Bill On Causeway Fishing Pier Is Passed By Senate

In a letter from Senator William N. Patman, he says: "Our Senate Bill 17, which passed the Senate on Jan. 23, authorized the expenditure by the Game and Fish Commission of an amount not to exceed $10,000 for the conversion of an old causeway across Copano Bay into a public fishing pier. This causeway is 9,191 feet in length and almost entirely over water. By removing the bascule span from the causeway, and approximately 300 feet of the old causeway, we will be able to convert this structure into two of the longest fishing piers in the world. This conversion will be possible when the new concrete causeway, which is to be located almost side by side with the old causeway, is completed in 1964 or 1965."

Two Councilmen Seek Re-Election

At the regular meeting of the City Council, legal holidays for the rest of the year were set, the council approved a $610 fire department expenditure, and two councilmen announced their intention of running for re-election in the city election on April 2. Fire Chief Charlie Ankele told councilmen that receipt of a new pumper recently had posed a problem, as the present doors at the fire station allowed only 1/4 of an inch clearance. He asked that a new set of four doors be bought and installed at a cost of $610. The council approved the expenditure with the provision that bids be taken on the necessary carpenter work, to see if it could not be obtained at less cost. Councilmen Hollis Collum and Norvell Jackson announced that they were seeking re-election. Hollis is incumbent from Precinct One, while Jackson is one of the councilmen from Precinct 2. Legal holidays for the rest of the year were set. These are: Good Friday, April 12; Memorial Day, May 30; July 4; Labor Day; Thanksgiving, Nov. 28-29; Christmas, Dec. 24-25; and New Year's, Dec. 31 and Jan. 1.

Shrimp Landings Off a Little In Month of January

Domestic landings of headless shrimp in Texas ports in January amounted to 1,297,000 pounds or 1,125,800 pounds less than in December, according to Orman H. Farley, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service statistician in charge of Texas statistics. However, Farley said, this year's catch was 185,600 pounds more than was caught in the same period a year ago.

Current landings, he said, consisted of approximately 360,000 pounds of pink shrimp from the Campeche banks, 65,000 pounds of seabob, largely from Freeport, and 37,000 pounds of white shrimp in addition to the usual brown shrimp caught off the Texas coast. The catch from the various ports along the coast follows, with the January, 1963 figures first, followed by those for December and last January, in that order:

Port Arthur-Sabine area, 32,200 pounds, 142,300 pounds, 20,000 pounds; Galveston, 21,000 pounds, 191,200 pounds, 30,700 pounds; Freeport, 196,500 pounds, 268,200 pounds, and 160,500 pounds; Matagorda-Palacios area, 14,000 pounds, 17,500 pounds, 2,100 pounds; Port Lavaca-Port O'Connor-Seadrift area, 7,300 pounds, 26,300 pounds, 9,500 pounds; Aransas Pass-Rockport-Corpus Christi area, 268,500 pounds, 634,500 pounds, 238,400 pounds; Port Isabel, 338,900 pounds, 612,200 pounds, 325,800 pounds; Brownsville, 418,800 pounds, 531,000 pounds, and 306,000 pounds. Many vessels did not leave the dock in January, Farley said. Weather conditions were very unsettled and freezing temperatures prevailed for five days. Some trawlers made two or three broken trips off the Texas coast, but found fishing very difficult and dangerous. Vessels were catching about 150-200 pounds per night.

Long range trawlers working the high seas off Mexico made only fair catches in both brown and pink shrimp fisheries. Catch per 12 hours effort ranged from 250-300 pounds, Farley said, with sporadic catches that went as high as 500 pounds a night. The statistician said that reports reaching his office indicated that a record number of Florida and (continued on page 8)

COPANO BAY PIER HEARING DELAYED

Some "differences" which have arisen were blamed for a delay in public hearing on a bill to convert the old Copano Bay causeway into a public fishing pier.

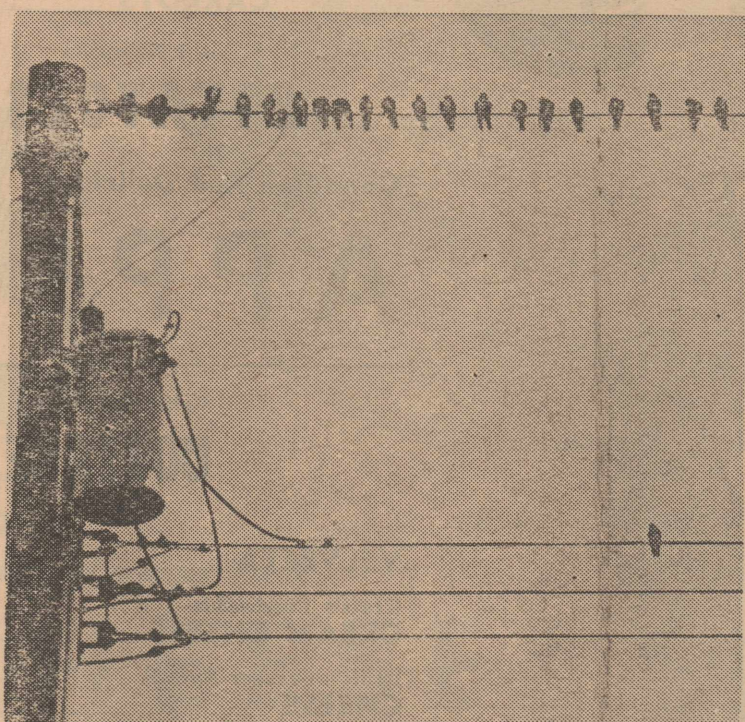

Rep. Leroy Wieting of Portland had the bill HB56, scheduled for public hearing, but when the time came, Chairman John Allen of the State Affairs Committee announced that Wieting had asked for a delay to work out some differences which have arisen.

