LAYOUT OF NEW FACILITIES was the topic of a special, informal meeting of Rockport's board of parks and recreation Wednesday evening in Memorial Park. Here Howard Black, Bobby Jackson and Chairman George McCague consult the map drawn by the project architect showing proposed location of the new ballfields, jogging/exercise track, pavilion and other facilities planned for the park. Funding is to be through a federal Land-Water Conservation grant administered through the Texas Parks & Wildlife Department. Also at the park board session were Patty McArdle, Kathryn Winkelman and Cy Richards.

City hall included in capital improvements

By PAT BLAIR
Managing editor

A two-year capital improvements program that includes remodeling Rockport's City Hall, a new police station and an elevated water storage tank on the south end of the city was adopted by the city council along with a $3.3 million 1983-84 budget during the council's meeting Tuesday night.

City Manager Herman Johnson presented the budget — outlined in a public hearing on Sept. 20 — and the capital improvements program. Also adopted was the 1983-84 tax rate of 28 cents per $100 valuation, which is the same rate as for 1982-83.

Johnson said the capital improvements program proposed Tuesday night was in addition to the improvements to Memorial Park and expansion of the city's sanitary sewer plant, both being funded by federal grants.

Included in the program over the next two years is curbing, guttering and paving and installing storm sewers on Magnolia from Market to Concho.

Johnson said the city hopes to alleviate the flooding of the downtown area through this measure which is expected to cost around $344,000. The City Manager said the city anticipates $44,000 of this will be covered by assessments and another $168,000 is expected to come from city funds set aside previously for this. That leaves $132,000 that the city will have to meet from other funds.

Another curb, gutter and paving project proposed by the city is on Austin Street east of H.E.B. and a third that is still a "possibility" is around First National Bank to take care of flooding in that area.

The city plans an addition to City Hall that will include a 40-by-40 addition on the first level plus a second floor on the structure. Officials have estimated this will cost $180-$200,000, Johnson said. City officials in recent years have discussed the need for a new or expanded city building to alleviate overcrowded conditions in the existing structure.

Also planned to solve problems of overcrowding is a new police station. Johnson said the city is considering selling certificates of obligation to fund this project, estimated to cost $140-$142,000. "I think with the increase in our (taxable) value we can sell certificates of obligation and it won't affect our tax rate," Johnson said.

Also proposed is the covering of a portion of the effluent ditch through Little Bay Shores. The cost of the first phase of this project, Johnson said, is estimated at $320,000, with the money to come from a drainage fee being assessed developers.

The city proposes a 500,000-gallon elevated storage tank to serve the south end of town, Johnson said. There is presently no water storage facility in south Rockport. He said financing for this project is proposed through a bond issue that would have to be passed by the Aransas County Conservation and Reclamation District.

Also planned in the proposed capital improvements project is construction of a new

Fulton sets first reading on subdivision ordinance

FULTON — The town council will hold the first reading on a proposed subdivision ordinance at special meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 4, it was announced after council members went over the proposed ordinance during a workshop meeting Tuesday, Sept. 27.

The proposed subdivision ordinance will establish a half-mile extraterritorial jurisdiction for the Town of Fulton, require all subdivision plats to be approved by a planning and zoning commission, provide utility easements to the town and set up guidelines for the eventual establishment of sanitary sewers.

The ordinance may be amended through public hearing and subsequent recommendations of the planning commission and city council.

Those found in violation of the ordinance are subject to a fine not less than $100 nor more than $200 for each parcel of land. All ordinances in conflict with proposed subdivision ordinance will be automatically repealed at the time it is adopted.

The ordinance will be read in meetings at 7 p.m. Tuesdays, Oct. 4, 11 and 18.

During the Sept. 27 meeting, the budget was read for the second time. Also read for the second time was the intended use of $2,500 in revenue sharing funds. Fulton will use those funds to aid in the remodeling of the Fulton Fire Station.

Discussion of further aid as well as responsibility for maintenance of the Fulton Fire Station will be brought up at the Oct. 4 meeting.

Two more parties have expressed interest in leasing the bait-concession stand at L.E. Casterline Fishing Pier and plan to submit bids at next week's meeting.

Annexations considered; Rockport council calls for hearings

Public hearings on Rockport's proposal to annex a number of tracts into the city, including a state tract in Aransas Bay and the area between Maple and Little Bay Shores, have been called for Oct. 25 and Nov. 8.

The action was taken during Tuesday night's city council meeting during which three zoning requests were approved, following joint public hearing of the council and city planning and zoning commission, and the plat of Rockport Country Club Estates Unit II was tabled on final consideration.

Annexation of the various tracts came up in conection with the city's right, as a home rule city, to annex up to 10 percent of its total area annually. This 10 percent, City Manager Herman Johnson pointed out, does not include property for which annexation is requested by the property owner. Johnson said the city has the right to involuntarily annex up to 321 acres.

Among property for which annexation will be considered in the upcoming public hearings is State Tract 150 in Aransas Bay east of Key Allegro. Johnson said the total tract is 318 acres but about 30 acres is in the city already, leaving 288 acres to be considered for annexation.

This property, if annexed, would bring a well into the city and "will give the city substantial value," Johnson said.

Also proposed is annexation of the area between Maple and Little Bay Shores. This area is being considered, Johnson said, to more firmly tie Little Bay Shores to the city. Most of Little Bay Shores is inside city limits at present.

Also proposed for annexation, to square off the city limits and take in areas that are surrounded or nearly surrounded by the city, are the area around and including Little Bay Realty, the U-Tote-M on Fulton Beach Road at the entrance to Key Allegro, Sandpiper Real Estate and the area just north of Allied Live Oak Bank.

Johnson said the property being considered by the city for annexation at this time is area that can be feasibly served by the city. Under state annexation laws, the city must provide all city services to an area within two years after annexation or the residents and/or property owners of the area can vote to disannex themselves.

"We can't annex 'em if we can't supply 'em," Johnson said.

The council tabled action on the final plat submitted by Rockport Country Club Estates for Unit II of the development, pending receipt of written verification of the developers' agreement for payment of drainage fees owed to the city.

Under a drainage plan adopted by the city April 25, RCC Inc. owes the city $320,650 to fund drainage facilities for development of the country club project. At the council's Sept. 13 meeting, RCC Inc. representatives proposed to pay the city an immediate $35,000 in cash, with the balance in a subordinate lien with payments to be made as lots in Unit II of the project are sold.

Council members at that time agreed to accept the proposal if the city receives a confirming letter from RCC's financial agent.

Approved were zoning requests from the following:

— George Taggart III and George Craig for rezoning from R-2 residential to B-1 business lots 9-16 of block 130 (Fuqua from 1st Street to Corpus Christi Street) to conform with zoning on the east half of the lot.

— James H. Newberry Jr. and Linda R. Adams for a special use permit to allow sale of on-premise food, beer and wine at "a convenience store-type structure" on Liberty between Gagon and Litron.

— Murray McMillan for rezoning of 1.0399 acres at the corner of Glass and Percival from R-1 residential to R-7 residential and office district so that the existing office structure, built before annexation, will be conforming rather than non-conforming.

The city's proposed new zoning ordinance and amended zoning map were approved on first reading by a 3-1 vote of the council with Alderman Richard Beck casting the vote against.

Approved on first reading were ordinances annexing the Allied Live Oak Bank site and granting special use permit to Linard F. Day for construction of a private fishing pier adjacent to 1401 S. Water St.

All three ordinances must be approved on second reading before they can go into effect.

The council approved submission of a request to the Texas Highway Department for installation of a traffic control light at the intersection of Liberty and Pearl streets (Hwy. 35 at FM 2165).

An ordinance authorizing establishment of a school crossing zone at Liberty and Live Oak was given final approval on first reading as an emergency measure.

The council authorized preparation of a new subdivision ordinance incorporating the amendments recently proposed by the planning and zoning commission.

A request of the Rockport-Fulton Band Boosters for permission to sell soft drinks along the SeaFair parade route on Saturday, Oct. 8, was granted. Proceeds are to help pay for the band's trip to Dallas to participate in the Cotton Bowl Parade in January.

A request by Johnson for a vacation from Oct. 10-24 was granted.

Notable notes

Weather

Skies were expected to be partly cloudy Saturday through Monday with highs in the 80s and 90s, lows in the 60s and 70s.

As of Thursday morning, evidence of a weak circulation had been found in a strong tropical disturbance approaching the Lesser Antilles. Sustained winds of 35 mph with higher gusts in squalls were reported. The disturbance was expected to continue its westerly movement at 15 mph.

ACTA pursues shell bar ownership

The Aransas County Taxpayers Association voted Tuesday evening, Sept. 27, to continue efforts to determine the ownership of the shell bar and surrounding waters off Live Oak Point.

ACTA has been battling H.E.B. over the ownership question for the past several months. The organization had previously requested a ruling in the matter from Attorney General Jim Mattox. ACTA received a letter from the General Land Office this week stating that an examination of the surveys has found that they are correct, and that H.E.B. owns the land in question.

The taxpayers association questions H.E.B.'s right to emplace posts and erect walkways between the point and a shell bar off the point. The posts and walkways, ACTA officials claim, deny public access to a popular fishing area and were constructed prior to obtaining a permit from the Army Corps of Engineers. H.E.B. has since applied for a permit for the construction, a move that ACTA is protesting.

The organization's membership voted Tuesday evening to continue the fight, saying that a determination that the surveys are correct is not a legal opinion. A motion to send another letter to the attorney general's office was unanimously approved by the membership.

A final report given by the organization's nominating committee recommended officers for the new year. The committee recommended that President Willis Pfeifer remain in office for another term. Frank Riordan was nominated for vice president, Janet Noel for secretary and Celia Blankert for treasurer. Those nominated for directors of the organization included Dale Rolland, Edwina Stranahan, Jim Metzner and Blas Ramirez.

A motion by J.C. Harlan and seconded by Harold Pinchin to accept the slate of officers as recommended was unanimously approved by the membership.

Acting chairman Frank Riordan told those

County nominates appraisal directors

The Aransas County Commissioners nominated three county residents to serve as directors for the Aransas County Appraisal District during a meeting Wednesday, Sept. 28, at the Aransas County Courthouse.

Nominated to serve on the board of directors for the appraisal district were Al Johnson, Gordon Eckert and Harold Shirey. A vote will be taken to select two of the three at the Monday, Oct. 10, meeting of the commissioners court.

Clifford Lowe, majority interest holder in Rockport Aviation, presented the court with a list of grievances suggesting that Skypark Inc., an airport services firm run by airport lease holder William G. Walston, does not meet the minimum standards suggested in airport guidelines to operate commercially. Lowe asked that all fixed base operators at the airport be required to meet the minimum standards set forth by the county guidelines.

The county commissioners, presided over by Commissioner Ray Longino in the absence of Aransas County Judge John D. Wendell, took the list presented by Lowe under advisement and said they would consult with County Attorney James Anderson before making any decisions in the matter.

Walston, who was not present at the meeting, later denied the allegations made by Rockport Aviation.

A request to place a sign advertising Skypark Inc.'s services in front of the administration building at the airport was withdrawn by Walston.

Rockport Aviation was advised by the court to fix the rollers in several hangar doors at the airport and to cut the high grass and weeds on airport lands, after the commissioners received complaints.

A motion to divide $13,324.55 in lateral road funds between the four precincts was unanimously approved.

J.C. Harlan, a member of the Aransas County Taxpayers Association, asked the court to speak out on behalf of ACTA's attempt to determine ownership of the shell bar and surrounding waters off Live Oak Point. ACTA, which says that the area off shore belongs to the state of Texas, has been embroiled in a battle with H.E.B. for several months over ownership of the shell bar and surrounding waters. H.E.B., owner of the land near Live Oak Point, has placed posts and erected walkways in the water between the land and the shell bar without a permit from the Army Corps of Engineers.

ACTA has asked Attorney General Jim Mattox for a ruling in the matter, and recently received a letter from the General Land Office stating that surveys made of the area have been determined to be correct and that the land off Live Oak Point belongs to H.E.B.

The county commissioners said they would consult with Anderson in the matter.

Harlan also asked county support for the Aransas County Navigation District, which is trying to determine ownership of a large portion of land adjacent to the bay, both in Rockport and in Fulton. The commissioners said that this matter has already been turned over to the county attorney.

A look at some major issues

Congressman Patman reports

Major issues affecting the well being of all Americans face Congress as it pushes toward completion of the 1983 session.

As an old saying goes, "We have more than we can pray over" as we strive to resolve numerous complex issues. I want to review some of them with you — and perhaps go over a few more at a later date.

Among the very highest priority issues are these:

— Defense spending.

— The 1984 Federal budget.

— Immigration reform, to deal with the problems of illegal aliens.

No item on our agenda is more important to our national welfare than that of defense appropriations. The hottest issue in defense spending for next year is production of the MX missile.

The missile's fate probably depends on the decisions of about a dozen or more of the middle-of-the-road members of both the House and Senate. On earlier votes this year they tentatively agreed to back the MX if they were convinced the Administration was committed to negotiating a strategic arms control agreement with the Soviet Union.

I strongly supported the president on the earlier House vote. I'll continue to do so. The shooting down of the Korean commercial airliner by the Soviet Union, in my opinion, strengthened the president's defense spending request.

There is widespread concern about the 1984 federal budget. Congress approved a budget resolution in early summer. It trimmed the various money bills for defense and domestic spending to make them more acceptable to the White House. But there still would have to be more budget cuts or tax increases to reduce the huge federal deficit.

I am against any tax increase. I am for a balanced budget, which I have advocated since I came to Congress. But the dilemma for me and other members is that we feel many essential programs have been cut to the bone. Further cuts could hurt vital programs such as Medicare benefits, farm price supports and veterans and Social Security disability benefits.

Furthermore, the administration has said that the projected $200 billion deficit is not as serious a problem as some economists have suggested. I do not have a crystal ball that tells me how this will turn out. But I fear that the budget deficits will continue to soar in 1984 and 1985.

So the questions of how much to spend for defense, education, highways and human services and at the same time try to balance the budget are very much like the question of what happens when an irresistible force hits an immovable object.

Immigration reform is an issue on which many people almost throw up their hands in despair. True, the Senate passed a far-reaching bill last May, and a similar bill has been approved by five House committees.

But the bill, which sponsors say would curb the flow of illegal aliens into the U.S., is unsatisfactory to many members. I do not think it is the answer. I do not agree with the bill's amnesty provision, which would confer "temporary resident" status on aliens who would prove they were in this country by Jan. 1, 1980.

At a time when nearly 11 million American workers are unemployed and seeking work, I doubt the wisdom of entrenching a similar number of illegal aliens. It also seems unfair to accept these aliens while thousands of others have waited patiently to enter the United States legally.

I do not think a system of penalties against employers who knowingly hire illegal aliens will solve the problem. I think employers will find it impossible to be sure the people they hire are legal citizens of the U.S.

If we cannot enforce the law, then what use is the law? More creative and reasonable solutions have been suggested. I'm going to work for a better bill than the one now proposed.

U.S. program jeopardized by test ban proposal

The reason we haven't heard much about nuclear weapons testing during the Geneva nuclear disarmament conference is because the U.S. says it needs continued tests to solve "important problems" associated with its program.

Up until this announcement in Washington, the Reagan administration's position was that the major deterrent to testing negotiations was inability to verify a complete ban on underground tests.

The U.S., Great Britain and the Soviet Union have a treaty prohibiting nuclear weapons testing in the atmosphere and in outer space, but neither has pressed for agreement on underground tests in the Geneva talks.

While a comprehensive test ban continues to be a long-term U.S. objective, the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency told the House Appropriations Committee nuclear tests are specifically required for development, modernization and certification of warheads, maintenance or stockpike reliability and evaluation of nuclear weapons effects.

A comprehensive test ban would also prohibit underground nuclear tests. Some proponents argue a comprehensive test ban would diminish the likelihood of first strikes by lowering a nation's confidence in reliability of its nuclear weapons.

If a test ban is to be effective, it must be verifiable and be concluded under conditions ensuring it would enhance rather than diminish international security and stability. Herein lies the problem as far as the U.S. is concerned.

In further justification of the U.S. position, the arms agency said a test ban could not of itself end the threat posed by nuclear weapons, since it does not deal directly with the kinds, numbers or deployment of nuclear forces.

It continues to be U.S. policy to conduct a minimum number of tests to solve nuclear weapons problems, Pentagon officials point out, but it should be noted this is the first time the Reagan administration has publicly said its desire to continue underground nuclear weapons tests was a reason it halted test ban negotiations with the Soviet Union and Great Britain.

The U.S. and other nations having operable nuclear weapons face a tough problem. There is need for continued testing and for better verification of underground tests. Unless there is a method of testing, no nation can be certain of the reliability of its nuclear arsenal.

Also, if there is to be any kind of nuclear disarmament agreement between the superpowers, it is imperative that each maintain a verifiable testing system.

THE HEADLINE OVER a recent column by syndicated writer Georgie Anne Geyer, "U.S. Ineptitude in Lebanon Appalling," said it all — or almost all. To cover all it should have read "Ineptitude in World Affairs."

However, and to stay with the subject of Lebanon, we are there, as Geyer correctly states, because Israel (make that Menachem Begin) invaded a year ago. Or should we blame Israel? Wasn't the invasion launched despite our advice and protests which were arrogantly rejected? So, and again quoting Geyer, instead of letting Begin suffer the consequences of its actions, we have our men on the ground relieving Israel of those consequences. Appalling ineptitude indeed!

Here at this point this writer is left to join with the feeble minds in the Congress and Senate, yet joining with a difference in that I acknowledge not knowing what to do next, as they do not. I am only confident that from the beginning that U.S. troops should never have been a part of the peace-keeping force.

But yes, I do have one suggestion. Since our Marines are in Lebanon and because they must now remain, let's for heaven's sake get them out of the vulnerable airport and into a defensible position. No one needs be a military expert to understand that they are sitting ducks.

TRAGIC THOUGH IT IS, there is an amusing side to the national flap over the plight of education in our public schools. Heads shake and people variously blame teachers, parents, school boards, but at the grass roots I see no action. Grass roots. From there all good things must come.

I peruse the columns of a dozen weekly newspapers and find nothing of substance on the subject of education, discounting of course the prowess of the hometown team on the gridiron.

Somewhere in this broad land I'd like to see rise from the ranks of small town newspapers an editor who will go to people, the school administrators, board members, parents, teachers and students and find out what really cooks in the hometown schools.

If his job is done thoroughly enough he might be run out of town, but on the other hand, and just maybe, he might start something significant. He will of course have to get past the bland assurance of educators who present him with statistics which show that his graduates are really doing well, better than those from the next nearest town, at Podunk U.

YES, I RESPECT the broad scale findings of various groups which have explored the plight of education in our country, but I am at the same time more than a little annoyed by the follow-up rhetoric of politics.

Until I witness substantial results I shall contend that the current flak over education has been made into a political football. For example, a couple of weeks ago newspaper headlines were concentrated on an abysmal circumstance, a crying need for math and science teachers. No doubt true, but now the focus has turned. We are back to the cry of the past few years — Little Johnny can't read and write. Only we give it a slightly more academic format. How can Little Johnny learn math and science if he can't read and understand the words in the textbooks?

