County trend has been GOP for president since '68 vote

With the November general election less than a week away and the presidential race heating up with three candidates, it's interesting to look back at how Deaf Smith County has voted in previous elections.

The county has voted Republican in the last six presidential elections, and they've been with the winner five of those six times.

Are some of the national polls accurate in predicting a Democratic victory with candidate Bill Clinton, or will President Bush surprise the experts and win reelection? What effect will Ross Perot's re-entry in the race have on the election results?

Many people are asking these questions, but only the action of the voters will provide the answers come election day on Nov. 3. Deaf Smith County has 8,273 eligible voters, and a large turnout is anticipated this year.

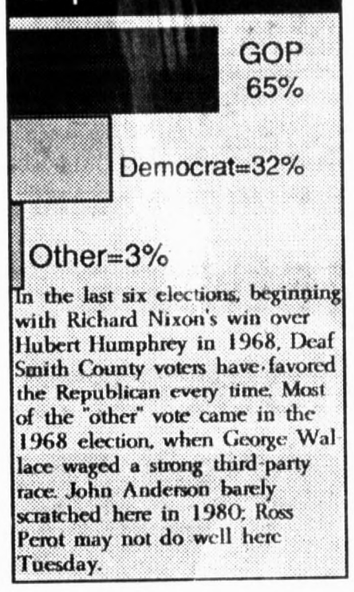

Only two of the last six presidential elections--1968 and 1976--have been close. Nixon won the national popular vote with only 43.4 percent in 1968. Humphrey had 42.7 percent and George Wallace garnered 13.5 percent.

In that '68 election, Nixon carried Deaf Smith County with 52.5 percent of the vote. In the statewide vote, however, Texas went with Humphrey by just a few percentage points. Humphrey had 41.4 percent; Nixon 39.9 and Wallace 19 percent.

Jimmy Carter polled 50.1 percent of the national popular vote in 1976 and Ford had 48 percent. It was almost the same result in Texas, where Carter polled 51.1 percent and Ford had 48 percent. Deaf Smith County went with Ford, however, by 51.1 percent to Carter's 48.1.

Deaf Smith County favored the Republican winners by big margins in the other races. Nixon had 73.7 to McGovern's 24.8 percent in 1972; Reagan had 69.5 and then 75.8 percent in 1980 and 1984, in races against Carter and Mondale, respectively. Bush gathered 65.4 percent of the votes here in 1988, and Dukakis had 33.7.

County's been a GOP stronghold for presidential vote

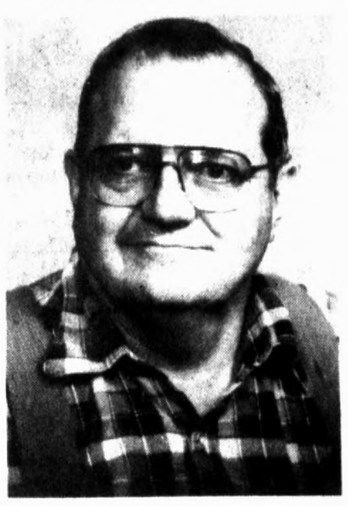

In the last six elections, beginning with Richard Nixon's win over Hubert Humphrey in 1968, Deaf Smith County voters have favored the Republican every time. Most of the "other" vote came in the 1968 election, when George Wallace waged a strong third party race. John Anderson barely scratched here in 1980; Ross Perot may not do well here Tuesday.

The last time the county favored a Democrat in the presidential election was in 1964. LBJ got 54 percent of the votes here, while Goldwater had 46 percent.

The figures indicate that winners of presidential elections tend to receive a larger margin of victory in Deaf Smith County than in the national or state popular vote. Over the last six presidential elections, the winner has received an average of 52.9 percent of the vote across the nation, 55.6 percent in Texas, and 64.7 percent in Deaf Smith County.

Low-key local races top ballot

Election of either GOP candidate would put first Republican in courthouse

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

Low key campaigns for two seats on the Deaf Smith County Commissioners' Court are almost, but not quite, lost in the heat of Presidential politics this year.

But, candidates for Precinct 1 and Precinct 3 commissioner posts are running just as hard, comparatively speaking, as state and federal office-seekers in Tuesday's general election.

Besides the commissioner elections, two county-wide offices are listed on the ballot, neither contested. Joe C. Brown is seeking a new term as Deaf Smith sheriff and Margaret Perez Del Toro is the single candidate for tax assessor-collector. Both are Democratic nominees.

Deaf Smith County has an eligible voter base of 8,273 residents. In the commissioner races, 1,672 may vote in Precinct 1 and 2,681 are registered in Precinct 3.

In a unique situation, two men who sought nomination for Precinct 1 commissioner in the Democratic primary election last March are facing each other, again, Tuesday, from opposite sides of the ballot.

John Stribling Jr., who is completing his first four-year term, is seeking the office on the Republican ticket. His opponent, Tony Castillo, is on the Democratic side.

For the Precinct 3 seat, Troy Don Moore, Democrat, is opposed by a newcomer to Deaf Smith County politics, Mike Miller, a Hereford businessman.

The Stribling-Castillo race is a repeat of the Democratic primary last spring. Stribling collected 329 votes to Castillo's 288 in that election.

Soon after the primary, the U.S. Department of Justice notified the county that precinct boundaries submitted some months earlier were not precleared, as required by federal voting laws.

A lawsuit, Gamez vs. Deaf Smith County, was filed almost immediately after the Justice Department denial, calling for the Precinct 1 results to be declared void. Precinct 3 was not involved in the litigation.

The Precinct 1 primary results were thrown out in a negotiated settlement of the lawsuit, approved by a panel of three federal judges. New primaries were ordered in the settlement.

Only two candidates filed and there was a new twist -- Stribling moved to the Republican ticket, leaving Castillo as the only Democratic candidate.

The Sept. 19 primary elections barely caused a ripple in the life of Deaf Smith County. Stribling polled 24 GOP votes and Castillo collected 70 on the Democratic count.

Neither commissioner race has produced clear-cut issues. Here is a brief look at the candidates:

PRECINCT 1

Experience:

John Stribling Jr., incumbent, is finishing his first term on Commissioners' Court; Deaf Smith County businessman since 1967; engaged in agriculture-related business for 30 years; running as a Republican though previously elected as Democrat.

Tony Castillo, is new to the county's political scene although he has been active in the community, especially in youth-related organizations, for many years. A self-employed trucker, he also has been in construction and has lived in Hereford for 20 years, or more.

Issues:

Stribling: "We need to get value out of money spent by the county, keeping taxes as low as possible.

"I'd like to see more industry and jobs but I just don't believe you can successfully buy business with incentives and stay true to the people already in business."

Stribling believes a "corps of business" should work toward attracting new industry.

"I think we can put together groups to aim at specific industry," he said.

Castillo: "I think the commissioners need to stay in touch with the community as to needs. We also should look for federal grants that are available and would help us obtain more industry and jobs."

Castillo said he has the time required to oversee the precinct's county-maintained roads and attend the seminars and special schools offered for public officials.

"I want to represent all the people of the precinct, not just one group," said Castillo. "I'll try to unify the people."

PRECINCT 3

Experience:

Troy Don Moore, Democratic incumbent, is serving his second four-year term as a Deaf Smith County commissioner; associated with Hereford Federal Credit Union; Moore is an attorney who has worked in the legal field, as a commodities broker and farmer.

Mike Miller, Republican, has been owner of Ranch House Restaurant since moving to Hereford in 1984; associated with major oil company 16 years, operated small business since 1961, in Hawaii 11 of those years.

Issues:

Moore: "I don't see any glaring issues, no large issue to create controversy. We have to continue a conservative approach to taxes.

"Deaf Smith County's tax base must be increased and the only way is

Officials campaign here for Bush

Moser warns he could upset Combest because of disenchantment with incumbents

The chairman of the state ASCS committee and an assistant secretary of agriculture visited Hereford on Friday afternoon, stumping for votes for the Republican presidential ticket.

Jo Ann Smith, who oversees six departments of the USDA's Marketing and Inspection Services, was joined by Jerry Harris in a stop at Hereford Municipal Airport. They pushed the Bush-Quayle legacy of improving prices for agriculture and warned of environmental and economic issues aired by the Democratic candidates.

The airport stop was one of two appearances made by candidates in Hereford on Friday. Terry Moser, who is challenging U.S. Rep. Larry Combest, stopped at the Brand office to issue a warning to Combest:

"This has been an unusual campaign year, and I may surprise my opponent on Tuesday," said Moser. He said the backlash against incumbents may benefit his extremely low-key campaign. Moser has disdained advertising.

Harris and Hill spoke to a group of about 50 Bush-Quayle supporters at the airport terminal.

"We cannot trust Bill Clinton to support the family farm," said Harris. He said Jim Hightower, who was defeated for re-election in 1990 as Texas ag commissioner, is listed as one of Gov. Bill Clinton's top choices for secretary of agriculture.

"We banded together to throw Jim Hightower out of office, but now Bill clinton wants to give him a promotion," Harris said. "We cannot trust Bill Clinton to appoint a Secretary that will work as a partner with agriculture rather than as an adversary."

Smith, a Florida rancher, was the first female president of the National Cattlemen's Association and the Woman of the Year in American Agriculture in 1988. In 1989, she became an assistant secretary.

She pointed out that ag exports have almost doubled since 1986, to $41 billion, while farm debt is down $57 billion over the past seven years.

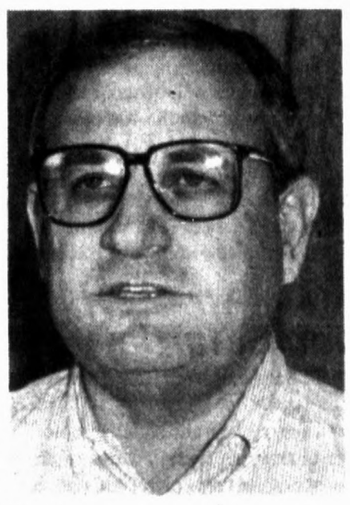

"We are still in open debate over GATT," said Smith, who said that negotiations are continuing over the North American Free Trade Agreement.

Other markets, she said, need to be aggressively pursued. she said the government and private groups were still cultivating Eastern Europe and the old Soviet Union, trying to tap formerly closed markets.

"We can't live with laws and restrictions from people who don't understand farming and ranching," Smith said.

Harris said the scariest part of the Clinton-Gore ticket, form him, was Al Gore's book on the environment and the duos' perceptions on agriculture.

"They have a thimbleful of science and a trainload of emotion," Harris said. "They are running on that emotion."

Local students favor Bush over Clinton

If votes taken by local students are a strong indication, George Bush will likely win a plurality of the vote in Deaf Smith County, but may not win a majority. The percentages are composites of votes taken at Aikman Primary School, Hereford High School and Hereford Junior High School.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

"A horse is a horse, is a horse, of course..." is what Kendra Wright found out when her dad awakened her one morning recently. "Yes, there was a horse in the yard," Kendra, who lives on Redwood, reported to her first period class. In response, many of the class members were able to sing the theme song to the sitcom "Mr. Ed."(Now who says our youth don't watch clean shows?)

All of the Industrial Tech students participated in the construction and the decoration of the homecoming float. The following students rode on the float: Jeremy Lance, Andy Brown, Terry McLaughlin, Heath Kirkeby, Chris Craig, Tommy Mather, Ricky Kindrick, Cameron Esqueda, Yadi Tena, John Marty Galon, Christina Coronado, Maria Salinas, Kathy Guerra, Vicky Medina, Raquel Torres, Laura Mirellis, Uyanca Rangel and Juanita Escamilla. Terry Zimmerman and Mary Vaiser rode in the pickup that pulled the trailer. Two West Texas State University students are involved with practice teaching at HJH this semester. Joyce Tindal is working with Leah Lee in the math department. She and her husband, Walt, live on a farm near the Easter Community. Next week she will begin teaching all of Mrs. Lee's classes. Mrs. Lee reports that it is nice to have a bright positive face and a person who is super at encouraging every student and the teacher! Jimmy Burns is working with Coach Nino until Nov. 12, when he will be in Mrs. Waters' history classes. Jimmy and his wife Dalene are both graduates of HHS and have four children. Jimmy knows many of the students from being involved in community activities. Each of these student teachers is an asset to our program at HJH.

Seventh grade Literature classes have begun a unit on mythology. They will be studying Greek, Roman and Norse mythology, as well as legends and folk tales.

Mrs. Allen's PACE English class has recently published their second school newspaper, The HJH Herald. The class is finishing the novel Watership Down and will soon be compiling a dictionary of words that they have created.

It is not unusual to be on candid camera at HJH, as Mr. Stanley, our roving cameraman, seems to forever be pointing that camera at someone or something. Actually, it is fun to see the students viewing the pictures when they are placed in the showcase. Of course, some of the teachers make threats or offer bribes to keep theirs out!

Students and teachers donated $511 to the United Way campaign. Many of the students will be involved in the programs served by United Way, so this was a good learning experience for all.

There were lots of red ribbons at school this week as students and teachers participate din the Drug Free activities. Our goal, of course, is to have a drug free campus, and for every student to be free of drugs.

Mr. Connally's classes painted thirteen stepladders for the high school drill team. This is an example of people helping people. Ginger Goodin, drill team sponsor and teacher at HJH, reported that they did a good job.

We thought you might like this recipe for secondary education :

...take a cup of thinking, 2 cups of dreams, from 5 to 6 years of youth, 3 1/2 cups of persistence, 3 tablespoons of ability, 1 cup of cooperation, a teaspoon of borrowing, 1 cup each of good books, lectures and teachers, 1 cup of health, and 1 cup of plans made and followed through.

Cream the thinking and the dreams. Add years and beat until creamy. Sift persistence and ability together and add alternately, with cooperation, to the first mixture.

Add borrowing, books, lectures, teachers, health and plans. Fold in the years of youth, beaten stiff. Bake in any good college or academy. TIme there, three or more years, depending on how you like your cake. Servings will last for life.

And for each parent and teacher...if you don't understand our youth of today, please don't misunderstand them.

Final chapter in election coming to Texas Tuesday

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas voters Tuesday will write the final chapter in the freewheeling soap opera called Campaign '92.

It's a story in which two Texans seek the White House, congressmen defend check-writing habits, a Railroad Commissioner resigns but keeps running, and Republicans hope for their best state Senate results in 100 years.

Want more?

A Supreme Court candidate was accused of using his secretary - to type.

Some 60 state legislators faced no election challengers - but still collected more than $500,000 in campaign funds.

A Bible salesman campaigning for a Texas House seat got arrested in Galveston - allegedly trying to steal adult magazines.

From the White House to the statehouse, incumbents, candidates and voters voiced one word most often: change.

"This is a very, very strange year," said Karl Rove, an Austin-based Republican political consultant. "This year we have a lot of people who are angry for no really well-defined reason. They're just angry."

President Bush, who calls Houston home, found himself in an unexpected struggle to carry his adopted home state.

Texas' 32 electoral votes are a key to the president's re-election strategy, but Bush finds himself in a tight race with Democrat Bill Clinton. The aggressive Arkansas governor even made a final-week campaign stop in the president's hometown.

A second factor was the "other Texan" running for president, Dallas billionaire Ross Perot.

Late polls showed Perot pulling as much as 20 percent of the Texas vote.

Bush and Clinton campaigners each argued that those votes were coming from the other side.

Adding to the Lone Star flavor was the fourth name on the presidential ballot: Libertarian candidate Andre Marrou, a Las Vegas, Nev., real estate broker, was born in Nixon, Texas.

Because of population gains, Texas will increase the size of its delegation in Congress from 27 to 30. Several of those races are genuine battles.

In East Texas, 10-term incumbent Charlie Wilson found himself in a fight with former Army captain Donna Peterson, a Republican who came surprisingly close to an upset two years ago.

Miss Peterson called him "Hot-Check Charlie," a reference to the 81 bad checks for $144,000

County voters set a new record this year with 2,700 early votes cast through Friday.

The final figure may be a little higher with mailed-in ballots.

County Clerk David Ruland said 2,460 persons voted in person, and 240 voted by mail. The previous record was 2,096 in 1988.

The 2,700 early votes means 32.6 percent of all registered voters in the county cast early ballots. In 1988, 35 percent of the vote was early; if that hold true this time, 4,455 will vote in the election.

Bush denies allegations in Weinberger indictment

By KAREN BALL
Associated Press Writer

President Bush is being haunted by new questions about Iran-Contra and Bill Clinton faces a shrinking lead as some new polls suggest the presidential race is a dead heat with just three days to go.

CNN-USA Today, Newsweek and ABC polls accorded Clinton a statistically insignificant edge, though a fourth, for CBS, said the Democrat was ahead of Bush by 10 points. Ross Perot was a poor third in all the polls.

Bush said the Iran-Contra issue, which resurfaced with new evidence that seemed to refute Bush's insistence he was "out of the loop" on the arms-for-hostages deal, was being politicized by a "frantic governor of Arkansas."

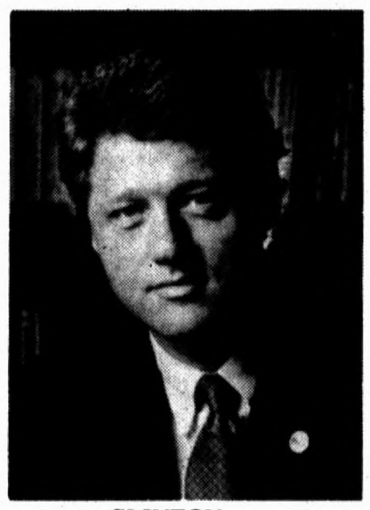

But Clinton, at a town hall meeting Friday night in Detroit, said the new evidence gives the lie to a president who has "done a lot of loose talking about trust."

All three major candidates faced brutal weekend schedules as they entered the home stretch to Tuesday's showdown. The Democratic and Republican camps targeted the same toss-up states and hopscotched the country. Both, for instance, put Wisconsin and its 11 electoral votes on their map today.

Perot had rallies in Tampa, Fla., and Kansas City today, with more on tap Sunday.

"Our sense is we're turning around" again, Clinton said in Detroit when economic development. Several years ago there was an election on an economic development tax but the voters turned it down. We have to use voluntary groups for development."

Miller: "I'm concerned about taxes and the increases in the last few years.

"I want voters to know that I'm running against the party -- the Democratic Party -- because I believe it is the culprit in government intrusion. I feel the states have lost control of our destinies. We need to work toward home rule.

"We do need to broaden the tax base of Deaf Smith County, to grow in a controlled way and to maintain the job base.

"I also think we need to use the resources of the Texas Department of Agriculture for attracting new ag-related business."

Bush still claims he was out of the loop on Iran-Contra deals

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Iran-Contra affair is getting new attention in the fast-ending presidential campaign, as a new indictment against former Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger disputes President Bush's denial that he knew of arms-for-hostages swaps.

Bush called the timing of the indictment "peculiar" and the White House said there is nothing new in it.

The indictment, obtained Friday by independent counsel Lawrence Walsh, charged Weinberger with making false statements to Congress, adding the new count to four others from a previous indictment.

More importantly, it contained excerpts of Weinberger's notes on the Iran-Contra affair - including a crucial meeting attended by Bush.

Democratic presidential nominee Bill Clinton said the new charge showed Bush "has not been telling the truth" about his knowledge of arms sales to Iran.

"This is the smoking gun," said Clinton's running mate, Sen. Al Gore.

But Bush said, "If there is a smoking gun out there, I'd have been hauled up by one of those Senate committees" or the Iran-Contra prosecutors long before. Prosecutors, however, discovered the notes only last year, long after the congressional inquiries ended.

"I have told the truth," Bush insisted on CNN's "Larry King Live" Friday night.

BUSH DRUMMING UP VOTES?
...No, it's just Dominic Dominguez having fun

Weinberger's handwritten notes said that then-Vice President Bush attended a Jan. 7, 1986 meeting where President Reagan and his top aides discussed a straight swap of arms to Iran in exchange for release of American hostages in Lebanon.

Bush has described himself as being "out of the loop" on knowing that Weinberger and Secretary of State George Shultz opposed the Iran arms sales. But Weinberger wrote of the Jan. 7, 1986 meeting:

"Met with president, Shultz, Poindexter, Bill Casey, Ed Meese, in Oval Office. President decided to go with Israeli-Iranian offer to release our 5 hostages in return for sale of 4000 TOWs to Iran by Israel - George Shultz + I opposed - Bill Casey, Ed Meese + VP favored - as did Poindexter."

Bush responded Friday by saying he'd known of Weinberger's and Shultz's objections, but simply hadn't known they were so strong.

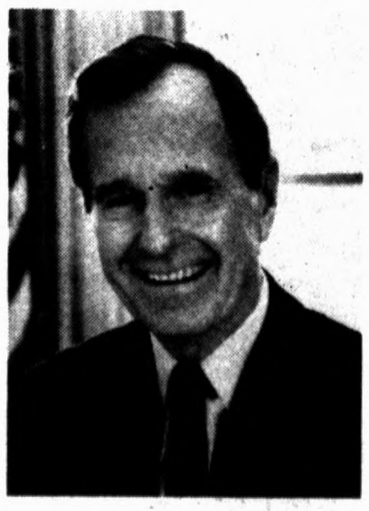

The other participants in the meeting were CIA Director Casey, Attorney General Meese and national security adviser John Poindexter. "TOWs" refers to antitank missiles.

Bush has acknowledged knowing the White House was sending arms to Iran and that some hostages were being freed from Lebanon. But he denied knowing about the arms-for-hostages trade.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater told reporters on Air Force One, flying between campaign stops in St. Louis and Milwaukee: "There are no new facts that have been introduced by this Weinberger note, and the situation has not changed one iota in terms of the vice president's involvement."

Lottery ads will feature "Texas Touch"

A "Texas Touch" will continue to add fun to new advertising that will begin this week for the new LOTTO Texas, which begins with ticket sales in November. The actors had no problems finding boots or staying in the saddle: they are real cowboys, and were told to be themselves.

