Ask Us

Q. — Some area cities are now receiving the new telephone directories. When will the Snyder directory be delivered?

A. — It is not scheduled to begin until Dec. 12, Southwestern Bell officials report.

In Brief

Can't fix it

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Challenger's astronauts and ground controllers failed Saturday in an initial attempt to fix a balky antenna impeding the space shuttle's ability to send some scientific information back to Earth.

Local

SS meeting

Bruce Carter of Big Spring, Social Security office manager, will present a program on eligibility requirements, at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday at Texas Electric Reddy Room.

This is the beginning of a series of meetings on Social Security guidelines.

If you plan to attend this meeting, please contact Kathryn Roberts, County Extension Agent, 573-5423.

U-way reports

The first report meeting for the Scurry County United Way campaign is due Wednesday. It will be at city hall beginning at 10 a.m.

All board members, officers and division leaders are urged to attend. In addition, drive packets should be returned to the United Way office by 3 p.m Tuesday so they may be included in the drive report.

Fund update

All interested persons are invited Sunday to hear an update on SCOOP and its fund raising efforts to open a Friendship Home for abused teenage girls here.

The meeting will begin at 2 p.m. at the county barn in Towle Park and refreshments will be served.

Meetings set

The October meetings for both the Western Texas College board of trustees and the Snyder school board are scheduled this week.

The WTC board will meet at 5:45 p.m. Monday on campus in the administration building. The school board meeting is Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the school administration building.

Weather

Snyder Temperatures: High Friday, 80 degrees; low, 61 degrees; reading at 7 a.m. Saturday, 63 degrees; no precipitation; total precipitation for 1984 to date, 10.41 inches.

West Texas: Partly cloudy, becoming fair tonight through Sunday. Widely scattered thunderstorms in southeast areas. Highs in the mid 70s in the Panhandle to the mid 80s in the Concho Valley, rising to the near 90 in the Big Bend. Lows in the 40 and 50s.

State officials invited

The two state officials who represent Snyder have been invited to appear locally to discuss aspects of House Bill 72, the new state mandate affecting public education in Texas.

State Rep. Steven Carriker (D) of Roby is to be here Tuesday and State Sen. Ray Farabee (D) of Wichita Falls will follow Oct. 23. Farabee sponsored the senate version of H.B. 72.

Both have been invited by the Snyder chapter of the Texas State Teachers Association (TSTA).

A 4 p.m. starting time has been set for both appearances, which will be in Worsham Auditorium at Snyder High School. The time is designed to allow local teachers to attend both sessions.

Tom Strayhorn, an instructor at SHS and the vice president for TSTA here, has been in charge of arrangements for both appearances.

"I think there are concerns at all levels of education about the new law," Strayhorn said. "We've invited both men here to answer some of our questions and to better understand the thinking of the legislature that passed the bill."

He said the plans for Carriker's appearance Tuesday include an address of some 10 to 15 minutes, followed by a question and answer session.

"We'd also like to stress that the meeting is not just for teachers," Strayhorn said.

See INVITED, page 11A

Closings due with holiday

Some public institutions will be closed here Monday in observance of Columbus Day.

Both the county and the city will be open, however.

State offices to include the Texas Employment Commission, drivers license service, Department of Highways and Public Transportation and the Soil Conservation Service will be closed.

It is a federal holiday also. Post office officials note that mail will be put up in the boxes at the post office, but there will be no window service at the facility. There will also be no rural route or home deliveries.

All financial institutions in the city will be closed also.

Players to return to Snyder

"Goldilocks and the Three Bears" will be presented here Monday night — a theatre presentation for children and adults sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce Cultural Affairs Committee and the Snyder High School Drama Department.

The show will be performed by the Penguin Players of Dallas, who will be making their fourth appearance in Snyder.

It begins at 7 p.m. in Worsham Auditorium at SHS and will last approximately one hour.

Although billed as children's theatre, show sponsors note it is designed to appeal to all ages. The production features music, dancing and audience involvement.

Ticket prices will be $1 for

The SDN Column

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Politicians--with surplus funds--never cut taxes, they just increase spending."

In case you haven't noticed, your tax bill in Texas went up last week. The sales tax increased only an eighth of a percent but the real bite will be felt on the number of items that were removed from the exempt category.

When you go to the movies, you will now pay a sales tax on the price of admission. There are a number of other items now taxable such as home repairs, equipment rentals, cleaning and laundering, video games and even massage parlors.

Also coming under Gov. Mark White's new tax is newspaper counter sales and subscriptions. The exception to that are subscriptions that are mailed out of state--they are still exempt.

Sometimes it is difficult to understand the logic of government minds. If you live outside the city limits, you still pay the city sales tax on newspapers. But if you are out of state, you pay no tax at all.

Sales taxes are complicated everywhere. In Massachusetts, running bras are exempt from the sales tax since athletic gear is taxed, but ordinary clothing is not.

Said one bureaucrat, "You could wear a running bra to work and nobody would know the difference."

Hey, that guy is sharp enough to become governor.

---

Jack Denman, who last week retired as head man with the Sun Gas Plant, was visiting Monday with Roy Baze who retired a couple of years ago as a senior vice president with Exxon.

Baze told Denman that in a year or so he would become accustomed to retirement pace and would stop having dreams about staff conferences.

As the pair discussed retirement, they were reminded that one fellow has taken up what appears to be a full-time occupation since his retirement.

Bill J. Hood, who last August retired as Snyder superintendent of schools, has been a winner in the SDN football contest two weeks in a row. Hood is now offering to be a consultant to those needing help on picking the winning teams.

Jay Huckabee told us why it takes 17 Aggies to go to a movie. "The movie wasn't recommended for under 16."

WHO'S BEEN SLEEPING? — The familiar tale of "Goldilocks and the Three Bears" will be offered to local youngsters and adults alike Monday by the Penguin Players of Dallas. The play will be at 7 p.m. at Worsham Auditorium. Goldilocks will be played by Linda Coleman of Fort Worth. The three bears include (from left) Mama, Debbie Sapp of Missouri; Papa, Alex Walker of Boston; and Baby, Beverly Jacob of Rockdale. (Penguin Player Photo)

City's deposits still up

A $11.6 million gain in deposits over 1983 were reported by five Snyder financial institutions at the close of business on Sept. 30.

Deposits in three banks and two savings and loan companies were $234.8 million--the third highest deposit level in history.

Deposits in the three banks were $179.2 million compared to $174.3 at this time last year. Compared to mid-year reports, however, bank deposits were down $1.7 million.

Total savings and loan deposits were $55.3 million, up $6.7 million over last year and up $3.2 million over mid-year.

Snyder National Bank was the deposit leader with $82 million, an increase of $7.9 million over the third quarter of 1983. Compared to the second quarter figure of this year, deposits dropped $1.2 million.

West Texas State Bank reported deposits of $80 million compared with $74.4 million at the third quarter in 1983, an increase of $5.6 million. When compared to last quarter figures, WTSB deposits dropped $1.7 million.

American State Bank showed third quarter deposits of $17.2 million. Compared to mid-year, ASB increased $1.2 million. At the close of the third quarter last year, the bank was operated as First National and had deposits

Job total holds at 3.6 level

The latest figures for unemployment in Scurry County reflect little change from the situation reported last month.

Unemployment here was listed at 3.6 percent during the month of August. For the previous month of July, it was reported at 3.7 percent.

The August percentage also mirrored the figures reported last year for the same time period. Unemployment at that time was estimated at 3.8 percent.

In real numbers, the recent report from the Texas Employment Commission indicated a civilian labor force in Scurry County of 11,303. Of this number, 10,896 were reported working, leaving an unemployment figure of 408.

During 1983, the figures reported regarding this were 10.596 in the work force, 10,193 working and 403 unemployed.

Figures for the other five counties served under the Sweetwater TEC office were reported also. These include:

—Nolan: 6.5 percent unemployment with 8,428 in the labor force, 7,883 employed and 545 unemployed.

—Mitchell: 3.9 percent unemployment with 4,988 in the labor force, 4,791 employed and 197 unemployed.

—Fisher: 5.3 percent unemployment with 2,316 in the labor force, 2,193 employed and 123 unemployed.

—Stonewall: 1.8 percent unemployment with 1,306 in the labor force, 1,283 employed and 23 unemployed.

—Kent: 3 percent unemployment with 494 in the labor force, 479 employed and 15 unemployed.

Governor White urges seat belts to be used

AUSTIN (AP) — All Texans should wear seat belts, says Gov. Mark White, but he is not ready to call on lawmakers to make seat belt use mandatory.

"That's something I think the Legislature will be considering. But I don't know that that's the best answer. Nobody had to tell me to buckle up," said White. "I think that's a choice the Legislature has to make and I'm not prepared to say that yet."

The governor's comments came Friday after he rode "The Convincer," an incline used to simulate the impact of a 5 mph crash. White's head jerked forward as the seat hit the bottom of the device. But the seat belt and shoulder harness kept him in place.

"That was just 5 mph and I'm really glad I had my seat belt on," White said.

The demonstration was part of Car Passenger Safety Month. On Oct. 31, a state law requiring use of child restraint devices in cars goes into effect. Under the law, children under 2 will have to ride in approved child safety seats.

Children from 2-4 will have to be in safety seats or seat belts. Although the law is effective on Oct. 31, no fines will be assessed until January.

White on Friday previewed a public safety announcement he made urging parents to buy and use the safety seats.

"The new law is hopefully going to protect our children. But I think it's important that adults as well realize that seat belts can save their life just like it will save their child's life," said White.

The governor said he was convinced of the value of seat belts long before riding The Convincer.

"This demonstration right here proves it to me. I've been wearing seat belts a long time. I won't get in a car without them," he said.

Earlier this year, New York lawmakers approved the nation's first mandatory seat belt law. Beginning in January, a $50 fine can be assessed if adults riding in auto front seats do not wear safety belts. Children 10 or under will have to wear belts regardless of where they are seated in a car.

New York Gov. Mario Cuomo predicted the law would save up to 400 lives a year, reduce injuries by 70,000 and save $240 million in medical bills and lost wages.

Opponents fought the New York law as an improper state intervention into personal decisions. The law probably will face a court challenge.

Ways To Save Your Health And Save Money!

The Bentons are going through tough times—just like most everyone else. Life used to be easier. Steak twice a week for a family of four, dinner out at a nice restaurant once or twice a week, movies, the symphony and an occasional play, and a week's vacation in San Francisco or New York. Now, with the economic squeeze, things are more difficult. Mrs. Benton has become very careful with her grocery shopping—she's planned a budget and she sticks to it. She has worked off and on since the children were old enough to go to school but, now she looks at work as a necessity. She's even taking some courses that are job-related so she'll be considered "promotable." Mr. Benton used to drive a large car. He traded it in four years ago for a trimmer model and joined a car pool. Now, he only drives to work once a week.

John Benton, who is sixteen, wanted his own car. Mr. Benton said that would be acceptable if John earned the money to pay for the car and insurance himself. When young John found out how much car insurance costs for a young boy of sixteen, he saved up and bought a bicycle.

If you are concerned about economic conditions, remember you never lose money by taking care of your health. Health maintenance is part common sense, part professional care. Good health is a gift, at first, but it must be maintained in much the same way as you maintain your car or your home. If you practice preventive care, in the long run you'll save money, and pain, and possibly even your life. The American Chiropractic Association and your family doctor of chiropractic recommend you budget your health with sensible eating and exercise habits, and protect your health with periodic examinations of all vital points including that of the spine and nervous system.

Candidate responds to video present

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Democratic gubernatorial candidate Wayne Townsend responded to his challenger's rock 'n' roll political video by sending a Boy George lookalike to deliver a sequined glove and a note to Gov. Robert D. Orr.

The Boy George imposter also dropped off an outfit for Orr to wear in his next video. Included were a gold silk jacket, camouflage-patterned walking shorts, silver glitter socks, a pair of black-and-white checked sunglasses and a T-shirt proclaiming the rock group "Peter and the Test Tube Babies."

The response from Orr's office was puzzlement.

"I don't know whether those clothes will fit or not. They look a little short," said Orr's deputy press secretary, Nancy DiLaura.

Orr unveiled his rock video, "Stay With Me," Wednesday night at The Vogue, an Indianapolis nightclub.

Floral design course planned

Floral design will be taught in a WTC Continuing Education course scheduled to begin Oct. 22.

Classes will meet from 6:30-9:30 p.m. on Mondays through Nov. 26. Sue Travis will be the instructor. The classes will meet at Travis Flowers, 1906 37th St.

Fees will be $35 per person. Instruction will include the basics of design and arrangement. Students will keep the arrangements made in class.

To pre-register, persons should call Continuing Education at 573-8511, extension 240.

Rock singer said 'allright' in testimony

Alternatives to violence available in Snyder

October 8-14 is Domestic Violence Awareness Week, an unusual observance to:

—Celebrate women who have survived and gone on to live violence-free lives;

—Mourn those who have been beaten and died;

—Educate the community about the extent of the problem and the need for everyone to become part of the solution.

An NBC television movie, "The Burning Bed," underscores and depicts the problem of domestic violence in America and its often tragic consequences.

It will be telecast Monday at 8 p.m. on SCAT channels 9 and 11.

The title role of Francine Hughes, who was arrested on March 9, 1977 for setting fire to her house while her ex-husband, Mickey, was sleeping, is being played by Farrah Fawcett—perhaps best known for her role on "Charlie's Angels" several television seasons ago.

Hughes's husband died in the blaze and she is charged with pre-meditated murder. The movie unfolds as she recounts her story to a court-appointed attorney.

In Snyder, alternatives to family violence are offered by the Noah Project and SCOOP (Scurry County Options and Opportunities for People).

The Noah Project aids victims of spousal abuse and SCOOP seeks to help needy people in the county, especially abused young people. Each organization is currently working toward establishing a facility to temporarily house victims of family violence.

Until the facilities are open anyone needing assistance from the Noah Project may call the 24 hour hotline—573-1822. SCOOP offices are open Monday-Friday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The telephone number is 573-5323.

