The Rev. W. E. Hamilton was re-named district superintendent.

Changes in the district boundaries brought about four new districts and placed Wellington and Dodson in the new Childress District, with headquarters at Childress.

Leo Huckabay Dies Monday of Heart Attack

Leo Huckabay, for a number of years a resident of the Lurie community, died Monday morning at 6:30 a.m. in the office of a Childress doctor, where he had been taken after becoming ill about two hours earlier. His death was attributed to a heart attack.

For the last five years, Mr. Huckabay and his family had lived approximately 20 miles south of Wellington in Childress County.

Funeral services were planned for Wednesday afternoon, June 4, at the First Baptist Church in Childress, with the Rev. Fred Johnson and the Rev. Ira Parrick officiating. Burial was in the Childress cemetery, with the Keloso Funeral Home in charge.

Mr. Huckabay was born in Oklahoma March 14, 1894, and at the time of his death he was 58 years, two months and 18 days of age.

He moved with his family to the Lurie community in 1935, and lived there until about five years ago, when they moved to Childress county. Mr. Huckabay had many friends in this area, who respected him for his honesty and regarded him as among the most reliable of their associates.

He was married June 13, 1923, to Sarah Fulton, in Chandler, Oklahoma.

Surviving Mr. Huckabay, in addition to his wife, are four children: Mrs. Elsie Saunders of Childress, Laverne and Willard Huckabay of the home address, and R. L. Huckabay of California. Funeral Services of Mrs. N. Shadid Held Here Friday

Funeral services for Mrs. N. Shadid, one of the pioneer settlers of Greer County, Oklahoma, were held at the First Baptist Church in Wellington Friday, May 30. Mrs. Shadid died last Wednesday, May 28, after having been confined to her bed for over a year and a half. She was 72 years, 8 months and 13 days of age.

Mrs. Shadid was born in Lebanon September 15, 1879. She was married to Nashey Shadid in New York in 1899 and that year they moved to the territory of Oklahoma that had only recently been opened to settlement. Mr. Shadid drew land in Western Oklahoma and settled 10 miles north of Mangum and it was there they lived for many years before moving to Mangum. Mrs. Shadid often recalled to her children that Tulsa and Oklahoma City were only tent cities with a few frame buildings at the time they came through on their way to the western part of the territory.

Freighting was done to Quanah, Texas and at certain intervals Mr. Shadid made the trip with a wagon train to bring back supplies enough to last for several months for it took practically a week to make the round trip allowing for the time it took to do their trading, and in wet weather when Red River was up Mr. Shadid would frequently be gone for a longer time because the freight train would have to wait for the river to go down. Mrs. Shadid knew all the hardships and loneliness of the early pioneer mothers, but she had a great love for this new land with its freedom and opportunity, and she relished the thought of bringing up her children in a place where they could obtain an education and worship without fear of persecution, for her family had known persecution at the hands of the Turks and the Russians because they were Christians. Mrs. Shadid remained a devout member of the Greek Orthodox Church until the day of her death.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. George Massad of Oklahoma City and Rev. Chester O'Brien of Wellington. Pall bearers were Abe Shadid, Coy Shadid, Hoy Shadid, Jack Shadid, Dr. Fred Shadid and Dr. Alex Shadid. Burial was made in the family plot in the Mangum cemetery by Keloso Funeral Home. Survivors are two sons, George of Wellington and John of Memphis; two daughters, Marie Shadid and Rose Shadid of Wellington, and two brothers, Ellis Shadid of Altus and Dr. M. Shadid of Elk City, Oklahoma.

Judge Gribble Elected State Democrat Elector

For the first time in the county's political history, Collingsworth will have an elector voting in the national electoral college. Judge Luther Gribble was named to that place in the state democratic convention held last week in San Antonio.

Representing the 18th Congressional committee, which selected men to cast the electoral votes, was Judge C. C. Bishop, also of Wellington.

Representing the county at the convention were Judge Bishop, chairman of the Collingsworth County delegation, Judge Gribble, Paul Spillman, Alex Coleman, S. B. Owen, Judge Cooke, and L. E. Ward, who held proxies.

Attending the convention with the delegates were two high school youths, James Glasscock and James Frederick LeDerer. Their trip was sponsored by the Wellington Chamber of Commerce, as an educational feature.

Judge Bishop explained that Judge Gribble is one of the three electoral delegates at large for the State. Texas is allowed one elector for each congressman and one for each senator, plus three delegates at large. Delegate from the 18th Congressional District is Lawrence Hagy of Amarillo.

Commenting on the convention, the chairman of the delegation said that in his opinion most of the convention was very orderly, after about an hour in which 41 delegates left to hold a convention of their own.

The caucus for the 18th district was held Monday night, and all plans formulated. They were made official by a single motion and vote on the floor the following morning. During the caucus recommendations were made for the various committees and delegates and alternates to the national convention were recommended.

Later, Judge Jimmy Weather- spoon of Hereford and Curtis Douglas of Pampa were elected delegates, and J. Claude Wells of Memphis, formerly of Wellington, and W. R. Rutherford of Dumas were elected alternates.

First 1952 Wheat Sells on Wellington Market Mon.

Two loads of wheat were delivered and sold in Wellington Tuesday morning, June 3, about 9:00 a.m., to open the 1952 market locally.

E. C. Alexander who lives near Dodson, sold a load to Singley Brothers, while Albert Fulcher of the Fresno community sold a load at J. E. Warrick & Co.

At least two loads of wheat brought in Monday were turned down because of the high moisture content.

Mr. Alexander delivered a load of 55 1/2 bushels, which tested 62 and was graded as No. 1 wheat.

He estimated that he will make around 20 bushels to the acre on this year's crop.

Singley Brothers paid Mr. Alexander $2.23 for this load, a premium of 20 cents above the market price of $2.03.

Mr. Fulcher brought in a load of approximately 30 bushels, which tested 61, with a 14 per cent moisture content.

Jones Singley of Singley Brothers and Earl Keller of J. E. Warrick & Co. estimate that the harvest will be going good within the next two or three days, or at least by Monday, barring rain.