Texas ready for big turn out, big jackpots in lotto

AUSTIN (AP) - Multi-million dollar winnings, televised drawings and growing jackpots. On Saturday, Nov. 7, Texas moves into the lottery big leagues with the start of Lotto Texas.

Watchers of the nation's 34 state lotteries predict it won't take long for the jackpots to reach into the tens of millions of dollars.

"Everybody is expecting Texas to get off with a big bang," said Terri La Fleur, senior editor of Gaming and Wagering Business magazine. "They could be getting into pretty big jackpots early," she said.

The Texas Lottery started selling scratch-card tickets May 29, and since then has rewritten many of the lottery startup records in the nation. By Oct. 15, about $737 million worth of tickets had been sold, with $333 million paid out in prizes and $242 million going to the state's general fund. The rest, about $162 million, goes toward administering the games.

Now less than six months later, ticket sales begin in Lotto Texas, a vastly different game. But officials believe that players not familiar with lotto will quickly learn once the jackpots start soaring.

In lotto games, a player picks a set of numbers. Lotto Texas is a common 6-50 game, meaning the player picks six numbers from one to 50.

Playslips for the game will be available at 5,000 lottery retailers at first, and more each week. Each game costs $1.

The first drawing will be held one week after ticket sales start, at 9:58 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 14, and will be offered to television stations statewide.

After the first Lotto Texas drawing, there will be two per week: Wednesdays and Saturdays.

State officials have guaranteed that the jackpot for the first game will be at least $2 million. It could be more depending on how much is wagered.

The odds of picking all six out of 50 numbers are 1 in 15,890,700.

Money also will be awarded to players matching five numbers, four numbers, and even matching three numbers will win a guaranteed $3.

The odds of matching five numbers are 1-in-60,192; four numbers, 1-in-1,120; and three, 1-in-60.

By comparison, the odds of winning in Texas Lottery's scratch-card game, called Touchdown, are about 1-in-5. The biggest prize in that game is $500.

Although the odds of winning at lotto are much less than winning scratch-card games, the huge payouts entice players into the game, officials say.

That will be good for the revenue-hungry state. But higher jackpots will lure more problem gamblers and more poor people who are willing to take a chance with money they cannot afford to spend on gambling, some say.

"It is specifically with that kind

One politician has complained that the small-town newspaper gives off "mixed signals." He says "they are too dern conservative with their politics and too dern liberal with their comments!"

This is an unusual election year and voters may go to the polls in record numbers. It appears the three-man presidential race will be a close one, and incumbent Congressmen have drawn the wrath of voters. Of course there are many other important races, and it is important that citizens cast their votes.

Personally, we will vote for President George Bush for reelection. We feel safer in that selection. Some of Bill Clinton's ideas are scary. And, another good reason lies in having a Republican chief to combat the free-spending Democratic-controlled Congress.

Bush has used his veto power well. Thirty-one times during his term he has been the the one to stand between a spend-thrift, over-regulating Congress and the American people. The deficit was projected at $400 billion last fiscal year, but Bush's vetoes help reduce it to $290 million.

Even though you may get disgusted with all the national politicians, the fact is that a democracy--even with its problems--is still the best form of government known to man. The old cliche about one vote being important is still true. You've probably seen ties in city or county elections and remember this:

--By one vote, France was changed from a monarchy to a republic in 1875.

--By one vote, the English language was chosen over German for America in 1776.

--By one vote, Washington, Oregon and Idaho became part of the U.S.

--By one vote, Texas was admitted to the union in 1845.

--By one vote, the German Nazi party elected as its leader in 1923 a man named Adolph Hitler.

Even if you think your candidate will lose, don't look at it as throwing away a vote. YOUR vote is as unique as your fingerprint. Make your imprint!

o0o

Speaking of politics, we ran across a glossary of political terms that may be helpful in the election year. The purpose was to define a liberal or a conservative, but you can make it fit your own political preference.

--Equal opportunity: preferential treatment.

--Compassion: the use of tax money to buy votes.

--Insensitivity: objection to the use of tax money to buy votes.

--Demonstrator: a riot by people you agree with.

--Mob violence: a riot by people with whom you disagree.

--Public service: gaining power to make people do what you want them to do.

--Simplistic: argument you disagree with but cannot answer.

--A matter of principle: a political controversy involving convictions of either party.

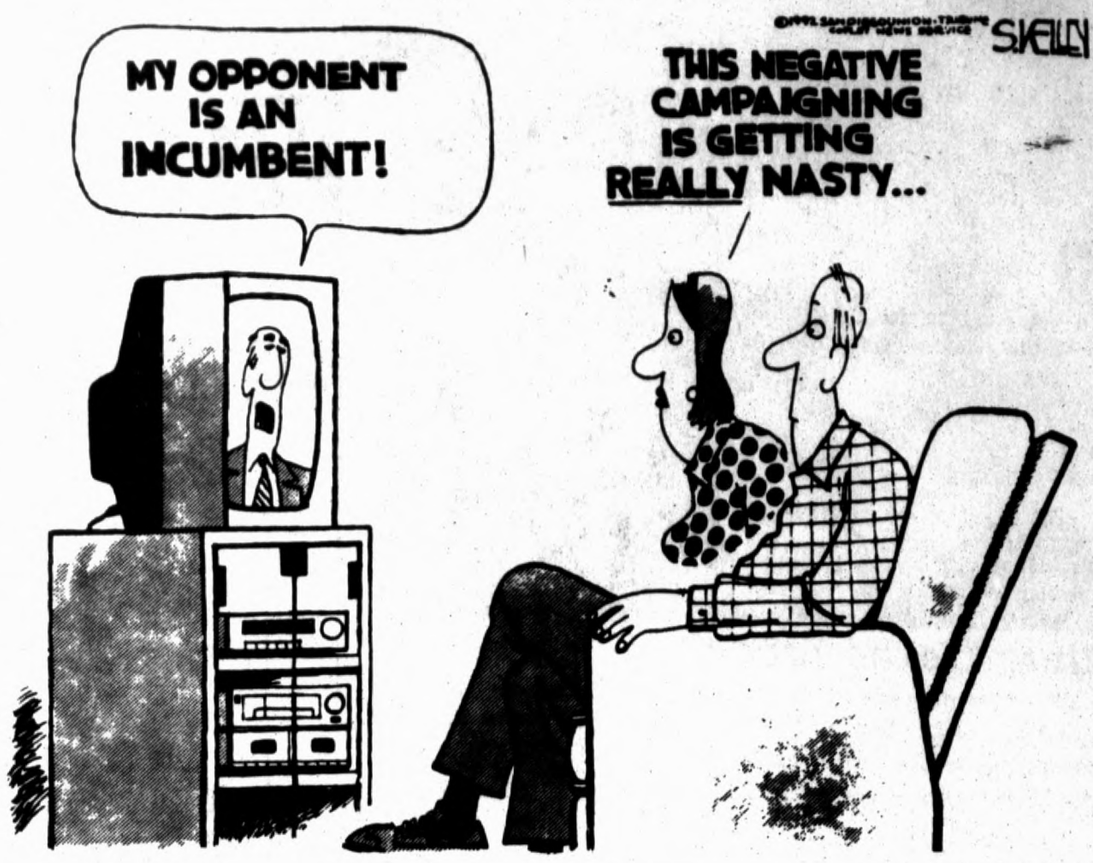

--Mid-East moderates: mythical beings to whom State Department officials make sacrificial offerings.

--Rehabilitation: magic words said before releasing criminals.

--A proud people: chauvinists you like

--Bigots: chauvinists you don't like.

--Partisan politics: issues that don't matter.

New Congress? Check out the plans

(From The Wall Street Journal)

The most scandal-plagued Congress in decades went home earlier this month to seek reelection. We'll find out Nov. 3 how many of them convinced voters it was all someone else's fault.

It just may work. In the most highly publicized political venue of the season--the presidential debates--Congress has almost no presence. Bill Clinton never mentions them; Ross Perot says they're all "good people," and George Bush, who actually has a strong case against Capitol Hill, keeps saying something about "working with" a new Congress.

New Congress? We'd like to direct voters' attention to what the current Congress did recently in the expectation that it'll be back to business as usual next year. Consider the following news items, which appeared in Roll Call, the Capitol Hill newspaper, in just the past month:

*The 1991 Civil Rights act included a provision allowing Senate employees to take Senators to court if they had discrimination complaints. Should they win, the law provided that Senators themselves would be personally liable for damages, not the taxpayers. Well, even that small exposure unnerved Senators. This month, Nevada Senator Harry Reid sponsored a measure to repeal the legal liability of Senators in discrimination cases.

Mr. Reid told his colleagues the Senate had "unwisely" added the provision last year. His colleagues agreed, and exempted themselves again--without a recorded vote. Sen. Reid faces Nevada's voters next month. Senators don't think they should have to live under the same rules they impose on everyone else.

*When some freshmen members asked the General Accounting Office to examine Congress's compliance with the Occupational Safety & Health Act, they were startled by the results. The GAO found 140 violations of OSHA regs, including 52 that "have a substantial probability of causing serious physical harm to workers." If Congress were a private business the fines would have totaled nearly $1 million. But Congress has exempted itself from OSHA, not to mention the minimum wage requirements.

*Earlier this year, Congress made much of the fact that it had eliminated abuses of the franking privilege--the taxpayer funded promotional material which members send out. Now the National Taxpayers Union has discovered what a sham those reforms were.

It found that House members had bombarded their constituents with 11.6 million pieces of mail in just the four days before the Sept. 4 franking cutoff. In all, members have spent more than $30 million on franked mail so far this year, an increase of 40% over the same period in 1991--a non-election year. Some members even used the frank to tout their bogus claims they had reformed the franking system.

*Back in April, the House agreed to some administrative reforms, including the appointment of a nonpolitical administrator. Six months later no such person has been hired, and the resolution authorizing the hiring has lapsed. Members left town with rancid patronage system that spawned the House Bank and Post Office scandals still in place.

*The House Post Office scandal continues to build. Six employees have pleaded guilty to criminal charges. Congressional Quarterly reports that Joanna O'Rourke, the Post Office's chief of staff, has told prosecutors her office cashed large campaign checks that were supposed to pay for stamps but were actually illegally turned into cash. The records of stamp purchases by three members, including Ways and Means Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, have been subpoenaed. All three members have take the Fifth Amendment to avoid testifying.

Far from addressing the causes of Congress's ills, its leaders are hunkering down. When Democratic leaders learned that some of their party's candidates were planning to attend a bi-partisan post-election meeting to discuss a reform agenda, they told them to drop the idea. Some candidates were told to forget about plum committee assignments if they showed up.

Republican leaders also dropped the ball on reform A few freshmen, led by Rep. Rick Santorum of Pennsylvania, have pressed for a true House cleaning. But many older GOP leaders are a walking advertisement for term limits.

The dynastic, careerist Congress has proved incapable of reforming itself. In the four years since the Jim Wright and Keating Five scandals broke, it has missed every opportunity to rebuild its reputation. It looks as if the job of cleaning out Congress's unkempt stables will be the responsibility of the voters next month.

McGovern learns

What happens when a congressman goes home to live under the laws he helped pass. One example comes from George McGovern, who wrote a column in the Wall Street Journal titled "A Politician's Dream is a Businessman's Nightmare".

The former U.S. Senator tells candidly about his recent business failure and, in the process, puts some of the blame on laws he helped pass during his quarter century on Capitol Hill. McGovern devoted much of the 11 years after he left the senate to the lecture circuit, and much of the money he made went toward buying The Stratford Inn, a Connecticut hotel, restaurant and public conference center. Now that he is bankrupt, McGovern says he wishes he had know some of the "hazards and difficulties of such a business."

Those who have not been in business simply cannot imagine the difficulties encountered operating a business in today's over-regulated society. Much of the public thinks that it's all peaches and cream, with an endless flow of money. And, the government thinks that business has the time for, and can afford, anything our elected leadership can dream up.

The former Senator adds: "While I never have doubted the worthiness of any of these goals, the concept that most often eludes legislators is--Can we make consumers pay the higher prices for the increased operating costs that accompany public regulation and government reporting requirements with reams of red tape?--It is a simple concern that is nonetheless ignored by legislators."

McGovern says, "We intuitively know that to create jobs we need entrepreneurs who will risk their capital against an expected payoff. Too, often, however, public policy does not consider whether we are choking off those opportunities." He also blasts what he calls "one size fits all rules." saying that such rules fail to take into account other realities, such as profit margins, labor intensive vs. capital intensive businesses, and local market economics."

Maybe his words wills strike home with some current legislators, but I doubt it.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

We would like to commend the local Police Department for the wonderful job they did to ensure our children's safety during the Homecoming festivities.

We are especially thankful to thme for providing security officers at the Junior High Dance that evening. They helped make it a safe, enjoyable and successful event for all the kids. Thanks a million!

St. Anthony's Junior High Youth Group

Dear Editor:

I would like for you to publish this letter in The Hereford Brand along with a great big thanks.

There are a lot of kind and honest people in this town. Some people, unknown to me, returned a study Bible in a black zippered case that I had lost from the back of my car Sunday night enroute to church.

The Bible was in my mailbox the next morning. My name, address and telephone number were in the Bible. I am thankful for answered prayer and I want to say "Thanks" to the people who returned it home safely. May God bless you!

Mrs. Joe Williamson

Dear Editor:

I find it very revealing, but difficult to believe, that the citizens of our great country are actually considering voting without considering the character issue.

We teach our young people to avoid drugs, accept responsibility for their actions, respect their neighbors' families and abide by the commandments of God.

Some folks say teh character issue is irrelevant, but how else can we judge a man or woman? From where I sit, the most important issue is a person's character and reputation.

Question: Has or "feel-good society" so conditioned us through media and human nature to accept lower standards as just a fact of life?

Robert L. Baker

Notes on the Law

The candidates in the presidential election have all in one way or another attempted to pin America's woes, at least in part, on the legal system and lawyers. Last week, this article discussed one proposed reform for the civil side of the law. This week, the article looks at the criminal side.

As part of his campaign, President Bush has promised to work to eliminate the "endless" appeals a convicted criminal is allowed to take. A more specific area of reform promised by President Bush is the elimination or limitation of the "exclusionary rule."

Listening to the daily news or reading a daily newspaper, you will likely learn that some obviously guilty defendant's conviction was overturned on appeal because of some "technicality." Some attorney is credited or "discredited" with having found the "technicality" resulting in the appalling circumstance of the defendant going free.

Perhaps, too frequently, the reason the defendant is freed is because of the exclusionary rule. The exclusionary rule "commands that where evidence has been obtained in violation of the privileges guaranteed by the US Constitution, the evidence must be excluded at trial." Black's Law Dictionary.

If defendants are too often freed because of violation of the exclusionary rule, then the question arises of what might result from the elimination of the rule. One of the privileges guaranteed by the US Constitution is the privilege against self-incrimination. If a defendant is coerced into making a statement, this privilege would be violated. But, if the exclusionary rule is eliminated, the state might be allowed to utilize the defendant's statement at trial.

A similar law is the exclusion of evidence gained in violation of the Fourth Amendment's guarantee against unreasonable searches and seizures. At present, if evidence is obtained through an "unreasonable search," then the evidence itself cannot be used against the defendant at trial. If this rule is also eliminated, then evidence obtained in a "warrantless" search could possibly be used against a defendant in a criminal trial, even though the warrantless search violates the Fourth Amendment to the US Constitution.

The justification for advocating elimination of these exclusionary rules is the rampant drug and crime problem. It goes without saying that some answer must be found for the ever-increasing crime problems. To decide whether you favor the idea of eliminating the exclusionary rules, you must realize there is a cost. If you favor eliminating the rules, then you sacrifice personal security and protection now afforded by the Fourth Amendment. If you favor keeping the rules, then you must understand that sometimes the guilty will go free because you retain your personal security and freedom now guaranteed under the Constitution.

Guymon's gain

BY JIM HUDSON
The Perryton Herald

Our neighbors to the northwest in Oklahoma have voted for growth in their city. By an overwhelming margin--81 percent in favor and only 19 percent against--the people of Guymon have approved an additional one percent sales tax for economic development.

The money raised by the tax will be used to renovate the long-abandoned packing plant in the city and other improvements totaling $8 million. Seaboard Corportion had committed to locating in Guymon, if the sale tax was approved.

With the positive vote, the future of the city looks much brighter. During the middle of the 80s, Guymon had grown to more than 10,000 population. As with most communities with a significant number of oil and gas related jobs, that population has steadily declined over the past 10 years.

The dismantling of the domestic oil and gas industry is a fact that we will have to learn to live with. No amount of hoping and praying will return the domestic oil and gas industry to the levels of activity seen in the beginnings of the 80s.

Banded together by the leadership in their community, the 7,600 people in Guymon found a way to inject growth back into their town. By choosing to tax themselves, they have opened the door for a new industry to locate in the area.

The payoff for Guymon will be tremendous. Seaboard plans to open a pork processing plant in the city that will employ about 700 people. By 1996, they will expand that plant and related facilities and employ another 700 people. In six years, there will be an additional $27 million in payroll flowing through the Guymon economy.

With 1,400 jobs added, the population of the city will grow to about 14,000 as other new jobs are added to service the needs of the new workers. Each of those new employees will bring families to further fuel the growth of Guymon.

One election changed the economic direction of Guymon. A positive faith in the future changed that city. Cold it change ours?

"We're starting first-aid training, Dad. I need $150,000 for malpractice insurance."

Four nominees named for Chamber positions

Four new directors will be elected to the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce board for 1993, and four candidates were nominated at the chamber's monthly directors meeting last week.

Those nominated were Jeff Carlile, Wes Klett, Jimmy Madrigal and Dennis Printz. To place other names on the ballot, chamber members can submit a petition signed by 10 chamber members. Any other nominations must be received at the chamber office by Nov. 5 at 5 p.m.

The four new directors elected by mail ballot in November will serve three-year terms on the board. A brief profile on the candidates selected by the nominating committee:

Jeff Carlile--He has been associated with Merrick Petfood since 1988 and is involved in all aspects of marketing and promotion. A graduate of Abilene Christian University, Carlile was an office with Hereford State Bank, 1967-81, and with First National Bank of Tulia, 1981-88. His past experience with the chamber includes serving on the industrial development committee and Hereford Industrial Foundation, chairman of the membership and Fun Breakfast committees, and a member of the Hereford Hustlers. He and his wife, Lynne, have four children.

Wes Klett--He came to Hereford in 1990 as chief executive officer of Anipro, a livestock supplement and health product sales company. A graduate of Texas A&M, with a master's degree from Golden Gate University, Klett served as a captain in the U.S. Air Force before retiring from the military and moving to Hereford. He has been active in the C of C July 4th Celebration, and has worked with the Cowgirl Hall of Fame Rhinestone Roundup. He and his wife, Lisa, have three children.

Jimmy Madrigal--Born and raised in Hereford, Madrigal is a 1970 graduate of Hereford High School. He has been involved in the automotive parts business for many years and is manager of Hereford Parts & Supply. He is a member of St. Anthony's Catholic Church. He and his wife, Lupe, have two children.

Dennis Printz--A resident of Hereford since 1986, Printz is the agricultural manager of Holly Sugar Corporation in Hereford. He is a current board member of the United Way of Deaf Smith County, and has also been involved with the YMCA, Crimestoppers, and Big Brothers/Big Sisters. He has also assisted the chamber in working with industrial prospects. He and his wife, Carol, have three children.

LOTTO

of prizes that the poor, the less educated, the people with less opportunities in our society,, are coaxed and manipulated into purchasing lotto tickets in order to win the big one," said Weston Ware, associate director of the Texas Baptist Christian Life Commission.

Sue Cox, director of the Texas Council on Problem and Compulsive Gambling, said the lotto game will increase the number of wrong toll-free calls the group gets from people who want more information on the lottery. The council's phone number is printed on all lottery tickets.

She said the game also will provide another temptation for problem gamblers. "We're in the process of making sure we are adequately staffed for that weekend," she said.

Half the money that is bet in Lotto Texas goes into the prize pool and 64 percent of that goes to the jackpot for the player or players that pick six of six numbers.

Since the odds are so great that no one will pick six out of six numbers, the jackpot sometimes carries over to the next game. This is when lotto mania hits.

In 1991, a California lotto jackpot hit $118 million.

To select the numbers, the Texas Lottery will use a machine that mixes up 50 white rubber balls, numbered 1 through 50.

The Texas Lottery has two of these machines, five sets of balls, and a security blanket around the entire drawing process.

Rubber balls were chosen over ping-pong balls because in a 1980 drawing in Pennsylvania, several men went to jail for injecting some ping-pong balls with paint, then betting on combinations of the lighter balls. Officials became suspicious when there was an usually large amount of money bet on the winning numbers.

Lottos across the country have been run into problems in the past.

In Virginia, an Australian syndicate purchased 7.1 million lottery tickets and won the jackpot. For each $2,000 investment, an investor won $400 each year for the next 20 years.

Texas lottery officials say that Lotto Texas will deter the buying of large combinations of numbers by syndicates because players must fill in the playslips in order to get a ticket that has their selected numbers on it.

Also accompanying lottos is a cottage industry that sells number selection systems and theories from determining hot numbers and due numbers to interpreting dreams to pick numbers.

"A lot of lottery players look at life as a lucky draw," said Ms. La Fleur. "They are superstitious."

But, she said, there is no system that will help a player pick winning numbers. "You can't influence the numbers."

—YOUR EYES—

CHOOSING THE RIGHT FRAME

Eyeglasses frames are bigger and bolder this year, and broader at the temples. Some frames wrap sleekly around the face, offering added protection against the sun. The newest frames are richly colored: black, tortoise, and stonelike textures.

The newest idea is to treat eyeglasses as a fashion accessory. Don't limit yourself to one style based on the shape of your face. So many more styles are available today that wearers can suit their personal style as well as their features. Fans of traditional fashion will go for classic frames; high-style types may prefer oversize ones.