The causeway across Copano Bay would give Aransas County what is described as the longest fishing pier in the bill, with more than two miles of space for fishermen to use.

Mitchell Tells Plans For Sea Gun Sports Inn

Bobby E. Mitchell, general manager for the coastal operations of the American Liberty Oil Company, unfolded details on what will eventually become a $3,000,000 project at the Sea Gun Sports Inn, on Lamar Peninsula, at the Rotary luncheon Wednesday.

He said that work had already commenced on an additional 34 units for the luxury fishing and hunting resort development situated at Mills Wharf, at a cost of $188,000, and revealed for the first time complete details on the restaurant-club building which will cost $60,000 more and is expected to be completed by June 1.

These will bring the number of accommodations at the unit to 66, he said, and the oil company, of which Toddie Lee Wynn of Dallas is president, has spent $45,000 on beautification with palm trees, shrubs and St. Augustine grass. Also completed and now in use, he said, is a heated, palm-tree ringed pool.

Mills Wharf, in operation at the site since 1932, and now a part of Sea Gun Sports Inn, will continue to offer complete hunting and fishing facilities, including charter boats, guides, rental equipment and supplies, and other marina features are planned in the near future.

Plans for the Inn were drawn, he said, with the occasional overnight guest in mind, as well as weekend hunting and fishing excursions and families on vacation.

Sea Gun Sports Inn is situated at what was one of the earliest ports for sailing ships on the Texas coast, from which supplies for inland were hauled by ox-carts. Visitors present at the luncheon included M. J. Tomlinson, Port Huron, Mich.; Colby R. Hewitt, Park Rapids, Minn.; A. Faralli, Anington, Ill.; Merritt L. Hulet, Saratoga Springs, N. Y.; F. S. Todd, Atchison, Kans.; Dave Tandy, Port Worth; Bob Reddell, Sinton; Fred Robbins, Aransas Pass; John Russe, Corpus Christi; and Mrs. Neva Sorenson.

Missionary Says Christianity Only Basis for Democracy

"Christianity is the only true foundation for democracy," Dr. D. J. Cumming, Korean missionary told members of the Presbyterian Church, their wives and children, last night at the covered dish family night supper.

One of the first targets of Communists in countries they have overrun has been the churches, Dr. Cumming said.

Missionaries are needed badly, he said, to act as an influence, and to found the churches where these things can be taught.

He is returning in April, and his wife and ten-year-old daughter will join him there, while the other five children will remain in this country.

After his talk, a reception was held at the Presbyterian manse.

Navigation District To Ask $400,000 In Bonds

Action Recommended By Aransas County Area Planning and Development Board and Rockport Chamber of Commerce At Joint Meeting Wed.

A $400,000 bond issue was recommended to Aransas County Navigation District Commissioners today, in a joint meeting of that body with members of the Aransas County Area Planning and Development Board, directors of the Chamber of Commerce, County Judge John D. Wendell, and the Navigation District's financial advisor, Laddie Janeczek of the First Southwest of Texas.

The bonds, if the issue is successful, will be used for breakwaters to control rough seas in the Fulton Harbor, rehabilitation of the Fulton beach, further improvements to the Little Bay area, construction of a Navigation District office, and repair of storm damage and improvements at the Cove Harbor, none of which will be started until after the summer tourist season is over.

The recommendation from the Planning Board and the C. of C. directors followed an explanation of Navigation District needs by Chairman Ted Little and the Board's engineers, headed by Homer C. Innis, of the firm of Lockwood, Andrews and Newnam, who have done the preliminary planning on the various projects.

Little told those present that the District's overall planning had been done with the idea that matching federal dollars could be obtained under Public Law 345. However, he said, in the event that this was not possible, the plans had been drawn in units, so that one unit or the whole plan could be completed at a time.

Innis then outlined the total project, based on the assumption that federal funds could be obtained, the cost was slightly over $600,000, but both he and Little pointed out how this could be trimmed to suit available funds.

James H. Sorenson, Jr., chairman of the planning board, suggested that the Navigation District ask for a bond issue large enough to complete all essential items, at a cost of about $400,000, (continued on page 8)

Senate Approves Water District

A bill by Sen. William N. Patman of Ganado to create the Aransas County Conservation and Reclamation District cleared its first major hurdle Tuesday by gaining approval of a Senate committee.