Representatives of each organization report that community response, support and contributions have been great and donations of items, money and volunteer service are always welcome.

SCOOP is currently in need of house parents for Friendship House, its proposed home for abused and/or neglected teenage girls. A facility has been secured and work in underway on getting the home ready for operation.

Future plans include establishing a similar home for teenage boys.

Members of SCOOP have been actively involved in getting the Noah Project, a branch shelter of the Abilene facility, to open in Snyder.

SCOOP is a non-profit organization committed to provide care, counseling, and nuturing to abused, abandoned, neglected and/or destitute persons in the community.

SCOOP was formed several months ago when members of the Scurry County Task Force Drug and Alcohol Abuse learned from community people of the need for foster care for teenagers, a shelter for abused women, and professional counseling services.

The Noah Project, Inc. is a social service agency designed to work with families that are disrupted by violence. The program includes a shelter where abused women and children can stay for a period of four to six weeks, counseling to present alternatives and options, give emotional support, assist in finding resources (medical, day care, job training, employment, etc.), and an information and referral service to other agencies in Snyder. All of these services are available to women in residence at the shelter, as well as to others who choose to work on an outreach basis.

The staff of the project is concerned with providing a safe place, emotionally as well as physically, for abused members of a family. The program is designed to help families find alternatives to violence, and methods to change the violent behavior.

Women victims of domestic violence come from all racial, ethnic, religious, age and socioeconomic groups. The question most often asked is "Why do they stay in violent homes?"

Some of the explanations have been described by psychologists as the "battered woman syndrome." They cite a number of factors which mitigate against escape, including an overwhelming fear which immobilizes the victim and "learned helplessness" which makes women feel they cannot control their lives.

Pope John Paul urges resistance

PAOLA, Italy (AP) — Touring one of the centers of Italy's crime underworld, Pope John Paul II is urging ordinary citizens to resist the killings, fear and corruption of the illegal Mafia empire.

At the start of the first papal trip to Calabria in 800 years, John Paul urged civil and religious authorities Friday to work to eliminate the poverty that is blamed for turning the southern tip of Italy into a breeding ground for organized crime.

Calabria has one of the highest unemployment rates in Western Europe: 120,000 of its 2 million people were out of work last year.

The pontiff continues his three-day tour today, criss-crossing the rugged mountain terrain by helicopter, while Italian lawmen hunt down mobsters named in the recent dramatic testimony of imprisoned Sicilian crime chief Tommaso Buscetta. Buscetta is one of the few high-ranking crime bosses to break the ages-old code of silence that has protected underworld figures from being caught.

In the west coast city of Lamezia Terme the pope talked to a crowd of about 50,000 in an airport parking lot about the effort to end such problems as unemployment and "the very sad phenomenon of organized crime."

"I hope that the proper authorities at every level will work to contribute in an adequate and timely manner to the solution of your urgent problems of a material nature," he said.

In Paola, another west coast city of 17,000, the pope called on the local church members to become involved, saying: "The economic problems inherited from the past, and which are still far from a proper solution, and the evils of today's society, of which young people especially suffer, are presented today right to your very eyes.

"You can't ignore them, taking refuge in your communities. You also must take on a burden within your competence," he said.

The area is the home of an organized crime group known as 'Ndrangheta. Last month police broke up another crime ring that also operated out of Paola.

Population can be fed winner said

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Norman Borlaug, who won the Nobel Peace Prize for helping to increase the world's food supply, says the world's booming population can be fed only if scientists "work with their hands" to teach farmers.

Borlaug, who received the prize in 1970 for his work in developing high-yield dwarf wheats to increase the world's food supply, delivered the D.W. Brooks Lecture at the University of Georgia College of Agriculture Thursday.

"The biggest obstacles to progress in the Third World countries are the senior scientists. They're fearful of change," Borlau said.

'Having colors done' means big business

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — The art of matching sweaters and scarves to the blue in an eye or the pink in a cheek is putting green in a lot of pockets as personal color analyses evolve from hobby to a serious part of the fashion industry.

The practice of "having colors done" — matching skin, eye and hair tones to textile colors that flatter a person — is good for Deanna Radeloff. The 43-year-old home economics professor at Bowling Green State University is putting nearly 20 years of study in color and psychology to use in a sideline business of training color analysts, who then go into business for themselves, telling others what color clothes they should wear.

"I don't know why people are getting so much into color now, because we've known about it for ages, but everybody is," says Ms. Radeloff, who began training analysts to use her system in 1982.

Dolores Ware, managing director of the Color Association of the United States, said the system would probably have been only a party game a decade ago. The New York-based organization sets standards for colors used in the textile industry and monitors color trends in many industries.

Now, she said, color analysis is influencing the textile industry and how stores market clothes.

Jennifer Emery, women's fashion manager and buyer for the Damschroder department stores in Toledo, agrees. Store workers studied under Ms. Radeloff and now train all sales people in coloring because they need to know what customers are talking about when they shop with color swatches to be matched, Ms. Emery said.

Ms. Radeloff's system considers tones in a person's eyes, the way skin reflects and absorbs light, and other factors, to choose colors in four basic categories — usually linked to the seasons. She said her system was based on scientific studies, but said it and other systems often got only scorn from scientists.

"Anybody that's very pragmatic, who has a very quantitative mind, is going to look at this and say, 'Yeah, right.' But any artist or creative person who works with color will recognize color's effect," she said.

"The big topic (among) professionals now is, is this subject really credible? One thing, it is a subjective process ... and while there is a science to color, we haven't made this profession scientific," Ms. Radeloff said.

Ms. Radeloff decries color analysts who consider colors psychic or mystically linked to a personality. But no matter how frivolous some believe color analysis is, the money involved is very serious.

Prospective analysts pay Ms. Radeloff $2,000 for 40 hours of training, certification to use her system, and standard supplies including lights, drapings of various colored fabrics, mirrors, color wheels and swatches of fabric for clients to use when choosing clothing.

In turn, Ms. Radeloff said, certified analysts can charge about $50 in Ohio for a personal color analysis. Nationwide, the cost of an analysis probably averages $75 to $100, Ms. Ware said, offering a chance for profit that could ruin whatever professional stature the field has earned. She said people could go to three color analysts and be told they should wear three totally different groups of colors.

"That just proves that either the theory is just not as valid as we are being led to believe, or we have a lot of amateurs out there who are posing as professionals," Ms. Ware said.

Ms. Ware and Ms. Radeloff agree that consumers need to carefully question the training and experience of any color analyst. But even if coloring isn't considered a science, it will remain popular.

"It is one of the No. 1 questions in the consumer's mind these days, having their colors done," Ms. Ware said. "It is very much like the horoscope syndrome we have gone through for a decade. It's saying, 'You look wonderful in such and such.' And people like this."

Hospital planning tea for personnel

At Cogdell Memorial Hospital, Medical Record Week (Oct. 7-13) will be celebrated with a tea for hospital personnel and physicians and their employees Wednesday.

The Medical Records department of a hospital is a vital area where complete and accurate documentation of the care provided to patients is kept, a hospital spokesman said. These records are used in preparing insurance claims, statistical information, proof of services rendered and are used for review by private insurance companies, Medicare, Medicaid and other federal, state and JCAH inspectors.

Some of the activities carried out by the Medical Record department include utilization review, quality assurance, working with various committees such as pharmacy and therapeutics, tissue and records, infection control as well as transcription of reports such as pathology, radiology, histories and physicals, consultations, operative reports.

Personnel must be knowledgable in medical terminology, legal and confidential aspects of the medical record, the spokesman said. Accuracy is of primary importance.

Rightists in El Salvador continue 'doing justice'

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP.) — A rightist underground unit vowed to continue "doing justice" to communists and claimed President Jose Napoleon Duarte's creation of a commission to investigate murders linked to death squads was only a political move.

Following up on a campaign promise to solve four prominent murder cases, Duarte announced formation of the commission in late August.

"That commission has been created to satisfy personal and party questions," the Secret Anti-Communist Army, known by its Spanish initials ESA, said in a communique sent to several news organizations Friday. "For that reason the ESA will continue doing justice to all communist elements that are proven to be militants in the FMLN."

The communique said ESA will not accept "the investigative commission of the so-called death squads that Mr. Duarte has formed ... or is it perhaps going to investigate the deaths of deputies, military men, public officials and civilians who have been assassinated by the death squads of the FMLN?"

It referred to the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, the umbrella group for five guerrilla organizations fighting the U.S.-backed government in a five-year-old civil war.

The four murder cases to be investigated are the march 1980 assassination of Oscar Arnulfo Romero, Roman Catholic archbishop of San Salvador; the January 1981 slayings of two American labor advisers and a Salvadoran land-reform official; the February 1983 killings of 18 Indian farmers, and the slaying in August of the daughter of a leader of Duarte's Christian Democrat Party.

The commission has already encountered opposition from Attorney General Jose Francisco Guerrero, appointed by the rightist-dominated legislative assembly. Guerrero, who says his judicial branch should be in charge of the probe, says he will investigate the legality of Duarte's commission.

The ESA communique also warned union members that are part of the Unified and Union Movement to "abstain from participating in strikes, because they will be the target of anihiliation by our forces." The movement, which includes some major unions, has been accused of leftist tendencies by the right and in the past by the government.

ESA is considered to be one of the largest far-right clandestine groups in El Salvador. Since 1980 it has claimed resonsibility for the deaths of students, professors, union members, peasant farmers and others it considered to be leftists.

Last November it offered to exchange three people it claimed were guerrilla commanders for military men held by the rebels. The trade did not occur and the leftists were killed.

Congress to try next week to keep government solvent

WASHINGTON (AP.) — Legislators failed to meet their goal of adjourning for the year Friday as they struggled to clear the last two obstacles to ending the 98th Congress — major bills to keep most of the government in business and allow the Treasury to borrow another $250 billion.

House and Senate negotiators adjourned until Tuesday morning after conference committee members found themselves in a stalemate over aid to U.S.-backed rebels in Nicaragua and other items in the Pentagon budget.

"It appears we cannot come to an agreement at this point in time," said Rep. Joseph Addabo, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Appropriations Committee's defense subcommittee.

Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, prodded the negotiators to finish work, saying Congress might still be arguing over the emergency money bill until late October.

While debate continued on the omnibus spending bill, Congress moved to pass a stopgap bill that would temporarily provide money to government agencies through midnight Tuesday. That would avert disruptions of government operations such as those that occurred Thursday when some 500,000 workers were sent home at midday.

The House, by voice vote, passed the stopgap bill and sent it to the Senate.

Meanwhile, the Senate was stuck on legislation to increase the government's borrowing authority — the national debt — to $1.823 trillion from its present level of $1.573 trillion.

But as soon as debate started, the Senate became tangled in a series of unrelated amendments, beginning with a call for a verifiable freeze on U.S. and Soviet nuclear weapons. The freeze amendment was defeated 55-42.

Federal employees were back at work under the stopgap funding measure that expired Friday night, but new problems loomed for next week unless House and Senate negotiators agreed on a spending bill that President Reagan will sign or another stopgap bill was in place.

But it was easier said than done because problems erupted over military spending provisions of the bill.

'Irreconciliable differences'...

De Loren sued for divorce

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Z. De Lorean's lawyer says the former automaker blames the pressure of his trial on cocaine conspiracy charges for splitting marriage to Christina Ferrare De Lorean, who has filed for divorce.

In a petition she filed Friday, seven weeks after De Lorean's acquittal, Mrs. De Lorean, 34, cited irreconcilable differences with the 59-year-old former millionaire and sought to dissolve their 11-year marriage.

"He believes, like all of us do, that it is all a result of what the government has put the two of them through," said Howard Weitzman, the lawyer who successfully defended De Lorean.

"He knows the pressures she's been going through," said Weitzman. "Obviously, he regrets it."

Mrs. De Lorean, a model who last month launched a career as a talk show host on the television show, "AM Los Angeles," separated from De Lorean on Sept. 13.

The couple had seemed inseparable during De Lorean's five-month trial, which ended with his acquittal Aug. 16 by a jury that suggested he had been entrapped by the government. When the verdict was reached, the couple embraced in tears in the courtroom.

"I have the most wonderful wife in the world," De Lorean said one day.

"I always thought I would marry Prince Charming, and I did," Mrs. De Lorean told reporters during the trial.

In her divorce petition, Mrs. De Lorean sought custody of their two children, Zachary, 12, and Kathryn, 6, with visiting rights to be granted to De Lorean. She also asked for child support from De Lorean, whose assets have been tied up by the financial collapse of the Northern Ireland auto company that built his sleek, gull-winged sports car.

De Lorean is "trying to resolve the bankruptcy matter" and wrap up "loose ends" of a Detroit investigation of his finances, Weitzman said.

Mrs. De Lorean sought a share of community property accumulated by the couple before their separation. She also sought restoration of her maiden name of Ferrare, which she uses professionally.

De Lorean is living at the West Los Angeles home of his wife's mother, while Mrs. De Lorean is living at a separate residence nearby.

The marriage was her second and his third.

RUNNING FOR ELECTION

The high cost of high office

It costs a lot to get elected. And the price tag keeps going up. The 1984 candidates for president were expected to spend more than twice as much, for example, as their 1972 counterparts. Estimated campaign spending in the '84 House and Senate races hikes those bills nearly seven times.

Group takes aim at poverty, hunger

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — He lives an upper-middle-class life as a university professor, but Chaman N. Kashkari remembers his life of poverty while growing up in India.

Now he wants to eradicate poverty worldwide.

"Our whole house consisted of one room," he says of his youth. "The only source of water was a temple a few hundred yards away. We had to go to that place to take baths and to get water to cook and drink."

The memories are rekindled every year when he visits his native land.

"In New Delhi, there are shops selling modern goods, and outside there are women with babies in such condition that one cannot help but see it and get tears," he said. "I find that poverty is at such a level that it is frightening."