On the whole, the crop will be much better than growers thought possible only a few weeks ago.

An overall county average of 18 bushels is thought to be not improbable, while some wheat in the south part of the county will make as much as 35 bushels per acre.

J. A. Scott, who lives on the county line south of Wellington, has a field which observers believe will make this top figure, while Clair Lawrence of Arlie has 275 acres that will make an estimated between 20 and 25 bushels. There is a considerable amount of 20 bushel wheat over the south part of the county.

Rain during the week end has dried sufficiently that harvest operations can go ahead as planned.

Wellington received .8 in the showers Saturday night and Sunday night, while the amount varied over the county. Earl Alexander, south of Wellington, reported only about .2 inch, while Pat Bradley, living at Abra, said an inch was measured for the two nights.

Ermer Lineburger, who lives a mile north and a mile west of Lurie, said .9 fell at his place during the week end, while Forrest Moody, living six miles east of Lurie, received an inch.

Cortez Barnett of Lone Mound reported the heaviest rainfall, an inch and a half for the two nights. The moisture was lighter south of Dozier, however.

Sudan Woman Killed by Lightning; Buried Here

Funeral services for Mrs. Charlie Skipper, who was killed by lightning at her farm home near Sudan on May 26, were held at the Church of Christ in Wellington May 28.

Her husband said that he and his boys were working on some farm implements when the lightning struck. She had just stepped out of the house and was only a few yards from the back porch when they saw the flash and Mrs. Skipper fell. They rushed over and started to carry her into the house but it was apparent that she had died instantly. No rain fell and there were only a few small rain clouds in sight at the time the lightning struck, Mr. Skipper said.

Funeral services were conducted in Sudan by Rev. Boyd Glover and in Wellington by Rev. Harrell

A. Collard. Pall bearers in Sudan were Calvin Wiseman, Johnny Bellar, Edd Bellar, Wes Chatwell, Oscar Bently and Tom King Jr. Pall bearers in Wellington were Jack Woodman, Heze Jones, Jones Singley, Velman Warrick, Emmett Wisdom and N. E. Childers. Burial was made in the Wellington cemetery by Keloso Funeral Home.

Mrs. Skipper, the former Jessie Houston, was born September 7, 1914. She married Charlie Skipper in Wellington in 1934. To this union four children were born. She survived by her husband, and three sons Billy Joe, Floyd and Lloyd who are twins, and a baby daughter, Sandra Charlene and by two brothers, Elbert E. Houston and Glen Houston and by a sister, Mrs. Wilburn Jones.

Norwood Program Not Contest

The regular "Grand Ole Opry" community musicals of the Samnorwood community in no way involves contests nor are they amateur contest programs; neither are any type of advertising, Orville Cunningham, superintendent of schools, said Wednesday morning, after reports had been given out in other towns to this effect.

"These twice-monthly programs are community affairs—places of good will for the towns around us. They are absolutely to entertain the people, and nothing else," Mr. Cunningham said.

He explained that anyone wishing to hear a certain group of musicians, or a definite type of entertainment, should contact him, or Mr. and Mrs. Bill King of Dozier, or Curtis Marchbanks of Wellington, and an effort will be made to schedule those entertainers for some future program.

Approximately 2,000 persons heard the entertainment held at the Norwood gym Friday night. They will be held twice monthly throughout the future.

United Gas Employees Moved To New Position

Employees who elected to remain with the United Gas Corporation and the pipe line company when the local office was turned over to the Lone Star Gas have been transferred to towns in South Texas.

The latest to leave are Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Hennard, who with their sons are moving Wednesday to Agua Dulce, 125 miles south of San Antonio.

Their oldest son, Arthur Stanley, is with the Tidelands Corporation at Pecos, and Wayne Donald, 17, is working in the wheat harvest this summer. The others, Robert Dale, 15, Wesley Lynn, 10, and Danny Ray, 8, accompanied their parents to their new home.

Mr. Hennard has been with the United Gas Pipe Line Company here 16 years and a company employee 18 years. He has been active in the Masonic Lodge and Eastern Star. He is past Master and a former District Deputy Grand Master of the Masons, and a past Worthy Patron of the Eastern Star. The family has been active in the First Christian Church.

"We really hate to leave Wellington and all the friends we have here," Mr. Hennard said shortly before the family left.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Kirby were also transferred to Agua Dulce. Mr. Kirby had been crew foreman for about 5 years here, coming from Shamrock. He has been with United Gas for more than 25 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Kirby were active in the Baptist Church. Jim Moore, who was local manager of the United Gas Company office here, was transferred to the office at Orange, and he, Mrs. (Continued on Page Twelve)

Daniels Open Campaign In Waco on May 29

WACO, May 29 — Attorney General Price Daniel made the restoration of "decency, integrity, and honor to the halls of our government" a number one issue as he opened his bid for an "overwhelming victory" in the U. S. Senate race here tonight.

Speaking from the McLennan County Courthouse lawn in Waco, where he attended Baylor University 20 years ago, Daniel declared: "We must get our country back to God and our government back to the people."

He laid out a specific, point-by-point program to fill what he described as "these two basic needs of America today."

Daniel, who has led the State's fight against Federal seizure of the tidelands, sharply rebuked President Truman for his threatened veto of the legislation restoring the tidelands to Texas saying that the President has "demonstrated that he does not know what this tidelands controversy is all about."

"The seizure of the Texas tidelands will go down in history as the blackest page in all this era of centralization and lack of morality," Daniel declared.

Daniel pledged to carry on the fight for Congress to override the veto and said he would advocate recognition by Congress of all terms of the Annexation Agreement by which Texas entered the Union.

In the major portion of his speech, Daniel set out a detailed 8-point program for "getting the government back into the hands of the people." This program included:

1. Establishment of binding preferential primaries to give the people more direct choice in selecting presidential nominees.

2. Adoption of the Gossett-Lodge amendment to give the people more voice in actual election of Presidents through changes in the Electoral College system.

3. Recapture and exercise of federal policy-making powers by the Congress, as the duly elected representatives of the people.