The Senate Water and Conservation Committee voted the bill to the Senate floor without dissent. A companion measure in the House is sponsored by Rep. Leroy Wieting of Portland.

Four changes, described by Patman as "clarification amendments," were tacked onto the bill. One specifies that power of eminent domain for condemnation—limited to Aransas, San Patricio and Refugio Counties—shall not apply to any existing or future private water supply. Another pins down a limitation of the district's taxing authority to 50 cents a $100 of property valuation.

A third change from the original bill added a clause that the district shall use the county tax rolls in assessing district taxes. The final change states that the district shall not build a sewer system.

Patman's bill would place all of Aransas County in the district, except for that area already in a water control and improvement district.

The taxing authority up to a ceiling of 50 cents a $100 valuation could be carried out only with voter approval.

Six directors would be named under the bill. They would be Glenn Ellis, Grady West, J. L. Baughman, R. L. Fleming, Mathew Scott and Harold Picton.

Ellis and West would be named to terms expiring in April, 1964, when an election would be held to name their successors. The terms of Baughman and Fleming would expire in April, 1966. The terms of Scott and Picton would extend to April, 1968.

The measure would provide wide authority for the district to locate a water supply for Aransas County. The district could enter agreements with other large water users to acquire a joint supply or could contract with the users.

The district also could cooperate with federal, state and local agencies to acquire or develop ground water supplies. The district could issue revenue or tax bonds to finance projects, but only after approval of the voters.

PUBLIC INVITED TO SPECIAL ELECTRIC AND LAMP SHADE WORKSHOPS AT COURTHOUSE

Mrs. Dorothy Ives, County Home Demonstration Agent, will preside over a special electric and lamp shade workshop to be held in three sessions in the commissioners courtroom in the Aransas County courthouse.

The first session, which will deal with improved lighting is scheduled for 7:30 until 9:30 p.m., Monday, March 11, while the second and third sessions will be held at the same place on Monday, March 18.

The lampshade workshop will be held in the afternoon, from 2:30 until 4 o'clock, while the evening session, from 7:30 until 9 o'clock will deal with rewiring portable lamps.

A study of the principles and techniques involved as they are applied to design, utility, convenience and beauty, will receive special attention, with workshop lab time.

Assisting Mrs. Ives in her presentation will be Mrs. Virginia Benson, CP & L Home Service Lighting Representative, and L. E. Sheppard, CP&L Rural Representative.

Mrs. Ives will be responsible for the training, according to the plan set up by the extension service of the home management committee.

MRS. HOLLEY IS HOSTESS TO THE ATHENEUM CLUB

Members of the Atheneum Club met in the home of Mrs. Grace Holley on Monday afternoon, for their regular meeting.

Mrs. Lucille Little gave a report on the life and literary works of Samuel Richardson, who seems to have been the first writer to attempt to explore the heart—the heart of a woman.

Mrs. Mary Wright gave an interesting report on Henry Fielding. Mrs. Opal Willis gave a report on the life of Laurence Sterne.

Mrs. Fay Henderson gave a report on Tobias Smollett—Smollett who put the sailor, with all of his salty ways and nautical language, into English fiction.

Mrs. Grace Holley called attention to some pertinent rules for better English. There was some discussion while club members enjoyed refreshments of cake and coffee.

Mrs. Waneta Torres was in charge of the Spanish lesson. Mrs. Torres lived in Mexico City for four years and learned to speak Spanish fluently. Records were also used to help in learning correct pronunciation of Spanish words.

AIR FORCE PERSONNEL INSTALL SEAT BELTS

As a part of the Air Force safety program, to reduce accidents and save lives, an intensive program, to urge all personnel at Rockport Air Force Station, to have seat belts installed in their cars, is being carried on.

S/Sgt. Thomas, NCOIC of Base Transportation, is in charge of the program, and his section is installing all seat belts, free of charge. It is a well known fact, that seat belts save many lives each year, and would save more, if people would buy and use them. Records indicate, that many persons have survived serious auto accidents, through the use of seat belts, but others have been killed or seriously injured in minor accidents without belts.

Air Force Station personnel are asking themselves, if the few dollars, which it cost to purchase the belts, aren't well worth the added safety, which they provide for themselves and their loved ones. The answer is always, yes!

Letters to the Editor

I have read with interest the opinions expressed in the last two editions of the Pilot concerning proposed regulatory laws covering the taking of fish from Texas bays. It appears that the fish marketers oppose regulations. Our good friend at the Marine Lab states "it is a social matter."

Do these distinguished writers want us to believe that netting of the sow (female) trout in the spawning grounds is as now being done in shallow waters of Fulton Beach and elsewhere in close-in waters will not deplete the stock? Do they mean to say that you can take away the food such as the thousands of barrels of under-size shrimp and small fish taken by the trawls, that the edible fish will remain?

Do they say that the blue crab, which is so rapidly disappearing, can withstand the present heavy netting and trapping?

500 Mile Boat Race Old Stuff To Rockport Men

The 500-mile "Texas Water Safari" being touted by the San Marcos Chamber of Commerce as "The Toughest Boat Race in the World" leaves a couple of Rockport residents cold.