People with blond hair and light skin will look better in colored frames rather than yellow or translucent ones. At one time, people chose frames that covered the browline; that's no longer and issue. Just choose the frame you like.

One caveat: people with large noses should avoid glasses with a high bridge that visually elongates the nose.

Herd rocks Caprock, needs to beat Dumas

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

Four down, one to go. Hereford's next football game, Friday at Dumas, will decide if the Herd will go to the playoffs or possibly stay home.

Hereford used touchdowns on its first two plays to start a 41-0 rout of Caprock Friday in Whiteface Stadium. The Herd's seventh victory in a row improves its record to 4-0 in district and 7-2 overall. Caprock's seventh loss in a row makes the Longhorns 0-4 and 2-7.

Hereford scored another pair of touchdowns in the second quarter, and the second-string offense played the last possession of the first half. The only suspense left for the night was who would win between Dumas and Randall at Kimbrough Stadium.

Dumas scored 22 points in the fourth quarter to take a 28-20 lead, then prevented Randall's two-point conversion in the final minutes to come away with a 28-26 win. If Randall would have won, Hereford would be in the playoffs right now.

Since Dumas won, the Herd and the Demons will put a playoff spot on the line when they play Friday in Dumas. If Hereford wins, the Whitefaces are the undisputed champions of District 1-4A. If Dumas wins, tiebreakers go into effect and Hereford could even get left out of the playoffs (see box).

"We're playing for the whole shooting match," Herd coach Danny Haney said. "That was our aim and our goal: to win district. We felt all along it would come down to the last game against Dumas.

"I feel good," Haney said about playing the Demons in Dumas. "We're playing well right now on both sides of the ball. We're executing well. I'll put our team against anybody on any Friday or Saturday. It'll be a great opportunity and a great challenge next Friday in Dumas."

In order to keep the playoff picture in their favor, the Whitefaces needed the win against the struggling 'Horns. The Herd came out and didn't mess around.

Caprock started the game with three plays and a punt. Hereford's Bobby Perales pressured Caprock punter Bobby Hicks into a 18-yard kick. On the Herd's first play, fullback Quincy Curtis went through a big hole and up the middle for a 45-yard touchdown run.

"It was a perfect play," Curtis said. "Their coach was yelling 'Pass, pass,' Right as I got the ball, I saw the hole open up. The line just cleared out the whole left side."

The Caprock coach was yelling "pass" because Hereford had three receivers out to one side, Curtis said, and tailback Petey Colvin was one of them. A linebacker went out to cover Colvin, and that left the middle of the defense empty.

Haney said the play caught Caprock by surprise.

"They adjusted out of their defense for that play, and (Curtis) got into the secondary right quick," Haney said.

Greg Coplen kicked for the extra point, and Hereford led 7-0 after only 1:35 had elapsed.

After the ensuing kickoff, Caprock got two first downs and moved into Hereford territory but was forced to punt. The ball rolled dead at the Hereford 22.

On the first play, Colvin took a handoff from Richard Sanderson, ran through a big hole and went 78 yards for the score.

"It was a read, and the middle just opened up," Colvin said. "It was an open field. There was one man to beat, and Drew Radford made a great downfield block."

Radford, a wide receiver, threw a block on a Caprock defensive back near the 15-yard line. Colvin cut around him and scored. Coplen's kick made it 14-0 with 5:02 left in the first quarter.

Hereford totaled 432 yards on offense, including 329 on the ground, and it could have been more. The first-string offense was on the field for only five possessions, and they scored all five times.

Hereford's scoring drives in the second quarter each took more than one play. The first one went 87 yards in nine plays. Sanderson had runs of 12, 15 and 18 yards, and Colvin added an 18-yarder. On first down from the Caprock six-yard line, Sanderson hit tight end Mark Kuper just as Kuper released from the line for the touchdown. Coplen's kick was wide left--his only miss out of six tries.

The next scoring drive was set up when the Longhorns tried a fake punt from their own 31 on 4th-and-6. Chris Mason passed to Hicks, but Hicks was tackled for a one-yard loss. Hereford took over at the Tascosa 30 and needed only seven plays to score. Colvin ran in from eight yards out.

The Herd's 27-0 margin in the second quarter allowed a lot of players to get in the game early and play a lot. On the last drive of the first half, Justin Wright, Ronnie Gomez and Chad Carlile--all three backup offensive backs--each had runs of 13 yards or more. Hereford didn't score on that drive, though.

In the fourth quarter, backup quarterback Elias Reyna hit Bobby Perales for a short pass. Perales spun away from the first tackler and sprinted up the sideline for a 39-yard touchdown.

"It was a perfect pass from Elias," Perales said. "I turned around to the outside and all I saw was open space."

Perales' previous contributions in games were some highlight-film-type hits on special teams. That touchdown was his first catch of the season.

"I'm glad that everyone that's been working hard but don't get to play that much got to play," he said.

Hereford's other score came from the offensive starters on the opening drive of the second half. They needed four plays to cover 71 yards. The big play was a 47-yard catch by Jason Tatarevich from Sanderson. Tatarevich carried the ball to the Caprock nine, and Colvin took it the rest of the way for the score. Coplen kicked and Hereford led 34-0.

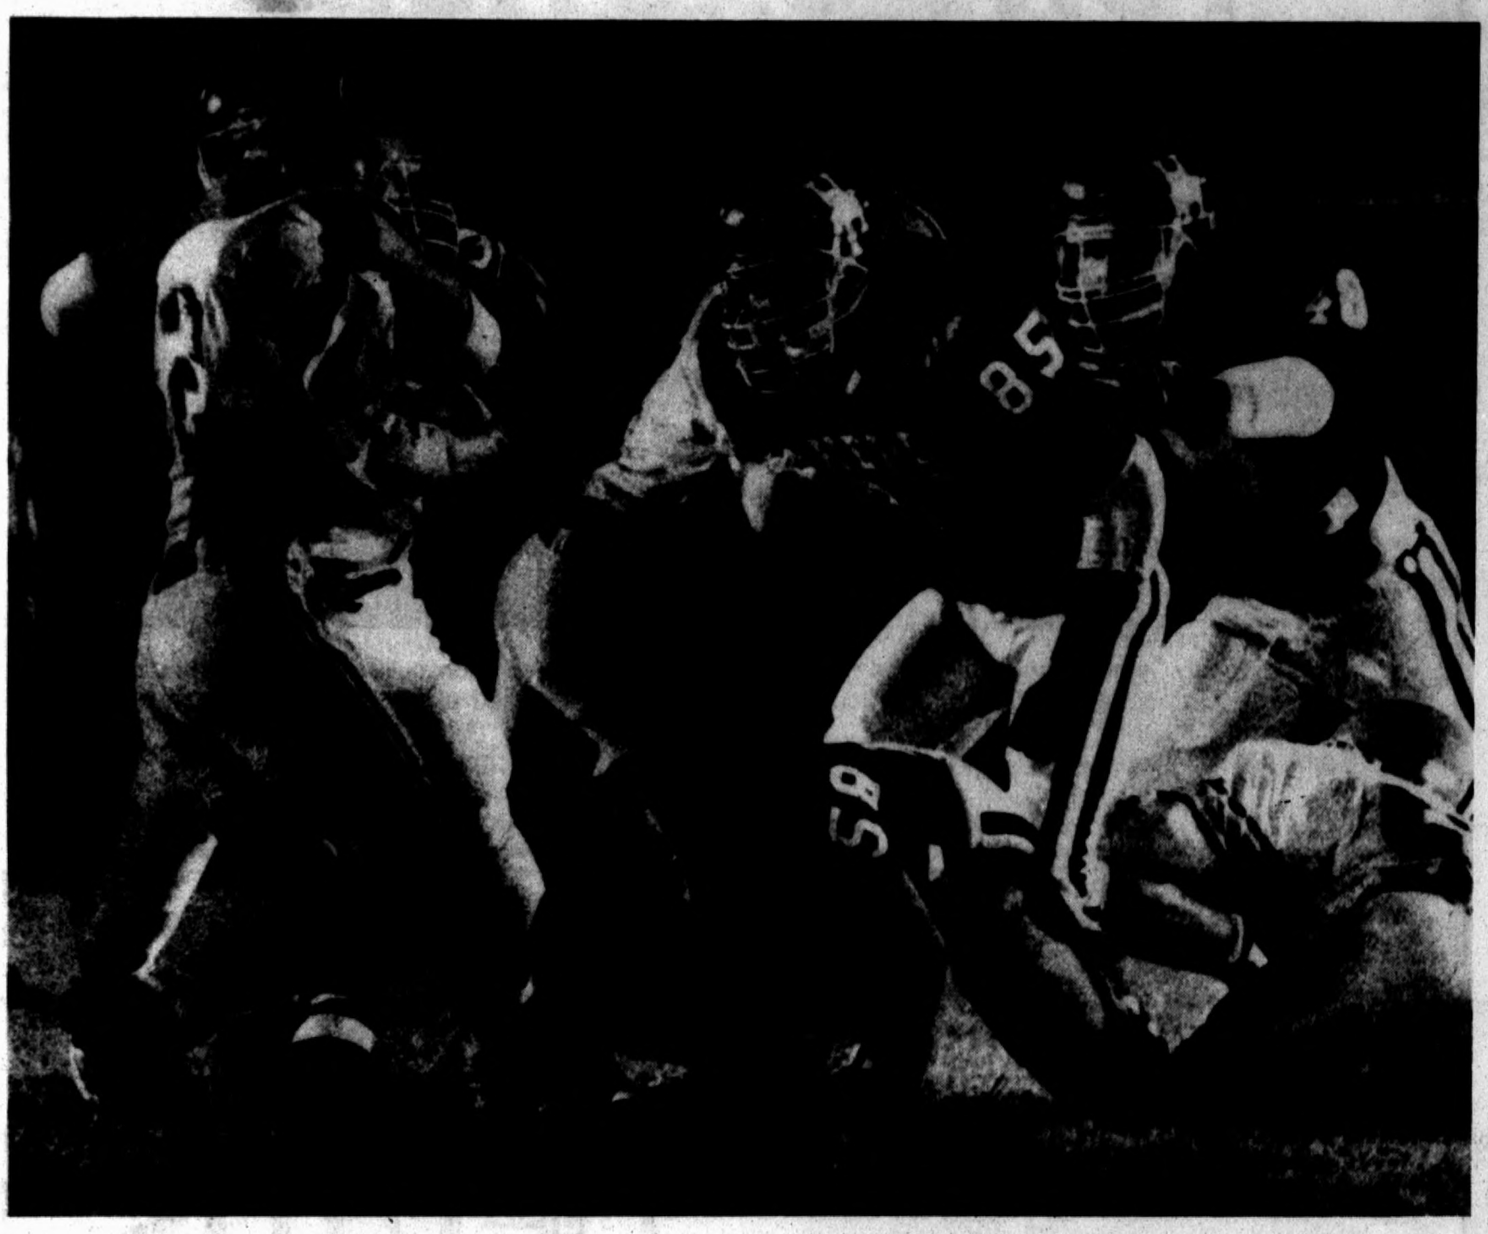

Backups played the rest of the way, with Reyna and Jake Head alternating at quarterback.

Three turnovers helped preserve the shutout. Gomez and Cody Powell each intercepted a pass. For each, it was his fifth interception of the season. No other Whiteface has even one.

Hereford's defense held Caprock in check. Caprock's longest play came on a 35-yard pass reception by Tommy Sasser that appeared to be an interception by Powell instead. Their second longest play was a 24-yard run by Johnny Martinez on a trick play--a wrap-around draw where Martinez, a receiver, goes into motion and stops behind the guard as the ball is snapped. The quarterback fakes one way and reaches around and puts the ball in Martinez' belly.

"That one play they ran that gained a lot of yards was a play we hadn't seen before," linebacker Kyle Hansen said. "They weren't able to run it again. The defense stepped up the way it needed to."

It needs to for one more game for the Herd to advance to the playoffs.

Stacked up
Hereford linebacker Kyle Hansen wraps up Caprock running back Ryan Crawford in Hereford's 41-0 win over the Longhorns Friday in Whiteface Stadium. Whitefaces closing in on the play are Jerry Rincon (58), Mark Kuper (85) and Eric Sims (48).

Playoff possibilities

If Hereford beats Dumas Friday in Dumas, then Hereford is 5-0 and champion of District 1-4A. If Hereford loses, tie-breakers will go into effect.

When three (or more) teams are tied and there is not one team which has beatein all the others in the tie, the tie-breaker is plus-points. Each team is awarded plus-points according to how much it won its games. For example, Hereford beat Pampa 21-14, so Hereford has plus 7 if Hereford, Pampa and another team are tied. A team cannot benefit from a blowout, so 15 points is the most that can be awarded. For example, Pampa beat Dumas 38-14, but Pampa only gets plus 15. In addition, no team loses points for a loss.

With one game to go Hereford is 4-0 in district, Dumas and Pampa are 3-1 and Randall is 2-2. Here are the possibilities if Hereford loses.

--If Pampa beats Randall in its final game, then Hereford, Pampa and Dumas will be tied at 4-1. Pampa has plus 15 (from beating Dumas), so they get the top seed. Hereford had plus 7 from its win over Pampa. If Dumas beats Hereford by seven points or more, Dumas is the runner-up; if Dumas wins by less than seven, Hereford is the runner-up.

--If Randall beats Pampa, then Pampa and Randall are 3-2 and staying home. Dumas would be the top team and Hereford would be the second team.

If Hereford wins, Dumas would be out of the playoffs even though it would be tied. In that case, if Pampa beats Randall, Pampa is the second playoff team because of its win over Dumas.

The only way Randall can make the playoffs is if Hereford wins and if Randall beats Pampa by 15 or more. Randall, Pampa and Dumas would be in a three way tie in that case and Randall and Pampa would both have plus 15. Randall would go because it beat Pampa.

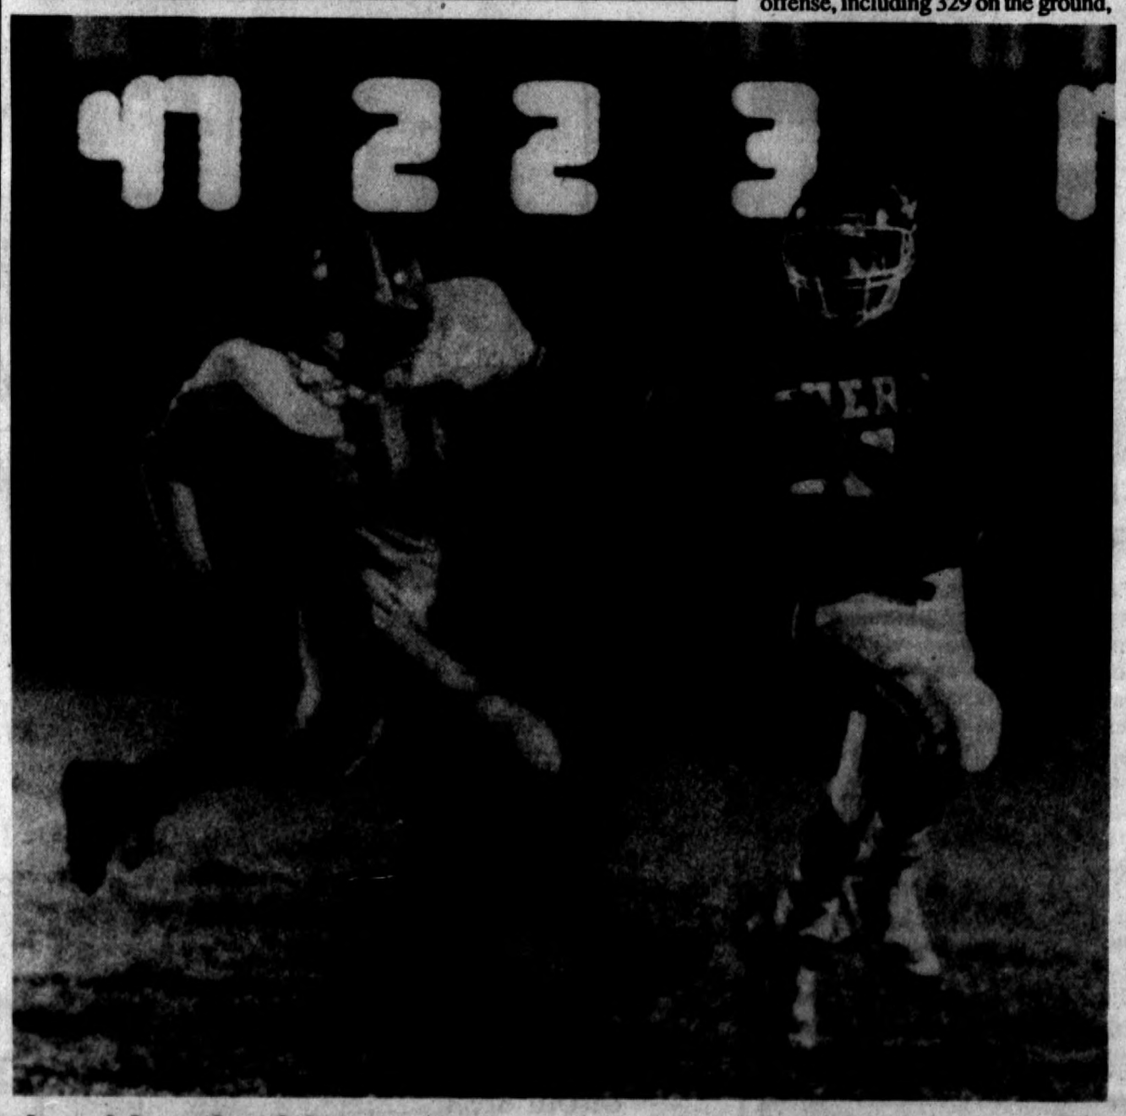

Ties wouldn't complicate matters too much, and, in fact, a tie in either game would automatically send Hereford into the playoffs.

--If Hereford and Dumas tie, Hereford is the district champion, and either Pampa or Dumas takes the second playoff spot.

--If Randall and Pampa tie, and Hereford loses, Dumas gets the top playoff seed and Hereford gets the second.

--If both games end up in a tie, Hereford is the champion and Pampa gets the second spot.

Herd netters fall

The Hereford High School tennis team lost in the first round of the Region I-4A tennis tournament Friday in Wichita Falls. The Herd fell 10-5 to Big Spring. The first team to win 10 matches is declared the winner.

"We didn't get the worst draw this year at regionals," coach Natalie Sims said. "The No. 3 seed Big Spring scared us but we though with 'perfect tennis,' we can beat anybody.

"Perfect tennis is exactly what it would have taken," she said. "We played excellent but not perfect."

Hereford got wins from Greg Coplen, Jamie Kapka and Donny Perales in boys' singles and from Emily Fuston and Sherry Fuston and Brooke Weishaar and Natalie McWhorter in girls' doubles.

Hereford spikers prepare for Lady Tornadoes

The Lady Whitefaces volleyball team is familiar with Lamesa, its opponent in the first round of the playoffs Tuesday at Lubbock's Coronado High School, and then they're not.

Hereford has beaten Lamesa in the first round the last two years, including last year's 15-13, 15-8 win at Coronado, but several of the top players from last year's team won't be there Tuesday. Outside hitter Saresa Butler and tall middle blocker Dina Simpson have graduated. Another top player from last year, hitter/setter Keisha Butler, is out with grade problems, Hereford coach Brenda Reeh said.

The best of what's left for Lamesa (6-0 in District 2-4A, 19-6 overall) is Amber Vaughan. She had 16 kills against Levelland Oct. 24.

Reeh hasn't seen Lamesa play this year, but she has been able to get a scouting report from other coaches.

"They'll attack out of the weakside, the left side, nearly 75 percent of the time," Reeh said. "Their left hitters are pretty deceptive as far as where they hit the ball. They like to hit down the line and they also like to use the crosscourt shot, which is often off speed.

"They'll have a single blocker. We'll work on hitting angles. We'll be able to hit a few more angles than we normally do--most of the teams in our district use double blocks.

"I think our offense will be effective if we show a variety of attacks: hard hits, off-speed, dinks. Traditionally, that has worked against Lamesa."

Reeh said Lamesa wouldn't make many mistakes.

"We know they're a consistent team from behind the service line; they don't miss many serves," she said. "We're going to have to realize there's going to be very few gimme points from their side of the net."

The match starts at 7:30. Admission at the gate is $2 for students and $3 for adults.

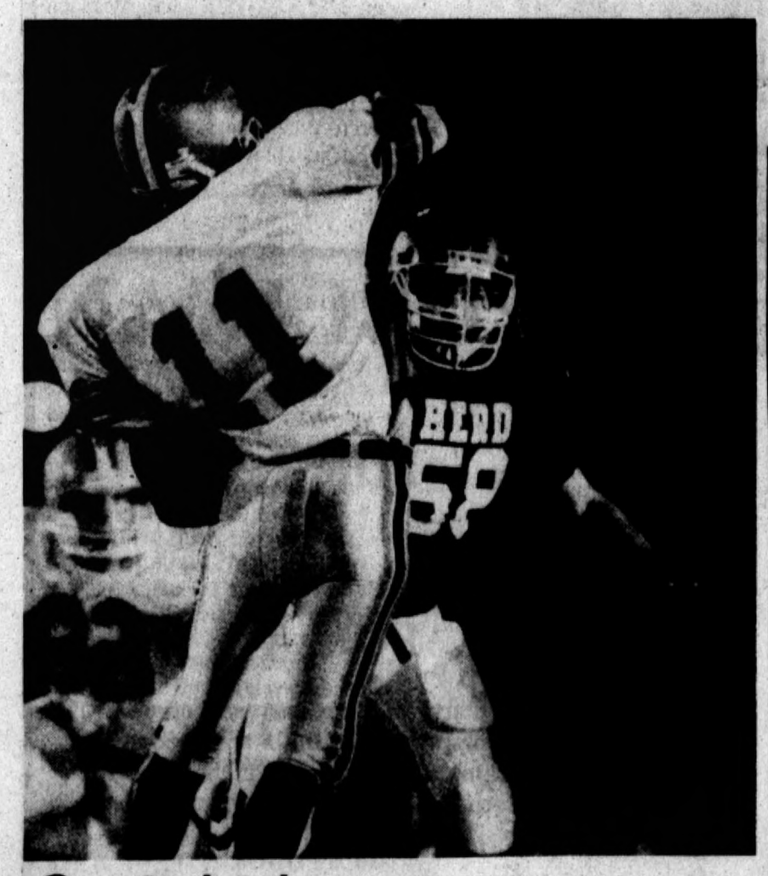

Playoff bound

The Hereford High School varsity volleyball team will meet Lamesa in the first round of the state 4A playoffs at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Coronado High School in Lubbock. Members of the team are (kneeling, left to right) Jessica Evers, Claudia Ramirez, Tonya Castillo, Michelle Brock, (middle) Jeannie Barrientez, Traci Deckard, Angie Jowell, (back) Heather Kleuskens, Kara Sandoval, Jill Robinson, Erin Bullard, Robyn Watts, Kathy Hernandez and manager Jenny Parker.