4. Lifting the censorship of non-military information imposed last year by the President, so the people may have the true facts necessary for self-government.

5. "Regaining control of the purse strings" by Congress to end waste, extravagance, high spending, and high taxing.

Daniel said this was necessary in order to balance the budget and at the same time have enough money to continue a strong preparedness program and "such valuable and constructive programs as REA, soil conservation, aid to the aged, bank deposit insurance, farm price supports, unemployment insurance, and fair treatment for our veterans, servicemen, and their dependents."

Daniel added: "We want those programs to work. We want no wasteful socialistic substitutes

BRAINY BEAUTY—For obvious reasons Patricia Ann Taylor of Xenia, O., is Southern Illinois University's homecoming Queen, and if readers can take their eyes from her, a look at her scholastic record shows a 4.893 average in 140.5 university quarter-hours, for which Pat has been awarded the Charles Neely Scholarship by the American Association of University Professors at Southern Illinois University.

such as socialized medicine, the Brannan Plan, and kindred measures."

6. Congress, "on behalf of the people, should assert its influence" to establish a positive and understandable foreign policy.

7. Definition of the powers of the President so as to prohibit seizure of property under the theories of "inherent powers" and "paramount rights."

8. Adoption of a general policy of returning to the States and local units of government every governmental power not necessarily connected with the constitutional functions of the federal government.

With this platform Daniel said

N. C. BEAM CHOSEN DELEGATE TO KIWANIS CONV. IN SEATTLE

Cameron Beam has been selected by the Wellington Kiwanis Club as their delegate to the annual convention of Kiwanis International to be held in Seattle, Washington June 15 to 19.

Outlining the program for the five-day convention, June 15-19, he said an exceptional panel of speakers and an elaborate program of entertainment await Seattle-bound Kiwanians.

Such well-known personalities as Theodore R. McKeldin, Governor of the State of Maryland; Clarence Manion, Dean of the University of Notre Dame Law School and author of the best seller, "The Key to Peace"; Frank E. Holman, Seattle, Past President of the American Bar Association; George A. Drew, leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons at Ottawa; Dr. J. D. Grey, Pastor of the First Baptist Church of New Orleans and President of the Southern Baptist Convention; and James M. (Jimmie) Fidler, Hollywood commentator and President of National Kids' Day Foundation, will address the Kiwanians in Seattle's huge Civic Auditorium. Several other prominent leaders from the United States and Canada have also been invited to speak.

The spectacular outdoors of the Pacific Northwest will serve as a backdrop to many of the recreational features planned for the conventioners, Club President Howard Oliphant said. Cruises on Puget Sound, garden, park and zoo tours and general sight-seeing will enable guests to visit all sections of this historic city, now celebrating its centennial.

The pendulum was first used for measuring the human pulse. St. Peter is said to be buried on the Vatican Hill in Rome.

It was only natural that he would have the opposition of "Washington influence—peddlers and 'yes-men' but he said he welcomed this because 'it will draw the issues clear and concise. On these issues I believe the people of Texas are ready for action.'

He called on his supporters "roll up a majority which will make the voice of Texas heard loud and clear in Washington."

ing its centennial.

The Main Feature Entertainment will observe this 100th anniversary, the club president continued, in its production of a complete drama colorfully re-enacting the historic trek of prospectors to the Alaskan gold fields. Entitled "The Gold Rush Days," this spectacle will be played in a pavilion on the University of Washington campus.

When Kiwanian husbands are in convention sessions, ladies and junior guests will be entertained by a variety of amusements, including a professional fashion and stage show produced by Seattle stylists; receptions, teas, and luncheons are still other attractions.

The social highlight of the convention is the annual President's Reception and Ball, honoring the 1951-52 president of Kiwanis International, Claude B. Hellmann of Baltimore.

Air Reservists Asked to Bring Records Up-to-Date

HQ, 3d AIR RESERVE DISTRICT, AUSTIN, TEXAS — 98 air reservists in the counties of the Childress area, have yet to bring their military records up-to-date in the current Air Force Reserve Inventory Survey.

The Childress area, is being surveyed by the 3d Air Reserve District in Austin, Texas, in one of the final inventories of the Texas and New Mexico District. Because the survey must cover a total of 8,367 square miles, mail type interviews are being used, rather than the personal type which were featured in previous surveys of smaller and closer populated areas.

Colonel W. B. Magness, executive officer for the 3d ARD, stated that the Childress survey was proving highly successful, in that the district has thus far received the completed forms of over 38 per cent of the total number of reservists scheduled for interview.

The survey, is not a part of any Air Force program to call reserves into active military service. The project began in the Childress area on April 10, and 98 reservists have not yet returned their completed forms to the district.

The primary object of the surveys, is to give the Air Force an over-all picture of its' reserve strength in the event of an all-out mobilization, however they are essentially interested in three things (1) the present civilian occupation of the reservist, (2) his dependents, and (3) his physical condition. All three play a major part in the status of the reservist in case of a re-call to active military duty.

Air Force reservists who have already completed and returned their survey forms, are requested to contact air reserve friends who may not have finished yet, and inform them that the Air Force is trying to contact them to correct their military records.

The ten counties included in the Childress area are Childress, Wheeler, Hardeman, Collingsworth, Knox, Hall, Foard, Donley, King and Briscoe.

Additional information on the survey may be obtained by writing the 3d Air Reserve District Headquarters, 1414 Lavaca Street, Austin, Texas.

To date, District Headquarters has been unable to contact the following reservists in the Wellington area.

Wheeler county: Shamrock: Edgar B. Range, Jr., Lyman C. Benson, Fred S. Farmer, Charles W. Kowin, Wesley B. Sims, Billy J. Whitfield and Clyde A. Whittle. Collingsworth County: Wellington, Texas: John T. Bray and J. M. Moore.

Dodson, Texas: Frank W. Gear. Samnorwood, Texas: James Cunningham.

Dozier, Texas: Reece Norman.

Picture of a Pair who just waked up

4-door, 6-passenger Special Sedan.