Fred Christilles and Jimmie Hanway can tell aspiring participants about the time "way back when" that they made the trip down the San Antonio and Guadalupe rivers to Corpus Christi and then to the Gulf of Mexico nearly 40 years ago. And even so, they weren't the first.

A couple of San Antonians, Dan Lewis and Samuel Maverick had made a leisurely trip down the river in 1899, pushing aside a great many alligators and stirring up great flocks of birds. Anson B. Reynolds of Rockport had taken 30 days for a similar trip in a 16-foot boat, and John W. Tobin, later mayor of San Antonio and sheriff of Bexar County had been on such an expedition in his youth.

But the Christilles-Hanway he-gira is the first of which we have any connected narrative. It all started out with a bet.

Porter Loring, Sr., who later said "we would have welcomed a flood about the time we got to Berg's Mill in that 1924 race," had just bought the old Jefferson Hotel, and had installed George (Sally) Graves as his manager, while, he—Loring, attended to his undertaking business.

Between the two of them, they cooked up a publicity stunt in which the hostelry would be advertised through the voyage of a boat to be named "The Jefferson Hotel" down the San Antonio River, which meandered for some 600 miles between the Alamo City and its junction with the Guadalupe (although the land distance is only about 150) and then down the Guadalupe and across the bays to Corpus Christi, with the final goal, the Gulf of Mexico.

Christilles, who was operating "Fred's Dam Place" at Medina Lake, had a sea sled of which he was very proud, and he bet Loring that he could beat him to the Gulf.

More than 5,000 people crowded Houston Street bridge and the river banks to watch the intrepid mariners take off in a cloud of spray, and they had plenty of time to follow the early progress of the race as before the boats reached the Commerce Street bridge. "Admiral" Loring and his crew had been forced into the water to repair an outboard motor already full of sand, and to do a little pearl diving for wrenches lost in the confusion.

And that wasn't all, as Loring, Graves and company, which included Harry Foehner, a reporter for the San Antonio Light, and E. R. Hunt, had to make more than 50 portages in the first eight miles, finding the coffin handles with which undertaker Loring had wisely equipped his boat indispensable.

The Christilles-Hanway boat was soon far in the lead because its more rugged construction and its ability to take small water falls and rapids in its stride. As a result, the crew of "The Jefferson Hotel" kept going at night to make up for lost time.

In the darkness, farmer's barbed wire fences strung across the stream flipped Graves from his perch in the prow many times, as he attempted to sound the waters with a pole, and he afterwards swore that they replaced at least 10,000 pins as the outboard's propeller struck submerged rocks and logs.

Along about Goliad, they crashed into an accumulation of old wooden paving blocks once used on San Antonio streets, which had been displaced by floods and washed downstream, finally forming a vast jam under which the river flowed. And, just to make things more interesting, the jam was the home of the water moccasins in Texas.

Eventually, after battling sand banks, log jams, portages, and gillions of mosquitoes, the boats reached Corpus Christi, where there was a Rotary banquet and Manager J. B. Saunders of the Nueces Hotel came up with $100 trophy for the winners, while Christilles laughed off accusations that he had his Medina boat hauled around log jams on a wagon and towed across the open bays by a boat from Mills' Wharf.

This was the last known trip by such mariners until last year, when Frank Brown of the San Marcos Chamber of Commerce and a restaurant owner from there, made a trip from San Marcos in a Lone Star Big Fisherman, using only paddles and a crude sail.

Now, the San Marcos Chamber of Commerce is attempting to make the Safari an annual affair, starting in San Marcos and winding up in Corpus Christi during the Buccaneer Days celebration.

Homer Faber, local boat dealer is on the advisory committee, and intends to enter a team in the contest, on which more than 250 inquiries have already been received. These come from as far apart as Callaway, Neb., Boulder, Colo., and Magnolia, Ark., with entries pouring in from everywhere in Texas.

It combines living off fish and game, caught through log jams and rapids of the San Marcos and Guadalupe rivers and the wind-tossed waters of San Antonio, and Corpus Christi bays. The mode of transportation will be limited to paddles, oars and sails, or any combination of the three. All teams will be required to carry everything they need from the start—no purchases may be made en route.

Brown said the size of the boat is up to the crew, but he warned that travel is through some of the most rugged country in the state. "The boat has to be light," he said, "since it will have to be carried much of the way to traverse log jams and dangerous rapids. It also must be sturdy because of the rough waters of the coastal bays."

A network of inspection and safety teams will be set up along the route, which includes the towns of Luling, Gonzales, Cuero, Victoria, Austwell, and the big marina at Sea Gun Motel, in Lamar, just across the bay from Rockport.

Information on the Texas Water Safari may be obtained by writing the Chamber of Commerce, Box 2310, San Marcos, Texas, or, locally, by contacting Homer Faber at Marineland, on Highway 35, North.

Statistics Are Vital Part of Marine Research

A little known, but vitally important man in the Game and Fish Commission is the Statistical Agent. Although he never works a gill net or tags fish, his work is important to every marine biologist on the Texas coast. His is a job of gathering, compiling and analyzing data on the commercial catch of marine products in Texas.

