SPECIAL TRAINS CARRY RELIEF FOR MERIDIAN

LEGISLATURE ACTS

Legislature Railroads Appropriation and Send Convict Gangs to Do Work

Special to The Telegram.

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 3.—A staff correspondent of the New Orleans Item, who is at the scene of the Meridian, Miss., tornado, writes:

The cyclone that struck Meridian at 9:27 o'clock last night, is known to have killed eighteen and injured twenty-four and did $2,000,000 property loss.

The pathway was two hundred yards wide and extends over three miles long.

The greatest loss of life is reported in the cotton mills settlement in East End, where the cotton mill was half destroyed and over five hundred houses wrecked or completely demolished. In that quarter the ignorant people suffered much from terror and the relief work was very slow.

$8,000 Raisod at Meeting

At a mass meeting of the people of Meridian nearly $8,000 was raised for immediate relief work.

The state legislature appropriated $5,000 and rushed a special train of convicts from the Rankin county farm for working with the rescue parties. Hunter George, president of the Board of Trade, was made chairman of the general executive committee and J. Will Donovan, secretary of the Board of Trade, secretary of the committee.

Business is practically suspended and every citizen is bending energies toward alleviating the suffering.

Alarming and sensational reports are being brought in by many parties from the outlying districts, but none are verified and the following list of dead and injured is believed to be almost complete:

The known dead are:

WILLIAM NELSON, former chief of police.
P. L. PERRY, policeman.
CLAUDE WILLIAMS, employe of Meyer.
MRS. ELLA SINGLETON.
MAXIE SLAUGHTER.
MRS. SINGLETON.
JAMES STEWART.
CLARENCE STEWART.
JORN SMITH.
MRS. BABE SMITH.
MRS. CLARK.
INFANT CHILDS OF WILLIAM WRIGHT, a negro.
PEATE McHNNIS.
CLIFF EDWARD.
BEN POTTS.
TOM SHEROD.
ED BROWN.
JOHN RAMSEY.

The known injured are:

Mrs. Albert Slaughter, still unconscious and may not live.
Ella Bell Slaughter, daughter of Mrs. Albert Slaughter.
Mrs. James Stewart, leg broken and seriously bruised.
B. B. Henderson, thigh broken.
Mrs. Henderson, hole in head and cut on arm.
George Henderson, badly bruised.
Johnnie Bokin, back hurt.
John P. Leland, back broken; will die.
John Whale, leg broken.
Effie Dunn, severely injured; will live.
Mrs. Wilkerson, hand broken and other bruises.
Minnie Keller, 19 years old; leg broken.
Sarah Wright, bruised and crushed; negro.
James Wright, internal injuries; negro; will die.
Miss Bones, badly injured.

W. B. Yates Safe

Special to The Telegram.

HILLSBORO, Texas, March 3.—Tom Miller, a business man of this place, received a telegram this morning from his brother, W. B. Yates, connected with the Meyer-Neville Hardware company of Meridian, Miss., stating that he and his wife escaped without injury from the cyclone at that place.

No Warning of Storm

Special to The Telegram.

NEW ORLEANS, Ya., March 3.—Like many of the furious tornadoes of the past, which have torn cities to the ground and sent men, women and children to early graves, the one which spread death and destruction over Meridian, Miss., and vicinity last night came unawares. Not the least warning did the atmospheric conditions give a few minutes beforehand of the great catastrophe that was to follow the clearing of the sky after it had rained all day.

The storm did its work in five minutes. Suddenly all was black in the skies, a flash of lightning brightened the streets for the fraction of a second, and then a sharp peal of thunder which proved to be the death knell of several scores of persons, the mighty storm bore down on the city with a fury that knew no bounds, even after it had wrecked buildings and hurled roofs down on the heads of human beings. Sweeping from the Southwest to the northeast, the storm carried everything smaller than a modern office building along with it. Many buildings utterly collapsed under the weight of the terrific wind.

The principal business street of Meridian is a vacant strip of territory, many blocks of debris. Only one building, Armour & Co.'s plant, was left standing. Here the property loss was most felt, as many big business houses lost everything.

When it had demolished Front street the storm spread its wings over the entire city, evidently dissatisfied with the tearing up of property only in stripe. It reached over and annihilated the Young Men's Christian Association building, the city's pride; then came the turn of the Meridian cotton mills, and, following, the tornado tarried long enough to almost completely wreck the old Union depot which Meridian has cast aside.

Suddenly, when all in the city was quiet, save the roaring of the wind and the cries of stricke humans, there pealed out bells and whitles. As suddenly as the storm came up, fires broke out in half a dozen sections of the city about the same time. The militia was called into service, and now all hands that were busy caring for the wounded and the dead were called into service to check the flames, which threatened to devour that part of Meridian which had not been ruined by the hurricane. With the streets blocked with the timbers that had been torn asunder by the fierce storm, the work of saving buildings from destruction by fire was started slowly, and slowly it necessarily proceeded. It was a hard fight, with great odds against the workers on two sides. Even then the storm had not subsided, and the wind threatened to make out of the smallest blaze a great conflagration, which would not stop until the entire city was a mass of wreckage.

Town Seemed Doomed

For an hour Meridian appeared doomed. A great many thought that not a vestige of the city would be left. Then for the first time flashed the thought of appealing to other cities. But there the city was up against it also. The telegraph and telephone wires were down, and it was only after hours of hard work that New Orleans and Jacksboro were told that their services were needed to save Mississippi's metropolis. Special trains which had already been got in readiness when the two cities first heard of the calamity which threatened Meridian were hurried along. In different parts of the city the fires raged. Squads of men hurried to and fro, bucket brigades di dthe best service, but bucket brigades could not check some of the fires until the fuel that lay in their path had been burned.

PUERTO CORTEZ HAS QUARANTINE

Horduras Port Puts Up Bars Against New Orleans

Special to The Telegram.

NEW ORLEANS, March 3.—Great surprise has been occasioned by the singular and as yet unexplained action of the authorities in Puerto Cortez, relating to the placing of a five-day quarantine against this city, and allowing Mobile free access to the Spanish Honduras port. Although the action of the authorities has not as yet, so far as can be learned, been officially passed upon by the Honduras government, the news came as a bombshell to those interested in Central American trade.

Consul General J. J. Fernandez, representing the Honduras government in this port, said he had received no official communication from his government relative to the matter, and that he knew nothing of it until this morning, but on learning of the action of the authorities at Puerto Cortez, he had immediately cabled to President Bonilla of the Honduras Republic, and is now awaiting a reply.

Mr. Fernandez could in no way explain the matter, and seemed at a loss to understand the action, but believes that everything will be readily settled in a satisfactory manner to this port.

In speaking of Dr. Richardson, now detained from going to Puerto Cortez, on account of serious illness, Mr. Fernandez said that a physician was greatly needed in Puerto Cortez to take charge of the health conditions and to see that the screening of cisterns and other matters were speedily and carefully attended to, and, further, that some one should be sent to that port as soon as it was possible.

MERIDIAN NOT NEEDING FUNDS

Board of Trade and Cotton Exchange Issue Statement

Special to The Telegram.

NEW ORLEANS, March 3.—The following dispatch from J. Will Donovan, secretary of the Meridian board of trade, was received by the New Orleans Item late tonight.

"In view of the highly colored accounts of the cyclone of Friday night that found publication this morning the board of trade and cotton exchange request that you announce officially that Meridian is amply able to take care of her own unfortunates, sufficient funds being raised for the purpose at a mass meeting held today, and does not desire, nor could she accept outside financial aid of any kind. While appreciating the sympathy and good fellowship displayed in these proffers, it is well to be understood that Meridian is not yet impoverished, her people being easily able to meet the present emergency. J. WILL DONOVAN,
"Secretary Board of Trade."

Learned Trade Years Ago Under Judge Dillard

Special to The Telegram.

WAXAHACHIE, Texas, March 3.—When the news of the death of Governor Hogg was received here District Judge Dillard said he was one of the greatest men that Texas ever produced. Governor Hogg learned the printing trade under Judge Dillard when the latter edited a paper at Rusk many years ago.

6,000 LIVES LOST IN FIERCE HURRICANE

Islands in Society Group South of Hawaii, Scene of Wind and Waves' Terrific Fury—Story Brought to San Francisco by Steamer

AMERICANS HAVE NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH

Special to The Telegram.

SAN FRANCISCO, Mar. 3.—Tahita and all the islands of the Society group were swept by a tremedous tidal wave on the night of Feb. 7, and the tidal wave was followed by one of the most destructive hurricanes ever known in the South Seas. More than one hundred islands were devastated, the principal one, Tahita, probably suffering the most in proportion to its size, and about 28,000 persons were affected by the great disaster.

The steamship Mariposa, commanded by Capt. Lawless, brought the news today, but it had sailed from Papeete before the full extent of the disaster was known. At Papeete there was little loss of life, but almost the entire city was destroyed. Nearly a hundred neighboring islands more exposed than Tahita to the force of the sixty-foot tidal wave, are reported to have been practically swept away. The smaller islands are of coral formation with about twenty feet of soil above sea level at the most.

There are reports that these islands have been cut down to the level of the sea, and if that is the truth, probably not less than six thousand persons perished.

The Maripposa called at the islands that had been wrecked, but was unable to discover any signs of life. There has been no such tragedy in the south seas during modern times. The water front of Papeete suffered most terribly, being almost totally destroyed and houses swept 200 yards up town. The postoffice and harbor master's residence were entirely destroyed. The streets are obstructed by broken houses, furniture, lumber and bedding.

In the harbor of Papeete lies the island of Motua Hua. It is used as a powder depot by the French government. One man lives there as guardian of the powder. When the sea rose to an enormous heights than man sought to save his life, but when he went to get his boat he found it had been washed away. With a lantern he made distress signals to the shore which were duly noted by people there. The pilot of Papeete manned a boat and tried three times to go to the poor man's assistance, but the task was hopeless.

The American consulate fell half an hour after its occupants had left it, saving very little except their lives.

The storm did not limit itself to Tahita, but raged also in the Leeward islands and other islands around Tahita. The Leeward islands suffered mostly from wind.

South of Hawaiian Islands

Tahiti or Otaheitee is the largest of the Society islands, which are located at about twenty degrees south latitude, directly south of the Hawaiian Islands. They are some little distance east of a direct line from San Francisco to the islands of New Zealand. Tahiti is situated at a latitude 17 degrees, 29 minutes south and longitude 149 degrees, 29 minutes west. It is generally high, reaching 7,336 feet at its highest point, but traversed by beautiful and fertile valleys. It is 120 miles in circumference, with an area of 401 square miles and had about 10,000 inhabitants, who have been converted to Christianity. It is the principal island of the French establishments in Oceania and contains Papeete, the capital of the colony.

The total area of the Society islands is 636 square miles, and the total population 16,000 inhabitants. All the islands are mountainous. In the center some of them rise to the height of 8,000 feet, but they all have a belt of low land extending between the foot of the mountains and the sea, and they are generally surrounded by coral reefs. The inhabitants are Polynesians and most of them are Christians. It is said that there are still some cannibals residing on the islands. The chief exports are mother of pearl, copra, cotton, vanila, sugar and coffee.

CAPITOL FLAG AT HALF MAST

State Pays Tribute to Memory of Governor Hogg

LANHAM AFFECTED

Governor Eloquent in Praise of Former Executive—Body to Lie in State

Special to The Telegram.

AUSTIN, Texas, March 3.—The sudden death of former Governor James S. Hogg at Houston today was received in state official circles with much regret, as Governor Hogg was universally liked and admired by the state house officials.

In official circles it is said that it will have a direct bearing on the political future of Texas, as Governor Hogg was recognized as one of the biggest men, politically, that Texas ever produced.

Governor Lanham was visibly affected when he received a telegram from Houston conveying the sad news. He immediately issued orders for the state department to close, out of respect to the dead.

Flag at Half Mast

The flag on the state house was placed at half mast. In an interview obtained from the different state officials, all conceded that Governor Hogg was one of the greatest men that Texas ever produced, and his memory will ever be revered by Texans. Governor Lanham paid this glowing tribuuteto the memory of Governor Hogg:

"I have known Governor Hogg for many years and have witnessed with extraordinary interest his remarkable career. He was indeed a wonderful man, and had impressed himself indelibly upon the history of the state.

"He was possessed of an unusually strong intellect, which on all occasions was self-assertive. He was a man of great positiveness of character, and maintained with undaunted courage his judgment and convictions upon all public questions. He was an-

A PERSONAL APPRECIATION OF THE LATE GOV. JAMES STEPHEN HOGG

BY HEC A. McEACHIN

There has been a great change brought about in Texas political conditions by the death of James S. Hogg at Houston. Hogg was unquestionably the strongest political factor in all Texas, and it was expected that he would be a strong figure in the state campaign this year. It was expected that his voice would be raised against the dangers he believed were confronting the people, but that voice so often heard in defense of the rights of the masses is forever stilled in death. The restless and resistless energy sufficient to propel its owner over every form of obstacle that could possibly be devised will know no awakening this side of eternity, and the people of Texas have lost much.

Friend of the Masses

It is well known that James S. Hogg felt an abiding interest in the affairs of the masses and was ever ready to respond to any call that came up from the common people for a champion. He was the uncompromising foe of trusts, combinations, trickery, ring rule, corporate domination, encroachment or federal judiciary and every form of abuse and oppression that even threatened the people. He felt that all he was and all he had ever hoped to be was the result of popular favor, and Hogg was never a man to lose sight of his slightest obligation to the people. He was quick to respond even to an intimation that his services were necessary, and his fights were never characterized by any lack of energy.

When Hogg went into a fight he went in with the firm intention of winning and he often won by the mere force of his pugnacious qualities. Few are the occasions in which he failed to make a winning, and in fact, the failure to land some constitutional amendments placed before the state democratic convention and a subsequent democratic state legislature conquest about the only failures that stand to his credit.

And while Hogg voluntarily eliminated himself from public life in Texas, he never lost interest in Texas state politics. It will be remembered that when the fingers of death were almost upon him and he left Texas for the mountains of Colorado last fall, he issued a public statement in which he promised to give the people of Texas some political issues for the impending campaign.

It was expected first that he would deliver an address in this city on Labor Day, when he would launch the issues he believed the campaign should be conducted upon. But he was unable to do this on account of the condition of his health. Then came the announcement that he was rapidly regaining health and strength and and would speak at Dallas during the fair in October. But when the fair was inaugurated Governor Hogg was unable to deliver the expected address, and again the people were disappointed.

There came rumors at many times that he favored a certain man in the race for governor and would soon make public declaration to that effect. But if Hogg had any such intentions they were never carried out, and his choice for governor of Texas this year will not be heralded from the hustings as expected. There was a long and painful silence as to the movements of Governor Hogg until the memorable day when he reached this city a few months ago, a complete wreck of his former robust self.

Fort Worth had no intimation of his coming. It was not known that the man so dear to the Texas heart was in our midst until the papers told of his attempt to reach Mineral Wells in the hope of regaining his health, and how he had to be stopped here and given medical treatment of the heroic kind. And when friends of James S. Hogg looked upon the suffering form and saw the ravages that disease had made upon that robust frame and iron constitution, they realized that death had marked James S. Hogg for its own and the end was rapidly drawing near.

Grim Battle Fought Here

There was a determined battle waged for weeks in darkened chambers of the Worth hotel between medical science and the disease that was carrying the great man so close to death's portals, and for the time being medical science won, at least to the extent of staying the hand of death and deferring the day when the final account must be settled.

Friends from far and near thronged the hotel and eager questions were on every lip as to the condition of the man who has made political history in Texas. And when the rally came and the big man was permitted to return to south Texas, those who had seen clearly understood. They knew that the days of James Stephen Hogg as a political factor in Texas had come to a close and henceforth the people must mourn the passing of a mighty friend and champion.

When the news came to The Telegram Saturday evening that Hogg was dead it was no surprise to those who were acquainted with the real situation. The announcement occasioned much grief and many expressions of sincere regret, but the people of Fort Worth and all Texas had been prepared for its coming. They knew that for months James S. Hogg had been waiting that summons which must come to us all, and they remembered the brave words he uttered when death was hovering over his pillow in this city but a few months ago.

Not Afraid of Death

The King of Terrors had no terrors for James S. Hogg. When he was brought face to face with the Grim Reaper he did not cry out and importune for just a little more time in which to get his house in order. He expressed himself with calm confidence as to the future, and looked down into the valley of death where the lengthening shadows were gathering without one single tremor. Standing on the very brink of the grave and reviewing the years that lay behind him, as all mortals are said to do when they realize impending doom, James S. Hogg found nothing in his career that called for any feeling of uneasiness. So he prepared to go down and cross over the dark river with nothing to molest or make him afraid.

The life of this man was a singularly pure one when viewed in the light of modern political methods. It is often said that in this day and time no man can be a successful politician and remain an honest man. But the career of this man is ample refutation of the argument. He went out of the governor's office at Austin the day his term closed a poorer man than when he assumed the position, and it was only lucky investments in the south Texas oil filed and a large and lucrative law practice that enabled the former governor of this state to find the competence he so richly deserved. He was a poor man during all the years he served the people, and it was only when he took up the battle of life anew for his loved ones and began to look after their interests that he really prospered. Hogg's devotion to his family was one of his most marked characteristics, and as a husband and father he was truly a model.

Generous to Friends

No man who ever lived in the state of Texas was more generous to his friends than was James S. Hogg. And no man in all Texas ever felt more interest in the common people. He was quick to fight every form of oppression and quicker yet to take up the cudgels for those he felt were experiencing any form of imposition. His memorable tilt with the Southern Pacific railway, when as governor he compelled the company to haul out of the desert the large number of unemployed men they had dumped there, was a striking evidence of his disposition in that respect. These men had taken possession of Southern Pacific

WIDESPREAD MOURNING FOR LATE GOV. HOGG

LOCAL TRIBUTES TO GOV. HOGG

Many Expressions of Esteem for Dead Statesman

Following are some of the tributes paid in Fort Worth to the late Governor Hogg by men who knew him intimately and were more or less closely connected with him in his political life. These are but a portion of many which could have been secured. Some of Governor Hogg's best friends, personal and political, are absent from Fort Worth and could not be seen:

By Colonel R. M. Wynne

"Jim Hogg, the idolized champion of the common people, is dead, and there will be universal mourning throughout this, his well beloved state, as the news is flashed from city to hamlet, from home to home, among the people he loved so sincerely and who loved him truly for his courageous devotion to their rights. No man who ever lived in Texas received, or deserved, greater devotion from the toiling masses, those of the laborers who live by the sweat of their faces, than this dead statesman, whose great heart ceased to beat this day. None ever wrought more faithfull nor with more courage or the good of his state. By his matchless leadership Texas has been placed far on the road of protection from corporate greed and rapacity. The statutes of Texas, inspired by him, designed to protect the people from corporate oppressions and exactions, will stand as a monument to his great name, more enduring than brass or marble. He will live forever in the gratitude of those of the present generation, for whom he has done so much, and in the grateful memories of the succeeding generations, who will reap the rewards of his work.

"The people who have so long looked to him in times of great political discussions for counsel and advice will sorely miss him and his dauntless leadership in the present and coming campaigns, where the fight between corporations and the rights of the people are to be renewed. And I fear they will look in vain for one to fill his place. Then let us take the message he sent to the legislative banquet at Dallas last fall as his farewell message to the people of Texas, for it has so proved, and inscribe on our banners as a sacred duty to enact into laws the reforms advocated by him in that address.

"In no other way can we show more sincere nor greater love for his memory. Knowing the man as I did I am assured that nothing could be more grateful to him, could he realize it, than that very purpose of his later life was so revered by the people of Texas as a sacred principle that they continued its advocacy with the confident hope that it, being the right, would prevail. It would be his greatest monument and most in accord with his heart's sincerest wish.

"To his memory perpetual esteem. To his ashes peace. That is the prayer of his friend."

By Judge C. K. Bell

"The death of Governor Hogg is a calamity. He was an able, honest and good man, the peer of any in Texas, and while his death was not unexpected by those who knew of his condition, it came as a shock to every man. Governor Hogg was a strong man intellectually. He had so many strong points that it is difficult to determine just wherein he was strongest. His death is a serious loss to Texas."

By C. R. Bowlin

"The death of ex-Governor Hogg will be felt in Texas politics and in all probability will defer the enactment of certain reforms laws and the adoption of certain orders that he has and would have continued to advocate. He was the only man in the state who in the coming election could have wrested the United States senatorship from Mr. Bailey. He was one of the great men of the age, not only of Texas, but of the United States. He was a patriot, a statesman and an honest man. His death is a heavy loss to the state. He should have lived longer for the good of Texas."

CHADWICK MONEY INSIDE THE LAW

Speaker Cannon Turns the "Cassie Buncoe" Joke

Special to The Telegram.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 3.—Speaker Cannon has turned the joke of his being bunced by Cassie Chadwick in the house against his brethren by an explanation of how he happened to be fooled.

"When I first saw the Chadwick money," said Mr. Cannon today as he came out of the White House, "I wondered if it could be possible that some plutocrat had invaded the sacred precincts of this body and dropped a $20 or even a $50 bill. But the more I thought it over the more convinced I became that there was a mistake, something wrong, and that the precincts of the house had not been contaminated by the presence of a plutocrat.

"When I picked it up, looked at it carefully, and found that my surmises were correct, I knew that the great representative body was still free from suspicion of harboring a man with that much money."

The incident of "Uncle Joe" being fooled by the Cassie Chadwick money caused Chief Wilkie of the secret service today to say that it did not come under the law, but was just inside of it.

Expression of Sorrow Heard From All Classes

MESSAGES POUR IN

Telegrams of Condolence From All Over Country Received by Members of Family

Special to The Telegram.

HOUSTON, Texas, March 3.—A pall of mourning is spread over this city tonight. In all classes there is sorrow over the death of a beloved veteran statesman. Every tongue capable of speech has spoken the name of Governor Hogg with reverance.

The news of his death came as a great shock, although the people knew he was feeble. From all over the United States have messages of condolence poured in to members of the bereaved family.

Dies While Sleeping

It was 11:30 today that Miss Ima entered the room in which her father had been sleeping at the home of his law partner, Frank C. Jones, and, instead of the unconsciousness of sleep, as she believed was upon him, found the pallor of death. He had been dead several hours. Death came easily, and probably while he slept.

For weeks he had been enfeebled and had spent the time at his plantation home in Brazoria county. He decided to go to a sanitarium at Battle Creek, Mich., and, preparing for this trip, came to Houston five days ago. He was to have been accompanied by his daughter, Miss Ima. Pending the preparations, they stopped at the Jones home. The governor was cheerful, and last night met friends and conversed with them with his usual wit and brilliancy. About a year ago he entered the practice of law in this city. He was then suffering from the effects of an injury to his back which he had received in a train mishap on the Columbia tap.

Suit Still Pending

A dropsical condition ensued. Suit was entered for $90,000, and his heirs were named as plaintiffs, the governor having anticipated that death would come to him before the issue was settled. He went to Colorado for several weeks. His condition there was improved, but such was of short duration. The three sons and daughter of the dead man are with the body tonight, and the house has been besieged by mourning friends. When the news of death was announced today telegrams were sent through the country notifying relatives and friends. An automobile was dispatched to Humble for his son, Will, and telegrams summoned the two other sons, Mike and Tom, from Austin.

The body will be shipped to Austin on the Houston and Texas Central railway at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Born Near Rusk

James Stephen Hogg, former governor of Texas, one of the most prominent lawyers of the Lone Star state, was born near Rusk, Texas, on March 24, 1851, and was educated in the common and high schools of that town. At the early age of 22 years he was made a justice of the peace of Wood county, serving in that capacity for two years. He became attorney for the Seventh judicial district of Texas in 1880, which office he retained for four years. The year 1886 saw him attorney general. In 1890 he was elected governor, which office he filled until 1895. Since that time he has been actively engaged in the practice of law.

Mr. Hogg was heavily interested in oil. He was also one of the principal stockholders in the German-American Insurance Company. A couple of years ago he became famous as the most extensive cabbage grower in Texas.

The former governor throughout his life was almost invariably the storm center of some controversy or other. It is said that a place in Alton B. Parker's proposed cabinet was offered him for his support of Parker in the democratic nomination. He turned the offer down.

Before his fatal illness began Mr. Hogg weighed 375 pounds. He used to wear a big slouch hat, a twenty-two inch collar, a black broadcloth frock coat, a little narrow black necktie, and square-toed Texas boots.

In October, 1906, while on his way to Mineral Wells, Texas, for his health Governor Hogg suffered a collapse in Fort Worth. He was removed to a hotel, where he lay in a critical condition for several weeks, attended by several surgeons.

At that time he was told that unless he submitted to an operation his chances of recovery might be regarded as slight. With characteristic determination Governor Hogg refused to submit to the surgeon's knife, at the same time expressing a determination to recover. His will power triumphed and he eventually recovered sufficiently to be able to return to South Texas.

Since that time reports of the serious condition of his health had been frequent.

Among the noted incidents of Governor Hogg's political career was the establishment of the Texas railroad commission, a body after which many of the state railroad commission in the United States have been modeled.

Hogg's Last Message

His last public participation in politics was by means of a phonographic message to a meeting of leading Democrats in Dallas, November 6, 1905. At a banquet attended by prominent Democrats from all over Texas, a message which Governor Hogg had spoken into a phonograph was repeated by that instrument to the guests, Governor Hogg being at that time ill in Fort Worth.

The message which was characteristic of the ex-governor and his love for Texas, was as follows:

"Mr. Toastmaster and Gentlemen: In a recent nocturnal voyage on the watery waves of despair I drifted over the vortex of eternity, but was wafted back by the breath of Fate. In this sensational journey I forgot neither my God nor my state. To Him I stood ready and willing to render a final account, with no fear of my place in the

SUMMER PLAN IS INCOURAGED

State University Authorities Elated at Outlook

FOR CERTIFICATES

Arrangements Being Made for Course of Study for Teachers Wishing Examination

Special to The Telegram.

AUSTIN, March 3.—The authorities having in charge the arrangements for the university summer school for 1906, are receiving encouragement from every side and especially from the teachers of the state, and every indication points to a most successful session. The announcement of the school will soon be issued from the press, in the form of a university bulletin. These schools will open June 1 and close August 3, the last week of the session being devoted to examinations.

Special advantages will be offered to teachers, and especially those desirous of obtaining teachers' certificates. In the university summer normal, a part of the regular university summer school, special attention to training will be given with this end in view, and courses in all subjects will be given upon which persons desiring such certificates will be examined, except the elementary studies of reading and spelling. And at the close examinations for state certificates will be held at the university.

In the academic department fifty-seven courses will be offered in botany, chemistry, education, English, French, German, Greek, geology, history, Latin, mathematics, physics, physiology, political science, Spanish, manual training and domestic science.

Faculty Increased

The faculty will also be materially increased, and more than forty officers and instructors are to be employed. In addition to the professors and instructors of the university, there will be a large number taken from a number of important schools, and workers over the state. The additional members of the instruction force are as follows: H. C. Pritchett of the Sam Houston normal institute; P. W. Horn superintendent of the Houston city schools; A. N. McCallum of the Austin city schools; Carl Hartman, superintendent of Travis county schools; S. M. Harrs of the Terrill schools; Miss Bettis, of the state normal school of Wisconsin.

University Athletics

With the early opening of spring and ideal weather, Coach Hutchinson has already gotten out the baseball squad and work on the field is down in earnest. Captain Francis is stirring up all the ginger there is in the "freshies" and is making the old men wake up. Some already promising men have shown up in the new material in just a few day's practice and it is already predicted for a sure thing that they will make the team and root some old men out. The manner in which they take to the practice has already caught the coach's eye, and their appearance of being perfectly at home on the diamond has caught the attention of the students.

They have been divided into squads according to their classes, and class spirit is beginning to manifest itself somewhat in the practice. If the glorious good weather continues for a few weeks longer the class games can be pulled off in fine shape and much earlier than ever before.

While Cully Brown, Neil Wathen and many others are attracting attention for good work, Mike Hogg seems to be the star freshman at the present moment. Manny Graham needs an assistant in the box and all are anxiously waiting and watching to see if Mike will make good. It is expected that the season will open early in April.

SYMPTOMS OF BRIGHT'S DISEASE

The spread of Bright's Disease is so profoundly stirring the health departments of the large cities that mention of commonest symptoms is timely.

Puffiness of the eyelids or swelling of the ankles or hands in the morning; also dropsy in the abdomen.

The obstructed kidney increases the blood pressure and the heart may become involved and painful. This is often attended with an asthmatic condition or shortness of breath.

As Bright's Disease commonly starts as kidney trouble, any kidney disorder that has lingered longer than three or four months is notice of the chronic danger point, and that it can be no longer trifled with.

There may or may not be sediment. Often in advanced cases there is no visible sediment.

Failing eyesight, drowsiness and uraemic headaches are all advanced symptoms.

A pale, pasty complexion, with weakness, is also to be regarded as suspicious.

We desire to place in the hands of those having Bright's Disease a 56-page report on a large variety of test cases put on Fulton's Renal Compound for Bright's Disease. It shows 87 per cent of recoveries in this hitherto fatal disease. The pamphlet is free.

213 INSURANCE COS. QUALIFIED

STATE LENIENT

Law Says "Settle by March 1," But Department Will Allow Some Weeks

Special to The Telegram.

AUSTIN, Texas, March 3.—Out of a total of about 400 different kinds of insurance companies doing business in Texas, there has been exactly 213 that have thus far qualified. With the exception of the fraternal organizations, the time for granting permits to these concerns expired on March 1, but according to the custom prevailing in the state insurance department, these insurance companies will be permitted to enter the state for several weeks yet.

Commissioner Clay stated today that this would be done as heretofore. The annual statements and applications for a renewal of permits of a large number of companies have been received by the department, but they have not as yet been qualified, and their permits have not as yet been renewed, as before a permit is renewed the statements have to be carefully audited and other papers carefully examined before any action is taken. This takes considerable time and taxes the office force of the department to the utmost.

The increase in the tax rate of all old line and stock companies has not deterred any of the companies from entering the Texas field, and when all the companies have been admitted it will be found that there will be fully as many, if not more, than for the previous year. The Texas anti-trust laws have not had the effect of keeping any of the big companies out of the state, as those companies all recognize that Texas is a productive field for insurance business.

Of the 213 companies that have thus far qualified, twenty-seven are fraternal organizations, twenty-four life insurance companies, 120 fire insurance companies, twelve mutual associations, and thirty stock companies, generally known as plate glass companies.

There have been comparatively few fraternal organizations entered this year, as last year there was a total of 146, but as there is no limit as to when this class of companies may enter the state, it is expected that there will be as many this year as there were for the previous year.

ADMITTED TO BAIL

Habeas Corpus at Waxahachie for Joe Williamson

Special to The Telegram.

WAXAHACHIE, Texas, March 3.—Joe Williamson of Rockwall county, who was placed in jail at Rockwall on a serious charge, was before District Judge Dillard here yesterday on a writ of habeas corpus to secure bail. The defendant was brought here by Sheriff Anderson of Rockwall. Attorneys interested in the case and several witnesses were also in attendance. After a number of witnesses had been examined the defendant's bail was fixed in the sum of $1,500.

SHOOTS ELEVEN 'POSSUMS AT ONCE

Houston Nimrod Breaks All Previous Records

Special to The Telegram.

HOUSTON, Texas, March 3.—R. A. Bond of this city made a remarkable shot a few days ago, bringing eleven opossums from the top of a tree at one time. There were several persons who witnessed the exhibition. Mr. Bond and others were in the San Jacinto river bottoms and it was in the early morning and chilly when he and his companions spied something in the top of a tree that resembled a grizzley bear in general outline and size. He fired with both barrels of his shotgun and then followed a veritable rain of 'possums, eleven in all came to the ground. They had been rolled together in one great bunch. The spectacle was a most unusual one and the shot is pronounced the greatest on record in the 'possum line.

INVALUABLE FOR RHEUMATISM

I have been suffering for the past few years with a severe attack of rheumatism, and found that Ballard's Snow Liniment was the only thing that gave me satisfaction and tended to alleviate my pains. March 24, 02: John C. Degnan, Kinsman, Ills.

COTTON TAKEN; ADDRESS LEFT

Ellis County Officer Looks for Stranger

Special to The Telegram.

WAXAHACHIE, Texas, March 3.—Deputy Sheriff J. H. Alexander, who owns a farm a few miles from Waxahachie, is looking for a man who took several hundred pounds of cotton from his wagon in the field the other night. A large hole had been made in the cotton where the man is supposed to have slept part of the night, and from one end of the wagon a large quantity of the staple had been taken.

A note was found on cotton, thanking the owner for the comfortable quarters provided for the accommodation of a man who was in hard luck. The writer of the note gave a street address in Brooklyn, and added that if the man who owned the cotton would call there he would be royally treated. Officer Alexander would like to have his cotton returned, but he has no idea of going to New York to look for it.

ARRANGING FOR ENTERTAINMENT

Knights Templar to Meet at Waco April 25

Special to The Telegram.

WACO, Texas, March 3.—There was a meeting last night of Waco Commandery No. 10, Knights Templar, at which time committee reports were made as to arrangements in connection with entertaining the meeting of the state commandery Knights Templar April 25. All arrangements are progressing satisfactorily, and local committees will see that the visitors receive every attention.

A SCIENTIFIC WONDER

Heart Trouble

The heart itself has no power—no self-control. It is made to beat by a tender nerve so tiny that it is scarcely visible to the naked eye. Yet ten thousand times a day this delicate nerve must assist the heart to expand and contract.

This nerve is only one of the branches of the great sympathetic, or Inside, nerve system. Each branch of this system is so closely allied with the others that weakness or irregularity at any point is apt to spread. Heart trouble frequently arises from Stomach trouble through sympathy, and Kidney trouble may also follow. For each of these organs is operated by a branch of these same sympathetic nerves—the inside nerves.

In Heart, Kidney or Stomach troubles, it is of but little use to attempt to doctor the organ itself—the most permanent relief lies in restoring the Inside Nerves. Dr. Shoop regards these nerves to be the real cause of such troubles. The remedy—known by physicians and druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Restorative—is the result of years of endeavor along this very line. It does not dose the organ to deaden the pain—but it aims to go at once to the nerve—the inside nerve—the power nerve—and builds it up, and strengthens it and makes it well.

Every heart sufferer may have Dr. Shoop's book on the Heart. It will be sent free, and with it you will receive the "Health Token" an intended passport to good health.

For the free book and the "Health Token" you must address Dr. Shoop, Box 9863 Racine, Wis. State which book you want.

Book 1 on Dyspepsia.
Book 2 on the Heart.
Book 3 on the Kidneys.
Book 4 for Women.
Book 5 for Men.
Book 6 on Rheumatism.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative

Dr. Shoop's Restorative Tablets—give three weeks treatment. Each form—liquid or tablet—have equal merit. Druggists everywhere.

NEW POSTMASTER TO GET RAISE

Salary of Lon Barkley, According to Receipts, $3500

The business of the Fort Worth postoffice for the month of February determines that the next postmaster will enjoy a salary of $3,500 per year, as against $3,400, or $100 less, which is now the salary. The salary of a postmaster of the closs in which is the Fort Worth office, is determined by the receipts. These come from several sources. Taking them, in reverse order, they are box rents, collected quarterly, second class postage and the sales of stamps, postal cards and stamped envelopes and postal supplies.

The receipts for the last month were $14,638.37, for the corresponding month of last year $11,041.30, an increase of over $3,500.

The January receipts were $15,408.69, but when it is remembered that there were three more days in January than in February, and that the receipts from the sale of stamps, etc., often amount to $1,000 a day, there is shown an increase for February over the January receipts, even though box rents are collected in January and none in February.

The second class postage collected in January amounted to $736.29, and in February to $645.95. The apparent decrease is offset by the fact that the last month has three days less than January, and then there were special reasons why the January receipts were swollen. There was some held up second class matter, about which there was a dispute as to the classification, and that of that class of matter which was released, paid in January, tthe accumulation amounting to nearly $80. The average daily receipts would amount to more than $50 for the three days, and therefore it is shown that there was an increase in February in the receipts for second class matter proportionately. The only value of this is the indication of a general increase in the receipts of the office, all classes of receipts being considered. The postoffice year ends March 31, and receipts of the year determine the salary of the pastmaster for the next ensuing year, beginning April 1 and ending March 31 of the following year. The total receipts to entitle the postmaster to the $3,500 salary must equal or exceed $150,000. The total receipts for the eleven months ending Feb. 28 were $151,666.15, over the amount required for the increase, without any reference to the March receipts, which will exceed the February receipts, of course. Before there can be another increase the receipts must equal $200,000.

Paul Willoughby, who ranches east of Brady City, was around looking over the market and speculating as to what it was going to do.

The LONG End

MY DEAR BROTHER: I am the only man in the world in the medicine business who gives the Sick Man "the long end of it" every time. I was cured myself by my own medicine 8 years ago; knew of scores of others who had been cured; and had made affidavit to forever hold sacred the names of all who deal with me, before I fully made up my mind to risk the moderate fortune I had accumulated in other lines by widely and liberally advertising my for the benefit of men who through worry, hard work, dissipation, excesses or mistakes have lost that which all true men hold most dear—their God-given Health and Vigor. I have made a success of it; have, by meeting all men on the level and parting on the square, built up the largest mail-order medicine business in the world; and have been the means in the hands of a Wise Providence of bringing Manly Vigor and Vital Power to OVER 600,000 PERSONS OF ALL AGES. This is a record that I am very proud of. Send me ONLY ONE DOLLAR for a box at once, or send 2-cent stamp for full information about the Great Wonder-Worker that never fails to bring NATURAL Physical Strength, Mental Vigor and Vital Power easier, quicker and cheaper than any other remedy. Sincerely Your Friend, GEO. S. BECK, 106 Main St., Springfield, Ohio.

A. B. ROBERTSON NOT CANDIDATE

In Letter to The Telegram He Announces Position

DOES NOT HAVE TIME

Hopes to See Cattle Raisers Elect Man Who Will Serve Association's Best Interests

In a letter to The Telegram, under date of March 2, A. B. Robertson of Colorado, Texas, announces that his name, which has been prominently mentioned in connection with the office of president of the Texas Cattle Raisers' Association of Texas cannot be considered among those of candidates for the office, and that even if the members of the Cattle Raisers' Association were to offer him the place unanimously, he would be compelled to decline the honor.

Mr. Robertson is president of the Colorado National Bank, and has long been prominent in the cattle industry of Texas. His name was suggested by The Telegram editorially, as an available candidate for the office of president of the association. Mr. Robertson's letter explaining his position is as follows:

Editor The Telegram.

COLORADO, Texas, March 2.—A friend has handed me your issue of Feb. 26, containing an editorial advating me for president of the Texas Cattle Raisers' Association, which I have read with some degree of pleasure and satisfaction at the many complimentary things you say concerning me; but at the same time you attribute to me many causes of success, credit for which in a great measure belongs to my friends. For their wisdom, caution and assistance I am indebted for much of my success, and but for my friends I probably never would have reached the point where my prominence would demand even passing notice in the columns of your good paper.

The manner of acquiring my limited education, as detailed by you, is in the main correct, but no special credit is due me for that, for necessity compelled me to labor most earnestly and energetically in order to hold the positions in which I was placed early in life. And there are thousands of others who have more native ability than I, who would succeed as well, if not better than I have done, if they would only apply themselves as I did, either from necessity, ambition or pleasure.

There are a number of members of the association who would make a much better president than I, and who have the time at their disposal and sufficient means to enable them to devote the necessary time for the good of their fellow members, untrameled by any business connections which might at any time conflict with the interest of the association, and the members should select a man of this character who will collect about him an executive committee of the proper kind, thus relieving the rank and file of the association of any fears as to the future success of an association that has stood the test for more than a quarter of a century.

However much I would appreciate the honor of the position and desire to assist my brother cowmen, my business relations are such that I could not give the necessary time and attention to the affairs of the association, and under no circumstances would I accept a position which I could not fill to the best of my ability.

Hence I request that you announce positively that I am not a candidate for the place, and will not be, nor would I accept the position at this time if tendered to me unanimously.

I expect to be present at the convention and would be pleased to see elected president the man who will best subserve the interests of the association, regardless of all other considerations.

Thanking you for your kindly interest in me,

I am yours very truly,
A. B. ROBERTSON.

NEW CANDIDATE IN SECOND WARD

No Chance for North Ft. Worth Campaign Interest to Wane

North Fort Worth and Rosen Heights office of The Telegram is located at 117 Exchange avenue, old phone 2959, where news items, subscriptions, advertisements and complaints of delivery should be left.

Gradually the campaign in North Fort Worth is growing more interesting. Frank Coffey has just announced himself as a candidate for alderman for the Second ward. Although it has not been officially announced, it is quite probable that there will soon be several meetings arranged for at the candidates' meeting Friday night. These independent meetings will be held by the various candidates who seek opportunity to be heard outside of the regularly appointed meetings.

To Summon Firemen

Fire Chief John Buckland has had a fire gong made in the shape of a big steel triangle, which can be heard for blocks. This was a much needed improvement in order to summon assistant firemen whenever a fire alarm is sent in. Before this it has always taken time in order to get a sufficient brigade together.

Knights of Pythias Meet

The Knights of Pythias held an unusually good meeting in their rooms at Pritchard hall Friday night. Three members were raised from the rank of esquire to the rank of knight. There were many visitors in attendance from the Fort Worth lodges, and all enjoyed a great time.

Contract Awarded

North Fort Worth's most prominent landmark is to be torn down within the next few days. Saturday afternoon a committee of aldermen let a contract to A. J. Croaxdale for the work of tearin gdown the water tank and jail. The contract price is $100 for the job.

St. Patrick's Ball

The Knights of Pythias will have a St. Patrick's ball at Pritchard's hall for the benefit of the Widows' and Orphans' Home at Weatherford. Arrangements are being made to accommodate a large crowd.

Rat Killing Contest

Arrangements are being made to hold another rat killing contest at Marine bar during the week. About 100 rats are to be killed at this affair, and many entries are expected. Good prizes are to be offered and the event will be well attended by the lovers of the contest.

Notes and Personals

J. A. Bartels & Son have sold out their business in North Fort Worth and will not re-enter it for some time, if at all. Mr. Bartels intends to retire and take a long rest during the summer.

A. J. Cotton and family have just moved to North Fort Worth and located at the corner of Fifteenth and Clinton avenue. Mr. Cotton will soon open a commission house in North Fort Worth.

J. B. Collier, a member of the school board, said that the new school building will undoubtedly be finished and turned over to them within the next ten days. The tin work has been much delayed of late on account of the wind.

M. K. Martin has just returned from a trip east, where he went on business. Mr. Martin is contemplating the building of a house in North Fort Worth and moving his family there from Chicago.

Lester Osborne has gone to Aubrey, Texas, to visit his sister, Mrs. Will Brockett.

Phone 2101, 3-r old, or 1343 new, for fresh meats; no better in North Fort Worth. City Market.

Walter Samuels has gone to Dallas on business.

For groceries and feed try M. D. JAMESON and you'll be satisfied.

Dr. Hickman, Dentist, Pritchard Bldg.

ELEVATOR TO START

Postmaster G. W. Burroughs has received an order from the treasury department to start the operations of the elevator in the federal building. It was found that some slight repairs were necessary. The workmen to remedy the defect are in Dallas. The postmaster has sent for them. They will be over early in the week, and it is safe to say that by the middle of next week, and it may be before, the elevator will again be in operation to the great convenience of those who have to visit tthe various federal offices. Charles Hoag has been sworn in as the elevator conductor for the federal building.

FARMER SUICIDES

Special to The Telegram.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 3.—Frederick Biering, a well known farmer of Helotes, fourteen miles northwest of here, committed suicide last night by shooting himself in the head with a revolver. He leaves a wife and several children.

No Preaching Sunday

No preaching services will be held at the First Presbyterian church today, owing to the illness of the pastor, Rev. William Caldwell. Sunday school will be held in the morning and the young people's meeting and Sunday Club at night.

BUILDING PERMITS

H. P. Scott has secured a permit to erect a one-story, six-room dwelling on lot 1, block 4, Lloyd addition. The house will cost $1,600.

H. B. Turner has secured a permit to erect a one-story, two-room dwelling on lot 7, block 32, Tucker addition. The house will cost $520.

A. T. Lyles has secured a permit to erect a one-story building costing $600, on the southwest corner of block 41, Jennings-Scott addition.

DEATH BY INDIGESTION

A Long Train of Fatal Ills is the Direct Result of Undigested Food

Undigested food, by fermenting, forms a poison in the stomach, and this is absorbed in the blood. If this goes on very long and your heart happens to be weak, you'll be found some morning dead in bed, or you may fall back down the stairs about an hour and a half after dinner, and the doctor will call it heart disease. Yes, that may be the result, but not the cause. The cause is indigestion. Indigestion is a simple, common word, but it has a terrible import.

And so you may get apoplexy, and die suddenly while you're standing.

If you have a weak liver, the poison of undigested food will attack it and you will get jaundice. If you have weak kidneys, you will get Bright's Disease or diabetes, from which there is no rescue for any man.

It was a learned physician who said that the progress of a race depended upon the stomachs of its members.