HERE in the driveway is a Buick. It has just arrived. It belongs to this proud young couple. They've just "arrived" too.

They've arrived at a discovery—the discovery that owning a Buick instead of a "low-priced car" isn't so much a matter of money.

It's a matter of knowing the facts of life. Buick prices are closer to the prices of smaller, less powerful, less distinguished cars than most people think.

Why don't you check into this?

You'll find you could pay $300 to $400 more — and still not match the horsepower of this nimble beauty.

You could pay hundreds of dollars more — and still not get any more interior room, or richer fabrics.

But that's only part of the story.

The big thing about any car is the way it goes. So you ought to find out how this car rides the road—the freedom from bobble and sway that cost a million real dollars to develop.

You ought to sample the way Dynaflo Drive* feeds the power — with a steady swoop and unbroken smoothness in city traffic, on hills, or out on the open road.

And you ought to know how it feels to touch off that Fireball 8 Engine. With all its might, this high-compression valve-in-head gets a lot of miles from a gallon of gas.

We'll tell you this—because a lot of folks have told us this: No matter what car you're driving now—no matter what cars you've looked at—they'll never seem the same after you try this one.

Just give us a chance to prove it — and you'll have a lot of fun.

A Blight On Texas

By FELIX R. McKNIGHT

The unvarnished version of the Texas Republican convention at Mineral Wells a few days ago should go on the record — with gloves off.

Why? Because it is conceivable that a President of the United States could be elected with the soiled votes that came out of that convention.

And the State of Texas should not be a party to a scandalous scheme of such import.

It makes no difference as to the candidate or party involved. If the Eisenhower forces had used the same tactics, this recital of facts would have to be written to shame their conduct.

Many thousands of good Texans, feeling that Mr. Taft is an honorable and able man favor his candidacy.

But one of them, in good conscience, would condone the fraud and deceit practiced by the Texas Taft machine in the illegal seating of many delegations that gave them control of the convention.

If a businessman used the same tactics he would be indicted and sent to prison by any American jury.

Why is there a license to steal in politics?

The sight of a coldly ruthless minority—simply because it was sitting in the seat of power—was new and unexpected for Texas, U.S.A.

Justice, consciences and integrity were checked at the door by some of this minority group with the whip hand.

Documented, legal facts were ignored. The chief charge against the Eisenhower delegation seemed to be that they were new, or "overnight Republicans." Yet, Mr. Henry Zweifel, GOP national committeeman from Texas and state campaign manager for Senator Taft, had invited Democrats into the Republican party several weeks before the county conventions.

He is on record with that public statement.

The case of Rusk County is typical of the Zweifel steamroller.

At its county convention the chairman, a Taft man, was unseated by a sizable majority after the meeting had been called to order. He did not bolt, but stayed until adjournment.

Testimony even revealed that he finally voted for an Eisenhower delegation to the state convention, commenting:

If you can't beat 'em, join 'em." The Eisenhower delegation, which had signed the required pledge of "I am a Republican," was legally certified with the Secretary of State.

But days later, the ousted Taft county chairman—the man who did not bolt and even voted for Eisenhower—suddenly sent a list of Taft delegates to the Secretary of State. And no evidence was presented to show that they had even met!

Who was seated by the GOP State Executive Committee? The Taft delegation.

Or take another fraudulent case—that of Harris County with its big 144 votes. Some Taft precincts in Harris County did file contests. But even if they had all been allowed, there was still a large Eisenhower majority.

But the executive committee threw out EVERY Eisenhower delegate from Harris County and seated the entire Taft slate. And so it went on practically every contest.

To climax it all, the Zweifel machine then permitted every illegally seated Taft delegation to vote for seating themselves at the state convention—502 votes, or control of the convention!

Not only did the minority crowd have the executive and credentials committees jammed with their people to carry out the conspiracy, they also had the place effectively policed with a bottery of sergeants-at-arms to keep the steamroller's path clear.

It is too true that political shenanigans in the past have been amusing. Some newspapers have been guilty, along with the public, in accepting it as just political hogwash that amounted to little.

There was a time when folks had a good laugh when Duval County checked in with its 4,999 votes for John Jones and only 3 for Joe Smith.

But The Dallas Morning News does not think Duval County or GOP state conventions such as the one just concluded are funny.

It will strive to prove that it is very unfunny.

It is true that David Ingalls, national campaign chairman for Senator Taft, and Carroll Reece, southern campaign manager, were both present at the Mineral Wells fiasco.

So far, no disavowal of tactics used by his Texas campaign leaders has come from Senator Taft. That is disappointing.

But if this affair ever reaches the floor of the GOP national convention—out in full glare before millions of television viewers and radio listeners—it will become a national scandal.

It was that bad. — Dallas News

Behind the Iron Curtain they're frowning upon lovers who try to hide themselves from the public view. Probably the Red Chinese influence, what with all those Toms from Peiping.

Pacing pickets have been marching in front of an Irish pub for the past 13 years. Could they be the foot-sore boys who inspired the song, "Rocky Road to Dublin?"

The New China News agency reports that Red China is ready to enter trade relations with other countries. If their tradesmen are like their "volunteers" at the truce talks, the trade will be limited to insults.

SCHOOL OF AMERICAN STUDIES

Edison dreamed of illuminating the world with the "electric light." Marconi talked and dreamed of spanning all space with "wireless" communication. Mothers have dreamed dreams for the happiness of their children; and the children have built aircrafts with their own dreams. Throughout history persons of low and high stations in life have had their dreams; and, in this great New World of freedom in which we are privileged to live, many of the dreams have come true.

The fulfillment of one of my most cherished dreams is beginning to take shape as a new building begins to rise on the Harding College campus. The steel and brick are on the ground. The building will go up rapidly. It will house Harding's new School of American Studies. The structure will be simple, though modern. In it we plan to place one of the most important small groups of teachers ever assembled.