Dean Dimmick, Statistical Agent for Region V of the Game and Fish Commission, works very closely with agents of the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the Region IV Statistical Agent from La Porte, and with fish houses up and down the coast to compile his statistics. In addition to his constant efforts to gather usable data and his compilation at the end of each month, he prepares a complete report at the end of each Fiscal Year, August 31st, which is included in the Annual Report of the Game and Fish Commission. He also prepares a complete report at the end of each calendar year which lists the commercial catch by month, of each species, whether it was caught in the bay or in the Gulf, which bay complex produced it, and the method of taking. Not required for this report, but available for the biologists' use, are records of the exact amount of each species produced in each bay.

Mr. Dimmick's latest report shows that 1962 produced 70,528 pounds more flounder than in 1961 and 183,886 more pounds of red snapper. The catch of blue crabs rose sharply to 4,010,810 pounds, a 1,545,654 pound increase. Oyster production also increased by 59,770 pounds. The take of drum, redfish and trout declined as did menhaden and shrimp. By comparing this year's production with past years, biologists are able to see trends develop and make recommendations to the legislature to correct anything that's going wrong. This data is, of course, just a small part of the whole marine fishery picture, but it is an important part.

Fish buyers are required to report to the Game and Fish Commission at the end of each month. They are supposed to give a complete rundown on all species so this valuable data can be utilized by the biologist in his constant search for better ways to manage our marine resources and thereby produce better fishing for both commercial and sports fishermen. Dimmick says that most of these buyers realize how important their reports are, and therefore, they try to be very prompt and accurate in making them. A few still view the reports with suspicion, however, and feel that this is just another way of prying into their personal affairs.

"If they knew," Dimmick said, "how important this data is to the biologist and how much it can mean to commercial fishing interests, they would make an effort to do a better job of reporting."

ENGINEER PERMITS ARE REQUESTED BY SUN OIL COMPANY

An engineering permit has been requested by Sun Oil Co., for operations in the Gulf Intracoastal Waterway and Redfish Bay, on State Tracts, 277, 278 and 281, approximately two miles northeast of Aransas Pass.

The company proposes to lay a 2½-inch pipeline running from Well No. 1 in State Tract No. 277 northerly approximately 8,450 feet across State Tract No. 278 to an angle point in State Tract No. 251 then run under the Gulf Intracoastal Waterway normal to the centerline for 150 feet and at an elevation 25 feet below mean low water to an angle point and then northerly to the shore.

The proposed pipeline approaches under the waterway would be one vertical on 4 horizontal slopes. The proposed pipeline would be placed 1½ feet below the bed except through shell reefs or beds where it would be placed one foot below. The pipeline would be plowed or jetted whereby there would be a minimum disturbance of the bed and no spoil deposit would remain.

Where the proposed pipeline would cross the abandoned causeway in State Tracts No. 277 and 278 the excavated trench would be rebuilt after the pipe is laid.

ADVANCE PLANNING FOR RETIREMENT IS ADVISABLE

Your social security office will help you plan in advance for your retirement, so you may be fully informed about social security retirement insurance, says H. M. Cleveland, Corpus Christi district manager of the Social Security Administration.

In this connection, three ages are important: (1) age 62, for those who want to start getting benefits early at a reduced rate; (2) age 65 for full benefits; subject to the retirement test for those who continue working at high earnings; (3) age 72, when full benefits are payable regardless of your earnings thereafter.

Those who inquire at the social security office before retirement may get an estimate of their benefit amount, and they can find out what papers will be needed, such as proof of age, marriage, and recent earnings. An application may be filed as long as three months in advance. By applying in advance, Cleveland says your first check can be ready for delivery without delay.

Interested persons should get in touch with the social security office in Corpus Christi at 530 South Water Street, for information in retirement planning.

In a morning ceremony at Sacred Heart Catholic Church on Saturday, February 23, at 10:00, Miss Frances Adele LeBlanc became the bride of Jerry Wayne Iles, with the Right Reverend Monsignor J. William Hennel officiating at the double-ring rites.

Twin floor baskets of white gladioli and stock were used as decoration, with similar arrangements at the altar.
The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard J. LeBlanc of Rockport. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Dewey O. Iles, also of Rockport.

Mrs. Jerry Wendell and Mrs. T. J. Johnson sang "Panis Angelicus" and "On This Day, Oh Beautiful Mother." Mrs. Wendell, organist, rendered the traditional wedding music.
Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of Chantilly lace over satin, with carriage back skirt featuring tiers of the lace and tulle. Its molded bodice, with portrait neckline outlined in lace scallops, was accented with sequins and pearls. Tiny self buttons trimmed the bridal sleeves and back of the bodice.

Her fingertip veil of tulle was caught to a crown of white iridescent flowers centered with seed pearls. She carried a prayer book topped by a cluster of white feathered carnations centered with a white orchid.

Miss Barbara Barnard was maid of honor.

OFFICIAL MEMORANDUM

By John Connally
Governor of Texas

GREETINGS:

Special observance of increased emphasis on our education system has been marked annually for thirteen years by a Public Schools Week in Texas.