Wild Again was the first winner of the Breeder's Cup Classic, scoring in 1984 at Hollywood Park.

Joe DiMaggio was elected to the Baseball Hall of Fame on his third try in 1955.

Beattie Feathers of the Chicago Bears was the first man to gain 1,000 yards or more by rushing in 1934.

Quarterback pressure

Hereford's Jerry Rincon put the pressure on Caprock quarterback Chris Mason as he attempted a pass in Friday night's District 1-4A game at Whiteface Stadium. The Herd blanked the Amarillo team by 41-0.

Cowboys remember last meeting with Eagles

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) - It wasn't a scene Emmitt Smith likes to remember, and certainly not one he wants to relive.

The Philadelphia players were celebrating and the fans at Veterans Stadium were heaping abuse on the Dallas Cowboys.

"That kind of thing pretty much sticks in your mind," the Dallas running back says. "It's our only loss and it happened on national TV when we played our worst game of the season."

The Cowboys have adopted a low-profile, determined attitude while preparing to pay the Eagles back Sunday for the 31-7 whipping administered four weeks ago on Monday Night Football.

After that game, Smith was livid because of what he considered late hits by Eagles defensive back Andre Waters.

"He's hurt and won't play and I guess it shows if you keep doing bad things, bad things happen to you," Smith said.

But Smith said the Eagles' defense still has his utmost respect.

"It's definitely the No. 1 challenge in the league to go against them," said Smith, who has never rushed for 100 yards against the Eagles. "They haven't had a back rush for 100 yards in 53 straight games. I'd love to be the back who breaks that streak."

Philadelphia defensive lineman Reggie White said "our top priority will be to stop Smith. If you stop him, you can stop the Cowboys' offense."

That comes as no surprise to Smith, whose 733 yards leads the NFC.

"They used an eight-man line against me the last time," he said. "They'll try to take me out of the game. I just hope we can handle it better than we've done in the past."

Smith, held to 67 yards on 19 carries, said the Cowboys (6-1 and leading both the Eagles and Washington Redskins by a game in the NFC East) will have an added weapon - Texas Stadium.

"It's comforting to be playing there," he said. "The fans will get pumped up and they are a big factor whether we win or lose."

Smith said the Eagles got too high for the last game, and believes that was a contributing factor in Philadelphia defeats two of the last three weeks.

"They were overjoyed, excited," Smith said. "We took the loss in stride. It happened simply because we made too many mistakes."

The Cowboys are taking the low road, offensive tackle Nate Newton explained of their pre-game approach.

"We're just going to downplay the game until 3 p.m. Sunday," he said. "That's when Texas Stadium explodes. There will be a lot of hype starting at 3 p.m."

Wide receiver Kelvin Martin said the Cowboys will be better prepared.

"Our mistakes from the last game are fresh in our minds," he said. "We've won 10 straight at home. We'll be comfortable."

The oddsmakers agree. They've made the Cowboys a 3 1/2-point choice.

Moon has five reasons to be ready

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - Warren Moon has plenty of reasons for being ready to face the Pittsburgh Steelers defense Sunday - at least five of them.

The Steelers became stealers in the season opener, intercepting five of Moon's passes en route to a 29-24 victory over the Oilers.

Moon has been plagued by the Steelers during his Oiler career. He's thrown five touchdown passes compared to 15 interceptions in his last four games against Pittsburgh.

So there is a personal goal for Moon as the Oilers prepare to take on the Steelers in another showdown for the AFC Central Division lead. Both enter Sunday's game with 5-2 records.

"It's a game for me to get that little monkey off my back," Moon said.

"If there's a team that kind of has it on me right now it's Pittsburgh."

The Steelers became stealers in the regular season opener, intercepting five of Moon's passes en route to a 29-24 victory. Moon has another five-interception performance and a four-interception game against the Steelers.

"It doesn't affect me in a negative way," Moon said. "It makes me want to strap it on a little bit tighter. I'll be ready to play. They can talk all they want to right now, but it has to be settled on the field."

Following their victory in the Astrodome, cornerback Rod Woodson said the Steeler defense had the run-and-shoot figured out, a boast coach Jack Pardee found curious.

"We had over 400 yards against them in that first game so if they've got us figured out, I'm glad to hear it," Pardee said.

The Steelers' tactics along the defensive line have helped their interception totals.

"There's not any real secret to their success," Pardee said. "They intercepted some tipped passes and they've been able to bat some balls at the line."

The Steelers have 15 interceptions this season and they've allowed a league low of 77 points.

"It's something I can't control," Moon said. "It just happens. The Steeler line is taught to jump at the line. They don't get a lot of sacks but they do get a lot of tips and not just against me.

"It's something we talked about in our team meeting, to make them get their hands down. It's harder to get your hands up if you're getting hit."

Moon also wonders how the Steelers could have the run-and-shoot deciphered.

"They don't do anything different, they've just been in the right place at the right time to catch some of my balls," Moon said. "I don't think they've got us figured out. We don't even know where we're going when the play starts."

Moon also has shown a tendency to tuck the ball and run this season rather than throw out of bounds.

"I don't go in saying I'm going to run but I am looking to take off if the opportunity is to throw it away or dump it," Moon said. "I'm looking to use all of my skills before they leave me."

Robinson remains with vastly changed Spurs

By KELLEY SHANNON
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - With new players on the roster and new coach Jerry Tarkanian at the helm, the San Antonio Spurs are emphasizing a running game and more outside shooting.

But when it comes to the team's backbone, don't expect big changes. That honor still belongs to David Robinson.

"David is so talented. It's really incredible," Tarkanian said. "He's so mobile, and he'll block so many shots."

Tarkanian smiles and says he's never coached anyone as smart as Robinson, the fourth-year All-Star center from Navy now coming off a gold-medal Olympic trip. Robinson averaged 23.2 points, 12.2 rebounds and 4.49 blocks last season for the Spurs.

Robinson and the rest of the Spurs will test their Tarkanian-induced style when the team opens the regular season Friday against the Kings at Sacramento. The players and the coach say the season holds promise.

"This is the most together team we've had since I've been here," said Robinson.

Tarkanian compiled a 624-122 record in his 19 years at UNLV and Long Beach State, the winningest in NCAA history. He was hired by the Spurs to replace Larry Brown and now is embarking on his inaugural NBA season.

Not surprisingly, he's emphasizing defense.

"My stress always is on defense - defense, and a running game," he said. "I always felt that consistent good teams are good on defense."

Tarkanian said he plans to be patient, especially since so many players are newcomers to the Spurs or the league.

"It's just going to take a lot of time, that's all," Tarkanian said.

Robinson and starting forward Sean Elliott are returning this year, as are forwards Antoine Carr and Sidney Green. Former starting guard Willie Anderson continues to struggle to return to playing condition after surgery on stress fractures in both legs.

San Antonio, 47-35 last season, has lost two key players.

Point guard Rod Strickland became a free agent and signed with the Portland Trail Blazers.

And starting forward Terry Cummings is expected to be out most or all of the season because of reconstructive surgery to repair a torn knee ligament.

"The loss of Terry was devastating," said Tarkanian, who says Carr will replace Cummings but also says the team needs another "big man."

Among the new Spurs names are guard Dale Ellis, forward Larry Smith and guards Lloyd Daniels and Vinny Del Negro, whom Tarkanian is depending on at point.

Tarkanian said he'll be looking to those four plus Elliott for outside shooting, something Spurs squads have lacked in past seasons.

Daniels, the New York street basketball star who still has a bullet lodged in his shoulder from a drug-related shooting, says he is drug-free and ready for the NBA. Emphasizing that point, Daniels scored 30 points in a preseason victory over the New York Knicks.

Daniels was recruited by Tarkanian to play for UNLV, but never got to after getting arrested at a crack cocaine house in Las Vegas.

Tarkanian says Daniels has shown off-season discipline by working out daily with a strength coach and an assistant coach during the summer.

"He's bounced around, and he's had a real tough past, but he's got himself together," Tarkanian said.

Tarkanian describes his new team as a "special group of people." The players seem to regard Tarkanian highly, too.

"The man definitely knows what he's doing," Carr said. "He's going to make you work, and that's what I like."

Ellis said: "I think all the players like him as a coach ... Hopefully we're together and we're ready to play basketball."

The Spurs, which began the preseason 3-2, including victories over New York and the Detroit Pistons, say they are seeing more and more progress as the regular season approaches.

Elliott, entering his fourth year in the league, agrees with Robinson that the team has unity and is playing unselfishly.

"Everyone likes each other here," Elliott said. "This is the best it's been, chemistry-wise, since I've been here."

Rockets have many questions

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - As if Houston Rockets coach Rudy Tomjanovich didn't have enough problems, somebody decided to nickname the Rockets' style of play "Rudyball."

There are stickier problems demanding Tomjanovich's attention than a marketing ploy.

Center Hakeem Olajuwon is playing mutely into the regular season after starting the preseason by calling owner Charlie Thomas a coward and demanding apologies for past indignities.

Guard Vernon Maxwell was suspended for Wednesday's exhibition game in Mexico City for a dressing room incident with forward Carl Herrera. Otis Thorpe suffered a bruised kidney that may force him to miss the season opener.

Tomjanovich can deal with those situations.

But the billboards all over town and the advertisements on television and in the newspapers proclaiming the year of "Rudyball" are something he can't control. He at least wants it understood it wasn't his idea.

"It's not something that I devised as far as the term and I'm not going to use it," Tomjanovich said. "Rocket basketball is what I would prefer."

So what's wrong with a catchy name? It's misplaced emphasis. Tomjanovich wants his team to be center stage, not the coach.

"I think it's too much ego," Tomjanovich said. "It's basically a marketing term. I'm going to put in a system that's based on the strengths of these individual players. It's based on my beliefs but it's based on the strengths of these guys.

"If I was coaching a different team, my system would be different because they would have different strengths."

One of Tomjanovich's golden rules when he started training camp was that there would be rules and everyone would obey them or suffer the consequences.

Maxwell gave Tomjanovich's rule an early test last week when he and Herrera were involved in the incident in the Rockets lockerroom.

"I'm not going to have it on my team, I stated on the first day going in that everyone would abide by the rules," Tomjanovich said.

Tomjanovich, who took over for fired Don Chaney last season, has found no complaints with Olajuwon's on-court performance.

"I can only deal with what happens out here on the court," Tomjanovich said. "He's given everything we've asked."

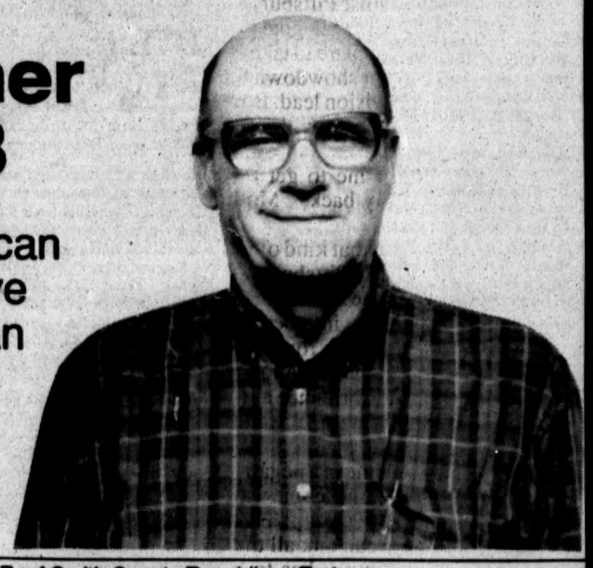

The season begins with four of the five starters from last season in place, assuming Thorpe is able to continue his iron man role of playing in 553 consecutive games.

Kenny Smith will be the point guard with Maxwell at the other guard and Olajuwon and Thorpe in the frontcourt. Herrera, Matt Bullard and first round draft pick Robert Horry are competing for the small forward job.

Mavs stick with youth

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) - In the Dallas Mavericks' first year, they managed to win 15 games.

Now a dozen years later the question is if they can win that many again in the 1992-93 NBA season which begins for Dallas at home on Saturday Nov. 7 against the Utah Jazz.

"We have a young, inexperienced team," said Dallas coach Richie Adubato. "We hope to be competitive in the second half of the season. It will depend on how fast our young players come along. We could be struggling early."

In other words, the Mavs, coming off the second worst season in franchise history, are as green as their uniforms.

Adubato went to a youth movement late in the season and the Mavs paid the price in victories for experience. It does not bode well on the victory front this year.

"When injuries once again hit our veterans, we decided it was time to begin emphasizing youth while planning for the future," said Adubato. "We feel we added more quality youth in the 1992 draft with guard Jim Jackson of Ohio State (first round pick) and center Sean Rooks of Arizona (second round selection)."

Adubato plans to use Jackson at shooting guard, point guard and small forward once the Mavs get him signed. Negotiations have been at a standstill for weeks.

Dallas needs help. Shooting guard Rolando Blackman was traded to the New York Knicks in the off-season. He averaged 25 points per game.

Dallas is looking for a big improvement in forward Doug Smith, a first round pick out of Missouri in 1991.

"Doug gives us points and rebounds from both the small forward and power forward positions," Adubato said.

However, Smith reported to training camp overweight and has been slow to get going.

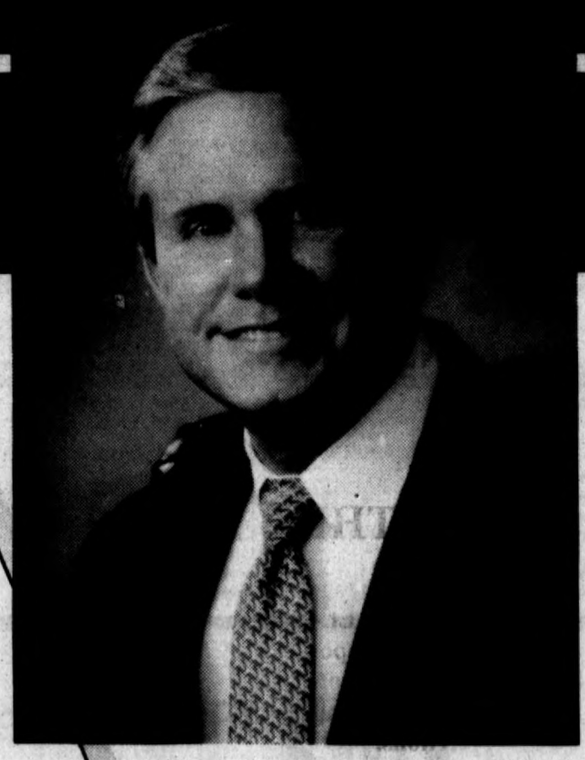

Also, the Mavs suffered a loss when veteran guard Fat Lever announced he has not recovered from a knee injury. The Mavs will have to pay his guaranteed $2 million contract anyway.

Such youngsters as power forward Terry Davis, guard Mike Iuzzolino and center Donald Hodge should be better. They started the final 21 games for the Mavs.

Free agent forward Dexter Cambridge, who played at the University of Texas, had a good summer camp and will be given a chance to make the team.

Derek Harper, one of the best point guards in the league, has been mentioned in trade talks but the Mavericks need him to be a threat this season.

Electoral College remains unique features of election

Artist: Gaspar Vilato / AP

The important job for Bush, Clinton and Perot is to be the first to get 270 electoral votes. The number for each state is listed on the map below.

There is one college in the United States, in business over 200 years, that has had fewer than 40 graduates.

It is the Electoral College, a figment of the dreams of the framers of the Constitution. It has been called outdated and outmoded and out of touch, but it is still with us, and isn't likely to go away anytime soon.

The nation's founders decided the voters (back in the 1780s and 1790s, that meant a white landowning male) weren't bright enough to have the final say in electing the president. Instead of deciding who the next chief of state would be from who won the most votes in the general election, they came up with a novel idea.

When you vote for president, you are actually voting for persons to cast those votes in the Electoral College. Whoever wins the most votes in each state gets all of the electors in the state. If Bill Clinton beats George Bush by one vote in Texas, he gets all 32 electoral votes.

It's possible for a candidate to win 37 states overwhelmingly and not be elected.

The number of electors is taken from adding the number of senators and representatives of each state. Texas has 32, third behind California (54) and New York (33). Every state, and the District of Columbia, has at least three electors. With 538 electors, a candidate must have 270 votes.

That means a candidate could take Texas, California, New York, Florida, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, North Carolina, Virginia, Georgia and Massachusetts--12 states--and let the opponent(s) have the rest. That is why George Bush and Bill Clinton and Ross Perot (and the others in all of those campaigns in the spring so long ago) campaign so hard in those states.

Carry those 12 states, and you have a job in the White House for four years.

Perot faces biggest challenge in garnering any electoral votes

WASHINGTON (AP) - Ross Perot says he can win, but what he said in July remains the hard truth: The nation's Electoral College system stacks the odds mightily against any presidential candidate outside the two major parties.

Perot conceded he couldn't win an outright Electoral College victory, much less hope to emerge the victor if a three-way deadlock were left to a Congress.

He since has recanted that reasoning as his motivation for bowing out of the White House race, saying now he quit the race because of alleged GOP dirty tricks that would embarrass his daughter, Carolyn. And in the last two days, he has declared not only that he can win the campaign outright, but do so in all 50 states.

But he's trailing in all national and state polls, and the electoral system poses obstacles as well.

Voters don't elect the president. Instead, they choose the electors who do - one for every House member and senator in each state, plus three for the District of Columbia, or 538 in all. If a majority - 270 - go for one candidate, he's elected.

If not, the contest is thrown to the House of Representatives, where each state gets a single vote, and the president is selected from the top three finishers in the Electoral College. In that case, the edge goes to the candidate whose party controls Congress. And a candidate without a congressional party base has no edge at all.

Moreover, the non-aligned candidate has no guarantee that his own slate of electors will vote for him, regardless of the popular vote that qualified them to participate in the Electoral College balloting.

Some Perot electors are already bailing out.

"I'm not for him any longer," said New Jersey Perot elector Candice Brearly.

Electors are chosen from lists of individuals submitted by the political parties or independent candidates. These people are chosen at state party conventions or are designated by independent candidates.

The exceptions are Maine and Nebraska, which select two electors by statewide popular vote and the remainder by the popular vote in each congressional district.

On Election Day, voters choose electors by casting ballots for president and vice president. Don't expect the ballot to tell who these electors are; many states refer to them as "Electors for ..." rather than listing them by name.

On Dec. 14, the electors will meet in their respective states and cast their votes for president and vice president, at least one of whom must be from outside the state. The votes are sealed and sent to the Senate president, who opens and reads them before both houses of Congress on Jan. 6.

If no candidate gets a majority, the House selects the president - but it hasn't come to that since the early days of the Republic. In fact, the Electoral College has served in modern history as a rubber stamp of the popular vote, with a few exceptions.

In 1988, for example, West Virginia elector Margarette Leach chose Democratic vice presidential nominee Lloyd Bentsen - not Michael Dukakis - for president. So, Dukakis got 111 electors, even though he earned 112 in the general election.

In 1976, a Gerald Ford elector in Washington state voted instead for Ronald Reagan. In 1968, a Richard Nixon elector chose George Wallace.

The most notable Electoral College departure from the popular outcome was the election of 1888, in which Benjamin Harrison became president without winning a majority of the popular vote. Harrison won a slim majority in the larger of 20 states that supported him, while Grover Cleveland carried large popular majorities in 18 states. The Electoral College chose Harrison, 233-168.

That kind of election would be improbable this year, said George Washington University political scientist Greg Lebel. "Too many big states already are clearly in Clinton's corner," he said.

December 17 has been declared Wright Brothers Day to commemorate their first successful flight.

Individuals with disabilities are people too-they just may have to do certain things a slightly different way.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Jodie Foster has signed a three-year deal with PolyGram Filmed Entertainment to produce her own movies.

The actress on Wednesday would not disclose the value of the deal.

"I was offered a deal pretty much by every studio in town," she said. "I chose PolyGram because I just couldn't get this kind of autonomy anywhere else."

Miss Foster said she will develop the movies and maintain creative control, while Polygram will approve the budget.

She won Oscars for her roles in "The Accused" and "The Silence of the Lambs" and won critical praise for directing "Little Man Tate."

PolyGram has bankrolled such productions as "My Beautiful Laundrette," "Bob Roberts" and "The Hand That Rocks the Cradle."

Winner may win votes, but not America's heart

DETROIT (AP) - American voters this year may elect a president they don't like.

The "negative" poll ratings are unprecedented, pollsters say. In some surveys, all three candidates were viewed more unfavorably than favorably. That means the winner, whoever he is, may begin his term with the highest negative ratings in modern polling history.

