what she put herself — and us — through a couple of weeks ago on "The Late Show with David Letterman." She learned the hard way that you don't go on television and try to upstage one of the most powerful figures in the entertainment world today without suffering the consequences.

Thirteen times Madonna tried to make some sort of twisted point by using the "f-word." And 13 times she was booed almost off stage. In fact, the audience's negative response to her antics was really the only time it seemed to be moved to any sort of reaction concerning the fallen idol: No one cared who she was anymore, except that she was failing miserably at trying to show up Letterman.

It seemed almost amazing that Madonna, once the premiere example of media manipulation and self-promotion, was actually allowing this to happen to herself. In spite of her repeated profanities, what drew the biggest disbelief was her incredibly juvenile attempts at humor. Innuendo-laced tries at garnerning laughs with her cigar "joke" and her microphone "joke" were more reminiscent of what some junior high punk might spout off on the playground. These "jokes" were certainly not the product of a multi-million-dollar megastar like Madonna. Yet, they were all hers.

Madonna now finds herself in the same boat as Michael Jackson. Once, the two were the pop icons of the '80s. Now, they've disgraced themselves right out of the limelight. Madonna's career is likely all but over; her impact merely a topic of discussion for pop music historians.

She'll never bother us again. Hopefully.

SUMMER: Jeff Bridges' star should grow bigger this year

(From 1B)

LOS ANGELES — If you can describe a movie in a sentence, odds are it's coming out this summer:

John Goodman IS Fred Flintstone. Bingo. "The Flintstones."

Eddie Murphy plays that detective again. No sweat. "Beverly Hills Cop III."

Mel Gibson remakes the James Garner TV Western. Easy. "Maverick."

The summer film season is packed with an assortment of no-brainers, easy-to-sell sequels and lowbrow star vehicles.

Billy Crystal returns in "City Slickers" and there's yet another "Karate Kid" update (without the Karate Kid himself, since he's now in his 30s). Watch for a movie version of "Lassie" and be warned now: Keanu Reeves has the title role in "Little Buddha."

Nearly 60 movies will be released nationally between Memorial Day and Labor Day. The most notable summer titles include Disney's animated "The Lion King," Arnold Schwarzenegger's $100 million gamble "True Lies" and the late comedian John Candy's last movie, "Wagons East."

It's the year's most profitable season, and the studios aren't about to gamble.

Except a little.

In the year's most surprising casting decisions, a couple of Hollywood's most respected performers — Jeff Bridges and Meryl Streep — are setting aside their typically somber and often obscure screen images to anchor two of the season's highest-profile movie thrillers.

Following last year's little-seen "Fearless" and the small independent film "American Heart," Bridges will star in July 1's "Blown Away" as the leader of the Boston Bomb Squad.

Streep, whose credits include the Australian story "A Cry in the Dark" and the epic "Out of Africa," chucks her various accents to play an American whitewater guide in the action film "The River Wild," due in August. Ever the method actress, Streep even did her own stunt work.

Audiences will have the last word on whether the casting-against-type works. The movies' directors are confident it does.

"I just thought it would be a lot of fun to see her doing something so different from the perceived persona that she has," says Curtis Hanson, who directed Streep in "The River Wild."

"I'm a big fan of Meryl, and I don't mean this to be pejorative, but I felt that many times people have admired her acting and the characters she has played without identifying so much with those characters. And I thought if we could put her in a movie where the audience really gets sucked in to identify with her ... that we would have something that would really be special."

Streep plays Gail Hartman, whose failing marriage to David Strathairn is as turbulent as the rapids where the family vacations. The whitewater expedition turns calamitous when the Hartmans meet up with bad guy Kevin Bacon.

Filmed on Oregon's Rogue and Montana's Kootenai and Flathead rivers, "The River Wild" aims to turn the usual male action story upside-down.

"First of all, (Streep's) character is a wife and mother, which are trappings the typical male action hero does not bring along," Hanson says.

"What motivates Meryl's character in this whole story is taking a trip to bring her family closer together. ... It ends up being about that — but in a very different way than was anticipated."

Bridges previously played opposite Clint Eastwood in 1974's "Thunderbolt and Lightfoot" and Glenn Close in 1985's "Jagged Edge." For the most part, however, the actor has shunned such mainstream roles in favor of modest stories driven by interesting characters and thoughtful screenplays — in other words, nobody sees his movies.

That may change this summer.

In "Blown Away," a big-budget story from recently moribund MGM, Bridges' bomb-squad expert must outwit and survive a fiendish bomber, played by Tommy Lee Jones.

"I expressed an interest in Jeff and Tommy to play the roles and I thought they both would say no because at that time neither was known as an action star," says "Blown Away" director Stephen Hopkins. Jones had not yet appeared in "The Fugitive" when "Blown Away" was cast.

Hopkins, whose credits include "Predator 2" and "Judgment Night," says "Blown Away" hopes to distinguish itself from other action films by focusing as much on story as on pyrotechnics.

"A lot of the people in the film are much more real than we are used to," Hopkins says. "In my other films, it's usually 'Blow up large areas of real estate and kill as many people as possible.' "

"Blown Away," he says, "looks different. It doesn't look like it's going to be a big slugfest. In some ways, it's funnier. A lot of the fun stuff in the film is suspense — and the suspense won't work if the characters are not conceived well."

Actors such as Bridges and Streep aren't the only ones charting new courses this summer. Director Robert Zemeckis, familiar for the "Back to the Future" movies, is directing what appears to be one of the summer's more original and heartfelt stories.

"Forrest Gump," opening July 15, stars "Philadelphia" Oscar winner Tom Hanks as a simple-minded hero of war and business not cut from the usual matinee idol pattern.

store to request permission to spy on the counterfeiter next door, a guy identified only as Osborn (Robert Davi).

Chase is fine as the long-suffering doofus dad, although it's difficult to sympathize with someone who acts as dumb as Norman sometimes does. Palance is fun to watch doing the fearsome old codger bit he did in "City Slickers," this time in city clothes.

Wiest, however, outshines them both as a mom determined to live the sitcom good life no matter how little everyone else wants to cooperate; the film could have used even more of her. Little Miko Hughes, sporting a cape, fake teeth and slicked-back hair, is also a scene-stealer.

"Cops and Robbersons" is undermined by a screenplay that never capitalizes on the potential of these characters. There's too much boring and idiotic slapstick, as when Norman worms his way into Osborn's house and nearly blows the entire operation.

Riots, fires, quakes can't stop DeGeneres, 'Friends'

By Jackie Hyman
For the Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — After more than a year of delays, doubts and disasters, stand-up comedian Ellen DeGeneres sometimes wondered whether her new ABC comedy, "These Friends of Mine," would ever get on the air.

"It seems like everything that could have happened happened to stop this show," she said. "The riots were going on when we were shooting the pilot. ... Then, the fires happened, and the earthquake. I thought, 'I finally get my break, and we're all going to die.'"

After the pilot was finished, DeGeneres waited more than a year for the series to be scheduled. Then, less than a month ago, the good news came.

"These Friends of Mine" is to debut with a preview Tuesday, right after "Roseanne." It moves into a regular time slot the next night following "Home Improvement."

"It's amazing that I'm sitting here knowing that it's not only going to happen, but they gave me the best time slot you could imagine," DeGeneres said during a lunch break at the studio. "It's the biggest chance that I've ever been given."

Her blond hair tucked under a reversed baseball cap, she looked more like someone ready to coach Little League than a performer moving into the big leagues.

"Some people are comparing it to 'The Mary Tyler Moore Show' of the 90s," said DeGeneres, the star of numerous HBO specials, of her new show. "That's because I'm single. I don't think single women are represented enough these days, where you're not Murphy Brown with all that money."

The offbeat comedy about a thirtysomething woman who manages a bookstore costars Arye Gross as her platonic roommate and Holly Fulger as a friend.

Neal Marlens directed the preview episode, which he wrote with Carol Black and David Rosenthal. Black and Marlens, the executive producers, created the series "Growing Pains."

The show incorporates some physical comedy reminiscent of Lucille Ball's antics.

In one scene, DeGeneres tries to maintain her aplomb while stumbling around on an exercise track. In another, "I'm trying to get a waiter's attention and I'm flagging my arms around so hard that I fall over backward, and I'm supposed to act like that's not unusual."

Until 1981, DeGeneres didn't know what she wanted to do with her future.

"Really, my only concern was to get enough money so I could enjoy myself in life," she said.

Living in New Orleans, she worked as a clothing saleswoman, an employment counselor, a bartender, a waitress and a house painter. She also labored in a glove factory for two days and "I was a gardener for about four hours."

Without realizing it, though, she was preparing to be a comic.

"I learned that when I sold clothes, I used humor to sell whatever it was, and I would win the customers over," she said. "If I was a waitress, I would use humor on my tables and kind of get in good with the people and I would get a bigger tip."

Then, some friends put on a benefit show.

"I became a comedian because friends talked me into it," said DeGeneres, who can't remember who or what the benefit was for. "They asked me to get on stage and be funny.

"I just ate the whole time. I ate a Whopper and fries and a shake while I tried to talk. I don't know how much I got out. I'd say, 'Have you ever noticed when people ...' and I'd take a bite. I wish I had a tape of it. At the time, it was funny."

She went on to perform at a local comedy club, in small clubs around the country, and for two years in San Francisco.

The 36-year-old performer, who lives with two dogs — "a white Lab and a black mutt from the pound" — said one of the greatest challenges is dealing with her newfound fame.

"This whole celebrity thing is such a strange thing to handle," she said. "You're not trained for how people react to you, because you're so busy working.

"I get recognized maybe 50 percent of the time when I go out. Some people react to me like I'm the Beatles, and some people say, 'Didn't I go to school with you?'"

DAVIS: Newcomer fits well in distinguished group

pipes to come out of Tennessee since Trisha Yearwood. She also has the wherewithal to have chosen material that reflects the emotions and conflicts many women are confronted with in the '90s.

"Company Time," the album's first single, paints the bleak picture of Ruthie, a divorced mother who can't catch a break from her boss, and is constantly threatened with losing her job. The boss man, a jerk from the word go, finally decides to promote Ruthie after Ruthie's husband leaves. Soon enough, boss man begins the sexual harrassment routine, promising Ruthie pay raises if she returns a few favors, nudge-nudge, wink-wink.

Written by accomplished songsmith Mac McAnally, "Company Time" paints a memorable portrait of the male superior-female subordinate working relationships that occur when sexually unsatisfied boss man loads up on a little too much Vitamin E. Set against a driving country beat, it is a sorrowful tale that also happens to be by far the best of the 10 on Davis' debut.

"If Promises Were Gold," which has follow-up hit written all over it, blends a mix of broken promises and financial straits ("If promises were gold/I could pay off all the bills/And buy that pretty house, sitting high on the hill.")

"He's in Dallas," another radio-friendly three-minutes worth, tells the story of a woman who believed a few too many lies, only to wind up with a baby ("The only dream that turned out right") and a bus ticket back from where she came, fooled by a man bent on living the night-life. The song recalls those heart-wrenching Tammy Wynette tear-jerkers of the '60s and '70s.

"In Pictures," and "A Family Tie," deal with divorce and alcohol, and are a perfect fit on the album, while the title song is about reaching for dreams in spite of life's bumps.

"Shoot For the Moon" is sprinkled with the sort of cheatin' songs that made women like Wynette and Janie Frickie famous. And it is in that group — which, of course, would also include Reba — that Davis can now count herself a member. If first impressions — and the fact that she is nominated for three ACM awards next month — mean anything, it may not be too long before Davis becomes a distinguished member of that class.

COBAIN: Singer's imperfections nothing record company could create

AP Laserphoto

Cobain's widow, Courtney Love

(From 1B)

My oldest sister laughs and says, "How can you understand what he sings?" But Cobain's railing screams and blurred delivery were as big a part of the emotion he conveyed as his words were — the sarcastic tilt of "Smells Like Teen Spirit" and the raging mad tones of injustice on other efforts.

Lyrically, simple lines like "Everything is my fault/I'll take all the blame" in "All Apologies" and the declaration of "I'm not like them, but I can pretend" in "Dumb" were not grandiose but instead self-deprecating and human.

I interviewed Kurt just before Nirvana hit big with "Nevermind" in 1991. He wasn't nodding out in a drug stupor or curled up in an antisocial ball. Instead he was articulating his feelings, ones that I had heard coming from so many of my friends.

I supposed our reference points were the same; he was 24, I was only two years older. But I also got a rare sense of insight and compassion from him that superseded any generational tie. It was that quality that made Nirvana's music all the more meaningful.

"He must have truly felt what he sang," one television journalist said while picking apart Nirvana's songs for clues to Cobain's misery. Why is it surprising he meant what he sang? Cobain's death wasn't that of a decadent rock star, but instead of a 27-year-old who had problems beyond the ones we saw.

