South Midland standoff lasts five hours

By Tyler White

A Midland firefighter died at Midland Memorial Hospital on Friday afternoon following a shooting that led to a five-hour-long armed standoff and a suicide, according to the city's public information officer.

Midland police and firefighters found Henry "Trey" Rodriguez III, 35, with life-threatening gunshot wounds when they arrived at a residence in the 2200 block of South Baird Street at about 2:33 p.m. Friday.

He was transported to MMH, where he died shortly after. A woman was at the house at the time of the shooting but wasn't injured, said Sara Higgins, public information officer for the city.

Rodriguez was a firefighter with the Midland Fire Department for more than 10 years. MFD officials have asked that the public respect the family and department's privacy as they mourn the loss of their fellow firefighter, Higgins said.

After Rodriguez was transported from the crime scene, the armed suspect, Nestor Castro Jr., 35, barricaded himself in the house for five hours.

Police blocked off the area and evacuated homes surrounding the house where the suspect was located. Officers were assisted by Midland ISD police, Midland County Sheriff's Office and the Department of Public Safety.

Investigators used several methods to diffuse the situation, Higgins said. Officers deployed less-than-lethal weapons, including gas, as well as a negotiator and a robot to gain information about the scene.

Midland police officers found Castro's body inside the home, Higgins told the Reporter-Telegram at about 7:30 p.m. Friday.

This is the first homicide investigation this year in Midland County, she said.

MFHS put on lockdown

The armed standoff resulted in a precautionary 1 1/2 hour lockdown at Midland Freshman High School on Friday afternoon.

The shooting occurred at a house about three blocks south of MFHS, 100 W. Gist Ave., causing the campus to be locked down around 3 p.m.

The school began to release students at about 4:30 p.m., according to an email from Midland ISD Superintendent Ryder Warren.

Warren said the district coordinated with the Midland Police Department to release students from the north side of the campus on Hicks Avenue.

MFHS is considered an MISD transit hub, meaning students from secondary schools are routed there to wait for the bus that takes them to their respective neighborhoods, Warren said. Transit was rerouted to Travis Elementary, 900 E. Gist Ave., while MFHS was locked down.

Warren said it took nearly 1 1/2 hours to release all students, who left MFHS in stages either on a bus or with their parents. Dismissal concluded around 6 p.m., he said.

Warren applauded the staffs at MFHS and Travis for their excellent work in caring for students, and MISD police and transportation departments for their efforts to coordinate student release.

Warren also commended parents for respecting district requests to stay away from MFHS while the campus was locked down.

A timeline of the school lockdown was as follows:

- About 3 p.m.: MFHS is placed on lockdown because of a nearby shooting and armed standoff.
- 3:10 p.m.: The Reporter-Telegram confirms MFHS is placed on lockdown.
- 3:37 p.m.: MISD Communications Specialist Elizabeth York releases a statement to the media about MFHS being locked down.
- About 4:30 p.m.: MFHS begins its alternate release procedure on the north end of campus.
- 5:02 p.m.: York notifies the media that MFHS students are being released.
- About 6 p.m.: MFHS student dismissal concludes.

Courthouse demolition to cost up to $3 million

By Joseph Basco
jbasco@mrt.com

Estimates for the demolition and asbestos removal of the city-owned former Midland County Courthouse are in the $2 million to $3 million range.

City officials said the cost estimate may change depending on the contractor bids received for the demolition and asbestos abatement.

But as previously reported, the demolition and asbestos removal will not be funded by the city. Rather, Energy Tower co-developer Energy Related Properties will be funding the tasks, according to a Nov. 6 purchase and sale agreement amendment between the city and ERP.

The amendment agreement also allowed ERP to post project signs around the Energy Tower site, located at the intersection of Wall and Colorado streets. It is part of a larger proposed construction site, known as City Center and includes where Centennial Plaza and Midland Center are located.

The city received a proposed demolition agreement from ERP on April 16, after Mayor Jerry Morales contacted ERP, asking the co-developer to begin demolition sooner rather than later because Centennial Plaza is the site of special events in July.

The demolition agreement is currently under review by the city. The finalized agreement will go through a City Council vote. The date for the vote has not been set.

City Council has to vote on the agreement because the city will have to allocate funds for the demolition, as previously reported. The allocated funds would be given to ERP in the event that

MDC provides incentives for Frito-Lay distribution facility

By Joseph Basco
jbasco@mrt.com

Two agreements between the Midland Development Corp. and Rolling Frito-Lay Sales LP will bring new jobs and a regional distribution facility near Midland International Airport.

In the agreements approved by the MDC board on Friday, but pending City Council vote at a later date, MDC will pay a $150,000 performance incentive to Rolling Frito-Lay Sales. The agreement also calls for MDC to sell an empty five acre-plus lot in the northwestern portion of the airport — priced at $267,850, or $50,000 per acre — to the snack food manufacturing company for its new regional distribution facility.

The performance incentive will be given to Rolling Frito-Lay Sales with the intent that the company will maintain full-time jobs worth $1.5 million in annual salary and wages and also invest $4.5 million in capital such as the 45,000-square-foot facility. The incentive

Regent Wallace Hall, of Dallas, takes part in a University of Texas Regents meeting in Austin in 2013.

Texas regent Wallace Hall facing criminal inquiry

Associated Press

AUSTIN — University of Texas System Regent Wallace Hall, already facing possible removal from office by state lawmakers, is now under criminal investigation for his efforts to force out the president of the system's flagship Austin campus.

Gregg Cox, who leads the Travis County district attorney's Public Integrity Unit, said Friday his office has opened a formal investigation of Hall's actions. A Texas House committee had sent to prosecutors a report by its investigator that alleged Hall may have broken federal and state student privacy laws.

Cox said his office did an initial review to determine if it had jurisdiction. "Now we're opening an investigation to gather more information," Cox said.

Hall's attorney, Allan Van Fleet, had not been aware of the criminal investigation until contacted by The Associated Press and declined comment. Van Fleet has previously denied that Hall released any legally protected information to the public.

The announcement of the criminal investigation came a day after the House Select Committee on Transparency in State Agency Operations scheduled a May 12 vote on whether it would recommend to the full House that Hall should be impeached. The House panel does not have to conclude that Hall broke the law in order for him to be impeached.

If the panel votes to recommend impeachment, the matter would go before the full House and then a trial in the Senate to determine if Hall would be removed from his governor-appointed position.

will not be paid to Rolling Frito-Lay Sales until there is a certificate of occupancy for the building, according to the economic development agreement.

If Rolling Frito-Lay Sales fails to maintain the payroll for three years or invest in the capital improvements, the company will have to repay the $150,000 incentive.

"This gives us a new distribution facility out in the airport," MDC chairman Robert Rendall said. "It will be a nice facility because they'll be able to store all the products there and a truck will be able to come and deliver it all over the Permian Basin."

The airport complex is home to various other distribution and office facilities such as the U.S. Postal Service distribution facility and the Region 18 Education Service Center.

Rolling Frito-Lay Sales currently has an older, smaller facility outside the city limits, MDC Executive Director Pam Welch said. Moving the facility inside the city limits would also allow city taxes to be collected on the facility, she said.

Rendall said the new facility will be a huge upgrade from the current one.

Depending on building permit issuance and other factors such as contractor availability, the distribution facility may be complete by spring 2015.

NEW YORK

Daniel Anker, documentary filmmaker, dies at 50

Daniel Anker, a filmmaker whose sober documentaries brought unsensationalized narrative power to subjects including the trials of the Scottsboro boys and Hollywood's treatment of the Holocaust, died Monday in New York. He was 50.

The cause was pneumonia brought on by treatment for lymphoma, his wife, Donna Santman, said.

Anker was a storyteller, not an innovator. As a producer, director and sometime writer of films, he was attracted to stories with conventional arcs (and significant drama) that could be told chronologically. And he made use of fundamental techniques — still photographs, historical film excerpts, interviews with witnesses or descendants of witnesses, shots of yellowed newspaper clippings, and occasional scene reconstructions — knitted together with smooth, propulsive editing and literate narration often delivered by a distinguished actor.

His 2012 film, "Icebound," about a relay of dogsledders who carted a lifesaving anti-diphtheria serum across hundreds of miles of Alaskan snowfields to Nome in the winter of 1925, was narrated by Patrick Stewart.

Anker's 2000 film, "Scottsboro: An American Tragedy," narrated by Andre Braugher, was a thorough, event-by-event account of the incident in 1931 in which nine black teenagers riding a freight train in Alabama were falsely accused of rape by two white women, and the multiple trials and international publicity that resulted. The film recounts the myriad strains of a complex tale whose consequences resonated for decades — including a Supreme Court ruling that spurred the integration of juries in the South; the various fates, mostly sad, of the nine men; and, the final irony, the pardoning of the last survivor of the Scottsboro boys, Clarence Norris, by George C. Wallace, the segregationist governor of Alabama, in 1976.

The film, which Anker produced and directed with Barak Goodman and which also featured the voices of Frances McDormand and Stanley Tucci, was shown on public television, received a Primetime Emmy Award and was nominated for an Oscar.

Anker also produced (with Ellin Baumel) and directed "Imaginary Witness: Hollywood and the Holocaust" (2004), which tracks how the movies and television responded to Nazi brutality. Narrated by Gene Hackman, it begins with the film industry's willingness to accommodate the rise of Hitler in the 1930s for the sake of maintaining a German audience and follows Hollywood's changes in attitude through the war and in the decades beyond, as the Third Reich came to embody monstrous human behavior.

Former Barcelona coach Vilanova dies at 45

BARCELONA — Tito Vilanova, the soccer coach who succeeded Pep Guardiola at Barcelona and won the Spanish league title in his only season in charge, died Friday of throat cancer. He was 45.

Vilanova had a recurring tumor in a saliva gland and was admitted to a hospital in Barcelona last week. The team announced his death on its website.

As Guardiola's assistant, Vilanova provided the tactical know-how that helped the coach build one of the best teams in the history of the sport, winning two Champions League titles.

Barcelona star Lionel Messi called the death a "moment of profound pain for Vilanova's family, and also for Barcelona and its fans."

"All of us who shared Barcelona's locker room with Tito are deeply affected, considering what he gave us as a person and as a professional," Messi said in a statement. "I, personally, will always hold dear the things he shared and went through with me, which I will never forget."

Former Barcelona defender Eric Abidal, who recovered from liver cancer and a liver transplant to help hoist the 2012-13 league trophy with Vilanova, wrote on Twitter: "For everything we went through together, I will always remember you, my friend. Thanks for fighting."

Vilanova first became ill in November 2011 while an assistant to Guardiola and took a leave of absence after surgery. Vilanova returned and replaced Guardiola the next season, leading Barcelona to the Spanish league title with a record-tying 100 points.

Vilanova had a second tumor removed in December 2012 and traveled to New York several times during the season for further treatment before returning to the sidelines. In April 2013, Vilanova said he felt fine and "never thought about quitting." He finished the season before suddenly being forced to resign following a relapse in July.

MISD STAAR results show gains in 3 areas

By Tessa Duvall
tduvall@mrt.com

Midland ISD officials said they were pleased to see improvements over last year in the results of three out of the four standardized testing results released this week.

MISD made two-point gains in fifth-grade reading and math, and a three-point gain in eighth-grade math tests for the first attempt on the State of Texas Assessments of Academic Readiness (STAAR), according to district results released Friday.

Sixty-nine percent of fifth-graders passed the reading test, and 67 percent passed the math test. Sixty-four percent of eighth-graders passed the math assessment.

Eighth-grade reading passage rates declined from 76 percent in 2013 to 71 percent this year, according to the release. Despite the decrease in first-time passage, eighth-grade reading remains the district's highest rate.

Superintendent Ryder Warren said he's pleased to see higher scores, but there's still room for improvement.

"We've got to keep going," he said. "We've got to keep moving upward. I want to get to the state level scores and surpass those."

MISD lags behind state scores in all areas, according to scores released by the Texas Education Agency on Thursday.

MISD trails the state rates from 7 percent to 15 percent in each category, with the largest difference in eighth-grade math. Sixty-four percent of MISD eighth-graders passed the STAAR test on the first attempt, compared to 79 percent statewide.

Warren said the district also looks at passage rates for the same group of students from year to year — from fourth to fifth, and seventh to eighth grades — as opposed to only comparing fifth and eighth grade cohorts year after year.

The district saw growth at every campus in this regard, Warren said.

"That tells me what kind of rigor the teachers are teaching at is increasing," he said. "Even as we drop from eighth grade to eighth grade, we still saw the reading scores improve in that group of students."

Elise Kail, MISD director of accountability, cited the results at Crockett Elementary School, which saw a "significant amount of growth."

Last year, 38 percent of Crockett's fourth-graders passed the reading test, which is only administered once compared to the fifth grade, which is given twice. The fifth-graders this year passed at 68 percent on the first round of tests, Kail said.

About 32 percent of Crockett's fourth-graders passed the math test in 2013, she said, in comparison with 56 percent of fifth-graders this year.

Kail said the fourth-graders from last year and fifth-graders from this year are primarily the same students.

Kail said this shows that MISD's targeted interventions and district support programs in place due to school improvement requirements are working.