Last year, Kashkari, an associate professor of electrical engineering at the University of Akron, asked Dean Louis A. Hill Jr. of the university's College of Engineering to help create a scientific society aimed at eradicating global poverty.

"He came to talk to me and his eyes were sparkling," Hill said. "He said he had a lifetime dream — to do something for these 2 billion people who live in poverty, who really need help. He talked about forming an organization, because there were scientists all over the world who were interested, but that nobody had ever gotten them together. What appealed to me was that sparkle in his eyes."

The Global Energy Society for Eradication of Poverty and Hunger was incorporated in Ohio in March and will be based at Akron University, at least through 1987.

The non-profit, international society already includes about 100 engineers and scientists as members, including three Nobel laureates — Norman E. Borlaug, recipient of the Nobel Peace Prize in 1970 for his work in agriculture; Linus Pauling, who received Nobel Prizes for chemistry (1954) and peace (1962), and Abdus Salam, recipient of the Nobel Prize for physics in 1979. Borlaug introduced some of his new varieties of wheat in Kashkari's native India, in Pakistan and other countries in the mid-1960s.

The society's first international advisory board meeting is to be held at Akron this fall.

"Unfortunately, some people have come to the conclusion that it is impossible to take poverty and hunger as problems that can be solved," Kashkari says. "In my conversations with many engineers and scientists, I was told it is a problem that cannot be solved for perhaps centuries.

"But in my work, I realized that the U.S. and other countries are spending billions of dollars in aid to these countries. But if we truly want poverty and hunger to be eliminated, the answer is to provide them with clean water and fuel for cooking. Then, their lifestyles will change."

Kashkari said the purpose of the society's upcoming board meeting would be to consider possible projects, with the understanding that impoverished people in developing countries cannot adapt to modern ways overnight.

Possible projects are wind-driven water pumps, solar water heaters and better woodburning stoves. Research should be done to include engineers and scientists from underdeveloped countries and should strive to make realistic, inexpensive improvements through technology, he said.

"What we are doing right now is collecting information on technologies in this country, Canada and other industrial countries and trying to determine which technologies can be adapted," Kashkari says. "In the undeveloped countries, engineers do research on things that are already developed in this country."

Hill said the society's goal was to begin small and gradually build, acquiring funding from various sources as it achieved successes.

of $25.8 million.

Loans at the three banks totaled $87.8 million, down $100,000 when compared to the same time last year and up $3.1 million when compared to mid-year figure.

Loans at Snyder National and West Texas each totaled $41.2 million. Compared to last year, Snyder National loans increased $4.1 million and West Texas loans jumped $6.1 million. When compared to figures at the end of the first six months of 1984, Snyder National loans has dropped $500,000 and West Texas loans has increased by $1.6 million.

American State showed loans of $5.4 million compared to $3.4 million at mid-year, an increase of $2 million. First National, which operated the bank last September, had loans of $15.5 million.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. assumed $9.5 million of First National loans when the bank was closed on May 4. On Sept. 30, the FDIC-held loans had been reduced to $8.5 million.

First Federal Savings and Loan reported total deposits of $28.5 million compared to $23.3 million at the same time in 1983, an increase of $5.2 million. When compared to mid-year figures, First Federal deposits jumped by $3.6 million.

Snyder Savings and Loan showed third quarter deposits of $26.8 million compared to $25.3 million at the same time last year, a jump of $1.5 million. Compared to mid-year deposits of $27.2 million, deposits dropped $400,000.

Snyder Savings had total loans of $23.5 million compared to $26.4 million at the end of the third quarter in 1972. At mid-year, Snyder Savings had loans of $23.9 million.

First Federal third quarter loans stood at $16.9 million, an increase of $1 million over the same period in 1983 and up $1 million when compared to the 1984 June 30 report.

Comedian likes to collect art

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Steve Martin is best known for his zany standup comedy routines, but the silver-haired star of such films as "The Jerk" and the current box office hit "All of Me" is also an avid collector of modern art.

Martin, whose collection reportedly includes works by such early 20th century modernists as Arthur Dove and Georgia O'Keeffe and contemporary artists Franz Kline, Willem de Kooning, Cy Twombly, David Hockney and Helen Frankenthaler, was elected Thursday to the board of the Los Angeles County Museum of Art, museum officials said.

12 arrests noted

Snyder police Friday night logged 12 misdemeanor arrests — mostly for alcohol-related violations.

Seven adults were jailed for public intoxication during the evening with one of those additionally charged with disorderly conduct and another charged with misdemeanor possession of marijuana.

Three juvenile subjects were also taken into custody at Snyder High School shortly before 1 a.m. Saturday for illegal possession and consumption of alcoholic beverages.

One man was jailed for driving with a suspended license and another was arrested after a warrant for DWI was issued out of Angleton.

Minor wreck here

No injuries were reported in a minor traffic mishap at 11:45 a.m. Friday.

Involved in the collision in the 3700 Block of Austin Ave. were a 1979 Datsun driven by Tonya Ann Bennett of Rt. 3, and a 1980 Chevrolet driven by Randall Ray James of 218 31st St.

Coach comments; thanks Tiger fans for hanging tough

When Dennis Tomlin took the job as head coach of Snyder's football program, it's doubtful he saw the Tigers marching to victory after victory in 1984. But it's also doubtful that he saw Snyder losing 48-7 in its first district ballgame.

Nonetheless, he took Friday night's loss to Sweetwater in stride.

"I want to say that we really appreciate the people that stayed in the stands to give us the signal that they were still loyal to effort after we were behind 27-7," spo the coach. "We tell the kids that it's not what's on the scoreboard, but it's the effort they give that matters and they gave a lot of effort tonight. All of us would have liked it to be different," he said.

"The kids feel bad about what happened. The coaching staff feels bad about what happened. We didn't enjoy it one bit. The key for us now is how we react to adversity."

Though Tomlin admitted the turning point in the game came late in the second quarter when Snyder was marching for an apparent score that never materialized, he did not point any fingers..

"We had some offensive breakdowns at times and some of them really hurt us. But it wasn't always by the same individuals. It was a team win against Brownfield two weeks ago, and it was a team loss tonight. If anybody should take any blame it should be me because it is my responsibility to get us prepared, and it didn't work out like I had planned it. But now isn't the time to start blaming anybody. That's not what we need," he said.

"These are still the same good kids we started with. We'll pick ourselves up, strap it back on and do what any family would do. We'll get closer and stand up for one another," he said.

'Stangs stun Snyder, 48-7

By BILL McCLELLAN
SDN Sports Editor

Sweetwater's Mustangs tore off yardage in chunks to roll past Snyder 48-7 in the first District 2-4A ballgame of the season for both teams here Friday night.

The lopsided loss spoiled homecoming festivities for Snyder, which falls to 1-3 on the year. Snyder travels to Fort Stockton next week, while Sweetwater, now 3-1, entertains San Angelo.

From Thomas Goodman's 48-yard run just 1:15 into the game, until backup quarterback Mike Redden scampered 59 yards with 4:05 left to play, the Mustangs let it be known they are deserving of their No. 12 ranking. Despite an early lead however, the visitors didn't break the game open until late in the first half.

The teams had exchanged touchdowns early on. Sweetwater scored first on Goodman's 48 yard burst. The Mustangs had gone inside to fullback Sammy Castro three times to set up the breakaway run. Archie Huckabee kicked the point-after with 10:45 still to play in the quarter, and Sweetwater led 7-0.

The Ragin' Tigers' first offensive experience was good for a 16-yard drive, but Sweetwater stopped it at the 49, and forced a punt. Return-man Mike Welch bobbled the ball however, and Snyder's Trey Tippens recovered at the Mustang 19.

From there, Justin Webb spun off nine yards to the 10. Four plays later, Webb took it in from the 2-yard line. Paul Thompson's kick tied the game at 7-7 with 4:36 left in the quarter.

Sweetwater came right back for its second score. The 62-yard, eight-play drive ended with quarterback Neal Hoover scoring from three yards out. Huckabee's kick-after was no good, but the Mustangs had a 13-7 advantage. The key play in the drive was 35-yard pass play from Hoover to Welch that got the ball down to the Snyder 25-yard line.

Sweetwater scored again early in the second quarter. On first and 10 from Snyder's 49, Hoover hooked up with Anthony Norman. Norman was well covered by Snyder's James Powell, but the taller receiver high-stretched the ball and came down with it at the 5-yard line. Hoover kept the ball on an option play from there, and Sweetwater was in front 19-7. The 'Stangs went for two on the conversion but Goodman's run was stopped short.

What followed was perhaps the turning point of the ballgame. After both teams traded possessions, Snyder took the ball and marched 52 yards to the Mustang 28-yard line before Sweetwater's defense rose up to the occasion. After stopping Snyder, the Mustangs fashioned a 47-yard march of their own which ended in a 17-yard scoring toss from Hoover to Welch with just 57 seconds left in the half.

"That was probably the turning point," agreed Snyder Coach Dennis Tomlin. "We were behind 19-7 but we were driving and it looked like we might score and pull within five points at halftime. Then we made a few mistakes, they got the ball and they score. After that, we had to try to make up points quickly. We went for it and it didn't work out."

Snyder's drive had been centered around a 31-yard pass from quarterback Jimmy Cain to Webb and a 14-yard reverse by swingman Willie Greathouse. Greathouse's run put the ball at the opponent 30, and Webb bulled for two yards to the 28 on the next play.

But that was the end of the line for the Tigers. Led by Bruce Carrington and Bobby Bogues, Sweetwater blitzed and caught Cain for losses of 9 and 10 yards in succession. Backed up to the 47, Snyder had to punt.

A bad snap forced punter Ricky Hunter to dodge would-be tacklers on the punt and when he was finally able to get the boot off, it went for a net minus six yards. With possession at the Tiger 47, Sweetwater began it's key TD march.

The drive stalled at the 32, but Sweetwater got a break when Snyder was flagged for interference. The 15-yard step-off - a new rule this year - gave the visitors a first down at the Tiger 17.

Snyder showed some fine defense in batting away Hoover's next two passes from there, but on third and 10, he hit Welch over the middle for the touchdown. Goodman's run-after was successful this time, and Sweetwater led 27-7.

Snyder put together a couple of drives in the third quarter, but as it turned out, they only served to keep Sweetwater temporarily out of the end zone. The Tigers drove to the visitors' 34 on their first posession, but defensive end Teddy Turner caught Cain for a 12-yard loss from there, and Snyder was forced to punt.

After holding the Mustangs on the next possession, Snyder tried again. This time Cain hit Powell and Greathouse on passes of 12 yards each and the Tigers got down to the Sweetwater 14. Like

GAIL – Despite a 20-point halftime lead, Borden County's Coyotes were forced to come up with a fourth quarter touchdown to tie Rule here Friday in non-district six-man football action, 42-42.

The outcome left Coach Duke Frisbie beside himself.

"We had them 36-16 at half. I haven't been able to find out what it was I said to the kids at halftime but I sure won't say it again," mused the coach, who as always maintained his humor despite the tie.

"This is going to cost the school a lot of money. Our heads had gotten so big. Now we're going to have to get smaller helmets," he panned. "Usually you can see this sort of thing before it's about to happen, but I didn't see it. We had good workouts. We did lose Bric Turner (to a broken thumb in workouts). But shoot, when you lead by 20 points at halftime, you don't think about this happening."

Borden ran up a 22-8 lead in the first period on runs of 38, 30 and 3 yards by Chris Cooley. Kirby Williams kicked two of the three two-point conversions. The other was missed.

Rule had taken a brief 8-6 lead on a 31-yard run by Wade Welborn - who also kicked the conversion - before the Coyotes came back on Cooley's other two runs.

The visitors tallied again in the second quarter as Joe Torrez ran in from two yards out. Welborn's kick made it 22-16.

Borden re-established control when Dennis Buchanan scored on a two-yard run and Cooley broke free on a 56-yard scamper. Williams kicked one PAT good for a 36-16 advantage.

Rule battled back in the second half, however. Torrez opened the third-quarter scoring with a 23-yard TD run, but it was the passing of Alfredo Valerio to Glendale Vanderbilt that was the key.

Valerio and Vanderbilt teamed for touchdown connections of 35 yards in the fourth quarter and 36 and 40 yards in the fourth. Suddenly Borden found itself down by six points.

The Coyotes knotted the score

2-4A grid roundup

Friday's kickoff of District 2-4A play had all the makings of a soap opera, and Monahans and Lamesa - an unlikely couple at best - were the central characters.

In a battle of unbeatens, Monahans proved out its No. 10 statewide ranking by slamming Fort Stockton 35-7. Fort Stockton's loss had one redeeming factor. Their 7 points are the only points Monahans has given up this season.

Meanwhile, a Lamesa team that was supposed to contend for cellar honors shocked its fourth straight victim. Andrews was the Tors' latest target and like the others, this one was close - 14-13. But also like the others, it goes in the win column.

A situation that has 2-4A fans equally puzzled is the sudden slump of San Angelo Lake View. Though the Chiefs fought hard Friday, their 7-6 loss to Pecos was their fourth straight loss of the season.

In the other game played, the outcome may have been expected - Sweetwater over Snyder. But the margin of victory - 48-7 - can only make prognosticators wonder if 1984 isn't the year for the Mustangs.

Stay tuned next week as unbeatens Lamesa and Monahans tangle in Lamesa, Lake View tries to regroup at Sweetwater, Andrews is at Pecos and Snyder buses to Fort Stockton.

4-1A grid roundup

There were a few surprises as a District 4-1A South Zone members finished up non-league football action Friday night.

Winless McCaulley isn't winless anymore. Unbeaten Borden County is, well, still unbeaten, but not unblemished.

Zone wars open for real next Friday, and the keynote game will likely be at Ira, where the 3-0-1 Bulldogs play host to defending state champion. It's a tough task for Ira's Coach Mitch Lee, who faces a strong Borden County bunch a week later.

"We're going to know how we sit in district play in two weeks. We may be doing great, or it may be all over," said Lee. "We've got to at least split those first two games."