Brainstorming by all the record companies in the nation combined couldn't have concocted a more perfectly imperfect singer or songwriter. Music and lyrics that powerful can't be feigned, there has to be some validity behind them.

Cobain and Nirvana's realism cracked the calculated veneer that waxed over rock in the 80s with their second album "Nevermind." It sold 10 million copies. The band brought society's undercurrents of rage to the mainstream via their own angst, and Cobain shattered the idea of what a rock star is supposed to be. Rock stars are slick and posturing; he slouched and rarely brushed his hair. He made punk rock work 12 years after its birth.

The 60s is an era that my peers and I are constantly reminded we missed. A great time when teens were filled with good vibes and didn't blow each other away over a pair of Adidases. They were blessed with naivete and denial — they believed all things could be good if you tried hard enough.

Kurt Cobain was one among a league of kids raised by 60s parents who shuffled their children from relative to relative in a quest for personal freedom.

Courtney Love (Cobain's widow) of Hole, Bill Corgan of Smashing Pumpkins, Trent Reznor of Nine Inch Nails and Moby are just a few more. They suffered the fallout of free love, and as adults, they sell millions of albums to peers who can relate to their rootless anger and dysfunction.

I can't tell you what Kurt was thinking, though, or how he was feeling. Not all of Generation X has straight lines into one another. But I can tell you I knew something would happen to end him. Not because I saw Kurt as some sort of tragic figure, but because my cynicism tells me all good things will end. Hope is something you trick yourself with to get through the true hopelessness of life.

I will always remember where I was when the news of Kurt's death reached me. Now, like my mom with President Kennedy or my father with Anwar Sadat, I too have a moment etched in my mind.

Cotton farmers pray for rain

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

It's almost time to pray out on the farms and ranches of West Texas.

But if a drought has set in, it can be broken by a couple of good rains now and at cotton-planting time — early May until mid-June.

"We can call it a 'drought,' but we won't be getting real scared about growing cotton until it gets about the first of May," said Vernon Chandler, a Midland County farmer who vividly recalls the seven-year drought of the 1950s.

"Then, we'll need to see some rain about that time (in May) in order to get it planted on time."

Meanwhile, rainfall is lagging. Most of this year's moisture — 1.10 inches by rain and snow — came in January and early February.

Since then, it's been about as dry as a gulch.

"But that was a long time ago" — more than two months — since the last good rain, Chandler said.

"I sure do (remember the drought of the 1950s)," Chandler said. "It just quit raining (in the 1950s) about the way it is doing now."

Chandler recalled how his father approached a dry spell:

"He'd say ... to some of the neighbors whenever we was having a drought: 'Ah, I just got one hand up now, but I haven't given plumb up. Whenever you see me throw two hands up, that means I've given plumb up.'"

And "whenever you see me throw two hands up," Chandler said, "that means I've given plumb up."

But he hasn't yet.

Chandler, who farms in the Warfield community, said he won't be giving up on a good rain and a substantial cotton crop until mid-May.

"I'll throw both hands up about the middle of May. That's when I'll give up," he said. "But maybe if we can get it planted by May 20, we are in pretty good shape."

Alvey Bryant, who farms and ranches in the Greenwood community, said Midland-area farmers have "got plenty of time for (planting) cotton if ... enough rain for underground season (moisture)" comes in May.

"The first week of May would be ideal" for a planting rain," Bryant said. "We can plant the first or second week of May real good if we've got enough moisture.

"We need to get a rain no and then another one (in May) to give us some underground season," Bryant said.

And rather than panic over any impending drought, Bryant said that he would be "just looking for a good rain.

"It's not too late," he said. "We just need some good rain. Need two of them." If farmland can get "a good underground season now and get a good rain in August, we can make a cotton crop if we don't get any hail."

Greenwood farmer Roy Graham said that farmers and ranchers are "always concerned about the dry weather.

"And it is getting close to cotton-planting time.

"But because of the boll-weevil situation, most of the producers locally are going to be planting a little later this year," Graham said.

"I don't think Midland has really declared a uniform planting date. But it has to do with the survival of the over-wintering weevils. Weevils attack the crops that are planted earlier — the earlier-planted crops."

Farmers are "looking to plant a little later this year," Graham said. Many farmers in past years have planted in the middle of April and into May based on the timing of planting rains after the season's last frost.

"This year, we are not quite in a big hurry as we have been in the past," Graham said.

"Of course, where we have rangeland, the cattle need rain. These (cotton) fields need a rain," Graham said. "We don't want to just wait up until the last day to get a rain to plant," he said.

"We'd like to have one now and then have another about planting time. We can plant up until the middle of June" and still make a good cotton crop.

Northward and higher into the Texas plains, farmers, farm-implement dealers and bankers who shuffle in for lunch at the Brownfield diner still chuckle at their own half-hearted "How-dry-is-it?" jokes.

It's so dry across the Lubbock region — the nation's largest cotton patch — that motorists drive with their lights on during afternoon dust storms. Grass fires are common.

Drifts of wind-whipped sand coat the ditches beside parched pastures. Brittle stalks from last year's cotton crop remain standing in many non-irrigated fields, where farmers won't bother working until after it rains.

"Just leave well enough alone," suggests Russell Lepard, who has devoted his attention to fields he can water using wells and giant pivots. "We've got to have moisture before we do anything."

Agriculture experts say 1994 is shaping into the driest planting season since 1974, when cotton on the South Plains turned out miserable in quality and quantity.

Typically, it rains and snows enough during the winter to anchor loose topsoil and replenish the deep moisture that plants need to survive summer months. The National Weather Service says 5.37 inches of precipitation is average in Lubbock from Oct. 1 to mid-April.

But over the past 6½ months, Lubbock rain gauges have measured just 2.13 inches. Other areas got less.

"I personally have been optimistic up until about a month ago," said Kater Hake, cotton specialist for the Texas Agriculture Extension Service. "We're in a rainy period right now, and we haven't gotten rain."

Concern about the drought echoes in Brownfield through church prayers and speculation about federal disaster relief.

Many non-irrigating farmers have held off on buying fertilizer and herbicides, said Lepard, who hasn't plowed his dryland fields yet.

"I haven't given up," the 39-year-old Brownfield native says. "I'm just letting time take its toll right now."

The Associated Press contributed to his report.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, APRIL 16, 1994

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Separate the real from the ideal and things should go swimmingly. You cannot do your best work if you are exhausted all the time. Productivity rises when you strike a better balance between work and play. An investment will produce hoped-for results in the fall. Further education is the key to a brighter future. Early in 1995, a child begins to make a real contribution to family life. Nurture the professional relationships that helped your career in the past. Repay favors promptly.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: basketball great Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, singer Edie Adams, actress Ellen Barkin, legendary film comedian Charlie Chaplin.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): If you nurse someone's illusions, you risk coming to believe in them yourself. Be more practical. Traveling around aimlessly has its drawbacks.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Taking care of essential chores before lunch will leave your afternoon free for pleasant pastimes. Avoid using sarcasm when dealing with children; it hurts!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Focus on helping someone else and you will soon bounce back to your usual cheerful self. This is no time to take unnecessary financial risks. Do not be fooled by someone's flattery or romantic gestures.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Now that you feel more energetic, you can get a lot accomplished! Direct your attention to bookkeeping matters. Give to a favorite cause or charity but not to people who impose on you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Many of you enjoy new social honors now. Obtaining the ear of someone influential enables you to broaden your interests. A special campaign may soon get under way.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Unexpected gains turn this into a happy day. You encounter obstacles when putting certain plans in motion. Avoid spreading your largesse too widely.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A suggestion from a loved one could be running through your mind. As soon as you recognize its worth, take prompt action. A reconciliation with a friend is possible.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Minor disappointments can lead to a more realistic attitude about life. Someone close at hand wants to be your secret benefactor. A direct approach works best for you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): The desire to do something stupendous must come from within. You may be toying with plans for travel or an unusual project. The missing piece of a puzzle will fall into place this weekend.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Get your shopping and errands done today; you have something much better to do tomorrow! Pamper a loved one tonight. A candlelit dinner and soft music are definitely in order.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Key allies encourage your ambitions. Do not allow your imagination to run away with you. Although greater prosperity lies ahead, you must not become reckless.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A display of vigor will motivate others to follow your example. You can do a better job if the details are worked out in advance. Be specific. Curiosity is what keeps people young at heart.

Former prime minister gets egg on his face by protesters

NEW YORK — Like most politicians, Pierre Trudeau wound up with a little egg on his face. He didn't let it spoil a good time, though.

Pierre Trudeau doesn't let egg in his face spoil a good time.

The former Canadian escorting Barbra Streisand to a dinner at the New York Public Library when he was egged by someone in a group of protesters.

A library spokesman said Trudeau wasn't being singled out; he just happened to be in the way.

"He went in and was fine about it," spokesman Peter Casey said. "He just wiped it off and joined the party."

Trudeau and Streisand were attending the Elie Wiesel Foundation Humanitarian Award Dinner. The protesters, representing the Armenian Revolutionary Foundation, were demonstrating against the presence of another invitee, Turkish Prime Minister Tansu Ciller.

Police later arrested two men and charged them with disorderly conduct.

LOS ANGELES — Didja hear the one about how stand-up comedy has changed? Shelly Berman has, and he isn't laughing.

Berman, 68, says children today don't understand humor the way their predecessors like Lenny Bruce and Mike Nichols did.

"Something has happened to stand-up comedy," Berman said.

"What has happened, I think, is that the heirs of the tradition of outspoken comedy have adopted the trappings — the raunch, the language, the outrageousness — without understanding their content."

NEW YORK — Nothing scares movie tough guy Steven Seagal. Not even the possibility that his career may flame out as quickly as it took off.

"I'm thoroughly expecting to end up in the gutter, to no longer be the star that people think I am right now," Seagal says in the April 17 issue of Parade magazine.

"And that's OK. You can take away the money and the fame. . . . I could walk away from Hollywood tomorrow and not look back."

Seagal, a martial arts master, has cruised a violent road to stardom since his first movie "Above the Law." His other hits includes "Hard to Kill" and "Under Siege."

But he says what matters most to him are his wife, actress Kelly LeBrock, and his children.

"The most important seed I can sow in this life is my children and the love and knowledge that I can bestow upon them and the help I can give them," he said. "I'm a lucky man, but I don't take what I have for granted. I'm very thankful."

JACKSON, Miss. — Next to the New York Knicks, the Alcorn State University Braves might be Spike Lee's favorite team.

Spike Lee enjoys watching the Alcorn State University Braves.

Lee first became interested in Alcorn athletics after hearing about quarterback Steve "Air" McNair, a Heisman Trophy candidate. Lee attended a Braves football game this season, and will return April 28 as the guest speaker at Alcorn's all-sports banquet.

"We feel privileged to have a person of Lee's reputation speak to our athletes," said Cardell Jones, the athletic director and football coach at the small, predominantly black school.

"It is a good sign our program is moving in the right direction when you have people wanting to see you play. It is great to create this kind of interest."

— Peg Phillips, who plays the storekeeper Ruth-Anne on "Northern Exposure," will be a special guest at the Great Northwest-theme San Francisco ZooFest next Friday. Phillips, who is 76 and says she lived "for a few decades" in San Francisco and Marin County, started acting at 65.

— A burgundy and gold canopy at the entrance to Ivana Trump's townhouse on the ritzy Upper East Side of Manhattan has been removed at the order of the New York City Landmarks Commission, says the New York Observer.

— Sources in Major League Baseball told Roll Call that retiring Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., an Episcopalian priest and pal of Clarence Thomas', may become baseball commissioner, a job that pays something like $1.5 million and includes free tickets to ballgames.

Clintons earn $293,757 in '93, pay IRS $62,670

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton and Hillary Rodham Clinton paid $62,670 in federal taxes on an adjusted gross 1993 income of $293,757, their tax return showed Friday. For Clinton, it was his biggest salary ever.

The Clintons joined millions of other Americans in filing at the last minute.

Accounting for most of the income was Clinton's salary as president. But, $2,473 represented residual payments from his sax-playing appearance on the Arsenio Hall television show during the 1992 campaign.

■ More news/1E

The return also showed a $40,000 capital gain, generated by a blind trust that contains the Clintons' assets, including funds Mrs. Clinton received when she left the Rose Law Firm of Little Rock.

Because of overpayments, the Clintons were entitled to a refund of $7,862. They elected to put it toward their 1994 taxes.

It was the first time since Clinton began his public career in 1979 as attorney general of Arkansas that he earned more than his wife, a corporate lawyer who had long been the family' main breadwinner.

Of the total family income in 1993, the bulk of it is the president's salary of $189,167 — covering the period from Jan. 20 when he was inaugurated through the end of the year. A full year's presidential salary is $200,000.