"It tells us that what we're doing there is having a positive impact on student learning, and that we're headed in the right direction on where we need to be with instruction," she said.

State law requires students in the fifth and eighth grades to pass the STAAR tests before they can be promoted to the next grade, according to the TEA release.

Students who did not pass the first attempt will take the test again in May after receiving additional instruction. Warren said, adding that he is confident the district will see even greater gains with those results.

Grande to add Netflix through TiVo boxes

From staff reports

Grande Communications announced on Friday that customers with TiVo set-top boxes will now have Netflix access through the box starting as early as Monday.

Netflix integration into the TiVo box eliminates the complexity of multiple boxes and remote controls, according to a press release by cable providers Grande Communications, Atlantic Broadband and RCN.

Customers who wish to use Netflix through their Grande Communications TiVo device must subscribe separately to the TiVo service and Netflix.

The cable provider also announced that Midland residential Internet customers who are on a plan with speeds slower than 15 Mbps per second will be upgraded to a 15 Mbps tier for free. Earlier this year, Grande announced its new Internet speed tiers, starting with the 15 Mbps tier for $34.99.

Official pleads guilty, will resign

Associated Press

BROWNSVILLE — A South Texas county commissioner has pleaded guilty to coercing a public servant and must resign his office.

Cameron County Commissioner Ernie Hernandez was indicted in January on several counts related to improper use of his influence to protect an illegal gambling establishment.

The Cameron County District Attorney's office announced Friday that Hernandez agreed to enter a pretrial diversion program and to resign from office immediately.

In return, prosecutors agreed to drop all but one of the counts. If he successfully completes the yearlong pretrial diversion program, the remaining count will be dismissed.

Texas cotton gin still working after 100 years

By Michael Graczyk
Associated Press

BURTON — A three-story cypress wood frame structure covered with corrugated tin is a monument to 13 Southeast Texas farmers pursuing their dreams of making a living growing cotton, a crop viewed a century ago as "white gold."

The project built in 1914 with $10,000 raised from the cotton farmers is now primarily a museum piece. But the Burton Farmers Gin still fires up its 125-horsepower Bessemer diesel engine known as "Lady B" and can produce 500-pound bales of cotton, allowing it to lay claim as the nation's oldest cotton gin operating at its original location and with original components.

"Our mission is to keep the legacy of cotton alive for all generations," said Linda Russell, director of the adjacent Texas Cotton Gin Museum.

On Saturday, an annual festival in Burton, a town of about 300 people midway between Houston and Austin, will draw thousands to mark the 100th anniversary of the opening of the Burton gin, constructed in an era when Texas had nearly 4,700 cotton gins. Now, even though Texas continues a long tradition as the nation's leading cotton-producing state, there are just 230 gins.

"Today gins are much different. It does kind of preserve what gins used to be," said Tony Williams, executive director of the Texas Cotton Ginners Association.

One older gin in Mississippi still operates, but not at its original location, Williams said.

Burton held its first Cotton Gin Festival in 1990 to raise restoration money for the gin. It has become an annual tradition and a tourist attraction for the community, highlighted by the "Lady B" roaring to life and churning out a few cotton bales.

"It's quite a big deal," Cheri Collier, who works at the Burton Cafe, said of the festival and the crowds. "We only have 300 people and a peacock."

According to local lore, the peacock escaped from a petting zoo at the festival a few years ago, and now struts around as a free bird in the town it's made home.

The gin attracts thousands of visitors each year from around the world who get to tour inside the musty building, see the flecks of cotton that stick to some of the equipment and walk the same worn floor boards where the five-person gin crew toiled.

"That was their way of life, and we just have a renewed appreciation of what they did for our country," Russell said.

The cotton gin — gin evolved as a shortened form of the word "engine" — is one of the great early American inventions, credited to Eli Whitney who won the patent rights in 1794. His box with hooks inside and cranked by hand solved a problem that had vexed cotton growers and users worldwide for centuries: how to quickly separate the soft cotton from the hard cotton seed.

Whitney's invention about the size of a bread box separated 50 pounds of cotton lint and 100 pounds of seed in 10 hours, doing the work of 50 people. The Industrial Revolution then led to development of engines and technology to make gins bigger and faster.

Burton, founded in 1870 as a railroad stop, drew settlers of German heritage whose typical family homestead was about 50 acres. The list of original gin shareholders — 116 in all and limited to no more than six shares individually — is dotted with typically German first names like Fritz and Otto and Adolph.

Carpenters from town constructed the building. The gin equipment — a series of belts, pulleys, gears, shafts, bins and scales — bears faded or peeling labels of the manufacturer, Lummis Cotton Gin Co., of Columbus, Ga.

"It still makes me marvel," says Russell, whose mother worked a cotton field.

When the gin began production in 1914, it was powered by a steam engine and employed new technology known as a "system gin." That meant it used air that sucked cotton from growers' wagons like a big vacuum cleaner along a kind of assembly line, dropping picked cotton into five large bins called gin stands. Eighty saw blades in each stand processed the cotton and moved it to a compressor where it was squeezed into 500-pound cube-like bales.

It was state of the art.

Meticulous records kept by the gin operators showed 82 bales made in 1914. Two years later, production topped 1,300 bales.

In 1925, a diesel engine replaced the steam-powered unit and production peaked at 1,680 bales in 1953. "Lady B" was replaced a decade later with an electric motor, but the industry and the economy was changing, too.

The farmers' children went away to school and found urban life more attractive. Polyester clothing debuted. Cotton fields became cattle pastures. New automated cotton picking devices required different gin processing equipment that the old-timers in Burton were reluctant to purchase.

By 1974, production dipped to only seven bales and the doors were shut. The place was dormant for more than a decade.

A research team from the Smithsonian Institution became intrigued and recommended a restoration that led to "Lady B" being overhauled and the structure freshened.

The gin has won recognition from the Texas Historical Commission, became a National Historic Engineering Landmark by the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and is listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

Report: Van de Puttes lost thousands gambling

Democratic nominee for lieutenant governor Leticia Van de Putte has released three years of tax returns show that she and her husband earned a combined $143,000 to $184,000 a year between 2010 and 2012.

The federal returns also showed the San Antonio state senator and her husband, Pete Van de Putte, also lost $10,000 gambling in Las Vegas over two years, 2011 and 2012.

The San Antonio Express-News reported the Van de Puttes' income hinged largely on their flag business. Leticia Van de Putte reported earning less than the $7,200 salary specified for state senators but about $16,000 a year as a pharmacist and $16,000 a year working for a provider of business outsourcing tools.

They also reported about $42,000 in oil and gas royalties over three years.

Perry picks new head of sex offender agency

Gov. Rick Perry on Friday tapped a Fort Worth deputy chief district attorney to head the state's embattled Office of Violent Sex Offender Management amid questions about who was running the agency.

Elizabeth "Christy" Jack, who has been on the agency's board since 2011, will now head it. Her term expires at the pleasure of the governor.

The agency performs functions relating to the sex offender civil commitment program. Jack replaces Dan Powers, who resigned this week citing too heavy a workload for a volunteer position.

Also, the Houston Chronicle reported Friday that two other top agency officials, executive director Allison Taylor and program manager Deborah Morgan, were on leave. Agency general counsel Celeste Blackburn said Taylor is on leave until next week, but it was unclear how long Morgan will be gone. Taylor and Morgan did not return calls seeking comment.

In the meantime, five lower-level supervisors were managing agency operations.

"Much work needs to be done to restore public confidence in this agency and to ensure it carries out its mission of protecting public safety," Perry said. "I want to thank Christy for taking on this role at such an important time for the agency."

Texas Rep. Stockman says ethics inquiry underway

Republican Rep. Steve Stockman of Texas says the House Ethics Committee is investigating a complaint about a campaign finance reporting error made by a former campaign worker.

The error was committed more than a year ago by an accountant who was a campaign volunteer, said Stockman, who lost a GOP primary for U.S. Senate last month.

In a statement Friday, Stockman said the mistake was corrected soon after he became aware of it. The volunteer responsible for the mistake was removed from his position, and the campaign committee has been closed, Stockman said.

Stockman said he is cooperating with the ethics panel and that the Federal Election Commission did not impose a fine on him or his campaign committee. He said he is confident the ethics panel "will ultimately dismiss the matter after it completes a careful review."

Dialect coach evaluates 3 Broadway shows

By Mark Kennedy
Associated Press

NEW YORK — That special sound you hear on Broadway these days could be a British accent.

Three hit shows — "Matilda the Musical," "A Gentleman's Guide to Love & Murder" and "Kinky Boots" — all have mainly Yanks in their casts playing English men, women, boys and girls.

How are they doing? For the most part, not too bad, said Patricia Fletcher, a dialect coach for film, TV and stage actors who teaches at the New School for Drama and has seen all three shows.

"They all delivered in different ways," said Fletcher, who has trained such actors as Harvey Keitel, Lynn Redgrave, Jean Reno, Drea de Matteo, Elias Koteas and Gina Gershon. "They really came through for the most part."

The show that fared best in her book was "Gentleman's Guide," a show set in 1909 in England about an impoverished man who discovers he's ninth in line to inherit a fortune, so he decides to eliminate the eight heirs of the D'Ysquith family standing in his way. All eight victims are played by Jefferson Mays — two women and six men.

"They really had character within dialect," Fletcher said. "I don't have that much real criticism, especially if I'm focusing on dialect. I think people are going to be entertained and have fun."

The other two shows had some problems: "Kinky Boots," the high-energy Cyndi Lauper musical about a British shoe factory that finds new life in drag footwear, had accents that were inconsistent, Fletcher found. But, she added, few may notice amid the cross-dressing, dancing and jokes: "It's so wild that you almost expect the dialects to be just over the top anyway."

The dialect in "Matilda," a witty musical adaptation of the beloved novel by Roald Dahl about a telekinetic schoolgirl, was good, but it often got washed out by overlapping voices and complex choreography, she said.

"The best one technically was 'Gentleman's Guide,'" she said. "'Kinky Boots' was in and out. With 'Matilda,' I don't think it was the dialect as much as the staging and the fact that they had everybody doing everything at once."

A spokeswoman for "Matilda" declined to comment, saying the show speaks for itself. Rick Miramontez, a "Kinky Boots" representative, replied: "We think our American cast members do a fantastic job with their characters' dialects. The characters' genders, however, are indeed often inconsistent."

Perhaps one of the reasons "Gentleman's Guide" was tighter dialect-wise is that the show has an unofficial accent cop — Jane Carr, an English-born former member of the Royal Shakespeare Company who has been on the TV show "Dear John" and on Broadway in "The Life and Adventures of Nicholas Nickleby" and "Mary Poppins."

Carr will diplomatically take aside an actor if he or she has made a mess of a pronunciation at least three times. "It's not easy to be consistent in another accent, things do get stretched a little. I try to readjust it when it starts sounding wrong."

Okla. school district Bible class teaches that sinners will suffer

Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY

A high school curriculum supported by Hobby Lobby chain president Steve Green, billed as a way to teach archaeology, history and the arts through Bible stories, also tells students God is always there in times of trouble and that sinners must "suffer the consequences" of disobeying.

The Mustang School Board in suburban Oklahoma City voted this month to place the Museum of the Bible's curriculum in its schools as an elective for a one-year trial after being assured that the intent is not to proselytize but to use the Bible to explain key principles in the arts and sciences.

While the course does explain the inspiration behind famous works of art and holds a prism to historical events, it also endorses behavior for religious reasons and implies that bad things happen as a direct result of disregarding God's rules.

The Associated Press obtained a draft copy of the curriculum from the American Civil Liberties Union of Oklahoma, which got it from the school district. The ACLU and the Freedom From Religion Foundation say using the curriculum raises constitutional issues and want the school district to reconsider.

The course is promoted by Green, the executive for the crafts store chain who is also a member of the Bible museum's board. Green, who has said he wants the program in thousands of schools by 2017, declined to speak to the Associated Press.

"This is not about a denomination, or a religion, it's about a book," Green told Mustang school board members last November. "We will not try to go down denominational, religious-type roads."

Among the topics covered by the curriculum are the role of religion in early America, discussing the New World as a haven for those seeking to escape religious persecution. It also talks about the role of religion in art, citing the role of patrons such as the Catholic church and wealthy families during the Renaissance.

The book also uses popular culture, mentioning songs written by U2 that it says are based in the Psalms, to illustrate the Bible's modern relevance. It does not name specific compositions.

From the outset, the book describes God as eternal, "faithful and good," "full of love" and "an ever-present help in times of trouble."

"The first pages of the Bible spotlight God's desire for justice and a just world," the second chapter says, but adds, "When humanity ignores or disobeys his rules, it has to suffer the consequences."

The course also says people should rest on the Sabbath because God did so after six days of creation. Green's stores, following the same principle, are closed on Sunday.

Hobby Lobby and a sister company, the Mardel bookstore chain, also sued the federal government after the passage of the Affordable Care Act, claiming that providing certain types of birth control to its workers would violate the religious freedom rights of the company's owners. The U.S. Supreme Court heard arguments on the case last month.

Andrew Seidel, a lawyer with the Freedom From Religion Foundation, wrote to the Mustang district this week, complaining that "negative aspects" of God, such as jealousy or punishing children for the actions of their parents, are not mentioned in the course.

