RepublicBank buys $250 million in loans

By JULIE FAUBEL
Business-Energy Writer

RepublicBank First National Midland today announced completion of its exclusive and extensive review of loans from the portfolio of failed First National Bank of Midland.

RepublicBank bought back loans of 8,692 borrowers totaling in excess of $250 million, said Thomas J. Wageman, bank president.

This leaves a balance of $1.05 billion in loans left with the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. although Wageman said "phase two" of the bank's repurchase program could involve further loan purchases by RepublicBank.

The announcement was made during a press conference at the bank this morning.

Wageman said he was "pleased" and "glad" the process was over.

"Our objective from the very beginning was to ensure the uninterrupted availability of credit to as many people in this community as we could possibly reach. Two-thirds of the old bank's borrowers will now become borrowers of our bank, RepublicBank First National Midland. This has tied up our bank for three months and we are glad to have it over."

Following the failure of FNB Oct. 14, RepublicBank was given 30 days by the FDIC to review the failed bank's loan portfolio. Unable to complete the task in the allotted time, RepublicBank asked for and was given a 30-day extension which expired mid-December. At that time, the bank asked for and was given a second 30-day extension which expired Monday.

When FNB failed, Wageman said, it served almost 14,150 borrowers. Since mid-October, 814 borrowers have paid off their loans. Of the remaining 13,334 borrowers, RepublicBank bought back more than 65 percent of their loans.

However, of the $1.3 billion loan portfolio, the amount puchased is only 19 percent.

Wageman explained, "When we started on Oct. 15, the one commitment that we made was that we wanted to touch as many people's lives, in a good way, as we possibly could here in Midland. So which is better, to buy 100 loans at $10,000 apiece and involve 100 households or businesses in Midland or to buy one loan at $1 million? Which is better?"

In addition to himself, Wageman said, Tom Barksdale, regional chairman of RepublicBank Corp. and Tom Foster, executive vice president credit administration RepublicBank, Dallas, formed the committee to decide which loans the bank would buy back. The criteria for judging the loans was two-fold.

Wageman confirms 20 layoffs, FDIC job offers

By JULIE FAUBEL
Business-Energy Writer

Officials at RepublicBank First National Midland have confirmed the layoffs of 20 employees Monday.

Thomas J. Wageman, bank president, said the move was made because there was no work for these employees.

At the time First National Bank of Midland failed Oct. 14, there were more than 850 employees. Because the new bank is smaller than the old one, Wageman said, it was necessary to reduce the size of its workforce. Currently, RepublicBank's staff totals 656.

The layoffs follow others made in cost cutting moves prior to FNB's failure.

"Does Midland want us to be a good bank? Then we have to run it like a good bank. We're not doing anything that a responsible businessman wouldn't do. When business is cut in half, you've got to reduce your employee count."

Wageman said the affected employees had been offered jobs with the FDIC if they were interested.

"The FDIC would like to hire those 20 people. If those 20 people want to go to work for the FDIC tomorrow, they're welcomed as we understand it. If they don't, they don't have to. They can go to work for the FDIC at their same salary that they leave us with, that's been agreed to."

Thomas R. Procopio, liquidator in charge of FNB, said the FDIC had been able to offer all 20 employment.

"We were given the profiles of the people they were going to lay off and much to our delight we were able to offer all 20 of them jobs," Procopio said.

He also said most of the 20 had accepted the FDIC's job offer and added that he hopes the rest will.

"I hope we are going to get all of them. We sure need them and we would be delighted to have all of them working for us," Procopio said.

Wageman also said, "Everybody has a chance to be a winner in this situation and that's important. We get to reduce our head count so we can keep our expenses in line with our revenues and have a good strong bank. And the FDIC gets some good people it desperately needs."

Wageman said he anticipates reducing his staff further in the first quarter of 1984 but would not say by how many.

Shultz reiterates arms challenge

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz today offered to work with the Soviet Union to reduce the risk of inadvertent war and again challenged it to resume nuclear arms control talks.

His remarks were made in a speech prepared for today's opening session of the 35-nation European security conference.

With negotiations on nuclear and conventional forces stalled elsewhere in Europe, the conference is the only forum for East-West military talks. It also is the setting for the first high-level meeting between the United States and the Soviet Union in more than four months.

Both Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko said on arrival Monday they are here to negotiate seriously. Their meeting Wednesday will be their first since an angry encounter Sept. 8 in Madrid, Spain, that was overshadowed by the Soviet downing of the Korean Air Lines jetliner a week earlier.

Shultz did not offer any new U.S. initiatives or concessions to the Soviets to induce them to fix a date for resuming the stalled Geneva talks on intermediate-range and strategic nuclear missiles or the suspended Vienna negotiations to reduce conventional forces in Central Europe.

However, he urged the Soviets to reduce barriers between East and West.

"This division is the essence of Europe's security and human rights problem, and we all know it," Shultz said.

He advocated steps to make it more difficult to inadvertently start a war. The tragedy of World War I, "when nations stumbled blindly into a disastrous war" must not be permitted to recur, Shultz said.

He jabbed at the Soviet Union, saying "some nations seek global or regional military superiority or resort to threats of intimidation" and said the United States "seeks no such superiority."

Geter opts for trial instead of polygraph

DALLAS (AP) — A black engineer whose life sentence for armed robbery prompted a public outcry after co-workers said he was at work during the crime will stand trial again because his attorneys rejected a lie-detector test.

Prosecutors had said that Lenell Geter, 26, who spent 14 months in prison, could go free if he passed a polygraph test given by a Dallas homicide detective.

But Geter's attorneys, who had earlier agreed to have Detective William Parker give the test, said Monday that Parker was not acceptable and they'd rather go to trial April 9.

Monday was the deadline Dallas County District Attorney Henry Wade had set for the polygraph, and defense atorneys spent the day trying to negotiate a different questioner for the test.

■ Judge's offer may influence another case — Page 2A

Geter, a former engineer at E-Systems Inc., a defense contractor in Greenville, Texas, was convicted and sentenced to life in prison in 1982 for the $615 robbery of a fast-food restaurant in Balch Springs.

His case gained wide attention after his co-workers claimed he was at work on the day of the robbery and that his arrest resulted from little more than racism and incompetent police work. Gov. Mark White asked for a review of the case and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People offered Geter its support.

Teen mom fighting for honor

MARION CENTER, Pa. (AP) — Backed by classmates and eight teachers, a high school senior who bore a child out of wedlock pledged to fight her dismissal from the National Honor Society even though it was upheld by the school board.

"I belong in the honor society. I have character and leadership. If I had an abortion, or gave the baby up, I couldn't face it," said Arlene Pfeiffer, 17, who plans to go to college when she can afford it.

She and her family say they are ready to take the case to court, claiming discrimination by school officials, following the Marion Center Area School Board's unanimous vote Monday to uphold her dismissal from the society's local chapter by a high school faculty council.

"We'll take it all the way if we have to," said Miss Pfeiffer's father, Delmont, who sat impassively with his wife and three daughters as the nine people on the board voted.

A five-member faculty council on Nov. 9 "decided, evidently, that the quality of leadership and character, and I emphasize character, has not been maintained," Superintendent John Mallino said.

Miss Pfeiffer, last year's student council president who ranks 14th in her class of 164, gave birth to a daughter, Jessica, on Aug. 15, four months after she told school officials she was pregnant.

"She has shown the character needed to take full responsibility for her actions, and this is an essential element of being a good leader," wrote Nicholas Bonarrigo, one of eight teachers who supported Miss Pfeiffer in statements to the school board.

More than 200 students have signed petitions supporting her, and about two dozen supporters attended the board's meeting Monday.

In its resolution, the board said the faculty council had "acted in good faith" and "must have both the confidence of the board and a reasonable degree of autonomy."

Board members would not comment on the decision.

But Miss Pfeiffer, a member of the honor society since 10th grade, said she believes she was dismissed from membership "because I got caught."

"It's not always the bad girls. Good girls get caught, too," she said.

"There's no question" that Miss Pfeiffer's motherhood led to her dismissal, said Chere Winnek-Shawer, the family's lawyer.

Guilty plea nets defendant five-year sentence

By RICHARD ORR
Staff Writer

Banking on his age and the fact he had no prior convictions, Joseph Lujan Saenz threw the dice and hoped for the best.

But instead of probation, the 20-year-old burglary defendant got five years in prison.

"It was the kind of case that, historically, many juries in this county would have given probation," District Attorney Vern Martin said Monday.

"In this instance, however, I think the jury was making a statement that they're tired of property crime."

In a sentencing trial Friday before State District Judge Pat Baskin, Saenz pleaded guilty and sought probation for the Oct. 20 burglary of a northside residence that netted him and accomplice Hector Flores $35,000 worth of guns, silverware and video equipment.

Flores, in his early 20s, had a prior felony assault conviction and took the two 10-year sentences offered him in a plea-bargain agreement with the DA's office. The sentences will run concurrently.

The third member of what Martin described as "a budding burglary ring" — 18-year-old James Anthony Torrance — received eight years' probation, also the result of plea-bargaining.

The trio's arrest stemmed from a case of there being no honor among thieves, according to police, and cleared about 25 northside burglaries that began in August.

The total loss was placed at $500,000 — about one-fifth of which has been recovered.

Noting the crime spree's two-month duration, Martin said: "It's amazing that they were able to pull that many burglaries in such a short period of time."

The spree came to an abrupt halt about Nov. 1 when a neighbor called police after seeing someone enter a house at 702 W. Kansas Ave.

Four-year-old rescued from lake has 50-50 chance of recovery

CHICAGO (AP) — A 4-year-old boy who was "technically dead" when he and his father were pulled from ice-covered Lake Michigan after 20 minutes with the aid of a television news crew is "very much alive" today with a 50-50 chance of complete recovery, a neurosurgeon says.

"We're hoping to recover a child that is fully functional, but only time will tell," Dr. David McLone said of Jimmy Tontlewicz, who suffered cardiac arrest and was listed in critical condition with hypothermia early today at Children's Memorial Hospital.

The child's sled slipped down an embankment during a lakeside excursion with his father Sunday afternoon. Terrence Tontlewicz, 35, had gone after his son and the sled, but they both plunged into the water when the ice broke.

Rescuers, including a news crew which used an electrical cord to pull the father from the 32-degree lake, were unaware that the boy had also fallen in until the father was plucked from the water 20 minutes after the accident.

Fire department scuba divers located the youth beneath the ice.

"Our feeling is that because the drowning incident had occurred in cold water, that the chances of functional survival were increased," McLone, chief of neurosurgery at the hospital, said Monday.

Extreme cold, which lowered the boy's metabolism and slowed his body's need for oxygen, helped save him from drowning, McLone said.

Jimmy was technically dead — showing no vital signs — when he was pulled from the water, having suffered cardiac arrest, the doctor said.

But "at the present time, he is very much alive," McLone said at a Monday afternoon news conference. He said that the risk of some brain damage is probably about 50 percent.

Doctors placed the boy in a barbiturate coma — a state of suspended animation induced by phenobarbitol — in an effort to reduce blood flow to the brain and avert an expected increase in pressure within the skull, McLone said.

If pressure inside the skull and vital signs are normal in four or five days, doctors hope to reverse the coma and awaken the boy, he said.

Tontlewicz was treated for hypothermia at Weiss Memorial Hospital and released, a spokesman said.

Cross-country skiers had seen Tontlewicz and tried to pull him out of the lake with a ski pole, but he was "too cold to hold on," said paramedic Steven Baumgart.

After a human chain consisting of the film crew, the skiers, police officers and firefighters failed to rescue Tontlewicz, he was snagged with a 50-foot electrical cable normally used for TV lighting.

The crew had been at the lake filming sledders when they spotted a woman flagging a police car and went to the scene.

Reagan's hope 'too little too late'

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, who has unfailingly used harsh terms to portray the Kremlin leaders, is holding out the prospects of better U.S.-Soviet relations in the coming year. But his critics say he is offering too little too late.

The president was meeting today with Paul Nitze, his negotiator at the medium-range missile talks in Geneva, Switzerland.

The talks have not resumed since the Soviets walked out late last year upon the initial deployment of U.S. missile components in Western Europe as part of NATO's weapons modernization program.

Reagan's speech on the state of U.S.-Soviet relations was directed at three audiences: American voters, the citizens of Europe, and the Soviet leadership.

Following a string of presidential denunciations of the Soviets and warnings about deteriorating relations, Reagan's advisers were concerned that the icy ties would lead voters to fear that Reagan's policies might lead to war and would damage his political standing in this election year. They were also concerned that in Europe, fear of Reagan has heightened the opposition to deploying new nuclear-tipped missiles.

The tough talk of 1981, 1982 and 1983 disappeared Monday. Instead, Reagan placed an optimistic tone on his address, broadcast live in the United States and beamed by satellite across the Atlantic Ocean in time for evening newscasts in Europe.

In his effort, the president went so far as to tell an imaginary tale about a Soviet couple and an American couple, Ivan and Anya and Jim and Sally, to illustrate his contention that "people don't make wars."

If the two couples had met in a waiting room or rain shelter, the president suggested, they would have talked about their hobbies, what they wanted for their children, "and the problems of making ends meet," rather than their governments' differences.

Shultz repeats challenge

The speech was mostly conciliatory in tone, however, in line with President Reagan's call on Monday for "cooperation and understanding" between the superpowers and their allies.

Shultz said "the door remains open" to a resumption of negotiations to reduce nuclear weapons.

Sweden's prime minister, Olof Palme, a long-time opponent of nuclear weaponry, opened the conference today with this appeal to the superpowers:

"If they could reach an agreement preventing new deployments and including substantial reductions of nuclear weapons already deployed, this would be greeted with immense relief by all the peoples of Europe."

The conference is expected to last at least two years.

Although Palme and Shultz spoke of hopes of nuclear war arms talks, discussion of atomic warfare is not on the Stockholm agenda.

Bank buys $250 million in loans

"Ultimately it is the belief that you can be paid back out of the borrower's cash flow in a timely way and according to the terms. And the only other choice you have beyond that is, if that weren't the case, liquidation of collateral pledged to the loan repay the debt."

Wageman described the new portfolio as being "reasonable."

"We bought, in this first go around, everything that a reasonable banker would buy. This new protfolio is a reasonable bank's portfolio. There's an element of risk in it. However, you can't ask, and nobody should expect the bankers in their town to book business when they (bankers) believe the risk to be unreasonable."

Wageman described a "reasonable bank's" loan portfolio as resembling a bell-shaped curve when put on paper. The portfolio, he said, consists of "very good loans of which there is absolutely no question that they will be repaid." In the middle, he said, are the majority of the loans most bankers call "ordinary banking credits" which have "some modest element of risk." At the end, he said, are the "less strong credits" for which there is a stronger element of risk.

Of FNB's total portfolio, Wageman said, RepublicBank repurchased 31 percent of its commercial loans, 70 percent of its real estate loans and 75 percent of its installment loans. Wageman further speculated RepublicBank would probably pick up more loans in the commercial sector of FNB's loan portfolio.

Wageman said RepublicBank has the "right to put back to the FDIC" a specific dollar amount of loans within the year. However, he added, RepublicBank did not initially buy back loans from the FDIC with the intent to give them back later.

With the process completed, Wageman said RepublicBank would begin notifying its customers in writing about their loans. Many, he said, have already been notified. The transfer process, he said, is expected to take approximately 30-45 days to complete.

With the initial task completed, Wageman said RepublicBank will initiate "phase two" and "phase three" of the bank's repurchase plan.

Phase two, he explained, "will involve the establishment of a task force to review all loans remaining with the FDIC to see if there are more loans that can be repurchased. You just can't look at as much paper as we have and not make some legitimate mistakes. The second phase is useful and I think it would be something that anybody in our situation would do because nobody's perfect.

"The third phase will involve a continuing process of a working relationship with the FDIC and its clients. We don't intend to sit idly by and let the FDIC work out those loans with their clients. There is a repository there of a billion dollars in loans. We intend to follow that process and to stay close to the clients. We intend to be in a position to make a bid on those loans when and if it becomes desirable to do so."

RepublicBank, Wageman said, will only grow as big as the community can support.

"We have big plans for the bank. But our plans essentially are a function and almost an absolute derivative of the health and vitality of the Permain Basin. Our initial focus will be on the stability and growth of Midland and Odessa and subsequently as we become more established, the opportunities will be presented for us to grow elsewhere in the Basin. We intend to be a contributor to the growth of the Basin," Wageman said.

Defendant plea-bargain attempt nets him five-year prison term

Arriving officers found no one home and the suspect gone. But scattered around in plain view, police said, were numerous items one officer recognized as having been reported stolen in several burglaries she had investigated.

An investigation of the Kansas Avenue break-in disclosed that Saenz and Flores lived in the house. The burglary suspect turned out to be Torrance.

In commenting about the case as a whole, Martin said: "They had zeroed in on a very affluent neighborhood that has since instituted a Neighborhood Watch Program that seems to be working very well."

Police believe that neighbors looking out for one another offers the most effective means of reducing the city's growing rate of property crime.

According to statistics provided by Det. Capt. Billy Ray and Det. Lt. Earl Luckey, a total of 2,114 auto, business and residential burglaries occurred in Midland during 1982.

The 1983 figure bulges at 2,428 — a 15 percent increase. The largest hike came in the house burglary category, which showed a 39 percent gain.

Another aspect of citizen involvement that could alter the crime rate, according to authorities, is the monitoring of court cases — which Mothers Against Drunk Drivers do at DWI trials.

Noting that some of the victims in the Saenz case showed up as observers at his trial Friday, Assistant District Attorney Mike Williams said:

"It's the first time in my memory that people have shown that kind of interest in the trial of a property-related offense. I appreciated their presence and feel it affected the punishment given the defendant."

The seven-man, five-woman jury returned the prison sentence after four hours of deliberations. Because Saenz had no prior convictions, jurors — by law — could not be told of the other burglaries allegedly committed by the ring.

Air Force ready to test satellite weapon

WASHINGTON (AP) — After months of delay, the Air Force is ready to flight test its new satellite killer — a weapon launched from a fighter jet which hunts down and explodes objects in space.

The Pentagon says it needs the weapon to keep pace with the Soviets, but arms control advocates fear it will lead to a new weapons race.

The U.S. anti-satellite weapon will be fired from under a high-flying F-15 jet and the first two stages of the three-stage weapon will be ignited, but no warhead will be exploded, according to officials who declined to be identified.

The test, which may be this week, has been scheduled since last summer, but was postponed because of operational problems which now appear to have been solved, the officials said.

In later tests, the weapon's effectiveness will be judged as it is fired against high-altitude balloons.

The Soviet Union and the United States rely heavily on satellites for communications and reconnaissance, particularly in systems designed to warn against nuclear attack.

The U.S. anti-satellite system, designed to be operating by 1987, has become more controversial in recent months as arms control advocates argue that it may touch off an expensive new round of weapons competition by the two superpowers.

Last year, as it approved the Pentagon's budget authorization bill, Congress banned all tests "against objects in space" until the White House tried to negotiate a ban of such weapons with the Soviet Union. But the Pentagon has interpreted the language to allow the first round of flight tests.

Soviet President Yuri Andropov last year called for negotiations to limit the weapons.

While the United States officially said it would study any serious Soviet proposal, U.S. officials have cautioned that such a treaty would be difficult to verify and there are no current negotiations under way.

The $4 billion U.S. system uses an 18-foot, three-stage rocket slung beneath an F-15, the top Air Force fighter, that fires it from about 60,000 feet. The rocket then hunts down its target and explodes it.

The Soviets, by contrast, have an anti-satellite weapon which Pentagon officials say is operational, but which arms control advocates say is far less effective than the U.S. plan.

The Soviet weapon, launched atop a large booster rocket, goes into low orbit, maneuvers near its target, and then explodes, destroying both itself and the target, according to Pentagon officials. About half of the 20 tests the Soviets have conducted since 1968 have been successful, according to published figures.

The Soviet system, according to Pentagon officials who declined to be named, is relatively cumbersome, since the time it takes to prepare and launch it allows for observation by American satellites.

By contrast, the officials say, the American weapon could be stored at various sites and attached quickly to any F-15, meaning the U.S. system is more mobile.

The Soviets generally have lower orbits for their satellites, meaning more would be within range of the U.S. system. American military satellites are commonly in higher orbits, making them relatively safe from the current Soviet system.

Decision could lead to new polygraph test

DALLAS (AP) — A state judge has agreed to a hearing that could lead to a polygraph test and further investigation of the charges against a Dallas woman who was sentenced to life in prison for a robbery she insists she did not commit.

Her lawyer pursued the polygraph test in light of the recent release from prison of Lenell Geter, a black E-Systems engineer, after national publicity cast doubts among the public as to his guilt.

State District Judge Ron Chapman said he is inclined to grant the motion by the attorney for Joyce Ann Brown for a second polygraph examination. She says she was working when a Dallas fur store was robbed and its owner fatally shot.

"If there is any chance that she is not good for the case, I feel it should be investigated," said District Judge Ron Chapman, who sentenced Ms. Brown. "This has a possibility of being a more legitimate case for further investigation than the Geter case."

Chapman said his inclination is strengthened by the decision of Dallas County District Attorney Henry Wade last month to give Geter a new trial or to dismiss the charges altogether if Geter were to pass a lie detector test.