The Clintons were among the 1.2 percent of Americans that the administration says are paying higher taxes as a result of last year's deficit-reduction package sponsored by the president. Generally, families with adjusted gross incomes over about $180,000 are subject to the higher rates.

Paying even more in taxes were Vice President Al Gore and his wife Tipper. They paid $153,744 in taxes on adjusted gross income of $453,907.

Denver carjackers shoot Japanese college student

DENVER (AP) — A Japanese college student was shot and his car stolen by two masked man who attacked him outside his apartment Friday, police said.

Kouichi Takamoto, 26, was in serious condition at Denver General Hospital with a bullet wound in the left shoulder.

Investigators did not believe the carjacking was racially motivated, said police Detective David Metzler.

The attack came less than a month after two students from Japan were shot and killed in a carjacking in Los Angeles.

That attack, which prompted an apology from President Clinton to the Japanese government, revived fears in Japan about violence in America that had flared in 1992 when a Japanese high school student looking for a Halloween party was fatally shot by a Louisiana homeowner who mistook him for a prowler.

Takamoto, from Ashiya City, has lived in Denver for about six years and is majoring in travel and tourism at National College, a small private school that specializes in business and computers.

Takamoto drove into the parking lot at his apartment complex early Friday and was approached by two armed men who demanded his money and his 1987 Toyota, Metzler said.

Takamoto, who speaks poor English, handed over his cash but then was shot when he yelled for help, Metzler said.

The car was recovered a few hours later in Aurora, about five miles away.

The shooting roused several apartment complex residents, who ran to help Takamoto.

Judge urges deal in Menendez case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A judge urged prosecutors and attorneys for the Menendez brothers Friday to reach a plea agreement rather than have them retried on murder charges in the slaying of their wealthy parents.

Superior Court Judge Stanley Weisberg told both sides to make a deal before a hearing scheduled for June 27.

After that hearing, the judge will decide if the brothers get separate juries in the second trial, as they did in the first.

Both juries deadlocked after the first trial.

Erik, 23, and Lyle, 26, say they killed their parents in 1989 after years of abuse. Prosecutors say they were driven by greed for their parents' $14 million estate.

Judge: Officials can attend prayer lunch

DENVER (AP) — Public officials can participate in a prayer luncheon on youth violence without violating the constitutional separation of church and state, a judge recently ruled.

Denver District Judge Larry Naves refused a request from the Freedom from Religion Foundation to bar four officials, including Gov. Roy Romer and Denver Mayor Wellington Webb, from any involvement in the luncheon beyond attending the event as private citizens.

"It is consistent with their jobs for Romer and Webb to appear," Naves said.

The third official, District Attorney Bill Ritter, was named keynote speaker. Naves said Ritter should be able to address the gathering because of his expertise in the field of youth violence. The fourth, Colorado House Speaker Chuck Berry, is scheduled to give a Bible reading.

The Freedom from Religion Foundation group filed a court complaint asking that the officials be barred from promoting or endorsing the nonsectarian Colorado Prayer Luncheon. The event is sponsored by the Denver Leadership Foundation, a civic group.

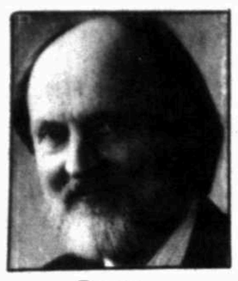

"All we are really asking is that they not go and participate in an official capacity and not speak from the rostrum," said Robert Tiernan, the foundation's attorney.

The nonprofit, educational foundation is based in Madison, Wis., and promotes separation of church and state.

Researcher to conduct free teaching study

Staff Report

Dwight A. Pryor, president of the Center for Judaic-Christian Studies in Dayton, Ohio, is to conduct a free teaching seminar at the Best Western, 3100 W. Wall Ave., Friday and April 23.

Pryor

His subject will be "New Discoveries About Jesus and the Early Church."

Drawing upon the latest research in Israel — including archaeology, Jewish history and rabbinic literature and Gospel studies — Pryor will present a picture of the rabbi Jesus and the worship of the early church.

All area pastors are invited to a complimentary lunch with Pryor at noon Friday at the Best Western.

The first teaching session Friday is at 7 p.m. Registration begins at 6:30 p.m. The Sounds of Victory tambourine ensemble from Crossroads Christian Fellowship will open the evening program.

Activities April 23 begin with registration at 9:30 a.m. followed by praise and worship at 10 a.m. The teaching sessions are at 10:15 and 11:15 a.m. and 2 p.m. There will be Hebrew singing and dancing after the lunch break.

Pryor will speak April 24 at the 8:30 and 11 a.m. worship services at St. Paul United Methodist Church, 4501 Thomason Drive.

Pryor's undergraduate studies were in philosophy at the University of Oklahoma and his graduate schooling was in philosophy and Hebrew studies at the University of Texas, Austin. In 1984, he established the Center for Judaic-Christian Studies, an educational Christian ministry.

Pryor is a founding member of the board of governors of the Jerusalem School for Synoptic Research in Israel, a research team of Jewish and Christian scholars studying the life of Jesus in the context of the culture, history, geography and archaeology of the Second Temple era. He serves on the Advisory Council of Bridges for Peace.

Study relates religious upbringing to healthy, better sex life for men

By David Briggs
Associated Press

A religious upbringing can lead to an excellent sex life, especially when a passionate marriage bed is no longer considered one of life's guilty pleasures, new research indicates.

Drawing from his experience of more than 25 years of in-depth interviews as a psychotherapist and other studies, the dean of the School of Psychology at Fuller Theological Seminary in Pasadena, Calif., says in a new book that religion has a generally positive effect on male sexuality.

In his own study of 600 men who describe themselves as religious, large majorities said their religious views increased their sexual self-control, respect for women and understanding of the role sex plays in human life, while relatively few respondents said it produced a lot of guilt, Dr. Archibald Hart reported in "The Sexual Man," due out next month from Word Publishing.

"It is very possible that the other values communicated in a deeply Christian home such as love, respect for women, care for the whole family and an essentially high standard of morality have positive effects on a man's adult sexuality," Hart said.

In addition to his own work as a psychotherapist, Hart said in his 16 years of teaching at the seminary, students were required to write a confidential paper addressing personal issues including their struggles with sexuality.

For the book, Hart also conducted his own study by distributing questionnaires at two conferences and mailing them to 1,000 men on a seminary mailing list. One hundred fifty men returned surveys at conferences and 450 responded to the mailed questionaires. The respondents, many of them Protestant clergy, ranged in age from 17 to 72.

He said the sample he studied does not in any way represent the national male population, but does offer a glimpse into how men who consider themselves to be religious and of high moral standards experience sex.

The results were encouraging, he said.

Most respondents, including an especially high number of people brought up in religious households, described their sex lives as excellent or good. Only a handful of respondents said their current religious views distorted their sexuality, Hart reported.

"I expected more men to blame their religious upbringing for sexual problems," Hart said. "But most report they're healthier sexually because of a religious upbringing."

The Rev. Andrew Greeley, a Catholic sociologist from the University of Chicago, said because the study was not made of a random sample, no scientific conclusions can be drawn.

"I don't think he's wrong, but I don't think he's made the case either," Greeley said.

Lawrence Young, a sociologist at Brigham Young University, said as long as it is understood the survey was done among a "fairly biased sample," the research is revealing of the sexual fulfillment reported by conservative Protestants.

"Their world view is monogamous, but it is certainly not sexually repressed in a Victorian sense," Young said.

In addition to the values of respect and self-control noted by Hart, Young said other characteristics of conservative Protestants that would lead to a better sex life include a shared understanding "of the rules of the game" that reduce uncertainty and promote confidence between partners.

Despite the positive findings, Hart said guilt and a failure to recognize the power of the male sex drive still causes unnecessary loss of self-esteem among many men.

"I hardly ever encounter a good man who doesn't have some sexual damage because of a deeply rooted, false sense of guilt. Many have learned to ignore it, but it is there nevertheless, working its damage in the background," Hart said.

Even if some people will be disappointed he did not use the book to mount a tirade against sexual sin, Hart said that was not his purpose.

Raven blasts Diablos

■ Luis Raven belts two home runs, including a grand slam to ignite a nine-run sixth inning in the Angels' 13-7 win.

By Bill Petitt
Staff Writer

While most people spent Friday night totaling their 1993 taxes, Midland Angels outfielder Luis Raven was adding up some big numbers himself.

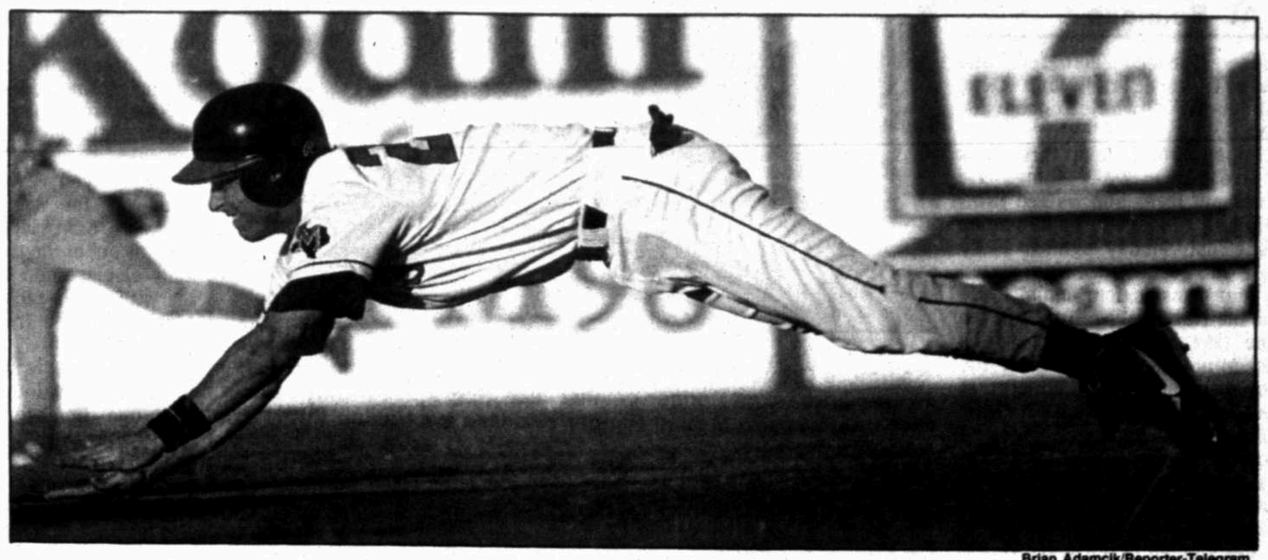

Raven continued his assault on professional baseball with two home runs, including a grand slam to break open a close game as the Angels stayed hot, defeating the El Paso Diablos 13-7 at Angels Stadium.

With the win, Midland regained sole possession of first place in the Texas League's Western Division, one game ahead of the Diablos.

At the onset, it looked like a pitcher's duel between Angel starter Pete Janicki and Chris George of El Paso. Both rolled through the first three innings. Midland scored twice of George in the second off one hit to take a 2-0 lead.

But pitching soon gave way as the two teams, which features seven of the top 10 hitters in the Texas League going into the game, began to make contact.

El Paso took a 4-3 lead in the sixth inning after a Randy Lofton single scored B.J. Surhoff and Scott Talanoa with two outs.

Brian Adamcik/Reporter-Telegram

Midland Angel first baseman Chris Pritchett dives back to second base Friday at Angels Stadium trying to beat out a force play. Pritchett was called out on the play.

In the bottom of the sixth, the Angels roared through the Diablo bullpen like a Missouri leavy, scoring nine runs to blow the game wide open.

Raven dealt the biggest blow, a grand slam after El Paso manager Tim Ireland intentionally walked first baseman Chris Pritchett to load the bases with one out to create a double play situation.

"I was surprised they walked me," said Raven, who leads the Texas in virtually every offensive category. "I am hitting the ball right now, I've got a lot of RBI and base hits. I think they thought I couldn't homer twice in one game. I don't know what they were thinking."

The blast, which richocet off the Marlboro Man sign beyond the left field fence, turned a 7-4 game into an 11-4 lead for the Angels.

Opponents shock Midland netters

■ Only Midland High singles player Bonnie Terrazas has a shot at getting out of district after Friday's disappointing play.

By Amy Wolfenbarger
Staff Writer

ABILENE — The city of Midland's three best hopes for a regional tennis berth were derailed Friday in the high winds here at the District 4-5A tournament at the Abilene High courts.

Midland High's Bonnie Terrazas, however, has a chance to get back on track today with the possibility of a playback match.