Since there are only five teams in the zone, two losses will all but knock a team out of a chance for the playoffs.

In the other loop game coming up, Borden goes on the road for the first time this season to McCaulley. Grady is open.

After an 0-4 start, McCaulley finally got on the winning ledger Friday by stopping Lueders-Avoca 47-32. Ira continued to roll, pasting Rochester 68-36, while Borden was shocked into a 42-42 tie by winless Rule. Grady, 1-4, lost to Paint Creek 38-36.

Highland was idle.

when Cooley shook loose for a 15-yard TD run. The points-after try failed.

Cooley finished the night with 341 yards on 37 carries. Buchanan had 72 on 13 carries.

"We played pretty good ball," said Frisbie. "We had a fumble at the wrong time and two 15 yard penalties on two different drives that just killed us. But heck, we had 431 yards rushing and when you have that much rushing you don't need any passing. We had the ball on the 12 yard line when the game ended.

"I don't know whether this will help us or not. We'll just have to crank it up next week and see what happens. Hopefully, this will jolt us some in the right direction," the coach added.

The tie put Borden at 4-0-1 as it heads into South Zone competition at McCaulley next Friday.

Colbert leads Texas Open

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Veteran Jim Colbert holed a fairway shot for an eagle two that propelled him to another 5-under-par 65 and a three-stroke lead in defense of his title in the $350,000 Texas Open Golf Tournament.

Colbert, 43, reached the tournament halfway point with a 36-hole total of 130, 10 shots under par for two trips over the 6,525 yard Oak Hills Country Club course.

ROCHESTER -- Darren Hughes ran for five touchdowns and Bruce Strickland ran for two, caught a pass for another and chipped in seven two-point conversions as the Ira Bulldogs ripped Rochester here Friday night, 68-36.

The victory gives the Bulldogs a 3-0-1 record as they prepare to head into District 4-1A South Zone play against defending state champion Highland. Highland, idle Friday night, is 4-0.

"We thought we did a pretty decent job both offensively and defensively. We controlled the game pretty much the way we wanted to," said Ira Coach Mitch Lee.

"We did have 11 penalties for 140 yards but some were a little questionable, especially on pass interference. We really didn't make as many mistakes as we have in the past few ballgames."

Ira had little trouble containing Rochester's ground game, but the aerial patch from quarterback Paul Ortiz to John Wyatt was a different story.

"Rochester has a good ball team. They are going to slip up on some people," said Lee. "They have the best quarterback and receiver I've seen in six-man in a long time. Wyatt runs precise routes and can really catch the ball."

Ira tallied first as Hughes scored on a five yard sweep. Strickland booted the PAT.

Rochester tied the game on a Ortiz to Wyatt pass play for 30 yards. Ortiz kicked the conversion.

Undaunted, the Bulldogs ran off three more scores. Strickland scored on a 40-yard kickoff following Rochester's TD pass, then Hughes broke free on a 68-yard run. The other touchdown was a 55-yard run by Strickland. Strickland kicked two of the three PAT attempts.

There were three more touchdowns before halftime. Rochester's Howell Adkins went over from three yards out; Strickland caught a 58-yard toss from Jay Clark; and Adkins scored on a 1-yard run with 43 seconds left. Ortiz and Strickland traded one conversion kick apiece as Ira lead 38-22 at intermission.

Ira continued to trade touchdowns on a two-to-one basis. In the third period, Hughes scored on runs of 10 and 26 yards. Strickland kicked both conversions.

Rochester also chalked up in the third as Ortiz hit Wyatt on a 14-yard toss.

The fourth quarter was a near repeat of the third. Ira scored on a 43-yard run by Hughes and a 12-yard pass from Jay Clark to Reyez Juarez. Strickland kicked one conversion.

Rochester finished the scoring with 49 seconds left in the game when Scott O'Neal punched over from four yards out. Ortiz kicked the PAT.

Hughes finished the night with 316 yards on 20 carries while Strickland had 126 on 13. Defensively, Barry Ezra had 10 tackles, Strickland and Hughes 6 each, and Steve Denson, Lloyd Goswick and Don Crane 5 each. Chris Reyna also pulled down one interception.

TIGERS

before however, the drive unravelled. A reverse to Greathouse ended in a two-yard loss this time, and consecutive sacks by Carrington and linebacker Ron Petty knocked Snyder all the way back to the 43, where Sweetwater took over.

It took the visitors five plays to put their next score on the board. A 43-yard run by Hoover set up the score which was also run by the quarterback on a three-yard keeper. Goodman ran over the extra points with 0:43 left in the period for a 35-7 advantage.

Both teams went to the bench in the fourth quarter and backup quarterback Redden guided the Mustangs to two more scores. A 50-yard march ended in a 1-yard touchdown run for Tom Hargrove with 7:14 left. Later, Redden broke free on a 59-yard scoring jaunt with 4:05 left. Huckabee kicked one of the PAT tries. The other was blocked.

Coach Tomlin was quick to praise the Mustangs after the loss.

"They have a fine team. We hadn't played anybody that good. I didn't think we were playing as bad as it looked, but their good athletes just broke too many times on us and it kept costing us six points.

"We got behind and had to take a few chances. Some of them worked and some of them didn't and it got away from us. That's the chance you have to take. We could have sit back and let it happen or we could have tried to get back in the ballgame. We tried to get back into it," he said.

Snyder rushed for just 45 yards, primarily because Sweetwater blitzes nailed the Tigers behind the scrimmage line nine times for a minus 60. Webb led the Tigers with 55 yards on 18 carries.

Sweetwater marched for 325 yards. Goodman had 87, Redden 78 and Hoover 64. Hoover completed three of eight passes for 96 yards. Snyder's Cain was four of 11 for 66.

Dallas picked by six over struggling St. Louis Cards

IRVING, Texas (AP) - The good news for the St. Louis Cardinals is that after five games they lead the National Football League in scoring with 146 points.

The bad news is that they also lead the NFL in points allowed, with 134.

As a result, the Cardinals bring only a 2-3 record into Texas Stadium for Sunday's noon CDT kickoff against the Dallas Cowboys, who lead the NFC East with a 4-1 record.

Las Vegas oddsmakers have made the Cowboys a 6-point favorite.

"We are not as bad as our record, but also not as good as we thought we'd be," said Floyd Peters, the Cardinals' assistant defensive coach.

"We're not quite as ugly as we look. With a few patches here and there, we can play pretty good football."

He added, "We had better play a great game against Dallas or ..."

Miami's Dan Marino ripped St. Louis' secondary for 429 yards passing. For the season, runners have averaged 4.4 yards a carry against St. Louis.

That's encouraging news for the Cowboys, whose own running game has floundered in 1984. Dallas backs are averaging only 3.3 yards per carry.

"That's typical of them," Peters said. "Not running, but winning. They'll get straightened out. Our job is not to let them do it against us."

Peters said stopping Dallas running back Tony Dorsett is a major priority for the St. Louis defense.

Dorsett, although he now has gone eight straight games without rushing for 100 yards, took a screen pass from quarterback Gary Hogeboom last week and broke for a 68-yard touchdown during the Cowboys' 23-14 decision over the Chicago Bears.

"It was nice to finally break loose. It always feels good to get out in the open. I enjoy getting out there and maneuvering around people. But it still doesn't make up for the lack of a running game. It's been frustrating because we have more talent than we've shown in the running game," Dorsett said.

Dallas coach Tom Landry credits the Cowboys special teams for much of the club's success.

"The young guys are really hitting hard. It is something that we have not had in the last four or five years. We just have not had that kind of intensity," Landry said.

"They are all young guys who are trying to stay on the team and they are hustling to stay around. And that is always enjoyable to watch," he added.

Detroit wins, 1-0 to sweep AL title

DETROIT (AP) - The Detroit Tigers, with Milt Wilcox teaming with Willie Hernandez on a three-hitter, completed a three-game sweep of the Kansas City Royals with a 1-0 victory Friday night to advance to the World Series for the first time since 1968.

The Tigers, baseball's most dominant team during the regular season, were heavy favorites in the American League Championship Series and coolly eliminated the Royals on a cool, crisp October night.

They will now open the World Series on Tuesday night against either the Chicago Cubs or the San Diego Padres. Chicago leads the National League playoffs two games-to-one with Game 4 scheduled for Saturday in San Diego.

Wilcox symbolized the Tigers' efficiency, allowing just a fourth-inning single to George Brett and an eighth-inning single to Don Slaught. Wilcox, who did not complete any of his 33 starts this year, got a second-inning run on an RBI-forceout by Marty Castillo and made it stand up, walking two and striking out eight in eight innings. Hernandez allowed the final hit, an infield single by pinch-hitter Hal McRae with two out in the ninth.

The Tigers finished with just three hits off Royals starter Charlie Leibrandt, who walked four and struck out six.

A capacity crowd of 52,168 jammed Tiger Stadium, chanting louder and louder as each Royals batter fell. A cadre of policeman emerged on the field at the start of the eighth inning as legions of fans stormed the field and savaged the surface, resulting in two dozen arrests.

Cubs seek crown; Padres hoping not

SAN DIEGO (AP) - If Steve Garvey, a veteran of four National League Championship Series, knows the secret of winning, he isn't letting on about it.

"More Our Fathers and Hail Marys, I guess," he replied, smiling, when asked what he would tell his teammates they need to pull even with the Chicago Cubs Saturday night in Game Four of the series.

It is with deed rather than word that Garvey, Graig Nettles and Rich Gossage of the Padres, and Ron Cey, Larry Bowa and Gary Matthews of the Cubs have led their teams to a previous World Series appearance.

"I've said all along that those guys - on both sides - lead with their attitude, they don't have to say it, as long as they do it," said Tony Gwynn, the Padres' right fielder, who collected three 4 hits in Diego's 7-1 victory Thursday night.

With Garry Templeton slapping a two-run double and Kevin McReynolds' three-run homer, the Padres stayed alive in the best-of-five championship series, which the Cubs lead two games to one. A Chicago victory Saturday would send the Cubs to the World Series for the first time since 1945. The Padres already advanced farther than at any time in their 16-season history, so a World Series trip would be a first for them.

If San Diego wins Saturday, the teams will play a fifth and deciding game here at 1:25 PDT Sunday.

WJCAC race mired in national ruling

MIDLAND – The Western Junior College Athletic Conference race turned into a question mark here Friday when it became apparent the National Junior College Athletic Association will have to be called in to give a ruling.

Though details are sketchy, the ruling centers around David Prichitt of Midland College. Prichitt had supposedly shot a three-under par 68. New Mexico Junior College's Mike Yrene shot a 69.

The ruling is expected to affect Midland, Odessa and New Mexico Military Institute.

Team scores from Friday's third conference tournament included Odessa with a 289, NMMI with a 290, New Mexico Junior College with a 281, South Plains with a 298 and Western Texas College with a 302. Midland's score was not listed since the confusion centers around a Chaparral player.

Midland had 9 conference points going into the 18-hole tournamnt. NMMI also had 9, followed by Odessa with 8½, NMJC with 6, WTC with 5½ and South Plains with 4.

Western's 302 will apparently earn the Westerners one conference point, a 6½ total, and if so, they would remain in fifth place behind the yet-to-be determined leader. The leader should receive six points, and have a total of either 15 or 14½ points.

Sophomore Chris Johnson led the Westerners with a two-over par 73. Freshman Ryan Heller shot a 74, while sophomore Bob Stangby turned in a 77. Freshmen Boy Kay and Pat Fitzpatrick carded 78's.

Gold Coats set tournament

Snyder Gold Coats are hosting The Snyder Shootout, a nine-hole golf tournament for those who qualify.

Prize is a weekend for two at Snyder's newest motel, the Willow Park Inn, which includes a special supper and a continental breakfast.

The tournament will be held for the 10 lowest qualifiers. There is no limit to the number of qualifying rounds a player may take. There will be a $5 entry fee for each qualifying round, paid prior to the round. Rounds may be played at Snyder Country Club or Western Texas College. Entrants must be at least 22 years old.

Qualifying deadline is 6 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 21. Ties will be determined by a chipoff on Monday, Oct. 22.

The actual tournament will be held Oct. 27 at 10 a.m. at Snyder Country Club.

For a $10 donation, the gallery may select a "favorite golfer." If that golfer is the winner, the spectator will receive a free lunch at the awards banquet immediately following the shootout.

Proceeds from the tournament will go to the Snyder Gold Coats Scholarship Fund at Western Texas College.

WTC Rodeo team doing well

ALPINE – Western Texas College rodeo team appeared in good shape here Saturday, heading into the final two performances of the long-go in the Sul Ross State University Rodeo.

The top 10 performers in each event will advance to Sunday's short go.

Western had two leaders. Donnie York's was winning first in calf roping with a time of 9.9 while Tony Heckshear's 69 was holding on to the same position in the bareback.

Glen Jordan was second in the steer wrestling with a 4.8; Tobin Tate was fifth in the bull riding with a score of 72; Tana Whatley was second in the breakaway roping with a 3.1 clocking and Niki Moist was third in the barrels with a run of 18.60.

Still to go in the long-round for Western were the following participants: Jason Phillips in bullriding; David Jones in calf roping and team roping with Mark Mauldin and John Foster; Gary Rowe in calf roping; Van Hale in saddle bronc and bull riding; Bliss Mayhan in bareback and bull riding; Judy Cox in barrels, breakaway and goat tying; Moist in breakaway and goat tying; and Canita Cass in breakaway.

Scott's Tigers set scrimmages

Snyder varsity boy's basketball team has slated its first scrimmage for Nov. 8 in Seminole, Tiger coach Larry Scott noted.

The Tigers have also scheduled to scrimmage Coahoma in Scurry County Coliseum on Nov. 15.

Exact times of the scrimmages have yet to be verified.

Snyder opens the 1984 season Nov. 19 by hosting Lubbock High.

Scurry County Folks...

By Vicki Brown SDN Society Editor

Vera Holsinger believes that "if you want to work hard enough, you can be and do what you want." This philosophy has taken her literally around the world.

