Plot Aimed At Hoover Discovered By Buenos Aires Police

OFFICIALS FIND EXISTENCE OF CONSPIRACY

Details of Plot Against President-Elect Are Made Public

HOOVER AT SANTIAGO

Good Will Party Starts For Argentine City By Rail Today

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 11. (AP)—The police tonight made known that they had discovered existence of a plot against President-elect Herbert Hoover. They withheld details to avoid unnecessary alarm. It was stated that Chief of Police Granero was conferring with members of the government.

Official confirmation of the discovery of the plot and of its frustration by the police was made public tonight by President Irigoyen.

His statement said, "the president of the republic, being desirous of making agreeable the visit of the president-elect of the United States of America and of offering the greatest possible guarantee of safety to the personnel of the illustrious visitor, commanded the police to itensify their observation of dangerous anarchist elements.

Ammunition Found

"This order was carried out by the division of investigation which, after discreet inquiries and investigations, this morning searched a house in which were found four hand grenades, two cylindrical bombs, one square bomb, dynamite, revolvers, automatic pistols, quantities of ammunition and 100 ten-peso notes—all of which have been placed at the disposition of judicial authorities."

The police said a room in the raided house contained a detailed map of the railway system which apparently was used by the plotters in planning their attack.

The United States embassy early this evening had not been informed of the reported plot against Mr. Hoover but it is known that for several days the police have been active in rounding up persons believed to have been active in previous agitations against the United States, notably bombings and demonstrations growing out of the Sacco-Vanzetti executions and Nicaraguan intervention.

Suspects Confined

It is generally known that the police have been active for a week in picking up suspects who will be confined until after the departure of Mr. Hoover. The authorities are determined to prevent any public demonstration against the United States.

Since the bombing of the National City bank on Christmas Eve, 1927, when two persons were killed and 20 injured, the police have not relaxed their vigilance in guarding the United States embassy and consulate, the American club and buildings housing prominent Amer-

Spread of Influenza Epidemic Moves Authorities to Take Drastic Steps

CHICAGO, Dec. 11. (UP)—Chicago and the Middle West, situated at the danger point, rose today to block the spread of influenza which threatens the nation, with another epidemic such as took heavy tolls of life in 1918 and 1920.

The disease, which reached epidemic proportions along the Pacific coast and in certain other sections of the West, has increased at an alarming rate the past few days in Chicago and in various cities of surrounding states.

At the same time the United States public health service in Washington was announcing a general increase in the number of influenza cases, Dr. Arnold H. Kegel, health commissioner of Chicago, called upon all doctors and health authorities in the city to aid in combatting the disease here.

Some of the doctors who had been requested to attend an "influenza conference" in Doctor Kegel's office today were unable to be present because they could not spare the time away from patients suffering with the disease.

In the past three days, 136 new cases were reported here, five of which were fatal. Doctor Kegel, while not recognizing that an epidemic exists in the city at the present time, announced a county-wide survey would be made and suggested means of keeping influenza in check.

Hospital heads were asked to refuse permission of casual visitors at their institutions as a means of safeguarding persons with low vitality from contracting the disease.

In surrounding states many schools were closed and business operations reduced owing to the large number of cases. Similar steps had been taken in western states several days ago when the disease assumed alarming proportions.

The national health service at Washington said its reports indicated the influenza spread was now centered in the Middle West and warned that in its eastward movement it may sweep the nation.

Kansas showed the largest increase in the number of cases officially reported to Washington for

City Council Delays Decision On Three Way Entrance to New Bridge

Ordinance Giving County Authority to Designate Highway Over Scott Avenue Approved at Meeting

Scott avenue, from Second street north to the intersection of the Iowa Park road, was formally approved for use as a county highway, and any obstacle by the city of Wichita Falls to the erection of the Scott avenue bridge was removed by ordinance No. 1009, which was unanimously passed by the city council at an adjourned meeting in the council rooms at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

The ordinance, which agreed to maintain the street as dedicated, was passed on an emergency reading so that it became effective immediately.

County Plan Approved

Authority was granted to Wichita county to use Scott avenue as a county highway, and the county also authorized to build at its own expense a bridge across the Wichita river on Scott.

The meeting was attended by representatives of the chamber of commerce and property owners of Lamar, Indiana and Scott avenues, all of whom said that the ordinance as drawn was satisfactory to them and removed the objectionable features of a similar ordinance which had been approved by the council at the regular Monday night meeting.

The original ordinance granted the same permission in regard to the building of the bridge to the county, but differed in its designation of Scott avenue as a county highway. The bill as finally passed designated only that part of Scott from Second street north, thereby leaving the way open for future settlement as to what street the state highway may later be routed south through the city.

It was explained at the meeting that plans to bring this highway down Lamar have been considered as have plans to use the other streets. The designation of Scott avenue was said to have lent the appearance of official approval of the city to routing a highway through the city on Scott avenue

ADAMS' CASE TO JURY TODAY

State Will Ask Death For Central Texas Farmer

DALLAS, Dec. 11. (AP)—All testimony in the trial of V. Ray Adams, 35, Bartlett farmer, charged with the slaying of Orville L. Mathews, Dallas banker, was completed today and a tired jury which for a week has listened to a parade of state and defense witnesses was given an afternoon of leisure while District Judge C. A. Pippen prepared his charge.

The law governing the case will be read tomorrow, opposing counsel will make their arguments, and the fate of the Central Texas farmer then will rest solely with the men who have heard details of the shooting related to them by pretty stenographers, relatives of both the accused man and the slain banker, business associates of Mathews and a group of sheriffs and other public officials from the central part of the state, and Adams' attorneys probably will require the entire day to make their appeals.

From its questioning of prospective witnesses, the state indicated it would ask the death penalty for Adams. The defense, claiming that the farmer shot only when he had been threatened and that he believed his life was in danger, will ask for an acquittal.

Previous to the beginning of the trial, Adams' attorneys presented a petition asking for a suspended sentence if their client is found guilty and given a sentence of five years or less.

Four defense witnesses and one person who testified for the state enabled both sides to complete their case shortly before noon today. W. T. Ramsey, Belton, who figured in an election wager made between himself and Adams and Ben D. Richards, Dallas, was the principal witness of the day. Ramsey said a telegram and affidavit purporting to bear his name, which authorized Mathews as stakeholder to turn over $2,000 involved in the bet to Clyde R. Vest of Waco, were spurious.

Latest Rothstein Clue Apparently Is a Dud

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—The latest "clue" in the Arnold Rothstein murder mystery suffered a severe jolt today when Leo Maloney, held in Atlantic City for "what he knew" in connection with the slaying denied knowing either the dead man or George McManus, who is charged with his death.

Maloney's statement leaves the police in a quandry.

COURT ORDERS PRYOR ARREST

Memphis Physician to Decide on Injuries

Ed Pryor will be brought into the 89th district court for trial Wednesday morning if a Memphis physician will pronounce him able to make the trip, according to late information out of the sheriff's office here.

Pryor, docketed here on three charges, is reported to be in a Memphis hospital following an automobile accident Sunday afternoon. After his third failure to appear, Judge E. G. Thornton Tuesday afternoon ordered his $1,500 bond forfeited, and issued an alias capias for his arrest, adding instructions that the sheriff's department follow the advice of a reputable physician in executing the writ.

Sheriff W. G. Bradley Tuesday evening instructed the sheriff in Hall county to determine Pryor's condition and produce him in court if a physician will authorize the journey.

Pryor's case will be called again at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning. Judge Thornton indicated that if the defendant's accidental inability to appear is proven, he will set aside the bond forfeiture. His two orders followed a vigorous argument from Fred Weeks, special prosecutor, and Shields Hiser, counsel for the defence.

Pryor is charged with burglary and with aiding a prisoner to escape. The burglary charges grew out of the robbery of the Grand theater in Electra last summer.

Slain Woman Found In Trunk at Shop

MEMPHIS, Dec. 11 (AP)—Discovery of bloodstained towels in the rear of a barber shop in Buntyn, a suburb, today led to the finding of the body of Mrs. Charles S. Taylor, 47, wife of the proprietor of the shop, stuffed in a trunk.

Mrs. Taylor had been reported missing since the night of December 3. Her skull had been crushed and the body stripped of clothing.

Neighbors who saw the towels in the yard forced an entrance to the building and made the gruesome find. Women's clothing was scattered about the room.

Police were endeavoring this afternoon to locate the woman's husband.

QUEENSTOWN, Ireland, Dec. 11. (INS)—The 21,179-ton White Star liner Celtic, former "queen of the seas," and a survivor of one torpedoing and several minor mishaps, may never sail the seas again, it was feared today. This morning she was still fast ground on a ledge of rocks at the entrance of the harbor here. Water poured into her hold through a gaping hole at the side of her engine room. At ebb tide during the night, she had lain high and dry on the rocks, upright and steady, but helpless.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11. (INS)—Thrown into a sewer a baby girl, only four hours old, was saved today after it had lain for more than an hour on a cake of ice at the bottom of the pit. Its cries attracted the attention of Joseph Berkowitz, a milk driver, who was on the street above. Ice was so thick on the sewer top that acetylene torches had to be used to make an opening. Detectives are hunting the parents.

WAR GESTURES MAY INVOLVE OTHER POWERS

Dire Possibilities Seen In South American Row Rumblings

ARMY IS MOBILIZED

Bolivia Concentrates Her Troops as Old Dispute Flares Up Anew

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11. (US)—War between Bolivia and Paraguay was viewed as a grave possibility here tonight. Officials admitted there was no established machinery to avert it and that it might rapidly involve other powers in South America.

Nor was there a disposition to conceal the disturbing fact that a situation might easily arise embarrassing to the United States. In plain words, the affair is loaded with dynamite.

League Helpless

Except that league of nations members in South America may take some joint action without infringing on the Monroe Doctrine, officials do not see how the league can do more than make a gesture in the direction of peace. Today's cable saying that the League of Nations council had reminded the two republics that they were violating the spirit of their obligation to the league was regarded as just such a gesture. It was made plain that the United States would quickly resent any threatened show of force on this hemisphere by European members of the league.

While both Bolivia and Paraguay are members of the League of Nations that body is impotent in South American affairs. This is under article 21 of the league covenant, which provides that the league may not interfere where there is a regional policy such as the Monroe Doctrine.

BOLIVIAN ARMY IS MOBILIZED

(By The Associated Press)

Press dispatches from widely separated parts of the globe indicate a world startled by the threat of war over the boundary dispute between Bolivia and Paraguay.

Even before receipt of substantial confirmation that mobilization already is under way in Bolivia, efforts toward mediation had been made by several world agencies.

League Offers Aid

The council of the league at Lugano, the Pan-American conference at Washington and at least one neutral South American country offered their services and expressed the hope that an amicable settlement would be reached.

First news of Bolivia's mobilization came from Lima, Peru, some versions of the reports stating that only a part of her army had been concentrated. The Bolivian charge d' Affaires in Washington said that "no reserves had been called."

Delayed dispatches from La Paz, the Bolivian capital, announced that mass meetings continued in many sections in support of the government's attitude and that volunteers were flooding the administration with offers of service. In Trinidad a full regiment of 1,000 men was organized and many physicians offered hospital facilities and services.

Paraguay Active

Reports of martial activities also came from Asuncion, the capital of Paraguay, where the newspaper El Liberal said many prominent persons were volunteering for military service, among them two notable leaders of the opposition, General Rojas and Commander Atilio Pena.

Extreme Calm Marks Wale's Being When He Reaches Royal Domicile

Eye Witness Story of Heir's Arrival at Buckingham Secured By London Correspondent

By ROBERT WELLES RITCHIE
Record News Special Cable

LONDON, Dec. 11.—Universal Service said last Sunday that the biggest news story in the world on Wednesday would be the complete picture of what happened in the sick chamber at Buckingham palace when the Prince of Wales grasped his father's hand.

Universal Service now presents that story, drawn directly from an eye witness source.

Keen Sense of Relief

It was with the keenest sense of relief that the entire royal family this evening welcomed the Prince of Wales home. In the highest court circles there is a scarcely veiled belief that his royal highness has returned not only to the sick room but to the throne, and it is regretfully believed among those in the royal confidence that the end is now a matter of hours alone.

For a few hours today his majesty was unconscious, that is from noon until 3 o'clock, when to the relief of his physicians, he returned to consciousness sufficiently to make anxious inquiry concerning the hour of the prince's arrival.

The queen herself comforted him with assurances that the prince would reach London this evening and be at Buckingham palace by 10:30. Actually, the prince arrived five minutes before her promised time, accompanied by the Duke of York, traveling from Victoria station to Buckingham palace in the Duke of York's car.

The meeting between the prince and the duke was affecting in its calm resignation, far beyond a for-

King Hangs to Thread Of Life But Rests In Deep Coma

PARIS REPORTS DEATH

But Correspondent Learns Monarch Was Alive As Son Arrived

By ROBERT WELLES RITCHIE
Record News Special Cable

LONDON, Dec. 11 (US)—King George still lives, though from before noon until shortly after 3 o'clock, Universal Service is authoritatively informed, he was in deep coma and his doctors believed the end was imminent.

Tonight's bulletin said:

"The king had a quiet day. His pulse is steady."

It is believed that the bulletin was purely perfunctory, as it told nothing of the king's true condition.

It is reported here tonight that the Paris newspapers are printing an announcement of the king's death, but it may be said on unimpeachable authority that he was alive but unable to greet the Prince of Wales when he entered the sick room at 10:25.

But it may also be said that it is now only a matter of a slow relapse into the final unconsciousness, for even the temporary heart's return, is not believed able to achieve what the combined skill of five physicians has not effected.

Queen at Bedside

Queen Mary has been in constant attendance at the bedside all day, and the Duke and Duchess of York also remained there. It is understood that the Archbishop of Canterbury, who is one of the newly created commission, and whose presence at the time of a royal death is always expected, has been and is now at Buckingham palace.

The Prince of Wales ended his 4,000-mile dash from East Africa when he arrived at Victoria station at 10:20 tonight.

As soon as the fast train which bore the prince at record time from the channel port to London, pulled into the station, the prince stepped out. He looked worn, drawn and white. Without any hesitation to speak to any one or recognize any of those waiting for him, the prince dashed into a waiting car which drove off at full speed.

10,000 at Gates

A crowd of 10,000 massed outside the palace gates and watched the prince and the Duke of York as they drove through to the palace. The crowd was silent and made no demonstration.

The prince went directly to the king's room. His mother the queen was there, and three of the king's physicians, Lord Dawson of Penn, Sir Stanley Hewett and Sir E. Farquhar Buzzard, were also present.

The prince of Wales traveled over 6,000 miles in nine days—faster than anybody ever travelled from East Africa to London before, with or without an airplane.

Record Time Made

He sped across half of Europe faster than a train had ever traveled the distance before, beating the usual time of the fastest Brindisi-London express by 16 hours, travelling at an average of 50 miles an hour, even rising to

Many Gifts in Santa's Castle Marked For Delivery in Wichita

By CAPT. F. E. KLEINSCHMIDT
Special Correspondent to The Record News and Daily Times, and Head of Expedition to Home of Santa Claus.

SANTA'S CASTLE AT THE North Pole, Dec. 11. (By Wireless)—After shaking hands with Santa we were escorted up the Castle steps past a lane of gnomes who stood at attention like soldiers. The great portal of bronze and gold inlaid doors swung open by invisible hands and we looked down a corridor miles in length with a ceiling as high as the greatest cathedral and supported by wonderfully carved columns.

The walls were glistening like snow and inlaid with pictures in mosaics and gold. There were scenes of the birth of Christ and the shepherds and the Wise Men. Wherever we gazed were Christmas symbols and Christmas stories.

Santa led us to one part of his castle, his own rooms, where he lives, reads and eats and sleeps.

Fairies Set Table

Mrs. K. was eager to see Santa's living quarters. She wanted to look at the kitchen, the dining room, the bedroom and where he rested when off duty. Santa perceived her case and wish and promised her that she would be taken from cellar to the roof and nothing would be spared in making the children acquainted with his home life. "I am going to show you people everything that might interest the boys

THE RECORD NEWS

Official Report to Be Made Monday On Findings of Highway Committee

AUSTIN, Texas, Dec. 11. (AP)—Five sub-committeemen from Governor Moody's advisory highway council of 31 senatorial district members will officially report to him next Monday the program of highway legislation adopted by the council yesterday and last night, including recommendations for a state bond issue to finance road building and a 20 per cent reduction of automobile registration fees.

Views dissenting from the majority on the bond issue plan probably will be presented to the governor by Representative Leonard Tillotson of Sealy and others in a statement giving their reasons for voting against the plan, Tillotson indicated today.

The report committee was named today by Chairman D. M. Martin, San Antonio, chairman of the whole committee, after a session that lasted until nearly Monday midnight.

The finance plan, adopted by 17 to 10 vote, was the main issue before the meeting. It provides for a constitutional amendment authorizing a pledge of the state credit for road construction and maintenance, with bonds not to exceed $225,000,000 at any one time. To the total extent of $75,000,000 the state could repay counties and road districts for road work which they have contributed to the state system.

BIBLE SCHOOL STAFF SPLITS

Book Causes Row Between Divinity Teachers

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Dec. 11. (INS)—A split between executive and staff members of the Bible institute of Los Angeles, over evangelical doctrines, took on a national appearance here today as the two main factions remained reticent.

Dissension said to have been caused by the publication of a book written by the Rev. John Murdoch MacInnis, for the past three years dean of the internationally famous Divinity Training school, and for more than 30 years pastor of large Eastern churches, lent a widespread touch to the affair.

Dean MacInnis and 14 members of the staff and board of directors have resigned as a result. Their resignations followed criticism, said to have been prompted by interpretations of various theological matters included in the book. Among these men are some of the best known Bible teachers in the world.