The book phrases contradictory questions and answers — such as references to the Israelites being slaves — in ways designed to favor Christianity, Seidel said. He said it also poses Christian thought as rhetorical questions, such as asking, "How do we know that the Bible's historical narratives are reliable?" rather than, "Is the Bible historically accurate?"

"They assume the answer in the question and stifle all scholarly discussion," Seidel said.

Dr. Mark Chancey, a professor of religious studies at Southern Methodist University who reviewed the curriculum at the AP's request, said it lacked scholarly insight.

"It's more of a very basic background book," he said, adding that he found the curriculum "full of land mines" and used Scripture from only one tradition, evangelical Protestantism.

The superintendent of Mustang schools, Sean McDaniel, said if the board believed the curriculum crossed a line it wouldn't have approved the course.

OREGON

State leaving online health exchange for US site

DURHAM — After months of trying to get its problem-plagued online health exchange to work, Oregon on Friday officially gave up on the state portal and decided to switch to the federal website — the first state in the nation to do so.

An early adapter and early enthusiast of the Affordable Care Act, Oregon was once seen as the national leader in health care reform. The progressive state's ambitious vision for its exchange, its colossal multimillion-dollar failure, and the inability to fix the glitch-filled site illustrate the complexity of the health care law and the challenges for states that decided to build their own exchanges.

Oregon, which so far has failed to enroll a single person in coverage in one sitting through its exchange, decided to ditch the exchange because officials said fixing it would be too costly at $78 million and would take too long. Switching to the federal system will cost just $4 million to $6 million and is the least risky option.

Oregon's exchange is seen as the worst in more than a dozen states that developed their own online health insurance marketplaces. Oregonians must use a time-consuming hybrid paper-online process to sign up for insurance. The state also had to hire more than 400 workers to aid in the manual enrollment process — that despite $134 million Oregon paid its main technology contractor Oracle Corp. to build the online exchange. Oregon received a month-long enrollment-deadline extension because of the technology problems.

'Royal dog of Madagascar' to join Westminster pack

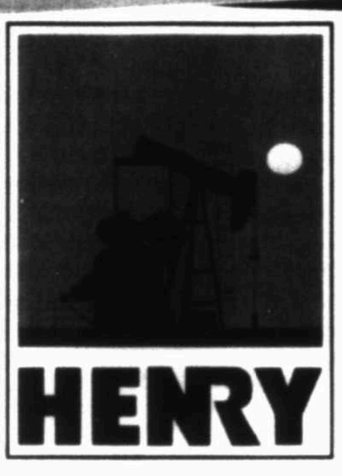

A hardy Hungarian hunting dog and a pet known as the "royal dog of Madagascar" will join the pack at the Westminster Kennel Club show next year, organizers announced Friday.

The kennel club said the wire-haired visla and the coton de tulear will be eligible to compete for the first time in the New York show next February.

The wire-haired visla is a medium-size breed developed to hunt in northern Hungary's cold winters and rough terrain. It's related to the visla, which has a smooth coat.

The coton de tulear is a small, cheerful companion dog with a long, white, cotton-like coat.

Possible Republican presidential candidates court NRA

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — Several potential Republican presidential candidates courted gun-rights supporters Friday at the National Rifle Association's annual convention, talking up their pro-gun credentials while imploring the crowd to fight not just for their Second Amendment rights but for other freedoms they say are being threatened.

U.S. Sen. Marco Rubio of Florida, former Pennsylvania U.S. Sen. Rick Santorum, Indiana Gov. Mike Pence and Louisiana Gov. Bobby Jindal addressed the NRA's annual leadership forum, a kind of political pep rally the organization considers one of its premier events. Wisconsin Gov. Scott Walker and U.S. Sens. Ted Cruz of Texas and Kelly Ayotte of New Hampshire also recorded brief videos that were played for the crowd of more than 2,000 inside Lucas Oil Stadium, home to the Indianapolis Colts.

One after another, the possible 2016 contenders thanked the NRA and its members for flexing their considerable political muscle to help push back recent gun-control efforts, including legislation following the 2012 massacre at Sandy Hook Elementary School in Connecticut that would have required background checks for gun purchases. They said that same activism will be critical heading into elections this fall, in 2016 and beyond.

Jindal charged that Vice President Joe Biden and former Secretary of State Hillary Clinton, both possible Democratic presidential candidates, think the Second Amendment is little more than "a phrase from a speech writer."

"If they had their way they'd simply cut and paste the Constitution and just get rid of the Second Amendment entirely," said Jindal, who approved several gun rights bills last year, including one that creates stiff penalties for those who knowingly publish the names of gun permit holders.

Lawyer: Rep. Grimm to face federal charges

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Republican U.S. Rep. Michael Grimm, who has been dogged by allegations of campaign violations since his first campaign for Congress in 2009 and 2010, is facing criminal charges from federal prosecutors, his lawyer said on Friday.

A House Ethics Committee announced in November that Grimm was under investigation for possible campaign finance violations but said it would defer its inquiry because of a separate Department of Justice investigation.

A spokesman for the U.S. attorney's office in Brooklyn said Friday he couldn't confirm, deny or comment on the case. The FBI's New York office, which handles investigations, also declined to comment.

Grimm's attorney, William McGinley, said in a statement he wasn't surprised by the impending charges, which he didn't disclose. But he maintained the lawmaker had done nothing wrong.

"After more than two years of investigation plagued by malicious leaks, violations of grand jury secrecy, and strong-arm tactics, the U.S. Attorney's Office has disclosed its intent to file criminal charges against Congressman Grimm," he said in the statement. "When the dust settles, he will be vindicated."

Grimm made headlines in January after confronting a New York City cable news station reporter who tried to question him about a long-running FBI investigation into campaign finance on a balcony in the Capitol.

After reporter Michael Scotto finished his report, Grimm stormed back, leaned into him and said, "Let me be clear to you. If you ever do that to me again, I'll throw you off this (expletive) balcony."

Scotto, who was asking about fundraising during Grimm's first campaign, protested, saying he was asking "a valid question."

During that race, Grimm has acknowledged receiving $250,000 to $300,000 in contributions from followers of an Israeli rabbi, Yoshiyahu Yosef Pinto. Some members of Pinto's congregation subsequently said they made tens of thousands of dollars in illegal contributions, including gifts passed through straw donors.

Grimm has denied knowledge of any improprieties, and the FBI hasn't accused him of any wrongdoing. The Israeli businessman who had served as Grimm's liaison to Pinto's followers, Ofer Biton, pleaded guilty in August to an immigration fraud charge.

Three days after that guilty plea, the FBI filed a sealed criminal complaint accusing a Houston woman who had been romantically involved with Grimm of using straw donors to make illegal campaign contributions.

In that case, made public this month, the woman was accused of funneling at least $10,000 to Grimm's campaign by passing them through friends who agreed to have the donations listed under their names.

AP file

Rep. Michael Grimm, R-N.Y., center, accompanied by Rep. Duncan Hunter, R-Calif., left, and House Majority Whip Kevin McCarthy of California, speaks during a news conference in 2011 on Capitol Hill. Grimm's attorney stated on Friday, that federal prosecutors in New York plan on filing criminal charges against the lawmaker. Lawyer William McGinley said Grimm is innocent and called the federal probe into the former FBI agent-turned-politician "a politically driven vendetta."

Israeli push for visa-free travel to US faces test

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A campaign to allow Israelis to enter the United States without a visa is gaining steam in Congress, but is still running into a brick wall with the Obama administration over the U.S. government's most elementary demand: that the Jewish state provide the same treatment at its borders to all Americans, even if they are Arab or Muslim.

Objections from U.S. officials and some lawmakers blocked a congressional effort over the last year that could have allowed Israel to maintain discriminatory entry policies for certain groups of Americans, which no other country can do if its citizens are able to visit the U.S. without visas. However, a new version of proposed legislation could offer Israel greater flexibility in the Visa Waiver Program, and the administration has pledged to work with Israel to help it move closer to qualifying for the program.

Israel's push to join the prestigious club of 38 mainly European and Asian nations is a top priority for Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's government, the pro-Israel lobby AIPAC and pro-Israel lawmakers.

Permian Basin rig count increases 2 this week to 542

HOUSTON — The number of rigs exploring for oil and natural gas in the Permian Basin increased two this week to 542, according to a report released Friday by Houston-based oilfield services company Baker Hughes.

Texas added 10 rigs for a total of 894. In other Texas basins, there were 219 rigs in the Eagle Ford, up two; 64 in the Granite Wash, up two; and 24 in the Barnett, up one.

At this time last year there were 471 rigs in the Permian Basin and 834 in Texas.

The number of rigs searching for oil and natural gas in the U.S. increased 30 this week to 1,861. There were 1,534 rigs listed as searching for oil, up 24; 323 as searching for natural gas, up seven; and four as miscellaneous, down one. A year ago this week there were 1,754 rigs in the U.S.

By trajectory, there were 398 vertical drilling rigs, up seven; 1,245 horizontal drilling rigs, up 21; and 218 directional drilling rigs, up two.

The top five basins by rig count this week were the Permian, the Eagle Ford, the Williston with 187, up two; the Marcel lus with 87, up six; and the Mississippian with 74, unchanged.

The top five states by rig count were Texas, Oklahoma with 192, up five; North Dakota with 179, up one; Louisiana with 112, up two; and New Mexico with 91, up two.

In the U.S. there were 1,793 rigs listed as on land, up 28; 14 as in inland waters, up 14; and 54 as offshore, up two.

There were 53 rigs in the Gulf of Mexico, up two.

The number of rigs exploring for oil and natural gas in Canada decreased 31 this week to 168. There were 69 rigs listed as searching for oil, down 16; 99 for natural gas, down 15; and zero as miscellaneous, unchanged. At this time last year there were 122 rigs in Canada.

The total number of rigs searching for oil and natural gas in the North America region — which includes the U.S. and Canada but excludes the Gulf of Mexico — decreased 1 this week to 2,029. At this time last year there were 1,876 in North America.

For more information about the weekly rig count, visit the Baker Hughes website at bakerhughes.com.

NEW YORK

Oil drops following declines in stock market

The price of oil dropped below $101 per barrel Friday after disappointing earnings in the U.S. prompted declines in the stock market.

Benchmark U.S. crude for June delivery shed $1.34 to close at $100.60 on the New York Mercantile Exchange. Oil finished the week with a decline of $3.70 a barrel, or 3.5 percent.

Brent crude, an international benchmark for oil, fell 75 cents to $109.58 on the ICE Futures exchange in London.

Weak earnings from Ford and Amazon, in particular, helped dent sentiment in U.S. stock markets. A drop in Ford sales in the U.S. suggested consumer spending on transportation and fuel in the world's largest economy might not remain as strong as expected. The Dow Jones industrial average and the broader Standard & Poor's 500 index each dropped about 0.8 percent.

At the gas pump, U.S. drivers are paying an average of $3.69 a gallon heading into the weekend. That's up about 14 cents from a month ago and is 18 cents higher that at this time last year.

PITTSBURGH

Energy Dept. welcomes fracturing chemical disclosure

The U.S. Department of Energy said Friday that it welcomes the decision by oil and gas industry supplier Baker Hughes to disclose all chemicals in hydraulic fracturing fluid. But Halliburton, a major competitor in the field, isn't committing to such disclosure.

Deputy Assistant Energy Secretary Paula Gant said that Baker Hughes' move "is an important step in building public confidence" and the department "hopes others will follow their lead."

The oil and gas industry has said the fracutring chemicals are disclosed at tens of thousands of wells, but environmental and health groups and government regulators decry a loophole that allows companies to hide chemical "trade secrets."