Along with all this there is the rage for computers. This is the age for those gadgets. Instruction in their use was even offered last summer in advertisements for summer camps. Well and good, but it remains that is still most important of all to be able to read and write the English language. Never mind what LULAC and the Truans may say to the contrary.

THE GENTLEMAN WAS addressing the National Press Club in Washington D.C. I only heard part of his speech but what I did hear made sense. Good teachers want to teach, they are anxious to impart their knowledge, but they don't want and don't expect to also be policemen or babysitters to inattentive kids who aren't interested in learning. When they encounter that circumstance they look for jobs elsewhere, outside the profession.

And, he said, if we want and expect good teachers, school administrators are going to have to join the job recruiting ranks of the big corporations and compete for the best. That means offering equivalent pay and other inducements. Amen, I say on either count.

Sorry, I don't recall the gentleman's name, but let it suffice that before he entered grade school in New York City he knew no English at all. However he went on to graduate, earn a masters degree and become a high school math teacher in New York and today is president of one of the teachers' unions, affiliated with the AFL-CIO.

From this corner I'd like to offer a strong objection to our president's projected trip to Manila. It is neither wise nor brave. All well and good, very noble to declare that the leader of the world's greatest free country should go wherever he likes without risk. But is he safe even here? Count his body guards. Why expose him to a jungle?

While I am not privy to the interaction of affairs between our government and that of the Philippines I am most doubtful that any real good can be accomplished by a presidential trip. There is no way for Ronald Reagan to go to Manila and find a welcome from both the Marcos government and the people.

To the Editor:

Jim Mattox must remain in office to continue the work the people of this state elected him to do. He's doing such a good job defending our interests that Mobile and its attorneys want him out. Indict and discredit him is their way to get him off their backs in trying to collect the millions of dollars owed the school children of this state. Stay in there and fight, Mattox.

Editor's note: The following is a copy of a letter written to the Aransas County Navigation District.

Gentlemen:

The Aransas County Taxpayers Association has gone on record to wholeheartedly support ACND's effort to establish title to 1936 land patents and subsequent patent corrections in 1940 and 1953 as recorded from the State of Texas by the Navigation District (your file patents 135 and 1625).

After a close review of all pertinent documents, records and survey data, the Aransas County Taxpayers Association's position is that the land in question is ACND land and should be placed under the authority of ACND at the earliest possible date.

The Aransas County Taxpayers Association further supports whatever legal actions that may be required to collect all back monies due ACND and to lease the property in accordance with established procedures.

Trust our position will be given your full consideration.

Sincerely,
Willis D. Pfeifer

Dear Editor:

Almost a month has gone by since Korean flight 007 was downed by the Ruskies. After considerable thought this is what I would have done if I had been the president on Sept. 1:

Leave the West Coast immediately . . . order chiefs of Army, Navy, Air Force and Coast Guard, etc., to wait my arrival in Washington D.C. . . alert all services to be on standby alert . . . advise USSR that we are launching ships and flights immediately to the area of the downed aircraft for search operations to find our people . . . advise that we will not tolerate any advances toward any of these aircraft . . . jets . . . seaplanes . . . ships . . . whatever. Alert all operations in Korea, Japan and European areas (NATO) to await instructions. Then, sit back and wait for comments. If anyone challenges any of our search operations . . . blow 'em out of the sky. That's the only response Russia understands . . . and I really believe they would back down, apologize, etc. They did in Cuba . . . and it is about time we stood up to be counted.

Yours very truly,
s/D.Y. Nichols

It isn't enough

If any Aransas County housewives have been thinking about charging husbands for housework, it might help to know researchers have determined a housewife's chores are worth about $7 an hour.

Some of you dedicated housewives may "flip" when you read this. Industrial janitors, especially if they belong to a labor union, make at least $10 an hour. How about that?

In the past, the value housework has been based on what researchers call "market alternative" — what it would cost to have outsiders come to the house and work.

However, a team of Cornell University researchers arrived at the $7 rate through what they call the "opportunity cost" method. This formula assumes the value of housework performed by a full-time wife with two children is the lowest wage that would draw her into the labor market.

A married woman's time must be valued by her and her family at least as high as this ($7) wage rate or else she would seek employment outside the home, a Cornell researcher said.

The value of housework for unemployed wives was determined to be between $8.40 and $7.60 an hour, compared to $4.30 and $5.60 using the market alternative method.

The figures are higher using the opportunity cost method because it includes the value of management involved in housework and the typically higher quality of work done by housewives, the Cornell study said.

Some of the Aransas County housewives we know are likely to think $7 is about half what their work is worth.

On work, theories and commissions

The Live Oak Peninsula philosopher

Editor's note: The Live Oak Peninsula Philosopher on his grassburr ranch discusses work this week, probably from a theoretical viewpoint.

Dear Editor:

After three years of study and a good many thousands of dollars, a national commission has reported that three-fourths of the workers in this country admit they don't work as hard at their jobs as they could.

If it took the commission members three years to find that out, I'd say they weren't working as hard at their job as they could.

For half the cost I could have given the commission the figures by long distance.

Work is said to be enobling, but most noblemen I've heard about don't do much work, except maybe shoot at pheasants if some servant will flush them up.

The commission found also that 23 percent of workers say they're working as hard as they can on their jobs. I work as hard as I can on my job, but that's not to say I work hard.

The president of France, in an effort to cut down on unemployment, has suggested that the work week be reduced from 40 hours to 39. Thus, he figured, for every 39 people working one hour less a week there'd be one more job for the unemployed.

This sounds fine on paper, but when you try to put human nature on paper all you get is another used-up sheet of paper.

There'll never be a computer or a president of France so smart it or he can measure my week's work and tell by the results whether I worked 40 hours or 39.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Making home ownership possible for more people

By JOHN TOWER
U.S. Senator for Texas

As chairman of the Senate Housing and Urban Affairs Subcommittee, I have been actively involved this year in seeking new ways to make home ownership possible for more people.

One such effort is the Secondary Mortgage Market Enchancement Act, which I have introduced. This important legislation is designed to make more money available for mortgages.

Since the 1930s, federally sponsored agencies have been the primary purchasers of these mortgages. These agencies — colloquially called "Ginnie Mae." "Fannie Mae" and "Freddie Mac" — have done an excellent job in providing this service.

However, it is clear that, as more and more demands are placed on credit markets and mortgage lenders, other sources of capital will be required during the coming decade.

Already several private sector firms have begun to fill this need. But their activity has been limited because of the regulatory structure which they face. The Secondary Mortgage Market Enhancement Act, along with the Trust for Investment in Mortgage (TIMs) Act, would make the necessary changes to develop a sound private mortgage securities industry.

These changes in the rules governing mortgage securities would have a direct impact on every potential home buyer or seller. By enlarging the pool of money available to lend for mortgages, these loans would be made easier to get and, likely, less expensive.

Senate Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee Chairman Jake Garn (R-Utah) has joined me in sponsoring both bills. We have begun to have hearings on them and I am optimistic that we will be able to obtain Congressional action.

Stanick breaks ground for new office

Ground has been broken for Grace Stanick's new Calm Harbor Real Estate office, including a trading post, and boat barns at the site of her old office on Hwy. 35 south of Rockport.

Groundbreaking ceremonies were held Friday, Sept. 23, for the new project which will feature 60 boat stalls in an all-metal building and a log office building of logs shipped from Gatlin, Tenn.

"The boat barns will be behind the present building and the new offices will be where the old building was," Stanick said Wednesday. She will operate her Calm Harbor Real Estate business from a temporary office until construction of the new one.

She emphasized she is not building over the Indian burial ground, uncovered some three or four years ago near her offices. "The trading post," she added, "will go along with the burial ground." She anticipates offering gifts "and items pertinent to the Karankawas."

Stanick said the boat barns should be complete by around mid-October and the office building around December.

"A lot of the boat stalls are already reserved," she added.

Permit requests

The following applications for permits have been filed with the Army Corps of Engineers. Any comments must be submitted to the District Engineer, P.O. Box 1229, Galveston, Texas 77553, on or before the date shown.

COPANO BAY

George Strickhausen of Corpus Christi has applied for permission to perform maintenance dredging in existing channels in Salt Lake and Copano Bay, Copano Ridge and Copano Cove Subdivisions, approximately 3.8 miles northwest of Rockport.

Approximately 100,000 cubic yards of sand and silt will be removed to a depth of 6 feet below mean low tide from a total of approximately 34,000 linear feet of residential canals. Approximately 20 percent of this total will require immediate maintenance dredging.

Dredging will be performed by dragline or by 12-inch hydraulic dredge. The dredged material will be placed on one of three disposal areas in the vicinity of Salt Lake.

Deadline for comments is Oct. 21.

COPANO BAY

F&S Land and Cattle Company and Aransas County have applied for permission to dredge a 600-foot channel into Copano Bay off FM 1781, 4 miles north of Rockport. This channel will provide access into the proposed 100-foot wide channels to be excavated within a subdivision development.

Approximately 7,000 cubic yards of silty sand material will be removed from the 600-foot channel and approximately 350,000 cubic yards of sand and clay will be removed to create the channels within the development.

The material will be excavated by hydraulic dredge and placed along the sides of the channels and in designated disposal areas.

Deadline for comments is Oct. 21.

Business seminar set

VICTORIA — "Starting and Managing a Business," a one-day seminar for those planning to start or just recently starting a business, will be held Friday, Oct. 14. The seminar will be co-sponsored by the Small Business Administration and the University of Houston-Victoria Division of Continuing Education.

According to coordinator Julian Ruiz of the SBA, students can expect to learn how to evaluate whether to go into business for oneself, the steps in starting a business and the resources available for aiding one in a business venture.

The seminar is scheduled for 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday, Oct. 14, at the Petroleum Training Institute, 3302 N. Ben Wilson.

Getting instant returns for your investment

Scott Burns

How do you turn $1 into $2 — or $3 or $20?

For most of us, the answer involves a great deal of time: We take $1, lend it to someone else and allow the interest to build up.

At 9 percent, our $1 will double in eight years. If we take some risks and get a 12 percent return, our money will double in six years.

What we can't do is turn $1 into $4 or $20 instantly.

Yet it is being done. Every day. By the hungry, high-rolling folks we call entrepreneurs.

Want to understand how it is done? Read on.

The list at right shows an unusual number, the ratio of the market value of a stock to its annual sales. It shows, in other words, how much the market thinks every dollar of sales is worth.

As you can see, even in this brief list of companies there is quite a range. For Digital Switch, a high-flying manufacturer of telecommunications equipment, each $1 of sales translates into $20 of market value for the stock. For Travelers Insurance, on the other hand, each $1 of sales translates into only 23 cents in market value.

Now take a closer look at the list. Notice that high-technology companies — those involved in computers, computer software, electronic equipment, gene splicing, etc. — are at the top of the list, while older, established industries are at the bottom.

The message?

If you want to get rich, the place to be is high tech, where your first $1 million in sales may be converted into $2 to $20 million in market value for your shares.

Now let's take a look at this from the other side — the money needed to run a business. While the number varies from industry to industry, many manufacturing businesses need about 50 cents in assets to support $1 in sales.

Some of that money, however, is provided by others. Just as every business has receivable, they also have "payables" — bills for goods and services provided by suppliers. Similarly, some money can be borrowed. A company isn't debt-ridden if it has $1 provided by outside sources for every $1 of its own assets.

This means 25 cents in assets will support $1 in sales, and that, in turn, can be valued at $2 to $20 by the stock market. That's 8 to 80 times the money invested.

What does this mean for entrepreneurs?

Instant millionairedome, and access to venture capital eager to take the same multiplier ride.

The entrepreneur with an idea can sell half of it to raise money and still be rich overnight. For example, if he raises the $250,000 it will take to finance $1 million in sales, the market value of his half of the company will be somewhere between $1 million and $10 million. The venture capitalists who put up the money, meanwhile, will see their $250,000 stake acquire an equal market value, which comes to an "upside potential" of 400 to 4,000 percent!

What's it all mean?

Simply this: If you've had any thoughts about being an entrepreneur, this is the time to do it.

Real gold available in many colors

Did you know gold, which is yellow in its natural state, can be magically transformed into multi-hued elegance when mixed with other metals or alloys. Alloys strengthen and harden the precious metal for a life-time of wear and also create subtle color variations, such as the popular shades of pink (or rose), white and even green gold.

Inspired by the many colors of gold, goldsmiths are creating tri-color gold jewelry in an exciting variety of styles and designs. You'll find all your favorite types of gold jewelry, from earrings and rings to chains and pins in tri-color, says the Gold Information Center.

To be sure the tri-color item you are buying is real gold, always look for the karat stamp, such as 14K or 18K. The karat marking tells you the proportion (amount) of pure gold in each piece of jewelry.

Twenty-four karat (24K) is 100 percent pure gold. Eighteen karat (18K) is 18 parts gold alloyed or mixed with six parts other metals; 14K is 14 parts gold alloyed with 10 parts other metals. When buying tri-color gold jewelry, remember that the color of gold does not affect the karatage or the value of the piece.

Mae Jackel Willetts' guests for last weekend were her son and his wife, Ray and Doris Jackel, from San Antonio.

Rev. Percy Lewis spent a week in Kendleton at the Bayridge Church College.

Returning from a two-week trip, Anne Whitfield was in Warwickshire, Great Britain, visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S.A. Whitfield, and relatives.

Joan Dulski spent a weekend with her daughters, Sally and Kim Dulski, in Houston.

Jeanette and John Facto have just returned from a trip to California. While there, John appeared on a TV show and was reunited with his father who he hadn't seen in 16 years.

Nora White is home after spending some time in a San Antonio hospital for a back injury. While there she also stayed with her daughter, Mrs. Jack Mathis.

Bob Tumbleson is at home now after a stay in Spohn Hospital.

Carita and Jim Gould spent last weekend at College Station attending the OSU-Texas A&M football game.

Betty Thomas and Martha Lewis recently spent a week in San Antonio going to real estate school and taking the GRI course.

Returning from a months' visit to Michigan are Mr. and Mrs. Ed Welch.

Wintering here in the area for several years, Charles and Clela Serviss from Goesell, Kan., have returned and are staying at Taylor Oak Trailer Park. Also coming back this year are Jo and Horace Chappell from Enid, Okla., who are staying at Travel Trailer Haven. Woody Acres returnees are Lydia and Leonard Waln from Sunrise Beach, Mo.; Guy and Ray Webb from Oklahoma; Frances and A.W. McMillan from Hot Springs, Ark.; Mr. and Mrs. A.L. Swansey from Drayton Plains, Mich.; Rose and Bill Wright from Webster, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Wenzel from Chickasaw, Okla.; Thelma and Fred Muston from Canada; Ruby and Henry Musterman from Blue Springs, Mo.; and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Koon from Waxahatchie. Welcome back.

Cricket and Gwen Ladd are back in town after spending almost a year traveling around the country.

Returning for the third year at Trav-Trail-R Inn are Helen and Norman Young from St. Charles, Iowa.

A birthday party and jam session was held at the home of J.C. Harlan on Sept. 21. Harlan celebrated his 67th birthday.

Visiting Mr. and Mrs. Chester Barre last week were their sons, Clyde and Bruce, and daughter-in-law Jill, all from Austin.

Vicki and Howard Burke have returned from a trip to Ft. Worth and are now in the process of moving back there.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Mulle have returned from a three-week trip to China. They were chosen to go with the People To People group of 38 geologists and their wives. Their first stop was in Beijing, at a compound where former President Richard Nixon stayed when he was there. The men attended lectures most of the time but the wives visited the country with an interpreter.

Revitalize skin with a spa-type treatment

A spa getaway can revitalize skin, give you a head-to-toe glow. Can't spend the time or money for such luxury? These good-skin tips, from the experts at Rain Tree Moisturizers, can give your skin that spa-pampered look.

Face-Saving

Begin with a spa-inspired facial. After cleansing, steam skin for five or 10 minutes over a basin of warm water to open pores, help remove impurities. Your favorite facial mask is next — lie down with eyes closed while it does its work. Or, use a cotton ball saturated with antiseptic skin cleanser, to deep cleanse your complexion and slough away dead skin cells. It removes dirt, oil and makeup, kills bacteria and actually penetrates to unclog pores.

Follow your facial with a generous application of luxurious moisturizing lotion. Apply a little extra on the delicate eye area where skin tends to be dry.

Body Skin Conditioning

Good skin treatment doesn't stop at the chin. Carry it further with a soak in a tub of comfortably warm water spiked with soothing bath salts or fragrant bubble bath. Relax for 15 or 20 minutes to banish tension and fatigue. Then smooth away roughness by gently scrubbing skin with lots of lather and a loofah, abrasive sponge or bath mitt. Rinse under an invigorating cool shower.

Blot skin almost dry with a fluffy towel, then lavish on lotion to seal in moisture and smooth away rough spots on knees, elbows and heels.

Feet get their own spa treatment. Soak them in warm water, "sand" away calluses and rough spots with a soapy pumice stone. Then wake them up with a 10-second dip in cool water. Dry thoroughly and massage lotion from toes to ankles.

Hands up Pampering

A massage with the same rich hand and body lotion will relax any tension in busy hands and will leave the skin caressably soft. Apply lotion first. Then, using thumb and index finger, work in a kneading motion (alternately squeezing and releasing) up each finger and over hand to wrist. Finish by applying extra lotion to cuticle and nail area to smooth away any roughness.

The man who complained that being just a cog in the wheel was hard, has now progressed to where he is 10 holes in a computer card.

Bon appetit!

By Ann Thomas

The beginning of school heralds many things. Proper nutrition for our children who carry their lunches becomes a daily challenge. The care and feeding of our budding geniuses is never really easy, but definitely becomes harder when attempting to furnish a nutritionally sound noon meal while also attempting to consider food preferences and battle monotony.

Nutritionists tell us that studies have proven a definite link exists between an imbalanced diet and intellectual dullness. Poor nutrition can also rob your child of energy and lower his resistance to infection.

To be able to furnish a balanced diet we must know what foods are suppliers of the major nutrients and what their importance is to the body.

Protein repairs body tissues and promotes growth, provides resistance to infection and helps in the formation of red blood cells. Food sources include lean meat, fish, poultry, eggs, milk, cheese, dried beans and peas, nuts and peanut butter.

Calcium is needed to produce healthy teeth and bones, regulate muscle action and to aid in clotting blood. Sources of calcium are milk and milk products such as cheddar-type cheese and dark green, leafy vegetables.

Iron is necesary to prevent anemia by aiding in the formation of hemoglobin. The best source for this is liver, then lean meat, egg yolk, dark green, leafy vegetables, dried beans and lentils and enriched cereals and bread.

Vitamin A is a good appetite stimulant and assists in digestion and good muscle function. It is found in meat, especially pork, liver, whole grain, dried beans and peas, enriched or restored breads and cereals.

Riboflavin is needed for healthy skin and mouth tissues. It also helps in maintaining good vision. It is found in milk, meat (especially liver), poultry and eggs, fish and enriched bread and cereal.

Niacin is needed for healthy skin and tongue, to aid in digestion and is found in the same foods which supply protein.

Ascorbic acid, or vitamin C, aids in resisting infection, promotes healing of wounds and is needed for strong tissues, blood vessels and bones. Citrus fruits are the most popular sources, as well as cantaloupe, raw strawberries and broccoli. Fair sources include raw cabbage, tomatoes, turnip greens and potatoes cooked in the skin.

