Holiday Death Toll Hits New Record Of 181

(By The Associated Press)

A RECORD high total of at least 181 persons were killed in violent accidents during the Thanksgiving day holiday.

The 181 total reported in an Associated Press survey includes 123 killed in traffic accidents and 58 in miscellaneous mishaps.

The 58 include victims of fires, plane crashes, shootings, falls, hunting accidents, and 14 killed in Alabama tornadoes.

Thirteen of the total were reported in Texas.

Previous High Was 128

The 181 figure is the highest in Associated Press Thanksgiving day records. The previous high was 128 in 1947. The traffic death toll surpassed the 1941 Thanksgiving record of 115 persons killed on the highways.

Last year 114 were killed on turkey day, including 86 in traffic accidents.

The average traffic death toll in a 24 hour period, based on National Safety council records for the first nine months of 1949, is 82. That includes deaths of persons who were injured but died some time later. Thus the 123 total for the 30-hour Thanksgiving period is 50 per cent greater.

"Horror Days"

Ned H. Dearborn, president of the National Safety council, said this year's death count is "additional evidence that our holidays are becoming horror days."

The state by state final tabulation (traffic and miscellaneous):

Alabama 1-14; Arizona 4-0; Arkansas 2-0; California 10-3; Connecticut 1-1; Delaware 0-1; Florida 3-1; Illinois 10-1; Indiana 5-4; Iowa 2-1; Kansas 5-0; Kentucky 0-1; Maine 1-0; Maryland 3-1; Massachusetts 4-1; Michigan 5-1; Minnesota 1-0; Mississippi 0-2; Missouri 4-0; Montana 1-0; Nebraska 2-0; New Hampshire 0-1; New Jersey 1-3; New Mexico 1-0; New York 6-3; North Carolina 5-2; Ohio 10-1; Oklahoma 3-2; Oregon 1-0; Pennsylvania 7-4; Rhode Island 0-1; South Dakota 0-2; Tennessee 5-1; Texas 6-7; Virgina 7-0; Washington 3-0; Wisconsin 7-3.

THIRTEEN TEXANS DEAD IN WEEKEND VIOLENCE

Teachers Okay Move To Austin

FORT WORTH, Nov. 25. (AP).—The house of delegates of the Texas State Teachers association voted tonight 198 to 181 to move the organization's headquarters from Fort Worth to Austin.

The action came in a vote to accept a special committee's report that the move be made immediately and "looking forward to building a large headquarters building" in Austin.

The action came on the heels of a warning to the association not to become "drunk with power."

Move Is Opposed

Asserting that the move would be considered "political" by the state's taxpayers, W. T. Hanes of Cameron said "we have been charged and not without foundation that we are the state's most powerful lobby. Let's not become drunk with power".

Terrell Ogg, school superintendent at Freeport favoring the move to Austin, told the delegates "three quarters of the people in Texas don't know anything about this proposal to move to Austin and the others think it's a teachers' affair.

"I don't believe the legislature would get upset if we put a little pressure on them. I believe we'd get somewhere by going after it. If it takes pressure to raise salaries, I'm for it".

Debate on the issue, the most controversial placed before the house of delegates at the TSTA's 71st annual meeting here, began

UN Blockade Of Red China Is Demanded

(By The Associated Press)

LAKE SUCCESS, Nov. 25. — Nationalist China asked the United Nations today to blockade Communist China both militarily and economically. It also appealed to UN member states to refrain from establishing diplomatic relations with the Communist regime.

Dr. Tingfu F. Tsiang, chief spokesman for Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek at the UN, urged the world organization to condemn Russia for aiding the Communist government of Mao Tze-Tung based in Peiping.

The Nationalist spokesman made his appeal in a 17,000-word speech before the General Assembly's 59-nation political committee after Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky announced his delegation would not take part in the debate.

Vishinsky Leaves Meeting

Prime Minister Stalin's foreign minister walked out of the committee room but left Deputy Foreign Minister Jakob A. Malik behind to serve as acting head of the Soviet delegation. Vishinsky told the assembly Wednesday that Moscow no longer recognizes the Nationalist delegation as the legal spokesman for China at the UN.

When the committee began deliberating Nationalist charges that Russia had aided the Chinese Communists, Vishinsky demanded the floor on a point of order. He said the Nationalist case was provocative, hinted that Chiang's regime might not last more than a few days and said the Soviet delegation would not take part in a "puppet comedy" debate.

One by one Russia's satellite colleagues followed Vishinsky's lead. First the Soviet Ukraine, then

Old Tunes Holding Own, 'Tex' Beneke Says On Stop Here

By CLIFF BLACKBURN
Avalanche Staff Writer

About 500 residents of Lubbock and the surrounding area danced to the nostalgic tunes of the old Glenn Miller orchestra under the direction of Tex Beneke last night at the Cotton club near the city.

The 22-man orchestra, now on a sweep through Texas on their way to the East coast, will stop in Amarillo tonight and plans one-night stands at Dallas, Waco and Fort Worth, Tex's home town.

"Man, will I ever be glad to see Fort Worth and some of my mother's cooking again," Tex drawled. "I am so sick of having to eat on the road that the idea of Christmas at home for the first time in ten years sounds like a dream."

Is Typical Texan

Tex confided that he was just a "cowtown" boy who had been "jobbing" around Fort Worth with small combos and bands since he was a nine-year-old boy in knee pants. "I got my first big break when I became a charter member of the Glenn Miller orchestra in 1938," Tex said. "My second big break, and also the band's, was our recording of 'Chattanooga Choo Choo.' "

Tex stayed with the original

West German Republic Rocked By Bitter Feud Among Leaders

(By The Associated Press)

BONN, Germany, Nov. 25—A bitter personal feud between Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and Social Democratic leader Kurt Schumacher over the new Allied-German agreement rocked the West German republic today.

Schumacher was barred from the next 20 days' sittings of parliament—which means he will be out until about next March—for calling Adenauer "chancellor of the Allies" in debate.

A full scale crisis was averted only by the Social Democrats' decision not to boycott parliament in protest.

"My exclusion strongly endangers further collaboration in this house," said Schumacher, one-armed, one-legged chief of the opposition to Adenauer's coalition government. "The Social Democratic party has not yet decided how it will react, but it will react."

The exclusion order was issued by the council of elders, a rules committee made up of representatives of all parties, which held he insulted Adenauer by implying the chancellor was a puppet of the

Reds Continue To Hold Envoy

By LEON SHLOSS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 — The State department disclosed today that the Chinese Communists are still holding U. S. Consul General Angus Ward in Mukden.

Ward and four of his staff on Wednesday were convicted, sentenced and ordered deported for allegedly mistreating a former Chinese employe.

The action capped a long term of imprisonment for the five during which they were not allowed to communicate with any U. S. officials.

No Arrangements Made

The department revealed today that despite the deportation order, the Manchurian Reds have made no arrangements to get Ward and his colleagues, including all members of the consulate staff, out of the country.

This failure to act represents further detention, inasmuch as only the Communist government can furnish transportation for the American officials to the Chinese border.

Ward reported his plight in a telephone call late Thursday to Consul General O. Edmund Clubb in Peiping. The State department disclosed details of the conversation today.

Clubb reported that Ward said those who had been imprisoned with him were "feeling better" and that his own health was "good."

Ward said no travel arrangements have yet been made and that the Red officials have not given him any information either on a schedule or an itinerary.

State department spokesman Michael J. McDermott told newsmen there is no basis for reports that plans are being made to send a plane or ship into China to evacuate Ward and his party.

The Air Force had been reported ready to fly the officials out, but the report, while true, is meaningless unless the Communist government grants permission for the flight over its territory.

Meanwhile, there were two other Far Eastern developments:

1. A British official in Hong Kong quoted "well informed" Chinese sources as saying that Russia was behind the arrest and imprisonment of Ward.

2. President Truman conferred

Operators Seek New Coal Talks

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25. (AP)—Southern coal producers tonight invited renewed contract talks with John L. Lewis.

The southern producers acted amid reports that other segments of the industry were ready to ask Lewis for peace talks, possibly next week.

Lewis himself was reported about to call off any new strike until after Christmas.

Southern Group 'Ready'

The southern group telegraphed Lewis that it is "ready to resume conferences at any reasonable time and place you designate for the purpose of again endeavoring to negotiate an agreement that will meet the full requirements of our situation."

Joseph E. Moody, president of the Southern Coal Producers association said:

"We felt it was time to resume negotiations. Mr. Lewis can advise us if he thinks it's possible to come to terms on a contract."

Moody's mesasge to Lewis recalled that when negotiations between the southern group and the union at Bluefield, W. Va., were suspended on November 2, it was understood that contract talks could be resumed at any time.

Moody's message said the southern association still stands on its

U. S. Breaks With Panama

By GEORGE DURNO
INS Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—The United States today angrily severed diplomatic relations with Panama as a result of the Panamanian political situation which has seen three men claim the presidency in five days.

Assistant Secretary of State Edward G. Miller in charge of Latin-American affairs announced the American action after the latest development which moved Arnulfo Arias into the presidential palace. Miller declared:

Miller expressed "profound shock" at the turn of events which have been master-minded by police Chief Jose Remon. The U. S. official said there "could not be a greater blow to democratic principles and the inter-American system than developments of the past five days in Panama."

Remon, the "strong man" who controls the 2,000 Panamanian police, installed Arias finally, after first ousting President Daniel Chanis, jr., in favor of vice-President Roberto F. Chiari, only to see Chanis voted back into office.

Arnulfo Arias was president of Panama during the early days of World War II and considered pro-Nazi. He fled to Cuba one jump ahead of a mob at that time. Even earlier, he engineered a bloodless revolution which put his brother Harmadio into the presidential palace, but the brothers later split.

Assistant Secretary Miller told

Former Governor Of Oklahoma Dies

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 25. (AP) J. C. (Jack) Walton, 68, impeached and ousted from office as Oklahoma governor in 1923, died here early today.

Walton, who served only 10 months as governor before his ouster, was in failing health for several years. He suffered a stroke on a city bus here Nov. 4. He died in Mercy hospital at 12:01 a.m.

Gov. Roy J. Turner ordered the flag atop the state capitol flown at half mast today and plans were made for Walton's body to lie in state from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday in the capitol rotunda. Funeral services will be held some time Monday.

Walton was ousted from office during a bitter Ku Klux Klan fight in which he declared martial law in Oklahoma and unsuccessfully sought to prevent the legislature from convening.

In the 1930's Walton was elected to the State Corporation commission.

Cash, Narcotics Taken In Burglary

Battered Safe Found In Field Near City

THE safe of the Hull Drug store at 111 North College was found about 5 p.m. Friday in a cane patch northwest of the city where it was abandoned by burglars who earlier Friday took it from the store, then battered it open to remove nearly $900 in cash and a quantity of narcotics.

The burglary brought the number of major thefts under investigation by area law enforcement agencies to four during the past week.

The safe of the Pacific finance company at 1907 Texas, containing $3,004.79 in cash and $1,978.83 in checks, was hauled away and broken open in a cotton patch six miles south of Lubbock Nov. 17.

Saturday night, a trio of armed bandits robbed the Economy Department store at 811-13 Broadway of about $1,000 in cash, kidnapping an official of the firm as hostage for their getaway. The hostage was later released unharmed east of the city.

Officials at Abernathy, meanwhile, have been unable to report any progress in their search for a bandit who hijacked $117 from a filling station operator there Monday.

Remaining in the drug store safe when it was found in a field near the Texas Tech experimental farm by Ernest Bryant, an employe of the college, were some narcotics, $163 in checks, and two pennies.

Man Who Imitates Dogs Barks At Wrong Policeman

(By The Associated Press)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 25 — Actor Dean Hall, who makes his living barking like a dog for the movies, was working after hours, police said today as they jailed him for the 13th time this year.

Hall was booked on suspicion of drunkenness. Officers said a passerby at a street intersection was barking. In jail, Hall was quoted by officers as saying he can imitate 50 breeds of dogs. Prisoners say he did that, too, all night long.

'Mad Dog' Killer Dies In Chair

CHICAGO, Nov. 26. (Saturday) (AP)—"Mad Dog" killer James Morelli died early today in the electric chair.

The 22-year-old murderer was executed for his part in Chicago's bloodiest killing orgy since the 1929 St. Valentine's Day massacre.

He entered the Cook county jail chamber at 12:02 a. m. and was pronounced dead eight minutes later.

Just two hours earlier it was announced Morelli had willed his eyes to any blind man who would furnish "liberal financial aid" to Morelli's wife, Genevieve, 18, and their 22 months old baby, Dorothy.

However, Dr. Irwin Hoffman, jail physician said Morelli's wishes will not be carried out. He said State's Attorney John S. Boyle said such a procedure would be illegal since Morelli's wife had not given her written consent.

Warm Weather Seen For Plains Today

South Plains residents could look forward to another warm fall day today, with near ideal conditions prevailing for those planning to attend the Texas Tech-Hardin Simmons football game.

But weathermen predicted a slight drop in temperatures here tonight as a cold front moves in from the Pacific Northwest. Its rate of speed early this morning indicated that it would not strike before late tonight or early Sunday morning.

Skies will be partly cloudy Sunday as a result of the front, but extremes in temperature are not expected either tonight or Sunday, weathermen said.

Temperatures Friday soared to a warm 75 in the afternoon after dropping to 37 at dawn.

GENERAL BRADLEY MAKES REPORT

Defense Plan Awaits Approval Of 12 Atlantic Pact Countries

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 — The military high commands of the 12 North Atlantic pact nations have worked out a broad strategic plan for the defense of western Europe and North America.

Formal adoption by defense ministers of the Atlantic bloc governments is expected at a meeting in Paris next week.

This was reported today by Gen. Omar Bradley, top ranking American military leader and chairman of the military committee recently organized by the Atlantic pact countries.

Authoritative informants said the plan is a broad statement of the basic defense concept around which detailed arrangements can be worked out later. It is not, according to these informants, a "war plan" in the usual sense of specifying numbers of men, units and equipment which would be employed in any emergency.

Agreement on such an overall defense policy is one of the conditions which must be met before the United States can go through with the billion dollar arms aid program which Congress voted

Action On Solons Seen

BY EARLE MARCKRES
INS Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25. — President Truman today directed Attorney General McGrath to tighten control of America's atomic secrets even to the extent of enforcing the law against members of Congress who disclose classified information.

The President's order was issued at an hour and a half top secret White House conference with McGrath and Sen. McMahon (D.-Conn.), chairman of the Joint Congressional Atomic Energy committee.

Following the meeting McGrath said Mr. Truman is "concerned" over security of vital atomic information and McMahon admitted this concern involved, among other things, safeguarding secrets given in executive session to members of congressional committees.

HST's Stand Explained

McMahon added, however that Mr. Truman wants to feel free to continue to give the fullest possible information to Congress concerning the atomic bomb and atomic energy developments as he has in the past.

McGrath declared:

"The President has charged me with the duty of enforcing secrecy on classified information concerning atomic energy to the extent possible under existing law."

McGrath and McMahon were asked how they could guarantee that information given in an executive session or a congressional committee won't be divulged later by a senator or congressman.

Laws Apply To Solons

McGrath replied that the laws regarding national defense security applies to everyone, including members of Congress.

The attorney general also made it clear that the President's "concern" over "permitting" atomic information to be divulged, concerned the "proper people" in top positions in related federal departments.

But particular emphasis was placed on what happens to testimony on atomic information and other defense secrets given to executive sessions of congressional committees.

McGrath and McMahon were

General Strike Ends In France

PARIS, Saturday, Nov. 26. (AP) Reports of violence on the west coast reached Paris early today as France's largely ineffective general strike came to a close.

At St. Nazaire, shipbuilding center on the west coast, strikers attacked trucks and cars substituting for the city's normal transport services. Strikers were reported to have handled a chauffeur roughly, but he was not seriously hurt.

Members of the General Confederation of Labor (CGT) broke into a government structure at Brest and set it on fire before police ousted them and extinguished the flames. Across the country, in east central France at Dijon, police used tear gas bombs to disperse some 2,000 CGT strikers who tried to break through lines guarding a perfume building.

Union Claims Light

Even leaders of the nation's two big labor unions, who called the strike, acknowledged privately it had not come up to expectations. They claimed genuinely effective response in only three industrial divisions.

However, the strike did succeed in closing down mills, factories, mines and ports at various points.

But there was business as usual in nearly all retail stores, banks and offices, whose employes the unionists had invited to join in the strike. Hundreds of thousands of persons walked, bicycled or hitch-hiked to work. Food supplies

Wilson Youth Named Section 4-H Winner

WILSON, Nov. 25. (Spl.).— E. P. Wicker, jr., 19, of Wilson, has been judged one of the 10 sectional winners in the 1949 national 4-H dairy production program held recently.

As a reward for a fine record compiled in 4-H activities in Wilson, Wicker atteneded the National 4-H Club congress in Chicago this year as a guest of the Kraft Foods company.

Despite loss of 11 calves through disease and loss of valuable feed when the barn burned three years ago, he developed a herd of 18 registered Jersy dairy cattle. During seven years in 4-H, young Wicker also did an excellent job with his meat animal and field crops programs.