Geter, a 26-year-old black engineer, was convicted of armed robbery and sentenced to life in prison for a $615 holdup of a fast-food restaurant. He was convicted on the basis of eyewitness identifications, but his co-workers said he was at work 50 miles away.

Chapman has set a hearing for Friday on a motion by Kerry FitzGerald, Ms. Brown's attorney, to compel the Texas Department of Corrections to let his client take a polygraph test.

However, in contrast to the Geter case, the lead prosecutor in Ms. Brown's trial said he will not join in the defense motion. Assistant District Attorney Norman Kinne said Mrs. Brown's guilt was decided by a jury and affirmed by two appeals courts, unlike Geter, whose appeal never was decided.

"Her case is over and done with," Kinne said. "I don't have any further plans for it."

A Dallas County jury convicted Ms. Brown three years ago of being one of two black women who robbed a Dallas fur store on May 6, 1980, and terrorized the couple who owned the store, fatally shooting the husband while he pleaded for his life.

No physical evidence linked Mrs. Brown to the robbery, but the store owner's wife identified her as one of the robbers and a former cellmate testified that Ms. Brown had confessed her guilt in jail after her arrest.

Saudi diplomat kidnapped; His driver wounded in attack

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Gunmen kidnapped the Saudi Arabian consul from his car in a west Beirut seafront neighborhood today, and his driver was wounded in a shootout, the Saudi Embassy said.

With blood streaming down his face, the driver ran to the Saudi Embassy building in west Beirut's Manara neighborhood to report the kidnap before he was rushed to the American University hospital, according to radio reports.

The abducted diplomat was identified as Hussein Abdullah Farrash. He was going from his home in west Beirut to the embassy when his car was attacked in mid-morning, the state radio said.

The wounded driver was identified as Izzat Akkash.

Lebanese troops and police sealed off the neighborhood and searched house-to-house for the kidnappers.

A spokesman at the Saudi Embassy confirmed the abduction, but said he had no word on the whereabouts of Farrash or the condition of the driver. Saudi Ambassador Ahmed al-Kuhaimi was not involved in the attack.

The sound of gunfire crackled through west Beirut's main commercial district of Hamra before local radio stations broke off their regular programs to report the abduction.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility for the abduction, which could have any of several motives. The Saudis frequently have tried to mediate disputes in Lebanon, including recent unsuccessful efforts on behalf of a proposal to disengage the country's warring factions.

Last week, an Egyptian diplomat and the wife of a French diplomat were fired at by unidentified gunmen in Beirut, but both escaped serious injury.

Police said a "fragile, unofficial truce" held elsewhere in rain-drenched Beirut today after shelling attacks Monday that were the worst on residential areas in a month.

According to police figures issued today, 26 were killed and 75 wounded in Christian east Beirut and in suburbs, and eight were killed and 25 wounded in Druse mountain towns in the 13-hour bombardment.

In other developments today:

—State radio said U.S. Navy F-14 Tomcat jets made reconnaissance runs over a 25-mile stretch of the Mediterranean coast between Beirut and Sidon, in Israeli-occupied southern Lebanon.

Hussein Abdullah Farrash

Tomcats also flew over Beirut and the hills above the U.S. Marine base at the city's airport, the radio said.

—A general protest strike was observed in most of southern Lebanon in response to a call by Amal, the nation's largest Shiite Moslem militia, the state radio said. Amal issued a statement saying that Israeli troops searching mosques with police dogs and "mass elimination of olive and orange groves for security considerations" were a "model of the intolerable, oppressive practices of Israeli occupation."

The warring militias of the Druse Progressive Socialist Party and the rightist Christian Phalange Party accused each other of shelling first in Monday's attacks.

Police today said the warring factions failed to reach a cease-fire agreement because the Druse fighters withdrew their representative from a four-man security committee that works out such truces.

Salvadoran forces accused of abuse

WASHINGTON (AP) — Private human rights groups, accusing Salvadoran security forces of widespread political murder and torture, are disputing Reagan administration claims that El Salvador's government has improved its human rights record.

"The human rights situation is as disastrous as ever," said Aryeh Neier, vice chairman of Americas Watch, an independent group that monitors human rights in the Western Hemisphere.

Neier cited statistics compiled by a Roman Catholic Church agency showing an increase over the past six months in the number of civilians murdered, allegedly by the Salvadoran military and related paramilitary groups. The church agency blamed the government for 2,615 non-combat killings in the last half of 1983, compared to 2,527 in the first six months of the year.

Neier, who visited El Salvador last week, also accused Salvadoran security police of using "mobile torture vans" equipped with electric shock equipment to permit immediate interrogation of suspected subversives.

THE BLEAK ASSESSMENT by Neier and four other human rights spokesmen Monday clashed with a State Department report sent to Congress which praised the Salvadoran government for human rights improvement, including "unprecedented, initial action" to curb rightist death squads.

The department's 57-page report said the number of press-reported non-combat killings declined sharply in the second half of 1983. It said the number of political murders in El Salvador fell to 104 per month in the last half of 1983, compared to 177 per month during the first six months.

"The number of press-reported civilian deaths attributable to political violence continues at an unacceptably high rate, but has dropped significantly," the department said in its report. The report, however, does not assess blame for the killings.

The private human rights groups criticized the State Department for relying on accounts in El Salvador's pro-government, rightist press for its information on political murders, and claimed the church agency's figures, based on testimony of relatives and others, are more reliable.

THE STATE DEPARTMENT, however, has claimed that the press accounts are the least biased available.

Last week, White House spokesman Larry Speakes claimed that a State Department analysis concluded that 40 percent of the murders were the work of leftist terrorists, 30 percent to 40 percent were committed by rightist terrorists and the rest were unknown. State Department officials, however, disavowed that comment, saying they do not know who is behind the vast majority of slayings.

As for the military situation, the report said that "neither the guerrillas nor the armed forces are in any danger of disintegrating," and added that a major increase in military aid is needed for the government to break the stalemate.

Administration sources say President Reagan is likely to request about $170 million more in military aid this year for El Salvador, on top of $64.8 million already approved by Congress. They add, however, that the amount is still under review and is not firm.

Soviets stationed in Pacific

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The Soviet Union has "increased dramatically" its threat in the Pacific by stationing a bomber squadron at the former U.S. base in Cam Ranh Bay, Vietnam, a 7th Fleet spokesman said today.

The "Badger" aircraft, which can carry nuclear weapons and hit targets 100 miles away, were deployed in November, the spokesman said. He estimated the Soviets have between nine and 12 planes in a squadron.

The spokesman, a U.S. Navy officer who asked not be identified, briefed reporters on the USS Blue Ridge, command ship of the 7th Fleet, which is visiting Manila.

The Soviets also have four reconnaissance "Bear" aircraft stationed at Cam Ranh Bay, in former South Vietnam, the spokesman said.

In an apparently "unusual" move, one or two "Bear" aircraft flew Monday from Cam Ranh Bay southward and "may have even entered the Gulf of Thailand," the spokesman said."We don't know why they did it," he added.

Nations give different versions

QUITO, Ecuador (AP) — Ecuador and Peru have given different versions of a border clash in which one Ecuadorean soldier was reported killed and another wounded.

Each nation claimed the clash Sunday occurred on its own soil.

Ecuador said Peruvian troops killed the soldier and wounded the other.

In Lima, Peru, the Joint Defense Command said a Peruvian army post "was attacked by a patrol of the Ecuadorean army" and that Peruvian soldiers was "energetically repelled" the attack.

The Defense Ministry in Quito, Ecuador, said the incident took place in Ecuadorean territory near a military camp called Corrientes, 700 miles to the south.

Peru's Interior Minister Luis Percovich said there were no Peruvian casualties.

The disputed border at the northwest tip of Peru has been the scene of frequent clashes and set off a minor border war between the two countries in 1981.

Shrimp contamination kills 13

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — Thirteen elderly people have died from eating contaminated shrimp from Bangladesh, and 100 others in the Netherlands have come down with dysentery from the same cause, the Dutch Health Ministry reports.

A spokesman, Geert Dankmeijer, said eight of those who died were served shrimp cocktail on Christmas Day at a rest home in Utrecht, a central Dutch city.

The other deaths were in Amersfoort, 13 miles east of Utrecht, and in Amsterdam, Dankmeijer said.

Victims developed dysentery within 12 hours to threedays after eating the imported shrimp, which officials said had been contaminated by a bacteria.

Dankmeijer said the Health Ministry has imposed a 31-day import ban on shrimp caught and processed in Bangladesh, Thailand and Burma.

Cabinet members change posts

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Prime Minister Andreas Papandreou has move three key Cabinet ministers to different posts, giving impetus to the Socialist government's goals of health and welfare reform.

Interior Minister George Gennimatas, 44, became health minister, with the task of implementing a radical public health law.

He replaces Dr. Paraskevas Avgerinos, 56, who moved to a newly created job of minister without portfolio with responsibility for social welfare affairs.

Agamemnon Koutsogiorgis, 62, minister to the premier's office, took over the interior ministry.

Apostolos Lazaris, 63, a former economic coordination minister, took Koutsogiorgis' place.

The bus was going from the village of Leicz to Wroclaw in southwestern Poland when the crash occurred Monday, said the agency, PAP.

Lawyers want order overturned

ROME (AP) — Lawyers for a Bulgarian suspect in the 1981 shooting of Pope John Paul II have asked Italy's highest court to overturn an order that would return their client to prison.

Sergei Ivanov Antonov, who has been under house arrest in Rome since his release from prison last Dec. 21, is charged with complicity in the May 1981 shooting of the pope.

Rome's Court of Liberty on Friday revoked a release order granted by Judge Ilario Martella. The court said Antonov must either get a stay from the nation's highest court or return to prison within three days.

Antonov's lawyers, Giuseppe Consolo and Adolfo Larussa, on Monday filed an appeal with the nation's highest court, the Court of Cassation. No date was set for a hearing.

Antonov, the Rome station chief of the Bulgarian state airline, was arrested Nov. 25, 1982, and charged with helping Turkish gunman Mehmet Ali Agca shoot the pope. Agca is serving a life sentence for the crime.

Shoes can help corns develop

Dear Dr. Solomon: I often have trouble wih corns even though I try to take good care of my feet. Could the kind of shoes I wear have anything to do with this kind of problem? — Gertrude, St. Paul, Minn.

Solomon

Dear Gertrude: Shoes that create pressure and friction play a definite role in the development of corns. Therefore, one of the first things a person who is troubled with corns should do is check for shoe size. There should be a space equal to at least the width of one finger between the tip of the longest toe and the end of the shoe.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I happened to notice in your recent column the request by a school counselor for some information concerning "borderline personality," although the response by Dr. Dana Charry was accurate, it may not have been as complete as it might have been in order ot clarify what this diagnosis means.

It is a diagnostic category in the new book called "DSM-III" which lists current dianostic categories of the American Psychiatric Association. The criteria for borderline personality disorder are as follows:

1. There is an identity disturbance
2. A pattern of intense, unstable relationships
3. Impulsivity and unpredictability
4. Inappropriate or intense anger
5. Affective instability
6. Physically self-damaging acts
7. Chronic feelings of boredom or emptiness
8. Problems tolerating being alone

As examples of impulsivity or unpredictability, we mean such activities as potentially self-damaging spending, gambling, substance use, shoplifting, overeating or physically self-damaging acts.

Examples of a pattern of unstable or intense interpersonal relationships, are marked shifts of attitude, idealization, devaluation or manipulations such as consistently using others for ones own ends.

Examples of inappropriate or intense anger or lack of control of anger are such things as frequent displays of temper or constant anger.

An example of identity disturbances would be manifested by uncertainty about several issues relating to identity such as self-image, gender identity, long-term goals or career choice, friendship patterns, values and loyalties. For example "Who am I?" or "I feel like I'm my sister when I'm good."

Examples of affective instability would be marked shifts from normal mood to depression, irritability or anxiety which can last a few hours or even occasionally more than a few days but then return to normal mood.

Examples of intolerance of being alone would be frantic efforts to avoid being alone and very depressed when alone.

Physically self-damaging acts would be suicide gestures, self-mutilation, recurrent accidents, physical fights.

Unfortunately the treatment of people with this particular diagnosis is very difficult. I hope that this will be of some further assistance to the school counselor who raised the initial question.

(If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Pie, doughnuts hurting residents

FARGO, N.D. (AP) — North Dakotans are eating too many doughnuts and pie, and it's hurting their health, Gov. Allen Olson says.

Most North Dakota residents "are simply not as healthy as we should be," Olson said Monday in announcing the formation of a special commission to study health, nutrition and fitness habits in the state.

Olson, 45, who was raised on a North Dakota farm and jogs almost daily, said he's been concerned for several years about the state of the state's health. He wants the 15-member commission to propose ways to help residents live healthier, with data provided by September in time to be submitted to the 1985 Legislature.

"Frankly, there's good reason to be concerned," he said.

North Dakotans' heritage may be partly to blame for their general fitness, Olson said.

"We tend to visit over coffee and a doughnut or a piece of pie," he said. "Combined with exercise-limiting cold weather, this could be an unhealthy situation.

"It can translate into serious health hazards and steadily increasing insurance premiums for our citizens.... We should be doing something to encourage better health," Olson said.

Olson said he wants the commission to pay special attention to state employees.

"It's been well documented that healthy and fit employees are more productive. A state health and fitness program may also help us reduce health insurance premium costs," he said.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Payments and collections cause a change in your plans. Be understanding of what is happening to a teen-ager. He/she needs help in handling peer pressure. Be subtle.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): The day gets off to a shaky start but finishes up strong. Inside information alerts you to someone's mistake. A special request will be granted. Make your diet more nutritious.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your personal relationships are in the spotlight. Ask questions. You need to get at the heart of a problem between you and loved one. New technology helps you accomplish great things.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A platonic relationship suddenly turns romantic. You are both surprised and delighted. Give free rein to your creativity. You move closer to getting the job you have wanted.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You feel more energetic today. Plan a surprise for lunch date. Take a tip from a loved one. He/she cares deeply about what happens to you. Postpone signing legal papers.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Watch your step if attending a meeting with higher-ups. Someone could have a chip on his or her shoulder. You are delighted to meet an individual you have admired from afar.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Act reserved if you do not want to be burdened with a co-worker's problems. A chance encounter with an attractive stranger brings good luck. Not a good day for buying or selling.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your personal relationships will flourish if you use more diplomacy. Financial negotiations go swimmingly this afternoon. Use subtlety when trying to make a point. Romance is looking up.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): The power of suggestion can work wonders in business or romance. Devote more time to creative endeavors. Entertaining your co-workers at home will help you develop better rapport with them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Patience is essential when dealing with someone who is difficult. A romance with a married person will only lead to heartache. An outsider offers excellent advice; follow it to the letter.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Domestic matters require more attention than usual. Avoid jumping to conclusions. A quiet, thoughtful discussion with everyone involved works wonders. A special friend pays you a lovely compliment.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Avoid anything that smacks of intrigue. Those in authority will not understand. Tackle difficult chores with a "can do" attitude and you will be successful.

'Ghost Writer' on PBS

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Ghost Writer" tonight on public television is a remarkable adaptation of Philip Roth's novel about a writer who believes he has met a living Anne Frank — the Dutch girl who lived hidden with her family for months before dying in a Nazi concentration camp — in a farmhouse in rural New England.

Beautifully cast and meticulously staged, the 90-minute "American Playhouse" production is evidence that television can dramatize an exquisite and complicated work of literature with feeling and a light touch.

Indeed, Roth's own involvement in the production — he gets credit for the adaptation, along with Tristam Powell, the director — may have ensured a faithful translation to the small screen. Roth agreed to work on the script after two earlier drafts were rejected.

The dialogue is drawn from the book, and the consequence is an occasional lapse into conversation probably more easily read than overheard. Segments of the novel, published in 1979, are skipped over altogether, though the story itself is not altered for the sake of the script.

Each scene is carefully framed, with a good deal of attention to background and shadow.

Mark Linn-Baker, who plays Roth's hero, Nathan Zuckerman, is simply outstanding, and Powell's decision to cast a relative unknown, Paulette Smit, as Amy Bellette, the dark-haired young woman Zuckerman believes is Anne Frank, was truly inspired.

Roth, who was not involved in casting that part, says of Miss Smit in an article in the current issue of TV Guide magazine:

"I was impressed first by the softly Semitic features that did somehow recall ... the childhood photos of Anne Frank, and then by the actress' simple sincerity, a candid, unspoiled style that could well have made her the unknowing object of Zuckerman's passionate obsession."

The dark-haired Miss Smit, who was born in Curacao, lists "Homecoming" and "Firepower" among her motion picture credits. Linn-Baker appeared in "My Favorite Year" with Peter O'Toole and in Woody Allen's "Manhattan." He currently is featured in the Broadway musical "Doonesbury."

"The Ghost Writer" was the first in a trilogy of novels with Nathan Zuckerman as the central figure. "Zuckerman Unbound" was published in 1981, and "The Anatomy Lesson" last November.

Opening lead: Four of ♡.

Don't lose your concentration just because a contract looks simple. Distribution can play strange tricks. This hand, dealt in a recent team match, proves our point.

Because of his distribution, North probed for a major-suit fit. When South denied four cards in a major, North chose the no trump game since he felt that nine tricks would be easier to come by than the 11 required for five clubs.

At both tables, the opening lead was a low heart. East covered the queen with the king and South won the ace. At one table declarer saw no problem. He led a club to the jack. East won the ace and returned a heart. Declarer finessed the nine. West won the ten and forced out declarer's remaining stopper.

Only when West showed out on the next club did declarer begin to realize his predicament. Now his only hope for the contract was that West had started with six hearts and East had the ace of spades. But that was not the case, and declarer ended up with only seven tricks.

The second declarer foresaw the possibility of a 4-1 club break. To guard against that, he crossed to the ten of diamonds at trick two and led a club to his king. East was forced to play, and declarer did not mind if West won the ace, because his heart tenace could not be attacked from that side.

When the king of clubs held, declarer crossed back to the table with the king of diamonds and now led a spade to his queen. Again, East could not rise with the ace without setting up the rest of the suit for declarer, and again declarer did not mind if West gained the lead with the ace.

The spade trick brought declarer's bag to eight tricks — four diamonds, two hearts and one in each black suit. It was now a simple matter to lead another club and set up the ninth trick in that suit. The defenders were powerless to prevent declarer from fulfilling his contract.

No Red 'scare'

During the 1950s, U.S. Sen. Joseph McCarthy gained worldwide attention and no small degree of notoreity by levelling charges that communists had infiltrated the United States government and other areas of society. The late senator may have been a little overzealous in his efforts to ferret out subversives, but new information on Soviet intelligence activities give us cause to wonder.

Recently, Stanislav A. Levchenko, a former major in the Russian KGB, told TV Guide magazine that the Soviet secret police agency has "about a quarter of a million people" working for it. The FBI only has about 8,000 agents and not all of them are assigned to intelligence duties.

Furthermore, former U.S. Naval Intelligence officer John Barron said, "Given the manpower and resources the nation has chosen to allocate, the FBI performs superbly. But its resources are simply inadequate to the task. I think the FBI would be the first to say that it cannot guarantee the security of many areas simply because we, as a nation, have chosen to allow these avowedly hostile states to station in our midst a horde of professional spies."

That's a sobering statement. And those two knowledgeable individuals, along with others, also give a good glimpse of what is happening just within our own borders. They say, for example, that the rapid advancement of technology has led both the U.S. and Soviet intelligence forces to use TV cameras and video equipment as tools in the constant intelligence watch each nation maintains.

Technological advancements have given the spies all the tools movie spy "James Bond" ever used during his escapades as "007." Intelligence units of both nations have equipment that can isolate automobile license plates at night, long range lenses that pinpoint details from thousands of feet away and audio equipment that can capture conversations in a room more than a mile away.

There's more, but the important point is that during the years of Watergate and since, the understandable outcry against abuses of power by various officials led the United States to clamp down on its security forces — ironically at a time when those agencies needed more surveillance ability to counter intelligence efforts of the Soviet Union. The result has been staggering.

Soviet agents can operate with understandable ease in our open society while American agents have been crippled by restrictions placed on them by a society that feared its own agents would turn their powers against the people.

Of course no one wants to return to the "Red scare" days of the 1950s when the McCarthy hearings were supposedly finding a communist behind every tree in the nation.

With the KGB having a quarter of a million agents, that really isn't so far-fetched an idea.

A kick in the pants

The decision by President Reagan and Secretary of State Shultz to get out of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization does not mean they are opposed to some of its goals. It means that they have concluded that many of those goals are not being achieved. It also means that they are fed up with an outfit that wastes money on a top-heavy bureaucracy, and many of whose members are not only anti-American but opposed to a free press.

The Financial Times of London expressed an editorial opinion on this subject that is worth repeating. The Times said:

"It would be hard to quarrel with the basic objectives of UNESCO, the United Nations agency which seeks to promote educational, scientific and cultural exchanges among member states. The spread of literacy ... through the benefits of modern technology is an ideal task for a world-wide institution of this nature.

"Yet it is not easy to quarrel either with the U.S. decision to withdraw from the agency by the end of this year, unless UNESCO mends its ways ....

"It is just that kind of kick in the pants that UNESCO needs."

Amen.

Another View:

Gracious apology

That was a good and gracious apology that Charles Wick, director of the United States Information Agency, offered on Monday for his phone-taping adventures.

Wick now concedes that the taping of some of his phone calls, without notice to the callers, was an unfair practice, an invasion of his callers' privacy and something that "can lead to other, more dangerous practices."