Vitamin D helps the body to utilize calcium. The best source of this is sunshine. Egg yolk is probably the best food source.

Now that we know what the major nutrients are, it becomes our task to provide them each day in some manner which will be accepted. We will be discussing some of the ways to go about accomplishing this.

RECIPES FOR CARRIED LUNCHES

COTTAGE CHEESE-VEGETABLE FILLING

¼ cup green pepper, minced
1 cup cottage cheese, creamed
2 tablespoons stuffed olives, chopped
1 green onion, sliced
2 tablespoons mayonnaise

Mix well. Will make four sandwiches. Best on oatmeal or seven-grain bread.

PINEAPPLE-MEAT FILLING

12 ounces canned meat, finely chopped
8½ ounces crushed pineapple, well drained
¼ cup shredded cheddar cheese
2 tablespoons brown sugar
2 tablespoons mayonnaise

Mix well. Will make five sandwiches. Good on enriched white bread.

CREAM CHEESE FILLING

Cream cheese can be purchased pre-mixed now, but it is less expensive to mix your own using any of the following: crushed pineapple, chopped olives, chopped green onions or chives, chopped salted nuts, crumbled cooked bacon, maraschino cherries, finely ground meat (a good way to use leftover meat) and raisins. Match the bread with the filling by choosing between apple, banana, cranberry, date, oatmeal, raisin or any of the wheat breads. Don't forget rye if your child likes it. Some of these can be purchased in the super market while others will need to be baked at home. Recipes for any of the above will be printed in this column upon request.

THREE TREAT FILLING

1 can chicken spread
½ apple, chopped
¼ cup nuts, chopped
2 tablespoons mayonnaise

Mix well. Makes four sandwiches. Good on a moist, compact bread.

BOLOGNA-EGG FILLING

⅓ cup bologna, chopped moderately fine
5 hard boiled eggs, chopped
½ cup celery, finely chopped
½ cup salad dressing

Mix well. Makes five sandwiches. This is good on rye or seven-grain bread.

As you can see we have introduced protein and niacin by using meat, eggs, cheese and milk products in the filling. The bread furnishes iron, vitamin A, riboflavin and depending upon the recipe, a small amount of vitamin D.

To furnish vitamin C, include a fresh orange, slices of cantaloupe, or small cans of fruit juice which can be frozen when packed and will have thawed and remain cool for lunchtime.

To make a nice contrast in consistency, include a stick or two of celery or carrot. Radishes, broccoli spears or cauliflower is good when including a small container of dip.

To complete the meal, a dessert and perhaps a stick of sugarless gum to clean and freshen the teeth and mouth should be included.

HINTS AND SUGGESTIONS FOR CARRIED LUNCHES

Try always to include the basic four: meat, poultry, fish and eggs in at least two servings a day, milk and dairy products at least twice a day, breads and cereals at least four servings daily, fruits and vegetables four times a day. From this list you can plan for your child's minimum daily requirement by building around breakfast and the evening meal while planning the lunch to be carried.

Save plastic containers such as those used for margarine, yogurt, etc., to be used for dessert and salad. A special dressing can be sent in a small olive or jelly jar. This eliminates disappointment for mom and scolding for the child who might forget to bring an expensive storage piece home.

To avoid the morning rush, try packing the lunch the night before and storing it in the refrigerator. Anything, that can be frozen could be put in the freezer and will be pleasantly cool by lunchtime. This helps cut down on spoilage and broadens the selection of what to send in the lunch.

During the winter months, use a 1-cup wide-mouth thermos in which to send a delicious homemade soup.

If milk isn't available at school, and I know of no instances when it isn't, or if your child does not like plain milk, send an envelope of flavored mix to be stirred into it. Be sure to read the label that states it can be stirred in by hand.

Cupcakes with fillings of marshmallow, jam, etc., are a nice taste surprise and much better to send than one with a possibly messy frosting.

Don't forget dried fruits if you suspect that peeling or eating an otherwise time consuming fruit will preclude your child's eating that needed fruit. It's much quicker to eat a handful of dried fruit (and not as messy sometimes) and get on to more important things . . . like recess!

If your child is still in the primary grades, including a little surprise of some sort is a nice way to brighten his day. Remember how you got a little lonely for mom sometimes? Not anything expensive, maybe one or two bitesize pieces of his favorite candy.

Try to use brightly colored napkins and other plastic appointments when applicable.

To reinforce the major nutrients you have in the sandwiches try the following salads:

Chopped apples, raisins, walnuts and mayonnaise;

Chopped carrots, raisins and mayonnaise;

Shredded carrots, crushed pineapple and white raisins;

Chunk pineapple, marshmallows and shredded coconut;

Fresh or canned orange slices, bananas and coconut;

Banana slices in a small amount of undiluted orange juice concentrate.

One last suggestion: Spread a thin layer of butter or margarine completely over your bread slices before spreading the filling. This prevents a soggy sandwich.

Bon appetit!

Food

Alfalfa sprouts a versatile food

Alfalfa sprouts have made their way from the specialty food of 10 years ago to a weekly purchase by many consumers who have discovered not only their great taste but also their versatility. Alfalfa sprouts made a school or work lunch a treat when generously sprinkled on a favorite sandwich or salad. Just open the bag and use — no washing lettuce leaves and no waste.

Since most sprouts are grown fresh daily in the local market area, the consumer receives a product high in nutritional value. Sprouts contain all the vitamins and trace minerals and are exceptionally high in vitamin C.

SPROUT AND SPINACH SALAD

1 bag fresh spinach
1 cup alfalfa sprouts
1 small can water chestnuts, sliced
4 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
¼ pound bacon, fried and crumbled, or equivalent amount of bacon bits

Clean and pick over spinach. Combine remaining ingredients and toss together. Serve with dressing on side or dress salad just before serving. Serves six.

DRESSING

1 cup oil
¼ cup sugar
2 teaspoons Worchestershire sauce
1 teaspoon onion salt
¼ cup vinegar
⅓ cup catsup

Mix well in a jar or blender until sugar dissolves.

Mayonnaise safe to use in sandwiches

Each morning thousands of mayonnaise-loving Texans trudge off to school and work carrying their brown bag lunches — and sandwiches with no mayonnaise. Why? Because one of the commonest misconceptions about food safety is the idea that mayonnaise is dangerous.

Many people are convinced that mayonnaise increases the chance of food poisoning and should not be used where refrigeration is inadequate or nonexistent.

But there is no basis for the belief that mayonnaise stimulates the growth of food poisoning bacteria. In fact, the Food Research Institute at the University of Wisconsin did a series of experiments which showed just the opposite: mayonnaise helps prevent the growth of harmful bacteria.

In the United States mayonnaise is standardized food whose composition is specified by the government. Vegetable oil comprises 65 percent of the finished product and the remaining 35 percent consists of vinegar, lemon and/or lime juice and egg yolk or whole eggs. In addition, manufacturers are allowed to add salt, spices, flavor enchancers and preservatives.

The result of the mixture is a rather acidic substance which is a hostile environment in which harmful bacteria cannot grow.

This should not be interpreted to mean that a spoonful of mayonnaise in a sandwich will provide total and absolute protection against any kind of abuse. Mayonnaise is an effective bacterial growth inhibitor because of its acid content. Food poisoning bacteria can grow in a normal mixture of food and mayonnaise, but they grow even better without it.

Also remember that the commercial mayonnaise used in this study meets the government's standards of indentity. Homemade mayonnaise needs plenty of lemon juice to be equally effective.

So just because you take your lunch in a brown bag doesn't mean you have to "hold the mayo" on your sandwich.

Food prices are expected to climb

As far as the outlook for food prices is concerned, it's the lull before the storm.

While food prices have remained fairly stable during the past six months, consumers can expect to start paying more at the supermarket before long.

"It all boils down to the effects of this summer's drought over much of the nation," says Dr. Dick Edwards, an economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

The drought has severely reduced corn and soybeans used for feed, causing their prices to jump. Corn prices have already climbed some 30 percent in the past six months while soybean prices have climbed about 40 percent. This means higher feed costs which, in turn, push up the cost of producing cattle, hogs, poultry and eggs, notes the economist.

"Beef and pork prices, for instance, could jump as much as 20 percent," says Edwards. "Consumers have enjoyed fairly low beef and pork prices in recent months as producers have had to liquidate herds because of drought conditions. This has resulted in large supplies of red meat and subsequent low prices to consumers."

This year's drought and hot summer weather have also taken their toll in the poultry industry. Several million broilers have died from the extreme heat, which has also had a dampening effect on egg production. All this adds up to fewer broilers and eggs in the coming months, and that, coupled with higher feed costs, means higher prices to consumers.

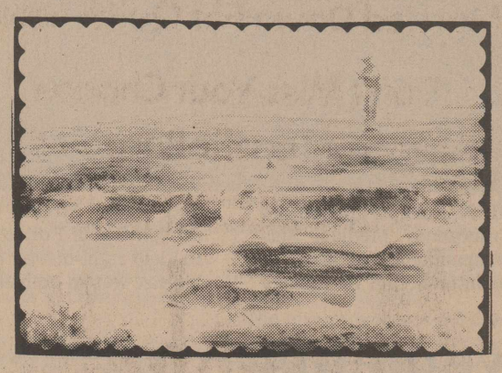

Higher beef and pork prices also have a tendency to pull up retail poultry prices, the economist points out.

What's a consumer to do with these prospects in sight?

"A prudent consumer may wish to buy and store red meat and poultry products in anticipation of higher prices," says Edwards.

city warehouse building — actually an addition to the existing city warehouse, Johnson said.

The total city budget adopted for 1983-84 is $3,337,353. Johnson said the city anticipates receiving $48,736 in revenue sharing during the coming year — which begins Saturday, Oct. 1. Disbursement of revenue sharing funds will include $21,736 for two new city police cars and $27,000 in partial payment on a new garbage truck. The budget, Johnson added, includes a 5 percent across-the-board salary increase for all city employees.

In other action related to the budget and fiscal matters Tuesday night, the city council adopted ordinances providing for a discount on ad valorem taxes paid prior to Jan. 1 and a penalty for taxes paid after Jan. 31 and awarded the bid for the city's depository for the next two years to First National Bank.

First National was the only bidder. The bid submitted included interest rate of 8 percent on certificates of deposit of $100,000 or more and 10 percent on certificates of deposit of $2,500 to $100,000 for up to 365 days. CDs of $2,500 to $100,000 deposited for 365 days or more will pay 10.5 percent interest.

present that the executive committee had suggested that donations made to ACTA's legal fund last year be returned in just proportions to those who made them. Some funds were spent seeking legal advice but a decision was made not to proceed with any lawsuits. A motion by Harlan and seconded by Florence Samson to return the funds was unanimously approved. Those who made donations must request their return prior to Dec. 1, when all those not returned will become part of the organization's general fund.

Rose Smith reported on an opinion poll being conducted by the Aransas County Independent School District and urged ACTA members to obtain a survey at any of the school campuses and to make their opinions known. The opinion poll is being taken to gain input in putting together a five-year plan for the district.

Smith suggested that ACTA form a committee to make recommendations to the school board for its consideration of this five-year plan. Her recommendation will be brought before the next meeting of the executive committee on Oct. 13.

Harlan asked the support of the membership in helping the Aransas County Navigation District establish title to several lands adjacent to Aransas Bay, both in the Rockport and Fulton areas. Harlan said that ACND records show ownership of the lands extending from the Surf Court Motel to the Rockport Sailing Club headquarters to the Rockport Shrimp Co-op, as well as portions of Fulton along Casterline Drive. Harlan said that title to these lands was somehow lost some time back and the ACND is currently trying to prove ownership in order to gain revenues lost.

Riordan brought up the alleged conflict between the Aransas County Appraisal District and the Aransas County Tax Assessor/Collector's office. Riordan said that ACTA has obtained a stack of material showing significant errors in the tax rolls which is tax revenue lost to Aransas County unless it is corrected. Several complaints about the appraisal district were aired and a few members said that the current system of property valuation and tax collection must be changed.

Several ACTA members said that it is not ACTA's place to take sides in a disagreement, but to provide information which may lead to a resolution of conflicts between the two offices.

A motion to table any further discussion of the appraisal district and tax assessor/collector's office for the executive meeting was unanimously approved.

ACTA is holding a contest to find a slogan for the organization. First prize is a $50 treasury bond. Entries will be submitted at next month's meeting and the top five will be selected by the executive committee for a vote by the membership.

Bentsen seeks audit on business export programs

WASHINGTON D.C. — Senator Lloyd Bentsen this past week said federal programs to promote exports by small business "have been flops" and called on the U.S. Comptroller General to audit the programs and recommend improvements.

"By one estimate, 1.7 million jobs would be created if we managed to boost exports sufficiently to balance our international trade account," Bentsen said in a letter Monday, Sept. 26, to Comptroller General Charles A. Bowsher who heads the General Accounting Office.

"Perhaps the greatest untapped sources of exports are goods and services produced by American small businessmen and businesswomen. Yet, few small firms participate in export markets. In the late 1970s, for example, 80 percent of U.S. exports were sold by a scant 1 percent of U.S. firms.

"Congress has established several programs designed partially or entirely to explicitly promote exports by small business. These programs include the Export Trading Company Loan Guarantee Program, the Small Manufacturers' Discount Loan Program, the Foreign Credit Insurance Program and the Commercial Bank Guarantee Program.

"Despite rosy promise," the letter continued, "these programs have not functioned well. They have been flops in promoting exports by small business.

"The Export-Import Bank's export assistant programs continue to function as though small business cannot contribute to reducing our soaring trade deficit. For example, only 10 percent of all outstanding export credit obligations under the Commercial Bank Guarantee Program are to small business. Less than 2 percent of the $23 billion in outstanding obligations under the giant Foreign Credit Insurance and Discount Loan Programs are to small business — even though the latter has been renamed the 'Small Manufacturer Discount Loan Program.'

"And the only Ex-Im Bank program designed solely to aid medium and small business — Export Trading Company Loan Guarantee Program — lies dead in the water. Only two transactions have been completed thus far under that program.

"Programs established by Congress to promote small business exports through the Export-Import Bank are floundering," Bentsen said.

"Would you please audit those progams, evaluate their performance and propose steps which Congress or the Ex-Im Bank should take to turn these programs around — to make them winners rather than losers for American small business," the Senator requested.

Pets aid therapy

By Dr. Hap Lutz
Rockport Veterinarian

Pet talks

Recent medical research in the bond between man and pets has given the medical field a new prospective of the value of pets to the healing arts. As an example: Upon discharge from the hospital a patient with severe heart disease has a much higher survival rate if he or she has a dog or cat at home to provide a stimulus for exercise, recreation and relaxation.

Numerous studies show that pets are one of the best therapeutic tools to reach the mentally disturbed child. Animals stimulate the emotions that must be developed throughout childhood to allow the child to become an emotionally stable adult.

A University of Pennsylvania study found that stroking or petting a dog or cat lowers the blood pressure — not only in the human patient but also in the dog or cat!

In the past two years, 25 state legislatures have passed laws allowing dogs and cats in rest homes. Besides decreasing loneliness, pets make the patients feel safe, give them responsibility, provide stimulus for exercise, provide something to touch and care for.

Being responsible for something and being important to someone are basic needs served by having pets.

More than 100 expected at engineering conference

The Dallas Convention Center will house exhibits from more than 100 industrial equipment manufacturers and distributors when the Society of Manufacturing Engineers opens the doors on its sixth Dallas/Fort Worth Area Tool and Manufacturing Engineering Conference and Exposition Oct. 18-20.

Dallas Show Manager Cecil Darnell predicts an attendance of more than 10,000 at the show. "Attendees of previous SME Dallas shows will find new and improved equipment and new technological information for improving their plant operations," said Darnell.

The three-day event will afford Dallas/Fort Worth area manufacturing engineers and executives an opportunity to view a broad range of production and manufacturing equipment and services. Machine tools and machining centers, factory automation equipment, computer systems and services, quality control and inspection equipment and related products and services will be demonstrated.

On hand at the conference, running concurrently with the exposition, will be industry experts conducting nine workshops and three technical sessions. Workshop topics for the conference are as follows:

Tuesday, Oct. 18 — "Machine Vision," "Designing Low-Cost Jigs & Fixtures" and "Engineering Fundamentals Review Course."

Wednesday, Oct. 19 — "Hand & Wave Soldering — Increased Productivity and Quality through Education and Training," "Maintenance Overview for Manufacturing Engineers and Top Management" and "An Introduction to Polymer Composites."

Thursday, Oct. 20 — "Developing Your Quality Assurance Program," "Integrating Layout Planning and Materials Handling Analysis" and "Computerized Maintenance Management."

Workshop hours are noon to 9 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday, noon to 6 p.m. Thursday at the Convention Center.

Also scheduled are three half-day technical sessions on mechanical finishing technology, integrated tool storage and control systems and tooling techniques of machining.

SME is a worldwide professional engineering organization with headquarters in Dearborn, Mich. Its purpose is the advancement of manufacturing quality and productivity through the continuing education of manufacturing managers, engineers and technologists. In 1983, SME is sponsoring some 30 tool & manufacturing, industrial productivity and specialized conferences and expositions in the United States and abroad.

For more information about the Dallas/Fort Worth event, contact the Public Relations Department, Society of Manufacturing Engineers, One SME Drive, P.O. Box 930, Dearborn, Mich. 48121. Telephone: (313) 271-0777.

Enchanted Rock Park is still closed

FREDERICKSBURG — Enchanted Rock State Park is expected to remain closed until early 1984, according to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

The popular park, located 18 miles north of Fredericksburg in Gillespie and Llano counties, was closed for extensive construction and development on Oct. 1, 1982. Construction projects include a park headquarters, restrooms, a bridge and utilities.

Law enforcement officials said persons illegally entering the park are subject to fines.

Enchanted Rock is a huge granite boulder rising 500 feet and covering 640 acres of the 1,640-acre park.

1.8 million red drum

Bluff's Wilson hatchery spawns second crop

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's new John Wilson Hatchery at Flour Bluff has produced its second crop of red drum with 1.8 million fingerling-sized fish stocked in Nueces Bay last week.

Gene McCarty, biologist in charge, said the 1- to 3-inch long fish were released at two locations in the bay in the northeast corner of the Corpus Christi Bay system.

The first group of red drum spawned at the saltwater hatchery during May produced 2.4 million fingerlings which were placed in Espiritu Santo Bay near Port O'Connor in June.

Hatchery personnel induce mature red drum to spawn in indoor tanks, manipulating light and water temperatures to simulate the fishes' spawning season.

McCarty said he is optimistic that bay stockings will revive the fishery in Texas bays, since net surveys at Espiritu Santo Bay indicate the stocked fish are enjoying good survival and growth rates.

McCarty added that the new fingerling class was hardly in the water before the same 12 brood fish began another spawn. "We are collecting fertilized eggs now and should be able to start stocking some fry in the rearing ponds by next week," said McCarty. This new batch of fingerlings should be ready for harvest from the ponds and release into the wild by around Nov. 3.

The Wilson hatchery, billed as the only one of its kind in the world, was constructed with funds raised by the Gulf Coast Conservation Association and built on land donated by Central Power and Light Co.