He has shown a number of prize cattle, including a grand champion which received the American Jersey Cattle Club award. He won a scholarship for being outstanding junior showman at the 1947 Panhandle-South Plains Fair. More than 350 persons saw his demonstrations on dairy production subjects. He was a member of judging teams which received high ratings, and was junior leader of his club. He also was active in the county 4-H Council.

The 66-year-old grandfather indicated to newsmen that he will plead insane because "I wasn't normal when I did it, so I think I deserve leniency to some extent."

Big Five UN Agreement Unlikely Despite Small Nation Pressures

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press Correspondent

The United Nations has overwhelmingly rejected Russia's two tactical moves in the current General Assembly.

One of them accused the United States and Britain of plotting war and suggested a Big Five peace treaty. The other proposed banning the atomic bomb with a simultaneous start on international control of atomic production—but without the continuous inspection demanded by the United States and incorporated in the majority UN plan.

Both proposals had been labeled by the western powers as sheer propaganda.

Control Plan Urged

Affirmatively, the General Assembly called rather folornly on the Big Five and Canada to continue their efforts toward establishment of a bomb control system. (Russia, denouncing the Chinese Nationalists, doesn't even admit that there is a Big Five at the UN any more.)

In effect, the assembly merely reiterated its belief in the majority bomb plan and in the UN charter.

But the small nations did emphasize that they wanted action on both, and particularly on the bomb.

They got down to reality when they said they were being ignored and pushed around by power politics, but the air of unreality returned when President Carlos Romulo asserted that the bomb vote was an expression of faith in the possibility of Big Five agreement.

Agreement Far Away

Such an agreement seems to be as far away as it possibly could be short of actual war.

There is a good chance that the United States herself would be one of the most embarrassed countries in the world if Russia should suddenly announce complete acceptance of the Baruch plan.

The situation today is far different from that of 1946, when the U. S. proposals were devised. Russian adherance to her expansionist policies, her official status as the directing power behind the Communist drive in every country, have become too clear. There is much doubt that Congress would now permit a stoppage of bomb production, and even greater doubt that America's atomic plants would be turned over to international ownership and control.

Red Protests Accepted

Russia's recently renewed protestation that she has no slightest intention of making war can be accepted at face value without detracting in the slightest from the western policy of seeking immunity from war through military strength. In fact, the protestations are widely accepted.

Just as widely accepted is the belief that Russia is promoting Marshall plans, point fours, and the golden rule, or it will be won by Russian-style Communism. A corollary of this is that if Communism fails, there is no slightest guarantee that Russia's attitude toward war will not change. It is based now on the belief that she can win without it.

India's soccer team is "playing its way" to Brazil for a World Tournament next June.

New Cash Crop May Aid Plains Farmers Wilson Youth Named

A new cash crop in the form of "pop sorghum" might help South Plains farmers in the face of cotton allotments, the Texas Tech plant industry department has reported.

Developed by the Texas Agricultural Experiment station, the new pop sorghum is said to have an even better texture than pop corn and a chief advantage to area farmers lies in the fact that the new grain does not need as much moisture as the conventional crop.

The new "corn" is just like pop corn except that it is smaller, more tender and has no husks to get between teeth. It also has a good "expansion coefficient." In other words, its kernel expands many times into a light, fluffy food.

South Plains farmers could grow the cross-bred sorghum without using irrigated lands, whereas pop corn is ordinarily grown in areas with consistent rainfall or irrigation facilities, plant industry experts said. Some farmers are already planning to grow small experimental amounts of the sorghum, they said.

Special Course Scheduled For Brownfield Christmas Clerks

BROWNFIELD, Nov. 25 (Spcl.) Sponsored by the Brownfield Chamber of Commerce and Distributive Education class of Brownfield High school, a five-day course for the training of extra clerks and other Christmas season help will begin here Nov. 30.

The classes will be held from 4 to 6 p. m. each day in Room 102 of the East building on the high school campus. Otis L. Davis, Brownfield High school DE coordinator, will be the instructor.

The course is open to all extra Christmas help, whether employed now or planning to be employed later. At the conclusion of the course, certificates will be awarded those completing the requirements, and merchants will be supplied lists of available help.

The training plan, "What Christmas Extras Need to Know," will be followed in the course, according to the instructor. This plan includes how to make out the sales slip; how to handle cash, change making; package wrapping; stockkeeping and counter upkeep; salesman's arithmetic; greeting the customer; presenting the merchandist; suggestion selling; selling related merchandise; ho wto know your merchandise; successful selling techniques; appearance and personality, and how to be courteous.

Seven Plains Men Named To Committee On Anti-Red Day

AUSTIN, Nov. 25. Special)—A total of seven South Plains men have been named to an American Legion committee for "Democracy Beats Communism Day" to be observed in Texas on Dec. 7.

The announcement was made by W. T. Bridges of Levelland, 19th district commander of the Legion.

The men are George S. Berry of Lubbock, Joe Smith of Sudan, Douglas Chapman of Abernathy, Ernest F. Hillen of Slaton, Mac Wassell of Lamesa, Z. O. Lincoln of Levelland and David Batty of Floydada.

Each of the 758 American Legion posts and the more than 100,000 Legionnaires in Texas will aid in a breakfast until bedtime program Dec. 7, in observance of "Democracy Beats Communism Day."

Gov. Allan Shivers has issued a proclamation calling upon the seven million citizens of Texas to join the Legion in devoting Dec. 7 to a day for "calm, patriotic consideration of the benefits of Democracy."

The South Plains members of the district advisory committee will aid in arranging a suitable observance in the 19th Congressional district.

Tech, H-SU Battle For Border Title Here Today

20,000 Expected To See All-Out League Classic

Winner Will Get Bid To El Paso's Sun Bowl; Tech Slight Favorite

By JOE KELLY
Avalanche Sports Editor

Texas Tech and Hardin-Simmons, two perennial Border Conference powers, throw away the season's record this afternoon at 2:30 in Jones Stadium and fight it out for the conference title and a bid to El Paso's Sun Bowl Jan. 2, with an overflow crowd of 20,000 fans expected to be on hand for the 16th renewal of this classic.

The Red Raiders go into the game with a perfect conference record and a season's mark of six victories and four defeats. The Cowboys place a record of four conference victories and one defeat on the line, along with one other victory, two defeats and a tie.

The weatherman late last night made football fans happy with a prediction of temperatures in the seventies and relatively clear skies. But he warned that there might be winds, southwest to west, of approximately 20 to 25 miles an hour.

Raiders Favored

Season's records mean nothing in this annual grudge battle and comparative scores are of little aid in picking the eventual victor. The Raiders enter the game carrying the backing of most experts, but mindful that the Cowboys are never tougher than when they are supposedly underdogs.

The lone defeat in circuit play on the Cowboy slate is a 19-7 loss to West Texas State college in a distince upset. The Raiders have won from four loop foes, while the Cowboys have the same number of conference victories.

This year the game is expected to turn into a scoring bee similar to last year's 28-20 victory turned in by Texas Tech. Hardin-Simmons will present a powerful three-pronged scoring threat, with Quarterback John Ford's passes, Halfback Hook Davis' end sweeps and Fullback Ray Troutman's jarring line smashes.

Match Wits Today

The Raiders will counter with the off-tackle smashes of Fullback Bud Conley and Halfback Cal Steveson, the damaging passes of Quarterbacks Ernest Hawkins and Milton Rathbone and the broken field finesse of Halfbacks Tim Hatch, Ike Stuver and Walter Maloney.

What The Record Shows

Cowboy power has accounted for 239 points in nine games this season, while allowing 153, just two more than the Raiders have allowed in 10 tilts. The Raiders, on the other hand, have scored only 151 points, 88 less than the Cowboys in one more game.

In conference play, the Cowboys have averaged 28.6 points a game, distinct upset. The Raiders have while allowing an average of 10.6 Tech has averaged 25.5 points a game and allowed only an average of 6.5. This would indicate an edge to Hardin-Simmons offensively and an edge to Texas Tech defensively.

Both teams have one star more or less crippled for the game and expected to see only limited action. Davis, one of the Southwest's great backs, has been bothered all season with a bad knee. He reinjured it in the WTSC game Nov. 12 and may be restricted as a result.

Rathbone May Be Out

Rathbone, probably Tech's finest passer and an important cog in the defeat of the Cowboys last year, missed four weeks with a trick right knee. He returned to action last week against New Mexico and promptly threw it out of joint again. He may not play at all today.

Hardin-Simmons is deep in backfield reserve power. They have such fine running backs as Pat Bailey, Harold Taylor, Nolan Harvey, Nolan and Chick Tiger, Brooks Allen, Dunnie Goode and Gene Offield.

Among the fullbacks, the Cowboys have Troutman, Hugh Higgins and Bobby Blair, while quarterbacks on tap to back up Ford are Bobby Hart, Dean Henninger, Jim Riddle and Charley Williams.

The line is experienced and has weight in such tackles as Strawberry Rowan at 240 pounds, Jerry Cooper at 220, Wayne Gumm at 220, Cush Holder at 220, Bob Balch at 210, Bill Hood at 205 and Roland Starkey at 202.

The guards are headed by 215-pound Bob Surratt and 200-pound Paul Frost, both veterans. Others include Bill Murry, 218 pounds, Jack Smith, 205 pounds, Toni Adams, 190 pounds, and others.

All in all, the Cowboys will field a starting line that averages 206 pounds, with a backfield that averages 180. The team average is 196 pounds.

HSU Line Heavy

Against that the Raiders will start a line that averages 191 pounds, a loss of 15 pounds per man, a backfield that averages 178, a loss of two pounds, and a team average that is 186 pounds, or 10 pounds per man.

Along the lines of comparative scores, each team beat Texas Western, the Cowboys by 33-14 and Tech by 13-0. Each beat Arizona, the Cowboys by 35-0 and the Raiders by 27-7. Each beat New Mexico, the Cowboys by 34-7 and Tech by 27-0. WTSC licked H-SU 19-7 and Tech beat the Buffs 35-19.

In other games, the Cowboys beat Tempe 34-13 and North Texas State 13-7, tied Houston 27-27 and lost to Cincinnati 27-21 and Loyola 39-35.

Tech beat Tulsa 15-0 and Abilene Christian college 20-0, but lost to Texas 43-0, to Texas A&M 26-7, to Baylor 28-7 and to Rice 28-0.

But you can throw those games away today, they don't mean a thing. This is the Cowboys and the Raiders meeting and anything can happen—and probably will.

Boys Club Fives Gain Victories

The Pee Wee league Mustangs racked up a 13 to 7 victory over the Roughies in the opening basketball game of the evening at Lubbock Boys club Friday. Jerry Etter's 10 points sparked the Mustangs and Gene Calvert was high point man for the losers.

In the second affair on the club house hardwood, the Alley Rat Five swamped the Raiders, 42 to 17. Wade Wolfe's accurate shooting netted 18 points for the Rats. James Butler racked up seven points for the Raider five.

Two Junior league games were played. In the first, the Hornets gained a 31 to 19 victory over the Longhorns behind the long shots of Earl Dietering.. Dietering made 12 points for the winners. The Longhorns' Floyd Smith dropped the ball through the net three times for six points.

The Sorry Lot Five rolled to a 31 to 10 win over the Big Five in the second Junior league game. Bobby Tollison was high point man for the winners with 17 tallies. Craig McDonald led the losers with five.

Golden Gophers dropped a 14 to 37 decision to the Dirty Demons in the Senior loop battle. J. R. Bradford made eight points for the Demons and Billy Diamond led the losers with six.

No more games are scheduled until Monday afternoon.

Austria's radio industry has produced the "Weekend 5," weighing five pounds and called the lightest portable radio set on the continent.

Westerner Five Downs Abernathy

After being held to a 16-16 halftime tie, the Lubbock Westerner cage team turned on the steam in the second half last night at Chapman fieldhouse to defeat Abernathy, 45-24, for their second straight triumph.

Lubbock trailed during most of the first half, being behind 8-6 at the first quarter, and then came from under a 16-10 deficit to knot the count at 16-16.

A rejuvenated Lubbock squad doubled the score in the third quarter while not allowing the Antelopes to score, emerging with a 32-16 margin at the end of three periods of play.

Defense Works Well

A tight man-for-man defense by the Westerners in the second half accounted for the low scoring of the Antelopes, and the Westerners never allowed Abernathy to set up their zone defense in the last period, taking advantage of fast breaks to add to their point total.

LAMBERT OUT WITH INJURY
Lubbock basketball player, Charles Lambert, who played an outstanding game for the Westerners in their defeat of Abernathy Friday night, suffered a broken bone in his right foot and will be out of action four or five weeks, Coach David Cook said late Friday.

Pacing the Westerners was Charles Lambert, forward, with 11 points on four field goals and three free throws. Lambert did all the scoring for Lubbock in the first quarter on lay-up shots and one long bucket. Playing exceptionally well for Lubbock were Richard Allen and Bob Wassom. Forward Jimmy Sexton scored eight points for the Westerners, Allen seven and Carl Ince six.

For the Antelopes Center Esten Blackmon hit the basket for 12 points to take scoring honors for the night, and Derl Stephens chipped in with nine markers.

The lead in the game changed hands five times in the first half and was tied twice before Lubbock caught on fire in the second half.

Blackmon Paces Losers

A quick basket by Cheatham gove the Westerners an 18-16 margin after 50 seconds of the third stanza, and a free throw by Allen, two by Lambert and a field goal by Allen raised the score to 23-16. Sexton contributed two baskets and a free throw and Allen hit two close field goals for a 32-16 third quarter lead.

Wassom, Bill Williams, Ince and Sexton did all the scoring for Lubbock in the final quarter, and Blackmon chipped in six of Abernathy's eight points scored during the final frame. Jack Brownlow and Derl Stephens each scored one charity toss.

In a "B" game, the Lubbock quintet deefated Abernathy, 42-21. This was the first start for the Westerner second team.

Two Heavyweights Enter TAAF Tourney

Two more entries in the open heavyweight division of the district TAAF boxing tournament were received Friday, Director Ed Sides announced.

John Wilson, 198-pound Texas Tech student from Pecos, and Billy Joe Russell, 192-pound Techsan from Amarillo, are the two latest additions to the heavyweight roster.

This will be Russell's second tourney appearance here, as he competed in the 1947 Golden Gloves event.

Another new entry in the TAAF show, to be staged Dec. 8-9 at Sled Allen's arena, is John Pritchard, Lubbock welterweight who has fought on a number of amateur Sides said that he had received word that teams from Odessa and New Deal would enter the tourney, which will have two divisions — novice and open. The novice division will be for all boxers who have had fewer than five bouts and are under 19 years of age.

Entries for the tournament will be accepted at City Club gym, 1313½ College avenue, Lubbock, until noon of Dec. 8.

Walker To Make Final Appearance

It's SMU-TCU Today

FORT WORTH, Nov. 25. (AP)—They'll be playing for consolation only but a packed crowd will be in the stands tomorrow when Southern Methodist and Texas Christian battle for the thirty-first time.

It will be the season's end for Texas Christian but Southern Methodist still has awesome Notre Dame ahead before calling it quits.

For six years TCU has been unable to triumph over its nearby rival. The Horned Frogs came mighty close the past two seasons, however. In 1947 TCU gained a 19-19 tie. Last year the Frogs outplayed SMU for 58 minutes then settled for a 7-7 tie on the wizard passing of Gil Johnson.

A crowd of 33,000 is forecast as All-America Doak Walker makes his final appearance against Texas Christian. The Southern Methodist star has been favoring a charley horse this week but said he figured he could go 60 minutes against the Frogs if necessary.

Probable lineups (kickoff 2 p.m. CST):

EXPECTED TO STAR TODAY — Halfback Harold Taylor, who has been the main understudy to Wilton "Hook" Davis, one of the top halfbacks in the Southwest, has been filling in capably this year. Taylor is a sophomore from Lordsburg, N. M., and has answered Hardin-Simmons' prayer for a second Davis. The speedy back has picked up over 450 yards rushing in nine games this year and the Cowboys are counting on him heavily this afternoon against Texas Tech.

Fired-Up Middies Go Against Unbeaten Army Gridders Today

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 25. (AP)—Two super-charged football squads from West Point and Annapolis rolled into this crowded old city today, looked over the site of tomorrow's game and then settled down in quiet country retreats to await the blast of the referee's whistle.

Army's big, unbeaten galaxy, headed by Coach Earl Blaik and brimming with confidence, planned to spend the night at the Manufacturers Country club on the city's outskirts, while youthful George Sauer escorted his Navy hopefuls to the Pine Valley golf club in New Jersey.

Cold, cloudy weather awaits the 102,000 fans, including President Truman, who will watch the two service elevens collide for the 50th time at 12:30 (CST) in sprawling Municipal Stadium.

The Navy's 3,400 midshipmen and Army's 2,600 cadets are scheduled to reach the stadium on special trains shortly before game time. Every seat for the classic has long since been sold.