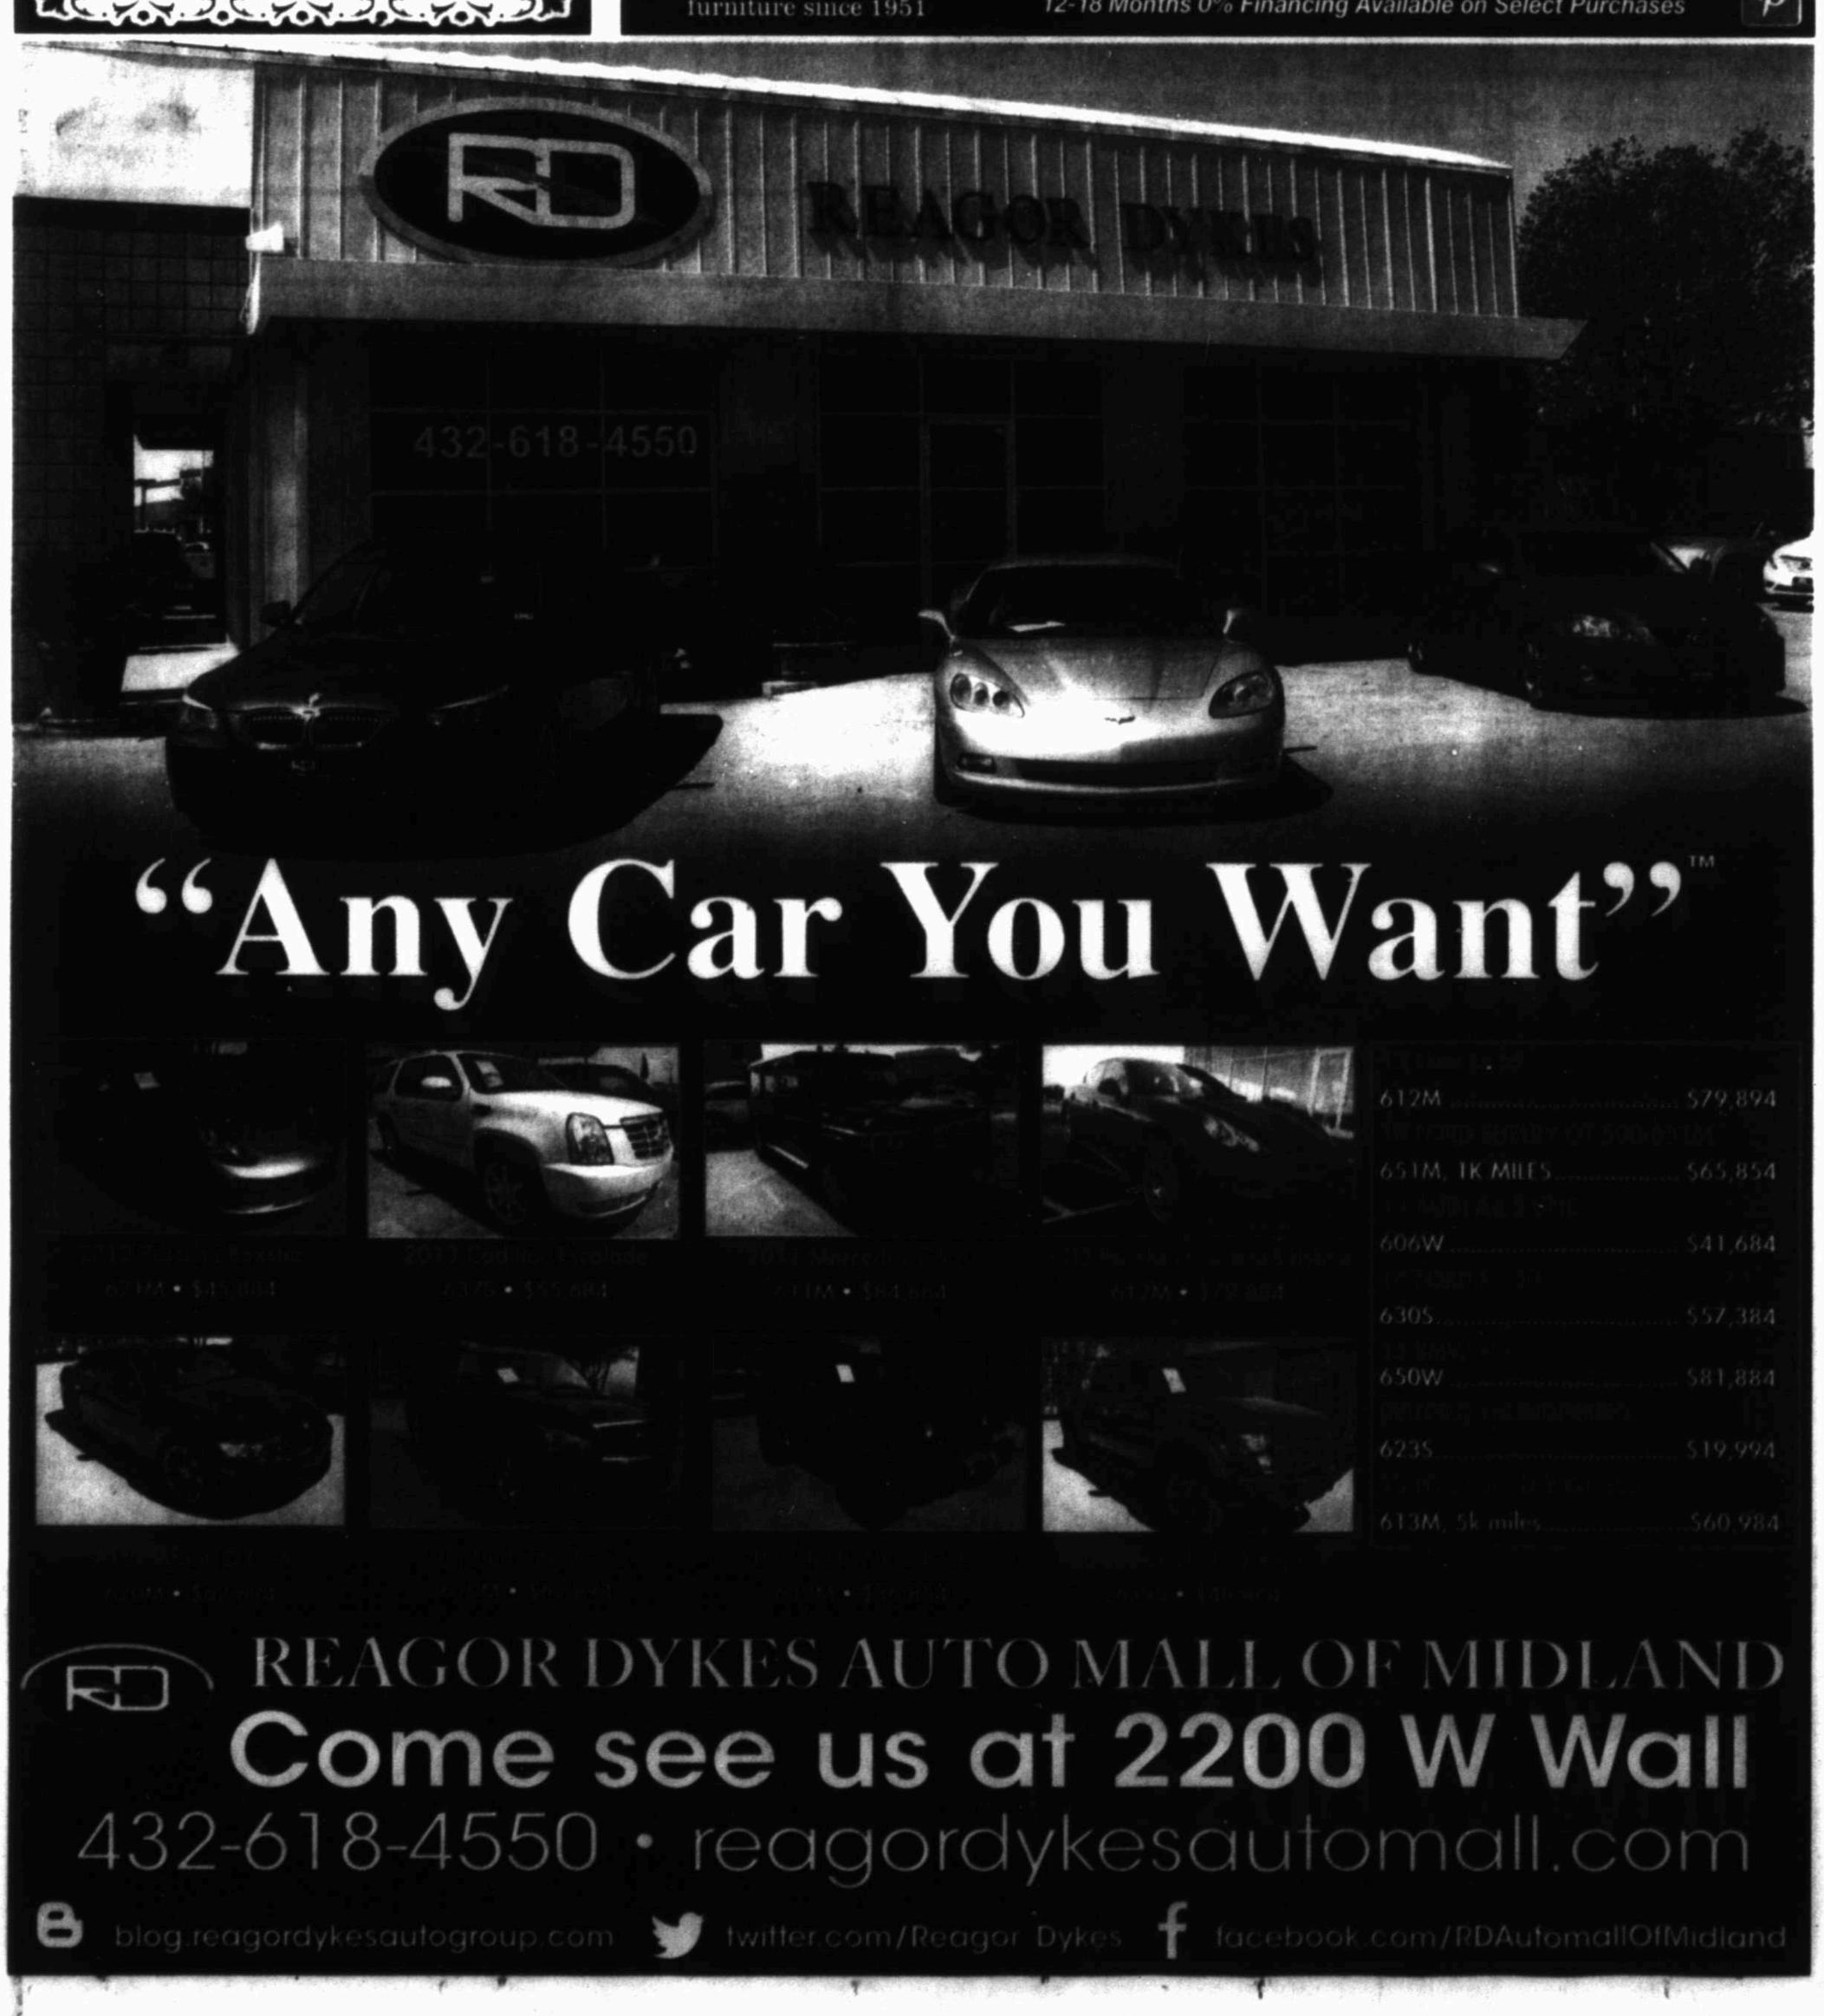

Houston-based Halliburton said Friday that it's studying the move by Baker Hughes, which is also based in that city. Halliburton said it had an interest in protecting "our intellectual property and the substantial investment it represents" and will examine the new Baker Hughes format for its ability to protect such investments.

Baker Hughes said it now believes it's possible to disclose 100 percent "of the chemical ingredients we use in hydraulic fracturing fluids without compromising our formulations," to increase public trust.

Baker Hughes spokeswoman Melanie Kania wrote in an email that it will take "several months" for the new policy to take effect. She said the end result will be a "single list" that provides "all the chemical constituents" for frack fluids, with no trade secrets.

Putnam takes over lead at WNB Golf Classic

By Len Hayward
lhayward@mrt.com

Andrew Putnam has been playing pretty well the last two days at Midland Country Club, and the back-to-back 6-under 66s he's shot are a testament to that.

But he also admitted he got a little bit lucky on his tee time draws the last two days at the Web.com Tour's WNB Golf Classic. Putnam's second straight 66 has the Tacoma, Wash., native sitting at 12-under par and leading by one stroke over Tom Gillis heading into the weekend, and he carded those two rounds when the weather was nearly perfect.

Putnam teed off early in the afternoon on Thursday when the gusty wind in the morning died down to a light breeze, and on Friday, Putnam's morning tee time with little to no wind helped him avoid the typical afternoon West Texas wind.

"That was about as good as we can get," Putnam said. "I've been on the bad side before, and it stinks getting on the bad side."

Putnam took advantage of the relatively calm conditions late Friday morning to shoot a stellar 31 on the front side at MCC, where he birdied five of his first nine holes. His pace slowed down on the back side where he had a bogey on No. 10 but then carded birdies on 14 and 17 to help push him to another 66.

"We knew the wind was supposed to kick up on the backside, and this is the type of course you can play in the wind," Putnam said. "I think it's built for the wind, and you can still play good golf when it's blowing. But getting some of those putts to go in when the wind started blowing was also good."

Putnam now finds himself in a position to win his first Web.com Tour event of the year. He finished second in the first event of the year in Colombia, and has made the cut in all but one of the six events he's played this season.

But now he has to be able to maintain his play for the next two days.

"You've just got to try to keep making putts," Putnam said. "My caddy and I had a pretty good game plan out there and try to execute it as well as we can. When it's blowing like this,

Bulldogs clinch outright district title

Bulldogs	8
Eagles	5

From staff reports

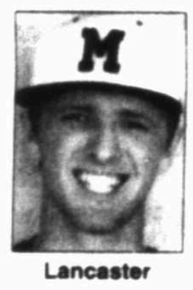

ABILENE — The Midland High baseball team rallied from a two-run deficit to score five runs in the fifth inning and take an 8-5 victory against Abilene High on Friday at Blackburn Field.

The Bulldogs' victory helped them clinch the outright District 2-5A title as they prepare for the start of the Class 5A playoffs next week. Midland High improved to 20-8 overall and 14-2 in District 2-5A.

"I was glad to get the win," Russell said. "I thought we played really well, and then we had one inning where we just kind of went to sleep."

Houser

Lancaster

The Bulldogs opened up a 3-0 lead after three innings with two runs in the first and one in the third, but then the Eagles bounced back with five runs in the fourth to take a 5-3 lead.