During Dean MacInnis' administration the Los Angeles presbytery has given recognition to the school for the first time. Year by year this is said to have been growing into national scope. However, this recognition along with the financial and administrative policy of the institute is now said to hang in the balance.

Open charges have been made by Dr. MacInnis that the dissension and split in the institute lies within the theological interpretations of his book, "Peter, the Fisherman Philosopher." This has been attacked by what he terms "militant fundamentalists."

Single Pecan Tree Yields 600 Pounds

Special to The Record News.

COLEMAN, Texas, Dec. 11.—One pecan tree yielded more than 600 pounds of pecans during the past season, according to A. Creswell, southern Coleman county farmer. The tree is located on the banks of the Colorado river, and is thought to be one of the heaviest yielders in the Texas pecan belt.

Nuts from the one tree have netted Mr. Creswell $140 this year, although the tree has never been budded or grafted. The nuts are of the papershell variety, bringing from 30 cents to 20 cents per pound.

In 1924 this same tree produced pecans that were sold for $100.25 and in 1926 a yield that sold for $74. The tree did not yield in 1925 and 1927, due to late freezes.

Mr. Creswell, who owns land in both Coleman and McCulloch counties on the Colorado river, said that he valued the river bottom waste lands greater than his farms, because of the large pecan yield. This year more than 12,000 pounds of pecans were gathered by Mr. Creswell on his place.

Irate Mother Uses Axe to Smash Bar Where Daughter Drank

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 11. (UP)—The role of Carrie Nation, militant prohibitionist, proved too much for Mrs. Maude Wilson, who is suffering today from a nervous breakdown after she demolished with a hand ax a saloon that threatened the happiness of her home.

Although advised to go to a hospital, Mrs. Wilson refused to do so and remains in her bed at home. The breakdown is the result of the excitement in which Mrs. Wilson occupied the spotlight after smashing the bar yesterday.

Mrs. Wilson, in true Carrie Nation style, invaded the saloon after liquor had been sold to her 18-year-old daughter, Iris, and her husband, William H. Wilson.

While her mother is in bed recovering from the results of the raid made in her behalf, Iris is operating the Wilson Tea shop. LONG VICTOR IN HOUSE FIGHTS

Administration Forces Carry Bills in Legislature

BATON ROUGE, La., Dec. 11. (AP)—The administration was victor four times and loser once in fights before the house of representatives this morning, and all bills save two were advanced to third reading.

Administration forces' attempt to block a concurrent resolution calling upon the state board of liquidation to borrow $15,000 for the use of the Louisiana Public Service commission failed and the resolution was adopted.

But the administration leaders prevented insertion of an amendment in the gasoline tax providing for the state board of liquidation to approve expenditures in payment of old accounts, and tabled an amendment to legalize the governor's advisory committee.

Two attempts to amend the loan shark bill, one made by Representative J. Y. Sanders Jr., of East Baton Rouge, and the other by Representative George J. Ginsberg of Rapides, were opposed by administration forces and were tabled by votes of 51 to 31 and 50 to 31 respectively.

(UP)—Farmer-owned cotton cooperative associations offer a vehicle by which farmers may effectively organize the marketing operations of their business on the basis of equality with industry, C. O. Moser, Dallas, Texas, said in an address which was read at the tenth annual meeting of the American Farm Bureau federation here today.

Moser, president and general manager of the American Cotton Growers Exchange, is ill in Dallas and was unable to deliver his prepared address. It was read before the meeting.

Moser described how the southern cotton farmers, by the application of scientific management, have succeeded in gaining for their cooperative marketing organizations the highest commercial ratings, surpassing in many instances ratings of older concerns privately managed.

"The success or failure of cooperative marketing simply is whether the cooperatives are able to market in a better way than p ivate handlers," Moses said.

Mutual Interests

"In all the essential phases of the cotton industry there is genuine interest between the cotton grower and the spinner, but this is not always true between the private handler and the consumer," Moses said.

As an example he asserted that the speculative system of marketing cotton discourages quality production.

He stated that both according to the opinion of mills and the studies of scientists, the quality of American cotton has been steadily deteriorating.

"This," he said, "is only the fruit of our speculative marketing system which puts the premium on the lowest quality, by buying on the basis of a community's average quality."

Experts Employed

"The cooperatives, contrary to this method, employ their expert classers, assemble the cotton into pools according to its commercial value and return to each member the full benefit of the consumer price, obtained according to the quality which each member ships."

He related how the farmers in the interest of reducing operating costs have established cotton gins, tackled the problem of obtaining fair and reasonable freight rates, erected modern warehouses at strategic points, that save millions of dollars annually in distribution and in addition, by reducing the fire hazard, have lowered insurance costs.

Regarding the financial phase of cotton marketing, he pointed out that the cotton crop represents huge sums of money values and that large financial facilities are required in financing the crop movement.

Low Interest Rates

"Where cooperation touches finance," he said, "it has been properly said that the result is a miracle. Generally speaking, cotton farmers are people in relatively poor financial circumstances, yet collectively they are able to finance their marketing operations at low rates of interest.

"It is no uncommon thing for a cooperative, having thousands of farmer-members, to borrow money at a lower rate of interest than do the directors of the banks who may be in the cotton business. This is simply because the relative risk and security are such as to make the cooperative the preferred customer."

I ASKED MY DAUGHTER WHAT SHE WANTED FOR CHRISTMAS

YOU may say I was a brave man. But then you don't know Mildred as I do. However, I was prepared for the worst. It might be a square-cut emerald or a Lincoln coupe or a Mediterranean Cruise or any one of a dozen things that would put a crimp in the old bank-balance.

But I plunged right in. And what do you think she said? I'll quote her as nearly as I can remember.

"I want an Orthophonic Victrola, Dad, and I'll tell you why. First of all, I think it's an unselfish gift. You and Mother and Ted will get just as much out of it as I will, and I mean you'll get a lot.

"It would be just like having Leopold Stokowski and George Olsen and Fritz Kreisler and Helen Kane and a hundred other great entertainers right in the next room . . . ready to drop everything and play or sing for us at the crook of a finger. And you know what kind of music it would be, Dad.

"When the bunch is at our house, we could dance to the best bands in the country. If we liked a particular tune, we could play it a dozen times. The Victrola orchestras never have to go home and get some sleep. They're on the job all the time. You know what I mean, Dad.

"And I don't mean to knock the radio. It has its place, the same as the Victrola. In fact, I wish you'd buy me a Victrola that has a Radiola in the same cabinet. But I do want an Orthophonic Victrola, Dad, more than anything else in the world. And they don't cost a million dollars."

Well, it's all settled. Mildred is going to get her Victrola for Christmas. Maybe I'm a bit selfish, like the fellow who gave his wife a box of cigars. We're all going to enjoy the Victrola.

TRIO CHARGED WITH ASSAULT

Girls Identify Boys Held For Attacks

DALLAS, Texas, Dec. 11. (AP)—Identified by three 17-year-old Dallas girls as the men who had attacked them Sunday, Thomas Benjamin Aldredge of Dallas and Lee Roy Merriman of Caddo, Okla., were charged with criminal assault and robbery with firearms, both capital offenses in Texas, in complaints filed here today.

After the girls had identified Aldredge and Merriman, who was in the county jail hospital with a bullet wound in his head, they went before the Dallas county grand jury with their descriptions of the kidnaping and assaults.

Merriman and Aldredge were arrested after a struggle with detectives in which Merriman was shot but not seriously wounded.

The girls' three companions, Leo Brite, Ruben Rosenthal and Royce Walters, also identified Aldredge. Brite, when he recognized the prisoner, attempted to attack him, but officers quieted him, and orders were issued that all other persons must be searched before they entered Aldredge's cell.

After identifying Aldredge, the girls and their escorts went to a garage, where they said they recognized an automobile, in which Aldredge and Merriman were riding when captured, as the same machine in which the girls had been kidnaped.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Dec. 11. (AP)—The submarine S-4 which sailed from the navy yard here last December on the test cruise that resulted in the deaths of forty men comprising its officers and crew, today left here again to make tests in diving and rescue work.

This time the S-4 was little more than a hull. Stripped of her operating machinery, the submarine was towed by the rescue ship Falcon which figured largely in salvaging the S-4 after she was sunk off Provincetown, Mass., following a collision with the coast guard destroyer Paulding.

Virginia Site Named As Summer Residence

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11. (INS)—Elaborating on his suggestion that a permanent summer white house or week-end retreat be established somewhere convenient to Washington, President Coolidge today made the definite proposal that the department of agriculture weather observatory at Bluemont, Va., might well be considered.

HOLDUP VICTIM DIES IN FALL

Would-be Hijacker Held On Death Charge

NEW YORK, Dec. 11. (AP)—A would-be holdup man was held under a homicide charge today after the fatal fall down an elevator shaft of a girl he believed was carrying a payroll for her employers. She had no money.

Martin Baylos, 28, had followed Shirley Bergman, a bookkeeper for the Geringer Light and Fixture company in Spring street, from the bank where she had deposited some checks, to her office. He followed her into the elevator, struck the elevator operator over the head with an empty gun as the lift started up and then turned on the girl.

Terrified, she attempted to escape by jumping to the narrow ledge of the third floor shaft opening, but lost her balance and fell down the shaft. She was killed instantly.

Baylos escaped from the building by sliding down the elevator rope, but was captured when he slipped and fell on the icy sidewalk outside.

Cuba enjoys a 20 per cent lower tariff on sugar than do other countries and this has resulted in an increase of 650 per cent in the sugar imported to this country from Cuba, the producers claimed. Col. J. M. Tarafa, Havana, presented Cuba's view on the matter.

Police Chief Makes Christmas Plea

"Obey Signals" For Safety, He Says

"Be careful" was the urge of Chief of Police Frank Burns in his first plea to the public Tuesday afternoon for safety in the Christmas traffic rush, which made its first appearance of the season Monday in Wichita Falls.

Observance to the traffic rules was stressed by Chief Burns. He requested that all motorists give the right of way to pedestrians at intersections of the downtown streets. Warnings against double parking were also issued by Chief Burns. Double parking is one of the most serious menaces to traffic, he declared.

In stressing the importance of driving carefully in the business section, Chief Burns said: "Drive according to the lights and give the pedestrians time to reach the sidewalk before you enter the intersection. Wait until the amber light is off and the green one has come on before you start driving. If you have not entered the intersection when the green light goes off do not cross on the amber signal but stop and wait for the next green signal. You will save both time and trouble and perhaps life if you will obey the light signals.

"We are proud of the Christmas spirit which is being shown in our city, and do not want any accidents to mar that happy spirit. If the motorists and pedestrians will cooperate by both obeying the traffic laws, there will be no accidents to mar that Christmas spirit."

Warning Preceded Oil Tanker Blast

(AP)—Testimony in the investigation being conducted by the government into the cause of the explosion Saturday aboard the tanker Gulfland in which three men were killed and four injured, today developed that A. H. Wukasch, one of the victims, had shouted two warnings to cut off the gasoline lines just before the explosion.

Harry Lyons, dockman, was placed on the witness stand by U. S. Shipping Inspectors C. N. Bean, Capt. A. A. Miranda and H. M. Cobb, and told of hearing Wukasch cry out twice:

"Shut off line No. 2, quick, Harry."

Wukasch was standing in the doorway of the pump room where the blast occurred, and was the only one who knew of any impending danger, the testimony revealed.

Young Children Are Unbreakable Bond to Keep Mother at Home

Whether a Wife Shall Work Outside Her Home Depends on What She Is Best Fitted For, but the Mother of Young Children Is Tied by an Unbreakable Bond to Her Home and Duty.

A correspondent asks: "Should a married woman work outside her home whether it is necessary or unnecessary?"

It depends upon the individual case. The woman's talents, her temperament, her peculiar fitness for her job, her husband's wishes, whether there are children or not. A hundred different factors enter into the problem and make it one that every husband and wife must settle for themselves. You cannot make any blanket answer to the question that will cover the whole situation.

There are those who believe that every wife should be a wage-earner outside of the home and who call the woman a parasite who, as the phrase goes, "is supported by her husband." But this is ridiculous, as the woman who does her own housework and takes care of a family works harder than any other woman in the world and earns her own board and keep a dozen times over.

Moreover, the great multitude of women are born housewives. They have no aptitude for the commercial world and are always misfits in it. Their very souls yearn after pots and pans and vacuum cleaners, and they are never happy, contented or of any use until they get in homes of their own. They marry to get out of offices and it would be inhuman cruelty to tear them away from their gas ranges unless it was absolutely necessary to do so.

On the other hand, there are those who contend that no woman should hold down a good job and a wedding ring at the same time. They say that the woman who has a husband to support her should let George do it and give the unmarried woman a chance. This may be altruistic, but it isn't good sense, for why should a woman give up the work she likes and that she is fitted to do just because she doesn't happen to need every cent in her pay envelope? Men don't retire from business in order to give their rivals a chance as soon as they have laid up enough to live upon. Otherwise, there would be no big business and incidentally fewer places for the men and women who are the cogs in the wheels of the great industrial machines.

Therefore, it seems to me that if a woman desires to keep on with her job after marriage and if her husband is willing for her to do so it is her own affair and a matter of which she is the sole judge.

Not every woman's talents are of the domestic brand. There are women who never can learn how to make bread that isn't a menace to life or to broil a steak without burning it, but who can unravel any sort of a legal problem with one hand tied behind them.

There are women who can never attain enough skill to cut out a pair of child's rompers who can perform brilliant surgical operations. There are women who can't keep a house orderly to save their lives but who have the details of a big office at their finger-ends. There are women who are efficient and happy and contented in business and who are miserable and discontented and failures as housewives.

No good purpose is served by these women trying to change their natures and do the kind of work that they were never intended to do. They are better off and everybody about them is better off when they use the talents God gave them in the way He designed them to be used and hire somebody else to do their cooking and sweeping and scrubbing.

It is one of the penalties of being a woman that the wife had always to sacrifice much more on the matrimonial altar than the husband does. When a man gets married he annexes a wife to his career. He does not have to choose between her and the work that he has spent years fitting himself to do and in which he finds a never-failing joy and interest. He doesn't have to say to a girl: "My dear, will you expect me to give up my law practice or my position as buyer or private secretary and devote myself to making you comfortable when you are at home?"

Only too often this happens to a woman, for the man has some foolish pride that prevents him from being willing to have his wife work outside the home, or else he belongs to the old school that holds that the woman's place is in the home and that there is some peculiar merit about a wife doing badly the domestic things that an expert could do well for a very small fraction of the money the wife could earn if she continued to follow her own career.

Obviously it is only fair for the woman who intends to keep on with her work after marriage to state her position on the subject before marriage, so that the man can take her or leave her, according to whether he is wedded to the pal-and-companion or the pink-bungalow-apron school of thought. However, most men have begun to perceive the economic waste of trying to turn a good business woman into a poor cook an dalso many of them are just enough to feel that if they want their wives to help them they should not object to their doing the kind of work they like to do.

So whether a woman works out of her home after marriage depends upon whether she needs the money, whether she likes to do the work and whether she and her husband are agreed upon it or not. If she has children, the whole status of the matter is changed.

I do not believe that any mother should follow any career that takes her out of her house unless it is absolutely necessary. For motherhood is a job in which nobody can substitute. No other human being can give children the love, the tenderness, the understanding, the care that a mother does. No expert baby specialist, no nurse, no governess can take a mother's place.

Unless a woman is willing to make this sacrifice for her children, she has no right to bring them into the world.

Women's Society Of Medical Club Meets Tuesday

Members of the Woman's auxiliary to the Wichita County Medical association met in a regular business session in the lecture rooms of the General hospital at 2:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon when Dr. Maud Lindsey gave a talk on "The Importance of Pre-Natal Work in the After Development of the Child," citing results from educational campaigns along this line.

Miss Rosa Lee Harkins, Red Cross nurse, emphasized the value of pre-natal work and the urgent need in Wichita Falls of classes in pre-natal care. The auxiliary expects to launch a similar campaign in the near future. About 20 members were present.

O' These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

NEW YORK, Dec. 11. (US)—A modern girl happily married two years, announces that she is going to Georgia for the month of December, because she had a wedding anniversary and wants to get out of the bore of celebrating it.

Out of a train window—a small town, just a group of frame houses. The ground covered with snow and the cold wind blowing. A pretty girl of about 19 in her back yard feeding the chickens from a big bowl. She had on a blue gingham dress, sleeveless and no hat and she was smiling happily and comfortably.

That's what no steam heat did for her!

One of these very fancy tea rooms in New York. Spanish to the last pound of plaster. When you are inside you are given the impression of being on the outside, by being surrounded by the outside walls of Spanish homes, lights in the windows, trailing vines and flowers over the walls, a ceiling that is a blue sky dotted with stars—and everything.

At the entrance to a door that led to the kitchen was a sign in Spanish saying that you were prohibited from entering there. And as almost no one who went there knew Spanish they had considerable trouble keeping people from peeking in.

There is something to be said for the American way of hanging up a sign that says: "Keep Out." There isn't anybody so dumb that he can't get that.

A woman told me last night that she lost $500 in the stock market and didn't mind at all. She would have been happy had her stock gone up, so she wouldn't howl when it didn't. "But," she added emphatically, "It certainly did make me mad the other night when I played keno at a dinner party, and lost $5. I was furious and I'm not going to play again."

You explain it. I can't.

A society woman of Chicago hired a poor little French dressmaker whose life is pretty much of a problem, having a baby and a sick husband, to make her some clothes. The modiste being short of funds, worked cheaply and expertly, turning out gowns that would cost the woman a fancy sum in any shop.

The poor little dressmaker is still crying for her $50 and will never get it.

Another girl had a dress made and it cost $15 for the making. The same French modiste had to give up a better paid job and sew at home because she had a baby to care for. The girl made her shop at four or five stores to get just what she wanted, taking much of her time which was not paid for, and the dressmaker did not get her $15. She has tried every other way, and now she is consulting the Legal Aid society, because she needs money.

