State office bid expected locally

ROD WALLER

Rod Waller, who served Snyder through two terms as a city council member and two terms as mayor, has scheduled a press conference here Thursday afternoon to announce "future plans."

While Waller declined to specifically state the purpose of the event, it has been speculated over the last few months he could be a candidate for state office with the spring primary.

Thursday's press conference will be at the Snyder National Bank community room at 1:30 p.m

Summit agenda...

Detente not included

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is willing to sign a historic arms control accord with the Soviets, but says he won't be fooled into believing in a renewed era of detente.

Reagan also is laughing off Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's network television interview this week, the opening salvo in a pre-summit propaganda blitz.

"I don't resent his popularity or anything else — Good Lord, I co-starred with Errol Flynn once," Reagan said Tuesday.

However, the president will avail himself of a similar forum by taping an interview with four network anchormen for broadcast Thursday evening. CBS, ABC, NBC and Cable News Network will participate, said presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater.

Reagan, who is under attack from conservatives opposed to the U.S.-Soviet treaty banning medium-range missiles, defended his arms control policy during a trip Tuesday to Jacksonville, Fla.

He also accused the Soviets of repression at home and brutality abroad. It was the latest attempt by Reagan to persuade his conservative supporters that he has not dropped his hard-line stance toward the Soviets, even though he plans to sign the arms treaty with Gorbachev during next week's summit meeting in Washington.

"In the excitement of the summit, the treaty signing and all the rest, we must not forget that peace means more than arms reduction," Reagan told a group of Jacksonville high school students and their parents.

He said he knew that during the warming of U.S.-Soviet relations more than a decade ago — dubbed the era of detente — the Soviets were "talking friendship" but also "worked even faster on the largest military buildup in world history."

Details for TDC prison site unveiled

More on-site facilities than originally announced--to include an industrial building and staff residences--and a design plan which will acommodate future expansion were highlights of details offered here Tuesday by a construction team representing the Texas Department of Corrections.

The team was in Snyder to inspect the local site for the 1,000-bed medium security prison.

In addition, the visitors met with utility company representatives, toured the locally donated industrial building as well as Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

The four-hour visit included a working luncheon at the Snyder Country Club.

The TDC delegation included Jim Hall with Brown and Root, a consultant to TDC; Larry Fickle with the TDC construction department; and Jim Gwin, an architect with Lockwood, Andrews and Newman Inc.

TDC hopes to begin construction on the $13 million facility by March. Target for completion is Feburary or March of 1988, Fickle said.

A tentative site plan revealed for the first time Tuesday by TDC shows a 30,000 square foot industrial building for inmates. Also to be built on the 608-acre site will be a warden's residence and two duplexes.

The industrial and residential buildings will be construction funds in excess of the $13 million, Hall said. He also noted plans are being drawn to accomodate future expansion.

The proposed industry for the county facility will be an

College roofing re-bid

Western Texas College trustees Tuesday night rejected all bids on what is expected to be an extensive campus re-roofing project because, they said, the bids were too different to be compared.

The board members voted to write narrower specifications and re-bid the project, which drew four proposals from three companies ranging from $149,765 to $387,282.

Dr. Robert Hargrove, acting as chairman in place of the absent R.C. Patton, made the motion following a review of the bids.

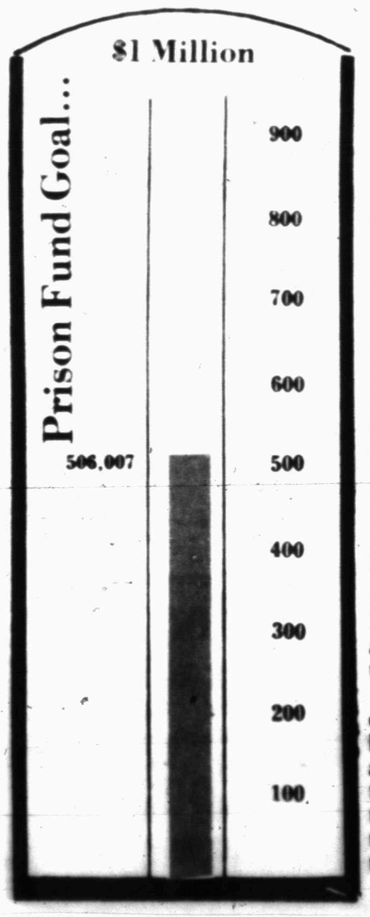

Dallas roofing consultant Rodney Reubsahm had told the board that the roofs of the 15 campus buildings are in need of repair but that an emergency does not exist, primarily because the insulation under the roofs has not been reached by water.

WTC business manager Gay Hickman said he would work with Reubsahm to re-draw the specifications and re-bid the project either this month or after the first of the year.

The bids were $149,765 from Roof Maintenance of Amarillo, which proposed that partial repairs be made initially to begin a several-year project to make more extensive improvements; two bids for slightly varying, more conventional projects of Scurry County Appraisal District board members met at 7 p.m. Tuesday at The Shack for a dinner meeting honoring departing board members and welcoming incoming members.

Doug Flynn, Mickey Sterling and Juluis Roemisch will begin serving in January along with holdover directors Mairl McFaul and Dwaine Williams. Pete Hester, Ross Blanchard and John Reed will be ending their terms with the district board.

Plaques of appreciation were presented to Pete Hester and Ross Blanchard by Peveler. The two men have served on the board for eight years. John Reed, who was absent for the meeting, will receive a plaque for four years service.

In discussion concerning roof repair for the appraisal office, members reviewed a bid submitted by Ken Foster, Roofing of Rotan and asked Chief Appraiser Ray Peveler to gather other bids and information for discussion at the January meeting.

Peveler introduced discussion concerning the auditing system between the school districts and appraisal office remarking that there seemed to be some duplication of services. Members agreed to consider the subject more thoroughly at the next meeting.

Current bills payable were unanimously approved.

Peveler and board members who had attended workshops in Austin urged incoming members to attend the Texas Association of Appraisal Districts Conference Program to be held Feb. 11-13. Others who had attended remarked that they gained much beneficial information for their service on the board.

Peveler requested that the January meeting be moved to the second Tuesday to allow time to assess the needs of the office and set up the new year's budget. He also commented that he expected some computer programming expenses.

He praised the board for their help in updating the local office, saying that the computer system in Scurry County has the capability to set up new property values in some four hours, reassessing soil values and structures all over the county.

It takes really cold weather to keep the "Geritol Gang" off the links. A group of retirees hits the WTC golf course early each morning.

They try to finish by noon because a few of the wives actually allow them to come home for lunch--if they promise not to stay all afternoon.

It takes the group longer to play than most as they combine "fishing" for lost balls along with their golf match. Somebody asked Stanley Noah how individuals in the group could tolerate one another with the constant jabs.

"It's easy," explained Noah. "At our age, none of us hear all that well."

It was Noah who was waiting on his gang to arrive at the College Avenue Dairy Queen for coffee. A friend inquired, "Whatcha doing the rest of the day?"