"On a single we had a perfect shot to the plate, and I thought he was out, and the umpire said the ball beat him but the catcher was standing behind the plate, and the guy was safe," Russell said. "We just did some weird things. We are making little mistakes that are killing us. We've just got to clean that stuff up."

In the top of the fifth, though, the Bulldogs' bats came to life as Browning Houser hit a two-run pinch-hit single and Jackson Lancaster had a two-run double.

Meanwhile, Lance White and Sean Grebeck each pitched on Friday. White pitched the first 3 1/3 innings, giving up five runs on six hits with two strikeouts and two walks. Grebeck, who entered in the fourth inning, pitched 3 2/3 scoreless innings with three strikeouts.

Braden Rushton and White were each 2-for-4 at the plate with an RBI on the day.

Chaparrals continue hot streak with twinbill sweep of Luna

By Oscar LeRoy
oleroy@mrt.com

The strategy for the Midland College baseball team as it fights to qualify for next month's regional tournament is to play loose and have fun.

That approach seemed to work for the Chaparrals against Luna Community College on a warm Friday afternoon at Christensen Stadium as they run-ruled the Rough Riders in both games of a doubleheader. In the first game, Caleb Koedyker keyed a 12-hit attack with two home runs and five RBI in a 12-2 victory in six innings. Then in the second game, Chris Thibideau and Justin Clarkson keyed a 19-hit barrage in a 15-3 victory in seven innings.

Chaparrals	12-13
Rough Riders	2-3

With the doubleheader sweep, the Chaparrals improved to 27-22 and 13-17 in the Western Junior College Athletic Conference to stay in the postseason race.

"We're just trying to keep the momentum going," said Koedyker, whose team has won five straight WJCAC games and 11 out of the last 14 league games. "We're playing clean baseball and we're playing good baseball. (The offense) was good to see. It was fun and it's not just two or three guys. The whole team is playing well. That's why we're getting wins."

A big key for the offense was

Koedyker

Prescott

leadoff hitter Blaine Prescott being productive at the plate and jump-starting the offense with most of his at-bats. The freshman second baseman from Amarillo was 6-for-9 at the plate with a home run, three RBI and four runs scored on the day.

"I've been working on sitting back on a pitch better and it's working for me and for others," Prescott said. "We're just seeing the ball well and hitting the ball well as a team. We were hitting the ball hard today. We all had really good approaches at the plate today, putting the bat on the ball and finding holes."

Added MC coach David Coleman about Prescott, "He's just a really good player and a really good hitter and he got some pitches to hit. He didn't try to do too much today. I thought he stayed within himself pretty good today."

Prescott helped to get things started for the Chaps in the first game when he led off with a double and later scored on a Chris Shaw single inning to tie the game at 1 in the first inning.

Koedyker gave MC a 3-1 lead in the third with a two-run shot to left in the third. And then the Chaps added five more runs in the fourth on three hits — including a two-run homer by Prescott — a walk and a throwing error from Luna starter Santos Carrasquillos that led to two runs for an 8-1 lead.

Then with MC leading 9-2 in the sixth, Koedyker ended the game with his second home run of the game and 10th of the season with a three-run shot to left field.

"I was just trying to square up the ball and go up there with the mindset, I guess, of trying to hit a line drive," said Koedyker of his home runs. "The wind helped a little bit."

Records: Midland Christian 30-9; Waco Reicher 20-9
How they got here: Midland Christian won TAPPS District 1-4A; Waco Reicher finished fourth in TAPPS 2-4A.
Notes: The Mustangs have been rolling lately, and coach Mike Munguia said his squad is playing as well right now as it has all season. Midland Christian finished up the regular season on Monday against Lubbock Christian, and won 4-1 in eight innings in Lubbock. "I know our arms are fresh because we haven't thrown a lot, but we have thrown enough to stay sharp," Munguia said. "I look for our pitchers to be really good and fresh, and then offensively the last two days we've had as good of (batting practice) sessions as we've had since spring break." ... Midland Christian wrapped up the TAPPS 1-4A title about two weeks ago, but it didn't find out its opponent until this week. Waco Reicher pulled off an upset in TAPPS 2-4A and then won a play-in game against Dallas Parish Episcopal. "They are playing really good right now, and their offense has been good," Munguia said of Reicher. "They are one of those teams that is peaking late. I would guess they are playing their best ball of the year right now." ... Munguia said that Nolan Schattel will pitch today's first game, and then Korey Rasure will take the hill in the second game.

Lee will take on Richland, who completed its series sweep of Arlington Bowie on Friday, in the Class 5A area round at a time, date and place to be determined.

The run ended a pitching duel between the two teams as Lee hurler Kylee Olivas struck out 13 and only allowed two hits. Lee had nine hits against Franklin starter Cindy Juarez, but until the seventh the Lady Rebels were never able to string enough hits together to score runs.

Rosie Marquez was 2-for-3 on the day and was the only Lady Rebel with two hits.

"Franklin is a good team and a good program," Overton said. "Their girls played a great game, they played great defense and their pitcher kept us off-balance for most of the game."

Lady Chaps sweep Luna

From staff reports

LAS VEGAS, N.M. — The Midland College softball team got a key doubleheader sweep against Luna Community College on Friday as the Lady Chaparrals are fighting for third place in the Western Junior College Athletic Conference.

The Lady Chaps belted six home runs in the first game to run-rule Luna, 11-1, in five innings. Then in the second game, MC had a five-run fifth to beat the Rough Riders, 6-3.

"Once we got that first home run in the first game (by Pililani Smith-Keopuhiwa), everybody stepped up and it was contagious," MC coach Tommy Ramos said. "They played with some energy and enthusiasm and that set the tone for the whole game. Our pitchers threw well and we were consistent throughout the lineup.

Lady Chaps 11-6
Rough Riders 1-3

That's what we want. We're trying to work on being consistent heading into (next week's) regional tournament."

In addition to Smith-Keopuhiwa's homer, Taylor Daniels, Tyneesha Houkamu, Ka'iulani Kamai and Melissa Zuniga — who hit two home runs — also went yard.

Houkamu finished the game 3-for-3 with two RBI, Zuniga was 3-for-4 with two RBI and Daniels was 2-for-4.

Shelby Weissenbach got the win in the circle.

MC had 12 hits in the second game as Danielle Bottle, Houkamu, Kelcey Gomez and Savannah Koke each had two hits, while Houkamu had a double and drove in two runs.

Dominique Lozano Alcocer got the win in relief of Weissenbach.

With the two wins, the Lady Chaps (27-22, 14-12 in Western Junior College Athletic Conference) take a two-game lead over Luna (16-26, 12-14) for third place in the WJCAC standings.

The teams will meet in another doubleheader beginning at 1 p.m. (CDT) today in Las Vegas, N.M., to conclude the regular season.

CHAPS

Brandon Courville (3-6) picked up the win by allowing two runs on seven hits with seven strikeouts and one walk.

The Rough Riders (16-29, 12-18) jumped on MC starter Michael Brosig with two runs in the second inning of the second game, but the Chaps responded with three runs of their own in the bottom of the second to take the lead for good.

Brosig (5-2) settled down after that second inning and actually got stronger as the game went on. The Lee grad went five innings, allowed two runs on seven hits with six strikeouts and no walks.

Meanwhile the MC offense continued to add runs in each inning and the Chaps ended the game in the seventh when they scored four runs, capped off by a three-run homer to left by Bryndan Arredondo.

Justin Clarkson led MC in the game going 4-for-5 with a triple and two RBI; Thibideau was 4-for-4 with a long home run over the center field fence, four RBI and three runs scored; Prescott was 3-for-5 in the game with an RBI and a run scored; Chris Shaw was 2-for-4 with three runs scored; and Tony Reyes was 2-for-4 with a double, run scored and an RBI.

"I thought offensively we were hooked in every inning," Coleman said. "We didn't give at-bats away, we had two-strike hits, we had some two-out RBI hits and I think we just constantly put pressure on."

The Chaps look to continue the momentum today when they host the Rough Riders in another doubleheader at Christensen Stadium, beginning at noon today.

"It was huge," said Prescott of the doubleheader sweep. "Every win matters from here on out. This will keep our confidence going into (today)."

RockHounds beat Missions in 11 innings

From staff reports

SAN ANTONIO — Dusty Coleman's two-run double in the 11th inning proved to be the difference for the Midland RockHounds in a 2-0 victory over the San Antonio Missions Friday night a Nelson Wolff Stadium.

The RockHounds finally broke through the pitcher's duel with two outs in the 11th when Jefry Marte singled and Chad Oberacker drew a walk against Frank Garces (0-1). That's when Coleman delivered on the big hit with a line drive, two-run double to left.

Runs were hard to come by for both teams as both starters and both teams' bullpens were putting up zeros through most of the night.

RockHounds 2
Missions 0 (11)

Drew Granier went six innings and gave up three hits with three walks for the RockHounds.

Meanwhile, Missions starter Matt Wisler went seven innings, scattered three hits and struck out 10.

Seth Frankoff allowed one hit in the bottom of the 11th before closing out the game for his fourth save of the season.

Murphy Smith (1-0) got the win in relief as he pitched four hitless innings.

The RockHounds (12-8) and Missions (8-12) play the second game of a four-game series at 7:05 p.m. today at Nelson Wolff Stadium.

Rangers activate Beltre, put Kouzmanoff on DL

By Tim Booth
Associated Press

SEATTLE — Texas manager Ron Washington is tired of talking about all of the Rangers' injuries.

The latest is to third baseman Kevin Kouzmanoff, who was placed on the 15-day disabled list Friday with a herniated disk in his lower back. Fortunately for the Rangers, Adrian Beltre was ready to return from his quadriceps injury and was activated from the DL before Texas played the Seattle Mariners.

And the lingering question remains outfielder Shin-Soo Choo, who tested out his sore heel for the first time since getting injured earlier in the week.

"It's a situation you just can't do anything about. Everyone around here knows that they're trusted and you just keep going," Washington said. "That's all you can do. They're not going to stop our schedule. You've just got to keep going. At some point this testing that is happening to us will stop and we'll get healthy and we can go. But until then we've got to keep going with what we've got."

Kouzmanoff left Tuesday's game in Oakland with back tightness. He had been outstanding in place of Beltre, hitting .362 with two homers, six doubles and 10 RBIs in 13 games since his contract was purchased from Triple-A Round Rock.

Kouzmanoff was the American League player of the week April 14-20. Now there's uncertainty about when he might be able to return after he was examined by a back specialist in Texas earlier Friday.

Beltre was placed on the disabled list April 13, retroactive to April 9, with a strained left quad. He was hitting .286 with four RBIs in eight games before getting injured. He was looking forward to getting back in time to face buddy Felix Hernandez on Saturday night. Beltre has learned how to manage issues with his hamstrings in the past and said he likely wouldn't push himself the first week back from the quad injury.

FROM WIRE REPORTS

AMERICAN LEAGUE
ATHLETICS 10
ASTROS 1

HOUSTON — Josh Donaldson hit a pair of two-run homers to help the Athletics cruise to a win over the Astros.

It was the first career multihomer game for Donaldson, who connected in the first inning and pushed the lead to 10-1 with a second shot in the seventh. Alberto Callaspo added a two-run homer in the third and Jed Lowrie had three hits for the A's, who improved to 24-5 against Houston.

Scott Kazmir is off to a 3-0 start for the first time in his career after allowing five hits and a run with seven strikeouts in six innings. He lowered his ERA to 1.62.

The Athletics jumped on Houston starter Brett Oberholtzer (0-4) early and tagged him for a career-high six runs on and eight hits, which tied a career-high, in just 3 2-3 innings.

TIGERS 7
WHITE SOX 4

DETROIT — Miguel Cabrera drove in three runs, Max Scherzer struck out 10 and the Detroit Tigers beat the Chicago White Sox 7-4 Thursday.

Cabrera hit a pair of two-out singles for his RBIs. Rajai Davis homered, doubled, singled and drove in two runs.

Scherzer (2-1) allowed two runs in six innings.

Joe Nathan pitched the ninth for his fourth save in six tries. He got the final two outs on a strikeout where Jose Abreu was called for interfering with catcher Bryan Holaday's throw to second base on a stolen-base attempt.

Jose Quintana (1-1) allowed three runs in six innings.

TWINS 9
RAYS 7

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Aaron Hicks hit a three-run homer, Kurt Suzuki drove in three runs and the Minnesota Twins beat the Tampa Bay Rays.

Former Rays outfielder Sam Fuld hit a pair of RBI doubles for the Twins, who won two of three for their first road series win against the Rays since Sept. 4-6, 2006. Minnesota manager Ron Gardenhire moved past Chuck Dressen into sole possession of 59th place on the career victory list with 1,009.

Ricky Nolasco (2-2) allowed six runs and 10 hits over six-plus innings. Glen Perkins pitched the ninth for his fifth save.

Erik Bedard (0-1) gave up four runs, five hits and five walks in four innings.

ROYALS 1

CLEVELAND — Corey Kluber struck out a career-high 11 and pitched a four-hitter for his first complete game, and David Murphy and Asdrubal Cabrera drove in two runs apiece, leading the Cleveland Indians over the Kansas City Royals.

