IN ABILENE

Pupils Will Wear Brown Armbands

ABILENE, Tex. (AP) — Brown arm bands were to be worn today by Mexican-American pupils who show up in Abilene schools after a nine-day class boycott.

After meeting informally with school board members Saturday night, the group agreed to end the walkout.

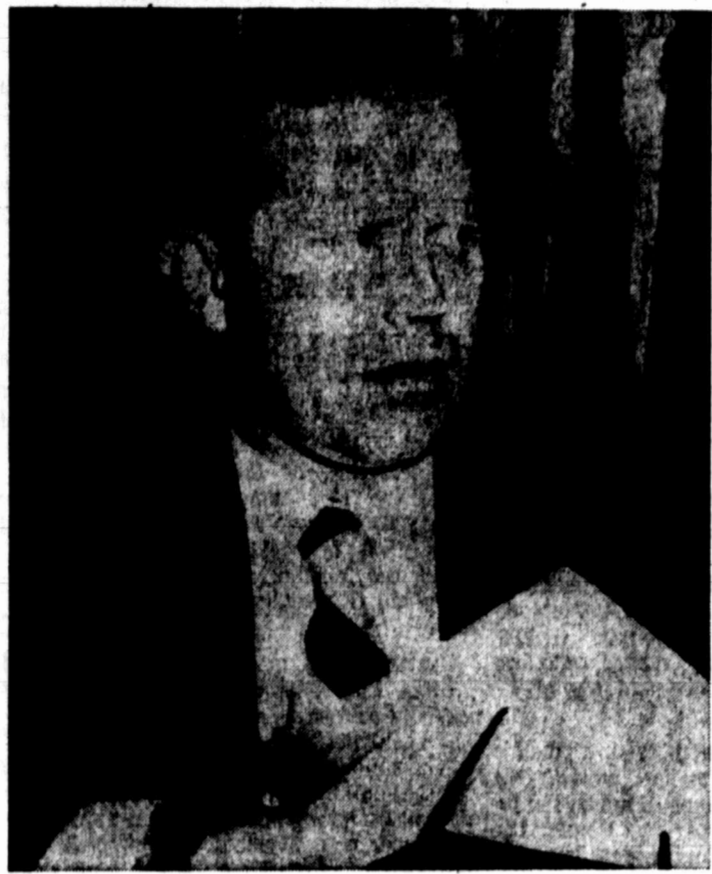

Attorney Mark Smith of Lubbock, representing the protesters who say they want to be "more a part of the school and take part in more extra-curricular activities."

School Supt. A. E. Wells said pupils who missed classes because of the boycott would be given "unexcused absences." This would give them zero grades for work missed.

Smith told newsmen that a suit would be filed in an attempt to block Wells' plan of action.

The Lubbock lawyer told the Mexican-Americans the brown arm bands are a "symbol of pride in the unity all of us have displayed and a symbol of mourning" over discrimination.

Wells warned the pupils that if they wear the arm bands they will be asked to leave school if the arm bands interfere with classes.

OPEN MIND ON FUTURE — Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes, at a news conference Monday, told newsmen two October polls show he could beat either Gov. Preston Smith or Sen. Ralph Yarborough, but added he had an "open mind" about his political future.

$200 Billion Budget Shapes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration probably will send to Congress next year a $200 billion budget despite stringent efforts to keep agencies' money requests down, a high official said today.

"It's pretty clear we're going to be above a $200 billion budget," for the fiscal year starting next July 1, he said, adding it is not "a practical proposition" to aim for a surplus as large as the $5.9 billion predicted for the current fiscal year on income of $198.8 billion.

Nevertheless, he said, the final shape of the budget—which by law must go to Capitol Hill 15 days after Congress begins its session in January—is still uncertain because departmental budgets are now being reviewed.

The official, who outlined the budget situation on the condition that he not be quoted by name, said it will be a real challenge to come up with a balanced budget for the next fiscal year. He said the administration is "working in the direction of further military spending cut-backs," but would be faced with increases in other fields. These include the planned 10 per cent boost in Social Security payments—cost $3 billion—and other social programs bringing the increase to something like $6 billion to $8 billion, the official said.

The military budget began as $81 billion and is being trimmed this year to $77 billion.

The administration has maintained a firm plan to spend no more than $192.9 billion in this fiscal year.

Chances For Senate Okay Of Direct Election Fade

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chances for Senate approval of a Constitutional amendment providing the direct election of the president have about faded to the point where the 1972 election may be decided under the current electoral college system.

The House approved the proposed amendment Sept. 18 by a 339-70 vote, far more than the necessary two-thirds majority. But no action has been taken by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Time is running strongly against the amendment, because the Senate will have its hands full for the rest of the year with the Supreme Court nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr., the massive tax reform bill, and a pile-up of delayed appropriations measures.

The first step is to get the amendment out of the Judiciary Committee, which has been sharply divided on electoral reform proposals. The issue was pushed aside by Haynsworth's nomination and no date has been set for taking it up.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., chief Senate sponsor of the direct election amendment, said there will be no meaningful discussion of it within the committee until the Haynsworth nomination is disposed of.

However, Bayh said he has not given up hope of winning Senate approval of the proposed amendment this year—or, if this proves impossible, early next year.

Six Accused Of Plane Hijacks Return To U.S.

Possibility Of Sizable Withdrawals

PLATTSBURGH, N.Y. (AP) — Contemptuous treatment by the Cuban government was cited today as a probable reason why six Americans elected to come home and risk the death penalty on charges of separate hijackings of airplanes to Cuba.

"I'm sure he'll tell us there was no Utopia at the other end," said George Bohle of Michigan City, Ind., father of Ronald T. Bohle, one of the men who gave themselves up at the Canadian border Sunday.

"I think he was incarcerated quite frequently," said James Boynton of Kalamazoo, Mich., who told newsmen disenchantment with the one-time "Pearl of the Antilles" had been expressed in letters from his son, Thomas, one of the returnees.

The younger Boynton had stuck it out for longer than any of the others—just over 20 months.

The State Department said all six returned of their own volition and not as the result of any negotiations with the Fidel Castro regime.

All were jailed in lieu of bail ranging from $100,000 to $250,000 under the federal air piracy law, which provides a maximum penalty of death. Each faces trial in the area where he seized a plane.

One of them, Thomas George Washington of Gary, Ind., was accompanied by his 4-year-old daughter, who flew with him to Cuba last December. She had a joyful reunion with her mother.

"Mommy! Mommy!" the youngster cried as she ran to meet her mother. The two later returned to the mother's home in Philadelphia.

Boynton said his son, who has a master's degree in sociology, "had to do kinds of work he wasn't used to—common laboring."

There have been about 90 airplane hijackings from the United States to Cuba since 1961. Many of the hijackers were Cubans, but one State Department estimate puts the number of Americans still in that country after forcing flights to Havana at nearly 40.

The six who came back Sunday sailed from Cuba Oct. 24 in the Cuban freighter Luis Arcees Bergues. They arrived in Montreal Saturday night and Canadian authorities took them to the border, where they were turned over to U.S. officials.

Washington, a Negro, was charged with commandeering an Eastern Airlines Philadelphia-Miami flight near Jacksonville, Fla., on Dec. 19, 1968, after flashing a pistol.

He told newsmen in Cuba later he "wanted to save my daughter from some of the hatred and viciousness that is perpetrated in the United States."

The others were identified as:

—Raymond Anthony Sr., 56, of Baltimore, an unemployed auto salesman. Charged with hijacking an Eastern Airlines plane with 104 aboard enroute from Baltimore to Miami last June 28.

—Ronald Thomas Bohle, 22, of Michigan City, Ind., a dropout from Purdue University. Charged with hijacking a 72-passenger Eastern jet flying from Miami to Nassau on Jan. 9.

—Robert Lee Sandlin, also known as Bobby Sandlin and A.

Vollis of Vernon, Tex., about 25. Charged with hijacking a Delta Airlines flight bound to Augusta from Atlanta on March 17.

—Thomas J. Boynton Jr., 32, an assistant professor at Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo, Mich. The FBI said he was a former Job Corps employee who forced the pilot of a Twin Piper Apache to fly from Marathon, Fla., to Cuba on Feb. 17, 1968.

—Joseph C. Crawford, 28, a native of St. Simons Island, Ga. Charged with taking a Continental Airlines plane traveling from El Paso to Midland, Tex., on July 26.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon takes his Vietnam case to the nation tonight amid fresh speculation over the possibility of a sizable step-up in U.S. troop withdrawals.

In advance of Nixon's much-heralded 8:30 p.m. (Big Spring time) radio-tv address, House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan said "It is perfectly possible that all American combat forces can be withdrawn from Vietnam by July 1, 1970."

In Saigon, Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky was quoted as saying that "next year the (South Vietnamese) armed forces will be able to replace about 180,000 U.S. soldiers."

'NOTHING NEW'

Ky predicted "nothing new" out of Nixon's speech while Ford, addressing a Phoenix, Ariz., group, declined to speculate further on it. Nixon so far has announced troop pullbacks totaling about 60,000 by Dec. 15, a 10,000-a-month withdrawal which would reduce the U.S. strength figure in Vietnam to 484,000.

The President himself maintained tight silence about the forthcoming speech and prolonged his weekend stay in seclusion at his fog-shrouded Camp David, Md., mountain retreat while working on it.

Originally slated to return to the White House Sunday, Nixon put off his helicopter flight back to Washington until today.

The original White House announcement of the speech just before the Oct. 15 Vietnam Moratorium protests, its timing tonight on election eve and approximately one year after the Nov. 1, 1968, halt to the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam, and the secrecy surrounding its preparation have led to wide speculation that a new Nixon move on Vietnam is in the offing.

GREAT HOPES

"Great hopes and expectations are riding on this speech," Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said during the weekend. "I'm just living on a hope and a prayer that he will offer the American people and the Congress some light at the end of the tunnel."

But despite numerous recommendations for the policy speech which Nixon has solicited from his top advisers and government departments, many Washington officials doubted the President would depart substantially from the course he has charted.

Gradual U.S. disengagement based on Saigon's ability to take over more of the load, a lowered level of combat or progress in the Paris negotiations.

Senior administration authorities have contended the South Vietnamese are making so much progress toward taking over the war effort that the only way the enemy can win now is through a too-rapid U.S. pull-out forced by U.S. public opinion.

WIN THE BATTLE

Thus the Nixon address, as they see it, is primarily to win the battle on the home front against protesters demanding that America should get out of Vietnam now.

As the Nixon speech approached, both supporters and critics of administration policy gathered ammunition and Congressmen readied for another round of debate.

Mother In Vernon Feared He Was Dead

VERNON, Tex. (AP) — A Vernon mother anxiously awaited confirmation today that a youth who returned from Cuba is, indeed, her son. She feared he was dead.

The mother is Mrs. Lois Sandlin, 56, an employee of a Vernon hospital. The father is a former Air Force staff sergeant residing in Cleburne, Tex.

A young man named Robert Lee Sandlin was among the six persons who had hijacked airplanes to Cuba individually. They returned from Cuba Saturday, reaching Canada by ship and then being escorted to Plattsburgh, in upstate New York.

Mrs. Sandlin spoke joyfully when she heard that a Robert Sandlin was among those who returned. But her doubts were aroused when his age was given at the border as 25.

Mrs. Sandlin said her son was 19 years old last Aug. 27.

The mother said her son stopped writing about eight months ago. He had been working in Euless, Tex. She said she filed a missing persons report about five months ago.

"I was afraid he wasn't alive," Mrs. Sandlin said in an interview.

"He just hadn't been himself for the last year. He had major surgery, hernia. He came out of the hospital nervous."

"I can't see him doing anything like that (hijacking the plane) if he was in his right mind."

Says Prisoners' Families Are Being Used As Pawns

DOWNERS GROVE, Ill. (AP) — A Downers Grove woman whose son has been missing in Vietnam for three years says 1,350 families who have men missing are being used as pawns by the Mobilization Committee to End the War, an American group dealing with Hanoi.

The woman, Dorothy Bodden, is the founder of the Reunite Our Families group in the Chicago area and is working to have her group bring public opinion to bear on the Hanoi government to follow Geneva convention accords calling for names of war prisoners to be released.

"For five years we have endured the pain of not knowing if our husbands, fathers, sons and brothers are alive or dead," Mrs. Bodden said in a letter to congressmen who backed the recent Moratorium Day. "Now we must endure more pain and anxiety as we are being blackmailed into having to receive information about our loved ones through the Mobilization Committee to End the War."

ITALIANS QUESTIONING SKYJACKER

FBI Endangered Life Of Crew?

