City to OK voting plan, college to fight

By RICHARD HORN
Staff Writer

While city officials are ready to approve settlement of a lawsuit filed by the League of United Latin American Citizens, the Howard County Junior College District is preparing to fight a similar suit in court.

The Big Spring City Council is scheduled to vote on a plan Tuesday night that will expand the council from five to seven members — three single-member districts and four at-large positions, including that of mayor.

The change would take effect with the April 1984 city elections and would divide Big Spring voters into three districts. District 1 in the northern and western parts of the city would have a minority population of 62.5 percent. The other two districts would each have about a 15 percent minority makeup.

The agreement was discussed at a closed meeting last month between councilmen and representatives of the 20-member Big Spring LULAC chapter.

City Manager Don Davis said last week that he had received the final papers from LULAC's lead council, Rolando Rios of the federally-funded Southwest Voter Registration Education Project.

But he said City Attorney Doyle Curtis found minor problems in the agreement and had asked Rios to make some changes.

"They were only minor problems in the wording," Davis said. "It didn't change the final agreement."

If the out-of-court settlement is approved, the city will have spent about $13,200 on the lawsuit, compared to almost $100,000 in costs incurred by the city of Lubbock in a similar case still in litigation.

The $13,200, Davis said, includes $2,200 in fees to legal consultant Walter Mizzel of Austin, $1,000 annually in expenses for the new at-large, by-district election system, and $10,000 for remodeling of the council chambers to allow for two additional councilmen.

Davis said the remodeling and election expenses are variable. These are amounts the city has budgeted.

But similar suits filed in November — charging that at-large elections dilute minority voting strength — also named the Howard County Junior College District, the city of Lamesa, and the Big Spring and Lamesa school districts.

R.H. Weaver, attorney for the Howard County Junior College District, said the district's negotiations with LULAC had stopped and the board of trustees was preparing for an October court date.

Dr. Charles Hays, president of Howard College, said the decision was made because the college

All in the family

The Perkins prop up C-City play

By JOY CULWELL
C-City Correspondent

The Jack Perkins family of Colorado City knows that the family that plays together stays together.

A few months ago when they heard the next play scheduled for the Colorado City Opera House was The King and I, the whole family decided to get involved.

Father Jack is a pharmacist at Perkins Apothecary and Mercantile in Colorado City. Because he has never acted, he decided to help with props and scenery changes. Now that the play is ready for production, Jack has a new appreciation for the art, and he realizes how many persons are required backstage.

Mother Leslie, whose thing is organization, accepted the role of one of the king's wives and understudy to the lead of Anna. She realized the challenge of learning the part and attending several nights of hard practice a week in addition to being a housewife and mother, church worker and helping to run three stores (Perkins Apothecary, Kiowa Trader in Colorado City and Perkins Gift Emporium in Snyder).

Daughter Lauren, 8, plays the Crown Princess, whose role includes singing and dancing as well as spoken parts. Daughter Carrie, 5, can't read yet, but she knows all the lines and songs in the play. Both girls have helped their mother learn her lines. Lauren says she's looking forward to the audience reaction to her big scene with Anna in the play.

"Carl Beery Moore, the director of the play, has been a wonderful teacher," Leslie said.

In the beginning, he told the girls they would not be treated as children but as cast members. Acting comes naturally to the girls, anyway, because their cousin, Shannon Perkins, 15, has directed them in many plays and musicals at home.

Initially, Leslie's purpose was to expose the girls to the theater, and she also considered that she would be with her children in a summertime project.

That's where Leslie's scheduling talents came in, because both girls take swimming and gymnastics lessons during their vacation from school. They also got the opportunity to keep a cousin, Kathryn, while her mother and brother were in the hospital.

That's the way the summer started, and then it got "wild and wooley," Leslie said.