"There isn't anybody they're truly in love with," says pollster Del Ali, vice president of Mason-Dixon Media Research. "There's doubt even among their supporters."

The CBS News-New York Times poll taken Oct. 20-23, a national survey of 1,467 voters, illustrates the point.

Thirty-five percent of those queried said they had a favorable opinion of President Bush, while 45 percent said their opinion was unfavorable, with the rest undecided or waiting for more information.

For Clinton, it was 33 percent favorable, 39 percent unfavorable and 28 percent in neither camp. Perot's was 29 percent favorable and 32 percent unfavorable.

The Oct. 20-22 Harris poll asked people to rate the job Bush was doing, and what kind of job they thought Clinton or Perot might do. The numbers for Bush were almost 2-1 negative, Clinton came close to breaking even at 47 percent positive, 49 percent negative, and Perot was 40 percent positive and 56 percent negative.

Undoubtedly, part of the explanation lies in a year of rough politics and a three-way race.

Clinton was buffeted during the primaries, and recently again by Bush, with questions about the draft and marital infidelity.

It's just a family tradition...

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

It's a family tradition.

David Cochran of Hereford commissioned an artist to draw a picture of his 5-year-old son, Monte, in a new western suit with black hat and boots. That was 26 years ago.

David saved the suit, because he had the idea of having photographs and drawings of all his grandsons in the same western suit and same pose.

When his first grandson, Shane Dawson, reached the age of 5, Cochran had another artist do a pencil and charcoal drawing of Shane in basically the same pose as the picture of Monte. Both were leaning on a wagon wheel.

In 1988, David carved out a rocking horse to add to the tradition. When Monte's son, Cody, reached the age of 5, his granddad commissioned artist Jeff Topper of Clarendon to draw a picture of Cody--in the same suit used 26 years before. This time the rocking horse was used as a prop instead of the wagon wheel.

Monte is now 30 years of age; Shane is 11 and Cody is 7. The story of this "family tradition" came to light recently when Martha Bridges of Hereford came into possession of a print of a drawing which was believed to have been posed for by a Hereford boy. The print was reproduced in The Brand and the Cochrans identified the drawing as being one of their son, Cody.

The artist had permission to make prints of the drawing, and the print which Bridges had was No. 27. The Cochrans already had the original, of course, as well as a few prints. The original photo was made here at Anderson's Studio, and the artist used the photo for his drawing.

"With the picture appearing in the newspaper, Cody feels like a celebrity," Monta Cochran said this week. "It's been a fun thing," she added, "and the family has really enjoyed the resulting publicity."

Picture tradition

Halloween fun at Bluebonnet

Bluebonnet teacher Deloris Dowell (the lion at left), paraprofessionals Lupe Pesina (Catwoman) and Oralia Castillo (Skate Wolf) and teacher Brenda Turner (the Pumpkin Witch) led bluebonnet students in the school's annual Halloween Parade. Kindergartners paraded in front of parents, grandparents and friends and in front of fourth, fifth and sixth graders at the school.

ELECTION

GUERRERO

Wilson wrote on the House bank, including a $6,500 check to the Internal Revenue Service.

The flamboyant Wilson challenged the military record of Miss Peterson, a West Point graduate, and questioned her purchase of a new car, saying she hadn't held a job since leaving the Army.

In El Paso, five-term incumbent Democrat Ron Coleman found himself on the defensive after admitting he wrote 673 bad checks. Republican Chip Taberski, a former TV sportscaster, asked voters in a campaign ad: "Do you know what would happen to you if you bounced 673 checks?" The ad showed a jail door slamming.

In San Antonio, Democratic Rep. Albert Bustamante and Republican Henry Bonilla fought over taxes, government spending, grand jury probes and TV station equipment. But ultimately, they fought over the traditional ties between Hispanic voters and the Democratic Party.

Not all incumbents found themselves in trouble, though.

Austin's venerable Democratic congressman, J.J. "Jake" Pickle, ran on his lengthy record and could joke about the House Bank, where he wrote no bad checks. "Which Pickle does not bounce?" asked a fund-raiser invitation. The multiple-choice answers: "sweet, dill, Jake."

Topping the state ballot was the rugged race for Railroad Commission.

Lena Guerrero, 34, a rising Democratic star and protege of Gov. Ann Richards, found herself fighting for political life after admitting she lacked the college degree she had claimed for 12 years.

She resigned from the panel, kept running, and drew fire from former congresswoman Barbara Jordan, the governor's special counsel on ethics.

Republican candidate Barry Williamson of Dallas, who left a federal energy post to run, was vaulted to front-runner status despite being a virtual unknown when the race began.

In the Legislature, retirement, ambition, career change and primary election defeats meant the 150-member House will have at least 32 new faces and the 31-member Senate at least five.

Currently the makeup of the House is 90 Democrats and 58 Republicans, with two seats having been vacated by Democrats. The partisan balance wasn't expected to change there.

In the Texas Senate, where Democrats now outnumber Republicans 22-9, the GOP was pushing hard.

An increase of seven seats would give Republicans a 16-15 majority. Winning five or six more could give the GOP a working majority on key issues in which one, two or more Democrats might switch sides.

A gain of just two seats still would give Republicans real clout. Under Senate rules, with a one-third vote they could block consideration of bills or many gubernatorial appointments.

A sidelight: finance reports to the Texas Ethics Commission showed unopposed legislators raising more than half a million dollars. Lawmakers are allowed to spend campaign donations for expenses related to their state jobs, but critics decried the practice.

"It's absolutely outrageous," Suzy Woodford, executive director of Common Cause of Texas, told the Austin American-Statesman. "It allows them to build up large war chests, and that scares off opponents. And that's why voters don't have more choices."

Three seats each are up for grabs on the state's two highest courts - the Texas Supreme Court and Court of Criminal Appeals.

The most visible race pitted incumbent Supreme Court Justice Oscar Mauzy against Republican Craig Enoch, chief justice of the Dallas appeals court.

Enoch admitted using a state briefing attorney to assist him with research for a master's thesis; Mauzy was accused of having a secretary type personal correspondence. Enoch accused Mauzy of being backed by personal injury lawyers; Mauzy accused Enoch of being backed by insurance companies.

In the other Supreme Court races, incumbent Republican Eugene Cook faced Democrat Rose Spector, a San Antonio judge; incumbent Democrat Jack Hightower faced Republican John Montgomery, a district judge in Houston.

The criminal court races pitted incumbent Democrat Charles Baird against Republican Joseph Devany, former Dallas appeals court judge; incumbent Democrat Morris Overstreet against Sue LaGarde, a Republican appeals court judge from Dallas; and incumbent Democrat Fortunato "Pete" Benavides against Republican Lawrence Meyers, an appeals court judge in Fort Worth.

SURPRISE

asked about a race that's gone from showing him with double-digit leads just days ago to neck-and-neck, according to at least some polls.

Bush and Clinton kept up their duel over economics, with Bush calling his rival's plan "trample-down economics" and Clinton saying Bush would just give America "four more years of trickle-down economics, declining incomes, rising unemployment."

But Bush was again consumed by Iran-Contra when former Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger was named in a fresh indictment that contradicts Bush's claim that he didn't know that the Reagan administration was trading arms for hostages in Lebanon.

The indictment, based on Weinberger's handwritten notes, said then-Vice President Bush attended a Jan. 7, 1986, meeting where President Reagan and aides did discuss such a deal with Iran. "VP favored," Weinberger's notes said, contradicting previous Bush denials.

The Democrats jumped on the indictment. Clinton said it "diminishes the credibility of the presidency" and running mate Al Gore called it the "smoking gun."

But Bush, appearing Friday night on CNN's "Larry King Live," said that "if there is a smoking gun out there, I'd have been hauled up by one of those Senate committees" or the Iran-Contra prosecutors long before.

One of the callers to the show was Clinton's communications director, George Stephanopoulos, who said he could tell Bush where the smoking gun was.

"For the last five years, you have consistently said it was not arms for hostages. This memo shows it was arms for hostages," Stephanopoulos told Bush.

Bush appealed to voters on the show: "Let's not clutter up an election at the last minute by phony allegations by the Clinton campaign."

Clinton was dogged by questions about a tighter race. He said he always expected the margin to close, but he thought part of the narrowing was caused by Perot's re-entry, which "divided the pro-change vote."

In Defense of a Little Virginity

a message from Focus on the Family

The federal government has spent almost $3 billion of our taxes since 1970 to promote contraceptives and "safe sex" among our teenagers. Isn't it time we asked, What have we gotten for our money? These are the facts:

- The federal Centers for Disease Control estimate that there are now 1 million cases of HIV infection nationwide.[1]
- 1 in 100 students coming to the University of Texas health center now carries the deadly virus.[2]
- The rate of heterosexual HIV transmission has increased 44% since September 1989.[3]
- Sexually transmitted diseases (STDs) infect 3 million teenagers annually.[4]
- 63% of all STD cases occur among persons less than 25 years of age.[5]
- 1 million new cases of pelvic inflammatory disease occur annually.
- 1.3 million new cases of gonorrhea occur annually[7]; strains of gonorrhea have developed that are resistant to penicillin.
- Syphilis is at a 40-year high, with 134,000 new infections per year.[8]
- 500,000 new cases of herpes occur annually[9]; it is estimated that 16.4% of the U.S. population ages 15-74 is infected, totaling more than 25 million Americans — among certain groups, the infection rate is as high as 60%.[10]
- 4 million cases of chlamydia occur annually[11]; 10-30% of 15- to19-year-olds are infected.[12]
- There are now 24 million cases of human papilloma virus (HPV), with a higher prevalence among teens.[13]

To date, over 20 different and dangerous sexually transmitted diseases are rampant among the young. Add to that the problems associated with promiscuous behavior: infertility, abortions and infected newborns. The cost of this epidemic is staggering, both in human suffering and in expense to society; yet epidemiologists tell us we've only seen the beginning.

Incredibly, the "safe-sex" gurus and condom promoters who got us into this mess are still determining our policy regarding adolescent sexuality. Their ideas have failed, and it is time to rethink their bankrupt policies.

How long has it been since you've heard anyone tell teenagers why it is to their advantage to remain virgins until married? The facts are being withheld from them, with tragic consequences. Unless we come to terms with the sickness that stalks a generation of Americans, teen promiscuity will continue, and millions of kids . . . thinking they are protected . . . will suffer for the rest of their lives. Many will die of AIDS.

There is only one safe way to remain healthy in the midst of a sexual revolution. It is to abstain from intercourse until marriage, and then wed and be faithful to an uninfected partner. It is a concept that was widely endorsed in society until the 1960s. Since then, a "better idea" has come along . . . one that now threatens the entire human family.

Inevitable questions are raised whenever abstinence is proposed. It's time we gave some clear answers:

Why, apart from moral considerations, do you think teenagers should be taught to abstain from sex until marriage?

No other approach to the epidemic of sexually transmitted diseases will work. The so-called "safe-sex" solution is a disaster in the making. Condoms can fail at least 15.7 percent of the time annually in preventing pregnancy.[14] They fail 36.3 percent of the time annually in preventing pregnancy among young, unmarried minority women.[15] In a study of homosexual men, the British Medical Journal reported the failure rate due to slippage and breakage to be 26 percent.[16] Given these findings, it is obvious why we have a word for people who rely on condoms as a means of birth control. We call them . . . "parents."

Remembering that a woman can conceive only one or two days per month, we can only guess how high the failure rate for condoms must be in preventing disease, which can be transmitted 365 days per year! If the devices are not used properly, or if they slip just once, viruses and bacteria are exchanged and the disease process begins. One mistake after 500 "protected" episodes is all it takes to contract a sexually transmitted disease. The damage is done in a single moment when rational thought is overridden by passion.

Those who would depend on so insecure a method must use it properly on every occasion, and even then a high failure rate is brought about by factors beyond their control. The young victim who is told by his elders that this little latex device is "safe" may not know he is risking lifelong pain and even death for so brief a window of pleasure. What a burden to place on an immature mind and body!

Then we must recognize that there are other differences between pregnancy prevention and disease prevention. HIV is 1/25th the width of sperm,[17] and can pass easily through even the smallest gaps in condoms. Researchers studying surgical gloves made out of latex, the same material in condoms, found "channels of 5 microns that penetrated the entire thickness of the glove."[18] HIV measures .1 microns.[19] Given these findings, what rational, informed person would trust his or her very life to such flimsy armor?

This surely explains why not one of 800 sexologists at a conference a few years ago raised a hand when asked if they would trust a thin rubber sheath to protect them during intercourse with a known HIV-infected person.[20] Who could blame them? They're not crazy, after all. And yet they're perfectly willing to tell our kids that "safe sex" is within reach and that they can sleep around with impunity.

There is only one way to protect ourselves from the deadly diseases that lie in wait. It is abstinence before marriage, then marriage and mutual fidelity for life to an uninfected partner. Anything less is potentially suicidal.

That position is simply NOT realistic today. It's an unworkable solution: Kids will NOT implement it.

Some will. Some won't. It's still the only answer. But let's talk about an "unworkable solution" of the first order. Since 1970, the federal government has spent nearly $3 billion to promote contraception and "safe sex." This year alone, 450 million of your tax dollars will go down that drain![21] (Compared with less than $8 million for abstinence programs, which Sen. Teddy Kennedy and company have sought repeatedly to eliminate altogether.) Isn't it time we ask what we've gotten for our money? After 22 years and nearly $3 billion, some 58 percent of teenage girls under 18 still did not use contraception during their first intercourse.[22] Furthermore, teenagers tend to keep having unprotected intercourse for a full year, on average, before starting any kind of contraception.[23] That is the success ratio of the experts who call abstinence "unrealistic" and "unworkable."

Even if we spent another $50 billion to promote condom usage, most teenagers would still not use them consistently and properly. The nature of human beings and the passion of the act simply do not lend themselves to a disciplined response in young romantics.

But if you knew a teenager was going to have intercourse, wouldn't you teach him or her about proper condom usage?

No, because that approach has an unintended consequence. The process of recommending condom usage to teenagers inevitably conveys five dangerous ideas: (1) that "safe sex" is achievable; (2) that everybody is doing it; (3) that responsible adults expect them to do it; (4) that it's a good thing; and (5) that their peers know they know these things, breeding promiscuity. Those are very destructive messages to give our kids.

Furthermore, Planned Parenthood's own data show that the number one reason teenagers engage in intercourse is peer pressure![24] Therefore, anything we do to imply that "everybody is doing it" results in more . . . not fewer . . . people who give the game a try. Condom distribution programs do not reduce the number of kids exposed to disease . . . they radically increase it!

Want proof of that fact? Since the federal government began its major contraception program in 1970, unwed pregnancies have increased 87 percent among 15- to 19-year-olds.[25] Likewise, abortions among teens rose 67 percent;[26] unwed births went up 61 percent.[27] And venereal disease has infected a generation of young people. Nice job, sex counselors. Good thinking, senators and congressmen. Nice nap, America.

Having made a blunder that now threatens the human family, one would think the designers would be backtracking and apologizing for their miscalculations. Instead, they continue to lobby Congress and corporate America for more money. Given the misinformation extant on this subject, they'll probably get it.

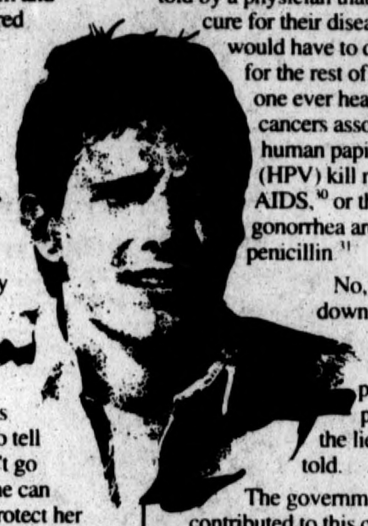

But if you were a parent and knew that your son or daughter was having sex, wouldn't you rather he or she used a condom?

How much risk is acceptable when you're talking about your teenager's life? One study of married couples in which one partner was infected with HIV found that 17% of the partners using condoms for protection still caught the virus within a year and a half.[28] Telling our teens to "reduce their risk" to one in six (17%) is not much better than advocating Russian roulette. Both are fatal, eventually. The difference is that with a gun, death is quicker. Suppose your son or daughter were joining an 18-month skydiving club of six members. If you knew that one of their parachutes would definitely fail, would you recommend that they simply buckle the chutes tighter? Certainly not. You would say, "Please don't jump. Your life is at stake!" How could a loving parent do less?

Kids won't listen to the abstinence message. You're just wasting your breath to try to sell them a notion like that.

It is a popular myth that teenagers are incapable of understanding that it is in their best interest to save themselves until marriage. Almost 65 percent of all high school females under 18 are virgins.[29]

A few years ago in Lexington, Ky., a youth event was held that featured no sports contest, no rock groups—just an ex-convict named Harold Morris talking about abstinence, among other subjects. The coliseum seated 18,000 people, but 26,000 teenagers showed up! Eventually, more than 2,000 stood outside the packed auditorium and listened over a hastily prepared public address system. Who says kids won't listen to this time-honored message?

Even teens who have been sexually active can choose to stop. This is often called "secondary virginity," a good concept that conveys the idea that kids can start over. One young girl recently wrote Ann Landers to say she wished she had kept her virginity, signing the letter, "Sorry I didn't and wish I could take it back." As responsible adults we need to tell her that even though she can't go back, she can go forward. She can regain her self-respect and protect her health, because it's never too late to start saying "no" to premarital sex.

Even though the safe-sex advocates predominate in educational circles, are there no positive examples of abstinence-based programs for kids?

Thankfully, some excellent programs have been developed. Spokane-based Teen-Aid and Chicago's Southwest Parents Committee are good examples. So are Next Generation in Maryland, Choices in California and Respect Inc. in Illinois. Other curricula such as Facing Reality; Sex Respect; Me, My World, My Future; Reasonable Reasons to Wait; Sex, Love & Choices; F.A.C.T.S. etc., are all abstinence-themed programs to help kids make good sexual decisions.

A good curriculum for inner-city youth is Elayne Bennett's Best Friends Program. This successful "mentoring" project helps adolescents in Washington, D.C. graduate from high school and remain abstinent. In five years, not one female has become pregnant while in the Best Friends Program!

Establishing and nurturing abstinence ideas with kids, however, can be like spitting into the wind. Not because they won't listen, because most will. But pro-abstinence messages are drowned out in a sea of toxic teen-sex-is-inevitable-use-a-condom propaganda from "safe-sex" professionals.

You place major responsibility on those who have told adolescents that sexual expression is their right as long as they do it "properly." Who else has contributed to the epidemic?

The entertainment industry must certainly share the blame, including television producers. It is interesting in this context that all four networks and the cable television entities are wringing their hands about this terrible epidemic of AIDS. They profess to be very concerned about those who are infected with sexually transmitted diseases, and perhaps they are sincere. However, TV executives and movie moguls have contributed mightily to the existence of this plague. For decades, they have depicted teens and young adults climbing in and out of each other's beds like so many sexual robots. Only the nerds were shown to be chaste, and they were too stupid or ugly to find partners.

Of course, the beautiful young actors in those steamy dramas never faced any consequences for their sexual indulgence. No one ever came down with herpes, or syphilis, or chlamydia, or pelvic inflammatory disease, or infertility, or AIDS, or genital warts, or cervical cancer. No patients were ever told by a physician that there was no cure for their disease or that they would have to deal with the pain for the rest of their lives. No one ever heard that genital cancers associated with the human papilloma virus (HPV) kill more women than AIDS,[30] or that strains of gonorrhea are now resistant to penicillin.[31]

No, there was no downside. It all looked like so much fun. But what a price we are paying now for the lies we have been told.

The government has also contributed to this crisis and continues to exacerbate the problem. For example, a current brochure from the federal Centers for Disease Control and the City of New York is entitled, "Teens Have the Right," and is apparently intended to free adolescents from adult authority. Inside are the six declarations that make up a "Teenager's Bill of Rights," as follows:

- I have the right to think for myself.
- I have the right to decide whether to have sex and who[m] to have it with.
- I have the right to use protection when I have sex.
- I have the right to buy and use condoms.
- I have the right to express myself.
- I have the right to ask for help if I need it.

Under this final item (the right to ask for help) is a list of organizations and phone numbers that readers are encouraged to call. The philosophy that governs several of the organizations reflects the homosexual agenda, which includes recruitment of the young and vigorous promotion of a teen's right to sexual expression.

Your tax dollars at work!

Surely there are other Americans who recognize the danger now threatening a generation of our best and brightest. It is time to speak up for an old-fashioned value called virginity. Now, more than ever, virtue is a necessity.

If you agree with Focus on the Family that it is time for a new approach to adolescent sexuality, tear out this ad and save it. Take it to your next school board meeting. Send it to your congressman or senator. Distribute copies to the PTA. And by all means, share it with your teenagers. Begin to promote abstinence before marriage as the only healthy way to survive this worldwide epidemic.

Plants could get 'flu shot' some day

COLLEGE STATION -- If flu germs could be seen, people would run from the pesky pathogens to stay well.

That's the simple idea behind some new studies ta the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station -- to detect plant disease agents before a yield-reducing attack occurs. Within a few years, a quick lab test on soil or plant tissue may help farmers and crop buyers dodge plant infections, three TAES plant pathologists say.

"This could be a boon for agriculture," said Dr. Nancy Keller, who researches the fungus, Sclerotium Rolfsii, which causes Southern blight in peanuts. "With a simple technique to find out if a soil-borne fungus is there, a farmer could sample the field before planting and know whether to put the crop there."

It's a guessing game for farmers who dutifully plant crops every year not knowing if the plants that sprout will suffer yield losses from disease later in the growing season. Many plant diseases are caused by fungi that linger in the soil, attach to seed or whisk into a field by air--all in forms too small to see.

The good news is that each fungus usually attacks only one type of plant. One that attacks melons, say, generally finds wheat distasteful. If farmers knew what kind of and how much bad fungi are in the soil, they could choose a crop that is not susceptible to that fungus.