ROME (AP) — Italian authorities questioned hijacker Raphael Minichiello again today in his isolation cell as the FBI came under attack from the crew of the commandeered Trans World Airlines jet.

The pilot, Capt. Donald J. Cook Jr. of New York, charged that FBI men in New York ignored his instructions to keep away from the plane when it made a refueling stop at Kennedy Airport. He said this upset the 20-year-old hijacker and he fired a shot into the roof of the cockpit.

The FBI in New York declined comment on Cook's accusation. But an assistant district attorney who worked with the FBI, Albert T. Taub, said Cook's criticism was irresponsible and that the pilot was portraying himself as "the sole hero of the escapade."

Cook and the other three crew members—first officer Wenzell

Williams of Shallowater, Tex.; engineer Lloyd Halloran of St. Charles, Mo.; and hostess Tracey Coleman of Cincinnati, Ohio—returned to the United States Sunday.

Minichiello, a U.S. Marine lance corporal and Vietnam veteran, commandeered the plane over Fresno, Calif., early Friday. He allowed the 39 passengers and three other hostesses to get off at Denver, and the plane went on to Kennedy. Refueling stops were also made in Bangor, Maine, and in Ireland before the 17-hour, 6,900-mile flight ended in the hijacker's native Italy.

Minichiello eluded police for a short time after leaving Rome Airport, but was captured near a chapel on the outskirts of the city.

Italian authorities charged Minichiello with bringing military weapons into the country, kidnaping airport, Police Chief Pietro Guli, extorting police credentials from Guli, illegal possession of firearms, and personal violence against the plane crew. They add up to a maximum sentence of 19 years.

U.S. authorities charged him with air piracy, which can be punishable by death, kidnaping and interfering with the operation of a commercial plane. They have not filed an extradition request, however.

Assistant Rome prosecutor Massimo Carli said today a psychiatrist may be called in to examine the hijacker. Minichiello seemed "a normal enough young man," Carli said, but added, "I cannot exclude a psychiatric examination."

Carli questioned Minichiello for three hours Sunday and officially informed the Marine of the charges for the crimes that police said he committed in Italy.

The prosecutor explained that a psychiatrist could find a defendant normal, mentally incapable or partially incapable. A person found mentally incapable, Carli said, would be admitted to an institution immediately without trial. Partial incapacity would not prevent a trial but could reduce the sentence if the defendant was convicted.

Carli appointed Rome lawyer Domenico Matelli as Minichiello's defense attorney but said Matelli would not be permitted to see his client before Wednesday. The prosecutor planned to question the youth again today.

Carli also said he expected to turn the case over soon to an investigating magistrate, who in Italy acts as a one-man jury to determine whether the charges filed by police should be brought to trial.

Minichiello's 80-year-old father, Luigi, came to Rome Sunday from his rural home outside Naples.

The elder Minichiello took his family to the United States in 1963, and they settled in Seattle, Wash. He later returned alone to Italy.

Minichiello said he recently finished a 13-month tour in Vietnam and escaped from the military police last Thursday at Camp Pendleton in California. He said he was facing court-martial on a charge of breaking into the post exchange at Camp Pendleton.

He said he wanted to come to Italy to see his father.

The handsome, dark-haired youth told Italian police he had deposited $800 in a Marine credit program in Vietnam but was allowed to draw out only $600 when he returned to the United States. He said he got drunk one night at Camp Pendleton and decided to take the $200 from the post exchange, then fell asleep inside the building and was found there the next morning.

It Wasn't A Killing Frost

Frost on the pumpkin was a reality in Big Spring this year, for the first frost of the season, 36 degrees, came on the eve of All Saints' Day, Halloween. It wasn't a killing frost, however, and according to the U. S. Agricultural Experiment Station, this morning's low of 31 degrees was not a killing cold either.

"That temperature could be killing," said range scientist Jim Stubbendek, "but it would have to stay at 31 for at least an hour. This morning's low lasted such a short time, it was 35 degrees by 8 a.m." He added that the brief cold might have nipped the ends of cotton leaves in the county but he didn't think it was cold long enough to do damage to the plants.

Paul Gross, Howard County agent, said some defoliation of the county's cotton may have occurred in the low-lands, but he doubted if it was wide spread.

Low temperatures are forecast for tonight with a predicted low of 31 degrees. Stubbendek said as long as skies remain clear during the night there is a possibility of frost, he explained that cloud cover acts as a blanket and discourages frost. Last year's first killing frost was Nov. 10.

Not Unusual?

OLDS, Iowa (AP) — The 130 registered voters here will elect eight city officers Tuesday even though no one has been nominated for any of the posts.

Town Clerk Bob Lee says the person whose name is written in most often for any particular office will win it.

The apparent nonchalance about city elections is not unusual, he adds. "We haven't had anybody file nomination papers here for the last three or four elections."

Bid To Block Rail Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — An emergency board recommended today that 48,000 railroad shop workers accept a two-stage five per cent wage hike offered by the carriers for this year and that the railroads agree to pay an extra 20 cents an hour to the more skilled mechanics.

The board reported it saw signs pointing to a possible agreement but said that serious difficult negotiations still are needed.

The railroads and the unions thus are still confronting the possibility of a nationwide strike tying up 76 lines from now.

The emergency board was set up a month ago by President Nixon as a last-ditch effort to head off a threatened strike. The carriers and unions now are required to try for an additional 30 days to reach an agreement.

Union leaders are demanding a one-year wage hike of 10 per cent plus an extra 20 cents per hour for higher skilled men and six per cent interest on retroactive pay hikes.

The dispute has dragged out for 10 months under delaying provisions of the National Railway Labor Act.

The railroads have offered a total of five per cent in wage hikes.

NIXON'S POLITICAL DRAWING POWER

Off-Year Elections To Test

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Concern over law and order, President Nixon's political clout and New York Mayor John V. Lindsay's driving effort for reelection are adding up to one of the nation's most important off-year elections.

Much attention in Tuesday's voting falls on Lindsay. The one-time Republican glamour boy was considered a cinch loser four months ago but has rebounded to become odds-on favorite to retain what is often described as the second-most difficult elected office in the nation.

Beyond the New York race, though, political observers are looking to gubernatorial fights in New Jersey and Virginia and mayoral elections in Detroit, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Buffalo for indications on voter thinking.

The balloting in New Jersey and Virginia is of particular interest because President Nixon has injected himself in both races in his first domestic political campaigning since his own election a year ago.

The New York City race has been a study in frustration for most political observers. Lindsay was all but counted out last spring when he lost the Republican nomination to a conservative and little-known state senator from Staten Island, John Marchi.

Forced to run on the tickets of the small Liberal and Independent parties, he fell far behind in the early stages of the race as Democrat Mario Procaccino seemed to pick up support from the heavily populated boroughs of Queens, Brooklyn and The Bronx.

Lindsay, however, has put together a polished and expensive campaign that appears to have overcome Procaccino's law-and-order strategy and his attacks on the mayor as a "Limousine Liberal" who plunged the city into its worst racial crisis.

The fights for the other city halls are seen as tests of a current thesis that middle-class America is in revolt over law-and-order and the aspirations of urban blacks.

Detroit and Cleveland have Negro candidates for mayor, with Democrat Carl B. Stokes running for re-election in the Ohio city and Wayne County Auditor Richard Austin seeking a first term running the Michigan metropolis.

Stokes, first black mayor of a major U.S. city, is challenged by Republican Ralph J. Perk with the race rated a virtual toss-up. The key issue has been over control of the police force with the racial angle simmering below the surface.

The Detroit race also is seen as too close to call with a very high undecided voter element seen as the key in Austin's effort against Roman Gribbs, Wayne County sheriff, who has made crime control his major campaign issue.

In addition to testing Nixon's political drawing power, the Virginia race could mean the future of the old-line Democratic Byrd machine, which has run state politics for more than a generation.

Republican Linwood Holton, running with the diverse backing of Nixon and many of the state's labor and civil rights leaders, is considered a slight underdog to William C. Battle, the Democratic candidate.

Battle is running with the endorsement of most of the state's Democratic leaders, including U.S. Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr., whose father built the state's powerful political machine.

In New Jersey, the race is between Robert B. Meyner, a former two-term Democratic governor, and Republican William T. Cahill, a six-term congressman.

Both sides indicate the bitterly fought race will be a toss up right down to the wire, barring late-breaking developments. Here is a rundown of the other major elections being held Tuesday:

—Buffalo. Republican-Conservative Mrs. Alfreda W. Slominski is challenging incumbent Mayor Frank A. Sedita, who is running on the Democratic-Liberal tickets. The race, fought over school busing and law and order, is rated a toss up.

—Pittsburgh. The campaign apparently marks the end of the old-line Democratic machine no matter who wins between Independent Democrat Peter Flaherty and Republican John K. Tabor.

Crime control also is a major factor in this campaign; rated as too close to call.

—New Jersey's 8th Congressional District—Republican Eugene Boyle is running against Democrat Robert A. Roe, New Jersey conservation commissioner, in the nation's only congressional race.

Residents from Lone Star, Hughes Springs, Naples, Omaha and Pittsburg have been invited to attend.

Time, in its Nov. 7 issue, said 51 per cent of the 1,589 persons polled agreed with the statement: "Kennedy has not told the truth about the accident." Twenty-five per cent disagreed and 24 per cent were not sure.

In August, shortly after Kennedy gave his version of the accident on television, 44 per cent of the persons surveyed said they believed he did not tell the truth, 36 per cent thought he did tell the truth and 20 per cent were not sure.

Sit-In Ends At Vassar

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y. (AP) — The sit-in is over at Vassar College as a new school week opens, and officials hope for peace.

Vassar, one of the fashionable "seven sisters" to the Ivy League universities, has agreed to hire more black professors, increase the black studies program and give letter grades and degrees for black studies courses.

Thirty-two Negro girls ended their three-day sit-in at the administration building Saturday night after meeting with President Alan Simpson and members of the board of trustees.

Vassar also agreed to let black students live in "a contiguous residential space for the spring semester and thereafter," but refused to assign blacks a separate dormitory as militants demanded. There are 59 blacks among Vassar's 1,600 students.

But the Senate, unlike the House, has no rules to limit debate to the lottery only.

As a result, a band of senators lies in wait to ambush the Nixon bill with amendments intended to revamp the entire Selective Service process system many of them call unfair, unjust and disruptive to personal and national life.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield announced last week he doubted whether the Nixon measure would reach the Senate floor this year.

Republican leaders said Democrats were not being responsive to the legitimate demands of youth.

"I do not think it is fair to keep the future of millions of young men up in the air, while the Senate ponders over a more comprehensive review of the Selective Service system," said Republican Senate Leader Hugh Scott.

Scott said he favors more sweeping reforms eventually, but thinks the lottery system is a change which must be enacted now.

"What we need is not more patchwork amendments but basic, thorough reform," Kennedy replied.

Draft Used To Punish Rebels Faces Scrutiny

WASHINGTON (AP)—Charges the draft has been used to punish antiwar protesters face Senate scrutiny this week as part of a controversy over wholesale reform of the Selective Service system.

"The fundamental issue which now confronts us is whether the Selective Service System has the right to supplant the courts and substitute an administrative form of punishment," Sen. Edward M. Kennedy said Sunday.

Last week, Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service director for the last 28 years, testified before the Senate Judiciary subcommittee that service in the armed forces cannot be regarded as a punishment.

"This is of course true," Kennedy replied. "But it can become punishment if the director of Selective Service treats accelerated induction as an alternative to criminal prosecution for those violating draft regulations.

Kennedy said the Military Selective Service Act of 1967 provides for the prosecution and punishment of draft law violators through the federal courts. In his appearance last Thursday, Hershey, who is being replaced as head of Selective Service, said he opposed what he called encroachment of the judicial system into the activities of draft boards.

Meanwhile, opposing plans for draft reform are at the center of a controversy between the Nixon administration and the Senate's Democratic leadership.

At stake immediately is a House-passed bill which is limited to giving President Nixon the right to create a lottery system for drafting young men into the armed forces.

The system would choose mostly 19-year-olds for service and reduce to one year the present seven-year period in which a youth is most vulnerable to induction.

But the Senate, unlike the House, has no rules to limit debate to the lottery only.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ
Q. 1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠KQ1073 ♥4 ○K74 ♣J103
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1♥ Pass 1♠ Pass
2♦ Pass 2♣ Pass
2NT Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Four spades. Partner has shown a strong hand by his sequence of calls and thus far you have made only noncommittal bids. It is time for you to show signs of distinct strength and even if partner has no more than one or two spades your hand is playable for game in that suit.