Though his purpose was simply "to extend the reach of my own memory, never to threaten or humiliate others," he said, "it has become quite clear to me that in trying to be meticulous about my own managerial tasks I frequently ignored the potential impact on others."

Wick also acknowledged responding to early press queries about the tapings with "misinformation," on account of "my anxiety and faulty recollection," and he offered his regrets for that, too.

We wish Wick had made such a statement the minute the story about his phone-taping broke. The impression he gave then was that he was doubly insensitive: to the offense he had committed against his callers, and to his obligation to the president and the public to make a prompt, full explanation.

But he has now remedied that. And the fact that he needed prompting to do the right thing is less important than that he now appears to be doing it — in private apologies to his callers, in public statements and in testimony to the several official inquiries into his phone habits.

It remains for President Reagan to find occasion to make it perfectly clear that he too understands why no one in his administration should abuse the confidence that every phone caller has a right to expect and tape a call with a caller who has not been duly warned.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Unsung hero keeps freedom alive

WASHINGTON — It has been our historic good fortune in the United States to have an entire political system that provides a stimulus to resistance — a mission that in a tyranny falls to the lonely hero.

Jack Anderson

He may be a Lech Walesa, whose defiance of the communist oppressors in Poland has won him world acclaim. But he is more likely to be a Suylvio Claude, whose struggle for freedom in Haiti has gone unsung.

Claude is a Port-au-Prince businessman who heads the only opposition party still on the island. He has dared to stand up to Jean-Claude Duvalier, the Caribbean nation's brutal dictator. Claude has paid a terrible price for his opposition; he has been routinely imprisoned and tortured.

He is allowed to live only because his disappearance might raise awkward questions with Haiti's U.S. benefactors, who demand a few elemental human rights in exchange for economic aid. So instead of outright execution, he is regularly dragged off by the Ton Ton Macoute, the dreaded plainsclothes ruffians who intimidate the populace and keep Duvalier in power.

Each time, Claude is viciously beaten, threatened with death and told to leave the island. That's all his tormentors have ever asked of him. But Claude won't give up his dream of freedom; he stubbornly refuses to get out of Duvalier's hair.

I sent my associate Jack Hatfield to Haiti to find Claude and check on his condition. The opposition leader was not easy to locate; even his closest neighbors were afraid to speak his name above a whisper. But by perseverance and luck, Hatfield tracked him down in the hills outside Port-au-Prince.

My reporter found Claude bedridden in a small, sparsely furnished cinder-block house. The place was guarded by a Ton Ton Macoute, who questioned all visitors. He was flustered by the appearance of an American and allowed him to enter — the first person outside Claude's family to get past the guard.

Claude was a forlorn figure, clad in cheap pajamas, lying on a thin, metal-frame bed. He was covered with ugly welts — souvenirs of his latest experience inside Casernes Dessalines, the Port-au-Prince prison aptly named for the bloodthirsty tyrant who ruled Haiti 180 years ago.

Although small physically, Claude is a moral giant. He has an arresting face, round and shaven. His manner is intense but wary; there is a sense of beleaguerment about him. Several times, he reacted with a start when a loose door creaked.

Claude was beaten in prison by two men armed with clubs, who tried to convince him to accept "voluntary exile." "They gave me the choice," he said, "imprisonment and death, or leave Haiti. When I refused to leave, they began beating me." He received no medical attention during his two months of incarceration and torture.

Then on Christmas Eve, Claude was arbitrarily released. He is the leader of a handful of bedraggled followers who call themselves Christian Democrats. Three were turned loose with him, but he estimated that at least 14 more party members remain in prison. Informed sources put the number of political prisoners in Casernes Dessalines at 20 to 25.

Hatiti will go through the motions of parliamentary elections next month to appease the United States. But the Christian Democrats won't be participating. Those who aren't in jail are afraid to meet in public.

"My release from prison, like the February elections, is a show put on for the United States," said Claude. "I'm a prisoner in my home. No one can visit me, and I am discouraged from leaving. How can I run a party?"

Those brave enough to support Claude have been thrown into jail or scared into hiding. His deputy, Pastor Salnave Desarmes, is on the run, his house occupied by the Ton Ton Macoute. There is no one around to do any serious campaigning against the Duvalier dictatorship.

Not that Claude's Christian Democrats are radicals. In any democratic country, they would be considered moderates. They advocate a loose populism, calling for social reforms, universal education and improved living conditions.

Claude is a deeply religious man, as ascetic former school teacher. Behind him on the wall of his bare home was a color reproduction of The Last Supper.

INSIDE REPORT:

Peacemaker role boosting Jesse

ATLANTA — The Rev. Jesse Jackson's day-long effort last week to shore up his shaky base in this hub of Southern black politics showed that the road to Damascus not only revived but transformed his presidential campaign.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

No longer does he project himself as a latter-day George McGovern reforming the Democratic Party, an inappropriate role for a charismatic Baptist preacher. Even emphasis on racial conflict is toned down. Instead, by winning Lt. Robert Goodman's release, he campaigned before almost wholly black audiences as a divinely-inspired peacemaker calling on the world's nations "to make war no more."

"Jesse Jackson: Man of Peace," read the Atlanta Civic Center marquee advertising his evening speech — a theme not sounded before Damascus. In relating to entranced black listeners his Syrian triumph, he did not shrink from comparing his audience with Syria's Hafez Assad to St. Paul's with Agrippa. "We were about our Father's business," the Rev. Jackson declared, drawing responses of "amen" and "that's right."

All this threatens to deprive frontrunner Walter F. Mondale of substantial black support that he needs in the Georgia and other Deep South early primaries to pin down his nomination. Whatever Jackson's new peacemaker role does for enlisting white voters, it reinforces his black base that had been drifting to Mondale before Damascus.

"I cannot imagine a black man or woman here entering the voting booth and not voting for Jesse Jackson," State Sen. Davis Scott told us. But he is one of only three (out of 25) black Georgia state legislators actively supporting Jackson. The black political establishment here never has accepted Jackson, still viewing him as as a pushy young subaltern in Martin Luther King's Atlanta-based movement. Jackson's black backing comes not from political leaders but from the pulpit and the housing project.

Thus, while the downtown campaign headquarters is an empty shell devoid of desks and telephones, three Baptist ministers put together his day in Atlanta. On notice so short that no announcement from the pulpit the previous Sunday was possible, they got out 2,000 parishioners for an "ecumenical service" featuring "the peacemaker."

These low-income parishioners and public-housing residents comprise Jackson's black populist base. A chicken dinner in the sprawling Carver Homes, though clearly a media event, nevertheless revealed genuine bonds. The head of the tenants union, Louise Wattley, introduced Jackson as a "role-model" for troubled black youth, contrasting with "street-corner pimps." When an unemployed 28-year-old man read an anguished poem about white contempt for residents of "the projects," tears streamed down Jackson's cheeks.

Such support unsettles black politicians who wish Jackson would go away. Mayor Andrew Young told us here some eight months ago that he planned "soon" to endorse Mondale; the endorsement never has been made and probably won't until the nomination is clinched. Although many black Georgia state legislators prefer Mondale, only four (including State Sen. Julian Bond) have endorsed him so far.

Jackson's triumph in Damascus only compounds the black establishment's problem. One black political operative told us black opinion on his feat cooled when it was learned belatedly that Lt. Goodman has a white wife. But that analysis was not confirmed by anything we saw in a day of celebration.

Black supporters who waited an hour on a snowy weekday morning to greet a tardy Jackson over brunch were in a state of high excitement. They murmured assent when the Rev. Cameron Alexander declared "this is one of the most exciting times to be who we are."

Neither the speaker nor his listeners were embarrassed by the religious idiom. "We need a man who can go down Damascus road and ask the Lord to do it again," said the Rev. Alexander. Throughout the day, the Rev. Jackson bracketed the conversion of Saul of Tarsus with the release of Robert Goodman, both in Damascus, as God's work, saying: "He hangs around there."

That might jar white ears, but white hues were missing from Jackson's Rainbow Coalition on his Atlanta visit. He addressed hardly a dozen white voters during 12 crowded hours of campaigning. Yet, his new peacemaker role is markedly less racial than his pre-Damascus tone, and his anti-war theme should appeal to white liberals bored with lackluster Democratic presidential hopefuls.

Jackson clearly thinks so. When we asked him how Goodman's release had changed his political condition, he compared what is happening to him to Joe Louis' return bout with the German Max Schmeling. Louis suddenly became a hero to white America "because he was fighting Schmeling and Hitler." Jackson added, "I'm in that kind of fight now." As "peacemaker" candidate, Jackson is aiming at more than his black base.

Rowland Evans and Robert Novak write for Field Enterprises.

CHARLEY REESE

Free society must have free press

There is an old joke that goes, "Ah, women — you can't live with them and you can't live without them." Well, that's not true of women, but for people who want to remain politically free, it is certainly true of the press.

Charley Reese

There is no where on earth a free country with an unfree press or an unfree country with a free press. The two freedoms — political and press — live or die together. That's why Thomas Jefferson, who had harsher things to say about the press of his day then Spiro Agnew ever imagined, nevertheless remained a staunch defender of the press.

There is a logical connection between a free country and a free press. When we say a country is free, we mean it is not under the thumb of a foreign power. We also mean the people in that country are not under the thumb of their own government. In other words, they are governed by their consent and are free to change their government if they decide it is not doing its job.

Now, how can you, a private citizen, determine if your government is or isn't doing its job? You don't want to take the government's work for it without having some means of independent verification. A bad government would have an incentive to lie. Since you have more to do then just be a citizen, namely make a living and care for your family, you are forced to rely on the press for that independent verification. The function of the press then is to serve the people as an independent observer — to go look and see and hear and to report back to the people.

That tells you why it is important to have a free press. It also tells you why it is important that the press be free not only from political restrictions, but also from its own bias, prejudice or partisanship.

The bad effect of false information is the same whether it originates with a tainted government or a tainted press. A press which desires to manipulate you is no better than a government which gets its facts wrong. A press that is biased is no better then a politician who is biased. A press which is stupid and incompetent. A press which is irresponsible is no less dangerous than a government which is irresponsible.

It does not follow that simply because the press is the press and not the government, that you can automatically trust it. The press, like government, must earn its trust and be held accountable for its failures.

Jefferson said that in any age or in any place, people naturally divide themselves who have faith in and cherish the people. The other consists of those who fear the people. To put it another way, people are either elitists or populists.

Some people in the press are elitists. They think they are smarter than the people and they don't trust the people to make the "right" decisions. Those are the people who feel compelled to manipulate the people by manipulating information. That attitude is typified by Geraldo Rivera, ABC's pseudo-journalist, who boasted in an interview that he did not report some events which occurred in Panama lest knowledge of those events cause the Senate not to ratify the Panama Canal Treaty. He had decided they ought to ratify it.

If ABC were a legitimate news organaization with any integrity they would have fired him on the spot. It is just such abuse of journalistic integrity which has caused public trust in American journalism to drop below the 20 percent mark.

My hope is that public disapproval will jar the big offenders in my trade out of their complacent arrogance. I can tell you that the elitist element of the press was shocked out of its mind when the public approved, 5 to 1, President Reagan's decision to bar the press during the initial stages of the Grenada invasion.

I know this. In the cause of freedom, journalism is as important a factor as Constitutional government. Since journalism, like government, is a human institution, it's imperfect, but those of us who are in it have a responsiblitliy to do our best. Those who consume our product have a responsibility to complain loudly when we fail but to remember that you can't live free without us either.

Charley Reese writes for Sun Belt Syndicate.

Court to hear exclusionary rule arguments

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court is considering, for the second time in less than a year, whether to soften its exclusionary rule barring all illegally obtained evidence from criminal trials.

The court was to hear arguments today in two cases from California and Massachusetts in which it is being urged to carve out a "good faith exception" to the 70-year-old rule.

One of the most controversial of law-and-order issues, the exclusionary rule is meant to keep police conduct in check by tossing out evidence obtained in violation of someone's constitutional rights.

The rule often is blamed for letting criminals go free on technicalities.

The high court appeared close to altering the rule last spring in a closely watched case from Illinois, but the justices decided that case on another issue. "We reserve for another day the question of whether the exclusionary rule should be modified," the court said then.

After hearing today's arguments, the justices will take a tentative vote in the matter Wednesday afternoon. Announcement of the court's decision is expected by July.

The Massachusetts case perhaps offers the best illustration of how fine a line the exclusionary rule can draw.

The badly burned body of Sandra Boulware, 29, was found in a vacant lot in the Roxbury section of Boston on Aug. 5, 1979. An autopsy disclosed that the victim was severely beaten and set afire while still alive.

When police officers sought a warrant to search suspect Osborne "Jimmy" Sheppard's home the day after the murder, no suitable warrant form could be found on that Sunday afternoon.

Instead, the officers used a document for drug searches, and a judge signed it. A search of Sheppard's home turned up incriminating evidence, and it was used at his trial.

But Sheppard's murder conviction was thrown out and a new trial ordered because the warrant form only applied to searches for drugs.

The Massachusetts Supreme Court said that even though the police operated in "good faith," they conducted the search on the authority of a defective warrant.

In the California case, a federal judge disqualified as evidence some drugs seized in a police raid in Burbank prompted by a tipster's call. The judge said there was not sufficient "probable cause" to obtain a warrant so the ensuing search was unconstitutionally unreasonable.

Aqueduct breaks, spills water into retention dam

GORMAN, Calif. (AP) — A section of the California Aqueduct broke in two spots Monday, closing a highway and spilling millions of gallons of water into a retention dam before the water level dropped below the fissures and the spill stopped, officials said.

The water loss will have little effect on Southern California consumers, officials said.

For hours, about 400 cubic feet of water per second poured out of Quail Canal into the dam, near the top of sparsely populated Tejon Pass, said Terry Dennis of the state Department of Water Resources.

"The (retention) dam was constructed in the last year just for that purpose," Dennis said.

Almost 326 million gallons drained from a three- to four-mile section of the aqueduct before the water level dropped below the breaks around 10 p.m., said William Wilson, the Department of Water Resources' supervisor for the area.

The area 75 miles northwest of Los Angeles is sparsely populated, Dennis said, and no injuries or damage to farmland were reported.

State Route 138 was closed about 5:15 p.m. as "a precaution," but Interstate 5 was still open to traffic, said California Highway Patrol Officer Danny Lamm. There had been no traffic accidents.

There were no reports of earthquakes in the area that could have caused the breaks, Dennis said, but he noted that about 450 feet of one of the operating roads next to the aqueduct was buckling.

The breaks occurred near the top of the Grapevine, where Interstate 5 crosses 4,144-foot Tejon Pass before dropping into the San Joaquin Valley.

Disoriented ducks fall to their deaths in fog

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — More than 1,000 merganzer ducks, befuddled by dense fog, were swept over the American and Horseshoe Falls on Monday, officials said.

Surviving ducks huddled on the ice bridge over the Niagara River gorge after the pre-dawn temperature dipped to 10 below zero, said Niagara Parks Commission Police Chief Bill Derbyshire.

Some of the birds were able to fly to safety on the upper river, but others had broken wings or feet and were marooned on ice below the cataracts, where they could not be rescued, Derbyshire said.

The incident was worse than the "whistling swan disaster" of 1928, when several hundred swans were swept into the gorge, said Arthur Clark, a zoologist with the Buffalo Museum of Science.

Birds are sometimes swept over the falls in the fog because they become disoriented and fail to react to the approaching danger, he said.

Jury selection continues in nurse's murder trial

GEORGETOWN (AP) — Attorneys for Genene Jones, a vocational nurse accused of killing a toddler with a lethal drug dose, asked potential jurors what they knew about chemistry and other sciences that might come up in testimony during the trial.

Ms. Jones, 33, faces a possible life sentence if convicted in the September 1982 death of 15-month-old Chelsea Ann McClellan of Kerrville. Prosecutors say the infant died after being injected with a powerful muscle relaxant.

On Monday, opening day of the trial that was moved here from Kerrville, potential jurors answered 29 printed questions prepared by defense lawyer Jim Brookshire, including:

"Have you ever read a book about a murder trial?"

"Did you ever study law, psychology, sociology, criminology, chemistry?"

"Have you ever had an unpleasant experience involving medical or hospital personnel?"

By the end of Monday, the pool of potential jurors was whittled down to 113. Twelve will be chosen.

State District Judge John Carter refused a request to sequester the jury despite a plea by defense lawyer Jim Brookshire, who said, "We have to have them locked up."

Brookshire is concerned that jurors might see or hear news accounts of other charges against his client, who is also charged with giving life-threatening injections to a Bexar County boy and six other Kerr County children.

Carter decided not to sequester the jury, saying, "I'm of the opinion we can solve any problems we might have with numerous instructions to the jury."

The trial was moved here from Kerr County because of publicity about the cases.

Jury selection stalled Monday when Brookshire was granted a "reshuffling" of the panel. Under the process, potential jurors are randomly placed in numerical order for questioning by the lawyers. The order is crucial because the first 12 people not rejected by either side will hear the case.

State law allows defense lawyers one reshuffling if they are not satisfied with the first random shuffle.

The McClellan infant died after a visit to the Kerrville clinic where

Genene Jones

Ms. Jones worked. The girl suffered a seizure and died during a frantic ambulance ride.

An autopsy performed on the girl's 18-pound body blamed Sudden Infant Death Syndrome.

But a later indictment alleges that Ms. Jones used a powerful drug, probably the muscle relaxant succinylcholine, to injure the children in August and September 1982.

Ms. Jones and lawyers in the case are bound by a gag order from Carter. But before the trial Ms. Jones said, "I've never killed any children."

A specially empaneled Bexar County grand jury investigated unexplained infant deaths at Medical Center's pediatrics unit for almost a year before issuing the child injury indictment against Ms. Jones on Nov. 21, 1983.

Bexar County District Attorney Sam Millsap said the San Antonio investigation is continuing.

In the Bexar County case, the parents of Rolando Santos have filed a civil lawsuit against Ms. Jones. The suit by Eusebio and Jesusa Santos also included the Bexar County Hospital District and the University of Texas Health Science Center as defendants.

The lawsuit, filed Friday, contends Ms. Jones acted intentionally in causing unspecified "serious and permanent injury" to the infant, who was then a month old.

Judge warns camera crews not to 'mess up my trial'

GEORGETOWN (AP) — A state judge who spied a television cameraman he thought was spying on him has warned news crews, "Don't mess up my trial."

District Judge John Carter, presiding over the murder trial of nurse Genene Jones, said Monday he'll throw television cameras out of the Williamson County Courthouse if the news crews don't obey the letter and "spirit" of his rules.

"I've got a whole lot more important things to do than worry about the press," Carter told reporters and cameramen he called to his courtroom.

The judge said he was upset when he saw from his bench a KTBC-TV, Austin, camera in the window of a building across from the courthouse.

"I could see you, so you could certainly see me," Carter told the news crew. "There's not a judge in this state who allows television in the courtroom."

KTBC cameraman Mike Stanberry told Carter, "That camera does not operate as well as the human eye."

The camera did not pick up anything in the courtroom, Stanberry said.

Oswald's daughters' libel suit settled out of court

DALLAS (AP) — A libel suit filed against the National Enquirer by the daughters of alleged presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald has been settled out of court, an attorney says.

The suit complained of a 1982 story in the tabloid that described June Porter, 22, and Rachel Porter, 20, as leading the lives of social outcasts. The story ran under the headline, "Nightmare Life of Terror Stalks Lee Harvey Oswald's Daughters."

"We filed a motion to dismiss the suit, to the mutual satisfaction of all parties," said Frank Jackson, the Dallas lawyer representing June and Rachel Porter.

Jackson said he was barred by the agreement from discussing terms of the settlement.

U.S. District Judge Robert H. Porter, who was scheduled to hear the case, granted the dismissal after the settlement was filed Monday.

Oswald's daughters lived in Rockwall, about 25 miles northeast of Dallas, with their Russian-born mother, Marina Oswald Porter, and their stepfather, Jess Porter.

The suit was filed following a June 1982 story that alleged the two women had been shunned by society because of their father.

Democrats plan conference

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Democratic Party said Monday it will sponsor a special conference for women Jan. 28 — "Women Working and Winning in 1984."

"The conference is designed to unite Democratic women throughout the state, to educate them about the election process and to promote Democratic candidates," said the party announcement.

Key speakers will include state Treasurer Ann Richards and Lynn Cutler, vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee

Fish tissue tested for dioxins

DALLAS (AP) — Fish tissue taken from Texas waterways is free of highly toxic dioxins, the Environmental Protection Agency reported Monday.

"The publicity surrounding the Times Beach, Mo., dioxin incident and the discovery of dioxin contamination in the Great Lakes and in other areas of the country has caused widespread public concern," said EPA regional administrator Dick Whittington.

EPA and state agencies decided last April to sample fish in Tabbs Bay, adjacent to the Houston Ship Channel, the mouth of the Neches River, Llano Grande Lake in the lower Rio Grande Valley, the San Antonio river below San Antonio, the Trinity River below Dallas and the Brazos River at Freeport.

Judge doesn't rule on request

AUSTIN (AP) — State District Judge Jerry Dellana has told AT&T Communications that its request for an immediate increase of $115.4 million in long distance tolls within the state should be handled by the Public Utilities Commission because AT&T had not exhausted its appeal to the PUC.