Can you imagine going to a party and enjoying yourself in a dress you got that way?

Neither can I.

Women are making and losing their shirts in the present market and when you go out for an evening at anybody's home, all the women talk about is stocks. One woman who has been the perfect wife for years, wasn't home to get her husband's dinner the other night, and explained she had been reading the tape all day. She used to be a secretary in a broker's office and she knew how.

CHIC CHERIE — Latest Fashions

There is surely no lack of variety among evening gowns as Cherie finds out when she goes to buy one. There's satin which is very smart indeed, and in a pale vanilla tint is even more than that. The dress to the left is taffeta and has both pannier and bustle puffs. Moire is smart, too, and cream colored moire is probably smartest of all. Those stiff side flares show what the minaret silhouette can do when it tries. Creamy tulle, not quite dark enough to be beige, should be done in flounces, of course, and this model simply adds extra flounces for a side drape. An off-white taffeta is the material used in the fourth frock.

Now why, with all these fabrics so smart and beautiful, did Cherie buy herself an evening gown of black velvet? Why? Just because four out of five do this season, and besides it isn't an ordinary black velvet! Its irregularly drooping skirt is lined with white satin, its decolletage is edged with rhinestones. Her wrap has shirred sleeves, is made of black velvet lined with white satin and owns a collar of white lapin. But perhaps she chose the whole ensemble merely because she had bought one of those little evening caps of silver thread looped and twisted to look like a marcelled coiffure (in the little sketch, right).

Hoover Sends Word Which Dampens Plans For Noisy Inaugural Fete

By ALFRED P. RECK
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—President-elect Herbert Hoover will take office on March 4 with an inaugural ceremony as simple as that carried out for President Coolidge four years ago, Chairman Work of the Republican National committee, announced today.

Direct word is said to have come from Hoover, now on his South American good will tour, that he wished to avoid an elaborate display with an extensive military parade.

Chairman Work's only comment was that he acted with full authority in advising Col. U. S. Grant 3rd., chairman of the inaugural committee, of Hoover's wishes on the inaugural.

Color Was Wished

Washington business men and merchants were hopeful the president-elect would permit a return of the old-time ceremony with gold braid, martial music and parading soldiers, followed by an inaugural ball.

They believed such a program would attract more than 100,000 visitors to the capital on inauguration day.

But Hoover blue penciled their plans.

Colonel Grant has been instructed to pattern the ceremonies after the Coolidge inaugural celebration.

This will limit the number of participants and will result in a parade, which will not take more than 45 minutes in passing.

Governors of states and their staffs will be invited to attend, it was explained, while the military units will be limited to army, navy and marine detachments on duty in and around Washington.

This was said to coincide with Hoover's ideas.

Civil Ball Planned

Business men, however, refused to give up the idea of an inaugural day ball. Plans are under way to hold a gigantic civil ball, entirely unofficial, the night of inaugural day.

Many states already have advised Chairman Work of their desire to participate in the inaugural parade.

California has made known its intention to send a large delegation to take part in the ceremonies of swearing in a native son to the highest office of the land.

The four states in the solid South, which went Republican at the last election, were said to be anxious to participate.

However, if the 1929 program is carried out in strict accordance with the 1925 celebration, state marching delegations, political marching clubs and patriotic organizations will not be permitted to take part in the parade.

Under Colonel Grant's tentative plans, President-elect Hoover will review the simple inaugural parade from a glass enclosed stand erected on Pennsylvania avenue directly in front of the White House.

Reviewing stands for members of the diplomatic corps and government officials will be constructed along the line of march.

Mrs. Bonner Has Social Meeting For Music Club

Mrs. Jouette Bonner entertained members of the Music Study club with a delightful social meeting at her home, 1509 Tilden street, Tuesday morning when a burlesque program was given in which several members took part.

E. Hall. Mrs. J. F. Cammack gave a sketch of the life of Schubert.

An especially entertaining number was a debate on the question, "Resolved That Music Helps One in Matrimony." Mrs. Kenneth Bebb took the affirmative and Mrs. Fred Barron took the negative. Mesdames Will McKemie and Cammack, judges, decided in favor of the negative.

L. P. P. Challenger motor, which they are buying for use at the local field, it was announced Tuesday.

Mr. Burke made several demonstrations Saturday to prospective purchasers, it was said. Mr. Curtin remained in Olney Sunday, taking up a large number of passengers as fares during the day.

YOUNG KILLER CHANGES TALE

Bad Boy Slayer Didn't Intend Teacher's Death

STANTON, Mich., Dec. 11. (AP)—Jimmy Deacons, 15-year-old confessed slayer of Flossie Carter, Sheridan, Mich., school teacher, told authorities in a new confession today he wanted to "get even" with Miss Carter for an "old grudge" but that he had not intended to kill her.

Officers said he admitted having attempted to criminally attack the girl after choking her. He then became frightened, he said, and beat her to death either with a hammer or a stone.

Yesterday he told authorities he killed the teacher because she had slapped him and made him sit in the "fool's chair" in the classroom three years ago for throwing paper wads. He said he had vowed to "get even."

Much New Land Used In Dawson County

Special to the Record News.

LAMESA, Texas, Dec. 11.—The rains in Dawson county this fall have placed a fine season in the soils for the winter. Although the rains and weather have retarded harvest of crops, it is predicted that sufficient moisture will be conserved for soil preparation here next spring. The grass on the ranges is fine and cattle will feed from them without extra attention this winter, according to ranchmen.

Much new land will go under the plow in Dawson this fall and winter, due to the excellent seasons making it possible to place them in sod breaking condition. It is now estimated that fully 15 per cent of the new lands will be placed in cultivation for the first time this next spring. According to the presence of land buyers and the sales being made by real estate dealers, many new settlers will move into Dawson county next spring to try their hand at farming on the South Plains. Most newcomers are coming from Oklahoma, East Texas and middle West Texas.

New Record Book of Christian Church Shows Successful Year

Records already attained prove 1928 one of the most fruitful years in the history of the First Christian church, according to the annual report, released Monday.

Average attendance in the church school was above the record of any other year and missionary gifts by the school were larger than in any similar period, according to the report. M. A. Bundy, church treasurer, reported all bills paid when due and predicted there will be a balance in the treasury at the end of the year.

The method of presenting the record for the year was new. A large book was constructed, three feet high and five feet wide when opened. Upon the 12 pages V. N. Armstrong had written in letters large enough to be read 60 feet away the summary of the work of six different departments of the church. As he turned the pages the pastor, Dr. Floyd Allan Bash, spoke of the significance of each and of the fine cooperation that has made the achievements possible.

The social service worker, Mrs. J. Lem Keevil, gave 2,204 garments to the needy of the city; 227 pairs of shoes; gave to the sick and hungry in cash $260; provided food and clothing for 12 children that they might be in school and made 1,316 visits in her work. Thus the church aided more than 450 persons who were in need.

The Bible school, through Secretary W. E. McBroom, reported 958 enrolled, an average attendance for the year of 522, and moneys given $2,766.83.

For missions and benevolence the church and its departments have given a total of $7,479, while total paid by the church treasurer for current expenses and missions was $20,595. Dr. Bash reported 138 sermons delivered; visits, 1,155; added to the church, 106. In about 15 minutes more than $11,000 was pledged for the 1929 budget.

The self-resurrection of Jesus is the glorious evidence of His utter divinity.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—There is scarcely a street corner in Manhattan which lacks a cherished tradition, colorful, romantic or tragic. Some of the tales are old and dusty now, but too good, one thinks, to pass into the limbo of forgotten things.

There is, for example, Park avenue and Thirty-seventh street, where Robert Murray—he who gave his name to Murray Hill—built the mansion which stood until 1854, and that mansion, one tense night during the Revolutionary war, was the stage of a comedy-drama which had no little to do with saving George Washington's army at Harlem Heights.

Mrs. Murray, wife of the Quaker merchant whose estate, "Incleberg," extended from Thirty-third to Thirty-seventh street, and from the present Broadway to the Boston Post road, was a witty and enterprising hostess. It fell to her to entertain the British commander-in-chief, Sir Henry Clinton, after Sir Henry and his officers landed at Kip's bay. The British were hard upon the heels of the retiring American troops, and it was touch and go for hours.

Mrs. Murray knew precisely what the situation was and made up her mind, so the tradition goes, to entertain Sir Henry and his staff so handsomely as to delay pursuit of the retreating patriots. She knew that Israel Putnam and Aaron Burr were straining every effort to get their forces out of Manhattan four miles south of the point where the British were coming ashore, at the foot of East Thirty-fourth street, and realized that unless the British officers were beguiled a force strong enough to block retreat could be thrown between Lower Manhattan and the spot where Washington was making his stand at Harlem.

So, she loaded her dinner table with the finest of foods and the choicest of wines. The Murray kitchen and the Murray cellar were ransacked for every delicacy that could appeal to the British palate. Her stratagems were successful. Pond of good living, devoted to their wine, the British officers dawdled long at table, even while Washington, then at a headquarters at Columbus avenue and Ninety-first street, heard the cannonading as the British forces came ashore at Kip's bay, and took horse to ride southward to meet and rally the fleeing and demoralized Americans. He halted the fleeing soldiers in a cornfield where the Grand Central terminal is now.

Had the British struck them with full force there might have been a far different story to tell of the subsequent battle of Harlem Heights, but they didn't stir because Sir Henry and his officers ate and drank and listened to the harps and the violins and paid charming compliments to the beautiful hostess. So much time went by, indeed, that old Put and Burr, straining every nerve, were able to drive the bulk of their hammered troops through the British bulwark and join Washington's thin line upon the high ground of Harlem, where Columbia university is now.

Putnam and Burr brought up their men in time to take part in the battle, the one victory of the Americans in what is now the city of New York. The incident of Mrs. Murray's dinner to Sir Henry Clinton was used in a play on Broadway two years ago.

First avenue and Fifty-first street also has memories of the Revolutionary war. It was at the Beekman mansion that Sir William Howe made his headquarters until the end of the war. In that mansion in 1780 arrangements were made to buy West Point from Benedict Arnold, and from it Major John Andre, the emissary to Arnold, was sent to his death. But it was in the old Kip mansion in East Thirty-fourth street that General Howe and his staff banqueted young Andre, and, standing with upraised glasses, toasted his health and success and the day when he would return with the news that the British could have West Point.

"The health of Major Andre who leaves us tomorrow to return Sir John Andre!"

That was the toast, spoken by Sir William, which made the candle lights flutter with the rousing cheers of the red and gold staff. Poor Andre! There was to be no Sir John for him or anything else except the rope. Caught like a rat in a trap by three farmers near Tarrytown, he paid the penalty that Arnold barely slipped away from.

A Lost Hound

BOSTON (AP)—A city pup must do his hunting under city conditions. "Gerry" has brought home to a distressed master such finds as a baby's new coat; a package containing pork chops, pigs knuckles and a leg of lamb; household utensils, rubbers and shoes.

Bogey Men Still Live

IT IS a little bit hard to realize that three people are being held in Pennsylvania for a murder that had its roots in a belief in witchcraft.

A man and two boys are under arrest. They killed an aged recluse, it is said, because they felt that he was causing spells on them; if they could kill him and perform certain rites with locks of his hair these spells would break down and all would be well.

That is a grotesque sort of thing to happen in a country that prides itself on its efficiency, its education and its general enlightenment. But it is quite well attested; indeed, the investigating officers suspect that one or two other murders in the same neighborhood can be traced to the same source.

The belief in witchcraft and black magic dies hard. It was born somewhere far back in the savage infancy of the race, and it has lingered on, like an unhealthy taint in the blood, to the present day. Few of us are altogether free from superstition. Ordinarily a reluctance to sit 13 at a table is the extent of it; but now and then you will find a person who has a shadowy, lurking fear of hideous forces in the empty air about him.

It will be a long time before this belief dies out. It is deeply grounded in human nature. Probably it owes much of its force to the fact that it is almost impossible for mankind to realize without a struggle, its own high position in the general scheme of things.

The world must have been a terrifying place for the aboriginal savage. He had only his two hands and such makeshift weapons as he could devise of wood and stone to cope with a universe that seemed everlastingly hostile. Nature brought him floods, famines and storms. The forests were full of wild beasts. There were hostile tribes beyond the next hill, ready to fall upon him if he did not keep alert. What wonder if he felt that he, unaided, was too weak and insignificant to stand alone; that there must be unseen powers in the silent air that could help or harm him if he performed the proper charms?

Naturally, that attitude has persisted. It is still hard for a man to realize that he holds the earth in his hand. The idea that nothing at all is impossible to the human race is a relatively new one. We still start and shudder at noises in the dark.

Despite all of our modern inventions and discoveries, the world is still a perplexing, bewildering place. The man who can confront it without a tremor is the man who can convince himself of his own spiritual grandeur. Once you establish in your mind the fact that you are the "heir of all the ages," the most mysterious and marvelous of the works of a mysterious and marvelous creation, nothing can frighten or perplex you any more. But until that sort of knowledge is far more wide-spread than it is, we shall continue to have backwoods corners where the prince of the powers of darkness is feared as a living reality.

Paroling a Civil War Veteran

USUALLY there is a howl when a convicted murderer, serving a life term, is given a pardon.

But there won't be anybody to protest the action of the Indiana state pardon board in cancelling the imprisonment of Henry J. Romine, imprisoned since 1913 for killing two men in an argument.

Romine goes from the state prison to the Old Soldiers' Home, where he will spend the rest of his days as an honored guest. Romine, who is 81 years old, is a Civil war veteran with a distinguished record. We imagine that everybody will agree that it is fitting that the old soldier be allowed to end his days in honor and peace, free from the stigma of a prison uniform.

The Caterpillar Club

AN AIR MAIL pilot, bound east over the Alleghenies, with 800 pounds of mail, runs into a "line squall" at 4,000-foot altitude. One wing is ripped off his plane. He calmly descends to safety in a parachute, routs a farmer out of bed to help him find the wrecked plane, takes the mail to town in a truck and returns to his base by train to resume work next day in a new plane.

When his wife hears of the accident, she simply says "Now he belongs to the Caterpillar club"—that informal organization of pilots who have made parachute jumps to save their lives.

Let anyone who thinks that this modern, mechanized age has spelled the doom of adventure and the thrilling life, read that little story, culled from the daily papers. No era ever produced a more colorful figure than the modern air mail pilot. The pony express rider or the Mississippi river pilot of 75 years ago could not compare with him.

THINGS WE HEAR

Sometimes praise, passed as kind words, is exaggerated. At any rate we discount at times things we hear. Despite the discount we get some joy from them. And it is just as easy to dispense kind words as it is to be harsh or destructively critical.

But as we hear, when away from home, so many kind words for the city of Sherman and so much praise for what has been accomplished here, we cannot help but feel that most of it is sincere. Certainly our pride in our home city would lead us to take it seriously. Pleasing remarks on every side are designed to increase our respect for Sherman. —Sherman (Texas) Daily Democrat.

ADVICE FOR TEXAS GARDENERS

There are scores of varieties of vegetables not commonly grown in home gardens in Texas that should be found there to add health and variety and relish to the daily diet. Very seldom are such healthful and easily grown vegetables found in gardens, as cauliflower, spinach, rhuburb, asparagus, kale, colards, carrots, dill parsley, Swiss chard, lamb's quarter, hoarhound, lavender, mint, sage, catnip, jimson or mullen. Yet every one of these and many others were among the 72 new vegetables grown by the Bailey women's home demonstration club in the blackland of Fannin county this last year. The club reached its goal of having every one of the 27 members grow at least one new vegetables in four new and different ways.

AFTER THANKSGIVING FEASTS

Have you observed the football boys the past few days, since Thanksgiving? We have and we'll tell the world they are enjoying themselves. They went through the past season doing without many delicacies and other choice things to eat, and when the season was over they "fell to" and are now having the time of their lives feasting. The boys went three months during the football season keeping in training and refusing to eat those delicacies and sweets that would injure their playing. As we see it, they deserve to feast now and eat those things denied them during the football season.

The INN of the HAWK and RAVEN

George Barr McCutcheon

During the summer, Jonifer takes Gerane and his nephew, Peter, to Edenvale on a pleasure jaunt. They are disguised as gypsies. While there, they see Starcourt acting as the escort of the princess on her return to the palace. One look at Gerane's face, when she sees Starcourt, tells Jonifer that she loves him. Peter arrives at the same conclusion, and is none too pleased, for he secretly loves Gerane. However he knows he can never marry her, for not only was his father, Jonifer's half-brother, of illegitimate birth but he himself was born out of wedlock. Jonifer, being the legitimate descendant of the Duke of Dreon, who was made an outlaw, many, many years ago, after his attempt to seize the throne, exercises his prerogatives as head of the family in a way that the son of his deceased illegitimate half-brother often finds distasteful. Peter instantly becomes jealous of Starcourt, who, according to a spectator, is about to undertake the extermination of the bandits in the Forest of Dreon and has been made a colonel, for he has voluntarily undertaken the task.

Urged on by his mother and his brothers, who hate Jonifer, Peter contemplates a revolt against his uncle's authority.

Jonifer, who, on learning that Gerane is in love with Starcourt, makes some secret plans that involve the soldier, takes a trip to Moscow. On his way home, near the Austrian border, the stage-coach is held up—not by his men, however. The appearance of a troop of soldiers results in the capture of the robbers. The incident serves to inform Jonifer that Starcourt, with his picked men, is in the Forest of Dreon to clean up the Dreon band, no matter how long the task keeps him there. Jonifer and his companion.

John Crispo and Jonifer Davos quietly disappear that night and make their way home, realizing that the situation is too serious to permit of their running the risk of capture.

Jonifer's return puts an end, for a time, at least, to Peter's thoughts of rebellion. The chief's best move is an attempt to capture Starcourt in a surprise attack at night. He is defeated, however.

Later, coming upon Starcourt while he is swimming in a mountain pool, Jonifer captures him. The colonel's move before him is to be ignored.