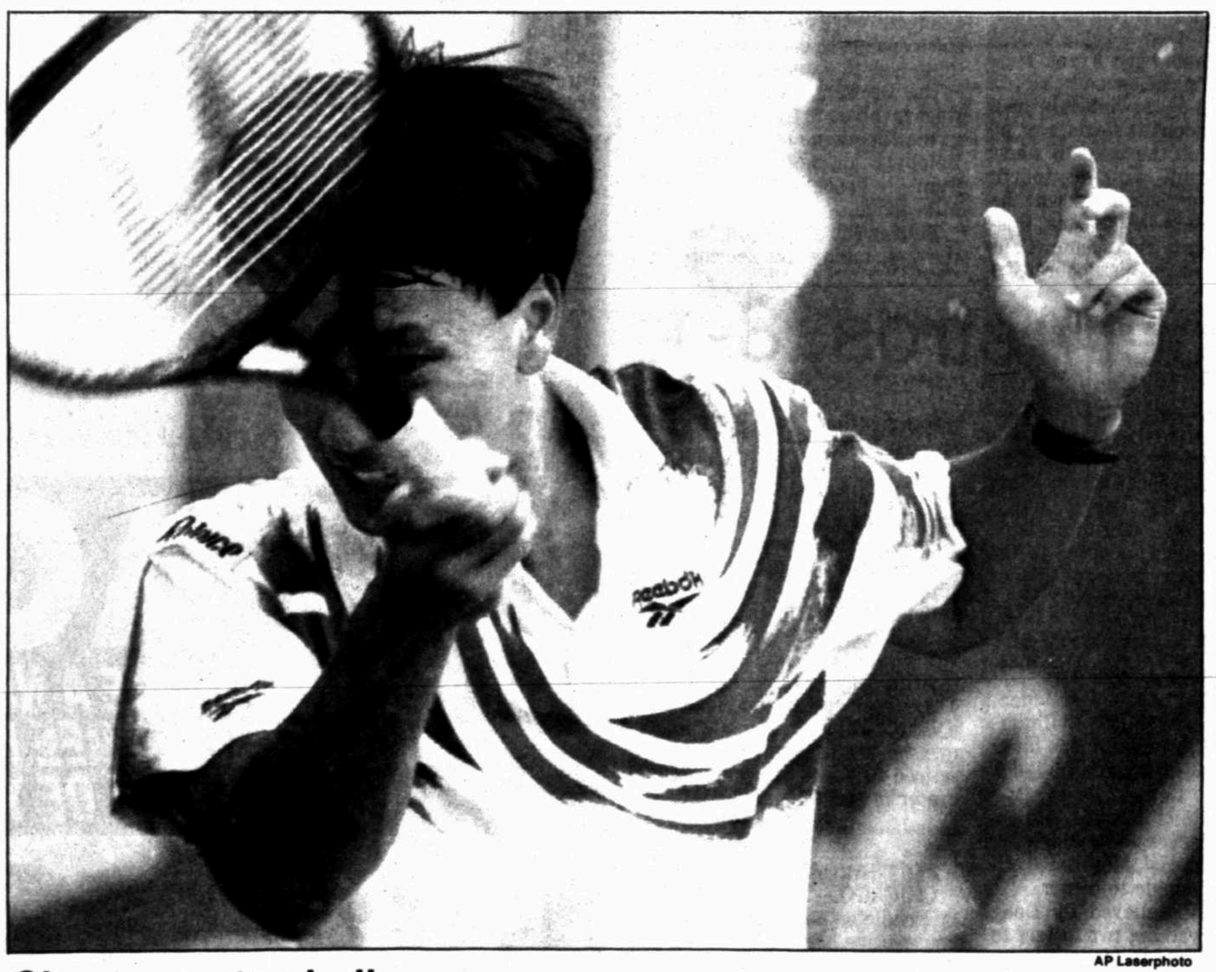

Midland's Kevin McIlvain and Midland Lee's David Stark were ousted from the boys singles draws with disappointing losses in the quarterfinals.

Terrazas, who entered the tournament as the No. 1 seed, survived to the semifinals where she lost to San Angelo Central's Stephanie Sidney, the third seed, by a score of 6-4, 6-4.

Terrazas moved to the third-place match where she will face the other semifinal loser, Ashlee Abrigg of Abilene Cooper at 9 a.m. If Sidney wins her final match, also played at 9, then Terrazas, if she wins, will get to play the loser of the final for the second-place spot and a regional berth.

If the other semifinal winner, Odessa Permian's Amber Hutson, defeats Sidney in the finals, then Sidney

Cowboys could get Bono

■ Sources say the Dallas Cowboys are trying to trade Ken Norton to San Franciso for backup 49er quarterback Steve Bono.

Associated Press

IRVING — The 49ers have made separate proposals that would deal Cowboys linebacker Ken Norton to San Francisco and quarterback Steve Bono to Dallas, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported Friday.

The newspaper said salary caps on both teams inspired the San Francisco offers.

The 49ers late Thursday sent Norton a "final" contract offer worth $8 million for five years, including a signing bonus of more than $1.5 million, sources told the Star-Telegram.

The proposal included a suggestion that Norton accept or reject the deal before the April 24-25 draft, at which time the 49ers will look in another direction.

Norton said he's undecided, but added that he does not expect to return to the Cowboys.

"That's the way it seems," said Norton, a Pro Bowler who has not received

Mojo strong favorite in 4-5A track

■ Midland Lee could give the Panthers a run for the league track title in Abilene.

By Amy Wolfenbarger
Staff Writer

The defending state champion Odessa Permian boys, winners of eight straight District 4-5A track titles, are the hands-down favorites to take the title again today at the district meet at Elmer Gray Stadium at Abilene Christian University.

Midland Lee and 1992 state champ Odessa High, however, have several strong performers and could give the Panthers a run for the crown if the Bronchos and Rebels can distribute the points effectively.

The meet begins at 10 a.m. with the field events. The running preliminaries begin at 1:30 p.m. and the running finals cap off the meet at 6 p.m. The top two qualifiers in each event will advance to the Region I-5A meet April 29-30.

Lee's girls along with Midland High's boys and girls teams are listed among the top in several individual performances in the district but probably do not have the depth to compete for the team titles. In the girls division, defending champ Abilene High, San Angelo Central and Permian are loaded down with talent and depth and should put up a fierce battle.

The Lee boys, led by field-event specialist Michael Nunn, have recorded several strong performances in the district including tops in all three jumps, second-best in the 400-meter relay and near the top in the 110 hurdles and the 300 hurdles.

Nunn currently has the top leap in the long jump (23 feet, 9¼ inches) and the triple jump (45-4¼) and is tied with teammate Daniel Hughes with the top high jump (6-4).

Sprinter Melvin Dunson has come on lately for the Rebels, recording the fourth-best time in the 100 (10.72 seconds) and anchoring the Lee 400 relay to a near defeat of a John Williams-anchored Permian relay. Jerry Stanford, Marlon Henry, and Roderick Mayfield team with Dunson and have the second-best relay time in the district (41.65), just five-tenths of a second off the Panthers' best.

"Melvin is really starting to run well," said Lee coach Mike Quimby.

MHS fights for playoff contention

By Bill Petitt

If someone told Midland High coach Rick Wood prior to the start of the District 4-5A baseball season his playoff aspirations would hang in the balance of a win over Abilene Cooper, the coach might have felt like he was staring at an 0-2 pitch from Nolan Ryan.

Helling gives Texas 1st win from 1994 starter

ARLINGTON — Rick Helling earned his first major league victory and became the first Texas starter win this season, pitching the Rangers past the Baltimore Orioles 8-3 Friday night.

Baltimore Oriole Raphael Palmeiro (25) argues with umpire Ken Kaiser and Texas Ranger catcher Ivan Rodriquez Friday in Arlington. Palmeiro argued Ranger pitcher Rick Helling threw at him intentionally.

■ AL Roundup

Jose Canseco homered and drove in three runs and Dean Palmer hit a two-run double for Texas.

Helling (1-0) gave up three runs on five hits in 7 2-3 innings. He struck out three and walked two.

Helling made his major league debut last Sunday against Baltimore and got a no-decision, giving up four runs in four innings. He was the Rangers' No. 1 pick in the June 1992 draft, was the team's 1993 minor league player of the year with an overall 13-9 record at Double-A and Triple-A.

The Orioles managed only one run on two hits off Helling in the first seven innings. Harold Baines homered in the second, and Baltimore did not get another hit until Baines singled in the seventh.

Canseco hit his second home run of the year in the fourth. He connected off Arthur Rhodes (0-2) after Will Clark singled.

The Rangers chased Rhodes in the sixth inning. Juan Gonzalez singled and Canseco walked off, and Palmer hit his two-run double off Mark Eichhorn.

Texas scored four times in the seventh inning against Brad Pennington. Will Clark and David Hulse hit RBI doubles, Canseco singled home another and one scored on a wild pitch.

DETROIT (AP) — Danny Tartabull and Paul O'Neill hit two-run homers and Jim Leyritz had a solo shot Friday night in New York's win over Detroit.

Melido Perez (1-0) held Detroit to three runs on seven hits in six innings and Steve Howe followed with two scoreless innings.

Trailing 7-3, the Tigers loaded the bases with no outs in the ninth. Pinch-hitter Junior Felix struck out on a 3-2 pitch that bounced, but Tony Phillips hit a two-run single off Xavier Hernandez.

Sterling Hitchcock retired Lou Whitaker on a popup and Jeff Reardon got pinch-hitter Eric Davis on a fly ball for his first save.

Royals 2, Indians 1

CLEVELAND — David Cone gave up five hits in eight innings and Greg Gagne doubled home the go-ahead run in the eighth with his first hit of the season as Kansas City beat Cleveland.

Cone (1-1) walked one and struck out three in a start that was pushed back several days because of a rainout and illness. He was hospitalized for two days last week because he was bleeding internally and vomiting blood after contracting a stomach virus.

Billy Brewer got two outs in the ninth. Hipolito Pichardo then retired Albert Belle on a grounder with a runner on third for his first major league save.

Dennis Martinez (0-2) was the hard-luck loser, giving up two runs and three hits in the eighth. He allowed only one hit in the first seven innings.

Sandy Alomar produced Cleveland's run with a leadoff home run in the third inning, his second.

Red Sox 5, White Sox 3

BOSTON — Roger Clemens quieted critics with one of his best performances since early last season, allowing three hits in eight innings as Boston defeated Chicago.

Clemens, who had a 10.13 ERA after two starts this year, has endured repeated choruses of "What's wrong with Roger?" since struggling through his worst-ever season in 1993.

But against the White Sox, he allowed only one run, striking out six and walking one. He retired 14 in a row between Dan Pasqua's second-inning double and Frank Thomas' homer in the seventh.

Clemens (1-0), a winner in just six of his previous 23 starts, was in trouble only in the seventh when Thomas led off with his fourth homer of the season down the right-field line. With two outs, Pasqua hit a shot to right-center field that Otis Nixon caught about three feet above the fence.

Mariners 9, Brewers 1

SEATTLE — Randy Johnson pitched a four-hitter and struck out 11 for his first victory of the season, leading Seattle over Milwaukee.

Johnson (1-1), who won 19 games last season and led the majors in strikeouts, walked one in his first complete game of the season.

Johnson hit Matt Mieske with a fastball in the batting helmet in the eighth and immediately rushed to the plate to see if Mieske was all right. Mieske stayed in the game.

Jay Buhner and Rich Amaral hit home runs for the Mariners. Ken Griffey Jr. hit a bases-loaded triple during a six-run fourth inning.

Both benches and bullpens emptied onto the field in the fourth when, just after Griffey's triple, Teddy Higuera (0-1) hit Buhner with a pitch above the elbow. Home plate umpire Jim McKean ejected Higuera.

Buhner attempted to charge the mound, but catcher Dave Nilsson grabbed him in a bearhug from behind. As Higuera was leaving the field, he crossed paths with Buhner, who was escorted to first base by McKean. The pair exchanged words but did not get close enough to each other for anything else to happen.

The Brewers and the Mariners were involved in a 30-minute brawl in the Kingdome in 1990 when Jim Lefebvre managed Seattle and Tom Trebelhorn managed Milwaukee.

Buhner hit a two-run homer in the first inning, his second of the

Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP) — Jeff Bagwell drove in four runs and Ken Caminiti hit a two-run homer as the Houston Astros beat the New York Mets 8-1 Friday night.

Bagwell and Steve Finley each hit solo homers for Houston to support a strong pitching performance by Doug Drabek, who held the Mets to three hits in eight innings.

Drabek (2-1), who beat the Mets for the second time in five days, had a shutout until Jeff Kent homered in the seventh. It was Kent's third homer in his last two games and increased his RBI total to 15.

The other two hits off Drabek came in the fourth inning — a leadoff bunt by Fernando Vina and two-out single by Kent. Drabek struck out five and walked one.