During this period, parents are encouraged to visit the public schools, and all citizens are urged through special programs to recognize the tremendous importance of our system of education. Our goal is to make Texas public schools the finest in the Nation, and to achieve this our citizens are urged to take an active interest in the school systems and to cooperate with their school boards, superintendents, principals and teachers.

Never before in our history has there been a greater need for educated leadership. As we rush to train young people in science and technology to keep pace with world events, it is also important to remember that our public schools will furnish our leaders tomorrow with basic human, moral and spiritual foundations necessary for more advanced training and knowledge.

THEREFORE, I, as Governor of Texas, do hereby designate the period of March 4-8, 1963, as PUBLIC SCHOOL WEEK in Texas.

In official recognition whereof, I hereby affix my signature this 21st day of Jan., 1963.

JOHN CONNALLY
Governor of Texas

Packrats Face Housing Shortage

Pack rats have housing problems, just like people, and the reason that there are not more of them in your area may be because they can't find suitable apartments.

So says Gerald George Raun, who did much of his research on a nine-acre tract at Welder Wildlife Refuge near here, and who published his findings on the lives and loves of these interesting animals in a 178-page Ph.D. thesis at the University of Texas.

In other words (although Raun doesn't say so) packrats are like human beings, apparently willing to do without the necessities of life in order to put on a suitable front before the Joneses.

Based on his study, he says "the upper limit of the population is determined by the number of houses. Depletion of food supply is not an important factor."

One is reminded of the old story about the East Texan who sent his wife to town with some money without giving her explicit directions as to how it should be spent. "And that woman," he said, "forgot practically all the necessities. She came back with a lot of bacon, flour, and foldover like that, and there wasn't a drop of whisky or a can of snuff in the house."

Packrats have other similarities to people. The mortality among wandering males is considerably higher than it is among the little women who stay home and mind the babies.

"This," says Raun, "modifies and complicates the limitations imposed by home sites."

When the pack rat population starts to climb, Raun says, and approaches maximum density, "the houses are filled. New individuals are forced into sub-standard houses and competition for good houses increases. As a result, reproduction declines and mortality increases."

It looks to us like the packrats need some good building contractors.

Tom DeForest was admitted to Spohn Hospital last week and is doing nicely.

Local Dealers Fourth In Nation On Lone Star Boat Sales

What began five years ago as a hobby for two retired men, Homer Faber and Pat Greene, both long time devotees of boating and fishing, has turned into a quarter-million-dollar business for one of them. The business is Marineland, on Highway 35, North. And the man reaping the rewards of success is Homer Faber.

Greene went back into retirement at the beginning of 1962, but Faber continues to operate the firm they founded in 1958. Now one of the nation's largest dealers in Lone Star outboard boats, Faber was fourth in the nation a year ago in sales of these craft, and is gearing his business towards the half-million-dollar volume he expects in the next two or three years.

According to Faber, there are several reasons for Marineland's present success and his belief in its future growth. First, he has an exclusive franchise on Lone Star boats, which, he thinks, make up the best and most complete line of outboard craft.

Second, Rockport is located in the midst of some of the best fishing waters on the Texas coast and draws fishermen, tourists and retired people from all over Texas, the Midwest and as far away as Canada. Moreover, Marineland is on busy Highway 35 between Corpus Christi, 35 miles to the south, and Houston, 180 miles to the north, at a point where practically all traffic from Victoria, San Antonio, Houston, Austin and points north and west of Rockport must pass.

Third, Faber provides for his customers. "It's not enough just fix something that went wrong," he said. "You've got to give such a good job the customers leaves with a glow on his face."

Faber went into the boat business in 1958 with his friend, Pat Greene, who retired from the superintendency of Aransas County schools just before that. Both were avid fishermen and fished together regularly.

"We often talked about something to do—a hobby to keep us busy in our spare time when we weren't fishing," Homer said. "We both like boats, fishing and people, so we opened a small business in downtown Rockport. We enjoyed the constant association with boating people and, like so many hobbies, it grew."

Indeed the business grew so well that it became too much for Greene. It was no longer a hobby, but a full time occupation, and it interfered with his fishing.

"I agreed to buy Pat out," Faber said. "He's 70, and he still fishes three or four times a week."

Faber doesn't fish much any more. He's too busy. He has taken his son-in-law, Charles Maslonka into the business as a 50-50 partner, and looks forward to the day when he can turn the reins over to him and once more get in a little fishing himself. Now 50, Homer figures that he still has time to catch a lot of trout.

"I offered to sell Chuck half the business for the same price I paid Pat," Faber said, "and he took me up on it."

Maslonka, 27, bought into the business while he was in the Philippine Islands, flying jets with the U. S. Air Force. "I had decided to get out of the Air Force," he said, "and I liked the deal Homer offered me."

After spending eight years in the Air Force, he was released as a captain last August and joined his father-in-law in October. His wife, while he had been in the Philippines, was the firm's bookkeeper. "I've got a lot to learn," he says of his new career, "but I think I'm going to like it."