Meanwhile, he is aiding the robbers in the valley, free to do as he pleases, but unable to escape.

Jonifer tells Gerane that he has captured Starcourt as a birthday present for her. The knight chief takes it for granted that the soldier will fall in love with his daughter and that they will marry. He is amazed when Gerane, in a fit of rage, says she will marry Peter—anybody but the soldier.

When Starcourt at last makes friendly overtures, Gerane repulses him.

Jonifer, acting on a suggestion of one of his lieutenants, who informs him that Gerane has killed a hawk that Starcourt had hoped to train as a carrier-bird, and thereby get into communication with the outside world, tells his prisoner that he is going to have Starcourt executed.

Gerane, although she is not fooled by Jonifer's threat, says the soldier is not to be shot—that the king decided to have his life there by instruct his men in English.

While the Graustark authorities are still making frantic efforts to recover Starcourt's body from the pool in which the soldier was supposedly drowned, the minister of police, Baron Dangloss, is informed by one of his men, Peter Corpus, that the Countess Edessny has in her possession a famous emerald necklace that was taken from a Russian princess in the Forest of Dreon by Davos' men. The detective also says that the count and countess are living on a scale that is far beyond their means and asks where the money comes from. He says that he believes the count and countess to be Davos' confederates.

Corpus, disguised as a fruit vender, visits the Countess Edessny on the street and, taking a long chance, tells her he is a messenger from Jonifer Davos and has been sent to tell her that her connection with the robber band is known to the police. Despite her desperate efforts at self-control, Gerane sees how alarmed she is and decides that his statement is true.

As the result of Corpus's report, Dangloss sends officers to bring the count and countess before him. They, fearing that anyone will learn in the disclosure of their relations with Jonifer, commit suicide.

Starcourt, now in love with Gerane, although he is unwilling to admit it even to himself, makes his opposition manifest to tell him something of Gerane's mother. The old woman, who herself was the companion of Gerane's mother, tells him how they were captured by the bandits while passing through the Forest of Dreon—how Gerane, Gerane's mother, fell in love with Jonifer and married him.

Word comes to the robbers of the suicide of the Count and Countess, and the reason for it. Not knowing whether the authorities have learned of their hiding place, they prepare to resist attack, if necessary.

Starcourt is captured in the encounter that the defeat of the robbers, although it will mean his release, may mean death for Gerane, as a member of the band. He is amazed to hear from the mother of Gerane's cousin, Peter, that many in the valley look upon Gerane as a traitress for Jonifer to be his mistress, as well as his wife—even his daughter.

She admits her love for him, but says she cannot marry him because of her connection with the robber band and because of his oath to the crown to destroy that band. While he is protesting that he will never betray the secret of Dreon, which is known by the troops, they hear the voices of men in the distance.

Peter and his brothers come up and are joined by Jonifer. Gerane and Starcourt confess their love. Peter is furious and Jonifer is puzzled as to the future, until Starcourt tells him that he will remain with the bandits, making no attempt to escape. That night Jonifer welcomes the engagement, and the dwellers in the valley learn that Starcourt is an English lord, as well as a colonel in the duke's Dragoons.

INSTALLMENT XXXIII

For days the inhabitants of the valley talked of little save the approaching marriage. At first there had been nothing but approval of the most enthusiastic character; as time went on, however, a sly, insidious force began to stir in the naturally suspicious minds of the robbers.

In some way the impression got abroad that Jonifer Davos had deliberately, almost mendaciously, gone outside the valley to find a leader to succeed him when the time came for him to lay down the scepter. Nominally, of course, the mantle must fall to his daughter, but behind the hand, it was being bruited about that he had looked far ahead when he brought young Starcourt to the valley.

It was suspected that he had had a definite purpose in mind when he set about to provide Gerane with a husband. At least, so said the secret voices that whispered in the valley; and it was not long before they spoke loudly enough to be heard by Jonifer and his household.

Starcourt was the first to scent a change in the manner of the robbers, but he said nothing about it. Heretofore, he had enjoyed—if that is the proper word—a sort of friendly intimacy with the men and women with whom he came in almost daily contact.

True, he was perfectly well aware that their interest was due in no small sense to the fact that each and every one of them regarded him as a common liability and, because of his very helplessness, were inclined to treat him with mild, if contemptuous, geniality.

Of late, however, this spirit of friendliness was noticeably lacking among them; especially was this true of the younger men. At no time had he been misled or deluded by the treatment accorded him by his captors; he knew that they would cut his throat without the slightest compunction, if needs be. They looked upon him as a natural foe, secretly hated him, were considerate and jovial only because they had no fear of him.

And why not? Was he not the commander of the men who slew their comrades? It was most unnatural to expect them to forget that fact, even though they smiled when conversing with him and when they waved their hands at him from afar.

When it became known that Jonifer intended to build an addition to his house as soon as the weather permitted, indignation ripened into acute irritation. Throughout the valley ran the first shiver of revolt.

Later on, fuel was added to the fire by the casual announcement of the chief himself that, as soon as they were married, Gerane and her husband were to reside in the main house, whilst he purposed dividing his time between the new addition and the cottage at present occupied by the prisoner.

This was too much. It was high time, growled the majority of the clan—urged and prodded by their wives—that Jonifer was made to realize that this sort of thing could not be tolerated.

What right had he to turn over to this lowly young outsider the house that for years had been looked upon as a palace belonging, by sentiment, if not in fact, to all the people of the valley? They had built it many years ago for his sire; their hands or those of their fathers had labored long and loyally in its construction; they had hewn the finest timber in the forest, they had hauled stone cut from a stubborn mountain, they had made the bricks, dug the cellars, drilled the well, thatched the roof as no other roof in the valley was thatched—they had done all these things for Jonifer the First, they had rejoiced when it descended in due time and proper order to his son and heir, and now, under their very noses, it was about to be delivered over to a stranger, whether or no, because it happened to suit the pleasure of Jonifer the Second.

High time, moreover, declared the wives of the robbers, that something was done to curb the tyrannical ambitions of Mistress Gerane!

Who was she, they argued, that she should profess scorn for plunder honorably and perilously taken on the highway?

Who was she to spurn the diamonds and rubies and fabrics rare that were laid at her feet by gallant heroes on her birthday simply because they were stolen?

And, more than anything else, who was she to turn up her nose at all the fine upstanding young men in the valley, as goodly a lot of fellows as you would find in a year's search? Who was she, indeed, to think that no one short of a count or a noble lord was good enough for her?

Jan Melby, one of the guests at the Christmas feast in Jonifer's house, and at one time a determined suitor of Gerane's hand—disguaded, it may be stated here, by Jonifer's bland announcement that he would put a bullet through his heart, if he did not cease bothering her with his odious attentions—Jan Melby was the most outspoken of these malcontents.

It is true that Jan had taken unto himself a wife in the person of Flavia Frick, almost immediately upon discovering that he couldn't have Gerane, but it is also true that he still loved and secretly coveted the daughter of Jonifer.

He was a wild, handsome, ruthless young daredevil, who would have thought nothing of summarily ridding himself of Flavia, if the time ever came she stood between him and his heart's desire.

There were many who had looked upon him as the proper husband for Gerane. He was the dashing type of bravo whose deeds of valor found favor with a certain and by no means insignificant element. A fitting leader, said they, to take the place of Jonifer.

And so, for a very good reason it was Jan Melby who frowned upon the proposed alliance with darker intensity than all the rest, and it was he who, surreptitiously, at first, and then openly, harangued the more or less indifferent populace into an active state of ferment. He succeeded in stirring up bitter antagonism to the marriage of Gerane and the man was pleased to describe as "our lovely bondman."

The announcement that Heber Dykas, who had officiated for more than a generation at all the weddings in the valley, was to perform the ceremony at his house on the morning of March 15, brought matters to a climax. A committee of young men, headed by Jan Melby, waited on Jonifer and presented what, by this time, had become a general grievance.

The chieftain heard them through and then, to their astonishment and relief, gravely announced that he would at once set a day for a mass meeting, on which occasion the situation might not only be openly and thoroughly discussed, but his own aims and desires put before the people in such a manner that no one could doubt his wisdom or his fealty. This was agreeable to the majority, most of whom had anticipated trouble, Melby alone having the hardihood to state with a boldness that the others lacked.

"This marriage is not to take place, Jonifer. You will find us willing—aye, more than willing—to talk the matter over with you. I can even promise that Starcourt may continue to abide here with us under certain conditions. But I may as well make it plain to you now that this marriage will not be allowed."

Jonifer remained calm and apparently unruffled in the face of this declaration.

"And, in case I decide to go ahead with it, Jan—what then?" he inquired.

"There is a very effective way of putting a stop to it, Jonifer," answered Jan, significantly.

"Murder, I suppose—eh?"

"Call it what you please," said the other. "The crown does not call it murder when it hangs or beheads your people, after it makes prisoners of them, Jonifer."

"Nor does it give its daughters to them in marriage," said another sullenly.

"On Friday night, then," answered Jonifer, as if he were addressing so many school boys, "in front of the blacksmith's shop. There is ample space for all who wish to hear and be heard. Let there be no women present."

With that, he turned on his heel and entered the house.

Lamesa Telephone Firm Makes $60,000 Changes

Special to the Record News.

LAMESA, Texas, Dec. 11.—The State Telephone company now operating in this city, has begun the remodeling of the entire system here. The first car load of poles were received here last week for this project. The estimated cost of the rebuilding is set at $60,000.

According to officials of the company, the system will be made new throughout and a common battery service will be given to the patrons of Lamesa.

The new system will be installed and with new equipment in the office. The present telephone building will be remodeled and placed in the best possible condition to receive the new system, according to officials of the company. It is now predicted that the new system will be ready for use by March 1, 1929.

POISON DEATH AT AMARILLO

Suspect Denies Charges of Dying Woman

AMARILLO, Texas, Dec. 11. (AP)—In his jail cell here today, Henry L. Long, proprietor of a cafe, held on murder charges which assert he gave a poison tablet to Mrs. Pearl Hudson, 33, on Dec. 2, today denied knowing "anything about medicine."

"I didn't have anything to do with any medicine," Long said. "I am uneducated and know nothing about medicine. I never took much medicine myself, and I wouldn't attempt to prescribe any for somebody else. The accusation is an outrage."

The warrant on which Long was arrested was sworn out by C. R. Hudson, estranged husband of Mrs. Hudson. He said that he and Mrs. Hudson had not been living together for some time, but that three days before her death she called him to a hospital and told him Long gave her a tablet on Dec. 2. A box containing a number of tablets was found in the home of Mrs. Hudson.

Los Angeles Gale Does Some Damage

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Dec. 11. (INS)—Springing up in the wake of a torrential rainstorm, a vehement, chilling wind today swept inward from the Pacific ocean, blowing trees and doing slight damage to citrus crops.

Assuming the proportions of a gale at Long Beach and in the Santa Monica bay region, the wind ripped awnings and cornices off homes and littered streets with debris.

At Pomona several large trees were uprooted while a mammoth Christmas tree in the streets of Glendale toppled over.

The city of Huntington Beach was plunged into darkness last night when the power lines fell.

A cloudburst in the mountains near Newhall left 50 automobiles stranded and one party had a narrow escape.

Collie Dies Guarding Body of His Master

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 11. (UP)—A collie's faithful watch over the body of his dead master, deep in the woods at Westerlo county, cost him his life.

Claude Fancher, Westerlo farmer, met the whimpering collie and followed him into the thicket. There Fancher discovered the body of Richard Hagburg, 60, a fellow farmer, pinned to the ground by the trunk of a large tree.

The dog would not allow Fancher to get close to the body.

Fancher had to come back later with some farm hands and shotgun and kill the dog.

TAX REFUNDS INCREASE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11. (AP)—Treasury supplementary estimates of tax refunds totaling nearly $58,000,000 more than originally expected to be required, were signed today by President Coolidge, who is apprehensive that a treasury deficit may result if congress appropriates too liberally.

SANTA CLAUS PROMISES CHOICE GIFTS FOR BOYS AND GIRLS HERE

RECORDS FOR YEAR ON FILE

Kleinschmidt Party on Tour Of Castle

and girls reading of your trip in The Record News."

A bright fire was crackling in a cozy fireplace and we made ourselves comfortable in easy chairs.

Santa clapped his hands and a dozen shiny little fairies with butterfly wings appeared. In a twinkling they had set a dainty table with frosted cakes and nuts and jellies and all the good things we have only at Christmas time. They poured tea into dainty little china cups and Mrs. K had her great wish fulfilled—she had tea with Santa Claus in his castle.

When we had finished Santa said: "If you are not too tired we'll go and I'll show you part of the castle because it will take several hours before you will be able to see even half of it."

He led the way from his rooms across the great corridor which seems to be the main street and stopping before a great gold mounted door said: "When you step into the next room you will see the greatest sight ever offered mankind. You are about to enter the largest gift shop in all the world."

Santa clapped his hands and eight gnomes bounced forward and bowed before the gift king. "My good gnomes open the door to the gift room."

The gnomes, always obedient, swung to their task.

One unlocked the door with a large golden key and another slipped back a bolt and slowly the door began to swing inward.

New World Visible

Before the eyes of all of us a new world was visible.

The walls, all solid ice coated with gold, seemed to be miles in length. The ceiling reached so high that our necks were strained trying to see all that hung from the ice rafters.

The walls were laden with all manner of gifts and the floor was stacked with every form of toy that boy or girl could possibly name or want. This room, the only one like it in all the world, was filled from floor to rafters with millions of gifts. Not surprising that the number totaled millions when one stops to consider there are 50 million children who believe in Santa Claus.

Santa kept talking with us and smiling when anyone asked him a question. He seemed to enjoy being interrupted in his labors even though Christmas was only a few weeks away.

Marked for Wichita Falls

Many gifts we noted were marked for Wichita Falls delivery, but we did not stop to read the names. "There is no need of us walking all through the gift room," Santa said. He called to two gnomes "Have them harness a couple of teams of reindeer and we'll ride through the room." This pleased Mrs. K. and the Eskimos were standing with mouths open and eyes glistening for never did they dream that so many gifts could be piled in one room in the land of Santa Claus. The little brown men, even though Santa always has lived near them, never realized the greatness of his factory and his kindness of heart. Santa told me to send you this message:

Wichita Boys Good

"Wichita Falls boys and girls," Santa said, "have been unusually good this year and I have studied their cases carefully and some of my best presents will be left in your city.

"In your next wireless message to Wichita Falls I wish you would ask the children to send me letters. They must hurry for as you see I will be forced to work rapidly. I have more than 1,000 gnomes opening and sorting letters each day and a few days before Christmas I will have twice as many of my little men working.

"How long does it take you to make delivery of all these fine gifts?" Mrs. K. asked. "Well you see it is this way" Santa said "I have always been able to make a tour of the world on Christmas eve. Of course there have been nights when I had to whip up the reindeer and once I almost missed some sections of the world when old Layluk attacked me. My good reindeer, however, can travel through the clouds as well as on the snow covered earth and when I find the wind too severe on earth, I just crack my whip and away we soar into the clouds.

"Now, there are times when I have trouble filling stockings. I must work rapidly and if the doors are locked or the chimneys are stuffed with soot, I have a hard time getting into the homes. Still, most parents see that I am given a welcome. I even have made deliveries at homes where boys have been rather bad, having received their good marks only a few hours before I started from North Polesville. You must know, especially since you live in Wichita Falls, that most boys and girls are good. That helps me to make a good choice of gifts."

"Who helps you to wrap up the packages"? Mrs. K. asked. "You will see the packing rooms. The gnomes do the most of that work" Santa replied, "but there are times when I have to take a hand."

"I always try to prepare packages for boys and girls who have been ill or for those in hospitals. I often wish that I were a doctor—then there would be no sickness in all the world."

Kitsenna and his friend kept looking at the great stacks of gifts and they would point in glee when sleds or dog harness were found.

Santa only smiled but Putunk and Kitsenna knew that the old Saint would leave many sleds and dog harness sets on Christmas eve as he passed over Alaska.

Small Corner of Santa Claus' Castle

Wichita Woman Gained 15 Lbs. by Taking Orgatone

Health Was Completely Shattered When She Began Taking Treatment—Well and Strong Now

"Just give me Orgatone and you may have all the other medicines," said Mrs. L. W. Abbe, residing at 121 Dallas street, Wichita Falls, Texas.

"Those who have not seen me since I began taking Orgatone," continued Mrs. Abbe, "would hardly know me on first sight. I have undergone such a change. Why, do you know, I actually gained 35 pounds. It hardly sounds reasonable, but it's the truth. I had suffered from nervousness and frequent dizzy spells for a good many years, and my sleep was so broken and I was so tired that I hardly felt like getting up in the morning. Everything I would eat tasted bad and my stomach was so upset that I could not eat more than one meal a day, and that a very light one. The pains in my stomach were almost unbearable, and I was in dreadful plight. I lost weight until I got down to about 110 pounds—I was hardly more than a frame—and was sometimes confined to my bed for hours at a time.

"Finally I commenced to read about Orgatone and got myself a bottle, and my improvement commenced with the first bottle. I gained in weight and strength until now, my troubles are not only gone, but I feel just as strong and well as I ever did. I eat just anything and enjoy it and nothing hurts me a particle. My nerves are strong and steady, and I sleep so well that I am glad for night to come, and getting up time comes too early for me in the morning. Orgatone has certainly brought health and happiness to me and I can't say too much in its praise."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called patent or secret remedy but a new scientific treatment containing no alcohol or other false stimulating drugs and is sold in Wichita Falls exclusively by the Allison Drug Store, 716 Indiana avenue, under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative. Out of town customers are being supplied promptly by mail upon receipt of price, one bottle $1.25 or six bottles for $6.25.—Adv.