Born and raised in Scurry County, Vera graduated from Snyder High School, then went on to Texas Tech for a degree in home economics. She taught in Rule until she completed her studies. "Twice I rode horseback in trousers and boots long before pants were fashionable," she laughed.

Her desire to travel was fulfilled when she went to work for the USO during World War II, a relationship that lasted seven years. Trained in New York City, Vera began her field work in Alexandria, La. She spent four years with the Army in Lawton, Okla., then went to Washington, D.C. to help begin a Navy USO club for men in the National Navy Medical Center. After doing relief work in Augusta, Ga., she was sent to Fort Smith, Ark.

Her next assignment was to have been in Arizona, but when she stopped in Snyder to see her parents, she realized that they needed her. Since the oil boom had hit and the school system desperately needed teachers, Vera began teaching 40 students in sixth grade. Four months later she was able to transfer to the high school to teach home economics.

She actually began traveling about 40 years ago when she visited Cuba with her brother and sister. "People think that I didn't start traveling until I married. That's simply not true. I've always loved to travel and I've always been willing to work to go," she said. "Many trips I made while I was teaching, and you know what teachers make," she added.

While a teacher, she visited Alaska and 12 countries in Europe including two trips to Spain. In 1970 she joined two preachers from Dallas leading a group on a trip around the world in conjunction with the Baptist World Alliance meeting in Japan.

In 1961, she and another teacher made a trip to Hawaii. Falling in love with the Islands, she hoped to take others. She began doing just that when a travel agent learned of her interest and hired her to conduct tours there. After gathering the necessary number of people, Vera had the agency make the arrangements and she served as guide. She conducted five tours, one every other year, during the summer. "I prayed a lot before going on a tour," she said. "And I never took anybody on a trip that I wouldn't take again."

Then in 1971, Vera married. "One Tuesday, I was sitting at home grading papers when the phone rang. I was so surprised because the call was from Wert Holsinger who was a good friend of my sister-in-law. We'd known each other for nearly 30 years. Well, he asked me to marry him so I quit teaching one day and married the next. It was a big surprise to everyone including myself!"

Marriage didn't stop her gadabout spirit. Wert loved to travel too and accompanied her on her last Hawaiian tour. They decided to make two trips per year, oversees and in this country.

Following Wert's death in 1976, she continued traveling. In 1982, she visited South Africa and Kenya; in 1983, she explored China; and in 1984, she took a South American tour which included Colombia, Brazil, Argentina, Paraguay, Peru, Ecuador and the Galapagos Islands.

MAKING NEW FRIENDS — Vera Holsinger made friends with these two African children when she visited South Africa and Kenya in 1982. (Family Photo).

"Traveling has made me so aware of the people of the world. I want to teach people to see that other people are God's creation and I want to teach people to appreciate others and their talents. We aren't the only people who can create beautiful things," she pointed out. "I also want to encourage youth to save money and to remember that with determination they can do the things they would like to do.

"I guess in some ways I've become a bit of a mission fanatic, but seeing the world has made me mission-minded. We must spread God's Word to every country. Because I am more aware of world conditions, I can channel help where it is needed," she added.

Still the gadabout, she hopes her next trip will take her to Turkey, Greece and the Holy Land.

Schultz winner

NEW YORK (AP) — The Academy of American Poets says Philip Schultz's "Deep Within the Ravine" has been chosen as the 1984 Lamont Poetry Selection.

The book will be published by Viking Penguin Inc. and Schultz gets a cash award of $1,000.

Blakely, Huston nuptials read

Annette Deborrah Blakely, daughter of David Monte and Patricia Blakely, and Donald Roy Huston, son of Rev. and Mrs. Donald Huston of Bridgehampton, NY, were married at Holy Trinity Catholic Church in Dallas Sept. 29.

Father Louis Arceneau officiated the 2:30 p.m. double ring ceremony assisted by Rev. Donald Grant Huston, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, Bridgehampton.

The bride's father presented her in marriage. She was attired in a designer gown of shimmering white organza featuring an exquisite Victorian neckline bordered with Venise lace and tiny seed pearls and tridescents. The appliques of Venise lace covered the bodice to the flattering natural waistline. Her bishop sleeves were adorned with appliques of Chantilly lace. The full skirt gracefully flowed into a chapel length train. Matching Chantilly lace bordered the entire skirt. The train of shirred organza was accented with thin satin ribbon bows in the gathers. Her matching fingertip veil of Venise lace dotted with seed pearls completed the ensemble.

The bride's bouquet was a nosegay of a dozen deep pink roses and baby's breath with lace and white streamers. Two keepsake silk roses were worked in bouquet.

Vows were said before an altar separating two large bubble glass bowls holding 10 white gladiolas and a dozen deep pink carnations. Behind these were brass triple cup candle stands and green potted plants.

MRS. DONALD ROY HUSTON

The musical program began with "Air in G," by Bach, "Adagio For Strings," by Barber, "Prelude and Fugue in E Flat" by Bach, and "Ave Maria," by Bach.

Others were "God of Our Fathers," and "All Creatures of Our God and King." Pianist was Irene Doneff, organist was Don Essmiller and soloist was Susan Clark of Snyder.

Other selections were "Sabbath Prayer," "Hymn For the Church," written by the groom's mother, "Song of Joy," by Beethoven, "Sometimes," by Mancini, and "Fugue a la Cique," by Bach.

Maid of honor was Susan Bauer of Milwalkee, Wi. She wore a dusty rose floor length organza dress with a satin belt with a hemline puffed short sleeves adorned with matching lace trim. Her high neckline was tied with a satin ribbon. She carried a nosegay of deep pink alstromerias and white roses, deep pink ribbon and baby's breath.

Holly Diroff of Detroit, Mi., bridesmaid, was dressed like the maid of honor. Other attendants were Julie Bantes of Minneapolis, Mn., Nancy Huston, the groom's sister of Bridgehampton, and Teri Rinzel of Milwaukee.

Mark Lauby of Minneapolis was best man and Jonathan Huston, the groom's brother of Bridgehampton was groomsman along with Gary Taylor of Deer Creek, Mn., Richard Avery, the bride's cousin of Ft. Worth, and Terry Geurink of Woodbury, Mn. Ushers were Christopher Thorn and Jonathan Miller.

A punch reception and formal dinner was held at Marriott Quorum Hotel, Dallas. Irene Doneff was pianist throughout the event. Guests were seated at round dinner tables decorated with burgundy on white linens decorated with votive candles. Parent's table and head table were covered with white linens.

The bride's cake was a three tiered round cake with dusty rose trim of rosebuds and raspberry filling. It was topped with a ceramic bride and groom used on the bride's parents wedding cake.

The couple's wedding trip was to Minnesota and Wisconsin after which they will reside in Dallas.

The bride is a graduate of Wausau East High School and Alverno College of Milwaukee, Wi., with a Bachelor of Science in Nursing. She is an RN at Dallas Medical Surgical Hospital as charge nurse.

The groom is a graduate of Wausau East High and St. Olaf College, with a Bachelor of Arts in History. He is a commercial claims adjuster for Allstate Insurance Co.

Evening activities of BSP Sorority

Lambda Kappa Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met for the ritual of jewels social Tuesday evening in the home of Mona Bryan with membership and social committees hosting.

Following an executive board meeting, the evening began with a formal dinner for members, during which "you are special" plates were presented to new members Judy Bryan and Jeanne Johnson. Margaret Corchran read a selection explaining the time-honored tradition of honoring special people with a meal served on a red plate.

Sue Sewell furnished dinner music at the piano.

In a candlelight ceremony, transferring member Jan Henderson was instilled into the group and Judy Bryan and Jeanne Johnson became members through the ritual of jewels.

Following the ceremony, a busness meeting was held presided by Brenda Hedges, president. Members voted to donate $300 to SCOOP, which was the proceeds from a recent dance hosted by the sorority. The group made plans to sell cookbooks and use proceeds to benefit the nationwide effort to refurbish the Statue of Liberty. The cookbooks, which include holiday recipes submitted by Beta Sigma Phi members internationally, will sell for $4.95 each.

Door prizes, African violets grown by Western Texas College students were presented to four members in a drawing and was followed by the group sharing "happy moments."

The next meeting will be Oct. 16 at the Country Club.

Opening lead: ♠5

My partner was South and arrived at three no-trump via the diagramed auction. Cordette was confronted with a choice of opening leads. She led spades right into the teeth of my partner's one-spade response! When a diamond was led to dummy's king and East's ace, Cordette ducked East's spade return. Now it was an easy matter for the defenders to take five tricks and beat three no-trump.

No doubt there are alternative defenses. A heart lead, for example, might set the contract. But I was impressed by Cordette's willingness to make a somewhat unorthodox lead when she felt it was right.

Next February, there is a regional tournament in Birmingham. If you're on the tournament trail and get over that way, watch out for Cordette Wall!

An expert meets his match

By James Jacoby

Part of the fun I have in playing bridge tournaments around the country is meeting people who surprise me with how well they play the game. Not that good bridge is so unusual. More likely I've been insulated so much with good players that I've contracted a little bridge tunnel vision.

A couple of months ago in Mobile, Ala., my eyes were opened by some hard-hitting defense engineered by Cordette Wall of Birmingham.

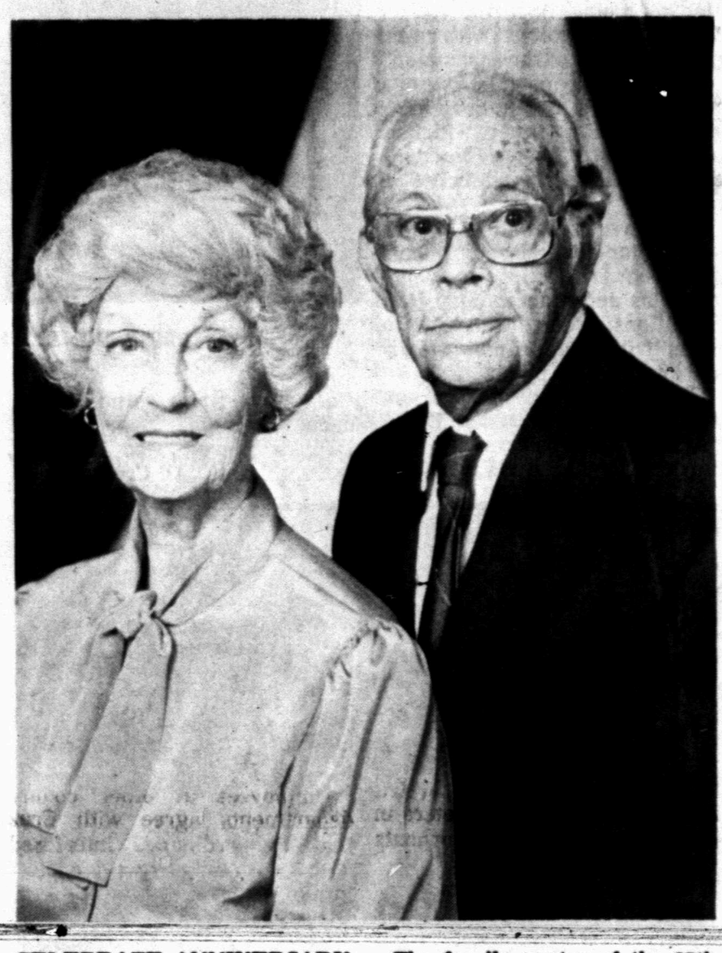
Failure to remove makeup thoroughly is the major reason for a dull complexion, say skin experts.

A good cleansing routine should start with a cream or lotion makeup remover, even if the skin is oily.

Follow with a second cleansing using either an astringent on cotton pads or warm water and thorough lathering.

Rinse well with warm water to remove all lather or astringent, pat dry and finish with light application of moisturizer to restore natural skin balance.

Gloves do more than keep hands warm. They prevent aging of the hand skin.



CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY — The family center of the 37th Street Church of Christ will be the site of a reception honoring Mariola and Gordon Smith for their 50th wedding anniversary. The Smiths were married on Oct. 10, 1934 in Snyder by O.D. Dial, minister of the 25th Street Church of Christ. The family invites relatives and friends to join the celebration. (Family Photo)

Millions of women today are bringing in the lion's share of their family's income. According to the Census Bureau, nearly 6 million American wives earned more than their husbands in 1981. That's 12 percent of husband-wife households.

Death count mounting in bloody fighting

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — A military band broke into a jubilant march as the body of Massud Moghdaz was lowered into a dirt grave at Tehran's Behesht Zahra cemetery.

A bearded clergyman passed the Iranian green, white and red flag over the transparent plastic bag containing Moghzad's remains in a patriotic farewell on behalf of nearly 30 mourners who stood in silence.

An elderly woman, clad in a head-to-toe black chador, leaned over a boy staring at the pit and explained: "He's gone to heaven. He is a 'saheed.' You must not forget this."

Moghdaz, an infantry soldier, was killed in an ambush by Kurdish rebels in the western mountain province of Kurdestan. He was 21.

With his death, he entered the growing world of "saheed" or "martyrs" of the Islamic revolution — Ayatollah Khomeini's faceless army of dead.

After years of bloody internal strife and war with Iraq that have claimed more than 300,000 lives, funerals in revolutionary Iran have become tearless events.

Pride has replaced sorrow. The heavy death toll has given the 5-year-old revolution a debt Iranians admire every day.

Praised in the Koran as the most sublime offering, but seen outside Iran as the ultimate expression of Khomeini's fanaticism, martyrdom is an example many young men are eager — and encouraged — to follow.

Soldiers wearing red headbands with the inscriptions "Alaho Akhbar" ("God Is Great") march to the battlefront vowing never to return alive.

During last spring's "human wave" offensive against Iraq in the southern front, more than 9,000 volunteers — some as young as 14 — were said to have run directly into Iraqi machine gun fire chanting "There's no God but Allah."

Others became human mine detectors and were blown to pieces so Iranian tanks could safely roll inside Iraqi territory now under Iranian control.