IMPACT ON MINDS

This new School of American Studies could prove to be even more important to human progress than Edison's development of the "electric light" and Marconi's "wireless" that brought on radio, radar and television. Its impact will be felt on the minds of people in a time of grave spiritual and ideological confusion. One of the major objectives of the faculty of this unique "Pilot Plant" school will be to build and coordinate textbook material placing American history, economics, and government in their proper frame with relationship to the development of our productive economy and the personal freedoms which have contributed so much to our happiness.

Fifty undergraduates will be enrolled in the new educational "Pilot Plant" in its first year, and an equal number annually thereafter. Then, each year, beginning with the fourth year, approximately 50 will graduate and each will enter the field of his choice with a great appreciation of basic American principles and an unusually clear understanding of why they are so important to the future welfare of the human race.

MATERIAL NOT AVAILABLE

Students enrolling in the new school will get three years of general education, with emphasis on economics, history and government; and the fourth year each will select his field for specialization—school administration, industrial administration, or government administration. In each case actual field experience will be utilized along with classroom studies. Youth preparing for governmental service will do considerable work in county courthouses and city halls; those choosing the educational profession will get acquainted first hand with school administrative problems; and those preparing to enter the business world will spend time in the actual operation of businesses and industries.

Scores of school people whom I have contacted during the past year have said to me: "We want to teach a better appreciation of our American way of life and a better understanding of what makes it tick, but adequate materials—textbooks and supplemental reading—are not available." Representatives from some 40 high schools, colleges and universities have come to us during the past year seeking materials of this nature.

SCHOOL PEOPLE EAGER Just last week at the 12th Harding College Freedom Forum, our semi-annual seminar in Americanism for school and industry and community leaders, we had a number of public school superintendents in attendance, all looking for suitable materials and techniques. An incident occurred which illustrates both the need for raw materials and the eagerness of most school people to put such materials to work. Among our Forum conferees were a high school principal and the director of secondary education from an eastern city.

They took home with them two kits of Harding College materials. One was a flannel-board presentation entitled "This Is Our Problem." They told us they were going to master this presentation while driving home together and present it to their school board a few days later—so that an educational "workshop" might be authorized for the school people of their area during the summer, to develop new American citizenship training courses for their school beginning next September. Our new School of American Studies is being established because of a nationwide recognition of such needs.

Another Panmunjom?

Lord Jim Says--

By Bill Hughes

"The boss arrived in California in the rain and it was still raining when he landed at the Municipal Airport in San Francisco.

But that afternoon the sun was out and the next day, Friday, March 21st, at 9:00 a. m. as the tugs moved them out from the pier at Alameda and "The Sweetpea" got under way, the sun shone down out of a clear blue sky into the even bluer water of the bay." The band was playing. It was very exciting. But emotions were strikingly mixed. To the ships company and to their families on the pier it was a parting, but not too different from peace time routine Navy life. But aboard also was Air Group 19 and on the pier were their young brides and young families, parting some never again to meet because these boys were going combat flying over Korea where whatever you choose to call it, the ammunition to be given and taken is real and death the price. All the music, color, and excitement only heightened this sudden flash of reality.

As we moved down the channel of the bay, passing under the Oakland bridge, the white city of San Francisco shone from the summits of the green hills to the waters edge of the western bay shore. Starboard and astern lay Oakland and Alameda. Past Alcatraz under the Golden Gate bridge we sailed majestically past incoming freighters and tankers, to the open sea.

It was a calm sea but my legs suddenly lost their usual strength and became tricky. We were looking toward the first ship board gathering in the officer's mess, but by noon a few faces had disappeared and even I wasn't sure. But it was a splendid lunch that did away with some of the rubber in my legs.

That afternoon a Navy land-based bomber from Alameda appeared towing a long thin target sleeve. A private war began. First the five "inches" shook hell out of the place. Then the rest of forty MMs took their turns beating a staccato tattoo into the blue. Four sleeves sank into the deep.

All were at general quarters (combat stations), helmets, life jackets, the works. I thought the helmets kind of silly until later walking among the planes tied down on the flight deck I began to pick up pieces of shrapnel which had come back aboard from some of the overhead shots. To me, it was a good show, especially it seemed so for a newly assembled outfit, but the Captain wasn't so satisfied.

For the next four days the civilian group toured from bow to stern, top to bottom, and back again. We only hit high spots at that. We ate in all the different messes and the hospitality of every coffee bar was offered free, the coke machines for a nickel. The group of 16 was broken into three smaller groups to facilitate getting around and into nooks and crannies.

At one point I was down in the engine room and got on-the-double summons to the bridge from the Captain himself. Seventeen stories of ladders wasn't as bad as the bewildering maze of passage-ways that I had to negotiate alone. I finally made it up there. The Captain and an Irish devil of a doctor, also a guest merely suggested that I might need fresh air and were curious to know how I liked the engines.

Sunday morning church services were held on the hanger deck. I was impressed by three things: the attendance; the effect of simplicity heightened by the vastness of the sea, unaffected by the unavoidable noise of machinery and unspoiled by the background of winged war monsters; and finally by the feeling of sincere desire to look to God for help and guidance.

Monday night about 2200 (10:00 p. m.) we spotted a Navy Patrol bomber operating about 500 miles off shore of Hawaii. He came in to us very low so that our radar only picked up about 15 miles out. General quarters were sounded and the ship ordered black out. But lights didn't go out as they should and things began to hum from the bridge as one offending light amidships in the superstructure continued to offend the night and give us away. The bomber roared down the middle of us from bow to stern splitting the flight deck with tons of candle power. It was a stirring moment that made me grateful for the knowledge that he was US Navy and that it was light power not fire power that we were witnessing. I overheard Captain P. D. tell Commander Dick Burns, the executive officer, that there would be black out practice every night until the "Sweetpea" had thoroughly learned the art of turning Broadway into a dark alley, but instantly I noticed the following night that it did happen and right now.

Then, Tuesday night we played war with a number of squadrons sent out from Honolulu to give us the works. Our radar started tracking them up and tracking them about 100 miles away. At this point we were only about 160 miles off the shores of Honolulu. The on-coming planes were using their radars to find us. The first flight over were big ones and high. They dropped parachute flares which lit up the ocean for miles. Our black silhouette was a cinch in that flood of light. We changed course and zig-zagged but the attacking fighters bore in upon us, low and fast, in groups of two's and three's coming across midships from port to starboard and visa versa. There was no real ammunition flying, but believe me it took no great imagination to fill it in.