And you have at some time in your life eaten a heavy meal, or eaten in a hurry, and felt that "lump of lead" immediately afterward. That lump of lead is a hard ball of undigested food. The stomach can't digest it and finds it hard to throw it out. And so it sours, and it makes you sour and everybody sour who talks with you. It gives you a bad breath and is building for you the road to dyspepsia and death, unless you stop it.

Stop it with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Just think, these little tablets are every bit as powerful as the gastric juice in your stomach. One grain will digest 3,000 grains of food. Isn't this wonderful? And it is true, just try it, and prove it.

If you have any brash, gas on the stomach, fermentation, burning, bloaty feeling, indigestion, dyspepsia or heartburn, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will make it disappear before it can do any harm to your heart or other organs.

They will invigorate the stomach, relieve the stomach of two-thirds of its work and give it a chance to rest. They will increase the flow of gastric juice, and if you will ever "live" in your lifetime, it will be after you have eaten a good, hearty meal and taken one of these little tablets immediately afterward. You'll feel just fine.

Take Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after your next meal today and you will use them ever afterward. You will be cheerful, vigorous and your mind will be clear; you'll have snap and vim, and add many a day to your life.

You can get these wonderful little tablets at any druggist's for 50 cents a package.

The Daylight Store

OUR MONDAY'S

Selling will be an eye-opener for everyone who visits the store. Look, investigate, compare. Buy only where you can buy to the best advantage.

We've given the story in the headlines, and the women of this city will do the rest. Only one other fact requires special mention—that is about the values given below. These are important figures, for it is by them a woman reckons how much she saves and whether the saving is worth coming for. We consider these figures as part of our promise to the public, and would no more say "$1.50 value" when the actual value was less than we would say "all wool" when the fabric was half cotton. The values mentioned are absolutely right. The standard we are working to is high enough to lift this business from the ordinary. We aim to make it your ideal of what a store should be. Every mercantile force and power we control is centered in bringing you the world's best at prices that will prove a happy release from extravagance. Monday's shall be ahead of yesterday's stopping place. Each day will prove a stepping stone in the onward march.

4 TEXAS ACTORS HERE THIS WEEK

Three on Bills at Local Theaters Came From Ft. Worth

Fort Worth theatergoers will have an opportunity this week of hearing a local bill upon the stage of the Majestic theater. G. Herbert Mitchell is well known here, as he lived most of the time when not engaged elsewhere ever since 1890. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Mitchell, live at 805 West Fifth street. He is a brother of F. E. Mitchell, treasurer and paymaster of the C., R. I. & G. railroad.

Mr. Mitchell has been on the vaudeville stage for the past three seasons, the first two of which were on the Orpheum circuit in the East and West. He has scored great success wherever he has played and has received very favorable press notices all along. Last year and the year before he played in the team of Mitchell and Barnard, but this year he appears alone, in a singing and story telling act. He has a baritone voice of considerable sweetness, and sings topical and extemporaneous songs. He is equally well known as a story teller.

Before going on the stage he studied for three years in the North and East with the result that he scored a success from the very start. After leaving the Majestic circuit he has a long engagement ahead of him on the Pacific coast and the North.

Another local team that will be at the Majestic this week is that of the Swor brothers, who grew up in Fort Worth and Dallas and who have lately made big success on the stage. They are considered fine dancers and singers. This will be their first appearance here on vaudeville although they have been here before. They were with L. G. Fields at one time and last year made a hit here as the Tinman and the Scarecrow in the Wizard of Oz. Since they have gone on the vaudeville stage their work has been well received every where that they have appeared.

The appearance of Modjeska here this week will create a great deal of interest in this part of the state as one of her leading assistants will be Bonner Keel, son of J. Z. Keel, president of the Texas Grain Dealers' association, which has headquarters in this city. Mr. Keel lives at Gainesville and has a large acquaintance all over the state. Macbeth will probably be the play that will be selected for presentation upon the stage here, and Bonner Keel takes a prominent part. It is very probable that there will be a large delegation of visitors present from Gainesville to witness the production, as arrangements are now being made for the presence of a large number of friends of Keel at the performance.

CATTLE COMING FROM GEORGETOWN

Fat Stock Show Is Object of Shipment

Special to The Telegram.

GEORGETOWN, Texas, March 2.—Messrs. F. W. Carothers, J. F. Yearwood and J. B. Salger will ship thirty head of fat Hereford cattle to the Fort Worth Fat Stock Show at Fort Worth March 20. These cattle are in splendid condition.

Mr. J. B. Salger is one of the judges on red polled cattle, and Howard Bland of Taylor is a judge on goats. Much interest is being manifested here in the stock show, and at least 100 cattlemen will attend.

SPRINKLING CO. TO CONTINUE

Will Keep on Laying Dust for the Present

William Capps, president of the Fort Worth Sprinkling Company, said Saturday to a reporter for The Telegram to the effect that the Fort Worth Sprinkling Company for the present will continue to sprinkle the streets of the city as hitherto, even though the city part of their contract expired March 1. Mr. Capps said:

"Nothing will be done at the present time concerning the sprinkling contract, further than that we will continue to sprinkle the streets in order to protect our subscribers, and we will not leave them in the dust for the present time. At the time that most of the discussion arose concerning the Sprinkling Company and its profits was going on, we had the people who were making the complaints about our making a mint of money investigated, and, if I remember rightly, there was not a single one of them paying for the sprinkling in front of their houses. In many of the places where the people were complaining we were actually sprinkling the streets in front of their houses in order that we might protect their neighbors from the dust. It would have done no good to have a street sprinkled in front of a subscriber's house, only to have the dust from the next place blow over on his property and in front of it. I wish to state that in every case it was the people who were not paying a cent toward the sprinkling that were making the loudest complaints.

"I cannot say what the company will do in the future. We may sell out. If any one wants the equipment and the contract which they may get from the city, I would be glad to see them take it off our hands.

"We will probably wait and deal with the new administration if we decide to get a new contract, as we do not care to trouble the present officers with the matter."

EMPEROR PRAISED

Young Chinese Ruler Said to Be Able to Govern Well

Special to The Telegram.

NEW YORK, March 3.—Among the passengers on the steamship Esperanza, from Vera Cruz, which arrived today, was Mock Jun Jin, late secretary of the Chinese embassy in Mexico and recently transferred to a similar place with the Chinese embassy in Washington.

When told of the rumored death of the dowager empress he said:

"If it should prove true and the young emperor succeeds to the throne, China will still be in good hands. The emperor is an energetic, moderate young man and will make a good ruler."

Mr. Jin did not credit the reports of possible uprisings in China. He said:

"The present trouble has been originated by a few persons who are antagonistic to the government. It is not a popular demonstration and there is no feeling against foreigners. Should any uprising take place, the government is well able to subdue it."

CABLE COMPLETE

Underground System Between London and Glasgow Ready

Special Cable to The Telegram.
(Copyright, 1906, by Hearst News Service.)

LONDON, March 3.—The underground cable system between London and Glasgow, on which the postoffice department has been at work since 1896, is practically completed and in a few days the through service between the two cities will be opened to the public. The object of this underground cable has been to insure the steadiness of the telegraph system between London and Scotland, which has been frequently interrupted by storms. The postoffice department showed a considerable amount of common sense in putting all wires underground in a conduit. A section was finished and opened to public service between London and Binghampton and since then the line has been extended connecting all the principal towns along the route.

Spring Millinery

We sound the first note in Millinery for spring. Not yet complete. We'll tell you about that later. But come and catch the latest style hints in the Street Hat line, of which we have opened a goodly number that reflect the styles of well chosen Parisian models. They reflect the authoritative. Come and see them.

Burton-Peel Dry Goods Co.

Spring Shopping

Can be done by out-of-town people with as much ease and little cost as patrons in the city. We are members of the Retail Merchants' Association, who pay your railroad fare to and from Fort Worth. It's this way: You buy a dollar's worth of goods for every mile you travel to Fort Worth, we refund your railroad fare both ways. If you can't come, write for samples.

This Store is Ready for Spring Shoppers!

Women's Spring Suits

The showing is daily increasing now, and soon this great Suit floor will be a perfect maze of styles. Mrs. Shapera has returned from New York and reports a most successful buying trip and that never was there such a great variety—never were styles so charming and we can assert with assurance that every garment we show surpasses in all around excellence of fit and finish any we've ever shown before. No finer garments are sold anywhere, because no finer ones are made, and yet you'll find our prices well within reason. We're ready to show you the new things—come, you're welcome.

It's that readiness that comes of a keen knowledge of style and fashions, for everywhere you look are striking evidences of elegance and refinement. There's been no shirking in the preparation either---all the departments are filled to their utmost and there's enough newness to see, and will be for months to come for there's a constant inflow equal to the outgo, to justify anyone coming to Fort Worth to see.

Women's Lingerie Waists

It's quite a difficult thing to select one particular style to tell about—they are all so attractive, so extremely pretty; just the sort that appeals to women of refined tastes. However, it's not amiss to state there are a number of exclusive novelties here—imported and American—that will go to early buyers. There never was a time when the variety of materials was so sheer and pretty. Lingerie Waists made of airline, batiste, pearlette, handkerchief linen, Jap silk, satin lisse, etc., trimmed with German Vals, rubae and French Val., hand embroidered and Angalisse embroideries, Princess and Lierre Lace. You must see them to appreciate their great beauty, $37.50 on down to $4.98.

Eight Skirt Specials for Monday's Great Sale!

Durynskis Might Have Been Killed, But They Wern't

WILLIAM WORST HURT

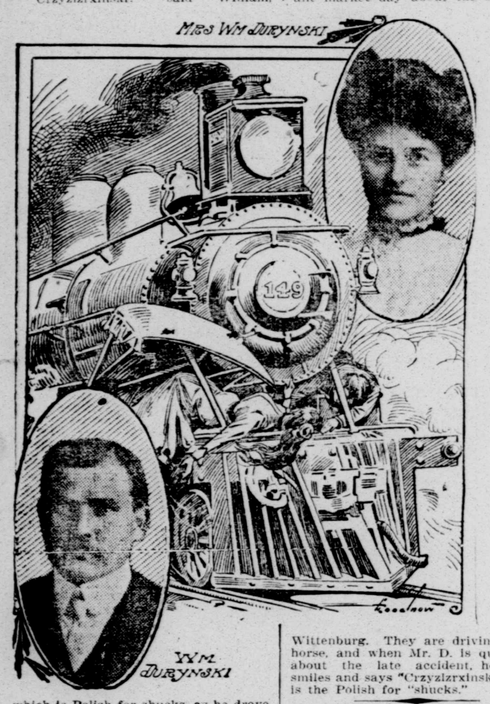
Buggy Smashed and Horse Killed—Man and Wife Carried on the Locomotive Pilot

Special to The Telegram.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., March 3.—"Ach du lieber Augustine," sang William Durynski, as he drove the family horse up along the road which leads from Wittenburg to the country.

"Now, William," pleaded his wife, "you must hold the horse in, because we can't cross them tracks ahead of the train."

"Crzyzlzrxinski!" said William, which is Polish for shucks, as he drove on.



It was late at night and the Durynskis had just come from a dance at Wittenburg, where, as English students will remember, Hamlet received his education. Mr. Durynski was in a convivial state—Wisconsin, if you will.

"You just see me beat that train out," he said to his wife.

No. 11 was ripping things up on the railroad track when the Durynskis licked the family horse and drove on.

"We can't make it," said Mrs. Durynski; "it is impossible."

"Crykzrxinski!" reiterated her husband, and began the second verse of "Augustine."

Engineer H. J. Darton did not notice anything on his side of the engine, though a little flurry of snow afterward convinced him that something must have been struck. "One more empty bench at the dog show," he thought to himself, as No. 11 went hurrying on into the night.

And now Thomas S. Meagher, conductor of the train, takes up the tale.

"When we stopped at Eland junction, the engineer came running around the train calling me to come ahead to the engine. I came up in front and saw a buggy top stuck on one of the flagstaffs.

"I looked closer and there was a woman wedged in the buggy top with her head to the front, but so that she couldn't fall out.

"'Don't let any more trains come,' she said as we picked her up and carried her to the baggage car. She kept right on talking rationally. She said her name was Durynski and that she was afraid her husband was hurt. We didn't see the husband at first, but when we looked back of the little platform on the engine pilot we found a man lying across some of the brake rods at the boiler head. His neck was on the last rod, and with the jolting of the engine it was a wonder that he didn't fall off.

"He was in a pretty bad way. His head was crushed in and it didn't look as though any life was left in him. We carried him to the smoker, so that his wife wouldn't see him, and a nurse who was traveling with West's minstrel troupe came up to help. As soon as we loosened his collar, he opened his mouth and began to sing 'Ach du lieber Augustine.' I felt then that maybe he had a chance of keeping alive, and I telegraphed ahead for a doctor."

Dr. Finney of Cliftonville dressed the wounds of Mr. and Mrs. Durynski and reconvexed the head of the family while the latter sung the rollicking strains of "Augustine."

The lucky Durynskis are now as well as if the accident had never happened and may be seen on any pleasant market day about the streets of Wittenburg. They are driving a new horse, and when Mr. D. is questioned about the late accident, he merely smiles and says "Crzyzlzrxinski" which is the Polish for "shucks."

LOCAL OFFICE CLOSED

No More Naval Recruits to Be Secured Here

The work of the naval recruiting force in this city ended at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon and the total enlistments were eighteen. The officers in charge hoped for larger results, but are pleased with the quality of the material enlisted. The eight yet here will strat on their trip to Norfolk, Va., from the Texas & Pacific station Sunday morning. Their names are John Carlos Langon, Olon Ramsey, W. G. Hugehy, E. H. Taylor, W. P. Pfaff, Alfonso Rodarte, J. H. Price, J. H. Wiley, A. C. Maclin and one whose name is withheld at the recruiting office at the request of the enlisted man. He said he wished to surprise some one.

SUIT TO PREVENT CUTTING WOOD

Temporary Injunction Granted in 17th District Court

John R. Touchstone has filed a suit against M. C. McGraw, seeking to enjoin him from cutting wood from a certain tract of land, to annul contract of sale of said land, and to recover possession of the same.

The petition in the case alleges that on the 7th day of December, 1905, plaintiff entered into a contract of sale of certain land in Tarrant county with the defendant, McGraw, by the terms of which McGraw bound himself to deliver to plaintiff fifty cords of wood per month from the making of the contract until 150 cords had been delivered; that under said contract the 150 cords of wood were to be credited as payment on said land; that McGraw took possession of said land and cut wood from it, and threatens to continue to cut wood from it, but has failed to deliver any wood whatever to plaintiff, notwithstanding he was to deliver 150 cords by April 1, 1906.

Wherefore plaintiff prays that the said McGraw be enjoined from cutting any more wood on said land and that he be ousted from possession of the same. Plaintiff also asks judgment for $500, the value of the wood alleged to have been cut from it. Judge Mike E. Smith of the Seventeenth court granted the temporary injunction in the case, forbidding the defendant or his agents from cutting or disposing of any wood from said land.

Seventeenth Court

In the case of A. B. Henderson vs. Houston and Texas Central Railroad Company, in the Seventeenth district court, the jury returned a verdict for the defendant. This was a suit to recover $10,000 damages for personal injuries.

Ralph B. Horton vs. St. Louis and San Francisco railroad, suit for $9,000 damages for alleged personal injuries; verdict for plaintiff in sum of $1,256.

ROBBERY ATTEMPTED

Woman Has an Exciting Experience With Thief

A daring attempt at robbery was made at 8:30 o'clock Friday night on Fourth street between Rusk and Calhoun. Mrs. R. E. Buchanan, wife of R. E. Buchanan, traveling claim adjuster of the Santa Fe, was the victim and while she lost nothing, she was so badly frightened that she would willingly have sacrificed many times as much money as she had with her to escape the fright. Her natural instinct was to protect her valuables and she did this successfully.

Mrs. Buchanan only intended walking four blocks, and as the hour was so early, she thought that she could do this in safety. She carried a purse, but held it under her cloak. There was only 50 cents in the purse, but Mrs. Buchanan thinks that perhaps, the fact that she was keeping it rather hid caused the man, who had evidently been watching her, to believe that there was something valuable in it.

When the man jumped at her and reached for the purse she was so frightened that she had no time to think, but as there was an electric light near by, she ran toward the light and the man was afraid to follow. "He swore dreadfully," stated Mrs. Buchanan, "and I was badly frightened, but I held to the purse."

Building Permits

Mrs. R. S. Brantley secured a permit Friday to erect a one-story, six-room dwelling on lot 1, block 5, Mulkey addition. The house will cost $1,250.

A. W. Stovall secured a permit to erect a one-story, five-room dwelling, on parts of lots 3 and 8, block 9, Old Town addition. The building will cost $1,000.

Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt rejoices in the possession of a veritable thimble of that excellent needlewoman, Queen Elizabeth.

THE BEST COUGH SYRUP

S. L. Apple, ex-probate judge, Ottawa Co., Kansas, writes: "This is to say that I have used Ballard's Horehound Syrup for years, and that I do not hesitate to recommend it as the best cough syrup I have ever used." 25c, 50c and $1.00. Sold by Covey & Martin, 810 Main street, opposite Hotel Worth.

TO SING CANTATA FOR AUDITORIUM

Pupils of Colored Schools Will Repeat Program

The announcement that "Queen Esther," given by the pupils of the colored schools under the supervision of Professor I. M. Terrell, would be repeated next Friday evening for the benefit of the auditorium fund, has caused many favorable comments.

The performance of "Queen Esther" at the city hall last Friday night was an excellent entertainment. The singing was unusually enjoyable, the voices even in the choruses showing to advantage. The soloists, especially Mordecai, sung by Charle W. Crouch; Haman, by James W. Pratt; Zeresh, by Mrs. Eloise J. Lightfoot, and The Prophetess, by Miss Mayme McCoy, would have done credit to amateur singers anywhere.

Special provision will be made for seating the white people who may attend. It is expected there will be many who will desire to see what the colored population is doing musically as well as to aid in the public enterprise, the auditorium.

Mrs. I. M. Terrell drilled the singers and choruses, and the results show her to possess great abilities along this line.

NEW LIFE CO'S. CHARTER HERE

Committee on By-laws Probably Will Report Monday

The charter for the Fort Worth Life Insurance company has arrived in the city after being approved by the department at Austin. The capital stock of the company is $500,000, of which $125,000 must be paid on. Of this sum $100,000 is a reserve fund and $25,000 surplus. The reserve fund as prescribed by the laws of the state must not be touched.

About 60 per cent of the paid in stock has already been subscribed by prominent citizens of this city. It is the intention of the members of the company to get more stock subscribed in this city and then to have the remainder subscribed elsewhere if it is necessary.

A committee consisting of Judge Harris, W. G. Turner, J. W. Spencer and B. P. Bailey has been appointed to draft the by-laws of the concern and will probably report Monday or Tuesday. As soon as the committee reports and the by-laws are adopted the election of officers will take place.

The directorate of the new company is composed of thirteen residents of Fort Worth, who are as follows: W. G. Turner, J. W. Spencer, W. G. Newby, Bacon Saunders, J. W. Irion, Willard Burton, William Bryce, J. Y. Hogsett, William James, George Reynolds, J. T. Pemberton, George E. Cowden and B. P. Bailey.

OLD PATENT IS FILED

Was Issued by the State in the Year 1873

The original title papers to 160 acres of good land in Tarrant county that conveyed a quarter section were not filed for record until Saturday, March 3. Notwithstanding the convey was made in 1873, just after the democrats wrested the state government from carpet baggers. This conveyance was filed in the Tarrant county clerk's office Saturday afternoon and was in the shape of a patent from the state of Texas to Adam Harman, assignee of W. C. McBride, signed by Richard Coke as governor of the state, and was dated at Austin in 1874, thirty-two years ago. It conveys to the said Adam Harmon 160 acres of land known as survey 4, located on the West Fork of the Trinity river, not far above Fort Worth. How often this land has changed hands since it was patented by the state to Harmon is not known, except to the abstractors of Tarrant county land titles.

COMMITTEEMEN MEET

Affairs of Roosevelt Republican Club Discussed

The executive committee of the Roosevelt Central Republican club of Fort Worth held an important meeting Saturday afternoon at the office of J. N. Winters, the president of the club. The purpose of the meeting was to close the affairs of the committee for the year, which ends next Monday. The books of the secretary and treasurer were checked up and found to balance to a cent and the finances of the club were found to be in good shape.

The annual meeting of the club will be held at 8 o'clock next Monday night at the city hall. At this meeting the executive committee will make its report for the year and the officers and executive committee for the ensuing year will be elected. Much interest is manifested among the members in the election of the executive committee for the ensuing year, and a large attendance of the membership is expected at the annual meeting.

Secretary N. B. Moore, states that the club now has about 300 members among whom are the leading commercial and professional men of the city and that the club is in a very prosperous condition.

The committee of the international exhibition which is to be held at Milan this year will probably organize a lottery, the first prize of which will be $200,000.

ONE MAN HURT AT FACTORY FIRE

Plant of Hartshorn Bros. Damaged by Flames

Fire was discovered at 11:30 o'clock Saturday night in the finishing room of Hartshorn Bros. furniture factory, which extends between West Fifth and West Seventh streets. The fire was discovered at it was eating through the exterior wall of the building by a passer-by, who turned the alarm in after running three blocks to the box at Fifth and Florence streets. The prompt reply of the department coupled with the fact that the door of the finishing room was closed kept the fire within bounds. The loss to the building was estimated at about $100 and the smoke and water loss to the upholstering work and other material in the building probably amounted to twice that amount. Loss was fully insured.

The fire caused a great deal of smoke, which could easily be distinguished as far away as Fifth and Burnett streets and inside of the second floor of the factory it was almost impossible for the firemen to get through on that account.

MANUAL TRAINING WORK IN FORT WORTH PUBLIC SCHOOLS

The impetus given to the introduction of hand work—popularly turmed manual training—in the schools of the United States during recent years, has been little short of phenomenal. No school system making any pretension to completeness can now consistently ignore the claims of manual training to be an important department of school work.

What Is Manual Training?

In the grades from the primary to the seventh, manual training consists of sewing, weaving, clay modeling, paper cutting and folding, card board work, raffia braiding, Venetian iron work, thin wood whittling, basket making, weaving on looms, and free hand drawing.

From the seventh grade through the high school, manual training for boys consists of mechanical drawing, bench work in wood, wood turning, wood carving, pattern making, forging, iron molding, and machine work in iron.

For girls the work above the sixth grade consists of drawing, sewing, basketry, wood carving, cooking and serving, dressmaking, millinery and the study of home sanitation, and is commonly called domestic science instead of manual training. In many schools the classes in Sloyd, wood carving and mechanical drawing are open to girls as well as boys.

The Purpose of Manual Training

Manual training creates a love for labor and a respect for rough work with the hands. It develops independence and self-reliance. It forms habits of exactness, order and neatness. It trains the hand and eye and through these organs develops the mind. Manual training produces a harmonious development of the body and mind. It gives a body the same preparation for any of the trades or handicrafts requiring great skill, which the ordinary school work gives him for the so-called learned professions, such as law, medicine and theology. In other words, manual training does not teach a boy any trade, but prepares him for all trades. Manual training prepares girls who may become home makers, for the practical duties of life.

The location of the great packing industries here, and the fact that Fort Worth is to be the chief manufacturing center of Texas, makes it important that we should see that manual training is given an important place in the course of study of our schools. There will be great need for skilled workers in Fort Worth and our boys and girls should have an opportunity to prepare themselves for this work and not have to step aside for skilled workers from other sections of the country.

The Work Now Being Done

In the Fort Worth schools this work is confined to the high school, having been introduced two years ago. One of the largest rooms in the basement of the high school has been equipped with work benches, tools, turning lathes and an electric motor.

The equipment consists of eighteen work benches, each with a drawer containing sixteen wood workers' tools, such as saw, hammer, chisels, planes, etc.; eighteen sets of tools for Venetian iron work; a wall case containing a lot of extra tools for woodwork; four turning lathes, each having a set of turning chisels; and a three-horse power electric motor.

The manual training work done in our high scsool consists of two years' work, and includes mechanical drawing, bench work in wood, commonly known as Sloyd, wood turning and a small amount of Venetian iron work. The boys devote two hours per week to this work.

The models which the boys construct are small, so that not much lumber is required for material, and are articles which are useful about the home, such as hat racks, coat hangers, sleeve ironing boards, bread boards, knife and fork boxes, towel rollers, wall brackets, book shelves, etc. Each boy is required to make a working drawing of an article before he is allowed to construct it. The boys are required to pay for the drawing instruments, drawing paper, and the lumber they use. All finished drawings and articles become the property of the boys who make them, when approved by the manual training teacher.

Fifty boys, which is about one-fourth the number enrolled in the high school, are now taking manual training. In certain classes this work is required, but in most of the high school classes the work is optional.

The basement room now used for the workshop is entirely too small. A larger room with better arrangements for heating and ventilation is badly needed. A separate room for the work in mechanical drawing, provided with drawing tables is needed. It is earnestly hoped that the Fort Worth school board will be able at some time in the near future to erect a special building on the high school grounds for the use of the manual training and domestic science departments, or if a new high school building is needed, to make it a manual training high school with ample room, equipments and facilities for doing this work and thus preparing our young people for the practical duties of life.

NEW CURES REPORTED

Every day is adding to the already long list of remarkable cures being performed by the celebrated physician, Dr. James W. Kidd. Dr. Kidd shows his confidence in his own ability by offering to supply free proof treatments entirely at his own expense and without a cent of cost, to every sick and afflicted person; in other words, offers to prove his ability before he asks for money.

Hundreds of cases of rheumatism, kidney trouble, heart disease, partial paralysis, bladder trouble, stomach and bowel troubles, piles, catarrh, bronchitis, weak lungs, asthma, nervousness, all female troubles, lumbago, skin diseases, scrofula, impure blood and general debility have been cured by him.

The growth of a tumor is so sly that frequently its presence is not suspected until it is far advanced.

Mrs. Fannie D. Fox

So-called "wandering pains" may come from its early stages, or the presence of danger may be made manifest by profuse monthly periods, accompanied by unusual pain, from the abdomen through the groin and thighs.

If you have mysterious pains, if there are indications of inflammation or displacement, secure a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound right away and begin its use.

Ex-Gov. James Stephen Hogg Who Died in Houston Saturday

freight trains and were riding east from El Paso. The company had them dumped between that city and San Antonio, where they were left without food, water or shelter. When the matter reached Governor Hogg's ears he at once took it up by wire with the railway officials, and it is said several miles of telegraph wire were melted and the cedar posts destroyed by the fire that was contained in the messages.

The railway people were obdurate at first and refused to do anything, but the governor had on his fighting raiment and he thundered violent philippics in the direction of Houston, where the general offices of the railway company were maintained, finally a message was delivered to the railway magnates which said:

"I will give you just three hours to move those unfortunate men from their present surroundings, and unless you do so, I shall institute the necessary proceedings to forfeit your right to do business in Texas."

It was but a short time until the wires flashed back the message that the men would be moved, and they were moved speedily.

And never will I forget the look that was in the executive eyes when that memorable message was sent. Turning to the writer, who was at that time connected with the Hogg administration, he said: "Mac, that will bring them to time. If it does not, I shall next crack a whip that will cause those fellows to whimper like a hound pup."

Sympathy for the Poor

And there was another incident that come within the scope of my observation, illustrating the executive sympathy for the poor and oppressed. A big bunch of unemployed men were arrested at Hillsboro on the charge of sleeping in box cars. They were fined rather heavily and were to be imprisoned. When information reached the governor of the incident he was moved with much indignation, and gave orders which soon tempered the Hillsboro idea of justice with much mercy. As fast as my typewriter could do the work in writing the names of the unfortunate men they were extended a full pardon and the fines against them remitted.

There are many other incidents that could be chronicled here that would serve to illustrate the life and character of James S. Hogg. But they are wholly unnecessary. He has builded for himself a monument in the hearts of his people more enduring than tablets of brass or shafts of white marble. He gave to the people of his native state the best years of his splendid and magnificent manhood, and did more to redeem the people from the evils that had so long oppressed them than all his predecessors combined.

There was nothing half-hearted or compromising in the nature of this tribune of the people. He would never accept compromise, from the fact he believed it involved two wrongs. He would not hesitate in the discharge of any duty from the fact that he believed duty demanded full effort. No man who has ever lived in this great state has stamped so much of his individuality upon it, and when the stamping process is viewed in the light of justice it will be universally conceded that it was all for the best.

When James S. Hogg was alive there were many men who could not do justice to his motives. But with James S. Hogg dead all men must in time learn to do his memory justice. And when all men learn to do that the verdict will go forth to the uttermost ends of the state that there never lived a grander, purer and a truer patriot on Texas soil than James S. Hogg, the father of the Texas railway commission, the stock and bond laws, and much other legislation that has made Texas what she is today—the banner state of the American union.

His great heart is stilled, and his great mind can no longer ponder over the problems that confront his beloved people. But the name and fame of James S. Hogg will go down to posterity as the greatest mind and charcter ever produced in Texas.

great beyond. As to Texas, I felt there was yet much political work to be done in which every patriotic citizen should take part. Before leaving her, I should like to see:

"Rotation in office permanently established, nepotism forbidden, equality of taxation a fact, organized lobbying at Austin suppressed, the free pass system honestly, effectively abolished; oil pipe lines placed under the control, insolvent corporations put out of business, all bonds and stocks of every class of transportation line limited by law, corporate control of Texas made impossible, and public records disclose every official act and be open to all, to the end that every one shall know that in Texas public office is the center of public conscience, and that no graft, no crime, no public wrong, shall ever stain or corrupt our state."

RUSSIA REMAINS "IN THE TOILS"

Anarchy, Riot and Patriotism All Busy

ST. PETERSBURG, March 3.—Great excitement was caused here by the announcement of the arrest of two men with bombs in their possession in the vicinity of the palace in Tzrskoe Selo. The men are believed to be agents of the terroist organization which has lately sent out warnings that the czar has been marked for death, and that a reward is offered to the man who shall remove him.

The secret police has been almost doubled since the Moscow outbreak, and the movements of all known revolutionists are closely watched.

The latest advices from Siberia tell of continued anarchy among the troops in Irkutsk, Harbin and other points where the report was recently circulated that the czar had been deposed and a republic established.

Four of the Sevastopol mutineers, including the leader, Lieutenant Schmidt, have been sentenced to be executed on March 6. Schmidt is to be hanged, but the others will be shot. Strong efforts are being made to procure a pardon for the men, or at least a commutation of sentence.

The Baltic provinces are still in turmoil. The raids on banking institutions and postoffices by the revolutionists continue. Suspected revolutionists are being shot daily.

SESSION WILL BE SHORT ONE

Legislature Likely to Consider But One Thing

NECESSITY URGENT

Change of Terrell Law Is Only Thing for Which Governor Lanham Issued Call

Special to The Telegram.

AUSTIN, Texas, March 3.—From the latest developments relative to the special session of the Twenty-ninth legislature, which convenes on March 26, it now appears as if the governor is not going to submit any other propositions to the lawmakers except that of the correction of the general election law. It has heretofore been generally believed that the governor would submit other matters later, but from what can now be learned, a strong belief prevails that the lawmakers will have nothing to do except the amendment of section 120, and how they will take in this matter remains to be seen.

The governor never did like the idea of calling an extra session, but the pressure and apparent urgent necessity to correct the error in the election law finally decided him to call the lawmakers together. Another matter which is being taken into consideration is the fact that when a committee of lawmakers from the house and senate called on the governor, asking for an extra session, the application was confined exclusively to the election law. This formal call or application was made to the governor on Nov. 2, 1905. This application for a special session was signed by the following committee: Senators Marshall Hicks, W. A. Hanger, W. C. McKamy and A. B. Davidson, and Representatives Thomas B. Love, Ed F. Harris, O. P. Bowser, William D. Williams and A. W. Terrell. Touching on the proposed amendment to the election law and the defective section 120, the committee had this to say in the application:

"The section referred to, though published as a law of Texas, was never enacted by the legislature, but was repudiated by their votes, as shown by the journals. In its broad scope it seeks to direct the manner in which the votes cast by the people in primary elections for all state and district offices shall be estimated in nominating conventions.

"In our opinion a counterfeit law, which was never 'prescribed by the supreme power of the state,' but which was enrolled and published through fraud or mistake, should not remain on the statutes as a 'rule of action,' and for ourselves and associates, we respectfully request that you convene the legislature in special session to correct it."

PLANS FOR FUNERAL

Body of Governor Hogg to Lie in State Capitol

Special to The Telegram.

AUSTIN, Texas, March 3.—At 11 o'clock tonight funeral arrangements for the burial of Governor Hogg were completed by Judge James H. Robertson and Colonel E. M. House.

According to the arrangements, the body will reach here tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock over the Houston and Texas Central and will be taken directly to the governor's reception room at the state house, from which place the funeral services will be conducted at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Drs. S. H. Werlein, pastor of the Tenth street Methodist church, and J. A. French, pastor of the First Baptist church, will conduct the services.

The funeral procession will then proceed to the City cemetery and the proceed to the City cemetery and the deceased.

Following are honorary pall bearers: Governor Lanham, Governor Sayers, Chief Justice Gaines, Associate Justice Brown, Associate Justice Williams, Judge Leroy Denman, Henry Marsha, Colonel Tom M. Live Oak County Property Advances $46,000 in Six Months

Special to The Telegram.

AUSTIN March 3.—A big land deal was consummated here today when a 46,678 acre ranch in Live Oak county changed hands.

Last August Judge James H. Robertson and John H. Houghton, of Austin; C. C. Bedford and C. A. Nelson, of Round Rock, purchased the Faut ranch being in Live Oak county, the consideration being $105,000.

It was sold today to William Green and William Welhousen of Shiner; R. S. Dilworth, of Gonzales, and S. B. Houston, of Floresville, for $151,960.

It shows how rapidly property values in South Texas are increasing as this ranch advanced in value $46,000 in six months.

IS NEW RECRUIT FOR SOCIALISTS

Joseph Medill Patterson Gives Up Office for Sake of Party

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 3.—Joseph Medill Patterson, the young Chicago millionaire, who resigned as commissioner of public works so he might aid the socialist propoganda, is at odds with his father, who declares that his son's ideas are the wildest fanaticism. The elder Patterson, who is the editor of a conservative Chicago newspaper, told reporters that his paper would never advocate young Patterson for mayor or any other office upon a socialistic ticket in Chicago. He also referred to his son's political views as a fond and indulgent father usually does the youthful and harmless follies of a well beloved son.

Young Patterson is here to attend a four days' conference to be held in the country home of James Graham Phelps Stokes in Noroton Point, Conn. When young Patterson appeared with his valet at 11 o'clock in the lobby of the Holland house, the first thing he wanted to know was where were his father and sister. While the pages were looking for them the young recruit to socialism was asked to elucidate his ideas on the subject of the division of wealth.

Not a Wealth Divider

"Do you believe that all the wealth in the world should be equally divided?"

"Not exactly," said young Patterson. "I think that there should be no monopoly of natural sources of wealth and I don't think wealth should be inherited."

"Are you going to ask your father and mother to leave you out of their wills when they divide the Medill millions?"

"Oh, I don't think it would do any good to cut off inheritances in individual cases, unless the laws were general they would be barren of good results."

"What books on socialism did you ever read?"

"I never read any books on socialism until after I had become a socialist. Then I read Jack London's "War of the Classes."

"And you are now, like Jack London, an out and out anarchist?"

"I have not got that far," Mr. Patterson laughingly said.

"Did you ever read Henry George on 'Single Tax'?"

"Yes, I read Henry George's 'Progress and Poverty,' but it did not make any impression on me like it did on Tom L. Johnson, who, as mayor of Cleveland, seems to think that single tax includes municipal ownership."

"Why did you resign from Mayor Dunne's government?"

"Well, there's a change coming on, and the socialists are going to have a ticket of their own. I am in for the real brand public ownership. We have had a little government ownership in the way of postoffice, the police force, the water department and the public schools. But that limited number of government industries has not materially lessened the friction between capital and labor. Not until we have removed all forms of ruinous competition by having all the sources of wealth owned and operated by the people shall we reach perfection. Then there will be a job for everybody."

Father Laughs at Notions

When R. W. Patterson, father of the young socialist, was seen and asked what he thought of his son's notions on socialism, the millionaire journalist laughingly replied:

"My son is of age and has served one term in the Illinois legislature and a part of a term as city commissioner in Chicago, and he is competent to do his own thinking. We are on the best of terms. He has just spent a week with me and his mother in our home in Washington.

"I am a firm believer in the doctrine of letting everybody think as he pleases—even my own son. If sons did not occasionally differ from their fathers then we would still be living back in the dim light of Abraham. There would be no progress if sons did not differ from their fathers.

"Of course, all differences are not necessarily progressive. There are departures without progress. My son's present views afford an excellent example of that fact, for I believe that socialism is the wildest kind of fanaticism. I am talking of the system. If partial socialism is a failure then the complete socialism that my son thinks would be a colossal catastrophe.

"My son came in contact with practical politicians at home and was thoroughly disgusted. He was asked to do things that would have indicted him. He was asked to remit the water taxes of certain men simply on the ground that they were influential politicians. He could not do this so he got out.

"They cannot run the dog pound even without graft in Chicago," concluded Mr. Patterson, "they catch the good dogs, but never the curs, because they know some one will come after a good dog."

IF ACTORS LIVE AUDIENCE DIES

Paris Theater Fire Experiments Not Satisfactory

(Copyright, 1906, by Hearst News Service.) Special Cable to The Telegram.

PARIS, March 3.—Interesting experiments have been made here with a view of finding the best way of combatting fire in a theater. A building of iron and mortor in imitation of the average playhouse has been put up. A wooden stage, wooden seats in the auditorium, an ordinary drop curtain and a fire proof iron curtain were provided.

The doors of the auditorium were opened, all means of ventilation closed, the drop curtain was lowered and the stage was set on fire. In a few seconds the drop curtain was seen to bulge out like a sail in a strong wind. The auditorium, acting as a flue, drew all the flames, and in very short time everything in the hall was destroyed, while the stage things were practically unharmed.

Then contrary methods were then tried. Doors were opened on the stage, the auditorium was closed, the drop curtain was lowered and a fire was lighted in the auditorium. In a twinkling the curtain bulged in the direction of the stage, the flames spread to the boards and the scenery was instantly consumed.

A third experiment proved that the only chance the spectators had of escape was that the actors should voluntarily accept death. Both curtains were raised, the ventilartors on the stage and the doors in the auditorium opened and a fire was started in the auditorium. The stage acted as a chimney, the flames rushed in and actors would have been asphyxiated by the smoke if they were not consumed by the flames.

Of course, no theatrical manager could ask such a sacrifice of his company and other methods will have to be found for insuring the safety of players and spectators.

Rumors of Poverty Said to Have No Foundation

LONDON, March 3.—The comparative poverty of Princess Ena, who is to be the future queen of Spain, has been a favorite topic in the London press. It was publicly stated that her mother, Princess Henry of Battenberg, received only $30,000 a year from England, and that this income dies with her, so the daughter would be very poor indeed for a princess.

But those in court circles say that the Princess Henry of Battenberg is a very wealthy woman. When she married in 1885, her mother, Queen Victoria, gave her a present of $500,000 and she received a dowry of $150,000 from parliament. During the life of the late Queen Victoria, Princess Henry had practically no expenses and, upon the death of her mother, it was understood that the capital sum belonging to her had increased to a million dollars.

Though no particulars of the late queen's will have been discussed in court circles, it has been generally supposed that Princess Henry's share of her mother's fortune amounts to about $2,500,000, in addition to what she already had possessed.

GOSSIP FROM STAGELAND

HOW MADAME MODJESKA APPEARED IN "MACBETH"

Following is a story of Madame Modjeska's appearance in "Macbeth" at Los Angeles, Cal., written for the Examiner of that city by Constance Skinner:

Red-warm and fragrant wine of her gardens, California poured it forth in libation before Modjeska—carnations in showers, cascades, fell about her, upon her, touching her veil, her robe, her hands, with their glow and sweetness as they drifted to her feet.

And Modjeska? In her white floating robes, her symmetry and grace of form, the uplifted raidiance of her face, Modjeska stood, the one perfect statue, the awakened Galatea, in a magic garden where flowers not only bloom, but live and express.

It was the end of the sleep-walking scene in "Macbeth." The anguished queen, more like a disembodied and distraught soul than a woman of flesh and blood, had wrung forth her last sigh and passed out. Tears still trembled on the lashes of the great audience that had but a moment since heard the piteous voice say, "The Thane of Fife had a wife. Where is she now?" Someone clapped, but another said "hush." All felt that applause were desecration. Silence told most.

There have been few artists so loved, so admired, so honored, for their public and their private virtues as Madame Modjeska.

But—to the play.

The question must rise in impatient wonderment to the lips of everyone who witnessed the grand and subtle personation Modjeska gave of Lady Macbeth last night—why is she leaving the stage, which needs her so? Why has she been in retirement so long? Why, indeed? Not for age's sake; for Lady Macbeth was a woman in early middle life. Not for weakness of physique or voice; for the majestic figure moved with vigor and grace, pulsed with vitality; the voice mellowed, fulled, rolled richly forth in passion and command, or stole out in poignancy of pain, sweetness of love, even as the superb intelligence, which enfires the being of Modjeska directed. Why? There is no answer—none, unless the octopus which daily sucks the life-blood from America's dramatic world should speak.

A Moving Poem

To the eye Modjeska's Lady Macbeth was a moving poem. Every gesture was a lyric, rhythmic, fraught with meaning. Columns might be devoted to Modjeska's expressive hands which themselves told the inner story of Macbeth's lady. I may quote one instance. Macbeth alludes darkly to the planned murder of Banquo and his stripling son. Half unconsciously, in new pangs, Modjeska made Lady Macbeth indicate the child's height of Fleance with a movement of her right hand. The murder of a child—and she had borne and lost children. In that anguish gashed her soul and her face. Never tragedy so hopeless, so relentless, that the spectators felt their own hearts pierced. What had done it? Only a wave of Modjeska's hand.

In a thousand such subtleries did she indicate, suggest, illuminate the intricate woman Shakespeare drew. Nothing was left unknown to those who could see and know. Step by step Lady Macbeth lived out her life, revealed the secret places of her soul, before us. The art of Modjeska is a great white lamp by whose unfaltering light all pages in life's book are read. Nothing remains hidden, nothing obscure, beneath its steadfast ray. Such is dramatic genius—the power that illumines, makes readable to even the simplest mind, all phases of human emotion. Modjeska alone among modern actresses possesses it; and alas! after this season she will be no longer among modern actresses. Her great light will be withdrawn forever and our stage will be sunk in the dusk of the gods.

How Insensate a Term!

There are those who speak of Modjeska as "the last of the old school." How insensate such a term is applied to the art we saw shinging through the creation of Lady Macbeth last evening.

Mme. Modjeska's Lady Macbeth was bevond time limit. It was the woman who lived in Duncan's reign and who herself reigned regally after she had sent Duncan forth by the bloody path. It was the woman, loving, ambitious, impetuous, strong enough to do whatever hideous deed which her self-destined fate impelled her to, never counting the cost; weak enough to die beneath the oppression of a crippled soul. Such women live today, as in Duncan's time—great women who abide by no law save their own, who died condemned by no law save their own, women who sin splendidly, who are magnificent even in their wreckage.

Perhaps Modjeska's Lady Macbeth was first of all the woman who knows herself born to rule—la grande dame. The distinction in the bearing of Mme. Modjeska the woman compelled this thought when she first stepped upon the stage. Below externals it was a woman of large mental power, of deep love, of ambition which was made loftey by love. The very breadth and grandeur of the woman's nature were the illness whereof she died. They made her soul accessible to a remorse as tremendous as her crime.

There could be no greater suffering depicted than that which Modjeska showed as Lady Macbeth left the banquet hall. "To sleep"—the words mocked the two poor wretches who dragged their weary way to the couch from which sleep had forever fled.

She played the brief scene in deadly quietude.

Denman Thompson in "The Old Homestead"

The press agent says:

"Denman Thompson's ever verdant and ever welcome, "The Old Homestead," will be the attraction at the Greenwall opera house tomorrow, Monday, night, for one performance only. Season after season "The Old Homestead" continues, just as successfully as during its early triumphs, and it is now rounding out twenty years of service. There is the image of perpetual youth in its lines, and an art of suggestion that is more than dramatic. The atmosphere that pervades the play is refreshing. It possesses a variety of emotions that are as natural as the country that it pictures. For the elders it is a "hark back" across the gulf of years of struggle into the pastures of childhood, and awakens tender memories with its pathos and humor. To the young, it is an excursion into the land of summertime. "The Old Homestead appeals, as no other American play does, to the human heart, and it will continue to appeal as long as grass grows and water runs, symbolizing the lessons of charity, of honest living and of simple, unalloyed righteousness.

"The company which will appear at the Greenwall tomorrow night is Denman Thompson's own company, and the only one en tour. William Lawrence, who has been described as one of the dramatic "finds" of the season, will be seen in the role of the sturdy old farmer. "Uncle Josh," and he has the unstinted praise of Denman Thompson himself for his portrayal of the character. Burke Clark will play Cy Prime—nigh on to 80. Charles Clarke will be seen in his inimitable impersonation of Seth Perkins, Maggie Breyer as lovable Aun 'Til. Fred Clarke, who was played the character for fifteen years, as Happy Jack; Gus Kammerlee, who was in the original production twenty years ago, as Henry Hopkins, and the other quaint characters will be in competent hands.