Royal Red Shrimp And Lobsters May Mean New Fishery

A new seafood delicacy, royal red shrimp from the deep waters of the Gulf of Mexico, may soon grace Texas dinner tables, thanks to the enterprise of R. E. Clegg, who operates a fleet of trawlers from Port Lavaca.

First discovered by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife exploratory vessel the Oregon, in waters so deep that they were out of reach of ordinary shrimp gear, the fame of these crustaceans slowly spread among the fishing fraternity until Clegg decided to do something about it, and rigged one of his boats, the Sammy C. with the heavy gear necessary to fish in 1200 to 1500 feet of water.

On the test run recently, a 40-foot shrimp net at the end of a mile of 9/16 cable picked up Royal reds at every drag, and so enthusiastic was Clegg after the trip that he now plans to use a net twice as large, and is planning to go into commercial production in about 60 days, when Gulf waters warm up and the weather becomes better.

And, as a sort of bonus, he made another discovery that may bring not one, but two, new delicacies to market. Each time the nets were raised, there were from 40 to 50 Danish lobsters in with the shrimp.

"If you figure eight to ten drags a day, that mounts up to some lobsters," Clegg said, "even though we were only using a 40-foot net."

And the reason he is so enthusiastic, especially about the lobsters is the fact that "they're as tender as whipped cream when they are broiled; tenderer even than shrimp that were broiled right beside them."

But he's not letting the lobsters overshadow the Royal Red Shrimp. He gave samples of these to friends around town, and one restaurant owner who specializes in seafood told him that if he could be assured of consistent supply, "I wouldn't use any others."

The shrimp are bright red, like a broiled lobster, when they're brought aboard the vessel, and when cooked they taste much like lobsters. They are a little different than ordinary shrimp, in that their heads are larger, and approximately 50 per cent of their weight is lost in heading, rather than the 40 per cent lost by the ordinary brown, white and pink shrimp caught closer inshore, but those the Sammy C brought in weighed in at 26 to 30 to the pound with heads off. This is well within the commercial range.

Clegg says some Florida boats tried deep sea fishing for this species about a year ago, but abandoned it when inshore shrimp improved and they could fish for browns and whites. However, he pointed out, those boats had only conventional gear, and none of them had the extra heavy equipment and winches necessary to handle an 80-foot net and a mile of cable.

Another boat out of Rockport that tried the deep water fishery was not rigged for the Royal Red fishery, for these shrimp live in the cold waters off the edge of the Continental shelf, in water from 1200 to 1500 feet deep, and the ordinary shrimp is used to depths of from 250 to 300 feet.

To handle the great length of heavy cable necessary, Clegg installed a huge winch and other equipment to handle the terrific load.

He says if the 80-foot net works all right, he'll probably go to a ninety-footer, or even a hundred feet wide at the mouth, instead of the two smaller nets usually fished in the shallower grounds.

INCOME TAX NEWS

Even though your child earned $600 or more last year, you as a parent, may be able to claim him as a dependent on that 1962 federal income tax return.

This good news came today from Robert H. Kitner, administrative officer of Internal Revenue Service, Corpus Christi.

"If you have supplied more than half of his support, you may claim an exemption for him regardless of the amount he earned, providing he hasn't reached his 19th birthday by Jan. 1, 1963."

"When the child is 19 or over, you still may claim an exemption for him if he was a full-time student during some part of each of five calendar months in 1962, and if you meet the support test. A full-time student is one enrolled for the number of hours which is considered to be a full-time attendance."

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Savoie of St. Ann, Ill., are visiting his brother Bill Savoie, for a month.

$400,000 Bond Issue—

leaving other low-priority work to be completed if and when federal funds were available.

In this, Emory M. Spencer, local oil man and real estate operator, agreed, saying that it was apparent that the bond issue was needed, although he recommended that the district's long range planning be towards the day when the Navigation District could support itself as other navigations districts are doing. However, he said, he believed that the bond issue under discussion should be for $400,000, with the present 30 cent tax rate maintained.

Janecek told the meeting that this was possible, and that a $400,000 bond issue could be retired in nine years if the present rate of 30 cents per $100 assessed value was used and assessments and rate of collections remained at their present level.

After some further discussion, the Area Planning and Development Board voted unanimously that the Navigation Board should ask for a bond issue on this basis, and members of the Board of Directors of the Rockport Chamber of Commerce endorsed the action unanimously.

Chairman Ted Little and members of the Navigation Board said after the meeting that they next regular meeting on March 6, asking the Commissioners Court for an election, and that this would be presented to the commissioners court at its meeting on March 11. This would mean that the election will probably be held some time in April or early May.

FUNDS SOUGHT FOR FORMER MILKMAN

Mrs. R. H. Dick (SO 4-6586) and Mrs. R. L. Harrell (SO 4-6130) are soliciting funds on behalf of Carl Murphee who, several years ago, was on a Knolle milk route in the Rockport-Fulton area, and is well known in the area.