All told, I would say some forty aircraft took part. Of course, it was pretty one-sided for we didn't shoot our guns or launch any of our planes. One good reason was that we had no destroyer escorts. Among other things these destroyer escorts play an important role in rescuing airman from the "ditch" if he is forced to "ditch" his plane or crashes into sea taking off or landing.

The next day at dawn we did pick up an escort destroyer off Honolulu. Then turning into the wind with our escort steaming forward and to the port side of our bow, the rescue helicopter took off and at a height about level with the bridge on the starboard side.

The flight deck was alive with men, the propeller planes on the after end of the deck were warming up. The jets were brought up from the hanger deck. Unfolding their wings they took their places forward in two staggered lines behind the first two jets being readied for catapulting. With better than thirty two knots of wind blowing down the flight deck at a signal from the Captain on the bridge passed down the chain of command to the launching officer, the jets screamed and literally jumped into the air, first from left, then from right, one after another. Next the Corsair fighters moved out from the neatly lined mass of planes one at a time to the launching line, unfolded their wings, barked, roared and began to roll down the deck becoming air-born seemingly almost from the last few feet of deck left. Finally, the attack bombers (AD's) took their turn one at a time until all the planes were aloft.

One or two propeller fighters failed to bark properly. They folded their wings and taxied forward to the elevator and dropped from sight to the hanger deck, leaving the flight deck clear for the next one. I didn't clock them, but it was no time before they were all forming into groups on their leaders and fading into the blue toward Honolulu.

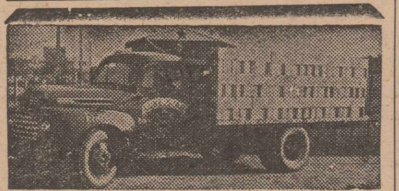

After that, one or two squadron's of Corsairs returned for landing practice. Each pilot made about five landings before he taxied to the elevator to call it a day. This took a bit of time. Some of the boys were a little rusty and were "waved off" several times because they failed to hit "the groove" to the satisfaction of the landing officer. Twice, for his methodical exactness this officer who is stationed on a tiny platform at the very stern of the flight deck on the port side, had to dive head long into netting fixed beneath him several feet below the deck above the yawning deep to keep from being hit.

This officer when dressed for action is gaudily colored and looks like a man from Mars. He is armed with two equally gaily colored paddles. He is the boy who lands 'em by signaling with his paddles. The pilots job is to fly the correct pattern, properly controlling speed and rate of descent. Signals from the landing officer give him the dope on how he is doing, how much to correct for altitude - up or down. If the pilot is in the "groove" (pattern, speed, altitude correct) and the deck is clear the landing officer at the proper moment signals the pilot to cut power and set down. If the pilot is not in the groove to the satisfaction of the landing officer he is signaled to give full power, go around and try it again (a wave off). The pilot, no matter what he thinks about it must obey the landing officer. Since proper speed is only a few miles an hour above the stalling speed of the plane the moment of decision is critical, particularly if the engine fails to respond instantly with full power on a wave off.

Landing the jets because of their higher landing speed and because the initial surge of full power apparently is not quite as instantaneously positive as the propeller driven aircraft makes the moment of critical decision for them an even touchier proposition. After completing the practice landings and taking the jet squadron aboard without incident, because the surface wind died to nothing, and because the carrier had to disembark its civilian guests in Pearl Harbor at 1630, flight operations eased at 1200. The remaining aircraft not aboard were instructed to land at Barber's Point Naval Air Station to rejoin the carrier the next day.

At 1630 sharp just opposite the Pearl Harbor side of Ford Island in mid channel, the carrier hove to long enough to bid us farewell, disembark us into a small motor launch and turn us over to our Hawaiian host, a member of Cine

Why are women's purses bigger than men's?

Remember all those cartoons you've seen of a wife going through her sleeping husband's trouser pockets? They may give you a clue why some women's purses are bigger.

But we're inclined to think that there are other and better reasons why more women than men own stock in so many of America's largest companies.

For one thing, women are practical, thrifty, and inclined to do something sensible about their future finances and those of the family. Forgive us, mister, but the facts speak for themselves:

Women have outnumbered men share owners of telephone stock since 1900. The big food companies have a predominance of women share owners. Ditto the country's largest auto maker. And, at last count, 116,800 women owned shares in General Electric as against 83,000 men.

Big business, as it turns out, is a woman.

About 2,100 of these women—and men—turned out this spring to attend the G-E annual meeting and eat a box lunch in one of our largest factory buildings. If you'd like a report of what was said and done, just let us know. A card asking for "Report of the Sixtieth Annual Meeting," Dept. 6B, General Electric, Schenectady, N. Y., will do the trick.

Buyers Attend Fall Fashion Market Recently

Buyers for Wellington stores were in Dallas during the week of May 25 to 30 to attend the fall and back-to-school fashion market of the American Fashion Association.

The local group included Mrs. J. L. Burt of the Fashion Shop; Mr. and Mrs. Mack Saied Sr. and Mr. and Mrs. Mack Saied Jr. of The Leader Department Store; John Shadid of the Fair Store; and Mrs. Percy Wells and Jim Llorente of Wells Department Store.

More than five thousand buyers from seventeen states filled the Dallas hotels to capacity during the five day event.

The high light of the week was the presentation of "The Seven Keys to Fashion" by the Dallas Fashion Arts, Inc. Two breakfast clinics were staged in the Grand Ballroom of the Adolphus Hotel, on Tuesday, May 27 and Wednesday May 28. More than 1000 lines of women's and children's wear were displayed in the Adolphus, Baker and Blue Bonnet Hotels.

Commenting on the importance of fashion in apparel selling, Mrs. Evelyn Lambert, General Chairman of the Fashion Clinic said:

"The merchant who deals in apparel now realizes more keenly than ever before that fashion is the major weapon to be used in conquering competition. Easter sales forewarned that customers are drawing purse strings a shade tighter. This trend was observed by manufacturers who have gone all out to give merchants something new to present, with closely priced values."