Area fishing report

Beach Road Bait House — 729-8614 —A few specks have been caught in the late evening with live bait. Not too many fishermen around in the earlier part of the week, so action is a little slow. Some golden croaker have been brought in. Plenty of live and dead bait for the weekend.

Key Allegro — 729-2761 —Some nice red snapper have been brought in from offshore. Nice catches of redfish from Aransas Bay but the trout seem to have slowed down a little. Plenty of frozen bait for bay and offshore uses.

Sea Gun — 729-2341 —"So far, so good." Charter boats have had a pretty good week, catching lots of trout and reds from St. Charles and Copano Bay. Probably have live bait for the weekend.

Palm Harbor — 729-8540 —"Pretty good." Trout and reds catching on live bait. Live bait supply for weekend is hoped for. Plenty of dead and frozen.

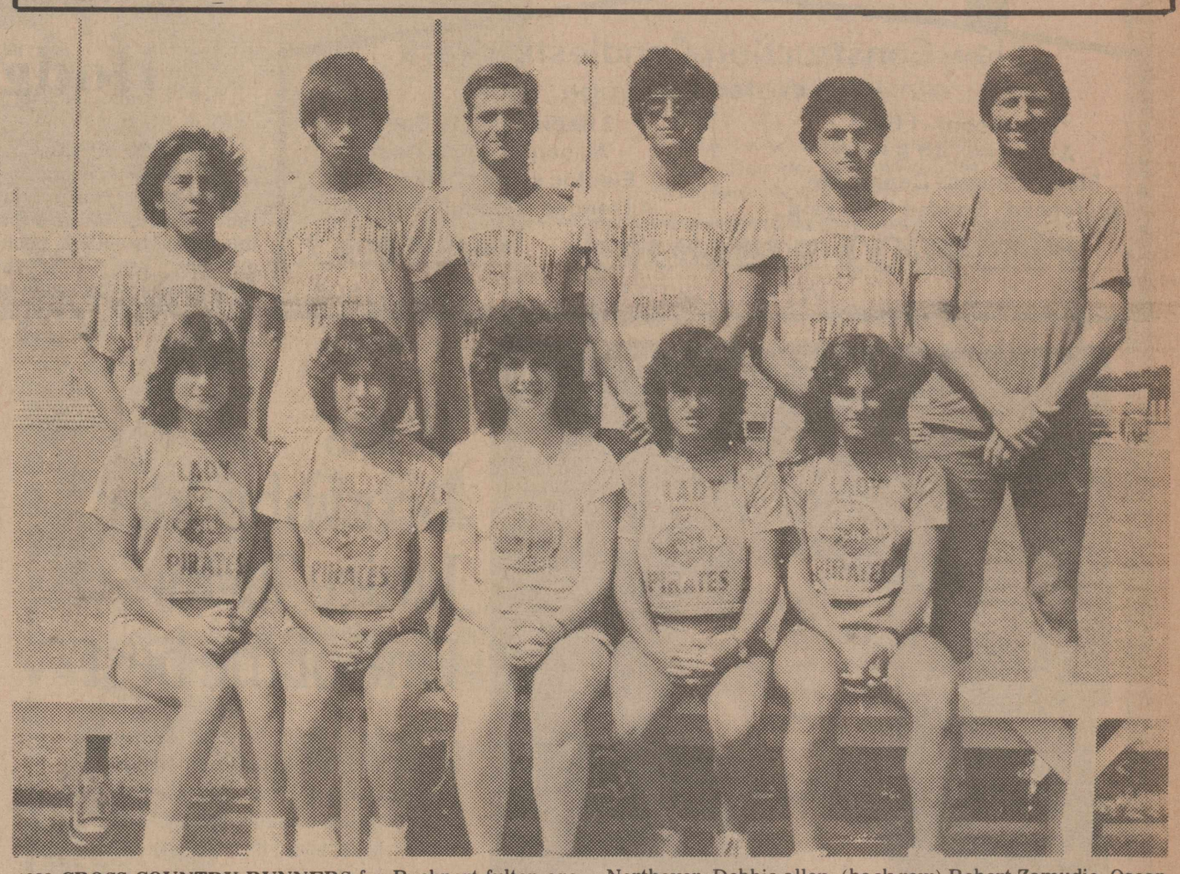

Fulton Harbor Bait — 729-8532 —"Fishing is good." Redfish and trout from pier and the seawall, caught mostly on live bait, perch and golden croaker. Will have live bait for the weekend and plenty of dead.

Sandollar — 729-8562 —Party of three on Tuesday brought in 40 specks and 20 sand trout. Plenty of live bait for the weekend, also plenty of dead.

Copano Causeway — 729-8633 —Lot of trout at night under the lights, up to four pounds in size. Fewer red but those caught are nice size. Catching on live and artificial bait. Live bait is in scarce suply.

LaBahia Downs Fall Meet proves exciting and record-breaking

The second and final weekend of the fall race meet at Goliad's La Bahia Downs will be run Oct. 1-2. Both days will be exciting and will feature a rich stake final. Saturday, Oct. 1, will feature the finals of the La Bahia Derby with a total gross purse of $19,800. The finals will put some of the finest 3-year-olds in Texas at the 400-yard distance. Leading all qualifiers was Go Flight Rainmist, Joyce Jones (Lessee) of Clifton with a fine 20.47 clocking. Other finalists were I Had A Dream, 20.54; Our Crowd Pleaser, 20.54; Runnin Wicked, 20.56; Pueblo Valentine, 20.56; Noble Holme, 20.74; Raise The Odds, 20.76; Native Mable, 20.79; Own True Love, 20.79; and Stylin Lady, 20.88. The Saturday races will also feature the fall sprint series Number 2 at 350 yards.

The Sunday card will be highlighted by the running of the Goliad Futurity Finals at 350 yards. Thats My Oh My Oh, owned by Adam Huron Jr. of Atascosa dashed the Futurity Trials in 18.22 to lead all qualifiers. Other Sunday finalists in the $22,900 futurity include Rebel Easy Jet, 18.24; Mr. Windy Man, 18.29; Two Way Street, 18.32; A World Apart, 18.33; Flying Zevi, 18.41; Oh Say Can You See, 18.43; Viking Vandy Oh, 18.46; Cool Spot, 18.49 and Oh Hy Oh, 18.49. The Sunday races will also include the fall maturity series Number 2 at 440 yards. Races both days begin at noon.

The first weekend of races saw other feature winners. The fall sprint series Number 1 at 330 yards was won by Lando Calrissian, owned by Billy R. Kirk and R.D. Williams of Goliad (17.49). The fall maturity series Number 1 was won by Stepanfetchitsunny, owned by Larry L. Sherwood of Goliad (20.76).

Safe hunting essential

As the main hunting season begins in Texas, safety should be the foremost concern in using a firearm, says the Texas Medical Association.

This applies particularly to hunters under age 21, who cause almost 60 percent of gun casualties. Persons in this age group also make up about 40 percent of all accident victims. For this reason, hunter safety programs in Texas concentrate on the young hunter.

But safety while hunting applies to all ages. As guidelines, the Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife lists the Ten Commandments of Firearm Safety:

— Treat every gun as if it were loaded.

— Be able to control the direction of the gun's muzzle even if you should stumble.

— Be sure the barrel is clear of obstructions. Use only ammunition of the proper size for the gun you are carrying.

— Unload guns when not in use. They should be carried in cases to the shooting area.

— Never point a gun at anything you do not want to shoot. Avoid all horseplay with a firearm.

— Never climb a fence or tree or jump a ditch with a loaded gun. And never pull a gun toward you by the muzzle.

— Be sure of your target before pulling the trigger.

— Never shoot a bullet at a flat, hard surface or at water. During target practice, be sure your backstop is adequate.

— Store guns and ammunition separately beyond the reach of children and careless adults.

— Avoid alcoholic beverages before or during shooting.

To protect the hunter from being mistaken for big game, the Texas Medical Association and wildlife officials recommend that hunters wear a brightly colored outer garmet or cap. The best color is "hunter orange."

For more information on hunter safety programs, call the Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife at 1-800-792-1112.

Raulie Irwin enjoys digging into the past

By PAT BLAIR

The name Irwin is well-known in area real estate circles, and Raulie Irwin Jr. is earning a reputation for his work as an appraiser — but in recent years, he's become equally known for his knowledge of Aransas County's history.

It began, he said during an interview this week at his office, one year when he was responsible for the program at a meeting of the Rockport Rotary Club of which he's a member.

Rotary Club members, he said, are responsible once a year for presenting a program for their fellow members. Drawing on history, which is "sort of a hobby of mine," Raulie "put together" a program on the heroes of the Alamo, focusing on the events of their lives that brought them to Texas and the Alamo.

Raulie confesses he didn't know how well the program would be received, but "that dadgummed bunch of ol' characters (the Rotary members) enjoyed it!"

Remembering that when it came his time to do a program the next year, Raulie gave a program on the founders of the Rockport area — "Fulton, Mathis, Coleman, those guys."

Since then, Raulie has been asked to present his program not only for the Rotary but for other area organizations — the Rockport Chapter of AARP, the Retired Officers Association (last week), "most of the local civic clubs," he sums up. He's even been invited to present the program to the Rotary Clubs in Aransas Pass and Corpus Christi.

The program has grown a bit too, he adds — and continues to expand. "I've changed it to a slide program, enlarged it — it now takes about an hour.

"I enjoy it," he said. "I'm constantly digging (for new material)." He targets the program for the group to which he's speaking. For example, he said, at a Rockport Area Board of Realtors meeting, he focused on land development and developers that have shaped this area.

Raulie's interest in this area goes back a few years. His parents moved to Rockport from Ingleside — where his father, Raulie Sr., was a builder and developer of eight subdivisions — more than 20 years ago.

In 1959, the elder Irwin started Palm Harbor and Raulie remembers he and his family were the first Palm Harbor residents, moving into a home there in January 1961.

Palm Harbor, Raulie notes proudly, is "one of the only subdivisions in Aransas County that never changed ownership." Originally located in Palm Harbor Marina, the Irwin Real Estate office moved to its present location on Hwy. 35 across the street from the subdivision in 1978-79 when the Irwins built the strip center in which their business is now located.

Raulie is a graduate of what was then (1967) Aransas County High School and went from there to Texas A&I University for three years as a business administration major.

While at A&I, however, he learned that Texas A&M University was offering a building construction degree — "so I transferred there for two years and got a bachelor of science degree in building construction from the A&M School of Architecture."

By that time, too, Raulie had a broker's license. He went from A&M to Aspen, Colo., and worked there on various projects until 1973 — when jobs shut down because of an increase in interest rates. "I came back to Rockport," he said, "and I've been here ever since."

He started out concentrating on the construction business and during the past 10 years estimates he's built 60 to 65 homes from Rockport to Ingleside. In 1976, the Irwins bought the 50-acre tract that has since been platted into Windswept Oaks, then came the move to their present office location.

In the latter part of 1980, Raulie sold out of the general contracting business and went to work as the real estate representative and head of construction for the Texas Star Oil Co. of Corpus Christi.

"While there," he added, "I met my wife, Georgia Ann." The couple were married in the summer of 1981. Georgia Ann is a teacher at Ingleside High School and their two sons, E. J. and Zachary, attend Rockport Elementary School.

Raulie was with Texas Star for 15 months, but "I never have worked very much for anybody else." Preferring to be his own boss, he left the company in December 1981 (his wife had already quit) and "spent all of 1982 as an independent right-of-way agent for Coastal States Crude Gathering Co."

Through that year and early 1983, Raulie did appraisal work for several oil companies "and a few private individuals," then in March 1983, "the right-of-way work came to a halt because of the oil crunch."

That was when Raulie began concentrating on appraisal work under the name Coastal Bend Appraisals. "I serve as the broker for Irwin Real Estate," he said, "but I devote most of my time to appraisal work. I mix in a little construction, a little homebuilding, but not much."

In addition to his membership in the Rotary Club (which he served as president in 1980), Raulie was a member for three years of the Rockport Area Chamber of Commerce, serving the last year as president, and is currently on the board of directors of Rockport's SeaFair.

"This is my second year involved with SeaFair," he added.

He has been a member of Rockport's First United Methodist Church for more than 20 years, has taught Sunday School, served as camp counselor and has served on various church committees. "I've served as lay speaker a couple of times," he added.

He's a member of the Rockport Area Board of Realtors and the National Association of Master Appraisers and chairman of the affiliate chapter of the International Right-of-Way Association.

In connection with his hobby, he makes his own slides from photographs for his historical presentations.

"Rockport is one of the oldest (still-existing) towns in this area," he notes. He is continually adding to his store of knowledge on this area's history — and he plans to continue sharing it through his programs.

"I have some programs booked six months in advance," he said.

So if you see a man with a slide projector coming to your meeting, you can probably guess who he is . . .

Commission for Women to meet in Austin Oct. 3-4

Governor Mark White's Commission for Women will hold its second meeting Oct. 3 and 4 at the Hyatt Regency in Austin.

Executive Director Gay Taylor Erwin said the members will complete planning the commission's activities and goals for the coming year.

Governor White created the 29-member commission earlier this year with the charge to identify the needs and concerns of women as new federal and state programs are developed, advise the Governor on women's issues and recommend qualified women for appointive office.

State Representative Rene Oliveira of Brownsville will be the keynote speaker regarding the "Texans for Child Support" committee's efforts to ensure passage of Proposition 6 on the Nov. 8 election ballot. Proposition 6 is a constitutional amendment providing for the assignment of income for the enforcement of court ordered child support.

Representative Oliveira and State Senator Ray Farabee of Whichita Falls are chairmen of the committee and First Lady Linda Gale White is honorary chair.

Other speakers will include Rose Meile, assistant director, Nebraska Commission on the Status of Women, and Sarah Weddington, director of the Texas Office of State-Federal Relations.

Dr. Celia Morris Eckhardt, former director, Washington School, Institute for Policy Studies, will be available for consultation regarding registration of women voters.

Hodges gardens are a photographer's delight

By TED BRICE
"The Garden Editor"

Located in North Louisiana at Many, La., is one of the most beautiful public gardens, and it is the nation's largest privately operated parkland and wild life refuge.

Hodges Gardens combines multi-level formal gardens with natural scenic walks and drives, picnic areas, conservatory, greenhouses and a dramatic monument illustrating the Louisiana Purchase.

In the early 1940s, A.J. Hodges, a pioneer conservationist, began a vast restoration project in Northwest Central Louisiana to restore barren, cut-over land. Hodges planted 39,000 acres of pine seedlings and created a 4,700-acre experimental arboretum. In this area an abandoned stone quarry was found. Hodges and his wife recognized its potential and planned an unique scenic garden using the natural rock formations.

The gardens were first opened to the public in 1956 and at the death of Mr. and Mrs. Hodges a foundation was established to perpetuate their dream of the "Garden in the Forest."

The gardens offer an ever-changing floral panorama throughout the four seasons. Camellias, pansies, anemonies, narcissus and other plants lend their beauty to the winter gardens and spring brings forth an outpouring of tulips, cultivated and wild azaleas and dogwoods.

Summer will feature roses, day lillies, crepe myrtle and annuals. Fall is very vivid with roses and chrysanthemums, along with the colorful fall foliage and the various berried shrubs. The lovely conservatory and greenhouses feature exotic collections as well as old favorites.

You may see interesting wildlife which include deer, elk and wild turkey, as well as many migratory and native birds along the scenic routes at Hodges Gardens. The doogwood, redbud and crab apple are fantastic in the spring. One of my favorites is the hanging purple wisteria.

To go through the gardens, allow a full day, and wear comfortable walking shoes. For those who would be more interested in particular plant cultivars, they should allow some additional time to enjoy the magnificant beauty of the particular plants they are interested in.

Hodges Gardens is a photographer's delight with all the various colors and shapes of plants gathered together in one location. When you visit Hodges Gardens there are two things to remember to bring — your camera and comfortable walking shoes.

You will find Hodges Gardens located 12 miles south of Many, La., on U.S. Highway 171, which intersects with Interstate 20 at Shreveport. There is a resort hotel located at the entrance to Hodges Gardens in order to accommodate overnight visitors.

Hodges Gardens can be a wonderful weekend trip, but it should be at least a must on your vacation plans. If you desire more information about Hodges Gardens write "The Garden Editor" care of this newspaper.

Good gardening until next week from your garden editor, Ted Brice!

SeaFair bike parade seeks entrants

All area youngsters who wish to participate in the "bike parade," an annual feature of Rockport's SeaFair parade, are asked to meet at 9:30 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 8, at Mathis Park.

The park is located at the south end of Live Oak Street.

Judging for decorated bikes begins at 10 a.m. and first, second and third-place prizes will be awarded in separate divisions for boys and girls.

H.E.B. is donating free treats for all children who participate in the parade. Members of the local Boy Scouts will accompany the children during the SeaFair parade march, which begins at 10:30 a.m., and parents of children participating are asked to please pick up their children behind the Chamber of Commerce building immediately after the parade.

The bike parade is under the charge of Patti and Murray McMillan.

Employer tax deadline nears

Oct. 31 is the date by which employers must report on Form 941 Social Security and withheld federal income taxes for the third quarter of 1983 and pay any taxes due, say Internal Revenue Service officials.

This deadline does not apply to those employers who make timely deposits of the full amount of tax due in Federal Reserve or approved commercial banks. They are allowed until Nov. 10 to file Form 941, "Employer's Quarterly Federal Tax Return."

If employers have not received Form 941 by mail, they can order one through the Forms/Tax Information number listed in the phone book under U.S. Government. IRS Publication 15, Circular E — Employer's Tax Guide, is also available through this number.

Texas Brownbuilder Janice Taylor: One of the best

Janice Taylor, from San Antonio, is helping build local economic growth and progress as part of Brown & Root's worldwide engineering and construction team.

Janice joined Brown & Root in 1975 as a timekeeper and is now secretary to the yard manager working at Harbor Island. She and her husband, Frank, live in Ingleside and have two daughters. A graduate of Sam Houston High School in San Antonio, Janice attended Delmar College in Corpus Christi where she studied accounting, and has also taken part in a secretarial seminar sponsored by Brown & Root. On the weekends she enjoys portrait oil painting.

Another thing about Janice: she's one of the best. She's helping Brown & Root do a better job, because she knows her job and gets it done right.

Open shop, open opportunity

Brownbuilders like Janice share with all of us a feeling of pride in individual contributions to the total success of every project on which we work. Brown & Root's open shop policy means open opportunity for people to do their best. We offer training in valuable skills and reward good work with advancement that's based on the individual's ability and merit. That way we get the best people at every job level.

The community benefits

Through our local offices, we offer employment to a high percentage of community residents. The dollars they earn circulate locally in sales, savings and taxes, benefiting business and government. The additional skills and experience they acquire are lasting community benefits.

"Practical and highly effective"

"Ultrasound scanning device is simple solution to brain surgery

NEW ORLEANS — An "extremely simple procedure" using ultrasound is helping to solve some of the very complicated problems of brain surgery.

By using an ultrasound scanning device directly on the brain itself, after the skull has been opened by the neurosurgeons, radiologists can within minutes locate the tumor, blood clot, abcess or other lesions no matter how deeply it is located in the brain. This gives the surgeons the opportunity to actually see on a monitor what they are looking for at exactly the time they need the information.