Red and green flags bearing Koranic passages fly over Behesht Zahra cemetery marking a special section for the martyrs.

Each tomb has a glass box which often tells the personal story of the martyrs.

There are before-and-after snapshots showing a smiling soldier posing with an anti-aircraft machine gun and gruesome pictures of the same soldier blown to pieces by a grenade.

The gravestones bear the names and the testaments of the martyrs, a religious and sometimes literary legacy that tells of their search for death and celestial reward.

Testaments owe much of their inspiration to Khomeini's call to kill and die for the revolution and to the Koran's passage that reminds believers that "God loves those who kill for his way."

"After a long inward conflict, I finally understood the beauty of death. Then I decided to write my will hoping that it would one day become useful to others," wrote Nurullah Mirzaie-Pour, killed at 27.

"Do not close my eyes so that somebody will think that I stepped upon this path with closed eyes," wrote a Revolutionary Guard killed by Iraqi troops.

"And clench my fists so that the unbelievers will notice that even my lifeless body will not let them rest for a moment."

Islam promises eternal life for the martyrs. Khomeini delivers rewards for their survivors through the generous "Martyrs Foundation," which funnels cash, television sets and free tickets to Mecca and Damascus.

Queen Liz II staying with Kentuckian

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — William S. Farish III, as competitive on the polo field as he is in the board room, wasn't too surprised when Queen Elizabeth II decided to stay at his 1,400-acre Lane's End Farm next week.

They first met on a polo field in 1973 while Farish was playing in the Queen's Cup in England. And it was their common interest in the sport that led to his invitation to the queen to stay at his home for her first visit to Kentucky, a spokesman for the British Embassy said.

Farish is a 45-year-old oilman and financier who has turned his full-time attention to horses in recent years. Forbes magazine recently estimated his net worth at $150 million.

Residents divided on anti-bilingual ordinance passed

MIAMI (AP) — Four years after Dade County passed an ordinance aimed at preventing the use of any language other than English on official business, the matter still evokes strong emotions among supporters and opponents.

"It's ridiculous, it's petty and it's senseless," says Manny Diaz, a Cuban-born and Miamibred attorney who is chairman of the Spanish American League Against Discrimination, or SALAD, one of the area organizations that opposed the ordinance.

The anti-bilingual ordinance, passed at a referendum Nov. 4, 1980, also prohibited the use of county funds "for promoting any culture other than that of the United States." The ordinance was backed by nearly 60 percent of the county's eligible voters in one of the largest voter turnouts in Dade County history.

"I don't feel that all the citizens of Dade County should supply tax dollars to fund a separate bilingual government. It's as simple as that," says Mark R. Benson, vice president of Citizens of Dade United, the group that spearheaded the drive to pass the ordinance.

The ordinance is superseded by state and federal law. There are still multilingual ballots, court interpreters and information about food stamps in languages other than English — most commonly in Spanish and some in Creole.

Besieged by inquiries from county departments about how to adhere to the ordinance while still providing basic services to the estimated 42 percent of county residents who speak Spanish, Dade County Attorney Robert A. Ginsburg was forced to write an opinion spelling out other exceptions to the ordinance.

"If lives are at risk, then it's proper to inform the citizens in the best and most efficient way possible," Ginsburg says.

Such information includes safety measures in the event of a hurricane, medical advice at the county's Jackson Memorial Hospital and warnings on electrical lines at the new Metrorail rapid transit system.

But at Miami International Airport, the only non-English signs that survive are those in place before the ordinance went into effect.

"Those the county is under no obligation to remove," said Ginsburg.

The airport is a hub for international travelers. In 1983, nearly 1.5 million foreign visitors were from the Caribbean, Central and South America; said Orlando Cruz, chief of economic analysis at the airport.

"The county depends on tourism for its growth and it's poor policy not to have a welcoming sign (in Spanish) to the people who come to spend their money here," Cruz says. "(The ordinance) reduces the ability of the county to do commerce with those people."

Employees at other county departments agree with Cruz that the ordinance interfered with their ability to provide information to residents who don't speak English.

"We were putting up Spanish signs at each of the animal exhibits, then we get hit with this county ordinance," says Janet Ross, a spokeswoman at Metrozoo. "It not only shuts out a section of our community, but it also affects us because we are a tourist attraction and most of our tourists are Latin Americans."

Benson argues that the spirit of the ordinance was to promote a homogeneous community.

"We have people in this community from all corners of the earth and we don't give out services in special languages," Benson says. "But the whole thing seems to be that we're the bad guys because we want this community to be like the rest of America."

But Diaz says the ordinance was rooted in anti-Hispanic attitudes among Anglos.

Dwellers enjoying isolation

FISHERS ISLAND, N.Y. (AP) — Thickets of bull briars and bittersweet ... birds of many feathers ... the summer estates of the very rich and the simpler home of the year-round population of 300 or so. This is Fishers Island, N.Y., which despite its state affiliation lies only two miles off the coast of Connecticut.

The island, about one mile by eight, does not present a dramatic landscape. There are gentle hills, all that brush, a bit of woods, sand beaches and also long stretches of beach whose rounded stones, the size of large potatoes, soccer balls and upward, make a walker's arches ache.

The summer homes with their tennis courts, swimming pools, guest houses, yachts and other accoutrements are often out of sight across the thickets. They front the sea. What looks like an intriguing side road as often as not turns out to be someone's driveway.

But if many of the homes are secluded, the birds are highly visible and audible everywhere. Swans and ducks paddle along the beaches. Ospreys nest on the telephone poles. The squawk of seagulls mingles with the plaint of mourning doves and the hammering of woodpeckers. A bob white whistles as a visitor walks walks toward the ferry.

Fishers Island's history goes back to the days when Indians, believed to be Pequots, used to fish there, and to the appearance offshore in 1614 of the Dutch explorer Adriaen Block. One of his officers, we're told, was a man named Visscher. Anyone who wants to know how Fishers Island got its name can take his choice: because the Indians fished there or because it was named after Visscher, with the spelling changing down the years. Books and articles on the island say no one knows.

There is, however, a definite answer as to how this island, which is five times as close to Connecticut as it is to New York, comes to be part of the town of Southold, Suffolk County, New York, on the other side of Long Island Sound. The legislatures of the two states approved in 1879 an agreement settling controversy and confusion that had persisted since colonial times.

The Winthrop family, settlers of the Massachusetts Bay Colony and eastern Connecticut, owned the island for nearly two centuries — until the 1860s. Later, relatively elite families built summer homes here. The island also had an era of hotels and boarding houses, with daytrippers and weekenders arriving by steamer.

But the hotels and boarding houses are all gone now, except for one inn. Also gone is Fort H.G. Wright, which during World War II was headquarters of harbor defenses for Long Island sound. The summer homes remain.

Both the islanders and the summer population are determined not to forfeit the essentially remote and private feel of the place.

Above the Fold

By Donny Brown

Attorneys — like fishermen and scorned suitors — occasionally like to brag about the one that got away.

This one is told by our old friend Courtney, who works at lawyering and other uncommon practices up in the Panhandle.

He said his secretary buzzed him one day to report a lady outside who had to see him immediately.

He was with another client, so he said he'd see her when he could and to ask her to wait. This response was followed a few seconds later by another urgent buzz.

The same lady was still waiting and she still required immediate attention.

Courtney's other business was drawing to a close, so he said he turned the meter off on one client and prepared to start it for another. Attorney's, of course, bill by the hour.

He recalled the woman was wearing a long coat. Otherwise, he had never seen her before.

She sat down and made a quick grab for something inside her coat.

Courtney remembers giving a start. Any attorney who has ever handled his share of divorce suits automatically jumps when people make sudden moves to inside coat pockets.

"I want to sue somebody," she said, and plopped a sack onto the middle of his desk.

"Sue who,?" he asked. "Look inside," she answered.

He said he cautiously opened the flaps of a regular-sized brown grocery sack to find a smaller package. It appeared to be an intact, store-bought fried pie still resting in its original wax paper cover.

In throwing it onto the desk, he said he noticed his client had a "look" on her face. "You know, like the cat that ate the canary," he told us.

"Look!" she said loudly, and Courtney said he increased his angle for a closer inspection. The pie's wrapper had already been opened.

"There's a mouse in it!" she said.

Looking closer, he said sure enough you could see what appeared to be a small mouse head and a tiny paw enfolded in the wrap of baked bread.

"I bought that thing, it had a mouse in it and now I'm going to sue somebody," she told him.

"Did you eat any of it?" Courtney asked after a pause.

"Of course not, would you eat a fried pie that had a mouse in it?" she answered.

Then, he said, he began to explain to her that in order to have legal recourse in such a case she would have to prove that she had somehow suffered "damages."

He continued on, explaining that the surest way to do this would have been to have eaten the pie, then to have waited to determine if illness resulted. Another way — assuming other persons had seen her eat it — would be to claim personal damage because she had been held up to ridicule in the eyes of her peers.

"I even offered to go gather a crowd to watch her eat the thing," Courtney said. "She wouldn't have any of it. I told her I couldn't help her and she stormed out mad as thunder."

In finishing his story, he eyes grew merry and a smile nudged the corner's of his mouth.

"How much settlement could you have gotten out of a case like that," we asked him.

"Who knows," he said, "I got my money's worth."

Some call it snuff, some call it snoose. I just call it Skoal. I don't really like the nasty stuff, I just can't seem to get along without it. Things could be worse. It might be Copenhagen.

It is difficult to look at a man and judge what his pinch of choice may be, just as it is hard to tell by looking at a man whether he drives a Ford or a Chevy, or prefers blondes or brunettes. The only common trait among Copenhagen users I've found is that they tend to be loathesome idiots as opposed to Skoal people who are suave, sophisticated and intelligent almost to the man. My study, I'll admit, was limited to myself and my friend James Eby who conducts landscaping classes at WTC, of which I'm obviously not enrolled in this semester. Still, across the board, I believe you'll find the conclusions of my research to be valid.

Copenhagens users, especially the younger ones, (not Eby, he is an elderly man pushing 50 almost.) are fond of pointing to the word "snuff" printed right there on the can, and noting that no such designation appears on Skoal containers. The inference here is that this makes them tough and us sissy's. They may be right, I can't handle Copenhagen, it burns.

I would like to invoke the name of one Walt Garrison, ex-Dallas Cowboy and current Rodeo maniac, and point out that Skoal is his choice. I'd like to see one of those Copenhagen bullys call him a "Skoal sissy" to his face.

Garrison did for U.S. Tobacco Co. what Brooke Shields did for Calvin Klein Jeans. Skoal and that inferior "snuff" stuff and other brands were well on the road of the cream churn and buggy whip when Madison Avenue hired Garrison to ride into town. Almost singlehandedly, he found a new market in the new generation which was anxious to display it's virility, but had been conditioned against the hazards of cigarettes.

And I've got some more news for the Copenhagen people, assuming that at least a few of them can read. Copenhagen nor Skoal isn't real snuff anymore than a jack-ass is a real horse. They are both hybrids. The "snuff" in vogue today is a cross between snuff and the type of chewing tobacco packaged loosely. Thus the term "snoose", which is popular among northern users.

Honest snuff, despite it's macho trappings, was a favorite of old ladies, especially in the South. And the most reckless three fingered user of today's dip can't hold a candle to the daintiest of the old-timey matrons when it comes to sheer messiness. Honest-to-gosh snuff defeats all efforts of bunching up in your cheek and behaving. As if by magic it seeks out holes at the corner of the mouth through which to dribble down the chin in tiny brown rivers of spittle.

The American Jack hasn't fared so well, but hybrid snuff's time has arrived. Smokeless tobacco is acceptable anywhere you can get away with it, which is almost everywhere if you are discreet, have a total disregard for good manners and possess a healthy degree of audacity.

I find it slightly ironic and amusing that the biggest detractors of today's snuff to be women. They don't see fit to work a cuspidor into the decor of the living room and simply detest it when you expectorate into trash containers, empty coke cans, and in case of emergency, the nearest potted plant.

Perhaps women's abhorrence of the delicacy explains the macho connotations. Real men used to smoke. Then women proved that not only could they do it too, and inhale, but weren't even afraid to light up in front of the preacher. Today more women are taking up the habit than men. But even women libbers refrain from spitting.

That is what it all boils down to ... spitting. Women don't do it very well and lack style and

A Lone Star Gas rate hike request for Snyder customers equaling some 4.2 percent was approved on first reading Thursday by the Snyder city council.

In addition, the city approved a stipulation in the request related to a "pass through" charge to be billed Lone Star customers based upon the company's cost of "providing service." In return, Lone Star agreed to allow the city a review of all such charges before they go into effect.

Man famous world over for bear expertise

ADMIRALTY ISLAND, Alaska (AP) — In an area of the world where Alaska brown bears outnumber humans four to one, Stan Price borrows a page on relationships from Teddy Roosevelt. He speaks softly and carries a big stick.

Price, 84, says he owns a few rifles, but doesn't believe in gunpowder diplomacy when dealing with "his" great brown bears.

Instead, to maintain his place in the pecking order, Price whacks them on the nose occasionally with his walking stick.

"You've got to use the stick and show them who's boss," Price says.

"Their nose is a sensitive area," he says. "It hurts when you hit them there. That's unlike their fist-sized brain, which is awfully difficult to find with a bullet."

The Admiralty Island browns are coastal cousins to Alaska grizzlies — the same species — making them the largest and most feared carnivores in North America. Adult males can weigh more than 1,200 pounds and reach up to nine feet when standing on their hind legs.

Price's "big stick policy" has served him well in his encounters with the unpredictable bears over the past 32 years.

"I've had my battles with them but my stick has saved me," he says. "They can't see too well so their first impulse is to hear something and charge. They'll swat you like a cat.

"I had a collarbone broken once," he says. "That was from a bear I thought I recognized but didn't. I hit her with the stick and she hit me back."

Price came to Alaska in 1922, as an electrical engineer for Westinghouse Corp. He drifted from fixing hydroelectric generators to fox farming, then into the timber business and finally tried his hand at gold mining.

