CONOCO-SINCLAIR MERGER REPORTED

Burkburnett Bank Bandits Escape Into Wichita Mountains

ROBBERS BEAT OFFICERS IN AUTO CHASE

Deputies Twice Sight Fleeing Car, to Be Halted By Accidents

BANK HOLDUP FAILS

Men in Attempted Burk Robbery Also Sought In Kidnaping

After an exciting chase through Southern Oklahoma, in which cars manned by officers approached within half a mile of the Buick sedan bearing the bandits, Sheriff W. G Bralley and his deputies returned here late Friday night, having traced to what is believed to be a mountain rendesvous four men who early Friday afternoon attempted to rob the First National bank at Burkburnett.

No arrests resulted from the pursuit, however, darkness preventing further operations.

The chase extended far into Oklahoma, Sheriff Bralley and his men having followed promising clues as far as 10 miles or more north of Cache, Okla., in the foothills of the Wichita mountains, where the bandit gang is believed to be in hiding.

Members of Gang

Through identification of the car in which the bandits were riding as one seen in various parts of Oklahoma and towns nearby in Texas after various hijackings and holdups had been committed in these localities, Sheriff J. H. Frampton of Lawton, Okla., joined forces with the Texas officers later in the afternoon, confident that the men sought are members of a gang that has recently inaugurated a wave of crime in and within a 200-mile radius of his city.

One of the first to give chase to the bandits, after the warning broadcast by Mrs. Joe Morris of Burkburnett had foiled their plans, was Frank Watkins, night jailer of the Wichita county jail, who happened to be in Burkburnett at the time of the raid.

Watkins, he said, rushed to a motor car company and asked for a car, which was provided. He gave hot chase to the raiders' sedan, following it over the free bridge into Oklahoma, and finally between Grandfield and Randlett, Okla., coming within half a mile of the fugitives. Then, he said, a brake rod of the car broke, leaving him powerless to halt the car in rough parts of the road, and at turns, and he had to give up the chase.

Riding with him was E. F. Gilbo, night policeman at Burkburnett. Gilbo left his companion to return to Burkburnett, and hailed a passerby, who picked him up and volun-

Woman's Bravery, Born Of Fear, Foils Burk Robbery

'Victim' Walks Out of Bank to Sound Alarm Despite Gunman's Command for Her to Halt

Special to The Record News

BURKBURNETT, Texas, March 1.—Bravery takes many forms, but it took the form of fear with Mrs. Joe Morris as she faced death by a bandit's bullet in the First National bank here today.

As a result, the bank tonight was probably richer by at least $10,000 than it would have been if plans of four unmasked men who raided the institution early Friday afternoon had not been smashed by the bravery—or, as she calls it, the fear—of this woman.

Bandits Enter

Mrs. Morris, about 30, wife of an oil field worker who lives here, called at the bank about 2 o'clock Friday afternoon to see G. R. Kincaid, vice president of the bank. As she was waiting, with several other customers in the lobby, three armed and unmasked men entered and commanded everyone to lie face down on the floor in the rear of the building.

Everyone did, except Mrs. Morris, who started towards the front entrance of the bank.

"Hey, you! Stop in your tracks or I'll shoot you down," one of the bandits yelled. He yelled so loud that H. B. Gilbert, national bank examiner, and Mr. Kincaid, who were in private conference in the latter's office, heard him plainly. But Mr. Gilbert didn't hear Mrs. Morris answer a word.

Woman Leaves

The others in the bank, as they were being lined up in the rear of the lobby, saw Mrs. Morris continue her progress toward the door, in spite of the bandit's warning of death. Finally she reached it, and escaped. And the bandit didn't shoot after all.

The three bandits, seeing the woman flee, apparently sensed that an alarm would be spread, and ran for a car, manned by an accomplice within a short distance of the bank.

The car was seen speeding off in the direction of the Burkburnett free bridge, and it was thought to have entered Oklahoma. Search for the men was centered in Oklahoma tonight, although various Northwest points had been warned, and officers were keeping a sharp lookout for the men within a radius of several hundred miles of here.

$10,000 Available

The attempted robbery occurred at a time when about $10,000 was available in silver and currency on the bank counters, and this probably would have been scooped up by the would-be robbers had the holdup attempt been successful, according to Mr. Gilbert.

Mr. Kincaid and Mr. Gilbert both talked to Mrs. Morris after it was all over.

"I was simply scared to death," she was quited as telling them. "I didn't know what I was doing when I started for the door, and with that gun pointing in my face."

Reward Planned

Mr. Kincaid said tonight that the institution planned to give the woman a substantial reward for her part in frustrating the would-be robbers.

In the bank at the time of the raid, in addition to Mrs. Morris and one or two other customers, were: G. R. Kincaid, vice president; A. I. Hill, cashier; F. T. Felty and M. W. McNatt, assistant cashiers; G. H. Bear, bookkeeper; H. B. Gilbert, national bank examiner, and his assistant, C. R. Spearman.

MOODY VETOES CLINT SMALL'S LAND MEASURE

Governor's Action Follows Adverse Ruling by Attorney General

FIGHT TO CONTINUE

Executive Suggests Ways In Which Bill Could Be Validated

AUSTIN, March 1. (AP)—Governor Moody this afternoon vetoed the Small bill designed to validate patents and awards issued on lands lying across or partly across water courses of navigable streams and beds and abandoned beds of such streams.

The attorney general's department yesterday held the measure unconstitutional.

Re-Passage Planned

Senator Small of Wellington and the proponents of the bill announced they would make an effort to pass over the governor's veto. This will require a two-thirds vote of both houses.

"The opinion of the attorney general appears to me to be sound in logic and in law, and well-supported by the citations of authorities from the supreme court and other courts of the state," the governor said in his veto message. "His reasoning seems convincing and logically leads to the conclusions which the opinion announces.

"To say that a stream running through a county in which there has perhaps never been in all its history any kind of water craft, not even a fishing boat, is a navigable stream, sounds absurd to the mind, but we have many fictions of law.

"The definition of navigable streams is one fixed by the legislature, and while a stream may not contain enough water to float a light canoe, not even in flood times, nevertheless it may be one that the legislature has seen fit to define as a navigable stream.

Citizens Remembered

"I comprehend the feelings of the citizen who has bought land from the state, had it surveyed, paid for it, paid taxes upon it, and used and occupied it for a score or more of years in a bonafide belief that it was his and that his title is clear, who is later confronted with what seems to his mind to be an incongruity in the claim of some third party that a creek or stream which traverses his land is a navigable river and, therefore, that the state has leased the bed of the navigable stream to a third person for mineral purposes. Such land owner knows that the stream would not, except at flood time, carry the very lightest of water craft, and he is not in harmony with the local definition of a navigable stream. Thousands of men have gone to West Texas, withstood the difficulties, and at great handicaps and with many hardships they have paid for

Claude Poole Dropped From School Rolls for Breaking Rules On Automobile Riding

STILLWATER, Okla., March 1. (AP)—Despite refusal of the faculty committee on student government at Oklahoma A. & M. college to discuss action taken at its meeting today, it was learned from an authoritative source that the committee had directed indefinite suspension of Claude Poole of Indiahoma and had placed two other students on probation.

The committee has been investigating events puroceding the death of Miss Pauline Pruitt, who died Sunday from drinking furniture polish on her return to the home of her sister, Mrs. Randall Hert, from a "date" with Poole.

It was pointed out that Poole's suspension was not connected with Miss Pruitt's death, but that action was taken on alleged violations of school regulations brought to light by the girl's death. Poole had been charged with violating rules against unauthorized car riding and "late dating."

GIANT COMBINE OF OIL FIRMS IS NEGOTIATED

Officials of Two Big Independents in New York Pressing Deal

SALE TALKED HERE

Proposed Merger Would Result in New Concern Large as Any

Special to The Record News

TULSA, Okla., March 1.—Mid-continent oil men are agog over the apparently well founded report that Sinclair Consolidated Oil corporation is to buy control of Continental Oil company.

President S. J. Keoughan and other Continental officials are reported in New York City conferring with H. F. Sinclair, chairman, and E. W. Sinclair, president, of the Sinclair company and financial advisor of both concerns.

This story, not denied by either company, and the Continental's showing on a 1,400 acre block in southern California, indicating it has a big strike there, has tended to push its stock from $19 to $26 in little over two week's time. A Sinclair-Continental merger would make it equal in size and potentialities to the Gulf, Texas and Shell alignments.

MERGER REPORT CURRENT IN OILDOM

Reports of the contemplated merger of the Continental Oil company and Sinclair interests have been current in the oil industry for some time, but no official statement of such a program has been received here. It was learned Friday night from T. H. Lawson and W. N. Alexander, vice-presidents of the Continental company in Wichita Falls. Both Mr. Lawson and Mr. Alexander said reports of the negotiations had been published in Denver newspapers.

Completion of such negotiations would undoubtedly be followed by immediate word here, it was said by Mr. Alexander. The Continental properties in Texas are among the most valuable in the state, the nucleus of the company being the former Texhoma Oil and Refining company purchased a few years ago.

Purchase of the Texhoma properties in 1926 from the W. B. Hamilton and N. H. Martin interests marked the entrance into Texas of the Continental. Shortly after the purchase, the Continental Oil company of Texas was chartered and the state headquarters continued in Wichita Falls.

The Texas concern has constantly expanded in the producing, refining and marketing divisions and now ranks as one of the state's leading independent oil concerns. The refinery, which has recently been enlarged, is located on the Burkburnett road.

Governor Suggests Ways To Solve Problem

the land and made it their home. It is only reasonable that they should resent any attempt to take a portion of that which they thought was theirs, and take it under what appears to them to be a legal fiction in the definition of a 'navigable stream.'

"I have no argument to make against the feelings of such a land owner. I have no argument to make against his petition for relief. I know that many large oil companies have a pecuniary interest in this matter because of leases which they have taken. Their interest is purely commercial while as regards the land owners there is more than the commercial question involved; he is the man who has helped make that part of the state one of its most productive and progressive sections and the human element is involved in his feelings.

Suggests Relief

"It is claimed that the state has sold the beds of these streams and received money for them. Whatever may be the amount of dollars and cents involved in the matter, the state of Texas is wealthy enough and it is honest enough to stand by its every transaction, however, where the constitution has placed a limit upon the power of the legislative department and the executive department, these departments do not have power to validate illegal acts. If the integrity of the state is involved, it becomes a matter in which the state must act rather than its agents. However, an unconstitutional attempt to correct a defect is no better than no attempt."

He suggested submission of a constitutional amendment as one of three ways to obtain relief. Others were enactment of a statute withdrawing from sale whatever title the state may have in navigable streams and the passage of another statute giving the persons owning surveys which cross such streams a preference right to buy whatever title the state may have for sale, or a statute redefining the legal term "navigable streams," but it is "hardly believable that such a statute could be retroactive, for it would be subject to the same objections as the bill herewith returned," the governor added as to the third measure.

LAND OWNERS TO RENEW FIGHT

AMARILLO, March 1. (AP)—Fifty land owners of the Panhandle and West Texas prepared at a mass meeting here today to renew their fight before the legislature for passage of the Small river bed land bill. The meeting was called after word came from Austin that the measure would be vetoed by Governor Moody.

It unanimously was voted to send a large delegation to Austin Monday to urge passage of the law over the governor's veto. Several speakers voiced sharp criticism of the executive.

The meeting instructed Will O'Brien, Amarillo banker and landowner, to communicate with Homer D. Wade, manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, with the request that he telegraph all chambers of commerce in West Texas urging them to have representatives at Austin Monday morning.

Owners and representatives of land holdings estimated to total 3,000,000 acres were present at the meeting. Joe Sneed, wealthy Amarillo rancher, presided.

Feared Outlaw Band Infests Area Of Colonel Lindbergh's Courtship

MEXICO CITY, March 1. (UP)—Federal troops were sent in pursuit of bandits who burned a freight train en route to the capital between the stations of El Parque and Alarcon yesterday, the dispatches to the newspaper Grafico said today. The bandits were operating in the Cuernavaca district, where American Ambassador Morrow has his home, the advices said.

Federal troops were sent out from Cuernavaca military headquarters.

The attack, according to the dispatches from Cuernavaca, presumably was directed by Benjamin Mendoza, who is the most feared and dangerous outlaw leader in Mexico since the execution recently of the bandit chief, Maximiliano Vigueras.

The highway on which Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and members of the Morrow family traveled last week and are scheduled to travel again tomorrow, crosses the Cuernavaca railway in four or five places.

Mountains Hide Bank Robbers

teered to continue the search. This car, making up lost time, caught sight of the bandits, and again the pursuers got within half a mile of them, only to be frustrated. This time the obstacle was a mud hole. The car Gilbo was in, it was reported, stuck hard and fast, as they were between Geronimo and Lawton, Okla. After extracting his car, they turned back to Burkburnett.

Sheriff Resumes Chase

Meanwhile, Sheriff Bralley and his men had been warned, and had taken up the chase. When Watkins returned to Burkburnett after his mishap, he met Sheriff Bralley, and joined them in further pursuit.

Sheriff Bralley proceeded to Lawton, he said, there being reinforced by Sheriff Frampton and four of his men. They proceeded to Cache, then on 10 miles north, finding hot clues to the fugitives at every turn, the sheriff said. However, as darkness closed about them a halt was necessary.

Sheriff Bralley said after his return here that the authorities were confident the men were hiding out in the Wichita mountains, and probably had been making their rendesvous there headquarters during their campaign of crime in this sector. He added that Sheriff Frampton planned a thorough search of this neighborhood Saturday for the fugitives and that Wichita county officers stood ready to aid them at a moment's notice.

Sheriff Bralley reported on his return here that through seeing the bandit car, and obtaining its number the activities of its at present unlawful owners had been traced back for the last two weeks.

Kidnap Lawton Couple

These activities, he said, include the kidnaping last Sunday night in Lawton of a man named Johnson and his girl companion as they were leaving church services, Johnson is the owner of the car the bandits now have, the sheriff said.

As for the Lawton kidnaping, Sheriff Bralley related that the bandits forced the couple to drive to the outskirts of the city, where the victims were forced to trade automobiles. The car the bandits left Mr. Johnson was subsequently identified as one which was stolen from L. W. Bell of Vernon on Feb. 17.

The bandit car also figured in a raid on a filling station at Geary, Okla., last Monday, in which only $12 was secured, officers learned. Further, the car was seen in Duncan, Okla., a few days later, after a man had been hijacked there, Sheriff Bralley said.

Sheriff Bralley was accompanied on the man hunt by Charles Gant, Warren Belcher and Dick Morris, deputies; S. O. Hamm, state highway officer, and Ellis Summers, city police officer.

His efforts to pursue the men were matched by those of Mike Anglin, assistant district attorney, who went aloft in an airplane loaned by J. I. Staley, in an attempt to patrol the roads in this vicinity. Nothing came of this, however.

Woman Is Hero

The bank raid itself was even more exciting than the chase. Out of its Mrs. Joe Morris, about 30, wife of an oil field worker, emerged the hero. As she was in the lobby with several other customers, three unmasked men entered, commanding all to lie on the floor. Mrs. Morris didn't. Instead, she edged towards the front entrance. One of the bandits threatened to shoot her if she didn't stop in her tracks, but this did not deter Mrs. Morris, who gained the street and spread the alarm which caused the bandits to flee. They jumped in a car held in readiness by an accomplice near the bank and fled.

Mrs. Morris, afterwards, wasn't quite sure whether it was bravery or fear that made her defy the bandit's threat of death.

AUTO DISPLAY CLOSES TODAY

Many Out of Town Visitors Attend Show Here

The annual spring automobile display of the Wichita Falls Automotive Dealers association, now in progress at 603-605 Scott avenue, will close Saturday night at 11 o'clock following a three-day showing described by those in charge as one of the most successful ever staged in this city.

Increasing numbers of visitors, including many from nearby cities and towns, kept the Swarts building, where the show is being held, practically filled from noon until midnight Friday. Automobile fanciers from Henrietta, Byers, Bellevue, Burkburnett, Archer City, Electra, Iowa Park and other points were among those who inspected the assembly of more than 60 distinct models of latest manufacture, it was reported.

All of the 12 dealers who have cars on the display floor reported Friday that inspection of the various styles of motor cars by visitors at the show reflects a rapidly increasing appreciation, on the part of the public, of material, mechanical and artistic improvements in automobiles. A large number of women, it was stated, have demonstrated a thorough knowledge of the principles of motor performance, and an ability to recognize the utility of eduring performance as well as that of beauty.

Exhibitors are anticipating even larger crowds on Saturday, the closing day of the demonstration, and have made special efforts to afford the maximum floor space between groups of the various dealers for the accommodation of visitors. The doors open at 8 o'clock Saturday morning.

The Stewart-Williams orchestra, together with a radio hook-up, furnish music throughout the evening from 6:30 to 10 o'clock.

Flood Damage Toll Continues to Climb

ATLANTA, Ga., March 1. (UP)—Reports of property damage, loss of life and transportation delays as a result of the flood waters which have swept over parts of four southern states during the past three days continued to pour in tonight.

Deaths attributed to the flood were increased to nine. In central Alabama the worst flood conditions in 10 years prevailed. Flood crests in North and South Carolina, where damage was confined for the most part to road and bridge washouts, were rapidly moving down stream, leaving behind large areas of flooded lowlands.

ing quarters being at a premium by Sunday night," an inaugural committee official said.

There is no indication, however, that housing conditions will be as bad as they were for inaugural ceremonies 40 and 50 years ago, when visitors slept on billiard tables and in chairs in hotel lobbies.

Parade Plans Made

Final arrangements for the two-hour parade were completed today with army officers detailed for the ceremonies receiving instructions on their varied duties.