PUC examiner Philip Holder on Jan. 6 refused to consider the AT&T request for an immediate rate increase and set a Jan. 24 hearing.

AT&T attorneys has asked state courts to overrule the PUC examiner and allow an immediate $115.4 million rate hike or block a PUC order forcing AT&T to give Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. $616 million.

Civil rights charges dropped

HOUSTON (AP) — Civil rights charges have been dismissed against Billy H. McCreight, a former Harris County deputy constable who was acquitted a year ago in the beating death of a prisoner.

Judge Joe Kegans quashed indictments Monday that had charged McCreight with separate beatings of two Houston men.

McCreight's attorney, Mike Ramsey, said the statute under which his client had been indicted was vague and only applied to jail officers and prison guards.

Midland High comes close to major upset

Bobcats rally in fourth quarter

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

The Midland High Bulldogs had the league leading San Angelo Bobcats hanging from the end of the proverbial rope at Chaparral Center Monday night. But the rope snapped in the closing moments as the girls District 4-5A basketball chase avoided a major upset.

The gutsy Bulldogs led this one for three quarters, but when all was said and done, it was the Bobcats standing on top by a 40-38 margin as Diedra Knapp's desperation shot from the top of the circle at the buzzer just missed.

With the victory, San Angelo holds its uncontested 4-5A leadership with a perfect 7-0 record as the first half of the race is gone. MHS, hoping to pull off the major upset and jump into the thick of the playoff search, fell to 4-3.

For a time, the Bobcats had all they wanted in this one. Perhaps if the Lady Dogs could have hit anywhere near a decent percentage, this would be listed in the books as a victory.

MHS hit only 31 percent from the field with a 17 of 54 effort from the field while San Angelo, who hit 31 percent through the first three quarters, ended with a 37 percent night with five of nine in the fourth quarter.

IT WAS that nightmarish fourth period that did the Bulldogs in. MHS, which led by as many as eight points in the second period, carried a 26-24 lead into the final period of play. The lead changed hands 11 times in that final period before Bambi Lopez' layup with 1:50 left gave San Angelo a 37-36 margin. Lopez came back with 32 seconds left to hit two free throws for a 39-36 Bobcat lead.

From there it was catchup time for the Bulldogs and they just couldn't do it. Denise Lanz, the Bulldogs leading scorer on the season, hit two free throws with 20 seconds, but Lopez struck again with a single charity toss for a 40-38 lead with eight ticks still left on the clock. MHS got the ball down court to Knapp, but her 20-foot effort didn't go in. San Angelo had prevailed.

"We're just glad to get out of this one with a win. I'm glad this road trip is behind us," said a relieved San Angelo coach Doug Snowden. "We shot something like 74 percent when we beat Midland Lee (67-49) and we shot terrible tonight, but the girls hung on. I'm glad to be 7-0. It's a lot better than being 0-7, but we haven't got this thing won by a long shot."

ORVETTA JOHNSON carried the Bulldogs on her shoulders. She scored 22 of MHS' 38 points, hitting 10 of 20 shots from the field. She scored 15 points in the first half with a seven of 10 effort.

On the other hand, Lanz, who usually hits in double figures, had four points, hitting only one of 10 shots. It was the second game in a row that she has been able to hit in double figures.

Lady Rebs rip Big Spring, 74-57

BIG SPRING — The Midland Lee girls got some playoff breathing room here Monday night with a 74-57 District 4-5A basketball victory over the Big Spring Steers.

Lee is now 6-1 in loop action, only one game behind league leading San Angelo, but two games ahead of the rest of the field for the second playoff berth.

The Lady Rebels shot an amazing 60 percent from the field in the second half and Felicia Farias scored 22 of her game high 28 points in the second half as Lee walked to victory.

Tunya Mayberry had a 20-point night and Stacy Harmon had 14 as the Rebels hit on all gears. Paula Spears led Big Spring with 21 points while Trish Clemmons had 16 and Debra Rubio 12.

Big Spring fell to 3-4 in the league chase and in deep trouble. Midland High and Odessa Permian are the nearest teams to the top two with a 4-3 records with seven games left to play. It's looking more and more like a San Angelo, Lee playoff movement.

Lee and Big Spring were knotted a 14 at the end of one period, but Lee held a narrow 34-31 lead at the half. The Rebels outscored Big Spring 40-26 in the second half to break open the contest.

Lee will host Abilene Cooper (3-4) Thursday in the Lee gym at 8 p.m. to start the last half of the district campaign.

IN ANOTHER 4-5A game Monday, Permian kept its hopes alive with a slim 51-49 victory over Abilene Cooper. Laura Bartlett led the way with 17 points and Cheree Itz had 10. Rhonda Hays led Cooper with 13 while Traci Scott had 12 and Melinda Finley 10.

Abilene High broke the deadlock for last place in the 4-5A race Monday with a firm 68-48 win over Odessa High. Both teams entered the game with 0-6 league marks, but 22 points from Trena Jackson, 15 from Ginger Ball and 10 from Lisa Williams lifted the Eagles out of the cellar. OHS got 13 points from Zorina Saldana and 12 from Diana Wilson.

Rebels looking to snap losing string against Steers

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

If the Midland Lee Rebels are to get back into the race for the boys' District 4-5A basketball title, they can no longer afford to wait.

Everything looks to be in Lee's favor for snapping a two-game 4-5A losing streak. The Rebels will have the home court advantage at 8 p.m. tonight at Chaparral Center against the lowly Big Spring Steers.

The Rebels are bringing a 1-3 league record into the contest, 11-10 overall, while Big Spring is 0-4 and has won only two games out of 20 this year.

However, despite Big Spring's dismal performance this year, the Steers still command respect from Lee head coach Paul Stueckler.

"You know they're going to beat somebody before the district is over," said Stueckler. "We hope we're mentally prepared for them and it won't be us. My kids have had a couple of good work outs to prepare for them and we think we're ready."

Stueckler also has a scouting report that says the Steers are starting to slow down the pace of their attack to try and keep things close for a late shot at winning.

"They have been playing some four corner action which we've prepared for," said Stueckler.

While Big Spring is trying to slow things down, the Rebels will be looking for their normal fast-paced game, led by the scoring of Alvin Henry who is among the 4-5A leaders with a 15.0 average. Teammate Derek Westbrook is also among the top shooters with a 10.5 average.

Big Spring has had only one player do much in the scoring department this year, Jimmy Brown with an 11.8 average.

Elsewhere in 4-5A action, Midland High travels to San Angelo, Abilene Cooper is at Odessa Permian and Abilene High hosts Odessa High.

MIDLAND HIGH, tied for second in the standings at 3-1, became the first team in the district to win 20 games this season with its 65-63 victory over Odessa High. The Bulldogs and Abilene High Eagles are trailing 4-0 Odessa Permian for the runner-up playoff berth.

San Angelo, tied for fourth with Abilene Cooper at 2-2, is a slightly unknown quality for Midland High coach Jack Stephenson and his Bulldogs.

"I've only seen San Angelo play one time this year and that was against Lamesa," said Stephenson. "Lamesa has only lost three games. San Angelo beat them, we beat them and so did Amarillo."

From that one sighting, Stephenson came away with a high opinion of the Bobcat combination of size and outside shooting ability.

"They've got a different type team compared to some of the others in the league," said Stephenson. "Their game is outside oriented with a lot of size inside. They're 6-foot-5 and 6-foot-4 inside and that's not including Michael Pfluger who is 6-foot-3."

Pfluger is one of the outside shooters that the Bulldogs have to control. He leads Bobcat scorers in 4-5A player with a 12.0 average. Brian Ross is No. 2 on the list at 10.5 while Zane Hoppe is just under double-figures at 9.8

"We've got to control Pfluger and Hoppe from the outside and have to control Ross inside. He is big, 6-foot-5," said Stephenson.

The Bulldogs have a few scoring threats of their own for San Angelo to worry about.

After a terrible district start, wing Chris Rooker has roared back to life with back-to-back 28 and 22-point performances for a 17.0 average. While he's hitting from outside, Kenneth Johnson, 14.0, and Darrell Davis, 11.8, are fighting inside.

"Rooker's playing well," said Stephenson. "I was pleased with the way he played the other night. I hope he's got his touch back, I think he does. If he doesn't, I hope we have someone else pick it up. Kenneth played well the other night also. He did some good things."

Arkansas center Joe Kleine...

...One of best centers in College basketball

With Sampson gone, who is best?

Sutton claims three of best eight in Southwest Conference

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Now that 7-foot-4 Ralph Sampson is earning money for his slam dunks, there is some question about the best center in college basketball.

Last week, Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton said three of the best eight are in the Southwest Conference — Akeem Abdul Olajuwon of Houston, Jon Koncak of Southern Methodist University and his own Joe Kleine.

When questioned, he didn't want to get backed in a corner on the other five. For one thing, he said, there are many players he doesn't see.

The first time around, he included Melvin Turpin of Kentucky, Sam Perkins of North Carolina, Pat Ewing of Georgetown and Waymon Tisdale of Oklahoma in the group. Just for the sake of argument, throw in Keith Lee of Memphis State, a forward who could be a finesse type center, Greg Stokes of Iowa and Sam Bowie, a Kentucky forward who is 7-foot-1 and plays some at center. That's a solid 10.

Through Saturday night, Kleine was the leading scorer of the three SWC centers — 20.5 points per game. Olajuwon was leading in rebounds, 14.5 per game, and in blocked shots, 102 in 17 games.

"I'm happy with the one we've got," Sutton said. "I think he's the best offensively of the other two. Olajuwon may be the best defensively in college basketball. Koncak may be in between the two.

"You can't ever evaluate intangible things, things like leadership, by looking at the stat sheet," Sutton said. "It's hard to evaluate, when you look at the stat sheet, what kind of defensive player they are ... how they fit into the defensive scheme of their team."

OLAJUWON IS way ahead in blocked shots and rebounds. Ewing and Koncak have 46 blocks each. There are no figures for intimidation. In rebounding, Tisdale is second with 11.7, followed by Koncak with 11.5 and Kleine and Lee at 10.6.

"The worst thing in the world is to look at point average," Sutton said. "A lot of guys can average 25 if they shoot 25 or 30 times a game."

For instance, Tisdale is far and away the top scorer — averaging 29.3 points per game. But, he has attempted 321 shots and is shooting 58.3 percent from the field. Kleine has tried 183 shots and is hitting 62.3 percent.

If Kleine had attempted another 138 shots and hit 62 percent of them, his scoring average would top 31 per game.

Among the 10, Tisdale and Kleine are the only two averaging more than 20 points per game. Next are Perkins at 17.7 and Lee at 17.6.

"It's very difficult to compare," Sutton said. "If you've got great outside shooting and a big-time center, the defense has to spread a little more to protect against the perimeter shot. That opens it up for the guy inside."

HERE IS a breakdown:

KLEINE: 36 minutes, 20.5 points, 10.6 rebounds, 62.3 percent from the field, 72.1 percent from the line, 13 blocked shots.

KONCAK: 34 minutes, 14.8 points, 11.5 rebounds, 61.3 percent from the field, 58.1 percent from the line, 46 blocked shots.

OLAJUWON: 34 minutes, 16.8 points, 14.5 rebounds, 63.5 percent from the field, 50.4 percent from the line, 102 blocked shots.

TISDALE: 35½ minutes, 29.3 points, 11.7 rebounds, 58.3 percent from the field, 60.6 from the line, 40 blocked shots.

EWING: 30 minutes, 16.0 points, 10.1 rebounds, 63.8 percent from the field, 58.2 percent from the line, 46 blocked shots.

TURPIN: 31 minutes, 15.0 points, 5.8 rebounds, 63.8 percent from the field, 81.4 percent from the line, 24 blocked shots.

PERKINS: minutes unavailable, 17.7 points, 9.7 rebounds, 61.8 percent from the field, 76.9 percent from the line, 21 blocked shots.

BOWIE: 25 minutes, 8.6 points, 6.8 rebounds, 54.5 percent from the field, 67.4 percent from the line, 25 blocked shots.

LEE: 34 minutes, 17.6 points, 10.6 rebounds, 55.2 percent from the field, 79.5 percent from the line, 26 blocked shots.

STOKES: 34 minutes, 14.9 points, 7.1 rebounds, 53.3 percent from the field, 70.4 percent from the line, 27 blocked shots.

Losing hard for Iowa's Raveling

Once ranked fifth, Hawkeyes have lost three of last four games

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Iowa Coach George Raveling didn't really mean it when he said he'd "rather be dead" after his basketball team lost to cross-state rival Iowa State.

But the remark illustrates the frustration Raveling is enduring in his first season as the head coach at Iowa, which is one of the most respected and visible programs in the country.

Once ranked fifth in the country, the Hawkeyes have lost three of their last four games — including a 76-72 double overtime setback at Iowa State on Saturday — and now stand 8-5 overall and 1-2 in the Big Ten Conference.

Raveling said he realizes the Iowa fans, who have seen their team play in the NCAA tournament five straight years, probably are growing restless. However, he said he can take whatever they dish out.

"Whatever heat we get, I'll take it," Raveling said. "I know I can coach the game of basketball, regardless of what the fans think. When my players stop believing in me and when my peers stop respecting me, I'll get out.

"It took the Lord seven days to build the world in all of his infinite wisdom and after it was complete, he had his critics. So why should it be any different for me?"

RAVELING COACHED in a low-key situation at Washington State for 11 years before joining the Hawkeyes. He said he "just wasn't prepared for the atmosphere of the coaching job" at Iowa, where every game is televised on a statewide network and fans and news media scrutinize every move the players and coaches make.

"That's the most difficult thing I'm grappling with right now," Raveling said. "There are a lot of things inside of me that are best left unsaid. This is a very difficult coaching situation for me.

"There are a lot of things involved that I don't think will serve a useful purpose to discuss in a public forum," he added. "There are some things we need to discuss internally and we need external support."

In his press conference following the Iowa State game, which the Hawkeyes would have won with better free throw shooting, Raveling was so disheartened that he said, "I'd almost rather be dead than disappoint someone."

He later explained he felt that way because he disappointed Iowa fans who had counted on beating Iowa State, which the Hawkeyes had done for five straight years under former Coach Lute Olson.

"Maybe I attached too much importance to the game," Raveling said. "But I knew how much it meant to the Hawkeye fans around the state. I felt we let them down. I feel it diminishes you as a person when you let someone down."

Raveling said the pressures associated with the Iowa program are even greater on the players than on the coaches. He said playing at Iowa "forces you to change your lifestyle and that's bad."

Raveling said he has advised his players not to watch television, read newspapers, listen to the radio and read their mail.

"You'd be amazed at the amount of mail the players and coaches receive telling us how to play and coach," he said. "I've got a boxful of letters sitting in my office right now from people telling me how to coach. I don't even read them. I just give them to my secretary."

Giants extend Robinson's contract

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco Giants owner Bob Lurie says Manager Frank Robinson's contract will be extended for at least another year.

Lurie did not provide many details "because there's nothing on paper yet. But we definitely want Frank back for an additional year, and money won't be a problem. All we have to do is sit down and work it out."

Robinson, who now makes an estimated $165,000 a year, signed his first two-year contract with the Giants in the spring of 1981 and got a two-year extension through this year.

"The last discussion we had was during the winter meetings, and Bob did mention that he'd like to extend the contract for a year," said Robinson. "But he's a busy man; he said he didn't have time to talk about it. That's the way we left it."

Girardelli claims crown after Mahre disqualified

PARPAN, Switzerland (AP) — Marc Girardelli, a 20-year-old Austrian skiing for Luxembourg, won the World Cup slalom after American Steve Mahre was disqualified.

The race jury disqualified both Mahre and his identical twin brother Phil on Monday because they mixed up their start numbers.

American officials disagreed with the disqualification, saying officials at the starting gate should have checked the numbers of the brothers from Yakima, Wash.

U.S. Alpine Skiing Director Bill Marolt said the U.S. team will contest the disqualifications before the council of the International Ski Federation (FIS) after consulting with the board's American member, Dr. Bob Little.

Steve Mahre was fastest on both slalom runs with a total time of 1:46.90 minutes. His brother Phil had the sixth-best time of 1:48.13. Girardelli clocked in at 1:47.19.

It was Girardelli's second slalom victory.

After the race he said he did not want to win through Mahre's disqualification.

"I had two good runs. I would have been satisfied with second place," he added.

Girardelli has skied for Luxembourg since he had a disagreement with Austrian Ski Federation officials.

Steve Mahre said he went all out in the second run because he was mad about the fuss made over the start number mixup.

Steve wore Phil's number three while Phil had Steve's 13.

American slalom coach Tom Kelly, 51, shouldered the blame for the confusion. He said he had handed both numbers to Steve, but should have made sure each Mahre got the right one.

The disqualification of the Mahres and the spills of Swedish slalom ace Ingemar Stenmark and World Cup leader Pirmin Zurbriggen of Switzerland left the World Cup standings practically unchanged.

The luckless skiers of Monday's slalom had another chance today when another World Cup special slalom will be run in this resort in eastern Switzerland.

The second slalom also will count with the downhill race Sunday at Wengen, Switzerland, for combination points in the World Cup competition.

Hobbs holds onto New Mexico No. 1 despite loss to Lovington

By The Associated Press

The Hobbs Eagles, stunned by Class AAA rival Lovington last week, managed to hold onto the No. 1 ranking this week among Class AAAA high school basketball teams.

In this week's Associated Press poll, the Eagles of Coach Ralph Tasker edged out Albuquerque Eldorado for the top spot. But the margin was a mere five points.

In fact, Eldorado, with an 8-1 record, received more first place votes than did Hobbs. However, the Eagles captured the top spot on the basis of an overall total of 163 points.

While Hobbs, 10-2, received seven first place votes, Eldorado was picked first on nine ballots and accumulated a total of 158 points. Clovis, 12-2, was ranked No. 3 this week and the Wildcats managed to garner one first place vote.

Hobbs had been the dominate team in the first two weeks of the rankings but after being upset 85-84 by Lovington last week, the first place votes in the poll were spread out among four teams. Sandia, 8-1, moved up to the No. 4 spot this week while Los Alamos, which also received a first place vote, was rated No. 5. The Hilltoppers own a 7-2 record.

The rest of the top 10 in AAA included Albuquerque High, 7-2, Farmington, 9-3, Alamogordo, 7-6, Mayfield, 9-5 and Del Norte, 6-4.

The race for the top spot in AAA was just as close as the battle in the AAAA poll.

Only two points separate No. 1 Albuquerque Academy and No. 2 Goddard with undefeated Grants ranked No. 3, just eight points away from the top.

Academy, 10-1, received five first place votes and a total of 151 points. Goddard, also 10-1, was picked first on six ballots and came up with 149 points. Grants, 12-0, received 143 points, including two first place votes.

Lovington, on the basis of its big upset over Hobbs, jumped four places from No. 8 in last week's poll to No. 4 this week. The Wildcats, now 7-4, received two first place votes.

The rest of the top 10 in AAA included No. 5 Portales, 7-3; No. 6 St. Pius, 7-3; No. 7 Cobre, 9-2; No. 8 Tucumcari, 8-3; No. 9 Taos, 8-2 and No. 10 Aztec 8-4.

Former Saints GM sues club owner

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Former New Orleans Saints General Manager Steve Rosenbloom, who presided over one of the worst seasons in National Football League history, has sued club owner John Mecom Jr. for $5.57 million, contending his former boss has been saying bad things about him.

Rosenbloom was general manager in 1980, when the Saints skidded from 8-8 to 1-15.

Rosenbloom's suit, filed Monday, asks $2 million in damages to his reputation and another $3 million for the damage to his earning capacity and future employment as the result of Mecom's alleged criticisms.

The suit says Rosenbloom left the team on Jan. 20, 1981, after Mecom breached his contract by failing to consult with him over major decisions involving the team, including the hiring of Bum Phillips as coach.

Rosenbloom also seeks to recover $575,000 in lost wages and lost benefits. Under his contract, he was to serve as the team's executive vice president and general manager for five years, with an annual salary of $100,000, the suit says.

The suit also asks that a decision made by NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle concerning the salary dispute be thrown out.

Pitt holds on in overtime to upset St. John's, 63-61

By The Associated Press

College Basketball

Unranked Pittsburgh is an unheralded team trying to establish its credentials, a fact that 14th-ranked St. John's learned the hard way.

The Panthers led St. John's by as many as 10 points in the first half and nine in the second half, then held on in overtime to beat the Redmen 63-61 Monday night.

In other college basketball play Monday night, No. 15 Louisiana State — the only other ranked team in action, trounced hapless U.S. International 104-66.

"Our kids persevered," said Pitt Coach Roy Chipman. "The kids played so hard, they just decided they weren't going to lose the game.

"But I don't consider this game an upset. We're 10-4 and I think we've only played one bad game in the Big East," he said.

Star guard Chris Mullin had 26 points for St. John's and the Panthers prevailed despite the cold second-half shooting of their own scoring leader, Clyde Vaughan, who had 15 points in the first half and finished with just 17.

Billy Culbertson missed two shots in the final nine seconds of regulation, but atoned for the misses by twice sinking one of two free throws in the final 16 seconds of overtime to seal Pitt's first victory in four Big East games this season.

COACH LOU Carnesecca's Redmen, who fell from 10th in the rankings last week after losing to No. 16 Boston College Saturday, took a 59-57 lead in the overtime. But Ron Stewart and Mike Moses both missed 1-and-1 free throw opportunities and Pitt's Chip Watkins tied the score at 59-59 with a pair of free throws with 1:54 remaining.