Army, boasting a string of 19 games without defeat and marred only by two ties, goes into the game a heavy favorite, as usual. The Cadets have a little of everything, including burning speed, and they fully rate the choice.

Navy has not had a successful season. The Middies have won only three while losing four and tying another. Against mutual foes—Penn and Columbia—Army looked much the more powerful and versatile.

Still, it is an honored axiom that nobody knows what is going to happen when Army and Navy collide. Almost invariably, the underdog plays over his head in this one. Last year the Middies had lost eight straight to earlier foes, yet they fought the Cadets to a blazing 21-21 tie.

The score, however, does not exactly tell the story. Army authorities kept quiet about it at the time, but the fact was that most of the West Point players were ill from something they had eaten on Thanksgiving day.

For another thing, both Fullback Gil Stephenson and Bobby Jack Stuart, Army's All-America halfback, were so crippled from leg injuries received in practice that they saw scarcely any service and were entirely ineffective.

This time it will be different. The Cadets are at full strength and they looked extremely healthy as they passed through here today. They are very anxious to exact revenge for last year.

PETERSBURG WINS

PETERSBURG, Nov. 25. (Special) — Bob Scarborough and Harold Rhodes paced the Petersburg All-Stars to a 42-40 victory over Lubbock Barber college here tonight. Lawson pitched in 12 points for the losers to take scoring honors.

Unbeaten Sooners To Meet Oklahoma Aggie Team Today

NORMAN, Okla., Nov. 25 (AP) — With a repeat Sugar Bowl bid virtually assured if they win, the Oklahoma Sooners were ready today for their 44th contest with the Oklahoma Aggies here tomorrow.

A crowd of 50,000 persons is expected to see the game in the enlarged Owen Field.

Sooner Coach Bud Wilkinson said that if his team wins, it would vote immediately after the game on whether to accept a bowl bid—and if so, which one.

Oklahoma is being wooed by both Sugar and Cotton Bowl officials. Players have said they favor a return to the Sugar Bowl.

Oklahoma is a four touchdown favorite but both Coach Wilkinson and Aggie Mentor Jim Lookabaugh predict a much closer contest.

Oklahoma has run its victory string to 19 straight games to be named the nation's No. 3 team.

The Aggies this season have won four, tied two and lost three.

The game will be the last for Lookabaugh who resigned last month.

The all-time record for the series shows Oklahoma has won 29 games, the Aggies eight and six were ties.

Both teams are physically fit with the Aggies expected to pit their aerial offense against the Sooners weak pass defense.

Veeck May Buy Another Club

By PAT ROBINSON
INS Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Now that Bill Veeck has sold out his interest in the Cleveland Indians at a profit of $500,000 to himself, the question arises: Where will he land next?

Baseball people say Bill now has his own money to speculate with and they feel sure his temperament won't permit him to sit idle. He'll want another ball club. But where is he going to get it?

Bill always has liked to operate with the other fellow's dough and he's always managed to make dough for himself as well as the other fellow. His slogan is: "Create something worth buying and then sell it."

Veeck would like to buy the New York Giants. So would several other individuals and combines. But that club definitely is not for sale.

No major league club is in financial distress at the moment and so Bill may have to wait awhile for a spot.

However, if he wants a triple-A club he might do business with the International League, where, we know for a fact, the Newark club is for sale. If not sold, it will be moved to another city.

And we are in position to say definitely today that the league is considering two other cities to which to move the Newark franchise.

The Giants own the Jersey City club which is no bananza and they might be willing to sell it.

The Jersey City politicians are talking about increasing the nominal rent the club pays the city for the use of its fine little ball park.

But now we learn that former Mayor Frank Hague asked the Giants to put a club in Jersey City and he was so eager to get one that he virtually handed them the park on a platter.

That contract has seven years to run so we don't see how the city can raise the rent at this time.

Meanwhile, either the Newark or Jersey City clubs might interest Hank Greenberg. Hank is the new general manager of the Cleveland club under its new ownership.

He does not own stock in the club. He is working on a salary, hoping to stay in the limelight and in a stretegic position to buy into a club if opportunity offers.

Baseball people would not be surprised to see Hank and Veeck hook up together again in the purchase of a club when and if one becomes available.

Meanwhile, trade winds are blowing more freely than ever because there is hardly a club in the majors that couldn't be turned into a real contender with the addition of two or three players in key spots.

Missouri Valley Accepts Invitation To Oleander Bowl

ABILENE, Nov. 25 (AP) — Missouri Valley accepted an invitation to play McMurry college in the Oleander Bowl at Galveston, Jan. 2.

McMurry athletic director Vernon Hilliard today received official notice from Bowl officials.

McMurry is champion of the Texas Conference. In games in 1947 and 48, Missouri Valley beat McMurry 28-13 both times.

Cotton Bowl Berth Is At Stake

Rice, Baylor Meet In Title Tilt Today

By MAX B. SKELTON
Associated Press Sports Writer

HOUSTON, Nov. 25.—A Conference championship and the host spot in the Cotton Bowl will be the prizes tomorrow as Rice and Baylor tangle in the Southwest Conference's first winner-take-all game since 1935.

A victory or tie would give Rice the championship and the Cotton Bowl's $120,000. Baylor must win to get into the Bowl classic and throw the two teams into a tie for the title.

Indications are that the host team of the Cotton Bowl will be Oklahoma, Virginia, North Carolina, or Kentucky. Reports also are that the loser, or Baylor in event of a tie game, will be invited to another major Bowl—probably the Orange Bowl.

In nine games Rice has lost only to Louisiana State, 7 to 14. Baylor bowed only to Texas, 0 to 20.

Not since 1935 have two Southwest teams met in a season-final game with the stakes so big. That was the year Southern Methodist and Texas Christian tangled at Fort Worth, SMU won and got a Rose Bowl trip.

Rice, a one-touchdown favorite, received a blow today with announcement that one of its great defensive linebackers, Gerald Weatherly, probably will be absent.

Weatherly and his defensive partner, Center Joe Watson, received leg injuries against Texas Christian. Watson is back in shape but Coach Jess Neely said only a miracle would permit Weatherly to play.

Coach Bob Woodruff brought his Baylor squad into town by plane today and said his only worries are about the Rice offense and defense. He has no serious injuries.

Rice takes the favorite's role with a well-balanced offense and a defense that has given up but two touchdowns the last four games.

In Arian Burk, a sharpshooting quarterback, Baylor has the Conference's leading passer, but the Bears do not have a man among the top 10 ground leaders.

Tobin Rote, the Rice quarterback, ranks fourth in passing and teams with a pair of backs who rank two-three in rushing.

In nine games Burk has connected on 99 out of 169 passes for 1318 yards and 13 touchdowns. Rote has completed 60 out of 129 for 954 and seven touchdowns.

All tickets for the 31,000-seat Rice stadium have been sold.

Tyler Trounces Lamar, 27 To 13

TYLER, Nov. 25. (AP)— Tyler Junior college defeated Lamar junior college 27-13 here tonight to gain a tie with Lamar for the Southwestern Junior College Conference title.

Jimmy McNiel bucked over two touchdowns in the first quarter for Lamar. Toby Lerman added one extra point, and Poncho Russell missed his try for point.

In the second quarter Steve Hughes went over from the three yard line for Tyler's first score after a passing attack gained 70 yards. Blly Porter converted.

Tyler tied the score 13-13 in the third quarter when Don Page passed to Kan Bahnsen. Porter missed his kick. Another Page to Bahnsen pass later in the quarter added another Tyler marker. Porter's kick was good.

Lamar fought its way down to Tyler's five yard line late in the fourth qaurter but lost the ball on downs.

Tyler added its last touchdown with only 15 seconds to play. Hughes went over on a line play and Porter added the extra point.

Texas Rose Bowl Bid May Go To Winner Of Wheat Bowl Game

WICHITA, Kan., Nov. 25 (AP) — A bid to the Texas Rose Bowl at Tyler may go to the winner of the second annual Wheat Bowl football game here Saturday.

Al Angulo, Wichita Junior Chamber of Commerce president, said he talked by telephone today with Lloyd George, chairman of the Texas Rose Bowl committee.

Angulo said George assured him the Wheat Bowl winner will be given "strong consideration" for the game at Tyler, Dec. 10.

Hutchinson and Coffeyville play tomorrow in the Kansas Junior college championship Wheat Bowl game.

Southern Cal To Meet Irish Today

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 25 (INS) A Southern California football team that refused to believe what was read or what was said about mighty Notre Dame a year ago invades the lair of the Irish tomorrow confident beyond credulity.

The fearless Trojans have been beaten twice and tied once this season and they are 21-point underdogs. This they have forgotten. Instead they talk of how the Irish were "lucky" to tie them, 14 to 14, last year and of how they will shatter Notre Dame's skein of 36 games without a defeat.

Passing Stressed

Coach Jeff Cravath has drilled his boys to pass and pass some more in hopes of taunting the Irish before 57,000 fans, the famed Four Horsemen, and 18 other members of Notre Dame's unbeaten team of 1924. The game is the 25th reunion for Elmer Layden, Jim Crowley, Harry Stuhldreher, Don Miller, The Seven Mules and the others who composed Notre Dame's first national championship team.

Statistics and comparisons give Notre Dame a tremendous pregame advantage over Southern California.

These yardsticks, which never won a game in themselves, say that the Irish have four backfield men who average more than six yards a try. They say that Notre Dame has gained 2,321 yards in eight games or 290 yards every Saturday afternoon.

Bob Williams has passed for 1,097 yards and 13 touchdowns. He has completed 65 of 106 passes for a .613 percentage.

Played Two Common Foes

The Notre Dame defense has been almost as amazing as its offense. Opponents have averaged only 93 yards rushing a game and the Irish pass defenders have allowed just 109 yards a contest.

Notre Dame and Southern California have played two common foes—Navy and Washington. Comparative scores show USC beat Navy, 42 to 20, while the Irish conquered the Middies, 40 to 0. The Trojans defeated Washington, 40 to 28, and Notre Dame topped the Huskies, 27 to 7.

To the Southern California players, however, figures are simply flexible little things that could prove Cripple Creek could beat the Chicago Bears. The Trojans will be at South Bend tomorrow to see for themselves.

New Mexico Grid Leaders Named

ALBUQUERQUE, Nov. 25. (Special)—Fullback Don Babers and End Ted Marshall, who are pacing the powerful Tucumcari Rattlers to their second consecutive unbeaten season, topped the voting in the annual New Mexico Sports Writers association all-state football poll.

Babers and Marshall shared the limelight with Dawson's Johnny Lanceri, Albuquerque High's Larry Forderhase, Las Cruces' Ralph Barela and Santa Fe's Don Morse as the chief point-getters in the poll.

The all-state team was selected by the New Mexico Sports Writers association in conjunction with coaches and officials throughout the state. There were 161 who voted this year, compared to the 124 who voted last year and the 86 in 1947.

Babers and Marshall led the voting with 541 and 417 points respectively. All the players on the first team received 200 points or more and Don Hyder, ace fullback on the Albuquerque High school team, received 362 points—the third highest, but was relegated to the second team.

Jim Short, Hobbs, and Benny Trujillo, Deming, were tied for second place among halfbacks with 232 points. Lanceri was tops with 288, however. Juan Mendez got the nod as the No. 1 halfback on the second team with 191 points, but Lysle Valkingburg, Silver City and Bobby Hough, Clayton, fought to a standoff for the next spot with 167 each.

There was another tie between Bill Burke, Hobbs, and Lynn Lee, Farmington, for the third team fullback position. Both had 128 points and were separated from Hyder by a 234-point gap.

Marshall was tops among ends with his 417 points, but Wayne Hill, Hobbs, had 213 for second place. J. B. Green, Carlsbad, wasn't too far behind with 200, but he joined Dale Saxton, Melrose, on the second team.

Forderhase topped the tackles with 320 points. James Childress, Carlsbad had 244 and Gene McCracken, Tucumcari, polled 201. Ervin Leshikar, Deming, received a strong vote in the closing week for 194 points—a bare three-point lead over Bill Handley, Hobbs, who was bumped to the third team.

Barela, Las Cruces, led the guards with 314 points. His successor was Ralph Mateucci of Albuquerque High with 216, but Monty Worley, Hobbs, had 199 and Junie Russell, Artesia, 191 for second-team honors.

Morse received a strong northside vote along with Lanceri and Forderhase, to win a close battle for the center position. Larry White, Hobbs, had 244 points for the second team, while Morse received 287.

Jay Leck, Carlsbad, the only player on the third team with more than 200 points, got 205. Leck was also the first player in history to poll more than 200 points only to land on the third team.

Jery Keith had a battle all the way among the quarterback stars, but his 241 points put him ahead of the list. Roy Smith, Deming, had 202 for the second team, and Bob Darmitzel, Albuquerque High, got 171 for the third team.

Austin Of El Paso Will Be Host To Lubbock In Bi-District Game

Teams Will Meet At 2:30 Saturday

FORT WORTH, Nov. 25. (Special)—Austin High of El Paso won the toss of a coin here today and will be the host team in a bi-district football encounter with Lubbock Westerners. The two teams are scheduled to clash at 2:30 p. m. (MST) Saturday at Austin High stadium in El Paso.

The El Paso team won District 4-AA and will represent that district against Lubbock, 3-AA winners.

School officials met here today to discuss the plans for the bi-district encounter, with Lubbock represented by Athletic Director C. R. Pattison, Superintedent of Schools R. W. Matthews and G. C. (Mule) Dowell, trustee of the Lubbock Independent school and chairman of the board athletic committee. El Paso was represented by Supt. L. W. McConachie.

Austin's Panthers won the district title Thursday by defeating El Paso High, 7-0, in the final game of the season and to remain undefeated in district play. Other district wins were over Ysleta, 8-7, and Bowie, of El Paso, 46-7.

Lubbock won its district by defeating Midland a week earlier.

The full season's record shows that the El Paso eleven won seven games while losing three. Two of the losses were to San Angelo, 26-7, and Abilene, 27-18.

El Paso Austin and Lubbock had but one common foe, Midland. El Paso won their game, 49-12, and Lubbock defeated the Bulldogs, 28-7.

In 10 games this year, El Paso scored 223 points while limiting the opposition to 126.

Lubbock's record of 10 straight victories is one of the best in the state, and the Westerners have tallied 379 points to 72 for the 10 opposing teams.

Tempe Is Top BC Offensive Team

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 25. (AP)—Arizona State of Tempe won't win the Border Conference football championship but it ought to sew up team offensive honors with a mile to spare.

The Tempe eleven has averaged 479 yards per game this season—almost 100 yards better than New Mexico A. and M., the team second in total offense.

Arizona State doesn't, however, have any individual leaders. These spots are hogged by Texas Western, Hardin-Simmons and New Mexico A. and M.

Harvey Gabrel of Texas Western, tops the ball-carriers with 681 yards on 134 runs. Charles Wright of West Texas State is second with 618 on 89.

In passing, Sam McGowan of New Mexico A. and M. is tops with 1320 yards on 89 completions in 175 throws. Second is John Ford of Hardin-Simmons with 73 connections in 123 tries for 1181 yards. Ford also is the Conference leader in percentage of completions, showing .593.

McGowan is the total offense leader with 1309 yards, all made passing. Ford is second with 1135.

Bob McChensey of Hardin-Simmons tops the pass receivers with 37 catches for 652 yards. Vin Cisterna of Arizona State of Flagstaff is second with 30 receptions for 683 yards.

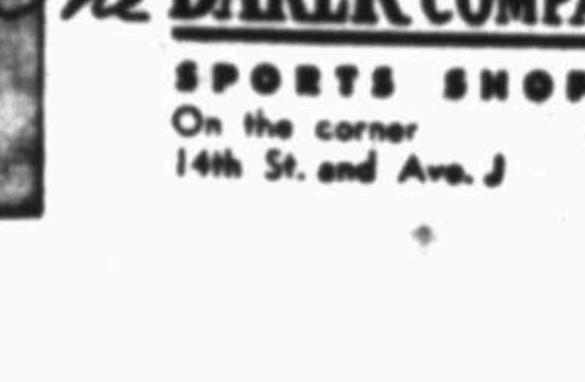

Charles Styron of New Mexico A. and M. leads in punting with an average of 43.3 yards on 37 kicks. Frank Wise of West Texas State is second with 40.3 on 38.

McChesney leads the scorers with 66 points. Wilford White of Arizona State of Tempe is second with 60.

BY CHOC HUTCHESON

It's now up to Littlefield's Wildcats to carry the South Plains banner in the state Class A grid playoff, and I seriously doubt that the area colors could be entrusted to a better qualified team.

For sheer power and brute force, I've never seen a Class A team the equal of this 1949 Littlefield outfit. Judging from the way these Wildcats perform on the gridiron, they must eat their steaks raw. They're big, rough and aggressive, and with a fair share of the breaks I think they possibly could go all the way in the state race.

You might say that Littlefield is "the Port Arthur of the Class A division." Coach J. S. Fikes' club is a power team of the old school—one that likes to cram the ball down the opposition's throat. And the Cats have the personnel with which to back up this desire. Of course, they mix in a little deception occasionally, but by and large they prefer to blast away on power alone.