Kluber (2-2) didn't walk a batter and let Cleveland manager Terry Francona give some needed rest to his bullpen.

Murphy and Cabrera delivered big hits in the Indians' five-run fifth off Bruce Chen (1-2), who controlled Cleveland's lineup for four innings.

The Indians have won four of five to get back to .500.

YANKEES 14
RED SOX 5

BOSTON — Yangervis Solarte drove in four runs, Mark Teixeira hit his first homer of the season and the Yankees capitalized on five Boston errors to beat the Red Sox.

CC Sabathia (3-2) struck out eight while allowing two runs on three hits in six innings as the Yankees rebounded from a 5-1 loss Wednesday night in which starter Michael Pineda was ejected in the second inning for having pine tar on his neck.

Pineda was suspended for 10 games on Thursday and said he wouldn't appeal. He will miss two starts.

Neither team played a clean game Thursday. The Red Sox walked 12 — five by knuckleball throwing utilityman Mike Carp in the ninth — hit one and had three wild pitches and a passed ball. They also allowed three stolen bases, all in the third inning.

The Yankees walked six and hit a batter and had one wild pitch; one passed ball and an error.

Felix Doubront (1-3) retired the first two batters of the game before Carlos Beltran reached on an error by short stop Xander Bogaerts and scored on a double by Alfonso Soriano.

ORIOLES 11
BLUE JAYS 4

TORONTO — Chris Davis had two hits and three RBIs, Jonathan Schoop homered, and the Orioles beat the Blue Jays.

Nelson Cruz had two hits and drove in two runs for the Orioles, extending his streak of games with at least one RBI to seven.

Cruz had three homers and 10 RBIs in the three game series against Toronto. He has 22 RBIs in April, a career high for the month.

Bud Norris (1-2) pitched six innings to win for the first time in three road starts this season. Norris allowed three runs and five hits, walked one and struck out four.

Brett Cecil (0-1) was the loser.

NATIONAL LEAGUE
METS 4
MARLINS 3

NEW YORK — Slumping Curtis Granderson grounded an RBI single to cap an improbable two-run rally with two outs in the ninth inning, sending the New York Mets past the Miami Marlins 4-3 Friday night.

After Jarrod Saltalamacchia and Garrett Jones hit back-to-back home runs in the eighth that put the Marlins ahead 3-2, the Mets stung Marlins closer Steve Cishek.

Cishek (1-1) had converted a team-record 33 straight save chances — the longest active streak in the majors — before Lucas Duda led off the ninth with a single and moved up on a sacrifice.

Left fielder Christian Yelich then made a nice running catch on pinch-hitter Bobby Abreu's liner for the second out. Omar Quintanilla followed with a single down the line and Yelich slipped on the dirt as he got ready to throw home, letting Duda score standing up.

NATIONALS 11
PADRES 1

WASHINGTON — Bryce Harper drove in a career-high four runs before leaving the game, and Stephen Strasburg pitched seven scoreless innings as the Nationals defeated the Padres.

Harper drove in a run with an infield single in the first and had a bases-loaded triple in the third. Following his head first dive into third base on the triple, Harper flexed his left wrist. He was later replaced in left field by Nate McLouth to start the fifth inning. No announcement was made regarding whether or not Harper was injured.

Anthony Rendon had a career-high four hits for Washington.

Strasburg (2-2) allowed seven hits and walked two, but struck out 11. He turned in his second straight effective start lowering his ERA from 5.33 to 4.24.

BRAVES 5
REDS 4

ATLANTA — Justin Upton hit a three-run homer to continue another strong April. Ervin Santana earned his third win and the Braves held off the Reds.

Craig Kimbrel gave up a leadoff single to Roger Bernadina and walked Zack Cozart to open the ninth. Kimbrel struck out Brayan Pena and Chris Heisey before earning his seventh save on Joey Votto's groundout.

First baseman Freddie Freeman made a long stretch for Chris Johnson's throw from third base on Heisey's ground ball. Reds manager Bryan Price challenged first base umpire Vic Carapazza's ruling that Freeman's foot remained on the bag. The call was confirmed, ending the game.

Santana (3-0) led 5-0 through five innings before allowing two runs in the sixth and two more in the seventh. He gave up four runs on nine hits in 6 2-3 innings.

Homer Bailey (1-2) took the loss.

you're going to have some tough shots. You have to stay even keel and don't get frustrated when you get some weird bounces and stuff."

Gillis, who is at 11-under for the tournament, carded the day's best round as the Michigan native shot a bogey-free 8-under 64. Gillis had four birdies on each nine, and said when he woke up this morning he was feeling kind of sluggish.

But after a par save on his first hole, which was No. 10, he said he started to find more energy and played better the rest of the day. Plus, he said he made plenty of key putts, including knocking one in from about 35 feet on No. 8 for a birdie.

"Anytime you shoot 8-under you are rolling the ball good," Gillis said. "I did a little workout this morning, and my body was moving kind of slow, and I was thinking, 'Man, it was going to be a little bit of a battle.' I think as you get older, I'm 45, you have a few more of those. That par save (on his first hole) was big and that kept the momentum going."

Gillis is two strokes ahead of Web.com Tour money leader Carlos Ortiz, who shot a 68 on Friday and is at 9-under along with first-round co-leader Rod Pampling, who fired a second round 69.

A total of seven players are tied at 7-under in fifth place.

WNB GOLF CLASSIC NOTES

■ Ortiz and Putnam have been in the same group the last two days, and the pair said they have been feeding off each other as both are playing well. The third player in the group was Frankie Corpening, but didn't make the cut.

"It's always good playing with someone who's playing well," Putnam said. "It definitely helps because you are seeing putts go in and you are thinking that's what everyone else is doing, so you are just going with the flow. (Ortiz) is playing really well, and swinging confidently."

■ Pampling didn't make as many putts as he did on Thursday, but his second round 69 is enough to keep him in contention at 9-under par, three back of the lead. He faced the wind again, but it wasn't as strong as Thursday. He added, though, that he hits the ball low anyway and his game suits the course when it's windy.

"I focus on hitting it low, keeping it low and let it run," said Pampling, who is a native Australian who now lives near Flower Mound. "I've always been a low-ball hitter, so it's been nice."

■ With this year's event in the spring and the weather starting to warm up, officials are saying the number of snake sightings has increased from past years. Ortiz is one of those who saw a snake. He said he spotted a snake on a hole during Thursday's round and didn't stay very long in the bushes to see what kind it was.

"It was right there in front of me, and I jumped out to the other side," Ortiz said. "I didn't check out whether it was a rattlesnake or another snake."

■ Of the top 25 players entering today's third round, 17 of them were on the Thursday afternoon and Friday morning tee-time rotation, which included second-round leader Putnam.

■ Former New Mexico Junior College golfer Zach Fullerton made the cut after shooting a 5-under 67 on Friday and was tied for 35th overall at 3-under. Fullerton also played at New Mexico State University.

Fullerton also tied a tournament record for a birdie-eagle streak. Starting at No. 2, Fullerton had a birdie, birdie, eagle and birdie in four holes. He's the fourth player in tourney history to accomplish the fete.

■ First-round co-leader Trevor Murphy shot a 1-under 71 on Friday and is sitting tied for fifth at 7-under par.

■ Steve Saunders and Jose de Jesus Rodriguez each shot 66s Friday afternoon at MCC. The two also made the cut. Both players rebounded from first round 75s.

■ Glen Day withdrew from the tournament after shooting a 79 on Thursday.

Harris boosts Mavs vs. Spurs again — 8 years later

By Schuyler Dixon
Associated Press

DALLAS — Devin Harris was a young lottery pick the last time he helped the Dallas Mavericks have an answer for San Antonio's Tony Parker in the playoffs.

Eight years, three trades and one toe operation later, he's doing it again.

Harris is even the leading scorer for Dallas — yes, ahead of Dirk Nowitzki — with the first-round series tied heading into Game 3 on Saturday.

"It's why I wanted to come back, to be in this type of situation and play in these types of games and be in this type of series," Harris said. "It's perfect."

Harris was in his second season in 2006 after the Mavericks traded up to get him with the fifth pick in the 2004 draft. His first career playoff start was Game 2 of the second round against the top-seeded Spurs, the first of three straight Dallas wins.

The speed of Harris gave the Mavericks something they lacked in trying to keep up with Parker, and they pulled the upset in seven games on their way to the NBA Finals for the first time in franchise history. Dallas lost to Miami in six games.

Fast forward to this week, and Harris led the eighth-seeded Mavericks with 19 points to put them in position to win the opener before the team went cold late and lost. He had 18 points in a Game 2 win, outscoring Parker by six.

"He's been great," Nowitzki said. "He's a big key for us off the bench. We don't have a lot of penetrators out there. He's been great on both ends of the floor."

Harris went to New Jersey in a 2008 trade for Jason Kidd, who was the point guard for the franchise's first championship when Dallas won a rematch with the Heat in 2011. The Nets shipped him to Utah in another deadline deal the year Dallas won the title, this time for Deron Williams. The Jazz sent him to Atlanta during the offseason in 2012.

When he finally had a chance to pick his own team, Harris agreed with Dallas on a three-year, $9 million contract that was scuttled after the extent of his toe injury was discovered, along with the need for offseason surgery.

Harris settled for a one-year deal for the veteran minimum of $1.3 million, then had a setback in his recovery and missed the first 41 games.

"We had to express some patience and just continue to work," the 31-year-old said. "I knew at some point I'd be able to get back. I just didn't know when."

The Mavericks have another speedy, penetrating guard in Monta Ellis, and Harris doesn't have to carry much of the defensive load trying to keep Parker out of the lane. Most of that duty has fallen to Shawn Marion so far.

But without Harris, the Mavericks would be counting on rookies Shane Larkin and Gal Mekel to relieve Ellis and starting point guard Jose Calderon.

"Right now it's winning time and you love experience," Nowitzki said. "As good sometimes (as) youth and freshness is and young legs, experience is a big key too."

Dallas' Devin Harris (20) is pressured by San Antonio's Patty Mills (8) during the second half of Game 1 of an opening-round playoff series on Sunday in San Antonio.

NBA will consider giving refs more replay rights

By Brian Mahoney
Associated Press

NEW YORK — After further review, the play stands as called.

Not because it was right, but because referees weren't allowed to determine it was wrong.

NBA officials were already considering expanding referees' instant replay options before two key plays in this postseason couldn't be changed even after refs saw them on the monitor.

For now, the rules are clear about what referees can look at. But Commissioner Adam Silver said the league will "inevitably" reach a point where they can do more.

"So far, in terms of all of our triggers, we've tried to maintain a line of what is clearly objectively ascertainable," Silver said Thursday. "You know, foot on the line or not, buzzer or not. My sense is where we'll end up is giving the referees more discretion over what they can look at once we go to replay."

Silver's comments to a group of Associated Press Sports Editors came hours before Atlanta's Jeff Teague tossed in a wild 3-pointer as he dribbled left with the shot clock winding down and the Hawks leading Indiana by six. When officials later reviewed the shot to see if Teague was behind the arc, it was clear he had first stepped out of bounds before shooting. As Indiana players screamed for the basket to be overturned, referee Tony Brothers explained that it couldn't be.

The Golden State Warriors hung on for a 109-105 victory over the Los Angeles Clippers in Game 1 of their series after a similar replay issue. When officials went to the monitor to review a ball out of bounds with 18.9 seconds left and Golden State leading by two, they could see that the Warriors' Draymond Green had first fouled Chris Paul. However, because that wasn't reviewable, all they could rule was the ball had gone off of Paul.

Silver said it's confusing for viewers to see something obvious on replay, yet the officials appear to have "blinders" on and do nothing about it.

"I think the most difficult area now, even for our fans to understand, is when an official can go to replay and everyone can see something that looks like a foul or wasn't a foul, but yet the official is restricted from being able to apply, in essence, his judgment on the play," Silver said. "And I think that's an area that I think inevitably we're going to reach, where an official is going to need to have some more discretion."

But senior vice president of basketball operations Kiki VanDeWeghe said it's a bit of a "slippery slope" in determining how far officials can look backward before the play they are reviewing.

"Those are things that when you start to have subjective calls and you're looking at a lot of things, and you're giving more discretion on what to look at, those are the problems and the issues that you try to figure out," VanDeWeghe said. "But like Adam said, giving the referees a little bit more discretion when there's something obvious that happens within the context of the foul, you want to get it right."

Clippers coach Doc Rivers, a member of the league's competition committee, said the committee talked about it last year. They apparently had the same concerns as VanDeWeghe.

"It's a hard one. It really is," Rivers said. "We all want them to get everything right. But how far does that go when you start doing that? How far do you go on that? Did he step on the line? Well, maybe he fouled him. But there was a travel down there. Look, there. At some point, is it just on the ball? Is it off the ball? It can go a long way. Just think, right now we're looking at one play and it takes five minutes. If you start doing that, it may take forever."

RANGERS 1

PHILADELPHIA — Steve Mason stopped 37 shots in his first start of the series, Matt Read and Jakub Voracek scored and the Philadelphia Flyers evened the first-round matchup with a 2-1 win over the New York Rangers in Game 4 on Friday night.

Ray Emery started the first three games for Mason, who was out with an upper-body injury. Mason played the final 7:15 in a 4-1 loss Tuesday night.