Pete Smith (1-2) lasted 5 2-3 innings, allowing five runs on five hits. It was his fourth loss to Houston in five career decisions against the Astros.

The Astros took a 2-0 lead in the second inning when Bagwell reached on a throwing error by third baseman Vina and Caminiti followed with his first homer of the season.

Houston made it 3-0 in the third on Finley's one-out triple and Bagwell's sacrifice fly.

Cardinals 10, Padres 6

ST. LOUIS — Sore-wristed Gregg Jefferies had two home runs and five RBIs and Bob Tewksbury won his third straight start as St. Louis beat the struggling Padres.

The Cardinals have won three in a row to tie Cincinnati for the NL Central lead. The Padres have lost six straight and are 1-10 overall, the worst record in the major leagues.

Jefferies, who took Thursday off after being hit by a pitch on his right wrist Wednesday, said before the game that it was still bothering him.

■ NL Roundup

But he didn't look like an ailing hitter against the Padres. Jefferies hit a two-run homer in the third off Scott Sanders, doubled in the fourth and hit a three-run homer off A.J. Sager in the sixth.

Phillies 3, Reds 1

PHILADELPHIA — Jeff Juden, acquired in the Mitch Williams trade, held Cincinnati to one hit in seven shutout innings as Philadelphia beat the Reds.

Juden, making only his fifth career start, lost his no-hit bid in the seventh when Hal Morris led off with a sharp single to center.

Juden (1-1), relieved by Doug Jones after walking two hitters to start the eighth, struck out a career-high nine and walked four in his Veterans Stadium debut. Jones finished for his second save.

Pirates 6, Dodgers 4

PITTSBURGH — Brian Hunter's two-run pinch single on reliever Jim Gott's first pitch broke an eighth-inning tie as Pittsburgh beat Los Angeles for its fifth straight victory.

Pittsburgh's bench continued to contribute big hits as the Pirates matched their longest winning streak of the 1993 season. Dave Clark, who was 2-for-3 with a two-run homer Friday, keyed two victories over the Padres earlier in the week with late-inning pinch hits.

The Pirates' bullpen blew a 4-2 lead for starter Zane Smith in the top of the eighth, but Dodgers reliever Gary Wayne (0-1) quickly got into trouble as Andy Van Slyke walked and first baseman Eric Karros was charged with an error after dropping an easy throw on Clark's sacrifice bunt.

Giants 6, Marlins 0

MIAMI — Bill Swift allowed six hits in 8 2-3 innings as San Francisco beat Florida.

Swift (2-1) retired 16 straight batters after Chuck Carr led off the Florida first with an infield hit. Carr was erased on a double play, and Swift didn't give up another hit until pinch-hitter Kurt Abbott's infield single with two out in the sixth.

Swift, who lowered his ERA to 0.42, struck out six and didn't walk a batter before leaving with two men on in the ninth. Dave Burba retired Benito Santiago on a fly to center to end the game.

Braves 19, Cubs 5

CHICAGO — Fred McGriff, Terry Pendleton and Tony Tarasco hit consecutive homers in the first inning and Atlanta scored the most runs in team history Friday, routing Chicago.

Deion Sanders and Ryan Klesko hit two-run homers in the eighth inning for the Braves, who had 24 hits. Sanders and Pendleton each drove in four runs.

Atlanta twice had scored 18 runs in a game, last September against Montreal and in 1973 against Pittsburgh. The Braves had 46 total bases, seven more than the previous Atlanta record and one shy of the franchise record.

Rockies 9, Expos 2

DENVER — Ellis Burks, recording the second Colorado "first" in as many days, hit a two-run, inside-the-park homer to lead the Rockies over Montreal.

One day after the Rockies got the first shutout victory in their history, Burks hit their first inside-the-park homer. Burks later left the game as a precaution after straining his left quadriceps muscle.

His sixth-inning hit caromed high off the right-field wall into the corner, and Burks easily beat the relay to the plate. Charlie Hayes, who had doubled, scored ahead of him.

MHS golfers take district

ABILENE — Midland High fired a final-round 308 to capture the District 4-5A Boys Golf Championship here Friday. It was the first time Midland High had won district in golf since 1979.

Jeremiah Luttrell took the medalist honor with a one-stroke win over Jason Ball of San Angelo. Luttrell, who led all four rounds, shot a 74 on Friday for a four-round total of 304, one shot better than Ball who shot a 68 on the final day.

Winds were gusting up to 40 m.p.h., MHS coach Aubrey Culley said.

"We played real steady and that was the secret," Culley said. "We didn't let it (the wind) blow us out of the tub and everybody else seemed to have trouble with it. We picked up about 11 shots on the front nine and held on."

Midland Lee, which qualified for the regional tournament a year ago, finished third in the field with a 1,273 cumulative score, 12 shots back of MHS.

Odessa Permian finished second in the tournament with a 1,267, six shots behind Midland.

Lee's Matt Clements and Brian Jeffreys earned all-district honors, finishing in a third-place tie with Brian Madison of Permian with a 309, four strokes behind Luttrell. Luttrell, Chris Owen and Craig Kuiper made the all-league team for MHS.

Italian soccer team cleared of bribe charge

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — Italy's Torino team was cleared by European soccer's governing body Friday of charges it tried to bribe referees during the 1991-92 season.

UEFA's control and disciplinary commission, after a month-long inquiry, said it found no proof of the allegations, which could have led to the team's expulsion from European competition.

TRAGEDY: Stark and McIlvain fall

(From 1D)

automatically gets the second-place trophy because of her earlier defeat of Terrazas.

That possibility of a playback was keeping Midland coach Tom Heiting focused on today's action despite what he called "outside factors" which played a part in Terrazas' semifinal loss.

"It's a tragedy," Heiting said of the outcome. "There were some outside factors to that match."

Heiting, however, preferred not to flesh out the details of those factors until the tournament is over and the district coaches get together for a meeting.

Terrazas has a bye for the first round and then defeated Michelle Tessen of Abilene 6-2, 6-0 in the quarterfinals.

McIlvain and Stark, however, will not get that second chance, after losing in the quarters.

Stark, who has had a strong spring season, fell to Abilene Cooper's Ryan Hughes 6-3, 6-2 in what Lee coach Steve Buck said was one of Stark's worst matches all season.

"It's going to be hard any time you lose, but if you play well, it's a little better," Buck said. "It was David's biggest disappointment. The wind was tough and it benefits some and hurts others...It is an equalizer sometimes."

Stark defeated Abilene's Derran Reese 6-0, 6-2 in the first round.

Disappointment followed McIlvain, which has been a spring theme for the Midland senior after playing strong team tennis in the fall. McIlvain fell 6-3, 4-6, 6-3 to Odessa High's Henry Gonzales, a player he has beaten twice this year.

"I haven't played that well in a while but I thought I was going to turn it around today (Friday)," McIlvain said. "I knew coming into the match that I should beat him. But then maybe he came in thinking he had nothing to lose."

McIlvain defeated Abilene's Robbie Ortega 6-3, 6-3 in the first round.

Here are results Friday of the Midland High and Midland Lee tennis teams in the District 4-5A tennis tournament at the Abilene High tennis courts:

TRACK: Henry with 2nd best 100 time

(From 1D)

"I'm really proud of the sprint relay."

Henry has the second-best time in the 100 (10.68) and fourth-best in the 200 (22.03). Mayfield will be involved in a bitter three-way battle in the 110 and 300 hurdle races. He has the third-best time in the 110s (14.26) behind Central's Rick Garza and Permian's Brandon Berger and the second best in the 300s behind Berger.

Mayfield and Berger have battled all season, with each taking their share of gold medals, Quimby said.

"Roderick has run against Berger three times in the 110s and beaten him twice and four times in the 300s and Berger beat him three times," Quimby said.

For the Midland boys, Charlie Juarez, Charles Christ and the 1,600 relay are strong contenders for a regional berth.

Juarez has the second-best time in the 400 (48.12) behind defending district champ Russell Collins of Odessa (48.04). Christ is the defending district champ in the 800 and currently has the best time (1:59.59). Christ and Juarez team up with Roy Coats and Tim Warren for the third-best time (3:19.49) behind Permian and Odessa.

Midland coach Monty Stumbaugh said it should be a real battle in that relay, especially between the Panthers and the Bulldogs, who finished first and second at last week's Tall City Relays.

"I thought we did well (last week)," Stumbaugh said. "That's the best we've run all year. We switched the order around a little bit and it worked out well. The guys are a little mad, though, because this is the first time all year that Permian has beaten us."

In the girls division, Midland High has three individuals near the top of the rankings in the district. Kathy Hennessy has the second-best time in the 800 (2:32.20) while Toya Zachery has the third-best mark in the 100 (12.12). Kim Hennessy, Kathy's twin, has the fourth-best clocking in the 400 (1:02.6).

Midland coach Susan Nix said after the Tall City Relays, "This is a great time for us to be competing like we did right before district. The girls are pumped."

Marcha Tennen is the only Lady Rebel ranked near the top of the district standings with a 36-7 mark in the shot put, which puts her fourth.

Lee coach Bill Martin said he feels Tennen has a good chance to do well at the district meet.

"If she will throw what she is capable of throwing, she can place in district," Martin said.

MHS: Lant to start against Cooper

(From 1D)

though the Cougars are 8-1 in league play, they were soundly beaten by Midland Lee 21-3 in a five-inning game and survived close calls against Odessa High (4-3 in 12 innings) and against Midland High (9-8 in Abilene).

Midland High will try to knock off the staggering giant today at 2 p.m. at Angels Stadium.

The Bulldogs trail third-place Odessa Permian by two-and-a-half-games with four contests to play.

In the first meeting of the year, Midland held an 8-5 lead into the bottom of the seventh inning, but Cooper rolled up four runs on two Midland errors and a wild pitch in the final at bat to squeak out a win.

"I think the kids will go out there with enough confidence in their minds that they can beat Cooper," said Wood. "We had them right where we wanted to last time, they just took it away. It's not that we gave it to them, they came out and hit the ball. I'm extremely confident that we can go out there and beat them and I think the kids feel that way."

Midland will start Keith Lant. The sophomore is 1-3 with a 5.91 earned run average in district play. He pitched in relief in the first meeting, picking up the loss.

"In our situation here we don't have the depth and Keith was a position player," said Wood. "He probably didn't get the warm up that he should have had, but that's something that you have to live with when you don't have many pitchers."

Cooper will start Brad Hicks. He was tagged for five runs in 3⅓ innings in the first meeting, but he struck out 14 while allowing three hits in 7⅓ innings in a relief appearance against Odessa High.

"We started swinging the bat when we played them last time," said Wood. "I think we'll go out there confident that we can hit whoever they put out there, because we saw three of the pitchers the last time."

Elsewhere, Midland Lee will travel to Abilene to face last-place Abilene High and San Angelo is at Odessa High. Lee clinched a playoff spot with Tuesday's 8-7 win over Odessa High.

No. 15 Rice beats No. 25 TCU

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Rice's Chris Boni hit a two-run home run then reliever Tim Byrdak pitched three hitless innings Friday as the No. 15 Owls beat No. 23 Texas Christian, 5-4.

Byrdak walked one batter but retired nine more in three innings as he picked up his eighth save for Rice (29-14, 10-3 Southwest Conference).

Reid Ryan (5-5), who gave up the home run to Boni, took the loss for the Frogs.

Baylor 6, Texas 2

WACO — Baylor right fielder Mark Martin hit a bases-loaded triple in the fifth inning, breaking open a close game and leading the Bears to a victory over Texas.

The Longhorns (28-16, 16-7 Southwest Conference) led 2-1 before Martin's triple, his only hit in four tries.

NORTON: 49ers shop Bono

a bid from the Cowboys. "I learned a long time ago that it's business and not to take it personally. You can't let your feelings get involved."

Sources also said the 49ers are offering Bono to the Cowboys in exchange for a second-round pick, but they might be forced to settle for a mid-rounder.

Bono could be willing to renegotiate his contract to better fit the Cowboys' $700,000-a-year parameters, the sources said.

Both Norton's probable departure from Dallas and Bono's possible departure from San Francisco are results of the salary-cap pinch. Cowboys officials said they cannot justify a $1 million linebacker. San Francisco officials said they might not be able to afford Norton unless they free themselves of Bono's $1 million-plus salary.

"We are exploring trading Steve Bono," said 49ers president Carmen Policy. "Accommodating him is one of our concerns. So is getting something decent for him, even though it might not be a seller's market."

Boys death linked to heart disease

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A diseased heart caused the death of a 9-year-old boy who died hours after being hit in the head with a baseball, investigators said Friday.

Timothy Richard Herman of La Crescenta died late Wednesday, about four hours after being hit with a pitched ball during a game at La Crescenta Valley Park. He was wearing a helmet.