Madam Helena Modjeska

Madam Helena Modjeska is coming to Greenwall's opera house Tuesday night, March 6, and she is to present "Lady Macbeth," which bill was voted on by popular vote of her many admirers.

"Brown's in Town"

The farce, "Brown's in Town," is an extraordinary one, for the reason that it is widely different from anything that has been seen on the stage in a number of years. It is built on novel lines. Its dialogue is crisp and fresh, and in action it is about as brisk as they make them. Moreover the people in the cast are competent young actors. There are no cases of mistaken identity, no strong minded mother-in-laws and no henpecked husbands. Brown is a good fellow, a royal good fellow, and the trouble he and his associates have in illustrating the reason why he is in town, are enough to make the audience laugh for two hours and a half. The story is decidedly complicated, and the complications are new.

George Welsh plays the character of "Dick Brown." It comes to Greenwall's opera house Saturday matinee and night, March 10. Matinee prices: Adults 25c, children 15c; night prices: 15c, 25c, 35c and 50c.

The Savannah News said: "The Heir to the Hoorah" is decidedly the best production of its kind seen here this season.

In the presentation of this the best of Paul Armstrong's work, there is a diversity of character and happy, free comedy from the first to the last lines. In it there is a strong rendition of that delight of the American humorist, the mother-in-law, the happy-go-lucky, true as steel western miner, a shorn lamb of Wall street, a despoiling villain, a foolish wife, a strong and intelligent western woman who owns a mine, a be-whiskered butler from John Bull's domain, a Jap valet who speaks good English and gives an exhibition of jui-jitsu, and—Guy Bates Post as Joe Lacy, the hero, a man who has not wooed Dame Fortune without collecting an enormous stack of gold, some of which he uses in purchasing the foolish, fashionable wife, with the mother-in-law thrown in.

The climax of Lew Dockstader's chain of originalities is reached near the conclusion of the first part, when he quits work himself and forces the audience to entertain itself by warbling his latest song hit, "Everybody Work But Father." The well known monologue from the airship has given place this season to a lecture from the top of a "rubber-neck" wagon, otherwise a "seeing-the-town-automobile." The conclusion of the turn is made by the use of the moving pictures, showing Dockstader chased from his wagon by the angered passengers, the pursuit being a really funny affair.

JANE COURTHOPE AT THE MAJESTIC THIS WEEK

AT GREENWALL'S OPERA HOUSE SATURDAY MATINEE AND NIGHT.

"RICKETTY ANN" IN THE OLD HOMESTEAD" AT GREENWALL'S MONDAY NIGHT

Dramatic Notes

Richard Carle, the popular comedian who wrote "The Maid and the Mummy," is himself one of the best dancers on the American stage, so when the chorus for his musical play was organized he insisted not only that the girls should be beauties, but that they should be good dancers and hard workers. The result is that for beauty, grace and for singing and dancing abilities the chorus cannot be equalled on the American stage. It was not Mr. Carle's intention to make the chorus too prominent, but when once "The Maid and the Mummy" was presented he found that his song numbers and dance specialties were so popular that the chorus everywhere received extravagant praise.

AT THE MAJESTIC

Swor brothers great blackface artist.

The Train Wreckers, the kinetograph.

The foregoing attractions are announced by the Inter-State Amusement company for the coming week at the Majestic theater.

An array of excellent vaudeville talent is promised at the Majestic theater during the coming week, commencing with the matinee Monday. It will be spiced with the essence of frivolity and novelty. All new faces will be seen with the exception of Jane Courthope & Co., who have just closed a long over the Majestic circuit, making such a great hit that they have been given a return engagement on the popular [illegible] of the management to the patrons. Not a little interest has been awakened by the announcement of the engagement of Bert and John Swor, who are easily the two best and most favorably known performers who have ever played in the Southwest. In the presentation of Meyers and Rosa and Herbert Mitchell, innovations will be scored.

Might Have Been," which presents Miss Courthope in a role that is the direct opposite of the character she assumed when last here. It calls for strong emotional powers and she arises to the occasion as well as she did in the former play. Mr. Forrester is seen in a role that calls for serious work. As a contrast and in order that these versatile performers shall be enjoyed to the utmost, the management has made arrangements with Miss Courthope to give a double bill Friday and Saturday nights, appearing during the early part of the evening in "It Might Have Been" and closing the performance with "A Fisherman's Luck."

Damm Brothers

Feats of strength by accomplished and skilled athletes are enjoyed in this city. Some remarkable persons in this line of work have been seen at the Majestic, but it is doubtful whether anything quite as extraordinary as the Damm brothers have ever come to the city. The elder of these German strong men resembles a college professor, wearing a full beard and he is of ponderous, even suspiciously obese physique. The ease with which he tosses the younger but equally powerful brother about the stage, proclaims him a giant in strength and a wonderfully supple man when one considers his enormous size. The elder Damm also furnishes a few shivers and thrills by hurling a cannon ball into the air and catching it on his neck. Then he drops the iron missile to the floor of the stage to prove that it is a cannon ball. The finale of this interesting act is as sensational as one could possibly imagine. With nothing but the assistance of a leather thong held in the teeth of each performer, the elder Damm lifts his brother, extended at full length from him, to his shoulders.

La Mont's Cockatoos

The Majestic has had educated animals of all descriptions, with the exception of birds. Mr. La Mont will demonstrate that the feathered tribe is not a whit behind their brothers of the hairy and furry part of the animal kingdom. He presents a troupe of educated Australian cockatoos and what does the audience find them doing but weaving, performing on the triple horizontal bars, raising flags of different nations in obedience to commands; then ringing the number of days in the week, out of a gong. The close of the act is a fire scene. The house begins to blaze, the birds rush to the rescue; they ascend long ladders, drag hose to the roof and rescue other birds and furniture. It is a fine climax.

Swor Brothers

Swor brothers are sons of Texas, returning to their native soil. Their fame in the "Wizard of Oz" has preceded them on this engagement over the interstate circuit. Swor brothers claim Dallas and Fort Worth as their home. It was around about here that they picked up a delicious negro fun that shines throughout their act. No performers yet seen at the Majestic can dance like Swor brothers. Their terpsichorean art was the thing that made them a feature of the "Oz" spectacle. Aside from these particulars Bert Swor has a conversation with a wench who is locked behind a door. He carries on the conversations on both sides and convulses the audience not alone by reason of the fidelity of the mimicry but more especially because of the fine philosophy of the lines.

DALLAS GETTING NO RATE FAVORS

Santa Fe Agent Explains Alleged Discrimination

Publication of a rate on glass, glassware and window glass, from Caney, Kan., to a point in North Texas, has led to serroneous conclusions and charges that discrimination had been made against North Texas cities in favor of Dallas, according to S. G. Dickerson, commercial agent of the Santa Fe in Fort Worth.

A notice has been received from the southwestern freight committee that, effective March 3, that the rate on glass and glassware, window glass, carloads, minimum weight 30,000 pounds, Caney, Kan., to Dallas, will be 62 cents. There is a good deal of window glass manufactured in Caney, Kan., and much of it is shipped to Texas.

The rate had formerly been 70 cents to both Dallas and Fort Worth and if the supplement giving Dallas a 62-cent rate had not applied to Fort Worth this city would have suffered a discrimination of 8 cents on these shipments. At it is, however, the only thing necessary for Fort Worth glass dealers to do to get the 62-cent rate is to offer the business.

Dickerson Explains

The Santa Fe will protect Fort Worth in the matter of rates on glass shipments from Caney, Kan., to Fort Worth and Dallas and will deliver shipments to this city at the same rate which Dallas enjoys, says Mr. Dickerson.

"The Santa Fe would be standing in its own light to discriminate against Fort Worth," he said, "and it has no intention of doing so. We are handling a good business out and into this city and the merchants here can obtain the same rates on glass from Caney, Kan., or on brick and building material or other shipments that Dallas secures. When the matter was brought to my attention two days ago I visited several of the glass dealers and told them of the position of our road and since the publication has been given to the matter I have also informed Captain Paddock of the board of trade that the Santa Fe will give Fort Worth the same rate made to Dallas on glass shipments."

"There are two railroads entering Caney, Kan., and I am not advised which one made the special rate which has brought about the confusion. The fact is that the case is simply one where the public lacks information. These special rates were probably asked for by Dallas glass dealers and secured because there were shipments of glass being offered. The reason the same rates were not published to Fort Worth is that there were no shipments being offered at the time and no application for them had been made."

Mr. Dickerson illustrated the point by getting his file of special rates and calling attention to the manner in which they are made. He showed where there was a special rate to Dallas on brick and building material from Caney, Kan. Fort Worth was not mentioned on this sheet because, the rate was made on application of men in Dallas who were securing brick and building material from Caney, Kan. The fact that Fort Worth was not mentioned, however, does not indicate that this city can not obtain the rate. On the contrary Fort Worth can get the benefit of this rate when there is any business offered—but when a special rate sheet like this is issued, the sheet mentions the point where the business has been offered and does not call attention to every other point which will be entitled to the same rate."

Captain Paddock of the board of trade when asked about the matter stated that Mr. Dickerson had called in to see him Saturday afternoon and that he had been advised by him that Caney, Kan., was on the Santa Fe and that this city would get the same rate as Dallas. This was satisfactory to Captain Paddock and will doubtless be satisfactory to the glass dealers interested.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL

Few People Know How Useful It Is In Preserving Health and Beauty

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

FOREIGN MARKETS ARE IRREGULAR

Special to The Telegram.

NEW YORK, March 3.—Foreign markets were irregular with Paris showing heaviness and weakness. Americans showed general gains and arbitrage buying here early was estimated at 25,000 shares and had an important effect in the opening strength. The bank statement was nominally unfavorable. On the whole, however, it was a much better exhibit than most persons had expected. The decrease in surplus reserves amounted to $116,975, which brings this item to $5,008,750, against $8,389,700 a year ago and $2,943,350 two years ago. The cash loss was slightly less than estimated and amounted to $3,305,400. Loans decreased $8,463,100, while deposits decreased by $12,753,700.

In the Street

The total number of shares of stock sold today was 434,000 against 395,777 the same day last year.

The total par value of bonds sold today was $1,440,000 against $2,236,000.

The only feature of the bond market was the active trading in Wabash Debenture B, around 80. The usual rumors were heard.

Some persons think it is up to the Guggenheims to rise and explain the 20-point decline in Smelters and the equally sharp fall in National Lead. It was stated that H. H. Rogers was gunning for F. Augustine Heinze and that 10,000 shares of Amalgamated Copper held by Heinze were sold at $105, showing a very great loss.

COTTON UP A FRACTION

New York Market Price of Staple Is Slightly Bullish

Special to The Telegram.

NEW YORK, March 3.—The feeling during the week was a little more bullish and prices gained about a quarter of a cent per pound on cotton. The first estimates for the season were made, placing the probable increase at from 6 to 10 per cent over last year, but had only temporary effect on prices.

Mr. Price and President Jordan were out with the ginning figures up to the 24th and 25th of February, which proved rather lighter than generally looked for. The real strength in the situation came from a reported scarcity of desirable grades of cotton, but this has been offset at least partially by the lack of outside speculation.

The market in Liverpool was much better than expected and was influenced by good continental and Egyptian buying, firmer prices for Egyptian cotton and a good spot demand. Sales of spot cotton in Liverpool have been large all the week and have gone a long way to strengthen the active commission house buying.

LOOKING FOR FRAUD

Special Agent Investigating Losses of Indian Lands

Special to The Telegram.

ARDMORE, I. T., March 3.—Special Agent Mills, representing the United States Indian agent, is here examining the records in the United States clerk's office for the purpose of ascertaining whether fraud has been practiced in securing leases on Indian lands. It is alleged that five-year leases have been secured on agricultural lands in many instances for an inadequate sum, and that Indians have made a complaint to the United States Indian agent. The law provides for the annulment of leases where they have been made for an inadequate sum.

HOW GALVESTON HAS RAISED CITY FUNDS

Second Article of Series Describing Commission Form of Government and Benefits Derived From It in Managing Municipal Affairs

(BY TAYLOR M'RAE.)

The Telegram having published the first article of E. R. Chessborough having for its subject matter the Galveston Commission Plan of Municipal Government, and it having been received favorably by the numerous readers of the paper, the second article of the series is herewith given and with the hope that its contents may go a long way in further enlightening the people of Fort Worth as to how Galveston manages the intricate problems of governing a municipality. This second article sets forth the methods used to raise money to pay off the floating debt inherited from past administrations by the commission; the payment of salaries and the amount paid each officer and the conduct of the different departments with a view to the greatest efficiency and some trite comments that are worthy the attention of the readers of the article.

To illustrate the results of the comission in its relation to the finances of the city of Galveston, a future article will deal with the annual statements of the treasurer of the city—T. J. Groce—up to March 1, 1906.

(BY E. R. CHEESBOROUGH.)

After becoming settled into office, the present board of city commissioners realize full well that it would require money to pay off the big floating debt incurred by the old administration, to rebuild the city hall, repair engine houses, repave the city streets and to meet other demands not of an ordinary character. Without the issuance of a bond, this has been accomplished. Naturally the question is, "Where did the money come from?" In consolidating the offices of assesor and collector, a large saving to the city was made. There never has been any legitimate reason why these offices should not have been consolidated from the very beginning. Under the old form of city government, not only were the departments of assessor and collector separate, requiring two heads and two sets of assistants, instead of one, but all salaries throughout all the departments of the city were larger than at this time. The city clerk formerly received $1,800 per annum and had an assistant and a private driver. There is no assistant now, the chief drives himself and receives $1,500. The city attorney received $1,800 per annum and 10 per cent on collections. He now receives $1,200 per annum and 5 per cent on collections through suit. The chief of police received $1,800 per annum and all ex-officio constable fees and at one time had an assistant. The present chief receives $1,500 per annum, has no assistant and all fees go to the city. The judge of the corporation court formerly received $1,800 per annum and all ex-officio justice of the peace fees. During the first two years, under the present administration, he received $600 per annum and all the fees went to the city. He now receives $1,200 per annum and the city gets the fees. The collection of delinquent taxes, under the present administration receives active and vigorous attention.

Tax For Paving

A special vehicle tax, originated by the present commission and declared valid by the supreme court, is collected and set apart for the exclusive use of street paving. The city has received, under the present administration, interest on its bank balance amounting to $15,000 per annum. Under the old form of government the city received nothing in the way of interest. The income from the police department is greater, under the present administration, than ever before. The income from the water works and sewer departments is also much greater. The collection of occupation taxes is another feature which receives careful attention. The man to fill the office of city attorney should not only possess splendid legal ability, but must feel a personal interest in the welfare of the city. He should also be a man of ripe judgment, conservative and fearless. In the selection of Judge J. Z. H. Scott, at the outset of the commission form of government, Galveston was indeed blest. Judge Scott rendered the city most valuable service and his death was a great loss. The only man in this community who could acceptably fill the office made vacant by the death of Judge Scott was Judge M. E. Kleberg, law partner of Attorney General R. V. Davison. Judge Kleberg consented, however, only because he was the unanimous selection of the entire board and was appealed to by leading business men of our city to take the office. In this connection, I may say, the services rendered by Judge Kleberg in matters pertaining to the grade raising alone, has been of greater value perhaps than the compensation he will receive from the city during his entire term of office. Aside from legal matters, as a counselor, Judge Kleberg's advice is freely sought upon all questions by the various members of the board of commissioners. Indeed the city attorney is no small part of our city government.

The police department is conducted more with the view of preventing than the punishment of crime. The chief was taken from the ranks and selected because of the fact that he is absolutely honest, strictly temperate, fearless and possesses common sense. Neither the chief nor the members of the police force seek newspaper notoriety. This department is working in perfect harmony, which is something unheard of under former administrations. Many of the lowest dives of the city have been suppressed in a quiet but effective manner, and many of the former evils no longer prevail in this city.

The Fire Department

Galveston's fire department is beyond question the most efficient in the state. The insurance record will show the percentage of loss in Galveston is less than any other city in the south, and especially in sea ports where the breeze from all sides is unbroken by hills or trees.

The commissioner of streets and public property is very devoted to the department under his care. He is in no sense of the word a politician. No longer are keepers of dives and politicians permitted to supply the street and alley department with the carts and drays used by the city. No longer are the sidewalks of the city rented out to fruit stands and like establishments by adjacent property owners. In Galveston the expense incident to the paving of the streets is borne entirely by the city; the property owners not being required to contribute, as is the case in other places. The streets and general condition of the city is better today than it has been for years. The city is getting better service from all of its employes at this time than ever before. The men receive their pay regularly in cash, the issuance of scrip being unknown. The city hall is run like a business establishment and is no longer the loafing place for idlers.

The important office of city auditor, which pays but $1,500 per annum, is held by A. Ferrier, who for many years was head bookkeeper for the large wholesale firm of Leon & H. Blum. As an expert accountant and a rapid and accurate worker Mr. Ferrier has few equals. He is indeed the right hand of the commissioner of finance and revenue. His wide experience in financial matters, as well as his splendid ability as an accountant are fully recognized and appreciated.

In making up the city budget great care is exercised and the expenditures are never allowed to exceed the appropriations.

William Jennings Bryan, after his last trip to Europe, made the following statement: "Let us hope that the time is near at hand when the successful business men in the United States, instead of continuing their accumulations to the very end of life, will be satisfied with a competency, and when this is secured, give to their country the benefit of their experience, their intelligence and their conscience, as many of the business men of England, Scotland and Irland are doing."

Good city government is a matter of primary importance for all who want to live in cities that are healthy, clean and beautiful; cities that are well paved, well lighted and well drained; cities where the officials as well as the people are honest, just and intelligent, and where vice and crime can obtain no favors; cities that have plenty of pure water, superior business facilities, and moderate taxes; cities which are so desirable and attractive that there is a steady increase in population, in business opportunities, and in the demand for employes and wage-earners.

Second to Washington

The present board has given Galveston an administration which has won for Galveston the reputation of having the best governed city in the United States, next to Washington.

Marked economy has been practiced all along the line without in the slightest manner affecting the efficiency of a single department.

There have been three elections since the commission form of government became effective. The candidacy of the present mayor and commissionres during each election was looked after by a non-partisan organization named the City Club. Neither the mayor nor any of the commissioners have ever paid out a dollar for campaign expenses, nor has any employe of the city, saloon keeper or glambler been allowed to contribute. The City Club has shouldered the entire campaign, relieving its candidates of all worry and annoyance, and the business men have paid the expense, which at no election has exceeded $320.

Just how long this form of city government may be kept clean from the blighting influences of politics remains to be seen. The best system yet devised only makes self-government possible, not obligatory. It has been shown that by the appointment of three commissioners by the governor, who is far removed from complicattons in petty politics, and the election of two of them on a sharply defined political issue, good government results. It has been further demonstrated that this is the sort of government the people want and will have when they take the trouble to go after it.

But the decision of the supreme criminal court making the whole commission elective throws it back into politics again, that is, within reach of the politician. Business men can be induced to accept an appointive office and make personal sacrifices for the welfare of their city, but few indeed are willing to be dragged through the mire of a political campaign. While the commission plan of city government is in many respects unquestionably an improvement over the old from, yet the true solution of the problem lies in the men placed in office, for a scoundrel will find a way under any form or plan that can be devised. The city of Houston, in Texas, has but recently copied the Galveston commission form of city government and the new administration of that city is now being watched with interest.

WEATHER BUREAU BUSY

190 Maps and 136 Postal Cards Distributed Daily

An idea may be gained of the importance of the work of the Fort Worth weather bureau from the fact that the officials in charge of that branch of the work send out daily, Sundays excepted, 190 maps and 136 postal card forecasts.

The maps go to schools and corporations, and others are placed for public display, none going to individuals. The postal card forecasts go to individuals. This work of the bureau is distributed all over the Fort Worth territory, which is very large, and has saved thousands of dollars to the farmers.

BEN TERRELL ON TAX MEASURES

Legislative Candidate Explains His Position

Editor of Telegram:

As a candidate for the legislature I deem it proper at this time briefly to express my views up a matter of much concern to the voters.

Many friends and voters, since my recent announcement, have asked my attitude, if elected, relative to the "intangible" assets law, the "gross receipts" tax law and, in short, the various tax measures of recent enactment.

The matter is of such vital importance to the taxpayers that I deem it just to particularly let them know just where I stand and will stand relative to matters of taxation.

If my views herein expressed and hereafter from the stump to be more fully expressed, shall be concurred in by the voters, I ask their support, and, if elected, will endeavor to execute such views.

First. It is my opinion that the above mentioned laws are good as far as they go, and that they go a long way in the right direction and toward equalizing the burdens of taxaton. If elected, I shall oppose the repeal of such laws and shall oppose the least abatement of their present efficiency.

Second. During the last six months I have given some study to the question of taxation and have concluded that while the above mentioned laws are right and just in principle, and will greatly tend toward correcting the unjust and unequal system of taxation that has heretofore existed in our state, yet that there are certain proper subjects of taxation which by the last legislature were improperly and without sufficient reason omitted from said tax bills and which the coming legislature should promptly incorporate by amendment into said laws.

If elected, I shall favor amending such laws by levying a franchise tax upon all street railway companies, upon all interurban electric lines, upon all telephone companies, upon all gas and electric light systems and franchises within the borders of this state and upon all other corporations and companies owning franchises or doing business in Texas.

I shall also favor extending said tax laws so as to include all Pullman, palace and dining cars. I see no common sense or good reason in designating stock cars as a proper subject of taxation and excluding from said measure the above designated vehicles of transportation.

In my judgment there is no reason or justice in making the owners of lands, houses and tenements pay taxes on such holdings and values, while those who own valuable street car, interurban, telephone, gas and electric light franchises and privileges (assets of admitted value) are permitted to escape the payment of one cent upon such properties.

Taxes are always hard to pay—they are often a grinding tribute we make for the general welfare, but when such tribute is derived alone from lands, houses, improvements and tangible personal assets, the burden is obviously more onerous and the mere statement of the proposition is a sufficient argument for the equalization herein mentioned.

Sometimes the idea is advanced and urged that such franchises as street railways, interurban lines, gas and electric light systems should have their intangible asset values exempted from taxation, because they are often local concern and materially aid in developing towns, cities and certain sections of the country. Such an argument resolves itself, when reasonably analyzed, into a mere absurdity. When you and I improve a vacant lot by placing thereon a house, we add our mite to the development of our section. When the farmer puts another acre of his land into cultivation by clearing the grubs therefrom or by turning the turf thereof, he increases the value of his holdings and adds his mite thereby to the development of his country. In both these instances an argument that we are "developing" our city or country is not of sufficient force to stand off the tax assessor. In each case we must pay an increased tax upon our increased assessment.

Any system of taxation which permits valuable franchises of any description—often equal to monopoly and sometimes granted so as to exclude other like franchises—to go untaxed of their values is a system unworthy of a people who are just and fair.

Later on I shall from the stump elaborate the views herein expressed and will declare myself upon other matters of public concern. Very respectfully, BEN M. TERRELL.

Has Been Purchased by W. F. Nabers.

The Crown Bar has recently changed hands. W. F. Nabers bought out his partner's interest, and is now sole proprietor of that popular thirst dispensing place. The "Crown" was established about seven years ago, and is probably the best furnished bar in the state of Texas. Mr. Nabers is an old traveling man, and has hosts of friends in this section of the country. His success in his new business was instantaneous; due to a kindly genial nature of the kind that makes friends and keeps them. Fort Worth people patronize "Bill" Nabers, as he is familiarly known, because he not only serves good wines, liquors and cigars, but because he and his assistants know how to serve them.

ST. LOUIS BROWNS OPEN HERE TODAY

PANTHERS ARE READY

Boles and Whiteman Have Arrived to Join Team Mates in First Match of Season

The first baseball game of the year of 1906 is slated to be played at Haines park this afternoon, and the game will be called at 3 o'clock. Work done on the grounds almost insure they will be in good condition, and it is certain they will be in a playable condition.

The game is to be played between the "Colts" of the St. Louis Browns, National League team, and the Fort Worth club, with a sprinkling of resident players, who are not now nor will be members of the Fort Worth team of the present season.

Boles and Whiteman Here

Boles and Whiteman came in Saturday morning and joined in the practice yesterday afternoon. Both are in fair condition for the first of March, when they are not expected to really play up to the Texas League notch until late in April. Both of these players were in the team which made the record finish last year, which landed the Fort Worth team as the pennant winner, with more straight games won than any other team has ever scored since the old and only Red Stockings of Cincinnati made their sensational tour so long ago that only the gray heads have even a memory of the noted trip. Others of Fort Worth's fast last year's team who will be in the game Sunday, but not in form as they were then, as a matter of course, will be Cavender, Irwin, and Wicker.

The management of the Browns has not sent the line-up of the St. Louis players for the Sunday game over from Dallas, where they train this season, but the spectators can be assured, after the experience of last season, that the management of none of the big league clubs which may play here are going to shove off all the youngsters on the Fort Worth ball patrons. Some of the stars will be in the game.

Probable Line-Up

This is subject to change.

The weather has moderated tonight, and the indications are for a fine day, with the temperature not overly cold, and it may be comfortably warm.

Married in Clerk's Office

Justice Charles T. Rowland was accosted in the county clerk's office Saturday afternoon by J. H. Petty of North Fort Worth, who presented a marriage license and requested that he unite in marriage Miss Belle Denson, also of North Fort Worth. The bride was present, and the marriage was quickly celebrated.

The centenary of the birth of Mrs. Browning, March 6, will be celebrated by the Pioneer Club in London.

MEDICAL COLLEGE WINS BY 8 TO 3

Defeats Draughon's College Team at Prospect Park

The medical school of Fort Worth University defeated the team representing Draughon's Practical Business College at Prospect park Saturday afternoon by a score of 8 to 3. The heavy hitting of the Medicos was the feature of the game.

At no time during the game was the winner in doubt. Two-base hits were frequent on both sides, and there were three-baggers made.

Three-base hits—Johnson, Littlepage and Young. Umpire, Brown. Attendance, 300.

On Monday afternoon the Medical team will play the Polytechnic College team at the latter's grounds on the college campus. The game is scheduled for 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

It was announced that the University team was to play this game, but it is the Medical team instead.

CHOATE REFUSES TO AID PROBING

Former Ambassador Unwilling to Join in Investigation

Special to The Telegram.

NEW YORK, Mar. 3.—The plans of the Truesdale investigating committee of the Mutual Life, or what is left of it, received another set-back today when it became known that the recent report that Joseph H. Choat had been retained as the committee's counsel in place of Jas. B. Hill, Cady Herrick and Bainbridge Colby, who resigned at the same time as Stuyvesant Fish, was not true. It was admitted in Mr. Truesdale's office this afternoon that although Mr. Choate had been urged to accept the committee's retainer he had not yet expressed a willingness to do so. Mr. Choate's son, Jos. H. Choate Jr., said the same thing.

It is thought by Mr. Choate's friends to be very unlikely that he will serve, especially as the publication of the committee's amended requisition for information which allows the trustees to escape. The adverse criticism of the modified demands has been practically unanimous. They have been branded, even by friendly interests, as spineless. Should Mr. Choate accept a retainer as counsel, it is said, in his behalf, that he would insist upon a further demand being made at once along the lines of the original requisition, the withdrawal of which resulted in the resignation of Mr. Fish.

In the office of W. H. Truesdale this afternoon it was said that Mr. Choate had been out of the city for several days and had not signified his intention to accept a retainer as counsel for the committee.

Help for Fish

Mr. Fish has received assurances of the support of the British policy holders of the Mutual in his effort to bring about a thorough investigation of the company's affairs. He has received a definite assurance in a cable message from Sir Alfred Harmsworth, chairman of the committee of the British policy holders' protective association.

Lord Northcliffe's reply was to the effect that the British association would support any move that Mr. Fish would inaugurate. It stated that the British members of the Mutual company were gratified to learn that Mr. Fish would head an invsetigating committee, and expressed regret that he had not remained in the company as trustee. Lord Northcliffe cabled that French and German representatives of the International Policyholders' committee would be chosen at once and their names cabled to Mr. Fish for approval.

Arrangements are under way for a meeting of the international committee early in April. Mr. Fish was not in the city, and those who are believed to be immediately concerned with him in the New York committee declined to make any statement.

"The fact that a thorough investigation is necessary," said one of Mr. Fish's adherents today, "is clearly shown in the letter which the remainder of the Truesdale committee sent to President Peabody. It contains the "modified" demands of that committee, "modified" to such an extent that the trustees and the others in the company who have been in control for years, escape investigation and place upon the committee the duty of examining a lot of $2,000 a year clerks about matters that should be put up to the trustees and executive."

CHESS CORNER

A meeting of the Fort Worth Chess Club will be held this coming week for the purpose of making arrangements for the chess match which will be played here March 12 by Champion Lasker. Nothing further has been heard of him, but as his last letter set the date for his appearance here it is probable that he will fulfill the engagement especially as he is known to be a man of few words and less personal letters.

It is expected that the coming of Champion Lasker and the approaching state championship which will probably be played in this city will arouse interest in chess again in Fort Worth, which has been dormant all winter.

Marshall-Fox Game.

The game given below is one of the series played recently between Marshall and Fox at New York city, which was won by Marshall with five wins and one draw. The match was brought on by the fact that in the recent metropolitan championships the final list was published with Fox first and Marshall third, whereupon Marshall challenged Fox and the series resulted as stated.

Notes

(a) The customary play is P-Q 5; the move selected, followed by the exchange of bishops, relieves the white game.

(b) Obviously KtxB P could be played. Black answers Q-R 4 ch and wins the Kt.

(c) Superior to PxP, in which case white's doubled K P would have been weak.

(d) R-K 2, followed by K B-Q sq was more promising.

(e) A fatal mistake, which causes the loss of a piece. R-Q B sq should have been played. It must be admitted, however, that white's advantage was a winning one.

PROSECUTOR ATTACKED

The High School Baseball Outlook Encouraging

The Fort Worth high school baseball team is preparing for an active season this spring and will have a longer schedule of games with out of town teams than ever before. The schedule has not been made out yet, but Manager Minter is working actively on a list of games and has been carrying on correspondence with a number of the nearby high schools.

Prospects for a team this spring are very bright as the players left over from the 1905 team will form a strong nucleus around which it is expected that a fast team will be built up. There are also several promising ball players in the school who have not been tried out yet on account of the fact that active practice has not started. Only one practice has been held outside of the game with the university Friday afternoon.

Of last year's team there are five of the regular infielders in school and a substitute for the other position who played last year besides one substitute fielder of last year. The 1905 battery is still in school. Arneson was the pitcher last year and his performance Friday against the university, when he held the older team down to two hits, one a scratch, promises well for the remainder of the season. If his arm remains in shape, and he is a pitcher who has little trouble with his arm. Lloyd, the catcher of last season, is playing as good a game as ever. Other of last year's team who will play this season are Grissom, first base; Borden, second base, and Miller, shortstop. Besides these Lucas, third base and Bledsoe, center field, were substitutes last year and really played regular about half of the games.

Manager Minter is in correspondence at the present time with the high schools at Dallas, Venus, Cleburne, Corsicana, Gainesville and Waco, and games will be played with some or all. Games will also be arranged with several of the teams in this city, including both university, and college.

HOUSTON FANS ENTHUSIASTIC

Con Harlow Returns to Texas to Be Captain

Special to The Telegram.

HOUSTON, Texas, March 3.—Baseball interests and enthusiasm is running high in Houston. Added to the presence of the St. Louis Cardinals, who have begun their active exercises, Con Harlow, the new chaptain for the Houston team, has arrived and begun his labors. He takes the place made vacant by Wade Moore, and will officate behind the bat and direct the men upon the diamond.

Harlow played in Texas nine years ago, pitching for the San Antonio team. In 1904 he led Natchez to victory in the Cotton State League and last year was with Meridian until the fever epidemic broke out, after which he finished the season with Davenport, in the Three I League.

The make-up of the Houston team for the season is being discussed. While some of the old players have been signed, strangers will fill some of the points in the team. Nelson, Brinkey, Crawford, Teusdale, Paulig and Webber may return.

McCloskey's Cardinals are limbering up smartly, and with the four days of practice they have had are beginning to get the soreness out of their muscles. The team has divided up into two, and they call themselves respectively the "Colts" and "Old Vets." The first real game between them will take place tomorrow afternoon.

SKATING RINK OPENS

Large Crowd Present During Evening at New Amusement Resort

The Elite skating rink was opened Saturday night with a large crowd in attendance all the time. Admission was free during the evening, as it was opening night, and a large crowd showed their appreciation of the opening of a rink in this city, which has been without a means for indulgence in this sport, which is so popular in other parts of the state and country at the present time.

The floor at the hall is fine for roller skating, and the accommodations are very good, plenty of room being left for hat racks and checking rooms, besides ample floor space for the skaters.

A large number of good skaters were on the floor, which was surprising, as it was not considered that there would be so many in a city without a rink. There were, of course, the usual number of new skaters present, who furnished amusement to those who were not skating by their apparent awkwardness, and their numerous falls. Falls came to a large number, that is one of the enjoyments of learning to skate.

CARDINALS DEFEATED

Lose First Game of Season to Houston Colts

Special to The Telegram.

HOUSTON, Texas, March 3.—After one day's preliminary work McCloskey's men came on the diamond in team formation the first time this season this afternoon. The game between the Colts and the Cardinals was called by Umpire Con Harlow, who is to manage Houston's South Texas league team, at 3 o'clock. Despite the raw wind and lack of work, fast and snappy play abounded. The final score was, Colts 4, Cardinals 1.

Another game between the same teams is scheduled for Sunday afternoon at West End park. McCloskey is highly pleased with his men's showing.

WHERE THEY TRAIN

List of Winter Quarters for the Big Leaguers

The following list of the training grounds of the big league teams will prove of interest to the baseball fan. Nearly all of the teams are already at their training places and those that have not reported already will be there within a few days. The list is as follows:

Chicago Nationals—Champaign, Ill.
Chicago Americans—New Orleans.
New York Giants—Memphis.
New York Highlanders—Birmingham, Ala.
Philadelphia Athletics—Montgomery.
Philadelphia Nationals—Savannah.
Boston Americans—Macon, Ga.
Boston Nationals—Jacksonville, Fla.
St. Louis Nationals—Houston.
St. Louis Browns—Dallas.
Pittsburg Nationals—Hot Springs, Ark.
Cleveland Americans—Atlanta.
Cincinnati Reds—Marlin.
Detroit Americans—Augusta, Ga.
Washington Americans—Charlottesville, Va.
Brooklyn Nationals—Columbia, S. C.

ABERNATHY RESIGNS

Leaves Position of Deputy to Become United States Marshal

Special to The Telegram.

LAWTON, O. T., March 3.—John R. Abernathy, Oklahoma's new United States marshal, has resigned his position as deputy marshal for this county, and Tom Walker has been appointed to fill the vacancy. Abernathy has held this position since shortly after his hunt with the President in the big pasture last spring. Deputy Walker is now summoning grand and petit jurors for the present term of United States and district court in this county. The grand jury will meet on March 12.

NO RACE SUICIDE

Large Delegation of Children at Reception for New Postmaster

That there is no race suicide among the employes of the postoffice in this city was shown at the reception tendered to Lon M. Barkley, the new postmaster at Red Men's hall Saturday night. The reception was well attended by the employes and their wives and nearly all brought their children with them. There were a dozen or more children of three years and younger at the reception, all of whom seem to enjoy the novelty almost as well as their parents, except at times when one would express a desire to be taken walking, which would be followed by a procession, as one could not go for a walk without several more becoming jealous and stating the same in nonmistakable signs.

Most of the fun in life is the kind you are looking for.

A man could send his wife a lot more flowers if he didn't have to support her.

VAGRANTS FLOCK TO FORT WORTH

Corporation Court Kept Busy Disposing of Cases

Judge Prewitt of the corporation court states that the past week has been the busiest week in his court during the past three years in which he has presided as judge. Ordinarily it only takes an hour or two to dispose of the cases presented in the corporation court. The court convenes promptly at 9 o'clock and after the roll call of the officers, the prisoners, all of whom are charged with minor offenses amenable to this court, are disposed of as quickly as the cases will permit.

Last week, instead of getting off within a couple of hours, Judge Prewitt has had difficulty in getting through in time for lunch, the session Friday lasting until 1:20 o'clock in the afternoon.

"It seems that all of the petty law breakers have broken loose," said Judge Prewitt. "We have had drunks, disturbances of the peace, vagrants by the score and also affrays and aggravated assaults to handle. In fact the full decalogue of minor offenses has been committed apparently, and all of them within a week. I do not know exactly how to account for this, but my experience teaches that next week there may be a period of good behavior which is as unusual as the law breaking of the past week. There is no way to tell what is coming up in this line.

"The men who have been getting the greater part of the attention of the court, however, have been the vagrants and I have found it necessary to assess the maximum penalty in several of these cases. This is a fine of $10. I have no patience with an able-bodied man who has no disposition to work for a livelihood, and where there is a clear case that the man is unwilling to work I am giving him a good fine. Some of the vagrants are unable to earn a living, being crippled or disabled and frequently these are turned loose in order to get them out of the city. They would be unable to work out their fines and the city would have to board them and get nothing out of it.

"While I am not positive that it is a fact, I have been advised that some of the small towns are unloading their cripples and decrepids on Fort Worth, buying them tickets here to get them out of their towns. From the large number of them who get here some way, it seems that the statement may be true. Fort Worth is not unloading upon any other town, but at the same time this city cannot afford to care for all of this class in this part of the state, and we must get rid of them some way.

"There is another element which are more dangerous that follows conventions and large gatherings. They come here a few days before the convention and get a line on conditions, and they endeavor to make a living by their wits from the visitors. Some of the latter have been run out by the police several times, but they come back again and the officers have to be constantly on the watch for him."

PILES

Can Be Cured and We Can Prove It

Sample Package Free—Prove It Yourself

When we say that we can cure Piles we mean just exactly what we say—nothing more, nothing less. We say it because we know it and stand ready to prove it to you or to any other person. Just as we have said it and proved it to thousands already.

It is because of these thousands that we have cured that we are able to say this.

We have done our part in calling your attention to this fact and it is up to you to disprove it. And we offer you the means of doing so, knowing that you can't and that when you try our wonderful Pyramid Pile Cure you will be so well pleased with it that you will go straight to your druggist and get a box of it.

And more than that, if at any time in the future any person tells you as you have told so many yourself, that they are suffering the agonies of the damned from piles, you will not rest until he or she has bought and is using a box and getting the same relief and cure that you got. We have seen it done.

Here, for instance, is a sample of what a sample did and shows very conclusively that we are dealing in cold, hard facts and not empty assertions. A person who gets a sample never fails to buy.

Mr. John Byrne of 2306 2nd Ave., New York City, writing under date of Jan. 17, 1906, says: "I received the sample and used it right away. I got so much relief from it after 20 years' suffering, that I bought a 50 cent box. The almost unbearable pain is almost gone and my fistula has almost disappeared. I had given up all hope of ever being cured. I assure you, gentlemen, I will use every effort to make any of my friends try them, as I can guarantee they are a sure cure."

Pyramid Pile Cure is for sale at every druggist's for 50 cents a box and it is cheap at ten times the price to any one who needs it.

To get a Free Sample send your name and address today to the Pyramid Drug Co., 1795 Pyramid Building, Marshall, Mich.

BARKLEY BOND BELIEVED O. K.

Telegram Says It May Not Have to Be Changed

A telegram was received Saturday by J. W. Spencer from Washington, in which the information was conveyed that the bond of Leonidas M. Barkley for the postmastership of Fort Worth would probably not have to be made over again on account of the fact that it was signed Leonidas M. Barkley, when the original nomination was for Lon M. Barkley.

This has been one of the causes of the delay in the receipt of the commission here, as when M. Barkley was first nominated it was as Lon M. When he signed his bond he signed it Leonidas instead of Lon, a mistake of a few seconds that has cost him about one month's pay, as it has delayed the commission for about that length of time.

The nomination as Leonidas was then made to the senate, but it was feared by the friends of Mr. Barkley that the bond might have to be returned, owing to the fact that the bond was signed for him as Leonidas before he was nominated under that name, and therefore in order to fulfill all the requirements of the department that it would have to be returned to him for resigning by his bondsmen.

The receipt of the telegram Saturday does away with this possible delay of another week, and it is expected by Mr. Barkley that his commission will arrive almost any day now.

TO HOLD REHEARSAL

Fort Worth Symphony Orchestra to Meet This Afternoon

The Fort Worth Symphony orchestra will have its second rehearsal at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the store of Ross & Heyer. The following overtures will be rehearsed: "William Tell," "Poet and Peasant," and "Martitana." Jacob Schriener is the conductor of the orchestra. A meeting of the Musicians' Union will precede the rehearsal.

DEATHS

Mrs. Bell Not Improved

Mrs. Bell, the aged mother of Judge C. K. Bell, who has been ill at the Worth Hotel for quite awhile, is no better. Mrs. Bell is now 78 years old, and her advanced age is against speedy convalescence.

Ella Erwin, 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Erwin of 1301 Laconda avenue, North Fort Worth, died of pneumonia Friday. The funeral took place at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon from the residence.

WALSH HURRIES TO PROSECUTION

Former Banking Associates Said to Be Behind Arrest

Special to The Telegram.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 3.—That John R. Walsh, former president of the Chicago National bank, under arrest on a charge of violating the national banking laws, was hurried to prosecution by his associates in the banking world, was the startling development of inquiry today into the motive behind the arrest of the fallen banker.

At the time of his arrest the members of the Chicago clearing house committee, the bankers who came to his relief at the time of the failure in December, and guaranteed the accounts of depositors, declared that they were in ignorance of the government's motives toward prosecution. As late as today President James H. Eckles of the Commercial National bank, was out in an interview declaring Walsh's arrest was unwarranted, and that his conviction will be impossible.

President John J. Mitchell of the Illinois Trust and Savings bank also asserted that he was overwhelmed with surprise by the action of the department of justice in initiating a criminal prosecution of Walsh. These statements lost their weight, however, when it was learned by a Hearst reporter that the books of the Chicago National bank had been thoroughly examined since the failure by the Audit Company of New York, one of the largest auditing concerns in the world.

The corps of expert auditors who went over the accounts of the Walsh bank was headed by N. C. Johnson of Chicago, representing that company. Johnson is one of the six witnesses subpoenaed today by the government to appear against Walsh next Saturday.

The most striking point in the appearance in the case of the Audit Company of New York is that its western board of control is made up of the very bankers of the clearing house commission that have professed to be so greatly surprised by the government's action. The board is composed of the following bankers:

John J. Mitchell, John C. Black, James H. Eckles, E. A. Potter, James B. Forgan.

Effect of Field's Death

That the death of Marshall Field was a moving favor behind the prosecution of Walsh was intimated today by William Best, one of the two directors of the bank who signed with Walsh the report now said by the comptroller of the currency to be false. The other director was John M. Smith.

From Washington came news today that Assistant Attorney General McReynolds has been detailed by Attorney General Maxey to take part in the prosecution of Walsh. Mr. McReynolds in an interview at the capital intimated that prosecution of others connected with the bank besides Walsh might follow.

This statement was construed in Chicago to mean that John M. Smith and William Best, the directors of the Chicago National Bank who signed the report of the bank's condition now said to have been false and misleading, might be arrested and prosecuted as well as the twenty-nine employes of Walsh, whose names appear on the notes on which Walsh borrowed $2,610,000 for his railroad properties.

While preparations are going forward for his prosecution, Walsh sits in his office in the Grand Central station with his two sons and a few business associates, planning revenge upon the men who had brought the crowning humiliation upon him.

He has vowed to "get even" for his arrest, and his plans for a defense in court are merged with those for revenge.

Gesture language still exists in parts of Australasia. Some tribes possess so excellent a code that it is almost as efficient as a spoken language.

MAYOR TOM HONORED

Says Has Been Selected to Succeed John R. McLean

Special to The Telegram.

CLEVELAND, O., Mar. 3.—Mayor Tom L. Johnson announced today that he had been held as Ohio's member of the democratic national committee to succeeed Jno. R. McLean, of Cincinnati. Forty-five of the members of the committee mailed or wired their votes. Chairman Tom Taggart informed the mayor at a recent conference that he had received thirty-three votes to twelve for Congressman H. L. Garber and Governor Pattison.

"I certainly shall accept the position," said the mayor tonight. "It would be extremely foolish for me not to do so in view of the fact that I tried twice to land it and failed."

WILLIAMS TAX CASE CONCLUDED

Decision in Test Trial Will Be Announced This Week

Special to The Telegram.

Arguments were resumed this afternoon before Judge Brooks in the Williams intangible assets law injunction suits on the part of the railroads. When court opened after dinner Judge Lovenberg of the office of assistant attorney general, concluded his remarks on behalf of the state.

He told of the state land board in early days, composed of the governor, attorney general, state treasurer, comptroller and land commissioner and said that its duty was to classify and value land.

Courts held that such a duty was merely advisory.

Attorney General Davidson followed and injected some humor into dry proceedings by saying that counsel for the complainants had taken a wide historical range in their arguments, the prime object of which was to render their property for 25 per cent of its full value.

He complained that railroad attorneys had failed to point out where the constitution prohibits passage of this law. He concluded by saying that he hoped the court would not grant the writ, as it was premature.

He argued that all property should be taxed equally and without discrimination, that the assessment of a tax was same as the ascertainment of a tax. He complained of the fact that certain corporations had been exempt from the law and that this was class legislation.

Night Session

At the night session of the Williams intangibla tax hearing, Judge Duff continued his argument saying he would be content if the court would hold that the tax board was purely advisory. He said that the present act was without significance.

Judge Terry for the Santa Fe closed and made one of the best arguments of the case. He characterized the act as unconstitutional. He alluded to the tax board as being composed of functionaries. He declared that the three departments of government should be separated as far as possible from undoubted the constitutionality of the law which gives the attorney general authority to pass on the validity of school bonds.

When he finished the court announced that he would announce his decision one day next week, as there were several points he wished to look up.

SITUATION UNCHANGED

NEW YORK, Mar. 3.—President John Mitchell of the United Mine Workers of America, said today that there would be nothing new in the local situation until early in the week, when the president's committee will meet to discuss the miners' demands.

"The situation is unchanged," he said.

MARTIAL LAW AT MERIDIAN

Governor Takes Convicts to Aid in Relief Work

Special to The Telegram.

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 3.—A special to the Telegram from Meridian says:

Governor Vardaman arrived shortly after 4 o'clock on a special train bearing forty convicts, ten free laborers and forty members of the legislature. The convicts and laborers are to remain under command of General Fridge to assist in clearing the debris, while the legislature members returned to Jackson tonight, the governor following tomorrow morning.

Martial law practically prevails for the wrecked portion, with General Fridge in command, and strict obedience will be enforced. A clash of municipal and state authorities is not expected on any side, absolute harmony prevailing.

The following is a list of the business houses and buildings that were destroyed or ruined by the tornado:

Young Men's Christian Association building.
Thomas Lyle Grocery Company.
Meridian Chair Company.
Emires restaurant.
City electric light plant.
Leirner Neville Hardware company.
W. J. Woodside & Co.
Grand Avenue hotel.
Pearce Compress company.
Thornton Transfer company.
Gulf Compress company.
Culpepper hotel.
New Orleans & Northeastern freight depot.

Many smaller buildings and residences were destroyed, the dwellings being mostly occupied by negroes. The insurance carried, it is understood, did not cover tornado destruction, making the losses heavy.

mated by a lofty sense of devotion to the people and his contributions to the cause of popular welfare will endure as monuments to patriotism. He has left his mark to be seen and known for years to come.

"He illustrated in his life and achievements in a very high degrees the possibilities of American manhood. His fidelity to his friends was abiding, his love for his state unfailing and his aspiration for the good of his fellowman ever present.

"The state has sustained an irreparable loss in his death, and we shall not look upon his like again."

By Former Partner

In an interview tonight, Judge Jas. H. Robertson, former law partner to Governor Hogg, said:

"While he has gone, his influence for the general welfare will remain and the public measures secured through his agency for the common good will stand throughout time as unimpeached witnesses of his patriotic efforts in behalf of the common people, whom he was wont to designate as 'the bread winners.'

"Speaking to me at Fort Worth, a few months ago, when his physicians said he could live at best only a few days, he said:

"'I know I am at the forks of the road, while I am yet a young man, and feel that, if spared, I could still be of some service to my family, my friends and my country, yet, if my time has come, I will go without fear or complaint.

"'I have so lived that I have no fear of striking a briar patch when I cross the divide.'"

While all the details for the funeral have not as yet been perfected, it is the present intention, when the body arrives tomorrow afternoon, to take it to the senate chamber at the state house, where it will lie in state until Monday afternoon, at which time the funeral will be held and interment will be made in the City cemetery, his grave to be beside that of his wife.

Tribute by Judge L. G. Denman

Special to The Telegram.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 3.—Leroy G. Denman, former judge of the supreme court of Texas, paid the following tribute to Governor Hogg tonight:

"Governor Hogg was one of the most remarkable men Texas has produced.

"Whether as road overseer, justice of the peace, prosecuting attorney, attorney general or governor, he found things to do and did them with a breadth of clearness of vision and directness of purpose only given to those born to rule.

"In the midst of the severest political storms, he exercised such a complete mastery over men that the most powerful and crafty opposition was unable to thwart his politics. Abroad he was the best known and his home the most honored and beloved of Texans.

"We will probably not see his like again."

DISCUSS FRANCHISES

North Fort Worth Street and Alley Committee Meets

The North Fort Worth street and alley committee, composed of Tom Moore, T. M. Thannisch and P. J. Conway, met at the city hall Saturday night and considered the matter of granting the franchise asked by the Northern Texas Traction company and also the one of the Rosen company.

After much discussion the committee did not succeed in reaching any definite conclusion and the meeting adjourned.

PLANING MILL PLANS

Nothing Definite Decided Upon at the Meeting of Committee

The ways and means committee on the co-operation planing mill met Saturday night at the labor temple to consider plans for the establishment of the mill. No official business was done as the committee was merely considering plans for the establishment and maintainance of the mill. Nothing definite will be decided about the mill for some time yet.

WILL GIVE READING

Mrs. Jessie Eldridge Southwick to Appear at Polytechnic

Mrs. Jessie Eldridge Southwick of Emerson College, Boston, Mass., will give a reading at Polytechnic College Tuesday evening, March 6, and the program will consist of readings from miscellaneous poetry. Among the authors whose writings she will use are Shakespeare, Tennyson, Byron, Scott, Kipling, Shelly and others. She has been before the public for years and among the more important of her readings are "Macbeth" and the "Merchant of Venice."

The readings will be given under the auspices of the oratorical department of the Polytechnic College.

FUND FOR CATTLEMEN

Dallas Committee Reports $10,000 Raised for Entertainment

Special to The Telegram.

DALLAS, Texas, March 3.—The citizens' committee, which was charged with the duty of raising the sum of money deemed needful for the entertainment of the visitors to the cattlemen's convention, which begins in this city on the 19th of the month, has raised the necessary amount of $10,000 and the cattlemen can expect a royal entertainment.

The rooming committee is fearful there will be a lack of rooms and makes earnest appeal to the citizens who may have rooms available for the use of the visitors to promptly list their rooms with the committee.

North Fort Worth Baptist Service

North Fort Worth Baptist church, corner Fifteenth and Boulevard, will have morning and evening preaching services today; also Sunday school in the morning and young people's meeting in the afternoon. Preaching by the pastor, Rev. E. N. Bell.

SCHWAB LOSER TO $2,000,000 TUNE

Former Steel Magnate Said to Be Badly Short on Wheat

Special to The Telegram.

CHICAGO, March 3.—Charles M. Schwab, the steel trust man, has dropped $2,000,000 in the Chicago wheat pit. He was a bull on wheat and accumulated a big line of the May option in the crop. The market has gone almost steadily against him from 90c down to 78½c, crop scares failing to materialize.

Margin calls were promptly met by Schwab until yesterday, when he ordered his wheat sold.

"Dispose of it, no matter about the price," is the way the instructions to a local grain and stock house are said to have read.

The Schwab holdings were away up in the millions and instead of getting out a fortnight ago and taking his losses with the rest of the eastern crowd of bulls, he has stubbornly held on and his losses have multiplied rapidly.

RECEPTION FOR BARKLEY

Letter Carriers and Postal Clerks Entertain

A reception for Lon Barkley was given at Red Men's hall Saturday night by the letter carriers and employes of the postoffice of this city. There were about 100 guests present at the reception. The entertainment features of the evening were presided over by C. E. Foster, who called on Lon Barkley for the first address of the evening.

The new postmaster made but a brief address and stated that he was very much pleased with the reception that had been prepared for him and that he hoped that all his relations with the employes of the postoffice would continue to be pleasant. He also said that he hoped that whenever the employes had anything to say to him as postmaster he would always be ready to hear them, and would take special care in helping them in any just cause that they wished.

Assistant Postmaster McKee was also called on for an address, and he spoke for a few moments upon the pleasant relations now existing between the different employes of the postoffice.

Following the program refreshments were served. The program was as follows:

FOUR MEN INJURED

Special to The Telegram.

WICHITA FALLS, March 3.—The new frame work under construction for the Fort Worth and Denver City round house blew down during the strong wind here last night, injuring four men, who were on top of the structure at the time it went down.

J. R. Beaver was bruised and his right hip sprained.

V. G. Tucker had his lower lip split open and his left leg cut severely.

Mr. Bauchman, badly bruised.

Another man was slightly injured.

Superintendent Cotter was in the city and ordered a special train to carry the men to Fort Worth.

The condition of the injured men was reported as very good Saturday at St. Joseph's Infirmary, where they were taken. It is expected that they will remain in the infirmary about a week or ten days more. Neither is dangerously hurt.

WILL BUY MOSQUITOES

New Orleans Health Officer Offers Premiums For Insects

Special to The Telegram.

NEW ORLEANS, March 3.—Dr. Kohnke, city health officer has inaugurated a contest to secure all of the stegomyia mosquitoes in the city. He has offered $5 for the first live female stegomyia delivered to the office of the city board of health, $3 for the second and $2 for the third.

Dr. Kohnke has also decided to give 5 cents to any one who brings a male or female stegomyia dead or alive to the office of the city board of health during the month of March. It is safe to say if there are any stegomyia mosquitoes in town they will be brought to light through this means.

MANY DEATHS IN OCEAN STORMS

Heavy Loss of Life Reported From Various Ports

Special to The Telegram.

NEW YORK, March 3.—The telegraph and cables today have been loaded down with tales of death and disaster. From Christiana, Norway, the latest news is that several steamers have been hurried to the Gjaeslingere islands, and from Tnondhjem to lend all possible assistance to the fishing fleet that was wrecked in the terrible storm which visited the islands. It is reported that wreckage is seen floating for miles in the water. The crews of the various fishing vessels number nearly 1,500 men. The number who lost their lives cannot be told for some time, but the death list will be appalling. A relief fund has been started throughout Norway for the sufferers. Many were rendered homeless on the islands by the storm.

From Antanarvo, island of Madagascar, comes the report of an immense waterspout which dashed over the village of Monahore and left only one or two small houses standing. Besides the destruction of property, hundreds of persons were drowned and steamships were swept far inland by monster waves.

PROSPECTS EXCELLENT

Prisoned Assaults Assistant State's Attorney in Chicago

Special to The Telegram.

CHICAGO, March 3. — Prosecutor Frank Crowe, assistant states's attorney, was attacked and knocked senseless today in Judge Honore's court in the criminal court building by Joseph Brown, who had just been given an indeterminate sentence in the penitentiary.

The court room was thrown into a panic. The attack caused intense excitement. Crowe lay on the floor for several minutes, bleeding and senseless. Not until ice water had been thrown on his face did he regain consciousness.

Crowe was just making a plea to save Brown, who was accused of having held up and robbed Frederick Eggers, a druggist, from a life term because he had aided the state by some confessions.

"This man has given valuable assistance to the state."

"I don't see why there should be any leniency shown," replied the judge. "It has been proved that he is a hold-up man and that he operated with a revolver. I will, however, grant him an indeterminate sentence of from one year to life."

The words were scarcely out of the judge's mouth when Brown sprang upon Crowe and, with a mighty blow felled the attorney to the floor. He fell with a groan and Brown made another attempt to strike him. William McMahon, a bailiff, seized the prisoner and in a fierce struggle choked him into submission.

A Venezuelan military attache at Paris has turned in a report on the French army. He praised its organization, and held it up as a desirable model for imitation by Venezuela.

IRRIGATION IN WESTERN TEXAS

Lands Along Pecos River Rapidly Growing in Value

The great improvement in the value of lands of western Texas and in the adjoining parts of New Mexico is described by Bruce Knight, who has just returned from that section.

Among other things he says that the lands along the Pecos river, Toyah creek and the smaller streams in the western part of the state offer unparalleled advantages to seekers after irrigated lands.

The installation of large canal systems at Barstow, in Ward county, on the Texas and Pacific railway, and at Grand Falls, to the south of the railway, and on Toyah creek has brought forward the possibilities of the development of these lands by irrigation, and the projects have met with so much encouragement and have proven so satisfactory that it will be but a few years until all of the available locations for canal irrigation are occupied by those who will improve and develop the land.

There is another system of irrigation, apart from the canal systems, and that is the artesian well system, which is made possible by the discovery of unlimited artesian water bearing sands. These wells offer inducements of value in the development of the lands which cannot be reached by canals, which will add much to the agricultural possibilities of the western part of Texas. The development of this system, or plan of irrigation, is small yet, but the benefits are so plain that the increase in the near future is certain to be so large that the addition to the taxable values of the state in those counties will grow. The knowledge of the possibilities in this respect has already enhanced the value of these lands and higher values are to be anticipated.

One of the strongest proofs of the worth of these lands is that the people of the Roswell, N. M., country, who have for years seen the steady increase in the possibilities of irrigated lands are drifting down into the Pecos country in large and constantly increasing numbers, taking advantage of the cheaper lands and bringing th knowledge gained in the Roswell country to aid them in the development of the Pecos lands.

The health is unexcelled. The growth of cotton, alfalfa, vegetables, fruits and cereals are all profitably undertaken. The irrigable land in the Barstow section is about 9,000 acres. There are 15,000 acres of arable land in the Grand Falls region, much of which can be irrigated.

The country south of Toyah is being opened up and the irrigated, or irrigable lands under the canals leading from the Pecos via Toyah creek, are held at from $50 to $100 per acre.

Large vineyards are being laid out and such staple vegetables, using the term because of the steady demand, a demand which is never over supplied, as celery, the esculents and all of the early garden stuff, cantaloupes and grapes, as well as other fruits, grow to perfection.

The railway facilities for all of this vast country are good, especially for a land that is yet in the infancy of its possible development. The Texas and Pacific on the south; the Denver on the north; the Orient on the east, and the Pecos Valley on the northwest; taken in combination, or singly, make the markets of Fort Worth, El Paso, Denver, Kansas City and other important places accessible at all times.

LEADING CITIZENS COMMEND UNIVERSITY

Efforts of Telegram Warmly Seconded by Citizens

NEED IS URGENT

More Funds Needed to Put Institution on Basis That Will Assure Success

For two days past The Telegram has given information of the pressing needs of the Fort Worth university and some expressions of opinions from citizens of Fort Worth as to the value of such educational institutions to a community and of the value of the university in particular.

The recapitulate. Repairs and physical changes are absolutely needed to bring the condition of the buildings up to the modern standard for educational work. Some new buildings may be needed.

$30,000 Needed

The trustees of the university have the promise of $15,000 from an outside source, if the citizens of Fort Worth, or of Texas for that matter, will raise a similar sum. With this $30,000 the desired changes can be made and the school put on the basis that is deemed necessary. Its faculty can scarce be improved upon. It is competent, those interested say, and there can be no question raised as to the devotion of all of its members to the work they have to do and are doing.

There is a mortgage secured by a deed, or deed of trust, that is intended to secure the repayment of money advanced heretofore. But Dr. Fielder, president of the university, has positive assurances that this, if the contemplated improvements are secured, can be so arranged that it will never again cause any trouble. As it is, the holder does not demand the payment of any interest. Therefore the raising of the $30,000, wanted at this time, does not merely mean the rehabilitation of the university, but freeing it from the other or mortgage debt. The sum of over $6,000 has been pledged by entirely responsible firms, or people, and but little more than $8,000 is yet to be raised to insure the accomplishment of the purpose in view.

In the language of one of those who talked about the university, the value of such schools in and to a community cannot be over-estimated. Now the matter is up to the people of the city.

The need exists. The request for aid carries with it an application for a small amount. The benefits are great. The time is the present for the existing need is urgent.

Will the citizens of Fort Worth act and act at once? If so, get in touch with this worthy movement, through The Telegram, by direct communication with the members of the board of trustees or Dr. Wm. Fielder, the president of the university. From any of these sources the additional information, if any is wished, can be had.

It must appeal to all that an institution of this character, which has lived so long in Fort Worth, albeit that living was at times a struggle, which has done so much good, and which asks so little to carry on that good work, should promptly get what it requests. Let the citizens of Fort Worth act and act at once.

Will Aid at Start

If this is done the next scholastic year of the Fort Worth University will begin under more favorable auspices than ever before, with the school so changed and equipped that in those respects it can compete with any school in Texas and do even more efficient work than it has yet done. The character of the work done heretofore is a living monument to the teaching ability of the instructors in charge of the several departments of the university.

Less than $8,000 wanted for this great end. The sum should be pledged in a day. The Telegram will cheerfully impart any other information wanted.

Following are some of the expressions made to a representative of The Telegram.

Need of Universities

Rev. G. W. Ray, Congregationalist minister.—"There is nothing of more value to a community, nor to the country at large, than the higher educational institutions. There is nothing that can be of more importance to the child than the public schools, and such institutions as I have first named, for upon them depends, to a large degree, the fitting of the child for the after duty of citizenship. Without the mental training to be had in these educational institutions, an intelligent performance of the citizen is almost or quite impossible. I think it must be plain to all, as it is to me, that the Christian educational institution, such as is the Fort Worth University, should above all other vehicles of education, aid in the development of the moral character of the child, a development which I believe to be an essential to the true performance of what the citizen owes to his country.

"There is no better location in the state for a preparatory school than Fort Worth, and there is no reason why the Fort Worth University should not draw pupils here in large numbers from all contiguous part of Texas. Nor is there any reason why it should not be one of the best schools of the kind in Texas.

"I regard Dr. Fielder, the president of the university, as eminently the right man in the right place. For this view I have several reasons and it will, perchance, suffice to name two or three of them. He is an attractive man on the platform; he is an enthusiast with young people and they almost instinctively like him, for when they meet they are both conscious of an innate sympathy that establishes a fine relation one with the other and contributes to the harmonious working together; he has the courage to go after the money needed for the present modernizing of the university, and I believe he will succeed, for he is the type of man who if he fails fifty times in doing what is to him duty, he will not hesitate to get up and go at the work again with the original vigor. And the friends of the university venture this suggestion, that if he fail fifty times he must try the fifty-first, yea, if he fail 100 times, the object to be attained and the good that must accrue will warrant even another trial to raise the money that can aid in placing the Fort Worth University where it belongs. I want to see the Fort Worth University grow in size, in enhanced usefulness and become, in the highest sense, one of our best schools."

Emmett Connor—"I think the Fort Worth University is a good thing, as are all institutions of this kind. The size of the student body fixes the value to a community, in a material sense, and as the students of the university are many, there can be no question as to the value of the university to Fort Worth, for it is a self-evident proposition that all of them must live and that cannot be done without the expenditure of money. I hope the needed money will soon be raised and the desired improvements effected."

Can't Be Too Many

Rev. D. C. Limbaugh, Unitarian minister, and for fifteen or twenty years himself an educator, working for about twelve years of the time in Texas, expressed the opinion that, within reason, that is, considering the demand as the potent factor, there could not be too many institutions of learning in any community. His enthusiasm on the subject was pardonable for the reason that it was an earnest lifework with him for so many years. He has been a visitor at the university and said that he felt assured that no one could gainsay the fact, for it was a fact, that in some of the departments the Fort Worth University had as good instructors and did as good work, which produced as good results, as any school of the character in the whole country. He spoke as one having experience and yet as one having no shadow of personal interest in the matter. It was simply a deserved tribute to the ability of the teachers and the thoroughness of the methods they followed. He said that it is hard, almost impossible, to over-estimate the value of such educational institutions to the city or state.

Mr. Limbaugh then went on to say that while "he rejoiced in the wonderful development made by the enterprising citizens of this community, he hopes no less than the same advantages will be afforded for the development of the heart and brain; that unless all of our money and goods are made, not an object and the end, but merely a means of the unfoldment of the mind and soul, then our life, in this community, is a failure. The rich and those who move in high circles and all those who love the development of youth, owe it to the rising generation in this city to say by their efforts in this movement for the modernizing of the Fort Worth University that the real things, in their estimation, are the unfolding of the minds and hearts of the children of the city or those whom the confidence of their parents has entrusted to our care."

He is of the opinion that this can best be done in a well equipped and properly conducted school and concluded by a reiteration of his warm commendation of the teaching methods followed in some of the departments of the university and yet as much praise for the ability of those entrusted with the work.

Why He Moved Here

Dr. J. H. Horn, practicing physician.—"The statement that we moved to Fort Worth that we might have the benefit of the scholastic advantages afforded by the Fort Worth University is true. I appreciate the university and but for its existence here we would not have come to Fort Worth. I had my oldest daughter in a school at Meridian, Miss., and without disparagement to their schools, I much prefer the Fort Worth University. After a careful examination I sent my daughter here to complete her education. We afterward moved to Fort Worth and I now have two of my boys entered as students at the university. This is a practical demonstration of my estimate of the value of the university.

"I cannot pretend to give you the figures, but it is my understanding that in the state and the inter-state oratorical contests, the Fort Worth University has so much more than held its own that it has sent more students entitled by reason of fitness to these contests and has won more of them than all of the state schools in the association combined. I do not vouch for the accuracy of these figures, mind you, but that is the way I understand it, from information which comes to me. You must see that this is a high tribute to at least one branch of the university teaching."

Dr. Horn then enumerated several of the departments where he thought the heads of the departments were of the very best in fitness for the positions. He continued:

"I cannot say more in commendation of the Fort Worth University than the fact that our selection of that school for the education of our children was made after a careful examination extending over several years and including in its scope several schools situated in different parts of the southern country. We decided in favor of the Fort Worth University. And emphatically we feel that we have made no mistake. We feel that the highest duty we owe to our children is to give them a good education and we are confident we have taken the right course to that end."

(The Fort Worth University has won five of the seven oratorical contests that have been held).

Helping a Good Thing

Lee Hagood, the Arcade.—"It is true I am a contributor to the modernizing fund of the university and yet I never attended that school nor have any of my children. But I always like to help a good thing along and this I regard as one of the good things of Fort Worth. I believe the university is doing a good work and the small amount asked should be speedily raised. To do it work with the utmost possible efficiency the school should be put in the best possible condition and I hope that it will be quickly done."

Can Be Among Best

Jake Washer.—"The Fort Worth University is a good institution with a large number of students and it should be kept up. It should get the fund desired and be raised to the class of the thoroughly up-to-date school as to the equipment. We can never get too many schools in any community, and I do not hesitate to say that I apply this especially to Fort Worth, because of my interest in the city. I am glad to see them here and hope all will be of the best and all be as prosperous as their promoters can wish. There are many school children in Texas and if we do not prepare ourselves to care for them, some other city will afford the proper facilities. It is well within the possibilities and I hope the Fort Worth University will soon achieve its desire for such improvements as the management think essential and be what it can be, among the very best in state."

Mr. Washer was well pleased to hear of the plan by which the university might be freed from the mortgage incumberance and he thought that this fact becoming generally known would much increase the interest of the citizens in the work of raising the money, not a large amount now, to do what Dr. Fielder and the trustees desire in the way of improvements.

What Sulphur Does

For the Human Body in Health and Disease.

The mention of sulphur will recall to many of us the early days when our mothers and grandmothers gave us our daily dose of sulphur and molasses every spring and fall.

It was the universal spring and fall "blood purifier," tonic and cure-all, and, mind you, this old-fashioned remedy was not without merit.

The idea was good, but the remedy was crude and unpalatable, and a large quantity had to be taken to get any effect.

Nowadays we get all the beneficial effects of sulphur in a palatable, concentrated form, so that a single grain is far more effective than a tablespoonful of the crude sulphur.

In recent years research and experiment have proven that the best sulphur for medicinal use is that obtained from Calcium (Calcium Sulphide) and sold in drug stores under the name of Stuart's Calcium Wafers. They are small chocolate coated pellets and contain the active medicinal principle of sulphur in a highly concentrated, effective form.

Few people are aware of the value of this form of sulphur in restoring and maintaining bodily vigor and health; sulphur acts directly on the liver and excretory organs and purifies and enriches the blood by the prompt elimination of waste material.

Our grandmothers knew this when they dosed us with sulphur and molasses every spring and fall, but the crudity and impurity of ordinary flowers of sulphur were often worse than the disease, and cannot compare with the modern concentrated preparations of sulphur, of which Stuart's Calcium Wafers is undoubtedly the best and most widely used.

They are the natural antidote for liver and kidney troubles and cure constipation and purify the blood in a way that often surprises patient and physician alike.

Dr. R. M. Wilkins while experimenting with sulphur remedies soon found that the sulphur from Calcium was superior to any other form. He says: "For liver, kidney and blood troubles, especially when resulting from constipation or malaria, I have been surprised at the results obtained from Stuart's Calcium Wafers. In patients suffering from boils and pimples and even deep-seated carbuncles, I have repeatedly seen them dry up and disappear in four or five days, leaving the skin clear and smooth. Although Stuart's Calcium Wafers is a proprietary article and sold by druggists and for that reason tabooed by many physicians, yet I know of nothing so safe and reliable for constipation, liver and kidney troubles and especially in all forms of skin diseases as this remedy."

At any rate people who are tired of pills, cathartics and so-called blood "purifiers" will find in Stuart's Calcium Wafers a far safer, more palatable and effective preparation.

Agonizing Eczema

Another Great Cure by Hood's Sarsaparilla

A medicine that will cure the worst cases of scrofula, eczema, psoriasis and other blood diseases, is sure to be successful with all similar troubles.

Mrs. Wynne's wonderful cure should convince you that Hood's Sarsaparilla is the medicine for you to take.

"I had a very bad attack of eczema, that terrible skin disease. No one can imagine the agony I endured.

"For five long months I lay in bed, tossing this way and that for bodily comfort.

"I had two doctors and was on a bread and milk diet for more than five months. No meat, potatoes, cereal or fish. I was white as a ghost from bread and milk.

"I did not have the eczema in one place only, but from the top of my head to the soles of my feet. My hair all fell out, and I was blind at times.

"I had 32 boils and 4 carbuncles at one time, was a mass of scabs and pus.

Oh, the Burning and Itching and the treatment with all kinds of salves and oils! I did not have water on my face or any part of me for over five months. Instead, I was washed from head to foot in sweet oil, with a little carbolic acid. My house was like a drug store. Then I had a specialist, who said that in all his experience he Never Saw Such a Sight as I was. He wanted to take me to a clinic in New York, but I said no.

"About that time a friend suggested that I try Hood's Sarsaparilla. My husband got me a bottle, and from the first I began to improve, but it took a number of bottles to relieve me of that terrible affliction.

"Now I am quite well, and feel I Owe My Life to Hood's Sarsaparilla. My testimony can be fully verified by the leading doctors of this city." MRS. FRED WYNNE, 817 So. 2nd St., Plainfield, N. J.

SPECIAL.—To meet the wishes of those who prefer medicine in tablet form, we are now putting up Hood's Sarsaparilla in chocolate-coated tablets as well as usual liquid form. Reducing Hood's Sarsaparilla to a solid extract, we have retained in the tablets the curative properties of every medicinal ingredient except the alcohol. Sold by druggists, or sent by mail if your druggist does not have them. 100 doses $1. C. I. Hood Co., Lowell, Mass.

TO DISCUSS LIBRARIES

First Institute to Be Held in Texas Opens Here March 22

As announced in Saturday's Telegram, the first Library Institute to be held under the auspices of the Texas Library Association will be held at the Carnegie Public Library in Fort Worth on Thursday and Friday, March 22 and 23.

The Library Institute had its beginning in New York, and was the outcome of the effort of the Libary Commission to improve the methods of administering small libraries. The name and plan of the Teachers' Institute, that has done so much to improve the rural schools of the country, were adopted. Institutes of one and two days' duration were held in different sections of the state by able directors, and library boards were induced to attend.

The institute differs from the Library Association in bringing together a smaller group, for the study of technical and practical subjects in library economy than is possible in a larger association.

The Institute plan has been adopted by a number of states and is doing much to bring up the standard of efficiency of the libraries. It cannot fail to be of even greater aid in Texas where so many isolated workers, who have had but scanty opportunity to fit themselves for their work, need the inspiration of meeting their co-workers and to come in touch with the best methods in library economy.

At the Fort Worth Institute such subjects as "Things That Help to Make a Library Successful," "Children's Work and Children's Books," "Essentials in Library Administration," "Cataloguing for a Small Library," etc., all practical questions of the greatest moment, are to be considered. The paper on cataloguing will take the form of a lesson in cataloguing. The paper on binding is to be delivered by a practical bookbinder. The talk on book buying will be presented from the standpoint of both the librarian and dealer.

The talk on book binding will be illustrated by a binding exhibit of books in different stages of binding, best materials for binding, etc., showing what constitutes a well-bound book. There will be an exhibit of bulletins from the New York State Library School, showing one of the best methods of directing the attention of the people to a given subject. An A. L. A. catalogue of the printed cards issued by the Library of Congress will be shown. Photographs of the library buildings of Texas and the forms used by Texas libraries will be shown, side by side with those used by some of the leading libraries of the country.

Mr. Windsor, librarian of the University of Texas and secretary of the Texas State Library Association, will attend and assist in directing the work of the institute. An evening session will be held on Thursday evening, March 22, at which Mayor Powell, Mr. Windsor and others will be speakers, and when library subjects of general interest will be discussed. The public is invited to attend all the meetings, but are especially urged to attend the evening session.

NOTED ZIONIST SPEAKS TONIGHT

Rabbi Friedlander to Deliver Address This Evening

Rabbi J. Friedlander of Beaumont, Texas, president of the state Zionist movement, will arrive in Fort Worth late this afternoon and deliver a lecture on "Zionists: Their Plans and Aims," at the Orthodox Jewish synagogue in Taylor street, at 8 o'clock.

Accompanying the Texas Zionist leader will be A. Fried, chairman of the state executive committee of the same organization, who will also make a short address at the meeting tonight. Rabbi Jasin of this city will also talk.

Plans for the meeting tonight include the expectation that it will be attended by a larger part of the Jewish population of Fort Worth, all of whom are said to be heartily in accord with the movement, which, as is well known, has become world-wide in its scope. All three of the speakers of the evening being well known platform orators of ability, a large number of citizens are expected to be present to learn more of the movement which plans the return of the sons and daughters of Israel to their land of Palestine.

This is the first visit of Dr. Friedlander to this city, and it is stated that it is the intention of the Jewish people to give him more than an ordinary welcome. The committee in charge of the reception upon the arrival from Dallas this afternoon include the following:

Israel N. Mehl, A. Salsberg, S. Simon, L. F. Shainblum and M. Ginsberg.

CELEBRATED BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Moore Murdock Guest of Honor at Washington Reception

Mrs. Moore Murdock, formerly of Fort Worth, but now of Dallas, was at the Feb. 22 celebration of the First regiment of minutemen of Washington as one of the guests of honor and with Captain C. A. Sidman, as General Washington was the Mrs. or Lady Washington of the occasion.

The "Minutemen of Washington," an old military organization, has made it the practice for many years to celebrate the anniversary of Washington's birthday. Generally they are unique. This one was exceptional. All of the minutemen wore colonial costume and the women emulated the men in the antique costume with Janice Meredith curls, powdered wigs and all of the rest that pertained to the colonial times.

The guests of honor were Captain Sidman, Mrs. Moore Murdoch and the Mexican war veterans, the latter of whom were holding their annual convention in Washington. There were forty-three of the "vets," in the hall.

The entertainment, a reception, was begun with a series of elaborate tableaux and included singing, dancing and refreshments.

The costuming of "General and Mistress Washington" was said to be perfect.

At the conclusion of the entertainment the floor was cleared for dancing. The first dance was a minuet, in which only the officers in continental uniform and ladies in colonial costumes participated. It was led by Captain Sidman and Mrs. Murdock.

Representatives of the Daughters of the American Revolution, Grand Army of the Republic, Army and Navy Union, Spanish-American war veterans, Stonewall Chapter, C. S. A.; officers of the National Guard, and the Herma Vista Club were present.

THE CARELESS GROCER

Blundered and Great Good Came of It

Two years ago I was suffering from stomach trouble, so acute that the effort to digest ordinary food gave me great pain and brought on a condition of such extreme nervousness that I could not be left alone. I thought I should certainly become insane. I was so reduced in flesh that I was little better than a living skeleton. The doctors failed to give me relief and I despaired of recovery.

"One day our groceryman left a package of Grape-Nuts food by mistake, so I tried a dish for dinner. I was surprised to find that it satisfied my appetite and gave me no distress whatever. The next meal I ate of it again, and to be brief, I have lived for the past year almost exclusively on Grape-Nuts. It has proved to be a most healthy and appetizing food, perfectly adapted to the requirements of my system.

"It is not only easily digested and assimilated itself, but I find that since I have been using it I am able to eat anything else my appetite fancies, without trouble from indigestion. The stomach trouble and nervousness have left me. I have regained my plumpness and my views of life are no longer despondent and gloomy. Other members of my family, especially my husband (whose old enemy, the 'heartburn,' has been vanquished) have also derived great benefit from the use of Grape-Nuts food and we think no morning meal complete without it." The Above Illustration

Gives a splendid idea of the new feature in Young Men's Clothes for the coming season. You will observe the long lapels, the form-fitting back and the deep center vent, with the inverted side plaits, headed with the box seam. The trousers are made very generous yet with a shapeliness about the bottom different from last season. We are now showing these new suits in light gray, plaids and blue serges.

STONE STREET & DAVIS CORRECT DRESS FOR MEN

FAT STOCK SHOW PROSPECTS GOOD

List of Entries Already Far Exceeds Previous Years

The entries for the Fort Worth Fat Stock Show, which opens March 22, have been closed and have far exceeded those of former years, and there is every indication that the coming show will be the greatest and most successful in every particular that has ever been held here. Not only have the entries been larger, but a large number of them have come from parts of the country from which exhibits have not hitherto been secured, and this shows that the territory interested in the annual Fat Stock Show is being enlarged.

There have been thirty-eight cars of fat cattle entered for the show. This is eighteen cars more than was exhibited here last year, and when they are unloaded and separated in their respective places they will make an exhibit well worth coming many miles to see.

In addition to the fat cattle, there will be eighty-four single steers of which the owners are very proud, and which will do the eyes of the lovers of fine stock good to see. Last year there were only forty of these steers, so that the exhibit in this particular class will be over twice as large as it was previously.

There will be forty-two cars of fine hogs on exhibit, against twenty-two cars a year ago, and also five cars of fine sheep.

Ready for Exhibit

The stock yards company has made extensive preparation for care of the stock on exhibit, and the needed care of all of fine animals has been arranged for. These preparations have been better than ever before, in anticipation of larger and better exhibits. There will be an abundance of room and the cattle will be so arranged that they will be displayed to the best possible advantage.

As has been mentioned in The Telegram, there will be a booklet issued, similar to that used at the National live stock exhibit at Chicago, by which the cattle exhibited can easily be located and traced. The animals will be numbered, and its class number placed on the animal, one being hung on the side and the other on its forehead, and by referring to the booklet, the animal's dam and sire can be obtained and also its owner and his address.

Captain Paddock of the Board of Trade is much elated over the outlook, and he states there have already been more rooms engaged by prospective visitors than were engaged a year ago.

"Fort Worth can always take care of a crowd," said Captain Paddock, "and we are always glad to see them. Many of the visiting cattlemen will feel at home here anyway, because they have been her so often on business."

Ship's Long Cruise

The Alaska Steamship Company's steamship Indianapolis arrived at San Francisco on Feb. 6 from Chicago, where she was built, by way of New York. After taking on coal she will proceed to Puget Sound, where she will be put into commission between Seattle and other sound ports.

Honest People Tell Their Experiences. Spring,—the Time to Cure Catarrh.

Mr. J. Q. Craig, a well-known athlete, whose home address is Bridgeton, N. J., writes from the Hotel Donavin, Delaware, Ohio, as follows:

"I can say of Peruna that, as a tonic for the spring of the year, it is the best for athletes, and as such I can give it a hearty recommendation."

Peruna does not fail to prevent the lassitude and languor incident to the approach of warm weather, if taken in time.

Mr. Wienand Houseman, a prominent and aged citizen of Seneca Falls, N. Y., is the inventor of a number of implements of modern warfare. He writes:

"For several years past, I and my family used your Peruna as a tonic and for the purification of the system in general and find that it is an excellent medicine to restore weak nerves to a healthy condition."

Mrs. John E. Mills, 36 Mulberry St., Lynn, Mass., writes:

"I have been troubled with catarrh since I was ten years old. At times my head troubled me so that I was obliged to stay in a dark room. Nothing helped me and my physician said I could never be cured.

"I began taking Peruna this spring and find myself greatly benefited by it. I have not had an attack since I took my first bottle. I think in time it will cure me. It has already improved my appetite and my general health and I have gained twenty pounds in three months.

"I have recommended it to several of my friends, who also find it very beneficial. I advise any one troubled with catarrh to use Peruna."

Spring Catarrh

Almost every one has come to believe that spring is a season that brings derangements of the body dependent on blood impurities.

This belief is an old one, is nearly universal, and has arisen, not as the result of the teachings of the medical fraternity, but has been learned in the bitter school of experience.

Nervous Depression

There are general lassitude, dull, heavy sensations, continual tired feelings, with irregular appetite, and sometimes loss of sleep.

That Tired Feeling

That tired feeling, which is the natural result of the depressing effect of warm weather immediately after the invigorating cold of winter, quickly disappears when Peruna is taken.

The Correct Remedy

Peruna meets every indication and proves itself to be perfectly adapted to all their varied peculiarities. Peruna invigorates the system, rejuvenates the feelings, restores the normal appetite and procures regular sleep.

Do Not Delay

Get a bottle of Peruna when the first languid feelings make themselves apparent in the spring. Take it according to the directions on the bottle. Continue this treatment through the first months of spring.

This course of treatment is no experiment. It has helped thousands. Why should it not help you?

A Spring Tonic

Almost everybody needs a tonic in the spring. Something to brace the nerves, invigorate the brain, and cleanse the blood. That Peruna will do this is beyond all question. Every one who has tried it has had the same experience as Mr. Warren M. Taylor, 1216 8th Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., who, in a recent letter, writes:

"I suffered this way for about seven years.

"Last spring I began using Peruna and followed the instructions as set forth in one of Dr. Hartman's booklets which I picked up in a drug store, and to my great joy I noticed that within a week I was nearly cured.

"At the end of two months I was entirely cured and feel as though I have a new lease on life."

Nature's Assistance

Spring is the best time to treat catarrh. Nature renews herself every spring. The system is rejuvenated by spring weather. This renders medicines more effective.

A short course of Peruna, assisted by the balmy air of spring, will often relieve old, stubborn cases of catarrh that have resisted treatment for years.

A Word of Advice

To those who have been afflicted with chronic catarrh we wish to say that the spring season affords you a splendid opportunity to get rid of your disease.

It may be you have been afflicted for several years; you may have tried different remedies. Perhaps you have become discouraged.

Now Is Your Opportunity

This failure was during the winter months. But now is your opportunity. Nature comes to your assistance at this season.

Just help her a little and she will bring you out of the quagmire in which you have been floundering so long. Give Nature a little assistance, lest her struggles be in vain.

A Typical Case

Geo. M. Fillmore, formerly 1st Lieut. 3d U. S. Artillery, writes from 909 L. St., N. W., Washington, D. C., as follows:

"I brought forward from winter into spring a sickening case of catarrh which was making existence miserable for me, until I was induced to try a bottle of Peruna.

"An immediate improvement gave me hope, if not relief. I kept up taking Peruna and it has so strengthened and relieved me that I am now confident of a cure. I heartily indorse Peruna for catarrhal affections and as a tonic for their weakening effects."—Geo. M. Fillmore.

A short course of Peruna now will be just in time. During the month of April you will find the strategic time to rid yourself of chronic catarrh, one of the most persistent, stubborn diseases in the whole list of human ailments.

After you have tried it you will say Peruna is positively the best spring medicine you have ever used.

A great many years of extensive trials of this remedy in this class of derangements have demonstrated its efficiency.

Numerous Testimonials

Thousands of cases might be quoted in which Peruna has rescued people from the ravages of spring catarrh, and put them on a good, solid foundation of health.

We can give our readers only a slight glimpse of the vast array of unsolicited indorsements Dr. Hartman is constantly receiving. No other physician in the world has received such a volume of enthusiastic letters of thanks.

If you do not receive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio. All correspondence held strictly confidential.

Mrs. A. S. Rucker, 1824 Cedar St., Nashville, Tenn., writes:

"I wish to tell you what Peruna has done for me. In the spring of 1902 I was very sick and so weak I could scarcely be up. I was alarmed at my condition.

"I had a bad cough for some time and I tried several cough medicines, but grew worse all the time. I knew if I did not get relief, I would soon go into consumption.

"So I decided to try Peruna. I had confidence in it before I took it and found it was just the medicine I needed, for in a short time my cough ceased and my strength returned.

"I have enjoyed better health since taking it than I had for several years previous."

A Texas daughter of the plains so advised a friend who was lamenting over the miscarriage of her ambitions.

The futility of crying over spilt milk has been a part of the instruction age has given youth since time was. Notwithstanding the crying has kept up and only repeated spillings and the attendant experience has brought philosophical view of tear shedding as a wasteful and unprofitable performance.

The Texas girl gives first aid to the injured when she adds to the philosophy of her elders her own point of view." Pick up the pail and take after another cow."

Is there anybody who has not at some time, or many times for that, split all the milk in the pail? And has not the inclination been strong to fling away the pail or else to sit down and flout in anger over the disaster? To most there is only one cow, and the contents of the pail all the milk in the world worth having. To realize that there are other cows and that the pail be refilled with milk just as sweet and wholesome as that irrevocably lost is to conquer disaster, to regain peace, to be spiritually and mentally content.

Is not content close kin to happiness?

However do not forget to keep the pail.

Each of us has had the pail overturned that contained the particular milk that we considered the best ever, and quite necessary to our happiness. The lady who gives a party, the man with political ambitions, the merchant who entices fair customers, the lover and his sweetheart—the varieties of milk that goes into life's pail are as infinite as individual tastes, and every pail is apt to be overturned.

Not only does the cow's too active hoof, or her energetic tail put the milk out of measuring, but we ourselves may stump a toe and unbalance the pail. Each is irritating. "Pick up the pail and take another cow." All will soon be well.

Young people in the thrall of their first romance, are certain to find their pail overturned even before it is fairly well filled with love's soft words and sweet nothings. This first milking inevitably rests in uncertain balance, the tipping over an easy matter.

A hasty word, stern parents, a rival an absence that does not make at least one heart grow fonder, any one may make the overturning and its attendant heart breaking woe.

At the spilling crisis it is hard to realize that in other pastures, maybe in the same, there are cows equally as valuable shades of Romeo and Juliet, Hero, Leander, Petrarch and Laura! But with the pail in hand and the pasture filled with good and worthy sows the split milk will soon be forgotten if only the milker keep an equable mind and refill the pail in the proper spirit.

The men who have achieved lasting success, those who are sure of fortunes smiles, and in whom their business associates have confidence are the men who kept the pail, and even though the spillings have been numerous, have always succeeded in getting hold of another cow. Experience has taught them to walk without tripping, and they have learned to use judgment in selecting the commercial cow—one that will not kick over the pail.

Any good cow will yield a fair milking if the dairyman understands his business.

If he has erred in selecting his cow straightway he selects another and by keeping on the lookout he will have cream in plenty, even though his milk be occasionally spilt.

The best cow in the world will avail nothing unless the milker has the pail. Holding to the pail is the big part of success.

The commercial pail is honesty, integrity, intelligence and judgment that knows when to compromise. Unless the pail is kept without a leak, the milk of opportunities will be lost out as fast as it comes in. Spilt milk is bad enough, but a leaky pail is hopeless.

Throwing away the pail when the milk is all gone, is evidence of weakness and an invitation for complete disaster, whether the vessel be faith in mankind, or a heart full of kindness and good will or business ability and opportunities. When the pail is gone, there will take its place bitterness and cynicism through which passes all the associations with others and there will be no place for friendships nor the cordial relations of business or society without which life is a very empty pail indeed.

A man's honor is the pail in which he places every thing worth having. This pail thrown away—and what?

Most men desire success as they pursue game. He who desires the excitement of the chase, does not betake him to the cow lot where the faithful brindle chews her cud in safety and contentment. Rather does he hie himself to the mountains where for many hours he follows the signs of the fleet and elusive antelope, or else he fain would dare to trace bruin to his haunts, or face other occupants of the forest fastnesses.

Few hunters get the object of their chase. But the patient brindle awaits his return home and yields her contribution to domestic happiness when called upon. She needs little care and labor and rewards richly for the little.

So it is with success or happiness. Neither is often picturesque, frequently it is ready at hand in the cow lot as it were. Happy is the seeker for these good things if he can keep the pail, and notwithstanding venturesome overturnings, can refill it when favorable opportunity arrives.

EVENTS OF WEEK

Harris-Wilson

The marriage of Miss Mary Katherine Wilson to Walter Caraway Harris took place Friday evening in the parlors of Hrs. Higby's beautiful home in Fourth and Burnett streets, Rev. Mr. Caldwell of the Cumberland Presbyterian church officiating. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Ella Wilson, the groom entering with Mr. Caldwell. The ribbons separating the parlor from the reception hall were untied by Miss Myrtle Myers of Alvarado and Miss Irma Poindexter. The bride wore a beautiful cream suit with Renaissance lace trimming and carried a shower bouquet of bride roses. Miss Wilson was also attired in cream, her flowers being pink roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris will be at home to their many friends at their pretty new cottage on Helen street.

The following were among the presents received: Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Dillard, set knives and forks; Miss Beck and Miss Walker, cracker jar; Mrs. E. W. Yeates, picture; from Sunday school class, set of after dinner spoons and sugar tongs; Miss Charlton Miller, fern and fern bowl; Miss Downing and mother, picture; Miss Annie Hill, picture; Mrs. Lee Garret and family, dinner set; Misses Dillard, table spoons; Miss Blanche Allen, Gainesville, set of hand-painted plates; Miss Anna Stratton, Austin, tea jacket; Mr. and Mrs. W. Worth High Five Mrs. C. W. Gossett, Mrs. C. E. Gossett and Mrs. H. O. Johnston entertained the Worth High Five Club Tuesday.

The color scheme for the afternoon was pink and white.

Twelve interesting games of high five were played, after which Mrs. Ankerson being the fortunate club member, was awarded a jewel case. Mrs. Horner won the guest's token, a beautiful plate. The consolation fell to Mrs. Fanning.

Two new members were enlisted—Mrs. Shahan and Mrs. Hodgson.

A delicious two-course luncheon was served to the following members and guests: Mmes. Cragoe, Hill, Cromer, Coker, Ankerson, Andrews, Walker, Hutsell, G. W. Gossett, Bowles, Johnston, C. E. Gossett, Horner, Hunter, Hirshfield, White, Shahan, Hodgson, Fanning and Miss Rossen.

Mrs. M. E. Walker will be next hostess.

The Olives Sew

The Olive Sewing Club met with Mrs. Hollis Thursday, the afternoon being one of informal pleasure. The club has a membership of only nine, and all were present. Mrs. William McVeigh will entertain the other eight at the next meeting.

* * *

The musical given by the members of the First Presbyterian church at the residence of Mrs. George Thompson, Friday afternoon, was attended by a large audience who enjoyed the very attractive program offered. Special praise was bestowed upon Jean Willis, a tiny maid of less than 6, who gave "Jesus Lover of My Soul" in pantomime, as accompaniment to the song rendered by Mrs. Groom. This was followed by a recitation of "The Dolls' Bazaar," that was most pleasing. Miss Whittaker as accompanist found favor in addition to that shown shown her for her admirable piano number.

The following was the program:

"Barber of Seville".....Rossini
Mesdames Duringer and West, Mr. Pitner.

Reading ..... Selected
Miss Talbott.

Poppy Song .....De Koven
Mrs. Groom.

Violin—"Andaluza" ..... Sarasate
Miss Spoonts.

Pantomime—"Jesus, Lover of My Soul" .....
Jean Willis and Mrs. Groom.

Barcarolle..... Moszkowski
Miss Whittaker.

Violin—Serenade..... Dancla
Mrs. Morton.

"The Spring Has Come"..... .....Maud Valerie White
Mr. Estes.

Bridge

Mrs. J. W. Hertford entertained a few friends most informally with a game of bridge Monday afternoon. Mrs. Ed Burns made the best score, winning a lovely box of note and letter paper.

Mrs. James B. Gray

Bridge lovers played with Mrs. James Gray Friday afternoon. Mrs. Ed Burns scored 1,044 points, the highest score of the afternoon, and was rewarded with an exquisite hand-painted American beauty plate. Mrs. H. C. Edrington cut for the souvenir, an attractive burnt leather bridge scorer. The daintiest refreshment of cream, frozen in roses, coffee, almonds and glace fruit was served. Mrs. Gray's guests were: Misses Annabel Pendleton, Anne Newlin, Burnie Newlin, Anita Hunter, Teddie Edrington, Mary Swayne, Madeline McCart, Mary Byers, Ella Hogsett, Laura Hogsett, Mabelle Bradley, Mesdames C. W. Connery, Price, Ed Burns, H. C. Edrington, J. C. McCabe, John Phelan, Sam Henderson, Frank Mullins and E. E. Fosdick.

Mr. Penn Dined

Mrs. T. A. McDowell gave a beautiful dinner Friday evening, complimentary to Charles A. Penn of Reidsville, N. C. The table was daintily decorated with a centerpiece of Lawson pinks and corsage bouquets of violets for the girls, with violet boutonnier for the gentlemen. An elaborate dinner was served the guests, including Misses Teddie Edrington, Anita Hunter, Burnie Newlin, Grace Hollingsworth, Nita Hollingsworth, Josephine Blair of Wichita Falls, and Messrs. Charles A. Penn of Reidsville, N. C.; Charles Delano, Willard Laird and Dr. Lyman Barber.

In Honor of Guests

Mrs. W. B. Garvey entertained Saturday night in honor of Mrs. Vaughan and Mrs. Johnson of Missouri, sisters of Mrs. A. T. Baker, who are spending several weeks here. The other guests were members of the club noted for its jolly good times rather than any regular name. Mrs. Garvey supplied them with any number of opportunities for merriment, "Poor Kittie" being introduced for the first time. Other of the pastimes familiar to the club members were revived for the entertainment of the visitors.

A two-course luncheon was served to Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Baker, Mrs. Vaughan, Mrs. Johnson, Miss Eunice Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Spencer, Mr. and Mrs. William Reeves, Mr. and Mrs. St. Clair, Mr. and Mrs. Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Violet Whist Party

Mrs. Thomas D. Ross entertained with an elaborate violet whist party Friday afternoon, complimentary to Misses Katherine Stripling, Maybelle Slaughter and Dogel of Marfa.

Mrs. Ross, the honorees, and Misses Daisy and Mae Evans, gowned in violet and white gowns, received in the drawing room. The Ross home was beautifully decorated in violets and ferns. The color was carried out in every conceivable way. The tables were covered with violet and white, and a corsage bouquet of violets was cut for at each table. The number of games won was kept with candied violets. The tally cards were dainty, hand-painted violet conceits. Misses Mae Evans and Ray Saunders punched the scores, the former winning the punchers' favor, a bottle of violet extract in elaborate case.

Miss Maggie Conner won the first prize, a set of six exquisite hand-painted violet coffee cups; Miss Katherine Stripling won the honorees' souvenir, a dainty violet shirt waist set; while Miss Mary Terrell was consoled with a violet fern dish.

The refreshments carried out the violet and white color scheme. The guests of this lovely affair were: Misses Beal Oxsheer, Martha Jennings, Bess White, Lucille White, Bessie Anderson, Marguerite Berney, Virgilo Paddock, Helen Waples, Aileen Humphreys, Maggie Connor, Andre Anderson, Mary Terrell, Ida Crowley, May Samuels, Georgie Deihl, Cella Nail, Wright, Daisy Evans, Mae Evans, Cassell, Moore of Kentucky, Bowman of Illinois, Van Zandt, Maddox, Edna Maddox; Mesdames Tom Dunn, W. C. Stripling, S. M. Gaines and Jones.

Box Party

Robert Costan gave a box party Friday night in honor of Miss Maybelle Slaughter, to see "Monsieur Beaucaire." After the theater Mr. Costan took his guests to the Worth, where they had a delightful little supper served in the private dining room. The table was decorated in pink carnations and a handsome bouquet of the same was at each girl's place. The guests were Misses Teddie Edrington, Katherine Stripling, Maybelle Slaughter and Martha Jennings; Messrs. Charles A. Penn of Reidsville, N. C., Walter Caldwell and Wilbur Hardwick.

Kept Open House

Open house was held Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. Brann in honor of the engagement of their son, Arthur Brann, and Miss Beerbaum of Chicago. In the afternoon a reception was held in honor of the young people and the evening for the older people. A large number of callers were received during the day who brought congratulations for all concerned.

Dance at Imperial Hall

The Mardi Gras dance given in Imperial hall Monday night by the girls known as the Sans Pariel and the Entre Nous girls, with a few Imperial girls participating, was such a success that the wonder is that such a feature of the pre-Lenten season has not been thought of before. The young ladies promoting the dance came in a body properly chaperoned. The men came alone and awaited with such patience as they could command the favors to be awarded them by their masked girl friends.

The dances were impromptu until the grand march, led by Bert Winfrey, unmasking, which brought no end of surprises.

Among those who were in costumes were the following:

Miss Anne Newlin, sweet sixteen.
Miss Jennie Church, nun.
Miss Daisy Kirn, cherry ripe.
Miss Eva Mae Lewis, baby.
Miss Hazel Hull, night.
Miss Eretta Carter, spring violets.
Miss Jessie Binyon, colonial girl.
Miss Alice Lusk, Dolly Varden.
Miss Edna Mae Card, study in red.
Miss Lily Douglas, a lady of the first empire.
Miss Blanche Vallandigham, Fort Worth society lady.
Miss Goldie Brigance, "American Beauty."
Miss Ruth Hosmer, "snake charmer."
Miss Madge Hosmer, Spanish lady.
Miss Irma Hosmer, colonial dame.
Miss Helen Murdock, Dutch girl.
Miss Frances Wright, colonial girl.
Miss Coon of New York, black domino.
Miss Flora Lee Blair, colonial girl.
Miss Minnie Williams, blue domino.
Miss Edna Pendleton, gypsy.
Miss Andre Anderson, pink domino.
Miss Lilia Fuller, colonial dame.
Miss Florence Drake, domino.
Miss Kennedy, Dutch peasant girl.
Miss Crowley, domino.
Miss Dell Shropshire, Scotch lassie
A. Gernsbacher, clown.
J. Gernsbacher, domino.
Berkely Spiller, naval cadet.
Paul Stterin, white domino.
Watts Gardner, Indian.
Robert May, Dutch peasant boy.
Ross Trigg, blue domino.
Dr. Henry Trigg, domino.
John Bartels, bandit.
Bert Winfrey, domino.
Raymond Reimers, Brother Rastus preacher.
Robert Cheatham, English squire.

The Fair

An Early Showing

of Exclusive Spring Suits

A SHOWING Monday of the season's cleverest creations in Tailored Suits that will at once establish a standard which will remain throughout the season. You will find quite the best of the season's accepted models in this collection. Included are the popular Etons, the natty pony suits, the tailored tight-fitting short coat styles, etc. All have the new circular flare or plaited skirts, which hang so beautifully and give such a stylish, graceful air to the wearer.

These beautiful Spring Suits come in voiles, all-wool mixtures, serges, in pure white, the popular colors and mixtures; also in linen, beautifully trimmed in lace and embroidery.

Prices start at $14.95 and range up to $65.00.

Rajah Silk Suits

Beautiful Shirt Waist Suits, made of the popular Rajah Silks, are on display. These popular garments are made on both Eton and pony suit models in blue, green or pure white. Handsome, dressy suits, priced at $35.00 and $37.50

VARIETY is the keynote of this assemblage. Every suit has individual traits, and only one's own taste can decide the question of superiority. All are charming—beautiful from a severely critical standpoint. The new colors, too, will delight everyone.

MISCELLANEOUS

Miss Myrtle Speaks of Missouri was married Wednesday evening to E. J. Phillips, the ceremony taking place at the residence of the bridegroom's brother at Riverside. Both are newcomers to Fort Worth, but have already made many friends, who take pleasure in their happiness.

There will be the regular meeting of the Jewish Women's Council with Mrs. Theodore Mack Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The study class will follow.

At the close of the week's festivities, Noamah Council entertained their friends at Redmen's hall Friday night. Quite an interesting program was carried out, and the evening was very pleasantly spent. The audience enjoyed the vocal solos by Miss Carry Wiggington and Miss Boone. Mrs. Bondies' instrumental music is also worthy of mention.

Miss Lucille Cameron Boone, as reader, held the audience spellbound in the impersonating negro dialect, "Black Mammy's Child." She was heartily encored and responded with another clever recitation. Miss Sadie Deem and little Star Redford, who is quite a favorite in Fort Worth, were exceptionally good. After the program music was furnished and quite a number enjoyed the dancing as well as the informal reception that was held.

Too much praise cannot be given Mesdames Shumacher and Deem for the tactful and gracious manner they served all the audience with refreshments. The occasion is one of the social features long to be remembered by the council.

The meeting of the auxiliary to the R. M. A., which was to have been held with Mrs. Graves and Mrs. Wiseman as hostesses Thursday evening, has been postponed on account of sickness in the family of Mrs. Wiseman.

The Fair

Early Spring Millinery!

SOME very attractive Walking Hats for wear right now, are displayed in our Millinery section. The small hat is the tendency for spring; large hats are less often seen, and even the sailor shapes shown are smaller than usual. These and the pretty flower turbans, as are most of the new French models, are jauntily tipped over the face and mounted on a high maline filled bandeau, and trimmed in all manner of pretty ways.

Clever new effects in Sailors and Flower Turbans for early spring wear await you.

About Spring Trimmings

A FEW hints of the Trimmings destined for popularity this season, now ready here. The newest thing in Laces is called Irish Cord Point; it resembles closely in design the very heavy Irish or French crochet laces, and is admirably adapted for trimmings suits of linen and pique.

Valenciennes Laces have lost none of their prestige of last year, and in fine plaitings will continue to border collars, fronts and other accessories of the smart bolero or pony coats, and in medallions, insertions, galloons and frills will glorify lingerie frocks, waists and summer gowns.

Batiste Lace is to be a great feature of the season. It is lace in which fine sheer batiste is employed for the foundation instead of net and is combined with baby crochet, Valenciennes, or cluny effects, the batiste being embroidered in blind work.

The Braids of the season have made a new departure and are shown in great variety of fancy and elaborate effects. Black Braids were never more effective, especially the sparkling radium braid. Buttons are again much used in trimmings—metal buttons, jewel buttons and pearl buttons in all sizes are very popular.

We invite your inspection, Monday, of the new things displayed in our dress trimming department. A visit will prove both instructive and profitable to you.

NEWS, REVIEWS AND COMMENT OF THE NEW BOOKS AND MAGAZINES

PANAMA WITHOUT PREJUDICE

Frederick Palmer has recently made a trip to Panama for the sole purpose of reporting the true conditions in the situation down there. These interesting and valuable reports are appearing in Collier's, the first of the series being published in Collier's for February 24. In this article Mr. Palmer, in part, says:

Two thousand miles is not too far to travel in order to get the truth. But was the truth to be had even on the isthmus? To my mind it was, and the marvel to me is that the country has been kept out of it so long. On my return I find that the proof needs correction as much as the cotton suit needs washing.

Before I had been a day aboard the Panama Railroad steamer, I was getting a different view point from that of Washington. My fellow passengers were mostly mechanics and foremen. Some were returning from vacations and some were newcomers. In the stuffy smoking room the canal was being dug morning, afternoon and evening, with that freedom of speech which is guaranteed by the constitution.

Here were the men on the job. What did they think of the situation? The veterans orated for the benefit of the neophytes. They debated hotely as to which of two well known canal officials was the "hotter-air proposition"; they criticised Taft, Shonts and Hagoon, and they embroidered Mr. Bishop's reputation with a profane ridicule which would never be admitted in a decorous deliberative body. Praise from them was rare enough to be praise, indeed.

I found them in agreement only on three scores. The first of these is best expressed in their own words: "It was hell down there six months ago, but it's all right now." Secondly and thirdly, they acknowledged the American steam shovel and John F. Stevens as the two infallible wonders of the isthmus. Instead of saying Anno Domini on the canal zone, they say: "Before Wallace went" and "Before Stevens came." When I asked one of the leading engineers, who was also aboard the steamer, what he thought of Wallace, he turned fairly savage. Yet I had observed him for a particularly calm and taciturn man.

No Use for Wallace

"I knew neither Mr. Wallace nor Mr. Stevens before I went to the zone. Wallace? If ever there was a——" and he stopped. "I won't break out on that subject again. Everybody knows my views. There is no excuse for him."

I found others equally bitter. Wallace's own appointees were only lukewarm in his support. I sought everything I could in Wallace's favor, and I heard nothing except praise of Stevens.

You can not understand the present situation without first understanding the situation which Wallace left and Stevens inherited, and you can not comprehend the work that either accomplished till you take into consideration the impatience of the American people. For the errors that have been committed you and I are largely to blame. Our character in the history of this effort stands revealed as clearly as the geology of a mountain in a section of its strata.

In their endeavor to win the favor of the public and of congress, the adherents of the Panama and Nicaragua routes had reduced the problem of an isthmian canal to the simple feat of cutting a ditch across a nec kof land. Wasn't that the same thing in principle as making a drain in your own yard? All that was required was a crowd of workmen who would make the dirt fly.

Out and Beyond

The weary clerk, worn out with work,
Yearns for the farm—its peaceful shade,
The rest and quiet, where flowers run riot,
And he is free from thoughts of trade.

The farmer tired, has long aspired
To see the town with its turmoil;
The streets ablaze, the dizzy maze,
FFor he's a-weary of the soil.

And it is best! Men should not rest
Content with one horizon's brim;
Beyond that goal, the aspiring soul
Will find there's much in store for him.

American Homes and Gardens

American Homes and Gardens for March opens with an appreciative description of the splendid house of Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs at Newport. The illustrations of this article include the first published views of the interior of this magnificent home. Durando Nichols contributes an article on "The Model House," showing some successful small houses costing from $1,200 to $2,400; the article is numerously illustrated with views and plans. The residence of Walter B. Todd at Rock Ridge, Greenwich, Conn., is described and illustrated, as is the residence of D. P. Kingsley at Riverdale, N. Y. Eben E. Rexford discusses the rose and its culture. M. Alger describes a new irrigation system invented by a Norwegian physician. George Ethelbert Walsh writes on "The Breeding of Pheasants and Their Value on the Country Estate." Jacques Boyer describes snail raising in Burgundy. A. S. Atkinson has a practical article on "The Artificial Skating Pond." Charles F. Holder writes of "The Patio in Southern California." Other articles include a helpful one on fashions in houses; "Sanitary Construction"; "The Range and Cooking Apparatus," etc.

As usual this number is beautifully illustrated and has several stimulating suggestions to the home builder.

Success

The chief feature of this month's Success Magazine is the opening installment of David Graham Phillips' latest novel, "The Second Generation." The literary world has been looking for this novel for the last half year, as Mr. Phillips was known to be working on it during his summer in France. It is a real American story, centered in the life of the great middle west. Mr. Phillips is well known for his strong democratic ideas, and in this novel he has carried them possibly further than in any previous work.

Samuel Merwin describes, in an article entitled "Crossing the Ocean in a Palace," his trip on the giant steamship "Amerika," which made its first visit to this port a short time ago. Mr. Merwin describes the "Amerika" as being the goal of a shipbuilding contest in which half a dozen great lines have been long engaged. He describes with minuteness the superb fittings and magnificent dimensions of this Twentieth Centruy Limited of the seas. "Is the old romance of the sea dead?" he asks in a moralizing mood, since ocean travel has been reduced to such a science. Juliet Wilbor Tompkins, in her article, "Five Million Women Now Work for Wages," attempts to analyze the great economic change that has been brought about by the increasing competition of women with men in business. Sarah Bernhardt has contributed a special article, "A Word to Stagestruck Girls." Frank Fayant, in his article, "Estimating Our Giant Wheat Crop," tells the story of H. V. Jones, the greatest crop expert in this country, who, year after year, makes a more accurate forecast of American crops than the combined efforts of 250,000 government experts.

Four Track News

The March number of the Four Track News opens with a beautifully illustrated and interesting article on "Green Mountain Villages," from the pen of G. Marion Burton; from this Vermont scene we are transported to Hawaii, where Katherine Pope tells us something of "The Island of Welcome"; L. F. Brown writes a comprehensive description of "The Delaware Water Gap"; and Frank Cramer takes us on a short trip "In Bethlehem"; "Quaint Old Marion" is a description of that Massachusetts town by James F. J. Archibald, and is especially full of human interest; "Michigan's Venice," by Hugo Erichsen, is a strong word picture of the St. Clair Floats, with particularly effective illustrations; O. D. Skelton contributes an unusually interesting article on Milton and Penn, under the title of "The Poet and the Quaker"; there is another Lincoln article from the pen of Austin Cook; and Henry Irving Dodge writes interestingly of a trip "From Lake to Sea."

The Bohemian

The March number of the Bohemian is quite the best that has yet appeared in the history of the magazine. It has an especially appropriate cover (in colors) and its stories have an unusually wide range. "The Miniature," by Hildegarde Hawthorne, is a charming bit of literary work and shows that the temperament, at least, if not all the ability of Nathaniel Hawthorne has been handed down to his grand daughter. The story is illustrated by Franklin Booth. "His Better Side," the longest story in the magazine, is told with rare skill, and cannot fail to please the most fastidious. "Bennett's Partner," by James Knapp Reeve—a serial now running in the Bohemian—increases in interest as the story progresses. "How Helen Won the Handicap," "The Mascot" and "The Liar" are stories of more than usual strength. The poetry in this number is far above the average and is contributed by such writers as Clinton Scollard, Edwin L. Sabin, Minna Irving, ect. A new and especially attractive feature of the Bohemian is the full page pictures of the scenes and people of Stageland, supplemented by a bright, snappy chat about the play and players.

The American Magazine

The American magazine, which for thirty years was Leslie's Monthly, has two especially interesting articles in the March number. One, "The Eden Makers," by Julian Helburn, tells of the remarkable things the United States reclamation service is doing; how it is making fit for cultivation a desert area of 1,909,000 acres. Under the caption "The Case of Mabel Parker," Arthur Train of the New York district attorney's office tells the story of a slip of a girl who stole thousands of dollars through free-hand forgeries, of her audacious defense in court, and how her husband swore that he was the guilty person in a vain attempt to save her. From the photographic side this number is well up to the standard which the American Magazine has been setting. There is a series of portraits of birds taken in their natural haunts.

A DREAM

(Copyright, 1906, by W. R. Hearst)

WITH an Angel guide close at my side
I floated high and far,
Till we both gazed down on London town,
Where the starving people are.

I heard their cry, and I questioned "Why
Are sad souls herded so,
When green fields lie 'neath a smiling sky
Where the fragrant breezes blow?

"Furrow and fen and wooden glen
I saw by the King's highway,
With their unused wealth and stores of health—
Then why do these people stay?"

And the Angel said, as he bowed his head,
"Aye, that was God's great plan.
As the river and sea and the sun are free,
So free was the soil for man.

"But the demon 'Caste' thro' the wide world passed,
And he branded one man churl,
And one man slave, and another he gave
The title of duke or earl.

He took from the use of man.
Aye, he robbed the race that the hounds might chase
In the lead of an idle clan.

"And now look down on London town—
And wherever 'Caste' has trod,
There sorrow and crime keep step with Time,
But it is not the will of God.

"For God's good will and His purpose still Rule over the World's estate,
And Greed, full grown, shall be overthrown
By the force of its own vast weight.

As tares shall die out of the soil;
And the land, like the sea and the sun, shall be Free—free for the use of toil.

"And he that hath ear let him listen and hear—
For over the sound of groans
And the moan of Right—in its battle with Might—
He shall hear the Falling of Thrones."

—ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

IN THE FOREST FLAMES

(In some parts this story is not consecutive, but the reader's mind can readily fall in.)

I had several reasons for not liking John Richards. He was haughty and overbearing, and he was paying attention to the girl I loved.

Richards and I were in the lumber business, and about a month before the events happened the firm received a letter from him saying that he had found a large tract of pine land when could be had cheap and advising them to send me to buy it.

The firm proceeded to act as directed. So I got on my horse and arranged things for the journey. When all was ready I rode over to "Squire" Royalton's to see Belle.

Oh! How lovely she looked when she came into the room! I trembled when her eyes met mine.

"I thought perhaps," I stammered out, "that as I was going to see Richards, you might want to send some word to him."

"You have been led into an error," she said, kindly. "I have no reason to send Mr. Richards a message." I rode away filled with a strange sensation of delight in her words.

The first night in my journey I took to an old ruined cabin and tied my horse up outside.

About mianight I awoke, conscious that there was somebody near me. I saw a man standing in the door and his face looked black, as if it had been painted.

"Get out of here, for the 'darn' thing is on fire," he said gruffly. I could hear the sound of horse feet in the distance as I groped my way through the smoke. Suddenly I thought of my money hidden in my bosom in a pocketbook. It was gone.

I knew then that I had been robbed and the thought of the loss and the ruin that stared me in the face filled me with dispair.

Hastily I mounted my horse and took the road I believed the thief had chosen. The lumberimen I met on the road had seen the person I described.

On the second day of the chase I led my horse down to the water. But he would not take a mouthful, and seemed strangely restless. I looked around and saw the forests on either hand were in flames, a perfect sea of fire brought about by a sudden tornado of wind.

Fortunately, I was close to the water's edge, else I should never have told you the story. With a few others as fortunate as myself, I rushed into the cooling element.

"Oh, Joe! Joe! save me! For God's sake, don't leave me here!"

Those were the words I heard above the roar of the devastating fire. It was as light as moonlight—a hot, sickening light—and lying on the bank but a step further, I saw Jack Richards, begging of me to come to him.

"Oh, Joe, try to save me only once! I'll ask no more!"

Could you have refused, even though it seemed like certain death.

"God bless you!" murmured Jack, as he felt the cold water enveloping him. "Bend your head again, Joe; the money is all right, Joe!"

"What? Tell me that again!" I demanded, forgetting everything but the hope of saving my honor unstained.

"I took it, Joe. I knew Belle loved you, and couldn't bear it. That was why I sent for you to get you where I could carry out my plan. I might have left you in the hut, but Belle would always remember you then, while a shadow of suspicion upon me would have ended it all. But I give her up to you, Joe. I'm not good enough for her, even if she wanted me; but if I live I'll do better. You'll not tell Belle, or father?"

By this time the heat was so intense that we were forced to wade deeper into the water and keep our heads wet to save our skin from blistering. Many a poor being fled down into the water that night and never returned. Fled from one death to find another, but perhaps an easier one.

Well, I scarcely know how we lived through that awful night, but here I am, as you see, considerably scorched and somewhat stiff and sore, but quite a man after all. There is John, too—John Richards—that bed in the corner. He will get over it, I guess. I shouldn't be telling you this now, only he said I might. He has turned over a new leaf and does not want any secrets weighting him down.

There is Belle, too, just coming up the walk. They put my bed here so I would be the first to see her when she came and last when she went away. Isn't she beautiful? Ah, but that is nothing to her goodness. She has saved John and me, they say, and she is my promised wife. Do you blame me for saying now that there never was an evil that good did not spring out of it?

As whitely radiant as the gleaming stars
That steal across the blue dome on their way,
It hides the lingering coming of the night

BOOKS AND THEIR AUTHORS

Great Britain—No One Laughed

Here comes a Mark Twain story back from England. It is told by John Morgan Richards in his book of reminiscences entitled "With John Bull and Jonathan," published by D. Appleton & Co. In writing of a lecture tour made by Mark Twain in England, Mr. Richards says:

"The audience could not quite realize whether he was serious or joking. I can only remember now one story which he told. This was a description of a thunderstorm at Honolulu.

"He said that the clouds assumed the blackest appearance in the East. He was at the time driving in a Sandwich island cart. The cart was divided into two parts by planking, the rear half being usually devoted to the transport of luggage. The seat was on the central division. Perceiving by the black cloud that the rain was about to fall heavily, seeing the flashes of lightning, and hearing the roll of thunder, he roused the pony, and managed to keep exactly in front of the storm, although when he got to the end of the journey he found the rear portion of his seat was filled with water.

"After telling the story he kept perfectly still for a moment; but no one laughed."

Alexandra an Editor

The English papers are unanimous in praising the queen's "maiden effort as an editor," as "The Queen's Carol," an anthology of poems, stories, sketches, drawings, and music, by leading British authors, artists, and composers, is called. The volume is published by the permission and authority of her majesty, at the office of the London Daily Mail, and everybody who is anybody in the world of letters, art, or music has contributed to its success.

The wide range of this potpourri is indicated by the following list of names, among which are many equally famous on this side of the water: Robert Hichens, Bram Stoker, Israel Zangwill, George Meredith, Thomas Hardy, Edwin A. Abbey, Sir Gilbert Parker, Kathrine Cecil Thurston, Theodore Watts-Dunton, Sarah Grand, Mrs. H. K. Clifford, W. S. Gilbert, A. C. Swinburne, Austin Dodson, Max Pemberton and many others.

The proceeds of the sale are to be devoted to the queen's fund for the relief of the unemployed.

Announcements

A book of delightful reminiscences entitled "In the Sixties and Seventies" will be published by Herbert B. Turner & Co., of Boston. It is written by Laura Hain Friswell, daughter of the late Hain Friswell, author and editor, and gives many chatty anecdotes of the famous Englishmen who visited her father's fireside, including Dickens, Cruikshank, Swinburne, Sir Henry Irving, Tennyson, Beaconsfield, Gladstone, Du Maurier, Charles Kingsley, Anthony Trollope, Professor Morley and Walter Besant.

"The Stigma," by Emily Silkirk, will shortly be published by Herbert B. Turner & Co., of Boston. It is a story of life today in a small Southern town, with life-like sketches of its inhabitants, of the prejudice against the slightest taint in the blood with which neither virtue nor ability is able to cope. The principal characters are white Southerners, but the background of the picture is the negro. The writer shows how this prejudice is the pivot about which everything revolves; that no candidate for office, however worthy, can hope to succeed against the most scurvy politician who appeals to race prejudice.

"Broke of Covenden," which is now in its fourth edition, has many quotable passages. The following is from Lord Bosket, a keen lover of the turf, whose wife is devoted to high literature to the neglect of her domestic duties:

"'The first time you hear the voice of the Missis,' says our epigrammatist, 'a sudden sort of feeling comes over you, don't you know, that your money's on the wrong hoss. The second time you hear it you want to commit murder. The third time you understand why a dog howls. The fourth time the referee counts you out, up goes the sponge, and you ask to go home.'"

The vicarious atonement by publishers is illustrated by a story about "Broke of Covenden," one of our recent novels. In the early editions one of the characters says that a certain old hack is only good for beef extract, mentioning one that is well advertised. Until the work began to attract attention no trouble came from this. Finally, the publishers were threatened with a suit for libel and only avoided it by publicly disclaiming any intention of discrediting the article. In their public disclaimer the publishers not only declared this but gave good measure by testifying that so much did they love it that in some form or other it was never off their tables. It is needless to say that in the present editions the hack is not considered fit for beef extract.

WEALTHY CITIES STAGGERED BY EXPENSE OF LIBRARIES

Special to The Telegram.

PITTSBURG, Pa., March 3.—In the last few weeks has become evident a reaction from the pride that formerly seemed felt in Carnegie libraries. Especially has it been noticed in New York and Pittsburg, cities which have received the largest gifts from Andrew Carnegie. There has been discussion as if the libraries were more of a burden than a blessing.

In Pittsburg

Expense to city in ten years	$1,100,000
Volumes in library	194,000
Expense to city, 1906	200,000
Cost to maintain each volume one year	63c

In the first eleven years the cost of maintaining the library will be one-fifth of the cost of the library.

THE CARNEGIE LIB RARY AT PITTSBURG

In Pittsburg the buildings erected by Carnegie cost about $6,500,000. The maintenance is entirely by the city. When the offer was made the city eleven years ago, Mr. Carnegie thought that $40,000 a year would be sufficient for maintenance, but the appropriations grew from that figure until this year the trustees wanted $250,000. This was scaled down to $200,000 by the city councils.

City Controller John B. Larkin said: "As the library stands now, it certainly has outlived its usefulness and outgrown in its demands any fair measure of support this could be expected to give. Its endowment by private subscription would be one way out of the difficulty. I would withdraw the appropriation entirely and ask for a reorganization of the management, or better still, make the library an annex of the Carnegie technical schools."

In 1901 Mr. Carnegie set aside a fund of United States steel bonds amounting to $5,200,000, out of which to build sixty-five libraries in the various boroughs of New York city. The municipal authorities for their part entered into a contract to buy the sites, buy the books and maintain the institutions.

Controller Metz, of New York, said: "When Mr. Carnegie decides to erect libraries for the benefit of the people he makes conditions with which it is impossible for the beneficiaries to comply. In New York alone we have spent $1,000,000 for Carnegie libraries in the five boroughs and we have only begun. There are about twenty-five libraries yet to be built.

"The expense of maintaining these libraries is out of proportion to what it should be. The number of clerks is increased out of all proportion to the demands of the library, the superintendent makes expensive trips to Europe, and there is a constant drain upon the municipalities accepting Mr. Carnegie's gifts."

In New York

Cost to the city to date for maintaining twenty-eight libraries built.$1,000,000

This is in cash and already one-fifth as much as it will cost Carnegie in steel trust bonds to build all the libraries.

The expense to the city will be more than doubled when all the libraries are built—sixty-five.

The libraries will never cost Carnegie more than the amount of his gift. He even draws interest on the bonds not yet used in building. The city's expense has just begun.

Story of a Great Indian Fighter

Captain Drannan was commissioned by the managers of the St. Louis World's Fair to gather up the various tribes of Indians, as he is perhaps more familiar with the customs of the wild Indians than any man now living.

Lewiston, Idaho, April 19, 1903.

Dr. W. J. Thurmond, Dallas, Texas:

Dear Sir.—I have been a sufferer from Catarrh since 1873. I contracted the disease during the Modoc war in that foggy climate of the Lovan beds.

I have tried almost all known remedies without any permanent relief. Your Catarrh Cure was recommended to me and I decided to try it, although I had no faith in it.

Up to the time I commenced using your remedy I had to use a handkerchief constantly during the night, many nights sleep being impossible. I have not used one bottle of your Catarrh Cure yet, and am not troubled at night at all, and but little in the daytime.

I think your Catarrh Cure is the greatest blessing and friend to the people suffering with this disease ever discovered, and I would recommend it to all sufferers from Catarrh in any form. Sincerely yours.

CAPTAIN W. F. DRANNAN.

P. S.—You are at liberty to publish this letter in any way you wish.

W. F. D.

Yours, etc.

Captain W. F. Drannan is of French descent. He was born in mid-ocean and left an orphan at the tender age of 4 years.

When but 15 years old he left his foster parents and walked from Nashville, Tenn., to St. Louis, Mo., a distance of over 500 miles, where he met the noted and famous trapper and Indian fighter, Kit Carson. He immediately adopted Kit as his protector, and off to the plains they went to hunt game and trap for a livelihood.

Captain Drannan soon became an Indian fighter of fame, and while but a mere youth he captured, killed and scalped five Indian warriors. For this daring feat he was promoted by Captain Elliott to the high honor of chief of scouts, which title the captain defended with many laurels for 31 years.

He conducted and defended the first train of emigrants across the plains of the wild and woolly west to the gold fields of California and rescued the two Gordon girls from the redskins and killed their captors. He also captured Captain Jack, the noted Modoc chief, which was one of his most daring and thrilling feats.

HEARTS AND MASKS

"I have my share of feminine curiosity. But I wonder,"—ruminating, "why they do not give masquerades oftener."

"That is easily explained. Most of us live masquerades day by day, and there might be too much of a good thing."

"That is a bit of philosophy that goes well with your robe. Indeed, what better mask is there than the human countenance?"

"If we become serious, we shall put folly out of joint," said I, rising. "And besides, we shall miss the best part of this dance."

She did not hesitate an instant. I led her to the floor, and we joined the dancers. She was as light as a feather, a leaf, the down of the thistle; mysterious as the Cumaean Sibyl; and I wondered who she might be. The hand that lay on my sleeve was as white as milk, and the filbert-shaped horn of the finger tips was the tint of rose leaves. Was she connected with the ticket in my pocket? I tried to look into her eyes, but in vain; nothing could I see but that wisp of golden hair which occasionally brushed my chin as with a surreptitious caress. If only I dared remain till the unmasking! I pressed her hand. There was an answering pressure, but its tenderness was destroyed by the low laughter that accompanied it.

"Don't be silly!" she whispered.

"How can I help it?"

"True; I forgot you were a fool in disguise."

"What has Romance done to you that you should turn on her with the stuffed club, Practicality?"

"She has never paid any particular attention to me; perhaps that is the reason."

As we neared a corner I saw the Honorable Julius again. He stretched forth his death's head mask.

"Beware the ten of hearts!" he croaked.

Hang his impudence! . . . The Blue Domino turned her head with a jerk; and instantly I felt a shiver run through her body. For a moment she lost step. I was filled with wonder. In what manner could the ten of hearts disturb her? I made up my mind to seek out the noble Roman and learn just how much he knew about that disquieting card.

The music ceased.

"Now, run away with your benedictions," said the Blue Domino breathlessly.

"Shall I see you again?"—eagerly.

"If you seek diligently." She paused for a moment, like a bird about to take flight. "Positive, fool; comparative, fooler; superlative, foolest!"

And I was left standing alone: What the deuce did she mean by that?

After all, there might be any number of blue dominoes in the land; and it seemed scarcely credible that a guest at the Hunt Club would go to a costumer's for an outfit. (I had gone to a costumer's, but my case was altogether different. I was an impostor.) I hunted up Imperator Rex. It was not long ere we came face to face, or, to speak correctly, mask to mask.

"What do you know about the ten of hearts?" I began with directness.

"I am a shade; all things are known to me."

"You may be a lamp shade, for all I care. What do you know about the ten of hearts?"

"Beware of it,"—hollowly. From under his toga he produced a ten of hearts!

My knees wabbled, and there was a sense of looseness about my collar. The fellow knew I was an impostor. Why didn't he denounce me?

"Is the back of your card anything like this one?"—ironically. "I dare say it isn't. But have your good time, grave monk; doubtless you are willing that the fiddlers shall be paid." And wrapping his toga about him majestically, he stalked away, leaving me staring dumfoundedly after his receding form.

Discovered!

The deuce! Had I been attired like yon Romeo, I certainly should have taken to my heels; but a fellow cannot run in a Capuchin's gown, and retain any dignity. I would much rather be arrested than laughed at. I stood irresolute. What was to be done? How much did he know? Did he know who I was? And what was his object in letting me run my course? I was all at sea. . . . Hang the grisly old Roman! I shut my teeth; I would see the comedy to its end, no matter what befell. If worst came to worst, there was always Teddy Hamilton to fall back on.

I made off toward the smoking room, mumbling imprecations against the gods for having given me the idea of attending this masquerade, when it would have been cheaper and far more comfortable to go to the theater.

But as soon as I entered the smoking room, I laughed. It was a droll scene. Here we were, all of us, trying savagely to smoke a cigar or cigarette through the flabby aperture designated in a mask as the mouth. It was a hopeless job; for myself, I gave it up in disgust.

Nobody dared talk naturally for fear of being identified. When a man did open his mouth it was only to commit some banal idiocy, for which, during office hours, he would have been haled to the nearest insane asylum and labeled incurable. Added to this was a heat matching Sahara's and the oppressive odor of weltering paint.

By Jove! Only one man knew that the back of my card was unlike the others; the man who had picked it up in old Friard's curio shop, the man who had come to Blankshire with me! I knew now. He had been there buying a costume like myself. He had seen me on the train, and had guessed the secret. I elbowed my way out of the smoking room. It wouldn't do me a bit of harm to ask a few polite questions of Mr. Caesar of the sardonic laugh.

But I had lost the golden opportunity. Caesar had gone to join the shades of other noble Romans; in vain I searched high and low for him. Once I ran into Hamilton. His face was pale and disturbed and anxious.

"What's the trouble, Hamilton?" I asked, with forced gaiety.

He favored me with a penetrating glance.

"The very devil is the trouble," he growled. "Several of the ladies have begun to miss valuable jewels. Anne of Austria has lost her necklace, and Queen Elizabeth is without a priceless comb; altogether, about ten thousand dollars."

"Robbery?" I looked at him aghast.

"That's the word. 'Curse the luck! There is always something of this sort happening to spoil the fun. But whoever has the jewels will not get away with them."

"What are you going to do?"

"I have already sent for the village police. Now I shall lock all the doors and make every man and woman produce cards for identification."—abruptly leaving me.

Thunderbolts out of heaven! My knees and collar bothered me again; the first attack was trifling compared to this second seizure. How the devil was I to get out?

I turned instantly. The Blue Domino had come back to me.

"I have been searching for you everywhere," I said gallantly.

"Oh! but that is a black one. Never mind; the fib was well meant."

I led her over to a secluded nook, within a few feet of the door which gave entrance to the club cellars. This door I had been bearing in mind for some time. It is well to know your topography. The door was at the left of the band platform. There was a twin door on the other side. We sat down.

"Have you heard the news?" I asked.

"No. Has some one been discovered making love to his own wife by mistake?"

"It's serious. Anne of Austria and Queen Elizabeth have been robbed of some jewels."

"A thief among us?"

"A regular Galloping Dick. I'm a thief myself, for that matter."

"You?" she drew away from me a bit.

"Yes. My name is Procrastination."

"Ah, my grave Capuchin, we do not steal time; we merely waste it. But is what you 'ell me true?"

"I am very sorry to say it is. The jewels were worth something like ten thousand dollars."

"Merciful heavens!"

"It is true, infernally true,"—looking around to see if by chance Caesar had reappeared on the scene. (How was I to manage my escape? It is true I might hie me to the cellars; but how to get out of the cellars!) "Have you seen Julius Caesar?" I asked.

"Caesar?"

"Yes, Miss Hawthorne—"

The Blue Domino swung about and leaned toward me, her hands tense upon the sides of her chair.

"What name did you say?"—a strained note in her voice.

"Hawthorne," I answered, taking out the slip of pasteboard. "See! it says that one blue domino was rented of Monsieur Friard at five-thirty this afternoon."

"How did you come by that ticket?" she demanded.

"It was a miracle. I purchased a mask there, and this ticket was wrapped up in my bundle by mistake."

"It is a curious coincidence,"—her voice normal and unagitated.

I was confused. "Then I am mistaken"—my chagrin evident. (All this while, mind you, I was wondering if that cellar door was unlocked, and how long it would take me to reach it before the denouement!)

"One way or the other, it does not matter," said she.

"Yet, if I could reach the cellars,"—absently. Then I bit my tongue.

"Cellars? Who said anything about cellars? I meant that this is not the hour for unmasking or disclosing one's identity,"—coldly.

"And yet, when Caesar whispered 'Beware the ten of hearts,' you turned and shuddered. What have you to offer in defense?"

"It was the horrid mask he wore."

"Well, it wasn't handsome of him."

"What did you mean by cellars?"—suddenly becoming the inquisitor in her turn.

"I? Oh, I was thinking what I should do in case of fire,"—nimbly.

"That is not the truth."

"If it isn't a terrible one."

"Well, I have no earthly business here. I am an impostor."

"An impostor!"

"Yes. And for the past few minutes, since I heard of the robbery, I've been thinking how I could get out of here upon the slightest notice." While the reckless spirit was upon me, I produced the fatal card and showed the back to her. "You will find that yours is of a different color. But I am not the Galloping Dick; it was only a harebrained lark on my part, and I had no idea it would turn out serious like this. I was going to disappear before they unmasked. What would you advise me to do?"

She took the card, studied it, and finally returned it. There followed an interval of silence.

"I have known the imposition from the first," she said.

"What!"

She touched the signet ring on my little finger. "I have seen that once before tonight. No," she mused, "you will not blow up the postoffice tonight, nor the police station."

She lifted the corner of her mask, and I beheld the girl I had met in Mouquin's!

"You!"

"Silence! So this is the meaning of your shuffling those cards? Oh, it is certainly droll!" She laughed.

"And are you Miss Hawthorne?"

"I am still in the mask, sir. I shall answer none of your questions."

"This is the finest romance in the world!" I cried.

"You were talking about getting out," she said. "Shall I lead you by domino? But that would be useless. Such a prestidigitator as Signor Pantocini has only to say—Presto! and disappear at once."

"I assure you, it is no laughing matter."

"I see it from a different angle."

An artist's model, and yet a guest at this exclusive function!

"Attention, ladies and gentlemen!" he called.

Silence gradually fell upon the motley groups of masqueraders.

"A thief is among us. I have had all the exits closed. Everybody will be so kind as to present cards at the main entrance. Three ten-spots of hearts have been tallied on the comparing lists. We have been imposed upon. The police are on the way. Very sorry to cause you this annoyance. The identity of the holders of the cards will be known only to those of us on the committee."

Silence and then a murmur which soon became a buzzing like that of many bees.

The Blue Domino suddenly clutched my arm.

"Please take me away, take me away at once! I'm an impostor, too!"

Two of us!

This was disaster. I give you my solemn word, there was nothing I regretted so much as the fact that I hadn't gone to the theater.

But I am a man of quick thought and resource. In the inelegant phrasing of the day, me for the cellars!

"Come," said I to the girl; "there's only one chance in a hundred, but we'll take it together."

"Together? Where?"

"Why, to the cellars. I've a pocketful of matches. We can make a try. For, if there's a thief around, and we are caught and proved impostors—Well, I leave you to imagine!"

"I will go with you," she replied resolutely.

The gods were with us. The door leading to the cellars was not locked. I opened it, passed the girl before me, and closed the door.

"I am frightened!" she whispered.

WORDS OF PRAISE

Buffalo, N. Y

Dr. Thurmond:

I cannot find words to express my gratitude for what your wonderful Lone Star Blood Syrup has done for me. I have been suffering for nearly two years with rheumatism in my hips, and it then run down in my legs and it pained me so bad I could not walk. My son got me two bottles of your valuable medicine and I took it according to directions, and I now feel scarcely any pain and I believe one more bottle will entirely cure. Please send me one more bottle.

Yours truly,

ELIZABETH SELLARS.

Cures to Stay Cured

W. T. Scott, one of the leading merchants of Pilot Point, Texas, says:

"My wife was in extreme bad health. She only weighed 119 pounds when she began using Dr. Thurmond's Blood Syrup. She has taken four bottles and her health is entirely restored and her weight is now 138 pounds. The Blood Syrup is a boon for such cases. If you suffer, try it."

November 8, 1895.

Dr. W. J. Thurmond: Pilot Point, Texas, Feb. 15, 1900.

"In reply to your letter of late date in regard to my wife's health, would say: She is still in good health and your Blood Syrup is all you claim for it. Five years ago she took the Blood Syrup and has been in excellent health ever since.

Sold by all Druggists. "W. T. SCOTT."

SOME GOOD SHORT STORIES

WHEN LEOLINE WAS THIRTEEN

She Wore a Second-Hand Dress and It Made Her Sorrowful

Leoline Harper was just 18—A bright ambitious, high spirited girl, who earned her own livelihood by teaching in one of the grammar schools of New York and spent a good deal of her leisure time in dreaming of a brighter future.

"For I don't intend to drudge all my life so," said Leoline; "I am pretty enough," with a conscious, laughing glance at the mirror, "and clever enough, I hope to make my own future."

"Yes, dear," said Aunt Josepha, who admired her niece, "you are pretty enough. And I believe you are smart. But still I don't understand how you are going to do it."

"You'll see," said Leoline.

And when Kitty Topplefield, who taught in the primary department of the same school, told Aunt Josey about Mr. Maurice, the new trustee, who was so handsome and wore such superb diamond studs and admired Leoline's method of imparting instruction so enthusiastically, she began to comprehend what her niece meant.

"Leo," said she, "do you like this Mr. Maurice?"

"Of course I like him, Aunt Josey," said she.

"Do you love him?"

"I—I don't know whether I might or not," said Leo, coloring still deeper; "that is, if I knew him better. He is a society man, and—I, oh, Aunt Jo, I have so few opportunities! If I was only in a fashionable circle like Georgie Fitzalan!"

Now, Miss Georgia Fitzalan was a pretty, dashing young lady, the daughter of a rich importing merchant, who had been in same class with Leoline Harper at school, and Leoline had always secretly envied her the luxurious butterfly sort of life that seemed to have so few of the elements of shadow about it.

"And," added Leoline, "he is to be at Georgia's birthday party—and Georgia has asked me to come—and—and—I can't, because I haven't anything fit to wear."

"Yes, yes, I understand, my dear," said Aunt Josey, regretfully. "But I do not see that you can go."

"Nor I, either," said Leo.

But half an hour afterward:

"Look! Aunt Josey, said she.

"La, child," said she, "you know I can't see a thing without my spectacles."

"Then I'll read it to you."

FOR SALE at a bargain—Two silk evening dresses; one is a blue and the other a canary color; worn only once by a lady just returned from Europe; price $25 each. Apply to H. C., Rotherward street.

"I don't like the idea of second hand finery," said Aunt Josepha, shaking her head.

"But when you cannot afford anything else?" pleaded Leoline. "Oh, Aunt Josepha, I do so want to go!"

"And $25 is a deal of money," added the old lady.

"But I could borrow $20 from Kitty Topplefield until my salary comes due. And I've got $5 of my own laid up."

"My dear, remember the old fable of the daw with borrowed plumes," warned Aunt Josepha. "If this man is a man of sense he will think as much of you in your cashmere school dress as if you wore the queen's diamonds."

But Leo, in her heart believing that Aunt Josepha was hopelessly behind the age, persisted.

"I will go to the number and address," said she. "I will look at the silks. Of course, you know, I needn't buy them unless I like them."

The house was a magnificent brown stone establishment. "H. C." proved to be Mlle. Hortense Chenier, the lady's maid, who occupied an airy fourth story apartment, to which the visitor was conducted. Leoline felt out of element. But when she saw the superb silks, scarcely worn, her heart leaped within herself. The blue was trimmed with deep, pointed white Spanish blond and proved to be the exact color of Leo's bright beauty.

"Madame bestows these upon us," said Hortense, grimacing and twisting herself about. "Madame is all goodness, all bonte." So Leo bought the dress.

"Yes," said Aunt Josey, "it's very pretty, but all the same I don't like you to wear a second hand dress."

"A great many ladies do the same thing, Aunt Jo."

Miss Fitzalan's parlors were full. The scent of roses and heliotrope filled the air, and Leo's heart beat high in anticipatory triumph as she saw Mr. Maurice. But—then—a tall, beautiful young lady leaned upon his arm.

"Miss Harper," said he, with bland courtesy, "allow me to present to you my wife. Mrs. Maurice, Miss Harper. Oh, I see you are surprised," with a smile to Leo. "So am I. She only arrived from Europe four days ago."

Leo tried to mutter a few congratulatory words. Mrs. Maurice put up her eye glasses.

"How very strange," cried she. "My blue silk dress that I had made at Worth's, I should know the trimmings anywhere. May I venture to ask Miss Harper if you order your dresses from Worth's?"

Leo turned scarlet, but she clung bravely to the anchor of truth.

"No," said she although every impulse in her body tingled with mortification; "I am only a school teacher, and can afford no such extravagance as that. I bought it second hand from Mlle. Hortense Clenier, — Rotherward street."

"My maid!" cried Mrs. Maurice. "And she stole it from me—all the time pretending, the hypocrite, that the packing case which contained it was lost on the voyage."

Mr. Maurice burst out laughing. "That comes of your foreign French maids," said he.

Leo did not remain long, but never again did she wear a second hand dress, but, happily to state, in time she got a first-class husband.

PORSON AT 'ER 'ELLUM

With Him No Storm Ever Blew That the Mercy Couldn't Weather

I.

On the morning of June 21, in the year of our Lord, 18—, there set sail from Blakney, South Australia, the ship Mercy, bound for San Francisco, via Fiji and Honolulu. Ship's company included, she carried twenty-nine souls all told. Of these some twelve were passengers, including amongst them both women and children. Three only were making the entire voyage.

Four days out, or thereabouts, she was spoken by the bark Wooloomooloo.

A month passed and no further mention was made of the Mercy by incoming vessels' shipmasters.

"She has been blown out of her course by contrary winds, that is all," her owners had replied.

But when four months went by, and presently five, without any further tidings of the Mercy coming to hand, it became the generally accepted opinion that she had been lost.

There were several, however, who were not taken with this view of the matter. Captain Porson, the Mercy's skipper, they said, had used the sea, man and boy, for five-and-thirty years; was it likely then, they asked, that he'd throw away a brand new ship such as was the Mercy, unless he was very much maligned? Not wind, nor wave, nor sunken reef, no, nor God Himself—but money, ay, money, would do it!"

Naturally enough, Messrs. Hobson and Joyce, the owners of the Mercy, were not a little troubled. Not, however, because they were threatened with the loss of their insurance money—they could afford to lose that many times over—but because the honor of the house was touched. Never before had a whisper gone out against it.

Mr. Hobson, the senior partner, was the first to speak.

"What is your theory, Sparson?" he inquired of an old trusted seaman. "Has the Mercy really foundered, think you? If so, how did she meet her fate? Was it on a coral reef unmarked on the chart, or by a fire at sea, or what?"

Sparson shook his head. "It was none o' them things, sir," he said slowly.

"Was she sunk in a storm, think you?" asked Mr. Joyce.

"It's like this 'ere, sirs," said he, "the Mercy ain't sunk, and 'ere's my rissons for the saying of it: That there Porson, he's an A1 man for soundings, they say. Moreover, he knows his course by heart like, and ain't the man to miss stays anywhere in the neighborhood of coral. Moreover, no storm ever blew but that the Mercy could weather it with Porson at 'er 'ellum—and where else should he be? Moreover, the trades has bin a-blowing werry reg'ler of late, and no storms to speak of bin reported. Moreover, as to a fire at sea, that's God's bizness, but Porson, he'd git it under, give him time."

"What sort of a man is Porson, in his private capacity, I mean, Sparson?" asked Mr. Hobson.

"That there Porson, sir," he said, "is a perwerdious long 'ead for money, there's no denying of it. But 'e's a man as never was known to go back on 'is word."

"You were not here, I think Hobson, when I gave Porson his last instructions before sailing? I told him to be sure and bring the Mercy back again safe to port. I said it laughingly, as you may suppose. I was somewhat surprised to see how the man took it. He brought his fist down on yonder desk with a bang. 'Mr. Joyce, sir,' said he, 'as I stand here, before Almighty God, sir, I swear to you that no hand but mine shall steer the Mercy back into port, and back into port she shall come, come fair weather, come foul.'"

The conference shortly afterwards broke up. Skipper Sparson, leaving Messrs. Hobson and Joyce's office, stepped into the street. Scarcely had he done so when he was accosted by a fellow mariner.

"Sighted Mercy 5th o' last month, orf Noffulk; thought as 'ow it might interest ye."

Sparson stayed in his walk, facing his companion. "And did ye speak 'er?" he inquired.

"I run out distress signals," said he.

Sparson smiled. "You alus was a man of idees, Joe Themson," he said admiringly. "And did she 'eave to?"

"Not she," answered his companion; "she tuk no sart o' notice whatsomever. She waur rattling along under full press o' sail an' 'alf a gale o' wind blowing. There waur a 'and at 'er 'ellum, but 'e waur all I seed. She waur nosing it torrards Fiji."

"Thank ye kindly," said Sparson, spinning quick round on his heel. A few minutes later and he was again standing in the private room of the firm of Hobson & Joyce.

The partners, however, quick as the skipper's own action had been, were already in receipt of the news.

"So the Mercy has been sighted, Sparson?" remarked the elder partner on catching sight of the skipper's burly figure standing in the doorway.

"Yes, sir," said Sparson; "but I don't like the looks of it. Joe Thomson there he run out distress signals, 'oping thereby 'e'd get speech with Porson. But he didn't, cos why? Cos Porson never shifted his 'ellum, no, not by a hair's breath. What do you make o' that, sir?"

"If it is as you say," replied the elder partner, "I don't know what to make of it."

"Nor I, sir," said Sparson. "It's a rum job altogether. She was nosing torrards Fiji, sir."

"Ay, so I hear," replied Mr. Hobson, thoughtfully. "Well," he added more cheerfully, "we must wait and see what turns up. As it is, this news has relieved us, as you may imagine, not a little."

And so it went on. From time to time the Mercy was reported as having been sighted in this and that latitude and longitude on such and such a date, but never as spoken.

Year after year went by, and the Mercy had all but dropped out of recollection. In all seven years had passed.

Skipper Sparson once more stood in the private room of Messrs. Hobson and Joyce.

"Skipper Porson has returned, sir." The three men passed out together. With her vast bulk of hull sharply defined against the outer rim of the dying luminary, a large ship, sitting well down in the water, was slowly dropping in with the tide. What whole spaces of canvas yet remained to her were discolored by a rusty red, and worn so thin that many thought to observe through them the blood setting sun. In many places her bulwarks had been crushed in. From stem to stern she was coated thickly with some marine growth. Her hull was a mere shapeless mass. One solitary figure alone was to be observed upon her decks—that of her helmsman.

The hands were quickly forthcoming, a boat was procured, and the two partners presently mounted the vessel's side together. They walked straight up to the solitary figure standing by the wheel, and without a word passing between them, cut the lashings by which it was secured to the helm and laid it gently down upon the deck.

Sparson was the first to join the two partners on the deck.

"Is it Porson?" he whispered huskily, glancing in the direction of the recumbent form.

"All that remains of him," said Mr. Hobson dryly, "barring his immortal soul."

BLIND GIRL IS EXPERT AS SKATER AND RIDER

BERKLEY, Cal., March 2.—It is not everyone who can skate well with his eyes open, but Miss Helen Masow, who is so unfortunate as to have lost the sight of both eyes, performs the wonderful feat of skating in a crowded rink. She created considerable excitement when she appeared upon the floor on skates, and her movements were watched with great interest. She acquitted herself without accident or collision. Miss Masow is also an excellent horseback rider, and is frequently seen riding through the streets of this city with as much ease and sense of security as if she were gifted with sight. She is well known in local circles for her musical abilities. She is a fine singer, and plays the piano with a finished excellence. Stranger still, Miss Masow is an expert whist player and an adept at the new social game "Five Hundred."

She "reads" the cards by sense of touch, and marks them with tiny scratches of the finger nail so that she may know what she has in her hand. In addition to her several wonderful feats, she is now practicing athletics.

Miss Helen Masow was recently graduated from the State Institute for Deaf, Dumb and Blind, and was remarkable for her aptitude and quickness in learning.

UGLIEST OLD MAID IN TOWN

Still Rosie Was a Good Friend of Madge for All of That

I stood and heard it without a word. It made me wince a little. I was an "old maid." I was "ugly." I was "little."

Rosamond Rivers, of course, didn't know that I had heard. She meant nothing—only a lovely gay young girl does not stop to pick and choose her words.

I had quietly made up my mind to live single, earn my own living and do my best.

"Better sell it," advised my friends. I thought it over and came to the conclusion, "I'll take summer boarders."

And this accounts for Mr. Paul Castleton being a resident under my humble roof one even ful July.

He came—a handsome, stately widower—with his two gold-haired little girls and their African nurse, who looked so picturesque with the big hoops of yellow metal hanging on her ears and the rainbow turban twisted about her ebon brows.

The little girls had drooped in the sultry atmosphere of their southern home, and he came to seek their health and welfare more than his own. Rosamond Rivers had recommended them to come to the Elm farm. He was a friend—nay, I am almost disposed to think he was an admirer—of hers.

"I am so much obliged to you, Rosie," I said fervently.

"You needn't be," says Rosamond. "I wasn't thinking of you; but you see it wouldn't do at all to have him go to a hotel. Belle Martyn boards at the hotel and Dr. Milton's pretty daughters, and they'd any one of them be sure to make a dead set at Mr. Castleton. At the farm, you know, he's perfectly safe."

It was true, indeed, what she said, yet it cut me to the heart. Bell Martyn was a stately beauty. Dora and Dessie Milton were piquant coquettish little creatures. I strove, however, to govern myself.

"Is he your lover, Rosie?" I asked.

"My lover? What nonsense!"

I listened, not enviously, but sadly. The little russet-winged moth is not supposed to be envious of the blue-and-gold butterfly.

I admired Mr. Castleton very much. There was something so chivalrous and noble in his way of adapting himself to my poor little house and home-spun ways.

The little girls, Bell and Violet, were charming, and old Venus beamed like the sun of her own tropical clime.

And on pleasant summer evenings Rosamond Rivers and her brother, the young lieutenant of artillery, would row up as far as the apple trees on the river.

"Dat young lady is a-making eyes at my Marse Paul," said the old Venus one night, with a nod of her head that set her great gold earloops to rattling. "But 'taint no use! Marse Paul knows better!"

It was very foolish of me to fall into the river. I was reaching out for Violet's handkerchief, which had accidently fallen in, when I lost my balance and fell.

Mr. Castleton sprang in after me and dragged me to land.

"Madge!" he cried out, breathlessly, calling me for the first time in my life by my Christian name; "Madge, tell me that you are not hurt."

I was crying for fright and chill—a very ridiculous thing for me to do, of course—but I managed to sob out:

"No, not hurt, thank you. I—I am very sorry that I was so stupid."

"Thank God," he murmured. 'Oh, Madge, if you had died."

"Mr. Castle'on!"

'Is it possible, Madge, that you have been blind to my love? For I do love you, my little modest daisy. Nay, I will not detain you now; you are wet and cold and trembling. But tonight, if I am to call you mine, wear a knot of these white roses on your breast."

I crept up to my room and cried with my great happiness. It was like a glad dream—too perfect to be true. I wore the roses on my breast when I went, happy and blushing, down to tea. How could it be that such a homely little brown sparrow as I could attract the love of a prince among men like Paul Castleton?

This is how my summer of keeping boarders ended. And Rosamond Rivers declares it would have been better policy for her to have let Mr. Castleton go to the hotel after all.

'For who would have dreamed of suspecting you, you shy little gray-eyed puss?" says she.

But I believe she is sincerely gratified with my good fortune after all.

THREE-PIECE SUITS DECREED

Women Who Dislike the Shirt Waist Suits Are Rejoicing

Women by whom shirtwaist suits are classified "just ugly" are rejoicing at the tidings that the three-piece suits are to take their place this season. The waists worn with these suits are of lingerie, worn with white skirts. Of course there is a jacket to match the skirt, but in most instances it is such a diminutive affair that it has been remarked that it takes considerable imagination to feel sure that it really exists. One of the prettiest cloth costumes in the extensive trousseau of Miss Henrietta Weatherbee was an orchid pink three-piece suit. The circular skirt had a flounce at the bottom and the coat was of Louis XV style, with a deep collar and cuffs of rose velvet, embroidered with gilt. The belt was of black satin. The bodice was of Brussels net and Irish point insertion, with touches of pink cloth and tiny blue bows, with buckles.—New York Press.

DANISH QUEEN IS WEALTHY

Louise Is Worth $15,000,000 in Her Own Right

Money will be plentier in the royal household at Copenhagen, under the new Danish king than during the reign of the late King Christian. The new Danish queen, Louise, is worth in her own right 75,000,000 francs ($15,000,000). That sum ought to go a long way toward livening up social affairs at the Danish court. The young king will be able to keep more than one pair of horses, and will not have to insist that they shall be in the stable before midnight to avoid the night air.

Queen Louise is a great-granddaughter of M'lle. Desiree Clary, whose father was a fabulously rich speculator under the First empire. After Napoleon had put away Josephine he asked the hand of the banker's daughter, greatly to the delight of M. Clary; but Desiree wouldn't have the emperor, much preferring to be the wife of M. Bernadotte, who was adopted by the childless king of Sweden, Carlos XIII, to be his heir. Queen Louise is described as a very tall brunette, very democratic and a jolly good fellow.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Here is Relief

"I did not know anything could stop my periodical pains entirely, but Wine of Cardui did," writes Mrs. Beulah Rowley of Champoeg, Oreg, "I had suffered constantly in this way for four years, getting so bad that I was a total wreck, and would sometimes be unconscious for twelve hours at a time.

"My husband brought me a bottle of which greatly helped me, and now I advise all women suffering with painful periods to use it and be relieved as I have been." Cardui has a gentle, refreshing, strengthening effect, upon the womanly organs; it regulates fitful functions, and restores sick women to proper habits and health. It is a purely vegetable extract of true medicinal merit, and has been in successful use for these diseases for over half a century. Try it.

The year 1905 has been one of phenomenal growth to Fort Worth; so, too, has been the growth of its financial institutions. THE MUTUAL HOME ASSOCIATION has abundantly shared in this prosperity as attested by its annual statement, presenting a remarkable ratio of increase, by far the greatest since its organization in 1894. Deposits having increased 38 8-10 per cent for the year, while "Savings Deposits," the new department for non-members, has grown from $493.08 to $11,676.35. THE MUTUAL HOME ASSOCIATION provides unexcelled security to its members and depositors; its business is economically conducted under a safe and conservative management.

confines its Loans exclusively to Fort Worth Real Estate, after careful inspection by its management, no agents being employed in any capacity. Loans are made preferably on the monthly payment plan, thereby especially meeting the wants of the wage-earner in this respect, as well as in providing an absolutely safe and profitable depository for his savings. The minimum payment on loans is $1.50 per month for every $100 of loan; borrower, however, having the privilege to make larger payments or to pay off his loan at any time, interest being charged on unpaid balances only. No premium is charged for obtaining loan.

TEXAN A RANCHER IN OLD MEXICO

POSSESSES 719,000 ACRES

Climate Very Mild and Mexican Cattle Grow Fat on Fine Pasturage Afforded in That Country

When a former cattleman returns to his old home in Texas, after an absence in a foreign country, it is always pleasant and instructive to listen while he recounts his experiences and tells of the good or bad qualities as it may be, for he is sure to have been observant of everything that passed under his eyes, especially if it related to cattle or grazing land.

These observations are the result of meeting with J. W. Blassingham, a former Texan and also of Oklahoma, where he was engaged in the live stock business. He has just returned to Texas from Mexico, where he is now located and is full of his experiences:

"Myself and others," he said, "having determined to locate a ranch in Mexico, after due consideration, have selected that part of Mexico that lies just above Tampico some forty-five miles, and on the branch of the Mexican railroad that leads from San Luis Postosi to Tampico. Here we negotiated for and obtained possession of a tract containing 719,000 acres of land. This location is near the tropic of Cancer, and is a very level tract for the most part, but runs back to the mountains. The altitude of most of it is about 500 feet above the sea, and it has a climate that we think cannot be bettered. The thermometer rarely, if ever, goes above 80 degrees, or below 50.

"When we took the place it was well stocked with Mexican cattle, which could not but be fat upon the fine pasturages. The country is divided into timber land and what they, down there, call prairie, but it is a kind of prairie that is covered with chaparral very much like southwest Texas. There is never any failure of rain and crops of all kinds never fail. Para grass is the prevalent kind, and there is no better in the world for stock. It grows very luxuriantly, and reaches a height of seven or eight feet and, never being killed by frost, is green all the time. It is not stalky, but is soft and moist all the time. Alfalfa might grow well with us, but has never been tested, but, to prove that it will do well, here is a bunch that I pulled up where it was growing on the railroad track.

"Corn, you know, makes two crops a year, and we have green corn on the table every month in the year. There is plenty of water to be had from wells at from nine to fifty feet. It is mostly free stone water, but some lime stone.

"We have imported from Hillsboro, Texas, some fine white-faced cattle, and they do well on the para grass. We will gradually get rid of all our Mexican stock, either by sale or by grading up, and we know that when we have accomplished this we will have just as good stock as can be found in Texas or anywhere else. To my mind, a ranch down there will give as good if not better results than in Texas. All kinds of stock do well and, as we have no freezing weather, of course stock cannot suffer during the winter from cold, nor from lack of food, for there is always plenty of the finest grass to be had for the eating. Now, I have had experience in Texas and I know good cattle range when I see it, and this country down there is as good as the best I ever saw.

Praises Government

"As to the government, it is all right and gives protection to all, and especially is this so with regard to land titles. There is no foolishness down there about titles. The Mexican government stands behind all titles that are good in the first place, and no injustice is allowed. The two parties to a sale have to be present before the proper authority and attend to the business and sign all papers in the presence of that authority. No lawyers have anything to do with it, and no abstract companies have any say as to whether the title is good or not. The Mexican government attends to all that and saves all that expense. When the government says a title is good, it is good against all claimants. When that government issues a patent to a piece of land nobody can come in afterwards and claim it under a superior title, for there can be no title superior to that of the government. This is a little better than our way in Texas.

"Again, should parties buy land, making partial payment and giving obligations for the balance, if he fails to make his payments, and it becomes necessary to run an execution, the debtor has an equity in the transaction which the creditor is bound to recognize. The creditor is bound to settle with the debtor for the amount of money he received on first payments, with interest, either by giving him a portion of the land that will satisfy the debt or paying the money and keeping the land, the price to be the same as was agreed upon when the land was first sold. The government holds that a man cannot in any way dispossess himself of his equity for his family have an interest in it and must be protected. This is quite different from the methods used in this country and, after living under it for a while, one becomes satisfied with the equity in the law. You know that when the governments sets its foot down in Mexico that settles it, and no tecnicalities or quibbles can change it. This all appears queer to Americans at first, who have been accustomed to an entirely different state of affairs, but that there is justice and protection in it he soon learns and then likes it.

"To illustrate what has been said: some men from Alabama bought 300,000 acres of land down there and paid $15,000 down and the rest was to be paid every three months. They paid at the rate of $1 an acre. They failed in their future payments, and received back their $15,000, and the original owner got his land back.

"There are no land taxes or any other kind, until you sell something, when you have to pay the government 1 per cent of the price received. This is an income tax on the gross income received and is all we pay, and we have come to be believers in an income tax as the best system.

"We have a fine place and, in addition to its qualities as a ranch for cattle, it produces all kinds of fruit, such as bananas, pineapples, oranges, lemons, limes and coffee, sugar cane and vanila beans. Up in the mountains coffee grows wild. We are only 200 miles from Brownsville and any one can drive to the place in a wagon.

Colony to Be Founded

"Yes, we have sold 30,000 acres to parties for a colony and we expect that the immigration that is sure to come eventually will increase the value of the land. Land down there now is selling for $2.50 per acre. I am making my headquarters while I am in town for a few days with Jake Zurn, at the Texas and Pacific. While I am in Mexico now and have my interests there, I still love old Texas and am always glad to get back. Fort Worth is surely growing and has every appearance of a great city."

King of All Cough Medicines

Mr. E. G. Case, a mail carrier of Canton Center, Conn., who has been in the U. S. service for about sixteen years, says: "We have tried many cough medicines for croup, but is king of all and one to be relied upon every time. We also find it is the best remedy for coughs and colds, giving certain results and leaving no bad aftereffects. We are never without it in the house

Runnels County Dry

Cattle in That Section Are Needing Grass

R. G. Parks, from Runnels county, was here Thursday.

"I am with my father," he said, "and our place is near Miles Station, on the Santa Fe railroad. It is very dry now with us and cattle are not doing so well as we could wish. If we can get rain shortly, the weeds and grass will begin to gain ground and the cattle will pick up at once. Water is plentiful, and if it were not cattle would be in a much worse fix than they are.

"We are holding a lot of steers and yearlings on this place and rough feeding them cake on the ground. I have learned by observation that when you feed yearlings and steers together, that the yearlings get the best of it and improve faster. This is caused from the fact that yearlings are gluttons and when the steers fight and run each other about, the yearlings run in and gobble up the feed. In other words, the youngsters attend to the business on hand and the elders discuss which shall have the most. There is plenty of old grass on the ground, but it isn't worth much.

"The Orient railroad is building down fast, and it will be a help to the people and a relief from the troubles we have had with the railroad. Father has been to the Monterey, Mexico, country, and came back in love with it. He said it was a fine country for a poor man, and for cattle men."

Have You a Friend?

Then tell him about Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Tell him how it cured your hard cough. Tell him why you always keep it on hand. Tell him to ask his doctor about it. Doctors know it. They use it a great deal for all forms of throat and lung troubles.

We have no secrets! We publish the formulas of all our medicines. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Spring Advancing

Palo Pinto and Jack Counties Beginning to Bloom

Sterling Clark, who has been up in the Jack county, to look things over, returned with good reports. He visited ranches out on the line of Palo Pinto county, some eighteen miles from Jacksboro, the H. Kapp place, and saw some good cattle and grass. He said the young grass is coming on well, and everything looks like spring. The country is well watered and being rolling, the rains did not rot the grass as much as it did in other parts of the country. Cattle are looking well. There are only a few cattle being fed and but few to come to market.

Knox Bros., J. W. and D. L., have fine ranches stocked with fine registered shorthorn, Aberdeen Angus and Hereford cattle, in which they take a great pride. Mr. Clark purchased from Knox Bros. ten head of thoroughbred registered shorthorn bulls, from two to three years old, which he will ship to his Runnels county ranch. He was well pleased with conditions that he saw.

Likes Fort Worth Market

Oklahoma Cattleman Will Ship Stock Into Panther City

H. A. Ingram is in the city and has purchased thirty-one head of good Jersey cows. These cows are said to be the best car load of Jerseys that have ever come to this market and been sold. Mr. Ingram will have them dipped here and then shipped to his home in Lexington, Okla. He was well pleased with his purchase and will ship his cattle here, instead of Kansas City, hereafter. He says that the market being so nearly the same here as it is in Kansas City and the shrinkage and rate so much less on both cattle and hogs, that it is best to come here. The rate and expenses to Kansas City being about double that to this place and the distance, the consequent time that the animals have to remain on the cars, makes the shrinkage so much less that a shipper can see at a glance what is to his benefit.

"Land is getting so high," he said, "that it does not pay to hold it for stock purposes, and a good profit can be made by selling now. If we have another good crop year, and everything points that way, there will be no telling what Texas soil will be worth. It is all right, however, with me, for I am glad to see our people who have stood the hard times in Texas and kept on standing it when things looked almost hopeless realize something handsome after so many years. Grass has not begun to come out yet, but it won't be long now. Yes, I come down pretty often to market and will be in soon again. There are not many shippers to come, as cattle was about all marketed last year. The farmers all raise more or less up our way and in the aggregate this supply amounts to something."

Johnson Grass Winner

Montague County Man Likes Farmers' Pest As Cattle Food

J. E. Harry lives in Montague county and his postoffice is Uz. He is a stock farmer and has several places. "I did not feed at all," he said, "but let my stock run out this winter, and on the stalk fields, and they came out all right. I shall feed them a little now, so that they can be in good shape to meet the young grass. I have Johnson grass on almost all my places and I want to say that it will put as much flesh or more on an animal than most any other kind of truck. I have no sort of objection to it, and I plant and raise cotton, too. I have several acres of cotton open in my fields now unpicked, but I shall turn my cattle on it and let them have the benefit of it. Cotton in the fields at this time is of very low grade, anyway, and will not bring enough to pay for the picking. It is astonishing how much feed an animal will pick up in bottom lands in the winter, and where they get it is hard to say. This has been an unusually open winter and the cattle have not suffered any. Those I brought to market were in fair condition and sold for good prices and they never had any feed at all. There are some large ranches in the northern part of the county unsold to farmers, but there are none down where I am.

Praises Bridgeport

Cattleman Says Coal Town Is Improving Rapidly

Bridgeport is a famous mining town—coal mining—on the line of the Rock Island railroad, near the line of Wise and Jack counties, but claimed by Wise. J. D. Gilley lives there and ships stock to this market. He said:

"There is stalk pasture near Bridgeport and this keeps the cattle in fair shape, despite the winter. Winter does not amount to much this year, however, for which we are all duly thankful. There is some grazing up our way, but on the river and in the Jim Ned mountains in Jack county. The rain did not rot the grass to any extent. While we have sage grass, it is true, still our country is a rolling one and water does not stand on the ground as it does in the more level sections, but runs off immediately. We have had all the rain that we need at present, and the ground is in good condition for all things. Our town is improving rapidly and the coal industry is growing. There are three shafts in operation now right on the edge of town. No. 1 did not bring anything down this time, but am only looking around and seeing friends."

Has Oil Fever

Special to The Telegram.

CORSICANA, Texas, March 3.—Trinidad, a few miles east of Powell, on the Cotton Belt railway, has the oil fever.

A. L. Bentley was here from Trinidad. From him it was learned that leases are being taken up rapidly there and that a company had been formed to begin operations. Parties in Trinidad, Corsicana and Dallas compose this company and they expect to land a rig there without delay.

In Kerens leases are being taken constantly and they are coming high now, some fancy prices being turned down.

On the Joplin pasture is located a famous gas well. This is two miles from Kerens. It has been leased by responsible parties and will be developed.

A movement is now on foot to organize a company in Kerens to develop a big farm west of Kerens for which it is positively stated that $25,000 has been refused.

In the Powell field today interest is still high and some leases have been closed in each instance at goodly prices. Two or three wells are due to be brought in soon and about these cluster much concern.

There appears to be no thought other than that oil will be found, but the interest is in the quantity, which is confidently expected to run high.

Allen & Maxwell have brought in No. 3, which is not only the farthest well south in the south field, but has taken rank among the best. With this fact tension has tightened just as is the case with the well of Baker & West, on the Damon & Gibson tract, which also ranks high and at the same time has broadened the field.

The Corsicana Petroleum Company is expected to bring in a well tomorrow on the Combest, which is near the Jackson, where No. 2 is due to be brought in tomorrow or next day, and possibly tonight. About these propositions also hang no little interest.

OUR LAY SERMON

Governor Johnson of Minnesota has made an interesting contribution to a very old discussion and given a new interpretation to "Give us this day our daily bread."

Few will dissent from Governor Johnson's observation that the "most vicious standard of success is that which sets up dollars and cents as the height of human ambition."

But perhaps fewer still can follow him when he sets up as the happy medium between poverty and wealth an income of $10,000 a year.

To most people that amount of money coming in regularly every year would bear considerable resemblance to "dollars and cents" worth speaking of.

All agree that too much money is bad for anyone and that too little is worse; but no large number can be found who agree on just what is too much or what too little.

Then as now, there were minds focused to thousands and other minds focused to pennies.

There is no reason to suppose that the mind, which thinks in thousands, finds any more happiness or triumph in the possession of its thousands than the mind which thinks in pennies finds in the possession of its pennies.

On the contrary, the more intimately our money meets our elemental needs the more real joy there is in it.

The hungry man who gets money to buy bread for his family feels a keener, deeper thrill of triumph than does the richer man who strains his credit to buy an automobile.

It would be interesting to know how Governor Johnson's figure representing complete happiness was evolved. To the average mind $10,000 a year looks not very different from $1,000,000 a year. They are alike beyond common comprehension.

The average American income is considerably below $1,000. It is to be supposed that the average American knows less than a tenth part of the true happiness of the man who has $10,000 a year.

The clearer eyes, the brighter faces and the sweeter laughs that come from the cottages than from the mansions prove the contrary—Louisville Herald.

Governor Johnson, of Minnesota, is the son of a washerwoman, and a man who has worked his way from the very bottom of the ladder to the point where he is the chief executive of one of the greatest states of the sisterhood that comprises this American union. And it is surprising to note that the man who has sprung from the depths can place the happy medium existing between poverty and wealth so high.

The man who is enjoying the income of $10,000 per annum is too uncommon to be ranked as a happy medium between penury and affluence. In fact, the man who is enjoying such an income generally considers himself sufficiently opulent to indulge in all the things that pertain to vast wealth. The sum of $10,000 per annum is 10 per cent interest on a very large sum of money, and men who are enjoying a medium state between poverty and welath do not accumulate so much. If it requires such an income to raise a man above the depths of poverty, then we are truly a poverty stricken nation.

There are millions of free-born American citizens whose incomes are less than $1,000 per annum, and it is among this class you find the real bone and sinew of the land. They are the people who comprise the hope of the nation, and it is in such homes that we find the nearest approach to real happiness.

The American citizen of small income is free from the responsibilities and cares that come from the possession of great wealth. When he goes to bed at night it makes no difference to him whether there is a decline of the Parise bourse or an advance in New York call money. He is a man of moderate tastes and conservative inclinations. He is content to ride on the street car with no envy in his breast for the man of more means who flashes by in a puffing and ill-smelling red devil. He finds the happiness and contentment in his humble home and its frugal surroundings that the man with an income of $10,000 per annum spends the bulk of that income in a vain effort to acquire.

It is alleged by many of the thinking minds of this country that the more opulent our people become the more they are disposed toward vice and immorality. The list of the four hundred in every section of this union is fairly reeking with immorality, and the happiness that comes from the possession of large incomes appears to be of the most evanescent variety. There are thousands of opulent American citizens today who would gladly sacrifice all the wealth they have spent their lives in attaining for opportunity to enjoy that happiness that is found by the cotter in his humble little home.

We may not all be millionaires, and we may not all enjoy that happy medium between poverty and wealth depicted by Governor Johnson in the possession of an income of $10,000 per annum. But by leading frugal and industrious lives, by cultivating the home and family relation and exercising the rights and privileges of free born American citizens, we can find happiness on an income of even less than $1,000 per annum.

If happiness for the average American citizen depends on an income of such proportions, then we are to become a nation of misanthropes with nothing to look forward to in the future.

A MISTAKEN IDEA

Some of the West Texas cattle raisers are up in arms against the proposition to elect a commission man as president of the association. They have already begun to feel the burden of the commission trust and don't want to have their hands completely tied by putting themselves further in its power.—Granbury News.

There is considerable expression of this kind appearing in the columns of the weekly press of the state, and it is very evidently the result of misconception. It is true that there are some matters on which the cattle producers of the country and the commission men are at variance, but it has not been established that the commission firms are the members of any trust or illegal combination.

It is also true that representatives of the organized cattlemen of the country have talked very plainly to the commission men, and have intimated that steps might be soon taken to ascertain whether or not agreements alleged to exist among the commission men are contrary to law, but that does not justify the hasty assumption that every member of a commission firm is a trust magnate engaged in preying upon the body politic. It will be time enough to make such declarations when the alleged fact has been established beyond the peradventure of the doubt. It is a well known and firmly established principle of jurisprudence that all men are presumed to be innocent until they are proven guilty, and when we engage in the procedure of presuming men to be guilty before we have come up with the burden of proof, then we are going contrary to the principles of real justice.

If the live stock commission men of the country are organized in a body and operating contrary to the laws of this state, then they should promptly be brought within the pale of the law. Texas has ample law for the protection of her people, and that law can be successfully invoked at any time to put any kind of combination out of existence that is being operated in restraint of trade.

The idea advanced that the election of a commission man as president of the Cattle Raisers' association of Texas would be placing the producers of the country completely in the power of the alleged commission trust is the veriest rot and rankest foolishness. Colonel Ike T. Pryor, of San Antonio, the man at whom these shafts are aimed, is too well known to the cattlemen of this state and the people generally to suffer from such action. Colonel Pryor is a man who has been identified with the cattle producing element of this state for many years, and is universally regarded as one of the brightest and best of the bunch. He has been a live stock producer a great deal longer than he has been a commission man, and has been identified with the Cattle Raisers' Association for many years. He has been first vice president of the organization for several terms, and that is the office next to that of president. He has presided at various meetings when the president was not present, and has at all times conducted the affairs confided to his care with signal skill and ability.

If Colonel Ike T. Pryor was worthy of being elected first vice president of this great organization at the time he was also engaged in the commission business, it is quite inconsistent at this time to say that his election as president would be equivalent to turning the producing element over bodily to the commission trust, so-called. Those who know Ike Pryor have too much confidence in the man to be even slightly influenced against him by this kind of argument. It is known he is a fair minded and conservative business man, devoted to the great association with which he has so long been identified, and with no higher ambition than to carry out the wishes of the people he is trying to represent.

And so far as Ike Pryor's connection with the commission business is concerned, it will never stand in the way of his doing justice to the cattle producing element of the country. His sympathies are naturally with the producing element, from the fact he is himself a producer, and his commission business is of but secondary importance. If it should come to a showdown at any time between the commission people and the live stock producers of the country there can be no question as to where Ike T. Pryor will stand.

There are many Texas cattlemen who desire to see Colonel Pryor made president of the association. They are expressing their confidence in the man by giving him their unqualified support, and there is not today within the entire organization a more worthy gentleman than Ike T. Pryor.

The time for the annual exhibition of the Fort Worth Stock Show is drawing rapidly near, and our friends throughout Texas and the Southwest should remember that this great exposition is to be entirely free this year, and the largest and best ever witnessed in the Southwest. Fort Worth expects a big attendance, and the crowd that comes will be suitably and properly provided for. Fort Worth never falls down on any undertaking.

THE PASSING OF A PATRIOT

THE death of James S. Hogg, former attorney general and governor of Texas, removes from the scene of his usefulness one of the greatest characters and truest hearts the state of Texas has ever produced.

James S. Hogg was a native Texan—born over among the soughing pines of East Texas, and left in the world to make his own way by a gallant father who early gave his life for the Lost Cause. As a boy he had nothing to lean upon but that mighty and resistless determination, which was strong enough to rise equal to every emergency and carry its possessor to the very highest pinnacle of political success in this state.

As printer's devil—learning to master the mysteries of the art preservative, James S. Hogg when a barefooted boy manifested the same grim determination that characterized his after life. He was not satisfied with being an ordinary printer's devil. He was determined to go to the top. So it was in political life. When Hogg entered politics it was with the firm intention of going to the top, and he went there. No man who has ever lived in the state has wielded a greater influence for good or stamped more of his individuality upon the state than James S. Hogg.

So devoted was the man in his loyalty to the people and his desire to benefit the masses that at times he almost overstepped the bounds of prudence and gave ground for the charge of demagogy that was so often laid at his door by his political opponents and enemies. Hogg cared little for that. He knew that his purposes were clean and his desire but to benefit his people, and during all of his tempestuous political career in this state the fact must ever stand out that never in one solitary instance was James S. Hogg false to his convictions of right and wrong or to the people who delighted to honor him.

As attorney general James S. Hogg brought some very vigorous and determined policies into existence, which were further augmented and expanded when he was called to the gubernatorial chair. During the eight years he spent in the city of Austin the masses in Texas felt they had a representative at Austin they could depend upon in any emergency, and right royally did that representative justify every whit of confidence that was reposed in him. The masses have loved him for the enemies he made, and his enemies have respected him for the cool courage and indomitable energy manifested in fighting the battles of the common people.

James S. Hogg was a born fighter. His advent into this world during a storm was a fit prelude for one of the most remarkable careers ever witnessed in the state. He was always at his best when engaged in a fight, and many are those who can remember the keenness of Jim Hogg's rapier. Yet with it all, James S. Hogg was as gentle as a woman and as tender-hearted as a child. His great heart was always attuned to the cry of the weak and distressed and his sympathies always with the under dog in the fight.

The political career of this great man in Texas was as stormy as it could have well been. But in every instance success was emblazoned upon his escutcheon. Not once was his banner trailed in the dust of defeat and he could have continued in public office until the day of his death if he had so desired. James S. Hogg could have gone to the United States senate if he had desired, but that is a position he steadfastly declined to consider. He left politics and took up private life entirely of his own volition, and his retirement was a distinct disappointment to the masses of Texas people, of whom he was unquestionably the idol.

Perhaps the greatest tribute that can be paid to the departed statesman lies in the fact that he left political life a very poor man. When he went out of the governor's office he had less than nothing to his credit, and if opportunities came to James S. Hogg to make hay while the political sun was shining, he treated them with cool disdain. He was too honest for an average successful politician, and only his great force of character carried him through. He was a patriot and a statesman of the very broadest type, and for long years yet to come the name and achievements of James S. Hogg will reflect a golden luster in Texas.

In all of his hot political fights, not one word was ever breathed against his personal character. The men who fought him from one era to another were never able to find one single blemish upon his personal character. That fact in itself is one of the grandest eulogies that could be passed upon him. He was never weighed in the measure and found wanting.

Texas mourns the loss of James S. Hogg. And Texas has reason for the mourning. When those gray eyes closed in death and that mighty mind ceased to perform its functions one of the very brightest lights in all this great state went out, and the people lost a mighty champion.

If we expect to obtain the next democratic state convention we should proceed to get into our best hustling clothes.—Fort Worth Telegram.

And punch up your hotel accommodations somewhat.—Sherman Register.

We have the best hotel accommodations of any city in the state. Fort Worth is amply able to take proper care of the state democratic convention.

The city of Fort Worth is an applicant for the next democratic state convention, and the Banner is rather inclined to favor that city as the proper place.—Brenham Banner.

The people of all Texas feel very kindly toward the hustling city of Fort Worth, and very naturally like to come here. If the convention is given to Fort Worth this year its members will receive a royal welcome and be entertained as they were never entertained before.

The Plainview Herald tells of a car load of Kaffir corn fed hogs that sold at Fort Worth recently for $5.97½ per hundred weight, when the market was topped the same day by a car of corn fed hogs from Oklahoma at $6 per hundred weight. There is no doubt that Kaffir corn makes a good packer's hog.—Dallas Farm and Ranch.

Panhandle stock farmers are taking hold of the hog problem in better shape than is being done in any other portion of Texas. They are solving that problem and are making good money by their action.

Judge Bell's position on the prohibition question has been fully understood by his friends all along, but his enemies have of late been trying to make it appear that he was trying to straddle the question. His interview of last Sunday was a manly and dignified statement of his position and ought to satisfy everybody.—Granbury News.

The position of Judge Bell on all public questions meets with the hearty approval of the conservative element of Texas democracy. And this is a year when conservatism is going to win.

Governor Lanham has at last screwed his courage up to the sticking point long enough to call the legislature to meet March 26 in special session to "bind the wounds of bleeding Section 120" of the Terrell election law, some provisions of which cause conjecture as to whether the law was named after its author or after a certain state institution in a city by the same name. The people pay the freight.—Boyd Index.

A majority of both branches of the state legislature filed a written agreement with the governor to serve without pay. If they hold to that agreement there ought to be no freight for the people to pay.

People from all over the country are headed Texas-ward these days. Different parts of the state are making bids for them, and doing everything in their power to attract them to their territory. The truth about the matter is that they couldn't do very wrong by locating in almost any section of Texas; it's all good—so much so that it is an axiomatic truth when you say, "When in doubt, move to Texas."—Terrell Transcript.

Texas is receiving an unusually heavy immigration this season, according to the various railway officials of the state, and these immigrants are acting wisely in coming now. A year later homes will cost much more in every portion of this great and growing state.

TROUBLES OF THE RICH

Be kind to the rich. Think of the troubles they have with such people as Colonel Mann.—Chicago Journal.

LITTE TALES WELL TOLD

NO SALE

"I've lost a $100 bill," declared the man, "and I'll give $50 to the person who returns it."

"Sixty! Sixty!" he exclaimed. "Who'll give $65?"

There were responses from all parts of the room, and the price jumped to $70, to $80, to $90, and finally to $97.50.

"Say," exclaimed the man who had caused all the excitement, "that bill I lost was for a suit of clothes I bought a month ago."

"Hello, pop! Is she after you, too?"

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH CONGRESS?

BY JOHN VANDERCOOK.

It is probably unfortunate for congress and unfortunate for the country that the national legislature was ever permitted to meet in a city like Washington. In older countries the capital is the natural center of population, witness: London, Paris, Berlin and Vienna. Of the great world capitals only St. Petersburg and Washington have been created by law. They are official cities and differ from all other capitals.

Washington, for the average congressman, is a kind of fool's paradise. It is a city without industry, and without any of the problems which affect the ordinary urban community. Its entire population is composed of actual employes of the government, people who supply their needs, or in some way, directly or indirectly live upon the government or its servants. It has no working class in the ordinary sense, nor any of the very poor; and, hence, none of the social problems which in most places force themselves to the front for study and solution.

Still more important and still more detrimental to the usefulness of congress is the fact that as Washington lives upon the government it is subservient to the government. Even the Washington newspapers, as a matter of settled policy, are always friendly to the political party in power, and if they criticise, criticise only mildly. Hence, the individual senator or congressman besides being kept remote from average American conditions, is liable to obtain a greatly exaggerated idea of his own importance. Everybody in Washington is his humble servant, and he is ignorant of the desire of the great outside public to kick him the entire length of Pennsylvania avenue.

Again, he loses sight of the fact that the government is after all a business institution and is competing with ohtre business institutions. He has no chance to compare his own dilatory and unbusiness-like methods with the business-like methods of the government's competitors in New York, Chicago and elsewhere.

Very few congressmen come from large cities. They live in small towns and villages, and when elected are sent to an official city, which is no more like a real city than a gingerbread house is like a real house. They cannot realize that the great cities are setting the pace for the country, and that Uncle Sam's government is not keeping the pace.

When a member of the French chamber of deputies walks out in the street after an afternoon session, he brushes elbows with workingmen, tradesmen and others who have no special regard or interest in him merely because he is a deputy. It helps to teach him his real place and that these workingmen, tradesmen and others have real and vital interests of their own, and that it may be incumbent upon him to consider these interests and not to busy himself merely in feathering his own political nest.

American representatives should realize that their little official city is only a fool's paradise and should not be taken too seriously.

Another editorial on the decay of congress will be published tomorrow.

VERSES THAT RING

"WHEN THE MINISTER COMES TO TEA"

And they've got the tidies hangin' jest exactly on the square;
And the whatnot's fixed up lovely, and the mats have all been beat,
And the pantry's brimmin' over with the bully things to eat;
Sis has got her Sunday clothes on, and she's frizzin' up her bangs,
Ma's got on her best alpacky, and she's askin' how I hangs;
Pa has shaved as slick as can be, and I'm rigged away up in G,
And it's all because we're going to have the minister ter tea.

Oh, the table's fixed up gaudy, with the gilt-edge chiny set,
And we'll use the silver teapot, and the comp'ny spoons, you bet;
And we're going to have some fruit cake, and some thimbleberry jam,
And "riz biscuits" and some doughnuts and some chicken and some ham.
Ma she'll polergize like fury, and say everything is bad
And "sich awful luck with cookin' she is sure she never had";
But, er course, she's only bluffin', for it's prime as it can be,
And she's only talkin' that way 'cause the minister's to tea.

Everbody'll be a smilin' and as good as ever wuz;
Pa won't growl about the vittles, like he generally does,
And he'll ask me would I like another piece of pi; but, sho!
That, er course, is only manners, and I'm s'posed to answer "No."
Sis'll talk about the church work, and about the Sunday school;
Ma'll tell how she liked that sermon that was on the Golden Rule;
And if I upset my tumbler they won't say a word to me;
Yes, a boy can eat in comfort with the minister to tea!

Say, a minister, you'd reckon, never'd say what wasn't true;
But that isn't so with ours, and I jest can prove it, too;
'Cause when Sis plays on the organ so it makes yer want to die,
Why, he sets and says it's lovely, and that seems ter me's a lie.
But I like him all the samey, and I only wish he'd stay
At our house fer good and always, and eat with us every day;
Only think of havin' goodies every evenin'! Jimminee!

NEWS FROM ALL OVER EUROPE CABLED TO THE TELEGRAM

THINK KAISER WILL "BACK UP"

Madrid Opinion Is That War Will Not Occur

FEARS ARE PAST

Franco-British Feeling Is Believed to Be Responsible for Peaceful Ending

Special Cable to The Telegram.
(Copyright, 1906, by Hearst News Service.)

BY MANUEL VIZCAYA.

MADRID, March 3.—The impression is general here that the Franco-English entente cordiale will prove, at the end, too much for Germany and that the kaiser will "back up."

A few days ago serious fears were entertained of a possible armed conflict which would necessarily have involved several European nations.

It is not at all doubtful that, had France been alone in the controversy, or had she had as her backer, supporter and inspirer any other power than England, the Paris government would have yielded to the demands of the German emperor. But the assurances the French nation has received from Great Britain have encouraged her so much that her attitude, so unusually bold and firm, has fairly disconcerted the kaiser, and it looks now as if a satisfactory settlement of the affair will be reached, with Germany at the losing end of the transaction.

Ena Orders French Clothes

Great dissatisfaction has been produced here by the announcement from Paris that Princess Ena of Battenberg, the future queen of the Spaniards, has ordered her wedding trousseau from French modistes.

It was expected that the princess, out of courtesy, would at least have had some of her gowns made in Madrid, and in anticipation of this the fashionable dressmakers of this city had imported from Paris and London great quantities of expensive goods, which will prove little short of useless, since all the ladies of the court, upon learning of the princess' determination to have her trousseau made in Paris, have also decided to order their gowns for the royal wedding from Parisian modistes.

Invitation Accepted

The mayor of Madrid, Senor Vincenti, has received an invitation from Sir Edwin Ornwell, Lord Mayor of London, to have Madrid represented at the "Convention of Great Capitals," to be held this year, either in London or Paris.

Senor Vincenti has sent his acceptance.

All capital cities of 200,000 inhabitants or more will be represented, and the delegates of each will study the system of municipal government, improvements, etc., of the others, with the object in view of implanting such methods as practicable in their own cities, a plan which, it is expected, will give excellent results.

So far it is believed that Paris, London, Berlin, Vienna, St. Petersburg, Rome and Madrid have sent in their acceptance, and it is proposed to have as many important cities both of Europe and America represented in the convention.

Weather Is Cold

The weather in nearly all the provinces of Spain, and especially in Madrid, has been unusually cold for the last few days, and severe snow storms have swept Catalonnia, Aragon and the two Castiles, destroying the crops and adding to the already great suffering of the poorer classes.

The misery of the planters and farmers is distressing, and to make it worse there is no hope of immediate relief from the government, owing to the frequent crises which occur in the Spanish cabinets.

Ministers and parties succeed one another in the government, and the plans of the one are never carried out by the other.

Barring the army revolts, the political and economical situation of the Spanish nation is identical to that prevailing in some of the South and Central American republics.

Russian officers have always been known for their strong sense of honor, and this was shown in the recent case of Captain Baron Korff, whose picture is shown above. The baron, who is in charge of a company of infantry, promised some revolutionary leaders that they would be pardoned in case they would surrender without bloodshed, which they did. In spite of all the baron could do, the revolutionists where shot, whereupon Baron Korff, considering himself disgraced, committed suicide in view of the prisoners that remained to be tried.

DENMARK MODEL WAS DEAD KING

Danes Feel They Have Lost Father in Christian

Special Cable to The Telegram.

BY LADY HENRY SOMERSET.

LONDON, March 3.—There is something singularly touching in the people's tribute of loyalty and affection to the dead King of Denmark. No monarch surely was more loved for his domestic and social virtues; no king ever lived among his people on more intimate terms.

What wonder, then, that the Danes feel that they have lost a father, and that the ceremonies in connection with King Christian's funeral are no mere pageant, but the mournful tribute of those who loved.

Sixty thousand people came in one day, undeterred by distance or fatigue, some having taken long journeys on foot and waited for hours in the wet streets, just to gain an entrance for a moment to the last resting place.

A little shepherd boy, to whom the king had given assistance, brought a wreath; an aged couple carried flowers between them for many miles, to one who had once shown his benevolence to them. There were personal touches everywhere of what the king had been to his people—the simple, genial old man who had ruled justly and walked humbly and done his duty.

There is something pathetic, too, in that group of royal mourners who have so often met together, an unbroken family circle; for even in the midst of the dread anxieties of the court of St. Petersburg, the Dowager Empress has found a resting place at Amalienborg, and the queen of England has never loved anything so well as those home gatherings which, in the midst of her often harassing life, were one of her greatest delights.

Every morning when King Christian awoke he used to open his bedroom window to feed a tame wood pigeon, and today the little bird comes as usual but the kind hand is no longer there to tend to its wants.

Monks Use Autos

It is difficult to think of a St. Bernard monk in a motor car, and yet such is the last adaptation of this modern method of locomotion. The good fathers on the heights of the great St. Bernard's Pass have decided to employ an automobile to climb the steep gradients, and cars are being specially constructed to transport provisions and wood from Aosta to their hospices, and the monks clad in their cowls and habits will be the chauffeurs.

It is a strange instance of human ingratitude that travelers will pass many days of bad weather within the hospitable walls of the great monastery on the Pass, eat the food which has to be drawn in sledges at immense cost over the icebound tracks, warm themselves at their fires at night and depart without placing one sou in the box which stands near the door or even, in many instances, thanking the monks for their shelter.

It is calculated that 25,000 persons stayed at the hospice on an average one day in the year, and barely 2,000 of these have ever offered to pay anything on their departure. This is the more lamentable because the property owned by the good fathers is decreasing yearly in value, and possibly some day that picturesque remnant of another age will make way for some mountain hotel, where visitors will be charged high rates, and from which all the charity, poetry and romance will be gone.

Empress Hates Sweating

The soul of the empress of Germany has been stirred by the terrible accounts of the sweating system which is carried on in the toy-making factories of Germany.

"What can be done to stop this awful evil?" she cried with tears in her eyes, when she saw 140 tin soldiers, for which 12 cents had been paid to the wage-earner.

The exhibition was an excellent idea, and it would be very well if here in England we could have just such a one to exhibit government clothing for the army and navy and police, etc., with the half-starved wage-earners thrown in, in order to bring home to the minds of the people the terrible misery which is being endured by the underpaid thousands.

The other day a needlewoman applied to the Lambeth Guardians for outdoor relief. She was known to be industrious, sober and hard, working, and when on inquiry the amount of her earnings was elicited, it was proved that she worked a hundred and forty-one hours and received in return seven shillings and tenpence, something less than a penny an hour. She was employed as a finisher of volunteer trousers.

It certainly does not seem right that the government contracts should be given at starvation wages, and it is to be hoped that the radical party will take this question in hand.

From a report that was given to me the other day, the instances of sweating are truly appalling. Sack making, for example, is paid at from five pence to seven pence per dozen, and it takes one day to make a dozen. Match boxmakers receive two pence halfpenny a gross, and in the strawberry basket industry the maximum wage which can be earned is less than ninepence a day. Tooth brush making, working every day and all day, Sundays included, produces an average wage of five shillings and sixpence per week.

"What can be done to stop this misery?" said the German empress, and truly we in England have to repeat her words.

Lady Explorer Returns

A lady explorer has recently returned from the heart of Africa. She struck northwest to Lake Nyassa, and waited six weeks for a boat to carry her across Lake Tanganyika.

Then she traveled to Lake Victoria Nyanza, and only twice did she meet white men. Two German soldiers and a number of servants accompanied her.

When at last Miss Hall reached Uganda she saw a sight which must have brought cheer to her heart, an indication that civilization had indeed penetrated the dark country, for the king of Uganda was playing football!

Miss Hall gave a wonderfully interesting account of her travel and of her interview with this enlightened monarch. She cannot speak too highly of the courtesy and kindness which she everywhere met.

W. T. Stead has espoused many unpopular causes. Never perhaps in his whole career was he more cordially hated than when he called himself a pro-Boer, and today he is not ashamed to say that he is a pro-Russian.

The poverty of the peasant, he maintains, is the root of the real trouble in Russia. When an Englishman is poor he asks for money; when a Russian is poor he asks for land. He describes the czar is one of the most estimable and humanitarian of men, and Count Witte is a sort of debased Mr. Chamberlain.

His parting words at a lecture on Russia given by him the other day may be taken as a prophesy. "When the Russians have got their Duma," he said, "I think we ought to welcome them into the brotherhood of nations and not look down upon them like the infernal set of pharisees we usually are."

Short Skirts of Velvet

Amongst prevalent fashions in Paris the corded velvet and velveteen skirt figures forth largely. It is made short and very full; and worn with a short basqued jacket to match, or with a fur coatee its effect is quite smart.—Black and White.

After a recess of several days, the delegates at the Algeciras conference resumed their meetings, but there is little hope that a solution of the question will be arrived at unless the American delegate, Mr. White, succeeds in mediating between the French and German delegates. In the picture, which shows the representatives of the various powers seated in the counsel room in the town hall of Algeciras, the men are from left to right: Count Buisseret (Belgium), Count Koziebrodski (Austria), Marquis Visconti Venosta (Italy), Count Welsersheimb (Austria), Count Cassini (Russia), M. de Bachracht (Russia), Herr von Radowitz (Germany), Duke of Almodovar (Spain), M. Revoil (France), and General Espinosa de los Monteros, in command of the Spanish troops garrisoning the town.

Although he is virtually a prisoner in his beautiful castle of Czarkoe Selo, some miles outside of this city, Czar Nicholas, according to all reports, is in the best of spirits and does not for a moment doubt that the revolution will die out before the winter is over. He is especially encouraged in this view by the circumstance that the army, on which he so largely depends, has proven surprisingly loyal to autocracy. Uninteresting though he is in military affairs, the czar does everything to become popular among his soldiers, and does not let a day pass without reviewing or receiving ordnance officers or men of all the regiments of the guard. In the picture he is shown in the act of blessing the regimental colors outside the castle.

STATUS OF CHURCH NOW SCANDALOUS

Indignation Growing Against French Government

(Copyright, 1906, by Hearst News Service.)
Special Cable to The Telegram.

BY PAUL VILLIERS.

PARIS, March 3.—There is a growing feeling of indignation against the government because of the many scandalous scenes which have taken place in connection with the assessment of church property.

The masses of the French people are, after all, quite religious, and the authorities have repeatedly found it quite difficult to find policemen who cared to force their way into the church when confronted by the clergy and members of the various congregations.

Many policemen have resigned rather than commit what they considered sacrilegious acts, and the fact that a typical Paris mob went to Rue Dante on Saturday last to denounce ex-President Loubet for signing the law separating church and state shows that the priests are still able to sway the lower classes.

The demonstration was, however, a most unjust one, as M. Loubet is a most religious man and his sympathies are rather with the grotesque congregation than with the police.

Russian Army to Have Autos

The military attaches of the various powers in this city are following with considerable interest the experiments with the bullet and shell-proof automobiles which a French firm are constructing for the Russian army.

Seven of these are now ready and will be shipped to St. Petersburg within a few days, not to be used as private conveyances for the czar, as one might reasonably expect, but to be attached to a Russian army corps near the Afghan frontier.

French officers as well as M. Etienne, the minister of war, who have tried the autos, are most enthusiastic in their praise of them.

Although they are quite heavy, weighing over three tons, they have easily maintained a speed of nearly thirty miles an hour on very rough roads.

Each car is provided with a small quick-firing gun, which can fire up to 600 shots a minute, and carries a folding bridge of nickel steel which can be thrown across ditches so that the car may be used on cross-country runs.

Also the French army is to be supplied with a large number of these armored cruisers on land.

Women Besiege Fallieres

The women suffragists are after President Fallieres, whom they endeavor to make come out in favor of woman's suffrage.

The movement has grown very strong in this country of late and its supporters have been greatly encouraged by the success of their sisters in Italy, where the right to vote has been granted to Signorina Beatrice Sacchi, a daughter of Garibaldi's friend and physician.

The signorina, who is a practicing physician at Mantua, claimed that there was no law in the country forbidding women to vote, and demanded to be registered. Her claim was referred to a committee of radicals and socialists, who decided in her favor, and other women suffragists are now following in her footsteps.

President Falliere is the first French president who neither drinks nor smokes. On the other side he is an enthusiastic lover of music, and intends to give a series of musicales at the Palais Elysees.

Like his predecessor, M. Loubet, he is a passionate hunter and an excellent marksman wherein he differs from President Carnot, who, although fond of hunting, was never known to hit anything or anybody, with the exception of General Brugeres, whom he once, during a rabbit hunt, peppered so severely that the gallant officer unable to sit his charger for several weeks.

Another Excitement

Fashionable Paris society, having recovered from the shock which Countess Castellane's suit for separation caused, is very much interested in the romantic elopement of a well-known baron, who, by the way, is a friend of little Count Boni, with a beautiful heiress of 19, who came out in the early part of the season.

The baron, who fell in love with the girl at sight, formally asked for her hand, and her guardians (she is an orphan) at first readily consented, and the wedding day had already been set, when they changed their minds and informed the young nobleman that he could see her no more.

He was determined, however, to make her his own, and resolved to carry her off.

Seated in his powerful racing car, with two friends and a chauffeur, he lay in ambush near her house, and when she appeared snatched her from her maid and sped away toward Rouen. Since then the guardians have not been able to locate the couple.

A recent picture of the new Danish crown prince and crown princess, who are exceedingly popular in Denmark. As a token of the esteem in which he is held by his future subjects the prince was presented with a castle in Jutland, that he might reside in that part of the country part of the year. The prince, who is most democratic in his ways, worked his way up from a private in the guard regiment and on many occasions absolutely refused to be treated with more consideration than his comrades. The crown princess, who is a sister of the future empress of Germany, has also won the hearts of the people by her charming manners and her strong will, which enabled her to speak Danish faultlessly a few months after her marriage.

WOULD ABOLISH FINE HUNTING

(Copyright, 1906, by W. R. Hearst)
Special Cable to The Telegram.

BY THE MARQUIS DE CASTELLANE.

PARIS, March 3.—Even sport does not find favor in the eyes of our fanatical democrats unless it is within the reach of every purse. The recent discussion on the subject of the budget in the chamber of deputies has given us a still further proof of the above.

With a stroke of the pen our representatives abolished one of our sporting institutions, which, it may be said, has from the beginning been the exclusive pastime of the aristocracy. Our democratic deputies wish to put an end to hunting with hounds, for in order to do so one must be very rich, and keeping a pack of hounds is an expensive luxury.

They have imagined the best possible means of forcing the aristocracy to give up the sport, and that is by offering a bonus for every animal killed in this manner, be it fox, wolf, deer or boar.

Aristocratic society is much upset by the news that M. Fallieres's first country outing, after he will have assumed the position of president of the republic, will be to the chateau of Azay-le-Rireau, in Tourraine.

There is not an American who has crossed the ocean to travel in France who has not made an excursion to visit those gems of Renaissance architecture known as the chateaux of the Loire, Chambord, Blois, Chenonceau and Azay.

All of these castles have been, if not in every case built for, at least used as residences by our kings. The least that the French republic could do was to send its representative there. Until very recently, when it was acquired by the state, Azay-le-Rireau had never passed out of the possession of the French nobility.

When, therefore, the aristocracy learned that this historic castle was to harbor within its walls people without ancestors, traditions or prestige, it seemed almost as though a sacrilege was about to be committed. As I have frequently repeated the aristocracy cannot accustom themselves to the idea of a democracy where no privilege of rank exists.

Farewell, then, to the glorious chase which has been so closely associated with the most picturesque portions of our history.

Good-bye to the cavalcades of beautiful amazones and dauntless cavaliers! Here is an end to the merry meets where men and women full of enthusiasm gathered before setting forth blithely in pursuit of the quarry.

The hunting horn will no longer call through the forests of France, for Messrs. Violette and Paul Coutant, our esteemed deputies, do not ride horseback and they cannot afford to keep three piqueurs and forty dogs. So one by one our most charming traditions disappear, our habits change, our customs take on the stamp of vulgar popularity, and we lose all that which distinguished us from other nations.

American Leaders

Americans are often, without being aware of it, the leaders in France of our most striking fads and fancies. They set the fashion in modes and guide us in our artistic enthusiasms. Just now all French society is following the lead of the American colony by making an idol of a young French woman artist.

This young lady is the daughter of a great sculptor, M. d'Epinay, and is herself a talented pastellist. Her studio is always crowded, but it is not French which one hears there—it is English.

All the beautiful Anglo-Saxon babies, with their delicate complexions and golden locks, and their sturdy little arms and legs, pass one after another before this youthful portraitist. With her magic crayon she traces for their parents the charming faces of the youngsters of whom they are so proud.

It would be possible to name more than one artist, musician and even actor and actress, who has been made the fashion by the American colony. In the domain of art the French people are willing to have their territory invaded, provided, of course, that the invaders show talent.

Art is an international thing, at least it is looked upon as such by the French, and they would never think of imposing a tax upon its entrance into the country. It would seem to them that such a proceeding would be an insult to human intelligence. It is all very well to place a duty upon iron or on wheat, but surely thought should be allowed to circulate freely, under whatever form it manifests itself.

PARIS RENOUNCES

France Relinquishing Police Powers in Morocco Means Victory for Kaiser

BY THE MARQUIS DE CASTELLANE.

PARIS, March 3.—Notwithstanding the decidedly pacific attitude of the delegates at the Algeciras conference there are people who still believe that there will be war.

Too much cannot be done to overcome this absurd notion. War will not take place, for the simple reason that France renounces her claim to the exclusive right of policing Morocco.

Birds of ill omen croak that France by renouncing this claim has set forth upon a downward career. "Right or wrong, France has claimed the right to police the sultan's territory. She cannot now, without dishonor, renounce her claim." It is not to be supposed, however, that this is the expression of public opinion in general.

On the contrary public opinion in France is in the main hostile to a project, the execution of which would entail much expense, considerable risk and important military expeditions. Moreover it would avail nothing, for the entire country of Morocco is averse to civilization, indeed, it is little better than a land of bandits.

Without intending to do so, Emperor William has, by his menacing intervention, rendered us a great service; and caused us to pull up short on the eve of venturing upon an enterprise which, had it not been more disastrous in its results, would at least have enormously weakened us financially and militarily.

Such is the opinion of reasonable Frenchmen, and they are legion. Far from wishing to pick a quarrel with the emperor of Germany, they are greatly obliged to him for preventing them from committing an act of folly.

When a nation is brought to its senses, even by an enemy, it cannot, and should not, feel any humiliation. Monsieur Delcasse had set out upon a dangerous road, a heavy handed and rough spoken adversary turned us back. We ought to appreciate that.

Berlin Says No War

Special Cable to The Telegram.
(Copyright, 1906, by Hearst News Service.)

BY MALCOLM CLARKE.

BERLIN, March 3.—"No matter what happens at Algericas, whether an agreement is reached or not, there will be no war between France and Germany if I can prevent it," the kaiser is reported to have said to Baron de Courcel, the official representative of France at the funeral of the late King Christian of Denmark, when he received him in audience here.

The baron also had a long conference with the chancellor of the empire, Prince von Buelow and it is not denied that the Moroccan question was discussed.

With the Moroccan question settled, there remains not one cloud on the political horizon. Commercial relations between Germany and the United States have been temporarily settled, and the bitterness against England is rapidly disappearing and would disappear altogether if the jingo press of both countries would cease its pernicious activity.

Relations between the kaiser and King Edward are more cordial than for years, and it is said that, thanks to the efforts of King George of Greece, a meeting between the two monarchs will take place during the Olympic games which are to be held at Athens this summer.

WOULDN'T TAKE ANY PART

Mountaineer's Wife's Reflection on Prospective City Visit

The voters in one of the districts of a mountain county of Kentucky decided they would send Jabe Johnson to the legislature. He could read rather well, owned twenty acres of ground, three horses and two cows. Therefore, being the big man of his district, it was fitting that the honor should be done him.

When he and his wife were getting ready to go to Frankfort many admiring friends came in to say good-bye.

"Mirandy," said one of Mrs. Johnson's aunts, "I reckon you'll be gwine to theayters and all 'em high falutin' things."

"Yes," responded Mrs. Johnson, as she placidly tied on her sunbonnet, "I'm gwine, but I'm not gwine to take enny part."—Holland's Magazine.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

For Artistic Noses---Breathe the Sweet Perfume of Roses

NEW YORK, March 3.—Are women, all over the world, getting homelier and less attractive? Mrs. Jeanette Pomeroy of London says they are, and she is going to do all she can to stop it.

For years, in the aristocratic circles of England, where Queen Alexandra is said to have been one of her patrons, Mrs. Pomeroy has been putting in practice her theories of beauty culture. And the results are said to be such as to convince the most hardened skeptic.

Mrs. Pomeroy has given many years of study to the matter of personal beauty. She was born in India, and made it a business to learn all the old, traditional secrets of those people. She declares that it is their theories that she is putting into constant practice now.

There are no lotions, not even massage, used in this new beauty cult. It is all in your mind. And the treatments should not really be called treatments, but suggestions.

To sum it all up, the whole theory would be about this:

Hearing only beautiful sounds produces beautiful ears.

Touching lovely things makes lovely hands.

Smelling sweet odors makes aristocratic noses.

Of course, not every woman has the environment or leisure to surround herself with beauty-producing things. But that doesn't make much of any difference, Mrs. Pomeroy says. If you are where there are bed smells, don't smell them. If you are where things are unlovely, don't see them.

To some of her patients she will prescribe Bottichelli's spring for a dull eye, or the Moonlight sonata for a line between the eyes, or maybe a dozen American beauty roses for a red nose.

But anyhow, Mrs. Pomeroy is coming over to this country soon to make a study of the far-famed American woman, and to tell her how to stay beautiful and young if she is beautiful and young, and how to become so if she is not.

Mrs. Pomeroy herself is over 50 years old, though she is said to look scarcely 30.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A HOT GAME ALL AROUND

Just at an Interesting Stage a Big Grizzly Broke the Jack Pot

Mark Farney, George Squires, Ramon Arguello, Noisy Smith and Ah Suey, cook, left with an elaborate outfit, to camp for a month somewhere in the Santa Lucia range. Farney said he didn't believe it was a good thing for a man to upset all his ways of living when on a vacation, so he plied into a wagon a six-gallon can of kerosene oil and a large lamp. He had been accustomed to sitting up at nights and playing a little game of draw when so disposed.

The crowd went out to have a month's fun, and judging by their appearance when they returned, they had it all in less than two weeks, with a large margin to spare. They brought nothing but the two bronchos, their frying pan, and the barrels of their guns. Ah Suey and Squires came across the Salinas river on the horses, and the rest of the party swam the stream.

Noisy Smith explained. During the first week they were busy getting the camp comfortable. Having convinced Ah Suey that at least a pint of beans must be reserved from the commissary for use as chips, they got the kerosene lamp rigged up in the front and resumed civilized customs in camp, sitting up until after midnight with the cards and the snake medicine.

One night a very interesting game was in progress. Mark Farney held a king full against Squires' flush, and Noisy Smith stayed in with a bobtail straight and placid smile. There was a double handful of beans on the top of an oil can. Ah Suey had gone to sleep at the back of the tent and was chopping wood in his dreams. Just as Noisy Smith was about to raise, Ah Suey sprang up with a yell and bounded out of the tent, upsetting the oil can and two of the players en route. Arguello looked up in anger and drew his revolver to take a shot at the fleeing Chinaman, but changed his mind when he saw the head of a grizzly poked through the rear flap of the tent. The bear was surveying the scene with evident astonishment and some interest. Arguello's anger was diverted toward the bear.

"Ah!" you breaka up such a pot as that!" he cried. "Carajo!" And he blazed away at the shaggy head.

There was a howl, a charge, and a rush of the players out of the tent. They did not wait to seize their guns.

The bear knocked down a tent pole at one end and Farney carried away the other as he plunged out headlong. The tent came down on the bear and enveloped him. For an instant there was a young earthquake under the canvas. Then it became a volcanic disturbance. The lamp exploded and set fire to the whole mass. The plug must have been knocked out of the big oil can by the bear's vigorous antics. All the oil was ablaze in a minute, and tents, blankets and bear were enveloped in flame. Arguello, Smith and Farney happened to have their revolvers on them, and they stood around and added to the bear's discomfort by plugging bullets into him. Squires had no pistol, and prudently got up into a tall tree and yelled "Fire!" Ah Suey had crawled into a hollow log and kept very still.

The bear wailed and yelled with pain and rage, and rolled over in the burning canvas. It was not much more than half a minute when he broke out of the canvas with a howl and rushed blindly about, striking furiously at trees and everything in his way. Pieces of tent clung to him, and he tore them off with his claws and teeth, and sent blazing fragments flying in every direction. His shaggy hair had become saturated with oil and was blazing and snapping merrily in patches. His fury was something frightful and his general aspect decidedly demoniac.

At first, he did not see any of the party, but in one of his mad whirls he caught sight of Smith, who had just fired at him. The bear charged on Smith, who turned and ran like a deer, with the blazing bear in pursuit. Smith did not notice the direction he took until, in half a dozen jumps, he saw the bank of the creek before him. There was no time to turn. He put all his energy in his legs and leaped as far into the stream as he could, falling feet foremost with a "chug." The illuminated bear followed with a prodigious splash and a distinct sizzle.

Then Noisy Smith dived under water, turned up stream and swam silently back to the bank from which he had leaped. The bear drifted down stream and swam to the opposite bank. Arguello and Farney peppered him with their revolvers. He reached the other side and disappeared, wailing and moaning with pain, and that was the last seen of him.

When Noisy Smith got back into the light of the burning camp he whispered to the other boys, "See what a hand I had to draw to," and exhibited his bobtail straight which he had kept in his left hand all the time. The camp was a total wreck, even the wagon that stood near the tent being burned beyond hope of further usefulness. Ah Suey was hauled out of his log half dead, a few relics were gathered from the ruins, the broncbos were caught, and the party tramped home, living en route on rabbits and other small game until they struck a ranch at the foot of the range.

Jaunty and pert are the first smart early spring hats that are shown for youthful heads. Round straw hats will be the ones that the fair girls will indulge in. On account of the mild winter the milliners are returning early from Paris, and the feminine enticements that accompany them are many—and expensive.

The above, a very pretty hat that is among the first models to pass the custom officers, is a strange combination. It is of pink and brown, and though it does not sound right, the combination is exceedingly good. The hat is of rough, loosely woven straw, which is of rose pink. Bias bands of brown velvet encircle the brim. Soft crushed pink ribbon is about the crown and from a rosette a pink wing pertly sticks out. The brown is here again introduced, the center of the rosette having a stunning bronze ornament.

FOR SPRING RECEPTIONS

An afternoon costume for spring receptions is of tan broadcloth. The material is of the soft fine quality and the skirt is made en princesse. The short bolero opens upon a bodice of ecru chiffon, which is finished at the throat with a stiff Elizabethan ruff. This is modified to harmonize with twentieth century beauty, having a lace stock. The same effect is introduced upon the demi-sleeves, and the bolero is edged with brown velvet. A big Gainsborough hat of brown chip is profusely trimmed with drooping plumes of canary yellow.

The Latest Dinner Cards

New dinner cards—as full of suggestion of joyous spring days as they are of color and beauty—are shaped in garlands which are meant to hang from the side of your goblet.

They're a pretty bit of color, adding not a little to the decorative effect of the table as you go into the room, the cards just as you go into the room, the enough to be displayed in the fullest way.

Those other cards, with a folded bit pasted upon the back, by means of which they are made to stand up upon the cloth are next prettiest of the many styles shown. Whatever your flower scheme is it can be repeated in these cards, red roses or pink ones, daffodils or carnations, even the purest of Easter lilies—all have their copies in cards.

Pretty Effect in Trousseau

Into one very pretty trousseau are tucked towels finished across both ends with simple, effective scallops, which prove a welcome variation to the two time-honored styles—those fringed or hemmed.

Of course, the scalloping is done by hand, using a heavy embroidery cotton—one of the softest kinds—for the work, and padding it rather heavily. And initials are set squarely in the middle of one end.

Soften Your Pen in a Flame

Try lighting a match and putting your pen in the flame for the minute it burns the next time you have to put a fresh pen in your holder. Besides being a great deal more pleasant way than the old way of putting it in your mouth, the pen is ready for work in an instant—and just right instead of your having to get used to it after all, as you did with pends the other way.

Duty on Scotch Pipe

There is a duty of $5.35 on Scotch pipe coming into Canada. This, of course, would be adequate protection to the Canadian concerns were conditions affecting the manufacture of pipe equal in the two countries, but they are not. Scotch pipe can be manufactured much cheaper than Canadian.

Major John Bigelow, Jr., who has succeeded General Nelson A. Miles as military adviser of Governor Gould of Massachusetts, is an author as well as a military man, having written "Principles of Strategy" and "Reminiscences of the Santiago Campaign."

Girl's Sailor Suit 5296

Nothing takes the place of the sailor suit for girls of 11 and under. It is always becoming, always attractive, always useful, and should be included in every wardrobe. This one is made of blue serge with a shield of white and trimming of blue braid, but will be found an excellent model for linen, chambray and the like of the warm weather as well as for the wool materials of the immediate present. The little blouse is made in the regulation style with the applied yoke at front and back and with the sailor collar that is so generally becoming to youthful figures. The skirt is box plaited and generously full.

The little costume is made with blouse and the skirt, which are quite separate. The blouse is drawn on over the head and is confined at the waist line by means of elastic inserted in a hem. The shield is separate and attached to it beneath the collar. The skirt is five-gored and is joined to a belt at the upper edge.

The quantity of material required for the medium size (12 years) is 7½ yards 27, 6 1-2 yards 36 or 4 1-2 yards 44 inches wide, with 5-8 yard any width for the shield, ½ yard width for the tie and 6 yards of braid to trim as illustrated.

The New Mohair Spring Styles

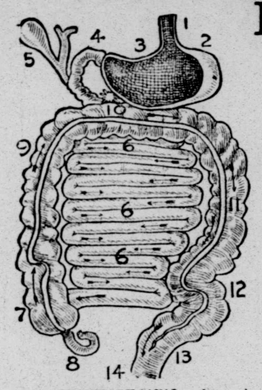
The creams and whites are the leading favorites, and these are barred with black lines, or formed into small or large checks. For street wear the skirts are circular in form.

A distinctively new feature is that the coats to be worn with these skirts are of a contrasting color and fabric. A favorite model has stole ends, the bolero at the waist line being slashed. The jacket is edged with a lace, mellowed in tone to a creaminess of the mohair.

Your Thirty Feet of Bowels



THE ALIMENTARY CANAL. 1. Lower end of œsophagus (meat-pipe) which conveys the food from the throat to the stomach; 2. Cardiac end of stomach; 3. Pyloric end of stomach; 4. Duodenum; 5. Gall bladder; 6, 6, 6. Small intestines; 7. Cæcum; 8. Vermiform appendix; 9. Ascending colon; 10. Transverse colon; 11; Descending colon; 12. Sigmoid flexure; 13. Rectum; 14. Anus. The duodenum is continuous with the small intestines. The small intestine empties into the large intestine or colon at the cæcum. The arrows indicate the direction which the contents of the bowels must take in passing through the alimentary canal.

YOU have thirty feet of Intestines! What makes food travel through them?

A set of Muscles that line the walls of these Intestines or Bowels.

When a piece of Food rubs the walls of the Intestines these Muscles tighten behind it, and thus it starts a Muscle-wave which drives it through the whole length of the Bowels.

It should take about 12 hours to do this properly, so that nutritious parts of the food may have time to be digested and absorbed.

But,—if it takes twice or three times that period the food spoils in passing, and becomes as poisonous as if it had decayed before being eaten.

Now, the cause of delay (Constipation) is simply Weakness, or Laziness of the Bowel-Muscles.

Castor Oil, or Glycerine, will grease the passages for one load of Food at a time, but these lubricants can't help the Cause of Delay.

They do not remove the Cause of Constipation.

Moreover, they waste so much of the precious Digestive Fluids, in the flushing process, that it takes a bigger dose every succeeding time to move the Bowel load.

But it is different with Cascarets.

Cascarets act on the Muscles of the Bowels and Intestines. They act just as Cold Water, or Exercise act on a Lazy man.

They act like exercise.

Market Rather Irregular—Initial Advance in Response to London's Strength

Special to The Telegram.

NEW YORK, March 3.—Stocks were somewhat irregular during the brief session today. At the start speculative values were generally higher in response to favorable overnight developments and a strong market for American stocks in London. The Pennsylvania report was a very favorable one and was reflected by an initial advance of a point in that stock. Reading, A. C. P. and Colorado Fuel and Iron all showed opening gains of slightly over a point. But the trade seemed to have but little confidence in the long side of the market and despite the fact that the bank statement was rather better than was expected, there was considerable liquidation in evidence throughout the session, with the result that with only a few exceptions the early gains were lost. The closing tone was easy, with the majority of issues showing fractional losses, while A. C. P. lost almost 2 points. Missouri, Kansas and Texas was the strongest on the list, closing 2¼ points net higher.

Wheat Prices Break 1⅝c—Big Increase in Farmers' Reserve—Bear Card Causing Slump

Special to The Telegram.

CHICAGO, March 3.—The wheat market was entirely in the hands of the bears today, and they pounded prices unmercifully, with the result that the decline was steady with scarcely any reaction, closing prices being practically at the bottom, showing a net loss of 1⅝c for the May option, which is the lowest level reached for two years. The Jones' estimate of farmers' reserves was a big bear card, showing a total of 213,000,000 bushels, the largest on record. The selling began afresh, and liquidation was renewed. Seasonable weather throughout the belt removed the only possible buying incentive. Precipitation was general excepting in Oklahoma and heaviest throughout the Ohio valley. Cables were ¼d lower from Liverpool. World's shipments were estimated at 10,400,000 bushels. Local receipts were only three cars, with ten expected Monday. Northwestern receipts, 323 cars, against 292 cars a year ago. Total primary movement, 417,000 bushels, against 444,000 bushels a year ago. Clearances, 250,000 bushels.

Corn weakened on aggressive short selling by successful wheat bears. The large estimate of wheat reserves decidedly drew attention to the probability of large reserves in the coarse grains and this, with estimates of the large Argentine exportable surplus, constitute the selling influences. The cash market was ½c lower. Liverpool was firm and ¼d to ⅜d higher on smaller shipments. Local receipts were slightly in excess of the demand and preliminary figures for Monday are moderate. Total primary movement, 508,000 bushels, against 730,000 bushels a year ago. Clearances, 462,000 bushels.

Oats showed rather a firm tone and declined only fractionally, despite the weakness in wheat. Receipts amounted 161 cars, with 226 cars figured on for Monday. Clearances, 94,000 bushels. The cash market was ¼c to ½c lower.

Packers again led in the buying of provisions. The offerings were rather moderate and the selling apparently influenced by weakness in grain. The close was firm at a fair advance. Estimated hogs for Monday, 55,000 bushels and 190,000 bushels for all next week.

Statistics Favor Bulls—Market Quiet. Prices Advance Sharply—Spots Up $1 Per Bale

Special to The Telegram.

NEW YORK, March 3.—All developments favored the bull side of the controversy today. The week-end figures, which were given out after exchange hours yesterday, were extremely bullish, the spinners' takings being very heavy, and early cables reported prices for Liverpool contracts better than had been anticipated, but the crowning feature of the news was the continued healthy demand reported for the actual stuff, sales of 12,000 bales in Liverpool at an advance of 14 points in price being rather an unusual occurrence during Saturday's trading.

The talent on this side were very much enthused over the favorable developments, and the local opening reflected the good feeling, prices on the first call being 10 to 12 points higher for the active months.

There was good buying immediately following the call, which resulted in a further gain of 1 to 4 points during the first half hour.

After the initial excitement subsided, the market assumed the usual Saturday aspect and, although the undertone was at all times good, the trading was rather light during the remainder of the session. The close was steady with prices at a net gain of 13 to 15 points on the old crop months and 7 points on October.

Spots were steady at an advance of 20 points on a basis of 11.30c for the middling grade. No sales were reported.

New Orleans Cotton

Special to The Telegram.

NEW ORLEANS, March 3.—The cotton market bulled itself today, and prices advanced substantially without any undue pressure from the long interest. The trading was of the usual week-end character and, although sentiment was rather favorable to the long side, the general trade was not at all active.

The bullish weekly statistics and Liverpool's response to the same were the potent factors, creating an initial advance of 7 to 13 points, the market being firm and excited at the opening.

The advance eventually carried prices to a net gain of 15 to 16 points on the new crop months.

Shorts covered freely during the day, but there was also liberal profit-taking by satisfied longs, which prevented the advance reaching larger proportions. The close was steady, with prices 11 to 13 points net higher for the active months and 6 points up for October.

The spot market was firm, with prices ⅛c higher, on a basis of 10¾c for the middling grade. Sales, 1,900 bales, including 300 to arrive. F. o. b., 200 bales.

Saturday's Review and Sales

Steers

No steers arrived in the early supply of cattle, but two loads held over and a few driven in. The market found a fairly good demand from packers, and an early clearance was made at steady prices. Top sales were made at $4.15, for steers averaging 1,144 pounds. Sales:

No.	Ave.	Price.	No.	Ave.	Price.
50	1,144	$4.15	26	973	$3.70

Butcher Stock

There was just a few scattering head of cows and heifers on the market today, and these came in mixed loads, and, with the exception of a few choice heifers, the quality was common. Packers and butchers were picking up the few odd head available and trading ruled steady.

Sales of cows:

No.	Ave.	Price.	No.	Ave.	Price.
1	780	$1.85	1	980	$2.25
4	912	2.75	1	880	1.50
1	830	1.50	1	520	1.90
1	890	2.40

No.	Ave.	Price.	No.	Ave.	Price.
1	640	$4.25	1	730	$3.25
6	480	2.75	1	880	3.35
1	690	2.75	4	657	3.09
1	600	1.90

Bulls

The bulls on the market sold as follows:

No.	Ave.	Price.	No.	Ave.	Price.
1	1,090	$3.00	1	800	$2.75
2	995	2.25	3	776	2.40

Calves

Receipts of calves composed the bulk of the run, with the quality common. Packers were active for vealers and with speculators taxing thin heavy calves and yearlings, the trade ruled fully steady. Sales:

No.	Ave.	Price.	No.	Ave.	Price.
19	305	$2.50	22	322	$2.50

Hogs

The usual light closing week run of hogs arrived today, and an early estimate was marked up at 1,000 head. Offerings included a few choice heavy well finished hogs, but the bulk was mixed with a liberal sprinkling of pigs. The market opened strong to 5c higher, but after the first round the advance was lost and sales closed no better than steady with yesterday. The top price reached today was $6.17½, for a load averaging 290 pounds.

Sales of heavy hogs:

No.	Ave.	Price.	No.	Ave.	Price.
98	201	$6.07½	55	186	$5.50
68	200	6.07½	24	178	5.50

Trade Notes

It is a comparatively easy matter to train a horse to move promptly and step quickly if you commence right when you first begin to handle him.

A well shaped foot is large rather than small. The wall should be smooth, even shiny, and fashioned so that the fibers of which it is made can be seen.

A horse is profitable to his owner in proportion to the good condition of his feet and legs. The healthful state of these is best subserved by good earth floors.

One of the most difficult things to teach a colt is to back up. It is not natural for him, and care and patience should be exercised in training him.

Will Brown of Brady, Texas, is in the city on business. He contemplates becoming a ranchero in old Mexico.

O. E. Clark of Tarrant county was visiting the yards this morning.

Arapahoe, O. T., sent in J. M. Clark, who was an interested spectator this trip of the market operations.

S. F. Garland, with two cars of cattle, was on the road over twenty-four hours, getting out of the way of all trains, slow and fast, for 116 miles. He is from Grayson county.

W. A. Parks, Gatlin, Texas, on his way south, stopped over with two cars of cattle, steers and bulls, to add to his surplus.

Why He Stuttered More

There is no end to the stories told of William R. Travers, who extracted more humor than discomfort from his stuttering. A friend who had known him in Baltimore said to him:

"Billy, it seems to me that you stutter more now than you did when you lived in Baltimore."

Have we any good things to show. Read and see what you think of it.

On Fairmount Hill we know we have a good thing. A lot, 100x140 feet, to a 20-foot alley, at only $850.

A very fine lot on this same hill, 50x140 feet, east front, on graded and graveled street, water on lot, three blocks of car line; price $600; $100 cash, balance terms.

Maybe you wish a swell home of seven large rooms, hall and bath room, hot and cold water; lights, gas; in fact a very modern new and up-to-date home; right in the very best section of southwest part of city; lot 50 x140 feet, with south front. Owner is leaving the city and must sell this week. The place is worth $5,000. But as he leaves the 15th, advises us to let it go at $4,200.

Another lot bargain is not far from the Eighth ward school, 50x100 feet, on the hill; will double in value; can sell at $350 cash.

For the small buyer with a small cash payment to pay on a home of his own we have two or three fine values that we are showing this week; prices $1,100, $1,250 and $1,300.

A very beautiful two-story home, on south side, well located, has eight spacious rooms, large reception hall, bath rooms, up and down stairs, china closet, pantrys, go-betweens, large double doors, sliding dors, mantel and grate; house beautifully finished, plastered and tinted walls, new and modern. A bargain at $5,000.

See us for good things.

COTTON, one to two bales per acre, wheat, 60 bushels; oats, 110 bushels; barley, 80 bushels; cantaloupes, one car to three acres. To purchasers for these lands in forty to 640-acre tracts, before June 1, we guarantee to set out 5,000 in apple trees this fall, not less than forty or more than fifty trees per acre. These trees have been selected and consist of varieties that have proven the best apple for the valley. This land is located at Barstow, Texas, on the Texas and Pacific railway, and is between two excellent markets, Fort Worth and El Paso. We are making these prices at much less than $100 per acre, which puts the price below the average irrigated orchard lands.

ORDINANCES

ORDINANCE NO. 951.

An ordinance licensing and regulating ticket brokers, scalpers, or dealers in railway or railroad tickets in the City of Fort Worth, Texas; regulating the manner of the sale of railway or railroad tickets by said persons, prescribing the kind and character of bond to be given, imposing penalties and providing for a suspension of provocation of their license—

Section 1. Be it ordained by the city council of the city of Fort Worth, Texas, that on and after the passage and publishing of this ordinance, it shall be unlawful for any person within the corporate limits of the city of Fort Worth to engage in the business of broker or scalper or dealer in railway or railroad passenger tickets, or other token of right of travel, or passage over a railroad or railway, without a license therefor as hereinafter provided.

Sec. 2. A railway ticket broker, scalper or dealer is one who without authority from the railroad or railroads whose tickets, or token of right of travel or passage, he buys, sells, or deals in or offers to buy, sell or deal in; for a consideration buys, sells or in any way deals in railroad passenger tickets, or other token of right of travel or passage, purporting to be good for one or more persons to travel to or from certain places on a railroad or railway train or trains.

Sec. 3. No person shall engage in such business of ticket broker, scalper or dealer in railroad or railway tickets or other token of travel or passage, in the city, without first paying to this city an annual license fee of fifty dollars; each license shall be issued for one year, and on its face shall plainly express that it will be forfeited for any violation of any of the provisions of this ordinance, and shall show when such license shall expire together with the name of the person authorized to do business under such license, which business shall be carried on at one office only, said office to be named in the license, at which office such license shall be exposed to public view in some conspicuous place.

Sec. 4. No license shall be granted until the person applying therefor shall have filed with the city collector a bond with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the mayor and chief of police, in the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars, conditioned that such ticket broker or scalper or dealer will not sell to any person or persons any bogus, forged or otherwise invalid or worthless railroad ticket, or any other token of the right of travel or passage, the sale of which is in this ordinance prohibited, and that they will pay to any such purchaser of a ticket, or other such token of the right of travel or passage, a penalty of four times the amount paid them for such ticket or token, provided said broker shall have refused on demand in writing to refund the amount paid for said ticket or token. Any person aggrieved by reason of purchasing any such ticket as above, shall have the right to sue on such bond and recover the liquidated penalty above mentioned, as well as any further damage he may sustain by occasion of the premises.

Sec. 5. In addition to the civil liability in such bond mentioned in Sec. 4, it shall be unlawful for any such person to sell or offer for sale to any person any bogus, forged or otherwise invalid or worthless railroad ticket, or other token or right of travel or passage, and any such person so offending shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction in the corporation court of the city of Fort Worth, shall be fined not less than $25.00 nor more than $100.00.

Sec. 6. It shall be unlawful for any person, his servants, agents or employes, for or on his behalf, now or hereafter engaged in the business of railroad ticket broker, scalper or dealer, or any other person with or without license in the city of Fort Worth, Texas, to sell any railroad ticket carrying a provision that it is not transferable, or railroad ticket or other token of travel or passage, which cannot be used by the purchaser thereof, without such purchaser being obliged and compelled to impersonate before an agent of the railroad company or upon the train or other means of conveyance, another person, or which cannot be used by such purchaser thereof without such purchaser being obliged and compelled to falsely and fraudulently sign or subscribe thereto, or thereon or to any other instrument of writing so connected therewith as to be necessary to the use thereof, the signature of another person, and which ticket shall be void in the hands of any other than the original purchaser. Any one violating any of the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction in the corporation court of the city of Fort Worth shall be fined not less than $25.00 nor more than $100.00, for each and every offense.

Sec. 7. Every person now or hereafter engaged in and conducting the business of ticket broker, scalper or dealer, shall be required to give a certificate to each and every purchaser of a railroad ticket, or tickets, or other token of the right of travel or passage, stating the date upon which ticket or tickets, or other token of the right of travel or passage, name of issuing road, form and number of ticket, the starting point destination, and the amount paid for same, and such certificate shall be signed by such person or some one in his office for and in his behalf. Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction in the corporation court of the city of Fort Worth, Texas, shall be fined not less than $25.00 nor more than $100.00 for each and every offense.

Sec. 8. Every ticket broker, scalper or dealer doing business in the city of Fort Worth, Texas, shall keep at his place of business, a substantial well bound book, in which he shall enter in writing a full description of all tickets or other token of the right of travel or passage, showing the character of ticket, if one way or round trip, if of card form, book form or coupon ticket, mileage book and commutation tickets of all forms, editorial passes, trip passes, time passes or annual passes giving the form number the name of the railroad or railway issuing same, where same was sold or issued, date when same was sold or issued, destination of same, plainly stating when same expires, together with the name and address of the person by whom same was left on deposit with such broker, or sold to him, the amount paid for same if purchased, which said book shall be kept clean and legible, and no entry shall be erased, defaced or obliterated, and all entries therein shall be made in ink. Every person engaged in ticket broking or scalping, failing to comply with the provisions of this article shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction in the corporation court of the city of Fort Worth, shall be fined in any sum not less than $25.00 and not exceeding $100.00.

Sec. 9. Every person engaged in ticket broking or scalping or any servant or agent, or employe of any such person doing a ticket broking or scalping business, shall during business hours when requested by any police officer of the city, submit and exhibit the book provided for in the next preceding article, to the inspection of such police officer, and also exhibit any ticket or tickets, or other token of the right of travel or passage, which may be left with such ticket broker or ticket scalper, or which may have been purchased by him, to the inspection of such police officer.

Sec. 10. Any person or any servant or agent or employe of such person engaged in the ticket broking or scalping business as in this ordinance defined, who shall refuse to submit such book or such ticket or tickets, or other token of the right of travel or passage, on request of said police officer, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction in the corporation court of the city of Fort Worth, Texas, shall be fined not less than $25.00 or more than $100.00.

Sec. 11. Any person violating any of the provisions of this ordinance where there is no special penalty for such violation, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction in the corporation court of the city of Fort Worth, shall be fined not less than $25.00 nor more than $100.00 for each and every offense; that in addition to the punishment herein prescribed for a violation of any of the provisions of this ordinance, the court may, upon the conviction of any person suspend or revoke the license held by such person as herein provided for; that in the event the court should suspend any license, it shall be thereafter unlawful for any such person to engage in ticket broking or scalping or dealing in railway ticket business under such license during the term of the suspension fixed by the court, and it shall be unlawful for any person to engage in the business of a ticket broker or scalper under any license which may have been revoked as herein stated.

Sec. 12. The word person as used in this ordinance shall be held to include persons, firm, corporation and association of persons.

Sec. 13. This ordinance repeals all ordinances or parts of ordinances that are in conflict herewith.

Sec. 14. This ordinance shall be in force and effect from and after its passage and publication.

JNO. T. MONTGOMERY,
City Secretary.

Passed under suspension of rules, Feb. 19, 1906.
JNO. T. MONTGOMERY,
City Secretary.

FOOTBALL RULES TO REFORM GAME

Intercollegiate Committee to Hold Executive Session

NEW YORK, March 3.—The American intercollegiate football rules committee will meet today for the third time to discuss the matter of rules reforming the game. An executive session will be held at the Murray Hill hotel and in all probability it will be late in the evening before it completes its labors or adjourns to some future date. Much has been accomplished and the committee has completed the hardest part of its labors.

The proposed changes in the rules have only been tentatively adopted up to this time, so that they are still open to some minor changes. It is probable that another adjournment will be taken before the final seal is placed on the findings, and the rules for new football are definitely fixed, in order that some of the proposed changes can be tried. The practical demonstration of the new rules will probably occur on the naval gridiron at Annapolis. The plan is to line up two teams and have them through the formula in order to test the rules and give some idea as to what the changes have accomplished in opening up the play which has been one of the chief reforms aimed at.

To Consider Opening

The work before the committee today is further consideration of ways and means to open up the play; to take up in detail the report of the subcommittee as to the best way of appointing a central board of officials; deciding definitely as to the advisability of demonstrating the plays and the question of affording a proper part to the player in catching punts.

Penalties for Brutality

The last is perhaps the most important work still before the committee. A summary of the work already done by the committee shows that severe penalties have been provided for brutality or foul play, while mass plays have been practically eliminated and the game opened up by several proposed changes.

LABOR NOTES

Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor will meet in convention in Philadelphia March 12.

Paterson, N. J, carpenters have been conceded an increase of 60 cents a day, effective May 1.

The constitutionality of the new Pennsylvania factory law will be tested by several large factory owners.

St. Paul cigar makers adopted a resolution, which was signed by every member, pledging themselves to buy none but union label clothing.

It is said over five thousand pairs of shoes are made daily by Virginia convicts. The state receives 41 cents a day for the work of each convict.

A number of coal operators have declared that in event of a strike no effort will be made to run the mines with non-union men.

School teachers of Tamaqua, Pa., threaten to strike if they are not paid for time lost when the schools were closed during a smallpox epidemic.

The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen is going to build an international home, and $75,000 has been set aside to start with.

The headquarters of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers have been removed from Washington, D. C., to Springfield, Ill.

Four of the large engraving shops of Chicago have signed the union agreement with the photo-engravers. The agreement is for three years.

Many unions in Great Britain pay out-of-work, sick, funeral, superannuated benefits, and, in addition, have a special fund to provide homes.

The Interlocking tower operators and switchmen of Indiana are trying to secure the passage of an eight-hour law. They are now employed twelve hours a day at $55 per month.

Berlin, Germany, lithographers and litho printers have, without a strike, obtained an eight-hour day for lithographer and nine-hour day for printers.

Owners of English cotton mills in the north of England have granted an increase in wages amounting to 2½ per cent, to take effect May 1. This increase will affect about 150,000 operatives.

The Saturday half-holiday all the year round has been decided upon by Boston Bricklayers' Unions, and has been made a part of the working rules of that city and vicinity.

Five hundred wood workers employed at a Chicago furniture factory are on strike against the introduction of piece work, longer hours and open shop.

The failure of congress to pass the $1,000,000 naval deficiency appropriation bill has resulted in a reduction of 44 per cent in the force of navy yard employes.

The Baltimore Federation of Labor has caused a bill to be drafted for the purpose of amending the city charter so as to permit only voters of the city and state to be employed upon public works.

In the 270 British trade unions, with a total membership of 581,636, making returns, 28,734 (or 4.9 per cent) were unemployed at the end of the previous month, and 7.6 per cent at the end of December, 1904.

Notice has been served on the clerical force under the Pennsylvania auditor of merchandise freight receipts that the working hours of the 400 clerks will be lengthened one and one-half hours a day.

Fifteen violators of the Ohio child labor law have been arrested in Cincinnati. District inspectors are pushing the crusade against employers who have been working minors in violation of the child labor law.

Five crews of men are to leave Chicago from the Steam Shovel and Dredgemen's Union under contract for work in the harbors of Chili. The Chicago union is also being called upon for crews of men who are sent to Panama.

Freight handlers numbering about 600, employed at the West Shore railroad yards in Weehawken, have gone on strike to enforce a demand for double pay for Sundays and one hour and a half time regular pay for overtime.

Out of 178,059 members of 1054 French trade unions which made returns to the French labor department as to the state of employment, 1,536 or 10.4 per cent, were out of work in November, as compared with 8.9 per cent in the previous month and 11.6 per cent in November, 1904.

By order of the Prussian minister of public works, dated Dec. 27, 1905, a nine-hour working day was introduced recently in the state railway workshops in the Berlin, Frankfort-on-Main, Magdeburg and Posen railway districts, and time wages were increased so that no decrease in the workmen's wages should result from the reduction in working hours.

The Pattern Makers' League of North America at its present convention raised the assessment of its members from 25 to 50 cents per week. It is proposed to use the money that is paid in dues in strengthening and building up the organization and pay for placing organizers in the field in this country and Canada.

German school teachers receive $600 the first year, increasing gradually to $1,080 for thirty years' service and over; female teachers one-fourth less. Head teachers receive $-42 additional. Drawing teachers receive $282 and sewing teachers $300, which increase $622 and $426 for thirty years' service. Official life and sickness insurance is provided for by a deduction of 3 per cent from salaries of male teachers and 1 1-5-4ier cent from female.

BISHOP IN CHINA

DR. JAS. W. BASHFORD.

The missionary bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, is in China in close touch with the many missionaries of his church during the anti-foreign crisis. He has been bishop about two years, and was president of Ohio Wesleyan University when elected. He is 57, a native of Wisconsin, and has had charges in Boston, Portland, Me., and Buffalo.

CABINET OFFICER NINE YEARS

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson has broken all records for length of service by cabinet officers, save one. Mr. Wilson has served as a member of the president's official family for a longer period than any man during the past 100 years.

The lone record which Secretary Wilson has not yet equaled was held by Albert Gallatin, who was appointed secretary of the treasury by President Jefferson in 1801. He served through the first of Madison's, and until April 17, 8113, of Madison's second administration.

Mr. Wilson was appointed secretary of agriculture by President McKinley, March 5, 1897, and has served ever since. Both of these persistent officeholders were foreign born. Secretary Wilson was born in Scotland and Gallatin in Switzerland.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Honi Soit

"There's no use talking," sighed the young man who had received a note telling him that it could never be; "there's no use talking, you can't tell anything about women."

"You shouldn't tell anything about them," replied the gray-bearded philosopher, wagging his head sagely.—Judge.

CURED CONSUMPTION

Mrs. B. W. Evans, Clearwater, Kan., writes, My husband lay sick for three months. The doctors said he had quick consumption. We procured a bottle of Ballard's Horehound Syrup, and it cured him. That was six years ago, and since then we always kept a bottle in the house. We cannot do without it. For coughs and colds it has no equal. 25c, 50c and $1.00.

MRS. BURKE-ROCHE IS A NEW AMERICAN

NEWPORT, R. I., March 1.—Miss Cynthia Burke-Roche, daughter of the Hon. and Mrs. Burke-Roche, has renounced allegiance to King Edward, having taken out her citizenship papers.

This statement is made in connection with the announcement of her engagement to Arthur Scott Burden, which was made public a few days ago in New York.

Miss Roche was entitled to the use of the title "Honorable" before her name, her father being the Hon. J. B. Burke-Roche, a British subject. Miss Roche was born in England, but has spent the greater part of her life in this country with her mother, Mrs. Fanny Burke-Roche, who found it so hard to live on $50,000 a year. Miss Cynthia's grandfather, Frank Workman of New York, is a multi-millionaire, and many of his millions will descend to her.

THE LATEST "THRILLER" IN A BICYCLE ACT

Special to The Telegram.

NEW YORK, March 3.—The marvelous feats that can be accomplished on the bicycle will never end. Ralph Johnstone, a trick cyclist performing at the Hippodrome, has produced the newest wonders.

This cyclist thinks nothing of jumping up and down stairs and flying through the air like a catapult. His best trick is done on a springboard. He mounts his wheel on a platform erected twelve feet in the air. Then, by a jump, he throws himself, still in the saddle, to the end of a springboard onto the ground below. On the other end of the board is Johnstone's assistant, mounted on a wheel. The force of the blow on the board throws the assistant backward into the air, where he turns a complete somersault and wheels off.

Another trick is jumping up seventeen narrow steps to a platform, without stopping, and then two wide jumps to elevated platforms and a somersault to the floor.

AUTO MEET APRIL 1

Barney Oldfield and E. H. R. Green to Be at Houston

Special to The Telegram.

HOUSTON, Texas, March 3.—A meeting of the Houston Automobile Club has been called for next Tuesday to arrange for the state automobile races, to be held about April 1.

Barney Oldfield, with his famous "Green Dragon" and other machines, is to be in attendance. He will be in New Orleans the latter part of this month, and will come from there to Houston.

E. H. R. Green, with his machine, and S. H. Borney of Dallas, who has one of the fastest autos in Texas, have signified their intention of participating in the events. Some handsome purses are to be offered.

It is absent-minded when you forget to do something for your wife; it is gross negligence when she forgets.

Eulogy on Life of Mrs. Murphy Delivered at St. Patrick's Church

The last tribute to the memory of Mrs. Margaret Dillon Murphy at the solemn requiem high mass at St. Patrick's church Friday was attended by a large number of those who knew her so well and who loved the kindly nature she had always displayed. The attendance at the mass numbered several hundred. A beautiful eulogy was delivered by Father Guyot, with whom she had so often worked so earnestly in the service of the church.

Flowers were piled high on all sides of the casket, and the designs were many and appropriate. The pall bearers were James O'Dowd, M. C. Hurley, T. P. Fenelon, J. P. Hird, H. V. Jewell, E. C. Orrick, E. T. Bergin and F. Moriarity.

The remains were shipped to Milwaukee for interment.

J. H. TERRILL, M. D.
Master Specialist.

WHY IS DR. TERRILL'S TREATMENT THE BEST?

Because he cures the Special and Pelvic Diseases peculiar to the Male Sex in one-half the time usually required by other methods of treatment. Dr. Terrill's methods are rational and absolutely CORRECT, therefore there is NO element of uncertainty as to the results. Furthermore his expert treatment costs NO MORE than the ordinary kind and a POSITIVE and PERMANENT CURE is GUARANTEED in writing. CALL UPON HIM OR WRITE HIM TODAY if you suffer with Varicocele, Stricture, Contagious Blood Poison, Lost Manhood, Seminal Emissions, Hydrocele, Epilepsy, Catarrh, Piles and all Chronic Disease of the Stomach, Kidneys, Bladder and Prostate. The reason that Dr. Terrill can give you a WRITTEN LEGAL GUARANTEE TO CURE these terrible afflictions is because of the PROVEN FACT that he has and uses the SAFEST, MOST CERTAIN and MOST RELIABLE methods of treating these conditions. Then men who want the BEST treatment should write to Dr. Terrill TODAY in regard to their troubles and get his EXPERT and candid opinion of their case FREE OF CHARGE. Write for Book No. 8, on the Diseases of Men, sent free in plain wrapper, if you mention this paper.

SPECIAL NOTICE—It is a duty that you owe to yourself to inquire of the Business Men of Dallas as to who is the Leading Specialist in the treatment of Diseases peculiar to Men. If you do this it may save valuable time and money. This is my advice.

ARE WOMEN TO BLAME

BY CAROLINE.

There is such a thing as being too unselfish.

The duty of unselfishness is preached so much that one is apt to look upon it as a great virtue, and it doubtless is, but it is apt to become troublesome to others if one carries it to an extreme.

Take Mother Eve, for instance. It was her unselfishness (as much as her weakness) that brought so much trouble on womenfolk.

If she had only been selfish and eaten all the apple that the Serpent induced her to take, Adam would have taken his own apple and then he could not have blamed Eve for his weakness.

But Eve was inexperienced, as well as unselfish, and women have ever since been feeling the consequences of her act.

There is much talk of advancing civilization and each country is supposed to bring forth many new ideas, but, after all, man in many ways is just about where Adam left him.

He is still blaming Eve for his shortcomings.

Just now, because she is going in for business and trying to support herself, he says that she is breaking up the home and her new independence is responsible for all sorts of conjugal infelicities.

He even says that before women went in for business they loved to bake and sweep for their husbands. It was their one idea of paradise.

Some of the most eloquent of our male friends give as reasons for more women not marrying:

Second—That a typewriter is more attractive to them than a mere man.

Third—That women, once having tasted the sweets of business, will never be satisfied with the bread and butter of married life.

But it has been my experience that the woman who cares more for a career than a home is the exception, and not the rule. That the woman who finds a typewriter more attractive than a man is a still rarer exception, and that the woman who prefers business life to married life is the rarest exception—almost unheard of.

There are, of course, many women working in offices. This doesn't necessarily mean that they don't want to marry.

A woman may not walk into the office in the morning and say to her employer: "I want to marry. Will you help me find a husband?"

But that is no reason for deciding that she has determined not to marry. She may be thinking all the time about John or Louis and wondering how long it will be before he has saved enough to ask her to be his.

Of course everything depends upon one's point of view, but it certainly looks to me as though the people who were afraid that women were outgrowing their love of home and that business and not marriage was the Mecca toward which they were aiming are people afraid of shadows.

Any one who had seen women with men or heard them talking about men wouldn't worry about marriage growing unpopular.

Let them look at the good side of the situation, which is that there is no greater aid to virtuous and happy life than a congenial occupation.

If a woman has a congenial occupation she may be less anxious to marry than her sister who has nothing to do.

She may not marry as young as women formerly did. And she will doubtless require more of the man she marries.

But these surely are points in favor of greater independence for women.

Her independence gives her larger interests, wider sympathies, more disciplined judgment, and, instead of being a hindrance, will be the greatest help in the many vicissitudes of married life.

TO PUBLIC OWNERSHIP

Judge Tells of Forces Confronting People of America

Special to The Telegram.

CHICAGO, March 3.—"The people of the United States still believe that the thing in their national life bigger than all others is the individual man, his development and his destiny." This assertion was made by Judge Peter S. Grosscup, of the United States circuit court, in an address before the members of the Hamilton club at a good fellowship dinner. Judge Grosscup's subject was "The Relation of the Corporation to the Future of the Country." He said in part:

"Two forces confront him. The first of these is the prevailing indifference of the states and the nation to the character their corporate offspring shall sustain. The other is the rising current of a general public ownership. These two currents, however, flow from the same source. The reason why the corporate domain of the country's property is a thing apart from the people at large, and the reason why the propaganda of general ownership is rising everywhere like waters in the springtime, is just because the corporate domain of the country's property is becoming more and more in the feeling of the people, a thing apart; and the reason why the corporate domain is a thing apart is because the corporation, born out of the loins of the state, is abandoned before it is born. The danger that this indifference has brought upon us is not the sin of the corporation, but the outcome of our own sin. The thing to be done now is not to spend our energies in denunciation, nor hawk at the corporation in a mere spirit of persecution, but to begin at once the work of regeneration."

In closing Judge Grosscup drew a picture of what could be accomplished in this direction by a strong political party which took up the work sincerely and with the interests of the public at heart.

An Old and Well-tried Remedy

DAD AND "NUNC" BURNED UP MONEY

Just to See Which Could Outshine the Other

GAVE TWO BIG PARTIES

One Cost $20,000 and the Other $24,000. Uncle in the Lead for Expense Account

PHILADELPHIA, March 3.—This simple old Quaker town has set "high society" of all the land agape with two functions, as they call them, which for the amount of money spent on each beats the record.

It was all for a girl, a girl of 18, Miss Clara Waterman Knight. She is a happy, winsome lass, even though she has a million in her own right and she is the wealthiest of this season's debutantes in Philadelphia or elsewhere, both were members, he met Mr. Knight and chaffed him unmercifully about the simplicity of his daughter's "coming out."

There was a friendly war of words between the multimillionaires and it is said then and there it was agreed that two functions should be given which would set society by the ears. There is also an intimation that the proud uncle spurred on the proud father by the declaration, and perhaps a wager, that no matter how lavish the affair which the latter gave, the former would eclipse it.

Edward Collings Knight, Jr., the father, made the first effort. It was a cotillion reception given at the Bellevue-Stratford, was attended by everybody of prominence in winter society, and, with jeweled favors, cost, at a conservative estimate, $20,000.

Then came the uncle's inning and Mr. Dwight more than made good his deft or wager.

Mr. Knight, the father, decorated the Bellevue-Stratford ballroom so cleverly that it simulated a garden, and this garden bloomed 10,000 cut flowers, 2,500 of the American beauty roses at $1 or more apiece.

Mr. Dwight, the uncle, announced that he would go in for simplicity, and he hid all the pillars of the ballroom with gigantic palms and ferns, ones that spread their leaves twenty feet from the stems, and with living vines that trailed their branches for hundreds of feet in every direction and made the room appear like a tropical garden.

In this garden bloomed thousands of daisies, at 20 cents per daisy; rhododendrons, white lured and white lilacs, imported especially from the far south regardless of cost, and white azaleas. Miss Knight and her mother, the former in a gown of palest green radium silk, received the 750 guests in a green cave and amid a field of daisies.

None could tell where the orchestras were, so cunningly were they hidden in tropical bowers, but the music seemed to be everywhere.

To papa's pink cotillon.....$20,000

Miss Clara W. Knight

Her father, Edward Collings Knight, Jr., one of the seldom heard of multimillionaires, originally made his money in sugar and then multiplied it many times in stocks.

Then, also, there is an uncle, Edward Waterman Dwight, who is a steel manufacturer, in mines and in western ranch investments has rolled up a fortune which runs far into the millions.

It is around these two multimillionaire relatives, father and uncle, of the fortunate young debutante that is built the story which society is now discussing.

Miss Clara Waterman Knight is of a quiet disposition, and it was by her request that when she entered society this season no formal coming out tea was given and she merely joined her mother in receiving at their "at homes."

This did not meet with favor in the eyes of the multimillionaire uncle, Mr. Dwight, who is very proud of his beautiful niece. At the Philadelphia club,

MOST PAINFUL BLOW IS THE ONE YOU DON'T SEE

Gus Ruhlin

Gus Ruhlin, who has been in the boxing game for nearly a dozen years, began his early training while employed in a printing establishment in Akron, Ohio. His job was to unload paper. Whenever he had a fight on hand he secured a leave of absence to train and then after the fight he would resume his occupation.

"The most powerful blow a man ever received in a fight," says Ruhlin, "is the one he does not see coming—the blow that catches him unawares. Most of the blows you see coming and you are in a measure prepared for them; you know they are on the way to your body or your jaw, but you cannot get out of their way. But the unexpected blow, no matter where it lands, is the harmful and dangerous one, the effects of which a fellow does not sometimes get over for two minutes.

"The most effective blow is the right swing on the jaw. That comes near doing the trick every time; even when it does not put a man down it jars him pretty hard and takes some of the spirit out of him. It makes him feel sleepy and tired, you know.

"Next to the blow on the chin is the blow in the pit of the stomach, which knocks the breath out of a man and from which it takes some time to recover.

"It is not difficult to tell when your opponent is going to lead. Perhaps you have noticed that some men in the ring watch the eyes of their antagonist; some watch the hands and others seem to forever have their eyes fastened on the feet or legs of the other man. Each one has his own style, but the purpose is the same. They get the first news in that way of what their opponent intends to do.

"A certain movement of the legs, a certain swing of the gloves, a certain look of the eyes, and immediately you are upon your guard. The only thing to do then is to be prepared for the attack and at once determine on a counter attack. I watch my man's eyes and after the first few minutes of boxing I have a code formulated which enables me to tell where he is going to lead and sometimes how he is going to lead as clearly as though he had informed me in so many words in advance.

"In the mixups, of course, you can't watch either hands, eyes or legs and it is in these times that the chance blow that often counts for so much gets in its painful and sleep-producing work."

HOT SPRINGS TO BE CLOSED TOWN

Gov. Davis Threatens to Close Gambling April 1

Special to The Telegram.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 3.—The threat of Governor Davis to close gambling in this city on April 1 is taken as a political bluff to place Garland county in the Jeff Davis column when the senatorial race is concluded.

The message received here to the effect that Governor Davis had determined to close all gambling houses here if the state militia was required to enforce his order was received with a demonstration of mirth.

Mayor Belding was seen in his office and made acquainted with the import of the message. He has been a close political ally of the governor for the past six years, and the reading of the message caused him to do nothing more than smile. When asked for an expression he said he had nothing to say:

"The question is too delicate for me to discuss," he added. Sheriff Williams, in his characteristic manner, spoke freely. "I did not expect a reform movement from that source," he said. "If the lid is to be placed on Hot Springs it will take Jeff and his militia to hold it down," he continued.

PASTOR SENTENCED

Rev. Ware Fined $1,000 and a Year at Omaha, Neb.

Special to The Telegram.

OMAHA, Neb., March 3.—Judge Munger, in the United States district court overruled the motion for a new trial in the case of the Rev. George G. Ware of Lead, S. D., president of the U. B. I. Cattle company, recently convicted of conspiracy to defraud the government by means of illegal homestead entries. The judge then sentenced the prisoner to imprisonment for one year in the county jail at this place and to pay a fine of $1,000. An appeal will be taken. Ware has been for many years pastor of Episcopal churches in Lead and Deadwood, S. D.

STOLEN KISSES COST $4,000

Chicago School Teacher Prosecutes Real Estate Man

Special to The Telegram.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 3.—"I hope I have proved that the women and girls of Chicago, particularly those who work in downtown offices, cannot be insulted with impunity by brutes masquerading as gentlemen."

This is the spirit with which Mrs. Lillie Davis, a teacher in the Hans C. Anderson school regards her legal victory in a suit against Townsend Smith, a real estate man, who was charged with having kissed her without her consent. The jury awarded Mrs. Davis $4,000.

"But I do not care for the money," Mrs. Davis declared afterward. "I was fighting for a principal, not for financial profit. Before I consulted a lawyer I gave the man an opportunity to apologize. Thinking he might have done this shameful thing in a moment when he did not have control of himself, I asked him to make amends in an honorable fashion, as any true gentleman would have done. He insolently refused; and then I decided to see what the law could do on behalf of womanhood."

WACO, Texas, March 3.—At the last meeting of the Pat Cleburne Camp, United Confederate Veterans, it was decided to contribute $50 to the fund for the erection of a suitable monument to the women of the Confederacy, as recommended at the last meeting of the veterans at Louisville, Ky. The money will be pledged definitely just as soon as plans are laid for raising it, which will be done at once.

EDWARD WRITES BILL

NEW YORK, March 3.—According to a Berlin dispatch to the Herald, satisfaction reigns in high circles there, because King Edward has written a most gratifying letter to the emperor on the occasion of his silver wedding. King Edward addresses his nephew as "My Dear Wilhelm," wishes him and the empress every happiness and hopes they may live to celebrate their golden wedding. He also announces that he has sent the emperor a silver punch bowl of the Georgian period, so much prized by collectors.

EDUCATED TO MARRY A PEER

LADY ASHBURTON
(FFrances Belmont.)

Frances Belmont, former American Florodora girl, who was married to Lord Ashburton in Paris a few days ago, was one of the Maggie Doolans who scrubbed the floor in "Miladi" when Lord Ashburton first saw her. Later she was one of the famous "Florodora" sextet. When she became engaged to Lord Ashburton a year and a half ago he took her off the stage and placed her in a convent near Paris, where she has been educated for the part of the wife of a British peer. Lord Ashburton is the owner of 60,000 acres of land in Great Britain and has a London house and a country residence.

A Trite Saying.

It is a trite saying that no man is stronger than his stomach. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery strengthens the stomach—puts it in shape to make pure, rich blood—helps the liver and kidneys to expel the poisons from the body and thus cures both liver and kidney troubles. If you take this natural blood purifier and tonic, you will assist your system in manufacturing each day a pint of rich, red blood, that is invigorating to the brain and nerves. The weak, nervous, run-down, debilitated condition which so many people suffer from, is usually the effect of poisons in the blood; it is often indicated by pimples or boils appearing on the skin, the face becomes thin and the feelings "blue." Dr. Pierce's "Discovery" cures all blood humors as well as being a tonic that makes one vigorous, strong and forceful. It is the only medicine put up for sale through druggists for like purposes that contains neither alcohol nor harmful habit-forming drugs, and the only one every ingredient of which has the professional endorsement of the leading medical writers of this country. Some of these endorsements are published in a little book of extracts from standard medical works and will be sent to any address free, on receipt of request therefor by letter or postal card, addressed to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. It tells just what Dr. Pierce's medicines are made of.

The "Words of Praise" for the several ingredients of which Dr. Pierce's medicines are composed, by leaders in all the several schools of medical practice, and recommending them for the cure of the diseases for which the "Golden Medical Discovery" is advised, should have far more weight with the sick and afflicted than any amount of the so-called "testimonials" so conspicuously flaunted before the public by those who are afraid to let the ingredients of which their medicines are composed be known. Bear in mind that the "Golden Medical Discovery" has THE BADGE OF HONESTY on every bottle wrapper, in a full list of its ingredients.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation, invigorate the liver and regulate stomach and bowels.

Gossips Fix the Date of Wedding for Next Birthday, Which Will Fall on May 17

Special Cable to The Telegram.

BIARRITZ, France, March 3.—All Biarritz is talking about the recent whirlwind wooing of King Alfonso XIII of Spain and the attractive Princess Ena of Battenburg. In three days he proved that he is as progressive and democratic a lover as he is a good king.

So manfully and freely did Alfonso carry on the preliminaries to the official announcement that he has become by all odds the idol of the country around.

Cupid, who sometimes neglects the love affairs of kings, in this case seems to have bent his shaft with extra care. That it is a love match there is no doubt. It was shown in the agitation and spitefulness of the king when the daily postcards of the princess were not delivered promptly. And now, at Biarritz, the populace has seen the dainty romance unfold before their very eyes.

It has been a modern wooing with all the olden time traditions mixed in. Motor cars and gum drops have each played their part. From his palace in San Sebastin, twenty miles away, the king was driven each morning in a fast automobile. The distance to the Villa Mouriscot, where the princess is staying, was quickly covered.

Then began the daily round of love-making. Luncheon in private with the Princess Henry was a preliminary the first day. Then followed a drive in the motor car with Miss Cochrane as chaperon.

During this trip the cloak of royalty was laid aside and in view of all who cared to look the youthful pair blushed, chatted and held hands and conducted themselves after the manner of real lovers.

On the way home a halt was made at a famous pastry cook's at Bayonne, where the king purchased bonbons and chocolate eclairs which the princess munched with the zest of a happy schoolgirl.

Late at night Alphonso returned to San Sebastin, for he is a king and must sleep on Spanish soil or appoint a regent in his absence. But early next morning he was again kissing the princess' hand at the Villa Mourissot and accepting a crimson rose which he lay over his heart before he placed it in his buttonhole.

Then followed more motor rides, with tree planting ceremonies and long walls thrown in for variety. Frequently the king squeezed the young princess' arm and often a rosy blush came to her cheek when he held her hand and whispered sweet compliments.

Already gossip has fixed the wedding day. On May 17 the king will be twenty years of age and the boulevard authorities have picked that date for the ceremony.

REVOLUTION OF RUSSIA SILENT

Less Violence Reported and Order Partly Restored

BY MALCOLM CLARKE.

BERLIN, March 3.—The revolutionary movement in Russia has entered into a new phase.

There is less violence, and order has been restored in many provinces, but no one believes that the revolution is over.

The people are simply organizing and preparing for the final struggle which must end with the downfall of aristocracy.

Even the most reactionary people in Russia acknowledge this.

Prince Meitcherski, editor of the Grajdouine, says in a recent editorial: "We who believe in autocracy as the only form of government suitable for Russia at present should not deceive ourselves and believe that we have crushed the revolution.

"The situation has changed somewhat. The country is more quiet, but this is only the calm which often precedes a storm. Within a very short time a great conflagration will take place which we will be quite powerless to extinguish."

It is also significant of the light-heartedness of the Russian ruling classes that even in face of the danger which threatens them they have not been able to give up their old habits of enriching themselves at the expense of the government, and the troops which have been sent out to subdue the revolutionists have often been short of ammunition and arms.

When the minister of the interior reprimanded General Chrounjenko, because he had been unable to pacify the Esthonians, the general replied tersely: "How could you expect me to do it when I had only two shells? I am not Christ, who fed 5,000 people with seven loaves."

CRUSADE ON SPECIAL

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 3.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Anderson, Ind., says:

The 1,150 converts at a recent revival at the Central Christian church made the first of a series of visits to other cities last night, going to Connorsville.

The train has been chartered to carry them to other Indiana cities, where they will assist in revivals that are in progress or inaugurate meetings.

Religious services were held on the train and the visitors participated in a meeting in progress at Connorsville.

We are the only optical company in the city who employs an oculist to test and examine the eyes. We guarantee every pair of KORONO LENSES five years. We sell glasses on easy payments, $1.00 down and 50c week.

FIERCE RULES FOR ENA WHEN SHE'S A QUEEN

It may be that King Alphonso loves the Princess Ena a lot.

But the minute she becomes the wife of the king of Spain she can bid farewell to your kind of happiness.

The Spaniards love ceremony as do no other kind of people on earth. In royal circles the fastidiousness and decorum of two centuries ago are still maintained, and most rigidly, even in the relations of the reigning family. Alfonso introduced the elaborate customs of the Orient and his successors even further complicated the matter of living.

For instance: Among the rules which Princess Ena is likely to find somewhat irksome is one requiring that the queen shall retire to bed at 10 o'clock in the summer and 8:30 in the winter. Should the king wish to visit the queen's apartments after dark he must wear slippers over his shoes, have a black mantel thrown over his shoulders, and a shield on his arm. He must also carry a lantern and a long sword, and go unaccompanied. Two guards, whose service begins at 11 o'clock, pass the night in the ante-chamber to the queen's room.

When the king goes to bed he is guarded by six gentlemen who hold the key of his room and give it up to no one until, in the morning, the grand master of the palace gets it and holds it until the king has arisen.

The queen has very little privacy. Her day is always mapped out in advance. She is surrounded by a multitude of maids of honor, lackeys, grand mistresses and ordinary servants.

In the royal palace of the escurial there are 3,000 windows, 86 staircases, 89 fountains, 1,300 doors and nothing that looks like home.

No wonder King Alfonso amazes the world by the ardency of his courtship. Today he has a sweetheart, close to his heart. In a few days there will be a grand wedding and he will possess only a queen.

DYNAMITE DRIVES DULL CARE AWAY

Mexican Peons Get Drunk on Explosive

Special to The Telegram.

MONTERREY, Mexico, March 3.—An American business man of this city who was on a visit to a mining camp near here was surprised to hear one Mexican say to his companion as they came from the depths of a mine:

"Come over to the cantina tonight and take some dynamite with me."

The American superintendent explained the invitation:

"That was not an invitation to take a drink of some new brand of liquor, as might be supposed," he said. "Those two Mexicans get drunk on the dangerous substance.

"Users of dynamite soon learn that it is a powerful stimulant, and that the effects of intoxication are pleasing, while they last, beyond the most excruciating phantasies of an opium dream. Dynamite is manufactured for the purpose of smashing things, and a tiny bit of it coursing through the veins smashes the whole end of care and blows dullness into atoms.

"The 'dynamiteur' usually is very dainty and exact in his method of going about the introduction of a high explosive into his system. The preferred way to do this is to cut off a small piece of 55 per cent 'dyna,' about the size of a pea. This is dissolved in a small glass of mescal or tequile and the draught is quaffed down with a gusto that comes from pleasant anticipations. The performer of this trick then rolls in his blanket and stretches himself at length in the cool shade. It is said that very soon his nerves begin to tingle and stranger dreams come to him than the weird visions induced by hasheesh."

HAIR STOLEN

Tresses of Young Girls sheared While They Watch Parade

Special to The Telegram.

NEW ORLEANS, March 3.—"Hair stealers" have made their appearance in New Orleans again this year, and two young girls who were viewing the parade were robbed of some of their hair, which was cut off while they were interested in the passing pageant. Neither of the girls missed her hair until after it had been cut off. Fortunately for both, only comparatively small pieces of their plaits were cut off, and the theft will not cause any permanent disfigurement. However, an effort is to be made by the police to locate the miscreants who are making a practice of "hair stealing," and everything will be done to put a stop to the crime.

GIVES HEALTH, VIGAR AND TONE

Herbine is a boon for sufferers from anemia. By its use the blood is quickly regenerated and the color becomes normal. The drooping strength is revived. The languor is diminished. Health, vigor and tone predominate. New life and happy activity results. Mrs. Belle H. Shriel, Middlesborough, Ill., writes: "I have been troubled with liver complaint and poor blood, and have found nothing to benefit me like Herbine. I hope never to be without it. I have wished that I had known of it in my husband's lifetime." 50c. Sold by Covey & Martin, 810 Main street, opposite Hotel Worth.

KING TO CRUISE MEDITERRANEAN

English Royal Couple Likely to Visit Athens

(Copyright, 1906, by Hearst News Service.)

BY PAUL LAMBETH.

LONDON, March 3.—The king of Greece, who is a brother of Queen Alexandra, has again written to King Edward, entreating him to come to Athens on the royal yacht and so give an impetus to the Olympic games, which will attract thousands of tourists to the ancient capital.

King Edward, however, has as yet decided nothing, but the fact that he is going on a Mediterranean cruise is well known. It is certain that he will visit Spain, but the length of the cruise will depend entirely on the state of affairs existing between France and Germany.

Some of the king's advisers do not conceal their anxiety in regard to the kaiser's next move. In regard to home politics those at court say that the king has taken a great fancy to John Burns, who becomes every day more thoughtful and subdued in his manner. It is expected that Weir Hardie, the leader of the new labor party, will shortly have a private audience with the king.

Marquis Causes Anxiety

The friends of the young Marquis of Anglesey, who at one time felt certain that he would prove a great contrast to his extravagant and eccentric cousin, the late marquis, are feeling distinctly uncomfortable just now.

The young marquis appears to have been bitten with the same theatrical craze as his late cousin. He does not care for acting himself, but he is gradually getting into the theatrical set, and the other night at a rather bohemian restaurant he was seen surrounded by a bevy of beauty from the musical comedies at various theaters.

His presents to the ladies who are good enough to sup with him are already the talk of theatrical London. His relatives sincerely hope that he will be persuaded to spend the greater part of the year in the country.

In a few years' time he will be far wealthier than ever his cousin was, although of course he has lost many valuable heirlooms through the extravagance of the "Pantomime Marquis." His relatives are the more anxious as it is an open secret that a marriage is being arranged between the Princess Patricia of Connaught and the young marquis.

Cannes Coming to Life

Letters received here from the Riviera show that things are at last beginning to wake up on the Riviera. Mrs. Anthony Drexel is the queen of fashion at Cannes, and the dinner party she gave on board the yacht "Margharita" was royal in every sense of the word. There were no fewer than six German and Russian royalties present, as well as the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire.

The duchess, by the way, has tried very hard this year to keep away from the tables at Monte Carlo, where she is known as an inveterate gambler, but the temptation during the last few days of her stay proved too strong and she enjoyed a prolonged plunge.

Historic Devonshire House, in Piccadilly, is being painted and cleaned generally in anticipation of several large political parties which the duchess is giving at the beginning of the season. The duchess, however, is breaking up in health and the first two parties will be given by the duke alone, and there will be no ladies present.

Consuelo, Duchess of Manchester, who is also on the Riviera, intends to entertain largely this season.

"Mrs. Knapp" Making Good

Lady Bateman (Mrs. Knapp of New York) made her first appearance in the gorgeous robes of a peeress at the state opening of parliament, and the black gown she wore under the robes was made by Paquin and was considered the smartest in the gallery.

Lady Bateman has now established herself as a great country hostess at Shobdon court, which was at one time a monastery. The house is very old and beautiful, and the Monk's Refectory, which stands at some distance from the house, is now used as a kitchen. From the refectory to the house there is a long subterranean passage built in the middle ages, and the meals are whisked through the passage on an electric trolley to the dining room.

Lady Bateman has been entertaining a series of week-end parties at Shobdon, and among other guests at her last party were the Duke and Duchess of Somerset. Just before parliament was opened she gave a ball to the servants and tenants, which was a great success.

Shobdon court came into the possession of the first Viscount Bateman through his marriage with a member of the great Duke of Marlborough family, whose picture hangs in the great hall. Lady Bateman has filled the old place with exquisite furniture from her New York home and has made wonderful improvements in all the bed rooms.

Platonic Lectures Amusing

The most amusing feature of the philosophical lectures on Plato delivered by Dr. Emil Reich to a crowd of smart women at Claridge's hotel, is the sudden anxiety on the part of a large number of women with uncertain social positions and no reputations for "culture" to take tickets in order to meet the Duchess of Marlborough and the Duchess of Sutherland, who are both on the committee.

There was disappointment when neither of the duchesses appeared at the first lecture, which was limited to fifty persons.

Few of the women present had even the vaguest idea of who Plato was or what Dr. Reich was talking about, but they whispered incessantly and admired each others' frocks.

Another Anglo-American Engagement

An Anglo-American engagement of great interest will be announced in a formal way a few months hence.

Captain Arthur Hill, generally known as "Jimmy" Hill, has wooed more than one American heiress, but something has up to the present always intervened to prevent a formal engagement.

This time, however, he has captured the heart of Miss Gebhard, a niece of Freddie Gebhard, but, as the Gebhard family is in mourning, only a few friends have been told the secret.

Captain Hill is 33 years old, extremely handsome and winning. He is the son of Lord Arthur Hill, and a cousin of the present Marquis of Downshire, who divorced his wife (now Mrs. Laycock).

His aunt, Lady Arthur Hill, is a great musician. She composed "In the Gloaming," one of the most popular songs of fifteen years ago. Captain Hill served in the Royal Irish Rifles in South Africa, and was a member of parliament from 1898 to 1905. Captain Hill will not inherit a title, as that borne by his father is only a courtesy one.