Plot Against Hoover Bared

ican firms. Last month a bomb was discovered by the police on the steps of the Buenos Aires cathedral which is across the street from the National City bank. As it was being removed to the station house, it exploded, killing a pedestrian.

Agitation General

This was also believed to be part of a general agitation program against American interest in Argentina, but the perpetrators were never apprehended.

Mr. Hoover, of course, will be under the guard of police in plain clothes and uniforms as well as military and naval forces from the moment of his arrival at the frontier until his departure Saturday for Montevideo.

HOOVER STARTS TO ARGENTINE TODAY

SANTIAGO, Chile, Dec. 11. (US)—Mrs. Herbert Hoover took the center of the stage in Santiago's reception to the American good will mission tonight, leaving the president-elect in the shadow.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoover were the guests of honor at a luncheon tendered by President and Mrs. Carlos Ibanez at the presidential palace. The formality of the affair disappeared soon after the guests assembled when Mrs. Hoover learned that the president and his wife are the parents of a two months old daughter.

Mrs. Hoover insisted that the baby be brought to the palace drawing room and for the balance of the function Mrs. Hoover, Mrs. Ibanez and the pretty baby were the center of attraction.

Mr. Hoover and the American good will mission left here this evening by train for Los Andes, Chile, on the Argentine border, in the Andes mountains. The party will stay there over night and leave tomorrow for Buenos Aires where they will arrive Thursday.

TRAINMEN HURT

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 11. (UP)—Several trainmen were seriously injured and a number of passengers wounded when a train from Colima was dynamited and attacked by rebels between Cofradia and Camalita, according to dispatches to La Prensa today. Troops from a nearby town finally repelled the rebels.

POWERS HEADS MEDICAL CLUB

Nef Officers Elected at Annual Banquet

Dr. J. W. Powers was elected president of the Wichita County Medical society at the annual meeting in the Wichita club rooms Tuesday night.

Dr. O. T. Kimbrough, vice president for the past year, was reelected vice president. Other officers chosen included: Dr. B. C. Cammack secretary-treasurer; Dr. J. A. Heyman, delegate to the state convention; Dr. E. M. Walker, alternate delegate, and Dr. R. B. Wolford, censor.

Dr. O. B. Lee, C. R. Hartsook and A. D. Pattillo were named on a committee to arrange for the convention of the Northwest Texas Medical association which will be held here in March. All three of these doctors are past presidents of the Northwest association.

Sixty dentists and physicians attended the meeting to hear addresses by Dr. Sam E. Thompson of Kerrville on tuberculosis, and Dr. C. E. Bailey, dentist, on oral sepsis.

Tuberculosis Address

Modern living, poor or insufficient food and fewer clothes than in the years past were said by Dr. Thompson to be an increasing cause of tuberculosis among children, according to a survey made in New York city by metropolitan specialists.

An early diagnosis, even before x-rays show the presence of tuberculosis, early hospitalization and education of the patients, were stressed by Dr. Johnson. "Tuberculosis is difficult to determine in its early stages," he said. "Loss of weight and energy and upset digestion, either with or without the cough symptoms, are among the early signs of tuberculosis.

"All cases should be carefully studied with ample time when these symptoms are present.

"All cases should be hospitalized and the patient treated as a sick man even in the early stages in order that the patient may be restored to good health and educated in the proper manner of taking care of himself. The patient also should be taught how to protect others against the spread of the disease and should be careful himself to guard against spreading the infection."

Dental Infections

Diseases of the body may come directly from infected teeth and gums, according to a paper delivered by Dr. Bailey.

"Many aches and pains are due and may be traced directly to infection in the mouth," Dr. Bailey said. "Germs from infected areas are picked up in the blood stream and carried to all parts of his body, sometimes appearing as rheumatism neuritis, lumbago and other diseases.

"Many little infections around the teeth may be of little consequence themselves, but may be the door of entrance of disease into the system that may lead to eventual death."

Dr. Bailey expressed appreciation on the part of the dental fraternity for the cooperation of the medical doctors in the past and said that untold good can be done by this cooperation being emphasized and redoubled in the future.

which routing is not approved by property owners on adjacent streets.

Three-Way Plan

The proposition of a three-way entrance to the Scott avenue bridge from the south was not mentioned as an issue in connection with the new ordinance, it being explained that this proposition was avoided in connection with the ordinance by dedicating only the north portion of Scott as a county highway.

A. H. Britain presented the ordinance which was adopted. He represented the Lamar avenue property owners. Others attending the meeting included J. J. Perkins, J. T. Harrell, J. N. Prothro, Charles I. Francis, James Marlow and W. B. Hamilton.

Alderman J. H. Patton explained to the audience and to the courtroom that his statement Monday night approving the three-way entrance to the bridge from Indiana, Scott and Lamar avenues after Mr. Hamilton had suggested it, had been misunderstood in home quarters and that he wanted it clearly understood that he stands 100 per cent for the construction of the bridge. He said in connection with the three-way entrance plan that he believed it would be a fair proposition as it would tend to serve more taxpayers in a better fashion than a single entrance. This idea about the entrance, however, did not mitigate in any way his desire to see the bridge erected as soon as possible, he concluded.

The bridge and Scott avenue proposition was the only business brought to the meeting, all other matters having been attended to at the regular Monday night session.

SAUL'S

PRINCE CALM AT BUCKINGHAM

Wales Greeted as Man To Ascend Throne

nal handshake and "how are you, old man," neither spoke much on the way to the palace.

Queen Mary received her eldest son in the drawing room, which is next to the king's sick room, and clasped the prince in her arms. The prince's first question was:

"Is there any hope?"

The queen quickly assured him that everything possible was being done, but an observer at this meeting between mother and son declares that her majesty was unable to give him any encouragement.

At the time of the prince's arrival the king was asleep, watched by Nurse Black, of the London hospital, and unless the king wakes of his own accord it is possible the prince will not talk to his father before morning.

Car in Readiness

After half an hour with the queen and his brother, the prince drove off with the Duke of York to the latter's home, 145 Piccadilly, from where he left in his own car for his own residence, York House. His car is to be kept in readiness, in case of an emergency call from his father's bedside.

But I understand that a consultation between Queen Mary, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, Lord Dawson of Penn and Sir Stanley Hewett is likely some time before morning.

Universal Service is able to reveal exclusively that during the earlier days of his majesty's illness, the king caused a long memorandum of instructions to be compiled at his own dictation to Lord Stamfordham, his private secretary, to be given to the Prince of Wales should the king die before the Prince of Wales returned.

This diary has been added to daily as the king's strength permitted and tonight the queen herself handed it to the prince.

Wales Silences Dog

A pathetic incident occurred when the prince arrived at the palace. His Cairn terrier, Cora, who has been cared for by the queen during his absence, and has been the queen's constant companion, leaped at the prince, barking joyously, until silenced by her master.

I am told that the prince will undoubtedly be admitted to the sick-room later tonight to view his father asleep. I am also told that the king has lost 42 pounds since his illness and that his beard is deeply tinged with gray, almost white.

The truth of the king's condition tonight is that his temperature is very high, although he is reported to be perspiring freely. His sole nourishment today was liquid extract of beef.

"I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. It helped me so I purchased more, which healed me." (Signed) Miss Mamie McFarlin, Rt. 2, Canby, Texas, Jan. 6, 1928.

Wales Reaches London Palace

a speed of 70 miles in crossing France and in the last dash, on English soil, covering 77 miles in 95 minutes.

Even discounting the grave reason for haste there has been something world compelling in this sea and land top-speed flight which has held all Britain spell bound. Not even the sporting fever anent the derby running at Epsom has matched the eagerness of the whole people, following hourly this young man's race toward the king's sick bed.

No Slowing Down

He has come from 500 miles below the equator, over 30 degrees of latitude into the latitude of Labrador. He has undergone a storm in the Mediterranean so severe that the commander of the Enterprise asked him if he should slow down. But the prince replied:

"Go ahead."

A slashing rain greeted him at Brindisi. A snow storm met him at Basle, in Switzerland, and finally a typical fog welcomed him to London.

From the land of lions and naked savages to the familiar honk of London taxis in a few hours over nine days. Nothing but the supreme effort of three friendly and sympathetic governments availed to make possible the remarkable train journey. The entire 1347 miles from Brindisi to the British channel represented the top strain on the railroad administrations. In every locomotive stood the chief of the mechanical department ready to assist the driver with the least mechanical breakdown. On the train rode a high railroad official acting as supreme telegraph dispatcher, to maintain a clear track ahead.

An officer from the French surete generale boarded the train at the Swiss frontier and rode through to the channel port. The French foreign office relayed the physicians' bulletins from Buckingham palace and private messages from Queen Mary ahead at Belfort and Chaumont.

42 Examined at Free Tuberculosis Clinic

The one day, free tuberculosis clinic conducted in the Memorial auditorium Tuesday by Dr. Sam E. Thompson of Kerrville under the sponsorship of the Wichita Falls Tuberculosis society resulted in the examination of 42 applicants.

Dr. E. E. Collard and many Wichita Falls physicians assisted at the clinic and brought their patients to the auditorium during the day. Dr. Collard is president of the tuberculosis society here.

Patients were stripped to the waist and their lungs were given a thorough study by the examining physician. Cases of advanced, and early stages of the disease were found and advice was given on the best methods of treatment.

Health And Diet Advice

Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper

(Copyright, 1928, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Treatment for Locomotor Ataxia

As this disease has existed for a long time and is a chronic type, it is usually necessary to precede the treatment with a prolonged fast, using nothing but orange or grapefruit juice and water for several weeks. Unless you are under the supervision of someone who understands the fasting method, it is usually advisable to take shorter fasts of from seven to ten days at intervals of about one month apart. During this time enemas should be taken twice daily, and there should be hot applications over the entire spinal region. A deep therapy lamp is most satisfactory for this purpose, but even hot towels would be helpful. Following the hot applications a cold shower over the entire body should be employed.

After several weeks of the orange juice fast or after repeating the fast at intervals, a milk diet should be employed and continued for several weeks or even months. As improvement is noticed the regular diet outlined in my weekly articles in the newspapers may be substituted. It is also necessary to employ massage and exercise of the affected parts of the body. The use of sinusoidal electrical treatments, applying one pole to the affected muscles and the other pole at various points over the spinal column, is helpful for stimulating and reviving the nervous system, and is especially useful after the orange juice regime.

During the entire process of dieting it is advisable to drink quantities of distilled water, especially between the feeding periods.

There is a method of re-educating the nervous system by teaching the patient a physical control of his voluntary movements called the "Frenkel Movement" cure. The patient is first taught by persistent and repeated efforts to use his lower limbs by performing simple movements which finally become more complicated until the patient is able to walk without perceptible difficulty other than keeping the eyes in plain view of his eyes. A considerable amount of apparatus is used, such as hanging rings, parallel bars, etc. Various designs are painted on the floor on on specially prepared oilcloth or linoleum. By tracing these designs with his toes the patient learns to control his leg movements. The skill of the teacher is very important in directing these physical movements—almost as important, in fact, as the perseverance of the patient.

Physicians who employ the Frenkel treatment will be found in most of the large cities. The expense of the treatment is quite high, as improvement is slow and it often takes two or three years to get the maximum results. Some physicians who use this method will not accept a patient for less than a year's course of instructions. A patient with limited means can, however, often take a short course and then continue to exercise at home.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Sleepy After Eating

Question—Mrs. C. C. writes: "My husband works long hours in a store. He eats his heartiest meal at the noon hour. He wants to sleep for three-quarters to an hour afterward. He doesn't have much outdoor exercise. Is this sleep necessary?

Answer: Your husband is eating too much at this noon meal if he feels sleepy afterwards. It is generally better to eat a small meal at noon and never advisable to eat such a large quantity of food at any meal in the day which will produce sleepiness.

Bread and Milk Combinations

Question—O. W. asks: "Can milk be used with bread? Cereals? Or can milk be taken with vegetables? Can bread and cream cheese be taken together? Are fruits and vegetables all right together? Could I, for hyperacidity, also thrush trouble, fast on milk and oranges? I have such pain and gnawing in stomach when empty. Feel so terribly hungry if I fast on oranges alone. Is hot or cold milk better?"

Answer: You will probably be benefitted by taking a diet of oranges and milk, using a glass of milk every hour during the day, taking a small amount of orange juice before each glass of milk. It is best not to use bread or cereals with milk, but all right to use cream on the cereals. Milk combines properly with non-starchy vegetables, and the fruits with milk or vegetables. I have written an article on food combinations which you may have without charge if you will send me a large self-addressed stamped envelope with your request.

Heavy Feeling in Back

Question—W. H. H. asks: What is the cause of a tight, heavy feeling across the lower portion of the back (below the waist line)? This condition is more noticeable upon awakening in the morning.

Answer: You may have some form of lumbago or rheumatism of the lower spine or you may be simply in a bad position which strains the muscles of the lower back.

SON CLEARED FATHER FINED

Dad Lands in Jail On Contempt Order

Trial of Porter Hair, charged with forgery, resulted Tuesday afternoon in the acquittal of the defendant, but brought about a two hour jail term for his father, B. J. Hair, held in contempt of court for his vehement participation in the defense of his son.

The elder Hair went to jail Tuesday morning after his attorney, Ben F. Allred, gave notice that he would appeal a $15 contempt fine imposed by Judge E. G. Thornton. Hair sitting at the elbow of the defense attorney, audibly contradicted evidence being given from the witness chair, receiving first the rebuke, then the fine of the court.

While Hair, refusing to pay the fine, remained imprisoned, his attorney, in conference with Judge Thornton, brought about a remittance of the fine, and received an order for the release of the prisoner with the understanding that he stay out of the court room until the trial was completed. Once in jail, Hair refused to be released until three emissaries from the court had visited him in his cell.

The younger Hair was freed by the verdict of the jury about 4:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

A Christmas Theme For Shoppers

Seasonal Sermons of the Boy Preacher

By HENRY PAUL STEPHEN

Written by the 16-year-old boy preacher especially for The Record News

"We have seen His star in the east and are come to worship Him."—The Wise Men.

Truly as the Wise Men said, we can say that we have seen His star in the east, for we know that the day of His birth will soon be at hand. Busy shoppers on their way to purchase gifts pass before our eyes. Gay thoughts of a good time enter our minds and a new joy, unsurpassed, fills our hearts, bringing to our souls a new love from God. Soon the birthday of the appointed time will again be filled—the nineteen-hundred-and-twenty-eighth year of the overthrowing of the kingdom of Satan will be at hand, and of the Kingdom of Grace which was established on its ruins with repentence as its foundation and faith as its corner-stone.

I wonder now, as that day draws near, if people think of the real meaning of Christmas—if people really know what Christmas means and if it gives to them a real joy of love. I even doubt whether or not every citizen of Wichita Falls knows the gentle story of the manger, the plot of Herod, the visit of the Wise Men, the joy of the people, the guiding star in the east—the birth of a king in Bethlehem. I wonder if they realize, with all sincerity, that the first Christmas brought to the world its Saviour. I wonder if they understand the beauty of Christmas—if even now they can see His star in the east and are come to worship Him.

Pictures of Actor's Voice Wirelessed To New York From Los Angeles

NEW YORK, Dec. 11. (US)—Photographed sound was transmitted by telephoto process for the first time today, when officials of the American Telephone and Telegraph company received actual pictures of an actor's voice sent in seven minutes from Los Angeles in New York City.

Three words, "is that so?" were spoken in Los Angeles by William Haines, photographed on a sound strip (or movietone light record), and the latter divided into separate pieces about the size of ordinary photographs. After having been "shot" across the country in this manner the individual strips were pieced together here, and the spoken words will be incorporated into a scene of "Alias Jimmy Valentine," picture in which Haines is starred.

This unusual telephoto accomplishment was made possible through the co-operation of American telephone and telegraph executives with Metro-Goldwin-Mayer studio officials. It is estimated that three days' time was saved in transmitting the photographed words in this manner rather than sending the bit of film by air express.

WAR WAGED ON FLU EPIDEMIC

Disease Spreads Through Midwest States

the week ending Dec. 8. Of 21,238 new cases, 12,996 developed in Kansas, the reports showed.

The mortality rate has not been kreat, indicating deaths would not reach the total of the 1918-19 epidemic. In Los Angeles, 16 deaths in the last 24 hours brought the total of influenza fatalities in that city to 135 for the month. The situation there was said to be improving however, as the number of new cases has decreased.

The following statistics on official reports were given out at Washington today:

Montana, 4,580 new cases; Colorado 1,936 new cases; New Mexico 170; Arizona 100; Wisconsin 107; North Dakota 194; Illinois 97; Michigan 6; Arkansas 95; Louisiana 36; Tennessee 33; Idaho 7; Utah 96; Washington 22; Maine 13; Connecticut 4; New York City 36; New Jersey 22; Maryland 10; West Virginia 97, and Florida 17.

In addition to these reports, however, United Press dispatches indicated that several sections were hard hit. The University of Missouri dismissed school and will not reopen until after the Christmas vacation on Jan. 3 of next year because of the epidemic. Schools at Dearborn, Mo., and at Norton, Kan., were closed and other towns reported attendance had fallen low.

The situation was serious at Wichita, Kan., where 2,400 students and 42 teachers were absent from school and three deaths were reported. At Parsons, Kan., one death was reported and 770 students absent. Salina, Kan., reported 600 students ill.

The Kansas university hospital at Lawrence was overtaxed in treating 100 influenza cases, but school officials said they did not intend to close.

The University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn., has been closed and students ordered to depart for their homes for the Christmas holidays. Forty students were confined to their beds and physicians said a steady increase was feared.

Culver Military academy at Culver, Ind., and Clemson college at Columbia, S. C., were ordered closed. At the latter school 300 cases of influenza were reported and a total of 3,500 new cases developed in the state for the week ending Sunday.

30 Clerks Added to Postoffice Force to Handle Holiday Rush

Final arrangements to handle the Christmas postal rush were made Tuesday when the location of the postoffice sub-station was announced as 612 Eighth street by O. P. Maricle, local postmaster.