After leaving the Knolle route, Mr. Murphee became employed at a pipeline company and suffered a serious accident recently. While at work, over 3,000 pounds of pipe fell on him. The ribs on his right side were broken, his right lung was punctured and had to be removed. His spleen and kidney were punctured. Both legs as well as his skull were fractured, and his collar bone was broken.

Murphee is injured near Alvin and is in critical condition in the Alvin Hospital; no visitors are allowed. He has a wife and six children who are in need; they live in Corpus Christi in a rented house. Anyone interested in donating funds to help this stricken family may contact either Mrs. Dick or Mrs. Harrell, at the phone numbers listed, and they will come by and pick up the donation.

SHRIMP LANDINGS—

Texas boats fished the Campeche grounds during the month.

Six vessels were lost or damaged in January, largely due to the bad weather.

The ex-vessel price for 15/20 shrimp remained fairly steady during the month, at 94-97 cents a pound to fishermen, with a five to seven cent break for each lower size count.

The oyster fishing during January was very good, Farley said. About 15,000 gallons were taken commercially during the month. These were in good condition and were yielding an average of two gallons of meats per Texas barrel (270 pounds, shell weight). The demand for Texas oysters was unusually strong, with some dealers having trouble supplying their customers with good quality certified oysters.

Landings of blue crabs for processing amounted to around 115,000 pounds, which was above the amount landed in December, but far below landings in January, 1962. There are four processing plants in Texas, Farley said, at Aransas Pass, Matagorda, Port Bolivar, and Port Lavaca.

Finfish landings totaled about 170,000 pounds, which was little different from in December. However, in January 65 per cent of the poundage came from bay areas as rough weather kept the red snapper fishermen in port.

TEC Establishes Vocational Training For Unemployed

Vocational training programs designed to train unemployed workers to do productive work at comfortable wages are being established in Corpus Christi under the Manpower Development and Training Act, according to Donald W. Hawkins, Texas Employment Commission manager.

The Manpower Development and Training Act of 1962, passed by the Eighty-Seventh Congress, provides Federal funds to pay training allowances and, in some instances, cost-of-living allowances to unemployed workers selected by TEC to attend these vocational training programs. These allowances range from $29 per week and up; for single youth age 19 through 21 years of age, $20 per week. Preference in selection of trainees for these courses is given unemployed heads of families. TEC is charged with the responsibility of selecting the occupations for training and determining the number of workers to be trained, making sure that training is not recommended except where it will lead to jobs for the workers following training. Del Mar Technical Institute in Corpus Christi develops the curriculums for the training programs and is responsible for conducting the training program.

One course of training is Household Appliance Repair has been underway at Del Mar Tech since Oct. 15, 1962. A training program for Automobile Body Repairmen will be started at Del Mar Tech on Feb. 18, according to Hawkins.

Trainees for this program are now being selected. Another training program will begin on March 4 for trainees to become Diesel Engine Mechanics. This is considered a very good training program because the use of diesel engines is increasing, calling for more mechanics to service these engines.

Men 18 to 50 years of age who have completed the tenth grade in high school and who have had some mechanical experience may apply to the TEC office at 820 Buffalo Street in Corpus Christi to make application for training as Diesel Mechanics.

Other training programs in which TEC anticipates training at an early date include the job of Silk and Wool Pressers in tailor shops, for which either men or women may qualify. Still another occupation in which training will likely be provided soon is that of Meat Cutter in retail grocery stores or meat markets. "Individuals interested in these training courses may also apply in person to TEC," Hawkins stated.

It's the Law in TEXAS

Legal Checkup a Safety Measure

Legal trouble is easier and cheaper to prevent than to cure. Most wage earning, childbearing, home-buying, installment paying families don't see much need for a family lawyer.

Often only under prodding, one may have his lawyer prepare a will.

But can you tell a big legal risk from a small one? Can you spot the signs of legal trouble?

Check with your family lawyer when:

1. Your status changes: Upon becoming of age, marriage, the birth of your children, buying a house, divorce or death. For you may then need to draft or revise your will, change your insurance, or refigure your taxes.

2. You buy or sell. Look out for fee flaws in the papers before you go into debt, part with money, or sign anything involving big expenditures or long term obligations.

3. You enter into other contracts. Promises, spoken or written, bind you if they call for a "consideration," something of value in return.

4. Someone threatens your rights. The law exists to defend them but with some rights you must take action yourself for them to work for you.

When you can bring your lawyer "five" facts (e. g. unsigned contracts, vexing tax returns you haven't filed), he can do much more for you, and at a smaller cost than when you bring him "cold" facts (mistakes you have made which threaten trouble).

But above all, get both live and cold facts to him at once. For time may run out in many such situations. Your lawyer may be able to do something for you today, which he cannot do tomorrow.

Tell your lawyer what you want. Tell him all the facts, good or bad, and then keep him informed all along. He is sworn to keep what you tell in confidence, he cannot serve you well without full knowledge.

(This newsfeature, prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform—not to advise. No person should never apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

Dee Jeffries of the Merchant Marine Academy, who is aboard the ship Marjorie Lykes, visited with his grandmother, Mrs. Chas. T. Picton, over the weekend. The Marjorie Lykes is on her way to the Mediterranean.