Q. 2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1♠ Pass 2♥ Pass

4♣ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Five spades. Everything seems under control, but allowance must be made for the remote possibility that partner has two diamond losers. Four no trump is not available in this case, for you may have a slam the partner is across. A singleton diamond in partner's hand will do the trick.

3♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Four hearts. Your hand is worth nine points in support of hearts. After all, you might have had only seven or eight points. Partner's invitation should, therefore, be accepted.

Q. 7—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠A62 ♥KQ86 ○3 ♣K9865
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1♣ Pass 1♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Two hearts. You started out with a near minimum, but now that partner has bid hearts your hand has improved but not sufficiently to warrant a jump. It is worth only 18 points in support of hearts.

Q. 8—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q105 ♥4 ○QJ72 ♣97642
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1♥ Dble. ?

What action do you take?
A.—Pass. Nothing is to be gained by bidding in this situation. Action by you can lead only to complications. The fear that the double will be left in for penalties is fanciful. It doesn't happen often enough to worry about.

Speakers Explain Oil, Gas Industry To Group

"Maintaining a strong healthy threat to our national security," said Tuttle, a graduate petroleum engineer and lawyer, mandatory to insure our economic stability," said Charles Tuttle, when he spoke to an audience of about 50 persons Thursday evening in the Pioneer Natural Gas Flame Room. The meeting was sponsored by the West Texas Republican Women's Club.

"We need to provide a proven energy reserve in the event of a national emergency or a drilled and reserves are dwindling. It is vital, therefore, that nothing should be done to tax capital assets and discourage exploration."

Weaver, a local attorney, stated that 7½ per cent tax on "net investment income" of private foundations under the tax reform bill would amount to only $65 million in tax revenue to the government. He said that he favors the provisions which would penalize foundations engaged in propaganda activities to influence legislation and public opinion; payments to influence elections and voter registration; and "self-dealing" operations.

Clark, an accountant, urged that citizens petition their Congressmen for simpler tax laws where by the individual could prepare his own tax return. On investments, he said, the bill would limit tax deductions of losses claimed by the avocational farmer, and on capital gains sales.

"It is getting to the point where everything we make will be taxed," he said.

Hints From Heloise

Dear Heloise: Would you please remind everyone to check the collar around their pet's neck every so often?

Recently a neighbor's half-grown Siamese cat started acting strangely so they took him to the veterinarian. Upon examination, it was found that the collar they had put on him when he was smaller, had embedded itself in his neck, almost out of sight.

After it was removed he became normal and playful again . . . Mrs. L. Purdy

You are so right . . . and this goes for dogs, too. So the next time you are having a playful romp with that favorite pet, check his collar. Remember, he can't tell you about it . . . Heloise

Dear Heloise: When my mother was cleaning and dressing my old dolls for charity, she used red rouge and red fingernail polish for those faded lips and cheeks. She also fixed the eyebrows and lashes with a ball-point pen.

They really looked all spruced up after having had this make-up job . . . A Reader

Dear Heloise: I just finished making a pair of mittens and you will never guess how it was done in ten minutes and at no cost.

I cut my husband's heavy socks off just above the heel. Using the ribbing on the sock as the top of the mitten I patterned the mitten and thumb from there and thumb-stitched on the wrong side (following the same stitching several times).

When turned right side out, you'll have a mitten in no time flat . . . Mrs. Lee Ganger

Dear Heloise: Have you ever tasted fried biscuits?

A couple of years ago when it was too hot to fire up the oven, we still wanted biscuits so I cooked them over a very low fire, almost as low as I could get it.

Then when they were brown,

Designers Show Spring Fashions

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — Italian fashion designers have dreamed up a schizophrenic for next spring. By night she is a vamp, dressed like a sulky siren from a Fellini film. By day she's demure and trim in short little suits or neat pants outfits.

The new woman came out today at the start of the spring-summer fashion show for ready-to-wear, boutique and knit-wear fashions.

Flat, smooth wools are a favorite choice so far. Colors are clean and cool with liberal helpings of white in all collections.

The length is still jauntily short, apart from the occasional maxicoat. Pants, always slightly flared, continued to play an important part.

The tunics and coats that accompany them are always long enough to discreetly cover the derriere, a woman's weak spot when it comes to wearing the pants.

Suit jackets are either ultrashort or extra long. Skirts always have movement in the form of pleats or flares.

Eighty of Italy's most design-conscious houses are parading their latest finery in Palazzo Pitti, the Renaissance palace that was once the home of the Medici family.

Past Matron's Club Hosts Breakfast

Mrs. Donald McKinney and Mrs. Jasper Gibson were hostesses for a breakfast honoring members of the Coahoma Past Matron's Club Saturday in the Coahoma United Methodist Church. Mrs. Earnest Garrett presided and announced the group will exchange Christmas gifts at the December meeting. Reports were heard from the visitation committee. The tables were laid with white cloths and centered with a Thanksgiving arrangement.

HOME AGAIN — Little Jennifer Washington is glad to be back home with mommy in west Philadelphia after nearly a year in Cuba. Jeanne Washington holds her four-year-old daughter after returning from Plattsburgh, N.Y., where they were reunited. Jennifer was taken to Cuba last Dec. 19 by her father, Thomas Washington, 29, who is accused of hijacking an airplane and kidnaping the tot. He returned apparently voluntarily Saturday with six other accused hijackers and the child.

Biggest Break In Cancer Research In 20 Years?

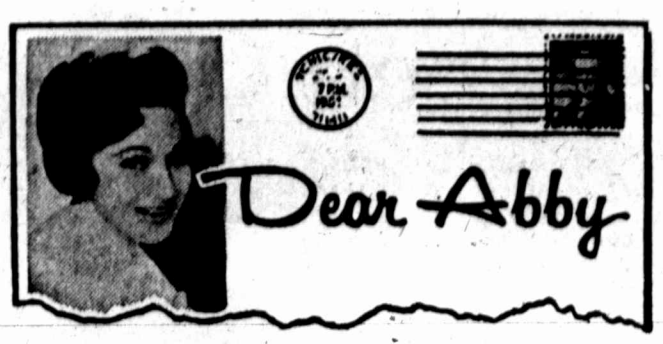

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP) — A team of British scientists has found a virus which causes leukemia in cats and made it grow in human cell tissues. The virus also has been grown in dog and pig tissues, and the researchers plan to test it next on monkeys. "This is one of the biggest breakthroughs in cancer research in 20 years," said Dr. Robert Williamson of the Royal Beaton Hospital in Glasgow. "Having this virus isolated means that finding a cure is now a matter of hand slogging." But William Jarrett, a professor of veterinary pathology and head of the Glasgow University research team that announced the discovery, cautioned: "Don't get too excited about the possibility of a cure being found quickly. But the outlook looks promising." "This is the first natural cancer virus to be discovered," Jarrett said. "It is the first virus ever shown to cross the species barrier. It will infect any human cell." The discovery strengthens the theory that leukemia, cancer of the blood, may be caused in man by a virus. Regarding the possibility that humans might catch leukemia from pets, Dr. Oswald Jarrett, the professor's brother and a member of the team, said present evidence indicates that it is remote but further research is under way on the question. Prof. Jarrett added: "No one envisages at the moment that leukemia is an infectious disease in the same way as measles. There is nothing to suggest that you would be infected if someone sneezed a virus at you." Dr. Jarrett said the feline leukemia virus was injected into human cell tissues in the laboratory. "Although it grew well it does not follow that the same would happen in a living person," he said.

Oil Operators Asking Canada To Curb Sales

HOUSTON (AP) — Independent oil operators plan to renew a request that the federal government ask Canada to abide by an agreement to limit the amount of oil exported to the United States. The independents also say the United States is moving toward a severe natural gas supply shortage. Policy committees debated the problems Sunday while preparing recommendations to submit at Tuesday's 40th meeting of the Independent Petroleum Association of America. The natural gas committee is expected to renew its plea for congressional legislation clarifying the authority of the Federal Power Commission to regulate producers who sell gas into interstate commerce. An imports subcommittee left no doubt it will recommend that Canada be asked to limit its exports to the United States to 302,000 barrels a day. The limitation was established in a 1967 agreement signed by the two nations but the document does not compel Canada to impose formal export controls. "It just happens to be an agreement with very little teeth," Jake Simmons, administrator of the Interior Department's mandatory oil import control program, told the independents. The independents contend January-August imports from Canada averaged 334,000 barrels a day and that September receipts averaged 384,000 barrels daily. "The agreement obviously is not being lived up to," said Bob Burch, the sub-committee chairman from Denver, Colo. "Let's don't feel sorry for Canada. We have a balance of payments deficit and they don't." Harold M. McClure Jr., president of the 6,000-member association, told the gas committee the 1970 gas supply deficiency may approach two trillion cubic feet. He said no supply will be available for many communities and industrial plants that would like to use natural gas. McClure said the combined gas supply deficiency for the United States and Canada may approach 16 trillion (T) cubic feet in 1975 unless incentives to find new reserves are increased. He said members of the FPC have indicated increased concern about the problem. "I think and hope you will see this concern implemented into action by the FPC," McClure said. "I think we can move forward for progress in both the regulatory and legislative levels."

New Tag Plan

CORSICANA, Tex. (AP) — Cars from outside Navarro County and parked overtime in downtown Corsicana will not get court summons in the future. The city's downtown merchants are financing a new police policy to tag the non-resident violators with a courtesy ticket to make visitors "feel more welcome."

Dear Abby

DEAR ART LINKLETTER: The world grieves with you and Mrs. Linkletter over the loss of your beautiful 20-year-old daughter who jumped to death while under the influence of LSD. You showed tremendous unselfishness in keeping nothing from the public. This you did in the hope that your personal tragedy would save other young lives . . . though all was lost for your Diane. While I know how painful it must be for you to discuss it, will you please answer one question, Art? Did Diane smoke marijuana before experimenting with LSD? Over 50 million people read me daily. If one word from you saves just one young life it will be well worth printing. Love and kisses, ABBY

DEAR ABBY: Diane did not smoke marijuana. In fact, she neither drank nor smoked. Diane had not used LSD for at least five months before that fatal night. Being a highly strung emotional girl, the effects of her initial experiment with LSD could not be shaken off. Young people do not know that recurrent reactions of LSD are totally unpredictable. We did not know that there had been any recurrences, so you can imagine what a shock it was to us.

Mrs. Linkletter and I are slowly coming back and healing. Love and kisses. ART

DEAR ABBY: Stamped across this letter is the word "CENSORED" which requires some sort of explanation from me. I am not an inmate of a MENTAL institution. I am an inmate of a PENAL institution. I am serving an 18-year sentence for GRAND LARCENY. I do not say that proudly, but I just wanted you to know that I am not guilty of rape or murder or any other violent crime. My problem is that I have entered a short story in a creative writer's contest, and if I should win I'll be expected to appear to accept the prize. Obviously that will not be possible. What do you suggest?

TIME ON MY HANDS

DEAR TIME: I suggest that you meet that problem when — and if it becomes a reality.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please offer a workable solution to an "in-law" problem which I have observed to be a stumbling block to many. When young men and women date, they quite normally address their dates' parents as "Mr. and Mrs." so and so. After the couple marries, they can no longer address their in-laws in this manner. Since this has not been discussed before marriage, many young marrieds do not call their in-laws anything, leaving their elders feeling like complete outsiders. I have seen the hurt

Gunned To Death

MIDLOTHIAN, Tex. (AP) — Lowell McDuffie, 25, a reserve officer with the Midlothian police department, was shot to death at his home in the North Central Texas town Sunday night. McDuffie was shot between the eyes. Officers have questioned a woman in connection with the slaying.

The 1970 VW will stay ugly longer.

Just what hath Volkswagen wrought this year? A longer-lasting engine, that's what. It's more powerful than the old engine. (Top speed: 81 mph vs. 78 mph.) It has better acceleration. But most important, it doesn't have to work as hard to get you where you're going. Thus, according to every calculation known to man, it will last even longer. And just to make sure the engine and every other VW part leads a long, happy life, we have another surprise for 1970: The Volkswagen Diagnostic Checkup. Now before the name scares you away, listen to what it is: VW Diagnosis is an exclusive service checkup by specially trained technicians using specially made diagnostic equipment. The equipment is faster and more thorough than any mechanical alive. It's so advanced, it can actually tell you you have a problem early, before it becomes a real problem. For instance, let's say the resistance in one of your spark plug wires is too high. Nothing serious, but it could reduce your gas mileage and eventually foul up your spark plugs. During a Diagnostic Checkup, our equipment can find and we can fix this problem in a matter of minutes. When you buy a new VW, you're entitled to four of these advanced checkups free. What could be a better deal than that? You buy a bug. We take care of the bugs.