The sub-station will open at 8 o'clock Friday morning. Only parcel post Christmas packages will be handled at the station while shippers using pre-canceled stamps will deliver their packages to the back door of the postoffice building, Mr. Maricle asserted.

Notices to extra men to assist in the postoffice during the Christmas rush were sent out Tuesday. At least 30 extra clerks will be used during the rush season, Mr. Maricle said.

The necessity of mailing early in the day was stressed Tuesday by postal officials. During the last few years people have deposited 60 per cent of the day's receipts in mailing receptacles after 4 o'clock in the afternoon, thus congesting the mails at the close of the day. Heavy mailing at the end of the day often forces postal clerks to work several hours overtime and delays dispatching the parcels, Mr. Maricle declared.

The postmaster also urged that cards and letters be dropped in the residential boxes so that they can be brought in to the postoffice early in the day by letter carriers.

Only incoming mail will be received at the postoffice building and annex after Friday, officials declared Tuesday.

UHLE, PETTY AND WRIGHT FIGURE IN IMPORTANT TRADES

DETROIT GETS INDIAN HURLER

Pirates Give Shortstop For Brooklyn Pitcher

CHICAGO, Dec. 11. (AP)—George Uhle, right hander of the Cleveland Indians' pitching staff, was traded to the Detroit Americans today for Johnny Tavener, infielder, and Kenneth Holloway, pitcher.

The trade was negotiated at the meeting of the American league baseball magnates.

Johnny Neun, Tiger first baseman, was sold outright by the Detroit club to Toledo of the American association. The cash price was not announced.

RICONDA INCLUDED IN PETTY-WRIGHT DEAL

NEW YORK, Dec. 11. (AP)—Jess Petty, left handed pitcher, and Harry Riconda, infielder, were traded to Pittsburgh for Glenn Wright, shortstop, by the Brooklyn Robins today. At the same time the club announced the unconditional release of Joe Harris, veteran utility player.

Arnold "Jigger" Statz, fleet outfielder, was released to the Los Angeles club in the Pacific Coast league by the Brooklyn team. Terms of the deal were not announced.

A revolutionary proposal for a change in the rules of baseball was brought up at the National league meeting today.

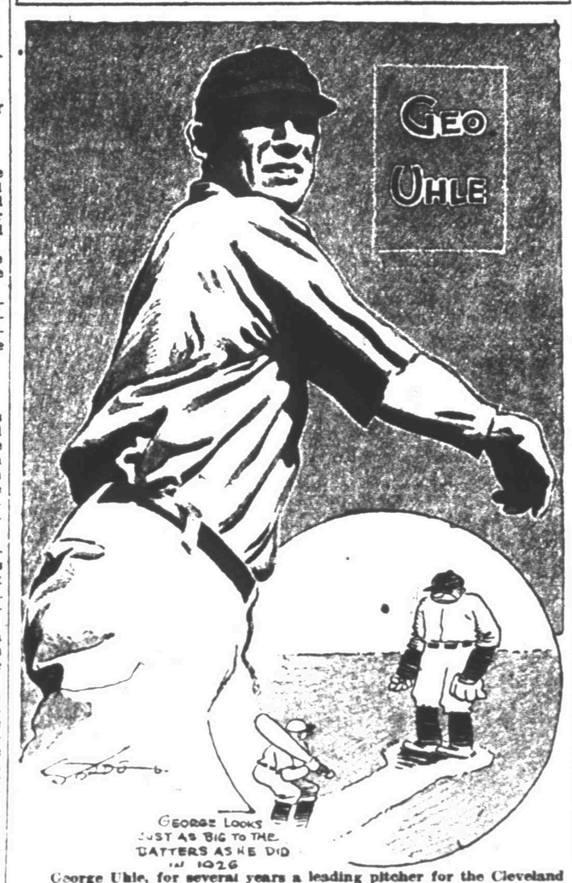

At the suggestion of President John Heydler, it was proposed that the manager of a team be given the privilege of naming a batter to assume the duties at the plate for the pitcher, relieving the moundsman of all batting and base running duties and minimizing the necessity of sending in pinch hitters.

President Heydler's suggestion arose from figures that approximately 600 substitutions were made in the National league last season for the purpose of sending in a strong batter to replace a weak hitting pitcher, often when there was no fault to be found with his hurling. The proposed rule change would eliminate this, allowing the pitcher to take his regular turn or a substitute to replace him all through the game.

The league officials gathered at the meeting expressed their approval of the suggestion and will offer it at the joint meeting of the major leagues at Chicago.

Heydler was re-elected president of the National league for another four-year term. Heydler was first elected to the presidency in 1918 and apparently has earned a "life" job in that capacity. No announcement was made of any increase in his salary which is now reported to be $25,000.

He'll Wear Tiger Stripes

George Uhle, for several years a leading pitcher for the Cleveland Indians, finally has been traded. The righthander was swapped yesterday to the Detroit club for Kenneth Holloway, pitcher, and Johnny Tavener, infielder.

Mike Murphy Quits Yale To Coach at Wisconsin

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 11. (UP)—George W. (Mike) Murphy, coach of the freshman crew at Yale since 1923, today signed a contract with the University of Wisconsin to become head coach of rowing there.

Murphy will be the youngest head coach of rowing in the United States when he takes command of the Wisconsin fleet. He is a former captain of the University of Washington crew.

Murphy's shells at New Haven won 13 of 13 races, finishing second four times and third once.

Hoosier Playboy Flirts 14 Years With Fame in Squared Circle

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 11 (AP)—The boxing game seldom has produced a figure that has been so close to fame and yet so far away as the venerable Chuck Wiggins of Indianapolis.

After 14 years in the ring Wiggins' only title is that of "Hoosier playboy." A half million dollars have slipped through his fingers because he, at times, took neither himself nor his opponent seriously.

Because the Illinois commission barred him for six months for a foul blow he is in disrepute in 27 other states affiliated with the Illinois body.

Seldom in the last half dozen years has he bothered with hard work before a bout; a little bag punching, setting up exercises and a few rounds of sparring the week before the bout. He has been known to enter the ring without any training.

A fine physique, natural skill and ring craft enabled the Hoosier to carry on, winning oftener than he lost, but occasionally being outpointed by inferiors. When he was "right" Wiggins was regarded as one of the "toughest" heavyweights of the ring.

He gave the late Harry Greb half a dozen of the hardest fights the former middleweight champion ever had. The same was true with the Gibbons brothers. Wiggins usually was willing to meet anybody his manager suggested and last year participated in more than 40 bouts.

Wiggins' latest chance to get in the "big" money was in Chicago when he met Otto Von Porat and lost on a foul.

The Indianian was one of Gene Tunney's sparring partners when he trained for the second Dempsey bout. He gave the champion some of the hardest workouts he had, at times out-boxing Tunney.

During his 14 years Wilkins has seen Jess Willard, Jack Dempsey, Tommy and Mike Gibbons, Tunney and others, gather fame and fortune with their fists, while his chief distinction is "Hoosier playboy."

JACK SHARKEY WHIPS DE KUH

Bostonian Fights Impressively After Layoff

BOSTON, Dec. 11. (UP)—After a seven months' layoff due to an injured knee, Jack Sharkey, one of the leading contenders for the vacant heavyweight crown, made an impressive bid by defeating Arthur De Kuh of New York in spectacular fashion.

Sharkey had the fight in hand from the start, coming in at the Italian in his weaving style, darting at his opponent with quick right and left jabs and keeping De Kuh on the defensive all the way.

The first four rounds were all Sharkey's by wide margins, while the fifth was closer but still the sailor boy's. In the sixth, Sharkey opened up a whirlwind attack which left his towering opponent in a groggy condition. De Kuh went down for a count of six in this round and received a bad cut over his left eye.

In the remaining four rounds Sharkey made a valiant attempt to finish his opponent by the knockout route, but De Kuh held on though plainly outclassed.

Sharkey, in spite of his recent inactivity, was in his best condition for two years. He appeared confident and yet cautious and landed his blows often and tellingly. De Kuh just couldn't keep the pace. Though he apparently packed a lot of power in his blows, he couldn't land them in a vital spot.

Further Probe Planned On Cleburne Lad's Status

CORSICANA, Texas, Dec. 11. (AP)—A protest of the eligibility of Seaman Squyres, Cleburne high fullback, filed with the executive committee of the Texas Interscholastic league is an appeal from the decision of the district committee, which twice had ruled Squyres eligible, H. D. Fillers, superintendent of Corsicana schools, said today.

Fillers said that although the district committee had found Squyers eligible he was not satisfied all requirements had been met.

Roy Henderson, athletic director for the league, said in a message to Abilene, where the Abilene-Cleburne semi-final football game is to be played Friday, that in his opinion the eligibility protest would not affect the state race.

Squyers, he said, has been ruled eligible by the district committee and has not played in a bi-district game, hence the Cleburne Yellowjackets appear eligible for the semi-finals game.

The protest will be considered by the committee at Austin Thursday, Henderson said.

STRACHAN TO MAKE MUNY LINKS ONE OF FINEST IN COUNTRY

BILL PRAISED BY FAIRTRACE

Country Club Pro Directs Work at Public Course

The municipal golf course at Weeks park is to be one of the best laid out and finest courses in the country next year due to the efforts and work of Bill Strachan, professional at the Wichita Falls Golf and Country club, according to George D. Fairtrace, city manager.

Strachan has laid out and planned the course and greens for a better game at the municipal club, Mr. Fairtrace explained, and has materially assisted those who are members of the public club.

The municipal club is operated at a low cost so that the average citizen who does not wish to belong to the clubs which involve more expense, may enjoy golf at a nominal cost. Strachan has given his services free to the city in rebuilding the course, and Mr. Fairtrace said he wished the public to know of it.

Longhorn Ball Schedule Made

Disch's Nine Faces Hard Playing Program

AUSTIN, Texas, Dec. 11. (AP)—With football laid aside for the season and basket ball soon to pass on, the candidates for places on "Uncle" Billie Disch's Longhorn baseball team are now limbering up preparatory to the spring training season.

Disch has announced an interesting schedule, including games with the world champion New York Yankees, the New York Giants and the fast Osaka team from Japan. Either Babe Ruth or Lou Gehrig, the home run wallopers, will be in the game at Clark field, but which of the two clouters it has not been definitely determined. The Yankees will be split into two teams for training season games and one of the star fence busters will be with each section, precluding the appearance of both in the lineup at Austin. Disch's schedule will be as follows:

March 6: New York Giants at Austin.
March 8: New York Yankees at Austin.
March 27 and 28: T. C. U. at Austin.
April 5 and 6: S. M. U. at Austin.
April 5 and 6: Rice at Houston.
April 12 and 13: Texas A. & M. at Austin.
April 17 and 18: Baylor at Waco.
April 26 and 27: Baylor at Austin.
April 30: Osaka team of Japan at Austin.
May 3 and 4: T. C. U. at Fort Worth.
May 6 and 7: S. M. U. at Dallas.
May 12 and 13: Rice at Austin.
May 20 and 21: Texas A. & M. at College Station.

Aggie Basket Ball Practice Under Way

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Dec. 11. (AP)—With the release of seven players who have been claimed by varsity football, the real work of molding the 1928-29 Texas Aggie basket ball team is under way. Coach C. F. Basset is putting his squad of 22 cage candidates through daily drills in an effort to round a formidable quintet into shape for the opening game Dec. 4.

The men released from football for cage practice are S. J. Petty, captain and forward; W. M. Davis, forward; J. E. Brown, center; H. D. Phillips, center; E. K. Martin, forward; J. D. Harris, guard, and Field Scovell, guard. Petty, Davis and Brown were letter men on the Aggie quintet last season and Phillips and Martin are freshmen numeral men from last year. Scovell and Harris were outstanding intramural players last year.

The Aggies' first games will be Dec. 14-15 with the Sam Houston Teachers at Huntsville.

Greatest Back in Rockies

DENVER, Dec. 11. (AP)—The 1928 football season in the Rocky Mountain conference passed in review without producing what might be termed an outstanding team, but in Earl (Dutch) Clark, Colorado college quarterback, it uncovered the greatest star that ever stalked across a gridiron in the intermountain region.

Football observers, old and new, gave the "Flying Dutchman" unstinted praise. His own coach, William T. Van de Graaff, an all-American end at West Point and a member of the coaching staff at Alabama when the "Crimson Tide" was at its height a few years back, described Clark as one of the greatest backs he had ever seen in his football experience, and by all odds the greatest he ever coached. George MacLaren, an all-American fullback at Pittsburgh, now coach at Wyoming university, said of Clark:

"He's in a class all by himself; one of the best I've ever seen. Put that boy in the Eastern limelight and give him a good line and I daresay that from punt formation few tacklers would touch him."

Good on Any Team

John Zach Jordan, an all-Eastern halfback at Dartmouth a few years ago, and now one of the leading officials in the Rockies, expressed the belief that Clark would have made any backfield.

It is doubtful if there ever was a player in this section who combined mastery of all football's essentials as has Dutch Clark. He did all Colorado college's kicking, and did it well, having a season average of nearly 50 yards in punting. He handled the goal-from-touchdown assignment and did that well, averaging 90 per cent of his attempts.

The big Dutchman played defensive fullback and was rated as one of the best in that respect that ever graced a conference gridiron. The way in which he handled the team was flawless. "You can always depend on Clark to do the right thing at the right time," Coach Van de Graaf says. "At diagnosing situations that arise during the heat of play, I don't believe Clark has an equal out here."

Scores Many Points

Exclusive of the final game on the Colorado college schedule, Clark scored 96 points—13 touchdowns, 15 goals from touchdown, and one drop kick of 40 yards. With one exception he was responsible for every touchdown scored by his team, being on the throwing end of a highly-developed passing game evolved by Van de Graaf. Clark generally was conceded to be the best passer ever developed in the Rockies. Rounding out the "triple threat," Clark was by all odds the best ball lugger turned out among 12 teams in the Rockies, turning the end and tackles equally well, and using a cutback and a stiff-arm with devastating effect.

Clark, a six-footer, is 23, weighs 183 pounds and is a three sports man. His home is in Pueblo, Colo., and he comes of an athletic family. Two years ago he was selected as an all-American center at the University of Chicago's national basket ball tournament.

Dailey Ends Grid Forecast With 799

Picks 284 Winners, Has 22 Ties in 381 Games

Larry Dailey closed his football prognosticating for the season by picking four winners in five games last Saturday. He finishes the season with a record of .799, a very excellent achievement in these days of grid upsets and with so many teams playing a high-class brand of football.

Dailey picked 284 winners and had 75 losers and 22 ties in 381 selections for the season. His forecasts each Saturday, following with a weekly resume, were read with much interest by grid enthusiasts in this section.

He picked an exact score last week—forecasting the 27 to 6 victory of Tulsa over Haskell Indians by that actual result. He picked Georgia Tech to beat Georgia by 26 to 20 and the score was 20-6; he had the right margin of Alabama's win over Louisiana State, which he had picked as 19-7 and resulted 13-0. Dailey picked North Carolina to beat Duke by 26-0 and the result was 14-7.

The game which he forecast wrong was Tennessee's 13-12 triumph over Florida; he had picked the 'Gators to win by 13-0. His season's record follows:

Around The Ring

By EDWARD J. NEIL

NEW YORK, Dec. 11. (AP)—Now that the football season is over, fight fans find in the wreckage of a trying season one of the brightest ring prospects of a decade.

His name is Al Lasman, giant captain of the New York university eleven, and a tackle with few peers in any section of the country.

Until the violent Violets met Carnegie Tech in Pittsburgh, Lasman was the toast and prize of every important fight manager in the East. Now it is improbable that he will ever pull on a glove in professional competition.

Late in the fourth quarter of that contest, after playing the game of his career, Lasman was so badly injured about the head that he lay unconscious in a Pittsburgh hospital for over two days. Although physicians reported no fracture of the skull or neck injury, the big fellow was understood to have suffered a partial paralysis of the left arm from the terrific shock and concussion.

The wise men of the racket considered Lasman the find of the season. Six feet four inches tall, 210 pounds of the heft and speed of a natural athlete—the type that can do anything on any sports field—the brawny Lettish youngster from Cambridge, Mass., was looked upon as a certain heavyweight title contender in the making. He was fast and loved to fight.

Moreover, boxing was his game, football a sideline. In 1926 Lasman fought as a member of the New York university boxing team and knocked out every man who faced him. The next year his "buddy" and tackle mate on the eleven, Galahad Grant, won the crowns when Lasman, still recovering from a broken leg suffered against Colgate, was unable to defend the intercollegiate championship. He planned to turn professional next spring after graduating from N. Y. U.

Lasman, now apparently out of the boxing game forever, started along the fistic trail in a strange manner.

As a student at Cushing academy in Massachusetts, he boxed a great deal with other youngsters. The urge caught him to find out how good he was. So with only the assistance of a pint-sized, red-headed roommate—and an excuse from the headmaster to go home and visit his sick mother—Lasman stole away to Boston and entered the amateur championships.

That night produced some of the strangest of fistic sights and plenty of sensations. With only the roommate as a second, a big bottle of water for stimulant, and nothing in the way of counsel, Lasman knocked out the first few men to face him and then lost a decision in one of the final bouts to a eager veteran amateur, who danced about until the big, gangling youngster tired himself out. Lasman was on the floor three times, but he kept getting up until the final bell rang.

Later, in the dressing room, the red-headed roommate nursed Lasman's hurts, fussed about him tenderly, and sputtered congratulations at the splendid showing of the green youth. Lasman was inconsolable.

"Look at that eye," he mourned, covering a swelling optic that was rapidly turning blue. "Just look at it. How the dickens will I ever explain to the principal how I got that visiting my sick mother?"