If strength and spirit are sufficient to carry a team through the playoff, keep an eye on Littlefield's squad. It has both.

Fikes' team admittedly has a few rough edges that need rounding off. Its pass offense, while dangerous, isn't consistent, and its pass defense has been quite leaky at times. If Littlefield is beaten, I'll hazard the guess that the job will be done through the air, because I don't think the hard-charging line will be shoved around.

Too, the Cat backs have a tendency to roll into motion before the ball is snapped. This habit has cost the team heavily in penalties in its last two games, and possibly could prove fatal on down the line—should Littlefield bump into a club of its own caliber. In fact, penalties played a big part in the Wildcats' only defeat of the year, a 14-0 loss to Dalhart at the start of the season.

Littlefield's next playoff foe will be the winner of today's Phillips-Lefors tussle. Personally, I hope it is Phillips—not because I have any grudges against Lefors, but because I think a Littlefield-Phillips game would be a "natural."

Phillips, which appeared here last year against Monahans in the state quarterfinals, is recognized as one of Texas' flashiest, speediest Class A units. Pit a team of this type against a heavy, rugged squad (like Littlefield's), and you're sure to have plenty of fireworks. In short, you have the age-old situation, "Finesse vs. Force."

Incidentally, there's a strong possibility that the quarterfinal game might be played in Lubbock. With the Westerners in El Paso, the local football slate will be as open as a "D" student's textbook on the night before exams.

All Class A playoff games held in Lubbock (Post-Lockney and Phillips-Monahans in 1948 and Littlefield-Slaton this year) have done well at the gate, and I understand that Littlefield—should it have a choice of site—is leaning toward Lubbock for its next game.

Chesty Walker, the astute coach of the Phillips team, was at Thursday's Littlefield-Spur bi-district tilt. After the game, Chesty shook his head (which was, of course, adorned by the tweed cap which has become a Walker trademark) sadly from side to side, and muttered, "There's not a team up our way that can stop this Littlefield club."

Whether Walker was making a sincere comment or simply giving forth with the customary coach's lament remains to be seen.

My hat is off to everyone who had a part in arranging Thursday's "appreciation gifts" for members of the Lubbock High coaching staff. The move was capably handled from start to finish. . . Also, I'd like to add that I think the gifts were fully deserved by Messrs. Pattison, Floyd and Taylor, who have done a great job in their two years here . . . Outdoors sportsmen may be interested in a new gadget called the "Pocket Heaterette." About the size of a package of cigarettes, the Heaterette (fueled with lighter fluid) is designed to be carried in the pocket as a hand-warmer. It's said to be absolutely safe, since there's no flame (vapor from the lighter fluid ignites at 125 degrees—not sufficient to maintain a flame) . . . Rudy (Little Doc) Mobley, who three years ago was setting national ground-gaining records for Hardin-Simmons, now is in Houston—no longer associated with the grid game.

COWBOY PASSER — John "Spiral" Ford was poison to the Red Raiders of Texas Tech last year and the Hardin-Simmons quarterback is no less deadly this year. Against Loyola he passed for five touchdowns to tie a national collegiate record and will be trying to beat that record here today.

All-East Grid Team Announced

By PAT ROBINSON
INS Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 25 — Army and Pitt placed two men apiece on this year's International News Service All-East football team chosen by consensus of college and professional scouts and coaches and INS sports writers.

The balloting was unusually close in a year marked by better-than-usual eastern football. First and second choices at each position seemingly could be reversed without weakening the No. 1 eleven. There were no unanimous choices, and one scout mused:

"I think I'd like to put a bet on your second team to beat your first."

The first team sleeper was Lambert Oberg, 6'-2", 212-pound center for unbeaten Trinity college. Small colleges usually are ignored, but Oberg drew such widespread attention he appears earmarked for future professional delivery.

Foldberg, Rowe Picked

Dan Foldberg of Army and Tom Rowe of Dartmouth, chosen at the ends, are rangy lads who have speed, can decoy a defense dizzy and are glue-fingered pass snatchers.

Many fine tacklers were in evidence with the nod going to two hard-hitting giants, Ernie Stautner of Boston College and Holland Donan of Princeton, by a narrow margin. Big John Schweder of Penn and Bernie Barkouskie of Pitt are potential All-American choices at guard.

There were so many outstanding backs almost any four of a dozen could comprise the All-Star array. For instance, most of the experts said Army's Arnold Galiffa was the best T quarterback in the country, but almost as many backed Dartmouth's Johnny Clayton.

Cornell Places Player

Cornell's Ivy League champions placed their brilliant ball carrier, Hilary Chollet, at halfback the other halfback spot goes to Pitt's Lou (Bimbo) Cecconi, a lad who could do anything and was an inspirational leader as well. The fullback choice is Villanova's Ralph Pasquiarello, a 230-pound bone crusher who has the pros agog.

The 1949 INS All-East team:

Dan Foldberg, Army, end.

Tighter Curbs On Secrets Ordered

asked whether recent public statements by Sen. Johnson (D.-Colo.), concerning the A-Bomb had been one of the reasons for today's action. Both dodged the question.

Johnson recently appeared on a television show in which he discussed atomic matters and said U. S. has developed an A-bomb six times more powerful than those used on Japan.

The senator declared before today's White House meeting that the things he said in his telecast had been said publicly before. He said he has "documentary references" showing prior publication of the information.

Johnson Denies Charges

Meanwhile, Johnson, in a letter to the Washington Post which published an editorial attack on his alleged disclosures, vehemently denied that he had revealed any new atomic secrets during the telecast. He said.

"There were no new disclosures whatsoever."

He said he sent 25 "documentary exhibits" to the newspaper showing that the material he used had already been published.

Concerning his statement about "a new bomb having six times the power of the old bomb," he said he "saw that in newspaper accounts of the hearings" before the Joint Congressional Atomic committee.

The senator declared that he endorsed Mr. Truman's order and added:

"I am very glad that Mr. Truman has suggested more caution in disclosing atomic secrets.

"This should have been done long ago. I hope Mr. Truman also intends to apply this to our relations with foreign countries."

Lilienthal Not Involved

McGrath said the conference in no way concerned the resignation Wednesday of David Lilienthal as chairman of the Atomic Energy commission. McMahon earlier told newsmen that the President had ordered the meeting on the day the AEC head announced he was stepping down.

There also was no attempt on the part of either McMahon or McGrath to halt speculation that the senator would be named to succeed Lilienthal in the vital post.

McGrath in response to questions, emphasized that he knew of no other person in whom he would place more implicit confidence than in Lilienthal.

Lilienthal was accused of neglecting atomic security by Sen. Hickenlooper (R.-Iowa), in a congressional hearing last spring but was cleared of the charges by McMahon's committee.

Battered Safe Found

a quantity of morphine and dilaudid, C. A. Gentry, manager of the store said.

The safe, which contained the firm's entire stock of narcotics, had been rolled from the prescription room of the store through a side door opening to the north onto Ruby street.

A "close-casing" job had been done prior to the burglary, officials believed. The intruders let themselves down into a storage room of the building through an opening in the roof.

Gentry said after an inventory of merchandise that cigaret lighters, cameras, cigarets and fountain pen sets valued at $150 also had been taken by the burglars.

Occurred Early Friday

The breakin was believed to have taken place in the early-morning hours Friday.

Police said a tire-iron or similar object had been employed to gain entry to the safe, a green Army field model measuring 24 inches tall, 18 inches wide and 18 inches deep.

The store was burglarized July 14 by intruders who entered the front door. Taken that time was the store's stock of narcotics and $33 in cash, Gentry said.

The sheriff's department said it held for owners a 12-plate battery that evidently had been stolen from a grader or other heavy piece of machinery.

M. D. Newton of 10 miles northwest of Idalou informed deputies of the theft of a 100-horsepower irrigation engine.

D. B. Williamson of Wolfforth said two Mexican juveniles had burned approximately four bales of cotton, but that they and their parents had agreed to pay partially, at least, for the loss.

Theodore Lewis, 17, a negro, was charged with car theft and taken to county jail in lieu of bail set by D. W. Robertson, justice of peace. The police, who arrested Lewis, said he told them he had stolen another car from the complainant, Ray Furr, earlier Thursday but that it had broken down at Idalou and he had abandoned it, riding back on a bus and taking another car.

Other Cars Stolen

Two other cars were reported stolen, a 1942 black Chevrolet, license not listed, from Hardell Ross of 3023 Twentieth, and a 1938 blue Ford sedan, license AU 9082, from Brownfield.

C. F. Borum, a driver for Olen Stewart Grocery company, complained that one case and four half-gallon jars of syrup had been stolen from his truck on the Plainview-Clovis cutoff road.

A. A. Nazario, of 3010 North Third, complained to police of the theft of three dozen pieces of concrete tile valued at $5.40 from that address.

Beth Peterson, of 2405 Ave. N, said a white cowhide suitcase, valued with contents at $150, had been stolen from her in the First National bank building.

Thomas W. Copeland, 19, of 2402 Wolfforth, was released late Friday to the custody of Howard county officials, the sheriff's department said. Copeland, and a juvenile boy who also was turned over to Howard county, are charged with the burglary of a liquor store there Nov. 4.

Old Tunes Popular

Miller group, he said, until the war came along and they were forced to disband in 1942. He was in the Navy a little less than three years.

"We only have one original member of the old civilian Miller band other than myself with us now and three members of the Glenn Miller Air Force crew," Tex stated. "But we have and use many of the songs that he made famous."

Old Timers Favorites

These songs, "Serenade In Blue," "Chattanooga Choo Choo," "At Last," and "American Patrol," are played at every dance date at least once and often more than that, Tex said. "If I had a penny for every time I have played and sung 'Chattanooga Choo Choo' I could retire a millionaire," he laughed.

quests for these Miller 'oldquests for these Miller "oldies' than they do for the more popular songs of the day, especially here in the Southwest" Beneke said. "The only exception is this new tune, 'Mule Train,' which we don't even carry in our library," he revealed.

Lubbockites have about the same style of dancing as others across the nation, Tex said. "That's why my favorite audience is a college crowd like this one," he smiled. "They are all the same and we know what they want to dance to."

The orchestra carries 17 musicians on its payroll and five singers. Connie Desmond, the mainspring of the famous Moonlight Serenaders, seems to make the vocal honors of the band pretty well decided.

The band travels in a chartered bus and by private car on the road trips.

Tex is married to a girl from Lufkin, Texas that he met while playing at the Texas Frontier Centennial at Fort Worth in 1936.

The average age of the members of the orchestra is 23 or 24 years, Tex said. "It is too hard to talk older and married men into going on the road with a band now days," he explained.

The band recently dropped its ten-man string section because of the many complaints mailed in to him, Tex said. "It's a funny thing, too," he said, "people complained that the string section didn't make the band sound like the old Miller bunch but Glenn had just that idea in mind for the group after the war."

Tex, whose Christian name is Gordon Lee, gained his nickname from Glenn Miller on joining the band. "With a drawl like mine," he said, "where else could I be from?"

hours.

Earlier a writ of habeas corpus and a petition for a stay of execution were turned down as authorities gave lie detector tests to guards and prisoners in death row in connection with the escape plan which was thwarted yesterday.

A window was broken in death row tier last night and matches were lighted as signals in the attempt to deliver Morelli from the jail last night. The plot came a year to the day after a similar jail break was halted last Thanksgiving.

Two men, Erville Leroy Burdick, 22, and Domonick J. Demaria, 20 of Suburban Bellwood, were arrested outside the jail wall shortly after the incident. Police said they admitted trying to aid the condemned man.

Blockade Demanded

Poland, White Russia and Czechoslovakia took the floor to deal themselves out of the debate on China. Yugoslavia, now at political odds with Moscow, declared the Chiang regime had lost the right to represent the Chinese people.

Vishinsky strode from the UN building by a side entrance where his car awaited him. He said he was going home to rest. Two other foreign ministers' — Vladimir Clementis of Czechoslovakia and Dmitri Z. Manuilsky of the Ukraine — also left the committee chamber, as did Stefan Wierblowski, chairman of the Polish delegation.

All the Soviet bloc delegations served notice they would not accept any assembly decision on China while Nationalist delegates retain their seats. All these Moscow-led countries also have formally supported a Chinese Communist memorandum demanding the ouster of the Nationalist delegation here.

After the flare-up by the Soviet delegations, Committee Chairman Lester B. Pearson, foreign minister of Canada, declared Vishinsky and his colleagues were out of order in referring to the "Kuomintang" delegation of China. As far as UN credentials are concerned, he said, it is simply the delegation of China.

RUSSIA PEACE PLAN BEATEN DOWN IN UN

LAKE SUCCESS, Nov. 25. (AP)— The United Nations beat down decisively today a Soviet peace plan which carried a clause accusing the United States and Britain of preparing for a third world war.

Then, by 53 votes to 5, the UN approved a counter American-British program for peace.

The heart of Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky's proposal was knocked out 41 to 6 in the 59-nation political committee. Arab Yemen alone voted with the Moscow group in favor of a section calling on the United States, Britain, France, China and the Soviet Union to draw up a pact of peace. The fight will be renewed finally in the assembly proper, but there was no prospect of a change in the voting.

Vishinsky's attack on Britain and America, in the first paragraph of his resolution, was beaten by 52 votes to five, with Yemen and Yugoslavia abstaining.

Some delegates interpreted the committee vote as a personal blow at Vishinsky, who has bitterly attacked the British and Americans as preparing for a new war and then, almost in the same breath, called on them to swear to a new peace pact among the big five powers—the Soviet Union, France, Britain, the United States and China.

They saw the heavy vote for the west as an expression of confidence from the small and medium countries and endorsement of pleas by Warren R. Austin of the United States and Britain's Hector McNeil for the Russians to roll up their iron curtain and co-operate with the rest of the world.

Seek More Pay

The two unions, the non-Communist Workers Force of 900,000 members and the Communist General Confederation of Labor (CGT), with 2,200,000, called the strike before dawn today to enforce demands for more pay, cost of living bonuses and unfreezing of government wage controls.

Opinion as to the effectiveness of the strike differed.

"It was a fiasco" said Socialist cabinet member Eugene Thomas, head of the French postoffice.

"The results are very satisfactory," retorted Workers Force Secretary General Robert Bothereau. The union chieftain, however, said he could not yet give any figures on the number of workers actually idle.

Dallas Police Grab Vicious Love Burglar To End Long Search

DALLAS, Nov. 25. (AP).— Police today identified Dallas' "love burglar" - - - a man who kissed and sometimes raped the women he robbed - - - as Fred Felix Adair, jr.

And they accused him of attacks on more than a dozen women and almost 100 burglaries during the past year. Adair ruggedly-handsome, 25-year-old married man and father of a child, pleaded: "There are extenuating circumstances to all this."

Written Statements Signed

City Detective E. L. Munday said Adair has signed written statements, witnessed by newspapermen, involving two rapes and one case in which a woman was choked during a burglary.

"Adair has definitely identified himself as the love burglar," Munday said. No charges had been filed today. Police continued questioning the man, a payroll clerk for a cement company who was arrested yesterday at work.

Meanwhile, five women picked him out of a police lineup as their attackers. One of the women was 50, another 17. Both had been raped.

Two Children Scream

Munday said one crime Adair admitted was the rape of a 31-year-old Dallas married woman while her two children watched, screaming. The attacker of the woman followed her home, peeked in a window, then entered and criminally assaulted her.

The "love burglar" was so named because of his habit at first, of entering the bedrooms of sleeping women and stealing kisses. But later his molestations were more vicious.

His career reached its height last summer, tapered off during the early fall and picked up again several weeks ago.

Adair's wife — and his neighbors in the quiet Oak Cliff neighborhood in which he lived — were astonished at the accusations.

Long Story Hinted

"There isn't anything to talk about," Adair told reporters. "If I signed the statements, that means they are true, doesn't it? There are extenuating circumstances in all this. There's a lot about me that you don't know. It would take two hours to tell."

Two breaks narrowed the search for the man. A woman whose home was burglarized this month saw a patch on the shirt of the midnight intruder that bore the name of the cement firm for which Adair worked. And at the scene of another burglary, officers found a small knife with the name of the same firm.

A check of employes of the company led officers to Adair. Officials of the firm said Adair recently bought a new automobile and wore expensive clothing.

Items Found In Home

In Adair's home, detectives found a rifle, camera, and other articles they believed stolen from Dallas homes.

In his written statements, Adair said he had committed "more burglaries than I can remember during the past year."

Munday quoted him as saying he operated "all hours of the night."

"When he struck in the early part of the night, he just told his wife he was out on a drinking spree," the detective said, "and when he struck during the early morning hours he told his wife he 'had to go to work early.' "

The British official in Hong Kong said the Chinese sources believed the Russian "front" in the Ward case was Li Li-San, Moscow-trained minister of labor in the Chinese Communist regime.

Delay Claimed Sought

The Chinese informants were quoted as saying that Russia hoped to delay U. S. recognition of Communist China to prolong Soviet influence there.