BIG SPRING, TEXAS, MONDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1969

Creighton's Seiberling Line Offers Safety, Durability

When it's time for new tires, there's one place that's a "must" on anyone's shopping list: Creighton's Tire Center, 601 Gregg.

Creighton's has been distributor for Seiberling tires for many years; under the ownership of Charlie Creighton and Dalton Carr, the company continues to provide expert tire service for this area. They know from experience Seiberling is the best tire around.

The Seiberling line provides comfort, safety, security, durability and control — all qualities any good tire should have.

The Seiberling Supreme 150 is a maximum performance tire. Compared to the tires that come on new cars, it has up to 57 per cent greater cord body strength, up to 29 per cent wider tread and up to 16 per cent deeper tread. This means greater safety, better handling, better traction, longer mileage and smoother riding.

Besides the qualities of any Seiberling tire, the Supreme Sealed-Aire 200 features puncture-proof protection with its exclusive bulkhead construction. When an object punctures the 200, the sealing gum clings to the object, keeping air in. As the object is removed, gum fol-

Use Blue Lustre To Clean Carpet

Blue Lustre, the premium-quality carpet and upholstery cleaner, has become America's favorite for cleaning rugs and upholstery. It's so easy to use! Just vacuum, shampoo, let dry, and re-vacuum. It is really that easy with the electric shampoo machine. Soil is gone — colors are bright again, and matted carpet nap springs back to make carpets look new once more.

Blue Lustre is a concentrate that provides deep down cleaning. There is no messy powder to keep piling up in carpet fibers, no gummy residue to cause rapid resoiling.

The rug shampooer which may be rented for $1 a day with the purchase of Blue Lustre makes carpet cleaning as easy as vacuuming. Its twin-brush scrubbing action gets the job done thoroughly and quickly.

Blue Lustre is safe to use on any carpet that water will not harm. It costs so little, and is so convenient to use for the little touch-up jobs that are so necessary for good carpet maintenance.

Just one-half gallon of Blue Lustre will clean three 9x12 rugs. Try it! It's available at Big Spring Hardware.

Couple Has Ridden Cycle For 23 Years

One's never too old to ride a motorcycle, according to Mr. and Mrs. Larry Shawley, both 87, who have ridden their Harley-Davidson from their home in Johnsonburg, Pa., to Miami, Fla., and back.

"We love it. You can see the country so much better and the scenery looks so different," said Mrs. Shawley. "In a car you feel all cooped up and your vision is limited."

The Shawleys became motorcycle enthusiasts 23 years ago when a friend talked them into buying their first machine. Since then they have traveled thousands of miles (they can't count them) every summer to every corner of the U.S. and Canada.

CARPET CLEANING — Blue Lustre makes carpets look new once more. It's easily applied with an electric shampoo machine that can be rented—just vacuum, shampoo, let dry and then vacuum again.

BIG SPRING, TEXAS, MONDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1969

It Was A Tragic Weekend In Texas For 46 Persons

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
It was a tragic weekend in Texas for 46 persons. They were the victims of violence that included accidents on highways, shootings, stabbings, beatings and fires.

Twenty-five of the 46 died in traffic mishaps; 12 were fatally shot.

The Associated Press began the grim count at 6 p.m. Friday. It ended at midnight Sunday. The dead included these: Jessie Welch of McKinney and Cecil Welch of Melissa were killed Sunday when their automobile and a freight train collided at Melissa.

The Lebanese press welcomed the cease-fire enthusiastically, although no agreement has yet been worked out to resolve the basic conflict between the army and the guerrillas—the degree of freedom of action and movement the guerrillas would enjoy in Lebanon.

More than 100 persons are believed to have been killed and many more wounded in the inter-Arab battling over the use of Lebanon as a base for guerrilla strikes against Israel.

The guerrillas have demanded a free rein, but the government tried to restrict their activities for fear of Israeli reprisals.

On the other side of the Israeli-Lebanese frontier, Israeli warplanes went into action again early today and bombed and strafed three suspected Arab commando bases in Jordan, the Israeli military command said.

One of the targets, the abandoned village of Waqqas, was south of the Sea of Galilee just east of the Jordan River. The other two were south of the Dead Sea.

Eyewitnesses said the planes were over Waqqas about 30 minutes and encountered heavy anti-aircraft fire. More than an hour after the dawn raid, smoke and flames could still be seen, these sources said.

The Israelis said all planes returned safely.

The Denton Paper Deal Blow

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — The Court of Civil Appeals here has affirmed a jury verdict which awarded D. E. Boyd $10,000 damages because of a statement published by the Denton Record-Chronicle.

The statement was included in a report of a Denton city council meeting published in the newspaper.

The suit was styled D. B. Boyd vs. the Denton Publishing Co.

The appeals court decision, written Friday by Chief Justice Frank Massey, said that the newspaper made "erroneous" remarks about the plaintiff's financial status.

Judge Massey added that Boyd had not been involved in bankruptcy proceedings as declared in the newspaper report.

The Record-Chronicle contended that a spokesman for a delegation referred to bankruptcy while appearing before the council and that it, therefore, had a legal right to print the statement.

The judge said, however, that the Record-Chronicle did not qualify the statement by attributing it to the spokesman.

Reds Launch New Attacks

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese forces launched new attacks in South Vietnam's Central Highlands today after driving allied troops from three U.S. artillery bases at the opposite end of the region.

Special Forces officers said the loss of the bases was a "major success" for the enemy.

While U.S. and South Vietnamese troops along the Cambodian border in the southern part of the highlands braced for renewed North Vietnamese assaults, the enemy struck nearly 200 miles to the northeast, along the coastal region of the northern Central Highlands.

Some 200 North Vietnamese infantrymen and commandos launched coordinated assaults on two artillery bases of the U.S. 173rd Airborne Brigade north of the provincial capital of Bong Son.

Firing rocket grenades, machine guns and rifles, the attackers pushed their way to the barbed wire perimeters of the two bases before American artillery drove them back.

The U.S. Command said at least two enemy soldiers penetrated the perimeter of one base but were killed or repulsed. The bodies of others were found in the barbed wire around the second base.

Headquarters said 26 North Vietnamese were killed in the two attacks. U.S. casualties were one killed and eight wounded, the command said.

Light rocket and mortar attacks were launched against other allied bases in the highlands, including the headquarters of a brigade of the US 4th Infantry Division at An Khe, 260 miles north-northeast of Saigon.

Ambassador Huot Sambath was to start the debate by introducing a resolution sponsored by 17 Communist and nonaligned nations. Although Peking was not expected to get even a simple majority in the vote on the Cambodian resolution, the United States and 14 of its allies planned to introduce a resolution reaffirming five previous assembly decisions that the Western bloc and abstain in the vote expected Friday.

Initial reports put South Vietnamese losses at one killed, 17 wounded and two missing.

Forty-four North Vietnamese were reported killed.

Informal sources said they believe the North Vietnamese are trying for a psychological victory and that the weekend's activity is part of "the stepping-up process."

The sources said they anticipate increased fighting throughout this month in the Central Highlands as the monsoon rains end and the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese begin their winter-spring offensive.

The three artillery bases were abandoned after two of them came under North Vietnamese artillery and ground attacks.

About 600 Americans and South Vietnamese threatened with being overrun fled to the nearby Bu Prang Special Forces camp about 120 miles northeast of Saigon.

Bu Prang itself was bombarded Sunday by enemy artillery said to be firing from inside Cambodia. Ground probes were launched against the camp's perimeter. A large-scale North Vietnamese assault had been anticipated overnight, and American fighter-bombers dropped tons of bombs outside the camp to discourage the enemy from massing for an attack.

The three artillery bases and the Special Forces camp formed a diamond with Bu Prang at the top. The bases were set up a few months ago to provide an artillery blanket in the frontier region for allied forces checking North Vietnamese infiltration into South Vietnam.

U.S. sources said there was a "large enemy buildup along the Cambodian border" and the bases had been under heavy pressure all week, but the coordinated attacks came as a surprise.

Little action was reported elsewhere in Vietnam.

Communist China Due U.N. Defeat

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Communist China again was given no chance of getting seated in the United Nations as the General Assembly prepared to open its annual debate on the issue today.

Although the United States was expected to be successful once more in its fight to bar the Peking regime, diplomats believed that Italy and probably Belgium might abandon the Western bloc and abstain in the vote expected Friday.

LEBANESE TROOPS GUARD COMMAND POST — Lebanese soldiers man a command post at Rachaya, Lebanon, overlooking the ridge held by Palestinian guerrillas two miles down the slope. The Lebanese army and the guerrillas who have been fighting each other in bloody battles for the past two weeks, agreed on a cease-fire beginning at 5 p.m. EST, Sunday, according to Arab radio broadcasts.

Arab Guerrillas Blast Pipeline In Lebanon

BEIRUT (AP) — Arab guerrillas blew up an American pipeline in southern Lebanon early today, half an hour after a cease-fire between the guerrilla high command and the Lebanese army went into effect.

The charge that blew out two feet of the Transarabian Pipeline—or Tapline—from Saudi Arabia to the south Lebanese port of Sidon apparently was set before the cease-fire became effective at midnight.

'The Ed Sullivan Show' Losing The Ratings Race

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "The Ed Sullivan Show," after more than 20 years, seems to be running into some heavy flak. Since the new season started, the CBS vaudeville hour has been losing the ratings race.

The success of NBC's "Bill Cosby Show," preceded by "The Wonderful World of Disney," has been a principal factor, complicated by the continuing popularity of ABC's "The FBI."

Sullivan and company, however, are uniquely equipped to handle emergencies. Most variety series are taped far in advance—often months—and it is almost impossible to make repairs if things don't go well. The Sullivan hour is almost always live and therefore flexible.

There already are signs that the show is being beefed up, with more stars and fewer animal acts and acrobats.

Sunday night's bill had Pearl Bailey, Petula Clark, country singer Buck Owens and a new rock group called "The Band," so there was something for just about every variety of music lover. There was also David Frye, probably the most skillful impressionist around today, a very short stand-up comedy monologue by Rodney Dangerfield and some young French-Canadian folk dancers.

It was a star-studded and lively hour. But there are so many

Ten hours later, no violations had been reported from Lebanon's eastern border with Syria. The focus of the past two weeks of fighting between guerrillas of the Palestine Liberation Organization and the Lebanese army.

Repair work on the pipeline started immediately, and a company spokesman said oil should be flowing again by midnight. It was the second time this year the line has been sabotaged.

Agreement to a cease-fire effective at midnight Sunday was reached in Cairo by guerrilla chief Yasir Arafat and Gen. Emile Bustani, commander in chief of the Lebanese army. They also agreed to continue talking in an effort to agree on the conditions under which the guerrillas will operate against Israel from bases in Southern Lebanon.

Lebanese army units and the guerrilla forces facing them apparently were maintaining the positions they held Sunday.

The only clash reported Sunday was a 30-minute exchange of mortar and tank fire outside Rashaya. The village commands the supply route the guerrillas are trying to establish from Syria to the camps they hold in southern Lebanon.

The Lebanese press welcomed the cease-fire enthusiastically, although no agreement has yet been worked out to resolve the basic conflict between the army and the guerrillas—the degree of freedom of action and movement the guerrillas would enjoy in Lebanon.

Time For A Review

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield is about to renew his plea for a reduction in U.S. force levels in Europe. A review of our troop commitment to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) is overdue.

Sen. Mansfield plans to introduce a "sense of the Senate" measure which would ask President Nixon to reduce the number of U.S. divisions in Europe. That force now stands at approximately 300,000 and 14,000 civilian employees of the military, as well as 235,000 dependents of servicemen. The troops are organized into five divisions. Mansfield would suggest that at least two divisions be returned to the United States which would constitute a saving of approximately $4 billion a year of the $12 billion now spent in Europe.

The rationale for such a large troop commitment is to be found in the strategy of NATO deployment. The strategy is based on the organization of sufficient ground troops and conventional weapons in Europe to permit flexibility. That is, the resort to nuclear weapons in the face of a Communist attack would not be automatic.

But events have long since overtaken the basic concept of NATO. In 1949, when the NATO treaty was signed, Europe was only beginning to revive. At the time there appeared to be a real threat that the westward sweep of communism would halt until it reached at least the English Channel. But today the situation is altered. Europe is strong economically and politically. The threat of a Communist physical invasion is no longer imminent. Russia is preoccupied with the problem of China.