Noah replied, "Not a thing, and I'm not gonna start on that until after supper."

Another of those retirees is Leon Autry, president of the hospital board. One typical Tuesday Autry drank coffee with the boys at Louise's, played golf in the a.m., clanked dominoes in the early afternoon prior to another round of golf in the late evening.

Asked what he missed most about working, Leon replied: "When I was working, I always got some time off. Now, I don't have any days off."

In Brief

Plan okayed

BONN, West Germany (AP) — After weeks of pressure from the United States to expand its slow-growing economy, the West German government today approved a plan that would sharply increase domestic spending.

The move is designed to boost the demand for foreign goods here, thus helping ease the huge U.S. trade deficit and bolster the falling dollar.

The Finance and Economics ministries released a statement announcing approval of the plan, which provides an extra $13.1 billion for domestic spending. Officials were expected to discuss the decision later with reporters.

Accusation

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — President Chun Doo-hwan said today indications are growing that communist North Korea may have sabotaged a missing South Korean airliner to disrupt elections and the 1988 Olympics here.

The jet with 115 people aboard disappeared Sunday over Burma, and officials in Seoul say there are strong suspicions a bomb destroyed the aircraft.

Loses appeal

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court today rejected an appeal from a mother who said her religious beliefs as a Jehovah's Witness unfairly were made an issue during a custody trial that ended with her losing custody of her two sons.

The Supreme Court, without writing an opinion, said there was no reversible error in the lower court rulings against Marianne Rutland Chaisson.

Chemicals observed at creation's moment

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Scientists say they have used laser beams to watch chemical molecules the instant they were created, an unprecedented step in understanding how chemicals react to produce other substances.

"For the first time, we can actually observe the birth of new molecules," which contain atoms of chemical elements, said chemist Richard Bernstein of the University of California, Los Angeles.

"We can observe the formation of a new chemical bond as it's actually being formed on a time scale of one-millionth of a ten-millionth of a second," he added. "We've never been able to observe it before. It's a milestone."

Bernstein was part of a team headed by Ahmed Zewail, a professor of chemical physics at the California Institute of Technology. Their findings, published without fanfare last summer in the Journal of Chemical Physics, were announced Tuesday by Caltech.

Zewail compared the laser technique to a camera or microscope that can see exactly how chemicals react to form other chemicals.

"Observing the instant of a molecule's creation is for a chemist what observing the 'big bang' (that theoretically created the universe) would be for an astronomer," Zewail said.

Babbitt, Bush said 'outstanding' men

WASHINGTON (AP) — The longest of shots, Bruce Babbitt stood up, stood out and stood alone in the Democratic field amid the barbs and volleys of a mix-and-match presidential debate.

Then, when the cast on the Kennedy Center stage rotated, George Bush still held the role of Republican leading man for 1988.

For two hours Tuesday night, the NBC News debate flip-flopped between each party's six-pack of White House hopefuls on domestic and foreign policy.

When prime time elapsed, the Democratic race was a closer and more confused contest. But the lines in the Republican battle were still clearly drawn.

Sen. Paul Simon of Illinois was savaged on his economic plans: they were called "Reaganomics with a bow-tie" and "promise as you go" policies.

Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis repeated parts of his campaign speeches.

Jesse Jackson got off a few sharp lines, but broke no new ground.

Simon and Dukakis lead in Iowa polls, where the first caucuses will be held, while Dukakis is far ahead in New Hampshire, home of the first 1988 primary. Jackson leads in the national polls.

Babbitt made his mark most clearly, and he did on the issue that most Democrats consider political death — raising taxes.

It's time to step up to this budget deficit and to say straight what the American people know.

... It's time to acknowledge that we must raise taxes.

"And I'm going to stand up and say —"

And he stood, towering over the five other hopefuls who remained seated in their leather chairs.

" — it's time to face the truth about these issues, to say we can balance the budget only by cutting and means-testing expenditures and entitlements and by raising taxes," Babbitt continued. "I challenge these candidates to stand up and acknowledge the truth of that."

No one stood.

"You see, I kind of expected that. There aren't a lot of profiles in courage here tonight," he added.

Babbitt has been pushing a 5 percent national sales tax to help slash the deficit, a proposal that draws nothing but criticism from other party hopefuls. They remember 1984 nominee Walter Mondale's tax-raising pledge as helping push the doomed candidacy to a landslide defeat.

Babbitt's performance is all the more impressive in light of his poor showing in the first televised debate in 1987, a "Firing Line" confrontation in July broadcast by the Public Broadcasting Service. But this December night's work was seen by perhaps 25 million Americans, far more than the PBS show.

When it was the Republicans' turn on stage with NBC anchorman Tom Brokaw, it was clearly front-runner Bush against the field.

As the other five flailed away, Bush stood his ground without flinching.

Bush strongly backed the treaty that Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev will sign next week to eliminate intermediate-range nuclear missiles.

Here's a deal where there are so many holes in your side-suits that you might think you're cutting a slice of Swiss cheese when you try to play the hand. So how do you slice it? It's sensible to postpone crucial guesses, or even avoid them entirely if possible. Look first for a way to make the contract if you can catch a key card in the right place.

So win the first trump in dummy and immediately lead a low heart up to your queen. If the heart king is with East, you will immediately set up a discard for your losing club, and it will not matter if you have to lose two diamonds. But East plays low and West captures your queen with the king. West should now return a heart. Don't think of putting in the 10. That will only place you in the position of needing to have the diamonds right or guess what to do whenever you lose to East's heart jack. So play ace of hearts and ruff a heart. Go back to dummy with a trump and ruff the last heart. Now the defenders' trumps are exhausted, but you still have a trump left in your hand. When you play ace and a club, you will always make your contract if West has to win the second club trick, since he must either give you a sluff and a ruff or lead into your diamond K-J. What if East has the club king? Then you are back to needing some good luck in diamonds. At least you did what you could to create a certain winning endplay position. But West does have the club king this day, and so you make your contract without having to guess diamonds.

James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Oswald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Pharos Books.

To halt prison overcrowding...

Official says attempt may fail

DALLAS (AP) — An attempt by the Texas Department of Corrections to prevent prison overcrowding by accepting only as many inmates as are paroled is in danger of failing, prison and parole officials say.

The system is in danger of failing because of the dwindling number of convicts eligible for release, Glenn T. Heckmann, acting executive director of the parole board told the Dallas Morning News Tuesday.

For the time being, the prison system continues with its 9-week-old routine of admitting about 150 inmates a day, while parole officials try to find an equal number deserving release.

In recent weeks, the prison population has been creeping toward its state-ordered limit because on some days fewer than 50 inmates have been paroled, officials said.

Gov. Bill Clements in September set a goal of releasing and admitting about 150 inmates daily to end a yearlong cycle of prison admission shutdowns from overcrowding. Since then, the number of admissions has held steady while the number of paroles has begun to slide.

"We know this 150-150 thing isn't going to hold up. It was not designed to be the eternal answer," Heckmann said. "It was a stopgap measure to keep the prisons open."