Introducing Harold Drummond and His Paint & Body Shop

Harold Drummond, who operates one of the most modern and efficient Paint and Body Shops in the Panhandle, is a native of Childress, Texas having been born there March 31, 1912. He received his schooling there and in Dallas.

He received his early training in paint and body work with the Fort Worth Paint and Body Shop and came to Wellington in 1937 to work for Mickey Kendrick and was employed there until 1941 at which time he went to Tulsa to serve as a foreman for Douglas Aircraft where he worked until 1944 at which time he returned to Wellington.

He opened a paint and body shop in 1944 on West 8th Street and operated it there until June 1 of 1951 at which time he moved to his present location at Ennis and 8th St.

Mr. Drummond was also an instructor for the GI Veterans program from September of 1948 until September of 1951 during which time he taught body building, car painting and other allied trades. He says that this contact with the young men of the county was one of his most stimulating experiences.

In 1933 he was married to Bertha Turrentine of Childress and they have two children, a son Jerry, 18, and a daughter, Jean who is 15.

He is a member of the Odd Fellows and of the Church of Christ.

His favorite hobbies are hunting and fishing especially fishing and he tries to get off on this on holidays and week ends; but he says that his business does not give him very much time for the pursuit of these hobbies. His favorite spectator sport is football and he has not missed a single Rocket home game outside those times that he was out of town. He is one of their most loyal fans.

His services in his Paint and Body Shop include the complete rebuilding of car bodies from the smallest to the largest. He also paints cars with high grade enamel and lacquer finishes and has an Infra-Red Baked on Paint Job room. In addition he does all kinds of glass work.

He is especially proud of the accuracy of his estimates of repairs in helping customers collect on their insurance policies and the manner in which they have been accepted by the insurance companies.

Associated with Mr. Drummond in his Paint and Body Shop are Vernon Hutchins, Painter, John Brown and Milford Harris, metal workers and Tinnie Riley, polisher who gives the high lustrous finish to each job that is turned out.

Once you hitch the P.T.O. of your tractor to the Dearborn-Wood Bros. Combine and start harvesting, you'll realize what capacity plus can mean to you. From cutting and threshing to separating and cleaning, there's plenty of capacity built into this machine. . . it combines even the heaviest crops . . . fast! And one look at the volume of clean grain pouring from the elevator into the bin gives you positive proof that here is a combine with more capacity than some larger machines. We think you'll agree that the Dearborn-Wood Bros. Combine is tops. Come in soon and ask for a demonstration.

Trailer Damaged On Elm Creek Hill

An expensive aluminum house trailer that broke loose from the pickup towing it was badly damaged and traffic was slowed to a trickle around it at the foot of Elm Creek Hill on Highway 83, Saturday evening, May 31, Sheriff Hubert Mauldin reported.

The trailer belonged to Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Conklin, Pampa, who were en route home after working with an oil well crew in Oklahoma. Mr. Conklin, who is employed by C. M. Jeffries of Pampa, told Sheriff Mauldin that the trailer ran over a patch in the highway going down Elm Creek hill and began whipping in the strong wind. At the foot of the hill, it broke loose from the pickup and turned over. The accident occurred about 6:30 p.m., and the road was cleared about two and a half hours later.

Three winch trucks belonging to Mr. Jeffries, traveling several miles behind the trailer, were used to set it upright.

The left side of the trailer was badly damaged and the contents were scrambled, Mr. Mauldin said, however, Mr. Conklin was able to tow it on home.

SEED TESTING AND GERMINATION

A Tested Seed Label on a bag of seed unlike Certified and Registered Seed Tags — does not guarantee that the seed is of high quality. But the label, giving an analysis of the seed, does tell the buyer what he is getting for his money.

We have made great strides in recent years in the testing, cleaning, handling and marketing of field seeds, and our field seed crops make available to the farmer the highest quality of seed possible to produce, at moderate price.

Seed crops also assure the producer-farmer a high return on his production, for today more of the consumer's dollar goes to the seed producer than to the producer of almost any other agricultural product. The grain farmer gets 2.6c, or less than 20 per cent, out of a 16c loaf of bread. The dairyman gets roughly 50 cents of the retail price of a quart of milk. But the producer of alfalfa seed, for example, gets 67 per cent of the price paid by the consumer. And the producing farmer gets as high as 70 cents out of the retail alfalfa seed dollar.

Here are some "tips" from the seed testers in the state laboratories:

Pay particular attention to the germination percentage given on the Tested Seed Label. The seed may be of high or low quality, and you will save disappointment later — perhaps even loss of crops — by turning down seed labeled below standard for germination.

Don't buy seed which contains Dodder, the parasitic plant most common in clover, alfalfa and flax. Dodder may kill the host plant, and the Eastern states, comprising about 70 per cent of the market for Texas growers of alfalfa and clover seed, will not accept seed containing Dodder. If seed contains Dodder, the Tested Seed Label will say so.

Treat seed with commercial dust according to the directions on the container. Many samples submitted to the state laboratories show detrimental reactions from over-treatment, which causes rotting and abnormal conditions in germination such as water condition and club roots. If over-treated seeds are planted, rotting is likely to continue in the field.

Submit clean samples to the laboratory. Samples of clover seed especially have been very dirty, containing chaff, stems, dirt, Johnson grass and other feed seeds. The laboratory is obliged to set a dirty sample aside and request that the seed be re-cleaned and another sample submitted.

Watch out for some fly-by-night seed "bootleggers" in the state who are selling unlabeled seed.

Privies Source Of Much Disease

By W. R. RITTER,
City Sanitarian

The great loss of life due to typhoid, dysentery, and diarrhea, in rural and suburban areas can be materially decreased by proper sewerage disposal, and maintenance. The elimination of surface toilets and cesspools will to a great extent decrease the sources of the majority of our communicable diseases.