June 16 is a day the family will always remember because that's the day Grandfather Joe Perkins suffered a stroke and was hospitalized. The family schedule had to be expanded to include daily visits to the hospital. When Grandfather Joe's speech therapy started, the girls picked it up and conducted classes anytime they could get together.

Leslie chauffeured, stayed at the hospital, went to the market with her aunt, Mae Perkins, for the three stores, attended play practice and taught Sunday school at the First United Methodist Church where she also sings in the choir.

As if that weren't enough, Leslie is also an ambassador for the chamber of commerce, cutting opening day ribbons, serving on the parks and recreation committee and sitting on the advisory board for the Wallace Center. She is also president of the Rose Circle, the women's group from her church.

Jack helps with the housework by "picking up" occasionally. While Leslie cooks breakfast, she starts the washing machine. "As a matter of fact," Leslie said, "if I am in the house, the washing machine is running."

Of course, the microwave oven helps out, so does cooking big meals outside. They will cook steaks for one night and while the coals are still hot, they throw on some hamburgers for the next night.

Will all this be worth the sacrifices? Just ask the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Moore and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Perkins Sr., all of San Angelo, who will be sitting fifth row center when the curtain goes up Tuesday on the premiere performance.

The King and I will be staged nightly at 8 p.m. Aug. 23-31 except for Sunday night. Tickets are $5 and can be reserved by calling 915-728-3491.

Local union president pleased with AT&T contract settlement

Says workers may be back on job Thursday

From staff and wire reports

Although striking AT&T workers remained on the picket lines today, a tentative $3 billion contract agreement between American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and its unions seems certain to end the strike by 675,000 workers.

Local operators and technicians, idled for more than two weeks by the walkout, greeted the news of Sunday's settlement with optimism, expecting to be back at work later this week.

Although workers won't return until their local contract is settled, local union No. 12101 president Larry Russell said he doesn't foresee any problems with negotiations.

"General consensus is that we have a damn good national contract," Russell said. "We appreciate people putting up with us. We've gotten a lot of support locally."

Russell said local workers should be back on the job by Thursday morning if all goes well. Thirty-four union workers plus two non-union employees participated in the strike locally.

The strike affected about 1,000 workers in the Permian Basin and approximately 40,000 workers in Texas, according to Bell officials.

"We're ready to go back to work," Russell said. "But we were willing to stay out as long as we had to."

Meanwhile, with local issues ranging from work schedules to holidays and seasonal layoffs remaining on the table, picketing continues.

Leaders of the Communications Workers of America and two smaller unions voted Sunday to accept a proposed three-year pact providing substantial job security guarantees and economic gains. It also could mean higher telephone rates for customers.

STRIKING WORKER
...may go back to work

Glenn E. Watts, president of the CWA, hailed the agreement "in this volatile 'information age'" as a pace-setter that will help all Americans faced with the possible loss of work due to rapidly changing technology.

The proposed pact also was approved by leaders of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and the Telecommunications International Union.

The CWA represents 525,000 AT&T employees and the other two unions claim more than 150,000 people.

The strikers will remain on the picket lines until some 100 local collective bargaining agreements, which must be included in the national accord, are concluded across the country. Watts and the leaders of the electrical workers and telecommunications unions said they were confident there would be no setbacks in the local bargaining.

Watts said the CWA's members are poised to return to work at 12:01 a.m. EDT Thursday. Members of the other unions also will return to work later in the week when the local bargaining is finished. All strikers would work while awaiting ballots to cast votes in the formal ratification process.

The pact will give experienced workers a 5.5 percent wage boost in the first year, two annual 1.5 percent increases in August 1984 and August 1985 and continued cost-of-living allowances based on a formula which pays 75 percent of the increase in the cost-of-living as measured by the Consumer Price Index.

The highest paid systems technician working under the rate paid in New York City, for instance, would go from $565.50 a week currently to $658.50 by the time the contract expires in 1986.

The present average hourly wage for workers covered by the contract would rise from $12.33 to $14.35, not including cost-of-living increments.