The parole agency projected last month that it would be unable to meet the 150-a-day release goal by about Dec. 19. The estimate was based on trends such as arrests, district court sentencing and halfway house availability.

If the estimate holds true, the prisons, with 449 beds to spare on Tuesday, would quickly fill to capacity, forcing another temporary halt to admissions.

The prisons' doors have shut to new inmates 22 times this year, under provisions of a law limiting prison population to 95 percent of capacity. A census Tuesday counted 38,010 inmates, equal to 93.89 percent of capacity.

Carl Jeffries, the corrections department's assistant director for treatment and classification, says the prison system is operating with a comfortable cushion of bed space.

The population "has crept up a bit lately, but we've been in the 93 percent range for some weeks now, and we're still in good shape in terms of our capacity," he said. "We're just hoping that continues."

"We have a steady supply of incoming inmates," Jeffries said. "We're not worried about that. But in terms of the 150 going out, that's a parole board matter."

The parole agency is "constantly kicking around options" that might be necessary if the number of releases continues to drop, Heckmann said.

"We're trying to meet this goal of releasing 150 a day and still do it in a manner that's safe to the public," he said.

Letters to the Editor

To the editor,

I first heard of the 1,000 bed state prison facility about 10 months before Roger Mize passed away. I supported it then, and I still support it today. Mr. Mize was very active and asserted his energies and resources in bringing this project to our community.

Please accept my small and humble contribution towards the Scurry County Area Foundation project.

I would like to respectfully challenge all of my colleagues in education from the Snyder, Ira and Hermleigh School Districts and Western Texas College to make a contribution. I really believe that between these four schools that we could at least raise $100,000 without much of a burden to anyone.

After this is all over, and this also "shall pass," it will be great and wonderful to know that we all together as educators of Scurry County made a contribution towards a project of this magnitude. This project will help all of us living in and around Scurry County.

Rudy Gutierrez

To the editor,

Snyder wants a prison, Snyder voted for a prison. Snyder was awarded the prison, let Snyder put the prison in Snyder. Don't hide it out in the country. We don't want it. No one ever canvassed our neighborhood, asking the residents who would be the most closely affected, how they felt about a prison being located next to their houses and families.

Talk about property devaluation! Why put it at Loyd Mountain? Put it in Snyder, inside the city limits, not out in the country using good fertile cotton ground.

No one ever bothered to ask us if we wanted it in our front yard to look at every day of our lives, to worry about our children riding their bikes or getting off the school bus before someone is home, to live in bodily fear in the event of an escape. Where does the prison committee think the escapees will go for guns and transportation? Not their homes, I'm sure — they will be a safe distance away in Snyder.

Is the prison committee's philosophy to get a prison, at any cost to the taxpayer, with golden promises of prosperity, as long as they can hide it out in the country where they won't have to look at it every day? I bet even the committee members wouldn't have voted for Amendment 8 if they were going to have the prison itself as a bed partner. No kind of landscaping, I don't care how much a perfectionist one might be, will blot out the ugliness of a prison in my front yard.

Now the committee wants us to donate $1 million so we can have the 'honor' and 'distinction' of having a prison in our community? We can even get LOW interest loans to make our tax deductible contributions! If they are so proud of the prison and all that it will bring, why don't we have NO interest loans? Do they honestly believe that someone would CHOOSE a prison town to move to if they had the option of a town without a prison?

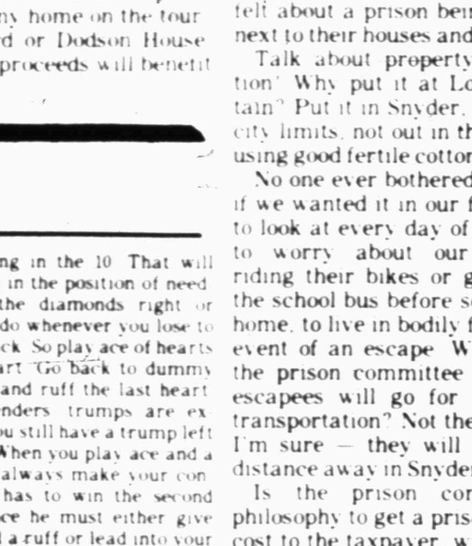

What will happen to our junior college and hospital? Would you actually send your son or daughter to college in a town with a prison and then sleep soundly every night? We are always hearing how we as a community do not support our hospital. Will the possiblity of prisoners in the hospital increase county support? Would you want a prisoner down the hall from you or your child, especially if he has AIDS?

I seriously doubt that this prison is the cure-all it is purported to be. If the voting citizens of Scurry County had been given all the information we now know BEFORE we had voted, I can't help but believe that the outcome would have been different.

It's worth thinking about.

If one of these dots is breast cancer could you find it?

mammography can.

D.M. Cogdell Memorial Hospital's mammography suite is designed to detect breast cancer in it's earliest stages, long before you can find it with a self-examination.

One out of every ten women gets breast cancer, and 40,000 women die from the disease every year. But it dosen't have to be that way. The earlier breast cancer is detected the higher the rate of cure.

Xeroradiography Mammography Screening is a safe and effective procedure that saves lives. Call Cogdell Memorial Hospital in Snyder at (915) 573-6374 to schedule an appointment. There is no better time than now.

Chain-Smokers Choke Holiday Festivities for Suffering Guest

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1987 By Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I expect the Christmas holidays will be a lonely time — my own choice. Although I would thoroughly enjoy the companionship and festivities, I shall decline invitations for one reason: Chain-smokers make the air lethal.

Last year I spent the day after Christmas taking costly tests to determine that my chest pains, irregular heartbeat and inability to breathe were not a heart attack, but severe acute bronchitis, induced by several hours in a smoke-filled room. I never told my hostess this, she's a chain-smoker.

Abby, I will be a hermit forever rather than risk that again. The pain is unbelievable.

To ask people to refrain from smoking in their own homes is unthinkable. They would defend their right to smoke, and my right to stay home.

If I ask people not to smoke in my home, they won't accept my invitations.

Since families consist of both smokers and non-smokers, this is a socially divisive issue. Tell me, Abby, how do you and your readers handle it?

STILL BREATHING

DEAR STILL: Here's how I handle it: There are no ashtrays, cigarettes, matches or lighters visible in our home. When smokers ask if we "mind" if they smoke, we escort them out on the patio where they will find the customary patio furniture, and ashtrays as big as birdbaths.

And, when I am guest in the home of people who permit smoking, I keep my mouth shut, and avoid smokers as much as possible.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has been laid off for nearly a year and we are having a really rough time of it. Is there a tactful way to stop exchanging Christmas gifts? We can't afford to send any gifts this year, and we don't want anyone to send us anything. So how can we get the word out?

SHORT IN FORT WORTH

DEAR SHORT: I've made this suggestion in previous years: Come early December, write a note to those on your Christmas gift list saying: "We are thankful for folks with whom we can be honest. We're not in a position to send Christmas gifts this year (nor do we expect any), but please accept our love and sincere good wishes for a happy, healthy, blessed holiday."