The fourth-grader continued playing, showing no ill effects, but later lost consciousness and stopped breathing at home, authorities said. He was rushed to a hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

Scott Carrier, a spokesman for the Los Angeles County coroner's office, said the boy did not die from being hit with the pitched ball.

"There was no fracture of the skull or injury to the brain observed," he said.

Two tied in Senior golf play

Associated Press

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. — Ray Floyd and Larry Mowry emerged as the halfway leaders Friday when other would-be contenders ran afoul of the back nine in the PGA Seniors Championship.

Jack Nicklaus, 1993 senior player of the year Dave Stockton and Jim Colbert all blew leads over the windswept finishing holes of the PGA National Golf Club.

Floyd also was punished by the back, taking a double bogey from the water on the 15th hole. He finished with a 69 and was tied at 138, 6-under par, with Mowry, who won this title in 1989 and has been fighting a serious allergy problem ever since.

■ Golf Roundup

Mowry shot 68 and did the best job of handling the intimidating back. He played it in 35, 1-under par, one of only eight sub-par scores on that side all day.

"This is a golf course," Nicklaus said, "where you better get a good start because it's tough to finish."

His round confirmed that assessment. Nicklaus chipped in for an eagle on the sixth hole, birdied the next two and, at that point, was tied for the lead at 6-under.

But he played the back in 39 and, with another 71, was four off the pace at 142.

Colbert, Stockton and Lee Trevino shared second at 139, one back, and each had back nine problems.

Trevino hit one in the water and made double bogey on the 11th in a round of 69. "I mis-clubbed," he said of the water ball. "I don't know why, but I do it on that hole every time."

Colbert played the front in 32, went to 9-under for the tournament with a birdie on the 10th, then suffered a slow erosion with a backside 39 that left him with a 71.

Heritage Classic

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. — David Frost's record-breaking round led a second day of low scores and low wind in the Heritage Classic.

Frost had 10 birdies on the way to a Harbour Town-record 10-under 61. His 131 total left him one stroke in front of Jim McGovern and Larry Mize and two ahead of former Heritage winners Greg Norman and Hale Irwin.

This time, it was Frost and other morning starters like McGovern, Norman, Irwin and first-round co-leader Bob Estes who battered the toothless layout, still minus its characteristic swirling gusts.

"It helped that I was playing early in the morning, when the winds were OK, the greens were a little softer and freshly cut," Frost said. "Those are the things that help you shoot a low round. It's a lot harder to do it Sunday afternoon teeing off in the last group."

Frost finished two better than the record set by Jack Nicklaus in 1975 and tied by Denis Watson (1984), Jim Hallet (1988), Wayne Levi (1989) and Ray Floyd (1992). Levi accomplished his during the Nabisco Championships held at Harbour Town.

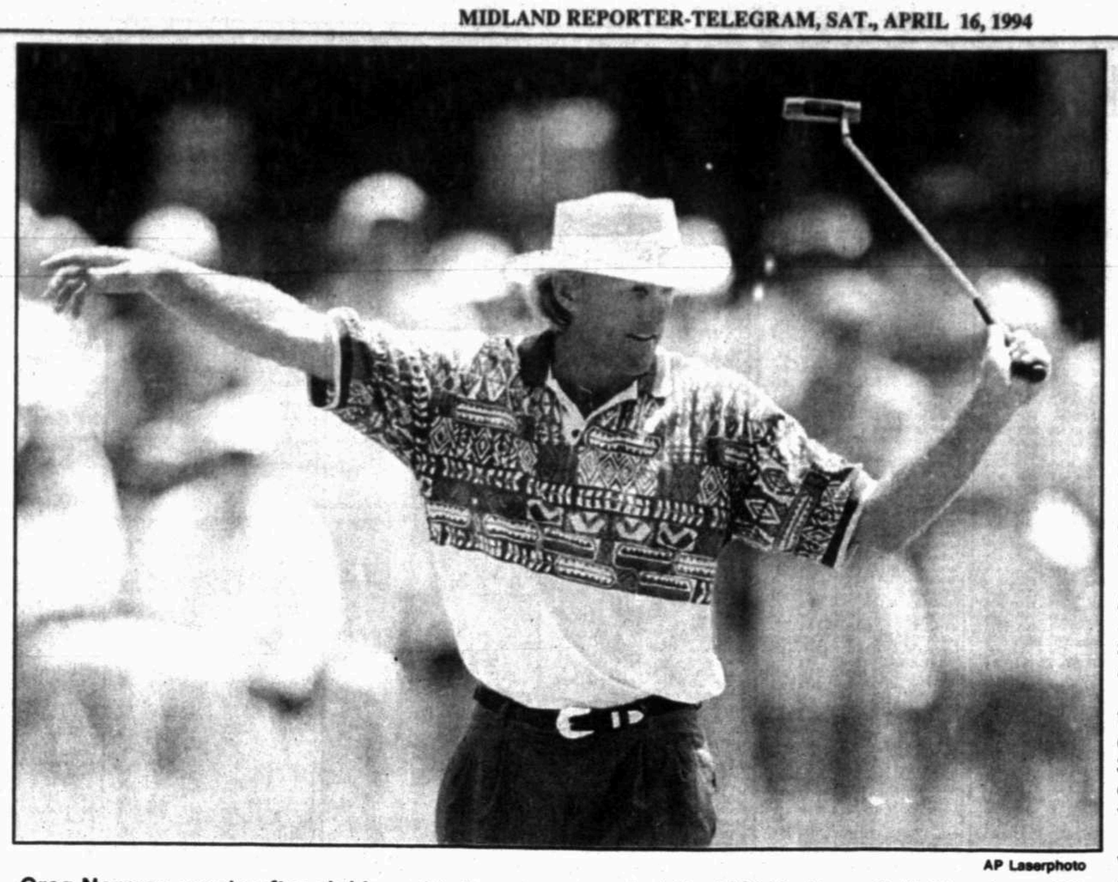

LPGA-Atlanta

STOCKBRIDGE, Ga. — Nancy Ramsbottom and Judy Dickinson each posted 5-under-par 65s to share the lead before thunderstorms postponed the finish of the first round of the LPGA Atlanta Women's Championship.

Sixty players in the field of 144 completed play before the action was suspended until 7:45 a.m. Saturday.

"The LPGA regulations give us discretion," said Suzanne Johnson, director of tournament operations. "If half the field has finished, we may cancel it if we choose to. If only 25 percent would have finished, we probably would have canceled."

Johnson said tournament officials were allowing one or two hours to finish the second round Sunday morning, and they are prepared to carry the tournament over to Monday if necessary.

Irvan tops mark, takes Union pole

NORTH WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP) — Ernie Irvan beat the clock, the storms and the record book Friday to take the pole for the First Union 400.

Irvan drove a Ford to a fast lap of 119.016 mph on the .625-mile banked oval. He broke the event record of 117.616 mph set by Dale Earnhardt last April, leading a 16-car convoy of drivers who bettered the old mark.

"The most important thing is we got all of qualifying in today," said Irvan, who helped extend Ford's streak of pole positions to seven in as many races this season.

Irvan is going for his third victory this season. He's had three other top five finishes, but was 33rd in the Food City 500 after encountering engine trouble. There was no trouble this time out.

"The car's been real fast since we got here and then we got a real good lap in," he said. "The car went through one and two real quick and then came back to the finish line quick, too. The conditions were fast when we went out."

The 46 drivers trying to take 34 spots at North Wilkesboro had the edge of cool temperatures, in contrast to the 80-degree weather which had been anticipated to heat the track and slow the field.

At the same time, qualifying was held under gray skies that were the result of a storm system that dumped heavy rain over western North Carolina and spawned tornadoes in Tennessee and Kentucky.

Qualifying was preceded by dark clouds and gusty wind, but the field got off as scheduled. About 30 minutes into qualifying, light rain began to fall, halting trials as Darrell Waltrip started to take his Chevrolet out. After a delay of about 15 minutes, qualifying resumed.

More Sports/8D

"It's a deal where you can't over-drive your car and you can't under-drive your car," Irvan said of the North Wilkesboro track. "In a lot of ways, you have to let the car work and you let the tires work and have everything stick."

Irvan's run, which came after the brief delay, bumped Brett Bodine, who was looking to use the pole as a springboard to his first victory this season after two finishes in the top 10. Bodine, whose lone career victory was in the 1990 First Union 400, had a speed of 118.834 mph.

"We went back a few years in the notebook to a set-up we ran here when we used to do well here," Bodine said.

Fords took the top five qualifying spots and seven of the first 10. Ted Musgrave qualified third at 118.802 mph, Bill Elliott followed at 118.502 and Geoff Bodine was next at 118.353.

The next five were Greg Sacks in a Ford at 118.272, Sterling Marlin in a Chevrolet at 118.234, and Jimmy Spencer in a Ford at 118.085. Ken Schrader and Terry Labonte drove Chevrolets to the next two spots.

Earnhardt, who took the lead from Irvan in the Winston Cup points race by winning at Bristol last weekend, qualified 19th.

Positions 20 through 34 will be determined in Saturday's qualifying, although the weather forecast calls for more rain. Among those who will either try to improve their times or sit on their Friday laps will be Ricky Rudd, Kyle Petty, Dale Jarrett and Harry Gant, who is in his last season as a Winston Cup driver.

Late Jackson jumper gives Mavs rare win

Associated Press

DALLAS — Jim Jackson's 8-foot jumper with 3.4 seconds to play gave the Dallas Mavericks a 99-97 victory over Denver on Friday night, preventing the Nuggets from clinching a spot in the NBA playoffs.

LaPhonso Ellis made one of two free throws to tie the game at 97-97 with 6.1 seconds to play. Jackson drove from the left side, stopped in the lane and hit the short shot to give the Mavericks their second straight victory.

The Nuggets could have clinched the berth by winning Friday night and having the Los Angeles Lakers lose to Portland.

Sean Rooks paced the Mavericks with 24 points. Jamal Mashburn added 21 points and Jackson had 20.

Ellis scored 23 points to lead Denver.

Pacers 130, Timberwolves 112

MINNEAPOLIS — Rik Smits scored 30 points, including 13 as Indiana tied a team record with 44 points in the first quarter on the way to a victory over the Minnesota Timberwolves.

Bulls 88, Hornets 85

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — B.J. Armstrong's 3-pointer with 4.5 seconds left Friday night snapped a tie and gave Chicago a victory over Charlotte, putting a serious dent in the Hornets' playoff hopes.

The victory was Chicago's 10th straight, matching a season-high win streak for the Bulls.

Hawks 105, Bucks 96

MILWAUKEE — The Atlanta Hawks stayed in a tie for the Eastern Conference lead as Kevin Willis had 24 points and 18 rebounds and Danny Manning 23 points in a victory over Milwaukee.

The Hawks won all five games in the season series between the two teams and handed the Bucks their seventh consecutive defeat. Milwaukee has the worst record in the Eastern Conference.

Celtics 113, Magic 110 2OT

BOSTON — Dee Brown's two free throws gave Boston the lead for good with 1:08 left in the second overtime, and the Celtics beat the Orlando Magic despite 41 points by Shaquille O'Neal.

O'Neal, held to seven points after the third quarter, missed three of four free throws in the final minute after Brown had made the score 110-109.

Nets 119, Pistons 114 (OT)

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Kenny Anderson scored 12 of his career-high 45 points in overtime and added 14 assists as the New Jersey Nets handed the Detroit Pistons their eighth straight loss.

Anderson, whose two free throws with three seconds to play in regulation tied the score at 103, scored New Jersey's first eight points in the extra session as the Nets took a 112-107 lead.

Knicks 103, Bullets 90

NEW YORK — Reserves Anthony Mason and Herb Williams scored all but two of the points in a 12-0 fourth-quarter run that gave the New York Knicks a victory over Washington.

The Knicks, who beat the Bullets 111-106 on Thursday night and have defeated them nine straight times, trailed 80-79 before Mason sneaked inside to grab a missed free throw and score.

Cavaliers 109, Heat 100

RICHFIELD, Ohio — Mark Price scored 26 points and sparked a 14-2 fourth quarter run as the Cleveland Cavaliers defeated the Miami Heat.

ing (walking Pritchett to face Raven) that he might a hit into a double play," said Midland manager Mario Mendoza. "Right now, the way Luis is going to have got to watch it. Sometimes you take those gambles. If he would have hit into a double play they would have come out smelling like roses."

Chris Smith and Ty Boykin each had three-hit nights. Boykin ripped a triple in the second inning and later scored.

J.D. Ramirez, this week's Baseball Weekly's Minor League Player of the Week, had two hits along with shortstop Tim Harkrider and outfielder Emmitt Cohick.

Janicki made the longest professional start of his career with a 5⅓ inning stint. Janicki, a first round pick in the 1992 free agent draft, had not pitched past the second inning of a professional baseball game after missing the 1992 season with a stress fracture of his right elbow and a similiar injury the following season after an 1⅓ of work in his season debut.