Ochsner Clinic radiologist, Dr. Christopher R.B. Merritt, and neurosurgeons, Drs. Edward Connolly and Richard Coulon, discussed the advantage of this special use of ultrasound scanning in a recent edition of "Radiology."

The special ultrasound techniques used in the procedure were developed by the Ochsner team and another group working at the University of Chicago. Both teams worked with the equipment manufacturer to arrive at this.

The high-resolution, real-time ultrasound scanning was done on 54 adults, young children and infants. In the adults, a mechanical ultrasound sector scanner was used directly on the exposed dura of the brain. It was successful in characterizing and localizing tumors, cysts, abcesses, vascular malformations and blood clots.

In the infants and young children, the scanning was performed through the fontanelle, a membrane covered opening in the skull of young children. It was used during the placement of shunts or tubes used to drain the fluids of those with hydrocephalus, or "water on the brain."

"Not only did this new procedure allow more accurate placement of the shunts, but it resulted in fewer short-term and long-term complications," Merritt reports.

"Radiologists have long been able to offer surgeons an array of pre-operative diagnostic tests. In the case of brain surgery, this is sometimes not enough, if the lesion is buried deep inside the brain itself. Pinpointing the exact location of the trouble at the time of surgery is difficult. The use of X-rays is not quick enough. Some medical centers have even installed the million-dollar CT scanners in operating rooms — a procedure which is extremely expensive and not feasible logistically in most hospitals.

In the adults, the ultrasound scanner, specially modified for use during the operation itself, was first cleaned and encased in a sterile covering. To produce the proper acoustic connection between the head of the scanner and the brain itself, the operative field has to be irrigated with a sterile saline solution.

The benefits of ultrasound scanning at the time of brain surgery include rapid and precise localization of the lesions as well as a reduction in operating time.

"The ability to locate deep masses that were not accompanied by changes on the surface of the brain was especially valuable in preventing unnecessary damage to normal brain tissue during exploratin," Merritt points out.

The ultrasound scanning done during the operation correlated well with findings of pre-operative studies including those done during angiography and with the CT scanner, he adds.

Ultrasound scanning has also been most helpful in the placing of shunts or tubes in the brains of infants. "Long-term shunt function, particularly in premature infants receiving shunts for treatment of hydrocephalus following intracranial hemmorhage has been significantly prolonged. The follow-up period is now ranging from four to 14 months and the shunts have functioned satisfactorily. Most shunts placed without ultrasound guidance have required revision within three to six months after the initial placement," he points out.

"Ultrasound used during operations is a practical and highly effective means of 'seeing' inside the brain itself for pinpointing of both intricate brain anatomy as well as disease," he said.

'Fifth of July' presented by Texas A & I theatre

KINGSVILLE — The Texas A&I theatre arts department will present "The Fifth of July," for mature audiences, through Oct. 1 in the Little Theatre.

The setting is Missouri, Independence Day 1977, on a fictional Talley farm near Lebanon. Director Randall J. Buchanan, professor of communication and theatre arts, said the story is of lives in transition. The characters are making a final adjustment from the celebration of the 60s to the reality of the 70s and 80s. That's what the title is all about — the day after the celebration."

Author Lanford Wilson examines how lives have been changed in the aftermath of the characters' studies at Berkeley and the Vietnam war. "The audience must decide whether the experiences were good, bad or indifferent. The play neither condemns nor condones. It simply tries to show," said Buchanan.

The play is the second work in a trilogy that starts with the development of Sally in the 40s and 50s in "Talley's Folly." In the "Fifth of July" she's back 36 years later. The third work is not yet written.

Wilson's use of multiple plots has been compared to Chekhov. "When it's all over, you really know the characters," said Buchanan.

Other works by the author are "Balm in Gilead," "The Rimers of Eldritch," "The Mound Builders" and his latest, "Angels Fall." He also wrote the Obie Award-winning "Hot'l Baltimore," which won the National Drama Critics Circle Award for Best American Play in 1973.

Buchanan directed "Hot'l Baltimore" here two years ago. "This play is very different. It's much more difficult."

Though the script has been edited in a fashion similar to the April PBS broadcast, Buchanan said "there are all sorts of four-letter words. The play also addresses sensitive subject matter so we recommend discretion."

The cast includes Daniel Garcia as Kenneth Talley Jr., Joe D. Trevino as John Landis and Chris Langley as Weston Hurley. Texas A&I alumna Glenda Stewart Langley will play Gwen Landis. Janet Cotton Taylor, a graduate student, portrays Sally Friedman and junior Fay Kathleen Trevino plays June Talley. All are from Kingsville.

Alice freshman Phillip L. Brock plays Jed Jenkins. Mary Margaret Beck, a freshman from San Antonio, plays 13-year-old Shirley Talley.

Dr. David Deacon, associate professor of theatre at Texas A&I, has designed portable sets for the production which will be staged, unedited, at Pan American University in Edinburg for the Southeast Texas Area American College Theatre Festival in November. New York Director Gerald Freedman will judge the competition.

Performances will begin at 8 p.m. each evening. General admission is $2; admission for students, military and senior citizens is $1.50. For more information 595-3401.

Bald eagle population showing strong signs of recovery in 1983

The endangered bald eagle is showing strong signs of recovery after years on the decline, according to the results of the National Wildlife Federation's 1983 bald eagle survey.

The 1983 survey, taken from Jan. 2 to 17, counted 12,098 bald eagles in 46 states, about the same as last year's count. In 1979, the Federation's first survey counted 9,815 bald eagles.

"It's encouraging that bald eagles may be finally recovering from the grave threats of pesticides, habitat loss and illegal killings," said Jay D. Hair, NWF executive vice preisdent. Hair noted that there remain major threats.

The bald eagle is officially endangered in 43 states and threatened in five others. Only in Alaska is the bald eagle plentiful. There are none in Hawaii. After a drastic decline in the 1960s due to pesticides and dwindling habitat, bald eagle populations in some areas are beginning to make a comeback, according to the Federation's raptor biologists.

Considered to be the most complete midwinter bald eagle count available, the National Wildlife Federation survey provides eagle experts with date on where the birds live during the winter and the habitat they need to survive.

Brian Millsap, National Wildlife Federation raptor biologist and coordinator of the survey, said that this year's unusually mild weather in the eastern U.S. apparently resulted in many northern states having higher than usual bald eagle counts and many southern states having lower counts.

"During mild winters, bald eagles seem to overwinter farther north and remain more dispersed than during cold winters," Millsap said.

This year's survey found bald eagle populations in Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, North Dakota and Wisconsin. It found decreases in Alabama, Arkansas, Florida and Texas.

The largest population was in Washington state, with 1,158 birds; next largest was Utah with 1,042, followed by Florida (684) and Idaho (644).

The National Wildlife Federation, whose logo features a bald eagle in flight, has been associated with eagle protection. The federation offers $500 for information leading to the conviction of anyone who illegally kills a bald eagle.

The Federation's Raptor Information Center also conducts the annual Chesapeake Bay Bald Eagle Banding Project in which all known nestlings in the Bay area are banded and color-marked. According to this year's project, 114 young eaglets survived to leave the nest, compared to 55 in 1978.

Tenth national exhibit is slated for New Orleans

The New Orleans Art Association is announcing its 10th National Art Exhibition to be held May 20-June 2, 1984.

This biennial exhibition is funded in part by a grant from CNG Producing Company and is open to all artists 18 years or older.

It is limited to paintings, drawings, watercolors and prints. First prize is $700, second prize is $500, third prize is $250, with three honorable mentions at $100 each.

Juror is Harry Ahysen, professor of art at Sam Houston University of Huntsville, painter, author and lecturer.

Entry fees and slides ($10 per slide with a maximum of three slides per artist) must be submitted for viewing no later than Feb. 11.

For more information and entry forms write to Marquita Macon, slide chairman, 10 Lansdowne Lane, Destrehan, La. 70047.

State Teachers Association seeks tougher course requirements

AUSTIN — The Texas State Teachers Association wants to make it tougher to become a teacher by beefing up course requirements in Texas colleges of education and extending preparation for teaching to a five-year degree program.

TSTA President Dale Young told members of the Select Committee on Public Education, meeting in Austin this week, that many Texas universities offer instruction to prospective teachers which is not necessarily relevant to daily classroom teaching experiences.

The 95,000 member teachers' organization proposes that colleges of education revamp teacher education programs to improve academic training and provide more time for professional teaching preparation through a five-year study program with longer experiences in student teaching and internship.

The TSTA plan would place student teachers in school districts under the supervision of a master teacher for one year prior to certification. Student teachers would be salaried during the internship.

Other suggested course requirements would include more academic classes in the major and minor fields plus instruction in critical thinking, problem solving and creativity, human growth and development, learning theories, decision-making and communication skills.

In other testimony, a Brownwood principal, Don Martin, also speaking for TSTA, said he believed most Texas superintendents and coaches are ready to support higher academic standards for students and would be willing to tie stiffer minimum achievement levels to participation in extracurricular activities.

Speaking to the merit pay issue, James Butler, executive secretary-treasurer of TSTA, cautioned against hasty implementation of this type of compensation plan.

"TSTA will support a plan that is directed toward the goal of attracting and retaining excellent teachers," Butler said, "But we see no reason for optimism in any of the merit pay schemes currently being tried or proposed in Texas."

TSTA is supporting an across-the-board raise of 24 percent for all Texas teachers.

Butler said his organization was willing to discuss the possibility of using some kind of merit pay plan which would eliminate opportunities for abuse, favoritism and dissention and which would not be offered in lieu of competitive entry level salaries.

He said a good merit pay system must provide the opportunity for career development for all teachers through a progressive "career ladder" concept.

"All teachers should be able to volunteer the evidence of advanced level teaching skills that would enable them to move up in the teaching profession hierarchy," he said. "This is opposed to a pyramid approach whereby only an arbitrary and predetermined small percentage of teachers can ever be designated 'master teachers'."

Other TSTA proposals called for improvements in teacher and administrator evaluations and in-service training, restoration of grade integrity and teacher authority and stricter discipline policies statewide.

Highway commission backs agricultural exemption

AUSTIN — Commissioners for the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation have approved a policy maintaining the traditional exemption from width limitations that allows overwide agricultural implements to move short distances on public roads.

The commissioners acted to clarify the meaning of HB 1602, passed in the recent legislative session to comply with federal highway assistance regulations. Some staff members at the Highway Department believed that a technical reading of the legislation could mean the end of the agricultural exemption.

Concerned about the effect of such an interpretation on farming operations, Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower contacted Governor Mark White and Highway Commission Chairman Robert C. Lanier of Houston, who pledged their assistance in solving the problem.

"We agreed to correct it about 15 minutes after we learned about it," Lanier said of the action. "We felt the intent of the legislature was to regulate the loads on the highway and not to restrict farmers."

Without the clarifying action by the commission, farmers could have been required to purchase permits at a cost of $40 per month in order to move vehicles wider than 8½ feet on any public road.

"The effect of the commission's action is to keep the exemption just like it was," Lanier said.

Hightower praised the action of the commission, saying, "This is a good example of government making rules work for the good of the people. Farmers simply had to have this exemption to get their farming done and the Highway Commission acted quickly to make sure that the law was interpreted fairly."

UHV celebrates birthday

VICTORIA — The University of Houston-Victoria will celebrate its 10 birthday Oct. 2-7 with a six-day open house on campus.

The festivities will begin Sunday, Oct. 2, with a barbecue in the courtyard between UHV and Victoria College. Opening ceremonies are scheduled for 12:30 p.m. and performances by various choral and musical ensembles will be featured along with sports celebrities.

In addition, an open house of all UHV buildings will feature displays and slide shows on the history and progress of the university.

On Monday morning, Oct. 3, the Board of Regents Committee will meet at 9:30 a.m., followed by a reception and luncheon for the Board of Regents and their spouses at noon. Also attending the luncheon and reception will be the UHV Development Council Executive Board and their spouses, as well as other local dignitaries.

A birthday cake made by the Center for Children will be presented to UH-Victoria at 10:30 a.m.

A reception and seated dinner for Development Council members and their spouses will be held in the ballroom of the Victoria Country Club at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 5. Lt. Governor Bill Hobby will be attending the dinner.

The Chamber of Commerce will host a reception for the UHV and Victoria College faculty and their spouses from 4 p.m. until 6 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 6.

San Antonio stock show and rodeo set Feb. 10-19

SAN ANTONIO — Country music "superstars" such as Charley Pride, the Texas Top Hands, Louise Mandrell and Roy Clark will be featured during the 10-day San Antonio Stock Show & Rodeo at the Joe & Harry Freeman Coliseum Feb. 10-19.

The Texas Top Hands of San Antonio will be featured in a special performance on the stock show grounds at 10 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 11.

The schedule for the 35th annual show begins Friday and Saturday, Feb. 10-11, with appearances by Charley Pride at 2 and 7:30 p.m. both days.

Following the Top Hands' performance Feb. 11, Louise Mandrell will be featured in shows at 2 and 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 12, and 7:30 p.m. Monday, Feb. 13.

Lee Greenwood will be the star of shows at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday, Feb. 14-15, and T.G. Sheppard will be featured Thursday and Friday, Feb. 16-17.

Roy Clark will round out the 10-day event with performances at 2 and 7:30 p.m. both days on Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 18-19.

Ticket order forms will be available in November, according to Nat Prassel, president of the Stock Show.

Rep. Bill Patman

Grain embargo unacceptable response to Soviet aggression

Congressman Bill Patman, D-Texas, has urged disapproval of any grain embargo as a response to the Soviet Union's shooting down of a Korean commercial airliner.

Joining other Texas congressmen in opposition to such an embargo, Patman sais his South Central Texas district contributes significantly to Texas' position as a leading exporter of wheat.

"Farmers in that area were adversely affected by the 1980 grain embargo and they remember the lessons from that ill-fated action, even if those who have called for another embargo do not," Patman said.

"As a nation, we lost some $11.4 billion in overall production along with an estimated 310,000 jobs. With its numerous Gulf Coast ports, from which grain exports are shipped, the 14th Congressional District lost even more than its share of the sales of wheat, corn, rice, grain sorghums and soybeans. Many of the district's farmers are just now recovering from that loss; others have not recovered.

"If a less appropriate action could be taken by this Congress, it has yet to be seriously proposed," Patman said.

IRS sets up special agency to solve persistent tax problems

Experiencing an uncomfortable feeling akin to indigestion regarding an unresolved tax problem? If you have already tried the normal IRS remedies to solve your problem, the tax agency suggests you try its Problem Resolution Program (PRP) office.

The most common problems brought to the PRP office are complaints about missing refunds, mixed up Social Security numbers, incorrect billings by IRS and situations caused by taxpayer error, the IRS says. They cautioned, however, that the Problem Resolution should not be used as a substitute for normal procedures.

Although most taxpayers will never need the services of PRP, the IRS says that taxpayers with a persistent tax problem will find PRP willing and able to help. Taxpayers can contact PRP through the IRS assistance number listed in the phone book under U.S. Government.

Coastal Bend Hospital offers you the C.A.P. card.

C. Credit
A. Approved
P. Patient

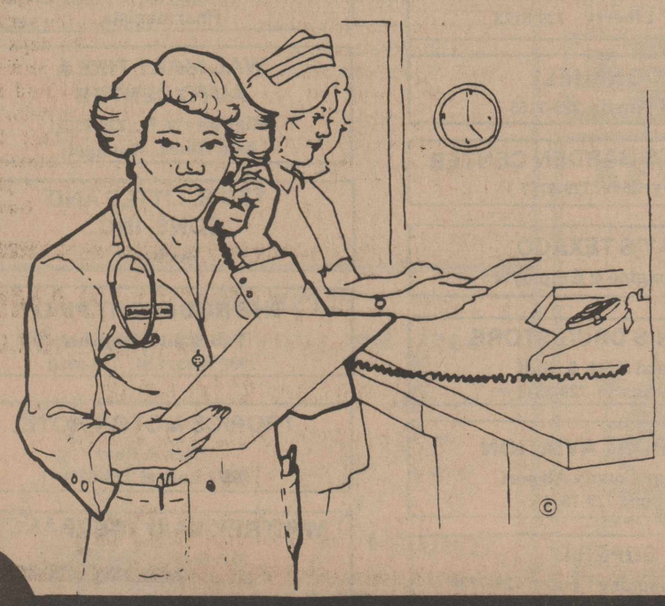

Now you can avoid the sometimes lengthy waiting period involved in Hospital admissions, Outpatient Services or Emergency Room visits.

To whom does the C.A.P. card benefit:

Families
As our children grow older and become more active a C.A.P. card would be an added convenience on their behalf if the situation ever came up. The C.A.P. card provides immediate identification and insures proper attention. The C.A.P. card program should include all your family members.

Businesses
Your employees are the most important asset in your business and their health is just as important. The C.A.P. card provides that employee with the fastest possible method of receiving all available services at Coastal Bend Hospital.

Individuals
With todays fast moving life-style we have become accustomed to using plastic money (credit cards) and for good reason. The secure feeling of having a Hospital Credit Card assures you of service being given with only your signature required. The fact that you have the approved credit card, removes the need of carrying cash and the fear of cash being lost or stolen.

C.A.P. plans to be operational by Oct. 1, 1983.

If you are interested in the C.A.P. card, please clip the attached coupon and drop it in the mail today!

Why should you receive a "CAP" card?

Saves Time
When you present your C.A.P. card for services or upon admission to Coastal Bend Hospital you can be assured that you will receive the service required in the least amount of time possible. Only your signature on the necessary forms are needed before you are personally admitted to a room or treated for Outpatient or emergency services.

Eliminates Bothersome Paperwork
Often there are bothersome, confusing problems that a patient is confronted with at time of admission or when services are performed. Your C.A.P. card eliminates this problem. As a card holder, your admissions, insurance and other necessary information is already in the Hospital System. You are a credit approved patient.

Insures Payment
Although you may carry valid insurance that covers emergencies and hospitalization it is nice to know that those verifications have been taken care of at the time you received your C.A.P. card. For those applicants that don't have a Health Insurance Plan, but are financially sound, the C.A.P. card is easily accepted upon presentation.

Please send me a C.A.P. Card Application

Asking the right questions

The Shepherd's staff

By the Rev. Charles Fake
Pastor, First Baptist Church

The shooting down of the KAL 747 airliner and the murder of 269 defenseless, innocent victims by the Communist military machine should prompt each of us to ask himself some serious questions.

1. Am I aware of the dangers of belief systems which deny the existence of God?

2. Am I aware of the importance of Judaeo-Christian emphases upon the sanctity of life and the worth of persons, in forming the basis for our democratic freedoms?

3. I'm not angry with the Russian people, am I? They and millions of others in Iron Curtain countries around the world are held in the grip of dictatorships which lie to them and hold them in subjection.

4. How well do I know Communists? Do I remember from reading their own documents that "Truth" and "Morality" have new definitions? Truth to them is whatever advances the cause of the party and Morality to them allows any means to attain their ends.

5. Why did we not strike back? Do our leaders know more than we do about just how close this giant powder keg of a world is to being exploded? Did our mild response indicate a worldwide danger of nuclear holocaust nearer than we dared believe?