The participation by 28 governors of states with their staffs, troops and national guard bands, together with troops from three other states, promises to offer one of the most interesting and colorful features of the parade.

Regiments famed in history with their bright uniforms and well-drilled men, will fall in line behind the regular troops.

Governor C. Douglass Buck, of Delaware, won the honor of leading the governors in the march down Pennsylvania avenue. He will be accompanied by a band and a battery of the Delaware coast artillery.

Governors Parade

Governor John S. Fisher, of Pennsylvania, will be second with a picturesque array of 100 battle flags escorted by national guardsmen.

New Jersey will be next with Gov Morgan F. Larson, his personal staff, state officials and one troop of cavalry.

Governor John H. Trumbull, of Connecticut, next in line, will provide a colorful picture with the governor's foot guards, the governor's horse guards and Battery E 242nd Coast artillery corps. With Governor Trumbull as a military aide will be Major John Coolidge, son of the retiring president and the governor's prospective son-in-law.

Other governors who will be in line with troops are Henry F. Byrd, of Virginia, with three famous Virginia regiments—the Richmond Blues, the Richmond Grays and the Monticello guards; C. M. Gardner, of North Carolina; Bibb Graves, of Alabama; Walter J. Kohler, of Wisconsin.

Many other governors will be in the parade with their personal staffs.

Stocks Soar as Hoover Inauguration Looms

NEW YORK, March 1. (US)—"Higher with Hoover" slogan was revived in the stock market today as prices soared close to the highest average level on record and total trading reached 6,021,000 shares for the first five hours.

It was the biggest day of the year and the fifth largest in history. While leaders on the stock exchange were advancing from 4 to 20 points, the First National bank stock featured in the outside market with further gain of $800 a share to $75,000.

Livestock Exposition Opens at San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, March 1. (AP)—The second International Exposition and Livestock show opened here today with 2,000 head of livestock, aggregating in value approximately $2,000,000, on exhibit. The finest livestock from ranches and farms in many states are occupying stalls.

Two hundred horses, representing 40 classes, have been entered in the horse show, and 150 cowboys and cowgirls are taking part in the rodeo offering prizes totaling $20,000.

City and County Action on Bridge To Clear Way for Archer Paving

Two Commissions Expected to Act Monday on Raising Height of Proposed Span Across Lake Spillway

Completion of pavement between Wichita Falls and Archer City on state highway 79 during the current year will probably depend upon assumption by the city and county of the cost of increasing by two feet the elevation of the proposed bridge across the spillway at Lake Wichita, according to a discussion of the matter before a joint meeting of the chamber of commerce highway committee with city and county officials Friday.

Decision Monday

Recommendation that the county commissioners court and the city council make such guarantees was voiced by Mayor J. W. Akin, City Manager George D. Fairtrace, and R. L. Underwood, chairman of the highway committee, it was stated, and those two bodies will be asked at their meetings next Monday to adopted corresponding resolutions.

Plans drawn originally for the bridge and submitted to the state highway department for approval called for a structure providing a 22-foot roadway 700 feet long, 400 feet being devoted to approaches and 300 feet to the main portion, so constructed as to allow the passage of water three feet deep, according to J. M. Isbell, county engineer. It developed, however, that should the city decide at some future date to raise the dam in order to increase the lake's reservoir capacity, the three-foot opening might prove insufficient, and the bridge be submerged.

According to D. M. Puckett, engineer for division No. 3 of the state highway system, the federal department has refused to approve specifications for paving the highway in question until adequate provision for a bridge across the spillway has been made. Should the city and county subscribe the proposed share of expense for the erection of a bridge which will meet the approval of state and federal officials, contract for the paving of the Wichita-Archer City road will probably be let at an early date, Mr. Puckett said.

Additional Cost $5,000

As originally planned, the bridge would cost approximately $22,000, and it was expected that the county would bear one-third of that amount, state and federal departments assuming the remaining two-thirds. It was estimated that the proposed raising of the level would result in a $5,000 increase in building cost, Mr. Isbell stated.

It was pointed out by Mr. Puckett that letting of the road contract within the next few weeks probably would assure the completion of a paved highway between Archer City and Wichita Falls before construction work is halted by winter weather. The division engineer also stated that, G. G. Wiekline, state highway department bridge engineer, is expected here Saturday to confer with city and county officials relative to the type of bridge to be used over the spillway.

NARROW ESCAPE

Boy Not Seriously Hurt When Auto Passes Over Body

Bert J. Powell, 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Powell of Graham, narrowly escaped serious injury late Friday afternoon when he was struck by an automobile at Huff street and Brook avenue.

Other than for a few minor scratches the little boy had developed no indications of serious injuries from the accident, it was said Friday night by attendants at the Hargrave-Walker hospital. It was said by witnesses who saw the mishap that the child rolled in front of the automobile wheel for several feet before the car passed over his body.

Mrs. Powell is visiting her father, B. J. Shaw, of 1706 Huff street.

ASPHALT WAR MARKS TRIAL

Johnston Defends Paving Contracts

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 1. (AP)—A defense of asphalt, as compared with concrete, was linked today with the defense of Gov. Henry S. Johnston, on trial before the state senate court of impeachment.

Two witnesses testified that asphalt was superior to concrete as a surfacing material. Both admitted that they had been summoned, as defense witnesses, by the Western Paving company, which operates the only asphalt plant in Oklahoma.

Johnston's alleged insistence that the state highway department give preference to asphalt in awarding contracts for paving projects was viewed by the prosecution to support the contention that he was incompetent to remain as governor. Prosecution testimony was to the effect that asphalt was more costly.

Isaac Van Trump of Oak Park, Ill., testified as to the purported superiority of asphalt, and on cross-examination said he intended to submit a claim for $100 a day and expenses to Roscoe Farmer of the Western Paving Company, who, Van Trump said, asked him to testify.

Van Trump said asphalt surfacing was more durable than concrete, more resilient and easier on tires.

E. A. Kingsley, Dallas paving engineer, after testifying along the same lines as Van Trump said he was promised $50 a day and his expenses by Farmer.

Johnston has charged that the opposition lying behind his attempted impeachment in 1927 and the present impeachment effort was inspired by the "cement trust."

The suspended governor's attorneys scored a victory in the senate court when that body overruled its presiding officer and permitted testimony in mitigation of the pardon issued by R. D. Crosthwaite, fugitive convict. The court voted down an objection of house prosecutors and heard testimony that Crosthwaite was permitted verbally by former Gov. J. C. Walton to remain at liberty after a leave of absence had expired.

Judge Holds Fair Jurors Can Smoke

LOS ANGELES, March 1. (US)—Women jurors here can smoke if they want to. During the deliberations of a superior court jury here today a couple of the feminine jurors reached for cigarets instead of sweets.

Several others indignantly objected. When that accomplished nothing, the outraged jurors, feeling sure that in these progressive times there's a law against everything, appealed to Judge W. J. Wood to stop the smoking.

Without even as much as peeking into a law book, the judge ruled that if women jurors want to smoke it is nobody's business.

STOWAWAY

Oklahoma City Students Accompanied by Fair Freshman

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 1. (UP)—When a group of journalism students from Oklahoma City university arrived here late yesterday they learned a "stowaway" had made the trip on the special car from Oklahoma City.

The "stowaway" was Miss Martha Joe Russell, 17, daughter of Campbell Russell, former chairman of the Oklahoma corporation commission.

Miss Russell, being a freshman at the university, was not eligible to make the trip. She was not found on the train until it neared Kansas City.

OREGON GETS MARIE ADAMS

Much Contested Custody Lost by Texas

AMARILLO, Texas, March 1. (UP)—Marie Adams is en route to Hillsboro, Ore., tonight in the custody of ex-Sheriff I. E. Reeves, after one of the bitterest court fights ever waged in this city.

Mrs. Adams, alias Mrs. Gray, former school teacher and real estate dealer of Washington county Ore., who remained in Texas perhaps longer than most alleged fugitives from justice ever did after extradition papers had been signed by governors of both Texas and Oregon, was out maneuvered by the former sheriff who declared he had been on the woman's trail for four years.

Given 15 minutes to pack her clothing, she was rushed to a west bound train after Judge Henry S. Bishop had honored a complaint sworn out by the court of criminal appeals ordering her release to Oregon officers.

Mrs. Adams was arrested in Amarillo last September on a charge of being a fugitive from justice and on 12 counts of swindling, said to have grown out of her association with a man by the name of Robison, an aged school superintendent who had entered the real estate business. The transactions which led to the indictments were committed in 1922, causing the bank of Sherwood, Ore., to fail, it is said.

Robison was tried and convicted. His sentence of one year in the penitentiary was cancelled because of his age, and he was allowed to pay back what he had taken together with a fine of $1,000.

Would You Know One If You Saw It?

If you ever came face to face with a germ, would you recognize it? Of course it is not likely that you ever will see a germ, unless you own a tremendously powerful microscope, for you would have to magnify one over a thousand times to make it as big as a pin head. But you should recognize the fact that these tiny germs can get into your blood streams through the smallest cut, and give you typhoid fever, tuberculosis, lockjaw, blood poisoning, and many more dangerous and perhaps fatal diseases. There is one sure safeguard against these dangers — washing every cut, no matter how small, thoroughly with Liquid Borosone, the safe antiseptic. You can get Liquid Borosone at Miller Drug Store.

MEXICAN FLIES TO WASHINGTON

Civil Aviator to Attend Inauguration

MEXICO CITY, March 1. (UP)—Joaquin Gonzales Pacheco, Mexican civil aviator, announced tonight that he will leave Valbuena flying field at 6 a. m. tomorrow on a projected non-stop flight from Mexico City to Washington, D. C. He will be accompanied by an American mechanic, C. E. McMillan, of New York.

Pacheco will attempt to reach Washington late Sunday. He will carry a letter from President Emilio Portes Gil for delivery to Herbert Hoover, congratulating him on his inauguration as president.

The fliers have planned their flight in honor of the late Capt. Emilio Carranza, Mexican aviator who was killed attempting a non-stop flight from New York to Mexico City last year. They will follow the Carranza route to Washington, passing over the same point Carranza passed when attempting a non-stop flight from here to Washington. Carranza was forced down in North Carolina on his attempt last July.

The Pacheco plane, named "Captain Carranza," is a Stinson-Detroiter monoplane. It will carry 500 gallons of fuel. If the flight—which will be routed by way of Tampico, Brownsville, Texas, Galveston, New Orleans, Atlanta, Richmond—is successful it will be the first non-stop trip ever made from here to the United States capital.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh flew from Washington to Mexico City but the flight has never been accomplished without stop in the other direction. The distance is 2,200 miles.

Beat well with a fork and pile the mixture lightly in the shells, sprinkle with paprika and bake five to ten minutes in a hot oven.

SEVERE EARTH SHOCKS NOTED

Three Observatories Detect Three Temblors

ST. LOUIS, March 1. (INS)—Three severe earthquake shocks were recorded this morning on the seismograph at St. Louis university, according to Father James B. Macelwane, of that institution.

The first two shocks, according to Father Macelwane, occurred at 1:37:31 a. m. and 2:59:18 a. m., respectively. These shocks, apparently located in the same district, occurred, according to St. Louis university professor, at a point about 2,150 miles northwest of St. Louis, which he declared would place the shocks somewhere in the northern part of British Columbia.

The third shocks, occurred at 9:45:9 a. m. and was placed as having occurred at a point about 1,775 miles south of St. Louis, probably on the Pacific coast of Mexico.

TWO SHOCKS FELT AT NEW YORK

NEW YORK, March 1. (INS)—Two "severe" earthquake shocks believed to be in close proximity to the United States if not acutally on the North American continent were registered on the Fordham university seismograph today. The instruments of Fordham indicated that the shocks, coming at 2:45 and 4:17 a. m., were less than a thousand miles from New York although Boston dispatches estimated the disturbance at 27,700 miles. Neither station could determine the location of the shocks.

TEMBLOR NOTED IN VICTORIA, B. C.

VICTORIA, B. C., March 1. (INS)—A pronounced earthquake, centering possibly in the Pacific ocean off the California coast, was recorded on the Gonzales university seismograph, Superintendent Denison announced today.

The temblor started at 11:30 last night and continued for three hours. Superintendent Denison believes there were in reality two shocks, the second at 12:54 but the records were merged.

Denison estimated the center as 825 miles distant from here and although the direction was not certain believes it to have been along a fault line in the Pacific off the California coast.

American Telephone Assets Increase

NEW YORK, March 1 (UP)—American Telephone and Telegraph company total assets climbed above the two billion mark in 1928, and new records were established in net earnings, number of stockholders and number of telephones in use, according to the company's annual report made public today.

Total assets on Dec. 31, 1928, were $2,213,327,685.38, compared with $1,949,690,057.43 in 1927. Net income amounted to $245,170,491.33 or $12.11 per share, compared with $128,614,910.12 or $11.76 per share in 1927.

Stockholders increased from 423,580 in 1927, to 454,596 in 1928, a gain of 31,016.

Walters, Okla., Imports 12 Dozen Texas Quail

Special to The Record News.

WALTERS, Okla., March 1.—Twelve dozen Mexican Bob White quail, imported from Brownsville, Texas, were placed on game refuges in Cotton county this week by the state game and fish commission.

L. E. Crawford, district game warden, who supervised planting of the birds, said the Mexican Bob White quail had been selected by the commission because of its prolific nature and the fact that it is acclimated to the southern country. These birds, together with others which are to be supplied this county in the near future, will insure a plentiful supply of game for hunters during the next season.

Land Leasing Fight Emerges Once More

AUSTIN, March 1. (AP)—The spirited floor fight yesterday concerning proper agents to hold the land leasing power of University of Texas properties echoed today in a bill introduced by Representative Pope of Hamlin.

The measure provides that no regent shall be connected with a major oil corporation, and that any member of the board who accepts employment with a petroleum concern shall be deemed guilty of a felony.

Chewing Gum Salesman 'Absconds' With 41 Girls' Funds; He's 'Captured'

FORT WORTH, March 1. (AP)—A chase which might have been lifted from a movie scenario was staged here today, with police and amateur sleuths after a purse which contained a large sum of money belonging to Mrs. L. A. Hardman and the transportation for 41 girls, members of two Houston basket ball teams here for the state municipal basket ball championship.

Mrs. Hardman chaperoned the girls, who are members of the Foley Bros. and Christy Hobby teams of Houston, to Fort Worth, and while the group was posing for photographs in front of a hotel she laid the purse on the running board of a car.

A salesman representing a chewing gum concern was driving the car and had previously given the girls some samples of his wares. Unaware that the purse was on the running board, he got in the car and drove off while the pictures were being made.

Discovering her loss, Mrs. Hardman appealed to Mrs. W. H. Irwin, who was on the reception committee to greeet the girls. The police department was telephoned to be ou the lookout for the car and hasty check of downtown hotels was made. The name of the salesman was unknown to Mrs. Hardman and Mrs. Irwin, but they discovered he had already covered a considerable portion of the downtown district and surmised he must be working the outlying sections.

They started out in Mrs. Irwin's car and, picking up the trail, eventually located the car. The purse had been placed between the headlights and a front fender by Mrs. Hardman, but during the salesman's trips to various points it had slipped down next to the engine.

The salesman, who is G. W. Hensing, was much surprised when "captured" by the two women.

BEE DESCRIBED AS CANNIBAL

Sweet Concoctors Devour Fellow 'Men'

CHICAGO, March 1. (UP)—The more one learns about bees the less respect he has for them, it seems. As new facts are gathered about the home life of this sweet-supplying insect, the lower character it turns out to be.

The bee adds cannibalism to his other traits, evidence showed in a suit to recover $50,000 from the Chicago & Rock Island railroad. The worst part of it is the bee, if he gets hungry, eats the young bees before they see the light of day.

J. W. Cunnea and Ezra Ross claim 48,790,000 bees died in shipment through neglect of railroad employes. Testimony by Thomas Atchison, Alabama apiary inspector, said the hives in the shipment were on the verge of starvation and that in many hives the bees were "uncapping."

Attorney Taylor for the railroad wanted to know what uncapping is. Atchison said when the food supply runs out the bees break the seal on their broods and eat the young bees.

"Uncapping!" exclaimed Taylor. "Decapitating, I call it."

Taylor seems bent on showing as a defense what a low creature a bee is and how little sympathy it deserves from the jury hearing the case.

Rescuers Find Bodies Of 25 in Frozen Town

VIENNA, March 1. (INS)—Rescue workers found the bodies of 25 persons in the snowbound village of Zavaje, near Karlstadt, Jugoslavia, according to dispatches reaching here today.

The victims apparently had starved to death. The village had been isolated for months owing to the unprecedented snow storms in central Europe this winter.

Europe's Beauty Contest Heaped With Criticism

By GEORGE W. HINMAN JR.

PARIS, March 1. (US)—The recent beauty contest here, ending in the choice of a young woman from Hungary to represent Europe at the contest of pulchritude in Galveston, was characterized by a number of "faux pas," a French term for errors in tact. At least, it was so characterized from the French voint of view. These errors in tact were:

1—The choice of a girl from Hungary, one of the enemy countries in the days of the war, as the most beautiful girl in Europe, and that this choice should occur in Paris—alors! As a Frenchwoman would say, or I ask you! as an American might put it.

2—The choice of an ash-blonde Basque girl from Saint Jean De Luz to represent France. The Basques, while in citizenship they are either French or Spanish, are a race apart, pure in origin, tradition and descent with a rich language of their own, as they frequently remind the French.

3—The fact that all the employes, from manager down, at the hotel where the girls were lodged, without exception assured the reporters that Miss Austria was the most beautiful. And this after telling the journalists that the girls could not be seen or interviewed before the contest! And this at a French hotel!