Last Sunday, Janicki was roughed up for seven runs on seven hits in an 1⅓ in a 12-9 loss to Wichita.

"Like I said his next outing is going to be better and it was," said Mendoza. "I expected him to go six or seven innings. They started the sixth inning with an error and got a blooper to go ahead. Didn't pitch bad to those guys they just got some hits.

"I'm very pleased with his outing. I think you're going to see him doing better everytime out."

Relief pitcher Dom Johnson pitched up the win with 1⅓ innings of work. John Pricher shutout El Paso the final 1⅓ innings.

ANGEL NOTES: Raven leads professional baseball with 18 RBI through the first eight games of the season... he also leads the Texas League in home runs (5), hits (15), triple (3), extra-base hits (10) and run scored (13).

Young Spaniard surprises Edberg

NICE, France (AP) — Top-seeded Stefan Edberg was beaten by Spain's 20-year-old Alberto Berasategui 6-3, 6-2 Friday in the quarterfinals of the Nice Open.

Jim Courier, seeded No. 2, beat South Africa's Wayne Ferreira for the fifth consecutive time, 6-3, 6-2.

Marc Rosset of Switzerland saved five consecutive match points before beating Jordi Arrese of Spain, 6-4, 3-6, 7-6 (8-6) in a match that lasted almost three hours.

■ Nice Open

Slava Dosedel of the Czech Republic ended Thierry Guardiola's run with a 6-4, 7-6 (8-6) victory. Guardiola, who received a wild-card ticket to the tournament as a local player, upset No. 3 seed Magnus Gustafsson of Sweden in the first round.

Berasategui took advantage of Edberg's mistakes at the net for his latest big victory. He upset French Open champion Sergei Bruguera in Barcelona last week and has jumped to No. 34 in the ATP Tour rankings.

Courier needed a little more than an hour to beat Ferreira. The two-time French Open champion is rapidly gaining form and confidence.

Time has mellowed Tiger boss

By Harry Atkins
AP Sports Writer

DETROIT — Remaining calm in the face of defeat is commonplace to Sparky Anderson in his 25th season as a major-league manager.

It hasn't always been that way, however.

"I used to be a wild man," the Detroit Tigers' manager admits. "When I first got started, for the first 15 years, a loss affected me like a heart attack."

It began when he managed the Big Red Machine in Cincinnati during the 70s. Anderson was given one of the most talented teams ever assembled — a team expected to win.

When it didn't, Anderson permitted the pressure to get to him.

"If we lost at home, I wouldn't leave the house," he says. "If we needed anything from the store, my wife had to go get it. If we lost on the road, I stayed in my hotel room. I didn't want to see anybody."

He remained that way until he came to Detroit in 1979.

In those days, the Tigers were a cut or so below the Reds.

Anderson guided the Reds to 92 wins in 1978. But they fired him for finishing second. By comparison, the 1979 Tigers won only 56 games, yet Anderson was hailed as a savior.

"That was my first experience with a young, building ballclub," he says. "That's when I realized that the manager has nothing to do with winning ballgames. I realized it was the players.

"If you don't have talent in your lineup, you aren't going to win anything, anytime."

The Tigers, of course, had some talent — and more was on the way. By 1984, they were the best in baseball. Anderson was on top of the world again.

The rest is history.

He is the only manager to win a World Series title in both leagues, the only one to post 100-win seasons in both leagues. He has been manager of the year in both leagues.

If the Tigers win 79 games this season, Anderson will become the third-winningest manager in major league history.

At that point, he would rank behind only Connie Mack, who won 3,776 games, and John McGraw, who won 2,840.

"Believe me, I know what it means to be so high on that list," Anderson says. "I know that there is probably nobody ever going to pass me. I'll remain No. 3 of all time forever.

"And I also know I probably wouldn't be there if I hadn't been the way I was in the early years. But I'm telling you, it almost killed me. I couldn't go through that again."

It seems odd to hear a manager downplay his own importance, but it should be understood how deeply Anderson believes that the performance of the players controls virtually everything. He cites example after example, in every sport.

— Jimmy Johnson was 1-15 in his first season as coach of the Dallas Cowboys.

— Chuck Daly hasn't won an NBA title since leaving the Detroit Pistons for the New Jersey Nets.

— Dean Smith has had sustained success at North Carolina because the Tar Heels recruit great basketball players.

"If you ask me what I consider my best seasons, you'd be surprised at my answer," Anderson says. "First, I would say 1978. Yet that's the year I got fired.

"Next, I would say 1987. The Tigers did win that year, but I have no idea how we did it.

"Third, I would say 1993. We won 85 games last year. And, believe me, that was a miracle with the talent we had."

All a manager can do, he says, is set the tone. It is his job to harness the talent. But he can't be a miracle-worker.

"If you are waiting for me to come up with some grand plan, you'll be waiting for eternity," he says.

Warrant issued for A&M player

LUBBOCK (AP) — Lubbock County authorities issued an arrest warrant Friday for Texas A&M junior forward Joe Wilbert and charged him with misdemeanor assault on a Texas Tech basketball fan.

Wilbert, 21, is accused of Class A misdemeanor assault on Red Raider supporter William Scott Patterson during a postgame brawl last February.

Colin Killian of the A&M sports information office said the university attorney advised Wilbert not to comment.

"It's just an unfortunate incident and hopefully we'll get it resolved quickly," Killian said.

Jan Blacklock, misdemeanor prosecutor, said a court date would be set after Wilbert is arrested.

If convicted, Wilbert faces a maximum punishment of one year in jail and a $3,000 fine.

A brawl between Texas Tech fans and several A&M players broke out Feb. 5 at the Lubbock Coliseum as the Aggies attempted to leave the court. The scufflers punched and pushed for several minutes.

A&M won the game, 89-88.

Radio talk-show hosts run for office nationwide

By Katharine Q. Seelye
N.Y. Times News Service

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, Mich. — For years, radio talk shows have been sending messages to Congress. Now they are sending candidates.

In no less than nine races, radio hosts are taking off their headsets and taking to the hustings, hoping to convert their listeners to voters.

Fast on their feet and up on the news, the hosts generally make articulate, opinionated candidates in touch with their constituents. Perhaps most valuable of all, they start out with high name recognition, a huge advantage for an office-seekers.

Ronna Romney, a talk show host, says the skills she learned on the radio prepared her to run for the Senate seat being vacated by Donald Riegle Jr.

"I could never have done this if I hadn't done talk radio," she said. "Radio has taught me to go head on. I don't get rolled."

Other talk show hosts on the campaign trail include Janet Jeghelian, who is seeking the Republican nomination for the Senate in Massachusetts. Running for the House of Representatives are Perry Atkinson in Oregon, Bill Powell in Arkansas, Les Shively in Indiana, J.D. Hayworth in Arizona, and three Republicans in separate Florida districts: Beverly Kennedy, Wendell Griffith and Marc Little.

A talker in Seattle, Mike Siegel, considered a Senate race this year but has set his sights instead on the governor's contest in 1996.

Perhaps the best-known yakker-cum-candidate this year, Howard Stern of New York, who is seeking the Libertarian nomination for governor.

Congress already has its share of former television broadcasters. And it has had erstwhile radio personalities like Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina and Rep. Robert Dornan of California in its membership for years.

But theirs were individual cases; this year's bumper crop of talk show hosts grows out of a veritable movement, a result of the surging popularity and continuing evolution of that most populist of media, talk radio, which has long served as a vehicle for social backlashes.

In 1992 it became a vehicle for mainstream candidates to reach ordinary Americans who, like the candidates themselves, resented the established broadcasting and press outlets. Now, in what seems a natural progression, talk radio is producing its own candidates.

The hosts speak for their call-in audiences, not just to them. They share their callers' resentments, their conservative views and their yearning for common sense.

"I am the voice of the frustrated American," says Mrs. Romney.

The twin peaks of their frustration are big government and the mainstream press and broadcasters.

"They've outflanked the media elite and found a way to talk back," said Robert Lichter, co-director of the Center for Media and Public Affairs in Washington.

"The culture of national journalism is cosmopolitan, socially liberal, secular and in that sense out of touch with a lot of middle American concerns," he added. "Washington correspondents and New York-based network producers look at ordinary people the way

N.Y. police get charged for drugs, robbery, assault

By Larry Neumeister
Associated Press

NEW YORK — This time, the bad cops were so bad that the police commissioner wants to retire their badge numbers.

One policeman was caught on videotape stuffing money into his pants. Two others allegedly split $100,000 they found in a bag during an apartment search.

In all, a dozen officers from the 30th Precinct in Harlem are accused of federal and state crimes in the latest disclosures in the Police Department corruption scandal.

The bad apples used their badges "not for protection but as weapons," Commissioner William Bratton said, "to punish, to brutalize, to steal, to rob and to cheat."

Nine of the officers were arrested during overnight raids. Three others already had pleaded guilty, Bratton said Friday. Police also arrested eight civilians who allegedly were involved with officers in drug activities.

It was the latest in a string of corruption cases that may affect as many as 10 of the 75 precincts in the nation's largest police department.

The officers are accused of shaking down drug dealers for protection money; stealing drugs and money; making illegal searches; taking bribes; ignoring crime; tampering with evidence; lying; and, in one case, shooting a man while trying to get drugs from him.

Some were arrested on federal and state narcotics, civil rights and evidence tampering laws. Others were charged with state robbery, assault and witness intimidation.

All appeared in federal court Friday and bonds up to $250,000 were set in all but one case.

If convicted, two of the officers would face a maximum of life in prison on drug charges. The others would face maximum sentences ranging from seven to 82 years.

Authorities said the largest single theft involved two officers splitting $100,000 they found in a bag during an apartment search four years ago.

In another case, investigators had a hidden camera set up in a car that had a bag of money inside it. The camera recorded an officer entering the car and trying to stuff money into his pants.

When the money fell out of his pants leg, he picked it up and tried to stuff it in other parts of his clothes, Manhattan District Attorney Robert Morgenthau said.

At a news conference, Bratton held the officers' badges aloft.

"These are the property of the city of New York and it is my intention upon the conviction of any of these officers to retire their shields so that no other New York City police officer has to wear the shield that was used in such a dishonorable fashion," he said.

Study: One-third of renters can't afford 1 bedroom

WASHINGTON (AP) — One-third of renters in every state can't pay the prices charged for a one-bedroom apartment, according to a study of housing affordability released Friday.

The study, by the Low Income Housing Information Service, found that more than half the renters in the District of Columbia and four states — Hawaii, Illinois, Nebraska and New York — can't afford to rent a one-bedroom apartment.

The study was based on rent and income information provided by the Department of Housing and Urban Development. The study estimated affordability as 30 percent of the household's income, a standard used for federal housing subsidy programs.

Prices for two-bedroom units are even further beyond the reach of low- to moderate-income families, the study said. Three out of five renter households in the District of Columbia, Hawaii and New York can't afford a two-bedroom apartment, nor can half the renters in 14 other states.

Hawaii had the most expensive rental housing, ranging from $760 per month for a one-room efficiency to $1,563 per month for a four-bedroom apartment. An estimated 65 percent of Hawaii's renters could not afford a two-bedroom unit, the study said.

Montana was the most affordable, with rent ranging from $235 per month for an efficiency to $646 monthly for a four-bedroom unit.

Forty-four percent of Montana renters can't afford those prices, researchers said. A full-time worker there would have to earn at least $7.76 an hour in order to afford a two-bedroom apartment.

For families on welfare, the problem is even more profound, the study said. The fair-market rent for a two-bedroom apartment is more than the entire Aid to Families with Dependent Children grant for a three-person household in all but two states, Alaska and Vermont, researchers found.

"In all other states, even if households spend every penny they get on housing, they still cannot come up with what it costs to find an adequate unit," the study said. "Earnings need to be higher to pay for larger units."

Benefits program for domestic partners divides Austin residents

AUSTIN (AP) — Is the issue fairness and fiscal responsibility, or immorality and ill-spent tax money? Depends on which side's talking about health insurance for the unmarried partners of Austin city employees.

The program applies to heterosexuals, gays and lesbians. It faces a citywide vote next month.

The controversial benefit was approved last year by the City Council. But opponents gathered thousands of petition signatures to place it on the May 7 ballot.

Backers of the insurance program have geared up to fight the ballot proposition, which would limit city health insurance benefits to an employee's spouse, parents, children, siblings, grandparents, and spouse's parents and grandparents. A spouse would be defined as an employee's husband or wife.

Now the jabs are flying, with each side characterizing the other as radical.

"We think it's irresponsible spending by the city in light of all the other problems we have ... We believe that it is morally wrong," said the Rev. Charles Bullock. He's minister of Christ Memorial Independent Baptist Church and president of Concerned Texans Inc., a group that led the petition drive.