Rex Reed, vice president for labor relations at AT&T, described

John Allman to retire as prison superintendent

John Allman, superintendent of the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp, said this morning he will retire in April.

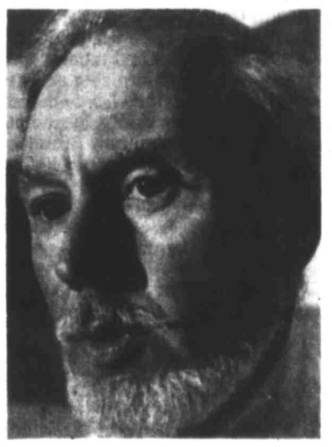

Responding to rumors on the subject, Allman said, "I will reach retirement age in April 1984 and will retire then."

He said he will be 50 years old on April 21 and will probably leave his position on that date. No successor has been announced.

"It's a little early to start talking about it, isn't it?" Allman aksed.

Allman of 803 Highland has over 20 years service with the federal prison system. He has been superintendent of the local mimimum security facility since it opened on the old Webb Air Force Base in 1978.

He said he has notified the Federal Bureau of Prisons of his decision. The bureau will probably name a successor in January, Allman said.

Public hearing set for street grants

A public hearing on a proposed Texas Community Development Grant will be held at the Big Spring City Council's meeting Tuesday.

The council meets at 6:30 p.m. at City Hall at Fourth and Nolan.

According to City Administrative Assistant Bill Hall, the proposal is for about $500,000 in funds for the paving of Young, Dixie, State and Donley streets, and for water and sewer line improvements off West 16th.

The council is scheduled to vote on the grant application after the hearing.

The council will also hear a proposal to rename streets in the Industrial Park.

The proposal, presented by Dale Worthan, calls for the streets to be named for local citizens who have contributed to Big Spring's industrial growth.

In other matters, the council will:

- Consider a grant application for improvements at the Comanche Trail Park pool.
- Appoint one member to the local Crime Stoppers Board and appoint one person to the Police Reserve Compensation Board.
- Approve advertising for bids for a decollator — a machine the seperates copies on computer paper.

Commission hears intoxilyzer request

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

Howard County commissioners heard a request today from a Department of Public Safety official to reconsider their decision not to fund an alcohol breath test program.

Brian Edmiston from the Austin DPS Alcohol Test Program division met with commissioners over an hour this morning to urge them to continue the Intoxilyzer program shared with Ector and Midland counties.

Commissioners decided Aug. 8 to not spend approximately $770 a month to continue the breath test program supervised by Harold Loveless of Midland. Loveless told commissioners in April federal funding for the certification and chemical testing program was ending after 12 years.

Edmiston said the DPS would be "strapped" to increase their territories to include Howard, Ector and Midland counties.

"We have all we can handle," Edmiston said. "You'll be losing a certain amount of service."

He estimated each DPS supervisor of alcohol test machines covered 3,000 miles a month in his territory.

The DPS official said ending the Loveless-supervised program would also end the city police practice of charging persons with driving while intoxicated. Police officers approved by the state to use the Intoxilyzer would lose their certification, he said.

Loveless is responsible for certification of personnel, maintaining the machine and acting as expert witness on the test itself.

The county would then lose revenue from county court DWI cases since fewer would be filed, he said.

Edmiston recommended having the suspects pay for the test by increasing the court costs.

Commissioners decided to meet with the DPS and the chief of police to discuss the issue.

In other action, commissioners approved adding another deputy to the sheriff's office. Sheriff A.N. Standard told commissioners increased activity in the county, particularly at night, warranted additional personnel for night duty.

The new position would be effective Oct. 1.

Commissioners awarded bids for four evaporative coolers for the county fair barns to Tate Company at $5,000. Two other bids from Jeter Sheet Metal and Arrow Refrigerator were $6,140 and $7,162 respectively.