4—The indiscreet letter addressed by Miss Holland to the president of the republic, asking reprieves for the four young murderers recently sentenced to death in Paris. A genuine storm of protest followed the publication of this letter. To begin with, it was obviously a publicity stunt and a bad one, and, secondly, the matter into which the young Dutch beauty intruded was a national affair and did not concern her. Lastly, the letter was badly written and addressed M. Doumergue by his name, not his title.

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

NEW YORK, March 1. (US)—A Paris count says that American women have two faults. They will mix gin and gasoline and they know very little about marriage.

If experience is any teacher at all, they know plenty about marriage, and if it isn't, they should get their information from counts, whose thoughts, so often rise only as high as the pocketbook.

As for gin and gasoline, that experience is neither entirely feminine nor entirely American. They hit trains and fall off cliffs in Paris, too.

An Indian Croesus in Washington, D. C., says that his white wife wooed him and proposed marriage. He wasn't mad, only amused.

And that news item has started discusions in many a home. So few women admit anything.

A raid in Boston, netted six women between the ages of 40 and 60, discovered in a poker game for big stakes. The raid followed the complaint of a husband that his wife was spending all his money in these games.

When the men used to be arrested on the complaint of wives, for the same offense, it was their own hard earned money they spent.

A perfectly nice man in the Middle West is accused by his wife of spending his entire time on the golf links after being married 31 years and rearing eight children.

From the outside looking in, it would seem it was about time for beer and skittles. Married folks, at least those married to each other, have such different ideas about what and where a vacation should be.

Women are getting artificial sunburn by the aid of oils, powders or light rays. Then they will be able to take off another layer of silk. Its idwudyight for those who have two layers left.

Its been so amusing, Sir Joseph Duveen and Mrs. Andree Hahn, fighting over a painted lady. If she hadn't been a fat one it would not have been news.

Jealousy Is a Pestilence Every Married Person Should Avoid

The Bitter Fruits of Jealousy—Shall This girl Sacrifice Her Happiness to Her Brother's Talent? Teaching the Value of Money to A Spenthrift Son

Dear Miss Dix—I am a young married woman with a wonderful huband and a good home. I have no reason to be jealous of him. I watch him everywhere he goes, and I am crazy if he even so much as speaks to a girl, or dances with one. When he goes to the club I ring up to find if he is there, and whan he comes home he is cross and says that he doesn't watch me. Please advise me what to do.

—WORRIED WIFE.

Answer: I should advise you to try to conquer your insane jealousy before it wrecks your life. Indulge in it, and it will break up your home more surely than anything else. It will drive your husband from you and make him hate you.

No other fault that a husband or wife can possibly have is so unforgiveable and so hard to live with as jealousy. Nothing is so difficult to deal with, because it is a bogey of foul suspicions and it lives on its own evil imaginings. It is impossible to combat, because the green-eyed cannot see straight and they behold the most innocent act distorted out of its true shape and colored with their own bilious viewpoint.

Recently in handing down a decision in a divorce case, Commissioner Drury, of the court of appeals of Kentucky, uttered these words of wisdom:

"Jealousy," he said, "is a strange thing. It has caused more human wrtchedness than all the wars, pestilences and other disasters the world has known. In all the annals of recorded time there is not one case in which one thing has been gained or one love preserved by yielding to the sin of jealousy, but any lawyer can tell of instance after instance where homes have been wrecked and lives blighted by it.

"Men have written descriptions of the horrors of war, the ruin wrought by pestilence and the wretchedness of slaves, but no one has ever adequately experienced the wretchedness of life with a jealous spouse have found it beyond their power in language to describe, and were some genius in words to picture such a woe it would be beyond the power of those who have not had that experience to understand. This is one phase of human misery that is and must forever remain to the initiate utterly indescribable, to the uninitiate absolutely incomprehensible.

"Out of the abundance of his wisdom and the numerosity of his matrimonial experiences, Solomon was best prepared to speak on this subject, and in six words he summed it up and said it all: 'Jealousy is as cruel as the grave.' The conduct of the wife in this case to her husband was cruelty beyond description. The bonds that bind a man to such a woman are veritable chains that are heavy, though they clank not and they gall forever."

Consider these words, jealous wife, and conquer your jealousy before it is too late. No man who has any self-respect will stand being watched. No man who has the spirit of a mouse will endure the insult of being chased down over the telephone and humiliated by being called up at his club to prove that he hasn't lied about where he was going.

To what end is your jealousy? What do you gain by it? Do you think you can endear your husband to you by spying on him? Do you think you can keep him faithful to you by watching him? Don't you know you have to trust him in the end since you can't have your eagle eye upon him every minute of the day and night and he can fool you if he wants to?

Furthermore, don't you know that any man or woman who is so lacking in honor and loyalty that he or she has to be watched isn't worth watching? Jealousy is not only the most damnable thing on earth. It is the most asinine.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am a girl 20 years old. Two years ago my father and mother passed away leaving me the sole support of a little brother of 10. He is very talented and I feel that I must continue his violin lessons at any cost. A wealthy young man, who is everything that is good and kind, has been helping us and wants to marry me. If I married him I could give my little brother the advantages he should have, but I am in love with a poor boy and feel that it would break my heart to give him up to marry the rich man. What is my duty in the matter? —SHERON.

Answer: In old-fashioned novels and melodramas it was held to be a noble and a heroic thing for a young girl to sacrifice herself for her family and marry a man she loathed in order to pay off the mortgage on the old homestead, or to keep papa from having to go to work, or something of the kind.

Fortunately, in these practical days we look at the matter from a saner standpoint and we see nothing fine and altruistic in a girl wrecking three lives for the sake of some possible benefit to her family. For that is what she does if she gives up the man she loves and who loves her to marry a man she does not love and to whom she can never possibly be a good wife. Look at your case in this light.

Consider the wrong you will do yourself. Consider the violence that you will do to your principles when you sell yourself to a man for whom you care nothing. Consider how you will cheat him because he would not marry you if he knew your heart belonged to another man. Consider the long, sodden years of misery you will have to live, dragging through a marriage that is nothing but an endurance test.

Consider the young man who loves you, and whom you love, who will have his faith in women wrecked, his life embittered, his ambitions slowed down by your leaving him for a richer man.

Consider the rich young man who has been so kind to you and who certainly deserves something better at your hands than just to be turned into a cash register for you to punch for your brother. It is a poor return for his goodness to you to give him a cold and unloving wife who can never make him happy.

As for the little brother, why sacrifice three lives for one? Is it any more important that he should be happy and successful than that you and the two men should be? Why should three lives be ruined that he should learn to play the fiddle?

If he is a great genius the way will be opened for him. If he has only mediocre talent it isn't worth breaking your heart over.

There is nothing that we exaggerate more than children's ability. It seems so wonderful to us for little Johnny to be able to carry a tune and little Sally to be able to draw a cow that you can recognize as intended as such that we leap to the conclusion that they are embryo Carusos and Rose Bonheurs and we scrimp and save and go hungry to give them high priced lessons and to send them to Paris for study. Instead of setting the world on fire with their genius, however, their feeble little facility gutters down into a tallow candle that doesn't even light them to a good job.

Don't make this mistake, my dear. Marry the young man you love and let little brother take his chances.—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I have a 19-year-old son who makes good wages, but who is so extravagant that he is always in debt. We are poor people and have five other children to support, but this boy is always borrowing money from me that he never repays and he wants me to go on his note at the bank to borrow money. He has always had what he wanted and I'm afraid he will get despondent and do something he shouldn't if he doesn't get it. What should I do?

—A TROUBLED MOTHER.

Answer—Absolutely refuse to go on his note or giv ehim a cent. Let him be badgered by bill collectors and lie awake wondering how he is going to get the money to pay his debts. That is the only way he will ever find out the value of money and the necessity for living within his income.

Also, it will not be fair to the other children, who are not yet self-supporting, to deprive them of the things they need in order to give the money to this big, husky lad who is perfectly capable of taking care of himself. Your son has come to the parting of the ways and on your having enough backbone to refuse to give him money now, no matter how he pleads nor what he threatens to do, will depend his whole future. So buck up and snap your purse shut.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Diet the menace of Hollywood
Stars wrecked seeking slimness

PHOTOPLAY MAGAZINE recently revealed that many motion-picture stars ruin their health seeking slimness. The motion-picture camera adds from 5 to 20 pounds to the appearance of a star's figure, so that many of these celebrities become victims of dieting.

One famous star died of tuberculosis brought on by weight reduction. Another ruined her career and was made an invalid by starvation. Still another resorted to quick reducing medicines and is today virtually an invalid. Another star is mentioned who collapsed on a set after trying to lose 10 pounds.

One of the alarming dieting extremes indulged in by the stars, according to Photoplay, is eating no food at all for breakfast, and seriously limiting nourishing foods for both luncheon and dinner.

No person can be healthy without eating enough nourishing food daily and regularly. The tragic experience of motion-picture stars should be a warning to all women and girls to eat enough.

Modern health authorities insist on a variety of foods, including milk, vegetables, fruits and meats. It is a dieting error to suggest eliminating sugar from the diet, for sweetness is the perfect flavor that makes all of the healthful foods so delicious. Serve applesauce, grapefruit, dried and canned fruits and cereals for breakfast sweetened for enjoyment. Learn the value of sweetening in the cooking of all vegetables for delicious flavors. Sweetening improves the taste and flavor of fruits and cereals. Sugar and flavoring make delicious milk-shakes and egg-nogs.

See that every member of your family eats enough. The best cooks are generous with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

Sister and Brother Separated In Poverty to Be Reunited; Girl Rich

ST. LOUIS, March 1. (AP)—After 12 years of separation during which neither knew the fate of the other, an 18-year-old farmer boy, adopted son of a Nebraska farmer, and his sister, a 16-year-old heiress to half of the $5,000,000 estate of her late adopted father, soon are to be reunited.

Their reunion also may bring about discovery of their two other sisters, whose fate is unknwon.

Leon, Louise, Daisy Sylvia and Davie Florence Warren were the children of a poor Missouri lead and zinc miner of Alba, Jasper county. He was killed in a mine accident in 1917. Their mother placed them with the Missouri children's home society here.

Farmer Adopts Boy

Leon, the farmer boy, was adopted by J. M. Jacobs, a Lafayette county farmer, who later moved to Nebraska where Leon has been helping him on the farm and shining shoes in the neighborhood village of Alliance, Neb.

Louise was adopted at the age of 5 by O. D. Strother, an oil prospector of Seminole, Okla. Strother was not wealthy then, but he struck oil and left an estate of approximately $5,000,000 when he died three years ago. The estate was left to be divided equaly between his own child and Louise. Louise now is residing with Strother's sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Warden of Richland Parish, La. She is attending school in Nashville, Tenn. Last summer she went on a tour of Europe, at the very time her les fortunate brother was shining shoes in Alliance.

A few months ago Leon wrote to the children's home society, seeking information about his sisters and also seeking the advice of the superintendent in his struggle to work his way through college.

Education Possible

The superintendent delved into records with the result that Louise was located and the two were brought together through correspondence. They are to meet this summer and Louise's guardians think they can arrange to help Leon get his college education.

Meanwhile, little has been learned about the two other sisters, except that Daisy Silvia was adopted at the age of 11 by a family in Springfield, Mo., and Davie Florence, was adopted at the age of nine by a family which then lived at Memphis, Mo. It was learned that the foster parents of Davie Florence moved to Ohio.

School and College News

Members of the Junior College Euclidean club held election of officers at the weekly meeting of the organization Thursday night in the Junior college building. Edgar Cullin was elected grand pythagorean and will preside over the weekly meetings for the next period of six weeks. Other officers elected were: Jane Cameron, vice pythagorean; Wilma Thomas, dicipherer, and Dick Long, bisector.

B. T. Adams, sponsor of the club, discussed "The Fourth Dimension" in an interesting address before the assembly.

An interesting phase of the speech was a statement made by Mr. Adams to the effect that "according to theory, there is a fourth dimension, but since man is only a third dimension being, he cannot determine any higher dimension."

All officers elected will hold office for the next six weeks period, according to a custom of the club.

Starting on Monday morning, March 4, a one-page, three-column supplement of The Wichitan will appear in the main corridor of the building bearing all late news, both local and foreign. The staff for the copy has been selected from among students of the Junior college; none of which will be staff members of the Wichitan, with the exception of the editor, Oliver Fudge. Purpose of the paper will be to inform all students and members of the faculty of late current events in a condensed form. Foreign news of importance will be taken from The Record News, written by the staff members in a condensed form.

The supplement will be posted each day at 8 o'clock in the morning, so that students going to class in the morning will be informed on the latest news.

Demonstration of strokes and a general round table discussion of the art of playing tennis featured the weekly meeting of the Tennis club Friday morning.

Members of the Wichitan staff made a study of the last edition of the weekly publication at the regular class in journalism held Friday afternoon at the close of school. The latest issue was distributed among members of the class and all errors that appeared in the copy were checked and corrected.

A prize of one dollar has been offered by Prof. A. F. Edwards, instructor of the class, for the student finding the most errors in the last issue and the one that is to be distributed on next Wednesday morning. Points to be considered in the judging will be typographical errors, diction, spelling, and mistakes made in the makeup of the papers.

QUANAH, Texas, March 1.—Wichitans talk a lot about the City That Faith Built. When you look at this big three-story brick Quanah hotel here in Quanah and consider that it was built when the town had a population not exceeding 1,000 and was surrounded by a sparsely populated wilderness, you are firmly of the belief that the pioneer builders of Quanah had not only faith but a large complement of what General Pershing termed intestinal fortitude.

◆ ◆ ◆

It was back in 1890, a little more than three years after the first sale of town lots in Quanah that the pioneers dealt a few aces from the bottom of the deck and won the county seat from Margaret, a village 20 miles to the south, across the Pease river. The following August witnessed beginning of construction of the Quanah hotel, which when completed and opened to the public in the spring of 1891, was the most palatial on the Denver road west of Fort Worth; in fact, it was the equal of any in Fort Worth and surpassed by few, if any, in Texas.

◆ ◆ ◆

The splendor of this new tavern was a challenge to the courage of the timorous; it inspired faith in the future of Quanah. Immediately after its completion fire swept the frame buildings in the surrounding business section. In June of the same year there also was a flood, following 14 inches of rainfall in the first four hours of the downpour. Such fields of wheat as were in the county were practically ruined. Two years later the wheat crop was a total failure; the nation was in the throes of a financial panic; cattle, the principal resource of the county, were valued less for their carcasses than for their skins.

◆ ◆ ◆

Hard luck descended upon Quanah and Hardeman county 40 ways from the jack but the pioneers immune from cold feet who placed their bets on the long pull of the future of Hardeman and Quanah sat tight and won in the contest with calamity. One of these, the senior J. L. Elbert, who was mayor from 1901 to 1905, is still sitting in the game, lending money on Hardeman land or selling to those who wish to buy.

◆ ◆ ◆

There were times in the years immediately following the completion of the Quanah hotel when it seemed that the enterprise would be a total loss, but luck evened up in the long run and fat days followed upon the lean. As a factor in the development of the town it proved one of the best investments that had been made. The reputation of its accommodations drew travelers from afar who farther in their journeys spoke a good word for Quanah. The popularity of the hotel has not diminished with the passing of the years. Today its spacious lobby is thronged with travelers.

◆ ◆ ◆

Today, as it was 38 years ago, the town with the biggest and best hotels usually wins. That may be why Childress, Amarillo, Plainview, Lubbock, Midland, San Angelo and other West Texas towns are vieing with each other in the building of commodious hotels.

◆ ◆ ◆

Another pioneer intimately associated with the growth of Quanah and Hardeman county is Harry Koch, publisher of the Quanah Tribune-Chief, long ranked among the foremost weekly newspapers of Texas. Mr. Koch, born in Holland, at an early age decided he wanted to go to a country where there was "less water and more sunshine." When he came to Texas he got his wish. There is more water in Hardeman, however, than upon his arrival 40 years ago. Mr. Koch bought the Quanah Chief in 1891 and three years later acquired the Quanah Tribune, since hyphenated with the Chief. The Tribune-Chief is published semi-weekly and may in the not distant future be issued as a daily. His editorial utterances indicate that he is confident that Quanah is destined to be a city of much greater importance than at present.

◆ ◆ ◆

Good newspapers and good hotels, it seems, are almost invariably accurate indices to the future growth of West Texas towns. Towns making most rapid growth and in which investments have yielded greatest profits have had newspapers and hotels always considerably in advance of the immediate requirements of the towns. Quanah has added another good hotel; it soon may add a daily newspaper to its assets.

◆ ◆ ◆

Going back to the history of Quanah, it is related that before the first iron horse choo-chooed into Quanah, on March 1, 1887, a schoolhouse had been erected and the school "marm," Miss McCann, now Mrs. J. A. Pardue, was in readiness to teach the incoming young uns the three Rs. The school house was temporarily utilized as a church by peripatetic circuit riders or volunteer parsons.

◆ ◆ ◆

Today Quanah has a magnificent high school building and there ward school buildings, one of the latter of native stone, the others of brick. The property of its church denominations is valued at more than $600,000.