State department sources said some countries who had been ready to recognize the Communist regime are reported reconsidering in light of the Ward case, which President Truman has described as an "outrage."

The department assumed, however, that the Red government would get Ward and party out of its country quickly to prevent continued adverse world opinion. A spokesman said he thought the party would be taken by train to Tientsin, and from there by vessel to a free port.

Mexican Nationals Killed

Dead were Augustine Cavillo Artiz of Monterrey, Mexico, and Francisco Hernandez Guzman of Somberette, Mexico.

The dead and injured were Mexican farm labor workers returning from Missouri to McAllen for their return to Mexico.

Earlier Friday a man tentatively identified as Jessie Segura, was killed when a truck was struck by a Missouri Pacific passenger train at Houston. The driver of the truck, Tom R. Waddy, 36, was not seriously injured.

Other deaths reported Friday included: Hallie Payne, 47, of San Antonio, who died in a San Antonio hospital of knife wounds he suffered in a tavern altercation; Floyd Patterson, 39, Dallas, shot to death in Dallas.

The traffic toll was far below the ultimate 28 accident deaths predicted for the four-day Thanksgiving holiday.

O. F. Swaffar, 48, was charged with murder in the fatal shooting of Frank S. Bullard, 32, in Borger Thursday night. Bullard was struck by .32 caliber bullets in the chest and head as he sat in his home.

Harvey Lee Varner, 46, of Marble Falls was found dead below a bridge over the Colorado river at Austin Friday. Justice of the Peace Frank McBee said he did not know whether Varner fell, jumped or was pushed from the bridge. He had a broken arm and a brain injury. McBee said he was delaying an inquest verdict until after an investigation.

at 5 p.m. today, three hours after the delegates convened. The TSTA's membership now exceeds 47,700.

A special committee headed by Joe McNiel of Wichita Falls precipitated the debate by recommending that the house of delegates ratify the committee's recommendation that the move be made immediately and "looking forward to erection of a large headquarters building in Austin."

Earlier, the house of delegates approved a legislative program calling for:

A minimum benefit of $100 per month for teachers.

A "sane and sound" tenure law.

To Push Tenure Legislation

Hiring of field representatives to give all of their time to promotion of tenure legislation, with a budget of "possibly $10,000 or more" for expenses, literature and studies.

The legislative committee stated it believed such a campaign begun immediately would make "almost certain enactment of tenure legislation by the next legislature."

The delegates also approved a recommendation that a TSTA full time employe be stationed in Washington, D.C., at the next session of Congress to work for congressional action "to make Texas secure in its possession of the tidelands and the mineral rights thereto".

The delegates approved a $10,000 item in the budget for this official.

Miss Waurine Walker, Waco high school teacher and a former president of the Texas Classroom Tearchers association, was presented as the TSTA's new president after the house of delegates received results of a recent mailed in election.

Other new officers are Dr. Mortimer Brown, superintendant of schools at Tyler, first vice president; Miss Ruth Hilyer, San Angelo teacher, second vice president, and Mrs. Mattie Mae Solon, Fort Worth, who was voted on from the floor, third vice president.

Dallas Supt. W. T. White was elected president of the Texas Association of School Administrators. E. T. Robbins of San Antonio was elected vice president and Frank Richardson of Henrietta was re-elected secretary-treasurer. New executive committeemen are Terrell Ogg of Brazosport, Leon Graham of Mercedes, Henry L. Foster of Longview, L. P. Sturgeon of New Boston, and Fred Kaderli of San Marcos.

Fare-dodgers on street cars have cost Sydney, Australia, an estimated $4,000,000.

a news conference that "we will probably wish to consult and exchange views with the other American governments as soon as the situation becomes clear."

He pointed out that following the forcible ouster of Chanis in favor of Chiari, both the Panamanian national assembly and supreme court had declared Chanis to be the duly elected chief executive. Miller said:

"We do not need to recognize a government immediately. We must first ascertain whether that government actually represents the will of the people and whether it will or is capable of living up to its international obligations."

Miller, as a punctuated aside, declared "no question of a threat to the Panama Canal has been raised by these recent developments." The Canal Zone is well guarded by U. S. ground, air and naval forces.

U. S. Position Given

The assistant secretary said he had been in telephonic communication with U. S. Ambassador Monnet Davis and passed along the American government's position. Davis will remain in Panama City in a negative position pending further developments.

Arnulfo Arias, and Police Chief Remon, base their newest claim to the presidency on an allegation that Arias was counted out in the 1948 elections when he ran against the late Domingo Diaz Arosemena. Chanis succeeded to the office when Diaz died. Remon caused a third election board recount yesterday, and decided Arias had been president all the time.

Only last May, Arias was arrested for allegedly master-minding a plot to overthrow the Chanis government—but was pardoned by presidential decree.

Kentucky Wildcats Beat Miami 21-6, Open For Orange Bowl Bid

MIAMI, Nov. 25 (INS) — The Kentucky Wildcats, playing their hearts out in their season finale, ground out a hard-earned 21 to 6 victory over the stubborn Miami Hurricanes tonight to leave themselves wide open for a bowl bid.

The 'Cats ran over scores in the second, third and fourth periods while 42,970 onlookers, including the bulk of the Orange Bowl committee, wondered if that 15-point winning margin was good enough for a post-season invitation.

western powers.

"The most serious insult imaginable" was Adenauer's view. The Christian Democratic leader, 74, told newsmen he would have accepted an apology from Schumacher, but none was forthcoming.

Session Ends At Dawn

The parliament voted down, in a tumultuous session that ended at dawn, a Social Democratic motion challenging the authority of Adenauer to sign the agreement. Boos, catcalls and banging of desk tops marked the debate.

The Western Allied high commissioner announced the German republic is to work for a year in the framework of its newly expanded powers, without further revisions.

The negotiations with Adenauer are complete and the 10-point pact they signed yesterday is not to be regarded as "a stepping stone for further demands," the representatives of the United States, Britain and France told a news conference.

Briton Gives Views

Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, British high commissioner, spoke for the high commission at the news conference. With him were French Commissioner Andre Francois-Poncet and the Deputy U. S. Commissioner, Maj. Gen. George P. Hays, U. S. Commissioner John J. McCloy was in London.

Robertson read a statement saying the agreement sought to:

1—Promote the prestige and authority of the West German federal government.

2—Reintroduce Germany into international political society.

3—Remove causes of friction between the occupying powers and the German people.

Speaking of the aim to promote the regime's prestige and authority, Robertson said "that is why we have proceeded by free discussions instead of a dictate" in the German-Allied negotiations.

The agreement is to stand until the occupation statute (a provisional peace treaty) is reviewed next autumn, the commissioners said.

last session.

Congress specified in the law that pending agreement on general defense strategy under the Atlantic treaty only $100,000,000 of the total sum appropriated could actually be delivered to Europe in the form of military supplies.

Conferences Set

The military committee of the Atlantic treaty powers is to meet in Paris Nov. 29 and the defense committee of which Secretary of Defense Johnson is American member is to meet Dec. 1. Both Johnson and Bradley plan to fly to Paris this weekend.

Bradley discussed the outlook for the meetings in a statement which he broadcast today over the State department's Voice of America program. He also discussed the atomic bomb in connection with its possible usefulness "as a deterrent to aggression."

He declared that without underestimating the atomic weapon as a "force for peace" he considered it "fair to say that the North Atlantic treaty organization of 12 nations shows promise of being an even greater deterrent to future aggression."

Backed By Free Men

"For now, in addition to weapons," he declared, "we have an organization for collective defense backed by the will of free men in free nations, all working for peace."

Bradley offered a specific word of reassurance to the western European members of the Atlantic alliance who would be in the forefront of the defenders in event of a Russian march westward. Referring to the Atlantic treaty, he declared:

"I can honestly and sincerely state that Americans have entered this agreement, after careful consideration by the Congress and the people, with full intention to carry out these pledges now, and in the future."

Jury Denies Damages In Court Action Here

A 99th District Court jury which had heard evidence in the $38,500 damages action of Buna Lofland against Richard Jackson and The Avalanche-Journal Publishing company, late Friday night returned answers to special issues favoring the defendants.

The jury which retired at 7:10 p. m. and handed answers to most of 18 general issues to Judge G. V. Pardue at 11:45 p.m. found the accident on which the case was based to be unavoidable in denying damages to the plaintiff.

In answering an issue on amount of damages due the plaintiff the jury said none.

Miss Lofland was injured Nov. 24 at the intersection of Fourteenth and Ave. L when she was hit by a car driven by Jackson, an Avalanche-Journal employe.

Other key operator groups were reported to have held meetings to discuss the possibility of new contract talks with Lewis.

The action of the southerners was seen as a move to be included in any negotiations with Lewis which may be developing.

Government officials also were reported working in the background trying to get the operators and Lewis talking in earnest about a new contract which could end the six-months-long coal crisis.

Italy Shows Greatest Signs Of Economic Recovery Among West European Nations Despite Hardships

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the sixth and final article in a series by International News Service General Manager Seymour Berkson, describing conditions among the middle class families in the principal Western European countries receiving Marshall Plan aid from the US. Berkson has just completed a tour through Western Europe during which he visited and interviewed typical families in England, France, Germany, Austria and Italy. This article deals with Italy.)

By SEYMOUR BERKSON
General Manager, INS

ROME, (INS)—Having seen Germany, Austria, and now Italy, the paradox of postwar Europe comes into even sharper focus.

Though hardships exist in varying degrees in all of these countries that lost the war, life is by no means as grim a struggle in any of them as it is in Britain, one of the chief victors of World War II.

Of all the Marshall Plan countries I have visited in Western Europe, Italy shows the greatest signs of economic recovery, reconstruction activity, and a will to work her way out of war-born problems.

As a foreign correspondent in the 1930's, I covered prewar Italy in the heydey of Mussolini. What he tried to propel in the way of bustling activity by totalitarian methods is being accomplished voluntarily today by the Italian populace without the whip-lash of fascism.

Typical Family Visited

Take the Zanettis, for example, because their plight is typical.

Luigi Zanetti is a hard-working bank cashier and accountant, just turned 40.

He puts in a full day's work every day at the bank, where he starts at 8:30 a. m., but in order to buy even the most elemental necessities for his wife, Adela, and their 10-year-old son, Fabrizio, he has had to get himself a night job as well. So that he now works from 8:30 a. m. until 10 p. m. to make ends meet.

Sunday is the only time he can relax and enjoy the company of his wife and son.

Luigi's bank job pays him 50,000 lire a month, after the automatic deduction of his federal tax. His night work as an office accountant brings him 20,000 lire. The total of 70,000 lire a month sounds pretty big—until you realize that at the current value of the lire in dollars it amounts to about $100 a month.

Working at two jobs as Luigi does, to make ends meet, has become commonplace among middle class families in Italy.

The Zanettis are more fortunate than many others in one respect. Because they moved into their present apartment before the war, the housing law prohibits their landlord from increasing the rent beyond the present figure of 2,000 lire per month (a little over $3).

This, of course, is a freak situation based on the old value of the currency, far out of line of present prices, and very likely to be revised upward in the near future.

The Zanettis live on the sixth floor of an apartment house on Rome's Via Tiepolo. It was built during Mussolini's regime and belongs to the family of the famous operatic baritone, Titta Ruffo, who has sung in America many times.

The Zanettis' flat consists of a combination living room-dining room, one standard sized bedroom, a much smaller room where their son sleeps, and a kitchen.

Tells Own Story

Let Luigi himself tell you about their cost of living problems:

"Before the war, I used to make only 1,200 lire a month at the bank—but our expenses for rent, food, laundry, light, and gas amounted only to 500 lire a month.

"Now my bank salary is 50 times what it was then, but the cost of living has jumped between one hundred and two hundred times what it was.

"The result is that while I used to be able to save a little money at the end of every month, we now find that we run short of money for our expenses before the end of the month, so that we are constantly in debt to somebody.

"That is the actual situation in most Italian families of our income level.

"For example, before the war my wife could buy all the food month. Now I have to give her 40,000 month. Now I have to giveher 40,000 lire a month for food alone—and we don't eat as well as we did then."

Costs Pose Problem

The cost of living problem has become so acute in the average Italian middle class household that it has become a source of almost constant bickering and argument between husbands and wives, Zanetti pointed out. He said:

"Most family discussions nowadays center on the money problem—and usually the man of the house feels his wife is spending too much while his wife feels that he does not give her enough money to run the house on. This is the cause of 90 percent of the family arguments in Italy nowadays."

Butter, for example, costs 600 lire a pound in Rome. Even in American currency that means nearly a dollar a pound. But in terms of Luigi Zanetti's income it means one fourth of his total income for a day and a night's work.

Coffee is also 600 lire a pound—so the Zanettis mix it with barley to economize and make the coffee last longer.

Beef, lamb, and chicken are well over a dollar a pound, so the Zanettis can't afford such luxuries except once a week for Sunday dinner.

And yet despite their difficulties the Zanettis eat better than the equivalent middle class family in London, and more products of greater variety and nourishment are available to them on the open market.

Food Is Simple

The day begins in the Zanetti household every morning with a simple continental breakfast of coffee, milk, and rolls or bread.

For lunch the day I visited them they had "gnocchi," a tasty Roman dish made of potatoes, farina, and cheese, a main course of eggs and rice, and fresh grapes for dessert.

For dinner, they had ham and assorted green vegetables; cheese and fruit.

On Sundays, they usually splurge a bit and have beef or lamb as well as macaroni or spaghetti and for dessert a fancy Italian pastry, which Mrs. Zanetti bakes herself.

Indicative of how prices have become inflated in Italy, Zanetti pointed out that a good suit of clothes that used to cost 450 lire before the war now costs 11,500.

Luigi served in the Italian army during 1942 and 1943, but since he was demobilized he has bought only one suit. During the German occupation of Italy, he spent all of his life's savings in the black market in order to find sufficient food for his family.

The Zanettis have no room in their budget for luxuries of any kind. They can't afford a car. They have cut down on the number of movies so that they now go less than once a month.

Luigi acknowledges that much of the promising economic activity going on in Italy today has been stimulated by Marshall plan funds from America and that otherwise postwar conditions in his country might be much worse.

But he feels the Italian government should do something about controlling the cost of living.

Zanetti is politically conservative and hates everything the Communists stand for.

Although the Zanettis are conscious of the danger of another war and the misery it would again bring to Italy, they have too many problems of everyday living today to be very concerned with what might happen in the future.

Behind the Zanettis' problem is the general problem of Italy's excess population which has depressed the level of incomes and otherwise unbalanced the nation's economy.

Italy has some 2,000,000 chronic unemployed who cannot be absorbed on the land or in the factories to any extent even if these resources were developed to fullest capacity.

There simply is not enough fertile soil on the largely mountainous Italian peninsula or enough industrial capacity to accommodate the present population of 46,000,000—and the number is increasing annualy by about 500,000.

France, for example, with nearly 5,000,000 fewer people than Italy, has 212,659 square miles of land—for the most part rich, fertile soil—compared with Italy's 119,800 square miles, a considerable part of which is too rocky to till.

Overpopulation under such circumstances means depressed wage scales and when prices are high, depressed wage scales mean an inevitable lowering in the standard of living.

That is what is happening to families like the Zanettis in Italy.

While the Italian situation has very specialized overtones different from those of any other Marshall plan country in Western Europe, there is a striking similarity in the general plight of the middle classes in all of the Marshall Plan countries I visited — England, France, Germany, Austria, as well as Italy.

They are feeling the same disturbing pressure on their normal standards of living. The only variations are in the degree and intensity of the crisis.

Special privileges of subsidy and security have been showered on labor in most European countries, but the hard-pressed breadwinner of the average middle class family is Europe's forgotten man today.

Youth Charged With Impersonation After 'Arrest' Of Driver

A teen-age youth of near Shallowater was arrested Friday afternoon on a charge of impersonation of an officer—outgrowth of the alleged "arrest" Wednesday night of a 45-year-old Garland, Texas, man.

The man, Jim Bunch, said he was sleeping in the cab of his light truck near Shallowater when the youth rapped on the door and asked him for proof that he owned the truck.

Bunch related he was forced to accompany the youth to Shallowater, where he was taken before Pat Corley, county commissioner.

Corley, seeking to mollify the principals so that there'd be no future trouble, told the youth and the man to go ahead, that all was regular. He did not explain the irregularity of the incident.

But Bunch got to thinking the thing over. The youth seemed too young to be a constable, as he allegedly had represented. He went to the county attorney's office.

Travis D. Shelton, an assistant county attorney, said a charge of impersonating an officer may have to be withdrawn; there is evidence the youth may be only 16 years old, or a juvenile.

Prior Record Cited

Complicating the case, however, is a record of the defendant's having pleaded guilty a week earlier on an aggravated assault complaint. No criminal charge would be actionable against him if he established his age to be less than 17.

Only a civil petition, under Texas law, can be filed against a juvenile.

Juvenile officials will look further into the case today.