Let us think. And pray.

Let us re-examine our personal commitment to the values and beliefs which have created and nurtured this great nation.

Let us never forget that God is greater than nations. The question is not, "Is God on our side?" The question is, "Are we on God's side?"

Baptist General Convention planned

AMARILLO — Messengers to the annual Baptist General Convention of Texas in Amarillo Nov. 1-3 will consider a proposed $53.7 million budget for missions and transact business concerning 23 institutions and agencies.

In addition, these messengers from many of the 4,500 Texas Baptist churches and missions will elect a new president to succeed D.L. Lowrie, pastor of First Baptist Church, Lubbock. Lowrie has served the maximum two one-year terms.

Paul Powell, pastor of Green Acres Baptist Church in Tyler will deliver the annual convention sermon.

Other key speakers will include Lowrie who will give the president's message during the opening session; William M. Pinson Jr., executive director of the Baptist General Convention of Texas; Jose Rivas, dean for academic affairs at Hispanic Baptist Theological Seminary in San Antonio; James Semple, pastor of First Baptist Church, Paris; Lester Collins, pastor of Tallowood Baptist Church, Houston; and Richard Jackson, pastor of North Phoenix Baptist Church, Phoenix, Ariz.

Also on the program will be Lloyd Elder, president of the Baptist Sunday School Board of Nashville, Tenn.; and S.M. Lockridge, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, San Diego, Calif.

The convention will also feature a presentation on Texas Baptists' partnership missions emphases in Mexico and Australia. The BGCT is working with Baptists in the two countries in the areas of evangelism, church growth, leadership training and church construction.

The Texas Baptist Public Relations Advisory Committee will present the annual Communications Award to Susan Nethery, a homemaker and author from Milam. The award is given to an individual in the communications field who has made significant contributions to the religious life of Texas through the media.

Preceding the convention will be the annual meetings of the woman's Missionary Union and Texas Baptist Men, auxiliary mission organizations to the BGCT.

Young women's group to meet

The Baptist Young Women at Rockport's First Baptist Church plan a program and salad luncheon in the church's fellowship hall Saturday, Oct. 1.

The program will begin at 10:30 a.m. and those planning to attend are asked to bring a salad or dessert as well as any old Bibles or Christian literature that can be re-used.

The materials that are brought will be sent to the Philippines for use.

The Baptist Women will have their general meeting at 10 a.m. Tuesday, Oct. 4, in the fellowship hall.

Also planned later this month is a meeting of the Ruth Class at 2 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 13, at the home of Dixie Chapman.

ARTICLES TO BE INCLUDED ON THE CHURCH PAGE SHOULD BE AT THE PILOT OFFICE BY NOON ON WEDNESDAYS!

Greater First Baptist hosts barbecue

The Greater First Baptist Church of Rockport will have a barbecue during SeaFair weekend at the Lions Pit in Rockport Harbor.

Serving will begin at 10 a.m. Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 8 and 9. Cost is $3.75 per plate of barbecued beef, chicken or sausage with all the trimmings.

Message to church leaders

People still need to care

COLLEGE STATION — Despite today's "high tech" society, people still need to care for each other, an educational futurist told a gathering of church leaders at Texas A&M University Sept. 19.

"You need to lead people down the path of care," Dr. John Hoyle, professor of educational administration at Texas A&M, told some 150 participants at the 38th Annual Town and Country Church Conference. "Technology won't change who you are. Nothing will replace you. You have the gift of humanity in serving God's people.

"You are called upon to help people help themselves — it's a tough job," he emphasized. "If you can help put people back together, the world will come out all right," he said, alluding to such problems as high rates of divorce, suicides, drug abuse and illegitimate children that are plaguing society.

"Many people today know the price of everything and the value of nothing," Hoyle said, in regard to the trend toward self-centeredness in today's society.

Regarding the future, Hoyle noted that there are two views — doomsday and utopian. "Those who hold the doomsday view believe the world is doomed by modern technology while the utopians hold the positive view that everything will be for the better."

As a positive futurist, Hoyle challenged the church leaders to think in a holistic (world) way and to relate happenings to everyone inhabiting the earth. "There is an interconnectiveness that we all need to be concerned about," he said.

The educator emphasized that the future is "now," that today's events and happenings affect everyone's future and that people must relate to these developments.

Hoyle challenged the church leaders to be forward-thinking and to connect ideas with knowledge so that the future world will be a better place in which to live.

"As futurists, we face a number of issues that we should all be aware of," Hoyle said. "For instance, our population is growing as well as changing rapidly, particularly in Texas. We have growing numbers of minorities and older citizens and the demand for jobs continues to increase."

Regarding today's high technology, Hoyle said, "It creates hope but we may be overselling it." High technology is causing a lack of jobs for some people, he noted, and may be at the root of some of the problems that are plaguing society today.

"Religion has become a consumer item due to high technology," he said. "The 'electronic church' is coming on strong — mass media religion may be the religion of tomorrow.

"Yes, we live in a 'Baskin-Robbins society' today that offers limitless choices," Hoyle said. "You have a key role in helping people make the right choices."

Adult Information Class to be held at Peace Lutheran

An Adult Information Class for persons who want to know more about Christianity — and the Lutheran faith — will begin at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 4, at Peace Lutheran Church, 1501 W. Market (FM 881).

The class, which will continue until 8:30 p.m., will be in the educational building next door to the church sanctuary.

Anyone who is interested in finding out what Peace Lutheran believes as a member of the Lutheran Church, anyone interested in joining the church or Lutherans "who want to refresh their memories of what the church teaches" are invited to attend the class, according to the Rev. Wayne Pafk, church pastor.

Some of the topics that will be discussed include reasons for joining a church, how a person can follow Christ, what Lutherans believe and why they baptize infants, Rev. Pafk said. Other topics will include "Faith received or accepted?" and "Are science and Christianity in conflict?"

Rev. Pafk asks anyone interested in attending the class to please call him at 729-7264 in order that some preparation can be made in advance for attendance.

The religious community

Church women elect officers

The Presbyterian Women met in Fellowship Hall of the church at 10 a.m. Thursday, for their annual installation of officers.

Billie Franklin, president, opened the meeting with prayer. Reports were given by officers and committee chairmen and the budget for year beginning Oct. 1 was approved.

Gertrude Alvord, retiring vice-president, conducted the installation ceremony in which retiring officers were honored and new ones installed. Each member of the group received a different cut flower, all of which held together formed a bouquet symbolizing the ministry of the organization.

Expression of appreciation was given to Billie Franklin, outgoing president. She is being honored with a Life Membership.

The slate of officers includes Jeanette Stalker, president; Kay Patteson, vice president; Kathryn Cavitt, secretary; Jeannie White, treasurer; Miriam Ferrell, historian; and Helen Statesir, publicity and corresponding secretary.

Circle chairmen are Gertrude Baugh, Ferrell and Barbara Hays. Other chairmen include Margaret Gill, Ecumenical Missions; Sandy Booth, Christian Community Action; Hays, Personal Faith and Family Life; and Brenda Hoover, Leadership and Resources.

Parson Jones

I went with my wife the other day to buy groceries. When I saw how high everything was, I almost had a stroke. That little trip to the supermarket upset me so much that I dreamed all night long.

I dreamed that many, many years ago there lived a nation of balloons. The balloons had just enough air in them to make 'em stand upright. They could stretch what they had. In other words, there were thrifty.

Then a philosopher balloon arose from their ranks to develop the more-is-beautiful idea. "There's no virtue in living like rubber necks," said the philosopher, "more is beautiful." Some balloons bought the theory right away. "We need more air to live on," shouted the balloon workers. And so, they got more air. When the others saw how nice the round, plump balloons looked, they said, "more is beautiful--give us more." And behold, more air was forthcoming.

Politicians soon ran on the platform of "100 puffs of air in every balloon." The government set 50 puffs as the poverty level. "More, more, give us more--100 puffs is the floor," they all shouted. Air puffs came fast and furious, as the balloons pressed their demands.

Then came a warning voice! "Inflation is eating up all our air," warned the balloon prophet. The balloons laughed and inflated some more. Bigger and bigger they became until one hot summer day they all popped, "POW." And there lying shattered on the ground were the remains of what was once a nation of proud balloons.

ORDINANCE NO. 612

AN ORDINANCE PROVIDING FOR DRIVERS OF VEHICLES IN SCHOOL ZONE INTERSECTIONS TO YIELD RIGHT-OF-WAY TO PEDESTRIANS; PROVIDING THAT DRIVERS MUST OBEY LAWFUL DIRECTIONS OF SCHOOL CROSSING GUARDS: PROVIDING FOR A PENALTY; DECLARING AN EMERGENCY AND MAKING THIS ORDINANCE EFFECTIVE IMMEDIATELY UPON PASSAGE.

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF ROCKPORT THAT:

Sec. I. Definition of School Crossing Guard: Any person who is appointed by the Aransas County Independent School District and approved by the City Council who performs the normal duties of directing traffic at designated school crossing zones located within the corporate City Limits of Rockport.

Sec. II. The driver of a vehicle on a street or highway entering an intersection in a school zone shall yield the right-of-way to a pedestrian crossing the roadway or street within any marked crosswalk or within any unmarked crosswalk, whenever stop signals or flashing red signals are in place or whenever traffic in the intersection is being directed by a school crossing guard.

Sec. III. It shall be unlawful for the driver of a vehicle to disregard the lawful directions of a school crossing guard who is directing traffic at an intersection located in a school zone during school days when schoolchildren are present.

Sec. IV. Any person violating any provision of this Ordinance shall be fined not less than One Dollar ($1.00) nor more than Two Hundred Dollars ($200.00) for each violation.

Sec. V. Due to the urgency of the contents of the above Ordinance, it is hereby declared that an emergency exists, making it necessary that this Ordinance be passed and become effective on the first reading thereof.

YOU AND YOUR HEALTH

by Peter J. Esse, M.D.

Dear Dr. Esse: I'm 45 and for the past year or so, I've noticed that my hearing isn't so good. In addition, I have another problem. I've developed ringing in the ears — a condition my doctor calls tinnitus. My right ear is the culprit. To make sure there isn't a serious reason for the hearing loss, such as a tumor or serious infection, I have had brain scans and other tests. Hearing exams show that the loss of hearing isn't getting worse, but not better, either. I don't know which is harder to bear, the loss of hearing or the darn ringing in my ears. It's so bad at times, I can't fall asleep, and put the radio on to drown out the sounds. I'm writing because I'm anxious to know if there is anything else I can do. Mr. G.

Dear Mr. G.: I presume your doctors have tried practically everything to help. Most will tell you that tinnitus is one of the most stubborn problems to overcome. And of course, so is loss of hearing. Here's something to consider if your doctors haven't already. According to George E. Shambaugh, Jr., MD of Northwestern University Medical School, patients with sensorineural hearing loss or tinnitus, or both, may benefit from taking zinc supplements. He has tried zinc sulfate on several patients and has found improvement (remission symptoms) in more than 20 patients. He usually prescribes 600 mg daily of zinc sulfate, 10 times the normal daily requirement. Chronic zinc deficiency should also be suspected when a patient experiences hair loss, diminished taste or smell, fragile nails, adult acne. Ask your doctors if they have had experience with zinc treatment, Mr. G.

Spacing is crucial in garden

By Mike Rothrock
County Extension Agent-AG
San Patricio-Aransas counties

Getting up a good stand of your favorite fall vegetable is just the first step toward a successful garden. Once seedlings are up, they must be thinned and spaced properly.

Too many seedlings in a row can act just like weeds and compete with each other for water, light and nutrients.

Overcrowding often occurs with many of the popular fall vegetables such as lettuce, carrots, beets, radishes and spinach. These must have room if they are going to develop into good quality, high producing vegetables.

If you are interested in growing table beets, space each beet seedling at least 2 inches apart and space rows 12 to 18 inches apart.

Carrots can be planted a little closer, but they still need 1 to 2 inches of space if long, straight carrots are expected. Crowded carrot seedlings become twisted and misshapen and are often small.

Lettuce is often overcrowded. Most gardeners are reluctant to thin lettuce because the idea is to eat the leaves anyway. However, for good quality lettuce, thin plants to about 6 inches apart. Harvest the whole plant as the best part of lettuce is the tender light green leaves. Otherwise, the result may be a bunch of little, bitter, tasteless outside leaves.

Space radishes at least 1 inch apart. Overcrowding causes misshapen radishes or failure to enlarge at all.

All home garden vegetable crops have an optimum spacing for best results. Try not to crowd your garden with too many plants, especially in the fall. Cooler temperatures and the usually high humidity associated with fall gardening can cause disease problems if plants are too close together.

THE REAL ESTATE CONSUMER

REITS AID INVESTORS

If you have looked into real estate investment, chances are you have heard someone mention the term REIT.

REIT stands for real estate investment trust. A REIT is a trust established for the benefit of a group of investors. It is managed by one or more trustees who hold title to the assets for the trust. The trustees also control the REIT's acquisitions and investments, at least 75 percent of which must be real estate related.

A major advantage of a REIT is that no federal income tax need be paid by the trust, if certain qualifications are met. A REIT does for real estate what a mutual fund does for securities. It provides the small investor with a means of combining funds with those of others, while offering the protection from double taxation that would be levied against an ordinary corporation or trust. Ask your stock broker for more information.

WHO NEEDS A TITLE SEARCH?

So you have decided to purchase a home and hope to take possession as soon as possible. The terms have been agreed on and all the financial arrangements have been made.

There is but one important detail remaining — the title search. Title is a bundle of rights in real property. A title search is the process of determining from the public record just what these rights are and who owns them. A title search is a means of determining that the person who is selling the property has the right to sell it and that the buyer is getting all the rights to the property he or she is paying for.

A title search is done by the title company. The buyer purchases a title insurance policy for assurance that the title is valid. The title company issues a title policy, which insures the existence or nonexistence of rights to the property, and the title company will defend the title at its own expense and pay losses covered by the policy.

TITLE SHOULD ADDRESS CROP OWNERSHIP

If you are buying or selling rural land, here is an item of interest. Texas law recognizes two types of crops — harvested and unharvested.

Harvested or severed crops are personal property and will not pass to the purchaser with the title to the land. Unharvested or growing crops are part of the real property and do pass to the buyer with title to the land unless the parties agree to the contrary.

There is an exception to this rule. Crops that must be planted each year--such as wheat and corn--are personal property. Thus, title to these crops does not pass with title to the land. Crops that do not require annual replanting--such as fruit trees--are considered real property, and title to these crops does pass with title to the land.

HIGHEST AND BEST USE DEFINED

Property taxes are based on the value of the property. The value is appraised at the highest and best use of the property. In some cases, this may be different from the current use and, therefore, value may be higher than it would seem to be.

To understand why, it is necessary to know how highest and best use is judged. A property may have many potential uses. Some, however, are not permitted under land-use controls. Among the permitted uses, some could not be developed due to the physical dimensions of the property. Others might not be appropriate given the location of the property or current economic conditions.

After these potential uses are eliminated, the remaining uses are evaluated. The use that provides the highest market value is deemed the highest and best use of the property. This value is the basis for the property tax.

SEVERAL CONSTRUCTION CONTRACTS AVAILABLE

When prospective homeowners consider having a home built, they should be familiar with the various types of construction contracts.

A lump-sum contract calls for bids on a complete set of plans and specifications. The unit-price contract ties the contractor to a given cost per unit of work. The cost-plus contract compensates the contractor for the cost of work plus a certain amount for overhead and profit. Many cost-plus contracts contain a guaranteed maximum on those costs and fees.

In a design-build agreement, the contractor designs and builds the structure. In the construction management agreement, the owner contracts with a construction manager to supervise the project.

If you are thinking of having a home built, you should examine these contract options carefully with your attorney, then choose the one that best suits your needs.

ORDINANCE NO. 609
AN ORDINANCE PROVIDING FOR THE LEVY OF TAXES FOR THE YEAR OF 1983 ON ALL REAL AND PERSONAL PROPERTY WITHIN THE CORPORATE LIMITS OF THE CITY OF ROCKPORT, TEXAS AND FOR THE MAINTENANCE AND UPKEEP OF THE CITY OF ROCKPORT, TEXAS FOR OTHER PURPOSES.

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF ROCKPORT, TEXAS:

Section 1. The total municipal tax for the City of Rockport, Texas for the year 1983 shall be and the same is hereby fixed and levied at the sum of $0.28 for each $100.00 worth of all property within the limits of the City of Rockport, which is made taxable by law for State or County purposes; and said municipal tax is levied and fixed for the following purposes, to-wit:

FIRST: An annual tax of $0.12502 on each $100.00 worth of all property within the limits of the City of Rockport, which is made taxable by law either for State or County purposes, is hereby levied and fixed for the current expenses of the City of Rockport, Texas, and for the general improvements of the City and its property; except for street maintenance and drainage and amortization of General Obligation Bonds and Certificates of Obligation.

SECOND: An annual tax of $0.12846 on each $100.00 worth of all property within the limits of the City of Rockport, which is made taxable by law either for State or County purposes, is hereby levied and fixed for street maintenance and drainage purposes.

THIRD: An annual tax of $0.02408 on each $100.00 worth of all property within the limits of the City of Rockport, which is made taxable by law either for State or County purposes, is hereby levied and fixed for the purpose of creating an Interest and Sinking Fund for payment of the City of Rockport General Obligation Bonds, Series 1969.

FOURTH: An annual tax of $0.00244 on each $100.00 worth of all property within the limits of the City of Rockport, which is made taxable by law either for State or County purposes, is hereby levied and fixed for the purpose of creating an Interest and Sinking Fund for payment of the City of Rockport Certificates of Obligation Series 1973.

Section 2. All receipts of the City of Rockport, not specifically appropriated by this ordinance are hereby made payable to the General Fund above mentioned.

Section 3. That the taxes levied by the City of Rockport, Texas are hereby declared to be first lien, charge and encumbrance upon property upon which the tax is due, not only as against residents of this State, but entitled to enforce and foreclose in any court having jurisdiction of same, and the lien, charge and encumbrance on the property in favor of the City of Rockport, for the amount of taxes due on said property is such as to give the State Courts jurisdiction to enforce said lien due on said property on which the tax is due not only any resident of the State, but against persons who are not residents of the State, or whose residence is unknown and against the unknown heirs of any person who owns property on which the tax is due.

Section 4. That all taxes levied by the City of Rockport, Texas against personal property are hereby declared to be a lien upon such property and upon any other property, except homesteads, that may be owned by the person against whom such assessments are made, and the City of Rockport may at its discretion, in addition to the rights already assured to it by the laws of the State of Texas and Ordinances duly enacted pursuant thereto, file suit for collection against the owner of such personal property in any court of competent jurisdiction and to foreclose any lien against any or all property subject to said lien for personal property taxes.

Hero role suits Bruce Boxleitner well

By Joan Crosby

Bruce Boxleitner

Bruce Boxleitner, who was on TV last season starring as real-life hero Frank Buck in "Bring 'Em Back Alive," is back on TV this season playing another hero. This time, he's "Scarecrow," a man who works for "the Agency" in the CBS series "Scarecrow and Mrs. King."

You won't see Bruce playing other than a hero — if he can help it.