◆ ◆ ◆

The growth of this Panhandle and South Plains region is stirring up competition for its favor from points without the state. This writer today while visiting at the Quanah Chamber of Commerce met Ed Overholser, president of the Oklahoma City Chamber of Commerce, buzzing among the lady stenos and assistant secretaries. Ed declared that he was actually out on a vacation and was making his first visit in Quanah. Quite so. He did not mention that which is known, that when he is out on vacation he never neglects to make a little medicine for Oklahoma City. He volunteered the information, however, that he was amazed by what he had seen of the country down this way and that he expected to go as far southwest as San Angelo. The traditional cat escaped from the bag with the appearance of Harry Koch's Tribune-Chief, which said: "Mr. Overholser is planning to get up an excursion from towns along the Quanah, Acme & Pacific to Oklahoma City in the near future. He wants over 300 leading business men to be guests of the Oklahoma City Chamber of Commerce."

◆ ◆ ◆

Just by way of comment, this president of the Oklahoma City Chamber of Commerce is a most remarkable man. It is a fact that he has enrolled in his organization a paid membership of 6,800, including memberships in the name of the open shop and the trades council, the K. K. K. and the K. of C.

LONELY LOVER HUNTS CAREER

Cowboy Who Eloped With Rich Heiress Tries Movies

By FRANK B. GOODMAN

HOLLYWOOD, March 1. (US)—Allegations that absence makes the heart grow fonder are being tested by George Gillespie, 26-year-old cowboy Lochinvar who remained in the West and won the love of a Chicago heiress in a whirlwind romance.

At least that was his explanation when found today of why he is moping around the movie capital while his "bride for a day" is in far-away Phoenix, Ariz., with her father, Robert J. Thorne, former president of Montgomery Ward & Co.

Have Not Separated

Reports from Phoenix that the gay cabarello had been "induced" by the father of the former Catherine Thorne to permanently separate from his 21-year-old bride the day after their sensational elopement and marriage were sadly denied by Gillespie.

"I have made no settlement with Mr. Thorne," young Lochinvar declared. "I have signed no papers. In fact, he never asked me to do any such thing, or even suggested an annulment or a divorce."

Then, as one would expect from the hero of a romance that included the jilting of another man, defiance of an angry father and efforts to have the cowboy arrested as a kidnaper, young Gillespie exclaimed:

"I want none of Mr. Thorne's money. All I want is his daughter, and I have no intention of giving her up!"

Then the dashing buckaroo said a 10-day separation was agreed upon to permit the millionaire's daughter to decide whether she really and truly loved him and because of his own desire to "make good" for her sake.

"Hoss Opera" Artist

Gillespie said the suggestion came from a mutual friend of his and Thorne. He has worked previously in "hoss operas," and feels that perhaps the Midas touch of the movies will do for him what it has for others. A not unreasonable view, considering the publicity the romance has received and the fact that capable lovers are always in demand for screen romances.

"So Catherine and I decided I should come here and try my luck," he explained, adding that "Unless she should decide between now and next Thursday that she does not love me, she will join me in Hollywood."

Monoxide Fumes Take Two Victims

MONTREAL, March 1. (INS)—Deadly carbon fumes, sweeping up from the exhaust pipe of an automobile that had not been used for over five months, resulted in the death today of two members of a prominent Montreal family and endangered the lives of two others.

Phillip W. Robertson, 50, an executive of the International Paper company, and his daughter, Phyllis, are the dead persons.

Mrs. Phillip Robertson and her son, Kenneth, are in the Royal Victoria hospital in a serious condition.

The accident, which threatened the family with extinction, occurred in a peculiar way. The garage in which Robertson kept his car is directly underneath his home. Going to the garage, Robertson attempted to start the car. The fumes which rose from the exhaust pipe up into the house killed him and his daughter almost instantly.

New Prohi Law To Enable Deportation

WASHINGTON, March 1 (AP)—President Coolidge feels that many people in viewing the Jones bill to increase penalties for violations of the prohibition law have overlooked the aid the legislation would give customs officials in the deportation of alien violators of the dry statutes.

The president has been told by sponsors of the measure, which yesterday received final congressional approval and was sent to the White House for his consideration, that many violators are foreigners and that as the law stands now it is impossible to deport them.

It was pointed out that while the maximum penalty is increased to five years and a fine of $10,000, there is no increase in the minimum penalty and the court is given discretion in distinguishing between habitual violators and occasional or first offenders.

CHARGES MADE IN MASSACRE

McGurn and Fanelli Face Seven Counts

CHICAGO, March 1. (AP)—Jack McGurn and Rocco Fanelli were booked on seven charges of murder late today in connection with the St. Valentine's day gang massacre.

CHICAGO, March 1. (UP)—Silence, the strict and sacred code of gangsters and their women, was unbroken today as investigators sought to break down the wall of protection left by the machine gunners who lined up seven men against a wall of brick in "Bugs" Moran garage and left their victims "to tell no tales."

The gangsters, Jack McGurn, known to police as Scarface Al Capone's chief gunman, and Rocco Fanelli, who, in the rapid reports of gangland dissension, is said to be a McGurn-Vallo-Capone ally, had no tale to tell to those who sought to clarify the most atrocious slayings since the sensational Haymarket riots.

Neither did Louise Rolfe have a word of encouragement for the officials who Thursday announced the "Moran massacre has been solved." She had told her story and stuck to it—that "Jack was with me in a hotel room at the time of the massacre and had nothing to do with it."

She and McGurn were arrested Wednesday in a fashionable hotel. McGurn was identified by two witnesses as one of the machine-gun gang seen entering the Moran garage on St. Valentine's day, police said, but the dapper gangster replied: "Don't make me laugh."

His sweetheart, the blonde Louise, who said she was a housewife from Biloxi, Miss., still contended that "Jack was with me in the hotel room at the time of the massacre."

Police officials announced that seven formal charges of murder would be placed against McGurn who is seeking a writ of habeas corpus to obtain release from confinement where his English-cut blue suit and white silk shirt is becoming wrinkled on a jail cot.

They announced further that charges of accessory to the fact would be filed against Louise if she didn't talk. Gangsters' sweethearts or "molls" as they are known in underworld parlance, don't talk for the police, so the charges probably will be filed if she is held.

Habeas corpus proceedings have been filed in criminal court by attorneys for McGurn and his sweetheart and the "showdown" will come before Judge Denis J. Mormoyle tomorrow morning.

No petition had been filed for the release of Fanelli today and authorities announced that a murder charge would be made against him in event such an attempt were made.

Two additional arrests were made today in connection with the St. Valentine's day massacre. Sam (Gin Gin) Giancanna, reported to be the leader of the "forty-two gang" on Chicago's west side and Salvatore Strache were taken into custody "for questioning."

Neither was charged formally with any direct connection with the Morad murders. "Gin Gin" was questioned as to his knowledge, if any, of the killings and his possible connection with the slayers.

The owner of the second automobile resembling the "death car" used by the murderers which has been found damaged in an apparent effort to destroy evidence also was sought today. Tracing records of ownership, police said that Pat Gleason, who gave his address as a vacant lot when he took out his licenses, was believed to be the seventh and last owner.

His Rheumatism Is Ended; Gains 16 Lbs. Health and Vigor

"Since I began taking Sargon my weight has increased from 98 pounds to 113—an actual gain of sixteen pounds—but the most wonderful thing of all is the way Sargon overcame my rheumatism."

THOS. B. BELL

"For twelve years I suffered tortures with pains in my knees and hips. At time I couldn't walk without crutches.

"I also suffered with stomach trouble, constipation and biliousness. For months I lived almost entirely on soup and bread. I lost energy and my general condition became dreadfully rundown. I tried nearly every medicine I heard of, but nothing did me any real good.

"Now, I am like a different man. Every ache and pain is gone. I eat anything I want without a sign of trouble. The rheumatism has disappeared and my strength and energy have returned. A friend of mine who had seen me on the street a few months ago saw me the other day. I was hustling along walking as good as anybody. He could hardly believe his own eyes and asked me 'What in the world have you done' and I told him what Sargon had done for me.

"The Sargon Soft Mass Pills are the finest I ever used and they have entirely rid me of constipation. From now on my faith is pinned to the Sargon Treatment."

The above enthusiastic statement was made by Thos. B. Bell, well known retired farmer, residing at 415 West California street, Oklahoma City.

Sargon may be obtained in Wichita Falls from the Renfro Drug Co., Eighth and Scott streets, No. 1 main store, and Seventh and Indiana, No. 2; and in Electra from Lough's Drug Store.—Adv.

OZARK BANDIT FREED BY PALS

Bank Robber Taken From Jail by Two Cronies

MOUNT VERNON, Mo., March 1. (UP)—Armed men were guarding roads and highways leading out of the Missouri Ozarks regions today in one of the most extensive manhunts of southern Missouri since the days of the old Bald Knob gangs.

Officers and citizens have combined to comb the country in an effort to recapture Calvin Powell, a former convict of St. Louis, who was released by two young men from the county jail here last night.

Powell was being held for trial on charges of participating in the robbery of $3,363 recently of the Bank of Marionville, in this county.

The two men came to the jail and forced Deputy Sheriff David Jeffords to release Powell under threat of death to him and his family if he refused. Powell released, the strangers forced Mr. and Mrs. Jeffords and their four children into the cell with another prisoner, Lloyd Davis, who refused to leave the jail. They released themselves 30 minutes later.

Dollar-per-Word Plus $25,000 Offer Doesn't Sound So Bad to Coolidge

Kitty McKay

By NINA WILCOX PUTNAM

The girl friend says the only exercise to keep thin is skipping—skipping meals.

NEW YORK, March 1. (INS)—An offer to write at a dollar per word in addition to an annual retainer of $25,000 has been made to retiring President Calvin Coolidge by the publishers of the Encyclopedia Americana. What's more, Mr. Coolidge seems to be interested in the offer—so much so that his confidential secretary wrote the publishers asking for more details. Col H. Carr ston, vice president, in speaking for the company, expressed confidence that the president would accept the offer.

The proposition was put to the president on Feb. 21, Horace L. Hayward, who heads the company, announced today. Hayward has suggested to Mr. Coolidge's secretary that a conference be arranged regarding the offer between himself and the president.

In a letter of reply sent to the president, Hayward said:

"Would suggest meeting to discuss our offer which appears to interest you. You would be expected to contribute articles of general interest on American political, economic and sociological problems and on American biography."

PROXY BATTLE IN TANK TOWN

Stewart and Rockefeller To Clash Thursday

WHITING, Ind., March 1 (UP)—In an auditorium dedicated to heroes of the world war and built to furnish recreation for industrial workers who earn their wages in the gaseous reek of refineries, John D. Rockefeller Jr. and Col. Robert W. Stewart will battle by proxy next Thursday afternoon for control of the billion dollar Standard Oil company of Indiana.

Never before in the history of big business has there been staged such a spectacle as the one the oil "tank town" of Whiting will witness when the stockholders of Standard Oil meet to decide who shall rule their investment destinies during the next year.

The scene promises to be more like that of a national political convention than the usual sedate meeting of a group of shareholders in a big corporation. Only the bands, banners and spellbinders will be absent.

Arrangements were being made today to accommodate 2,500 shareholders or persons carrying proxies for shareholders in the community memorial center, which has been leased for the day for the meeting.

NEW ROMANCE COLORFUL ONE

Russian Actors to Marry Despite Hardships

HOLLYWOOD, March 1. (INS)—Cinema lane buzzed today with talk of Hollywood's newest romance, that of Olga Baclanova, fiery Russian screen beauty, and Nicholas Sousanin, adventuresome actor and scenarist.

The love affair of the famous Baclanova and her sweetheart is one of the most colorful in shadowland's romantic history.

Having just taken out a marriage license, the principals in this latest movie romance today were forming plans for their wedding, which is expected shortly.

The path to the altar was cleared for Baclanova when she received word from her native land that the Soviet government had awarded her a divorce from Valdemar Zoppi, a Moscow attorney.

Bred in the rigorous traditions of the Russian theater, both Baclanova and her prospective husband first became acquainted with each other on a Hollywood movie lot, where their romance began.

Baclanova's talent first gained recognition on the stage of the famous Moscow Little theater, where her work attracted the attention of Morris Gest, eminent American impressario.

Following her engagement with Gest, officials of the Paramount studios invited Baclanova to come to Hollywood. She accepted the invitation and soon sky-rocketed to fame, beginning her screen career as Emil Jannings' leading lady.

The rise of Sousanin in the film world reads like fiction. Fleeing Russia during the height of the revolution, he made his way to China and boarded a steamer for Seattle, Washington.

Landing in America penniless he became a street car washer, working for $3.50 a day. Saving enough money to pay his fare to Hollywood, he arrived in the film capitol to pursue a film career.

His first "break" came when he was given the obscure part of a waiter in a picture with Adolphe Menjou. So convincing was his portrayal that Menjou later selected him to play with him in "A Gentleman of Paris." From then on his niche was carved and he has since appeared with Emil Jannings in "The Last Command." Recently he turned to writing original stories for the screen.

SOME DUBIOUS DAMES

A PROMINENT Manhattan illustrator doesn't care to be reminded of the time he pot-boiled old masters in a Boulevard St. Jacques attic, while paying his way through Julien's.

Those were the days when Bernard Naudin was chirping provencal songs in a converted stable, and pouring a since-abandoned ambition into vast canvases of the French revolution.

Hosts of students, then as now, fed the wolf with such scraps as opportunity tossed them. And, then, as now, opportunity usually tossed them commissions for spurious paintings.

There are sixty thousand fake Corots at large—and a lot of 'em in American possession.

Most of the works imputed to medieval artists are tainted with suspicion—or restoration.

Italy is annually scoured for sixteenth and seventeenth century daubs, the fabric of which is scraped and utilized by counterfeiters, adept in all the color secrets and varnish formulas of the periods and schools they mimic.

Experienced collectors—and collectors learn only from experience—never buy except through responsible firms, and under their guarantees.

And even these experts aren't infallible.

The Dossena sculptures, which passed the scrutiny of museum curators everywhere, suggest how many more cherished marbles may be the product of rogue chisels.

Present verification methods, including the X-ray, weren't existent when the Metropolitan, the Louvre and the Tate were first stocked.

And if blunderbusses, daily shooting worm-holes into Dutch and Belgian oak, signify anything, a considerable percentage of our "early" furniture was wearing roots a short time back.

SIR JOSEPH DUVEEN'S professional skepticism is not the attitude of a born cynic, but the fruit of many and bitter encounters with forgery.

The omniscient Dr. von Bode, if recollection is clear, stamped with authenticity a wax bust of apparent Renaissance origin. It might yet be hobnobbing with immortalities, if a Bayswater modeler hadn't blurted the imposture.

The cachet of LaMotte, long supreme arbiter on Gothic survivals, lost its droit de dernier cri, when scandal revealed that the house was not above dabbling in falsities.

The jeer that rang through Europe when a Levantine goldsmith confessed to the authorship of certain pre-Christian crowns, is still quaking newspaper files.

Putting it mildly, 50 per cent of art's "dearest" treasures are of doubtful extraction and inaccurate attribution.

Phidias is credited with statuary he never saw. Rubens robbed Peter's glory to pay Paul's indulgences, by signing scores of apprentice portraits. And even Blakelock didn't touch brush to a thousand landscapes bearing his signature.

"La Belle Ferroniere" is not the only illustrious dame in search of a birth certificate. The Mona Lisa and Gainsborough's duchesses have been confused with bastard sisters, too.

A fool and his money are soon parted—when they begin to hanker for painted ladies.

BOOTLEGGERS MURDERED

LOGANPORT, Ind., March 1. (UP)—Scantily clad, Earl Armstrong and Jack Williams were found murdered in their reputed bootlegging establishment here today. Armstrong, according to a coroner's report, met death when a heavy revolver slug penetrated his brain. Williams was shot near the heart. The bodies were found by George Hiles, said by police to be an employe in the establishment.

Groping For Freedom

THERE is a great deal of talk nowadays about freedom.

The younger generation, we have been told over and over again, is determined to have it, if it has to shock every maiden aunt in the country. Women, newly emancipated and permitted to smoke cigarets in public, are getting it also. Restraint and repression have become hateful words; any psychologist will tell you that they are fatal to the soul's development.

It is customary to blame all of this on the war, but that point is immaterial. Whether or not the business of "self determination for small nations" is responsible for the young sophisticate's loss of inhibitions might be a curious question for a sociologist, but it doesn't really make much difference. The point is that we seem, in the last few years to have determined freedom at almost any price.

Having reached this decision, it really wouldn't hurt us to stop fretting and figure out just what we are going to do with our freedom when we get it.

Freedom is a curious thing. Like so many other of life's desirable goals, it can be reached only by indirection. Aim for it to the exclusion of all else and you will lose it. Forget about it, and strike out for some quite diverse objective, and you may unexpectedly find it.

For life has a way of building up ties and responsibilities that can not be dodged. Without at all intending to, all of us drift gradually into one after another entanglement. Presently we find that our lives are not our own. Other people have claims on them. We cannot do anything with reference to our own wishes alone. We must always consider how what we do will affect other people.

But our plight is worse if we deliberately set out to avoid all entanglements. We wall ourselves in and by gaining a sort of isolation we make ourselves free to do as we will; and then we find that we have taken on a new kind of slavery. We are held in our own chains. We cannot do the fine things we might have done, for they spring from those very entanglements we shunned; by looking for freedom we have gained only emptiness and futility.

Most of us, by choice or necessity, take the former course. We create unbreakable ties between ourselves and other people, and these ties restrict our movements. One by one the brave dreams we used to have of doing exciting, pleasing and unusual things fade out. We find that we can never do them, because our relationships with those who love and trust us will not permit it.

Yet that is not entirely a misfortune. For, by being prevented from realizing our secret dreams, we are gradually made free from them. We are released from bondage to unattainable desires. With this freedom we are enabled to serve, not ourselves, but others.

Thus, eventually, we learn how it is that he that is master of his own spirit is greater than he that taketh a city. We discover the value of self-sacrifice. And—strangely enough—we get a new kind of freedom that we had not dreamed of before.