Mason was just getting warmed up. He played perhaps his best game of the season, shutting down a Rangers team that pressured him with shots all game. He was a wall in the final tense minutes when the Rangers pulled goalie Henrik Lundqvist for the extra attacker.

BLACKHAWKS 3
BLUES 2, OT

ST. LOUIS — Jonathan Toews scored on a breakaway at 7:36 of overtime Friday night, giving the Chicago Blackhawks a 3-2 victory over the St. Louis Blues and a 3-2 series lead.

Marian Hossa and Ben Smith also scored for the defending Stanley Cup champions, who have won three in a row and can wrap up the first-round series at home Sunday. Four of the first five games in the series have gone to overtime.

CLASS 5A MHS' GOODLEY HEADED TO 100 FINAL

LUBBOCK — Midland High senior De'Andre Goodley qualified for the finals in the 100-meter dash at the Region I-5A Track & Field Championships at Fuller Stadium.

Goodley clocked in at 10.64 seconds and was fourth overall of the eight runners that qualified for today's finals. Midland High coach Jeff Streun said that Goodley's best time this year was a 10.59.

"It's going to come down to the last 10 meters, and it's going to be a close race," Midland High coach Jeff Streun said. "He usually gets a better start, and he didn't get a very good start today for some reason, and he knew it. But he finished really well, if we can put both together tomorrow and we will see what happens."

Sophomore Ruben Guerra finished ninth overall in the 3,200 meters with a time of 10 minutes, 12.05 seconds, and his finish was seven places better than his seeding time.

"He was fired up when it was over," Streun said. "He was glad to be here and he got some good experience out of it."

Also for the Midland High boys, Kaleb Slack finished 10th in the pole vault, coming in at 13 feet, 6 inches.

The Lee boys 800 meter relay team was 15th overall in the heats, and the 1,600-meter relay team had a false start that eliminated it from competition.

On the girls side, Lee's Ashley Hackow finished 11th in the long jump with a mark of 16 feet, 6 1/2 inches.

For Midland High, the 800-meter relay team finished 12th in qualifications.

'The King' returns to track after mourning wife

By Hank Kurz Jr.
Associated Press

RICHMOND, Va. — The King is back.

Richard Petty returned to the race track on Friday for the first time since the death of his wife. Lynda Petty, the seven-time NASCAR champion's partner of 57 years, died of cancer on March 25.

Petty said he needed some time on his own and skipped races at Martinsville, Texas and Darlington before a large family Easter celebration at home last weekend.

"I am back in the saddle again now," the Hall of Famer said Friday at Richmond International Raceway. "I am just learning to live all over again."

This week, he joined the team for appearances in Georgia on Monday, Tennessee on Tuesday and Wyoming on Wednesday before getting to Richmond on Thursday.

"The busier they keep me, the better off I will be," Petty said.

And the happier his team, too.

"To have him back and have him back on top of the trailer and in the garage with us will be big," said Aric Almirola, who drives the No. 43 car that Petty made famous in winning 200 career races. "It is big for me as a driver but really for our entire race team, to have his presence back, is going to be huge."

Early Friday, Petty and Richard Petty Motorsports driver Marcos Ambrose unveiled a new paint scheme for Saturday night's race highlighting Children's Miracle Network Hospitals on his No. 9 Ford.

If Ambrose wins Saturday night's race, his sponsor Stanley will donate $1 million to CMN. If he finishes second, it will donate $500,000 and $250,000 for third.

The family has been integral in the development of the Victory Junction Gang Camp for children with serious illnesses after Petty's grandson, Adam, died in a racing accident at Loudon, N.H., in 2000. He said charitable work remind him of his good fortune.

Petty

"I think it kind of pacifies myself from the standpoint that we have troubles, but a lot of other people have a lot of other trouble," he said. "Like with Victory Junction Gang camp and other stuff that we do, we're so fortunate. I had four kids and 12 grandkids and every one of them was perfectly healthy.

"And you look at all the people that are not that way."

Ambrose leads all drivers in average finish on short tracks this season, having finished in the top five at both Bristol Motor Speedway and Martinsville Speedway. He'd love nothing better than to welcome the boss back to the race track with a victory that benefits children.

"We have a chance to win a million bucks for the sick kids in the Children's Hospitals and we have a chance to make the Chase and a chance to win my first oval race," Ambrose said. "I guess it is all stacked up to be a lot of reasons to win, and we know it."

Rain gives rookie Larson top spot at Richmond

By Hank Kurz Jr.
Associated Press

RICHMOND, Va. — Kyle Larson still wants to earn a pole position on his own, but he's not complaining about being handed his first one.

The rookie will start in the top spot Saturday night in the NASCAR race at Richmond International Raceway after a thunderstorm washed out qualifying.

"I'm still happy," he said Friday. "But yeah it would be nice to get a legit pole. I don't know if we would have gotten it had it not rained."

Actually, he probably wouldn't have.

The field was set based on the fastest laps run in the first practice, and Larson had his best run his the third of his 70 laps around the 0.75-mile oval. His top lap of 126.880 mph easily beat runner-up Brad Keselowski, whose beet came at 126.192 mph, and No. 3 starter Clint Bowyer (125.900 mph).

The top starting spot comes in just the 13th Sprint Cup Series race for Larson, including eight this season.

When the team worked on qualifying in the final practice session, "We were seven-tenths slower than our lap that we laid down in first practice and almost two-and-a-half tenths slower than the fastest guy in second practice. I doubt we would have been on the pole, but I will take it how we get it."

Unlike Larson, Keselowski's starting spot is not unusual. The race will mark the seventh time in nine races he has started in the top five.

"We would still like to qualify and have a shot at the pole but we foresaw this coming and put a little extra emphasis in the practice sessions to get a good run out of it and a good spot, and I am glad to see that kind of panned out for us," Keselowski said, referring to forecasts for rain during the day.

Bowyer and Kasey Kahne complete the second row, and the top 10 also will include defending race winner Kevin Harvick in fifth, followed by Brian Vickers, Jamie McMurray, Ryan Truex, Paul Menard and Jimmie Johnson. Jeff Gordon, the points leader through eight races, will start 25th.

Historic day as Northwestern players decide on forming a union

By Jason Keyser and Michael Tarm
Associated Press

EVANSTON, Ill. — In a historic vote, Northwestern University football players cast secret ballots Friday on whether to form the nation's first union for college athletes — a decision that could change the landscape of American amateur sports.

"You got to give the people what they want!" one of the players shouted at reporters, who were kept away from the players as they entered a campus building to vote. Some waved and another showed off some dance moves.

The results of the closely watched vote will not be known for some time. After two rounds of voting on this 19,000-student campus, the ballot boxes were sealed and will remain so for weeks, months, perhaps even years as the university challenges the effort to unionize the team.

Still, some of those behind the push were already celebrating, saying that even if a union is voted down, the campaign has the power to change things.

"We're one step closer to a world where college athletes are not stuck with sports-related medical bills, do not lose their scholarships when they are injured, are not subject to unnecessary brain trauma and are given better opportunities to complete their degree," said former Northwestern quarterback Kain Colter, who helped lead the effort with the help of the United Steelworkers.

The full National Labor Relations Board has agreed to hear the Northwestern's appeal of a regional director's March ruling that the players are university employees and thus can unionize. Ballots will remain impounded until that process is finished, and perhaps until after any court fight that might follow a decision.

Supporters say a union would help athletes obtain better compensation, medical care for injuries and other benefits. One day before the vote, the NCAA endorsed a plan that would give big schools like Northwestern much more autonomy to address such issues for its athletes.

None of the players participating in the voting stopped to talk with reporters, but the excitement of some was evident as they waved or thrust their arms into the air in view of TV news cameras. Sophomore Michael Odom, 20, said he quit the team a couple months ago because the demands of playing football were detracting from his studies for a journalism degree. Though he wasn't eligible to vote, he called a union "long overdue" and had heard from his former teammates they felt pressured to vote against it.

"I don't know if intimidation is the word I'd use. I think that's a little strong. I know a lot of my teammates have been influenced by former players as well as coaches and officials at the university," Odom said, adding that parents got emails from university officials urging them to press their children to vote no.

"It seems like things are kind of leaning toward 'no,'" he said of the overall vote.

'72 Dolphins' Backup QB Morrall dies

By Steven Wine
Associated Press

MIAMI — Earl Morrall stepped in when the 1972 Miami Dolphins needed him most. And then he willingly stepped aside, earning enduring admiration from his teammates and coach Don Shula.

Morrall, who started 11 games during the Dolphins' perfect season and spent 21 years as an NFL quarterback, died Friday at age 79. He had been in failing health for some time.

"There would be no perfect season, and probably no Super Bowl win in 1972, without Earl Morrall," Bob Griese said Friday.

When Griese broke his ankle in 1972, Morrall came off the bench and started the final nine games of the regular season. Morrall won praise from Shula for returning to the sideline without complaint when Griese came back to play in the final two postseason games, including the Super Bowl to cap the only perfect season in NFL history.

Morrall also played for the 49ers, Steelers, Lions, Giants and Colts, winning three Super Bowl rings. He came off the bench to replace an injured Johnny Unitas and help the Colts win the Super Bowl to cap the 1970 season, and he was the backup to Griese on the Dolphins' 1973 championship team.

The '72 Dolphins were led by such future Pro Football Hall of Famers as Shula, Griese, Larry Csonka and Paul Warfield, but their season might be long forgotten if not for Morrall, then regarded as a journeyman who looked the part with his old-school flattop haircut.

That's why Shula — who also coached Unitas and Dan Marino — held Morrall in special regard as a quarterback.

"When Bob went down, Earl stepped in like nothing happened, and we just won all the games," Shula said in a 2007 interview. "Then Griese was healthy for the AFC championship game against Pittsburgh, and I put Bob in the second half and he helped us come from behind and win the game.

Supercross heading to MetLife Stadium

By John Marshall
Associated Press

Supercross has been making huge inroads over the past few years, locking up new televisions deals, sponsorships and growing its fan base.

But for all the sport has done to increase its popularity, there is one area it's had a hard time cracking, at least on an in-person scale: The Northeast.

That changes this weekend.

For the first time in 23 years, Supercross will hit the big stage of the Big Apple, giving the sport a massive exposure boost in what has been a largely untapped market.

"This will probably be one of the single largest, significant impacts to the sport of Supercross, getting into the New York Metropolitan area," said Todd Jendro, vice president of two wheel operations at Feld Motor Sports, which oversees and operates Supercross.

Supercross has spread across most of the country during its 40 years as a sport, yet had not been to the New York area since racing at Giants Stadium in 1991. The series currently has stops in Toronto, Detroit and Atlanta but nothing really close to New York.

Tonight's race at MetLife Stadium in East Rutherford, N.J., will be a huge step.

"There is a great fan base in the New York Metropolitan area, including New Jersey and the surrounding states," Jendro said. "It should be a huge boost for the sport."

Funeral plants and flowers should be shared by mourners

DEAR ABBY

Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069. Her column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

DEAR ABBY: My father passed away recently. Flowers and plants were sent to the funeral home. After the funeral mass, the flowers were sent to the cemetery for the gravesite services. Afterward, I was asked to go to the funeral home to pick them up.

When I arrived, I saw my sister-in-law taking the plant her employer had sent into her car. She said it was HER plant. The next day, my other sister-in-law went to my mother's house to retrieve the plant HER company had sent.

Abby, I have never heard of this. I thought that because the flowers and plants had been sent to my mother, it should be up to her to decide whether or not she wants to distribute them. After all, she's the one suffering the greatest loss. What is the proper procedure for plants to be distributed after a funeral? — CHRISTINE IN MISSOURI

DEAR CHRISTINE: The plants should be shared. Your mother is not the only person who is grieving. Your sisters-in-law are married to the sons of the deceased, so they should have the plants their employers sent to the funeral.

When there are more flowers and plants than the family can enjoy, people often have them delivered to nursing homes or homes for the elderly or disabled, where they can lend a burst of color and good cheer.

P.S. Thank-yous to the senders should be sent by your sisters-in-law for the plants they took.

DEAR ABBY: It seems strange to write to you, but I'd like to share this story about how small acts of kindness can multiply.

On a dark, miserable afternoon, I was out grocery shopping. The woman in line in front of me had two small children and two full carts of groceries. When all her bags were loaded, she began frantically searching in her purse for her car keys. When she couldn't find them, she realized that, in her haste, she had locked them inside her car. I asked if I could drive her home to get a spare key and she agreed.

I helped her into her house with her bags of groceries, then drove them all back to the store for her car. "How can I ever thank you?" she asked. My reply was, "No thanks are needed; just pass it on."

Two weeks later, I was at a party when a couple walked into the living room and the woman excitedly said, "There she is!" It was the woman from the market. She rushed over and proceeded to tell everyone how we met.

Then she said she'd had her chance to "pass it on." I asked what she told the person who had thanked HER, and she said, "I said what you did, 'No thanks are needed — pass it on!'"

Small kindnesses bring big rewards. If anyone has been the recipient of an act of kindness, remember to pass it on. It's the Golden Rule.