Famous Gorilla Dies Final Day Of Circus

MIAMI, Nov. 25. (INS)—Gargantua, Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey's giant gorilla that has thrilled thousands of circusgoers, died today in his cage on the circus grounds in Miami.

The gorilla's death was attributed to tuberculosis or pneumonia. He had been ailing for several days.

The huge ape had lived for 19 years, the last few of which were spent in "wedded bliss" with Toto, a female gorilla procured by the circus to provide Gargantua with a mate.

Gargantua was billed as one of the top attractions of the so-called "greatest show on earth" and the animal's death saddened the circus folk who had grown to accept the gorilla as an integral part of the show.

The ape's death came at a dramatic time—the final day of the circus' 1949 tour.

After tonight's performance in Miami, Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey will entrain for Sarasota, Fla., to settle for the winter.

Gargantua's body may be flown to Johns Hopkins hospital in Baltimore, Md., for an autopsy to determine the exact cause of the death.

A National Air lines spokesman in Miami said arrangements are being made for such a trip.

The Philippines now has 400 sawmills operating compared with 163 before the war.

District VFW Convention To Open Today

More Than 200 Expected Here

The vanguard of more than 200 out-of-town delegates will arrive in Lubbock early this morning for the annual Veterans of Foreign Wars District 7 convention here today and Sunday. Council Meets Today To Discuss Program

Exes To Plan Tech Silver Anniversary

Partial plans for Texas Technological college's Silver anniversary celebrations next year will be made at 10 a.m. today in the Hilton hotel at a meeting of the executive council for the Tech Ex-Students' association.

The nine-member council will formulate basic ideas for the association's part in the 1950 fall festivities and will appoint a committee to work with college officials to co-ordinate plans, according to D. M. McElroy, executive secretary for the association.

A luncheon will be served members of the council at noon, McElroy said, while afternoon business sessions will feature discussions of plans to print an ex-students' magazine instead of the present newspaper.

If approved by the council, the first issue of the magazine would be made in January and would continue monthly as long as it could be supported financially.

Advertising revenue would be expected to bear a large measure of the cost of putting out the magazine, McElroy said, but support of Tech alumni would be necessary to keep it going.

Eleven issues a year are planned for the feature paper, with the possibility that each division of the college will be played up twice a year. One issue, that in October, would be devoted to Homecoming and general news about the college and ex-students.

Miss Margene Fry, present editor of the Ex-Students' News, would edit the magazine, with Bob Rutland of the Tech news service acting as associate editor. McElroy would supervise the entire project.

The executive secretary also reported that plans will be studied today for expansion of the Matador club, using alumni in other towns to increase membership outside of Lubbock. He said greater financial assistance must be offered by alumni if the association itself is to carry out planned activities for the forthcoming year. Donations to the Loyalty fund are not as great as expected, he declared.

McElroy said all plans for the Silver anniversary celebrations next fall are still in the formative stage. He indicated the association will act only as a co-operating agency with the college in planning and executing the functions. As usual, however, the organization will play a large part in planning the Homecoming parade and other activities.

Members of the association's executive council other than McElroy include: Ed McCullough, Midland; Hurley Carpenter, Lubbock; Hart Shumaker, Abilene; W. W. Nicklaus, Amarillo; O. R. McElya, Dallas; Olaf Lodal, San Antonio; George Langford, Lubbock; and Forrest Weimhold, Levelland. All are expected at today's meeting.

Philippine Forces Open Up Attack

MANILA, Nov. 25. (INS).— Philippine army, navy and air forces joined today in an all-out attack on approximately 1,000 rebels entrenched in the mountains of Batangas province, south of Manila.

Navy submarine chasers opened fire on two rebel strong-points on Mounts Talin and Piit while constabulary troops stormed up insurgent-held heights under cover of an artillery barrage.

Supporting air force fights swooped over rebel mountain positions and strafed rebel positions previously spotted from the air by observation planes.

Residents of seven towns in the mountain area were ordered to evacuate by Interior Secretary Sotero Baluyet, who said martial law will be proclaimed throughout the populous coastal province.

Baluyet warned all citizens that the battlezones will be "off limits" during the next 48 hours. The government apparently expects to stamp out the week-old uprising in that time.

While the Batangas fighting raged, constabulary troops in Manila encircled the home of Jose Laurel, defeated presidential candidate, and a detail of troops led by a major searched the house room by room.

They were reported to be searched for Anselmo Beredo and Amando Real, who are listed among 84 persons accused of sedition as a result of the Batangas uprising.

Two Texans On 4-H Honor List

CHICAGO, Nov. 25. (INS) —The 28th National 4-H Club congress announced today in Chicago the names of ten prize winning farm boys and girls in recognition of their citizenship achievements and contributions to their communities.

Scholarships of $200 each were awarded to Dwight E. Nelson, 20, of Boone, Ia., and Dianne Mathre, 18 of De Kalb, Ill., for being outstanding in furthering the welfare of their communities. The awards were made by the national committee on boys and girls club work.

All prize winners received an all-expense trip to the 4-H club congress in Chicago.

Meanwhile, some 1,600 rural youth from every state, Hawaii and Puerto Rico gathered in Chicago for the Congress which opens Sunday.

College scholarships totaling more than $35,000 will be awarded to 120 delegates.

Guests from most provinces of Canada, Austria, Costa Rica, Cuba, Denmark, Finland, Korea, Nicaragua, Switzerland, Sweden, Turkey, and Uruguay will be on hand. Korea has the largest 4-H enrollment outside the United States.

The program for the 4-H delegates while they are not in session includes tours through the International Livestock exposition which coincides with the congress.

They will be entertained by Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians, Jimmy Dorsey and his orchestra, the Purdue University choir, James Melton and vaudeville acts.

Also in the talent parade will be such sports stars as Ted Williams, Johnny Lujack, Allie Reynolds and Mildred "Babe" Didrickson Zaharias.

TO DIRECT BANDS TODAY—Shown above are the directors of the Texas Tech and Hardin-Simmons university bands which will perform in an unusual and colorful program at halftime of this afternoon's Tech-Cowboy grid tilt at Jones Stadium. At left is D. O. Wiley, former director of the H-SU band and for the past several years director of the Tech organization. At right is Marion B. McClure, H-SU's director.

MUSICIANS TO FORM BOOT

Cowboy, Tech Bands To Join In Grid Performance Here Today

The Cowboy band of Hardin-Simmons university will join with that of Texas Tech for halftime performances today at Jones stadium during the Border conference championship football battle between the two schools.

A history of H-SU set to music will be rendered by the Tech band, under direction of D. O. Wiley, followed by the forming of a huge boot, complete with spur and rowel and the letters "H-SU" inside.

Band To Form Boot

Members of the Tech band will form the boot itself, while the Cowboys, complete in western regalia, will spell out the letters. The Cowgirls, female counterpart of the Cowboys, will form the spur and moving rowel.

Now directed by Marion B. McClure, the Cowboy band was under the tutelage of Wiley from 1923-33. It has gained national recognition for its mastery of music and parade with past performances being made down Hollywood boulevard in Hollywood, Fifth avenue in New York, Market street in San Francisco, and the steps of the national capitol in Washington, D. C.

Today's performances in Jones Stadium will be opened by the Cowboys, followed by the musical history of the Abilene school by the Tech band. The six white horses of H-SU, ridden by five co-eds and Will Watson, will flank the three organizations as they salute the rival schools.

Double T Scheduled

After the musical history and the salute to Hardin-Simmons, the Tech and Cowboy bands and the Cowgirls will move into the familiar double T formation as the Tech loyalty song is played. The local group will form the larger T, the Cowboys the smaller, and the Cowgirls will fill in the middle of the entire formation.

Two soloists, Norma Kniffen, baton twirler, and Lloyd Mitchell, roper, will also be featured by the visiting band. The Cowboys themselves will be dressed in their familiar costumes of chaps gold shirts, levis, blue handkerchiefs, ten-gallon hats and cowboy boots.

Youths Rule City For Day

City, county, and district governmental offices in Lubbock were guided by youthful minds Friday, as members of the Order of DeMolay observed "Citizenship Day."

Every member of the order was assigned a task, with 11 holding key positions in district and county government, and 23 others working as department heads and officials in the city administration.

Boys Confront Problems

Most of the boys actually sat at the desks of the officials whom they represented, and were brought in on real problems that came up during the day.

With the regular officials working alongside the Lubbock youths, the boys gained first hand lessons on how the local governments function.

The day for the city officials got under way at 7:30 a.m., when they met with City Manager Steve Matthews and the other office-holders who were to relinquish their positions for a day. The boys were instructed in the proper functions of the city administration under the charter government, and were introduced to the regular officials and department heads.

Civics Lesson Learned

Approximately 140 boys filled various offices and jobs in the city, learning their citizenship lessons by doing.

Mayor Tommy Cooper and City Manager Richard Bean spent the day with Steve Matthews, who showed them how the office of the city manager works. The trio also took a tour of other city offices, with Matthews explaining the integration of all the offices.

Jim Bob Bryan, elected district judge by his fellow DeMolays, sat in with District Judge G. V. Pardue during a regular session of the 99th district court. Judge Pardue said that Citizenship Day was a fine idea, but that he would have liked for young Bryan to have gone through the entire trial in order to get an overall picture of the duties of the judiciary.

Job Proves Difficult

John Cammack, police chief for a day, said the job city policemen have is "harder than most people think it is." He was shown around the station, received instruction in traffic control, and went out on emergency calls during the day.

John L. Ross, chapter advisor for the boys, said the day was a great success, with most of the credit for it going to the city, county, and district officials whose offices the boys had taken over for the day.

"These men put out a great deal of effort to help the boys and to make Citizenship Day a success in every meaning of the word," he said.

After a hard day at the office, the boys still weren't through, for they sponsored an opening dance last night in the Hotel Lubbock ballroom. Members had sold tickets to the dance, which featured the music of Ted Crager and his orchestra.

PECAN SHELLING:

There Are Two Kinds

JOHN Nance "Cactus Jack" Garner was 91 years old the other day and the papers naturally made considerable to-do over it. After all, Uvalde's No. 1 citizen is not only a former Speaker of the U. S. House of Representatives and a former Vice President of the U.S.A. He also was the first high ranking Democrat—and, for a long time, the only one—to perceive that the so-called "New Deal" brand of government is both economically unsound and a long step toward complete nationalization of American life.

Mr. Garner, gnarled and wrinkled, spent the 81st anniversary of his birth shelling pecans—an activity quite prosaic compared to that of his 46-year span in public life. Furthermore, he seemed to enjoy shelling pecans from his own grove—surrounding his big, rambling house on Uvalde's edge—more than he used to enjoy the power and the prestige which goes with high public office.

No one will blame Mr. Garner for spending his latter days shelling pecans—or in any other way he may choose. After all, he spent nearly a half century in productive public service and in this, the twilight of his life, he has earned rest and relaxation of his own choosing. But there is a big difference between Mr. Garner shelling pecans at 81 and other real Democrats—still young enough to be of patriotic service—figuratively shelling pecans while the left wing of their party speeds the nation down the highway to eventual destruction of freedom. Where Mr. Garner, who almost single-handedly reduced the speed of the totalitarian juggernaut during the earlier days of the New Deal, has earned a rest, a great many younger men who believe with him have not.

It is interesting and reassuring to note that a few other men—like former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, Gov. Strom Thurmond, of South Carolina, and Sen. Harry Byrd, of Virginia—have left their political pecan shelling and have gone to work in an effort to recapture the Democratic party from its kidnapers. But the trouble is that not enough Democrats of that school of thought have yet bolstered up sufficient nerve to follow suit.

Perhaps the intervening months between now and campaign time in 1952 will find new converts to the cause. We hope so. It's all right for Mr. Garner, at 81, to take it easy. But it's no time for younger men to continue their fiddling while the Constitution burns.

Bridges On Trial

DURING more years than most people can remember, Labor Czar Harry Bridges has been one of the most fragrant and dangerous of trouble-makers in the U. S.

The other day one of his lawyers, Vincent Hallinan, was given a six months' jail sentence for contempt of the San Francisco federal district court over which Judge George B. Harris presides and where Bridges now is on trial on perjury and conspiracy charges.

That sentence for his attorney was the nearest thing to a penalty that ever has been imposed upon the foreign-born Bridges in this country.

During the past many years, including those of war as well as peace, Bridges has been one of the most blatant of the radicals in the U. S. His conduct has marked him as one of the reddest of the Reds. The evidence overwhelmingly supports the suspicion that he is one of the most vigorous and active of the agents of Communism.

Bridges has been responsible for some of the most violent and destructive strikes this nation has seen. Some have occurred on the waterfronts when our country desperately needed every ton of shipping during wars of survival.

Yet Bridges unfailingly has escaped an accounting for his conduct. Official Washington, fearing to antagonize the vote of the longshoremen, has been charged with most of the blame—justly charged, it appears—for the immunity this professional trouble-maker has abused.

Bridges, however, is on trial at last. He finally was brought before the bar of justice on the relatively sofet charge of perjury.

But it calls for cheers that the trial judge is a man like the one presiding in this case. His treatment of the lawyer, Hallinan, is strongly indicative that Judge Harris will not put up with any tom-foolery. It inspires the hope that Bridges now confronts a judge who is going to do his dead level best to see that justice is done after a trial conducted with proper dignity.

The Cameo

By VIRGINIA TEALE
Distributed By NEA, Inc.

(THE STORY: Hagar Blair, seeking to buy a valuable cameo from artist Martin Falter, goes to his home and finds him murdered. Hagar previously had sensed something wrong when she found the cameo's box, open and empty, in her car after it had been shown to her with the cameo inside by Arnold Pfieffer, who was commissioned by Falter to sell it. Hagar searches the dead man's home and finds no cameo. Meanwhile, Stephanie Smith, who works for Hagar, arrives in a taxi. They do not report the murder to police, but go to Hagar's home, where they both live. There in Hagar's cameo collection is the missing cameo than that seems to be connected with Falter's murder.)

CROUCHED in a thick growth of jasmine, exastly the right height and thickness to conceal a small, slender person like himself, Arnold Pfieffer looked through a window, open a few inches, and saw Stephanie Smith talking to Hagar Blair. Stephanie had the cameo in her hands.

"Isn't it lovely, Hagar? You can't imagine what it means to have it in my hands after all these years."

Arnold saw Hagar plump down on the bed opposite Stephanie and say: "Hold on, girl. The cameo's not really yours yet, you know. We can't play finders-keepers when there's just been a murder because of that brooch. Or, at least, we're assuming that's why somebody stuck a knife into Falter."

Arnold stiffened. So they knew about Martin!

"Another thing," Hagar continued. "What's the story on this cameo? As far as you're concerned, I mean. You act like a Crusader holding the Holy Grail. I've got to know whether to aid and abet you or turn the thing over to the police." She brooded. "Have to, anyhow, I guess."

Arnold shuddered. What would the police find out?

Then Stephanie began to talk. "Your can't, Hagar!"

Hagar shrugged: "It's evidence in a murder, don't forget!"

"But you want it too! You can't give it up."

"Oh, yet I can. Do you think I want Chief Peters to jug me for complicity? We're already suspects—or will be, anyhow, by tomorrow morning. But I think this is a good time for you to give me the story on the cameo. Your story, that is."

Stephanie spoke: "Nell O'Neill is my aunt."

Arnold choked back an involuntary gasp.

THE girl's eyes were lowered to the cameo: "She doesn't know it, of course, she hasn't seen me since I was a little girl. I despise Nellya, even if she is my mother's sister. She stole this cameo from my mother. My mother was dying then. She lived only a few days after Nellya left us."

Arnold forgot the penetrating salt air. He moved dangerously close to the window to hear Hagar's words:

"How did you know she was here in this little corner of the country?"

"I saw her picture in the paper when she married Tom O'Neill. There was a big story about it being his fifth marriage. It told all about how much money his other marriages had cost him in settlements and alimony. And the article called Nellya 'the blond Russian dancer.'"

"Umm. I think I remember seeing it. She was a ballerina, wasn't she?"

Stephanie gave a short, bitter laugh. "A ballerina! One must have a soul to be a ballerina. My mother was the ballerina. My mother was dancing the ballet in Moscow when she was only nine years old."

Hagar stared at the girl. "This is the most fantastic story I've ever heard."

"My mother showed me that it was a locket. It contains a picture of her and of my father."

"Let me see."

Stephanie looked troubled. "I don't know how to open it. My mother used to open it and show me the pictures. You press something and the cameo springs away from the frame. I think I can learn how it opens if only I can keep the cameo long enough."

Stephanie spoke again, beseechingly: "Do you understand, Hagar? It gives me an identity. A family!"

ARNOLD ducked as Hagar stood abruptly and faced the window. "What happened to your father?"

"Mother received word that he was killed in Russia during the revolution. He was trying to escape and come to her. He was captured and shot."

"He must have been on the losing side. Did he have a title?"

"I don't know. But sometimes mother used to tease me when I was naughty and say that little countesses didn't behave that way."

"Great graven gods! You don't suppose you're a countess?"

Stephanie smiled. "I don't suppose so. I've always thought of myself as an orphan who started making her own way in the world by working in a department store in Chicago."