St. John's then turned the ball over on a five-second violation and Williams followed up a missed Culbertson shot to give Pitt the lead for good at 61-59.

St. John's, now 11-3, had a chance to pull out the victory with five seconds remaining when Watkins was unable to inbound the ball. But Willie Glass, frantically trying to get off a shot, lost the ball in a crowd around the basket and Culbertson was fouled.

He then made one of two free throws with two seconds remaining as the Panthers beat the Redmen in Pittsburgh for the second season in a row.

AT BATON Rouge, LSU, 10-3, overwhelmed USI's 2-22 Gulls. Freshman center Nikita Wilson scored 17 points and reserve center Don Redden added 15.

LSU jumped out to a 12-5 lead in the first 3½ minutes and U.S. International never got closer than five points thereafter. All 14 LSU players got into the scoring column, while Brett Crawford led USI with 20 points, 16 on free throws.

Four USI players fouled out, leaving the Gulls, who lost their seventh straight game, without any reserves at the end.

Georgia, which was ranked 15th last week but fell out of the ratings, tipped Mississippi State 54-52 to raise its season record to 11-3.

Mississippi State trailed by as many as eight points in the second half, but tied the game at 52-52 when Chauncey Robinson hit a layup with 4:25 left followed with another basket after taking down the rebound of a missed shot with 37 seconds to go.

Joe Ward then pumped in a wobbly, off-balance eight-foot jumper with just two seconds remaining to give Georgia the road victory.

VIRGINIA TECH, 10-4, held off Tulane 56-52 as Dell Curry hit a driving layup and a free throw in the final 49 seconds. With Tech leading by just one point, Al Young stole the ball and drove the length of the court before passing off to Curry, who hit the basket to make it 53-50 with 24 seconds left. Curry, intentionally fouled seven seconds later, added one free throw and Keith Colbert hit two more with 10 seconds left to ice the game.

For Raiders, Super Bowl XVIII like invitation to mugging

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Officially it's Super Bowl XVIII, pro football's great spectacular, but to the defending champion Washington Redskins it's like being invited to a mugging.

Joe Theismann, the Redskins' MVP quarterback, insists that part of his preparation has been nightly strolls through the toughest sections of the nation's capital "to get myself mentally in a frame of mind to get beat up."

Theismann's concern is for his Sunday opponents, the Los Angeles Raiders, who pride themselves in being the toughest, roughest, meanest scoundrels on either side of the Great Divide.

Their reputation precedes them. They are the "Intimidators," the renegades, the black hats, the unwanted and unloved, eager to get even with the world.

They revel in the role model in which they have been cast. They inherited it back in the 1960s in the era of the Ben Davidsons, Dan Birdwells, George Atkinsons and Jack "I Was a Paid Assassin" Tatums. It's an image they not only are of no mind to change but wish to embellish.

They break your jaw with an elbow. They knock you down, step on your face with a cleated shoe and then pivot.

They are proud of being the game's bully, the roughneck who'll bust up the saloon at the toss of a coin. Their greatest admirers are the Hell's Angels, who zoom up on motorcycles to watch practice.

COACH TOM Flores and quarterback Jim Plunkett are both rather mild-mannered exceptions to the Raiders' norm but neither seems eager to disavow the Raiders' legacy.

Asked at a team meeting how he controlled his demons, Flores, tongue in cheek, said, "I throw in a piece of raw meat and exit real fast." When he dares reenter the lockerroom, he adds, "I usually have a guy in back with a machine gun and some guys on the sides with whips."

Plunkett, a former Heisman Trophy winner discarded by New England and San Francisco and twice benched by the Raiders, paints a graphic picture of his teammates in his autobiography.

"These guys are crazy!" he writes.

"The Raiders frequent bars — the kind you drink in and the kind they lock you up behind. When I came to Oakland it wasn't a typical day if someone wasn't arrested or the police didn't call up looking for a player. The Raiders ran their own missing persons bureau."

He recalled that Warren Wells ran pass patterns with an attempted rape charge over his head and later went to jail, John Matuszak once spent time in a straightjacket after police found a .44 pistol and bayonet in his car and Marv Hubbard reveled in bar fights.

"Al Davis's history is that of finding society's incorrigibles and dressing them in football uniforms," Plunkett added in his book.

Davis runs the franchise, a maverick who defies the establishment and strides the sidelines in a black leather jacket dark glasses, looking like a Darth Vader.

EVEN THE Raiders' logo is characteristic — a black shield showing the head of a pirate with an eyepatch and two crossed swords.

The Raiders gained their reputation as brigands in the 1960s when their home base was Oakland. They had a giant named Ben Davidson, who flaunted a handlebar mustache; a fierce but loveable odd ball named Dan Birdwell plus the crushing George Atkinson and the ferocious Jack Tatum.

In 1967 Davidson broke Joe Namath's jaw. When friends asked what happened, Namath replied, "I ran into a tough piece of meat." Tatum paralyzed Darryl Stingley with a vicious hit and later wrote a book in which he said such violence was a mandate of the sport.

Birdwell's wife is said to have refused to let him play with the kids when he got home because he couldn't restrain his natural roughness.

Al Davis has built the Raiders' roster year after year with bullies, castoffs and malcontents. They include Ted Hendricks, a 6-7, 235-pound linebacker, discarded by Baltimore and Green Bay; kick returner Greg Pruitt, a washout at Cleveland; "killer free safety" Burgess Owens of the New York Jets and linebacker Lyle Alzado, a fugitive from Denver and Cleveland.

Alzado, a clean hitter, is the most intimidating of the present Raiders — a bearded, brutish giant of 6-3 and 260 pounds, who earned his chevrons in the stabbings, street fighting and poverty of a Brooklyn ghetto.

They're strong and mean, these Raiders, but, when you call them that, smile.

North Carolina unanimous No. 1

Houston, UTEP climb into fourth, fifth spots

NEW YORK (AP) — It was a landslide vote for No. 1 North Carolina. But for Kentucky and five other Top Ten teams in the weekly Associated Poll college basketball poll, it was a case of mild slippage.

The 12-0 Tar Heels, who last week knocked off a pair of Atlantic Coast Conference rivals (No. 5 Maryland 74-62 and No. 12 Wake Forest 70-62), were rewarded with all 62 first-place votes and 1240 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. The point system is based on 20 votes for first place, 19 for second, etc.

Conference play provided several surprises this week, yet nobody could have been more surprised than previously second-ranked Kentucky. The Wildcats, 12-1, were trounced by unranked Auburn 82-63 last Friday, so they become the new No. 3 team, exchanging places with DePaul.

The undefeated Blue Demons, who edged St. Mary's, Calif., but crushed Alabama-Birmingham, also improved their homecourt record to 99-3 since the late 1970s. DePaul, 11-0, received 1160 points.

Georgetown, 13-2, which was upset by Big East rival Villanova 65-63 in double overtime, and Maryland, 11-2, each dropped two places to Nos. 6 and 7, respectively.

THE NEW fourth- and fifth-ranked teams are from Texas: Houston, now 16-2, and undefeated Texas-El Paso each climbed three notches, respectively. The Miners, 14-0, are one of four NCAA Division I teams still unbeaten.

Nevada-Las Vegas, 14-1, continued its steady climb in the poll to No. 8, while UCLA, 10-2, which lost to Pac 10 rival Oregon 62-51, fell three places to No. 9.

Rounding out the Top Ten is Illinois, 12-2, which lost to Indiana in overtime 73-68, but beat Ohio State 55-53.

The lone team to drop out of this week's Top 20 was Georgia, previously ranked No. 15. The lone newcomer ia Big 10-leading Purdue, which re-entered the poll at No. 19.

The biggest improvement was shown by undefeated Tulsa, 15-0, which entered the poll last week at No. 20 last week and is now No. 13.

At No. 11 is Oregon State while Wake Forest remained at No.12.

St. John's became the fifth team in last week's Top 10 to slide. After losing to No. 16 Boston College 69-67, in Big East play, the Redmen dropped four places to No. 14. Also dropping four places was Louisiana State, now No. 15. St. John's lost again Monday night, 63-61 to Pitt in overtime, while LSU overwhelmed U.S. International 104-66.

Rounding out the Second Ten are Fresno State, No. 17; Memphis State, No. 18, and Oklahoma, No. 20.

Laredo's new fame not from song

By SALO OTERO
Laredo Morning Times

LAREDO (AP) — Known as the Gateway to Mexico, Laredo's fame spreads far and wide across lTexas.

Although the city of Laredo had been on the map for more than 220 years, country singer Marty Robbins' recording of "The Streets of Laredo" probably did more to bring national attention to this Texas-Mexican border town than anything else.

That is until three years ago, when Laredo Junior College decided to upgrade its basketball program.

Today's national recognition of Laredo centers around the Laredo Junior College Palominos basketball lteam, ranked No. 1 in the nation among junior colleges for the second year in a row.

"Our goal was to be No. 1, and we've done it," said lDr. Crispin Sanchez, dean of student affairs. "We had our share of losses in the past."

The Palominos were ranked No. 1 in the nation for l13 weeks last year.

They are No. 1 again this season, sporting a 14-0 record at the holiday break. The poll is from national JUCO headquarters in Hutchinson, Kan.

YOUNG GARY Moss, hired three years ago, is the lcoach behind Laredo's big turnaround. Moss was an assistant at Texas A&I and Southwest Texas State.

Moss, who played at Sam Houston State, led Laredo lto a 51-11 record in two years. LJC ended 28-3 last year.

Before Moss arrived, LJC won 96 games in the previous 10 years.

LJC's surge to the top brought instant recognition lto the Texas-Mexican border city of more than 90,000, a community that was making headlines lmainly because of its 25-plus percent unemployment lafter the peso devaluation.

The community forgets some of its economic woes by spending time in Maravillo Gym watching lthe No. 1 team in the nation.

Moss promotes his program well.

He has his own television show, aired every Sunday lnight during the season. He also started a Palomino Club to financially boost the program.

The LJC basketball program was the subject of an lextensive story in Sports Illustrated a year ago.

"We want the national championship," said Moss.

Although No. 1 for most of last year, Texas Junior College Athletic Conference rival San Jacinto lof Pasadena, Texas, short-circuited Laredo's national tournament hopes, beating the border lsquad two games out of three.

"We peaked too soon last year," Moss said. "We have lmore experience this year. We're going to get la lot better."

Poor MHS shooting aids Bobcats

Terez Robinson, who has been a big gun lately for the Bulldogs, hit eight points with a four of 10 night from the field.

Ulinda Young led San Angelo with 12 points, 10 coming in the second half surge. Lopez, who scored the last five points for San Angelo in the crucial fourth period, had only seven points in the game. But none of the Bobcat points were bigger or at a more opportune time.

"I'm so proud of these girls," said MHS coach Jane Young after the loss. "They've come a thousand miles since we started. We know we can play with the best of them now. Our defense was great. We could have shot better, but we even had a chance to tie it up there at the end. I told the girls that this thing isn't over until the Fat Lady sings."

The Bulldogs once held a 20-12 second period margin on a Knapp jumper with 2:20 left in the half. It was a lead that never got away until San Angelo's Monica Bradley tied the score at 26 to open the fourth period. Midland's downfall started in the third period when they hit only two of 10 from the field as Johnson had her weakest quarter with only one point.

The Bobcats had trouble with Midland's zone defense and never did penetrate openly. If just a few more shots had fallen for the Bulldogs, the district would have been in a mad scramble. As it now stands, San Angelo and Lee now have a cushion to work with.

San Angelo also won the junior varsity score by a 29-27 margin. Jody Fillpot led San Angelo with 10 points and Liz Pratt had 13 for the Bullpups.

Midland High will try to get back on the winning track Thursday with a trip to Abilene High.

Team USA beats Spartans

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The crowd let Pat Lafontaine know right from the start that he was the one they had come to see, and the 18-year-old forward from the Detroit suburb of Waterford didn't let them down.

Lafontaine, who had been bothered the last week by a bout with the flu, scored his 50th goal and assisted on another Monday night as Team USA skated to a 6-2 exhibition victory over Michigan State University.

"It's been a long grind," said Lafontaine, noting that the barnstorming squad now has played 60 games — winning 35 while losing 17 and skating to a draw in eight. "It's been exciting, though. It was especially nice to finally get a chance to play back in my home state."

Team USA, which begins defense of its 1980 Olympic Gold Medal in exactly three weeks at the Winter Games in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia, continues its U.S. tour today in Kalamazoo where the squad is scheduled to play a team of International Hockey League all-stars.

The squad will play Team Canada on Saturday in Milwaukee and then fly to Austria for final preparations before heading to Yugoslavia.

"Even though we'll be in a different country, we'll know the people back home are behind us and pulling for us," Lafontaine said.

LAFONTAINE'S GOAL, which brought a loud roar from the sellout crowd of 6,567, in Munn Ice Arena was the third of four scored by Team USA in the second period to put the Spartans away.

After a scoreless first period that featured sharp goaltending by both Bob Mason and Michigan State freshman Norm Foster, the U.S. squad got goals just nine seconds apart by Paul Guay and John Harrington beginning at 8:01. Lafontaine found the mark at 13:15 and Steve Griffith made it 4-0 at 19:13.

The Spartans put freshman Bob Essensa in goal to start the third period, but Captain Phil Verchota, one of only two holdovers from the 1980 team, beat him at 1:06 to put Team USA up 5-0.

The Spartans got goals from Mike Donnelly and Jeff Parker before Lafontaine fed a perfect pass to linemate Ed Olczyk, who concluded the scoring at 16:36.

"It's hard to compare this team with the 1980 team," Verchota said. "We've got almost all new faces. I think this long barnstorming tour has helped us to know each other and build camraderie."

Team USA, which looked leg-weary in the first period — after a journey here that began early in the morning from Minneapolis — outshot the Spartans 26-20.

"I think our team will be ready to compete at a psychological and physical peak when we get to the Olympics,' USA Coach Lou Vairo said. "We're very satisfied with the way we're playing right now. We're thinking about playing two more good games in this country. We want to refine our system before we leave for Austria."

Keans gets first stout; Bruins defeat Islanders

NHL

BOSTON (AP) — As a former goalie, Coach Gerry Cheevers of the Boston Bruins knows how it feels to earn a shutout in the National Hockey League.

But Cheevers had trouble finding words to praise backup goaltender Doug Keans after the Bruins' 2-0 victory Monday night over the New York Islanders.

"Any time you get a shutout it's flawless — and you get the stats to back that, too," Cheevers said after Keans collected his first shutout in his 74th NHL start.

Cheevers' statement hardly will go down in history, but he made his point. Keans had plenty of help from teammates, but he earned the shutout with 27 saves.

Gord Kluzak, a 6-foot-4 defenseman used up front on power plays, scored his seventh goal while Boston had a manpower advantage in the first period.

Veteran Mike O'Connell added an insurance goal, his 13th and sixth in the last six games, during another power play in the second period.

Keans and his hard-checking teammates did the rest, skating to their fifth consecutive victory, all with regular goalie Pete Peeters sidelined with a lingering virus.

Elsewhere, it was the New York Rangers 8, Detroit 5, and Minnesota 9, Los Angeles 3.

Keans, acquired from Los Angeles for a bargain basement price of $100 last summer, became the first goalie to blank the Islanders in 58 games since last March. He also was the first Boston goalie to shut out the Islanders since Ross Brooks, also a backup, beat them 4-0 at Uniondale, N.Y., exactly 10 years ago.

"I was just thinking of winning when I went out there, but I like the shutout," said Keans, who has allowed just nine goals in the last five games. "I didn't think I had it, though, until there were 10 seconds left and we had the puck in center ice.

"Ironically, my first win ever in the NHL (with Los Angeles) was against the New York Islanders. That was a big thrill, but I think this is a little nicer."

"You can't beat the New York Islanders without a team effort and that's what we had tonight," Cheevers said. "We skated and checked, had great goaltending, a great effort."

The Bruins, who were eliminated in a six-game semifinal last spring as New York went on to a fourth Stanley Cup championship in a row, made it two straight over the Islanders this season.

Rookie left wing Nevin Markwart didn't figure in the scoring, but held New York superstar Mike Bossy to just one shot on goal. That ended Bossy's streak of at least a point in 19 games.

"Markwart did a marvelous job, just terrific," Cheevers said.

"Basically, I'm a good skater and I tried to keep between him and the net," Markwart said. "I just tried to interfere, frustrate him a lot."

"They've got guys that come in there and do the job," New York Coach Al Arbour said. "They work, work, work for each other. There's no secret in that hard work does a lot of things."

Rangers 8, Red Wings 5

Swedish rookie Peter Sundstrom scored three goals for the first time since he was in junior hockey and Pierre Larouche had two goals and three assists for New York. Larouche collected his 300th career goal.

"For the first two periods, Detroit played very loose defense and I found I was all by myself," said Sundstrom, who began his hat trick on a breakaway with 28 seconds to go in the first period.

He took only 13 seconds of the second session to get his second goal, on a tip-in of a Tom Laidlaw slapshot, and completed his personal blitz of goalie Corrado Micalef by redirecting Don Maloney's pass into the goal 11 minutes later.

"I was lucky to be in the right places. We had lots of guys with two goals this season. It's crazy I got the first three-goal game. I'm not much of a goal-scorer."

North Stars 9, Kings 3

Two defense-oriented players scored twice each for Minnesota. Al MacAdam and Craig Levie did the damage, with Tom McCarthy scoring once and setting up three tallies.

Levie, recalled from Salt Lake City Friday to replace injured Curt Giles, scored once in the five-goal Minnesota first period that put the game away.

Sutcliffe, Indians come to terms on contract

CLEVELAND (AP) — Right-hander Rick Sutcliffe dropped his trade demand and signed with the Cleveland Indians for the 1984 season, officials of the American League team say.

Sutcliffe, 27, signed a one-year contract Monday, reportedly in the $850,000 range.

Sutcliffe finished 1983, his third season with the Indians, with a 17-11 record and a 4.29 earned run average. He appeared in 36 games (with 35 starts), with 10 complete games and two shutouts. His team-high 160 strikeouts made him fifth in the league, and he was named to the 1983 AL All-Star Team.

In 1982, Sutcliffe was the only AL pitcher to have an ERA under 3.00, with an average of 2.96.

"All along, I had been leaning toward coming back to the Indians," said the 6-foot-6, 195-pound Sutcliffe. "But last week, (Manager) Pat Corrales visited me here in Kansas City. We talked about the club and the fact that we are going to be a much better team this year.

"Money was never an issue with the Indians. From the start, they were willing to pay me. But I want to play for a contender. Pat showed me that we're going in the right direction. He said we'll go against the book — bunt, steal bases and hustle like crazy. We are going to fight and scrap," Sutcliffe said.

"The signing of Rick Sutcliffe allows me to breathe a little easier," said Corrales, who replaced Mike Ferraro last July 31.

White House drafts bill to divert oil-price penalties to U.S. treasury

By The Los Angeles Times — Washington Post News Service

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration has drafted legislation to turn over to the U.S. Treasury an amount that eventually could total $6 billion in penalties from companies that violated oil price controls in the 1970s, instead of returning it to consumers as originally intended.

According to a draft of the bill, the money would be used to fund the low-income fuel assistance program and two energy conservation programs that the administration has tried in vain to abolish.

In its request for Office of Management and Budget approval of the measure, the Energy Department called the bill an "efficient and effective method" of distributing the money "without imposing heavier burdens on the taxpayer and the Treasury."

It also would save the administration $500 million in budget allocations for the politically popular conservation and fuel-aid programs, relieve an administrative headache for the DOE and let OMB Director David A. Stockman make good a promise to Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., last November that the money would be available to help low-income people pay their fuel bills this year.

However, House Energy and Commerce Committee Chairman John D. Dingell, D-Mich., has labeled the plan an attempt to "circumvent" the idea of consumer refunds "in favor of an approach that will help the administration solve some of its budget problems."

In a sharply worded letter to DOE general counsel Theodore J. Garrish, whose office drafted the bill, Dingell said the oil overcharges are not federal funds "subject to annual appropriation and, of course, all the whims and practices of the OMB process, including trying to count these funds as revenues in order to relieve the deficit."

Dingell conceded that procedures for returning the money were "difficult." But he suggested that the DOE is deliberately dragging its feet on the process in the hope of "building up the fund for later distribution, rather than trying to make refunds to overcharged consumers."

Garrish declined to be interviewed. A DOE spokesman said the draft had been sent to Congress as well as to Stockman, but that the measure was being revised. He declined to give any indication of how the legislation might be altered.

The government has collected more than $1.33 billion in overcharges from oil companies accused of violating price controls in effect from 1973 to 1981. Nearly $400 million of that is still in an escrow account, collecting interest while the department sorts through hundreds of claims from possible victims of overcharging.

In a letter to Stockman, Garrish estimated that as much as $6 billion in additional penalties would be recovered.

Among the pending cases is a $1.7 billion penalty against the Exxon Corp. In that case, which Exxon has appealed, a federal judge ordered that the money be distributed among the states. The remedy was based on a similar distribution of $200 million in oil overcharges approved by Congress in December 1982.

Dingell has argued that the court misread the intent of Congress, but the administration elected ntt to appeal the judge's decision. Instead, it has used the Exxon decision to build its case for using all the oil overcharge money in similar fashion.