DEAR ABBY: I have a 13-year-old son who is in the eighth grade. Yesterday he talked in study hall, so as a punishment, he had to stand at the chalkboard with a small piece of chalk between his nose and the blackboard for a half hour for three days in a row.

The person who imposed this punishment on him was not a regular teacher, she just watches the kids during study hall period.

What I want to know is this: Would that be considered some kind of child abuse? If so, how can I stop this from happening again? I am very upset about this and need to know.

VIOLET

DEAR VIOLET: It doesn't matter what you call it; humiliating a student in the manner you described is inappropriate punishment for any kind of misconduct. Report her to the school principal.

Genetic defect was fatal to baby

DEAR DR. GOTT — What is trisomy-13? My daughter's firstborn died of this two days after he was born.

DEAR READER — Each normal human being is born with a genetic code consisting of 46 chromosomes: 22 pairs of autosomal (non-sex) chromosomes and two sex chromosomes.

The chromosomes, tiny threads of twisted DNA, can be isolated from cells, counted and examined. They are numbered by size. Thus, genetic abnormalities can be diagnosed by chromosome analysis.

In some badly deformed babies, one chromosome may be missing (monosomy), fragmented or out of position. In others, an extra chromosome is present (trisomy). There are three primary forms of trisomy.

(1) Down's syndrome. This is due to an extra chromosome on the 21st pair. Now called trisomy-21, the condition is associated with mental retardation and congenital abnormalities that give the baby an Oriental look, hence the antiquated term "mongolism."

(2) Edward syndrome is trisomy-18, an extra chromosome on the 18th pair, producing retardation and deformity.

(3) Trisomy-13 is associated with congenital head and hand malformations. It occurs in one out of every 5,000 to 10,000 births. Two-thirds of the children die before the age of 6 months. The congenital defects can be severe, as can the degree of mental retardation. There is no treatment.

I am sorry to hear that your grandchild died. I am certain that your daughter and son-in-law will choose to have genetic counseling before having more children. Such attention by a specialist will help them to understand the statistical probability of having another genetically impaired baby.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My husband has had a splintered rib for several years. Will it get worse if he keeps roughhousing with the guys at work?

DEAR READER — Once a rib is fractured, it will heal in about two months, as will any other normal broken bone. Although healed rib fractures can produce occasional pain, I doubt that your husband will be harmed by "roughhousing with the guys" — unless, of course, he breaks another rib.

Greer Garson's husband dead at 87

DALLAS (AP) — Decorated Army colonel and philanthropist E.E. Fogelson, an oilman married to noted film actress Greer Garson, has died after a lengthy battle with Parkinson's disease. He was 87.

Fogelson died Tuesday at Presbyterian Hospital with Ms. Garson at his side, said his publicist, Jean Carpenter. A funeral service is scheduled for Thursday at Highland Park Presbyterian Church in Dallas.

Fogelson served as a colonel on General Dwight D. Eisenhower's staff during World War II and was partially responsible for the oil pipeline that made possible the Allied invasion and rapid advance in Europe.

Fogelson pioneered bringing purebred polled Santa Gertrudis cattle at the couple's Forked Lightning Ranch in Pecos, N.M. As a special project, he gave land and funding to the Department of the Interior to ensure the protection of ancient Indian and Spanish ruins on the ranch.

In 1966, the site was designated a National Historical Monument, and in 1984 the Fogelson Visitor Center and Museum opened. The couple lived the last several years in Dallas and at their New Mexico ranch.

In addition to his wife, Fogelson is survived by a son, Gayle Fogelson of Dallas; a sister, Gertrude Solomon of Joplin, Mo.; a niece, Roseanne Taylor, of Los Angeles; and two nephews: Sanford Dorbin of Willitts, Calif., and Jerry Dorbin of Santa Fe, N.M.

Second-half effort keys win for Coach Scott's Tiger club

ABILENE -- Coach Larry Scott's Tigers shrugged off a so-so first half and rallied to defeat Brownwood here at McMurry College on Tuesday night, 56-52.

The Tigers, now 4-1, will play Frenship at 4 p.m. Thursday in the Levelland Tournament. The game will be held at the middle school gym.

Snyder fell behind by as much as six points in the first half, but pulled to within two points, 33-31, just before intermission here Tuesday.

"We didn't play very well the first half at all," said Coach Scott. "We had eight turnovers and they were the type of turnovers we don't usually make. We shot eight-of-16 from the floor but we only had three shots outside the lane. We should be able to shoot higher than 50 percent inside the lane like that."

In the second half, Scott went to a solitary defense and got good play from Lewis Wesley to shut down Brownwood's key scoring threat.

"We ran several defenses in the first half. In the second half we ran a man the whole time and that worked better. Lewis Wesley did a real good job on (Brownwood's) Chet Byerly. He (Byerly) had 19 points in the first half and only six in the second, and four of those were free throws," noted Coach Scott. "Offensively, we did a good job of getting the ball inside to our posts, Perry and Trey."

Snyder scored the first eight points of the second half, holding the Lions to just four third-quarter points.

Trey Tippens led the Tigers through the hoop with 23 points and 12 rebounds. Perry Greathouse scored 12 points while Terry Garza added 8. Wesley was also credited with five assists.

Brownwood was led by Chet Byerly's 25 points. Byerly is the son of Brownwood coach George Byerly, a former head basketball and football coach at Snyder High School.

Warriors stop Jordan, but not Chicago, 98-97

by The Associated Press

The Golden State Warriors, who are bullish on stopping Michael Jordan, couldn't stop Chicago's new rookie stars.

The Warriors held Jordan to 16 points, nine fewer than his previous season low, but rookie Scottie Pippen scored on a driving layup with seven seconds left, giving the Bulls a 98-97 NBA victory Tuesday night. Pippen scored 16 points on 8-for-10 shooting and fellow-rookie Horace Grant was 7-for-8 and scored 17.

Jordan, leading the league with 33 points per game, was limited to 15 shots from the field, nine below his season average.

An 18-2 streak gave Chicago, now 7-1 on the road, a 51-26 lead in the second quarter. But the Warriors, with the NBA's worst record at 2-11, reduced the deficit to 77-67 after three periods and took the lead at 91-89 with 3:52 left on two free throws by Rod Higgins, who had 18 points.

Elsewhere, it was Detroit 124, New Jersey 115 in overtime; Atlanta 120, Boston 106; Seattle 112, New York 109; Houston 106, Denver 101; Los Angeles Lakers 125, Sacramento 120 in overtime, and Portland 102, Phoenix 100.

Rockets 106, Nuggets 101
Ralph Sampson had 20 points and 17 rebounds, and he scored the go-ahead basket with 36 seconds left for Houston.

With the score tied at 100, Sampson connected on a hook shot. Allen Leavell and Rodney McCray hit two free throws each in the final 17 seconds to clinch the victory.

Akeem Olajuwon had 22 points and 14 rebounds for Houston. Denver was led by Alex English with 26 points and Blair Rasmussen had a career-high 25.