Red Cross reorganizes into volunteer group

Because it was denied operating funds for 1983-84 by the United Way, the local Red Cross Chapter has regrouped as a volunteer organization, according to Edith Gay, secretary.

This means there will be no paid positions within the local Red Cross, and monies for operations will come from chapter fundraising activities.

Mrs. Gay said the local chapter will still sponsor activities in water safety, cardio-pulmonary resucitation and service to military families and veterans. There will also be a disaster relief committee headed by Louise Nuckolls, Dan Wise and Dale Young.

United Way officials said the Red Cross was denied about $26,000 in requested funding because most the chapter's programs were not applicable to Howard County.

Those wishing to contribute to the Red Cross may send donations to P.O. Box 1790, Big Spring 79720.

board feels there is no discrimination in the election system.

"The board decided to keep a voting box on the northside, and since the district has been set up only one Chicano has run," Hays said. "(The board) said they would encourage minorities, but they think everyone should run in the same way."

Weaver said he believes Rios will represent LULAC, but could give no estimate of the costs of taking the case to court.

Big Spring school Superintendent Lynn Hise said the district is still negotiating. He refused to comment on the suit or the city's proposed settlement. The district's attorney, Guil Jones III, could not be reached for comment.

The Lamesa suit was filed by the Rios' organization, but does not name the Lamesa LULAC chapter as plaintiff; it names instead four brothers — Manuel Sorolla, Jose Zorolla, Victor Sorolla and Jamie Sorolla.

Lamesa City Manager Paul Feazelle said the city has discussed some possible settlements with the plaintiffs, but has not reached an agreement or set a timetable for reaching a final settlement.

"We're willing to look at the type of settlement Big Spring is working on," he said. "If it passes, that's one proposal that the council may consider."

Lamesa school Superintendent Neal Chastain said he has heard little from the plaintiffs in the suit.

"We know we're being sued, and we've received some papers, but that's all." he said.

Chastain said he was not aware of Big Spring's proposed settlement with LULAC, but said he doesn't know if the 3-3-1 election system would work in Lamesa.

"It would depend on how the districts were drawn," he said.

Two Hispanics — City Councilman Johnny Garcia and school board member Tony Reyes — were elected by Lamesans in April.

the accord as a "balanced settlement and one really that serves all parties quite well."

Watts said the settlement, which would provide AT&T employees with $3 billion worth of wage increases and improved benefits over the next three years, "contains very substantial improvements" over an earlier offer that had been rejected by his union's bargaining committee.

Watts said he would not be surprised if telephone rates rise substantially "because of the process that's under way of reorganization of the Bell System, of divestiture, the whole introduction of competition ... ."

But he insisted that any rate increases should not be blamed on the unions.

"I am suggesting that during the life of this contract, the rate of productivity in our industry is likely to go up 21 percent, and a 21 percent increase in productivity would more than pay for any little $3 billion increase that we got out of it," he said.

Reed said that "I can't answer specifically with regard to phone rates going up, but certainly I would say that wage increases do impact on (telephone) rates. ... I would fully hope that our productivity in the future would continue to hold down rates."

In enticing the union leaders to accept the proposed pact, the AT&T relented on a host of major issues.

Asked how the unions managed to obtain major contract improvements, Watts said that " ... while it is true that the average local telephone call does not seem to be adversely affected, a great many things that must go on daily in the running of the business are adversely affected when 700,000 people are away from the job.

"That had an impact, perhaps not readily obvious to the general public, but it certainly had an impact that was obvious to the management of this industry," he added.

Morton Bahr, head of the CWA's District 1 in New York and New Jersey, said that when management "realized that we weren't going to give up something we had fought 30 years to gain ... then things started to fall in place."

The company abandoned its demand that employees, for the first time, contribute up to 20 percent of the cost of health insurance premiums.

It accepted language that would require AT&T, after the scheduled Jan. 1 divestiture into seven regional operating companies, to spend $30 million a year in 1984 and 1985 on training and retraining programs aimed at protecting current employees against the loss of jobs due to automation and other technological innovation.

Deaths

Doris Crooker

Mrs. William B. (Doris) Crooker, 84, died at 11:06 a.m. Sunday at Malone-Hogan Hospital after a short illness. Services will be at 10 a.m. Tuesday at St. Mary's Episcopal Church under the direction of the Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home. The Rev. Robert Bonnington, pastor, will officiate. Burial will be in Kensico Cemetery in Mount Pleasant, N.Y.

She was born June 30, 1899 in Theresa, N.Y. She married William Crooker Aug. 29, 1918. They moved to Big Spring in 1965. He died Nov. 11, 1976. She had been a legal technician for the National Broadcasting Co. for 35 years in New York City. She was a member of St. Mary's Episcopal Church.

She is survived by one son, William B. Crooker Jr. of Big Spring; three grandchildren, Karen Profitt of Big Spring, William B. Crooker III of Waco and Doris Willingham of Temple, Texas; and three great-grandchildren.

One daughter, Jane M. Crooker, died Sept. 22, 1940.

Lottie Sefton

Mrs. Henry T. (Lottie) Sefton, 88, died today in a local nursing home. Services are pending with the Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home.

Don E. Brown, 52, died at 1:44 p.m. Sunday at an Odessa hospital. Services will be at 1 p.m. Tuesday at the Nalley-Pickle Rosewood Chapel with the Rev. Logan Peterson, pastor of Emmanuel Baptist Church, officiating. Burial will be in Trinity Memorial Park.

He was born Feb. 3, 1941 in Lamesa. He moved to Big Spring in 1948. He married Carolyn Mills. He was an independent trucking contractor and a Baptist.

Survivors include his wife; two sons, Kenneth Brown of Midland and Larry Brown of Abilene; his mother, Jeanetta Brown of Big Spring; two sisters, Mrs. Ron (Doris) Booth and Jeri Daniels, both of Big Spring; and four grandchildren.

Other deaths

Alton E. Broussard

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — Alton E. Broussard, a journalist who worked at the New Orleans Times-Picayune and several other Louisiana newspapers before joining the University of Southwestern Louisiana for 37 years, died Sunday. He was 72 years old.

Benigno S. Aquino Jr.

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Benigno S. Aquino Jr., regarded as the strongest challenger to Philippine President Ferdinand E. Marcos, was assassinated Sunday as he stepped off a plane returning from three years' self-imposed exile in the United States. He was 50.

A man in an airport utility uniform shot the former senator once in the head and then was slain in a blaze of military gunfire, according to officials.

Aquino was a prisoner for almost seven years under the Marcos regime. He was jailed in 1972 and in 1977 was found guilty of subversion and the murder of a village political leader. Aquino denied the charges.

Before his imprisonment Aquino was regarded as a strong challenger to Marcos in elections scheduled in 1973.

Criminal mischief arrests may clear 20 of 34 cases

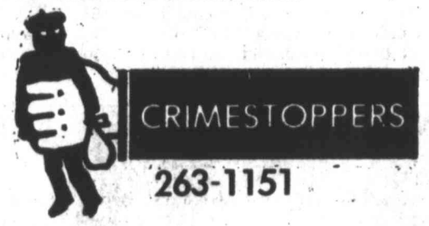

Big Spring police have cleared 20 of 34 criminal mischief cases with the arrest of three white male juveniles, police Lt. Alvis Jeffcoat said this morning.

The three boys — all Big Spring residents — have been charged with criminal mischief and their cases have been turned over to Howard County Juvenile Probabtion Officer Margy Thompson.