Like the flu virus, however, fungal plant diseases normally are recognized only after the symptoms--the drooping leaves or undeveloped fruit, for example--begin to show. Diagnosis of the disease currently depends on a trained human eye that can spot a fungus, many of which are similar in structure, on a sample under the microscope.

The potential for faulty identification also is a concern for the agriculture industry as foreign trading increases under the North American Free Trade Agreement.

"Science is evolving to meet the international trading arena," said Dr. Clint Magil, a plant pathologist studying karnal bunt of wheat. "Imagination is the only limit."

Karnal bunt of wheat, also called stinking bunt because its spores cause a bad aroma when the grain is cooked, is caused by the fungus Nevossia indica which derives from India but has spread to Mexico. So far, karnal bunt has been kept out of the U.S. wheat crop by quarantining imports found with this fungus.

"The current way of finding it is looking for spores under a microscope and hoping that you identified them correctly," Magill said. "And the spores are very similar to a rice bunt fungus that is not quarantined."

To be sure, science is probing at a deeper level than microscopic. It's not enough to know that a particular pathogen will make certain plants sick. Researches now are groping to understand precisely how a pathogen affects a plant at the cell, gene and DNA levels.

"This is how we will find out why certain fungi, for example, are becoming resistant to chemicals that have been used to treat them in the past," said Keller. "We may know that a particular fungicide affects the cell membrane of a fungus, but we need to know how exactly that happens."

That will lead scientists to understand whether organisms survive by mutating--to avoid harm to the cell membrane, for example--after fungicidal treatments or if resistance is confined to a particular clone of another resistant fungus, she said.

"We've begun to use some new molecular techniques," said Dr. Ray Martyn, a plant pathologist studying Monosporascus cannonballus, a fungus that attacks melons. "We want to know if we can take a sample of soil or the plant, grind it up, extract the DNA and detect the pathogen."

Every organism's DNA, or base code that defines it, is unique. But sorting the fungus DNA from a plant's DNA could be overwhelming since the fungus is present in relatively small amounts, Martyn noted.

"We're looking for the needle in the haystack," he said. "A farmer may have a 10-acre field, but the sample is one inch of soil from a six-inch probe. If you happen to hit where the pathogen is, that's fine."

Scientists have found that a primer, or a strand of the base DNA, has to be present before molecules of the same kind can form and be used to identify pathogens. when mixed with the suspect sample, for example, a primer for the karnal bunt pathogen would stick to the fungus DNA and amplify it, usually more than 1 million times, so "we end up with a lot and can see it on a gel," Martyn explained.

Whether a pathogen is present is known within hours compared to perhaps weeks of waiting and watching a plant for the symptoms to show up, Magill said in comparing the new tests to the old methods of diagnosis.

But primers have not been developed for most plant pathogens yet. The three plant pathologists hope to have primers for the wheat, melon and peanut fungi within months. A primer for downy mildew in grain sorghum already exists, Magill noted.

Developing a primer may be the easiest part, according to Branko Lovic, a doctoral student working with Martyn. The real challenges, he said, will be devising a technique to "field test" for the pathogen and methods that will quantify how much is present.

Keller said the research is aimed not at total elimination of the organisms but at ways to keep them in balance. If stricter control methods are used to kill the total population, she explained, more pressure is put on the organisms to mutate into forms that can survive.

"Fungi are tricky. Smaller organisms reproduce faster, mutate quicker and, because they are in greater numbers, they can afford to lose more individuals," she said.

"If this technology has as much promise as we think, then it is not unreasonable that diagnostic lab will have a set of primers to find the most important crop diseases," said Martyn. "The use of this technology in agriculture may depend on the seriousness of the disease and how badly the industry wants to identify the causes."

Peanut poundage is up here

COLLEGE STATION -- Peanut growers across Texas are expected to harvest a record crop this fall--720 million pounds of goobers.

This is 5 percent more than the record crop of 1991--and accomplished on fewer planted acres than last year.

According to the latest crop estimates from the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Texas peanut producers will harvest a record 2,250 pounds per acre on about 320,000 acres planted this year. Last year's harvest of 683 million pounds was produced on 325,000 acres, for an average yield of 2,100 pounds per acre.

Texas annually produces about 10 percent of the nation's peanuts, although this year it will be more like 16 percent.

U.S. peanut production this year is expected to be more than 4.4 billion pounds, about 10 percent less than last year's crop, according to USDA estimates.

The record crop of 1991 decreased the acreage that was planted this year.

"Because of that (1991 bumper crop), we had far more peanuts than we needed, and Georgia farmers significantly reduced their acreage," said Dr. Ed Colburn, agronomist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Georgia normally produces about half of the nation's crop, but harvested acres are expected to drop by 22 percent in 1992. Production in the southeastern states of Alabama, Florida, Georgia and South Carolina is expected to total 2.8 billion pounds, a decrease of 12 percent from 1991. Excessive moisture in Florida and dry conditions in South Carolina have decreased yields this year.

Texas is seeing higher yields per acre due in part to timely rains on non-irrigated peanuts, Colburn said. Improved production technology, such as better irrigation methods, also has boosted yields, he said.

Additionally, growers in many cases are practicing better management. This year, growers in Frio County planted in a "window," a time period from May 5 until June 5, said Clyde Crumley, Extension entomologist in Pearsall. Research and experience have shown that early-planted peanuts had significantly fewer problems with insects and diseases.

For example, the tomato spotted wilt virus has wreaked havoc in that county, which ranks third in the state for peanut production. Damage costs from the virus alone are estimated at $4 million to $6 million in reduced yields.

You expect good things from a leader. At Lindsay, we work hard to improve the ways you're able to grow your crops, your operation and your profits. Our product innovations have made Lindsay the world leader in the automated irrigation industry. And, by making investments in the development of new products and services, we have led the way in advancements that directly benefit growers. AIMS, Automated Irrigation Management System, is the most recent example of how Lindsay is helping growers get the most from their Zimmatic® center pivot and corner pivot systems.

Save Time and Resources

AIMS and your Zimmatic irrigation system help you to conserve water, energy and labor. Because the AIMS control panel was designed to be user-friendly, it takes very little time to learn how to program and operate to save countless hours in the field and conserve resources.

- Change application rates to irrigate multiple crops more effectively.
- Speed up or slow down the system to cope with low spots, slopes and different soil types.
- Adjust system operation to take advantage of lower electric rates.
- Inject chemicals and fertilizers at the precise location

And, should conditions change, you can quickly revise your AIMS program, without affecting other instructions. Maintaining a leadership role in center pivot technology has allowed Lindsay to provide products to help you be more efficient in your farming operation.

- The Zimmatic Lateral Move System travels in a straight line uniformly applying water along the system to maximize your irrigated acres and production.
- The Zimmatic Corner Watering System offers the capability to irrigate additional acres with minimal investment to bring additional acres under production.
- The Zimmatic Mobile Pivot allows growers to tow the system from field to field for added irrigated acres with minimum labor.

Do You Know What Happened When Christian Principles Were Separated From Public Affairs?

On June 25, 1992, the Supreme Court first struck down school prayer by prohibiting students from using this simple invocation:

"Almightly God, we acknowledge our dependence upon Thee and beg Thy blessing upon us, our parents, our teachers and our Country."

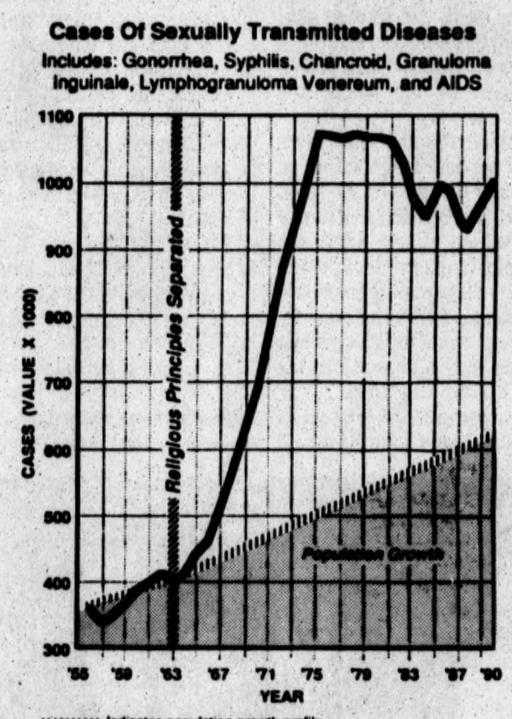

Following this case, the Court began methodically expelling other Christian principles; the effects have been evident:

PLEASE VOTE

These charts come from the book, America: To Pray or Not To Pray?

It plots government statistics to reveal that 1962 - the year religious principles were first separated from public affairs - was the year that drastic declines started in youth, education, families and the nation. It offers us lots to think about during this election time.

We can sit back and say, "we can't make a difference."

But then, who does?

It's time that Christian people be heard.

Nehemiah 2:17

"You see the distress that we are in ... come, let us rebuild the walls that we may no longer be a reproach."

Please vote your conscience this November 3.

Ezra Harrell Pickens and Elizabeth Moore were married on Oct. 28, 1932 in Falfurrias. They first moved to Deaf Smith County in 1946 and farmed in the Ford area in northern Deaf Smith County for many years. They moved into Hereford in 1981.

Their children include Jeanette Webb and Weldon Pickens of Dumas, Joy Smith of Wichita, Kan., and John Wayne Pickens of Durant, Okla.

Prisoner of War Camp program presented

Joe D. Rogers, a Hereford High School history teacher, presented a cultural program on the Prisoner of War Camp when members of Xi Epsilon Alpha Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority met recently at the Hereford Day Care Center.

Rogers told the women that the camp was located south of Hereford. He also related his personal experiences while collecting the background material on the camp.

During the business meeting with President Kay Williams presiding, the minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. Williams expressed appreciation to the social committee for the couples' social held Oct. 10, and Deann Harris thanked her secret sister for an anniversary gift.

A note of thanks was received from International for the chapter's donation to the Hurricane Relief fund.

City Council President Denise Hafliger distributed lists of city council activity dates and the names of committee members. She encouraged committee members to meet with their chairperson as soon as possible for planning sessions. She announced that Ritual will be held Nov. 17 at the Hereford Community Center with Alpha Alpha Chapter serving as the host chapter. The Annual Sweethearts Brunch is planned for Feb. 13, 1993, and the Valentine Ball was scheduled for Feb. 20, 1993.

Yearbook Chairperson Gaye Reily announced that Dona Hendrickson has the Nov. 3 program entitled "Gemstones: All that Glitters." The meeting will be held in the Southwest Public Service Reddy Room.

Refreshments were served to the following: Linda Arellano, Marge Bell, Sharon Bodner, Dalene Burns, Susan Cardinal, Denise Hafliger, Deann Harris, Melinda Henson, Peggy Hyer, Ruby Lee, Connie Matthews, Brenda Ramey, Gaye Reily, Ruby Sanders, Susan Shaw and Kay Williams.

We are so vain that we even care for the opinion of these we don't care for.

If no candidate for president has a majority of electoral college votes, the House of Representative chooses a president from among the three highest candidates, with all representatives from each state combining to cast one vote for that state.

One powerful word guides our ministry each day.

Trust (n.) a firm confidence in the honesty, integrity, reliability, justice or truth of someone or something; a confident expectation, anticipation, or hope.

The founders of King's Manor trusted in the promises of the Northwest Texas Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church and the community of Hereford to support a home for older persons. In October, 1962, King's Manor opened its doors and the first residents trusted the promise of a safe, caring home. Our donors have given faithfully because they trusted King's Manor, which, for 30 years, has provided a ministry of caring for older persons. Each and every day the residents trust in our promise of food, shelter, care, support and yes, love.

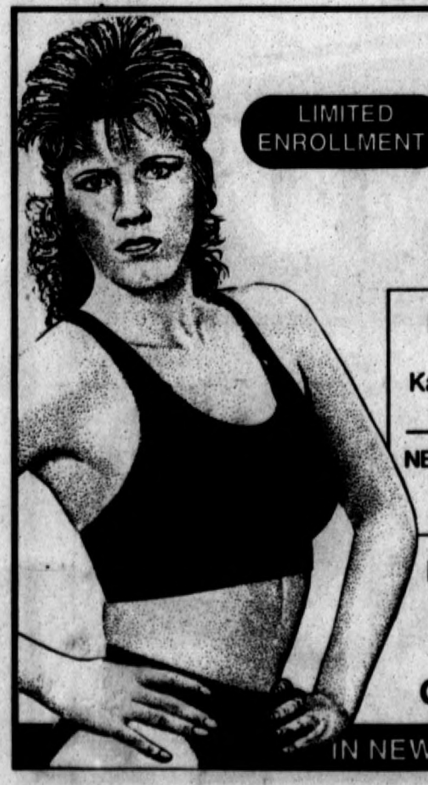

As a non-profit organization, King's Manor trusts in you, our donors, to make it possible to keep the promises we have made.

Please continue to entrust us with this mission of care to our residents by planning to be present at the annual Founders' Dinner, November 12, 1992, at 7 p.m., in the Lamar Room of King's Manor.

Dr. Jim Jackson, Senior Pastor of the First United Methodist Church of Lubbock will be our keynote speaker. Entertainment will be provided by the "Singing Farmers" of Hart, Texas.

Iron-clad solutions

Help has arrived for those who want to break through the iron curtain.

In "Pressing Issues: A Consumer's Guide to Irons, Ironing and Related Hot Topics," home service expert Ruth Katz writes about everything from the anatomy of a wrinkle to selecting equipment.

if you're buying ironing equipment this year, Katz says:

-The No. 1 ironing complaint is that many irons drip and spit water on clothing. Look for one that's made to stop drips.

-Another ironing gripe is the appearance of little brown spots that hiccup out of irons. Those are roasted micro lint balls that are spit out of the iron vents. This is a compelling reason to buy a self-cleaning iron, particularly one with a Drip stop feature.

-The ironing board is an important element in the ironing process. A thickly padded board provides a cushion with "give" for buttons and zippers to sink down into.

-An iron with a button groove ensures that the fabric around the buttons can be reached. Look for irons on which the groove has been extended from the traditional two or three inches to the full length of the soleplate.

-In the store, read the instructions and warranty carefully, and test the iron to make sure it is not too heavy and that the controls are easy to reach. Also look for an iron that has a burst-of-steam feature and a large,easy-to-fill water tank.

How To Iron A Shirt

Perhaps the most difficult article of clothing to iron is a shirt. Katz offers this advice:

-Iron difficult sections first - ruffles, bows or ties on a blouse, and the collar and cuffs on a man-tailored shirt.

-Iron the length of the button placket, back and front.

-Sleeves come next - a sleeve board will help eliminate creases.

-Arrange the shoulders over the rounded end of the ironing board in several positions to get all angles.

-Place the front and back body of the shirt over the rounded end of the board and pull shirttails to get a taut surface to iron.

-Last, iron the yoke, stationed over the end of the board. Touch up the shoulders where necessary.

"Ironing isn't torture," says Katz. "A great iron, along with a few helpful hints will make this a drip-free, fast and virtually painless endeavor."

For those early birds who have begun to plan for Thanksgiving and Christmas, you may want to come by the library and check on some of the new craft books coming out. We will be releasing the new titles as they come in and are processed. This week: A Rocky Mountain Christmas: Yuletide Stories of the West by John H. Monnette and The Creative Christmas Kitchen published by Leisure Arts, will be available. We have a number of cross-stitch, quilting, wooden toys, and many other craft books to get you started on your Christmas gift list.

There are several activities that will take place in the library this month. Each Thursday morning at 10:00 am there will be the Preschool story time. November 18th at 4:00 pm the library will be showing the films "Otherwise Known as Sheila the Great" and "Wacky Machine" in honor of National Childrens Book Week. Also during that week, each child that comes into the library will be able to register for a drawing in which a free Atlas will be given away to go along with the theme "Books Make the World Go Around." November 19th at 7:00 pm the Family Film, "Guss" will be shown. Guss is the new field goal kicker for the California Atoms, who can kick the ball 100 yards. Is there anything in the rule book that says all players must be human? Thanksgiving falls on November the 26th so the Library will be closed the 26th-28th. You will want to be sure and get your book supply before that date.

The new book list begins with The Drummer Was The Last To Die. This Victorian novel by Liza Pennywitt Taylor is about the great cholera epidemic that spread from India to London, England. The story begins in a small fishing village on India's Malahar Coast. It is the night of the festival of Shiva and every one was taking part in the celebration, even the elephant was dressed in his finest. The drummers and "shanai" players led the procession when "suddenly, the pulse stopped. All heads, even the elephants looked up...Every eye fixed on the drummer. He bent himself double, clutching his stomach and the drum and sank to the ground...His face faded to the color of ashes...the drummer was the first to die...by the time the moon sank behind the coconut trees, all human life in the village was extinguished except for two babies and an ancient grandmother." Dr. John Snow, a noted anesthesiologist, dedicates himself to discovering the source of the devastating disease. Lillian Anysworth leaves India at her fathers request and ends up in London where she meets and works with Dr. Snow to fight and defeat this deadly disease. Based on a true story you won't want to miss this medical thriller.

In Firedrake's Eye Patricia Finney transports the reader back into the dirty, dangerous underbelly of 1583 London. It is a time of "terror soaked torture chambers, Elizabeth I is the Queen of England and Phillip II of Spain wishes to see Mary Queen of Scots on the throne. Phillip II of Spain is financing a conspiracy that will remove Elizabeth I from the throne. Tom O'Bedlam, the mad son of a prominent Catholic family, stumbles upon evidence that his brother has secretly returned to England to spearhead the assassination scheme. Hidden inside an enormous float in the shape of a dragon, the killer is to shoot a poisoned arrow from the dragon's eye as it passes the Queen's balcony. Patricia brilliantly combines historical detail with the fine art of story telling and evokes the dander and treachery of Tutor politics.

You Must Be Dreaming by Barbara Noel is the true story of a bright articulate woman who spent "years under the sway of the cunning psychiatrist who used her for sexual purposes. When Barbara first went to Dr. Jules Masserman, he predicted that within two years she would be cured of her performance anxiety. After six months he injected Barbara with a barbiturate to help her overcome her resistance to the truth." For the next 18 years the drug was administered until the day Barbara awakened from a drug induced sleep to find herself being raped by the man she trusted most. Barbara was not the only to accuse Dr. Masserman of such a crime, there were many others. Never the less Dr. Masserman has never been charged with a criminal offense or lost a civil suit. Dr. Masserman's insurance company has however settled out of court with several of his accusers.

Cockroaches can be dangerous to your health. 48 percent of asthmatics are allergic to roaches which can trigger asthma attacks.

Winget best topic speaker

Wayne Winget was chosen as the best topic speaker when members of the Hereford Toastmasters Club met Oct. 29 at the Ranch House. President Suzanne Finch was best evaluator and Clark Andrews was best speaker.

Jigger Rowland served as Toastmaster; Margaret Del Toro, timer; Winget, "ah" counter; Joe Don Cummings, grammarian; Gayla Sanders, wordmaster; and optimal was the chosen word.

Dr. M.C. Adams was the Topicmaster and the topic speakers were Clint Savoini, Dave Kimmel, Cummings, Sanders, Finch and Winget.

Bob Lohr spoke on "David's Story" with Savoini evaluating and Andrews spoke on "The Land Run" with Finch evaluating.

Rick Jackson gave the reading and Kimmel told the joke. Joe Weaver served as general evaluator.

During the business meeting, Division Governor Jigger Rowland reported on last week's district conference in San Angelo.

She is married to Leroy Linney, a farmer-rancher in Stanton and an international director of Full Gospel Business Men's International. They have three daughters and eight grandchildren.

AARP, hospital to offer special driving course

Deaf Smith General Hospital has joined with the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) to offer 55 ALIVE/MATURE Driving course. AARP developed the eight-hour classroom refresher course to help drivers 50 years of age or older improve their driving skills and prevent traffic accidents.

The two-day course will be held from 1-5 p.m. Nov. 12-13 in the hospital dining room. The fee for the course is $8 and is open to anyone age 50 and over.

The 55 ALIVE/MATURE Driving course is designed to meet the specific needs of older drivers. It covers age-related physical changes, declining perceptual skills, rules of the road, local driving problems and license renewal requirements. Hereford resident and business woman, Genevia Summers, will be the volunteer instructor for the two-day course. She has received special training by AARP to conduct the course, which is presented through a combination of slide presentations and group discussion. Refreshments will be served by the dietary department at Deaf Smith General Hospital.

According to Summers, "This course is not only a great 'refresher course' for older drivers, but it also will save our senior citizens money. All of the automobile insurance companies conducting business in Texas are required to provide a premium discount of 10 percent for three years to graduates of 55 ALIVE/MATURE Driving, which is a state-approved driver improvement course."

For further information or to register for the course call Elizabeth Fowler at Deaf Smith General Hospital, 364-2141, Ext. 325. Seating is limited so early reservations are encouraged.

ALVIN, Texas (AP) - This Texas town honored its most famous son by renaming a stretch of Highway 288 the "Nolan Ryan Expressway."

Ryan climbed into a cherry picker Thursday to peel black plastic wrapping off the green highway sign in Brazoria County south of Houston.

"It is indeed an honor," said Ryan, who holds major league baseball records with seven no-hitters and 5,668 strikeouts. "It is going to be exciting to drive down 288 and see this sign."

The three-mile stretch of four-lane freeway was renamed by the Texas Legislature at the request of county and local officials.

Ryan, who will start his 26th major league season next spring when he returns to the Texas Rangers for a fifth year, lives in Alvin with his family.

Annual Voice of Democracy Scholarship event underway

All 10th through 12th grade students in public, parochial and private schools are invited to participate in the Annual VFW Voice of Democracy Scholarship Program. This year's theme is "My Voice in America's Future."