"There are no role models for young people to emulate today. It's considered uncool to be upbeat about your country. Our country is in a weak state, our morality is weak and patriotism is put down as a corny word. Even morality is considered corny.

"Well, I'm playing a very patriotic character, a man who busts his butt to keep his country safe from the enemy. We're in an era of wars of terrorism. A passenger can't get on a plane without wondering if it is going to get bombed, blown out of the sky or hijacked.

"We have got to show the strength of America and be proud of our country, and TV is the medium that can do it."

Boxleitner adds that he is not saying "Scarecrow and Mrs. King" is the be-all and end-all, but it is an action-adventure show with a light touch, whose title characters (Kate Jackson is Mrs. King) are out to preserve democracy.

"We're CIA agents, although we don't use those initials. We just call it 'the Agency,' but we are located in the same place as the CIA and we also name the enemy — the KGB."

Boxleitner will also be seen in November in the second of the Kenny Rogers movies about "The Gambler."

"I play the same part I did in the first — his sidekick. It's a twist on the old Westerns when the hero was tall and young and the sidekick was older and more grizzled."

About the demise of "Bring 'Em Back Alive," Boxleitner says, "Early on we knew we were not pulling the numbers. It became tough to go to work on a day-to-day basis. I'd see these sad faces coming at me and think, 'Hell, let's pack up and go home.' But I was also involved in the production end, and that's like being a commander. I had to keep up the spirits of the others and if I was feeling down, I had to keep it to myself."

Ask Kate

Scott & Erin are back

By Kate Woods

Scott Baio

Will "Happy Days" be returning in the fall and, if so, will Scott Baio and Erin Moran be back? — T.B.

"Happy Days" will be back on Tuesdays at 8:30 p.m. (ET) with Joannie and Chachi back in the family circle after having failed on their own.

FOR FRANCIS — Would you be kind enough to send me Francis Ford Coppola's address? — M.B.

Since Coppola will be in New York through the fall shooting "The Cotton Club" with Richard Gere and Gregory Hines, try addressing him at the production office for the film: Astoria Studios, 34-31 35th St. Astoria, NY 11106.

WINGING IT — My son and I had a little discussion the other day about the movie "Wings." Did either Clara Bow, Jean Harlow or Buddy Rodgers star in it? — C.M.

The World War I romance, which was the first film to win an Academy Award, starred both Clara Bow and Charles "Buddy" Rodgers. Miss Harlow appeared in her first film the same year, 1928, but in another branch of the armed forces — "Moran of the Marines."

DOLLY'S SISTER — My husband and I have a bet. He says that the cute blonde on "9 to 5" is Dolly Parton's sister. I say she's not. I once saw a picture of Dolly with two of her sisters and neither looked like her. — W.I.

Dolly comes from a large family, which includes sister Rachel Dennison, who replaced her older sister in the TV version of Jane Fonda's hit movie. Singer Stella Parton is another sister who's in the business.

Send your letters to Kate Woods, United Feature Syndicate, 200 Park Ave., Room 602, New York, N.Y. 10166. Because of volume of mail, we can not make personal replies.

'Tonight Show' quiz

By Andy Noble

NBC marks the 21st anniversary of "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson" with a two-hour special airing Monday, Oct. 3.

Carson, his sidekick Ed McMahon and regular bandleaders Doc Severinsen and Tommy Newsom, will recall some of the more memorable moments of the show's history.

Guests on the special include Dolly Parton, Richard Pryor, Bob Hope, Dean Martin, Joan Rivers and Buddy Hackett. Segments include those on animals, children, stunts, and Ronald Reagan impressions, as well as footage of the many comedians who have appeared on the show.

How well do you know the "Tonight Show"? Take this quiz and find out.

1. Who wrote the show's theme song?
2. Name the two men who preceded Severinsen as music director?
3. What actor was involved in the tongue-twisting "copper clapper" parody of his well-known TV series?
4. What happened on the show the night of Dec. 17, 1969?
5. Who has been guest host the most number of times?
6. Who had a tomahawk tossed at him in one of the show's most famous incidents?
7. What is the difference between Carnac and Carswell?

Answers: 1. Paul Anka 2. Skitch Henderson and Milton DeLugg 3. Jack Webb of "Dragnet" 4. Tiny Tim married Miss Vicki 5. Joey Bishop 6. Ed Ames 7. Carnac is a magician, Carswell a psychic.

Dear Debbie

TEENAGERS' FORUM
DEAR DEBBIE:

I am a fairly attractive 16-year-old girl. I love to have a good time just like anyone, but the guys I go out with always are pushing me into sex. I had many offers, but I seriously don't think I am ready for it. You can even say I don't understand. Why does a simple teenage relationship have to involve sex? It's not that I am scared (as most guys say), it's just that when I am ready to make love to someone, I don't want to do it under pressure meaning I was forced into it. I also don't want to have to deal with the guilt afterwards.

To be truthful, I lose a lot of cute guys because I won't give up my virginity, but when I think about it, it just proves to me how much they care for me individually. I know I am doing the right thing, especially for myself, but my problem is I'm scared I might not find that certain guy who will want me for what I am. Please help!

LOST WITHOUT LOVE
DEAR LOST:

If I weren't chained to this typewriter, I'd stand up and applaud! It is so refreshing to receive a letter such as yours. You are obviously a mature, intelligent young lady who knows her own mind and has the courage of her convictions.

I advise you to stick by your decision. Unfortunately, the boys you are dating are being extremely selfish and (not unnaturally) are slaves to their libidos. Their primary objective is sex because it's instantly gratifying. However, it has been my experience that women (of any age) are looking for more than that from any relationship, sex or no sex. A woman who thinks saying yes is going to solidify a relationship in any way is sorely mistaken. It is not just sex that makes or breaks a relationship.

A boy who really cares for you, as you stated in your own words, "as an individual" will accept your decision. He will treasure the fact that the gift of yourself is something very special and precious and not something to be given away lightly. Until he comes along (and he will), don't pay any attention to the ones who are pressuring you. They're not worth your time.

DEAR DEBBIE:

Help! I am thirteen years old and have a problem. I had a boyfriend, but we broke up because my family and some friends did not like him. The reason is because he drinks, smokes and sometimes smokes pot, but I love him anyway. I tried to change him, but he just started again. I want him back, but he just won't talk to me. He is fifteen and everybody says he is not right for me and that he would only cause me grief. No one understands me and how much I love him.

I have three questions: (1)do you think I'm right? (2)do you have any advice on how I could get him back? (3)is there really any way I can change him? I know you're going to tell me I'm too young to have a boyfriend, but I want one anyway.

LONELY LOVER
DEAR LONELY:

As I read your letter, all the alarms went off in my head. I struck me that you were being exceedingly stubborn when it comes to this boy. Somehow, I get the feeling that you're doing it simply because everyone around you is telling you it's wrong for you. Believe it or not, I can understand that. However, I must agree with everyone. This boy is trouble. He won't change, as most smart women have discovered. Instead of channeling your energies into this boy, why not just relax and have fun with your friends? Date an assortment of boys. I can guarantee you won't regret it.

INSIDE TV

BY CHRIS COLBY

CLOSEUPS: Stephanie Powers and Robert Wagner couldn't bring their "Hart To Hart" co-star Freeway to Britain due to the six month quarantine law. However, there were ample animals around when one hunt scene called for 20 beagles, 2 rotweilers, and 30 horses. Stephanie, who has a parrot, two dogs, a cat and four horses at her Beverly Hills estate also found a tiny orange tabby that stayed with her throughout the filming. When she left, Anthony Hopkins gave the kitty a home ... When he was a youngster, James Darren, (born James William Ercolani in South Philadelphia) worked with his parents as migrant asparagus cutters and tomato pickers. As a teenager, he earned enough money singing at weddings and working in his uncle's tailor shop to buy a motorcyle. He then commuted to New York to study with drama coach Stella Adler, and that's how his career was born. Now he is well known as Officer Jim Corrigan in "T.J. Hooker."

TELLY SAVALAS

FOCUS: Telly Savalas is going to be able to buy a lot of lollipops. He's set to be paid over a million for making two-minute Crime Buster dramatized radio shorts for syndication ... In 1951, Vivien Leigh won the Oscar for her portrayal of Blanche DuBois in "A Streetcar Named Desire." It will be interesting to see what Ann-Margret does with the Tennessee Williams lady on the tube in '84 ... Two-time Oscar winner Luise Reiner ("The Good Earth," "The Great Ziegfeld") starred in a segment of "Love Boat" while visiting Hollywood from her home in Switzerland. Needless to say, the regulars were awestruck ... Warner's would like to find a series for Eileen Brennan now recovered from her automobile accident injuries and other problems ... I told you all that stuff you read in the rags about Bette Davis wasn't true. She'll be appearing in "Hotel" right on schedule ..."Knots Landing's" Doug Sheehan not only can act, he's a helluva bagpiper ... Sonny and Cher's daughter Chastity is now 13 (can you believe) and wanting very much to be an actress ..."Entertainment Tonight's" Mary Hart says she'll marry actor Dean Butler, but she didn't say when ... To keep you informed in case you didn't know, "The Hamptons" Leigh-Taylor Young's sister Day is married to David Ladd, and, of course, you remember he was once married to Cheryl, who is now married to Brian Russell. Leigh, once married to Ryan O'Neal, is now married to Guy McElwaine, but Ryan hasn't as yet married Farrah who was wed to Lee Majors. We could go on and on but space doesn't permit.

The Wine Rack

Wine News

* An interesting and unusual trip for wine lovers will take you eighty miles north of San Francisco on Highway 101 to the Russian River Wine Region in Sonoma County. The region has attracted visitors to its river resorts and magnificent redwoods for a long time, and now fans of great wines will have their interests met as well. Forty wineries, and several good country inns and restaurants are in the area, and you can get a map showing the locations of wineries, plus overnight accomodations and dining spots; descriptions of places and seasonal events are offered as well. The map-brochure, called "The Russian River Wine Road" is available for $1, by writing to Russian River Wine Road, P.O. Box 127, Geyservill, GA 95441.

* Gold Seal Vineyards of Hammondsport, N.Y. was founded in 1865, and has the largest plantings of vinifera grape vines in the east. In addition to their premium table wines and champagnes, Gold Seal has just planted 20 additional acres of Chardonnay vines, and has become a pioneer in the cultivation of European style grape vines in the east. Among this vineyard's top varietals, look for Gold Seal Johannisberg Riesling, Seyval Blanc and their Chardonnay.

* An interesting fact for the well-informed wine lover: more than 200 wineries offer versions of zinfandel, the red wine which is unique to this country, and also the varietal that offers the greatest selection of wines from a single grape variety in the U.S. Recently, growers of this grape established The Zinfandel Guild, a professional association geared toward consumer education about the wine which ranges in style from light, picnic-style Zinfandel whites and roses, to the fruity full-bodied red dinner wines, on to the deep, rich reds with excellent aging potential and to the Zinfandel ports.

Before & after in the soaps..... by Seli Groves

All My Children: Donna accepted little John's death, but she vowed never to forgive Chuck. Palmer and Erica planned a trip to South America to solve the mystery of Lars' true identity. Ellen had an accident after quarreling with Mark over his use of drugs. Coming: The fate of Ellen's unborn baby lies in the balance.

Another Life: Gene rushed Carla to the hospital where she went into prolonged labor. Amber had an abortion. An unidentified intruder murdered Kate in Amber's apartment. Coming: Kate's death changes Lee's plans in more ways than one.

Another World: Janet told Mark she wants to reconcile and would drop the divorce suit. She later told Jeremiah she was angry about his attempts to kill Mark. Donna got a copy of Sally's file from Dr. Dunning's office. Coming: Peter gets the feeling that something has been held back from him.

As The World Turns: Margo was caught in an emotional bind after discovering a new "clue" about Steve's motives. Miranda and Antoine continued to see each other, but the circumstances were growing more difficult. Kirk showed a new side to his character. Coming: Franny makes her decision about Miranda and Bob.

Capitol: Mark agreed to help Amy through a crisis. Myrna tried to find some way to prove that Mark may have lied. Clarissa assured Matt she'd stand by his decisions. Coming: Sloane will be tempted to help Myrna with her new investigation.

Days Of Our Lives: Trista was murdered and Eugene blamed himself. The Vipers gang laid a trap for Beau. Sandy confirmed Neil's suspicions that Liz' life was in danger. Coming: Neil worries about Marie as well as Liz.

Edge Of Night: Jody told Preacher she never wanted to see him again. The person impersonating Chris came closer to her. Shelley and Gavin became fonder of each other. Coming: Preacher shows a new side of his character which shocks Jody.

General Hospital: Natalie died of an air embolism. Celia refused to leave Grant, although she was increasingly afraid of him. Gregory approached Lord Rama with a deal. Coming: Rick learns why there's a new shortage in his bank account. Lou and Blackie make an agreement about their future.

Guiding Light: Vanessa decided to allow Quint to get closer to her. Henry was still troubled by the Annabelle situation. Mike felt he had a right to make an investigation as well. Coming: Nola and Vanessa have a long talk that clears up their often difficult relationship.

Loving: Lily felt pressured by the questions and June felt Lily had something more to say. Merrill puzzled Garth with her statement. Roger puzzled Merrill with his explanations. Coming: Merrill has a chance to probe deeper, but isn't sure of her source's accuracy.

One Life To Live: All of Llanview waited to find out if Echo will testify for or against Clint. Bo made another discovery about Delila's lies and decided he must end their marriage. Dorian damaged her private and public image and had to leave town to recuperate. Coming: Cassie develops another way to hide her secret.

Ryan's Hope: Bess arrived in New York and got a job helping Johnny with the wedding party. Delia threatened to sue Frank if she didn't get part custody of little John. Leigh lied that Jack drank when Mark tried to buy up his contract. Coming: Joe returns to New York causing problems for Siobhan.

Search For Tomorrow: When Stu and Tom discovered Mrs. Orbach had been murdered, Liza recalled seeing a strange man with the late psychic at Joanne's memorial service. Kristen found a photo of Vargas and Warren together. Warren took Wendy to an abortion clinic. Coming: Stephanie hears the news about Wendy and takes action.

Young & The Restless: The fallout following Tony's killing continued. Andy was sure his and Paul's lives were in jeopardy. Jack acted as if he had something new to hide. Coming: John refuses to be drawn into a new situation involving Jack, but finds others have different ideas.

EMERALD POINT

Maud Adams stars as Maggie Farrell, the link between the military base and the city council, in "Emerald Point N.A.S.," airing MONDAY OCT. 3 on CBS.

MEDICINE CHEST

Your Professional:
Troy True, Reg. Pharmacist

Is a drug being used that prevents diabetes? —J.D.

Scientists at various medical centers in the U.S., Canada and Europe are working on a new approach to diabetes. They want to prevent the destruction of the insulin producing beta cells. Viruses are believed to "trigger" the destruction of the beta cells, but the body's own immune system seems to actually destroy them. Two drugs known for suppressing the immune system are being tested. They are prednisone and Cyclosporin A. It's too soon to tell if these drugs will work on humans, but Cyclopsporin A was 100 percent effective in preventing the destruction of beta cells in certain strains of rats.

Is it "ok" to crush or chew long acting drugs before you swallow them? — L.T.

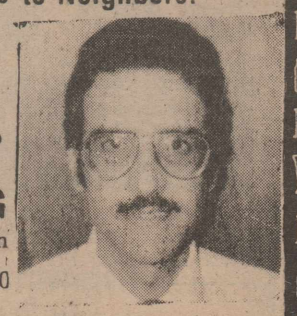

No. Long acting drugs can contain 3 times as much medication as you would find in the regular time acting medicine. Long acting drugs are designed to release their medication over a long period (8 to 12 hours), and they will do just that, provided they are not altered. Chewing or crushing them could destroy the time release portion of the medicine. If that happens, you could risk overdosing.

Are doctors treating headaches by freezing patients' heads? — B.B.

Vascular headaches, i.e. migraine, cluster, or a combination of the two have been treated by freezing certain arteries. It is a form of cryosurgery, i.e. treatment by freezing. The idea is to freeze the various arteries that relate to vascular headaches. The results of the treatment last two to five years, but it does provide a significant period of relief from pain while eliminating strict dependence on some potentially harmful drugs.

Soap Beat

More soap stars make night moves

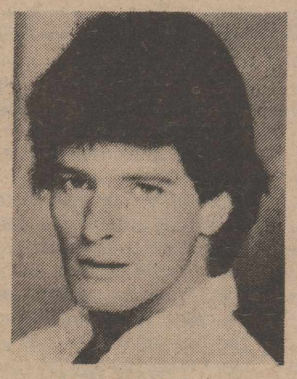

By Connie Passalacqua

As little as 10 years ago, an actor with daytime drama experience was stigmatized when he sought employment in the nighttime division of the television field. Few "graduated" into episodic television.

But during the last three or four years all that has changed. Ex-daytime stars began to become featured players in that new phenomenon, the nighttime "soap opera."

Morgan Fairchild (ex-"Search for Tomorrow") became Hollywood's latest "love goddess" on "Flamingo Road." David Selby (ex-"Dark Shadows") played a villain both on that show and on "Falcon Crest." This past season two actors graduated almost immediately from daytime to juicy roles in "Dynasty." Gordon Thomson (ex-Ari, "Ryan's Hope") became the evil Adam Carrington and Jack Coleman, who memorably played Jake the Strangler on "Days of Our Lives," replaced Al Corley as the Carrington's gay son Steven.

This new television season former daytime actors appear not only on nighttime soaps but on just about every other kind of show. Daniel Hugh-Kelly, who played Frank Ryan on "Ryan's Hope" for three years, stars as Mark "Skid" McCormick, an ex-con who also is a race car driver on ABC's "Hardcastle & McCormick."

Gordon Thomson

Alec Baldwin, whose portrayal of the slimy (and subsequently killed off) Billy Aldrich was one of the only reasons worth watching "The Doctors" in its last few months, segued almost immediately into Hollywood. Now he's one of the three stars of CBS' "Cutter to Houston." As Dr. Hal Wexler, he's still playing the same kind of charming cad as Billy.

Some ex-daytimers no matter how hard they try, just can't seem to break away from the soap opera format. Charles Frank, who many years ago played Jeff Martin on "All My Children," has appeared in the last few years in several failed Westerns and sitcoms. Now it looks like he's riding a winner, "Emerald Point N.A.S.," a hot new CBS primetime soap in which he plays a member of a turbulent Navy family.

MR. MOM, from 20th Century-Fox. Directed by Stan Dragoti, screenplay by John Hughes. Starring Michael Keaton, Teri Garr, Martin Mull. Rated 'PG' ★ ★

By J.T. YURKO

In one of the episodes of the classic TV show "The Honeymooners," Ralph Kramden (Jackie Gleason) has been laid off from work, and Alice (Audrey Meadows) is forced to go out and get a job. The comic possibilities are ripe, as Ralph has to deal with a series of militantly aggressive appliances, an exploding stove, and his own jealousy with his wife's boss.

Such is the scenario for "Mr. Mom," a contemporary comedy only slightly more up-to-date than the mid-1950s episode mentioned above. The situations are similar, even if the locale has been changed from the sparse "lap of luxury" two-room apartment in Brooklyn to a modern well-to-do house in suburbia.