Police reports today showed the following:

- Nine television sets valued at $7,700 and $30 in cash were stolen from Rent-To-Own at 1307 Gregg between 5 p.m. Saturday and 6:30 p.m. Sunday.
- Garry Sinclair of 814 Willia, said four males assaulted him with their fists while he was at the Sonic Drive-In at 11:45 p.m. Saturday.
- Cyneather Woodruff of 615 N.E. 10th told police someone stole $1,500 in jewels $25 in currency and a lawnmower from her residence between Aug. 7 and Friday night.
- Two residents in the Greenbelt Homes area reported windows in their homes broken at between 9 p.m. and 9:45 p.m. Saturday.

Residents included Danny Patrick at 2512 Albrook and Nathaniel Burts at 2621 Albrook.

2 men injured in wreck; both in intensive care

Two men remain in intensive care in a local hospital after their vehicles collided head-on Sunday south of Big Spring on U.S. 87.

Carlos Antonio Gonzales, 26, of 101 N.W. Eighth and Garry Don Hayes, 40, of Lubbock are in stable condition at Malone-Hogan Hospital, according to a hospital spokeswoman.

The accident occurred at 3:15 a.m., according to Department of Public Safety reports. Both men, who were alone in their cars, have been charged with driving while intoxicated, reports say.

- Howard County sheriff's deputies were called to the Don E. Brown residence on North Birdwell Sunday at 10 a.m. Brown, 52, had apparently shot himself once in the head with a .22 revolver, sheriff's deputies say. Brown died shortly after being transferred to an Odessa hospital from Malone-Hogan Hospital, deputies say.

Howard County Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin said the death was the result of a self-inflicted gunshot.

- Sheriff's deputies arrested Warren K. Gill, 32, of Sweetwater Saturday for suspicion of resisting arrest and public intoxication. Gill posted bonds totaling $700 to be released Sunday, records show.
- Marshall Lister, 20, of 2911 W. Highway 80 was released from county jail Sunday after serving two days in connection with a county court conviction for driving while license suspended.
- Guy Talamentez, 27, of 212 N.E. 10th posted bonds totaling $600 to be released. Talamentez was arrested by police for suspicion of no drivers license, no liability insurance and no vehicle registration. Bond was set by Heflin.
- Evaristo Padron, 56, of Coahoma posted $2,500 bond to be released after he was transferred from police custody to county jail. Padron was arrested by the DPS for suspicion of DWI.
- Sheriff's deputies continue to patrol the Forsan and Silver Heels addition for possible speeders, Sheriff A.N. Standard said. The stepped-up radar watch is due to increased traffic in the areas, particularly Chapparal Road, he said.

Hirt to open new club

— Jazz trumpeter Al Hirt, who closed his famous Bouron Street club in New Orleans' French Quarter in May, is reported ready to blow up a storm in a new restaurant and club called "Cooper's Deli and Al Hirt Presents."

Club owner Joe Cooper says he and the 60-year-old Hirt shook hands to seal the deal Sunday and that lawyers will work out the details.

"Al will play a minimum of six weeks in Memphis, spread out through the year," said Cooper. "And he also is going to assist me in bringing other famous entertainers into the club."

Negotiations are under way for a building on historic Beale Street, which is billed as the birthplace of blues music, Cooper said. Entertainers Charlie Rich and Lou Rawls already have said they plan to open clubs in the vicinity.

Koo pleas for freedom

The snapshots show the Fleet Street photographers Miss Stark says have been hounding her, and she presented them along with a plea for "freedom from the press."

"While I am all in favor of freedom for the press, there is a case to be heard for freedom from the press," Miss Stark, 27, wrote in the London Sunday Times magazine. "The attention I receive ranges from the frightening to the absurd."

Miss Stark — who appeared in two erotic films when she was in her teens and whose Caribbean vacation with the 23-year-old British prince last October created a sensation — tells of harrowing car chases through London with photographers in pursuit.

She says in her first-person account, "At the beginning I used my little Mini (automobile) to outwit them. But the strain began to tell and the gearbox literally fell out."

Once, she said, neighbors gave her a ladder so she could slip out the back of her apartment and climb over backyard fences.