The city's program sends a message to young people that it's all right to live together without being married, and it condones illegal behavior because Texas has an anti-sodomy law on the books, he said.

Supporters of offering insurance benefits to employees' domestic partners say Bullock's group is wrong.

"This is not a vote on morality. This is a vote on fairness. This is a vote on equal benefits ... for equal work," said Hugh Strange, spokesman for the Mainstream Austin Coalition, a group formed to fight the proposition.

The program so far is well below initial cost estimates, which topped $700,000, Strange added. Ninety-eight of the 492 eligible city employees have signed up at a cost of less than $104,000, he said.

"This campaign ... is about one one-hundredth of 1 percent of the city budget," he said. Nearly 70 of the workers in the program are heterosexual, Strange said.

Rob Schneider, former associate state insurance commissioner who is with Consumers Union and supports the coalition, said uninsured people often do without less costly preventive care. They wait until an illness has progressed so far it requires treatment at a hospital emergency room, "the most expensive place in town," he said

"The decision to extend health insurance benefits is not only a fair thing to do, it is a fiscally responsible thing to do," he said.

The benefits are not free, he added. Domestic partners must foot 50 percent of the city's cost, plus co-payments and deductibles, he said.

Strange called Concerned Texans "part of the radical right and their national political movement to write their national political agenda into law."

An Austin win could give them momentum around the country, he said.

Bullock said his "grassroots" group has received no money from outside sources.

Tornado touches down near Houston, injures 12

CROSBY (AP) — A tornado plowed through a subdivision northeast of Houston Friday, injuring at least 12 people, flattening a church and causing damage to several buildings including a trailer park, authorities said.

The tornado hit about 5:15 p.m. at a trailer park and adjacent subdivision north of Crosby, which is 20 miles northeast of Houston.

"We have 12 confirmed injuries," said Harris County Sheriff's Sgt. M.A. Walker. "The injuries are moderate to minor. Right now we have no fatalities."

Residents said the Community Baptist Church was flattened and most homes were destroyed in the nearby Heathergate trailer park, about six miles north of Crosby.

"It looked like it came in on the treetops and twisted some of the tree limbs into the yards, and it looked like it just sat down on the trailer park and wiped it out," said Jim McCall, a resident of the Indian Shores subdivision.

McCall said some other homes were damaged in his subdivision, but the trailer park was hardest hit.

"They suffered a big loss," said McCall, whose own home wasn't damaged. "Probably about two-thirds of the trailer park was wiped out."

Janis Parker, spokeswoman for Emergency Medical Service in Crosby, said some injuries were serious.

"Possibly 500 to 1,000 people have been displaced and the Red Cross is on its way," she said.

The Red Cross planned to use the First Baptist Church in Crosby as a shelter.

Ms. Parker said the injured have been taken to Bay Coast Hospital, San Jacinto Methodist Hospital and Northeast Medical Center in Humble.

Four victims were taken to Northeast Medical Center, spokesman Tom Broad said. One woman was in critical condition and three men were in serious condition, he said.

"It was mostly lacerations to the forehead, fractures, hip injures and bruises from flying objects," Broad said.

Three people were admitted to San Jacinto Hospital and were in stable condition with minor injuries, a hospital spokeswoman said.

The golf course at Indian Shores Country Club also was damaged.

Bruce Motal, the club's golf pro, said the twister touched down near the pro shop just as he was getting ready to go home.

"Everything just broke loose — the wind and rain and everything — then all of a sudden I heard things snapping and debris flying and I took cover in the restroom," Motal said. "Everything just went black. It was terrible.

"The trees are snapped, twisted, broken in two. You can hardly get up and down the No. 9 fairway, it's so littered with trees."

No one was injured at the country club and few people were on the course when the tornado hit, Motal said.

"There were three guys on the north side of the course, and they said they jumped into the lake over there and hid," Motal said.

Laureen Chernow, a spokeswoman for the Department of Public Safety, said there were a total of two touchdowns near Indian Shores.

Richards tells cities not to squabble in base closings

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Ann Richards warned Texas cities Friday not to bad-mouth one another as the federal government launches another round of military base closings.

With a new base-closing panel to begin work in 1995, Richards said Texas cities must be ready to tout the importance of their military installations.

But they shouldn't undercut one another while trying to save their own bases, she said.

"I'm going to ask for one guarantee from you. I do not want to ever hear one community in Texas bad-mouth another Texas community or another Texas military installation in this process," Richards told a meeting of community and military leaders.

"This is a high-stakes competition. We cannot afford to allow ourselves to be divided and conquered by others who do not have our interests at heart. Believe me, the temptation will be there ... You can't forget that we are on the same side," she said.

Texas is home to some 20 Navy, Air Force and Army installations. The state lost bases in earlier rounds of closings, including air bases in Fort Worth and Austin, and naval air stations at Dallas and Beeville.

Next year, all defense facilities nationwide again will come under scrutiny. The 1995 round is expected to be the harshest, as government and defense leaders seek to trim the military's excess facilities to meet the needs of a pared-down force.

To help prepare, Richards gathered government, civic and military leaders from Texas communities with bases to hear from state and Pentagon officials, members of the 1993 independent Base Closure and Realignment Commission and cities that successfully saved their bases.

The governor said there's little doubt more closings are coming.

"The elected officials in Washington and the Pentagon have paid attention to what the public has said. The pubic is continuing to insist that we cut back on expenditures both in defense and in government in general," she said.

That message was underscored by Robert Bayer, deputy assistant secretary of defense, who said all branches of the armed forces are downsizing.

"In the long term, these are very, very substantial savings," said Bayer, an Air Force veteran who was stationed at five Texas bases.

Richards said Texas greatly values its military bases, which she said pump nearly $4 billion a year into the economy from salaries alone.

"We believe that every base we have in Texas is vital to the national defense. We are taking the posture that there is not a single base in this state that does not deserve, as an integral part of the defense of this nation, to exist."

She also said she expects fierce competition from other states hoping to convince the government to close more Texas bases while sparing their own.

"You've got to be prepared," Richards told the local leaders. "This is very, very tough business. Every state is going to be in there doing whatever is necessary for them to fight for their bases."

Richards said the key to saving Texas bases is for each community to begin preparing its arguments now.

Cities shouldn't try to win sympathy by detailing how economically devastating a base closing would be, she said.

Tapes released by National Archives, library include conversations about Kennedy slaying

AUSTIN (AP) — On March 2, 1967, then-Texas Gov. John Connally called his friend, President Lyndon Johnson, to relate a story that a news reporter told him.

Connally laid it out: President Kennedy's assassination was planned by Cuban leaders in revenge for an earlier botched attempt by the CIA to kill Fidel Castro.

It was a conspiracy theory that Johnson had heard before. He asked his top aides to check it out.

The Connally-Johnson telephone conversation dealing with Kennedy's slaying was one of many released Friday by the National Archives in Washington and the Lyndon Baines Johnson Library in Austin.

In other phone conversations, Johnson told aides to keep up with the investigation of New Orleans prosecutor Jim Garrison into Kennedy's slaying.

Garrison's theories and writings about the assassination formed the basis for Oliver Stone's 1991 movie "JFK."

Johnson, however, said he didn't believe the CIA-Cuba theory.

"The people here says there's no basis for it," Johnson told Connally.

Connally, riding in the front seat of the presidential limousine, was wounded when Kennedy, in the back seat, was slain in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963.

In a Feb. 18, 1967 conversation with then-Acting Attorney General Ramsey Clark, Johnson said, "I don't believe there is a thing in the world to it." He said the Cuban theory was as preposterous as if he were told that his wife Lady Bird Johnson "was taking dope."

But Johnson was cautious about the subject of the assassination, and the public's perception of it.

He told Clark to check into the theory of a Cuba-backed assassination because he had heard it from three reputable sources.

Johnson told Clark it would look bad if the theory turned out to be true and it became known that the administration had heard about it and did nothing.

"You ought to do what you think ought to be done to protect yourself," Johnson said.

Clark said then-U.S. Rep. Hale Boggs, a Democrat from Louisiana, had told him that Garrison was saying privately that Johnson "could be found in it someplace." Clark said he thought either Boggs was getting emotional, or that Garrison was "off his rocker."

In another conversation, Clark briefed Johnson the same day, Feb. 22, 1967, that Garrison's star witness, David Ferrie, died. Garrison said Ferrie committed suicide, but Clark said that the FBI told him he died of natural causes.

Clark said of Ferrie, "He sure picked a bad time to die." Johnson laughed.

Clark said he had thought of calling Garrison about the investigation, but feared that Garrison "could use that to try to escalate this thing."

In the conversation with Connally, the former governor told Johnson that a New York radio reporter said that Garrison could prove that one of Castro's lieutenant's sent four assassination teams to the United States.

One of those teams included Kennedy's assassin, Lee Harvey Oswald, Connally said.

Val Verde sheriff takes aim at Brady gun law

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The Val Verde County sheriff said Friday his department can't afford to comply with the Brady law, but a federal prosecutor contended that the officer can't legally challenge the new handgun control measure.

Sheriff J.R. Koog told U.S. District Judge Ed Prado that he expects to have to do 50 to 100 background checks per month under the Brady law.

"If I make a reasonable check, it will take me one week per check and would severely impact law enforcement operations in Val Verde County," said Koog, of Del Rio.

However, U.S. Justice Department attorney Michael Sitcov contended that the sheriff is overreacting. And he contended that Koog has no standing to seek a preliminary injunction against the Brady law.

The judge took the case under advisement.

The Brady law requires a five-day waiting period and background checks of people attempting to purchase handguns.

Under cross-examination by federal prosecutor Michael Sitcov, Koog said he has only done five background checks since the Brady law was enacted.

But Koog said his county has 42 registered firearms dealers and that "after things settle out," a large influx of background checks was anticipated.

Deputies would then have to go off the streets to do background checks which would "tie up all the time" of the department, said Koog.

His attorney, Steve Halbrook, said that the Brady law makes the sheriff subject to possible civil and criminal liability and that he is required to do the background checks.

But the law does not define what a "reasonable" check constitutes, the attorney said.

"If I don't do this, I could face criminal charges and civil lawsuits from both sides," Koog said.

He added that he has been sued as an individual four times since 1976 and did not want to face the possibility of more liability.

Koog filed a lawsuit last month challenging the Brady law, but his request for a temporary restraining order was rejected March 14. He is one of at least five sheriffs who have sued to halt enforcement of the Brady law.

Similar lawsuits have been filed in Arizona, Louisiana, Mississippi and Montana.

Museum defends banishment of breast-feeding mother

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Museum of Natural Science officials are defending their action banishing a woman who was breast-feeding her child, saying they don't discourage the activity but must cater to a cross section of the public.

"That's why we provide a place where women can go in privacy and change their child's diapers, nurse or whatever," spokesman Terrell Falk says. "But we don't allow people to eat, drink or take photographs in the exhibit areas."

About 150 protesters, mostly women and children, picketed the museum Thursday in support of an unidentified woman told to leave the facility's Faberge exhibit March 22 because she was breast-feeding her 7-month-old daughter.

"Breast-feeding is no longer a lifestyle choice," said Rega R. Waggett, a member of the pro-breast-feeding group, the La Leche League.

According to La Leche, the woman was discreetly breast-feeding her daughter while sitting on a dimly-lit, recessed bench.

Officials directed the woman to a downstairs bathroom that has a couch a few feet away from the toilet area.

"She was nursing inside the Faberge exhibit on a weekend afternoon, when it is very crowded," Falk said. "What we wanted her to do was go to a different part of the museum to feed her child, so that another patron could have a chance to see the exhibit."

Although the museum has no written policy forbidding breast-feeding, Falk said women have been permitted to nurse in less-trafficked areas upstairs.

"This woman was nursing right next to the centerpiece of the exhibit. And the complaints said she was openly nursing, not completely covered," Falk said.

Attending Thursday's rally was Maureen O'Reilly, a representative from the office of state Rep. Debra Danburg, D-Houston.

Childcare DIRECTORY

As a childcare provider, you are well aware of the vital concern for today's children by their parents and loved ones. For this reason we will be publishing our semi-annual Childcare Directory in the Midland Reporter-Telegram on Sunday, May 15, 1994.

Midland area parents have come to rely on this directory as a guide to good, safe, quality childcare. This section focuses on just that and gives the basic "who, what, where and when" of the quality providers in our area. As a provider you can reach parents with more information about the services that you provide by placing an ad in this Childcare Directory on Sunday, May 15th.

We offer advertising packages that range from 8" to 65" and include not only your advertisement but a photo about/of your facility, a story about your facility and a dot on the area map that indicates where you are located. We also offer rates for an advertisement only without the package plan. Plan to advertise you childcare facility on May 15th. To reserve space please call:
