

Tax Revolt Advances from Talk to Testing Stage

By LOUISE COOK

"The people in Idaho feel just like people do all across the country: Government is growing too big." Don Chance, Idaho Property Owners' Association.

"Anger, resentment, frustration." S.H. "Zeke" Brauer Jr. "We LID Petition Drive" in Nebraska.

"The people...want the fat and waste taken out of government." Jack Orr, Colorado Spending Limitation Committee.

The sharp talk of tax revolt is taking on a cutting edge. With signatures as their weapons, proponents of proposals similar to California's Proposition 13 are advancing from talking to testing. They are pushing property tax cuts and spending limits onto state election ballots.

Some legislatures are taking the hint and looking at property taxes and spending on their own. Gov. Dolph Briscoe of Texas, for example, called the Legislature into a special 30-day session beginning Monday to "construct a tax reduction and limitation program."

Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama announced plans for a similar special session on July 31. And in New York State, the Legislature passed, and Gov. Hugh Carey signed, a law that would allow renters to deduct part of their rent, as property tax, or state income tax returns.

An Associated Press survey and a tax-cut initiative already certified for the November ballot in Idaho and similar tax or spending proposals spawned by petition drives virtually certain to be put to a vote in Colorado, Oregon and Nebraska. In Michigan, where the deadline for filing signatures was Monday, backers predicted success by "a squeaker."

Backers of tax-cutting or spending initiatives are still collecting signatures in Illinois, Montana, Nevada and Florida. Petition drives in Utah, Washington and Arizona were unsuccessful, although Arizona residents still can vote on state spending, via a proposed constitutional amendment, approved earlier by the legislature.

The Idaho tax-cut proposal drew more signatures than any other initiative in the state's history, more than twice as many as needed to get the measure on the ballot. Chance explained why: "There is too much interference by the federal government, too much control of private property...and a property tax which is unfair..."

Like Proposition 13, Idaho's "Initiative 1" would limit property taxes to 1 percent of the market value. In California, that meant a cut of 57 percent on the average. In Idaho, it would mean a cut of 41 percent. Chance said that "by the time we get through counting, we will have certified some 62,000 signatures." Only 26,000 signatures were needed to get the issue on the ballot.

Oregon officials have until July 22 to certify signatures seeking a vote to limit property taxes to 1½ percent of market value. If approved, it would reduce property taxes by an average of 4 percent. Backers need 61,646 signatures to get the measure on the November ballot; by the July 7 deadline, they had turned in an estimated 200,000.

Brauer said his Nebraska "LID" group had turned in 77,911 signatures by the deadline last Friday; 45,131 are needed to get the measure on the ballot. Brauer's proposal calls for a 5 percent ceiling on increases in local government budgets.

Sponsors of an amendment to limit increases in government spending in Colorado to increases in the cost of living submitted 101,960 signatures on July 6, almost 39,000 more than 63,040 needed. Certification of the signatures was expected to be complete by Tuesday and opponents have 30 days to issue challenges.

"Our amendment is not a tax-cut measure," said Orr, a rancher. "It's a spending limitation amendment...The goal is to bring growth in spending within an acceptable range without disrupting the necessary functions of government."

The Coalition for Political Honesty, and Illinois group, is trying to get an advisory referendum on the ballot to have the legislature "freeze property taxes...until the property tax burden on owner-occup-

'Historic' Session Begins with Relief Talk

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) Texas legislators went to work Monday on tax relief measures that Gov. Dolph Briscoe said could save the average household $552 during the next two years.

"You have been called to participate in one of the most important special sessions in our history," Briscoe told senators and House members shortly after the opening of the 2nd Special Session of the 65th Legislature. "While tax reductions of various kind have occurred in the past, never before has a legislature been asked to accomplish a tax relief program of the magnitude to be placed before you."

The lawmakers, and a filled House gallery, listened politely but did not interrupt him with applause. At the end there was brief standing applause.

The House then immediately got into its first fust of the session. With two-thirds approval needed, the House refused 88-52 to suspend its rules and allow an immediate public hearing on Speaker Bill Clayton's pet tax reform package to put ceilings on state and local taxation and spending. The hearing will be held Tuesday afternoon.

The House Ways and Means Committee set a public hearing for this afternoon on four measures that would repeal the state utility sales tax for homeowners and would increase inheritance tax exemptions.

The Senate held a committee hearing Monday afternoon on assessing farm land by productivity instead of market value.

Earlier, the Senate unanimously approved the appointment of Secretary of State Steve Oaks, the first of almost 600 they have before them this session.

Sen. Paul Longoria, D-Edinburg, was renamed president pro tempore, or assistant presiding officer of the Senate.

Briscoe said the possible $3 billion revenue surplus for the next three years "is money taken from the people in excess of the needs of the state. The people are demanding that a significant portion of that money be returned to them. This is a legitimate demand. I know that you will respond."

Clayton said in his opening remarks that "inequitable administration and overtaxation is the sound which rumbles like distant thunder...our duty here is this special session is to guarantee the right of our constitution to have taxation with representation - not without representation."

Briscoe ticked off the seven-point tax relief program listed in his formal call on Saturday.

Repeal of the sales tax on utilities bill and increasing the inheritance tax exemption alone "would constitute the largest cut-back in state taxes in modern history," he said.

Briscoe then pushed for the adoption of a plan to assess farm property taxes on the basis of use instead of value and to give every homeowner a $10,000 exemption on school taxes, plus another

Insurance Board Postpones Rate Hike

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The State Insurance Board decided Monday to keep Texans in suspense a while longer on whether their homeowners rates will rise, fall or stay the same.

"I can't say whether it will be one or two days or one or two weeks," said chairman Hugh Yantis, who declared he was ready to vote at once to keep rates at present levels.

Board member Durwood Manford said he favored a slight increase.

"On what I presently know, I think there would be a small increase. The inflation rate has been such that you know those things home repair items are more," Manford said.

Ned Price, the third board member, said he had not made up his mind, apparently making him the swing man.

He predicted the board's decision would come "in a matter of days, and a few days at that."

Yantis and Manford are both subject to confirmation votes in the Senate if the special legislative session that began Monday lasts 10 days or longer. Yantis is in serious trouble because his hometown senator, Lloyd Doggett of Austin, opposes his confirmation.

Manford might also have confirmation problems. Former board chairman Joe Christie, a self-styled consumerist, urged Gov. Dolph Briscoe not to reappoint him. He said Manford had opposed steps Christie wanted taken to benefit policyholders.

Price answered "no comment" when asked whether the confirmation issue was part of the reason for the delay in action on homeowners rates.

"You should do your job however it affects it. I think you have to live with your conscience," Manford said of the confirmation question.

Yantis was asked whether he felt his record on the board had blunted Doggett's criticism he favored large corporations over consumers.

"I think it has," he said.

A board vote was expected last

Sheriff Claims Precedents Set

Hypnotism Crucial Part of Rape Trial

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

Deaf Smith County Sheriff Travis McPherson may have established a couple first during the aggravated rape trial of Samuel Christopher Hawkins in Houston.

Hawkins was convicted and sentenced to life in prison for the Sept. 2, 1976 rape of a young Hereford housewife, who also was stabbed 17 times and apparently left for dead in the assault.

McPherson testified that he and Amarillo policeman Jim Lafavers hypnotized the victim in May, 1977, so she could recall details about the attack and her assailant. Without hypnosis, McPherson said, the case against Hawkins might not have been nearly as strong.

"Had we not used hypnosis, she wouldn't have been able to identify him," McPherson said. "He had a mask on at first, then pulled it off later. That was his downfall—his getting confident and thinking she was dead. Under hypnosis, she remembered what he looked like."

"Under hypnosis, I asked her what the man did, what type of knife he had, what type of clothing he had on and what he said to her. Then, we had to build a composite picture of his face. It was very close, this picture, to his real face."

McPherson said that as far as he knows, last week's trial marked the first time in Texas that "hypnosis has been used to convict a man by using the recall of the victims in order to identify the victim."

He said it also may be the first time in the United States "where the defendant got the life penalty in a trial where recall was submitted as evidence."

Under hypnosis, the victim was made to believe she was a television reporter and was asked to view the assault through the eye of a camera.

"I put her into the third person so she wouldn't feel all the pain and trauma. Still, at times, she'd act very frightful and cry. We had to constantly remind her she was acting as a reporter."

Hawkins, who defended himself, cross-examined McPherson concerning the hypnosis session.

"He didn't really know what to ask me, but he asked me if I had suggested anything to her. I told him no. And he asked what hypnosis did to the mind, and I said it didn't do anything except it is a altered state of consciousness."

"He asked her if I told her what he looked like, then he asked me the same question. I couldn't tell her something I didn't know."

Mosquito Plane

To Spray Again

Mosquito Control of the Southwest, an aerial insect-control service in Plainview, will spray over Hereford again this week, according to Manager Dudley Bayne.

It will be the second time this summer the company will spray Hereford. Bayne said it will spray either Wednesday, Thursday or Friday "depending on the wind. And the wind will determine whether they'll spray in the morning or afternoon."

The city manager said another mosquito hatch has made it necessary to spray again.

"We've had a lot of calls here lately about mosquitoes. We have no idea where the hatch came from," Bayne said.

Although there are 75 Realtors in Hereford and competition between them is intense, Mark Andrews sees no problem, just advantages.

"It's a very competitive market. But the competition makes me work harder in order to do a better job. The harder I work, the better job I'm going to do, and I'm going to get my share of the business. I love the competition," said Andrews, president of the Hereford Board of Realtors.

Andrews, real-estate broker for Property Enterprises, call the local board "one of the most efficiently-organized boards in the state, and I can back this up with fact. I just came back from the state convention in Houston and had a chance to visit with board presidents throughout the state. Comparing our problems with their problems, we're in excellent condition."

"I think one of the reasons we have such a cooperative, successful organization is because we are an all Realtor board. Every member of the board is a member of the local, state and national organization."

As president of the local board, Andrews represents Hereford at meetings of the Texas Association of Realtors and presides over local meetings once a month. He also directs policy for the local board.

Andrews is the principle-spokesman for a group which lives by the thought that buying a house is still the best investment a family can make.

"You bet, it's a good investment," Andrews said. "By 1985, the median price of a home based on the current rate of inflation will be around $62,500. The average right now is $36,000 or $37,000."

"There's no indication we're going to have a break. Now is definitely the time to buy a house. I would say keep it at least three years to take advantage of inflation, then invest in another home to meet your needs. If you can do that, someday you'll end up with the home you've always wanted."

Andrews, when he's not selling houses, often can be found on his motorcycle, a source of "relaxation and enjoyment" to the Hereford Realtor.

"I've been riding for about three years. I'm basically into dirt riding. I like to go

Expert Tells Senate About State Economy

AUSTIN (AP)—The Senate scheduled a time-saving hearing today to listen to a state budget expert tell them the economic facts of life.

The presentation to a committee of the whole - or the entire 31-member Senate - underscored Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby's desire to find out how much money is available before legislators start voting on reducing taxes.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe called on lawmakers at the opening of the 30-day special session Monday to cut taxes as never before in modern history.

Despite what should have been a popular plea, senators and House members reserved their applause until Briscoe had concluded his 10-minute address.

A possible reason is that Texas, according to Briscoe, already ranks 42nd in state and local taxations as a percentage of personal income.

Numerous legislators have suggested that tax relief can wait until the regular 140-day session, starting in January.

Briscoe estimated that four of his seven proposals would reduce taxes by $1.1 billion in 1980-81, with the average family saving up to $552 over that two-year period.

Those four proposals would eliminate the sales tax on residential utility bills; raise the inheritance tax exemption from $25,000 to $200,000; base agricultural land taxation on productivity rather than market value; and exempt the first $10,000 of a homestead's assessed valuation - or $20,000 if the owner is over 65 - from school property taxes.

Extension of ERA May Be Falling Short

WASHINGTON (AP)—Despite their massive weekend rally at the Capitol and their persistent pleas to congressmen, backers of the proposed Equal Rights Amendment are coming up short in their struggle for a seven-year extension of the life of the proposal.

Congressional supporters of the ERA had intended to bring the subject before the House Judiciary Committee for a vote today, but scrapped plans when it became clear they lack the votes.

Well-placed congressional sources concede privately it appears unlikely they ever will be able to get a majority of the 34-member committee to agree to the proposed seven-year extension without changes.

As a result, current efforts appear aimed at assembling a majority of committee members behind a compromise four-year extension that the leaders of women's groups will grudgingly accept.

"That would not be a retreat," said one member of Congress who favors the extension.

Thirty-five states have ratified the proposed ERA, which would outlaw discrimination based on sex. Under current law, ratification by three more states is required by next March 22 if the proposal is to become part of the Constitution.

With the deadline only 8½ months away, ERA backers are asking Congress to give states until 1986 to act.

Kidnapping Ordeal Ends after 9 Hours

New York (AP)—Louis Jerome figured he'd "had enough" so he picked up a flag pole, charged an unemployed machinist who threatened to blow up a World Trade Center office with 80 pounds of dynamite and ended a harrowing nine-hour siege.

"I had had enough and I charged him with the New York state flag," said a shaken Jerome early today, explaining how his assault led to the disarming of Ladislav Fraczek moments after the man tried to barricade himself and four hostages in the office about 8 p.m.

Jerome, a state Compensation Board referee, and three others were held hostage Monday by Fraczek, a Polish-speaking immigrant who had gone to the compensation board offices on the trade center's 36th floor looking for money, police said.

Instead Fraczek, about 50, was arrested and charged with kidnapping and possession of a weapon - a break knife. He was held pending arraignment in Criminal Court.

Throughout the ordeal Fraczek claimed his canvas bag contained dynamite, but police later said it contained a Polish flag, A Polish-language Bible, the knife and some dark Russian bread.

Other charges could be filed, police said, if a round cannister Fraczek clutched tightly during the siege turned out to be a grenade, as he claimed. A police department spokesman said the device would be "checked out" later today.

Dissidents' Trials Enter 2nd Day

MOSCOW (AP)—Dissidents Anatoly Shcharansky and Alexander Ginsburg were reported maintaining their defiance of their captors as their trials in two Soviet courtrooms went into the second day amid a storm of foreign protest.

Shcharansky, a 30-year-old Jewish computer expert, said he would refuse to give detailed testimony and demanded that Western correspondents and his supporters in the dissident movement be admitted to the Moscow courtroom, from which they were barred, his brother Leonid reported.

Ginsburg's wife said he looked "a half-dead person" in the courtroom in Kaluga, 100 miles south of Moscow. But she said when asked his nationality, he replied, "Zek," short for "zelykchorni," or "political prisoner."

Both men pleaded innocent at the opening of their trials Monday. Shcharansky to charges of treasonable espionage, for which he could get the death penalty, and anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda, and the 41-year-old Ginsburg to a charge of anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda. He could get 10 years.

Leonid Shcharansky said his brother "looked well, self-confident and cheerful," called the charges against him "absurd," and in an hour-long statement defending himself told the court, "I consider all that I did was right."

"I think they will give him the death sentence," said Leonid.

Rockefeller Dies In 3-Car Crash

POCANTICO HILLS, N.Y. (AP)—John Davison Rockefeller III, the quiet philanthropist who busied himself with Asia, population control and the performing arts while his brothers and son were making names in business and politics, died Monday in a three-car crash.

Rockefeller, 72, died instantly in the accident about a mile from the Rockefellers' Pocantico Hills compound in Westchester County about 30 miles north of Manhattan, police said.

He was a grandson of John D. Rockefeller, the oil magnate who built the family fortune, brother of former Vice President and New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, and father of John D. Rockefeller 4th, the governor of West Virginia.

Police in the town of Mount Pleasant said Rockefeller was in a car driven by his secretary, 38-year-old Monica Lesko, when the crash occurred.

Police said a car driven by David Low, 16, of nearby Briarcliff Manor sideswiped one car and then plunged across the divider and slammed head-on into Miss Lesko's 1965 convertible.

The teen-ager also died in the accident. Miss Lesko was seriously injured and the woman driver of the sideswiped car also suffered injuries, police said.

Rockefeller's son was in Washington when he learned of his father's death. He joined his mother, Blanche, at the family compound.

Rockefeller was the eldest of the five sons of John D. Rockefeller Jr. Winthrop, who became governor of Arkansas, died of cancer in 1973, and their only sister and eldest child in the family, Abby Rockefeller Mauze, died three years ago, also of cancer.

While Nelson and Winthrop devoted themselves to politics, brother Laurence concentrated on conservation and business, including resorts in the Virgin Islands and Wyoming, and David became president and chairman of the Chase Manhattan Bank, third largest bank in the United States.

But the brother who carried the name synonymous with fabulous wealth sought neither more wealth nor power, and spent his life on such pursuits as friendship with Asia, population control, arts in education, and, finally, the performing arts.

In 1956, when the sprawling Lincoln Center, home of the Metropolitan Opera, the New York Philharmonic and many other theater and musical groups, was in the planning stages, Rockefeller was asked why he was getting involved in "show biz."

He replied that his travels had led him to believe "in art, and the exchange of art, as vital in helping international understanding," and he thought it was important to offset the belief among people of other countries "that the emphasis in our country is on the material side."

Born in New York City, Rockefeller attended the Browning and Loomis prep schools before going to Princeton, where he was voted "most likely to succeed" by his 1929 graduating class.

In 1931 he was named a trustee of the Rockefeller Foundation, set up by his grandfather in 1913 "to promote the well-being of mankind throughout the world," and in 1953 he succeeded John Foster Dulles as chairman of the foundation when Dulles was named secretary of state by President Dwight Eisenhower.

In the same year, Rockefeller was elected president of the Japan Society and went to Japan to discuss setting up an international cultural exchange center in Tokyo.

Rockefeller's interest in Asia also led to the establishment of the Asian Society and its headquarters in New York, Asia House, for further cultural exchange. His own foundation fund, concerned itself primarily with Asian culture.

His concern over population problems led him to help set up the Population Council and serve as its chairman and to get the signatures of 30 world leaders on a Statement on Population presented to the United Nations in 1967.

Rockefeller was married in 1932 to Blanche Ferry Hooker, a Vassar graduate whom he met while they were both doing social work with the poor and young delinquents in New York City.

In addition to his wife and son, he is survived by three daughters, Sandra Rockefeller, Hope Aldrich, and Mrs. Mark Dayton, and six grandchildren. Funeral arrangements were incomplete, a family spokesman said.

Gentlemen, Start Your Pigeons

WASHINGTON (AP)—Racing pigeons begin their training when they are about four weeks old, according to the National Geographic Society.

Sects at Peace in Lebanon Town

EL MINA, Lebanon (AP)—The goal was to find a town in Lebanon with all the prerequisites for peace:

Christians and Moslems living in harmony. No recent bombings or gun battles. No armed militias, guerrillas or occupation armies. No war refugees living in squalid camps or squatting in other people's homes.

To find a reasonable facsimile, one has to come to northern Lebanon. Since the civil war, it has been largely removed from the waves of crisis that still engulf the country from Beirut down to the Israeli border.

Driving up the highway that snakes along the rocky edge of the Mediterranean, one comes to this port city on the outskirts of Tripoli, Lebanon's second largest city 56 miles north of Beirut.

El Mina is a town of peace where Moslems and Christians coexist with easy grace, as rare in this country as a diamond in a coal mine.

This municipality of 50,000 has all the characteristics looked for, except one: there is still an occupying force of Syrian soldiers, who police the fragile peace here as they do throughout most of the country. Public reactions are mixed on whether El Mina could maintain its quiet without them.

There are numerous communities in Lebanon that live in varying degrees of peace, where a casual political argument in the street or a nighttime stroll into another neighborhood do not necessarily lead to trouble. But all too few towns can boast of real coexistence between religious and political sects.

Most Lebanese villages are either Christian or Moslem, but not mixed. In the cities, the communities are usually segregated.

The estrangement between sects has been a main factor in the civil strife that has taken nearly 40,000 lives.

In this town, the Moslems, making up two-thirds of the population, and the Christians live together, work together, go to school together and even marry each other—the last a taboo for many Lebanese.

Why is it different from other communities?

It seems to be a mixture of historical accident and self-interest, woven together into a tightly knit social fabric.

President, or mayor, Abdel Kader Alameddine says El Mina escaped all but marginal involvement in the civil war and has been thriving ever since, "because no strangers came to make trouble."

Good Luck Party Slated Tonight

Miss Hereford Stephanie Stringer will be the guest of honor tonight during a dinner and style show being held by the Chamber of Commerce Women's Division at the Country Club. The meal will be served at 7:30 p.m.

Miss Stringer will model her contest wardrobe, donated by local merchants for her competition in the Miss Texas-University Pageant next month in El Paso. Residents will have the opportunity to extend best wishes to the red-haired coed at tonight's party.

The Chamber of Commerce Women's Division, who sponsor Miss Stringer, will be convening this evening for their quarterly general membership meeting.

Also to be featured in the style show will be Miss Hereford 1977 Dee Anne Caison, the reigning Miss Teen Tammy Stringer, Kathy Wilson, runner-up to the Miss Hereford title, and Judy Hill, runner-up to the Miss Teen position.

Miss Caison will also be in El Paso this year during the state pageant, acting as official hostess to entrants and guests.

She competed in the Miss Texas Universe Pageant last summer, being the first Miss Hereford to embark on the Miss USA-Miss Universe Pageant route.

Miss Caison will perform a medley of hits on the organ tonight as part of the entertainment. Also appearing will be the duet of Cal Garrett and Susie McGee.

The Miss Texas-University Pageant will be broadcast on television live the night of Aug. 21 on CBS. Hereford residents will be able to see their contestant in competition.

Persons planning to attend tonight's style show should have confirmed their reservations yesterday.

Those merchants who will be represented by the local models include The Pants Cage, Merle Norman, J.C. Penney's, Etc., Gaston's, Gattis, Anthony's, The Vogue, La Boutique, Little's, Stairway to Fashion, and The Soda Shop.

All members of the Women's Division, as well as other residents, are urged to support Miss Stringer during the upcoming pageant.

Swimmers Mugged?

At first glance, this photograph might appear to be more sinister, were it not for the giveaway smiles worn by "the victims." Actually, this picture is of the "cross-chest carry" a technique used by lifesavers in rescue of drowning individuals. The rescue method was one of many taught by the Red Cross during a Water Safety Instructors Class recently. At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

(Author's Note: This is one of a series of How America Vacations and how shots can help. Today's column deals with visiting with friends and relatives in another city.)

A lot of people deplore the visit with friends or relatives in another city. They say it puts a strain on the relationship.

This can be avoided if guests remember one simple rule: do not visit any longer than 36 hours.

At the end of a day and a half the kids who didn't mind sleeping on the sofa...mind.

The hostess who didn't mind throwing your laundry in with hers...minds.

The host who went to the store every three hours to bring in fresh food supplies and said, "What are families for?" is now phrasing it, "I know what families are for—stuffing their faces. Tell me what they're against and I'll do it."

I remember the first night Howard and Fay came to visit us with their three kids. We got into our bathrobes and talked and talked until almost 7:30. Then we said, "What do you want to do?" They said, "Just visit and chat about the good old days." This was tricky as we had met them once at a VFW picnic with my parents and said, "If you're ever out West, give us a call."

One of their children complained that her glass wasn't wrapped in plastic like it was at their last stop. Another one said the white gooey stuff at dinner (scalloped potatoes) looked like a secret weapon from an alien planet. The other child was packing my children's toys in his luggage faster than you can say, "Arrest that creep." Howard was in training for the gargling Olympics. Fay kept saying, "I'd help in the kitchen, but I don't know where anything is." (I wanted to label the door.)

At breakfast every morning, they would ask, "What's to see in this town?" We got in the car and took them on a three-hour trip.

"You call this a scenic attraction?" we said proudly.

"We call it the Grand Canyon," we said proudly.

"Fay, take a look at this. Couldn't Esther clean this up and make a rock garden out of it?"

There are several state laws governing the assault of house guests who stay longer than 36 hours. They're very lenient.

Volunteers Needed To Help at Clinic

Volunteers will be needed in Hereford on July 31 and August 1-3 to work with the State Health Department's team that will be screening needy Deaf Smith County children for health problems, according to Beth Igal, caseworker, with the Texas Department of Human Resources (DHR).

The clinic will be conducted Monday, July 31, 10 am to 3 pm; Tues. Aug. 1 & 2, 7:30 am to 3 pm; and Thurs. Aug. 3 from 7:30 am to 1 pm. It will be held at the First Baptist Church, 500 N. Main.

Beth Igal explained that mothers need to be with the children who are receiving health checkups and volunteers are needed to supervise small brothers and sisters during this time as well as to provide transportation to and from the clinic site.

Persons wishing to assist with the project are requested to call Kathy Sealy, county volunteer coordinator, at the Hereford DHR office 364-6841.

Any Medicaid recipient under age 21 is eligible for the health screening known as the Early and Periodic Screening Diagnosis and Treatment (EPSDT) Program. Health Department nurses provide the service under contract with DHR.

"The way to prevent having health problems is to catch them while they are still small," Beth Igal said, and she urged any eligible individuals in the scheduled areas who do not already have an appointment to contact the DHR office immediately to schedule a time to be seen.

In the fiscal year ending last August 31 some 2926 young people received EPSDT screening for medical problems in the Lubbock and Amarillo regions. Of these 1103 were referred to physicians for treatment.

Any groups or organizations are welcome to help out. For further information, one may call Kathy Sealy at the DHR office.

On long shut-in afternoons, give the children magazines and scissors to clip those "money off" coupons, suggest Linda McCormack, family resource management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Pay attention to fats on labels and avoid foods with high fat content—this is probably the easiest means for weight-conscious people to keep nutrition up while losing weight, advises Frances Reasonover, foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Revisions Proposed For Labeling

COLLEGE STATION—Proposed care labeling revisions will give consumers more complete and clear care instructions, says Claudia Kerbel, consumer information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

This revised care labeling rule was prepared by the Federal Trade Commission in 1976.

The proposed revisions include the following:

(1) increased coverage to include household furnishings, suede leather wearing apparel, and yarn.

(2) more specific and detailed statements of required care instructions, and

(3) clarified who is responsible for providing care instructions to consumers.

Based on comments about the proposed revised rule, the FTC staff has recently prepared recommendations regarding the final rule.

Consumers are urged to communicate their opinions to the FTC before the final rule is written, Ms. Kerbel says.

Send comments before August 18, 1978, to Federal Trade Commission, 6th St. and Pennsylvania Ave., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20580.

Some major highlights from the proposed revised care labeling rules and FTC recommendations are:

—Wearing apparel—although the current rule covers wearing apparel, the new rule clarifies care instructions, including washing method, appropriate water temperature, drying method, drying temperature if machine dried, iron use and temperature, specific bleaching instructions and dry cleaning directions.

—Piece goods—the present rule covers piece goods for sale and should receive instructions without request at the point of purchase.

—Linens—not covered in present rules. Table, bed and bath linens should have permanent care labels attached however size, fragility or sheerness may exempt some linens.

—Suede and leather wearing apparel—not covered in present rule—a permanent care label must be attached that states "leather cleaning techniques must be used."

—This statement advises consumers and drycleaners that textile methods of drycleaning are not appropriate.

—Garment components—such as zippers, interfacing, braids, buttons, elastic, and thread are not covered in the present rule.

The FTC recommends that care instructions be made available to manufacturers on request. Care instructions on components sold to the consumer are not required.

—Upholstered furniture, furniture fabric and slipcovers—not covered in present rule. All upholstered furniture and slipcovers should have permanently attached labels except when the label will detract from the appearance.

In these cases, a hang tag should be required.

—Carpet and rugs—not covered in present rule. Because permanent labeling is not feasible, consumers should be told of the availability of care instructions before the point of sale and should receive instructions without request at the point of purchase.

—The Elks and Elkettes will be taking donations from merchants and other citizens throughout the summer months in preparation for the benefit carnival. Among the carnival events planned are a dunking board, bingo, cake walk, penny pitch, basket throw, darts, fishing pond, a concession stand

Dishwasher Can Cause Soft Water Etching

[EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a two-part series on dishwasher problems.]

COLLEGE STATION—Watch for a rainbow or iridescent hue on dishwasher-washed glassware—it's an early sign of soft water etching.

Look for shades of blue, purple or pink when holding the glass at an angle to the light. The glasses look cloudier and more frosted as the condition advances, warns Linda McCormack, family resource management specialist.

This filmy appearance caused by etching cannot be removed—the damage is permanent.

Also, there is not a method to predict which glassware will be affected this way—it isn't related to cost or quality of the glass, the specialist points out.

Mrs. McCormack is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

A combination of soft water, very high water temperatures and too much alkaline detergent cause this film, she explains.

To prevent this condition from occurring in the future, check to see that the dishwasher is getting a full fill of water.

Under-fill can create an over-concentration of detergent.

If the dishwasher is not getting a full fill of water, use less detergent, or switch to a detergent that has a lower phosphorous content and contains some sodium carbonate, the specialist advises.

Use less than one tablespoon of detergent—this is the minimum amount necessary to do a good dishwashing job under any water conditions.

Also, lower water temperature so that it enters the dishwasher at about 140 degrees F., she recommends.

Check water temperature with a candy or meat thermometer at the faucet nearest the dishwasher. Let the water run until it is as hot as possible; then, put the thermometer into the running stream. It should register between 140-160 degrees F.

Ann Landers

Justified Action

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please don't tell me you aren't a lawyer. I already know that. If you were a lawyer, you'd be sitting back shoveling in money like the rest of 'em instead of slaving over seven columns a week.

You say you want to help people. Well, I need plenty right now. My wife and I went to an open-air theatre last week and sat right behind a couple of gabby women. We asked them very nicely—twice—if they would keep their traps shut so we could hear the lines. They said they paid to get in, just like we did, and were there to enjoy themselves. The noisiest one yelled, "If you don't like it, move."

After 25 minutes of listening to those magpies my wife lost her temper and slammed the noisiest one over the head with her umbrella. The woman let out a terrible scream which could have been heard in the next county. The manager rushed over, took our names, and refunded our money and asked us to leave.

Yesterday my wife received an order to appear in court. The charge is assault and battery. The loudmouth was neither assaulted nor battered. She had on a wig that a bullet couldn't have pierced. Must my wife go to court and defend herself against these phony charges?—Where's Justice?

DEAR W.J.: Since you already know I'm not a lawyer, I don't have to tell you that. I will tell you, however, that you'd better hire one because your wife received a summons and this means no foolin'.

The "loudmouth" may not have been battered but a blow on the head is considered assault—and there's a law against it.

DEAR ANN: Our neighbor's daughter is getting married and my daughter is a bridesmaid along with two other neighbor girls. Last night the bride's mother held a shower in the community center building. After the shower she presented the three bridesmaids with a bill for $52. They were to share the cost equally.

Since there was cake left over, the girls divided it to take home. The bride's mother stormed out of the building, calling them "hogs." Please set me straight. Where the girls wrong to take the cake? Also, was it their place to pay for the shower? What are the duties of bridesmaids these days?—Need Updating

DEAR UP: I cannot imagine such gall as handing the bridesmaids a bill for a shower, unless it was agreed in advance that they would pay for it. As for taking the cake home—if the girls accepted the bill they automatically became "hostesses," which entitled them to it.

DEAR ANN: I have an answer for insensitive people who compare the size of children. Our son is small for his age. I'm tired of biting my tongue when acquaintances (I'd hardly call them friends) make remarks such as: "Is he the shortest child in his class?" Or, "I can't believe he's seven. Look at how much taller my son is."

I invented the answer out of desperation 12 years ago and it has never failed to stop the questioner cold. Just smile and say sweetly: "We've always told Johnny we'd rather he be short and smart than big and dumb (long pause), like some people." It works!—Oklahoma Reader

DEAR OKLA.: Your comeback says it all. Thanks for sharing.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sketches made by police artists after talking to witnesses have helped put hundreds of criminals behind bars, according to National Geographic.

It says, "so convincing are some sketches that the mere sight of them has helped convict criminals."

Donald C. Cherry, police artist in the District of Columbia, says a good witness for him is not only the person with a good memory, but the individual with whom he can establish easy rapport during an interview. Says Cherry, "It's the person open to suggestion, who can let the mind wander a little, so it can produce those fleeting memories of features, expressions, affectations."

Chris Hill is a 17-year-old HHS graduate who has participated in organized baseball 10 years and 13 seasons. The son of Mr. and Mrs. E.G. Hill of 211 Greenwood, Chris was a starting pitcher of the Hereford Whitefaces for three seasons, and was the only HHS pitcher in recent history to defeat the perennially tough Monterey Plainsmen.

Hill has seven years of Kids, Inc. baseball in his background in addition to his three varsity years at HHS. He is also in his third year of legion baseball under coach Joe Don Cummings.

"Chris is a very steady performer, and is in my opinion the most outstanding pitcher in our district," Cummings said. "He has great potential to go on and play in college."

Hill, a right-hander on the mound and a switch hitter, has listed hopes to play baseball for Texas Tech while pursuing studies in either accounting or physical education.

He also played football for the Whitefaces while in high school, and was a key target for Kelly Kitchens aerials last season. He was a member of the Key Club during high school, and was an audio visual assistant. The 5-10, 170 fire-baller is well-known for his good fastball when he is on the mound, and is accorded respect by enemy batsmen. When he isn't on the mound, Hill usually mans either the third-base or shortstop positions for the Redbirds.

Reed Doubled On Court, Diamond

NEW YORK (AP) — Ron Reed doesn't attend many pro basketball games anymore, but there was a time when he enjoyed the best seat in the house.

It was the mid-1960s and the seat was on the bench of the National Basketball Association's Detroit Pistons. Reed was one of those unique athletes who excelled in two sports. "It wasn't that difficult," recalls the 6-foot-6 relief pitcher for the Philadelphia Phillies, "because I was single at the time and I had no family ties whatsoever, other than my parents back in Indiana."

After being graduated from Notre Dame in 1965, Reed was drafted third by the Pistons and made the team. But that left him with an entire summer to kill.

"I wasn't supposed to report to training camp until September," the 35-year-old right-hander says, "so I went looking for a professional baseball job."

He found one with the Atlanta Braves. They offered him a contract and sent him to Class A Waycross, Ga. Reed managed to get to the Pistons' camp because the minor league schedule ended in August. He also didn't have any trouble making it to spring training on time since the Pistons were out of the playoff picture in 1966 and 1967.

"The seasons overlapped a little bit at the major league level," he said, "but I was still in the minor leagues in baseball when I played for the Pistons."

Reed, who pitched in five games for the Braves while under contract with the Pistons, averaged about 15 minutes playing time a game in his two NBA seasons. In 118 games, Reed had 951 points and 762 rebounds. His most productive night was Jan. 15, 1966 — 24 points and 20 rebounds against the then-Baltimore Bullets.

During his brief stay in Detroit he had Dave DeBusschere and Dave Bing as teammates. DeBusschere, like Reed, also played baseball, spending two years as a pitcher with the Chicago White Sox.

"When Dave stuck with the White Sox he realized it was impossible to play both sports at the major league level because the seasons overlapped too much," said Reed, who eventually had the same choice but chose the other sport.

Bing's rookie season was Reed's final one in the NBA. "I'll never forget that season with him," Reed recalled. "I got hit in the forehead, the nose and the chest with all his passes. All you had to do was get open and he would get the ball to you."

Reed got the message. He figured his chances for longevity were greater in baseball. So he ditched the shorts and kept the spikes.

"I knew it was just a matter of time before the draft choices came in and I'd be sitting out. I knew my physical capabilities and I felt there was no way, over the long haul, that I could compete with these guys."

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Pitcher Vida Blue and outfielder Reggie Jackson, teammates for so long on the controversial Oakland A's, are in and out of the spotlight for tonight's 49th All-Star Game.

Blue, traded across the bay by Oakland to San Francisco during spring training, becomes the first pitcher ever to start All-Star games for both leagues when he opens on the mound for the Nationals.

"Some youngster on the plane told me I was the last winning pitcher for the American League," Blue commented, and then laughed, "I already knew it."

He was the starter and winner in 1971 when the AL took a 6-4 victory — with Jackson smashing a tremendous home run over the roof of Detroit's Tiger Stadium — and also started in 1975 when the NL won 6-3 in its current domination of the midsummer classic.

Monday night, however, Jackson became the fifth player to withdraw from the American League squad when he telephoned Manager Billy Martin and reported that he was running a fever of 102-103 degrees.

Jackson was promptly replaced by his New York Yankees teammate, third baseman Graig Nettles, who himself had been scratched Sunday with a bruised toe.

Jackson is the only AL starter to pull out but the junior circuit also has lost catcher Thurman Munson, infielder Rick Burleson and outfielder Carl Yastrzemski.

The National League lost starting catcher Johnny Bench, who has been suffering from a bad back in recent weeks. Ted Simmons of St. Louis will replace him.

The NL has won six straight, 14 of 15, 19 of 21 and leads the series 29-18 with one tie. American League President Lee MacPhail calls the recent result "embarrassing."

Manager Tommy Lasorda of the Los Angeles Dodgers, in naming a hurler from arch-rival San Francisco, said Blue's embarrassed myself and now I'm hurt. But somebody has to do it."

Palmer missed the Monday workout that drew an estimated 25,000 to the park for the open session.

Martin's starting lineup will have first baseman Rod Carew of the Minnesota Twins leading off, followed by George Brett, Kansas City, 3b; Jim Rice, Boston, lf; Richie Zisk, Texas, rf; Carlton Fisk, Boston, c; Fred Lynn, Boston, cf, replacing Jackson; Don Money, Milwaukee, 2b, and Fred Patek, Kansas City, ss.

Lasorda, whose Dodgers lost to Martin's Yankees in the 1977 World Series, will have Pete Rose of Cincinnati at third base, followed by Rose's teammates Joe Morgan at second base and George Foster in right field. Greg Luzinski of Philadelphia plays left field and bats cleanup.

Then come Steve Garvey, Los Angeles, 1b; Simmons, c; Rick Monday, Los Angeles, cf, and Larry Bowa, Philadelphia, ss.

Neither manager revealed substitution strategy except Martin, who said, "I'll bring in my left-handed pitchers when Tommy brings in his left-handed hitters."

Ron Guidry, who won 13 games before losing his last start with the Yankees, had been expected to be the starter for the AL, but Martin said his ace hadn't shown his usual velocity in recent outings.

"Our players really want to win this one," declared the Yankees' manager. "This is the first time in recent years that the AL really wants to win."

President MacPhail said, "I can say the recent results have been an embarrassment, a league as superior as we are to lose as many as we have."

There was criticism of the fans' voting in determining the team, but the Dodgers' Garvey said he favors retention of the system and said, "There is no greater honor than playing with your peers in this game."

In 1974, Garvey won a starting position as a write-in and wound up as the game's Most Valuable Player. Blue was asked if he remembered his performance in 1971 and replied, "Oh, yes. Johnny Bench hit a homer off me and Hank Aaron hit his first extra-base hit in an Allstar game."

Aaron's "extra-base hit" also was a homer.

"I've faced all the batters in the American League lineup and they're all tough," said Blue. "I don't think there's an advantage or disadvantage."

Although Lasorda thought there would be advantage, Martin said the advantage would be with the hitters who might have a harder time against a pitcher they hadn't seen before.

"They're all tough on you," said Blue. "The American League bats first and it would be a psychological advantage to us if I can get them out in that first inning."

He said he hadn't expected to be Lasorda's starter but that the appraisal of being the best in the NL was "quite a compliment, quite a compliment."

Blue said he expects a high-scoring game because "The American League has a lot of power and the National League always has a lot of sluggers and home run hitters. I will beware when the batters step up to the plate."

Pros Hold Golf's Cradle in Awe

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) - "If you were going to build a new course, you certainly wouldn't build one like this," said Arnold Palmer.

"If I tried to lay out another course like this one, people would laugh at me and say, 'Call that a golf course?'" said Jack Nicklaus.

"It's a very well laid-out course," said Andy Bean, this year's top U.S. money winner. "You've got to hit a perfect shot to get close."

They were all talking about the Old Course at St. Andrews, cradle of the game and mecca for golfers the world over. On Wednesday, St. Andrews stages its seventh British Open since World War II and its 22nd since the Open was first played 120 years ago.

Both Nicklaus and Palmer hastened to get the record straight - they weren't guilty of high golfing treason.

"It's a very subtle course - though some people might call it by other names," said Palmer, who played his first Open at St. Andrews 19 years ago. "To play it properly you've got to take a great deal of thought."

"I think it's fabulous," said Nicklaus, who like Palmer is a two-time Open winner. Nicklaus won in 1970, the last time the Open was played here.

"You've got to accept it for what it is - the home of golf. Some people may say it's the worst course they've seen. It isn't, and I love it," Nicklaus said.

Bean arrived here Sunday after an overnight flight from the United States. Three hours afterwards he made his first acquaintance with the course and shot a 4-under-par 68 in practice.

"I must admit that when I first saw it I thought it was rougher than we expect in the U.S. But the more you play it, the more you learn to respect it," he said.

St. Andrews is a course, windswept most of the time, without trees, with gorse lining the fairways and with hidden sandtraps and undulations to catch the unwary.

Many of the hazards can't be seen from the tees, and Palmer commented mildly and politely, "It's unusual for a course to have hazards that you can't see."

Nicklaus and Tom Watson, who won the Open in 1975 and again last year, are joint 6-1 favorites to win this time.

Hubert Green and Lee Trevino, the last man to win twice in a row, are at 14-1 with Severiano Ballesteros of Spain, Gary Player of South Africa and Tom Weiskopf at 16-1.

Bean is rated at 25-1.

The first two rounds will be played in groups of three, with the first round starting Wednesday.

'Poke Rookies Training

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) - Free agent George Washington turned in the fastest 40-yard dash time Monday during the Dallas Cowboys rookies and young veterans' first practice session of the 1978 National Football League training camp season.

Bradley Only Holdout

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) - Luther Bradley, the Notre Dame defensive back who was the Detroit Lions' top draft choice, is the only rookie still unsigned by the National Football League team.

Michigan's Dwight Hicks, Detroit's No. 6 pick, came to contract terms with the Lions Monday, along with No. 5 pick Amos Fowler, an offensive guard from Southern Mississippi, a team spokesman said.

Spokesman Brian Muir said of Bradley, "We're still negotiating and I'm hopeful we can still get him signed in time for camp....I'm optimistic we can get it done."

All Lions' rookies, including draft choices and free agents, were scheduled to report for training camp at Oakland University today.

Quarterback Greg Landry, Gary Danielson and Joe Reed also planned to report, along with a group of veterans injured last season.

Mexico Wins Bowling Crown

MIAMI (AP) - Mexico won the mixed foursomes championship and Panama took the junior mixed doubles title Monday in the 16th annual Bowling Tournament of the Americas.

Alfonso Rodriguez of Mexico City bowled a three-game 610 to lead his team to a 4,521 total pinfall in the six-game event.

Guatemala placed second at 4,404, followed by Peru with 4,317. The defending champion United States finished ninth with 4,220.

Panama scored its victory in the junior mixed doubles with 3,232 pins downed by Dinorah Charles and Roy Bodden in nine games. Terri Cronan and Paul Zappia guided the United States to second place, 17 pins behind Panama. Bermuda was third with 3,178.

In 1977, the average American family owned an estimated $37,900 of life insurance, according to the American Council of Life Insurance.

Accidents claim the lives of more than 100,000 Americans every year, with auto accidents accounting for about 50 percent of these deaths.

Tway in NCAA Golf Lead

DALLAS (AP) - Bob Tway, the No. 5 member of Oklahoma State's NCAA championship golf team, grabbed the spotlight Monday from his teammates in the first of two qualifying rounds for the 1978 Trans-Mississippi tournament.

The 18-year-old Marietta, Ga., amateur fired a four-under-par 67 at Brook Hollow Golf Club, where more than half the qualifying field had scores in the 80s and 90s.

OSU's top player, Lindy Miller, missed an eagle by an inch on the 18th hole and settled for a tap-in birdie for a 70, one-under par for the wide-open Las Colinas Country Club, a few miles away at Irving, Texas.

Another OSU player, Britt Harrison, came in at one-over 72 and former Mexican Amateur champ Rafael Alarcon shot a double-bogey on No. 17 and a bogey on 18 to finish with a three-over 74. Both Harrison and Alarcon were at Las Colinas.

The field of 400 of the nation's top amateur golfers played in 102-degree temperatures. The best 64 after today's second qualifying round will compete in match play at Brook Hollow that begins Wednesday and continue until two finalists battle in a 36-hole final Sunday.

Kenny Huff of Dallas led the field at Las Colinas, matching Tway's 67. The only two other sub-par rounds of the day were a 69 by John Shackleford of Austin, Texas, 69; Andy Blossom of Stockton, Calif., 70; and Gary Pinns of Winston-Salem, N.C., 71. Shackleford and Blossom were at Las Colinas and Pinns at Brook Hollow.

"I wasn't trying for any kind of super round. I was just trying to hit it in the fairway and onto the green, and I happened to hit a few close enough that I made the putts," said Tway, who offset two bogeys with four birdies and an eagle.

"It was one of my better rounds in competition," he said. He hit a driver only three times all day on Brook Hollow's tightly confined course.

Doug Clarke, 19-year-old Stanford University player who won the Trans-Mississippi two years ago, was one of five players who came in at one-over 72s at Brook Hollow Monday. With him were Steve Bowman of Tyler, Texas; Chris Gutilla of Fresno, Calif.; Vince Vines of Odessa, Texas; and Bucky Smith of San Marcos, Texas.

Two former Walker Cuppers - John Grace of Fort Worth, Texas, and John Farquhar of Lubbock, Texas - were among six who had 72s at Las Colinas.

With them were John Paul Cain of Houston, Harrison, Dale Blackburn of Houston and Jimmy Adams of Port Arthur, Texas.

Grace hit the water on a par-3 hole, couldn't find a place to drop, and came back to the tee to hit another shot. It landed on the green 20 feet from the pin, and he sank the putt for a bogey-4.

Hardcourt Tennis Opens

CLEVELAND (AP) - The National Hardcourt Amateur Tennis Championship has opened with unranked Maria Rothechild of New Jersey defeating fourth-seeded Sherry Acker from the University of Florida in straight sets.

Miss Rothschild took the match 7-6, 6-4 Monday.

In the men's opening match, No. 1 seed John Sadri, the National Collegiate Athletic Association's runnerup from North Carolina State University, defeated Jack Conlan of Warren

Warren, Ohio, 6-4, 6-2.

Meanwhile, winners of the National Fast Serve Championship were Sean Terry of Dallas and Barbara Barnes of San Francisco.

Terry won the men's competition with a serve of 122 mph. Miss Barnes' serve was measured at 99 mph.

Auerbach Eyeing Celtics Contract

BOSTON (AP) - Now it's Red Auerbach's turn to keep new Boston Celtics owner John Y. Brown in the dark.

Former owners of the Buffalo Braves, Brown and silent partner Harry Mangurian, swapped National Basketball Association teams last week with Irv Levin, who is moving the Buffalo franchise to San Diego.

Brown and Levin then unveiled a multi-player deal without consulting Auerbach, the Celtics' president and general manager.

Auerbach said Monday he's not ready to tell Brown if he'll stay on after his contract expires Aug. 1, although the two have discussed a new contract.

"I've received what's been described as a 'very attractive' offer," Auerbach said of Brown's bid to keep the president-general manager. "But attractiveness is in the eye of the beholder. I want to talk to him about it."

Brown called a news conference at Boston Garden today but Auerbach said his plans will not be announced. The former Celtics coach said Brown's offer deals with front office control as well as money.

Auerbach also says he's had a variety of job offers from other sources. He won nine NBA titles as coach of the Celtics from 1950-66 and was front office chief for the last four Boston championships.

The Celtics' general manager was in the midst of a rebuilding plan when Levin and Brown made their deal.

The controversial trade sent Kermit Washington, Kevin Kunnert, No. 1 draftee Freeman Williams and rights to Sidney Wicks to San Diego. In exchange, Boston received Marvin Barnes, Billy Knight and Nate Archibald.

Auerbach signed Kunnert as a free agent, traded for Washington and drafted Williams.

Other members of the Celtics front office also waited to meet with Brown today to discuss their status.

Jeff Cohen, the team's assistant general manager, said the staff expects to stay but had not yet met with Brown.

Boston finished with its worst record in history last season - 32-50 - and missed the playoffs. But Auerbach recently negotiated new contracts for Coach Tom Sanders and assistant K.C. Jones, both former Celtic players.

Around the world, an estimated 1.5 million persons die each year from mosquito-borne malaria and millions more are stricken. Mosquitoes also spread yellow fever and encephalitis.

Texans Rediscovering Fans

DALLAS (AP) - Caught between rocketing utility bills and blistering temperatures, growing numbers of Texans are rediscovering the electric fan as an inexpensive and efficient way to stay cool this summer.

Just about everywhere across the state, stores report they can't keep portable electric fans on their shelves. Customers snap them up as quickly as shipments arrive.

And, spokesmen for the ventilation industry and electric power companies say the little air movers can keep people cool while reducing dependence on expensive-to-operate air conditioners.

"I've got two fans myself," said a salesman at a Dallas department store. "They help cut down on the electric bill because I don't have to run the air conditioning as much. I can set the thermostat to a higher temperature."

Sales persons reported in a spot survey the most people who buy the fans use them in conjunction with their air conditioning system. The fan, in effect, creates a chill factor and makes a person feel cooler without actually lowering the air temperature.

"People are starting to realize how much a fan can reduce their air conditioning bill," said John Mackey, a Sears sales clerk in Dallas. "Fans keep the air circulating and keeps the air conditioning system from having to work as hard."

Mackey said fans were just about all gone from his store and that more have been sold this year than last.

"We have been selling more fans than usual," agreed a sales clerk in a San Antonio department store. "It's probably because people are cutting back on their air conditioners. Fans don't use much electricity. I know that's what I've done."

Chuck Baker, general merchandise manager for the Sears store group in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, said fan sales have increased substantially this year over last.

"They would have increased even more," he added, "except our supply hasn't kept pace with demand. The manufacturers can't make them fast enough."

The biggest sellers are the smaller - 12, 14-and 16-inch, oscillating fans. Next are the high velocity fans and bigger box fans.

"Customers are beginning to realize that by using fans strategically around their houses, they can leave their thermostats four or five degrees higher and still be comfortable. And this cuts their electric bill down," said Baker.

Baker said fan sales had slumped until a few years ago. "They've become a major item again. The new fans are much improved and their performance is better. Fans with plastic blades are virtually noiseless," he said.

Monty Levine, executive director of the American Ventilation Association, headquartered in Houston, said there are two basic types of fans-air circulators and air ventilators.

The small portable fans are circulators. Ventilators include wind-driven turbines or power attic ventilators, or ceiling fans that pull air from outside into a house.

Levine said calculations show that a wind velocity of 2.5 mph "can give you a sensed cooling of eight to 10 degrees." What that means is that with proper ventilation, a person can feel like 76 degrees even though the temperature is 85 degrees.

Levine said a "whole house" fan system-a large ventilator fan system-would typically use 300 watts of electricity, compared to 3,000 watts for the average central air conditioning unit.

A researcher at Dallas Power & Light Co. said a fairly powerful one-fourth horsepower fan can be operated for about 1 cent per hour. Air conditioning costs much more.

And, the fan itself won't do too much damage to the bank account. The smaller, personalized fans and oscillating fans range in cost from less than $10 up to about $50.

Let 'Em Eat Peanut Butter!

announcing that he will increase beef imports from other countries.

He imagines that this may reduce the price of hamburger 5 to 6 cents a pound.

We have renegotiated beef import agreements with 12 nations, primarily Australia and New Zealand. From outside the United States we will import an additional 200 million pounds of beef, about one pound per person. The President ignores the fact that this will add more millions in red ink to our trade imbalance.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland-a former grassland farmer-did not like this idea and advised against it.

He calls it a "dinky dab" which will not materially reduce consumer prices.

At the same time, his Department of Agriculture economists predict that retail prices for beef this year will be 2.3 percent higher than last year. Frankly, it's about time!

One thing more: How about at least labeling that imported beef "imported."

If our government is determined to import beef to compete with our debt-ridden ranchers, why not give housewives the choice of supporting our own ranchers if they want to.

And besides, beef stamped "New Zealand" will be some insurance that the American housewife does not blame the American producer for that tough grass-fed stuff.

PRE-MIXES BRING CAMPERS EATING PLEASURE

Going camping this summer? Prepare your own convenience foods. Not only can you save money but you can save packing space as well. Also, you can save time and trouble when you're preparing meals at the campsite because convenience food are easy to use.

For breakfast, the U.S. Department of Agriculture suggests three mixes you can prepare before you leave home. Each recipe requires non-fat dry milk, which is plentiful now. Shop for the largest size package you can find at your market.

On cool mornings, waken your troupe with cocoa made from nonfat dry milk. Prepare this pre-mix by sifting together 5 tablespoons of cocoa, 5 tablespoons of sugar, 1/4 cup of nonfat dry milk solids, 1/8 teaspoon of salt. At the campsite, add 4 cups of hot water to the mix, and cook 3-5 minutes.

Stir even the sleepiest camper with this delicious breakfast Corn Bread. Bring 1 cup sifted flour, 3/4 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon baking powder, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1 cup corn meal and 1/2 cup instant nonfat dry milk in a clean, wide-mouth jar. When you're ready, blend dry mix with 1 beaten egg, 1 cup water, and 1/4 cup or 1/2 stick melted butter. Cook on hot grill like you'd prepare pancakes.

If your pack prefers a hearty breakfast, take along this pancake mix. Sift together 1 1/2 cups flour, 3 tablespoons sugar, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, and 1/2 cup instant nonfat dry milk. Combine 1 1/2 cups water, 2 eggs, and 3 tablespoons melted butter. Pour about 1/2 cup batter for each pancake onto hot buttered griddle. When bubbles appear, turn and bake other side. Serve with butter and syrup, applesauce, cottage cheese or other toppings.

If you're merely looking for a breakfast beverage, what could be more suitable than nonfat dry milk? This milk powder is lightweight, easy to store, and convenient to mix at the campsite.

It contains about half the calories of whole milk, and may contain added vitamins A and D.

When buying nonfat dry milk, use the label as a guide. "Instant" describes nonfat dry milk that is made of large particles that dissolve more easily in water than regular nonfat dry milk.

To earn the "U.S. Extra Grade" shield, it must have a sweet and pleasing flavor and a natural color.

Man, Woman Held In Slaying of 5

WINNIE, Texas (AP) - A former in-law and a 30-year female acquaintance were held Monday under $500,000 bonds each in connection with the slayings of five family members in what one law enforcement officer said was an apparent revenge killing.

Ovide Joseph Dugas, 31, a refinery worker who was once married to a daughter of two of the shooting victims, is charged with five counts of kidnapping. Linda Mae Burnett, 30, described by authorities as "an acquaintance" of Dugas, was charged before Justice of the Peace Jack Cravey with five counts of capital murder.

The five bodies were discovered Sunday night, dumped on top of one another in a shallow grave scooped out of the sandy soil. The site was in a wooded area about 10 miles from the blood-splattered rural home where the family had disappeared during a July 4 weekend reunion.

Dead were Bishop Phillips, 64; his wife, Ester, 66; a son Elmer, 31, his wife Martha; and their 4-year-old son Jason. The younger Phillips were visiting from Woodward, Okla.

Sheriff R.E. Culbertson told The Associated Press, "The only motive was revenge."

Dugas was once married to elder Phillips' daughter, Mary.

Cravey said the victims were "just piled on top of each other. They were all in a crouched position, stacked and folded up."

All five had been shot several times and their hands and feet bound with rope. Near the grave were several .22 caliber bullet casings.

Cravey said the nude body of the older Phillips was on the bottom of the grave. The others were clothed. Little Jason was on top, covered by only 18 inches of sand. "A couple more days and a bobcat or some other animal would have dug them up," he said.

Dugas was arrested last Friday.

Sheriff Doil Pounds of Chambers County, where the Phillips' home was located, said, "We interrogated Dugas Saturday but he didn't talk to us. So we interrogated him about three hours and 20 minutes Sunday and he decided to cooperate. He was pretty emotional to a point - real nervous and upset."

Dugas led officers to the scene.

The family was abducted from Chambers County and the bodies found in neighboring Jefferson County.

George, one of the elderly Phillips' eight children, reported the family missing after he returned from a weekend trip to Houston.

Investigating officers said they found chicken simmering on the stove and a pot of hot coffee.

Dugas' brother, Richard Lee, said in a sworn statement to authorities that his brother told him July 4 he had kidnapped the family at gunpoint and taken them to a "prepared grave."

In the statement, Lee said his brother also said he "had bound the occupants of the residence, struck one of the occupants with a pistol, and in the company of an unknown female, transported Bishop Noel Phillips and the occupants of the residence...to a prepared gravesite."

Former Communist Prisoner Seeking Political Office

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) - For 21 years, John Downey's dream of entering politics lay dormant while he languished in a Chinese Communist prison. Now, five years after being freed, he is trying to become lieutenant governor of Connecticut.

It's an uphill struggle for a political novice, but the former CIA spy thinks that public recognition gained from the international drama that swirled around him may get him the nomination.

"Some new supporters are of my age group and seem to think, 'It could have happened to me.' A lot seem to have sympathy for what I've been through....," says the 48-year-old Democrat, who hopes to win the nomination at the state convention next week.

But Downey says he tries not to lean on the story of his imprisonment. "What I would hate to do is make a 'career' of being a CIA agent who was imprisoned in China," he said.

Shot down in Manchuria in November 1952 when his plane swooped low to pick up an agent, Downey was sentenced to life in prison as the "archcriminal of all American prisoners."

Downey's future looked bleak until President Richard M. Nixon publicly admitted that Downey was a U.S. spy, a prerequisite for his release. In March, 1973, Downey was freed to be at the bedside of his mother, Mary Downey, who suffered a stroke. She died last year in a nursing home.

Gov. Ella T. Grasso, whom he wants to join on the Democratic ticket, in the early 1970s was Downey's congresswoman and helped exert pressure for his release.

She wished him "good luck" in his battle with a pack of more seasoned politicians seeking the No. 2 spot, he said, but didn't commit herself to any single running mate.

Downey received a law degree from Harvard University after returning home. He married Audrey Lee, a biochemist from China who, coincidentally, had lived about 10 miles from where Downey's plane was shot down. They met in New Haven.

In 1976, he became a law partner in Wallingford, a small New Haven suburb where he was born.

Archeology Students Seek To Learn of Seattle's Past

SEATTLE (AP) - In the noisy shadow of the cranes, barges and warehouses of the Duwamish industrial area, archeology students dig through the sandy soil to learn how livable Seattle was 1,400 years ago.

They hope to uncover the remains of a village belonging to the Twana people - a division of the Duwamish Indians - who lived, fished and clammed in what is now the 4700 block of West Marginal Way Southwest.

The Duwamish were a loosely knit affiliation of Indians who occupied the area that is now King County.

The 2.1-acre site, which sits on Port of Seattle land, was discovered in February 1977. The excavation began last week.

So far, planks have been recovered from what is believed to be a long house, or community hall. Radiocarbon tests indicate there is "cultural material" going back about 1,400 years.

However, it has not been determined whether there was a village there at the time.

Cecile Maxwell, chairwoman of the Duwamish Tribe, says only about 60 or 70 Duwamish Indians now live in the Seattle area.

Sarah Campbell, the instructor of the University of Washington archeology class which is undertaking the dig, and Dr. James D. Nason, curator of the ethnology collection at the UW's Burke Museum, say it's rare that an archeological site is uncovered in the middle of an urban area.

Provisions of an 1855 treaty gave local Indians land at two points in the Puget Sound region, Port Madison and Tulalip.

"But we did not want to leave the lower Sound and the Duwamish River," Ms. Maxwell said. "It was where we got our food."

"So we stayed around Seattle and sort of disappeared into the woodwork."

 legislative matters affecting them and of other changes within the industry which will have an impact upon the over 600 newspapers in Texas.

Fred V. Barbee

The 49-year-old publisher of the El Campo Leader-News is a major stockholder in other publishing and broadcasting companies in Texas. He is a Texan and a newspaperman by birth and an avid University of Texas
 Longhorn fan by choice.

Barbee's communications career has covered wide areas, from radio broadcaster to university student publications adviser.

Currently, not only does he own and publish the Leader-News, but he owns stock in the corporation owning the Edna Herald, the Ganado Tribune and the Wharton Journal-Spectator.

Barbee is president of Bar-B Broadcasting, Inc., owners and operators of Radio Station KULP AM/FM in El Campo. At one time Barbee and one of his partners, Dick Elam, secured the franchise for cable TV in El Campo. They sold their interests in this about three years ago.

Born in Cleburne, Barbee began at age 12 carrying a paper route in the afternoons for the Brownwood
 Bulletin and in the mornings for the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Later he was advanced to janitor of the Bulletin for which his father was a printer and mechanical superintendent. Soon young Fred Jr. became a "printer's devil"—an apprentice. He worked in the afternoons and summers for four years, after which he graduated from Brownwood High School and entered the University of Texas, Austin.

He promptly was hired as a senior apprentice at the University Press (1946), but by 1949, he was a journeyman printer working nights and going to school in the daytime.

The two years after university graduation, Barbee stayed on at the University Press because, as he says,
 "the union scale was higher than offers for someone with a degree—and, besides, I could continue to watch the Texas Longhorns play football."

In 1952, the Barbees, moved to Miami, OK, where he worked in the advertising department of the Miami News-Record. But three months later, the owner of the News-Record, called upon him to return to a sister paper, the Lamesa
 Daily Reporter, as its publisher. He was one of the youngest publishers in the state at age 23. And Eleon-or was a young woman's editor.

Five years later, in 1957,
 C. C. Woodson (who had owned those papers) and Barbee moved 40 miles west from Lamesa's cotton fields to the oil patch community of Seminole where they purchased the Seminole Sentinel. Barbee published the Sentinel for 11 years prior to buying the El Campo newspaper and radio station, in partnership with Woodson and his longtime friend, Elam.

The highest official in the Texas Press Association, Barbee is a past president of both the West Tex-es Press Association and the Texas Gulf Coast Press Association.

He is active in the Rotary Club, Chamber of Commerce, First United Methodist Church and numerous other community organizations.

Today In History

By The Associated Press
Today is Tuesday, July 11, the 192nd day of 1978. There are 173 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1955, the new U.S. Air Force Academy was dedicated at Lowry Air Base in Colorado.

On this date: In 1767, the sixth American president, John Quincy Adams, was born in Braintree, Mass.

In 1804, statesman, Alexander Hamilton, was mortally wounded by Vice President Aaron Burr in a pistol duel at Weehawken, N.J.

In 1814, a British fleet captured the town of Eastport, Maine.

In 1944, President Franklin Roosevelt announced that he was available for an unprecedented fourth term.

In 1952, a Republican National Convention in Chicago nominated Dwight Eisenhower for president.

In 1960, Premier Moïse Tshombe of the Congo's Katanga Province declared the province's independence.

Ten years ago: Nine Roman Catholics were elected for the first time to full membership on a commission of the World Council of Churches.

Five years ago: A Brazilian airliner crashed just short of the Paris airport in France, killing 122 of the 134 persons on board.

One year ago: Spain devalued its currency and announced tax reforms to stimulate the nation's economy.

Today's birthdays: Actor Yul Brynner is 58 years old. Opera tenor Nicolai Gedda is 53. Singer Hermann Prey is 49.

Thought for today: We think according to nature. We speak according to rules. We act according to custom. — Francis Bacon, English philosopher, 1561-1626.

A grazing ostrich will watch for small, shiny, smooth stones — and swallow them. The stones will remain in the bird's muscular stomach and help to grind up its food which is always swallowed whole.

MANY PEOPLE START trembling just thinking about riding in an airplane, ferris wheel or elevator. But not this fearless mountain climber, rappelling down the steep face of a cliff. Nor is 15-year-old Brian Skinner bothered by acrophobia. The Eagle Scout from Independence, Mo., won a certificate of merit for this shot in the Scout Photo Scholarship Awards, sponsored by Kodak.

You'll Become a Millionaire - - But, It Will Cost You Millions

NEW YORK (AP) - What to become a millionaire? Don't despair, you're probably on the way to becoming one. But when you do, there'll probably be plenty of reason to despair.

Why? Because prices probably will be in the millions too. The millionaire status we refer to is the kind produced by inflation, which raises the prices both of what we have and what we buy. And so, relatively speaking, we're probably no better off.

Still, it is true that many people will become millionaires — in fact, multimillionaires — if the administration's 1978 inflation estimate of 7.2 percent is continued for many years into the future.

You can work out the numbers yourself, and quite easily too, because an approximation of how long it takes to double a figure can be obtained by dividing its rate of growth into 72.

By chance, the projected 7.2 percent inflation rate divides 10 times into 72, which means a doubling of prices every 10 years.

Consider the price of your home. If it now has a market value of $50,000, it will be double that after 10 years. After 20 years it will have a price tag of $200,000, and after 30 years, $800,000.

That's not a million, but neither is a $50,000 home the upper end of the scale today. It is, instead, close to the median, which means that one-half the homes are valued higher and one-half lower than it.

The $75,000 home, doubling in price every 10 years, would have a market value of $600,000 after 30 years of 7.2 percent inflation. Still not a million say. True, but after 40 years it would be.

Yes, and after 40 years a $5,000-a-year college education would get for $80,000, a $7,000 automobile for $112,000, and 80-cent package of cigarettes for $12.80 and a $12 steak dinner for $192, before tip.

Well, you say, it all evens out. But it doesn't. Unless it contains an inflation escalator clause, the payout of your insurance policy will be in old dollars. And your bank account will have diminished.

Your paycheck might also fail to keep abreast, especially after a certain age, that age depending upon the business you're in and the company you work for. And there are other problems, many of them.

Consider the problem of capital gains. With houses having appreciated so greatly, how could a retiree, for example, afford to pay the income taxes due on such profits?

He might have to forego selling. Even if he could afford to keep the house, don't forget that real estate taxes are based on the value of houses and that could produce a situation in which a person couldn't afford to continue owning a house.

Those who have studied inflation contend that the disease eventually consumes itself, leading to deflation, among other things, and even to various immoralities, including tax cheating.

The chances of a 7.2 percent rate continuing indefinitely are therefore moderated by the probability that a collapse might occur, letting out all the air that went into puffing up the balloon.

VACAVILLE, Calif. (AP) - Convicted mass murderer Charles Manson says he went to prison "for cutting people, for shooting people," but in a rare prison interview claims he didn't want to kill.

In a copyright story Sunday in the Vacaville Reporter, Manson said he murdered, "not because I wanted to, but because I was forced to."

"That's part of the game of being an outlaw and I've always been an outlaw," said the 44-year-old Manson, who is serving a life term for masterminding the 1969 murders of actress Sharon Tate and four persons at her home and Leno and Rosemarie La Bianca at their home.

The leader of the so-called "Manson family" normally turns down requests for interviews, prison officials said, but agreed to meet with reporter Chris Weinstein because of a recommendation from another inmate.

As for the "family," many also behind bars for crimes ranging from the Tate-La Bianca killings to the attempted murder of former President Gerald Ford, Manson said. "This thing just happened...this person had no place to stay and this person was lost and had no place to stay, and I didn't have no place to stay."

"They were nobody and I was nobody. They were out in the streets kicked out of their houses and I was kicked out of my house. It just happened, and another thing happened."

Manson would not elaborate on what specifically happened, saying he's saving that information for a new trial he hopes to get.

He also was critical of suggestions that he had any hypnotic power over Manson family women.

"Charlie's girls - Charlie never had no girls. All Charlie's girls belonged to themselves."

Manson is a high security inmate at Vacaville Medical Facility, a California prison about 50 miles east of San Francisco. Under state law, he becomes eligible for parole consideration later this year.

Ms. Weinstein said Manson appeared for the three-hour interview with a bandana tied loosely around his neck. He had turned up the collar of his neatly pressed shirt. He sports a well-trimmed goatee beard and moustache and a casually combed full head of hair.

Carter Reshuffling LEAA; Hopes to Reduce Spending

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter Monday announced a reshuffling of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, which he said has suffered from a decade of "uncoordinated and ineffective" performance.

As a candidate for president, Carter had accused the LEAA of wasting millions of dollars "while making almost no contribution to reducing crime." But today he proposed to leave the agency's budget authorization intact, and he raised the possibility of an actual increase in spending.

Carter's proposal would, among other things, attempt to channel more money to crime-ridden areas, but without reducing the amount that any state could qualify for under present distribution formulas.

The increased money for high-crime areas would be available only if Congress increases the present $641-million LEAA appropriation, or if the agency is able to scrape up more money by making economies in such areas as administration.

White House domestic policy aide Stuart Eizenstat said the administration would not seek an increase in the authorized spending ceiling, which is now about $800 million. Actual appropriations could increase up to that amount without a boost in the authorization.

Carter also announced a reshuffling of more than $200 million in existing money to improve about 60 large public housing projects, which Eizenstat characterized as an "anticrime" proposal.

It was not clear which federal programs would be cut to make the $200 million available. It would be spent for such things as improved locks, burglar alarms, lighting and better management of the projects.

One possible effect of the LEAA proposal could be to take the gathering of federal crime statistics away from the FBI and give them to a proposed new Bureau of Justice Statistics. Benjamin Civiletti, head of the Justice Department's criminal division, told reporters that such a move would save money and "makes sense," but he indicated that it would not come for several years, if at all.

Carter's proposal would outlaw use of LEAA funds for police salary increases and most police hardware. Civiletti conceded, however, that the Justice Department had "cleaned up" the use of LEAA money for exotic police equipment years ago.

Longview Fighting To Keep Service

DALLAS (AP) - Longview Mayor Bob Maness Monday said his city's survival 100 years ago was due in part to the coming of the railroad and added that the East Texas industrial city will fight to keep rail passenger service if necessary.

Maness testified at the first session of a two-day hearing conducted by the Interstate Commerce Commission, which is seeking public opinion on the Department of Transportation's proposed cutbacks of the federally-subsidized Amtrak rail system.

Maness said the growth of his city of 55,000 is due at least in part to rail passenger service. He said continued growth of Longview and all of East Texas is at least partly dependent upon continuation of this service.

The mayor conceded that the 4 a.m. arrival time of Amtrak in Longview is probably responsible for poor passenger attendance on the trains.

"It would be better if we had a better boarding time, but we're willing to keep what we have," Maness said.

Cutbacks are being proposed on passenger service on two Chicago-to-Texas routes.

Maness was preceded to the podium by Jere Ruff, president of the Longview Chamber of Commerce.

Ruff voiced a similar view on perpetuation of rail service throughout the Sunbelt, but added there should be no reason for Texans to subsidize improved rail service in what he termed the "16 Frostbelt states."

Last year, Congress asked the DOT to study the entire 27,000-mile Amtrak system. The agency's report last May included dropping the Inter-American from Chicago to Laredo with stops in Dallas and Fort Worth, and the Lone Star, which runs between Chicago and Houston.

Another recommendation would trim the system to 17,000 miles of track.

Transportation Secretary Brock Adams said Congress must decide whether to "keep ponying up more money to keep all the routes" and cutting the routes.

World War II Memorials

To commemorate those who died in the American coastal waters of the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans during World War II, the American Battle Monuments Commission has erected a memorial in Battery Park, New York City, on which are inscribed 4,596 names, and at the Presidio of San Francisco, Calif., which carries 412 names. At the Honolulu Cemetery a memorial was erected which records the names of 18,093 missing of World War II and 8,194 missing as a result of the Korean operations.

Keeping gout under control

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I had my first attack of gout two years ago. At that time I ate quite a bit of whipped cream and then sometime later the same thing happened so now I avoid it. Improper shoes will upset me as well as walking. My last test showed a high uric acid so I must watch my diet. On top of that my cholesterol count is quite high which means watching that as well.

After comparing the two diets there is very little I may eat. Is there anything you can suggest? Except for high blood pressure, which is under control, with medication, my health is very good.

I am 70, weigh 125 pounds and am 5-foot-3. I am a widow and live alone and enjoy life. I still mow my own lawn and do lots of gardening. I don't smoke or drink. I had to give up coffee and all drinks containing caffeine several years ago. I like meat and have wondered if that would be harmful. I do trim off all the fat. I would appreciate any suggestions you might have.

DEAR READER—Injury can sometimes cause acute attacks of gout in gouty prone individuals. That's probably why those improper shoes caused you to have an attack.

Because of the availability of new medicines over the past several years the diet to control the uric acid is not considered as important as it once was. The majority of the uric acid in your blood stream is formed by your own cells and does not come from the food that you eat.

With medicines, the amount that's produced by your cells can be controlled much more effectively than any control by dietary measures.

Nevertheless it is still important to limit your calories and stay thin and not to eat high-fat rich foods. In fact fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries resulting in heart attacks and strokes is a frequent complication of gout so today greater emphasis is placed on eating a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet and keeping your weight down.

To this end it would be perfectly all right for you to eat a moderate amount of lean meat with all the fat removed and to avoid fat. Of course it would be better to broil or boil it and avoid frying. You can use chicken; if you remove the skin you'll get rid of a lot of the fat from it, and you can of course use fish.

The old gout diets particularly limited the organ meats and you wouldn't eat many of those anyway if you're trying to stay on a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet for other health reasons.

I'd also like to suggest that you be careful not to go on a crash diet. Rapid excessive weight loss can cause an acute attack of gout also. So if you want to lose weight, you should do it gradually. I'm sending you The Health Letter number 2-3 on gout to give you more information on it and what the various medicines do and how to live with it.

Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.