Hawks 120, Celtics 106
Kevin McHale scored 22 points in 22 minutes in his first game for Boston after foot surgery, but it wasn't enough to beat Atlanta.

Dominique Wilkins scored 22 points and Tree Rollins, who had scored a total of 19 points in his first eight games this season, added 20 for the Hawks.

Atlanta took control of the game by outscoring the Celtics 15-0 in a 3½-minute span of the first and second quarters.

Lakers 125, Kings 120
Los Angeles beat Sacramento for the 25th consecutive time, but the Lakers needed a 3-point goal by Magic Johnson with eight seconds left in regulation to force the overtime.

The Lakers outscored the Kings 16-8 to start the extra period as A.C. Green had five points and three rebounds.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar led the Lakers with 27 points, while Johnson had 26 and Byron Scott 25. Otis Thorpe had 31 points and Reggie Theus 27 for the Kings.

Trail Blazers 102, Suns 100
Portland won its sixth straight

Says Coach Tom Landry...

White won't be back in 1988 unless performance improves

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Coach Tom Landry says quarterback Danny White, beset by injuries that have diminished his playing time and performance the last two seasons, won't return to the Dallas Cowboys in 1988 unless he's healthy.

White's erratic performances with a damaged right wrist have taxed even Landry's legendary patience. He says he does not want an injured quarterback on the roster.

"His whole future rests on that, and I think he recognizes it," Landry said Tuesday. "He throws well 95 percent of the time, but the other 5 percent kills us."

White, in his 12th season with the Cowboys, says he hopes to play two or three more years, and added that he is considering surgery on his wrist.

"I don't think he (White) will come back unless he is 100 percent healthy," Landry said. "If he is, then he will battle for the starting job."

White, who lost a ligament when his wrist was broken last season, threw four touchdown passes against Minnesota on Thanksgiving Day but suffered two critical interceptions the Vikings parlayed into a 44-38 overtime victory.

"Danny has a blockage in his wrist and doesn't know whether the ball will go up or down when he throws it," Landry said. "We have to protect ourself. We will not go into next season fully behind Danny unless he is ready."

Landry said he wasn't ordering White to undergo surgery but added "something has to happen. The wrist has to improve itself either through rest or an operation."

The coach said he was determined to bring the Cowboys back on top of the NFL. "I've committed myself for three years," Landry said. "We'll be much improved next year."

He said White had done as good a job as anyone could have following in Hall-of-Famer Roger Staubach's footsteps.

"He plays his heart out," Landry said of White.

Steve Pelluer is the heir apparent, but after going all the way in a 20-14 loss to Miami, he didn't play a down against the Vikings.

Landry said both quarterbacks would play, but refused to name a starter for Sunday's game in Texas Stadium against the 2-9 Atlanta Falcons.

Landry said even if he started Pelluer against the Falcons, who lead the NFL in points allowed, he could still bring White on as a reliever.

The Cowboys, who are 5-6 in the NFC East, are 10-point favorites over the Falcons.

Roper leads Aggies' attack on All-SWC football honors

DALLAS (AP) - Defensive Player of the Year John Roper led a seven-man Texas A&M contingent on The Associated Press All-Southwest Conference 1987 first team as selected by the league's eight football coaches.

Roper, a junior from Houston, was the heart of Texas A&M's "Wrecking Crew" defense which carried the Aggies to their third consecutive SWC football title.

Playing both end and linebacker, Roper led the team in tackles and sacks as A&M topped the SWC in total defense.

Other Aggies on the first team included wide receiver Rod Harris, center Matt Wilson, offensive tackle Louis Cheek, placekicker Scott Slater, noseguard Sammy O'Brient, and safety Kip Corrington.

Jackie Sherrill, taking the Aggies to their third consecutive Cotton Bowl, was named Coach of the Year. He clinched the title Thanksgiving night with a 20-13 victory over the Texas Longhorns.

A&M running back Darrin Lewis, a freshman, was named Offensive Newcomer of the Year. Baylor quarterback Brad Goebel was runner-up in the voting.

Other first teamers included Offensive Player of the Year Eric Metcalf of Texas, a multi-purpose junior back who averaged five yards per run, seven yards per pass reception, and 14 yards per punt return, and Texas Tech sophomore James Gray in the backfield.

TCU's Tony Jeffery was relegated to a second team role although he was the SWC's leading rusher. Jeffery was suspended for his final collegiate game because of revelations regarding a professional agent. Only three SWC coaches nominated Jeffery for All-SWC honors.

Metcalf, Gray and Jeffery all rushed for over 1,000 yards.

Jason Phillips of Houston, who caught 99 passes, and Texas Tech's Wayne Walker rounded out the wide receiver corps.

Texas Tech's Billy Joe Tolliver, who passed for 177 yards per game, was the first team quarterback.

Others on offense included tackle Brian Brazil of TCU, and guards Paul Jetton of Texas, and Mike McBride of Texas Tech.

Arkansas' Tony Cherico and TCU's David Spradlin were first team linemen. Linebackers Britt Hager of Texas, Rickey Williams of Arkansas and Gary McGuire of Houston were first teamers.

The secondary besides Corrington, who is also a first team All-Academic All-American, included Falanda Newton, TCU, John Hagy, Texas, and a tie between Johnny Jackson of Houston and Robert Blackmon of Baylor. Jackson drew the national spotlight when he returned three interceptions for touchdowns in a game against Texas.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Attorney General Jim Mattox said his investigation of the Southern Methodist University pay-for-play football scandal has turned up information previously unknown to SMU officials.

Idle now until Dec. 10...

Dusters rip Blinn JC

STEPHENVILLE -- Coach Kelly Chadwick was battling a flu-like illness this morning but he felt good enough to laud the effort of his Dusters.

"What I was really pleased with is the kids went down there to win," said Coach Chadwick, after his Western Texas College Dusters defeated Blinn Junior College 70-60 here Tuesday. Western had beaten the Lady Bucanneers by nine points on Saturday in the Holiday Classic.

"That's hard to do, to get ready to play somebody after you just beat them at your place," noted the coach. "We came out strong and hit something like the first eight shots and we played good defense. From a coaching standpoint maybe it shows we're starting to learn the difference between winning and losing."

Also pleasing to the coach was the fact that it was an all-around good offensive effort from his team. Blinn simply could not seal all the leaks in its defense.

Nickey Allen led the Dusters with 19 points. Carolyn Colbert and Staci Smith punched in 16 each and Julie Roewe added 10. Three other girls also scored.

"We got a lot of balanced scoring. It was probably Carolyn's best game, and Nickey played well offensively and defensively. Staci started hitting again and Julie had a good ballgame," pointed out the coach.

Western, 10-3, is idle until Dec. 10, when the Dusters host Howard College in their Western Junior College Athletic Conference opener. The Dusters then take a month-long holiday break.

"This week off should be good for us because we need to be in the study hall working on our grades and in the gym practicing," said Chadwick. "We've been playing so many games we haven't been able to work on things in the gym that we need to work on. This will help us, I think."

game, all at home, when Terry Porter sank an 18-foot jumper from the top of the key with 22 seconds left against Phoenix.