She turned away again and perched on the foot of the bed.

"Can you prove the cameo's yours?"

"No."

"Then how do you intend to get it away from Nell?"

"She'll sell it. We know that."

"Wonder how she happened to let Falter get hold of it?" Hagar was speculating. "Well, with him dead, there's no question of her ownership. She can claim it—if she can find it. But here's something we've almost lost sight of: Who put it in my collection cabinet. And why?" Closing her eyes tightly, she appeared to be thinkinghard. "Umm. I think I know the answer to that one, though."

Stephanie leaned forward. "Who?"

"Arnold Pfieffer."

Looking At Life -- By Erich Brandeis

PROBABLY Mr. Aesop would have gotten quite a fable out of this.

BRANDEIS

But, not being a fabulator, I'll just have to chat with you in my own way.

For several weeks now, I have been looking at the winter cruise and winter resort ads in the New York newspapers.

I have been doing some dreaming, some figuring, and just a tiny bit of suggesting to my wife.

Strange to say, however, every time I approach the idea of a winter trip she changes the subject and tells me that the price of coffee has gone up another two cents or that the plumber (at $3.50 an hour) will have to come out before long to fix that leak in the kitchen faucet.

I don't think we'll go anywhere this winter, but a fellow can dream, can't he?

So last night I dreamed I was a bird—I don't know exactly what kind. But it seemed that I had some yellow feathers somewhere and a red crest on top of my head. At any rate, I was a very fancy kind of a bird.

During the summer my wife and I had lived in a tree on the Brandeis place in Connecticutt, and we had been very comfortable.

But now it was getting cold and the tree was bare and all the bugs and worms and grubs had disappeared

True, the Brandeis folks put out some feeders with sunflower seeds and other tid-bits, but it wasn't like fresh food right from the tree. Also, there was very little sunshine now and it was getting colder every day—and particularly every night.

So, naturally(I said to my wife, "Let's go South."

I expected her to tell me she had nothing to wear and how expensive such a trip would be and how it was so much trouble to close up a house for the winter.

But then—in my dream, of course—I remembered that we were birds and not the Brandeises or the Joneses or the Smiths, and that all we'd have to do was to spread our wings and fly wherever we wanted to go.

So I asked my wife (my bird wife), "Would you like to go to Venezuela this year or would you prefer California or Florida?"

I forgot what she replied,

British Plan Upheld

BY RAY TUCKER
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON: — Lindsay C. Warren of North Carolina, the Comptroller General of the United States, has one other hobby besides saving pennies for the taxpayers as the Congerssional watchdog over executive expenditures.

Whenever he gets ahead in his work of checking on an annual federal outgo of $42 billion, he heads for Kitty Hawk Beach Nags Head to the natives in his home country for a vacation or weekend of fishing in the inlets that stud the dunes or off-shore. Like most fishermen, he catches whoppers and also tells whoppers, to the delight of his Congressional and newspaper guests.

TUCKER

Few night ago, Mr. Warren and his party enjoyed the dinner and floor show at the Shoreham Hotel. The principal performer was a mind-reader, and it was not long before she approached the table of the professionally skeptical Comptroller General.

• • •

FISH: The master of ceremonies asked Mr. Warren to lend him some article that would establish telepathic contact between the North Carolinian and the mind-reader. The C. G. dug a frayed photograph from his wallet and handed it over.

"What is this I have in my hand?" asked the maestro.

"It is a picture of a fish," replied the girl entertainer.

"Is there any writing on the back of it?" continued the interlocutor. "And what does it say?"

"It says," she answered, " 'This fish weighed forty pounds, but I told the folks at Washington that it weighed fifty.' " She was right.

Several members of the House from adjoining tables joshed the C.G. about his careless handling of figures.

A Navy Admiral at the table, recently returned from Hawaii, murmured:

"I wish we'd had that gal at Pearl Harbor before December 7, 1941!"

ECCENTRICITIES: The American people are extremely interested in how Britain spends the billions in American aid, but their curiosity does not extend to her vast economic experiments and difficulties so much as to England's seeming eccentricities, according to Charles Campbell, head of the British Information Services. It is his task to answer complaints.

As a veteran newspaperman in many American cities, Mr. Campbell knows this country as well as any member of the National Press Club. With Sir Willmott Lewis, Washington correspondent of the London Times, he is ranked as the ablest representative London has in the United States, official and unofficial.

Thus, in his letters and speeches, he is peculiarly fitted to bridge what ever gap of misunderstanding may exist between the two peoples.

ESTATE: A common American misconception, he says, is that the monarchy is an extravagant and wasteful institution that is spending our financial advances foolishly and needlessly. Many writers want to know why they should be taxed to support the kingly establishment.

"The royal family costs us nothing," explains Mr. Campbell. "They represent a net profit because the crown estates bring in a greater revenue than the salaries the family gets for doing its job.

"We netted about a million pounds from the estate in 1948."

GAMBLING: Forgetting the billions they spend on horse-racing, football pools, the numbers and other forms of gambling even in depression times, Americans amuse Mr. Campbell with this query:

"Why do you need our dollars if you can spend $400 billion on the derby?"

"Actually," the information man tells them, "not a dollar is bet on the derby. It is all in British pounds.

"The wire services translate the pounds into dollars so that American readers will understand how much that means in currency."

DEMOCRACY: Now and then does he receive more fundamental inquiries. Some people over here, he says, have the impression that England's "socialistic government" is tantamount to totaliarianism.

"That is not true," he continues. "The day after tomorrow, if we want to, we can turn the Socialists out and elect somebody else. If we don't, it is because we think they are doing a good job.

"But the power to change governments is there, which is not true of a totalitarian state. In a sentence — Britain is a democracy."

INTERDEPENDENCE: Mr. Campbell never misses a chance to present a bread-and-butter explanation of the two countries' interdependence, to wit:

"The things that affect men's lives in the most remote parts of the world impigne in some way on the lives of men everywhere. If the pottery makers in the Five Towns of England are out of work, they cannot buy as much bread as usual.

"Then the wheat growers on the American prairies can't sell as much wheat. Therefore, they can't buy as many automobiles. As a result, men in Detroit are out of work. Then they can't buy as much groceries or as many newspapers.

"Isn't then the news of the Five Towns a local story in Detroit?"

Thus speaks the Anglo-American sage of Upper Massachusettes Avenue.

AT MEETING OF SOUTHERN LEADERS

New Anti-Truman Move Launched

By THOMAS L. STOKES
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—The new anti-Truman, anti-Fair Deal movement now has been launched formally in the south at the Southeastern Governors conference at Biloxi, Mississippi.

The scheme works out as forecast here a few weeks ago. The idea is to take up the mortgage on the dilapidated Dixiecrat homestead, repaint the front and the pillars, set out some honeysuckle vines and magnolia trees, and make it an eminently respectable mansion by installing in residence James F. Byrnes of South Carolina, who enjoys considerable prestige from a long career as House member, senator, Supreme court justice, top civilian wartime aid to both Presidents Roosevelt and Truman and Secretary of State under Mr. Truman.

STOKES

The plan presumably is for Mr. Byrnes, a legislative architect of the early Roosevelt New Deal, to run for governor of South Carolina next year to provide a forum from which to direct the anti-Fair Deal campaign. Either that, or perhaps to run Donald S. Russell, Mr. Byrnes' law partner and protege, who is being groomed in the Byrnes tradition.

Seek To Build Up Bloc

The renovated States Right movement is directed, first, at strengthening the Southern Democrat-Republican coalition in Congress and creating a national bipartisan anti-Fair Deal alliance and, second, with particular reference to the Democratic party, to try to check the fair deal forces at the 1952 Democratic national convention.

In what might be called his "keynote speech" at Biloxi, the former Truman associate—who broke openly with the President in early summer in his "road to statism" commencement address at Washington and Lee at Lexington, Va.—indicated the tactics and strategy of the new movement.

IT will be pitched naturally around the old and threadbare issue of states' rights but on a high philosophical plane. Jimmy Byrnes, it is said, sees himself as a sort of modern John C. Calhoun. An effort will be made to play down publicly the racism theme of the States Right movement, which made that abortive affair so odious to most people elsewhere and to many people, also, in the south. Mr. Byrnes avoided the racial issue very carefully in sounding the alarm at Biloxi.

An attempt will be made, likewise, it is understood, to keep in the background the economic and financial interests, oil, utilities, textiles and banks, which exploited the States Right movement for their purposes, as they have perennially in other similar "revolts" in the South, as anybody who knows anything about the South knows so well.

In this respect, it is perhaps unfortunate for the pretty picture that one of the principal agents of this element turned up at Biloxi. This is Leander B. Perez, wealthy oil man, attorney general and undisputed political boss of St. Bernard and Plaquemines parishes in Louisiana who, as revealed here during the last campaign and since, was behind the action of the Democratic state central committee, later rescinded, that ruled President Truman's name off the Louisiana ballot, and was one of the powerful figures behind the States Right movement. Owner of extensive oil holdings in the delta, he is fighting for state, instead of federal control of tidal oil lands, which was a big factor in the States Right movement.

Has Own Control

Mr. Perez is virtually political dictator of his domain, as previously revealed here, which is one of the tightest rotten boroughs still left in the country, with almost complete control of the franchise. His lip service to States' Rights and local democracy carries no weight in his own community. It was announced here several weeks ago that he would open national headquarters here in Washington for a new national States' Rights movement.

Considering everything, the South is perhaps the least appropriate origin for a States' Rights movement, aside from tradition. As Mr. Byrnes said, southern governors have paraded here, hat in hand, for federal donations. States' Rights is used chiefly as a cover for fighting federal legislation for civil rights for negroes. An analysis shows that through the years state government in the south, with an exception or two, has done less for its people than most state government elsewhere—what former Governor Ellis Arnall of Georgia called frankly an "abdication" of States' Rights

IN twitting his fellow southern governors for shouting about states' rights while they held their hands out to the federal treasury, he said it wasn't a case of restoration of states' rights, but using properly the rights they already had.

States' rights" too often has been the means of depriving people of rights, both civil and economic, through the influence of special interests who were able to work their will with weak state governments which they wanted to keep weak.

It's well to look these southern gift horses in the mouth before they begin to prance and whinny.

PENALTY MAY BE LEVIED

Cotton Farmers To Decide Issue Of Marketing Quotas On Dec. 15

By SARAH McCLENDON
Avalanche Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—All over the South and Southwest, cotton farmers will vote in each community in which they live on Dec. 15 on the question of whether to have marketing quotas on cotton.

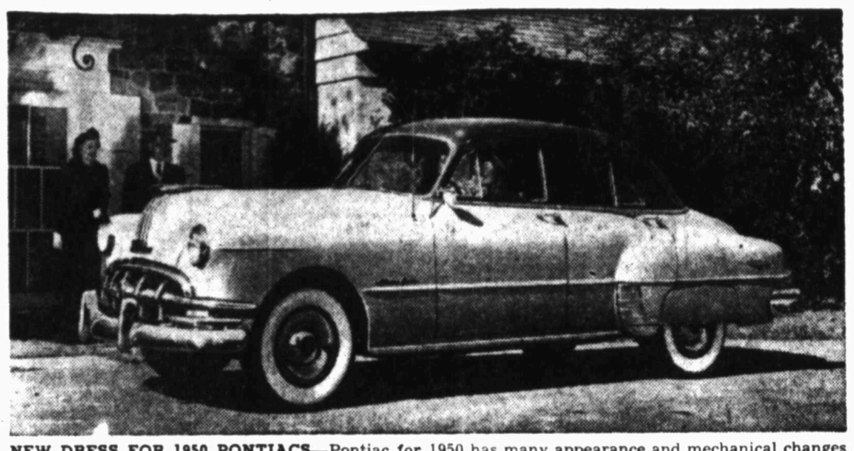

The question they will decide then is this: Whether the producer who overplants the allotment handed out to him by the Agriculture department is to pay a penalty for doing so. The penalty would be 50 percent of the parity price as of next June, the year the cotton crop will be produced.

Acreage To Be Figured

The allotment to be handed out to the individual farmer will be figured by the county Production and Marketing committee in this manner. Committeemen will consider each cotton farm in the county. They will use a county factor. They will divide the total county allotment (less the county reserve portion of 15 percent of the total) by the adjusted acreage of crop land on all cotton farms. They will multiply this percentage factor by the adjusted crop land on each individual farm. This will give each farmer his factored allotment.

Then the county committee just begins its work. It will add to the basic factored allotment that portion out of the 15 percent reserve which it thinks a farmer may be entitled to receive because of special considerations — whether his allotment was unusually small because of his being a farmer returned to the soil after defense plant work or military service, whether his is a small farm, whether his family is big, his tools or labor great, and depending on the size of his total crop land.

The county committee will also allot any extra acreage received from the 10 percent reserve total of the state, should any of that fall to that particular county. State reserve acreages will be awarded on the basis of these factors: adjustments for trends in acreage, adjustments for counties adversely affected by abnormal conditions affecting planting, the number of small or new farms.

NEW DRESS FOR 1950 PONTIACS—Pontiac for 1950 has many appearance and mechanical changes resulting in sharpened beauty and improved performance. Pictured above is the popular four-door sedan Chieftain, which will be on display along with other models at McWilliams Pontiac Company, 902 ave. $J, starting today. Both six and eight-cylinder engines are available in all Chieftain and Streamliner models and the horsepower of the eight-cylinder engine has been increased.

Michael A. Needham, Laredo, Retired Executive, Claimed

CORPUS CHRISTI, Nov. 25. (AP). Michael Arthur Needham, 81, of Laredo, retired executive of American Smelting and Refining Co., died at 11:45 p.m. Thursday in a Corpus Christi hospital.

Born in Smiths Creek, Mich., in 1868, he was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thom Needham, Irish immigrants. From 1902 to 1914 he was superintendent of the southern division of National Lines of Mexico. He was employed by American Smelting from 1914 until he retired in 1946. Survivors include two sons, Michael A. Needham, jr., of Corpus Christi and W. A. Needham of Laredo; a sister Mrs. Kate McGloin of Smiths Creek; two brothers, James of Detroit, Mich., and John of Smiths Creek.

Rosary will be recited here tonight. Funeral mass will be celebrated in Corpus Christi cathedral at 8:30 a.m. Saturday. The body will be sent to San Antonio for burial in San Fernando cemetery No. 2 at 4 p.m. Saturday.

Re-Styled 1950 Pontiacs Go On Display In Lubbock Today At McWilliams Agency

Offering 28 appearance and mechanical improvements headlined by a substantial increase in eight-cylinder power, the new 1950 Pontiacs will go on display today at McWilliams Pontiac company, 902 Ave. J.

"We believe our 1950 line to be the best-looking, finest performing Pontiacs ever produced," D. R. McWilliams, president, said. "They embrace logical and well thought out advances. The 1949 models brought Pontiac's popularity to a new peak. Now we have gone on from there."

Horsepower Increased

Pontiac again gives its customers an extremely wide choice. Chieftain and Streamliner lines are continued with standard and deluxe styling, six or eight-cylinder engines and Hydra-Matic or Synchro-Mesh transmissions.

Cubic displacement of the popular eight-cylinder engine has been increased to produce 108 horsepower.

From bumper to bumper, inside and out, calculated design touches have enriched and highlighted Pontiac's traditionally rich appearance.

Frontal Design Improved

Frontal design of both Chieftains and Streamliners reach a new degree of massive integrity with main grille bars reaching out and around fenders, carrying the approach pattern into side view. Parking lights are newly designed to carry out the horizontal flow. The girdle, itself, is heaviest and quartered by prominent support bars. The center support carries the traditional Indian head medallion.

Art and engineering meet in the interior with aesthetically satisfying result. Door panels are a blending of two shades of gray with upper broadcloth softly merging with harder finished fabric of the lower panels. Standard model upholstery is mixed wool cloth selected for trim appearance and long wearing capacity.

Body Types Offered

Chieftain series (standard or deluxe) offers the following body types: four-door sedan, two-door sedan, sedan coupe, convertible coupe, business coupe. A four-door sedan taxicab is also available with standard equipment only.

Streamliner series (standard or deluxe): four-door sedan, sedan coupe, metal station wagon, and the sedan delivery, introduced last year and popular as a swang commercial vehicle, available with standard equipment only.

The Pontiac eight-cylinder engine has been stepped up in power by increasing the diameter of its cylinders but remains the same dependable Pontiac power plant. To match the increased power of the eight, the crankshaft rear bearing has been enlarged and a positive rear bearing oil seal added. Where Synchro-Mesh rather than Hydra-Matic transmission has been ordered, a clutch with increased diameter is provided to assure smooth, positive engagement.

Other Pontiac mechanical innovations for 1950 include:

Better Visibility

A new and larger radiator core for the six cylinder engine; rubber rear spring bushings to eliminate road shock and power transmission noises and which eliminate lubrication need at this point; elimination of copper wire in spark plug coil and distributor cables to further reduce radio and television interference.