Our Mass Production

AN English business man, returning to his native shores after a visit to the United States, expressed himself thus about our system of mass production and installment buying:

"The people (of the United States) are spending their earnings in advance and must go on earning. But should the demand either at home or abroad fall off and employers begin to discharge men, what would happen? Installments would be lacking, and goods in various stages of wear and tear would be returned to the makers, or bad debts incurred, and the finance companies who hold the notes would lose much more than the fraction of one per cent they are losing in that way now."

There is no question but that our present economic system is geared to a high speed. If it should suddenly be slowed down the consequences, indubitably, would be serious. Whether they would be as bad as this Englishman believes may be an open question; the matter, at all events, is one that deserves serious study by the most competent minds in the country.

"Nobody Shot Me"

ONE OF THE SEVEN MEN executed by a gangsters' firing squad in Chicago the other day did not die instantly. While life was still in him, the police questioned him in the hope of identifying the murderers.

"Who shot you?" asked an officer, bending over the dying man.

"Shot me?" he repeated. "Why—nobody shot me."

There were 10 bullets in his body at the time.

Right there you have the explanation for the power of the gangs. Their victims fear them too much to talk. Their power is greater than the police power. That is why known criminals walk the streets without being arrested. The police may know that they are guilty of a score of crimes; but they cannot get witnesses to convict them.

FOR MOODY'S CIVIL SERVICE BILL

It seems to us that the legislature went wrong in refusing to pass Governor Moody's civil service measure for state departmental employes. Appointment on examination and promotion through service and merit make for greater economy and efficiency in the handling of the state's affairs, and we may not expect any curtailment in state expenses so long as we are cursed by the spoils system. Texas people have a right to better methods and corresponding savings in the handling of governmental affairs and the News believes that the legislature registered adversely to the will of the people when it rejected the civil service plan. —Clarendon (Texas) News.

A NEW INDOOR SPORT

Now that basket ball and wrestling and other mid-winter sports have about reached their zenith, why not start a liar's tournament? This is one sport that has a large following around Walters and yet it hasn't had the recognition it properly deserves. We maintain that distinction in any line of endeavor merits the plaudits of men. Why not a champion liar of Walters? Novel? Yes, but we think a very proper thing. Even practicable. —Walters (Okla.) Herald.

ANOTHER ONE AGAINST THE BETTING

We don't always agree with the legislature, but its action in refusing to legalize race horse gambling is to be commended. There is no reason to make a darkey pay a fine for shooting craps and permit the bloods to shoot the races without hindrance. —Henrietta (Texas) Independent.

His Dad's Worth $100,000,000, But He Works in Greasy Overalls

(By NEA Service)

NEW ORLEANS, March 1.—A pink-cheeked, boyish youngster of 21 recently took a job at a filling station here, and in a short time had the customers and his fellow employes talking about him because he never would accept a tip.

He was a willing worker. He was always courteous and cheerful and he didn't mind getting oil and grease on his clothing and in his hair, but no customer could force him to accept any extra money for his services after changing the motor oil or greasing the chassis.

So they started looking into the matter—and they found that the obliging young man in overalls was Donald Stewart, son of Col. Robert W. Stewart of Standard Oil of Indiana. The elder Stewart is worth, at a guess, about $100,000,000, and perhaps that expalins why the young man won't take tips.

Why Work, Anyway?

It doesn't explain why he is working in a filling station, however, when he might be living a life of pleasant ease like other rich men's sons. So an interviewer went forth to question him and find out. After all, a filling station job means hard work, long hours and plenty of dirt and grease; why should the potential heir to $100,000,000 take it on voluntarily?

That question was easily answered. Donald Stewart aims to learn the oil business—as it applies to marketing the finished product. To do this he has to start at the bottom, and that, in the oil business, means the very bottom—underneath some travel-stained car, draining the sludgy oil.

This wasn't suggested to him by his father.

"I just knew it was expected of me," he says. "It never occurred to me to try anything else."

It was remarked that plenty of rich men's sons get a nice, ornamental, highly-paid job in their father's offices, doing little real work and getting plenty of time to play. Donald Stewart grinned and shook his head.

"That," he said, "wouldn't be my father's idea at all. Not at all."

Learning From the Bottom Up

So young Stewart, youngest of his father's three sons, is learning the oil business. He has put in five months in the filling station. Now he's ready to go out on the road as a salesman. He knew that he couldn't be a good salesman unless he knew something first-hand about the filling station end of the business. So he put on overalls and went to it.

The filling station didn't start it, however. A year ago last summer he spent his vacation in Venezuela, where he got an acquaintance with the production end by studying prospectors, drillers, geologists and shipping men in the big fields of the Lago Oil and Transport company—of which an elder brother is president. Then he returned to the University of Chicago to complete his education.

All of this left him time for a hobby. When he left the university he went to a flying school to study aviation. One of his instructors was Bert Acosta, who flew Byrd's ship across the Atlantic. Donald Stewart learned every phase of flying and now has a pilot's license, although he has no intention of doing any commercial flying.

Sees Big Future for Aviation

"Aviation is growing so fast I think every young man should know how to fly," he said. "Aviation is going to be a big factor in the oil business, so I wanted to know all about it."

His filling station experience hasn't been the only phase of the distributing trade that he has tackled, either. For a time he drove an oil truck. He also worked in a refinery, standing in the laboratory with the chemists and learning how crude oil is turned into gasoline, paraffin, transmission grease and the like.

And now he's ready to start selling.

"The training he's had so far," said J. D. Sheehy, one of his instructors, "is exactly the same training that every other salesman gets. It's simply the background for their selling work, the knowledge they've got to have to sell their line intelligently. Donald hasn't had a single break because of his family, and if he makes good on his territory when he gets it, it will be due simply to the fact that he's got the stuff in him."

Youth Objects to Praise

Young Stewart, who was present, objected to this remark.

"Say, lay off," he protested. "This is no success story. For all I know I may be the biggest washout they ever had when I get out to sell on my own hook. And I don't want to look silly after a lot of advance publicity."

But Sheehy only winked.

"He's a hard worker," he said.

Busy as he is, Donald Stewart finds time for recreation. He likes to dance and sail a boat and play golf, and he works in a little of each of those diversions whenever he is able.

He likes to drive an auto, too, but he isn't doing that now.

"Can't afford to," he explained.

He added, however, that if he prospers as a salesman he plans to buy a flivver soon.

...o, thanks; I never accept tips," said this polite young attendant as he changed the oil and greased cars at a New Orleans filling station. And there's reason enough for Donald Stewart, above, is the son of Col. Robert W. Stewart, Standard Oil millionaire. The sketches give a glimpse of young Stewart's career as he seeks to learn the oil business from the bottom up.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

Broadway Chatter by Grant Dixon

NEW YORK, March 1.—It is quite surprising, deplorable, that New York's fashionable set is so far behind London and Paris in the latest fad.

Just now the topic of gossip in Park avenue has to do with the goings-on in London's Mayfair. We learn that a divorcee makes it a practice of dating up her estwhile spouse (or spouses) and dine in some exclusive West End restaurant. Every noon and evening hosts of stage and social celebrities may be seen taking soup and fish with their former mates and all the amity in the world. Their conversations, it may be assumed, take up the amusing way the co-respondent blushed when the detectives walked in, among other things.

New York usually is not so conservative when it comes to adopting European-tried social novelties. So I regret to report that this idea has not struck the smart set on a large scale as yet. But gave it time.

Every once in a while we run across in the daily prints or in the smart reviews something about the "Algonquin" group, so called because, according to legend, the cream of New York's intellegentsia is supposed to foregather in an uptown hotel by that name. There they talk of literary and artistic problems, the latest developments in the world of letters, etc., etc. In fact, hundreds of people have visited such centers with the hope of getting an eyefull of genius.

A specific gathering place for the elite in literary circles is no longer the vogue, if it ever was. There are many groups and many centers, each of which compares favorably in prestige with the other. But what I started to say was the "Algonquin" group and all other groups seldom have been worthy of their prestige. It is quite true that a few of the wits of the town have foregathered at the Algonquin, but to regard them as the elect of American letters always seemed to me quite fatuous.

The great of American literature are members of no groups or cliques. They do not sit around bandying cliches or smart phrases. Theodore Dresier, Eugene O'Neill, James Branch Cabell, Sherwood Anderson and Willa Cather—to name only a few of our really representative men and women of letters—have little taste for the literary gossipers and phrase makers. When Mr. Anderson comes to town from his home in Marion, Va., where he conducts two newspapers, it is to visit his friends, not to talk shop, except, of course, in the offices of his publishers. The same applies to Dresier, O'Neil and Cabell and quite a few others.

Midnight Movies have become the vogue in New York night life. They chiefly cater to those, who through circumstance, are unable to attend the theater during the regular theater hours. One or two theaters, notably Loew's New York Roof, undertook midnight movies several years ago. They met, in many cases, with financial disaster because of the high cost of maintaining orchestras after the regular closing hour.

The sound and talking pictures, however, have eliminated this problem, and now, on Broadway, the great white way is well lighted long past midnight. The Capitol, Roxy's, the Paramount and the New York Roof are prominent among the "all-night theaters," and they are providing the night clubs with a little competition.

Audiences at these performances usually are made up of actors and actresses, chorus girls, racketeers, stage hands, musicians and gay but wobbly youths who started for a theater hours before, but were waylaid by a night club or a private party.

The massive and beautiful home of the late Commodore Elbridge T. Gerry at Fifth avenue and Sixty-first street, which for decades vied with the vanished Vanderbilt chateau for honors among architectural monuments to family pride, is to be torn down like the others. One by one the mansions fall, and what once was the most impressive and beautiful street in the world continues to crumble before the advance of business and the modern apartment dwelling. Only a few hours of the great remain on Fifth avenue and they are lonely, indeed.

In this connection, it is interesting to note the movement of society toward the East Side. There was a time when "the East Side" was referred to disdainfully. That was when Riverside drive, West End avenue and Central Park West boasted the smartest apartment houses in town. Although these places continue to display attractive surroundings, society pushed even beyond the sacred Fifth avenue and into Park avenue where great apartment houses cater to the living needs of the wealthy.

But society has not stopped there. Sutton Place and Tudor City, overlooking the drab and murky waters of the East river, are now the smart places in town, particularly Sutton Place, where homes are maintained with some of the regal splendor that was Fifth avenue's.

While on the subject of New York thoroughfares it might not be amiss to consider the endless and weary process of tearing up streets. It seems like a couple of centuries ago that New York began excavating Ninth avenue for the purpose of constructing a subway and, judging dispassionately the progress made, it might be a couple of more centuries before this work is complete. And even before Eighth avenue is finished the city will begin tearing up Sixth avenue for the same purpose. Central Park West, otherwise a beautiful thoroughfare, has been in a dreadful state for a number of years, all because of subway construction.

In Eighth avenue recently the fire department met with difficulty because of the mounds of dirt and stone, the frequent holes and other barriers blocking traffic. One day at the noon hour there was an ominous clang-clang of a fire wagon approaching along the avenue. It sounded as though the machine was moving at a terrific rate of speed. Clang-clang-clang! I looked up and beheld a hook-and-ladder apparatus moving at a snail's pace through the perilous street, while firemen frantically clanged bells and pressed sirens, giving the impression that they were eclipsing all the speed records in the world.

POPE TO REPLY TO DIPLOMATS

Holiness to Give First Talk As Temporal Ruler

By PRINCE PIGNATELLI

ROME, March 1. (UB)—His first official speech as a temporal sovereign will be delivered by Pope Pius XI in the near future, Universal Service learned today from sources close to the vatican.

His holiness will answer the congratulations of the diplomatic corps accredited to the vatican.

The vatican diplomatic corps met today with Dean Magalhaes De Azeredo, the Brazilian ambassador, and discussed the project of extending a collective congratulatory answer to the pope's communication of Feb. 7 on the Roman question settlement. This was the communication delivered by Cardinal Gasparri whereby first official word was given the world of the settlement.

After some discussion, the vatican diplomats decided on this unified course of action, and have asked the holy father for an audience without fixing the date. It is understood Ambassador De Azeredo will read the speech of homage to the pope.

Replying to this congratulatory message, Pius will deliver his first official speech as sovereign. It is intimated his holiness will touch on international affairs in his speech, possibly defining the status of the new vatican state in the family of nations.

Secret Meet On Treaty Is Bared

AMSTERDAM, March 1. (UP)—Dutch newspapers, which last Sunday published an alleged text of a secret military treaty between France and Belgium, made public tonight the alleged minutes of meetings of the French and Belgian general staffs at which, it was asserted, a secret interpretation of the treaty was agreed upon.

The minutes were datd Brusseels, Sept. 21, 1927.

General Debeney and General Galet, respective chiefs of the French and Belgian headquarters staffs, participated in the conference, the newspaper Dagblad said. At that meeting, the newspaper added, it was decided upon to follow the secret text of the 1920 military treaty, alleged to have bound the countries together in case of war and to be directed against Holland and Germany.

Police today seized and destroyed pamphlets being sold on the streets and purporting to contain the text of the alleged secret treaty. The pamphlets were entitled "War With Belgium."

Boy Matador in St. Louis On Way to Valencia

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 1. (UP)—A far echo of the approaching bullfight season in Spain was heard here today when Matador Vincente Barrera, famous despite his 20 years—arrived from Mexico City and told how he killed 42 bulls, cut off the ears of 20, and was paid for endorsing a brand of Mexican beer. Barrera was accompanied by other members of his "team" en route to Spain to open the bullfighting at Valencia.

GIRL DRINKS POISON

WYMORE, Neb., March 1. (UP)—Despondent because of ill health, Ruth Conrad, 19, swallowed poison in her home here late today. In a note addressed to relatives the girl requested that a picture of the man she was to have married be buried with her. Miss Conrad died before doctors could reach her.

FAVORITE JOKES OF FAMOUS FOLKS

As Told by Them to FRANK E. NICHOLSON

By TULLY MARSHALL

TULLY MARSHALL

"It's about a very lazy negro," he said. "I met him when I was down South one time on location. It was a sweltering day and I was willing to pay most anything for some cold ginger ale. The town was a mile away. I walked over to the old negro and tapped him on the shoulder.

"'Hey, you,' I said, 'want to make a dollar?'

"He looked at me for a half a minute, and then, before closing his eyes, replied, 'I've got a dollar, boss.'"

'SMALL' THINGS GET ATTENTION

Carson County Farm Clubs Content Without Oil

PANHANDLE, Texas, March 1.—Just as "little drops of water and little grains of sand, make the mighty ocean and the beauteous land," so will cows, hogs and hens under the intelligent direction of Carson county farm women and girls' stabilize the happiness and prosperity of the county, according to the Carson county home demonstration agent.

The various leaders of the Women's Federated clubs of this county realized that they could not overlook these things that some are inclined to call small, compared with wealth in oil, wheat, etc., because they repeatedly appeared before the commissioners court and asked that a home demonstration agent be employed by the county.

Home Agent Secured

On Aug. 22, 1928, the home demonstration agent began work in Carson county. Organization of girls 4-H clubs and women's home demonstration clubs in practically every rural community in the county is completed. There are 12 communities in the county having a total of 193 women and girls enlisted in home demonstration work. This includes only those girls between the ages of 12 and 20 in the county.

Their plan of work for the year comes under six heads, each constructive and helpful in farm life. Each member chooses a productive project at the beginning of the year which has to do either with garden, poultry or dairying. Each 4-H club girl is required to make four garments during the year. Each member cans at least 20 cans of vegetables, fruits, or meat for home use. Each club member makes one article to improve the interior of the home, and plant flowers, trees, and shrubs on the home grounds as a project. To abide by the constitution and by-laws of the club and to learn correct parliamentary forms in carrying out each club program, and to exhibit work at community, county and state fairs are others of the six items of the year's plan.

Club Pledge

It is the hope of the Carson county women and girls that when they come to the end of the club year in November 1929 that a large per cent of the club members can truly support their club motto, "To make the best better" and live up to the club pledge which is:

I pledge:
My head to clearer thinking.
My hands to greater service.
My heart to truer loyalty and finer sympathy.
My health to efficient living, in service to my home, my community, my country and my God.

Giant Railroad Mergers Forecast

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 1. (UP)—A prediction that the railroads of the United States would be merged into one or two mammoth systems was made here today by John J. Esch, former chairman of the Interstate Commerce commission. Such a condition would be to the ultimate advantage of the public, he said.

Consumers, shippers, stockholders and general business interests are benefited by rail consolidations, Esch asserted in discussing railway problems on which he is considered as well informed as any man in the country. The former I. C. C. chairman cited the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian National railroads, each comprising more than 20,000 miles of transportation lines, as models of consolidation.

Congress eventually will pass legislation for proper consolidation of the nation's railroads, despite the fact that some opposition has been shown toward the move in the present session, Esch believes.

"Opposition appears to come largely from the agricultural states but people are gradually becoming educated to the fact that railroad consolidation is to the public interest, and farmers must necessarily accept this view in time," Esch said.

Temple, Okla., Man Hurt in Accident

Special to The Record News.

WALTERS, Okla., March 1.—Clifford Williams, 21 years old, of Temple, was painfully injured when the excavation in which he was working at Cache creek, two and one-half miles east of Temple, caved in late Wednesday, crushing his back and tearing several of his ribs from his spinal column.

Williams was employed on the new bridge being constructed by the state on highway No. 32. Several other men were in the excavation at the time of the accident, but none of them were injured.

The injured man was taken immediately to Temple where he received first aid treatment. Although the extent of his injuries has not been determined, it is reported his condition is serious.