Clyde Drexler scored 35 points for the Trail Blazers, who played without Kiki Vandeweghe for the sixth straight game because of a back injury and lost center Steve Johnson in the first half with a foot injury. Porter had 24 points and 12 assists.

Pistons 124, Nets 115

Detroit handed New Jersey its sixth straight loss as Adrian Dantley scored four of his 31 points in overtime.

The Pistons rallied from a 10-point deficit in the third period and tied the game at 110 on a jump shot by Vinnie Johnson with 13 seconds to go in regulation. Buck Williams missed a 12-footer for the Nets with three seconds left, forcing the overtime.

Johnson, Bill Laimbeer and Isiah Thomas had 19 points each for Detroit, while Williams had 20 points and 14 rebounds for New Jersey.

SuperSonics 112, Knicks 109

Seattle, playing without Xavier McDaniel because of a sprained ankle, got 37 points from Dale Ellis and 32 from Tom Chambers.

With the SuperSonics trailing 109-107, Ellis' three-point play with 1:02 left put Seattle in front to stay after New York had overcome a 102-88 deficit with a 19-3 spurt.

Gerald Wilkins, who led the Knicks with 26 points, missed two free throws with 44 seconds remaining and New York missed another chance to pull ahead when Seattle's Danny Young stole the ball from Rick Carlisle and passed to Kevin Williams for an insurance basket with nine seconds left.

Carlisle scored 21 points in his New York debut, 11 more than his career high with Boston.

Howard suing

WASHINGTON (AP) - Howard University officials decided to call off their efforts to force the NCAA to include the team in postseason play this year and are concentrating on their $9-million lawsuit against college athletics' governing body.

Sawyer is elected acting mayor of Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Eugene Sawyer, Chicago's longest serving black alderman, was elected acting mayor today after a chaotic 6½ hour City Council meeting marked by spectators waving dollar bills and shouting "No Deals!"

Sawyer, who succeeds the late Mayor Harold Washington, the city's first black mayor, was elected with the help of white aldermen who once had vigorously opposed his predecessor.

The council vote, which came at 4 a.m., was 29-19, with two not voting.

Sawyer, who has ties to the regular Democratic organization, sat quietly in the chambers as aldermen wrangled through the night over whether he or Timothy Evans, another black alderman and Washington's former floor leader, should lead the nation's third-largest city.

Sawyer and Evans shook hands after the vote. But motions to make it unanimous drew shouts of "No!" from Evans supporters.

The meeting, which began 9:30 p.m. Tuesday, became bogged down by procedural arguments, courtroom maneuvering, and an angry but peaceful demonstration by thousands outside City Hall.

Sawyer, 54, was scorned by most of the estimated 5,000 people who jammed City Hall corridors and forced the closing of LaSalle Street during rush-hour Tuesday.

The council didn't begin seriously moving toward electing a successor to Washington, who died suddenly of a heart attack a week ago today at age 65, until after the crowd had dwindled to about 1,000.

Allies of Evans used one procedural move after another as they tried unsuccessfully to postpone a vote until Friday, giving their candidate more time to gather support.

Sawyer had sought to forge a coalition with white and Hispanic aldermen that would give him the votes he needed. But his supporters, though contending he had enough voted to be elected, said he needed more support among the black community.

With his family and interim mayor David Orr standing nearby, Sawyer took the oath of office in the council chambers, and then promised to carry on Washington's policies.

He defended himself against charges that he was tied to old-line machine politics. "When Harold Washington proclaimed the machine is dead, he was speaking the absolute truth," Sawyer said.

Word of politicking and supposed deals to fix the majority vote of the 50-member council drew many of the demonstrators, most of whom were pro-Evans and worried that Sawyer's candidacy was a return to machine politics.

"While Mayor Washington was dying we were looking at the resurrection of the 29," declared Alderwoman Dorothy Tilman, referring to the bloc of aldermen who opposed Washington in the so-called Council Wars of his first term.

"My name ain't Monty Hall. This ain't 'Let's Make a Deal,'" she said.

The acting mayor will serve until an election, expected to be called for April 1989, in which city voters will choose a mayor to serve the remainder of Washington's term, which runs until April 1991.

Two more Hunt brothers' trusts seek reorganization

DALLAS (AP) — The Hunt brothers moved to improve their chance of reorganizing more than $714 million in debts by putting the personal trusts of Lamar and Nelson Bunker Hunt under Chapter 11 of the federal Bankruptcy Code.

The Tuesday filings came three days before U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Harold Abramson is expected to choose one of two competing debt reorganization plans for the trust estate of third brother William Herbert Hunt, which was placed in Chapter 11 in August 1986.

Estate officials hope the filing, which will place the trusts in the Abramson's hands, will allow him to choose the plan they proposed in July.

When the Hunts filed that plan, which combines the three trusts and other Hunt entities to pay off bank loans, Abramson questioned whether he could allow a plan using assets not under his control.

"The trustees of the estates decided then to place the Lamar and Nelson trusts in Chapter 11 and petition that they be placed in Judge Abramson's court," Tom Whitaker, a Hunt Energy Corp. vice president, said Tuesday.

Whitaker placed the value of the trust estates "in the hundreds of millions of dollars."

"They consist of oil and gas holdings, real estate development property, office buildings, raw land and similar-type assets," he said.

Whitaker said that because of the combined usage of the trust estates in the reorganization plan, the new filings are not expected to significantly affect the reorganization process.

He said the filings will have a salutary effect since many businesses and real estate interests are owned jointly by the trust estates. With all three estates in Chapter 11, a more thorough and less complicated reorganization should result, Whitaker said.

Accord caps a decade of negotiation

By Robert Wagman

The proposed U.S.-Soviet Intermediate Nuclear Forces treaty that Ronald Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev will sign during their Dec. 7 Washington summit will be the culmination of a process that started more than a decade ago.

While specifics of the pact banning intermediate-range missiles have not been made public, it is expected the agreement will ban all European-based nuclear missiles with a range of between 300 to 3,000 miles. Thus the longest-range Western missiles that will be eliminated will be 108 Pershing IIs based in West Germany. Also covered will be 464 ground-launched cruise missiles that are currently being installed or slated to be installed in five NATO countries: Britain, West Germany, Italy, Holland and Belgium.

In exchange, the Soviet Union will remove 441 SS-20 missiles that are based in Warsaw Pact countries or which have been slated for installation.

As the summit approached, U.S. and Soviet negotiators engaged in some very hard, last-minute bargaining in Geneva on several key issues, especially how each side would verify the other's compliance with the treaty.

The United States wants the right to inspect the sites of Soviet SS-25 long-range missiles. The United States contends this is necessary because the the SS-25s could be converted to medium-range missiles, which would be banned by the treaty, by removing a single engine booster.

The Soviets insist on-site inspection is not necessary. They contend that photographic reconnaissance from spy satellites would be adequate.

The Soviets, in turn, want to inspect factories where American ground-launched cruise missiles are produced. The United States maintains such inspections are not necessary.