Michael Keaton is "Mr. Mom." He's been handed his pink slip and now finds himself slipping into a pink apron and becoming a house-husband. His wife (Teri Garr) has gone to work in an advertising agency, joining the great race-for-the-paycheck world. Keaton, meanwhile, faces many of the obstacles Ralph Kramden faced. They include the same hostile appliances (including a vacuum cleaner named "Jaws"), and a kitchen so fraught with perils that it's a veritable minefield of disasters.

There are also a few problems Ralphie never had to face, such as three kids who always seem as if they're operating at twice normal speed. Not to mention the voluptuous next-door neighbor, a divorcee with an over-active libido ready to make house calls.

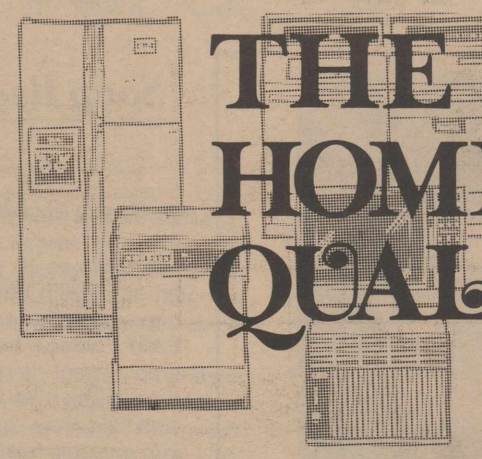

Keaton's comedic talents have been evident to a careful viewer for some time, but you had to look quickly. He was one of the best things about the "Mary Tyler Moore Show" and has made only one other film, "Night Shift."

Miss Garr is one of the busiest actresses around. She has been seen within the past year in "Sting II," "The Black Stallion Returns" and "Tootsie."

These two performers make "Mr. Mom" as engaging as it is, even if the situation has been seen before. Miss Garr and Keaton keep things interesting even when the situation isn't.

ROCK ON

By Ethlie Ann Vare

UPDATE

It was a good summer for the concert business, with ticket sales up 30 percent over last year. Credit such special events as the David Bowie tour, Simon & Garfunkel's reunion and the US Festival.

Speaking of reunions, the Everly Brothers will put sibling rivalry aside to headline an upcoming concert in London.

As soon as Prince finishes recording his new Warner Brothers album, he heads to Minneapolis to begin filming a movie based loosely on his own life. Also appearing will be Vanity 6 and the Time.

David Knopfler, who founded Dire Straits with brother Mark and then left the band, releases his first solo LP next month.

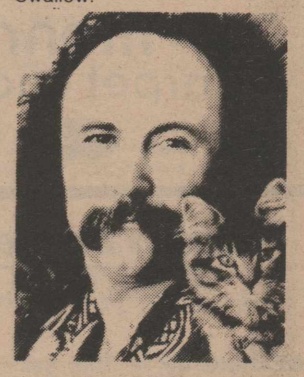

Meat Loaf was able to put his notable bulk to good use recently when the band's equipment truck got stuck in a hotel lawn near Detroit. He hoisted the vehicle out single-handedly, even as the road crew was phoning for a tow truck.

David Crosby (of Stills, Nash, etc.) was sentenced to five years in prison last month for drug and weapon possession, but don't look for him behind bars. He's out on an appeal bond for at least a year until the case returns to court.

REVIEWS

Mental As Anything
"Creatures of Leisure" (A & M) — Yet another clean-sounding pop band from Australia. This quintet, as its name implies, goes for clever lyrics and a tongue-in-cheek approach. The songs could catch on once they become familiar: the old hit game's vicious cycle. Best bets are "Brain Brain" and "Bitter to Swallow."

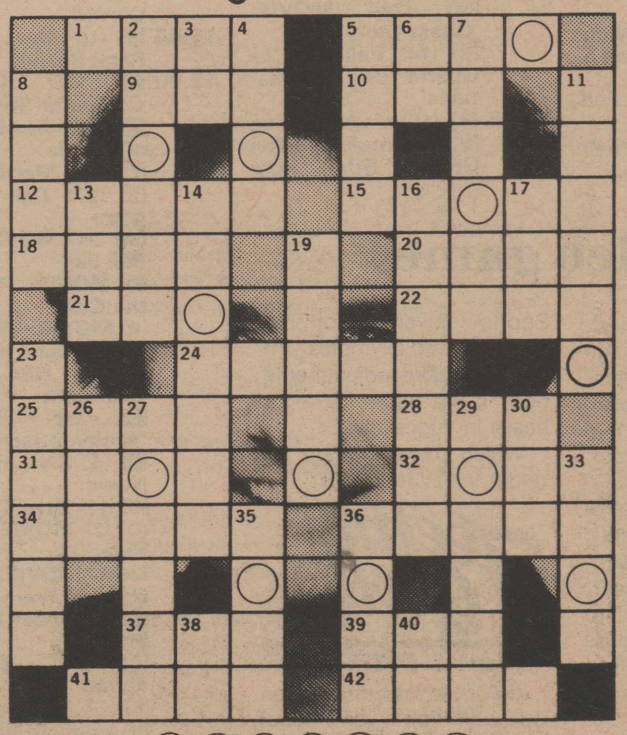

David Crosby

"The Trouser Press Guide to New Wave Records" (Charles Scribner's Sons) — Right. This is a book, not a record. It's a critical compilation of everything that could be lumped under the term "new wave" through the end of 1982. Some 2,100 albums are featured, from Adam and the Ants to the Zippers. There's a lot of cross-referencing to accommodate the ever-changing bands and, though the critical points of view are often challengable, the thoroughness of the book makes it a valuable reference tool.

To ABC, the Olympics call for video games

GEARING UP — They call it the world's largest video game. That's how experts at ABC-TV Sports view the electronic control center being created to telecast the 1984 Olympics. For now, everything is A-OK.

Roger Goodman, ABC Sports' coordinating director for the Winter and Summer Games, says the largest monitor wall in broadcasting, including 70 television sets, operated fine during its initial testing in New York.

Goodman says, "We have two control rooms, ten editing cubicles, an audio layover area, a studio and an entire graphics area with the most sophisticated state-ot-the-art equipment in order to create our special Olympic look."

Since April, a group of 13 technicians, supervised by three engineers, had been putting the pieces together at a warehouse on New York City's West Side. Engineers began designing the portable control center more than two years ago.

Now the ABC's video gear is being transported to Sarajevo, Yugoslavia, where it will be reassembled. The same control center also had to be prepared to fit into ABC's Summer Olympic broadcast center in Los Angeles.

When the guts of ABC's control center arrives in Yugoslavia by boat in mid-October, it will be assembled on four floors of the Television Center in Sarajevo. The 16,000-plus individual pieces of cable have all been identified and coded, and that information has been stored on a computer.

In New York, ABC recently simulated " A day at the Olympics," using footage from the Lake Placid Winter Olympics, stand-in talent to act as Jim McKay and color commentators and an entire production crew to roll in the special graphics and try out the technical equipment.

The entire 26,000 square feet of the New York warehouse was covered with every state-of-the-art device known to ABC's technical wizard, Julius Barnathan, president of the broadcast operations and engineering division.

"We wanted to identify any problems now," said Goodman, winner of an Emmy for his work on ABC Sports' coverage of the 1976 Winter Olympics. "If we can make adjustments now, it will make life a lot easier in Yugoslavia."

Which makes things for better for TV fans, too.

Popcorn Video

By James Smethurst

USA seems determined to ange its image from that of a sports network to an all-around family channel. This week USA is taking its image change a step further when it premieres reruns of two well-remembered programs.

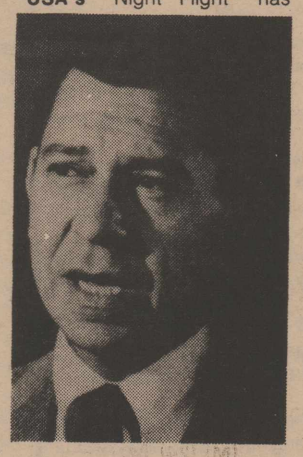

On Oct. 3, "Adventures in Paradise" will reappear on the screen, starring Gardner McKay as Capt. Adam Troy. Appropriately enough for such a highbrow series of cargo, flowered shirts and island romance, the series is based on the writings of author James Michener.

Although McKay has faded into TV limbo, many of the people who appeared on his show have gone on to even greater heights. These include Ricardo Montalban (no mean master of tropical scenery himself), Barbara Eden, Buddy Ebsen, Yvonne DeCarlo (Mrs. Munster) and Eva Gabor.

The other program, which will premiere Oct. 8, is "Dragnet." Jack Webb as the implacable and impartial agent of justice, Sgt. Joe Friday, has become a part of our national heritage, like Daniel Boone or Davey Crockett. He was low key in a Southern Californian way before being laid back was even heard of, providing a role model for policemen all over the United States, as anyone who has ever been stopped by a New Jersey state trooper can attest.

USA's "Night Flight" has

gotten pretty interesting. They have a good mix of videos, concerts and interviews with artists in a wide range of musical genres, including rock, country, blues and reggae. They are not afraid to give comparatively new and unknown bands a shot at the airwaves, even if these bands don't have a record on the charts at that moment.

For instance, last month the range of artists aired on "Night Flight" went from Delbert McClinton (country) to Robert Ashley (performance artist) to B.B. King (blues). While some of the offerings are clinkers, a high percentage of the programming is really worth watching and listening to.

HOLLYWOOD..... Jill Jackson

HOLLYWOOD: Three months away from the New Year (can you believe?) and I haven't seen one film I would say "Wow! That one is a shoo-in for an Academy Award nomination." Let's hope in the remaining months the "picture" will change.

The sisters Gabor, Zsa Zsa and Eva, now both single were dining with Zsa Zsa's daughter, Francesca, at an "in" Hollywood restaurant. To see the Gabors sans men is like seeing a chicken without feathers.

I don't think it's an item, but Joan Collins and

ZSA ZSA GABOR

Dudley Moore were twirling spaghetti with Maria Shriver and Arnold Schwarzenegger at that same restaurant, and if you ever want to see someone really put away pasta, watch Arnold!

Kirk Douglas has a big lawsuit going against the Australian producers of his film, "The Man From Snowy River." Kirk says he was underpaid $300,000, and even as thee and me, a movie star wants his money.

Scatman Crother's smile stretched from coast-to-coast when he received the Russian River Jazz Festival Lifetime Achievement Award. Dave Brubeck, Stan Getz and a host of other Jazz men journeyed to Guerneville, Calif. to clap hands for Scatman.

BITS'N'PIECES: David Dukes is a new poppa. Her name is Annie Cameron ... Julie Andrews' "Love Me Tender" country music album scored so well, she'll wax another next month in Nashville ... Shirley Temple Black has at last capitulated and is writing her memoirs from the time she was America's dimpled darling to now ... Her take doesn't match Cheryl Tiegs' yet, but Christie Brinkley's getting a million plus royalties as spokeswoman for Russ Toggs ... Ursula Andress and Harry Hamlin have definitely split even though there is a baby between them. Last week, he dined with "St. Elsewhere's" star, Cynthia Sikes ... Mary Beth Hurt and director, Paul Schrader, were married in August. They expect their first child in December ... Faye Dunaway is wanted for Greg Peck's wife in a remake of Sinclair Lewis' "Dodsworth"... Z channel is scheduling a lot of big feature films, among them, "The Godfather," "Sayonara," "My Favorite Year," "The Stunt Man" and "Foxtrot"... Henny and Jim Backus tell it all in their latest book "Shake, Rattle and Roll." How they coped with Jim's drinking, his illness and other problems.

MAGNUM, P.I.

Tom Selleck (l.), starring as Thomas Magnum, teams with a private eye from St. Louis (Eugene Roche, r.) to find a missing girl, on "Magnum, P.I.," airing THURSDAY, OCT. 6 on CBS.

TV Nostalgia

By Marie Iandiorio

In 1977, Patrick Duffy starred in an NBC adventure series about Mark Harris, the last survivor of the lost continent of Atlantis. Having grown up under the sea, Mark possessed gill tissue instead of lungs, which meant that he could survive for only about 12 hours before he had to return to the sea to "breathe." His hands and feet were webbed, he could swim faster than a dolphin, and he had superhuman strength and superacute senses.

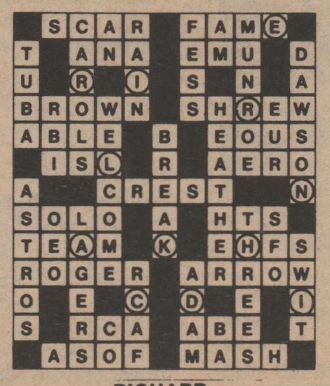

Despite these powers, Mark had been washed ashore unconscious, where he was discovered by Dr. Elizabeth Merrill, who nursed him back to health. He then agreed to join her and a team of scientists from the Fountain for Oceanic Research in a project to learn more about life undersea. Together, Mark and Elizabeth traveled about in a special vehicle, and their adventures included confrontations with extraterrestrial life and several suitably evil scientists.

Question: Can you name this series?

Answer: "Man from Atlantis"

CBN fall schedule

by Kim Cooper

The wildest of the West, the funniest comedians, new and familiar women's daytime shows, all-family movies, fast-paced game shows and the popular daily TV magazine show, continuing drama and two animated series highlight the new fall lineup on CBN Cable Network.

Starting this week CBN Cable will run a new game show, "New Treasure Hunt," with Geoff Edwards from 6 to 6:30 p.m. (ET) every weekday. Following "New Treasure Hunt" will be "The Rifleman" from 6:30 to 7 p.m.

"The Rifleman" stars Chuck Connors as Lucas McCain, a rifleman and rancher who is raising a son and striving to drive outlaws out of his hometown.

Also on weeknights from 7 to 8 p.m. is "Alias Smith and Jones." Peter Duel (and, later, Roger Davis) and Ben Murphy team in the Western classic as former outlaws trying to earn amnesty for themselves.

CBN's own popular TV-magazine show "The 700 Club," with host Pat Robertson, the original continuing drama "Another Life," and family series "Superbook" and "Flying House" will be continued for cable viewers this fall.

On weekends the fare includes a Saturday afternoon roundup of Westerns including "Wagon Train," "Call of the West," "The Monroes," "Wild Bill Hickok," "Wyatt Earp" and a feature movie.

Sunday afternoon features an episode of "Wagon Train" and a weekly Roy Rogers film.

Late nights on CBN continue to offer a collection of classic comedy series. Starting at 12:30 a.m., the weeknight lineup includes "Burns and Allen," "I Married Joan," "Love That Bob," "Bachelor Father" and "Life of Riley."

On Oct. 31, CBN Cable premieres a weekday morning lineup that includes two new exercise-health programs, "Fit for Life" with Pamela Carter (Lynda Carter's sister), and "Alive!" with Susan Stafford, former co-host of "Wheel of Fortune." Following those programs, the comedies "Blondie," "My Little Margie" and "Dobie Gillis" are scheduled.

Kim Cooper is publicity director of the CBN Cable Network.

PBS in the spotlight

Kate and Richard Burton headline the cast of "Alice in Wonderland."

'Alice in Wonderland'

"Great Performances," the longest running performing and dramatic arts series on television, begins its 11th consecutive year over PBS with a musical production of "Alice in Wonderland." The program airing Monday, Oct. 3 features an impressive all-star cast. (Please check local listings for time.)

"Alice in Wonderland," which was adapted for television from the recent elaborate Broadway revival of the 1932 Eva LeGallienne/Florida Friebus production of the Lewis Carroll classic, stars Kate and Richard Burton (pictured) as Alice and the White Knight.

The star-studded cast also includes (in alphabetical order): Eve Arden (Queen of Hearts); Kaye Ballard (Duchess); James Coco (King of Hearts); Tony Cummings (Knave of Hearts); Colleen Dewhurst (Red Queen); Andre De Shields (Tweedledum); Andre Gregory (Mad Hatter); Geoffrey Holder (Cheshire Cat); Zeljko Ivanek (March Hare); Nathan Lane (Mouse); Donald O'Connor (Mock Turtle); Austin Pendleton (White Turtle); Maureen Stapleton (White Queen); Swen Swenson (Gryphon); Fritz Weaver (Caterpillar); Alan Weeks (Tweedledee) and Richard Woods (Humpty-Dumpty).

Stars Bits

A WEEKLY SYNDICATED COLUMN
FROM STARS HALL OF FAME ORLANDO, FLORIDA

THE MARX BROTHERS A COLLECTIVE GENIUS

The Marx Brothers had a screen sister, Margaret Dumont, who provided the romantic interest for Groucho in a multitude of films. Her first apperance with the Marx Brothers in the stage version of "The Cocoanuts" typified their future life together.

Standing in the wings, waiting for her cue to go on stage, Miss Dumont realized that the brothers had long abandoned the script and were improvising with wild abandon. Hesitantly, she waited in the wings until Chico and Harpo caught sight of her and immediately ran off stage in the opposite direction. Groucho clearly hadn't a clue as to what he was supposed to say, but turned to Miss Dumont and said, "Ah, Mrs. Rittenhouse! Won't you--lie down?"

Groucho's trademark (along with the walk, the cigar and the eyebrows) was his penchant for larger-than-life ladies, and after that first hilarious encounter, they were almost always in the form of Margaret Dumont.

"There ought to be a statue erected," someone once wrote, "or a Congressional Medal awarded, or a national holiday proclaimed, to honor that great woman, Margaret Dumont--a lady of epic ability to take it, a lady whose mighty love for Groucho is a saga of devotion, a lady who asks but little and gets it. Surrounded by brothers who are surely a little odd, she does not think so. To her, her world of Marx Brother pictures is rational, comprehensible, secure. Calmly she surveys it, with infinite resource she fights to keep on her feet in it."

To say that the brothers were "surely a little odd" was the understatement of the century. To the absolute despair of their scriptwriters, directors and fellow actors, the brothers were incapable of sticking to a script. Maybe no one can fully understand the amazing chemistry that existed between them or unravel the brilliance of their career together.

Each brother had a very definite personality which followed him through their series of films. Groucho, the most quoted of the bunch, was the one with the funniest lines. Harpo was the mime--an eloquent pantomimist with a curly blonde wig and an assortment of mechanical props (including a horn and a harp) and Chico, the sly "tootsie-frootsie ice cream" vendor, quick to point out the faults in others but never admitting his own. Another brother, Zeppo, played a straight man in their earlier films.

Even their real life could be classified "Marxian." Their father was an unsuccessful tailor nicknamed 'Misfit' and they were dubbed their stage names in a poker game. Chico (Leonard) the oldest, was born in 1891, Harpo (Adolph) in 1893, Groucho (Julius) in 1895 and Zeppo(Herbert) in 1910. Gummo(born Milton) was a fifth brother who did not make movies with them.

Their career spanned vaudeville and cinema, being rescued by Irving Thalberg at MGM when their movie career seemed to be dimming. His early death had a bad effect on their careers from which they did not really recover. Their last movie appearance together was in 1949 in "Love Happy." Separate movie roles kept them in the public eye, though, and Groucho's successful transition to television ensured his continuing popularity.

Chico died in 1961, Harpo in 1964, and Groucho in 1977. At Six Flags Stars Hall of Fame, in Orlando, Florida, however, their zany humor lives on the set of "Animal Crackers," the successful 1930 film version of their first vaudeville hits.