Thanks, Dear Abby — you "pass on" kindness with each column you write. — LIVING THE GOLDEN RULE IN WASHINGTON

DEAR LIVING THE GOLDEN RULE: I am a firm believer in passing it on and have long shared that philosophy with friends. However, regardless of how long you preach, the best sermon is a good example.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, April 26, 2014:

This year you have a very active dream life, and your imagination often takes off on wild flights of fancy. You will need to demonstrate self-discipline in order to stay present at work and/or in other important situations. If you are single, you often meet people, but quickly lose interest. Don't be concerned — you will know when you meet the right person. A love of music might draw you to that person. If you are attached, the two of you might opt for a major change involving your digs. You could remodel or decide to move to a long-desired place. ARIES might say little, but he or she understands you well.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★ Appreciate the weekend, and make it an enjoyable time for you as well as others. Somewhere in the recesses of your mind, you have a desire to do something rather offbeat. Tonight: Surround yourself with good music and friends.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★ The best intentions can fall to the wayside when you decide to change your plans. Indulge yourself and a need to be quieter than you originally thought. Your instincts point to inviting a special person over. Why not give him or her a call? Tonight: Play it easy, but enjoy the moment.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★★ You might want to question some basic tenets presented by a boss or higher-up. You could feel as if a long-term dream isn't grounded. Choose to be flexible with the moment. A partner or dear loved one is instrumental to your plans. Tonight: Follow the music.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★ Keep seeking out answers until you are satisfied with a situation surrounding an older loved one. Reach out to a friend or loved one at a distance. You might make plans very soon to meet, perhaps somewhere halfway between your homes. Tonight: Paint the town red.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★ A loved one will want to take charge and handle the plans. You could be surprised at how a personal matter resolves itself. Now you can make time for a friend or older relative, even if it is just a lengthy chat on the phone. Tonight: Go along with someone else's plans.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★ You could discover how important a close friend is to you. Not only does the caring flow, but this person also makes your life easier. Don't share your special time together with anyone else right now. You'll want to relate on a one-on-one level. Tonight: A close encounter.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★ Others could be so domineering that you might want to run away. You have not been in the best of moods, and perhaps you'd prefer to spend some quiet, relaxing time with someone you enjoy. Be direct in how you handle a difficult person. Tonight: Choose for you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★ Start working on a project that you have been putting off for some time. You might not be sure what the best way to handle a problem is. Try to avoid conflict, and don't escalate irritation over the existing issue. Tonight: Relax — you can choose to stay home.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★ Stay centered, and remain sure about what you want from a domestic matter. You have a vision of what should be happening, but it might not conform to reality. Have a practical discussion with someone who has similar values. Tonight: Flex with someone's wild idea.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★ You'll want to stay centered when having an important discussion. You have a vision of what you want, but you need to communicate it. Don't be surprised if someone asks you whether you are serious. After all, you usually are very practical. Tonight: Invite friends over for a pizza.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★ Your idea of what might be possible could change as you attempt to carry out a long-desired plan. Discussions will be animated, and they'll attract others' attention. Listen to someone you consider conservative yet full of good ideas. Tonight: Share a new interest.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★ You'll start with the best intentions, as you might want to add a couple of new items to your home or wardrobe. What starts out as a good plan could evolve into a major shopping spree. An idea you have might inspire you to want more. Tonight: Meet friends for dinner.

Funeral plants and flowers should be shared by mourners

DEAR ABBY

Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069. Her column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

DEAR ABBY: My father passed away recently. Flowers and plants were sent to the funeral home. After the funeral mass, the flowers were sent to the cemetery for the gravesite services. Afterward, I was asked to go to the funeral home to pick them up.

When I arrived, I saw my sister-in-law taking the plant her employer had sent into her car. She said it was HER plant. The next day, my other sister-in-law went to my mother's house to retrieve the plant HER company had sent.

Abby, I have never heard of this. I thought that because the flowers and plants had been sent to my mother, it should be up to her to decide whether or not she wants to distribute them. After all, she's the one suffering the greatest loss. What is the proper procedure for plants to be distributed after a funeral? — CHRISTINE IN MISSOURI

DEAR CHRISTINE: The plants should be shared. Your mother is not the only person who is grieving. Your sisters-in-law are married to the sons of the deceased, so they should have the plants their employers sent to the funeral.

When there are more flowers and plants than the family can enjoy, people often have them delivered to nursing homes or homes for the elderly or disabled, where they can lend a burst of color and good cheer.

P.S. Thank-yous to the senders should be sent by your sisters-in-law for the plants they took.

DEAR ABBY: It seems strange to write to you, but I'd like to share this story about how small acts of kindness can multiply.

On a dark, miserable afternoon, I was out grocery shopping. The woman in line in front of me had two small children and two full carts of groceries. When all her bags were loaded, she began frantically searching in her purse for her car keys. When she couldn't find them, she realized that, in her haste, she had locked them inside her car. I asked if I could drive her home to get a spare key and she agreed.

I helped her into her house with her bags of groceries, then drove them all back to the store for her car. "How can I ever thank you?" she asked. My reply was, "No thanks are needed; just pass it on."

Two weeks later, I was at a party when a couple walked into the living room and the woman excitedly said, "There she is!" It was the woman from the market. She rushed over and proceeded to tell everyone how we met.

Then she said she'd had her chance to "pass it on." I asked what she told the person who had thanked HER, and she said, "I said what you did, 'No thanks are needed — pass it on!'"

Small kindnesses bring big rewards. If anyone has been the recipient of an act of kindness, remember to pass it on. It's the Golden Rule.

Thanks, Dear Abby — you "pass on" kindness with each column you write. — LIVING THE GOLDEN RULE IN WASHINGTON

DEAR LIVING THE GOLDEN RULE: I am a firm believer in passing it on and have long shared that philosophy with friends. However, regardless of how long you preach, the best sermon is a good example.

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS

The stars show the kind of day you'll have: 5-dynamic; 4-positive; 3-average; 2-so-so; 1-difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, April 26, 2014:

This year you have a very active dream life, and your imagination often takes off on wild flights of fancy. You will need to demonstrate self-discipline in order to stay present at work and/or in other important situations. If you are single, you often meet people, but quickly lose interest. Don't be concerned — you will know when you meet the right person. A love of music might draw you to that person. If you are attached, the two of you might opt for a major change involving your digs. You could remodel or decide to move to a long-desired place. ARIES might say little, but he or she understands you well.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★ Appreciate the weekend, and make it an enjoyable time for you as well as others. Somewhere in the recesses of your mind, you have a desire to do something rather offbeat. Tonight: Surround yourself with good music and friends.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★ The best intentions can fall to the wayside when you decide to change your plans. Indulge yourself and a need to be quieter than you originally thought. Your instincts point to inviting a special person over. Why not give him or her a call? Tonight: Play it easy, but enjoy the moment.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★★ You might want to question some basic tenets presented by a boss or higher-up. You could feel as if a long-term dream isn't grounded. Choose to be flexible with the moment. A partner or dear loved one is instrumental to your plans. Tonight: Follow the music.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★ Keep seeking out answers until you are satisfied with a situation surrounding an older loved one. Reach out to a friend or loved one at a distance. You might make plans very soon to meet, perhaps somewhere halfway between your homes. Tonight: Paint the town red.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★ A loved one will want to take charge and handle the plans. You could be surprised at how a personal matter resolves itself. Now you can make time for a friend or older relative, even if it is just a lengthy chat on the phone. Tonight: Go along with someone else's plans.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★ You could discover how important a close friend is to you. Not only does the caring flow, but this person also makes your life easier. Don't share your special time together with anyone else right now. You'll want to relate on a one-on-one level. Tonight: A close encounter.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★ Others could be so domineering that you might want to run away. You have not been in the best of moods, and perhaps you'd prefer to spend some quiet, relaxing time with someone you enjoy. Be direct in how you handle a difficult person. Tonight: Choose for you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★ Start working on a project that you have been putting off for some time. You might not be sure what the best way to handle a problem is. Try to avoid conflict, and don't escalate irritation over the existing issue. Tonight: Relax — you can choose to stay home.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★ Stay centered, and remain sure about what you want from a domestic matter. You have a vision of what should be happening, but it might not conform to reality. Have a practical discussion with someone who has similar values. Tonight: Flex with someone's wild idea.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★ You'll want to stay centered when having an important discussion. You have a vision of what you want, but you need to communicate it. Don't be surprised if someone asks you whether you are serious. After all, you usually are very practical. Tonight: Invite friends over for a pizza.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★ Your idea of what might be possible could change as you attempt to carry out a long-desired plan. Discussions will be animated, and they'll attract others' attention. Listen to someone you consider conservative yet full of good ideas. Tonight: Share a new interest.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★ You'll start with the best intentions, as you might want to add a couple of new items to your home or wardrobe. What starts out as a good plan could evolve into a major shopping spree. An idea you have might inspire you to want more. Tonight: Meet friends for dinner.

Ask the Guys

Dear Classified Guys,
I had a circumstance when selling my car that I don't think I could have imagined. I bought a small economical sedan for commuting and decided to sell my large six-cylinder SUV. Since I wasn't driving it, I kept very little gas in the tank, just under the quarter mark. A couple came to take it for a test-drive and while they were out "circling the block", they stopped by a gas station and filled it up. They claimed the gaslight came on and thought they were helping me out by filling up the tank. I probably wouldn't have minded if they bought the car, but they decided to pass and asked to be reimbursed for the gas. I couldn't believe it. I paid them to be polite, but now I have a car for sale with a full tank of gas. In the future how should I handle this? Should I tell everyone not to put gas in my car? I would have thought that was obvious!

Carry: When it comes to determining what people will do, we've learned that rarely is anything obvious. However, if you developed a list of everything not to do on a test-drive, people would never leave your driveway.

Cash: You did happen upon a rare situation. Not many individuals would invest money into filling up a gas tank knowing they may not buy the car. It's "obvious" this couple was simply trying to help!

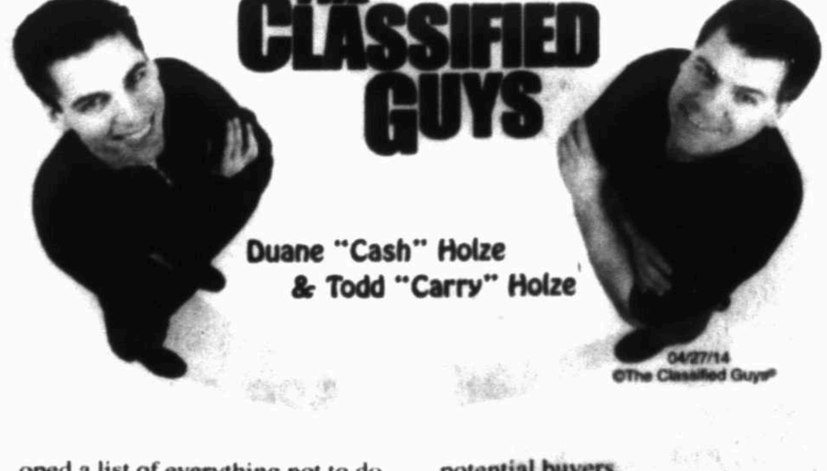

Carry: With today's gas prices, it's understandable you may want to minimize the amount of gas in your tank if you're selling the car. However, keeping it so low that the gaslight can turn on may be a bit too empty.

Cash: Any warning lights that come on during a test-drive do not leave a good impression with potential buyers.

Carry: To prevent situations like this from happening again, consider going along on the test-drive. That way you can make sure people avoid filling your gas tank and also drive your car carefully.

Cash: Also, it's always a good idea to make sure they have a valid driver's license before handing them the keys.

Carry: As for the SUV you have for sale, you might as well drive it around for a while to use up your new investment in gasoline. After all, regardless of the price of gas, a full tank doesn't increase a car's book value.

Fast Facts

Pumped Up

With gas prices setting all time highs, we all look for ways to increase fuel efficiency. However, one couple is taking it to the record books. Husband and wife John and Helen Taylor have set what is believed to be the world record on fuel economy. Using a standard Peugeot 407 HDi sedan, they traveled just over 898 miles between Darwin and Adelaide, Australia on just 30.5 gallons of fuel. Their entire journey, averaging 73.57 mpg, was done using only economical driving tips and no special equipment.

Driver's Ed

Who's a better driver: men or women? Everyone has their opinion, but the researchers at the John Hopkins School of Medicine and Public Health believe they have the answer. Studying statistics from numerous transportation reports, they determined that per million miles driven, men won out slightly with 5.1 crashes versus 5.7 for women. However, that's not the full story. Teenage boys had nearly 20% more crashes per mile driven than their female counterparts. Both genders were relatively equal between ages 20 and 35, but after age 35, female drivers had a greater risk of being involved in a car crash.

Topped Off

When I got my driver's license, I got a job at a very large self-service gas station. Since it was located on a busy highway, the station got a lot of traffic.

On my first day, the manager told me that one of my responsibilities was to walk the parking lot and pick up stray gas caps that people lost by not putting them back on their car. He showed me the big box under the counter where he kept the collection.

"People often come back looking for them," he said.

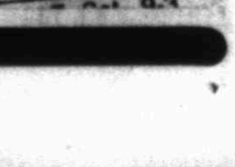

"Is that when you surprise them with this box of caps?" I asked.

"Sort of," the manager replied. "But we tell them replacement caps are $10."