According to Stan Fry, commander of VFW Post #4818, "Students win more than awards and scholarships when they participate in the scholarship program." Some of the fringe benefits are increased self-confidence and poise, experience in communicating with others and valuable training in self expression. For the state winners, there is also the broadening experience of a five-day tour of Washington, D.C. and the opportunity to make lasting friendships with the other state winners.

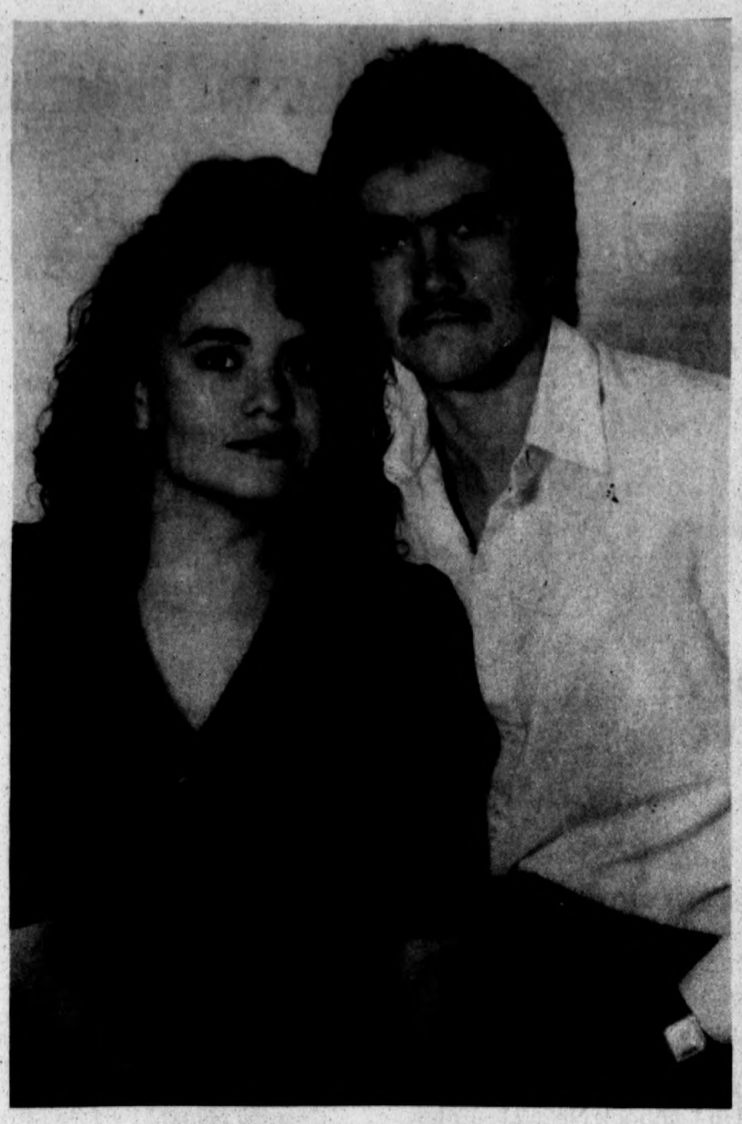

Marie Goheen serves as the local VFW Auxiliary Voice of Democracy chairman. She stresses that all students interested in participating must have their entries or the school winners' tape, script and entry form in the possession of the VFW Post chairman by Nov. 15, except where prior arrangements have been made between the school and the VFW Post.

Participants will submit a script of not less than three minuets or more than five minutes. Judging will be done by listening to the cassette tape submitted by the student. This program is not intended to be a speech competition and students are not required to give an oral-personal presentation. All entries will be judged on the quality of the tape-recorded message.

Additional information may be obtained by contacting Hereford High School teachers: Mary Parker, Lana Hall or Joe Don Cummings. Tommy Goheen is the VFW Voice of Democracy chairman and Linda Maeder, VFW Auxiliary president.

The Voice of Democracy Program began in 1946 and was originally sponsored by the National Association of Broadcasters with assistance from the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States. Since its inception, more than 6,000,000 high school students have participated. From among the state winners, national winners are chosen to receive a total of over $78,500 in scholarships.

Currently, in the 1992-93 program year, the first place scholarship is $20,000; second place, $15,000; third place, $10,000 fourth place, $5,500; fifth place, $4,000; sixth place, $3,000; seventh place, $2,000; eighth place, $1,500; ninth place, $1,500; 10th place, $1,500; 11th place, $1,500; and 12th through 24th place, $1,000.

AMALIA SOTO, MANUEL MATA

Marriage planned

Hereford residents, Amalia Soto and Manuel Elco Mata, plan to wed Dec. 19 in San Jose Catholic Church.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Ofelia Soto of Hereford and the late Jose Olegario. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Manuel Elco and Maria Lourdes Mata of Hereford.

Miss Soto is a 1988 graduate of Hereford High School and her fiance graduated from Friona High School in 1987.

William Howard Taft started a presidential custom when he threw out the first "first ball" at the opening of baseball's 1910 major league season in a game between Washington and Philadelphia.

Accent on He

Seemingly scant public response to recent recalls of child safety seats has prompted state health officials to question how well parents are informed about the safety of their child's auto safety seat.

The Texas Department of Health (TDH) Occupant Protection Program's toll-free phone line, 800-252-8255, has sometimes received hundreds of calls after announcement of a child safety seat recall. But according to Steve Anderson, the program's coordinator, the Oct. 9 federal recall of nearly a million Fisher Price seats prompted few consumer inquiries.

"Answering a flood of phone calls, as we sometimes have done is not easy," Anderson said, "but it assures us that the public knows about a serious problem. We think the recent lack of response shows that the recall was poorly publicized nationally."

He said that the current recalls of Fisher Price seats include:

-Models 9100 and 9101 (424,000 seats) made between February 1989 and October 1989, which have defective buckles. Fisher Price offers replacement parts.

-Model 9101 (472,000 seats) made between February 1991 and January 1992, which have shoulder belts which can shift into unsafe positions. Fisher Price offers a new part to prevent the problem.

-Model 9104 (14,000 deluxe booster seats) made between April 24 and Sept. 4, 1992, which have defective buckle assemblies. Fisher Price offers a replacement seat now, or a new buckle assembly when they are available.

Owners of the seats can call Fisher Price toll-free, at 800-332-3457 for Models 9100 and 9101, or at 800-432-5437 for Model 9104. Callers should be able to give the seat model number and the manufacture date, molded or printed on the side or back of the safety seat.

Anderson said that anyone needing further information about these or other child seat recalls should call a local health department or TDH regional office for the number of a child seat loaner representative. Or they may call the toll-free Occupant Safety line, at 800-252-8255.

The Occupant Protection Program is funded by a federal grant to supply information and education about child passenger safety seats and the state law requiring parents to buckle every child younger than two into an approved seat. All 50 states have similar laws.

"We stress that even a recalled seat is safer for a child than no child safety seat at all. Parents always should continue to buckle their kids into a recalled seat until it can be repaired or replaced by the manufacturer," Anderson said.

"However," he added, "safety seat recalls have two purposes. The first, of course, is to correct defects in products which are meant to save children's lives."

Annual candy sale begins

Hereford Camp Fire will kick-off its annual candy sale today, Sunday. All Camp Fire youth, parents, leaders and board members are asked to meet at 2 p.m. today at the Camp Fire Lodge, 903 14th St., to pick up boxes of candy which are priced at $3 each. The sell will run through Nov. 20. Featured this year are almond roca, smooth mints, caramel clusters and smoked almonds. Proceeds are used each year to help support Camp Fire program activities and to meet the needs of the youth. Two Camp Fire members discuss the sale with one of the Camp Fire sponsors, Wes Klett of Ani-Pro. For additional information call 364-0395.

Performance scheduled here

Members of the Hereford Community Concert Association are reminded of the performance of "Dance Through Time" at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 3, in the Hereford High School auditorium. The theatrical dance company travels through the countries which have stood at the hub of Western culture, from Italy, France and England, to 20th century America. Mainstage and chamber performances are richly costumed from a collection of 500 authentic fashions and incorporate dialogue, song and music of the times.

Handling the social events planned for the holidays or eating away from home can be a challenge for anyone trying to control and/or maintain their weight, especially for those trying to follow a diabetic diet.

The first day of November marks the beginning of the busiest party season of the year. Good food and drink is in abundance. It's no wonder that so many people with diabetes have difficulty handling this challenging time of year.

Don't feel defeated even before you carve the Thanksgiving turkey. You can handle the holidays, keep your diabetes in control, and have a good time!

Of course food is an important part of the holiday season but, it is not the only part. And many times the part it does play is blown out of proportion. In other words, you should pay more attention to the spirit of the season and less attention to the eating done during the season.

Social life is often centered around eating. Many people with diabetes panic when they are served so-called forbidden foods. Parties, holidays and restaurant menus can ruin sincere efforts to follow a diabetic meal plan.

A few hints may lessen concerns about eating away from home:

-Having fun isn't just food - Plan fun pastimes at social events (playing games, reading to grandchildren) to limit your chances of eating and drinking too much.

-Know your meal plan and select those foods which fit into that plan to help you avoid wide, blood sugar swings.

-Call the host, hostess or restaurant manager ahead of time about your diet needs to help them prepare food which you can eat.

-Be more active before and after the event to burn up any extra calories you might consume.

-Learn from a nutritionist how to switch meals and snacks around to allow mealtimes to be more flexible.

-Consult diabetic or low calorie cookbooks to discover special part foods which can be made and taken to the party as a help to the host or hostess.

-Check for printed nutrition information about restaurant foods to help make ordering meals or snacks out easier.

-Alcohol can prevent drug reactions with insulin or oral hypoglycemic agents. Oral hypoglycemia agents combined with alcohol can cause dramatic reaction in some people such as nausea, vomiting, flushing, a quicker heart beat, and impaired speech. Snack before an event to take the edge off your hunger and reduce your temptations to overeat.

According to Dr. Mary Kinney Sweeten, Extension nutrition specialist and registered dietitian, when you drink an alcoholic drink, the alcohol is rapidly absorbed from your stomach and intestines. Although your blood sugar may rise immediately after a drink, the overall effect of alcohol is to lower the blood sugar. Alcohol does this by impairing the manufacture, storage, and release of glucose by the liver. If you take insulin, drinking on an empty stomach can lower your blood sugar enough to bring on severe hypoglycemia.

When eating away from home, some choices are better than others:

-Appetizers--Low-calorie vegetables, clear broths, consomme, bouillon, dill pickles, tomato juice, fruit juice without sugar, fresh fruit.

-Meat, fish, poultry--broiled, baked, roasted, or boiled meat, poultry, and fish or seafood. Trim all fat. Broiled food may be available on request only. Expect a 20 minute wait for them. Ask that gravy be served on the side or left off. If a food arrives breaded, peel off the coating.

-Eggs--Boiled, poached, scrambled or baked.

-Potatoes and Substitutes--baked, mashed, steamed, boiled, rice and noodles.

-Vegetables--Steamed, baked, boiled, stewed.

-Salads--Tossed vegetables, lettuce or tomato. Request dressing be served on the side or use vinegar or lemon juice. Count cottage cheese as part of your meat servings.

-Fruit--Fresh fruit, fresh fruit salad, fruit juice without sugar.

-Breads--Whole wheat or enriched bread and toast, rolls, biscuits (watch size), unsalted or lightly salted crackers, muffins, popovers, English muffin, taco shell, hot dog bun, hamburger bun.

-Fats--Margarine, salad dressing, oil, avocado, unsalted nuts.

-Desserts--Fresh fruit, canned fruit without sugar.

-Beverages--Coffee, decaffeinated coffee, tea without sugar, sugar-free soft drinks, milk.

With a little research and practice, eating away from home can be pleasant for any person with diabetes. It only takes a little planning and effort on your part.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

NEW YORK (AP) - Madonna's X-rated book "Sex" nudged retired Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf's "It Doesn't Take a Hero" out of the No. 1 spot on The Washington Post best-seller list.

"We're thrilled .... and I'm sure Madonna is, too," Diane Ekeblad, associate director of public relations at Warner Books, said Thursday.

The $49.95 opus showing Madonna acting out a variety of sexual fantasies reached the top of the Post's best-seller list Sunday.

Pancake supper successful

Jerrye Jackson, secretary of the Golden K Kiwanis Club, reported that the club's recent pancake supper netted $1,519.

Proceeds from the event will benefit Hereford through several community service projects including the care of the triangle parks located on Hwy. 385 and E. Park St.; assisting various organizations including the Hereford Day Care Center, Big Brothers/Big Sisters and the Lifeline Program; and helping to beautify the grounds at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

Jackson also extended appreciation to everyone who participated in the supper.

The guest speaker for the noon meeting Tuesday was Kenneth Chambers of Dawn. His topic was "Modern Day Cattle Rustling." He said, "Because of the large number of cattle in the Texas Panhandle area, both in the feedyards and on wheat pasture and large ranches, this makes this area a prime target for cattle rustling.

Chambers has been in law enforcement in the Panhandle for 25 years. He has been employed as a field inspector for the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association for the past 18 years and is headquartered in Dawn. He is commissioned as a "Special Texas Ranger" by the Department of Public Safety and investigates cattle rustling, horse rustling, stolen saddles and trailers and any other farm and ranch equipment.

The Golden K Kiwanis Club meets at noon each Tuesday at the Hereford Senior Citizen Center with the public invited to attend. Al Daniels serves as president.

PORT ORANGE, Fla. (AP) - John Travolta should be flying high now that a ban has been lifted that kept his jet from landing at an airstrip near his house.

His neighbors at the Spruce Creek Fly-in voted Tuesday to overturn a rule that barred aircraft over 12,500 pounds. The community features homes with airplane hangars and a taxiway system linking them with a runway.

Instead, homeowners adopted an 18,000-pound weight limit, with a grandfather clause allowing for Travolta's 50,000-pound Gulfstream G-2, said Gordon Miller, president of the property owners' association.

"John was really, really excited when I told him the results of the vote," said Roon Zupansic, who has been caring for Travolta's property while the actor prepares to film "Baby Talk III" in Orlando.

Planning benefit tournament

Toujour Amis Study Club's Annual Benefit Bridge Tournament is planned at 7 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 5, at the Hereford Community Center. (The winner does not have to be present.) Proceeds will be used for a scholarship to be presented to a graduating Hereford High School senior. Tickets are priced at $5 per person and may be purchased from study club members or at the door. Finalizing plans for the tournament are club members, from left, Lisa Formby and Donna Kemp.

Area mathematics conference scheduled Nov. 7 at WTSU

Mathematics teachers are invited to attend the Second Annual Panhandle Area Mathematics Conference, "Moving Mathematics Education into the 21st Century--Together We Can Make A Difference," from 8 a.m. - 4 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 7. Participants will meet in two adjacent and connecting buildings, the Jack B. Kelley Student Center and the Classroom Center, on the West Texas State University campus.

The conference consists of five one-hour instructional periods with multiple sessions scheduled each hour. A sampling of the topics to be addressed include critical thinking, integration of other subjects with mathematics, manipulative usage, calculator activities and cooperative learning. Most speakers will be classroom teachers.

"This is a great opportunity, and we can guarantee that not a moment will be wasted," Judy Kelley, WTSU mathematics instructor and conference coordinator, said. "There is something for everyone every minute of the conference."

The participants will be divided into each of the following grade levels: kindergarten through second grade, third through fifth grade, sixth through eighth grade, and ninth through twelfth grade.

Lunch will be provided and will be followed by the keynote address, presented by Dr. Tommy Eds, a teacher from North Lamar Independent School District in Paris, Texas.

Participants will receive six hours of Advanced Academic Training credit if they attend six sessions. Participants will be able to pick up certificates at the end of the day.

The first conference, held in APril 1991, attracted over 300 teachers from the Panhandle. Organizers are expecting an even larger turnout this year including participants from the South Plains.

The conference is sponsored by the Texas Engineering Experiment Station Regional Division, WTSU's College of Agriculture, Nursing and Natural Sciences, region XVI Service Center and Amarillo Independent School District.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

TURNAROUND OF THE YEAR

Clayton, New Mexico is home to 2,968 friendly folks. It's the kind of town city dwellers call a "wide spot in the road." Like many small rural communities, Clayton suffered significant economic losses during the 1980s.

In fact, the entire economy in Northeastern New Mexico was in decline in 1991. In Clayton, sales were slow and businesses were closing. Overall attitudes were pessimistic and there weren't many events to cheer about. I pondered these conditions as I drove into Clayton last month to interview the Sonic Drive-In's "Turnaround Operator of the Year."

I thought to myself that this was an unlikely time and an unlikely place for a financial turnaround. Just holding your own in an eroding economic climate is no small feat. As I pulled into the drive-in, I found it hard to believe that this store had been boarded up just two years earlier.

Jill Swagerty is the managing partner credited with turning this store around. Swagerty is a vivacious, thirty-something brunette, whose performance topped all operations in the more than 1,100 store chain. She and her staff increased sales during the year by more thatn 50 percent, despite the economy.

Power of a Positive Attitude

I asked Swagerty to share the single most important element of her come back success. "Enthusiasm," she replied without hesitation. "You must keep a good attitude, day-in and day-out. If you don't stay positive about your business, your co-workers and customers know it. We worked hard to maintain our level of enthusiasm even when the going got tough."

While I watched the operations of the most successful turnaround store in the Sonic chain, I saw plenty of evidence of good attitudes. The drive-in was hopping as orders came in as fast as they could be filled. The crew led by assistant manager, Louise Fernandez, were all smiles. "We like it when it's busy," Fernandez said. Swagerty calls Fernandez her right hand and praises all the staff for their part in her success.

Swagerty is also quick to praise the company's system. "With the system Sonic uses, we get a lot of good management information," she said. She also credited her partner, Bobby Merritt, of the Merritt Group in Las Cruces, N.M. "They run an excellent operation and make my job easier," Swagerty said.

Promote, Promote, Promote

Swagerty has worked hard to promote her business. She takes samples by the bank as she makes deposits, delivers orders to departing football teams and has something special going all the time. She provides cups for school events, and utilizes newspaper, radio and outdoor advertising. "If they don't come to us, we go get'em," she said.

The turnaround wasn't easy. Swagerty is a single parent. Sixty hour weeks are the norm. It takes an understanding family and a special crew to make it work. "I simply couldn't have done it without them," Swagerty said. "They keep motivated and were always there when I needed them most."

Swagerty hesitated for just a moment when I asked her if she would do it all again. Then with a smile she said, "Yes, I would. I'd like to change a few things, but I'd certainly do it again."

Swagerty's success involves commitment to three main business management principles. First, keeping a positive attitude, despite surrounding events and circumstances. Second, using a proven system of management. And third, plain, ordinary hard work. A good attitude, a good system and lots of hard work. That sounds like a good combination to me.

I wonder how many other businesses would experience a similar turnaround if they put these principles into action. Give it a try in the coming months, then write and tell me how you did. We'll share you're success stories with our readers.

HEREFORD COMMUNITY CONCERT ASSOCIATION

"Big-Time Entertainment Here At Home"

The Patron Program

Each year the members of our Association pool their membership fees into a fund to bring outstanding music and dance to our city. The size of the fund determines the number and type of concerts we can afford. The costs of the various concerts range from about $2,000 up to fees far in excess of our budget - $20,000 and more. Some years ago we launched a "Patron Plan" - asking friends of finer things for Hereford to contribute annually to a special fund to add to our membership fees, to enable us to have more and finer concerts. Each year brings additional interest in our Patron Program. This year our contributions are more than $6,500. You will benefit from this now and in the future. Please join the officers and directors or the Association in expressing your appreciation to our patrons for 1992-1993.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was divorced 21 years ago when my daughter, "Cyndi," was 6 and my son, "Lyle" was 3. When my ex-husband remarried four years later, Cyndi informed me that she wanted to live with her father and be part of a real family."

"Lyle said he didn't care where he lived as long as he was with his sister. Since I was still single and struggling, I consented.

Two years later, I married a widower who had children the same age as mine. We took Cyndi and Lyle on vacations with us and helped them financially whenever we could.

When Cyndi married five years ago, her father offered to give her a small wedding. After she had spent a lot of her own money, he informed her that he did not want me to attend. It was two weeks before the ceremony and she couldn't cancel it on such short notice.

Cyndi and my ex-husband had some bitter arguments, and I was finally allowed to attend the ceremony but not the dinner. She has not forgiven her father for the misery he caused. Several of my ex-husband's relatives told me how cruel they thought it was for him to exclude me. My son Lyle said, "Don't feel bad, Mom. Some day you will be coming to MY wedding."

Well, guess what. Lyle is getting married next month, and he just phoned to tell me I will NOT be invited because he can't handle the "stress." I know my ex-husband will never forgive me for divorcing him, but this is a rotten way to get back at me. I am crushed by Lyle's rejection.

This morning I received a birthday card from Lyle. Should I send it back?--Miffed in Milwaukee

DEAR MILWAUKEE: The birthday card was the olive branch. I urge you not to send it back. Leave the door ajar and let Lyle take it from here.

In my opinion, Lyle has some fence-mending to do, but since your ex-husband had the children in their formative years, it should not be surprising that there is some distance between you. I hope you will narrow the gap and that you and your children will develop a warmer relationship. Good luck.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I can't believe I am writing to you but I have had it up to here with my husband. I will call him "Lloyd."

He is a successful professional man, a good father and a faithful husband (I would almost swear to it). We have been married for 34 years. Lloyd is 61; I am 58. The problem is that after two drinks he tells such filthy jokes I want to fall through the floor.

To begin with, the man is no storyteller and the stories he tells are not funny--just dirty. I wonder if the fact that he has been impotent for three years has something to do with it. Of course, no one is our crowd knows this, but I certainly do.

Please respond in the paper, and don't print the name of my city. I would not want Lloyd to know I wrote. Although he reads your column, he will not think this letter is about him. He doesn't consider his jokes dirty, just "a shake off-color." Thanks for your help.--Long-suffering Sue

DEAR SUE: These guys are hopeless. It's usually the non-performers who tell the dirtiest jokes--sort of a verbal substitute for the real thing.