TEXAS ELEVENS HIGHLY RATED

State Teams Now Recognized as Among Best

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—One of the last football regions to be recognized, is Texas, where the game is as highly developed among the high schools as among the colleges. Good football players who used to leave Texas and go North and East are now staying home.

Southern Methodist university sent the first Texas eleven East the past season and amazed Eastern fans with its dazzling offensive, built around a deceptive passing game.

Army, which was stronger in October than in November, had its hands full beating the Mustangs, 14 to 13. When S. M. U. came East all other Texas teams sent telegrams of encouragement before the game, but when S. M. U. got back home it was something else again. All teams pointed for the Mustangs and every game was a big game.

The great machine which almost beat Army was wrecked in winning from Texas University, 6 to 2. Redman Hume, S. M. U.'s nimble-footed halfback, was carried from the field with a serious injury and was lost to the team for the rest of the season.

Texas Wins Title

Then Baylor beat the crippled Mustangs, 7 to 0, and Texas Christian university administered another defeat Thanksgiving day, 15 to 6.

Although beaten by S. M. U., Texas university won the Southwest conference championship for the first time since 1920. Texas won five conference games and lost one.

The Southwest conference is composed of seven schools, S. M. U., Texas university, Baylor, Texas Christian, Texas A. & M., Rice and Arkansas. Only Rice had a bad season, all of the others winning most of their games.

Many great players have been developed in the Southwest the past few years. Gerald Mann, former S. M. U. star quarterback and now backfield coach at S. M. U.; Rags Matthews, former T. C. U. end; Joel Hunt, former Texas A. & M. fullback, and Siki Sikes, former Texas A. & M. end, were the stars of the 1927 season. Mann, Hunt and Matthews were the stars of last year East-West game at San Francisco.

Outstanding Stars

The outstanding players developed this season were Redman Hume, Ross Love, fullback, Choc Sanders, all-America guard, Charlton Pincher, halfback of S. M. U.; Gordy Brown, tackle, Rufus King, fullback, Ed Beular, quarterback, Texas; Williams, tackle and Griffith, halfback, T. C. U.; Beavers, fullback, Arkansas; Bartlett, tackle and Petty, end, Texas A. & M.; Koch, guard and Gilliland, halfback, Baylor.

Three schools have modern stadiums built within the past three years and the others have splendid facilities. A crowd of 45,000 saw the annual Texas-Texas A. & M. game in Texas university Memorial stadium at Austin. The Texas-S. M. U. game drew 25,000. The Texas-Baylor, Baylor-S. M. U., S. M. U.-T. C. U., Texas A. & M.-S. M. U. games all drew more than 20,000.

The type of football played in Texas is similar to the far western brand. The offense is given more attention that the defense, and a consequence all games are a spectacular variety. S. M. U., under Ray Morrison, former Vanderbilt star, has developed the forward pass to the fullest limit of its possibilities. D. X. Bible, Texas A. & M. coach, a member of the rules committee, once famed for his defensive teams, now has turned his attention to the offensive.

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

GEORGE UHLE finally has been traded. The veteran pitcher of the Cleveland Indians goes to the Detroit Tigers, and NOT to the New York Yankees. The world champions had been reported as receptive to a trade by which they could acquire the big righthander. But either Colonel Rupert and Miller Huggins did not offer sufficient inducement, if any, or they were not seeking Uhle.

The swap of Uhle has been hinted for a year. He is a pitcher of great ability. But in recent seasons Uhle has been an in-and-outer. It has been intimated that he was not satisfied with his environment and would welcome a change of scenery.

NOW THAT HE WILL disport himself in a white uniform instead of gray at Detroit, the question is, will he make the most of it? If Uhle pitches the sort of baseball of which he is capable, and shows the form that made him a leading hurler in 1926, the Tigers will have the best of the deal. Otherwise, the Indians will profit more by the transaction. Kenneth Holloway, the pitcher, is a hurler of no little ability himself and Johnny Tavener is an infielder of skill. This pair should at least be more valuable to Cleveland than Uhle was in George's indifferent season this year.

I MUST EMPLOY a secretary to keep me informed on the various football games to be played by all-star elevens throughout the country. Right here in Texas there are a couple of games scheduled and I believe I finally have them straightened out. It seems that all-stars of the Southwest conference and the Texas conference are to meet Dec. 29 at Fort Worth. Then an all-star Southwest conference eleven is to play an all-star Big Six team Jan. 1 at Dallas.

CONFUSION OVER those games is caused by the fact that players in each will be almost identical and that Matty Bell, T. C. U. mentor, has a hand in coaching the squad for both contests. The scheduling of two games within four days is as a result of the rivalry between Fort Worth and Dallas. As I understand it, Fort Worth originally planned its game. Then Dallas sought Texas university, conference champions, to meet a leading team in an intersectional game. When that fell through, due to opposition at Austin, Dallas arranged its own all-star contest.

Both games should be interesting exhibitions of football and in a fashion a comparison of the game as played in the various conferences involved. The Big Six, incidentally, is the new league that was formed a year ago by schools which seceded from the Missouri Valley conference. The Big Six includes Nebraska, the champion, Oklahoma, Missouri, Kansas, Kansas Aggies and one or two more, I believe.

* * *

ONLY SENIORS in their schools may participate in all-star games which will prevent a few leading sophomores and juniors from playing. Football players can't display their best game after a layoff of a month, and team work of course will be at a minimum, arguments against such games being exhibitions equal to college contests. One might find an argument against all-star post-season games in that they over-emphasize football, and that a gridder should not be engaged in practicing for such contests several days prior to the games. However, that is none of my concern—the only interest I have is trying to keep the names of the teams and where and when they play correctly. I now have them right—so file this for reference. I may get all mixed up tomorrow.

Conference Gridders Train at Fort Worth

FORT WORTH, Dec. 11. (AP)—Twenty-five Southwest conference stars selected to compete in benefit football games in Fort Worth and Dallas will meet here for their training, it was announced today by Coach Matty Bell, in charge of the Southwest stars. Only 15 of the number will compete in the game to be staged in Fort Worth, Dec. 29.

Boyd of Howard Payne has been substituted for Cowan, Sul Ross halfback on the all-star eleven selected by Coach Frank Bridges to compete against Bell's eleven. Cowan will participate in the East-West game on the Pacific coast.

Halfback Named Leader Of Kansas Grid Eleven

LAWRENCE, Kan., Dec. 11. (UP)—Steward Lyman, Columbus, Kan., halfback on the Kansas football team this year, was elected captain for the 1929 Jayhawk eleven at a meeting here tonight preceding a dinner given this year's squad by the Lawrence rotary club.

The names of 26 players who will receive their letters this year were announced at the banquet.

All-Conference Players to Face Big Six Eleven

DALLAS, Dec. 11. (AP)—Clyde Littlefield, coach of the Southwest conference champion Texas university Longhorns and Matty Bell of Texas Christian university will coach an "all-star" Southwest team which will meet an all-Big Six squad in a Shrine benefit football game here Jan. 1, it was announced tonight.

Men who will represent the Southwest conference include Garland Beavers, Arkansas fullback; Jake Williams, Texas Christian guard; Bill Ford, Baylor end; Red Petty, Texas Aggie end; Beau Love, Southern Methodist fullback, all of whom received votes for conference playing honors.

Ten of the eleven players selected by a majority of those picking a Big Six all-star unit will be invited by Coach Bearg of the champion Nebraska Cornhuskers to join the Big Six team, officials here are informed. The eleventh, being a junior, is understood to be ineligible to participate.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Dec. 11. (AP)—January contracts recovered 78 points from yesterday's low level on an active session on the cotton market today, selling up to 20.33 for a net advance of 58 points. This is within 6 points of the quotation prevailing prior to publication of the government's crop report Saturday. January closed at 20.30.

Today's session was featured by covering or rebuying by recent sellers and an increased trade demand. The latter was accompanied by talk of a slightly steadier tone in the Southern spot situation. The general market closed strong with net advances of 41 to 55 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 17 to 23 points in response to relatively steady cables. Prices eased off a few points right after the call under some Southern selling and further liquidation, but the offerings were comparatively light and the market soon turned firmer.

A feeling that the long interest disturbed by the increased crop figures of last Saturday had been pretty well liquidated, probably encouraged the buying which followed.

The market showed considerable activity in the late trading when there appeared to be a revival of commission house demand and the buying became more urgent. Contracts were relatively scarce after the early selling had been absorbed and prices worked up quite rapidly to 20.40 for December and 20.27 for May or 52 to 58 points net higher on the general market list. There was more realizing in the last few minutes, but final prices were within 3 or 4 points of the best.

Reports that there were indications of some stiffening of the spot basis in the Southwest were considered a factor on the advance, although no definite figures were mentioned. Brokers with both Wall street and Western connections were reported buyers during the afternoon. Private cables said that further liquidation had been absorbed by covering, with Bombay and continental buying in Liverpool, and that the market there was considered well liquidated. Exports today, 21,785, making 4,052,213 so far this season. Port receipts 84,699. U. S. port stocks, 2,382,633.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 11. (AP)—Cotton prices advanced over $2.50 a bale today under a broad demand made up of covering, trade buying and in the late trading speculative purchasing. Although there were several minor reactions January ultimately advanced to 19.63 and closed at 19.60, or 50 points net up. The general market closed steady at net advances of 49 to 50 points.

Liverpool cables were 3 to 7 points better than due and first trades showed gains of 18 to 23 points. The execution of some overnight buying orders carried prices up a point or two additional. January sold up to 19.33, March 19.42 and May 19.38, or 22 to 23 points net up.

The higher prices attracted profit-taking and January sold off to 19.25 with active months generally trading off 8 to 9 points from the top. Offerings were absorbed at the decline and traders rebought on a bullish consumption estimate by a private authority coupled with a statement by a prominent private bureau predicting higher prices for cotton.

Later there was some buying attributed to Western interests for speculation purposes and before the demand was supplied January sold up to 19.63, March 19.70 and May 19.70, or 51 to 54 points above the close of yesterday.

There was a renewal of realizing right at the end and prices receded 2 to 4 points from the top. March closing at 19.68 and May 19.66, or 49 to 50 points net up.

Call Rate Decline Causes Market To Become More Active in Selling

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Dec. 11. (US)—Further easing in the call rate influenced continued advance in the stock market today. The trading community remained a little timid but the drop from a renewal of 8 to closing of 7 per cent in charge for demand funds brought in sufficient demand to further help the good stocks and encourage renewed pool operations in others.

Packard reflected its technically cornered condition by soaring 15¼ points, while Greene Cananea jumped 13¼ and Bethlehem Steel 5⅝. Steel, General Motors and other standard industrials climbed quietly to the extent of from 1 to over 2 points. Radio recovered 15 points more. Sinclair, with recovery of 2⅛ points, was the outstanding feature of a stronger oil list while Erie led the rails into higher ground.

While the continued strength relieved nervousness somewhat, the lesson of last week kept trading to below the 4,000,000 share level. Further ease in money was indicated by granting of accomodations outside of regular channels at 6½ per cent.

Tips Are Numerous

The manner in which tips were circulated this afternoon would indicate that last week's lesson has been forgotten already. Of course the main influence to the bullishness was the further easing in money and but a few stopped to think that the bankers can jack up rates again whenever they so desire. It is folly to believe that a three-day reaction can correct six months of speculative excesses. The majority of traders, however, believe they will have a good market until Christmas and are encouraged in such belief by most brokers.

Experienced traders took advantage of the recovery to get out of stocks they were caught in when the bottom suddenly fell out of the market last week. They know that support rendered early this week was necessary if business conditions were not to be disturbed by a too drastic break in stock prices.

Senator King's proposed legislation to limit brokers' loans is one of the reasons why the "powers-that-be" want a quieter market for the next two months. If unrestrained bullishness breaks out again as threatened this afternoon, another shakeout will be experienced soon.

Coppers Bullish

The coppers were the subject of repeated bullish advices. It is over a year ago that this column told of the high grade buying of the red metal schares and the promising prospects thereof.

Now such "pups" as Ohio and other stocks of high cost producing companies are being tipped, while there is the best kind of liquidation throughout the group on every advance. Schulte Stores, good selling of which was described here several weeks ago, registered a new low.

Bethlehem Steel was the outstanding favorite of the increasing number of bulls. Even elevator operators had the "tip." They all forecast a $5 dividend rate in January. This is the same forecast made about a year ago. However, this time earnings appear to warrant such expectations. Packard ran a close second with estimates made that net for the fiscal year to end next August 31 would be $10 a share on the basis of the $2.60 a share earned for the quarter ended Nov. 30. Radio and Victor were both well bought as there is reason to believe that announcement of combination of the two properties will be made before long and that it will hasten split up of Radio stock on a five for one basis.

General Motors new stock has been quietly accumulated in fair volume by those who are in the best position to know of conditions in the automobile world as a whole and the outlook for the corporation. Investigation reveals no expectation of any immediate development of importance. It shows confidence, however, that the corporation will show the best fourth quarter earnings in its history for this period and complete satisfaction with the outlook for 1929. In fact the whispers heard would indicate that the earnings next year would prove as much of a surprise as did those of Biscuit and Can after those corporations split up their stocks.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 11. (AP)—(U.S.D.A)—Cattle trade around the 11-market circuit was marked by another uneven decline on most all killing classes; short fed offerings in both the beef steer and light killing contingents were specially difficult to move with values at some centers 25@50c lower. Aggregate receipts were estimated at 49,800, an increase of 2,000 over a week ago but 10,500 short of the same day last year.

Fat lamb trade at several points was fairly active at steady to slightly higher figures but Chicago, after a steady opening to shippers and local butchers, closed weak to 25c lower to packers. Light supplies of aged stock turned at unchanged prices. One deck of prime 75 pound lambs at Chicago scored $14.25. The supply approximated 21,500 against 48,434 last Tuesday and 74,843 a year ago.

Prices on hogs were unevenly steady to 25c lower. The most decline showed at Chicago on closing rounds. A few markets, after a slow start at 10@15c lower levels, closed moderately active at steady to 10c lower rates. The day's top of $8.70 was paid early at Chicago. Total offerings were around 147,900, a shortage of 14,000 from a week ago and 3,700 less than a year ago.

CHICAGO REVIEW

CHICAGO, Dec. 11. (AP)—Broadening of export demand for corn today at the highest premiums yet this season helped lift the corn market and other grain as well. It was estimated too by a leading authority here that already there has been 50,000,000 bushels more farm use and country marketing of corn than a year ago.

Corn prices finished strong at practically the day's top level, 1⅛c@1⅞c@2c up, with wheat showing 1⅛c@1⅜c gain. Oats 1c@1¼c advance, and provisions ranging from 5c decline to a rise of 75c.

Activity and higher prices formed the rule in the corn market from the start. Not only there evidence of a resumption of foreign demand, but corn belt prospects of rain and of mild temperatures indicated likelihood of at least a temporary let-up in the movement of corn to market.

As much as 13¾c a bushel premium over the price of December delivery of corn here was reported as being offered for No. 2 corn available to be shipped to Europe by way of the Gulf of Mexico, free on board vessels before Jan. 1. Under such circumstances, recent speculative sellers made haste to reserve their market position.

Meanwhile, numerous standing orders to buy, and thus put a stop to losses on future delivery contracts were automatically forced into execution on the advance. Pit offerings, however, were relatively scarce. Nevertheless, liberal reinstatement of speculative holdings for higher prices appeared to have taken effect as the day drew to an end.

Wheat and oats paralleled the action of corn. Some improvement of export inquiry for wheat from North America was noted, and world prices for wheat were talked of as relatively low. Despite word of good progress of the wheat harvest in Argentina and Australia, a good class of buying developed here, houses with connections East and Northwest taking the lead.

Provisions reflected the upward trend of grain and cotton as well as of hogs.

5-Year Record

The Standard Milling company is one of the world's largest producers of flour which it distributes under extensively advertised brands and trade names. It owns all the stock of 10 subsidiary companies. These concerns, with the parent company own flour mills, elevators and warehouses in Minneapolis, Superior, Kansas City, New York and several places in Ontario, Canada. The mills have a capacity jointly of 40,000 barrels a day.

These plants are advantageously located both with regard to wheat producing sections and markets. The expansion of the company has been continuous and is still going on. All plants and equipment are understood to be modern and up-to-date. Earnings have varied somewhat according to the wheat market. For the annual period ended June 30, 1928, net income was $1,698,508. This compared with $1,772,752 for the preceding year and $1,242,815 for the 10 months ended June 30, 1926.

Funded debt totals $7,103,000. Capital stock outstanding consists of $6,488,000 in 6 per cent non-cumulative preferred of $100 par value and $12,497,342 in common shares of $100 par. The preferred is non-redeemable and has equal voting power with the common. Regular dividends are being paid at the annual rate of 6 per cent on the preferred and 5 per cent on the common.

As of June 30, 1928, total current assets were $13,198,398, current liabilities $1,331,077, and net working capital $11,867,321. Book value applicable to the capital stock amounted to $108.99 a share. This was exclusive of $6,199,786 for good will and trade marks. The company follows a policy prohibiting speculating on wheat, hedging on its requirements in futures to avoid loss through market fluctuations.

PACKING PLANT HERE GROWING

Steady Demand For Hogs And Baby Beef

Approximately 400 hogs and 300 baby beeves selected from all over Southern Oklahoma and Northwest Texas are being killed each month at the plant of the Wichita Packing company, on the old Burkburnett road north of the city.

This plant was established less than three years ago and has become a dependable and desirable outlet for a part of the livestock produced in this vicinity, as well as encouraging the increased raising of cattle and hogs for the market.

Livestock Prices Strong

From the day the factory began operation, the management has specialized in pasture fed calves from 6 to 10 months old selected from herds all over this part of the country. At the present time, part of the supply is being taken from the feed pens of West Texas, and, according to Mabe Poole, manager, considerable searching is necessary to find a sufficient number of calves of the required quality. These animals dress out about 250 pounds each.