Steering wheels have been lowered to improve visibility for persons of less than average height. Body rigidity and passenger safety is improved by changing the roof rail from channel to box-type construction. Door locks on the 1950 models now are freeze-proof and coil spring holders eliminate tool rattle in the trunk.

Gold and silver can be pulled out of hitherto unworkable low-grade ores by means of invisible iron handles in a newly patented magnetic process.

Mexico Convinced Of Increased Production From Oil Exploration

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 25. (AP)—Mexico is convinced she is going to have lots more oil in the next few years.

Both tideland (under water) and straight land drilling is confirming predictions that there are big new fields which may double oil production eventually.

Present drilling near the Gulf but extending out under water near Coatzacoalcos, (Puerto Mexico) at the very south end of the Gulf of Mexico, near old oil fields, has brought in a new well. Antonio Bermudez, director general of Pemex, government oil monopoly, says a 20-minute test Tuesday, showed a flow rate of 1,170 barrels daily.

The well is down 4,100 feet. It is the first achievement of the American Independent De Mexico, known here as "Cima," formed by Edwin W. Pauley with the American Independent Oil Co., and the Signal Oil company. The group made a contract with Pemex March 11 to drill during 12 years at its own expense with payment for the work to be paid out of oil produced plus 15 per cent of the oil for 25 years for land drilling and 18¼ per cent for offshore wells.

Although the actual results so far have not been great in oil, Bermudez says the drilling supports predictions that there are rich fields around present locations.

Bermudez three months ago said Mexico would double her present product which was given as 57,875,000 barrels for the year ending Aug. 31.

Bermudez previously had counted on big loans from the United States to finance his whole plan, but failure to get the money caused him to turn to the U. S. companies for drilling.

The loan proposal encountered criticism in the United States that money should not be advanced to Mexico for oil production because in 1938 she expropriated the oil properties of U. S. companies, as well as British and Dutch, and still operates them. All the companies were dissatisfied with payment which was long delayed.

GROWERS ALOOF

Ceylon rubber growers are cold toward the government's plan to subsidize replanting of rubber, saying that the offer is not high enough and anyway, it takes seven years to get a crop.

Truman Names Chicago Man As Head Of Munitions Board

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25. (AP)—President Truman today named Hubert E. Howard of Chicago as chairman of the munitions board.

The post has been vacant for many months.

Howard has been chairman of the board of the Binkley Coal company and Pyramid Coal corporation of Chicago.

Since Sept. 1 he has been chairman of the personnel policy board of the Department of defense.

The President tried to appoint Carl Ilgenfritz, an official of the U. S. Steel corporation, to the munitions board chairmanship last summer.

Ilgenfritz was willing to take the post if he could continue to draw a salary from U. S. Steel. The White House agreed to that, but several senators raised objections.

After a debate revolving about that point, the Senate rejected Ilgenfritz for the post.

Howard, 60, is a native of Fairfield, Iowa.

He received a so-called recess appointment until the Senate gets a chance, after Congress reconvenes, to pass on his appointment.

Cotton

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Nov. 25 (AP) — Cotton futures were irregular in slow trading today. Switching operations from nearby December to later month deminated dealings. There were nine December transferable notices issued at Nw York on first notice day which were reported stopped by a leading spot firm. Mill buying was moderate and hedge selling light. The continued good demand for spot cotton textiles, firmness in spot cotton, and increasing entries of cotton into the loan were steadying influences.

Private Atlanta advices said that mill buying of spot cotton improved for delivery during the first and second quarters of next year.

Washington advices said ECA is consulting with Indian representatives regarding possible large purchases of Indian cotton here, with financing the major point in questionn.

Cotton futures moved into new high for the day in late dealings on mill and commission house buying. Futures closed 5 to 75 cents a bale higher than the previous close.

Grain

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, Nov. 25 (AP) — Grains rolled upward under the impetus of a strong cash market on the board of trade today. Many new seasonal highs were hung up in wheat, corn and oats.

Mills bought wheat, leading to the belief domestic flour business was expanding. December wheat gained more than 2 cents at times while the March contract went to a new peak since trading in that delivery started.

Export houses brought corn. In the cash market, sales of No. 1 and No. 2 corn were made at the December price or a little higher. Cash corn has been selling at a discount for many weeks.

Oats made only smal lgains, but they were enough to record new seasonal peaks in the December and July contracts.

Wheat closed 1⅛-1⅞ higher, December $2.15⅞-2.16, corn was 1⅛-1½ higher, December $1.28½-⅝, oats were unchanged to ⅝ higher, December 75½-⅝, rye was 2½-2¾ higher, December $1.34, soybeans were 2¼-3½ higher, December $2.29⅝-½, and lard was 7 to 12 cents a hundred pounds higher, December $10.32.

STOCKS LOSE GROUND

NEW YORK, Nov. 25. (AP)—Quotations dropped fractions to an extreme of two points today in a shaky stock market.

Business fell off a bit from the past two sessions but, at that, 1,260,000 shares changed hands. This compared with 1,460,000 shares on Wednesday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined .4 of one point to 68.1. The industrial and rails groups were tied with the largest decline while utilities were a poor second.

New highs for the year were established during the day by 63 stocks and new 1949 lows by only two—Chicago and Northwestern preferred and Feit and Tarrant Mfg.

Chrysler was given a thorough shake-up, dropping more than two points at one time and closing 2 lower at 59⅜. Chrysler hit a new high for the year earlier this week, largely on hopes that directors would take some kind of yearend dividend action at a meeting scheduled for Dec. 1.

Other recent favorites in the motor section also declined, General Motors ¼ to 66¾ and Studebaker ⅜ to 25⅜. Packard lost ¼ at 3¾.

Magnavox was another issue given a mauling. The stock dropped ⅛ to 10⅜ soon after announcement of September quarter earnings of $48,684, equal to 7 cents a capital share.

Hiram Walker at 31⅜ and Distillers Corp.-Seagrams at 17 ended with minor gains while Schenley was unchanged at 31 and National Distillers a trifle lower at 22¼.

Rubber also enjoyed a degree of popularity. Goodrich tacked on a gain of a full point at 71⅛ and U. S. Rubber was up ½ at 33¾ but Goodyear, higher at one time, slipped ⅛ to 40¾.

Losses of a point or more appeared for Santa Fe at 93¼, Southern Pacific 45 and Union Pacific 81⅛.

Also down were U. S. Steel, Radio Corp., Admiral Corp., Philco, Armour and Co., Bethlehem Steel, Douglas Aircraft, Kennecott Copper, Du Pont, General Electric, Standard Oil (NJ), Gulf Oil, United Air Lines and Warner Bros.

Those up included Pullman, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Anaconda, McIntyre Porcupine, and Twentieth Century-Fox.

Lower in the curb were Pantepec Oil, N. J. Zinc, Cities Service, Imperial Oil, and Humble Oil. Higher were Mining Corp. of Canada, Ford Motor Ltd., Creole Petroleum, and American Superpower preferred, the last up 2¾ at 113. Sales of 340,000 shares compared with 370,000 Wednesday.

U. S. governments lost as much as 4/32 of a point in the fifth decline in a row in the over-the-counter market. Corporate bonds moved along a narrow route.

Body Of Man Still Unclaimed At Lamesa

LAMESA, Nov. 25. (Sul.).— The body of John Allen Gandy, 39-year old farm laborer who died last Saturday from a skull fracture suffered when he fell from a pickup truck near here, remained unclaimed late tonight in a local funeral parlor.

The man, known only as "Mr. X." to hospital authorities who had not been able to identify him until after his death, has been viewed by several people who thought him perhaps a lost relative. J. A. Gandy of Rosce examined the body yesterday thinking it to be that of his son.

Two Lubbock Army officers viewed the body today, telling funeral home officials that it might be that of a former soldier. The provost marshall from Brooks Army Air Force base will arrive in Lamesa tomorrow and attempt to identify the man, the officers stated.

J. A. Gandy of Bryan, thought to be the father of the dead man, is reportedly arriving tomorrow also.

Justice of the Peace D. M. Campbell reported the death accidental at an official inquest held today. Further investigation, if any, he said, would be up to the grand jury.

Several score area residents have viewed the body of the man, who told Big Spring residents last week his residence was in Dawson county. None have, however, recognized him.

The office of the county sheriff has had numerous calls from all over the state from persons thinking Grandy was a relative.

Los Angeles Police Seek Author Of Postcards Denouncing City

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 25. (INS)—The police department joined forces with the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce today in attempting to find the individual or group that has been sending warnings to cities throughout the nation of alleged "police terrorism" and "rampant crime" in the West Coast's largest city.

The postcards warning prospective tourists away from Los Angeles are signed "The national travelers public relations committee of Los Angeles citizens' safety council in cooperation with national tourist and travelers association."

Authorities said that no such organization exists.

Harold M. Wright, general manager of the Los Angeles chamber said that the postcards, the majority of which bore a San Diego postmark, have been sent to virtually every major city in the United States. Said Wright:

"We are sending explanatory letters to chambers throughout the nation. The charges, of course, are untrue and unwarranted. Crime in Los Angeles is not out of proportion to other cities. . ."

Police said that even if they catch up with the postcard sender it is doubtful if any charges can be preferred against him.

After all, they said, the postcard message is one man's opinion.

Robeson Claimed Unqualified As American Negro Spokesman

OMAHA, Nov. 25. (INS) — The president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car porters (AFL) said today that singer Paul Robeson has not "suffered enough" to speak for the American negro.

A. Phillip Randolph said in Omaha:

"I think Robeson is a great artist, but he also is a very wealthy man. And he has lived too long in luxury away from the United States to be considered the voice of the American negro."

Oil Discovery Heads Wyoming Town Toward Drilling Boom

GLENROCK, Wyo., Nov. 25. (AP) This central Wyoming town of 1,500 today appeared headed for the distinction of being the first in the state to experience town lot oil well drilling on a large scale.

The Steelco Drilling company has brought in a well on the northern outskirts with an estimated daily production of 3,000 barrels of 40 degree gravity light green oil.

Geologists have suspected for a long time that the town is sitting on top of an oil field. Nearly every parcel of land in town has been leased for months. Now that the new well, No. 1 MacDonald, has come in, derricks are expected to go up among the houses and business buildings.

More Funds Given For Wreck Victims

The Lubbock county chapter of the American Red Cross will meet all urgent financial needs of families of the eight Latin Americans killed in a train-truck collision near Shallowater Wednesday, Mrs. Marguerite Stiles, executive secretary of the chapter, said Friday night.

In addition, the Red Cross chapter is acting as a handling agency for a fund started for the families.

The chapter received two checks Wednesday, one for $500 from Hiram Parks, Brownfield and Lubbock theater operator who gave the money in the name of the Llanos theater of Lubbock, and another for $10 from Mr. and Mrs. Harry Roberts of Lubbock.

$360 Distributed

Nine employes of the Texas New Mexico and Oklahoma bus lines Wednesday contributed and collected $360 from friends. The money was distributed to the families of those killed in the following manner—$135 to the family that lost three members, $90 to the family losing two members and $45 to each of the other three families that lost one member.

Members of the group who collected the money were Ignacio Rubio, jr., Ygalio Lozano, Silvis Lara, Ducas Ramos, Lalo De La Rosa, Jose Luera, Daniel Martinez and Pedro Ojeda.

"We are trying to do everything possible for these people," Mrs. Stiles said, "but language barriers and the emotional strain of the families have made progress slow so far."

The Red Cross chapter will accept any money or pledges of money for the fund. The money will be distributed according to the wishes of the donor. Such contributions may be made by calling 8534 or mailing checks to the Lubbock County chapter of the Red Cross, 1513 Avenue K, Lubbock.

WESTINGHOUSE AID ADMITTED

'Rigging' In Army Procurement Denied Before House Probers

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25. (AP).—Army spokesmen acknowledged today that a large manufacturer "had a hand" in preparing Army specifications on a $100,000 order for refrigeration equipment, but only as one of a number of industry advisors.

Denying allegations of "rigging" in Army procurement practices, top civilian and military representatives of the quartermaster general's office said there had been nothing illegal or irregular in service procurement.

They appeared as witnesses before a House judiciary subcommittee which on Tuesday heard complaints against the Army from Orville Morrison, head of the Sunroc Refrigeration Co. of Philadelphia.

Lost Contract Claimed

Morrison told the committee he lost out on a $100,000 water cooler order when it appeared that Westinghouse advertising literature had been worded directly into specifications.

Answering Morrison today, Army witnesses said that the definitions for equipment specifications originated with the Bureau of Federal supply which prepares general requirements for all government supplies.

Brig. Gen. E. M. Brannon, assistant judge advocate general for procurement, told the committee that Westinghouse definitions were incorporated in the specifications because no other satisfactory definition was available.

While it was a Westinghouse definition, he declared, "it is not proprietary with Westinghouse."

Building Details Involved

Among other things, the specification dispute involved requirements for double wall construction and hermetic sealing of motor and pump parts.

Rep. Keating (R.-N.Y.), acting chairman in the absence of Rep. Celler (D.-N.Y.), remarked "it appears without dispute that representatives of Westinghouse Electric company assisted in preparation of these specifications."

E. P. Kerr, head of the refrigeration unit of the quartermaster's research section, agreed — "except that other companies also assisted."

In addition to Westinghouse, Kerr testified advice also was given by: Corley-Hays company of New York City, Tempright of Detroit, and General Electric Supply corporation.

Kerr said Westinghouse was not the sole manufacturer of hermetically sealed equipment. There were also Tempright and Corley-Hays.

Spain Seeks Loan From Export Bank

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25. (U.P.)—Spain has approached officials of the U. S. Export-Import bank on the possibility of getting a loan.

Bank Chairman Herbert E. Gaston told a news conference that Spanish representatives had met informally with bank officials within the past month to discuss a loan. But he indicated the talks did not make much progress.

Spain, Gaston said, had not filed any formal loan application. and, he said, she is not expected to do so in the near future.

The bank chairman also disclosed these other developments:

1. The bank granted a $21,000,000 credit to the government of Afghanistan to help finance a new dam and the completion of a canal system.

2. The Bank is anticipating a loan application from Indonesia which needs funds to repair war-inflicted damages.

In discussing the possibility of a loan to Spain, Gaston told newsmen it appeared unlikely Spain could meet the necessary requirements. One condition is "reasonable assurance of repayment," he said, but the Spanish emissaries could give no such assurance.

Looking At Life

because just then I woke up and was a bird no longer but only a human being with all the artificial restrictions, limitations and bugaboos of the human being.

* * *

WOULD YOU believe it? As I sit here now writing this I really wish I were a bird.

I couldn't read all those enticing ads about the Sunshine countries in the newspapers, because birds don't read.

But my wife and I could simply take off and fly wherever we wanted to go. We wouldn't have to worry about a thing, and next Spring, when it gets nice in Connecticut again, we'd come back and have a heck of a good time on the Brandeis place.

I bet Aesop could have done a lot with this.

Brownfield Unit Of National Guard To Drill Here Monday

BROWNFIELD, Nov. 25. (Special)—The Brownfield drill unit of Headquarters and Headquarters battery of the 132nd Field Artillery battalion, 36th Infantry division, Texas National Guard, will drill in Lubbock Monday night, Nov. 28 with the main unit, according to Capt. Sam Privitt of Brownfield. Drill will be in the use of the 105mm. howitzer.

At a recent meeting of the local unit, members heard Col. Ross Ayres of Lubbock lecture on Army organization, and Capt. Albert Thompson, U. S. Army instructor, lecture on range-finding methods and computation of target finding.

Col. Ayres and Captain Privitt will go to Austin early in December to confer with the adjutant general in regard to moving a National Guard unit from Lubbock to Brownfield.

Government Seizure Of Argentine Press Called Unauthorized

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 25. (AP).—An opposition member of the congressional committee on anti-Argentine activities condemned today as "unauthorized" the seizures of business offices of newspapers and news agencies in Buenos Aires.

Acting in the name of the full committee, a two-man subcommittee of Peronist deputies, Jose Emilio Visca and Rodolfo P. Decker, took over the account books of the Associated Press, the United Press and seven Buenos Aires newspapers.

J. Anibal Davila, member of the opposition radical party in congress and one of the three minority members of the anti-Argentine activities committee, said the raids by the two Peronist deputies were carried out without consultation with the full committee for authorization.

Davila said Visca and Decker worked as "political accusers," and added that his party members "censure and denounce" their actions.

Beginning the third day of the raids, Visca and Decker this morning seized the books of the Socialist weekly La Vanguardia, which has not been published since it was closed a year ago by the city government on grounds that its buildings violated an ordinance.

Yesterday the two-man subcommittee took over the business offices of the two news agenies and of three pro-government newspapers, El Mundo, Critica and La Razon. The day before the committee had seized the business officers of La Presna and La Nacion, the two biggest independent newspapers, the tabloid Clarin and the Communist La Hora.

The subcommittee stationed an auditor and two police in each office and began examining financial records to check upon charges that certain sections of the press had obtained money from the leftist-liberal coalition which unsuccessfully opposed Peron in 1946. The news agencies and newspapers, meanwhile, carried out normal collections and payments and performed news gathering and distribution functions normally.