Price and his late wife, Edna May, retired to a large spruce log house near Windfall Harbor on Admiralty Island in 1952. A short time later he began a new career as godfather to what has become a colony of up to 31 bears.

"There were no bears in here then," Price says. "I raised them as cubs over the years when their mothers were shot, or when they were abandoned.

"Those cubs grew up and had cubs of their own and pretty soon I had several generations of bears. There are two 28-year-old sows around here now, and both had twins this spring."

Except for the bears, Sitka deer and a shortwave radio, Price is alone in his converted logging bunkhouse on Admiralty Island, a million-acre area that was designated a National Monument in 1978 and a Wilderness Area in 1980.

Although the nearest neighbors are about 40 miles and a mountain range away in the village of Angoon, Price doesn't go without company. People arrive daily by boat or by float plane from Juneau, about a 20-minute flight to the north.

They watch — generally from a distance — as the huge but quick bears romp through nearby Pack Creek, which attracts three varieties of spawning salmon during the summer. In July and August, bears eat little but salmon.

Increasing numbers of tourists could mean establishing controls to safeguard the always tenuous bear-human relationships.

"We'll eventually station people down there to monitor the viewing population and see that they don't do anything foolish like feed the bears," says Don McKnight of Juneau, a regional supervisor with the Alaska Department of Fish and Game who spent some of his boyhood years on Admiralty.

Your Birthday

Oct. 7, 1984

You will be entering a fortunate new financial cycle this coming year. You might not reap big rewards initially, but growth will be steady and upward.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If things are presently running smoothly for you where your material interests are concerned don't introduce changes today. Stay on the winning course. The Matchmaker wheel reveals your compatibility to all signs, as well as shows to which signs you are best suited romantically. To get yours mail $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're not the type of person who goes unnoticed to begin with, but today your presence will be even more commanding than usual. You're a standout.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) This is a good day to wrap up two important matters you have left dangling. They can now be concluded to your satisfaction.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're a practical visionary today and you should be able to bring into being something others hope to do but don't know how to get off the launching pad.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) The areas you're apt to be the luckiest in today are those that affect your status and finances. Sow seeds in these fields.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Faith can move mountains today. If you truly believe in yourself and what you want to do, you're capable of remarkable accomplishments.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Someone you know casually may volunteer to do a favor for you today. It's best you accept quickly or she may change her mind.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) The quality of involvement will be far greater today in times spent with old friends rather than at gatherings with new people.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Instead of wasting your time on frivolous pursuits today try to do things that could help further your personal ambitions. Be productive, not playful.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Activities that contain competitive elements should be your cup of tea today. You'll play to win but also to enjoy yourself.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Persons you have close emotional bonds with are likely to do things for you today that they wouldn't do for others. Seek their aid if needed.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Partnership situations hold greater promise for you today than will operations you attempt to do independent of others. There is strength in unity.

Oct. 8, 1984

Your circle of friends and contacts will be considerably expanded this coming year. A word of warning, however: Don't enter into business deals with strangers.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Promises you make to others will not be taken lightly today. Be careful you don't commit yourself to doing something you haven't the wherewithal to deliver. Want to find out to whom you are best suited romantically? Send for your Matchmaker set by mailing $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Reveals compatibilities for all signs.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't shelve or postpone duties that you should be taking care of today because they'll mess up your schedule later when you attempt to squeeze them in.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Although material conditions may show signals of improving, this is not a time to be extravagant or wasteful. Make each penny count.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Poor judgment and impulsiveness could prove to be the two biggest deterrents to your success today. Do nothing out of rashness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Think before speaking today or else you may let the cat out of the bag regarding something that's supposed to be kept confidential.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It's best today to keep friends out of your business or financial affairs. They may try to help but they could hinder you in the process.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You cannot afford to be slack or undisciplined regarding important career matters today. One mistake and opportunities could slip through your fingers.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) There is a possibility today that someone who knows how to manipulate you may try to take advantage of your generous nature. Don't snap up the bait.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you borrow something from a friend today you will be held accountable if it is not returned in the same condition in which it was loaned to you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Disappointment is in the offing if you only cater to big wheels today in hopes they will do something for you to further your personal ambitions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Unless you take pride in your work today your performance could fall far below your usual high standards. Strive to do your best.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Forego temptations today to speculate in unfamiliar areas. Don't hope that Lady Luck will provide you with a bountiful yield.

English royalty sets visit to ranch lands

BIG HORN, Wyo. (AP) — A century after British dandies threw away fortunes on Western dreams, the queen of England is coming to an outpost of Anglophilia where cowboys drink tea and play polo.

Big Horn, Wyo., — population 217 — boasts several Britons as founding fathers. Many were second or third sons of nobility who stood almost no chance of inheriting a title or property.

Dozens if not hundreds of such fellows — all well educated, fine shots, excellent horsemen — cast their lot with the hardships and rewards to be found on the American frontier in the 1880s and 1890s.

They brought eccentric clothes and manners with them, but they also packed in a sweeping vision needed to create million-dollar and million-acre ranches. Most of the failed entrepreneurs left after the fearsome drought of '86 and the devastating blizzard of '87.

"The Brits shaped the West as we know it today," said Edward Taylor, whose family now owns the old Butch Cassidy ranch, including the famous outlaw Hole-in-the-Wall hideout. "Before the English and the Scottish came, there were just a bunch of poor sodbusters and mustered-out Army scouts trying to scrape by with a cow or two. The English showed the world — and us too — what could be done if a man thought big enough."

Perhaps Queen Elizabeth II will hear some of tales of the English immigrants when she visits Big Horn, with its 2-block main street and one store which serves as post office, gas station, dry goods and grocery, from Oct. 12-15.

Buckingham Palace says Queen Elizabeth II is on a "private visit" to the United States, the first such trip she's taken abroad since 1967. Translation of the palace press release means that the queen is coming to Big Horn to have fun. It is a quest that has launched English men and women toward Wyoming for three generations.

"They were among the first real tourists," said Elsa Spear Byron, the premier historian in Big Horn country. "Just about everybody who was anybody in England came here to hunt, fish and 'have adventures' in the Wild West."

"For the people with money it was a gracious time — as it always is if you're wealthy," said Mrs. Byron. "There were tea parties, and big hunts up in the mountains, and dances. In the winter, of course, everybody went back to England for 'the season,' including the ranchers. That's part of the reason they failed here."

One of the ranchers, Moreton Frewen, was born in 1853 in Sussex, a middle son of a titled father with a distinguished pedigree but not much cash. He dallied at Cambridge, excelled at polo, sponged off wealthier friends, and finally cast his fate with America when he lost big on a horse.

Moreton embarked for Wyoming, where he and his brother accomplished a feat which many a brave man in Wyoming today says has never been duplicated: they rode their horses west across the Big Horn Mountains, in December, and lived to brag about it.

"Ours was truly 'the valour of ignorance,'" wrote Moreton nearly a half-century later in his autobiography, "but we did it ... and when we told the tale at the store in Crazy Woman, the half-dozen of a mixed audience who heard us ... thought we were phenomenal liars."

What the Frewens found on the other side of the mountains was an empty prairie of lush grass and good water, where they went into the cattle business after raising hundreds of thousands of dollars in England with promises of a 25 to 50 percent annual return on friends' investments.

Other huge cattle corporations sprang up in Wyoming on the heels of the Frewens', and in less than a decade, more than $20 million from the British Isles was plunged into western cattle ranching. By 1887, most of it was lost, and Moreton Frewen and other Englishmen were headed back to England.

But other Englishmen destined for Big Horn fame were traveling westward across the Atlantic.

Oliver H. Wallop came to America from England in 1882. The son of the Earl of Portsmouth, he had four older brothers and not the faintest hope of inheriting the title. So he started breeding thoroughbred horses in Montana, and moved to Big Horn in 1888, where he became friends with Teddy Roosevelt and Buffalo Bill Cody. Soon his cousins, Malcolm and William Moncreiffe, joined him in Big Horn, where they supplied up to 20,000 horses a year to the British army.

Oliver H. Wallop became a U.S. citizen in 1904, and became the Seventh Earl of Portsmouth in 1922 when all his older brothers died without male heirs.

He returned to England to sit in the House of Lords, and kept his American citizenship until the British government forced him to renounce it in 1934.

Oliver H. Wallop had two sons, one of whom, Oliver M. Wallop, was the father of U.S. Sen. Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyoming.

grace when they must spit. Young boys become quite good at it at a very early age with little or no coaching. Most have it down to an art form by the time they start school. For some of us, this is proof enough that men are the superior of the species. I don't believe I've ever met a female who could hit the bull's eye of a red ant den, much less a scorpion in full run.

Jaundice is sign of liver damage

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My daughter's doctor told her that she has hepatitis. She also has yellow jaundice, itching and some red bumps on her scalp and body. Her doctor said she is not contagious. He said she got it from her fiance through sex.

How long will the yellow jaundice last? How long will it take her to recover from hepatitis? How much damage is done to the liver? How contagious is it, and in what way? Her doctor has not given her any medicine. Should she be taking medicine? She has two little children. Will kissing them on the mouth transmit the disease?

DEAR READER — In recent years it has been recognized that hepatitis caused by viruses is more complex than had been thought. Type A (infectious hepatitis) is transmitted in food and drink and is really food poisoning caused by a virus rather than a bacteria.

We used to call all other forms type B, or serum hepatitis. Today type B is primarily a sexually transmitted viral hepatitis. The virus is in saliva, semen and most body secretions. Medical and dental personnel tend to get this form because of their contact with body secretions.

We used to think that hepatitis from transfusions was type B, but today at least two other viruses, which are neither A nor B, are recognized as the main cause of tranfusion hepatitis.

I have discussed the details of new concepts of hepatitis in a new issue of The Health Letter, Special Report 27, Common Liver Disorders, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Your daughter's jaundice is an indication of liver damage. As her liver recovers, her jaundice should disappear. However, complete liver recovery after jaundice may take six months. The virus can be transmitted in saliva, and close intimate contact on a frequent basis can transmit the disease. Once your daughter has recovered, she will no longer have the virus to pass to others. Family or household members should be protected with specific hepatitis B immune globulin.

Often, medicine is of little benefit in treating viral hepatitis. The amount of physical activity permitted depends upon the patient's general feeling. Rest won't really speed up liver recovery. But liver disease does cause fatigue, and may do so for months.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Recently my doctor ran a complete blood test on me. Everything checked out fine, but he said I had Gilbert's syndrome, which has something to do with the liver and the blood. I was told it was nothing serious and that there was no treatment. Can you tell me anything more?

DEAR READER — Your blood color comes from hemoglobin in the red blood cells. This is an iron-containing pigment. As red blood cells are normally destroyed each day, this pigment is processed by the liver. The excess goes into the bile, but much of it is recycled.

Gilbert's syndrome is a disorder involving the way in which the liver processes this pigment. It can result in a slight yellowing of the whites of the eyes. It is an inherited condition and involves up to 7 percent of the population. It is harmless, and it does not affect liver function or lead to any additional problems. The main difficulty is being sure that the minor changes are not mistaken for a more serious liver disorder.

Gas may be due to fermentation

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am over 60 and have excessive gas almost every day, always in the evening. I have it at other times, too. There is no pain, just a lot of uncontrollable gas.

My daily food intake is not unusual. My morning drink consists of orange juice, dry milk, egg and a teaspoon of vinegar. I eat granola cereal.

A colleague of mine has a similar condition. Apparently it is not uncommon, but embarrassment simply causes victims to suffer in silence. Can you send me some helpful suggestions or make some recommendations in your column?

DEAR READER — You are certainly right that it is not an uncommon problem. As many as one person out of 10 in the general population has significant discomfort from gas. About half of the people who see a specialist in gastroenterology do so because of "gas." Almost everyone has some gas, but many are simply not aware of it.

You can't swallow food or drink without swallowing some air. At one time many doctors believed that the chief source of "gas" was air-swallowing, which is often a nervous habit. That can happen, but it is now more generally recognized that most gas problems come from the bacterial fermentation of undigested food.

Often you can determine which foods are causing the gas. Complex carbohydrates are often the cause, since they may not be completely digested. Bran, which is often recommended for bulk, is a good example, as are many "bulk laxatives."

Often, certain foods are the main source of the gas. I have discussed the food problem in relation to gas in a new Health Letter, Special Report 23, Avoiding Gas and Distention, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

The reason you may have no pain is that you have no colon spasm. Gas usually does not cause pain unless it is trapped. Since many people do not have a colon spasm, the swallowed air or gas from fermentation is simply passed unnoticed. But even if gas causes pain it is often food — specifically, undigested food — that is the real cause of gas.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I love to take long, brisk walks for exercise, but on the last leg of a two-mile walk the skin on my upper legs and thighs begins to itch. By the time I get home it itches wildly and is beet red.

I have tried wearing various different kinds of clothes (jeans, sweatpants) to eliminate this problem. I thought it was from dry skin, so I tried coating my thighs with skin lotion before walking, but it was no use.

What might cause this itching and what can I do to prevent it? I'm 35, in good health and want to include walking in my exercise routine. I do have dry skin and get occasional hives.

DEAR READER — You could have a sensitivity to a detergent in your clothes, but the most likely cause is "allergy to exertion." It is called exercise-induced anaphylaxis and usually accompanies moderate to intense exercise. The mechanism is not clearly understood. I would suggest you see an allergist, who may want you to try an antihistaminic or anti-allergic preparation before walking. It might help.

Kids' Reading Program Is Fundamentally a Giveaway

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I love to read, but unfortunately our sons, ages 7 and 3, prefer to watch television. All efforts to interest them in reading have failed, so they watch cartoons and sitcoms until they're bug-eyed.

How can we, and other parents, pry our children away from the tube and get them to read?

FRUSTRATED IN L.A.

DEAR FRUSTRATED: You rattled the right cage. The key to knowledge is reading.

There's a national organization called RIF (Reading Is Fundamental) whose purpose it is to encourage young people to discover the joys of reading and acquire the reading habit at an early age. It recommends appropriate reading for children from birth to 8 years old.