The United States is also demanding that the Soviets provide a detailed list of which Soviet missiles will be destroyed. The Soviet are unwilling to provide such a list.

The long road toward the historic INF agreement began in 1977 when the Soviet Union begin deploying the SS-20, a two-stage, triple warhead, mobile missile. Because the missile had the range to reach every Western European capital, it presented a major new threat to NATO. Almost immediately West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt demanded that talks begin between the West and the Soviets to ban the new missile and that NATO begin developing a new missile.

So, in 1979, NATO agreed to deploy Pershing IIs and ground launched cruise missiles in Europe. But attempts to begin substantive talks with the Soviets to ban the SS-20s failed.

Then in November 1981 President Reagan made a new proposal. He said the United States would stop deployment of the Pershings and cruise missiles if the Soviets agreed to scrap the SS-20s and several older classes of liquid-fueled missiles. This became known as the "zero-zero" option.

The Soviets' response was cautious but they did agree to start talks which became known as the INF negotiations.

A major breakthrough almost came in July 1982 when chief U.S. negotiator Paul Nitze took his "walk in the woods" with his Soviet counterpart, Yuli Kvitsinsky. The two came up with the outline of a zero-zero agreement but it was rejected by both sides and Kvitsinsky was reprimanded by Kremlin hardliners.

As talks dragged on, NATO began deploying the first ground-launched cruise missiles. Citing this, the Soviets walked out of the Geneva INF talks on Nov. 23, 1983.

The INF talks did not resume until March 1985, and little progress was achieved until that fall when President Reagan and Gorbachev held their first summit and agreed to begin concentrating on the INF issue.

Agreement seemed close at hand a year later when Reagan and Gorbachev met in Iceland. At the summit the two leaders agreed to a limit of 100 INF warheads on both sides. But the accord fell apart when the Soviets that the United States place restrictions on its "Star Wars" Strategic Defense Initiative.

The big breakthrough came last February when, for the first time, Gorbachev said he would not link an INF agreement to the Star Wars or to strategic nuclear forces.

And by July, Gorbachev accepted the idea of a treaty based on "zero-zero."

Since then the two sides have worked to hammer out final treaty language and critical side issues. Several times both sides thought an agreement was in hand but the Soviets continued to balk at final language and at setting a firm date for the signing in Washington.

Finally, on Oct. 30, Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardndze arrived in Washington and he and Secretary of State George Shultz agreed on final draft language. They set Dec. 7 as the summit date.

PRESIDENT REAGAN and Mikhail Gorbachev were on the verge of agreeing to limit intermediate-range nuclear forces when they met last year in Iceland but the accord fell apart in a dispute over the U.S. "Star Wars" program.

Senate conservatives may balk at pact

The fact that Ronald Reagan and Mikhail Gorbachev will sign a INF treaty during their Washington summit does not automatically mean that it will be accepted by the U.S. Senate.

Ratification requires a two-thirds vote of the 100-member Senate and Capitol Hill observers believe those 67 votes might be hard to get.

In one of those strange political twists, objections to the treaty are much more likely to come from the president's own party.

Assistant Democratic leader Alan Cranston of California says he believes that Democrats will probably get behind ratification. "I am expecting to help lead the effort to get the treaty ratified... because I think it's very important we take this step toward taming the arms race," Cranston said.