Inasmuch as we are now entering the summer fly season, it is advisable to all concerned, with surface toilets, to observe and adhere to the following maintenance suggestions:

1. Keep all parts of the privy repaired in order to maintain a fly and mosquito proof pit. Daily inspection should be made by a responsible person.

2. Adding lime or disinfectants to the pit is necessary for its proper functioning. Mosquito breeding can be controlled by pouring into the pit a cupful of kerosene for each seat, about every ten days.

3. Keep the lid or seat cover closed when the privy is not in use. Standard construction requires that lids be made self-closing, but if they should become unhinged or otherwise altered, the damage should be repaired immediately.

4. Provide toilet paper, since it dissolves more readily than newspaper and thus makes a smaller bulk in the pit. Garbage or other kinds of waste should not be thrown into the pit.

5. When the pit is filled within about 18 inches of the sill, dig a new pit and move the house over it. The old pit should then be filled with clean earth.

In order to acquire a higher plane of health here in Wellington and lower the menace of communicable diseases, which will be so prevalent throughout the state during the next four months, thus all cooperate to the fullest extent to make ours, a healthier community.

GRASS IMPROVEMENT IMPRESSIVE TO MEN MAKING SOIL TOUR

The tremendous improvement made by grasses on many of the sandy land fields of Collingsworth County were the most striking feature of the recent Salt Fork Soil Conservation District field tour May 16, J. C. Porter, agricultural manager of the First National Bank, Wichita Falls, told the local sponsors at the conclusion of the day.

Mr. Porter had visited many of these fields just a year ago. He was here to attend this year's event and was the guest of Dick Wiley, president of the First National Bank.

Approximately 100 county farmers and business men took part in the soil tour, which covered most parts of the county and pointed out the soil conservation work under way in Collingsworth County at present. Grasses and legumes, however were the most closely studied.

During the tour, A. F. Wischkaemper Jr., during the visit at his farm near Dozier, when asked why he did not follow his clover with more cotton, remarked that he would like to, but couldn't afford to plant much cotton except where clover became too weedy. He added that he makes good money by grazing cattle on clover and harvesting the seed.

An outstanding demonstration on pasture management enjoyed by the group in comparing a Mill Iron pasture with another and picking dominant grasses in each. The management program has been used on the Mill Iron pasture only five years.

One of the finest stands of weeping love grass and clover ever seen by the group was on the 120-acre field belonging to Ben Farmer at Marella.

Two of the terrace demonstrations were held in the fields of Shelton Nunnelley and Drury Lacy. These are only a few of the high points of the day's tour, County Agent J. W. Thomas pointed out. At the noon hour, Mr. and Mrs. Wiley were hosts at a small luncheon honoring Mr. Porter and George Taylor of the Soil Conservation Service, Childress. Present were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Glenn, Joe Grigg, Wood Coleman, Jake Tarver, Arrell Cummings, Dr. E. W. Jones, Mr. Porter, Mr. Taylor, and Mr. and Mrs. Wiley.

After returning to Wichita Falls, Mr. Porter wrote Lefty Thomas, the county agent, saying in part: "I want to tell you again how much I enjoyed my day with you yesterday. I think your tour was excellent and it seems to me that we saw many more conservation measures yesterday than we had a year ago. I think you are making wonderful progress and certainly you are to be commended for the effort you are putting forth in the interest of soil conservation.

"It is a real pleasure for me to come to Wellington because you fellows are always so hospitable. You really make me feel at home. I appreciate your inviting me to attend your tour and I hope that when you feel I can be of assistance to you in your work in any way that you will give me that opportunity."

Lt. Cummings Back From Europe

First Lt. Will Joe Cummings returned to the United States Monday, May 26, after three years service with the U. S. Army in Germany. He was in Wellington early this week, before returning to Austin to join his wife and parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Cummings.

One of Wellington high school's boxing stars of a decade ago, Lt. Cummings has been boxing coach for the Army for the last year at Aschaffenberg, about 25 miles from Frankfurt in Bavaria.

Prior to that, he was a platoon leader.

Lt. Cummings' new assignment will be recruit duty at Little Rock, Ark.

Speaking of living conditions for the Americans in Germany, he described them as "dirt cheap."

"Food is about half the price it is here, and gasoline 12 cents a gallon. The Americans had very nice homes to live in, taken from the Germans," he said, adding that the latter policy is being changed, and these houses are going back to their owners, and free maid service is being discontinued.

Since going to Germany, Lt. Cummings was married to Miss Mary Curtis, the daughter of Col. and Mrs. Howard Curtis. Col. Curtis is in charge of the War Criminals Prison at Landsburg, Germany.

Lt. Cummings served in the Navy, attached to the First Marine Division during World War II. He re-enlisted in the Army in January, 1949, and was commissioned a lieutenant. His enlistment will be up in January 1955.

Lt. and Mrs. Cummings plan to return here to visit within a short time.

Carolyn Cheatham of San Diego, California, formerly of here, is visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Finley, Sr. and Betty. She plans to be here about two weeks.

Dr. Green explaining how interference with nerves that supply the head and face can cause headaches, defective breathing, etc.

COMMON SENSE

We learn in grade school physiology that the body is made up of a bony framework enclosing organs, and controlled by the nervous system.

Peculiarly, many forget this fundamental fact, and as time goes on and when sickness is present in our own bodies, we may think of the affected area as a lone structure in the body, rather than connected with the nervous system.

For example, in a case of heart trouble, the heart fails to function normally; consequently, symptoms of pain, shortness of breath, dizziness etc, result. It is only common sense to locate the cause rather than try to care for the heart as a separate part of the body.

When one stops to think that the heart has a hookup or nerve connection in two ways, one set of nerves act as an accelerator to speed up function and the other as an inhibitor to slow down function, it becomes clear why the "machine" must all be in order to receive perfect results. How much better it is to restore the nerve supply for normal function. This example is true of every organ that we have in the body.

It should be remembered that when any organ fails to receive its normal nerve supply from the brain through the nervous system it will cease to function normally.

This, then is the basis for sickness or disease. Correct the cause through Chiropractic adjustments and health is the natural result.