Fried and Crew Get More Medals

WASHINGTON, March 1. (INS)—Award of life saving medals to Captain George Fried, Chief Officer Harry Manning and the life boat crew of the S. S. America, who rescued the crew of the Italian steamer Florida, was announced by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon today.

The medals will be conferred on board the America in New York harbor at 2 p. m. tomorrow by O. M. Maxam, chief officer of the coast guard, as a representative of Secretary Mellon.

President Holds Last Meeting With Cabinet

WASHINGTON, March 1. (AP)—President Coolidge today turned his attention to the last meeting of his group of official advisors, the members of his cabinet. Twice each week throughout his administration, with the exception of those times that the chief executive has been away from the city, he has discussed the affairs of the nation with the 10 men who head the government departments. Today's session formed the last gathering for the consideration of government business.

Richard C. Callen, United States marshal (lower right), was called on to arrest many of his boyhood friends in the recent raids at Leadville, Colo., directed by John B. Stephan, district attorney (upper right). The pre-prohibition glory of Leadville is shown (upper left) and (below) a street of present-day soft drink parlors.

LEADVILLE, Colo., March 1. (AP)—That this town, established when two prospectors stopped to discuss a jug of whisky and discovered lumps of silver ore, carries on the tradition of the frontier days is the claim of federal dry officials who slapped six of Leadville's authorities in jail.

These six—the mayor, three aldermen and two policemen—will come up for trial shortly before J. F. Symes, U. S. district judge, at Pueblo. They will be ushered into the custody of the court by Richard C. Callen, United States marshal, a native of Leadville and the boyhood comrade of the six men arraigned.

"I hate to do it," the marshal said when he got his orders from John B. Stephan, district attorney who conducted his investigation independently of the regular prohibition forces. "This pains me, boys," he told his prisoners. "But the law is the law."

Leadville, in the old days, made its own law. Mining towns in the 80's were tough places and Leadville was just a shade tougher than the others. Fabulous wealth poured in from the hills and piled up in the saloons which sprung up on every corner.

Miners' boots clicked on the boardwalks. Bottles smacked on "the mile of bars" on what is now State street. Pistols cracked often enough to maintain the reputation of Leadville, the tough town.

Physically, Leadville has changed little. Swinging doors, curtained windows and mahogany bars stayed on after prohibition. Ostensibly, their business was in soft drinks. Prohibition officials are of another opinion.

Investigations into the conditions of Leadville proved, according to the dry workers, that a surprising lot of high-powered beverage was making its one way trip over the bars of State street. Most of it is said to be manufactured within the town limits. Sugar and yeast, wine grapes, fresh peaches and carloads of corn find a ready market in this town of 10,000 inhabitants.

GALLANT REBEL LAID TO REST

Judge Simkins Buried At Dallas Friday

DALLAS, March 1. (UP)—Earth closed today over the gentle, white-haired man who 68 years ago, a gallant youth of 19, gave the order that fired the first shot of four years of war.

Col. William S. Simkins, one time soldier in the South Carolina state troops, was buried at Dallas.

Yesterday sad groups of University of Texas boys at Austin, many with wet eyes, followed to the station the hearse that took from the University law school its oldest and most beloved instructor.

Silent himself about the stirring scenes of his youth, the story is well known to every Texas university student.

A sentinel of South Carolina troops, Simkins was the first to glimpse the Star of the West, federal gunboat, moving up to carry supplies to Fort Sumter, then in the hands of the federal troops.

Col. P. F. Stevens, in charge of the Carolina battery gave an order to Simkins, gunner in charge.

"Fire!" shouted Simkins, his boyish face eager.

George Haynesworth, Simkins' boyhood pal, pulled the lanyard and the first shot fired in the Civil war boomed over the water.

Later Simkins participated in the attack on Fort Sumter.

With the formation of the Confederate States army, he was commissioned a first lieutenant of artillery and served through the entire conflict.

He surrendered with the army of Gen. J. E. Johnson in North Carolina in 1865. When the war was over Simkins was given a Mexican dollar and a mule by the Confederate government.

Both gifts were virtually worthless, and the officers put up their gifts in a game of freeze-out poker. Simkins was "froze out."

Simkins went to Monticello, Fla., where he married. In 1873 he came to Texas, and lived for a time at Corsicana before coming to Dallas.

In 1899 Simkins became professor of law at Texas university, headed the department for a time and at his death was professor emeritus.

Hawks Taken Aback By Houston Festivities

HOUSTON, Texas, March 1. (UP)—"I'm no celebrity," was Frank M. Hawks' reply to the reception accorded him by his home towners upon the occasion of his return from breaking the transcontinental flight record.

Wearing spats, a raccoon coat and broad smile which elicited comment in New York, and carrying a cane, the "Beau Brummel" of the air attended the various celebrations in his honor and seemed quite taken aback at it all.

COUNCIL GROVE, Kan., March 1. (UP)—Mrs. Jean Troutman, Kansas university graduate, will be tried here in April on a charge of deadly assault as a result of an unsuccessful attempt to shoot her dumb son, Clinton, 7. The woman also attempted suicide, saying she "feared for her son's future."

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 1. (UP)—The case of Michael O'Donnell is one for Diogenes. Faced with a bankrupt indebtedness of $2,762, O'Donnell, a former saloon keeper, paid his creditors in full and then provided an additional amount twice that of the original bankruptcy to cover attorney's fees.

WEIGHTY BILLS TO BE PASSED

Filibusters Unlikely to Stop Congress

WASHINGTON, March 1. (UP)—Congress will dispose of all emergency legislation before the end of its session March 4, despite a series of filibusters and delays in the senate, it appeared certain tonight.

All necessary appropriation bills except the first and second deficiency and the interior department measures are out of danger and these three are now in conference.

Although there are serious disagreements between the house and senate on two of the supply bills, leaders believe the differences will be reconciled and the conference report adopted by both bodies before adjournment.

Besides these necessary bills, congress is expected to pass the Watson bill extending the administrative life of the radio commission for another year. It is next order of unfinished business in the senate and Senator Watson, Republican, Indiana, its author, is prepared to force early action by invoking the cloture rule of limit debate. This will prevent the filibuster threatened by Senator Copeland, Democrat, New York.

Once through the senate, the house will make short work of the measure.

The Jones bill, providing a maximum penalty of five years and $10,000 fine for violation of the prohibition law, was passed by the house today. It already had been passed the senate.

Leaders have definitely abandoned hope for the reapportionment and census bills, already passed by the house. They provide for the taking of the 1930 census and for reapportionment of house of representatives on the basis of the new population figures.

These are the only important items in the ambitious short session program of congress which will go over to the special farm relief and tariff session President-elect Hoover will call shortly after his inauguration.

CAMDEN, N. J., March 1. (UP)—The Weiss family established some sort of a record today by celebrating a wedding anniversary and three birthdays. FIRST PERMANENT

Nero's Female Favorite Had Her Tresses 'Wound Up'

TORONTO, March 1. (AP)—F. Nishinger told delegates to the National Association of Hairdressers, in session here, that the first permanent wave was achieved by a favorite of the Emperor Nero.

The lady wound her locks on sticks, he said, packed it with clay and imposed upon herself a sentence of three weeks in a hot Roman bath.

Not to be outdone in historical matters, Emil Rohde, another delegate, presented the assertion that Venus bleached her hair with quicklime.

AMERICA WINS POTASH FIGHT

Two-Year Controversy Ends; Combine Broken

NEW YORK, March 1. (UP)—After two years of litigation and controversy, the potash wrangle with German and French producers was brought to a close today with the American government victorious in its first effort to combat the foreign monopoly.

Judge William Bondy in federal court signed the decree enjoining the defendants, the Deutsches Calisyndikat G. M. B. H. and the Society Commerciale des Potasses d'Alsace from combining in the United States, either directly or through agents, to violate the anti-trust laws, from fixing resale prices and for discriminating between purchasers.

The order was issued following agreement between counsel, reached after a series of conferences. The United States government, in turn, will recognize the rights of foreign companies in their operations abroad, as well as the "machinery set up under the laws of these nations for conducting their business in this country."

The original petition of the American government charged the two above named companies were violating the Sherman anti-trust provisions of the Wilson tariff act. In substance, it alleged that the two companies, heretofore operating separately, combined to fix a monopoly in potash, and established a common selling agency capable of dictating retail prices.

Britain's Army Shows Reduction

LONDON, March 1. (UP)—Great Britain is the only country where there has been a continuous reduction of the army since 1922, Sir Laming Worthington-Evans, secretary of state for war, told the house of commons today in introducing the 1929 army estimates.

The government's estimates were issued, totaling approximately $202,220,000, or $2,520,000 below the 1928 estimates.

The reduction in armed forces during the lifetime of the present government has been 11 per cent, the secretary said.

Worthington-Evans' statement was made in connection with the pending motion which would urge the government to support the Geneva disarmament conference's proposals to reduce the army personnel expenditure.

He gave the following world army expenditures:

United States, $255,000,000 in 1925 and $268,000,000 in 1928; Italy, $90,000,000 and $140,000,000 in corresponding years; Germany, $100,000,000 and $125,000,000; France, $170,000,000 and $290,000,000; soviet union expenditures increased from $300,000,000 to $420,000,000 since 1924.

He added that Japan, Belgium and Switzerland had all increased their expenditures.

GLIDER-PLANE TRIAL SUCCESS

Motorless Craft Lands As Towline Is Cut

LONG BEACH, Calif., March 1. (AP)—Dale Drake's tiny glider, in tow of Lloyd O'Donnell's Fokker monoplane, arrived here at noon today and cut loose its 500-foot towline.

Both machines landed safely. Drake putting his glider through a half dozen loops and other stunts before coming to the ground.

O'Donnell landed his plane first. The glider followed a few seconds later. The flight terminated the attempt begun yesterday from Reedley, Calif. They left Reedley yesterday morning and Drake's glider was towed across the Tehachapi range. When in sight of the Metropolitan airport at Los Angeles the tow line parted and Drake was forced to descend in a nearby wheat field.

You Must Ride on BOTH

The way to perfect lubrication is the Magnolene way—right consistency plus high quality.

You get right consistency in Magnolene Paraffine Base Motor Oils because each grade conforms to standards set by the Society of Automobile Engineers, and, in addition, to the more exacting specifications prescribed by the U. S. Government.

You get high lubricating quality in Magnolene Paraffine Base Motor Oils because they are refined from carefully selected paraffine base crudes from our own wells. Since we control our own crude oil supply and our own refining process, the high quality of Magnolene Paraffine Base Motor Oils never varies.

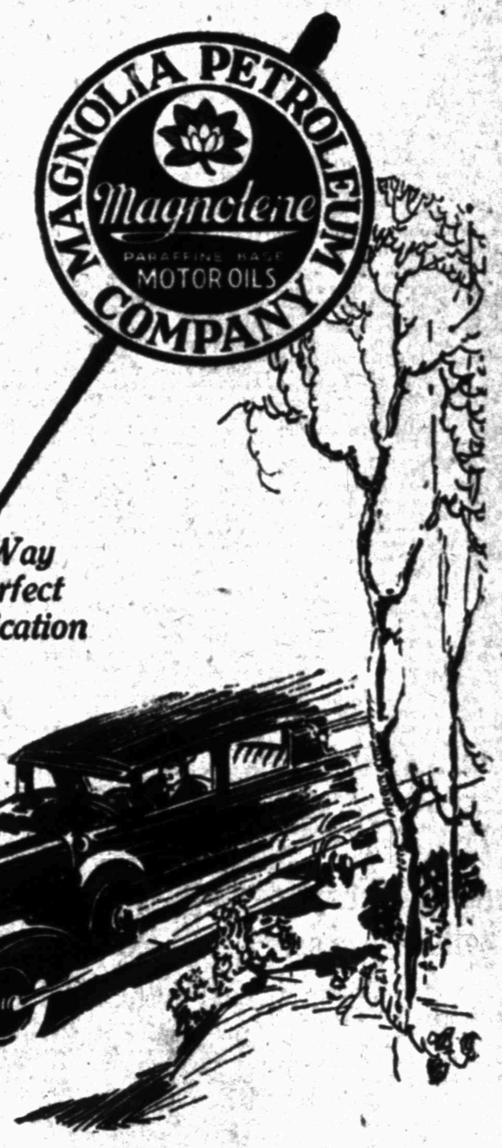

Magnolene Paraffine Base Motor Oils are tested by our lubricating engineers on actual road runs as a final check of their quality. Neither high speed, terrific heat nor high compression can break down this quality.

OUR SPUDDERS AND ABILENE'S ACES START SPRING TRAINING

40 ATHLETES IN FIRST DRILL

Hal Wiltse, Star Lefty, Reports Fit and Ready

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

Our Spudders—and Abilene's Aces—started spring training yesterday at Athletic park. More than 40 athletes answered the first call of Field Marshall Jim Galloway and Generalissimo Buddy Tanner for work. But the identity of a majority of the tossers was a deep mystery and so remains until further efforts of identification.

Many of the players in uniform are Spudder rookies or belong to the Abilene club and the several fans who sat in the sunlight of the right field bleachers could only guess their names. Your correspondent tried the means of personally interviewing the athletes but when about half way finished with that task Jim Galloway called them together for a soccer game.

Forty players in camp and 20 more due. It's going to be a tough job finding out who's who.

One of the new Spudders in uniform yesterday was Hal Wiltse, the southpaw pitcher acquired from the St. Louis Browns. Wiltse is to succeed Mike Cvengros as the star lefthander of the hurling staff. Hal reported in excellent condition and was disporting himself like a rookie. Incidentally, he was the first casualty of the season. A grounder struck Wiltse on the nose while he was engaging in a pepper game but the injury was slight.

Several players who had previous trials with the Spudders and are back determined to stay this time were out yesterday. These included Lester White and Roland Roberts, the big righthand pitchers, and Cameron Best, the huge outfielder. Garland Orr, the stocky outfielder, arrived too late to don diamond regalia for a workout.

Among the candidates who reported yesterday were Ed Ellis and Fred Stiely, southpaw pitchers; Cy Smith, righthander; Milton Gordon, a third baseman from the New York-Pennsylvania league, and Red Anderson, a semi-pro infielder from California and recommended by Milt Steengrafe. These men are regarded as having more or less excellent chances of retaining Spudder berths.

The Spudders are to have three pitchers who wear glasses and all are lefthanders. They are Ellis and Ed Taber, new men, and Chick Galeria, who was here last spring and finished the campaign at Abilene.

Four rookie catchers are here to handle the first tosses of the chuckers until Pete Lapan and Jack Crouch, the promising Joplin kid, report to help them. The newcomers are Seldon Fant, Oklahoma City sandlotter; C. C. Laurence, touted by Lester White; Arthur Bradbury, another Californian, and Elmer Winninger from Burkburnett.

Other players who reported yesterday included Win Beck, an infielder, Abilene; M. M. Cox, a first baseman who played here last summer in a local amateur league, Abilene; Tracy Bell, infielder from Electra, Abilene; Eull Moore, Indian pitcher from Oklahoma, Spudders.

And then there were the Spudder vets, Pete Turgeon, Wally Swenson, Howard Fitzgerald and Brick Eldred, and Red Bennett, the clouting outfielder from Tulsa.

Dallas Clements, the young Texan acquired from the Three-I league, came in yesterday afternoon. He is the only first baseman listed by the Spudders.

Word was received yesterday from Franklin Bear Allday, the Centenary college football and baseball star, from his home at Atlanta, Texas, that he will report Monday. Allday is an infielder.

Yesterday's practice was confined to pepper games, a soccer game and the routine of limbering up, a process which will be followed for a few days. Several of the rookies were inclined to cut loose and Skipper Galloway cautioned them against too strenuous work until they have the kinks out of their arms and the weather is warmer. Eull Moore was using lots of speed and a few curves in throwing to a catcher.

One workout will be held daily for a few days. The squad will be divided next week into two groups with one to work in the morning and the other in the afternoon.

PIRATES TRAIN MINUS WANERS

Brothers Persist in Refusing to Sign Contracts

NEW YORK, March 1. (UP)—The two most promising major league holdouts are the Waner brothers, who are demanding a joint salary of $35,000 from the Pittsburgh Pirates before they sign their 1929 contracts.

All members of the Pirates' squad were ordered to report to Paso Robles, Calif., by today, but the Waners were far away at their homes in Oklahoma, waiting for Pittsburgh to make the next move.

Paul, the elder brother, who was named the most valuable player in the National league in 1927, is demanding $20,000 for his services, and Lloyd is asking $15,000. Both must be satisfied before either will sign.

Pirates Need Waners

A recent rumor said that the New York Giants had offered $210,000 for the Waners, but it was subsequently denied by both parties.

Without the Waners the Pirates would be far from a championship contender, but with them they figure to fight it out with the Cubs, Giants and possibly the Cardinals for the pennant.

With Mickey Cochrane in the Athletics' fold, the American league's leading holdout appears to be Alvin Crowder, star right-hander of the St. Louis Browns, who has not reported at West Palm Beach. Crowder was the leading pitcher in the junior circuit last season, turning in 21 victories and losing only five games.

Robins' Holdout

The Brooklyn Robins have a pair of stars, Dazzy Vance and Doug McWeeny, who are balking over the contracts offered them. Vance is asking for a new contract at $25,000 a season and he is quite likely to get it.

Four members of the Cincinnati Reds are labeled as holdouts. They are Val Picnich and Hugh McMullen, catchers; Charley Dressen, third baseman, and Jakie May, pitcher.

The New York Giants were the first club to get all players signed. The Chicago Cubs also had little trouble getting their squad under contract. It is well to remember in this connection that satisfied players sometimes go a long way towards winning pennants.