There is a sound argument for the presence of some U.S. troops in Europe, but whether 300,000 are necessary is open to review.

Export Of Dangerous Drugs

In recent weeks there has been a torrent of public criticism of Mexico's failure to curb the production of marijuana and narcotics smuggled into the United States. It will be interesting to see whether there will be similar reaction to evidence of industrial negligence, or worse, the lack of governmental regulation of the production and distribution of dangerous drugs and their ingredients in the United States.

The revelations by the House Select Committee on Crime, headed by Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., certainly have been shocking enough so far to set off a public demand for stricter controls over the handling of dangerous drugs. After hearings in several major cities, with more to come, the committee has come up with estimates that half the dangerous drugs produced in the United States find their way into the illicit market, largely for abusive use by young people.

The committee has found that there is no effective legal or administrative control over U.S. exports of dangerous drugs, huge amounts of which are shipped to Mexico for smuggling back into this country. Clandestine laboratories thrive in the United States because there is virtually no regulation of the production and distribution of the relatively simple and plentiful ingredients for producing dangerous drugs.

The drugs in question, mostly amphetamine stimulants and barbiturate depressants, when used without medical supervision in excessive dosages are far more dangerous to the health of individuals and to society than marijuana. Fatalities caused by such drug abuse are alarmingly common, the committee reports.

What the House committee appears likely finally to come up with is a grave and documented indictment of major elements of the U.S. drug industry for negligence and a list of glaring deficiencies in federal and state laws and regulations relating to the current massive oversupply of dangerous drugs in the domestic and foreign markets. It should be enough to arouse public opinion and compel official action.

Burleson Reports Burdens Of The Presidency

WASHINGTON — Glamour is at its height when the great chandeliers in the White House are ablaze and men and women in evening clothes dine with the President and the First Lady from plates etched in gold. The talk is usually light and everyone smiles at everyone else. Foreign guests bow and kiss the ladies' hands.

It is all really contrary to the loneliness of the job of being President of the United States. At the pinnacle of our Government, the President must finally stand alone in his decisions. Whoever he may be, he carries an awesome responsibility.

TONIGHT, PRESIDENT Nixon is to address the nation on the war in Vietnam. He could make some significant policy statements of a dramatic nature. Evidently the Administration is coming to the conclusion that soon there must be some changes in direction and the President's address may indicate a course of action soon to be taken.

Whatever is done about Vietnam will not please everyone but it is a fair assumption that the President feels like most people — that we can not forever remain bogged down in this far away and unfortunate situation without some reasonable solution in sight.

PERHAPS MR. NIXON hears his own words of about a year ago when he said "A President has to hear not only the clamorous voices of the organized, but also the quiet voices . . . the voices that speak through the silences, and that speak from the heart and conscience."

The presidency has never been easy or simple. Even in less complicated times and, in fact, from the very beginning, our chief executives have had to face great decisions. George Washington came to office determined to rule over a united nation. Within four months the Senate rejected his proposed treaty with Southern Indians. Division became so severe that a second party was formed before he left office.

SHORTLY BEFORE Abraham Lincoln was inaugurated in 1861, seven states had seceded from the Union. The Northerners thought they could defeat the South in a matter of days until their forces were shattered at Bull Run.

Before 1863 Lincoln was ordering the arrest of anti-draft agitators.

In 1917, Woodrow Wilson, opposed by strong congressional influence to arming American ships, denounced certain senators as "a group of willful men." After the war, the United States Senate rejected Wilson's plea for U.S. membership in the League of Nations.

IN 1934, President Franklin Roosevelt rode into office carrying all the states except two. Before he had served two years, opposition was so great that he personally campaigned for the defeat of senators and congressmen who did not go along with his programs.

History does repeat itself. Although there may be little solace for a contemporary President in recalling the tribulations of his predecessors the fact remains that the man in that office must stand alone. In trying times he finds himself pulled and pushed from every quarter, even the leaders in his own party.

Although the President makes that final decision, whether we agree or not, he deserves as much support as we can reasonably give him. There are enough issues left over to quarrel about.

Billy Graham

Please tell me how I can know that there is a God, L.S.

Look around you. Your eyes will give you evidence on every hand. The Bible says: "For the invisible things of Him from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even His eternal power and Godhead." In the Psalms we read: "The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament showeth His handiwork. Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night showeth knowledge." Your mind must convince you that these things have not just happened. God made them. Let the spirit that is in you also discover that God is spirit and that He is ever present. Ask Him with an honest heart to let you know in your heart that He is God and that He loves you. Be honest enough to take the Bible, God's Book, and see what it says about Him.

In nature, you see the power and majesty of God. In the Bible, you learn of the love of God, a love so deep and compelling that He came down into this world to redeem us back to Himself. Take the Gospel of John and read it through without stopping. Read it again. If you are honestly looking for God, take the steps I have suggested. And, take one further step: tell Him that you are willing to give your heart to Him and live for Him. If you do, I promise you, you will know that God exists and that He is living in your heart.

'PARDON ME WHILE I MAKE A FEW ANNOUNCEMENTS'

John Cunniff

'Make Labor, Management Come Together'

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the problems with the Nixon administration's policy of voluntary restraints on wages and prices is that it asks business and labor not to sin but it doesn't define the nature of sin.

"How do you know you're sinning if you don't know what the sin is?" asked Walter Heller, who was chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers under John F. Kennedy and for a while under Lyndon B. Johnson.

Heller's views on the techniques of economic control were solicited because doubts are growing among some economists—perhaps a minority—regarding the effectiveness of the Nixon program.

In Heller's days in Washington there was little question about the definition of sin. Both wage and price increases were tied by a formula to increases in productivity, which at that time averaged about 3.2 per cent a year.

The guideposts, it was felt, would give unions and management a measure of the boundaries within which they could bargain. They worked, seemingly between 1963 and 1966, but were broken badly thereafter.

They did, nevertheless, have an impact. Whenever a union or a company violated the guideposts it risked a crescendo of criticism from Washington.

More than once, price increases were rescinded. And, in the public eye, the offender was held up to scorn as a violator of the national interest.

This usually put the White House at center stage and made of its chief occupant the leading character, a role that President Nixon seems reluctant to assume but which, Heller believes is a perfectly sensible one.

"You have to use the White House as a prism to focus public opinion," he said. "I don't think the Nixon administration has made nearly enough of its leadership role."

Asked what he would do if he were in office today, Heller replied: "I would issue a call to labor and industry to come in and talk together. I would put the problem to them at the same time. I would make them confront it."

The important thing, Heller said, would be to have both labor and management face the issue together rather than separately, and to do so under the pressure of finding an accommodation in the national interest.

Heller believes that now is the time for some lifting of the Nixon slowdown policy, which he feels is at the critical point beyond which the economy could be tipped into recession.

Worth Remembering

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Health has become a leading American industry. The nation's health bill now is about $61 billion, and by 1975 the Health Insurance Institute estimates it will reach $94 billion.

There is no rubber in dollar bills, although some favor putting it in to make them stretch farther. They are composed of cotton, 75 per cent and linen, 25 per cent.

The United States now has one motor vehicle for every two persons. Licensed men drivers outnumber women drivers 60 million to 43 million.

The boss doesn't spend all his time shouting orders or bawling people out. A survey showed that the average executive spends about 40 per cent of his work day listening to others.

Do you really want to lose weight? Then try hibernating. During three months of sluggish dozing in its wintry den, a bear sheds one-fourth of its poundage.

The contents of much of the mail we get nowadays hardly seems worth the price of the postage, but each letter a business firm sends out costs it $2.50.

What are your chances of being called for jury duty in any one year? About one in 40. Between five million and six million citizens are summoned annually for possible jury service.

Quotable notables: "Frustrate a Frenchman, he will drink himself to death; an Irishman, he will die of angry hypertension; a Dane, he will shoot himself; an American, he will get drunk, shoot you, then establish a million-dollar aid program for your relatives. Then he will die of an ulcer." —Dr. Stanley R. Dineen, psychologist.

The good old days: In 1909 the U.S. government paid only $30,000 for its first military airplane. The builders, the Wright brothers, also received $5,000 when the wood and fabric craft achieved a speed of 47 miles an hour, seven miles above the specified speed.

Household hint: Raisins for cakes and breads will be juicy and plump if you soak them in warm water before adding them to the batter or dough.

Worth remembering: "Be thankful you're living in a land where you can say what you think without thinking."

To Your Good Health Man Whose Fingertips Crack

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I wonder if you can help me. I do carpenter work but, whether I work or not, my hands are always rough and dry. The fingertips always crack and are painful, especially the thumbs.

What causes this? I have many different lotions, ointments, and prescriptions. I get relief for a few days and then the same thing recurs. — P.H.

Women are finicky about their hands, and the soap manufacturers are well aware of it. Just watch TV!

Men usually aren't. A little redness or roughness that would upset a woman doesn't disturb a man. Unless his hands hurt, that is.

But there are men with sensitive skins, and P.H. is one of them.

Generally speaking, fingers crack because the skin is irritated, thinned, and dry. This may be the case with P.H. — handling dry wood can dry the oil out of the skin as well as irritating it and thinning it.

Since he has this trouble whether he is doing carpentry or not, I would suspect that his skin is more sensitive than average, drier, and perhaps thinner.

Working with wood may also be one of the underlying factors, but this isn't like allergy. He doesn't have his trouble just from contact. Rather, the contact helps set up a situation that will let the skin crack later. Or so I would suspect, anyway.

Protecting his hands with gloves would help — but probably that is not possible for much of his work. Still, I would try gloves for as much of the time as possible. For one thing, that should help to keep the skin moist and flexible rather than hard and brittle. This is in addition to reducing irritation of the fingertips.

Further, since hand lotions give temporary relief, he ought to continue using them. His letter doesn't specify, but I wonder whether he used a lotion, found his fingers stopped cracking, thought he was "cured," and then abandoned the lotion. When trouble resumed, he felt that the lotion had failed.

Perhaps not. Perhaps his mistake was in not continuing any one of the various treatments he has tried.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 17 and have been menstruating for almost three years. Periods come irregularly, usually last nine days, and the flow is extremely heavy. I hadn't been too concerned until I discussed it with friends who seem to think it is unusual to have such long, profuse periods. Is this normal for a girl my age? — E.S.

It's not average but it's not "unusual" either. Your friends naturally aren't familiar with as many cases as a gynecologist is.

If I were you, I wouldn't get into a fret over it. But I would have a pelvic examination to see whether there is or isn't any detectable cause for the heavy flow. There are possible causes: faulty thyroid function, cystic changes in the ovaries. It's worth finding out.

And since the heavy flow can mean enough blood loss to cause some degree of anemia, that's worth a check, too.

The check is worthwhile — even if the doctor finds nothing wrong and suggests that you stop worrying.

Emphysema can be controlled. To learn how to live with this serious lung disease, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of The Herald, requesting a copy of the booklet, "How To Control Emphysema," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Around The Rim Sharing The Household Chores

One thing and another: Do most couples agree to a sort of Bill of Rights and Responsibilities around the house, with the husband taking this chore as part of his job while leaving another to the missus? Members of the team likely would get along better with each other if they did.

Marriage counselors say that husbands should be expected to wash the dishes, even though some members of the distaff side resent it if the men at least don't agree to dry the plates and cutlery.

THE MALES should hustle to carry out the garbage. If any cooking is done in barbecue grills in the back yard, the husband is expected to turn the meat. Indoors? That's something else again. That's a woman's responsibility.

The men don't scrub floors — that just isn't done. Neither do they defrost the refrigerator or vacuum or make the beds.

When it comes time to clean out the fireplace, replace burned-out light bulbs and mow the lawn — that's man's work. And the man who applies vanishing cream to himself when such a chore needs to be done is shirking his duty and taking advantage of the marriage contract.

IF YOU SEE a chalk mark scrawled on the side of a barn or a building which is within sight of a railroad, that is supposed to mean something to a hobo.

One bo wise to the problem is supposed to be saying to all others who might go that way: "The town is unfriendly to transient people down on their luck."

A cross within a circle inscribed on a billboard or a building is supposed to mean that prospects are good for a hobo.

If a tramp sees a curlycue sign, like a pig's tale, that is interpreted as a locale where the cops are too testy and the traveler can expect to wind up in the clink in places where he sees a sign that resembles a picket fence.

HOW ABOUT that woman in the south who went to the supermarket to pick up a carton of beer and was told at the checkout counter: "I'm sorry, but we can't sell beer on election day."

Indignantly, she replied: "But I'm not going to vote!"