In a Nov. 9 letter to Weicker on low-income energy assistance, Stockman said the administration "believes that additional resources will be forthcoming for this program upon disposition of the Exxon case. The government has won this case and no government appeal of the remedy has been entered."

Garrish, outlining the DOE bill in his letter to Stockman, said the measure would "provide clear guidance to courts in pending and future cases," as well as spare the government "time-consuwn c9n ⅜RCHARGED. Under the bill, Congress could appropriate up to 25 percent of the oil overcharges in the Treasury, up to a limit of $500 million a year, to the low-income fuel assistance program and two energy-conservation grant programs. The grants go to states to help pay for energy-saving measures in schools and hospitals and to run weatherization programs for low-income and elderly people.

The administration has no money for those programs in its fiscal 1985 budget and has not requested any for the last two fiscal years. Congress, however, has refused to let the programs die.

The administration "has come up with an idea that since they can't eliminate those programs, they can try to fund them through something that isn't a federal appropriation," said Charles E. Hill of the National Consumer Law Center.

Postal Service now accepting applications

The U.S. Postal Service has announced applications for employment with the Postal Service will be accepted for both existing and projected manual distribution clerk and city letter carrier vacancies in the area eligibility register for the Andrews, Big Spring, Midland, and Odessa Post Offices.

All those interested in applying should take the job-related tests required for Postal Service employment.

Area eligibility registers provide greater employment opportunities in that applicants may be considered for employment in three of these four post offices.

Applications for the examination can be obtained until January 25, between 8:30 a.m. and 4:00 p.m. at the Main Post Office in Andrews, Big Spring, Midland and Odessa. Each applicant will be provided with a sample of the type questions that can be expected on the examination.

There is no experience required. All applicants must be citizens of, or owe allegiance to, the United States of America, or must have been granted permanent resident alien status in the United States. The general age requirement is 18 years or 16 years for high school graduates. There is no maximum age limit, however.

Clerks generally work indoors and must be able to handle sacks of mail wighing as much as 70 pounds. Carriers (Postmen) generally collect and deliver the mail and must also be able to handle sacks of mail weighing as much as 70 pounds. Some Carriers are required to walk whereas others drive, depending on the particular route. Carriers must have a valid Texas State Driver License and a good driving history.

Industry leaders laud court ruling

By STEVEN EISENSTADT
Washington Buureau

WASHINGTON — Small independent energy producers won a David vs. Goliath battle over the Internal Revenue Service in the Supreme Court last week.

In a 5-4 ruling, the high court said last Tuesday the IRS may not deny tax deductions to owners of oil and gas leases during a year in which the wells are not in production.

The court said that Congress, which instituted the tax break during U.S. energy upheaval in 1975, intended to provide the allowance on advance royalties and bonuses paid to the owners for oil and gas leases to spur production by small, independent producers.

The IRS contended that producers are not entitled to depletion allowances on any income not attributed to actual production of oil and gas.

But that interpretation of the law would be inconsistent with Congress' "goal of subsidizing the combined efforts of small producers and royalty owners in the exploration and production of the nation's oil and gas reserves," Justice Sandra Day O'Connor said in the majority opinion.

Spokesmen for independent petroleum groups hailed the ruling as surprising but good news for small producers.

"I think we were surprised that the court reached that decision, although it certainly was the right decision," said John Braden, a tax specialist with the Independent Petroleum Association of America in Washington. "You're certainly surprised when the court overturns" the IRS.

"This is really a significant decision," Braden added. "There's a lot of money at stake."

Bonuses to owners of oil and gas leases total about $3.5 billion over the last three years, he said.

Larry Springer, a spokesman for the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association, said, "We obviously feel it's going to mean a lot more money coming in."

Springer said TIPRO supports the court's opinion that the IRS' reading of the law would discourage small producers from using financing arrangements that would optimize their efforts to produce oil and gas.

Congress in 1975 repealed deduction allowances for major oil companies in response to assertions that they "were reaping excessive oil and gas profirs at the public's expense while reinvesting little of their ... subsidies in domestic energy production," O'Connor wrote.

But Congress exempted independent producers from the repeal to spur domestic production.

The court ruled in two cases in which the IRS disallowed depletion allowances because there was no actual oil and gas production.

In one of the cases, the families of Philip D. Farmar and A.A. Sugg, joint owners of 46,515 acres in Irion County, leased their oil and gas interests and were to receive revenues on 20 percent of all oil and gas sold from the property.

The Farmars and Suggs also were to collect annual cash bonuses, beginning in 1975, even if no oil and gas was produced from the land.

The two families claimed percentage depletion deductions on both the royalties and bonuses, but the IRS refused them because the income was not tied to production.

In the second case, Fred and Mary Engle assigned their two Wyoming oil and gas leases to third parties and retained $7,600 in royalties.

On their joint federal income tax return for 1975, the Engles claimed a depletion allowance equal to 22 percent of the royalties, or $1,672. But the IRS declined the deduction because the well did not produce.

Dissenting against the court's opinion were Justices Harry Blackmun, William J. Brennan, Byron R. White and Thurgood Marshall.

Regan, Volcker want bank regulation change

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Unless restrictions are relaxed so banks can compete effectively with other financial service companies, the banking industry could be imperiled, say Treasury Secretary Donald Regan and Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker.

Testifying Monday before the U.S. Senate Banking Committee, Regan and Volcker called for major adjustments of banking regulations to deal with wide-ranging changes in the financial industry.

"We need action, and we need it this year," Regan said. "We have a problem crying out for a solution."

Both men said the growing scramble among banks, savings and loans and security companies to provide financial services is threatening the nation's banking industry, which is hampered by laws barring them from competing in certain areas.

"If the banking system is not deregulated ... pretty soon it will fall of its own weight," Regan said. Proposed deregulation would allow banks to enter the real estate market and sell insurance.

"I think the task is urgent. I don't think we have unlimited time. The present arrangements are in disarray," said Volcker, recommending "early resolution" of the crisis.

"Traditional barriers between banking, insurance, securities and thrift institutions are rapidly becoming nonexistent," Regan said.

The full Senate Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee hearing was attended by Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, the panel's chairman, and committee members Sen. Slade Gorton, R-Wash., and Sen. Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J.

The hearing was held to gather testimony on the Financial Services Competitive Equity Act, introduced by Garn, and on the Depository Institutions Holding Company Act amendments spearheaded by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis.

Garn said he hoped to have a series of up to 14 hearings completed this spring and have a bill signed by the president before the end of the year.

Volcker and Regan said they generally supported the Garn and Proxmire bills, but felt more work remained before the proposals could be blended with the Reagan administration's fiscal policies.

The deregulation issue arose as companies such as American Express and Sears, Roebuck & Co. moved into financial areas once considered the province of established banks and S&Ls.

Garn's proposal, a composite of eight previously introduced bills, would allow restricted access by banks and S&Ls to the real-estate market; permit banks to sell insurance, on condition of certain consumer safeguards; and restrict bank branching by S&Ls owned by bank-holding companies.

The latter provision of the bill seems aimed at companies like Citicorp, which owns Citibank and also controls a California S&L. In addition, Citicorp has been given the initial go-ahead to take over S&Ls in Illinois and Florida.

Proxmire's amendments package touches on many of the same areas as Garn's bill. It also seeks to close a loophole that currently allows securities firms to avoid their technical definition as banks by making commercial loans as banks do, but not accepting deposits.

Under the Bank Holding Company Act, a bank is defined as an institution that makes commercial loans and accepts deposits.

Garn's bill also would limit the linkage of giant companies holding banking and S&L interests with big insurance, securities, real estate and other large financial institutions. The measure spells out specific limits for those affiliations.

Drilling permit request rate high

DENVER — In the first week of this year 1,902 permits to drill wells in search of oil or gas were issued in the United States, according to Petroleum Information Corp. The week's total compares with 2,200 permits issued in the first week of 1983, but PI noted that the first week of this year was essentially a four day week since Monday, Jan. 2 was widely observed as a holiday.

Permits to drill as obtained from state and federal agencies with jurisdiction over drilling activity are an indication of the present intent of operators as to future drilling. Not all permits issued result in drilled wells, but the permitting process is the first recorded indicator of activity to come.

Petroleum Information records permits as issued and monitors nationwide activity to keep track of those drilled and when they are completed.

Texas was the leader in the first week of the year with 605 permits issued. Texas permits in the same week a year ago totaled 713. Kansas also ranked high among the states with 195 permits issued, down from 281 a year ago.

PI noted that 66 permits were issued for southern Louisiana drilling, up from 41 a year ago and perhaps indicating some upturn in generally deep drilling in this important oil and gas producing area.

Petroleum Information Corp. is a wholly owned subsidiary of A.C. Nielsen Co., Northbrook, Illinois. PI Offers comprehensive reporting services, data and data analysis, maps and logs to the petroleum and related industries.

Pickens loses another one; Vote upheld

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Gulf Oil Corp. won another battle Monday in its war with Texas oilman T. Boone Pickens Jr. when a federal judge upheld a shareholder election that gave Gulf the authority to move its corporate charter to Delaware.

The ruling by U.S. District Judge Barron McCune means Gulf can go ahead with its plan to file Wednesday for reincorporation as a Delaware holding company. Gulf, the nation's fifth-largest oil company, currently is incorporated in Pennsylvania.

The move will eliminate cumulative voting rights Pickens had counted on to capture two seats on Gulf's board of directors by using the 21.7 million shares he controls.

Pickens, chairman of Mesa Petroleum Corp., is leading an investor group that has spent more than $900 million acquiring 13.2 percent of Gulf's 165 million shares. The group wants Gulf to spin off half its domestic oil properties into a royalty trust, a move it says would enhance the value of Gulf's stock.

Gulf management opposes the plan, arguing the cash that a royalty trust would pay directly to shareholders is needed to finance future oil and gas exploration.

On Friday, Gulf announced final, revised results showing it received 4 million shares beyond the minimum required to win the Dec. 2 special shareholders election.

Pickens sued the same day in U.S. District Court in Pittsburgh to invalidate proxies covering nearly 6 million shares. The suit claimed the proxies contained technical defects.

The temporary restraining order sought by the Mesa group lawsuit would have delayed the reincorporation while attorneys argued further over the proxies.

McCune said was not convinced there was sufficient public interest in the case to warrant a restraining order. He also said he saw no violation of Pennsylvania business law provisions governing the way proxies should be executed.

He said the issue had "apparently no ... real significance in the overall scheme of things."

"Society isn't affected. It's two groups of investors fighting," the judge said.

A spokesman for Mesa said Pickens would have no comment on the ruling immediately.

John G. Harkins Jr., attorney for the Mesa group, said other legal moves were possible but that no decision had been made on which, if any, Pickens would pursue.

"We got a fair hearing," Harkins said.

Harkins argued that the contested proxies, all exercised by corporations, should be deducted from Gulf's total because they lacked either the signatures of corporate officers or the officers' titles.

Mesa never contended that any of the proxies were voted against the will of the share owners.

Greenwood 4-H'er's calf grand champion

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Two Greenwood 4-H Club members — Mark Graham and Wendy Smith — exhibited the grand and reserve grand champion calves Monday lin the 35th annual Midland County Livestock Show.

The prize calf was Mark's second consecutive grand championship in the annual show.

"He's balanced," Billy Reagor, steer judge, said of the blue-ribbon champion. "He's a stout rascal. He's a show steer,...the best show steer we've seen."

Reagor, the Crockett County agricultural lagent, said the animal was well muscled, well finished, and was in prime condition for the market. "You visualize (in judging) what the carcass will be like."

The steer will be among the 117 cattle, sheep and swine to be auctioned at 7 p.m. today in the Midland County Exhibit Building. The llivestock will be shown by Future Farmers of America (FFA) members in Midland and Robert E. Lee High Schools and by 4-H Club members throughout the county.

l The show's grand champion steer lwas a 1,240-pound, Nebraska-bred lChianina-cross calf lnamed Tiger.

"It's fun," Mark said of showing the calf.

The steer will be the first animal to be auctioned tonight. Last year, the grand champion calf, a Maine-Anjou shown by Mark, brought l$3.05 a pound at the prodding lof Snyder auctioneer Tommy Marricle.

Wendy's reserve champion calf, lone of 50 steers in eight classes judged by Reagor of Ozona, lwas a 1,220-pound Maine-Anjou lsteer from Colorado.

"I haven't named him," said 11-year-old lWendy, who also showed lchampion rabbits in the show.

l Last year's reserve grand champion lcalf, a Simmental, brought l$1.75 a pound.

This year, steers were classed according to height (from top of the rear back down) rather than by breed, as has been the practice. Mark's calf, which stood at 57⅞ inches, was in Class 8 for the tallest animals. Wendy's steer, which lstood at 54¼ inches, was in lClass 6.

Grand champion hog was a 248-pound lheavyweight cross-bred pig lshown by Shelly McVey. The reserve champion hog, shown by Jennifer Dryden, was a 198-pound light-weight swine. The 1983 grand lchampion hog drew a top bid of $6.25 a pound. The reserve grand champion pig in the 1983 show brought $2.75 a pound.

The show's champion finewool lamb was a 128-pound heavyweight llamb exhibited by Michelle lDriver, a 4-H'er.

Another l4-H member, Trisha Patton, lshowed the reserve champion, la 107-pound medium-weight llamb.

Taking stock

Michelle Driver, top photo, studies the reaction of the judge Monday during the 35th annual Midland County Livestock Show. Ms. Driver's lamb placed third in the medium wool, lightweight division. Looking somewhat like an ominous, hooded KKK member, this lamb, above left, gained relief from the cold with a cape. Ten-year-old Lindsay Stewart, daughter of Ronnie and Dorothy Stewart, above right, puts the finishing touches on her steer with a blow-dryer. Some win, some lose, and after a tough day Greg Cleere, left, relaxes in his pickup outside Midland County Exhibit Building.

Livestock show builds character, judge believes

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

There's more to a livestock show than well-groomed and restless steers, pigs and lambs stirring about on full bellies. There's even more to a show than youngsters hoping for the champion animal and for top dollars at the auction.

"I think we've seen some good quality livestock," Billy Reagor said, as he finished judging calves at the 35th annual Midland County Livestock Show, "and I hope we've built some character" into the 4-H and Future Farmers of America (FFA) youths who showed the animals. "Sometimes we lose sight of the real reasons (for the livestock projects and show): to build champion boys and girls and champion adults."

Reagor, the Crockett County agricultural agent, said it was a pleasure for him to work with the 4-H and FFA youngsters, since the livestock projects are designed to teach them responsibility and discipline in their development.

All told, 324 steers, pigs and lambs were exhibited by FFA and 4-H members in the Midland County Exhibit Building, which, for the first time in a stock show, was outfitted with brighter-than-dollar-green artificial turf.

"That classy," said Charlie Green, the show's cattle superintendent. "We're up there with the Beef Eaters Ball," he joshed. "We're heading that way."

The turf replaced dirt in the show ring and has cut down on the dust in the air.

Even the pigs, noted farmer Bud Lea, seemed to appreciate the bright-green turf. "You heard them squealing," he said.

"I think the quality of livestock is about what it has been," said Rusty Jones, president of the Midland County Livestock Association, which sponsors the annual show.

The 117 prime animals in the show will be auctioned off at 7 p.m. today in the show ring of the exhibit building, which each January is converted into a livestock show barn.

"I hope we have a good turnout," Midland farmer Gary Drake said of the sale. "The kids have worked hard."

In readying for the judging, the 4-H and FFA members and their families and friends groomed the show animals.

"Everybody's helping everybody," said Bob McBryde, whose 14-year-old son, Robby, showed three calves and a pig in the show. "We like to help everybody, and everybody helps us, and we watch the kids show."

Said one parent to another, as they were grooming an Angus calf: "I sure do appreciate your doing this," Joe Coots told Kay Woolard, who answered: "We're all working together."

Reagor, who judged the show's 162 lambs and 50 steers, said the exhibition's high-placing livestock were of good quality.

"The top end is real good," he said. "The top end will compare with anybody's. They've got style and balance of lots of muscles.

"In a livestock show, you want them (animals) to be pretty. You want good, thick, firm muscles. You want something that will hang up a good carcass."

In noting that southwesterners and Texans in particular are hearty beef eaters and pass up lamb mutton at the meat counters, Reagor said "most of them just haven't eaten any good lamb. They don't know what they're missing.

"Anyone who has eaten good lamb will go back again, because it's quite a delicacy."

Reagor, who is from the sheep country around Ozona, said most of the lamb and mutton is shipped back East for food.

New scanner makes quicker, more precise diagnoses

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

When a victim of a traumatic accident was brought into the emergency room in the past, an invasive procedure which often involved injecting a dye into the artery to determine injuries to the brain was performed.

Besides being time consuming when speed is crucial, the arteriogram also carried a two-tenths of a percent possible mortality rate and a 3 percent injury rate.

A new piece of equipment, put into effect at Midland Memorial Hospital Monday, will minimize those dangers and speed up the process, "without subjecting the patient to risk," said Dr. Ward Terry, MMH Chief of Radiology, during a Monday morning press conference at the hospital.

The $1.2 million computerized tomographic (CT) whole body scanner can be used instead of the invasive emergency surgery and in non-acute situations, where exploratory surgery traditionally was performed.

While the cost of treatments will run about $500, Terry said that is much less than that of a two-day hospital stay, an average length following surgery. It also cuts down the time of an arteriogram by an hour and a half.

Almost 15 patients already were scheduled for the simple and painless test as of Monday morning. Terry estimated one patient will be able to undergo the surgery per hour.

"Our limitation is the number of staff trained," he said, adding General Electric Co., makers of the GE 9800, initially trained two MMH employees but will be returning to train more.

"(Computerized body scanner) can dissect various graduations of densities in the body to make precise diagnosis."
— Dr. Ward Terry, MMH Chief of Radiology

Financed with $2 million in junior lien revenue bonds, approved for purchase by hospital directors in August 1983, the new CT Scanner replaces a second-generation scanner.

According to Terry, while the old scanner could produce a view of the full body in 28 seconds, the new piece of equipment will do it in two seconds.

"It can dissect various graduations of densities in the body to make precise diagnosis," he said.

With the machine, a visual reconstruction of a thin slice (about one centimeter) of a portion of the body is available. Previous scanners could only analyze images while the more modern scanner is equipped to reconstruct the images on printouts. It also has improved capabilities of diagnosing very small variations in tissue density.

One of the major problems with scanners was the blurring of images caused by movements made by the beating of the heart, breathing and movements made in the digestive tract. With a faster image produced the blurring is eliminated.

The new scanner can accomplish a partial scan in 1.5 seconds or a full, 360-degree scan in 2.8 seconds. Some 1.5 million measurements can be generated in a two-second scan while 5.7 million can be taken during an eight-second scan, according to Terry.

Financing of the equipment was made with the understanding that the MMH Board of Governors would cover the cost as part of its two-year fund drive for the purchase of radiology department equipment.

According to Governor Martin Allday, $665,000 has been collected by the 40-member board with another $207,000 promised in pledges.

"We're not quite a third of the way home to the $3 million total," he said.

"We consider ourselves to have an important role," Chairman of the Board of Governors John J. Redfern Jr. said. "To make a good institution a great institution requires a lot of help from the people of the community."

"It seems like only three or four years ago that we were raising money for the old CT Scanner," said Mickey Cappadonna, a former member of the Board of Trustees who is involved in the radiology drive.

"We've got $15-20 million in equipment in this hospital and the average life is 10 years."

By helping finance replacement equipment as needed, the governors agreed the community was doing its best in providing the most sophisticated medical care and equipment possible.

"We almost should be anxious to have this equipment become obsolete," Redfern said.

The $2 million in junior lien revenue bonds included the purchase of the $1.2 million CT Scanner, renovation of the radiation department to accommodate it, and the building of a $600,000 parking garage, presently under construction on the Illinois Avenue parking lot, east of the hospital.

The champion crossbred lamb was a 129-pound heavyweight animal shown by 4-H'er Dusty Taylor. Kelie Jones, also a 4-H member, showed the reserve champion, la 118-pound medium-weight llamb.

Exhibiting the champion medium-wool llamb, a 126-pound heavy-weight animal, was Johnie Casbeer, a Midland FFA member, who in 1983 raised the champion finewool lamb. Allen Elliott, who belongs to the same FFA chapter, showed the reserve champion, a 137-pound heavyweight lamb.

The 1983 top lambs brought $8.25 la pound for the finewool, $6 lfor the medium wool and $6.25 lfor the medium-wool lamb.

Judge: Show builds character

"Very little lamb is eaten in Texas," he said. "The main reason is they don't know what they're missing."

James Bevil, Haskell vocational agriculture teacher, judged the 112 pigs in the show.

"He's looking for an animal that's got lots of volume, that's thick over the top," said Ken Pruitt, a Midland pig farmer. "That's where the pork chops come from." The judge also looks for depth, since the bacon comes from the side of the pig, and for a firm, generous rump, where the ham is.

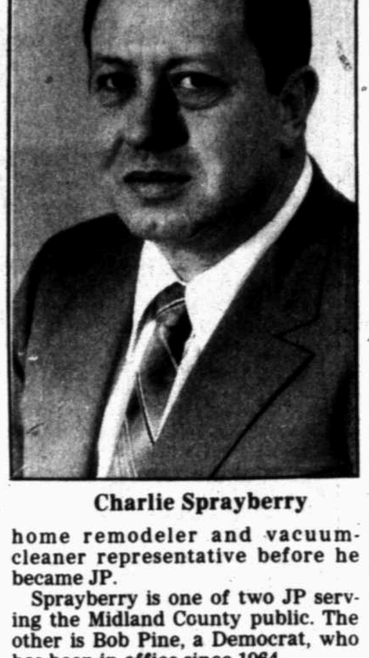
"You're just looking for a package that's got lots of meat on it," Pruitt said.