Three Suits Filed Against C. C. Pyle

LOS ANGELES, Calif., March 1. (US)—The monetary difficulties of C. C. Pyle, promoter of the classic bunion derby last year were further heightened today, when three suits were filed against him in connection with his Los Angeles to New York corn canter.

Richard Lang brought action in municipal court to collect $755.50 which he insists "Cross Country" Pyle owes him for work as advance agent and publicity man when the groggy athletes were hot-footing it across a nation. Pyle's former partner, Freeman F. Gunn, also is named as a defendant, although he has entered a general denial that he was a party to the transaction affecting Lang.

The two other suits against Pyle were filed by James E. Sheehan, seeking to recover $246 on a note, and by L. W. Greene, whose complaint recites that he holds Pyle's note for $295.

Texas University Relays Draw Noted Athletes

AUSTIN, March 1. (AP)—Definite information that Paavo Nurmi, Finnish distance runner; Percy Williams, Olympic sprint champion, and Ray Dodge, victor of many cinder path races, would compete in the Texas university relays here March 29, was received today by Dr. H. J. Ettlinger, athletic director at Texas university.

JACK DEMPSEY is pugilism's man of destiny. Never in boxing history has there been a man of such varied capabilities. No greater idol of the hemped square ever lived than the Manassa mauler. With the possible exception of John L. Sullivan, no fighter ever received the adulation that is bestowed upon Jack Dempsey. And for good reason.

He is one of the greatest fighters who ever trod the resin. He has shown he is a great promoter; a smart business man. And no man of his profession ever equalled Dempsey in the extent of his friendships. The man on the street held Sullivan and Corbett and Jeffries and others in great admiration. The elite of society and of the intelligentsia took Gene Tunney, the self-made high-brow, to its heart. But the elite cared nothing for Sullivan and others of his type except as a study of an amazing phenomenon of ferocious fighting ability. And the man on the street cared nothing for Tunney, either as a fighter or as a pretended high-brow.

But Dempsey—a remarkable, well-rounded man, has the respect and admiration of all persons in all walks of life. He is at ease in the salons of society. He can balance a tea cup as adroitly as the most assured matron. He can dress in dinner jacket and other correct things to wear in a manner to cause envy of the most debonaire man about town. But he still will talk the lingo of pugilism to fighters and mere fans. And success has not, and never will turn the head of Jack Dempsey.

His old friends always will be his friends. That is the cause of Jack Dempsey's popularity. That partly will be the cause of his future success; was, in truth, the greatest factor in the big success that marked the Stribling-Sharkey fight.

When Gene Tunney will walk down the street unnoticed, crowds still will follow Jack Dempsey.

Training Camp Chatter

DALLAS, March 1. (AP)—The Chicago White Sox lost no time in taking advantage of a beaming sun after their arrival in a body today. Within an hour Manager Russell Blackburne had his crew out at the local park for a brief but unusually strenuous first day workout.

After watching the players for an hour the railbirds were predicting some stiff throwing arms and sore muscles at tomorrow's session. Blackburne displayed as much pep as the youngest men on his squad.

Young Ed Walsh apparently had gotten his salary arm well oiled before leaving for camp. He burned them across to the batters for several minutes while his illustrious father, Big Ed Walsh, looked on from the coaching line.

Lou Barber, traveling Sox secretary, reported all but seven men in camp. Those missing were Outfielders Alex Metzler, John Walwood and George Blackerby, Infielders Willie Kamm and William Hunnefield, and Catchers Martin Autrey and Morris Berg. Most of these were expected in tomorrow.

STEPHENSON TO FIRST

AVALON, Catalina Island, Calif., March 1. (UP)—Manager Joe McCarthy will get his first chance to look over his Chicago Cubs Saturday when he divides them into two teams for their initial game.

Riggs Stephenson, brought in from the outfield to try his hand at the utility first base job, will work at that position on one of the clubs. Most of the attention will be centered on him because a man must be found to fill in for Charley Grimm in case of accident.

HARRIS PONDERS OUTFIELD

With Harry Heilman a possibility for first base, there is a good chance for Roy Johnson, Pacific Coast leaguer, to make the right field position, Harris said.

Harry Rice will start in center and Stone in left.

SHORES REPORTS TO A'S

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 1. (UP)—Only two members of the Philadelphia Athletics were missing from early spring training today when the roster was increased to 34 players by the arrival of William Shores, young pitcher.

The two absentees are Max Bishop, regular second baseman, and George Earnshaw. Bishop is reported to be a holdout, while Earnshaw has been excused from early drills to take the baths at Hot Springs, Ark.

PHILS START TODAY

WINTERHAVEN, Fla. March 1. (UP)—Twelve battery men reported to Coach Burt Shotten of the Philadelphia Phillies here today, ready for the first workout of the season which will be held Saturday morning. The new arrivals were met at the train by President William F. Baker, of the club.

CRITZ RED CAPTAIN

ORLANDO, Fla., March 1. (UP)—Hughey Critz, new captain of the Cincinnati Reds ran through two workouts here today, his first of the season. Rain cut short the second workout of the Reds.

PIPGRAS, COMBS IN

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 1. (UP)—George Pipgras and Earl Combs, pitcher and centerfielder, reported to the New York Yankees today, ahead of schedule. Pipgras started to work but Combs elected to rest until Monday when the remainder of the Yankee regulars will report for duty.

The SPORTLIGHT

By GRANTLAND RICE

Awakening to the call of spring, an ardent fanatic a few days ago named Bob Groom as one of the best curved ball pitchers of the game. Groom was good, but Max Carey, of Brooklyn, nominates Vean Gregg, the old Cleveland left-hander. "There," Carey remarked, "was a curved ball that curved. I've never seen anything like it, when Gregg's arm was right. He had a sore arm that he had to watch, but on his big day he had a curve that beat them all. I remember when Pittsburgh went over to play Cleveland in a post-season series.

"Pittsburgh had a great club that year. But Gregg unrolled that curve of his, and all he did was to strike out 21 men and shut us out.

"When you are fanning 21 big league ball players in a single game, largely through a curve, you are throwing a curve. He nailed most of our big hitters two or three times."

Three of the best curved ball pitchers of the game are Amos Rusie, Rube Waddell and Dazzy Vance, who is still starring. These three all carried a curve that traveled with a blast of speed, a curve that came out of a fast one and broke with a crack. Waddell's curve was not only fast, but extremely large. Even when he was supposed to be a worn-out hasbeen, sent from Philadelphia to St. Louis in the twilight of his career, the Rube turned on his old mates and struck out 17 of them in a game. He wanted to show Connie Mack that the Athletic manager had made a slight mistake in placing him among the discards. After that game Mr. Mack was quite willing to admit that the Rube still could throw a ball.

Another Helen Wills?

Great tennis players or great golfers or great anything else come along in shoals. And you can't always tell, from the way they look when the game is young. But Chicago has a young tennis player by the name of Helen Fulton, aged 16, who may be another Helen Wills. Critics say she is as good as Miss Wills was at the same age, and Miss Wills was no bad tennis player at 15. Miss Fulton has form and power. She strokes the ball after the manner of a first-class player, and she has a lot of drive back of her stroking. She also has a first-class competitive disposition, which embraces both determination and coolness.

She won the junior championship of Chicago last year and while she still needs more tournament experience, she will be up among the first three in another year.

The Recovered Fumble

To judge from many of the comments written, there is now no penalty for fumbling a football and no reward for recovering a fumble.

On the other side, there is the penalty of losing the ball, which means from 40 to 60 yards, and there is the reward of taking over the ball and kicking it back out of danger.

Last fall N. Y. U. fumbled on Georgetown's seven-yard line, with a touchdown in sight, and Georgetown ran the recovered fumble to a touchdown. Under the new rule, it would be Georgetown's ball where a good kicker would ram it back past the middle of the field. This seems to be about all the penalty a mechanical error should carry. The attacking or offensive team is always the one that suffers the penalty of fumbling. The heavier burden is placed upon the team gaining the ground and holding the ball. Where it is always well to remember that recovering a fumble is as much a matter of luck as it is of skill.

For any one who can figure in which direction a football will bound can take a step on beyond Einstein's theory of relativity.

Baer Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

NEW YORK, March 1.—Wyoming, out West where the parking spaces begin, bobs forth with an amazing census.

It is famous for Yellowstone park.

Yellowstone park is located at the end of a long railroad ticket.

You approach the park by watching the conductor destroy your transportation.

We do not know why railroad conductors take such delight in ripping up expensive tickets. They would be very dangerous individuals to have around christenings. They would tear the ears off the baby and hand you the stubs.

Now a lot of people like to go to Wyoming. Out where the West begins. But we are like the lazy darky who wanted to be down in Alabama. Where nothing begins.

Wyoming has given up its official census recently. It shows that there are short of 300,000 citizens in that delightful state.

Which means three citizens rubbing elbows to every square mile. Which is a fine example of civic calisthenics.

Every year the state is invaded by 600,000 tourists, members of the migratory tribe of detour chuggers, who descend on Yellowstone park even as the bee upon the clover.

Do you realize what this means? When the native of Wyoming awakes from his long winter sleep and pokes his head gingerly out of his hollow tree he sees that he has been married into an army of strangers.

The native of Wyoming is outnumbered two to one by the inquisitive and unattached tourist.

If man is descended from the monkey then the tourist is the acion of a distinguished ancestry of 17-year locusts.

The average tourist imagines that the law of supply and demand means to demand everything and supply nothing.

He is very querulous in transit and subject to evaporation without notice.

Slam 600,000 tourists down hard on one state and you have an unequal distribution of curiosity.

In order to take care of this profitable infiltration the old time westerner has been forced to change his habits. The ancient and honorable Indian fighter is now the game warden in a frankfurter stand.

The buffalo hunter has changed his 30-30 Sharps rifle, that could bring down a bison at a mile, for a tire gauge that can bring down a tire in a minute.

The scouts, who pioneered the trails across the great plains, the Bighorns and the Tetons, are now traffic cops.

Even the bad men of Jackson's hole and the Wind river range are singing an informatory tenor on sightseeing buses.

Health And Diet Advice

How to Gain Strength

Almost every patient who consults a doctor complains of being weak, and curiously expects to become strong immediately because of some food or tonic which he hopes the doctor will give him for building strength.

It is very difficult for a patient to understand that there is no particular kind of food which contains an inherent quality for supplying strength. If you expect to become strong through the use of large quantities of starches and sugars you will be disappointed, as these foods do not contain any mysterious source of strength which can be transmitted to the body. A drink of whisky will supply as much stimulation as one can get at any time from using any of the blood tonics which are sold to those who are enervated. In fact, most of these blood tonics contain from 20 to 40 per cent of alcohol. Such stimulation, however, is no evidence of increased strength.

The one who wishes to increase his strength must realize that there are certain bad habits which must be overcome and good habits substituted in their place. This change cannot take place within a day or two. If you feel strong immediately after making a change in your diet, or having a peculiar kind of treatment, or a special prescription of medicine, you may be sure that this apparent strength is only a matter of stimulation and this effect will wear off and you will become even weaker than before unless, at the same time, you change your living habits or overcome the disease responsible for your weakness.

It is a good plan to use vigorous physical exercises each day. By increasing your muscular system you will find that your strength and vitality improve at the same time. Long walks in the open air are to be especially recommended. These must be taken every day if you wish for good results, and the distance should be increased until you are walking at least four or five miles. You must have sufficient elimination each day because nothing makes one tired and worn out as quickly as toxins.

Your food should be carefully selected to supply you with all of the material necessary for building your muscles and replacing worn out tissues. You must, however, avoid using an excessive amount of carbohydrates. The one who has been using an excessive quantity will usually notice an increase of strength as soon as the excess carbohydrates are reduced and replaced with the more vital proteins and green vegetables. These foods are vital because they supply the blood with elements necessary for building cell structure. The digestive organs can extract this material from the blood if one will take enough physical culture exercise to increase metabolism and keep the blood circulating vigorously.

The more I see of sick people the more I believe that they continue to remain weak because they are waiting for health to happen to them or for someone to make them well, and they do not use the aggressive and positive methods which are so necessary to the acquisition of strength.

If you wish to have strength more abundantly, eat for strength, breathe for strength, think for strength, but also exercise for strength. You must do everything you can mentally and physically to increase the functional activities to every part of your body.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Nursing Mother

Question: Mother asks: "Is there any rule for a nursing mother to follow as regards diet?"

Answer: There are many rules which it is important for a nursing mother to follow. She has a double duty—first, the obligation to her child and then the duty to herself to keep well at this time and avoid injury to her system caused through feeding her baby from her own blood without supplying it with the necessary elements to replace and repair tissues. I have written many special articles on this subject, and will be glad to send them to you if you will only write again, giving me your full name and address.

Mustard Greens

Question: V. W. writes: "After picking and later eating wild mustard greens I have something that resembles poison oak breaking out on my arm near the wrist. Tell me if it is safe to pick wild greens in the country and of the dietetic value of wild greens, especially wild mustard. Also, can you tell me why the wild mustard has such a strong taste even when very young and tender?"

Answer: There are many wild greens that are safe to use if you have a knowledge of botany and understand how to pick out these greens. Wild mustard is always stronger than the cultivated variety. In your own case it would probably not be wise for you to search for greens if your skin is so sensitive to poison oaks.

Snoring, a Symptom

Question: Reader asks: "Is snoring a disease? If it is, can it be cured?"

Answer: Snoring is usually a symptom of catarrh of the mucous membranes of the nose and throat. It can generally be cured through dieting if there are no definite obstructions in the nose, such as enlarged turbinate bones.

Specialists who have made a study of the road problem estimate that from four to four and one-half billion reichsmarks (1 reichsmark equals $0.231) will be required during the next few years to put Germany's highways in proper condition.

Two Black Crows

MORAN AND MACK

MORAN: Well, we is in Washington now. What does we do?

MACK: We gets into the Inawgural Parade.

MORAN: How does we do that?

MACK: We buys high, silk hats an' rides in a vehickle.

MORAN: Anytime yo' is ridin' in a vehickle yo' ain't goin' to th' White House. Yo' is goin' to jail.

MACK: My gran'father was always in th' carriage with th' presidents.

MORAN: He musta been important.

MACK: No, he wus th' driver.

MORAN: Let's go aroun' th' White House.

MACK: Yo' had better stay away from that place. Mr. Cooldige ain't feelin' so good.

MORAN: What's the matter?

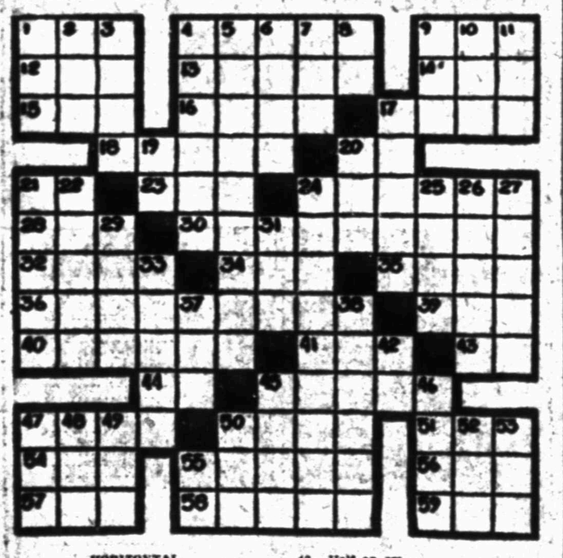

MACK: Well, for th' first time in his life, he is about to give up his first violin an' reach for th' second fiddle.

MORAN: It must be tough to hold a good job like a president an' then have to give it up.

MACK: I ain't never tried it.

The Two Black Crows are all set for the big parade up Pennsylvania avenue. Whenver there is anything big going on you will find Moran and Mack just getting off.

BRANIFF DROPS DALLAS LINE

Two Trips Daily Between Wichita-Tulsa Planned

Daily airline passenger service between Wichita Falls and Fort Worth and Dallas by the Braniff Airlines was discontinued Friday, and stops at Chickasha and Duncan, Okla., were added to the Tulsa-Wichita Falls service, according to announcements received from the Oklahoma City offices of the Braniff company.

The reason given for discontinuance of the service south of this city was the promised opening of two other passenger air lines, the Halliburton and N. A. T., between Fort Worth and Oklahoma City within the next few days.

With the addition of Chickasha and Duncan, the interstate service of the Braniff ships will be afforded five cities, and it was announced that two round trips daily from Tulsa to Wichita Falls will be made, instead of one trip as formerly. The new schedule will be announced Saturday, it was stated.

The extension from Oklahoma City to Fort Worth and Dallas by way of Wichita Falls was opened on Feb. 2 by the Braniff company.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, March 1. (AP)—Further advances promoted by relatively steady Liverpool cables and favorable reports from the cotton goods trade were checked by realizing in cotton today and were followed by reactions after selling up to 20.59, or 15 points net higher and within a point of yesterday's high levels. May contracts closed at 20.46. The general market closed steady, net 2 points higher to 2 points lower.

The opening was unchanged to 6 points higher and the market soon showed net gains of 10 to 14 points on covering or trade buying in the near months and some further commission house demand for the new crop positions. This advance met a good deal of profit-taking and there were reactions of 6 or 7 points from the best during the middle of the morning, after which the market firmed up on renewal of commission house and Wall street buying.

The readiness with which the heavy realizing sales had been absorbed evidently made a bullish impression. There may also have been some buying on the week-end figures showing spinners' takings of 348,155 bales for the week against 255,332 last year.

Prices worked back to a shade above the early highs, with March advancing to 20.58 and the new October contract to 19.94, or about 10 to 15 points above yesterday's closing quotations. Demand then tapered off, however, and the market eased in the late trading under further week-end liquidation.