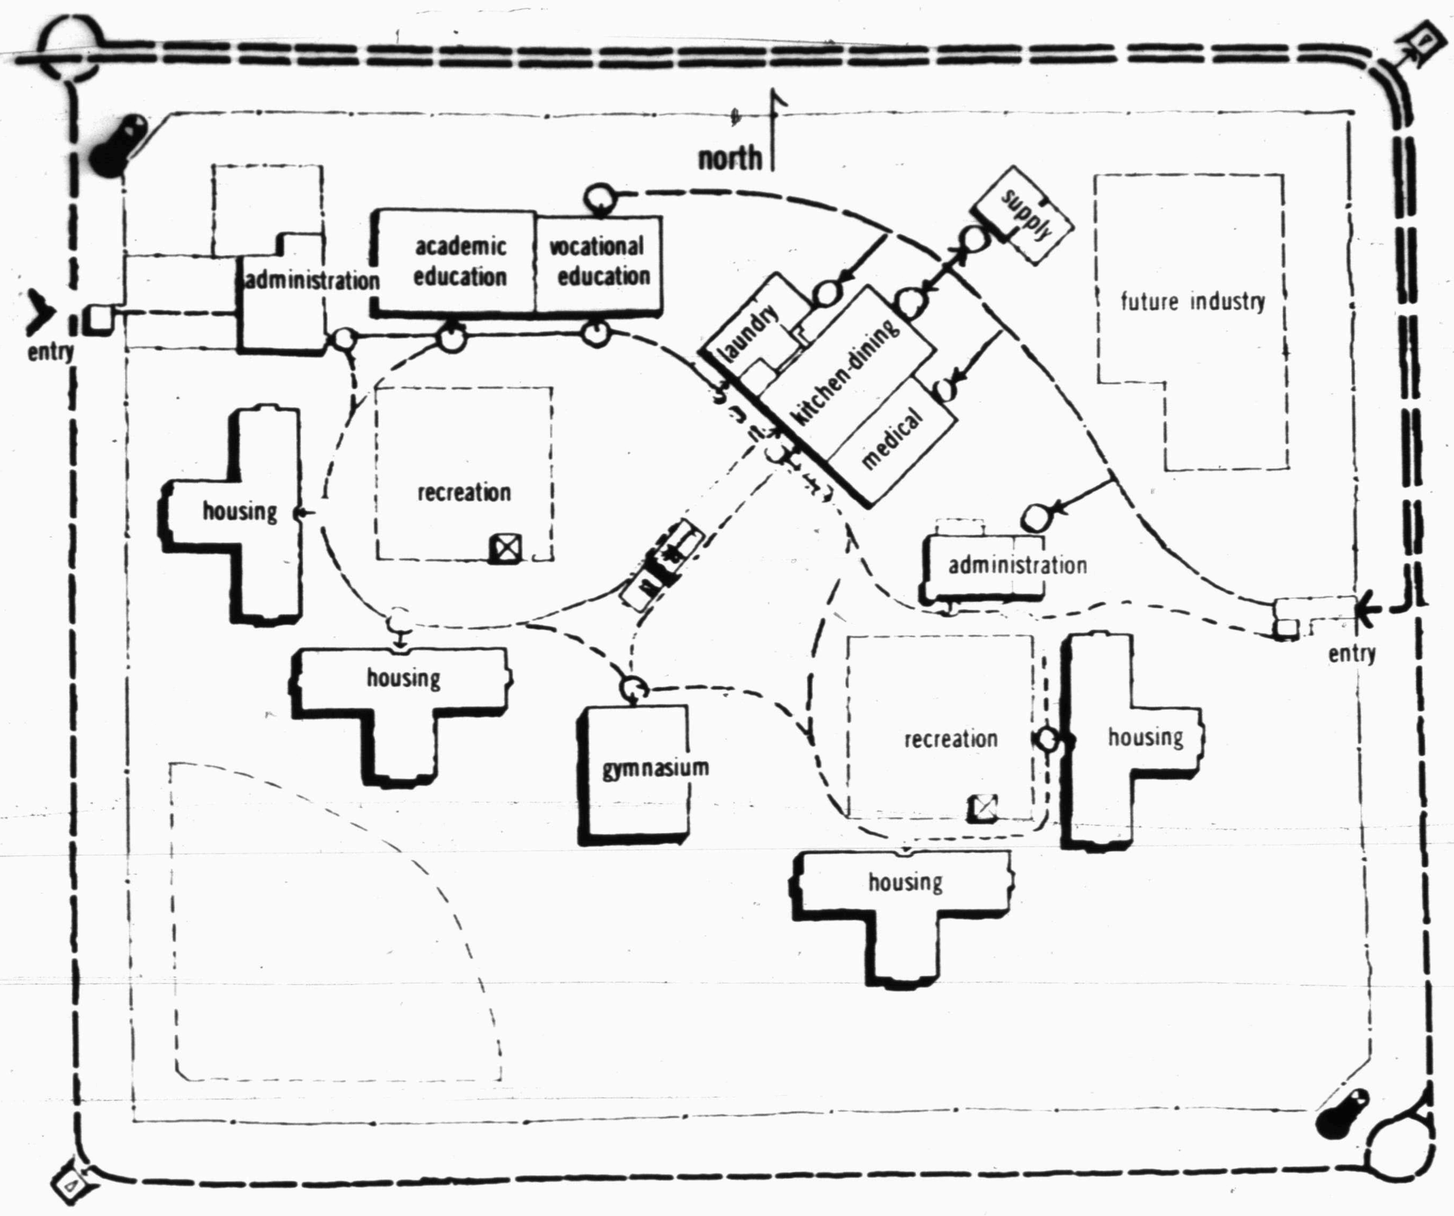

Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas is less sure that his forces will support ratification. Fifteen to 20 conservative senators — mostly Republicans — are said to have "serious reservations" about the pact and could attempt to derail its acceptance.

"We want to support the president," Dole said recently, "but the Senate is not just to rubber-stamp treaties."

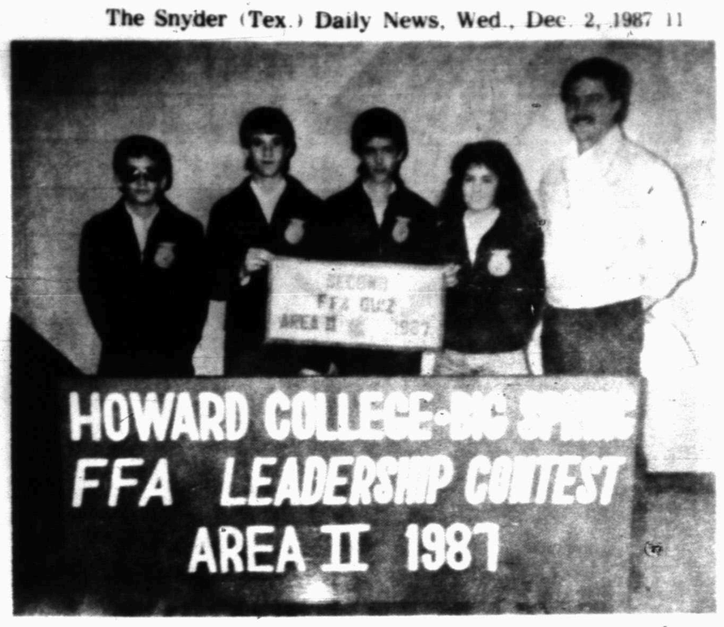

Both Cranston and Dole agree that final judgment on the prospective INF treaty will wait until all its details are known. "The fine print is going to be critical," Dole said.

At the least, it is expected that some conservatives will offer amendments to the treaty. They would likely include attempts to tie acceptance of the treaty to other issues such as the Soviet presence in Afghanistan, emigration from the Soviet Union and alleged Soviet non-compliance with other treaties.

Non-ratification of a major foreign treaty would be nothing new. The Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT-II) signed by President Carter and Leonid Brezhnev in Vienna in 1979 was never ratified by the Senate. The United States, however, complied with the terms until May 1986 when President Reagan abandoned it citing Soviet non-compliance.

The Persian Gulf has had the same name since ancient Greek and Roman times. Persia formally became Iran in 1935. At one time, the Shah of Iran wanted to rename the gulf the Iranian Gulf. In 1958, Iran protested an Iraqi Cabinet decision to call if the Gulf of Arabia. But on Saudi Arabian maps, it's been the Arabian Gulf for years, according to National Geographic.

upholstery and modular furniture plant. The industrial building will be built inside the 76-acre fenced compound while the residential structures will be located outside the compound.

Although plans are tentative, they now indicate the prison will be located on the west side of the section--likely fronting the west.

Inside the compound will be four 250-man housing units. The inmate housing units will be two-story while other buildings inside the compound will be single-story.

Hall said type of construction--whether metal, pre-fab or masonary--has yet to be determined. Also inside the compound are two recreational areas and one gymnasium.

Also proposed are an administration building, supply and line administration building. Near the center of the courtyard is the kitchen and dining facility, medical facility and laundry.

Also included are vocational education and academic education buildings.

During Tuesday's visit, the group also toured the industrial building to be donated to TDC. This building is located just off U.S. 84 "and was formerly occupied by the King's Highway motor home manufacturing plant.

Hall said the TDC plans to use the 74,000 square foot building as a distribution and supply center for the West Texas region which currently includes Snyder and Amarillo.

On Nov. 9, Snyder was awarded a 1,000-bed facility and a 2,250-bed maximum security prison was given to Amarillo. These will be the first TDC facilities in West Texas.

Another TDC official, James Anderson, is due in Snyder Friday. Anderson is an agriculture specialist and will discuss agriculture uses of the local prison site.

As part of the package, the Economic Development Committee of the Snyder chamber agreed to donate the section of land plus the existing industrial building.

A fund-raising effort is underway with a goal of securing $1 million by Friday.

Let's All Meet The Challenge

On Nov. 9, Snyder was selected to be home for a new 1,000-bed state prison faclity. That's great news for Snyder! It means hundreds of new jobs and millions of dollars to our economy.

But there is still work to be done. And it can't be done without you. By Friday, Dec. 4, $1 million must be raised to buy the land and multi-purpose building for the new correctional facility.

On that date, the Scurry County Area Foundation must purchase the 608 acre site selected by the Texas Department of Corrections. Your help is vital!

Our Foundation is now accepting tax-deductible contributions to be used to purchase the land and building.

To show their commitment to this project, Snyder's financial institutions are offering long-term, low-interest personal loans to help you increase your contribution. Simply complete the application and go by your bank or savings and loan.

If you qualify, you'll have the confidence in knowing you made a big difference in making a better future for Snyder...better schools, better streets, better job opportunities.