RIF is headed by the very able wife of our vice president, Barbara Bush, who has worked tirelessly to make it the largest and most effective reading motivation program in the United States.

Working in local communities, RIF develops projects that allow children to choose—and keep as their own—three books per year that interest them. To date, the RIF program has brought more than 50 million books into American homes.

There is a terrific pamphlet titled "Tips for Parents." It not only helps parents select appropriate reading material for children of all ages, it recommends books for parents to read to their little ones who are not old enough to read themselves.

Interested parties should write to: Reading Is Fundamental Inc., Smithsonian Institution, 600 Maryland Ave. S.W., Washington, D.C. 20560.

The booklet is free, but because this is a non-profit organization, please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (37 cents) envelope.

DEAR ABBY: I bring my Philadelphia Daily News to work every morning so I can read it on my breaks and during lunch hour.

One of my co-workers always asks to read it. Then he asks if he can keep it to take home. He does this every day. If I hide the newspaper, he asks where it is.

Wouldn't you think if he wants to take my newspaper home he would offer to buy it from me? There are times when I would like to take it home myself, but knowing that he wants to take it home, I hate to hurt his feelings by refusing.

So what's the solution, Abby?

STUCK IN PHILLY

DEAR STUCK: Break with precedent and tell your coworker that he is welcome to read your newspaper at work, but you would like to take it home yourself to read more thoroughly.

Be pleasant, direct and firm. Don't ask him—tell him.

And don't blow it by being apologetic or wishy-washy. The meek may inherit the earth, but they're also taken advantage of.

* * *

(Every teen-ager should know the truth about drugs, sex and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (this includes postage) to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

---

Do you know where the term "carat" comes from? According to "The Almanac of Investments," it is derived from the Italian word carato, the Arabic word qirat, and the Greek word keration, all meaning fruit of the carob tree. Tree pods containing seeds were once used to balance scales in Oriental bazaars. Since then the word has been adopted to describe the purity of gold and the weight of precious metals and pearls.

Foreign investors are welcome in province

XINING, China (AP) — Bald brown mountains loom and coal smoke dirties the thin air in Communist China's desolate northwest province of Qinghai, rich in resources but lacking in almost everything else, including people.

Tibetan nomads camped around vast Lake Qinghai tend flocks, roast mutton over smoldering animal manure, ferment buckets of yak-milk yogurt and practice Buddhist rites under the atheist state's wary eye.

For the inmates of Qinghai's 10 reform-through-labor camps, it is said to be a 12-hour day of baking bricks, smashing stones or doing what the authorities refer to only as "agricultural and industrial work."

Qinghai has the largest land area and lowest population density in the world's most populous nation.

The province's 4 million people, from majority Han Chinese to Hui Moslems, live a meager life, mostly in grimy mud-brick villages among grass ranges and peaks scoured by erosion.

"Due to various historical reasons and geography, Qinghai is a bit backward economically compared to the other provinces," Gov. Huang Jingbo told a group of foreign journalists who toured the province in late August.

But he said Qinghai's appearance belied a land of vast oil fields, 60 billion tons of salt, 20 million tons of asbestos, China's lushest wool, some of its best grazing land and 250 species of wild animals, from desert camels to snow leopards.

Eager to exploit the government's new policies encouraging private enterprise and foreign investment, officials, journalists for a chaperoned visit to introduce the world of Qinghai.

Reforms since the political convulsions of the 1960s and 1970s are evident. Television antennas protrude from many roofs, and streets are crowded with hawkers selling goods ranging from steaming noodles to locally made blue jeans.

When Communist Party General Secretary Hu Yaobang visited the province in July 1983, he sanctioned the start of Qinghai's opening to the outside world.

Non-Asian faces are still a novelty; people stare curiously and point at the "wai guo ren" — "foreigners."

Huang said skilled Chinese were encouraged to resettle here with offers of higher wages and paid annual monthlong vacations to visit home provinces, an unusual bonus in China.

The population-control policy that limits couples to one child is not enforced in Qinghai, which will need a large work force to build railroads, highways, airports, factories and hotels.

Chinese consider Qinghai the land of "lao gai," the Communist term for "reform through labor," with remote prisons where escape is hard because there is nowhere to flee.

Inmates are said to include common criminals and political offenders, who undergo hard labor, relentless study of Communist literature and self-criticism "struggle" sessions.

"The saying does exist that Qinghai is an area of labor reform," Huang said. "Of course this is unfair to the image of this province."

Officials bused the visitors to factories, a Tibetan nomad village and old religious shrines, and treated them to an all-mutton banquet. Requests to visit labor camps were denied.

Huang said Qinghai had 10 camps with 10,000 inmates.

Huang, 65, said he had been accused of counterrevolution and had undergone labor reform in northeast China during the 1966-76 Cultural Revolution.

Two years ago he applied to come to Qinghai. "I'm quite happy here, although it is economically backward," he said.

Interest in martial arts is increasing among Americans

NEW YORK (AP) — When Emmy Villaverde was mugged by two knife-wielding youths on a New York street five years ago, she decided to learn karate.

She started to train in the Oriental martial arts, she says, not to fight muggers, but to build self-confidence. "I've heard somewhere that criminals usually prey on those who appear to be timid and vulnerable," said the 33-year-old hotel clerk.

Two years later, she was accosted again by a thug on New York's busy Fifth Avenue in broad daylight. "Apparently, I hadn't gained enough confidence to show off and help discourage a mugger from thrusting his hand into my purse," Ms. Villaverde said.

But this time, she didn't panic. In one sweeping move, she turned around, grabbed him by the neck and gave him a kneekick to the groin, sending him reeling to the pavement.

"I just took my wallet from his hand and walked away," she said.

Like Ms. Villaverde, an increasing number of Americans, especially young women, are learning karate and other Oriental martial arts, mainly to defend themselves against criminals, said James Coleman, an editor of Black Belt Magazine in Burbank, Calif.

"A rising crime rate in big cities is a major reason for most people to train in the arts of self-defense," he said.

Martial arts are also popular as a form of physical fitness, Coleman said.

"More and more Americans are becoming health-conscious these days and they think it's a good idea to exercise and learn to defend themselves at the same time," Coleman said in a telephone interview.

Coleman and others at Black Belt, one of three U.S. magazines on the martial arts, could not say exactly how many Americans are training in martial arts. But judging by an increase in subscriptions to their magazines, interest in the martial arts has risen considerably in recent years, they said.

Henry Cho, an organizer of the U.S. Karate Championships held in New York last March, said an estimated 2 million Americans had taken up karate, kung fu or taekwondo at one time or another. Just a decade ago, there were 400,000 martial arts enthusiasts in the country, he said.

Karate and taekwondo are Japanese and Korean versions respectively of kung fu, the 2,000-year-old Chinese martial arts. While kung fu stresses offensive aspects of the martial arts, karate emphsizes defense, with taekwondo falling somewhere in between, explained Cho, who is also an instructor at St. John's University in New York.

"A lot of young people also come to learn the martial arts after watching kung fu movies made popular by the late Chinese movie star Bruce Lee," Cho said. "But those who seek a quick solution to their fear of crime, or those whose interest was aroused by fanciful kung fu movies on television, do not last long. They usually drop out after a first few sessions," he said. "It isn't easy, you see, to learn even the rudimentary moves of karate."

Children as young as 6 are also learning the martial arts.

"Parents are encouraging their children to take karate lessons for mental discipline as well as for physical fitness," said Cho.

The instructor, however, warned against over-confidence. He said many of his students were at a point where they felt they could fight off an attacker in a "hand-to-hand" confrontation.

"But it's dangerous to be overconfident in one's ability to defend oneself," he said. "You simply don't know enough about the other guy."

Sgt. Peter Sweeney of the New York Police Department voiced a similar caution: "Whether the people know martial arts or not, they should contact police when they are in trouble."

Another police officer who declined to be identified by name put it more bluntly: "A bullet travels faster than hands."

Cho said karate was also popular in Europe and spreading fast to other parts of the world. He said there was talk among sports leaders of proposing that the International Olympic Committee consider including karate in the 1988 Olympic Games in Seoul, South Korea.

Ms. Villaverde, who has earned her black belt since she knocked down a mugger on Fifth Avenue, said she would probably never fight a mugger again, especially in an isolated place or at night.

Killing of white buffalo considered historical event

The search for buffalo first brought hunters into the Scurry County Texas area in 1876. It was on October 7, 1876, that Josiah Wright Mooar became famous when he shot a white buffalo just 10 miles northwest of where the town of Snyder is today.

J. Wright Mooar and his brother, John--both natives of Vermont--first camped on the banks of Deep Creek in Scurry County on October 6, 1876. They had led a hardy bunch of men into Texas by way of Fort Griffin. These men had faced hardships in Kansas and Oklahoma, and they were not afraid of the dangers of Indians, blizzards, sandstorms and sickness which would befall them in Texas.

The hunting party left camp early on the morning of October 7 and traveled westward up Deep Creek. They had camped on the banks of the creek which the Mooar brothers had named the first day. It was a beautiful creek with shade trees along its banks. Autumn leaves had already settled along the banks from an early frost.

It took the hunters until noon to travel 10 miles up the creek where they made camp again. After making camp, J. Wright Mooar rode west toward Borden County looking for herds of buffalo.

After riding most of the day, Mooar returned to the campsite and stopped on a hillside overlooking the camp. The men were getting ready for supper, and Mooar could see the smoke rising into the sky as the cook prepared the buffalo steaks.

With the sun shining from behind him, Mooar had a panoramic view of the valley below. The horses, wagons, and men looked like small toys against the vastness of the valley and the hills in the background. Just a short distance from the camp, Mooar saw a small herd of buffalo grazing peacefully. Suddenly, something glistened in the sun and Mooar knew immdiately that it was a white buffalo.

Mooar knew the white buffalo was a prized animal, because he had heard of them in Kansas. These animals were prized by both the white hunter and the Indians. The Indians looked upon the white beast as being sacred, and the white hunter knew the hide would bring a great price to anyone lucky enough to kill one.

Riding quickly into camp, Mooar asked if others had seen the white buffalo. The other hunters told Mooar they had not seen it, but his report brought lots of excitement to the camp. Mooar asked them for help as time was short and night was coming on.

Dan Dowd, one of the hunters, volunteered to go with him. Dowd and Mooar rode down a dry creek and tied their horses. Slipping down the banks of the creek, the two men moved cautiously toward the herd. When they cam within a few yards of the herd, Mooar and Dowd crawled out of the creek bed and crouched in the tall grass.

As they looked at the white buffalo standing peacefully under a cottonwood tree, J. Wright Mooar said to Dowd, "Take a good look, Dan, there is the gamiest animal on earth--a white buffalo."

With these words, Mooar took careful aim at the white buffalo and fired while resting his elbow on the prairie grassland to steady the rifle. The .50 caliber Sharps rifle cracked and the white buffalo fell to the ground. Angered by the falling of their white friend, the rest of the herd rushed together in a moment of frustration and confusion. Giving a final death kick, the white buffalo cow law motionless at the foot of the tree.

Seeing the intruders and perhaps wanting revenge, the small herd rushed toward the two hunters. Snorting and bellowing, a buffalo bull headed toward the two men and Mooar brought him thundering down with a single shot. As the buffalo sped by, the hunters brought two more down with their rifle fire.

The whole affair had lasted less than 10 minutes, but Mooar and Dowd felt exhausted from the ordeal. As they walked over to the white buffalo cow, the men could see why the Indians held the beast in such high esteem. They marveled at its beauty and Mooar determined that it would become a trophy of his own.

The animal was quickly skinned and the men hung the meat in a tree for the night. There it would be safe from the coyotes and wolves which inhabited the Deep Creek valley.

Mooar displayed the hide to anyone who was interested. He saw that it was well preserved, and Mooar declined several offers to sell it. President Teddy Roosevelt, upon seeing it in 1904 at Saint Louis, offered Mooar $5,000 for it. The offer was kindly refused.

Early McDow, a lifelong resident of Scurry County, recalls living near the Mooar ranch early in life. He remembers the hide being stretched out on the floor near the firelace on cold winter nights. McDow and others sat around the fireplace listening to Mooar tell of his adventures in the west during buffalo hunting days.

The buffalo hide is carefully preserved today at the ranch home of Judy Hays, a granddaughter of J. Wright Mooar. She lives just 200 yards from the site where the buffalo was killed. After the buffalo was gone, Mooar settled down to ranching and other businesses in Scurry and Mitchell County. Mooar had hunted from Kansas to Texas, but when the hunt ended he stayed in West Texas for the rest of his life.

When Mooar was a young boy hunting in Kansas, another hunter once said of him..."I wonder how far that kid is going...to try to find where the sun goes down..." But Mooar never found where the sun goes down exactly, but Scurry County and West Texas were near enough for him. Mooar died on May 1, 1940 in Scurry County and is buried in the Old Snyder Cemetery.

Note: As a memorial of this event, Scurry County celebrates White Buffalo Days in October of each year. This year's celebration is on October 13 at the Scurry County Coliseum. Parts of this story are excerpted from the book "In Search of the Buffalo" by Charles G. Anderson.

DISPLAY HIDE--John W. Mooar (left) and Josiah Wright Mooar display the hide of the white buffalo which J. Wright Mooar killed on Deep Creek near Snyder on Oct. 7, 1876. The hide is in the possession of Judy Hays, a granddaughter of J. Wright Mooar.

TOURIST ATTRACTION--This statute of the white buffalo was erected on the Scurry County Chourthouse lawn in 1967. Many people, including children in the public schools of Scurry County, contributed towards its purchase. People from all over the United States and many foreign countries stop at the courthouse in Snyder to see the statute.

THE SINGLES BOOM

To people in their early 30s, marriage is becoming less popular. The percentage of never-married Americans in that age group has more than doubled since 1970. It has risen from 9.4 to 20 percent for men, and from 6.2 to 13 percent for women.