Showing livestock for profit and prizes is a gamble, noted farmer Drake.

"That's the way it goes," he said. "Sometimes you win, sometimes you lose, and sometimes you get rained out."

Sprayberry says he's seeking re-election

From Staff Reports



Charlie Sprayberry

Justice of the Peace Charlie Sprayberry today announced his candidacy for re-election to Place 1, Precinct 2, a post he has held since 1981.

"I hope I have served the people well," said Sprayberry, 43. "Since holding office, cases have been kept current, and I feel handled in a prompt, efficient and unbiased manner." The JP said he has been "easily accessible to the public."

Sprayberry, who was first elected to the post in 1980 when he defeated the then-justice of the peace, John Biggs, a Democrat, is seeking the Republican Party nomination for the job in the May 5 primary elections. The post is budgeted for almost $30,000 in 1984.

"I have no obligations or ties to any special-interest group," he said, "and will continue to operate my court fairly and unbiasedly. I will continue to make myself and my staff easily accessible to the public."

Though his office has been somewhat controversial, Sprayberry noted that he caught flak early into his first term when he confronted a motorist whom, he alleged, violated traffic laws. The motorist subsequently filed a $15,000 lawsuit against him. It is still unresolved.

"The worse I did was fire some words toward her," he said. "I feel it is what's commonly called a 'nuisance suit.'"

Sprayberry, who holds a bachelor's degree in business from The University of Texas of the Permian Basin, was real-estate salesman, home remodeler and vacuum-cleaner representative before he became JP.

Sprayberry is one of two JP serving the Midland County public. The other is Bob Pine, a Democrat, who has been in office since 1964.

Sprayberry described his work as a "many-faceted job," which, he said, "involves everything from domestic squabbles up to issuance of first-degree felony warrants," and the handling of state traffic violations. He also serves as a coroner.

Children to be questioned in fire that killed two people

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — Fire officials said they would question two children today in an effort to find out what caused of a fire that killed a 26-year-old woman and her 3-year-old son.

Authorities said Guadalupe Hernández apparently died when she went into a blazing bedroom to try to save her child, Ivan. Two other children she was babysitting escaped the fire.

Mrs. Hernandez and her son were found in the rear bedroom of their home, the only room destroyed by the Monday blaze, and were pronounced dead by Justice of the Peace Ed Sarabia.

The two other children were "too shaken up" to be interviewed after the blaze, said fire inspector Raul Salazar. He said they would be questioned today.

Officials said Mrs. Hernandez was babysitting the 3- and 4-year-old children of Anacleto and Marcelina Ramirez, owners of the house and relatives of Mrs. Hernandez.

"Apparently the lady (Mrs. Hernandez) was on the phone at the time of the fire. The two children ran out of the back bedroom and told her there was a fire and she ran back to try to save her son," said fire inspector Raul Salazar.

Y offering mountaineering class

From Staff Reports

Looking for a challenge? Enjoy the great outdoors? Always wanted to ascend mountains?

If so, then Midland YMCA's Basic Mountaineering course, offered from Jan. 23-March 4, may be the first step in fulfilling your dreams.

Deadline for the six-week class has been extended through Friday, according to instructor Richard Galle.

The co-ed class will meet from 7 p.m.-8:30 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays. Participants will scrutinize climbing techniques through films, learn the proper use of climbing equipment, practice knot tying, belay and rappel under controled conditions, and study chockcraft and use of pitons.

The course will climax with a weekend trip to the Davis Mountains' Point of Rocks, where students will get the opportunity to rappel down a 280-foot face and practice climbing techniques.

Participants need only tennis shoes or climbing boots, as all other equipment will be furnished. Fee is $30 per person and minimum age is 16.

Interested persons may sign up for the course by calling Alamo YMCA, 694-2528. Additional information can be obtained by contacting Galle at that same number.

Governor's committee makes education recommendations

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Approval of new vocational education programs receiving state or federal funds should be tied to a "priority list of high-demand occupations," according to one of 16 recommendations which have been hand-delivered to a subcommittee of the governor's Select Committee on Public Education.

The recommendations, which surfaced in a legislative study mandated in 1981 and completed last year, have been endorsed by the Advisory Council for Technical-Vocational Education and were presented to the subcommittee this week in Dallas, executive director Will Reece said.

"We do not advocate the status quo," said Reece, who noted his council was asked by staff members of the subcommittee to give some recommendations on technical-vocational education in Texas.

A priority list of occupations in demand would help "to meet the needs of the state," Reece said. "The list would be based on labor market information by the Texas Employment Commission and information generated through local needs assessments."

Currently, such a list would include jobs in the field of electronics, Reece said.

Among the other recommendations made to the subcommittee are that each vocational education program should have a "defined set of competencies" and there should be a sunset provision for all vocational education programs.

Reece said a defined set of competencies would ensure the same standards in Houston and El Paso for students, and a sunset provision would eliminate unnecessary programs. Local education communities and the Texas Education Agency would decide if programs should continue under the sunset provision, he added.

The Select Committee on Public Education has set a March 1 target date for completion of a draft report on recommendations to the Legislature regarding education.

Man on crusade to correct flag abuses

DALLAS (AP) — When Charles David Stephens sees the Texas flag used in billboards, he doesn't see the flag's red, white and blue.

Stephens sees red.

For the last 12 years, Stephens has been on a one-man crusade to make people show the Texas flag proper respect.

He's taken an office's flags down at night. He's asked restaurant owners to take flags off their walls. He's been laughed at, cursed at, scoffed at and ignored. He's been threatened with physical harm. He's been called a crackpot and a kook.

But Stephens is undeterred. All he wants, he said, is for people to abide by the law.

"I'm tired of people using the flag wrong," said Stephens, 35, a self-employed Dallas computer consultant. "These are strictly illegal... but people just go right on doing it like it's OK. Well, it's not OK. And I'm here to say it."

Stephens said he is the perfect person to know how flags should be flown. Born and reared in Lubbock, he returned to Texas in 1970 after a stint in the Army, including a tour in Vietnam. To pass Army officer exams, Stephens said, he had to study flag regulations, and he became fascinated by the subject.

When Stephens returned to Lubbock in 1971, he found he couldn't ignore abuses of the state and American flags. Once, he drove by a Lubbock government building and noticed the U.S. and Texas flags flying at night. The sight angered him.

"So I walked up to the building and took them down," Stephens said. "I went back the next day and gave the flags back to whoever was in charge of that building. That's when I began to ask people to do something about how they treated the flag."

His crusade has not always been pleasant.

"Some men who fought in World War II have tried to punch me out," Stephens said.

Men paying attention to jewelry

From Staff Reports

From the cut of their hair to the cut of their suits, men are paying attention to fashion. Now more than ever men are sporting a more fashion-conscious, coordinated look reflected in today's penchant for designer clothes, shoes and jewelry.

While jewelry isn't just for women anymore, women remain the top buyers of men's jewelry.

"The motivation to buy men's jewelry is different now than it used to be," said Larry Tanner, senior vice-president of merchandising with Zales. "Men are buying jewelry 'wardrobes' seen in matching cuff links, tie-tacks, rings — tasteful pieces with more fashion and less flash. Ostentation is out."

The selection of jewelry available is as varied as the men wearing it. Merchandise ranges from fine jewelry items such as diamond rings and karat-gold neckchains to accessories such as gold and steel cuff links and collar bars. Pocket accessories like money clips and key chains are also popular.

"Most men wear at least one good piece of jewelry, whether it's a watch, ring or some other piece," said Tanner. "At one time men considered watches to be a practical application of fashion. Today, however, men are purchasing more than one watch, and wearing different watches for different occasions.

A good example is the man who owns two watches — one with a leather or karat-gold band for dress occasions, and one with a metal band for everyday wear. Today's watches are more than a statement of time, they're a statement of style."

Gold bracelets, more tailored than last season, provide men with yet another unpretentious fashion look. Rope, herringbone and solid I.D. bracelets with diamond inlays are popular variations of the masculine gold bracelet.

"Tie-tacks are still the number one wearable accessory for men," Tanner said. "However as more men recoil at the thought of punching holes in expensive ties, tie bars and collar bars are gaining in popularity."

To complete the jewelry wardrobe cuff links in a matching design can put the finish to French-cuff shirts seen in more formal business or evening attire.

Men's jewelry can have a subtle, coordinated look.

Functional pocket accessories for men include business card cases, money clips and key chains. Cigarette lighters also figure in as popular accessories and gift items, often attracting attention with high-tech laser beam wizardry which can make the lighter a functional conversation piece.

"Perhaps more than any other gift, jewelry can adapt to and complement a man's appearance and taste," Tanner said. "By knowing a little about his lifestyle and preferences you can suit his personality with jewelry that is imaginative and memorable."

New operation gives eyes permanent 'made-up' look

Hearst Feature Service

First there were nose bobs, face lifts and silastic breast implants, followed by tummy tucks and thigh sculpture. But the pursuit of surgical beauty may have entered an all-new dimension with news of an operation to give women's eyes a permanently "made-up" look.

Dr. Giora Angres, an ophthalmic plastic surgeon in Las Vegas, has developed a tattoo-style method of implanting a thin line of pigment along the lash lines of both upper and lower lids. Still considered experimental, the procedure is performed under local anesthetic and takes about 10 minutes for each eye.

According to Dr. Leeds Katzen, a Baltimore ophthalmologist acquainted with Angres, natural pigments are laid down between the lash follices just beneath the top layer of skin.

"The result gives the appearance of a subtle eyeliner or nice dark lashes. I've seen tapes of the procedure and before and after pictures and the results look absolutely wonderful. Even under the slit-lamp (a magnified light source), the liner looks natural and even."

Katzen said Angres has done the operation on 300 women, many of them showgirls. Patients also include older women whose hands are no longer steady enough to apply eyeliner neatly and safely, and "young women who just want to climb out of the pool always looking good.

"It's the ultimate in no-smudge eye makeup," Katzen quipped. "The effect also can be masked by covering the liner with makeup.

The Israeli-born, American-trained Angres is apparently reluctant to talk to reporters. A brief mention of his technique in Cosmopolitan Magazine resulted in "so many phone calls he had to put on four extra people to handle them," Katzen says.

Katzen is an eye surgeon with a reputation for trying new surgical techniques. He was one of the first in the U.S. to do radial keratotomy — a circle of small cuts in the cornea — to correct nearsightedness without eyeglasses.

He said that Angres has agreed to teach him the eyeliner operation sometime in the near future. "But because it is still experimental, I have had to sign a form agreeing not to disclose the technique to anyone else for the time being," Katzen said.

To date, Angres has not published information about his technique, results or patients. If there are any unwanted side effects, they are unknown at this time. But Katzen said that, to his knowledge, the procedure is safe and simple. "Women can have it done in the afternoon under a local anesthetic and go out on the town that night."

TV actor Barr fits 'dream man' criteria

Copley News Service

When asked to describe their dream man, different women choose different characteristics as being the most important.

For some it's a handsome face or well-built body that tops the list. For others it's sensitivity or a terrific sense of humor or the powers of intellect. And for still others it's career power, a potential to go right to the top of their chosen field that separates the men from the boys.

Well, if any woman should happen upon Doug Barr (the very charming Howie Munson from supershow "The Fall Guy"), she would no doubt find the dream man qualities she's looking for because ... HE HAS IT ALL!

A former male model who now dedicates all his career energies toward the acting profession, Doug's rigorous part on "The Fall Guy" (that of a professional stunt man) demands he stay in good shape, and just one look will tell you he is definitely in superstar form.

Says Doug, "We do about 60 percent of the stunts on the show ourselves. Things like the fight scenes, rolling over tables and falling through windows, and it can get pretty rough sometimes if you're not in at least semi-good shape.

"Although the fights are choreographed, much like a dance," he says, "and the actual punches are fake, the guy who takes the punch has to roll over the table and crash into a wall. That's real, and you can wind up pretty bruised.

"I'm pretty sports-oriented," says this tall, dark and handsome "Fall Guy," "so I don't do a lot of regimented exercise. When I work out, I concentrate mainly on weight lifting and swimming, which I think are very important to do together.

"If you just lift weights, you tend to get round, very bulky muscles, much like a boxer. But if you combine it with swimming, a sport which tends to stretch and elongate the muscles, it keeps you from looking over-bulky and you muscles are toned and fluid.

"I work out about two times a week," he says, "and I split the time in half between swimming and weight lifting."

In addition, Doug also recommends walking as a good way of staying in shape and the use of a rowing machine for overall body fitness.

When it comes to diet, Doug admits he's got a "sweet tooth," and he's taken his candy passion to the limit. He actually bought a candy factory!

To keep all those jelly beans and lollipops from adding to his waistline Doug fasts for several days when he finds himself putting on weight, but feels the real key to dieting is to simply pull yourself away from the table, and not to eat with your eyes.

He says, "The trick to maintaining your weight seems to be not so much in denying yourself food because then you'll feel deprived and that leads to binging, but in stopping midway at each meal and asking yourself if you really want to finish everything on your plate."

If you've already fallen for this "Fall Guy," you'll be happy to know he's single, and has the most liberated attitude toward women of any man I've ever met.

Says Doug, "I'm really attracted to independent women, those who have careers and responsibilities of their own."

Dietitian urges nutrition education

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — As a result of the current emphasis on health and exercise, Donna R. Watson expects dietitians to be in new areas as well as in traditional ones in the years ahead.

Mrs. Watson, as president-elect of The American Dietetic Association, feels preschool and early primary-grade children should be indoctrinated with the notion that nutrition is basic to preventing disease and maintaining health.

Acknowledging that it is impossible for the school system or day care centers to do all the nutrition education, she says, "You really need to educate adults to be committed to good nutrition and good health or they'll never really inculcate it in their children."

She adds that The American Dietetic Association and dietitians in general are promoting exercise in conjunction with good nutrition. Less salt, less sugar, less fat and fewer calories, and eating a variety of foods to be sure of getting all the essential nutrients are among accepted recommendations for good nutrition, she says.

Mrs. Watson and a graduate student at Oklahoma State University are designing some microcomputer programs to help children in grades 4 to 6 learn about nutritional requirements in relation to exercise or energy expenditure.

"I really believe in exercise combined with nutrition," she says. "I walk at least three miles a day, and on weekends eight to 10 miles. And I've been doing exercises for a long time."

Planning helps clothes shoppers, specialist says

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Know what you have and buy only what you need when you go shopping, advises Angela Criswell, acting Extension clothing specialist at Oklahoma State University.

Choose clothes with classic lines that retain their style for years, she suggests.

And select fashions that can be adapted for several occasions with various accessories or by mixing and matching with clothes currently in your wardrobe.

Plan your clothes around one or two basic color groups so everything will go well together. Solid colors, smooth or medium textures and small designs usually have the best mix-and-match potential, Mrs. Criswell points out.

Teens fight drunk driving with 'Contract for life'

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR READERS: A life-saving effort has just come to my attention that I think deserves publicizing.

It's called the "Contract for Life" — an agreement signed by parents and teen-agers in an effort to reduce the number of deaths involving drunk drivers.

SADD (Students Against Driving Drunk) was launched two years ago in Marlboro, Mass., by Robert Anastas, a teacher from Wayland High School in Wayland, Mass., after two of his students were killed in a car crash.

The part of the contract to be signed by the teen-ager states:

"I agree to call you for advice and/or transportation at any hour, from any place, if I am ever in a situation where I have had too much to drink, or a friend or date who is driving me has had too much to drink."

The part signed by the parents states:

"I agree to come and get you at any hour, any place, no questions asked and no argument at that time, or I will pay for a taxi to bring you home safely. I expect we would discuss this issue at a later time.

"I agree to seek safe, sober transportation home if I am ever in a situation where I have had too much to drink, or a friend who is driving me has had too much to drink."

Although the SADD program has already reached 3 million teen-agers in the United States and Canada, I would like to see it in every high school.

For a free information kit, write to: SADD, "Contract for Life," Corbin Plaza, Marlboro, Mass. 01752.

DEAR ABBY: My wife began withholding sex soon after our marriage — 10 years ago. We have two children, so it wasn't total abstinence (once or twice a month). Over the last nine years, it got less and less, until two years ago when she said, "No more."

I am not demanding, abusive or repulsive and I expect only conventional and normal relations, perhaps once a week. We are both Catholic — married in the church.

I asked her what she would do if I insisted. She said she would consider it "rape." What rights have I in this matter? — FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: If you were to "insist" — force your wife to have sexual relations against her will — you would be guilty of rape.

You have a "right" to expect a fulfilled marriage, which includes sexual relations. This is part of the marriage contract.

Talk to your priest. You may qualify for an annulment.

DEAR ABBY: Three years ago, I married a 36-year-old man I'll call John. It was his first marriage and my second. I was a 40-year-old divorcee with two children, 10 and 8. John adopted my children and considers them "his."

My problem is John's mother. She loses no opportunity to tell me that she would like some "real" grandchildren — meaning John and I should have at least one child together.

Abby, I do not want another child at my age and I have told my mother-in-law that very plainly. So has John, but she harps on it constantly, hoping to change our minds. I don't want to be disrespectful and tell her off, but I have to get her off my back.

John tunes her out, but she's getting to me. Help! Sign me ... AN "UNREAL" DAUGHTER-IN-LAW

DEAR UNREAL: Take a lesson from John and tune her out. She can "get to you" only if you let her.

(Problems? What's bugging you? Unload on Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Ages, values of antiques estimated

By JAMES G. McCOLLAM
Antique Appraisers Association of America

Q. This clock was made by the Waterbury Clock Co. Can you tell me when it was made and how much it is worth?

A. Your clock was made in the early 20th century and would currently sell in the $125 to $175 range.

It is not old enough (100 years) to be an antique, but it is collectible.

Q. Enclosed is a copy of the mark on the bottom of my Hummel Madonna. Please tell me what you can about its vintage and value.

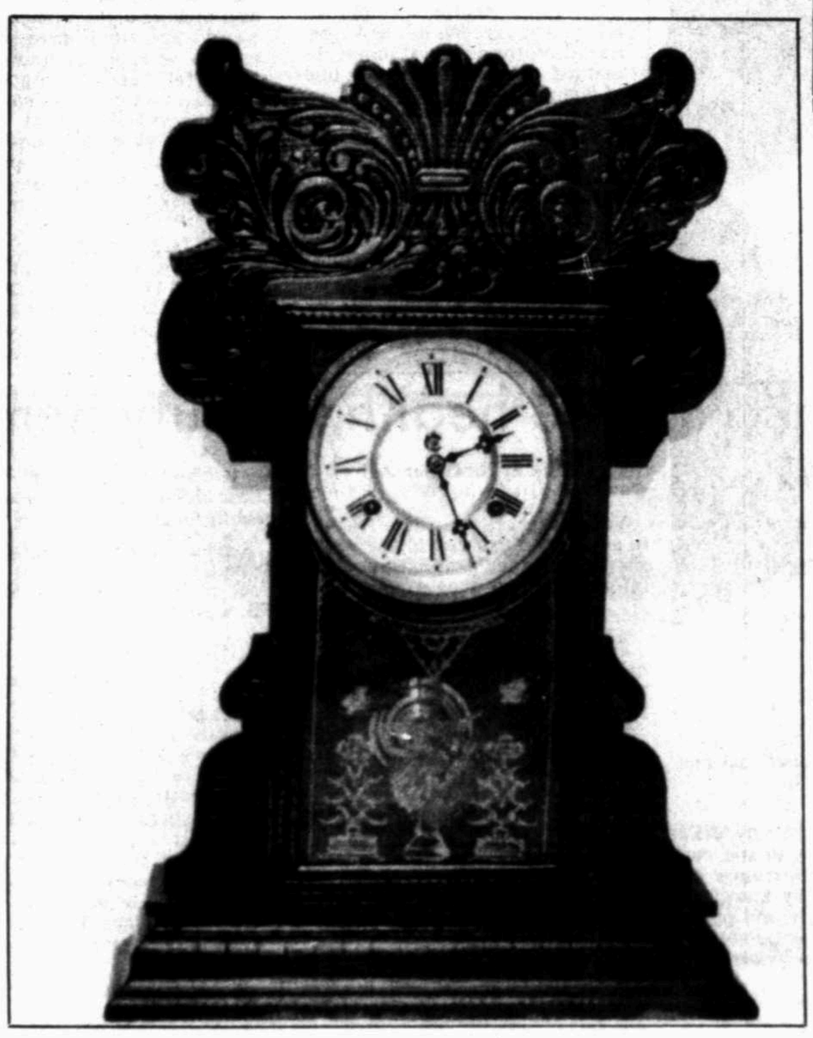
A. First, this is not a Hummel. It was made by the Goebel company in Oeslau, Germany. Goebel made the Hummel figurines but also made other items under the Goebel name.

Your Madonna was made in the 1930s and would be worth at least $100.

Q. I find the term "Dresden china" very confusing. Some people seem to consider it the finest china ever made and some are not very impressed by it. Can you explain just what Dresden china is?