Agnew On The Target

WASHINGTON — Vice President Agnew saw his duty, and he did it.

I can report that his recent denunciations of those who misled American youth were not thoughtless or temperamental outbursts. On the contrary, they were well-considered, deeply-felt statements of alarm and disapproval against a trend in public behavior.

MR. AGNEW deliberately summoned the most vigorous language at his command. He was firing his barages both fore and aft, at the coming anti-Nixon mobilization in November and at the recent anti-Nixon moratorium of Oct. 15.

It might as well be known that Agnew was referring to Sens. McGovern, Fulbright, McCarthy, et al, when he leveled his artillery of invective against "an elite corps of impudent snobs who characterize themselves as intellectuals."

THE VICE PRESIDENT knew in advance that his statements would cause an uproar among leftists and pacifists. He chose this method of holding up the administration's end of the dialogue. He saw no reason to speak softly against the diseases which infect our society, or to use polite language about Americans who are playing Hanoi's game. He does not regret and will not retract a single vituperation.

Now, the vice president, any vice president, is a national resource. As the automatic heir to the presidency, he is a reserve of incalculable value, as were Truman and Johnson when death struck the White House, and as Richard Nixon was during the Eisenhower illnesses. Yet many opinion-makers in the news-media, who are all in favor of conserving our material and environmental resources, have had a field day at polluting Spiro Theodore Agnew and eroding his worth to the country.

MR. AGNEW wasn't everybody's choice for the nomination he got at Miami, and he was not much help to the GOP ticket, and his prior experience in public life was very thin. But he rightly believes that the 1968 election transformed him into a national officer with whatever responsibilities he is willing and able to undertake for the administration at the request or consent of the President.

THESE RESPONSIBILITIES very properly include an expression of the domestic and foreign policies, and this is what Mr. Agnew has been doing. None of the newsmen and editorialists that I have seen went very far beyond page one of the 10-page address which the vice president delivered at New Orleans on Oct. 19. A good nine-tenths of that speech was a well-phrased, measured account of the Nixon stewardship in war, diplomacy and finance. The lead-paragraph, mostly ignored in the coverage, seems to me a sagacious comment on our times.

"SOMETIMES, it appears that we are reaching a period when our senses and our minds will no longer respond to moderate stimulation. We seem to be approaching an age of the gross. Persuasion through speeches and books is too often discarded for disruptive demonstrations aimed at bludgeoning the unconvinced into action."

Mr. Agnew, far from being a stupid and insensible man, then proceeded to speak his mind in his own style and argot. He was only "distressed," he told me, "that so much of what I said was misconstrued and altered in the reporting."

But from the yelps that have gone up, there's no doubt he hit those ideas and persons that he was aiming at. (Distribution by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

How We Stand On Vietnam

WASHINGTON — President Nixon in his speech to the nation tonight will make, as Rep. Gerald Ford, Republican leader in the House of Representatives, phrases it, "a broad and comprehensive review of our situation in Vietnam."

This is but another way of saying that Mr. Nixon has decided to remind not only the American people but people around the world of what has happened since President Johnson ordered a halt to all bombings of North Vietnam last October and since so-called "peace talks" were started in Paris in May, 1968.

THE DEMONSTRATORS for the complete withdrawal of American troops by a specified date have evidently forgotten what has occurred. This is why emphasis is necessary on exactly what concessions have actually been made by the United States and what has not been done reciprocally by North Vietnam encouraged, as it is, and supported militarily by both Red China and the Soviet Union.

Sometimes in the melee of public statements made by the Communists and also by sympathetic demonstrators in America, the main issue is overlooked — namely, that the United States is willing to make peace at once, provided the other side is ready also.

PRESIDENT NIXON doesn't intend to take the American forces out of Vietnam completely without assurances concerning the future. Nor is he going to set a fixed date for the withdrawal of all troops without accompanying it with definite warnings that the United States may at any moment feel itself compelled not only to renew the fighting in Vietnam but to send reinforcements from the United States if these become necessary.

If North Vietnam really wants peace, it can achieve that objective by certain actions. There is no need for a specific agreement on a ceasefire. What is essential is some evidence that, if the United States decides to call a halt to all fighting, the enemy will do the same.

SECRETARY OF STATE William Rogers indicated recently in a television interview that the Vietnam war may wind up in somewhat the same way as the Korean war — a cessation of fighting without any peace treaty. But it would, in effect, be an armistice.

The important thing is that President Nixon will reserve for America the right to resume warfare at any moment if acts of aggression such as brought on the Vietnam conflict are repeated. He can state clearly that if the enemy ceases to make war, a virtual armistice will have been accomplished.

This is what is known in diplomacy as a "modus vivendi" — a method of living with a situation that contains an unsolvable problem, as the two sides apparently reach an irreconcilable position after prolonged negotiations.

SO AFTER President Nixon's address, the big question will be whether the North Vietnamese really want to stop fighting. Behind the scenes, the Soviet Union may play a part. It can influence the Hanoi government to terminate the hostilities. This is important to Moscow, not only because a high annual expense to the Soviets is involved but because a continuance of Soviet support of active military operations will have an adverse effect on the forthcoming negotiations on limitation of armaments, which evidently is of vital concern to the Moscow government.

SO TONIGHT'S SPEECH may mark the beginning of more constructive conferences than have taken place in Paris. For, once the United States and the Soviet Union agree on certain points, the war in Vietnam can be brought to an end, and the Hanoi government probably will adhere to the agreements reached informally between Washington and Moscow. BED OF THORNS? — Close to it, but these are lengths of barbed wire being displayed for sale on a canvas cot. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Malone (right), San Angelo, were selling the lengths for anywhere from a few cents to $25 a piece at the flea market.

IT WAS AN INVASION of his domain at first, but now customers at the flea market. He is also custodian of the College Park Shopping Center. Joe Mata (right) eagerly shows his own wares to interested

MONTHLY FLEA MARKET

Days Of Yore...Relived

Bottles in curious shapes, wooden bowls warped to bizarre proportions, antique tools of dead-weight mass, twisted sections of barbed and prickly wire, clocks that tick out of tune, copper and iron cooking utensils from the days of yore; they were all at the market in vendors' displays amid a gay profusion of shoppers, lookers, and sellers. It was the monthly flea market at College Park Shopping Center.

The salesmen resembled peddlers of old, traveling as they would from town to town, with wares on display in scattered array across their turtle-floored house which rhythmically jerked and bounced behind the straining harness of an old gray nag.

But alas, the vestiges of time. The nag had turned into anything from a 57-horsepower Volkswagen engine to a shiny gold Cadillac glistening in the Indian Summer sun, and the rickety wooden wagon had become a fold-out trailer-tent or even a luxury travel trailer complete with television aerial. It seemed the modern approach to the age old hobby of curiosity-seeking and bargain hunting.

"It's been going on for about two years," said coordinator Mrs. Mabel Kountz, May Belle's Antiques. "I guess I inherited it and somehow it's mushroomed into this," as she pointed to more than 40 persons who paid $1.50 to display their wares.

She explained that displays come from as far away as New Mexico and said she has a list of about 100 regulars now that she always notifies of upcoming sales.

By TERRY HOPKINS
Photos By DANNY VALDES

"Of course we advertise," she added. "That's basically how people find out about us." Although the market is held every month, Mrs. Kountz did say she doesn't try to hold it during December.

"People are too busy during the holidays," she said. "Including me!" She said the money charged for admission of sales displays goes toward advertising expenses and that she reaps no revenue from the market other than what she sells at her own stand.

"I do reserve the best spot on the lot with shade for myself," she explained. "That's all I get for being boss."

More than 100 persons make the rounds of the market every month and sport a commendable show themselves.

A junior college student in orange dungarees and a bright paisley shirt stopped in front of a bottle (empty) display and rocked back and forth on shoeless feet admiring the collection, with a grin protruding coyly between mustache and beard.

A housewife donned in the fashion of her wedding day, circa 1950, wore a plaid straight skirt at mid-calf with cardigan buttoned down the back, bobby socks and loafers. She stopped to admire a uniquely crafted copper bowl for $8, but then decided the grocery budget wasn't quite flexible enough.

Teenagers from the closely cropped, well-groomed look to the longer styled, "like Jesus wore it," group all found an afternoon of pleasure wandering among the stands and occasionally sparring with a dealer about this item's authenticity or that object's price.

Two youngsters, dragged along for lack of a baby-sitter, were bored to screams until they found some intricate frontier tools displayed at exactly their level, on the pavement. But when mother discovered the not-yet coordinated child wielding a hefty "shoe last" at an even younger brother, that game also was cut short.

Gramps himself was there, too, chewing tobacco beneath an old straw hat and clad in faded coveralls with dimming colored shirt. He was admiring an imposing display of lengths of barbed wire which ranged in price from a few cents to $25 for a single two-foot length.

The milieu could easily have been the target for a social anthropologist's thesis when one considers the implications reminiscent of market days of old with traveling tinsmiths; but, coming right down to a practical analysis, it was simply a gathering of all kinds of people having a good time enjoying the quest for bargaining sport and the company of fellow curiosity seekers.

The next flea market is set for Nov. 15 and 16.

CURIOUS BOTTLES in all shapes, sizes, colors and capacities were popular displays at the Oct. 18 and 19 flea market and attracted just as interesting and varied an audience of onlookers.

Cowboys Won Toss, But Browns Took Them Over

By The Associated Press
"I'd like to play a big game every week," said Bill Nelsen. "There's more incentive."
As far as the Dallas Cowboys are concerned, the Cleveland Browns' quarterback and his aroused teammates had more than enough of that Sunday.

Nelsen's strong right arm delivered five touchdown passes and Cleveland's defense forced the Cowboys into a bevy of errors as the Browns pulled off a 42-10 stunner over the previously unbeaten terrors of the National Football League.

That left the Los Angeles Rams, 38-6 conquerors of Atlanta for their seventh straight, as the only unbeaten team in pro football.

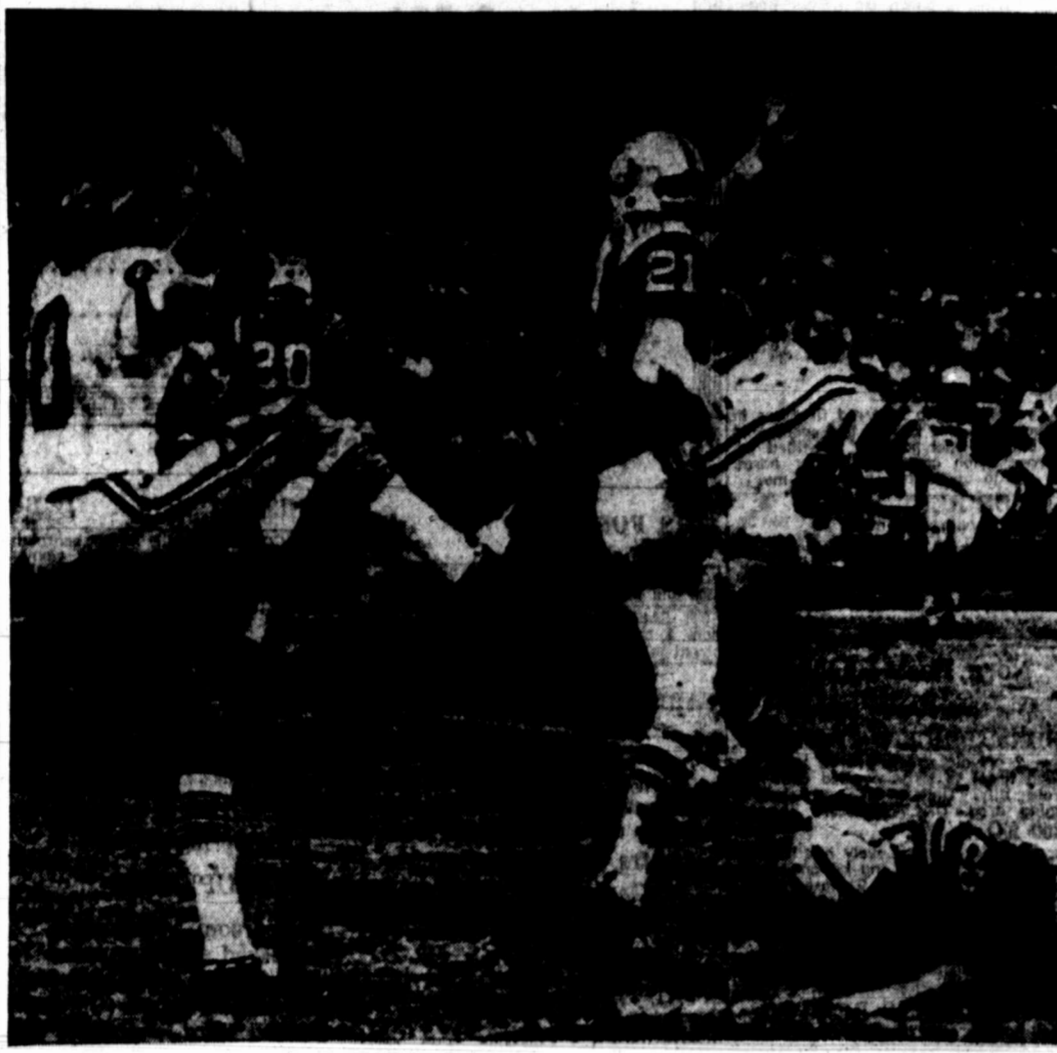

In other games, the New Orleans Saints went on their biggest scoring binge ever in beating St. Louis 51-42, Minnesota shacked winless Chicago 31-14 to remain atop the Central Division, Baltimore stopped Washington 41-17, Green Bay stormed from behind to beat Pittsburgh 38-24, Detroit whipped San Francisco 26-14 and Philadelphia checked New York 23-20.