During the warmer months of the year the proportion of beef killed at the local plant is much heavier, reversing the present situation in which about 65 per cent of the meat dressed out is pork. All of the output of fresh meats, bacon, sausage, hams, luncheon, meats, etc., are absorbed by the markets in this city and others within the county.

Cattle are being bought at from 8 to 11 cents, varying with quality, while hogs are bringing their raisers from seven to eight and a half cents. Aside from the thousands of hogs converted into pork and pork products, the Wichita Packing company has shipped to other markets several carloads of hogs grown in this community.

Produce Markets

A number of new items in the supply of fruit for the Christmas trade will be offered by local produce houses during the coming two weeks.

New carload lots of late crop apples from the Northwest are coming in this week. Different varieties of large Texas grapefruit are also available. From Florida and from South Texas large numbers of tangarines and Alabama satsumas, are being added to the holiday offerings. Choice kumquates are expected by the first of the week.

Cotton showed surprising strength on Tuesday's market, gaining 40 points to show a quotation of 18.40 with local buyers.

Invalid Song Writer Sells New Lyric Here

Elmore Everett, invalid song writer who was forced to change his profession from civil engineering to that of lyrist when he was stricken 12 years ago, made his third visit to Wichita Falls Tuesday and contracted to sell his latest song hit, "My Down East Rose," to the Wichita Music company.

This song is Mr. Everett's fourth number. He is president of the Everett Publishing company at Dallas and spends most of the year on the road selling his songs. He has visited 23 states this year.

Mr. Everett graduated from the University of Michigan as a civil engineer and it was while following his chosen profession that he was stricken with paralysis due to overwork and exposure.

Physicians predicted that he would be forced to spend the rest of his life in bed but the stricken man has made considerable improvement and is now able to get around in a wheel chair without assistance.

16 TO GO ON FIRST AIR TRIP

Christening of Plane Set For Saturday

A total of 16 persons desiring air transportation to Dallas next Saturday morning will mean that the Faith, new 4-passenger cabin Stinson Junior monoplane of the Wichita Falls Air Transport company, will make its inaugural commercial flight under the shadow of a huge Ford tri-motored cabin plane which is scheduled to arrive here early Saturday morning, and which will be available for the large party of first day passengers.

Representatives of the Master Aeronautical association of Minnesota were in the city Tuesday making arrangements with officials here for the visit of the big "tin goose" to Wichita Falls Saturday, when it will land at the airport on the Henrietta road. The plane will remain in Wichita Falls several days, it was said. Advance agents were endeavoring Tuesday to secure sufficient passengers to enable the big ship to accompany the Faith on the opening flight of Wichita Falls-Dallas daily passenger service, thus making a total of a score of passengers from this city on the first trip.

Christening ceremonies for the plane are set for 9 o'clock Saturday morning, Charles I. Francis, Mayor J. W. Akin and Hubert Harrison will make short talks. Miss Dorothy Katherine Allison is to act as sponsor in the christening. Following the ceremony, Mayor Akin, Mr. Harrison and Miss Allison are to be taken for a short ride over the city, after which the plane will take off for the inaugural trip of the first passenger air line into the city of Dallas from any direction. Dudley Rider has been named as pilot, and will be accompanied by Fulcher Armstrong, president of the transport company; Mr. Francis, president of the chamber of commerce, and a representative of The Record News and Daily Times. It was said that the plane will stop in Fort Worth, and that celebrations of the opening of the air line are being planned in both Fort Worth and Dallas.

Town Fights Fire Threatening Field

BEAUMONT, Texas, Dec. 11. (AP)—The whole town of High Island, Galveston county, was fighting a fire tonight threatening the oil fields to the west. About 6:30 p. m. a short circuit ignited Marrs McLean's Cade 12, which came in a producer on Dec. 3, flowing 1,200 barrels a day. At 8 o'clock tonight the derrick had toppled over but the Christmas tree is holding.

The workmen are throwing up a levee about the well to keep the flames from spreading to the boiler-house, tool house and surrounding oil wells. The Gulf wells are two miles to the south and the shallow pool two miles to the east.

A Skipping Fool

Dr. McCoy Tells How To Prevent Colds And Flu

Record News Writer Contributes Special Article on Keeping Healthy in Winter Time

By FRANK McCOY
Noted Health and Diet Specialist

Why is it that most of the colds, influenzas, and pneumonia occur during the months of December, January and February? Many people believe that these illnesses occur because of the cooler weather, but scientists are now coming to the belief that the body is less resistant to these diseases when it is deprived of the normal amount of sunshine present during the summer months.

McCOY

Upon careful observation it has been found that those who work out-of-doors at this time of year do not suffer as much from colds as those who work in-doors and coddle themselves with heavy clothing every time they step out-of-doors. Aviators, Alpine climbers, street corner men, newsboys, postmen and farmers are comparatively free from colds except during the periods when they stay in-doors a great deal. During the war the soldiers at the front who were exposed in the trenches, and the sailors on the sub-chasers who worked in all kinds of weather, had a high record against contracting colds as compared with those who stayed at home and worked in offices.

Three Causes

I have studied cases of the different respiratory diseases in thousands of patients, and it seems to me that there are only three fundamental causes; fatigue, overeating and a lack of sunshine. In many parts of the world only one-half to one-third of the amount of sunshine reaches the earth in winter as in summer, and in the cities the amount reaching the earth is even less than this because of the thick curtain of smoke overlying the industrial districts.

It is well known that the ultra violet light of the sun, by reaching the skin, produces practically the same effect as vitamin D, which is present in many food substances. This lack of sunlight would not be a serious factor if the diet of the winter months were as well balanced as the diet of summer.

Winter colds can usually be blamed on the use of an excessively high calory diet. As the cold weather comes on, everyone develops an appetite for the heavy starchy foods, and these almost invariably form the principal part of every meal. This desire for the richer foods is made worse because most of the protective foods, such as the fruits and vegetables—so rich in vitamins and alkaline elements, are either unobtainable during the winter months, or they are sold at such exorbitant price that the buyer for the family does not feel that it is a good investment to purchase them. The body becomes so stuffed with food excesses that the system attempts to throw out some of the toxic wastes by producing copious exudations through the mucous membranes, causing them to become highly inflamed. If this does not happen, some other internal diseases is apt to develop. Those who become fatigued from mental overwork or worry, or from nerve-racking exhaustion from shopping, easily develop colds because they are too enervated to properly carry on the normal elimination of toxins through the skin, lungs, kidneys and bowels.

Danger of Enervation

The enervated person is always toxic, with usually a sluggish liver, and with constipation and its attendant perils. One who overworks or wastes nervous energy cannot have enough nerve strength left to keep metabolism balanced. He can consider himself fortunate if only a cold develops and not some other more serious disease, such as influenza or pneumonia.

During the cold months people spend very little time indoors, preferring to stay within heated rooms where the air is none too fresh. You have probably noticed that your first serious cold of winter developed immediately after the heating plant started its operation.

If you wish to guard against the disorders of winter, you should see to it that your diet contains a large amount of the protective vegetables and fruits, such as lettuce, spinach, cabbage, carrots, oranges and grapefruit. Also, it would be well not to use too many of the starchy foods, but to use a fair amount of protein foods, and a larger amount of the vegetable oils. It is also important that you guard yourself against becoming over-tired. Going to bed early is one of the best protective measures against the occurrence of these respiratory diseases.

Even during the winter months, it is possible to obtain sun baths by exercising in the open in your bathing suit, or without clothes, if you have sufficient privacy. There are several institutions where tubercular children play and have school in the snow during the winter months. Some of these are located on the snowy, sunlit banks of the Alps in Switzerland and in the Adirondacks of the United States. In these institutions, the children, clad with only loin cloths, play in the sun and they do not catch cold. In fact, there have been many remarkable cures of tuberculosis and scurvy among these children. Of course, when they are inactive and not playing, their bodies are kept warm by protective garments and furs.

Oppose Extremes

Let these facts be an inspiration to all of us. Most of our sickness results from physical and mental inertia, and we should take the proper precaution, not by leading an inactive existence in a stuffy, hot room and eating rich foods, but by seeking the active life and eating a well balanced diet. One who understands, and really carries out these suggestions, not to the extreme of being a crank, but in moderation, should be no more troubled by sickness during the winter months than at any other time of the year.

If you have not already developed a severe cold by this time of the year, you would do well to take the warning immediately, and cut down on your food supply, eliminating from your diet most of the cereals, flapjacks and heavy foods that may have become more or less of a habit during the winter months.

Influenza, also known as la grippe or epidemic catarrh, recurs almost every year at about this time in a mild epidemic form. There have been numerous flu epidemics in the past, but none as serious as in 1918. It is believed that some atmospheric change determines the severity of this disease, but the exact cause of its spread is unknown. There are many instances where isolated ships or colonies have contracted influenza without any known means of communication with epidemic areas.

This disease usually starts with a sudden attack of fever, chilling, shivering, headache and pains throughout the muscles of the body, followed by an acute sore throat. The urine becomes highly colored, indicating that the body is excreting a great deal of poison through the kidneys. The bladder becomes irritated and sometimes inflamed.

Influenza may attack any organ of the body, but the three principal forms are: the respiratory, where the lungs and bronchial tubes are affected; the nervous, where the central nervous system is especially affected; and the digestive. People with good vitality, who are young and slightly overweight, seem to be especially susceptible to influenza, although it respects neither age nor sex.

Influenza is always preceded by two harmful conditions, auto-intoxication and enervation. Late hours, mental overwork and destructive habits of thought are the principal causes of the enervation, and the auto-intoxication may be produced by overeating, wrong food combinations or constipation.

If influenza is prevalent in your community, it is a wise plan for you to develop such a fine state of health in your body that you cannot develop this ailment. Start by giving yourself a good bodily housecleaning. Stop all regular food for four or five days and take a fruit fast, using some one kind of acid fruit three times daily in place of meals. You can get good results by taking your choice of these fruits: Oranges, grapefruit, grapes, pears, pineapple (without sugar), or tomatoes. Use only one kind of fruit on any one day. For instance, if you use oranges for breakfast, you should use oranges at noon or at night on that day. The next day change to one of the other fruits if you desire.

At the same time as you take the fruit fast, you should keep your bowels open by using one or two enemas daily.

Develop your strength and endurance by exiercising more each day. If you have been working long hours, cut the hours down to not more than eight hours, five days of the week, and try to get out into the country over Sunday. The open air in the pine woods seems to be an especially good preventive.

If you will follow this advice, you will be able to avoid an attack of influenza, but if you are already attacked, the treatment is different. Many deaths from influenza are due to neglect in the beginning, and the treatment should not be delayed.

Treatment Explained

When you feel an aching in your limbs and your temperature is above normal, go home at once if you are working, and do not try to finish your day's work. As soon as you are home, take an enema, using two quarts of warm water and drink water until the bowels are thoroughly cleansed. Next, take a hot tub bath, lying in the water as hot as can be borne without burning, for about 20 minutes. Dry quickly and wrap yourself between some real woolen blankets. You will have the best results if you do not use a sheet or other cotton, linen or silk material between your body and the wool. Place plenty of covers on top and a hot water bottle at your feet. Someone will have to assist because after you begin to sweat you must not uncover. The woolen bedclothes must be well tucked down so that no cold air will be drawn under the covers if you turn over. Drink a glass of hot water every 30 minutes as long as you are awake. You will soon begin to sweat and will continue to do so until your fever has disappeared. If the head becomes congested, relief can be had through applying a cold compress to the forehead.

This sweating should be continued for several hours and then a tepid bath should be taken and the patient placed between dry bedclothing. If the fever continues, an occasional very short, cold shower may be used, followed by a brisk rub-down. This sweat may be repeated each day for the first two or three days.

An enema should be taken morning and evening, using a bed pan if necessary, since it is not advisable to expose the patient for too long a time to the cold air. If the fever remains high and the patient does not sweat, he should be given warm sponge baths every hour until he starts perspiring.

It is of the utmost importance that after the beginning of the attack no food of any kind be given except water, which may be flavored with lemon or orange juice. It is not advisable under any circumstances to get out of bed for at least 24 hours. Once the temperature has reached normal and your appetite has returend, you may start eating any kind of food in proper combination. However, you may not feel very hungry for a few days and it is advisable to only use acid fruits during this period. The theory that the body requires nourishing food at this time is erroneous and has probably resulted in many deaths which could have been prevented by the method I have just outlined.

Calisthenic exercises should be taken the second day after the temperature is normal, and short walks taken each day, gradually increasing the distance. You will feel weak at first, but your strength and vitality will quickly return if you follow these instructions, and you can avoid the bad after effects, such as tuberculosis, kidney and liver disorders.

During the fever, the hacking cough will persist, but you will not raise much mucus until the fever has disappeared, and then you will probably notice that the mucus increases for about a week or two. This is normal and the mucus will gradually disappear if you follow the correct diet.

These plain, commonsense instructions have worked without fail in thousands of cases.

Hard Work Turns Ideas Into Money, Club Told

Ideas plus hard work make success, according to the formula of Ralph DeShong, expounded at the regular weekly luncheon of the Advertising club Tuesday.

The speaker explained that money making ideas must first be practical and then have the backing of unremitting labor before they turn into cash.

Members of the community Christmas tree committee of the club were authorized to expend not more than $100 toward the setting up of one or two trees in the Municipal auditorium. The club's own Christmas party is scheduled for next Tuesday's luncheon.

Everyone knows the fun on a circus ground, so Lillian Murry and her company at the Olympic are offering "Circus Days" for a feature bill Wednesday and Thursday. It opened Tuesday and gives the audience as much money value as any bill the Zippity Zip company has presented this season.

You will see all the animals, the elephants and the tricks they do; all the freaks of nature, and best of all the comedy between Elmer Wright and Lillian as they go to the circus for the first time.

Fred Ewen as the ringmaster, Fat Wilds as the kid brother, Billy Martin as the confidence man, Florence Holland as Polly, and Betty Martin as "Dynamite" help make bright spots in the show.

The feature scenes are the Wow scene, the Elephant scene, the Hiring scene and the Balloon scene.

The big circus opening of the show and the balloon finale are outstanding features and relieving specialties are given throughout.

Victor Varconi, Phyllis Haver and a good company are seen on the screen in "Tenth Street," which is a movie far better than the average.

Pauline Frederick and Bert Lytell in the all-talking movie, "On Trial," continue to draw good comment from the holiday crowds.

D. W. Griffith, who produced "The Battle of the Sexes," the show opening Saturday at the Majestic, has produced more great pictures than any other director and producer. The one which made a greater impression on the American public than any other was "The Birth of a Nation."

The feature talk of the evening was by Bert King, who told of the relation of business to the constitution of the United States. He was constantly heckled by the merry-makers and finally gave up the effort as had been prearranged. D. C. Littlepage made a short address in which he praised E. L. Buelow and presented a 1910 model graphophono to Mr. Buelow.

The first part of the evening was devoted to the eating and to the features and fun. Dancing followed, with those who play bridge going to the lounge where the card tables were set.

Bonding and Insuring of Truck Lines Approved at Meeting Here

Transportation Agencies Plan Permanent Organization And Plan Board of Arbitration for Section

Bonding and insuring of motor truck lines was virtually agreed upon and given definite form Tuesday morning when between 30 and 40 men, representing the largest shippers and truck operators from Dallas, Fort Worth, Oklahoma City, and Wichita Falls, met at the chamber of commerce and approved that organization's recent suggestions for uniform bonding and insurance provision.

According to leaders in the movement for betterment of freight trucking conditions both the truck operators and the shippers came into the meeting with the determination to accord full cooperation to all three parties in working out plans for greater stabilization in the industry.

Following the general conference which was held at 10 o'clock with J. L. Maxwell, chairman of the motor truck committee of the manufacturers and jobbers division, presiding, the truck operators held a separate meeting in which they took preliminary steps for the organization of a local truck operators association which will work with the Texas Motor Carriers' association, recently organized at a meeting in Dallas.

The truck committee met again at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the chamber of commerce for the purpose of discussing details of the bonding proposition. The proposal made at the morning session was that each trucking operator be bonded in amount of $5,000, with the chamber of commerce acting as trustee. Other chambers of commerce in the same territory would be furnished with a list of properly bonded trucking concerns, thus making the one bond cover operations throughout the territory. The amount of the bond will probably be left undetermined, however, until further organization of the truck operators and shippers make possible the appointment of two members from each body, who, with a fifth member chosen by the first four, will comprise a board of arbitration for the handling of all issues arising within the industry in this territory. It was said that this board, when formed, would probably be assigned the task of fixing the amount of the bond, and that a limited graduation might be made for the benefit of smaller operators.

The trucking concerns, with J. P. Tarry named as temporary chairman, set Dec. 20 at 10 a. m. as the date of their next meeting, at which time they will complete permanent organization, and commit the association definitely to the plan proposed in Tuesday's meeting here.

R. E. Penick, chairman of the manufacturers and jobbers division of the chamber of commerce, stated that he was issuing a call for a special meeting of the entire division at the chamber of commerce at 10 o'clock, Tuesday, Dec. 18. A general conference of trucking concerns is set for Monday, Dec. 17, at Dallas, for the purpose of perfecting a state association. Mr. Penick emphasized the importance of every member of the division which he heads being present at the Dec. 18 meeting in order that with the truck operators organization meeting on the 20th, all phases of the movement may be brought together to have the plan fully established and in operation by the first of the year.

ONCE IN A GREAT WHILE

A picture comes to town and leaves without our patrons realizing that it is truly a remarkable film, and such is the case with "ON TRIAL" now at the STRAND, and for this reason I am personally calling your attention to this attraction. "ON TRIAL" to me compares favorably with "THE SINGING FOOL," not in theme but in heart interest. Baby Vondell Darr, a girl of 6, will give you one of your greatest thrills when she appears on the witness stand in behalf of her father—well, you must see it to appreciate it—and I sincerely hope that every man and woman at the head of a household in Wichita and this territory will see this production.