To every man who tells off-color stories, I ask this question: Could this letter be from your wife?

What can you give the person who has everything? Ann Landers' booklet, "Gems" is ideal for a nightstand or coffee table. "Gems" is a collection of Ann Landers' most requested poems and essays. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.85 (this includes postage and handling) to: Gems, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing about the letter from the reader who had worked in a photo processing lab. He had run across dozens of obscene pictures and said even though such photos are supposed to be destroyed, many are not.

As a person who owned his own photo lab and has seen more than a few x-rated photos, I want to say your advice to use a camera that develops the film in your own home is the way to go. Once film is out of your hands, you have no idea where it will end up.

People who work in finishing labs are not always totally trustworthy. Blackmail is an ugly word, but every person who reads your column should be aware that he or she is a potential victim of blackmail from the minute a roll of X-rated film leaves his or her hands. Sign me--Confidentially Yours in Philadelphia

DEAR PHILADELPHIA: Thanks for the input. And now--another testimonial from Houston:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A pox on all people who get a kick out of posing for nude and kinky pictures. My fiance received in the mail, anonymously, of course, some pornographic pictures that almost broke up our relationship. There were several photos of a couple engaging in some pretty weird stuff--bondage, whips, chains, etc.--and the woman looked so much like me it was frightening.

I don't know how many copies of those pictures are floating around, but the possibilities are scary because I am totally defenseless.--When a Double Could Mean Trouble

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Once your wrote, "Children can't be bought." Not true.

Five years ago, my only daughter married into a wealthy family. They paid for and controlled the entire wedding, an elegant affair that was beyond my means. I didn't mind, because it was the wedding of my daughter's dreams.

I now have a 3-year-old granddaughter whom I love dearly. Since her birth, I have been the one who cares for her whenever her parents need a baby sitter. This is not an imposition, Ann. I love being with the child. I read to her, and we bake cookies and play games. She's very bright and fun to be with.

Her other grandparents are never asked to care for her, because their lifestyle does not include baby-sitting. They made that perfectly clear from the start. They do, however, lavish her with expensive gifts. She loves these things, and I can understand it. Of course, I love to buy her things, too--books, rag dolls and such, but nothing compared to what is showered on her by the other grandparents.

This is what is breaking my heart: Whenever the family is together, my granddaughter will have nothing to do with me. She wants only to be with her other grandparents. She ignores me to the point that I feel embarrassed. She won't even sit with me, let alone give me a kiss or a hug.

Maybe I am too emotionally involved with my family and should distance myself a bit. If you don't love people, they can't hurt you so much. Is that the answer?--Sad, Not Wise, Grandma in Boston

DEAR SAD GRANDMA: Young children don't know or care about social position or how expensive a toy is. Perhaps your grandchild senses that you are extremely competitive with the other grandparents and there is some sort of "contest" going on. Try turning down the voltage and don't be so aggressive in seeking her approval. In other words, cool it, Gram. I'll bet you'll get results.

Drugs are everywhere. They're easy to get, easy to use and even easier to get hooked on. If you have questions about drugs, you need Ann Landers' booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Lowdown, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Anthony Edwards joins cast of CBS' 'Northern Exposure'

Hyperallergic lawyer finds home in Cicely

By Dan Rice

"Quirky" describes many of the residents of the town of Cicely, Alaska, and the series in which they can be found, CBS' Northern Exposure. The adjective certainly applies to the town's newest resident, who will join the show for seven episodes beginning Monday, Nov. 2.

Anthony Edwards (Downtown, Top Gun, Mr. North, Gotcha!) plays Mike Monroe, a corporate lawyer from the Minneapolis/St. Paul area who's afflicted with environmental illness, a chemical-sensitivity syndrome marked by allergic reactions to toxins. Having suffered too many migraine headaches from glues used in new carpet and the like, Mike searched for a remote town with clean air and a doctor and found Cicely, one of the last refuges left for him on the mainland. There he sets up housekeeping in a geodesic dome.

Edwards describes his character as "one of those people who's seen the face of death and is finding a way to survive in his own dramatic way.

"He's incredibly well-educated on environmental issues, but in a real way, not a political way, because he had to know what happens when a benzene spill occurs and the effects of underground nuclear testing on the environment. I think he's sympathetic because he sees himself as a barometer of the world. He's the canary in the coal mine."

How does the community take to the newcomer? Dr. Fleischman (Rob Morrow) considers him a medical challenge, though Mike is also a hypochondriac, and his allergic symptoms amount to no more than sniffles and a sore throat. Maggie (Janine Turner) is, according to Edwards, "very intrigued by the character because he is unreachable. I think we're attracted to each other because we've cut ourselves off from society in different ways — me physically and she emotionally. So there's a good friendship developing there."

Maurice (Barry Corbin) lends Mike his old space suit to wear during allergic attacks, and Mike is free to walk about the town unprotected at other times, but he must wear gloves when handling paper. In an episode airing later this month, the ex-astronaut enlists the lawyer's help when authorities in West Virginia try to extradite metaphysical deejay Chris (John Corbett) for breaking parole seven years earlier.

"I think the greatest part of why Cicely works is that it's full of eccentric, crazy people not unlike my character," Edwards offers as an explanation of Northern Exposure's Emmy-winning mystique. He says that while the characters are markedly different types, they are "very similar in their ability to be loving. As an audience, we like watching it because we see and we feel both extremes."

Whether or not Edwards' character finds a permanent home in Cicely remains to be seen. At any rate, this unusually sensitive lawyer is sure to be a catalyst in the lives of prime time's popular townsfolk.

Will Chris elude the long arm of the law? Will Maggie break through the new resident's barriers without making him sneeze? If a romance develops, will Mike survive the apparent curse on Maggie's beaus? Will Joel discover a cure for environmental illness, or will Maurice promote Cicely as a haven for the hyperallergenic? SOAP TALK

'Santa Barbara' becomes ghost town

By Candace Havens

The verdict is in on Santa Barbara, and it's not good. Effective Jan.15, 1993, SB will end its run on NBC and will be replaced by an hour of game-show programming.

What are the network programmers thinking? Does the world really need another game show? I know the same thing is often said about soaps, but SB has some of the best acting, writing and direction seen in the daytime arena. The only reason it didn't get better Nielsen ratings was because it was shown at odd times, even as early as 9 a.m., and nobody watches soaps at that time. Even at that, it still pulled in a fairly decent share.

It appears the network is dumping the show to help the relationship with its affiliates, who believe that a game show would pull in more of the market share than a soap opera. In theory it makes sense, because SB's biggest competitor for the time slot is The Price is Right. Yet many of the affiliates have run game shows in the same time slot, with poor results.

A similar case occurred just a few years ago when a new soap, Generations, wasn't gaining ground as fast as NBC thought it should and was canceled. Generations was a hip, upbeat soap, but it was aired at off times and didn't get the ratings the network wanted. The fact is, it wasn't really given a chance. Millions of fans were disappointed at the demise of the show, just as they will be when SB breathes its last.

SB is a soap that people get hooked on instantly. You don't need to know a lot of the history to understand it, because each story stands on its own. The writers use strong characters along with witty, innovative dialogue.

It is difficult to be objective when a show like SB is taken off the air without being given a fair chance to succeed.

If you are a fan, you can call or write your local affiliate and let management know what you think, or send your letters to the address below, and I'll pass them along to the network.

LET'S TALK

More exposure of Burrows; the Lowe-down on Chad

By Taylor Michaels

Q: I am a big fan of Ed on Northern Exposure. Could you please tell me a little bit about the actor who portrays him? I would also like to know where to write him. —Jennifer Herbach, Portland, Ore.

A: The actor who plays Ed Chigliak is Darren E. Burrows, who was born in Winfield, Kan., and is one-quarter Apache and one-quarter Cherokee. His first acting job was in the film 976-EVIL, and he went on to co-star in Casualties of War, with Michael J. Fox and Sean Penn, and John Waters' Cry-Baby. When not on location, he lives in North Hollywood. You may write Burrows in care of Northern Exposure, CBS, 7800 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif., 90036.

Q: I saw a 1940s World War II movie on TV in 1953 starring Don Ameche. It was about two German brothers on opposite sides of the war. Ameche was with the underground, and his brother was with the Gestapo. One was named Kurt, the other Eric.

I was pregnant at the time and decided if I had a boy, his name was going to be Kurt, but it wasn't a boy. When I did have a boy in 1961 and another in 1962, I named the first Kurt and the second Eric. They have always known where their names came from, and I've always wanted them to see the movie but can't recall what the name was. Can you help? —Minette Reinholt, Kerrville, Texas.

A: The movie you describe is 1940's Four Sons, with Don Ameche and Alan Curtis. However, I hope your sons have a good sense of humor, since Ameche and Curtis played brothers Chris, involved in the Czech underground, and Karl, a Nazi Fifth Columnist, respectively. This movie was a loose remake of a 1928 picture that featured the same title but a different war and different character names, none of them Kurt or Eric.

Q: A friend and I have a disagreement regarding the show Family Ties. I say that the actress who played Michael J. Fox's girlfriend toward the end was Demi Moore. He says I'm wrong and bets me $10 every time we see each other. Can you give us the answer? —Sylvia C., Big Spring, Texas.

A: Demi Moore as Alex Keaton's girlfriend ... it's an interesting thought, but unfortunately for you, Sylvia, not at all true. Courteney Cox played Lauren Miller, Alex's girlfriend, in the show's last few seasons. Alex's previous girlfriend, Ellen, was played by Tracy Pollan, who ended up becoming Mrs. Michael J. Fox.

Darren E. Burrows

Q: I'm a big fan of Chad Lowe. I love watching him on Life Goes On. I think he is a very good actor. Could you please tell me about him and where I can write to him? —C.M.A., Clifton, N.J.

A: Lowe's family, including Brat Pack brother Rob Lowe, moved to California from Dayton, Ohio, while the boys were still young. Chad attended Santa Monica High School. Just before he turned 16, Chad hired an agent to feel out the acting market and promptly landed two TV appearances on the same day: in Robert Kennedy and His Times and Flight 90: Disaster on the Potomac. After living for a while in New York where he studied acting, Lowe returned to Los Angeles and landed a few more TV roles before his current assignment as HIV-positive Jesse McKenna on Life Goes On. He's been a volunteer for the Los Angeles Youth Network more than a year, holding group meetings with homeless teens. You may write to Lowe in care of William Morris Agency, 151 El Camino Road, Beverly Hills, Calif., 90212.

TIME OUT

A gentleman stops his engine

By Michael Scogin

Time is running out for fans to catch that familiar, lanky man in the cowboy hat and STP sunglasses climbing into his red and blue stock car. As part of his farewell, Richard Petty: The Final Ride, a one-hour documentary, airs Sunday, Nov. 1, on The Nashville Network, just prior to TNN's live coverage of the NASCAR Winston Cup Pyroil 500, Petty's second-to-last competitive appearance.

The special features behind-the-scenes footage of Petty's final NASCAR tour, highlights of his career and a look at life on the road and at home with the Petty family.

Petty's success in his 34 years of racing is unequaled. A seven-time Winston Cup champion, he has seven Daytona 500 wins among his 200 career victories and has been voted "Most Popular Driver" by the fans nine times.

"That will really be his legacy," says Mike Joy, the TNN race announcer who narrates the special. "His way of building a fan base through his personality and accessibility has left an imprint on the sport that will be felt for years to come."

To pay tribute to his large and loyal following, Petty organized a fan appreciation tour, which includes a three-hour TNN special airing Saturday, Nov. 14, (the eve of Petty's final race) from the Georgia Dome in Atlanta. Hosts and performers include Alabama and Reba McEntire.

STAR NOTES

Fox's detective is ABC's dinosaur

By Dan Rice

Sam McMurray has two roles on television that couldn't be more different. Besides being Detective Marshak on Fox's whodunit, Likely Suspects, he is the voice of father Earl's buddy Roy on ABC's Dinosaurs.

The son of Broadway actors, McMurray began his acting career on the stage. After moving his family to Los Angeles, he won a part in the film Raising Arizona. McMurray then distinguished himself as a regular on Fox's The Tracey Ullman Show. The network has kept him busy of late with a role on the short-lived sitcom Stand By Your Man and now the lead in Likely Suspects, which McMurray terms a "cromedy — half crime show and half comedy.

McMurray's says his characterization of tyrannosaurus rex Roy is "my homage to Art Carney and Jack Burns. I saw (Burns) the other day and I wanted to hide because I felt like I owed him at least a piece of my check ... but I didn't give it to him."

Roy will soon be heard on two Dinosaurs record albums, and may even participate in a cross-network feat of McMurray's creation.

"I was talking to one of the producers and I said, 'Dinosaurs is on at 9 o'clock and Likely Suspects is on a half-hour later. What we should do is cross-fertilize. Somebody gets killed on the set of Dinosaurs, right, and I (Marshak) come down to interview all the dinosaurs and find the murderer."

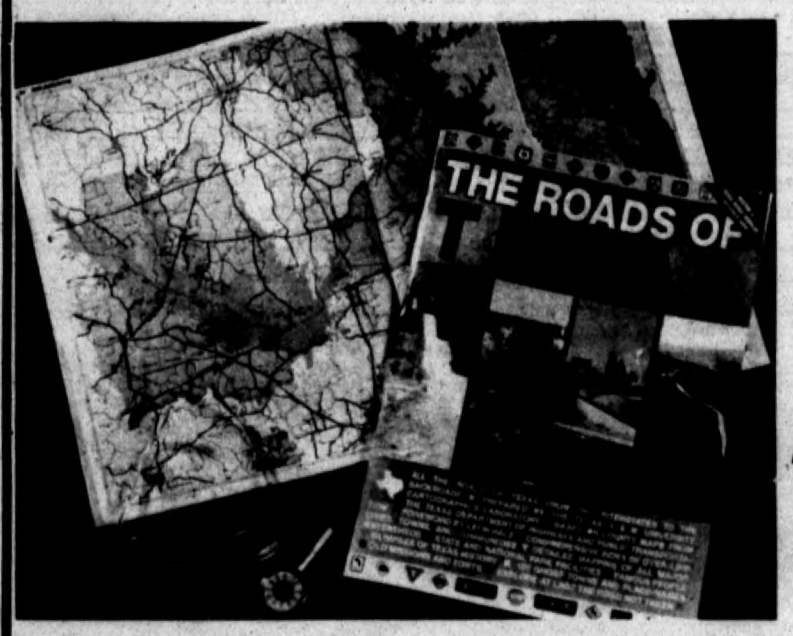

TUESDAY

As an alternative to Tuesday's election returns, The Discovery Channel offers "Party Animals," a celebration of nature programming, including The Silent Hunter (pictured above).

Let us show you a Texas you've never seen before.

THE ROADS OF TEXAS is the culmination of a mammoth project that has involved many individuals for over two years. When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS you'll wonder how you ever traveled the state without it.

This 172 page atlas contains maps that show the complete Texas road system (all 284,000 miles) plus just about every city and community! Texas A&M University Cartographics Laboratory staff members produced the maps, based on county maps from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The details shown are amazing—county and local roads, lakes, reservoirs, streams, dams, historic sites, pumping stations, golf courses, cemeteries, mines and many other features too numerous to list.

HAVE FUN at the Movies

EXCELLENT GOOD FAIR POOR DON'T WASTE MONEY

A RIVER RUNS THROUGH IT: Starring Bard Pitt, Craig Sheffer. Directed by Robert Redford.

This beautiful film is more than worthy of its many accolades. It's about two brothers, their father, who is a minister, and the river that in many ways shapes their lives. Set in Montana between 1910 and 1935, the story uses fly fishing as both a metaphor and meeting ground for the mysterious grace that they all share. Rated PG. This is the finest family film of this decade. It is a triumph.

Four Boxes

CONSENTING ADULTS: Starring Kevin line and Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio. Let this column save you some money. This is a made-for-tv, convoluted, hardly credible, never believable, smutty, sleazy, murder mystery that's fun to watch. But watch it on the small screen. It will obviously be out for video very soon. The riveting performances by all rise above the sophomoric script. That, and a bowl of popcorn, will make for a good evening at home. Rated R for nudity, sex and bloody violence.

Two and a Half Boxes

NIGHT AND THE CITY: Starring Robert De Niro and Jessica Lange.

There is nothing subtle, seamless, or flowing about this gritty, profane film. De Niro will literally wear you out with his mugging and gyrations. So much so that the text, everyone has a scheme to realize a dream, almost gets lost. While some people just think about their schemes, Harry Fabian (De Niro) executes - with every ounce of energy in his body. De Niro never lets up and never lets you forget you are watching an actor act. Robert De Niro plays a small-time New York lawyer who takes a shot at the big time. He becomes a boxing promoter and tries to make a financial quick kill. Jessica Lange, the love interest; Alan King, the enemy; Jack Warden, the man who trusts De Niro with his life; and Cliff Gorman, the wily friend, almost save the film with deeply shaded, crafted performances. But you are never allowed to get a sense of the whole, only bits and pieces because of De Niro's constant erratic forays in and out of the story.

The movie, shot on the streets of New York, has a coarse, tough look to it that's often confusing. You never really know where you are.

This is a disappointing film that you'll probably want to see, but could easily wait for it on the small screen. Rated R for violence and language.

Goodman) as the rough but kindly lug of an old Saturday Evening Post cover. The boozing and womanizing for which Ruth was renowned are intact, but missing is a blacker streak that occasionally overtook the Bambino. Instead, he is forgiven about everything in this genial and lumbering film. Goodman does a fine job. Rated PG-13. Three Boxes

THE CUTTING EDGE: (1992) Starring Doug Dorsey and Moira Kelly. Only in Hollywood could a rawboned rink rat like D.B. Sweeney (Doug Dorsey) suddenly turn into a spiffily attired figure skater bopping around the ice in pursuit of an Olympic gold medal. When an eye injury ends his hockey career, Sweeney is recruited to be the partner of Kate Moseley (Moira Kelly), in imperious rich kid with the disposition of a snake who has scared off previous partners and wrecked her chances in other competitions. At first Sweeney falls down a lot, but athletic ability and taunts from Kate soon have him tossing her around like a rag doll during their skating routines. A formula film that's snappily paced and (for all this column's sarcasm) unusually well acted. Rated PG. Another good one for family viewing. Three Boxes

RADIO FLYER: (1992) Starring Elijah Wood and Joseph Mazzello. Two young brothers (Wood and Mazzello) move with their recently divorced mother to California, where she marries a man (Adam Baldwin) who regularly beats the smaller boy. Eventually his brutality leads the brothers to try to escape to a fantasy world via a Rube Goldberg flying contraption that they set out to build. This is delicate material and sometimes the film has the feeling of someone trying to thread a needle while wearing boxing gloves. This clumsiness is saved by fully drawn characters, especially the brothers. Rated PG-13. It's a nice family-at-home film. Three Boxes

This one will be hard to find - but well worth the effort:

OVERSEAS: (1990) Fox Lorber. French with English subtitles. Reminiscent of Jane Austen, Brigitte Rouan's film tells of three French sisters (Nicole Garcia, Brigitte Rouan, and Marianne Basler) and their problems with men in Aigeria in the last days of the French colonial period.

Now be warned, Brigitte Rouan is a hard core feminist with a Marxist view, and each of the sisters are either victimized by the masculine system or reject it in a complacent world and have no inkling that it is about to end.

This unusual and thought provoking movie is equally adept at depicting how day-to-day habits of living and personal drama can cloud political reality. Not rated. Because of content, would be an R. Four Boxes

Dine with 'Top Girls'; on the road with Paul

By Dan Rice

A&E Stage presents an unusual outing Tuesday, Nov. 3, with Caryl Churchill's award-winning play Top Girls. Seven actresses take on 16 roles in this story of the female head of an executive employment agency who throws a fantasy dinner party with five women from the past. The guest list includes the 13th-century courtesan Lady Nijo, Dull Gret (from Breughal's painting "Dulle Griet") and Patient Griselda (from Chaucer's The Canterbury Tales).

Had enough of "Silly Love Songs"? If not, catch the television premiere of Paul McCartney: Get Back Sunday, Nov. 1, on The Disney Channel. The 90-minute film chronicles McCartney's 1989-90 world tour, in which he performed 101 concerts in 13 countries. His band on the run plays songs from McCartney's Beatles and solo periods.

Perennial champion Richard Petty, the "King of Stock Car Racing," rolls into retirement on Sunday afternoon with TNN's Richard Petty: The Final Ride. The hourlong special features behind-the-scenes footage of Petty's last season as a NASCAR driver and his 1992 Fan Appreciation Tour.

Here's an election that has the Chesire Cat grinning. Monday, Nov. 2, on The Disney Channel's Adventures in Wonderland series, the "What Makes Rabbit Run?" episode has the Red Queen deciding to run for office against a relectant White Rabbit.

FAMILY FARE

'Name Your Adventure' this Saturday morning

By Chris Carpenter

"You have to remember, with anything you want to do, have fun with it," actor/tap great Gregory Hines advises two fawning fans in an episode of NBC's Saturday-morning show Name Your Adventure.

Taking that fun factor and running with it (and dancing with it, riding horseback with it and who knows what else), Name Your Adventure is an alternative to cartoons for children who feel like soaking up some serious vicarious entertainment in the world's most awe-inspiring locales. The camera tags along as the show's hosts, Mario Lopez and former MTV veejay Jordan Brady, leap-frog from one guest's fantasy adventure to the next, alternately offering informative tidbits and cracking wise.

The possibilities are endless for a program with such an ambitious format, but don't expect a young guest to scale the World Trade Center with suction cups any time soon. Early visitors to Name Your Adventure seem to fantasize more about visiting recycling plants and learning a few dance steps than wing-walking or sword-swallowing.

But as a credit to the cast and crew of Name Your Adventure, even the least adventurous excursions are no less entertaining. The show manages to move at warp speed while delivering plenty of humor and hands-on instruction.