ONLY WORK TOSS
Dallas won the opening toss—but that was about the only thing the NFL leader in 11 offensive departments and 11 defensive categories accomplished against the fired up Browns.

The first time the Browns had the ball, Nelsen fired a short pass to Paul Warfield on the 30, and the speedy split end circled around to the left and into the end zone.

From then on it was all downhill for the Cowboys, who had been rated a touchdown favorite but lost for the seventh time in eight games at Cleveland.

The unbeaten Rams rode three touchdown passes by Roman Gabriel—22 yards to Wendell Tucker, 21 yards to Jack Snow and 33 yards to Larry Smith—past Atlanta. And, the coach of the Coastal Division leaders, George Allen, confidently said later, "This is our best all-around team since I've been with the Rams."

GRIDIRON BALLET—Washington wide receiver Bob Long and Baltimore safety Rick Volk do a quick one-two step after the Colt safety broke up a pass intended for Long in the closing minutes of the first half Sunday. Although Redskins quarterback Sonny Jurgensen completed 28 of 38 pass attempts for 312 yards, the Colts contained the Redskins, 41-17.

Los Angeles' defense held the Falcons to only six yards net rushing, and Atlanta could muster only a pair of field goals by Bob Eiter.

Bill Kilmer fired a club record six touchdowns—he had the old mark of two—in leading New Orleans to its first victory after six losses.

Charlie Johnson also fired six TD strikes for the Cardinals, including four to Dave Williams. The game's 12 TD passes broke the old NFL mark of 11 set by New York (7) and Washington (4) in 1962.

A pair of TD tosses by Joe Kapp, plus a stingy defense, helped Minnesota to its sixth straight victory after an opening loss—and the seventh straight loss for the Bears, off to their most miserable start ever.

Baltimore's defending champions kept their slim title hopes alive by intercepting three Son-record for touchdown receptions in helping the Jets beat Miami. Maynard's 42-yard catch in the first period gave him a record 82 touchdowns and his 25-yard reception in the fourth quarter, which tied the game at 31-31, gave him a total of 10,061 yards.

Mike Tallaferra hit Ron Sellers with a pair of touchdown passes in Boston's stunning shutout of Houston as the Patriots snapped a nine-game losing streak dated back to last season.

Steve Tensi threw a two-yard touchdown pass to Al Denison and Floyd Little scored on a two-yard run, both in the third quarter, in Denver's upset of San Diego. It was the first shut-out ever for Denver.

Bengals Drop Raiders From Top Berth, With 31-17 Win

By The Associated Press
Cincinnati Coach Paul Brown, wise to the ways of football, has never been accused of being a dreamer. But he might become one after what Greg Cook and Chip Myers did to the Oakland Raiders.

"I couldn't even dream of something like this," Brown said Sunday while basking in the reality of the Bengals 31-17 upset that snapped the Raiders' regular-season unbeaten streak and dropped them out of first place in the American Football League's Western Division.

While Cincinnati, with Cook throwing two touchdown passes to Myers, was upsetting Oakland, the Kansas City Chiefs were beating Buffalo 29-7 to take over first place with 7-1 record compared to Oakland's 6-1-1 mark.

In other AFL action, the New York Jets, 6-2, increased their Eastern Division lead over Houston, 4-4, by edging Miami, 1-6-1, 34-31, while the Oilers, 4-4, were being upset by Boston, 1-7, 24-0, and Denver, 4-4, shocked San Diego, 4-4, 13-0.

Cincinnati, with Paul Robinson running two yards for a touchdown and Cook hitting Myers for two more, built up a 24-0 halftime lead en route to snapping a four-game losing streak and evening its record at 4-4. Daryle Lamonia threw two touchdown passes in the second half, but it was too late for the Raiders who lost the ball on four interceptions and a fumble.

Len Dawson, who missed five games with a knee injury, came off the bench to ignite Kansas City's sputtering offense, and the Chiefs made up a 7-3 halftime deficit. Jan Stenerud added four more field goals and Mike Garrett scored on runs of 34 and four yards. Dan Darragh passed for Buffalo's touchdown.

Don Maynard became the first man in pro football history to gain more than 10,000 yards catching passes and set an AFL record for touchdowns receptions in helping the Jets beat Miami. Maynard's 42-yard catch in the first period gave him a record 82 touchdowns and his 25-yard reception in the fourth quarter, which tied the game at 31-31, gave him a total of 10,061 yards.

Miller Farr, one of the AFL's top defensive backs, in one-on-one situations for his scoring grabs on plays covering 25 and 43 yards. Veteran Mike Tallaferra connected with Sellers both times.

Queens Take Second Place

The HCJC Queens took second place in the Odessa volleyball tournament during the weekend, and in both contests lost it was a case of too much Sul Ross.

The Queens bested West Texas State 15-14 and 15-9, in the opening round. Kathy McKnight was high with seven in the first, while Connie Trevino, Kathy McKnight and Paula McMillan tied with four in the second.

Sul Ross measured the Queens 15-2 and 15-4 in the second round, and Linda Halfmann kept the Queens in the first with five points.

The Queens then measured Odessa 15-8, 9-15 and 15-6 in the next round of the double elimination play. Barbara Futrell led the first with seven, Linda Halfmann the second with four, and Paula McMillan the third with 10. In the final round, the Queens faced Sul Ross again, and had to settle for second place in losing 15-8 and 15-3. Barbara Futrell was the top server in the first round with four.

Ex-World Champ Bulldogger Killed

HOUSTON (AP) — Funeral services for Mason Romans Sr., a two-time world champion bulldogger and charter member of the Rodeo Cowboys' Association, were to be held today in Houston.

He began his career at age 17 when he joined a wild west show. He hit the rodeo trail full time in the 1930s and 1940s, earning top money for bulldogging and bronc riding.

He was one of the founders of the old Cowboy's Turtles Association formed in the 1930s to improve rodeos. It later became the RCA.

CRAPPIE FISHING AT THOMAS REPORTED IN GOOD PROSPECT

There's a good crop of crappie at Lake J. B. Thomas, and they need to be harvested, says the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission.

Commission agents netted the lake in a survey of fish population and found that there had been a big increase in size and population of crappie. One fisherman brought in a string of 25 weighing 22 pounds. J. M. Ross, lake superintendent, said crappie were taking minnows readily at about 12 feet depth.

The survey also revealed good catfish prospects. One of the wall-eyed pike, put in as smaller-than-fingering size, was taken. It measured nine inches. Commission field men said they thought a prolonged spawn of shad had given crappie forage that resulted in the present good conditions.

Coach Picks Three For No. 2 Spot

By The Associated Press
There's little disagreement among the experts who's No. 1 in the college football world these days, but Coach Rick Forzano of Navy thinks he knows who's No. 2.

"Everyone knows that Ohio State is No. 1," Forzano said Saturday after Navy absorbed a 47-0 trouncing from Notre Dame, its second worst defeat ever. "But as far as I'm concerned, Notre Dame, Texas and Penn State are all No. 2. These three teams have speed, the big people, and the necessary depth."

Northwestern knows that Ohio State is No. 1 after taking a 35-6 drubbing from the top-ranked Buckeyes. But according to the latest Associated Press poll Texas alone is No. 2 and the Longhorns did nothing to lower their prestige, wallowing Southern Methodist 45-14.

In The AP poll, Notre Dame is 10th and Penn State, a 38-16 winner over Boston College, is fifth, so Forzano's personal rankings—Navy lost to Texas 56-17 and Penn State 45-22—might get some argument.

Especially from third-ranked Tennessee, which dined No. 11 Georgia 17-3, and fourth-rated Arkansas, which belted Texas A&M 35-13. But certainly not from sixth-ranked Southern California, which needed a last-minute touchdown to edge California 14-9, or from Florida, No. 7, and Louisiana State, No. 8.

Both saw their perfect slates go down the drain after six victories. Auburn, ranked 17th, picked off nine of senior soph John Reeves' passes and ripped the Gators 38-12 while Archie Manning guided Mississippi to a 28-23 upset of LSU.

Ninth-ranked UCLA crushed a racially split Washington team—one of its black players made the trip—57-14.

One member of the Second Ten—15th-ranked Wyoming—also fell from the unbeaten ranks. Art Malone set a Western Athletic Conference career rushing record of 2,408 yards as Arizona State whipped the Cowboys 30-14.

Elsewhere, Missouri, No. 14, outlasted 12th-ranked Kansas State 41-38; No. 13 Purdue beat Illinois 49-22; 16th-ranked Stanford eased past Oregon State 33-0; Nebraska turned back No. 18 Colorado 20-7; Air Force, No. 19, used Ernie Jennings' fourth-quarter 96-yard kickoff return to top Army 13-6, and Michigan, No. 20, routed Wisconsin 35-7.

KEY PENALTY HELPED WIN Santa Claus Often Needed, Arkansas Mentor Admits

By The Associated Press
Texas and Arkansas shouldn't need any help from Santa Claus to win their Southwest Conference football games this week.

But Arkansas head coach Frank Broyles thinks jolly old Saint Nick must have had a hand in the Hogs' 35-13 victory over Texas A&M Saturday.

"You've got to have Santa Claus with you sometimes," Broyles said concerning a key penalty against A&M that kept Arkansas' initial scoring drive going. "That penalty was a key play."
Texas, the No. 2 ranked team in the nation, also got into a give-away act with a bevy of first half errors to set up scoring opportunities for SMU. But the Longhorns turned Scrooge in the second half for a 45-14 victory.

Playoff In Second Day

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — "I'm just backed off at myself for letting it get into a playoff," Big Jack Nicklaus said today, before continuing a darkness-delayed sudden-death playoff for the top prize in the $140,000 Kaiser International Open Golf Tournament.

Nicklaus, who blew a two-stroke lead in the final round, Masters champion George Archer and placid Billy Casper were locked in a playoff for the title after one extra hole of the precedent-setting playoff.

The situation, a second day of a sudden-death playoff, has not existed before.

It was forced when darkness descended on the Silverado Country Club after three plus Texas veteran Don January had completed only one playoff hole, the par five 16th, January, who had tied the other with a 72 hole total of 273, was short of the green in three, chipped on and made the putt. The other three ran in long birdie putts. The distances of the putts were in question because, actually, it was too dark to tell.

Casper putted first and made what he called a 20 footer. Nicklaus putted next. He said his was from 22 feet. Archer agreed — "I thought Jack was away. But it was too dark to tell" — after he sank his 14 footer.

The playoff, minus January, resumes on the 824-yard, par four 17th, then goes to the 18th, a 530-yard par five. They'll play those three holes until a winner is decided.

Big Jack had a two-stroke lead starting the warm, sunny day and stretched it to three strokes with a beautiful 35-foot birdie putt on the 10th. But he bogeyed the 11th and 13th, each from a trap, and missed potential birdie putts on the 16th and 18th that would have won it. He had a final round 71.

Archer, Casper and Nicklaus all are shooting for their third title of the year. The winner also will move past the $100,000 mark in earnings for the season.

Despite Upset, Steers Hold Statistical Margin

The Big Spring Steers, now heading down the home stretch, saw some of their statistical margin shrink as a result of the upset by the Midland Bulldogs, nevertheless they held a substantial margin in total offense.

Most of the bulge, about 400 yards, was in rushing. The Steers narrowed the gap to a 27-yard deficit in passing, but they trailed 38-45 in percentage of completions. The punting yardage was a respectable 38.8

average, or three yards better than opponents.