March declined to 20.45 and the new October contract to 19.78. Closing prices were the lowest of the day. The early afternoon buying appeared to be promoted by rumors that the week's sales of cotton goods by one of the large Worth street houses were 50 per cent in excess of production, representing one of the biggest week's business since last autumn.

Port receipts today 15,390 bales. United States port stocks, 1,977,709. Exports today, 27,629, making 6,301,582 this season.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, March 1. (AP)—Urgent realizing due to weaker technical positions of the market caused a late slump of 12 to 13 points in the cotton market today after prices had previously advanced under a demand stimulated by higher cables, unfavorable flood news and good textile reports. May contracts after advancing to 19.91, eased off to 19.82, but rallied to 19.93. The last-minute eagerness, however, carried the option off to 19.80, where it closed, net 1 point up. The general market closed barely steady, net 4 points up to 1 down.

Liverpool cables were higher than due, and this factor, coupled with news of flood in the eastern belt, caused an initial gain of 7 to 9 points. The execution of some overnight buying orders extended the advance to 19.80 for March, 19.91 for May and 19.98 for July, or 12 to 13 points above yesterday's close.

Later in the morning the improvement attracted considerable profit-taking and hedge selling, which was absorbed by a setback of 9 points. In the early afternoon a good demand followed reports of increased activity in the textile trade and on the subsequent bulge active positions made new highs, with March at 19.75, May 19.93 and July 19.99, or 13 to 17 points above the previous close.

In final trading values reacted sharply under active realizing on the weakened technical position of the market and practically all the gain was lost. March closed at 19.62, May 19.80 and July 19.87, or 1 to 4 points net up, with March showing the maximum gain. October closed at 19.63, 1 point net down.

DUN'S REVIEW

NEW YORK, March 1. (AP)—Dun's Review tomorrow will say:

As was expected, two months of the new year have added substantially to the constructive elements in the general business situation. The net result has been plainly favorable, and the continued unevenness of conditions, with some disappointing aspects, is a wholly natural phase. Stimultaneous progress in all lines, and in the same degree, would be an economic phenomenon, and its absence now does not obscure the fact that the main trend is upward. That movement has attained particular vigor in steel and copper, where accentuated buoyancy prevails. Competition for orders keeps prices in various channels on a comparatively low basis, yet advances almost balance declines in Dun's comprehensive list, and it has been the exception, as in hides and leather, where pressure to sell has been sufficiently pronounced to cause conspicuous weakness. It is a feature of most textile divisions, moreover, that a large production is passing steadily into consumption, and in certain cases difficulty is being experienced in obtaining supplies as quickly as they are needed.

Bank Statement and Loan Situation Send Stock Near Record Levels

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, March 1. (US)—Stock prices soared close to record high average price levels in a 6,000,000 share level session today. Coppers featured early but met heavy profit taking while the specialties that have led trading in recent sessions continued to skyrocket into new high territories. Satisfactory reserve bank statement, comparatively small increase in brokers' loans and the mistaken idea that the reserve board is satisfied with the extent of the correction of brokers' loans were the main influences to buying.

The public came in in increasing number and pools did not miss the opportunity to whirl their pets higher. Advance Rumely gained 6¾, American Bosch 4¼, Chrysler 3¼ Wright 9, Radio 8, while Anaconda and Kennecott held three points of their early gains. Railroads were in good demand throughout with New York Central gaining 5, Erie 4⅛, Canadian Pacific 3¼ and Baltimore & Ohio 6⅜. Oils remained quiet and slightly soft. Call money was in a little better supply but held at 8 per cent throughout.

Activity of Cutten interests in Yellow Truck were added to by buying which reputedly was for the account of those close to the General Motors corporation. The greater demand was enjoyed coincident with announcement of contract to supply the Public Service of New Jersey with busses and rumors that other favorable contracts would be announced before long. The corporation, it is claimed, now is working in black figures and earnings should show increase as the cost of the new plant and other expenses incidental to going into bigger production have been taken care of. As stated here before the General Motors people plan to use Yellow Truck as the medium for taking leadership of the truck and bus industry. Eventual consolidation with General Motors Truck is talked of.

Advance Rumely soared to new high following realization that postponement of directors meeting might have to do with recent competitive buying of the shares. With earnings increasing as the new plant goes into production there is increasing talk of fight for control. Fisk Tire activity was credited to Raskob and his associates as they are said to have been holding a big block of stock for two years. President Sloan and other General Motors interests sailed for Europe last night to be away a month. They will take measures to increase foreign sales while over there. Chrysler's strength was due to operation of insiders aimed at the crowded short interest in the stock. Bosch responded to report here of favorable earnings and prospects for betterment.

First National Bank featured again on the outside markets responding to recapitalization and merger plans which were exclusively told of in this column more than six months ago. United States Shares corporation stock also moved into new high ground. As a result of its investments in bank stocks this investment trust will pay 10 per cent in dividends, it is learned. Radio's advance was due to knowledge of favorable earnings showing to be made in report to be issued tomorrow. Durant interests took all the Combustion that was offered and hint strongly at a run-in of the crowded short interest in the stock before long. Prominent market group that has been behind the market in Bethlehem for the last five months forecast an extra dividend from the next directors' meeting.

Although the banks had to prepare to meet checks for March 1 dividend and interest payments the call money market gave a better appearance than at any time in the past week. As a result it was believed that 6 per cent money would be experienced before the middle of next week. With checks going through the clearing house for March 1 payments there may be continued tightness on Monday. The comparatively small increase in brokers' loans was entirely ignored as it was overshadowed by the mistaken idea that the reserve is satisfied with the extent of the correction effected by its "warning."

TEXAS REVIEW

FORT WORTH, March 1. (AP)—All classes of cattle and calves went to the scalers at steady values today. The supply was light compared to the corresponding day last year and except for a few cars of slaughter steers and yearlings the other cars were made up of mixed lots and killing cattle.

About eight loads of slaughter steers sold during the early session at steady values. The bulk of the receipts were common light steers that sold at $9.25@9.50, two loads of good quality heavy steers selling at $11.50@11.75.

Not enough bulls included in the day's receipts to test market. Values considered steady.

Slaughter yearlings and heifers sold at unchanged values, one load of good fed yearlings topping the carlot sales at $12.25. A few individual club calves sold up to $12.50, with some common yearlings down to $9.50.

The supply of cows was unusually light and sold at steady prices, with a few of the better butcher and beef cows at $7.00@8.00, and canners and cutters at $5.00@6.00.

The calf supply consisted of package lots that found buyers willing to take at values in line with yesterday's trade. A few of the better calves sold at $11.00, bulk at $9.50 to $10.50 and cull calves around $7.00.

Very few stocker cattle included in trading, one car cows sold at $6.00.

A fair supply of sheep sold steady, with some fleshy wooled feeder lambs at $14.50 and shorn fat wethers at $9.50.

Hogs a little slow in getting started to the scales. No early sales in the rail section with packers bidding about 10 cents lower. Truck hogs steady to 10 cents lower, with an early top of $10.25. Pigs steady, some sales at $6.75 to $7.75.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, March 1. (AP)—(United States Department of Agriculture)—Trade on hogs around the 11-market circuit was marked by unevenness. Opening prices were unevenly steady to 25c higher, with a new top for the season of $11.50 established at St. Louis. Packers were bearish at most points and made their purchases at values steady to 10c lower than Thursday. Total offerings were around 85,000, an increase of 5,000 over a week ago but 31,500 short of the corresponding day last year.

Fat lambs found a slow outlet at prices steady to 25c lower than yesterday's dull close. Choice lambs in Chicago stopped at $17.10. Aggregate receipts were around 37,200, as compared with 46,566 last Friday and 31,375 a year ago.

The total movement of lambs out of the leading western lamb feeding areas to Feb. 23 amounted to 2,809 cars, as compared with 3,548 cars the same date in 1928.

The cattle supply approximated 11,000, about the same as a week ago and 2,000 larger than a year ago. Light-weight steers and yearlings were in broad demand at firm prices, but at several points a week to lower undertone prevailed on other killing classes. Better kinds of weighty steers have lost most of the week's early upturn.

FORT WORTH, March 1. (UP)—Hogs—Receipts 2,100; market very slow; packers bidding about 10c lower on rail hogs; truck hogs steady to 10c lower; $10.75 bid on good medium weight rail hogs; bulk desirable 175 to 250 pound truck hogs $10.00@10.25; pigs steady; medium to good fat pigs $6.75@7.75.

Cattle—Receipts 1,300; hardly enough cattle or calves on sale to test values; trade in all classes about steady; light weight common steers $9.25@9.50; good heavy steers, $11.00@11.75; slaughter yearlings from $12.25 down to $9.50; package lots butcher and beef cows $7.00@8.00; cutters and low cutters mostly $5.00@6.00; practically no bulls offered.

CHICAGO REVIEW

CHICAGO, March 1. (AP)—Wheat surprised even its friends today by scoring an advance in the fact of big deliveries on Chicago March contracts. The unexpected upturn in values resulted principally from a situation through which the large amount of wheat handed over here today, 2,768,000 bushels, could easily be put out anew for May delivery at a profit, the carrying charge between March and May in Chicago being greater at present than usual.

Closing quotations on wheat were firm, ⅜c to 1⅛c net higher; corn finished ⅜c to 1⅜c up; oats ⅛c to ⅜c advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 25c.

At first, the wheat market here showed a downward trend owing chiefly to the fact that Chicago March deliveries of wheat today were nearly three times more than some forecasts had indicated. March deliveries at Liverpool, however, proved to be smaller than were looked for, and this had a steadying influence.

An advancing market for corn, with export bids on corn in the Southwest said to be close to a working basis, tended likewise to give wheat values a lift, and the close for wheat was at virtually the day's top level.

Corn was strong practically all day. There was aggressive buying, and offerings were moderate. With talk of export demand current, prices quickly advanced. Primary domestic arrivals were materially curtailed compared with a year ago, and Argentine supplies of old corn were reported as virtually nil. Deliveries of 1,355,000 bushels today on Chicago March contracts were easily taken care of. Oats were firmer, influenced chiefly by action of other grain.

City Completes Spring Tree Planting Work

The work of planting 400 trees and hundreds of shrubs in the local parks, at the municipal golf course and in the cemeteries was completed Friday, according to C. C. Bunnenberg, superintendent of the city parks.

The greater part of the trees were raised by the city or are native plants, Mr. Bunnenberg said.

Home Brew Competition Too Much for Old Time Brewery

KANSAS CITY, March 1. (AP)—Closing of the Muehlebach brewery today, after operation of the plant since the early 70s, was necessary because of competition by home brew makers, George Muehlebach, president of the brewery, announced today.

"It is impossible for an old-time brewer, abiding strictly to the law, as we have done, to put non-alcoholic beverages on the market in competition with bootlegged liquor," he said.

'EAGLE' FAILS TO WORRY ARMY

Airmen Won't Say Whether Lindy Should Fly

WASHINGTON, March 1. (INS)—The life question of whether Col. Charles Augustus Lindbergh should stay on the ground now that he will soon become a benedict, gets no answer from army aviators.

In army aviation circles there appears to be a unanimity of opinion that the question is one for Lindbergh himself to determine—he's his own man and knows his own business best.

Assistant Secretary of War for Aviation Maj. Gen. Fechet, chief of the air corps, Lieutenant Maitland of Hawaiian flight fame, and others prominent in aviation, all declined to express an opinion on the above grounds.

There's another side to the story, however, covering the army's general attitude toward flying.

Flyers generally feel, inquiry disclosed, that to put a successful aviator in a glass case would rob him of usefulness to aviation generally, that he is only of service to the cause through his development of the art by actual flying.

Further, for an aviator to stay on the ground when he reaches a degree of prominence because of fear of others that he might "crack up," would have a tendency to accentuate skepticism concerning the future and safety of aviation.

Most aviators in the army are fatalists who hardly ever give a second thought to the possibility that their turn may come to be added to the long list of fatalities. Many of them are married and those who are not generally have sweethearts.

TEXAS EXES MEET TONIGHT

100 Expected at Annual March 2 Banquet

Thousands of Texans throughout the state will pause today and turn their thoughts to a group of 58 harassed but courageous settlers who met at Old Washington, near the present site of Austin, 93 years ago on March 2, and declared "that our political connection with the Mexican nation has forever ended, and that the people of Texas do now constitute a free sovereign and independent republic."

Included in the list of 58 names which were affixed that day to the resolutions which expressed complete defiance of the Mexican dictator, Santa Anna, and which have been called the "Magna Charta" of the people of Texas, were those of Sam Houston, Thomas J. Rusk, Stephen F. Austin, David G. Burnet and Lorenzo de Zavalla and many others which have become enshrined in the memories of their successors.

The action taken in that consultation on March 2, 1836, followed a struggle which had continued for more than 14 years between the few thousands of Anglo-Americans who had established homes in the small area south of Austin, and a constantly changing but always unfavorable policy at Mexico City. Following the return of Stephen F. Austin in 1835 from a nine months imprisonment in the Mexican capital, the early Texans fell into three classes, a war party, a peace-at-any price party, and one favoring further attempts at mediation. Within a few months, however, the actions of a military despotism established by Santa Anna welded the three factions into a united congress at whose hands Texas independence was established.

Sam Houston's election as commander-in-chief of the Texas forces, the election of David G. Burnet as president of the provincial government, and that of Lorenzo de Zavalla as vice president followed immediately upon the declaration of independence. Forty-eight days later Houston gained the famous victory of San Jacinto, and the permanence of the Lone Star state became an assured fact.

All Wichita Falls banks will be closed Saturday in commemoration of the anniversary of independence.

School Agents Start Work on 1929 Census

Taking of the 1929 scholastic census in the city was started Friday, with six of the appointed enumerators covering large portions of the zones assigned to them, according to officials of the school board.

Those who began work on the scholastic enrollment are S. L. Butler, J. T. Rundell, R. A. Jarrott, W. E. Walker, Mrs. Wenonah Ware, and A. E. Holland (colored). H. A. Glass, W. A. Franklin and J. E. Parks, principals of the Zundelowitz, Reagan and Alamo schools, respectively, are in Cleveland, Ohio, in attendance at the National Education association convention, and will not begin taking the census in their zones until Monday morning, it was stated.

All children in the city who are seven years of age, and not over 18, are to be enumerated. Parents have been asked to have lists of such children ready for the school official who will call, in order to speed up completion of the census.

Wichitan Improving From Auto Injuries

Frank Cole, who suffered severe cuts and bruises when the automobile in which he was riding overturned and burned about four miles out on the Iowa Park road Thursday night, was reported to be resting well Friday night by attendants at his home, 2012 Polk street.

Mr. Cole declared Friday morning that his car had gone into the ditch when he made a sudden swerve to avoid a collision with another car. He was thrown clear of the wreckage but was unable to extinguish the blaze which resulted from the crash.

Newspaper Evidence On Pact 'Forgeries'

BRUSSELS, March 1. The alleged minutes were published in Dutch newspapers yesterday.

State Observes Anniversary of End of Mexican Rule in Section

Plans are being made for a gathering of more than 100 members of the Wichita Falls Ex-Students association, University of Texas, at the annual banquet which is to be held Saturday night at 7 o'clock at the Wichita Falls Golf and Country club, it was stated Friday by Luther Hoffman, who is in charge of preparations for the affair.

The speaker for the evening will be Dr. H. T. Parlin, dean of the college of arts at the university. Dr. Parlin is well-known to many of the Texas-exes in this city, Mr. Hoffman said.

An elaborate program of musical entertainment is being provided for the event. Omero Brucilliano of Venice, Italy, who was a student in the university while Mr. Hoffman, H. J. Bruce, Julian Montgomery and other local Texas grads were there, will be presented in a group of Texas folk songs, accompanied by Mrs. O. B. Kiel. According to those who knew Mr. Brucilliano at Austin, he is not only possessed of an unusually musical voice, but is a versatile entertainer of marked ability. A native of Italy, he came to Texas for his university work, and paid his way by means of singing for various student organizations, churches, and civic enterprises.

Associated with John A. Lomax, well known collector of cowboy ballads and other Texas folk lore, Mr. Brucilliano achieved a considerable reputation, it was stated, by his interpretation of cowboy songs. His repertoire also included a variety of early Italian folk-songs which he sang in costume, and Mr. Hoffman stated that the visiting singer had been requested to include numbers from that group in his program here Saturday night. Returning to Italy after completing his course at the state university, Mr. Brucilliano spent several years in voice study there. He is now on a tour of the United States, and was obtained for the Texas-Ex banquet program through the residence of former classmates in this city.

Violin numbers are to be given by Mrs. J. E. Hall, and other musical selections by local artists are being planned, it was stated.

An election of officers for the coming year is to be held Saturday night. Ex-students, their husbands or wives, and parents of students now in the university are invited to the banquet, Mr. Hoffman said. Those who lack convenient transportation to the Country club are asked to call Mrs. O. R. Hartt at 7968, who will provide accommodations.

Two Attorneys Named For Hoobler Defense

Attorneys for D. J. Hoobler, who will be brought to trial here March 11 on a charge of slaying his former employer, Arthur Pendergraft, wealthy Cotton county, Oklahoma, farmer, were named as Joe Carrigan and Temple Shell, local attorneys, by Judge P. A. Martin of the 89th district court.

The complaint against Hoobler was filed several weeks ago after he had led officers to the spot where Pendergraft's body was concealed near the head of Lake Wichita several miles from town.

Mr. Carrigan and Mr. Shell were appointed by Judge Martin after he had been advised that Hoobler had failed in private attempts to arrange his counsel. Mr. Carrigan declared Friday night that he had conferred Thursday and Friday with the accused man.