A. Dresden china is any china (porcelain) made in the city of Dresden, Germany. Some is good; some is not.

One of the finest porcelains ever made, now known as Meissen, was first made in Dresden by the Royal Saxon China Manufactory. In 1710 the company moved to Meissen. Because of this, there were at least seven manufacturers of china in Dresden — some good; some not.



This Waterbury clock was made early this century.

'Catch-all' drawers catching

By ERMA BOMBECK

The organized people of this world — all six of them — who insist that "everything has a place" are really out of it!

Everything does NOT have a place, which is precisely why "catch-all" or "junk" drawers are born. They're as vital a part of the American scene as electricity or indoor plumbing.

They're like compost heaps — the older and the higher they are, the better and richer they become.

I entered marriage quite deprived. I not only did not have a button box, but I didn't even have the makings of a decent catch-all drawer. Within six months, I had one of the finest in the neighborhood. The secret?

First, you start with a large drawer, usually in the kitchen, in which a bottle of glue or nail polish has spilled in the bottom. This is what makes the expired coupons and old rubber bands stick together, making a firm bed for the rest of the junk you're going to add.

Near the back should be the things you need the most: a hammer, screwdriver, ice scraper for removing snow from the car windows, chewing gum, new fuses, appliance warranties and emergency phone numbers.

I like to store hibachi sticks and a broken ruler so that every time the drawer is opened they catch and you can't open the drawer anymore, nor can you close it.

New York dentists get AIDS advice

NEW YORK (AP) — The state Health Department has advised dentists to wear gowns, masks, rubber gloves and eye goggles when treating patients with AIDS.

The guidelines were issued at a conference on AIDS conducted by the department's Bureau of Dental Health.

Its director, Dr. Theodore Rebich, said dentists might be at greater than average risk of contracting acquired immune deficiency syndrome because they have direct contact with the saliva of a patient's mouth.

He noted that dentists have a three times higher than normal incidence of Hepatitis B, which also is transmitted by bodily fluids.

AIDS destroys the body's immunological system. According to the Centers for Disease Control, 3,000 cases of the disorder have been reported since it was first identified in 1981, and at least 1,283 victims have died.

Thermal diagnosis being developed

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP) — A new kind of device which can diagnose injuries impossible to detect by X-ray or ultra sound is being developed at Glasgow University.

Using highly sophisticated electronics, the microwave thermography registers heat waves from the body like a thermal stethoscope. The device is small enough to fit in a suitcase, and consists of a microphone-sized receiver connected to a machine that gives digital readouts.

The machine can diagnose forms of cancer and rheumatism in humans and could have applications in forensic medicine by helping police determine a person's time of death from loss of body heat.

The technique will also be valuable to veterinarians and could be of major significance to race horse owners by pinpointing even minor sprains and bruises in horses' joints and muscles.

Prototype machines are undergoing clinical tests at the Royal Infirmary hospitals in Glasgow and Aberdeen.

Dog hotter than human

Normal body temperature of dogs is 101.5 degrees Fahrenheit. A dog's critical temperature is 108; if it rises above 110, the result is death, according to research in an Oklahoma City laboratory.

Mail versus telephone

STAMFORD Conn. (AP) — Automation in the mailroom is keeping the lid on business mail preparation costs, according to a mailing systems company.

Noting that telephone costs are rising, Robert J. Pascal of Pitney Bowes says the letter is a versatile business tool that serves as a dated record and is a visible reminder to follow-up.

Pull into Downtown Shell at 400 N. Big Spring for reliable service. Remember now is the time to winterize your car to avoid problems later on.

Downtown Shell offers service and reliablity

As the temperature drops you must think about winterizing your car to protect it from freeze up. Downtown Shell is equiped to flush radiators and check your antifreeze. The experienced staff will make sure you are prepared for the winter months.

Downtown Shell does offer old time service. For those of you who do not have the time to take your car in, why not let Downtown Shell help you out by winterizing your car or repairing that flat tire while you are at work. They offer free pick up and delivery to the downtown area.

Convenience to the downtown area is a plus for Downtown Shell. They are located at 400 N. Big Spring. Also for your convenience, they have both self service and full service islands.

If your car seems run down it could be that your battery needs charged. Maybe your battery is beyond the point where a charge will help. If this is the case Downtown Shell can order a new battery for you.

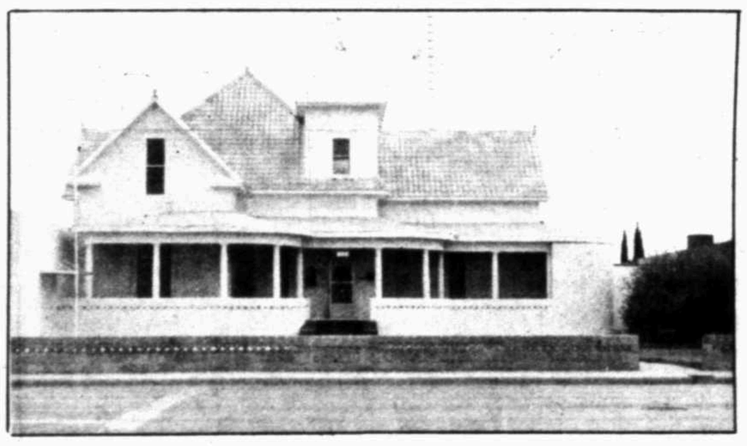
Tire repair and rotations are more of the services offered at Downtown Shell. Whether you need a flat tire repaired or another tire they can be of assistance. They can sell you a used tire or order the type of tire that you need.

Darin Dingler, manager of Downtown Shell, explained that they are equiped to do oil changes and lube jobs to help you with the day to day maintanence of your car.

A unique feature of Downtown Shell is their car washing facilities. They offer a complete range of choices from a drive through all the way to a full service wash. All of the washes are done with soft water which is much nicer on your car. Also once your car is sparkling clean be sure to have Darin or one of the employees give your car a complete wax.

Is the inside of your car in terrible shape? Well, Downtown Shell can help you with that, too. They can shampoo your carpet at a very reasonable and competetive price.

Whether you need a car wash, a fill up or just some snacks and beer stop in to Downtown Shell at 400 N. Big Spring. Their hours are from 7a.m. - 7p.m. Monday through Friday, 8a.m. - 5p.m. Saturday and closed on Sunday.



The original House of Carpet located on North Lamesa Road.

History of House of Carpets is history of Midland

Back in early 1951, Midland was a bustling town of 25,000, and was without a carpet store. In January of that year, Felix Welmaker, who was in the carpet business in Austin, came to Midland to seek a new location. Main and Wall Streets contained nearly all of Midland's prosperous businesses, and there was not one location available large enough to accomodate the services Felix planned to offer in Midland, so his search led him away from the downtown area. Finally, he located a large 14-room "mansion" on north Lamesa Road, and purchased the home from Henery Brunson, descendent of an early and prosperous ranching family. Built in 1908, the Brunson mansion was a landmark onthe cattle trail leading north out of Midland. This cattle trail later became North Lamesa Road, and the old Brunson home still stands at that very spot (1502 North Lamesa Road),a remnant of early Midland still in excellent condition and now occupied by Thomas Funeral Home.

Although the name ofthe carpet store was planned otherwise, when the "house" became it's location, the new store was named the "House" of Carpets, and although the present location is in the Village Shopping Center, it is still fondly known as "The House" by it's thousands of friends and customers. Many of Midlan's well-known families became early customers of House of Carpets, and today the "House" is still serving many of those same customers, as well as their children and grandchildren. On Grand Opening Day (May 8,1951), the "House's" first customers were Frank and Sue Mullins who were prominent Midland builders and developers, and are today still in the development business as Midland West Development Corperation.

Previous to the opening of the House of Carpets, Midlanders often bought their carpets in Big Spring or San Angelo, and sometimes from traveling merchants who set up shops in rooms at the old Scharbauer Hotel which was located where the Hilton is today. So when Midland got it's first carpet store, even though it was 8 blocks from the nearest paved road, the "House" became a popular place to buy, almost overnight. Today, the House of Carpets is still Midland's most popular carpet store, and is located in the Village Shopping Center, on West Wall Street. You are invited to visit them soon.

The present day House of Carpets can be found in the Village Shopping Center located on West Wall Street.

nation in brief

Classification of soldiers' deaths now changed to battle casualties

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 30 of the 241 U.S. servicemen killed in the Oct. 23 terrorist bombing in Beirut will be listed as battle casualties rather than the initial classification as accidental deaths, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger says.

Families of the 30 Marines received death certificates stating "non-battle death due to accidental injury." But Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee and Illinois neighbor of one of the 30 Marines, objected.

On Monday, Weinberger sent Percy a letter saying the original designation would be reversed because "the fact that they were not killed in an accident is painfully obvious."

"Having died in the service of their country, as members of a peacekeeping force, these men were casualties of a battle — while not necessarily active participants in the conflict," Weinberger wrote.

Building's rubble conceals bodies

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — The bodies of an elderly man and his daughter, killed when a gas explosion ripped through a posh condominium, were not found until a crane was brought in to clear away the rubble the next day, authorities said.

The bodies of John Murphy, 83, an invalid, and his daughter, Mary, 61, were found Monday, Fire Chief Al Sweeney said. Investigators were trying to determine whether a broken 6-inch gas main found near the three-story building was responsible for the Sunday night blast.

Families used sheets and ropes to escape from the condominium's upper floors and an avalanche of debris from a collapsed wall buried four parked cars as the explosion rocked the neighborhood.

Wife, daughter claim man still alive

MILLSBORO, Del. (AP) — The blind wife and daughter of a man found dressed and propped up in bed three years after his death insisted to investigators that he was not dead, police say.

The body of William "Willie" P.J. White, 82, was found in his home Dec. 29 after a neighbor told state police he hadn't seen White for two years but hadn't heard about a funeral. White died of natural causes around December 1980, according to a report issued Friday by the state medical examiner.

White's wife, Edith, 77, and his daughter Pauline, 59, claimed that instead of being dead the man was under the spell of a spirit, state police said.

Detroit civil rights trial postponed

DETROIT (AP) — The civil rights trial of an autoworker and his stepson who admitted beating a Chinese-American man to death has been postponed until March 12 because defense attorneys have asked that the charges be dismissed, officials say

Ronald Ebens, 44, and Michael Nitz, 25, both of East Detroit, had been scheduled to stand trial today in U.S. District Court on two counts of violating the civil rights of Vincent Chin because of his race. Chin died four days after being beaten on June 19, 1982.

The defendants' lawyers claimed the federal trial would constitute double jeopardy because the case had already gone through state courts. A state judge prompted protests from Asian-Americans when he sentenced the men to three years' probation and a $3,780 fine each after Ebens pleaded guilty and Nitz no contest to manslaughter.

Americans seek $43 million they say China owes them

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — In a case pitting the capitalists against the communists, nine state residents are returning to court seeking $43 million they say they're owed by China for bonds issued in 1911 to finance a railroad through Peking.

The Chinese newspaper People's Daily editorialized in 1982 that China was not obliged to pay off "odious debts" incurred by the old imperialist government to "suppress the people and maintain their reactionary rule."

But Birmingham attorney W. Eugene Rutledge, representing the bondholders, saw the matter in plainly Western terms as an old-fashioned "shootout at the OK Corral."

"We are deadly serious," he said, vowing that his clients were not fazed by Chinese threats to "retaliate in kind" if the U.S. government tried to seize Chinese assets in this country to satisfy the debt.

At issue in a hearing scheduled this morning was a 1982 ruling by U.S. District Judge U.W. Clemon that found the Chinese government in default of $43 million on bonds issued in 1911 to finance a major link in the Huguang Railroad, tying Peking to Canton in the north and Hong Kong in the south.

Prosecutor asks for death penalty for man held in editor's death

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — A man charged with the slaying of a newspaper editor, his wife and their son raped the woman before and after he beat her with a baseball bat and she lost consciousness, according to an affidavit filed in court.

Murder charges against Calvin D. Perry III, 18, of Fort Wayne, were filed Monday by Allen County Prosecutor Stephen M. Sims, who asked that Perry be sentenced to death.

Perry is charged in the September slayings of Fort Wayne News-Sentinel editorial page editor Dan Osborne, his wife, Jane, and their 11-year-old son, Benjamin. He is also charged with molesting the Osbornes' 2-year-old daughter, Caroline, who was not killed and apparently wandered through the house for two days after the attack before she was found.

Perry, also known as Calvin D. Corey, was charged with three counts of murder.

Civil rights commission dismantles old policies

HUNT VALLEY, Md. (AP) — The U.S. Commission on Civil Rights is systematically dismantling the liberal policies of its predecessor, but the panel's combative chairman insists that he's "nobody's pawn," even though President Reagan sought the change in course.

The bitterly divided commission Monday voted to study the adverse effects of affirmative action, but not the consequences of Reagan's budget cuts.

The panel voted for a new study of discrimination, but without the assumption that bias always accounts for differences between groups of Americans.

The commission meets again today at a motel north of Baltimore, with assurances from Chairman Clarence M. Pendleton Jr. of more "spirited debate."

Sparks flew Monday as two holdover members from the former commission, which went out of business, gamely tried to preserve its policies.

But Pendleton said critics of the panel's new directions "forgot who won the fight" over the watchdog agency's policies.

That battle was won by Reagan, whose vision of a narrow focus for the commission was upheld often Monday by five of the eight commission members.

Before any of the substantive votes, the commission unanimously passed a resolution declaring its independence of the White House and any other groups. When the 12-hour session ended, and the new course was charted, Pendleton insisted that the panel was not acting on behalf of the White House.

"NOBODY'S EVER said a word about previous presidencies and positions commissions took," Pendleton said in an interview. "It wasn't until Ronald Reagan came to office and if somebody happens to agree with Ronald Reagan then you are a pawn of Ronald Reagan.

"I'm nobody's pawn, have not been and will not be."

Pendleton's antagonists were commissioners Mary Frances Berry and Blandina Cardenas Ramirez. All three were members of the former commission, which expired late last year.

The meeting had hardly begun when Ms. Ramirez objected to Pendleton's welcome to the "new civil rights commission." She said Congress really meant to extend the old commission, not create a new one.

Ms. Berry, who was late arriving, accused staff director Linda Chavez of failing to notify her about the meeting. The oversight, she said, forced her to risk life and limb to fly to the session during a snowstorm in a small plane.

Pendleton, who appeared to relish the arguments, said at one point, "We continue to go through a contest of wills."

The most emotional debate came on a proposal by Ms. Chavez to cancel a study on the impact of Reagan's student financial aid cuts on predominantly minority colleges. The study was approved by the old commission, but the new commission voted 5-3 to eliminate the study on grounds it was beyond the panel's authority. New commission member Francis Guess sided with Ms. Berry and Ms. Ramirez.

THE ISSUE surfaced again later on a wider scale, when Ms. Berry proposed a study on the impact of the proposed 1985 budget on equal opportunity programs.

"If we're talking about whether the funding level is appropriate or not, that's not in our jurisdiction," said commissioner Robert A. Destro. "That's an economic or social issue."

Ms. Berry countered, "When you look at an authorization and it says it's an equal opportunity program, it is proper to look at the dollar amounts."

The key affirmative action proposal calls for a study of whether a decline in college academic standards is related to the advent of affirmative action programs.

"I could have said the decline in standards coincided with punk rock," Ms. Berry quipped.

She and Ms. Ramirez protested that since the commission decided studying budget cuts was beyond its authority, then so was a study of academic standards.

Commissioner John H. Bunzel's proposal for a new study of discrimination would "rethink many of the underlying assumptions and priorities of the past."

Singer Diana Ross rushes to embrace longtime friend Michael Jackson after Jackson was honored with a special Award of Merit and a tribute by entertainment-industry colleagues Monday night during the 11th Annual Music Awards in Los Angeles. Looking on is fellow entertainer Kenny Rogers.

Michael Jackson sweeps music awards ceremony

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Michael Jackson, whose "Thriller"album started and ended 1983 atop the national charts, won eight awards for an unprecedented triumph at the 11th annual American Music Awards ceremony.

Jackson's sweep Monday night included pop and soul album honors for "Thriller," favorite male pop and soul vocalist, pop and soul video awards for "Beat It" and favorite pop single for "Billie Jean."

The only other multiple award winner was country quartet Alabama, which took favorite country group, favorite country album for "The Closer You Get" and favorite country video for "Dixieland Delight."

But as Alabama's Teddy Gentry put it, "I don't think anybody can compare to Michael Jackson. He's had a year that most artists can only dream of."

In addition to the seven regular awards, the 25-year-old Jackson became the youngest-ever recipient of the special Award of Merit, which honored his career contributions to musical entertainment.

Presentation of that award was preceded by tributes from Yul Brynner, who described Jackson's presence as "like an explosion"; Diana Ross, who termed Jackson "a dream in motion"; and Jane Fonda, who called the singer-songwriter-dancer-producer "a miracle."

Jackson went into the awards with 10 nominations in eight categories, and his stranglehold was broken only by Lionel Richie, the host of the two-hour ceremony televised by ABC. Richie took soul single honors for his number-one hit "All Night Long," and was clearly surprised.

"Unbelievable," Richie said on winning the award. He later told reporters backstage at the Shrine Auditorium that Jackson's honors were "long overdue." Jackson had won five American Music Awards in previous years.

Jackson accepted his plexiglass, pyramid-shaped trophies with thanks to a long list of people including "Thriller" co-producer Quincy Jones, his parents "who brought me into the world," disc jockeys "who played the records," the American public and "the girls in the balcony."

Clad in a red sequined military-style jacket, a single black sequined glove and aviator sunglasses, Jackson came backstage briefly to pose for photographers with his date, actress-model Brooke Shields, who topped him by several inches. But the singer, who has a reputation for being as shy offstage as he is electrifying onstage, declined interviews.

Other winners in pop categories were Daryl Hall & John Oates as favorite group for the second straight year, and Pat Benatar, who picked up favorite female vocalist honors, an award she won two years ago.

Barbara Mandrell, winning her fourth straight favorite female country vocalist award, also paid tribute to Jackson, saying he was an entertainer "my children can look up to." Male country vocal honors went to an absent Willie Nelson, his fifth American Music Award.

Kenny Rogers and Dolly Parton shared the country single trophy for "Islands In The Stream," Rogers' 13th American Music Award and Miss Parton's second.

Rounding out the soul winners were Aretha Franklin with her third female vocalist prize and her fourth award, and Gladys Knight & The Pips, who picked up their third favorite group award, their fifth American Music Award.

Nominees for the awards were determined by year-end charts of major record industry trade publications. Winners were picked by a survey of 20,000 representative members of the U.S. record-buying public.

Model who looks like Jackie to appeal ruling barring ads

Reynolds

NEW YORK (AP) — Barbara Reynolds, a model who strikingly resembles Jacqueline Onassis, says she'll appeal a ruling that bars her from appearing in advertisements as the former first lady.

"I'm a great admirer of Jackie's and I'm thrilled that people think I look like her," but last week's ruling by state Supreme Court Justice Edward J. Greenfield was unfair, Miss Reynolds said at a news conference Monday.

Greenfield's ruling came after Mrs. Onassis filed a violation of privacy suit to prevent modeling and advertising agencies and the House of Dior from running ads in which Miss Reynolds is shown at a party among genuine and impersonated celebrities.

"We think it's wrong," said Miss Reynolds' lawyer, Charles C. Abut, in announcing the appeal.

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Syndicated columnist Ann Landers says the people who upset her most are those who disagree with her position on control of handguns.

"I get vicious letters," she told a news conference Monday night. "I do not believe we need 50,000 handguns out there, and I've expressed that. I get angry because these people don't get it. They just don't understand."

Miss Landers said she never becomes depressed over the myriad personal problems about which Americans seek her advice.

But she said she does "feel terribly sad for parents whose children didn't turn out as they wished, and they feel it was their fault," said Miss Landers, who delivered a lecture at Topeka High School in a series named for Dr. Karl Menninger, co-founder of the Menninger Foundation. She is a trustee of the foundation.

"In the last 10 years there has been tremendous change in the letters from women and teen-agers," she said, adding that shifts in family structure have caused social changes.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The sudden flurry of publicity over "...And Ladies of the Club," written by 88-year-old Helen Hooven Santmyer, has public libraries in central Ohio building up long waiting lists of people who want to read it.

Ms. Santmyer, a near-invalid in a Xenia nursing home, chose "Waynesboro" as the fictitious setting for the novel that took her almost 50 years to write. But a friend, 83-year-old Mildred Sandoe, said, "Nobody in Xenia (in Greene County, southwest of here) will ever see anything except Xenia in the book."

According to Weldon Kefauver, director of the Ohio State University Press, libraries were the biggest buyers at the time of publication in 1982. But now the book has been picked up by the Book-of-the-Month Club, and the New York publisher plans to have 50,000 copies in bookstores — but not until late August.

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — Lt. Robert Goodman Jr., the Navy flier shot down by Syrian gunners, demonstrated "the same courage" as Martin Luther King Jr., a town official told a group that gathered to observe the slain civil rights leader's 55th birthday.

Goodman, 27, was also honored Monday at the ceremony in his grandmother's hometown. As he was given Hempstead's distinguished medal of honor, town presiding Supervisor Thomas Gulotta told him that "in addition to people mentioned in the history books like Dr. King, there are so many other unsung heroes that have demonstrated the same courage and beliefs as King."

"It is an honor for me to have my name mentioned in the same breath as Dr. King," said Goodman, who lives in Virginia Beach, Va.