Forsan QB Club Won't Have Meet

The Forsan Quarterback Club will not have its meeting tonight as usual. There was a malfunctioning of the camera during the Trent game, hence no pictures are available, said Don Stevens, coach.

The Forsan Buffaloes come down to the nitty-gritty of the race this Friday at 7:30 p.m. when they meet the Bronte team in Forsan's stadium. Both teams have 6-1 records, and both are 2-0 in district play. The Buffs have their work cut out in containing Keith McCutcheon, the fancy Bronte quarterback, and Mickey Arrott, who is quick, fast, and powerful. He runs the sweeps on quick pitches and the sudden traps. In addition, he is a dangerous receiver.

Braniff Crash Trial Begins

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — A federal court jury was to begin hearing witnesses today before U. S. Dist. Judge Sarah T. Hughes to determine liability in the crash of a Braniff International Airways jet.

The Houston-to-Dallas flight crashed May 3, 1968, near the small town of Dawson, about 60 miles south of Dallas and some 15 miles from Corsicana.

A total of 85 persons, all aboard, died when the plane hit the ground burning and ended its flight in a muddy, abandoned farm's cow lot.

The crash, called the worst in Texas aviation history, occurred as thunderstorms swept the Central Texas area.

Six damage suits, asking more than $3.8 million and filed by 21 plaintiffs, will be heard simultaneously by Judge Hughes.

No damages will be awarded. Such awards, if any, must await individual litigation after liability is established.

REPORT FROM THE COMMISSION — Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, chairman of the National Commission on Violence, discusses new commission reports during a Washington news conference. One report, released over the weekend, said "an escalating risk of assassination" exists in America today for other public figures as well as presidents.

Assassin's Act Still Big Threat In America

WASHINGTON (AP) — "An escalating risk of assassination" exists in America today for other public figures and lower elected leaders as well as president, the National Commission on Violence says.

"In comparison to the other nations of the world, the level of assassination in the United States is high," the commission said in one of two weekend reports, and public figures in and out of office should be afforded greater government protection.

DISCONTENT — The commission, in the second report, warned that a "mosaic of discontent" pervades the nation's system of criminal justice, making control of violent crime a campaign with "no real hope for success" unless radically changed and adequately funded.

Dr. Milton Eisenhower heads the commission, which was named by former President Lyndon B. Johnson after the June 1968 assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Without drawing a parallel, the commission pointed in both reports to increasing discontent with, and agitation against what a significant proportion of the population feels are unresponsive institutions in society and government.

Among the causes of discontent are "police lawlessness, degrading prison conditions and other deficiencies" in criminal justice as well as the seeming inability of the poor to fight back against exploitation, the commission said.

MORE INTENSE — Making a distinction between nonconspiratorial assassinations — such as the murders of President John F. Kennedy and his brother Robert F. Kennedy by lone malcontents — and "political" assassinations in which an organized group uses murder to accomplish political ends, the commission said:

"Political violence in the United States today is probably more intense than it has been since the turn of the century. If civil strife continues to become more violent, political assassinations may well occur."

In its report on law and order, the commission said government — local and state and federal — must recognize needs of their citizens and act upon them if they are to effectively enforce their laws.

Noting that the nation spends more for agricultural subsidies than on elements of its system of criminal justice — police, courts and the prisons — the commission recommended increasing spending by $5 billion a year.

LEGAL AID — Efforts by one government element in the fight against crime often undermine those of another, it said, recommending establishment of a National Criminal Justice Center to coordinate efforts.

The commission also called for increased legal aid for the poor such as that provided by the Office of Economic Opportunity, contending alienation and lawlessness are caused in part by landlords who charge exorbitant rents, racial blockbusting, unscrupulous merchants — and a system that lets them get away with it.

"Some extremists prey upon this frustration and alienation by proposing simplistic solutions and pointing at scapegoats — usually Negroes," it said.

"The festering and sometimes violent antagonisms between lower-middle-class whites and poor blacks have their ironic side, for the two groups share many needs: Better jobs, better schools, better police protection, better recreation facilities, better public facilities."

Before such antagonisms can manifest themselves in a rash of political assassinations the government should move to protect its leaders and leaders in civil rights and other movements, the commission said.

It recommended extending Secret Service protection to all federal officials or candidates for federal office whose lives may be imperiled "as a result of threat, vilification, deep controversy, or other hazardous circumstances."

FREE TIME — Presidents and presidential candidates should cut down public appearances and Congress should require networks to give free television time to all candidates, the commission said.

Among the other recommendations of the commission for reducing the threat of assassination: — Restrictive licensing of handguns. — Development and use of electronic devices to detect concealed weapons and ammunition. — Less attention by the press to the personal lives of the president and his family and "correspondingly greater attention to the working nature and limitations of the presidency."

Panel Paints Picture Of Potential Assassin

WASHINGTON (AP) — Actual or would-be presidential assassins generally are males who lead a lonely, introspective life, come from broken homes and have failed in reaching meaningful relations with women, according to the National Commission on Violence.

Before the slaying of Robert F. Kennedy last year, the commission said, "it might have been hypothesized in 1968 that the next assassin to strike at a president — or presidential candidate, as it turned out — would have most of the following attributes:

— "From a broken home, with the father absent or unresponsive to the child.

— "Withdrawn, a loner, no girlfriends, either unmarried or a failure at marriage.

— "Unable to work steadily in the last year or so before the assassination.

— "White, male, foreign-born or with parents foreign-born, short, slight build.

— "Zealot for a political, religious, or other cause, but not a member of an organized movement.

— "Assassinates in the name of a specific issue which is related to the principles or philosophy of his cause.

— "Chooses a handgun as his weapon.

— "Selects a moment when the president is appearing amid crowds."

Hijack-Fare Comparison

NEW YORK (AP) — Marine Lance Cpl. Raphael Minichiello, the Los Angeles to Rome jet plane hijacker, caused an incalculable amount of expense in police time and airline costs. He could have made the flight for $435.60 riding economy class.

The Los Angeles to New York fare, including tax, was given Saturday by Trans World Airlines as $149.10. The New York to Rome fare is $286.50.

And, his time could have been shaved somewhat because a regular flight would not have to put down in Denver to allow 39 other passengers and three stewardesses to get off, and to get more fuel. Nor would he had to stop at Bangor, Maine, for refueling.

LSD Advocate To Talk At SMU?

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Dr. Willis Tate, president of Southern Methodist University, meets with advisers today to determine whether Dr. Timothy Leary will lecture on the SMU campus.

Students, faculty members, administrators, alumni and SMU trustees were among the advisory group called together by the university president.

Leary is scheduled to speak Nov. 19 on invitation of the executive board of University Men.

The former Harvard University instructor is an advocate of experimentation in the use of the hallucinogen, LSD.

Police Meet To Organize New Union

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Representatives meeting here to organize a new national union of police have adopted a no-strike clause as part of a proposed constitution.

A goal of the group would be national legislation requiring mandatory arbitration between governmental agencies and police on issues of pay and working conditions.

"This is 1969, not 1919," said John T. Cassese of New York City, temporary chairman. "Only through organization at the national level can the policeman improve his lot."

Approved Sunday by representatives of police departments in 14 U.S. cities, the provision to prohibit strikes was called for by the AFL-CIO with which the proposed union would be affiliated.

The new organization would be known as the International Brotherhood of Police Officers.

If the proposed constitution is approved by the executive committee of the AFL-CIO, a convention will be scheduled to formally organize the union.

The adopted draft constitution opens membership to any full-time officer empowered to make arrests by warrant.

The proposed constitution includes another clause asked by the AFL-CIO. It would bar the new union from recruiting members from local police groups now represented by other AFL-CIO unions, such as the State, County and Municipal Employees Union.

He said affiliation with the AFL-CIO could be a big help during negotiations with local governmental subdivisions.

The proposed new union will seek aid from other labor organizations, but "policemen in uniform will continue to enforce the law," Cassese said.

"If anybody, no matter who he is, breaks the law on a union picket line, he will be arrested," he said.

Bill Bloom, business representative for the Omaha Police Union and a member of the Nebraska Legislature, said: "If we pledge not to strike, which we have, Congress must in all fairness provide us with another method to adjudicate grievances."

Besides Omaha and New York City, officers at the meeting were from Portland, Ore.; San Jose, Calif.; St. Paul, Minn.; New Britain and Bridgeport, Conn.; Salt Lake City; Auburn, N.Y.; Quincy, Mass.; Shreveport, La.; Des Moines, Iowa; San Francisco and Chicago.

Horoscope

TOMORROW — CARROLL RIGHTER

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You can make some changes in the way you handle duties this, you can keep the good will and the active cooperation of allies. They may feel you have been too set in your ways. What's needed is enough flexibility to meet constantly changing conditions. Open your mind to more study.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Ideal day to get an important affair settled efficiently. Maintain optimism. Co-workers could be using better methods than you. Stimulate them. Avoid gossiping and wasting time.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Once your work is done, get out to the kind of pleasures you really enjoy, but add some nerve to them. You have some talent you have done little with lately. Put it to work now with a vengeance.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get busy at making your home prophylactic clean. Add pieces that are needed. One of home wants to make radical changes. Listen only to those within reason. Come to a happy meeting of minds.

MON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Fine day for talking over certain problems with allies. It's possible you can make improvements in your operations. Get that shopping done, but take care you do not spend too much. Be careful with your wallet, too.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) It is most important you do something to have a bigger income. Also, improve your property. Find out where you can cut expenses.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Soften your attitude with associates. Be more patient with their lack of the abilities you may possess. Be calm when an emergency may arise. Do not fret and fume over something you can do little about.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get personal affairs in order now, putting outside matters aside for the time being. Make out a check to charity or handle a matter of service matter. Be as generous as the purse allows.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Your friends are still in a position to help you gain your aims, even though they may be in a mood to criticize right now. Accept certain social invitations. Show some savoir faire.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Find the proper activities so you make the right impression on blizzards. Some new course can stamp you as an A-1 citizen. Make the evening a happy one. Associate with congenial friends.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study in some new avenue of expression is good for you now, so be alert for the right subject. Make sure you get the information you want from a new contact. Do some fantasizing, if necessary.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be careful you do not go off on some new tangent and thus forget to keep promises you have made. Find the right method for pleasing an ally. Being cheerful is the keynote today and tonight.

Defense Research Bill In Trouble

WASHINGTON (AP) — Efforts to smooth out differences in Senate and House versions of the $20 billion military spending bill are snagged on a Senate- inserted provision to limit independent defense research.

Because of the snag, involving conflicting sets of figures supplied Congress by the Pentagon, the Senate-House conference committee isn't expected to have a compromise ready for another 10 days.

The bill was passed in slightly different versions by each house and includes, among other things, authorization for President Nixon's Safeguard antiballistic missile system.

Sen. John C. Stennis, chairman of the Senate Armed Forces Committee which originally drew up the bill, said the Pentagon has revised its estimates of how much should be spent for military research by defense contractors.

First the Defense Department said it would need $585 million for independent research, then last week upped the figure to $720 million, the Mississippi Democrat said.

The Senate had approved an amendment by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., to limit independent research spending to $468 million, a 20 per cent cut in the original figure.

Stennis said both defense contractors and the Pentagon now are actively lobbying for removal of the Proxmire amendment by the conference committee.

The Senate conferees, however, are standing firm on the limitation, a Senate source said. This has caused a flurry among defense contractors, he added.

Critics of independent research say it provides defense contractors with large amounts

Canvass Returns Of Recall Vote

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP) — The Beaumont City Council Tuesday morning will canvass returns of Saturday's recall election in which Councilman Dale C. Hager was ousted from office.

The vote was 10,390, for ousting Hager to 7,021 for keeping the conservative Republican in office.

Hager contended during the recall campaign that he was a victim of "The Establishment" and said local newspapers and a bank were behind the movement to oust him.

Leaders of the recall movement, however, said Hager "dominated" the city council, purged top city employees and attempted to deny residents a chance to decide the recall issue.

Hager was refused a hearing by the Texas Supreme Court in an effort to halt the recall action.

Chestnut Might Be The Largest

PARIS, Tex. (AP) — Texas Forest Service employees have measured an American chestnut tree in southern Red River County and say it is probably the largest of its kind in Texas, and maybe a national champion.

The tree, is 70 feet tall with an average crown spread of 71 feet and a trunk measuring 147 inches.

Foresters say the tree scores 234 3/4 points under the American Forestry Association's formula for determining champion trees.