Expert: sex not funny

NEW YORK — Sex expert "Dr. Ruth" has a reply for critics who say some of her advice is too funny to be taken seriously.

"I don't start out to be funny,'" says Ruth Westheimer, whose blunt radio talk about sex could make the birds and bees blush. "But if it comes out that way, I use it."

"If they call me an entertainer," says the psychotherapist and professor of human sexuality at New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center, "I say that's great. When a professor teaches with a sense of humor, people walk away remembering."

On her radio programs, in New York and Los Angeles, her listeners include "to my bitter regret, young children" under 15, for whom she finds what goes out over the air unsuitable, and people in their 70s, whom she praises for keeping active.

Mrs. Westheimer, 54, describes herself as old-fashioned. She counsels teen-agers to ignore peer pressure, reassures virgins that it is OK to hold off until marriage, and admonishes callers to end affairs with people who turn out to be married.

Actress on good behavior

MEXICO CITY — Singer-actress Constance Towers, wife of John Gavin, the U.S. ambassador to Mexico, finds herself playing a double role that sometimes has its hazards.

At least twice a month she flies to Los Angeles to put in long days before the camera as the matriarch Clarissa McCandless in the CBS daytime soap "Capitol."

After one flight back to Mexico City, the 52-year-old actress says in the current People magazine, she had to dress in an airport ladies' room for a diplomatic reception — and "got stuck in a stall."

She also said she plays only "good person" roles.

"I feel a deep responsibility for my husband's position,'" she said, "and I simply could not play a manipulative, evil person and wind up having the people of Mexico see the ambassador's wife being someone they couldn't believe in."

As for the time she and her husband, also 52, cannot be together, she said "We decided when we were married (nine years ago) that we'd never get in the way of each other's career."

The news in brief

Beirut battles erupt

BEIRUT — Christian and Druse militiamen clashed in heavy artillery and rocket battles on the hills overlooking Beirut today, killing six Lebanese civilians and wounding dozens of people, including Italian members of the international peacekeeping force.

Druse leaders threatened to shell the city's international airport from their hilltop positions, again closing it to international traffic.

Police said six Lebanese civilians were killed and 21 wounded in the seven-hour flareup that jeopardized government efforts to attain a Christian-Druse reconciliation before a planned Israeli military withdrawal from Lebanon's central mountains.

Filipino exile murdered

MANILA — Mourners today filed past the open coffin containing the bloody body of opposition leader Benigno Aquino, slain by a bullet in the head minutes after he returned to the Philippines from self-exile in the United States.

One opposition figure charged that President Ferdinand E. Marcos must take "direct responsibility" for the Sunday slaying of his political rival at Manila airport.

Manila Police Chief Gen. Prospero Olivas said lab tests showed the man authorities said killed Aquino at Manila's airport Sunday had fired a gun. But he said the assailant, who was killed by soldiers immediately after Aquino was shot, still has not been identified.

French general in Chad

N'DJAMENA — Brig. Gen. Jean Poli, the newly named commander of the French task force in embattled Chad, left Paris today to assume his post following completion of the planned 3,000-man French military lineup there with the arrival of eight combat planes.

Four Jaguars and four Mirage F-1s joined the task force headquarters in N'Djamena on Sunday, accompanied by a KC-135 refueling plane. Other French combat planes were standing by in Bouar.

Gen. Poli, 54, one of the French army's most experienced paratroop commanders, has spent almost all his military career in Africa including Chad itself.

Irish train wreck kills 7

KILDARE — Rescue workers toiling under floodlights cut through the wreckage of two passenger trains early today in search of survivors of a collision that left at least seven people dead and more than 50 others injured.

Police said at least 20 of the injured were in serious condition. An undisclosed number were pulled from the mangled cars by rescuers who cut their way through the metal with oxy-acetylene torches.

The police spokesman, who declined to be identified, said a Dublin-bound train from Galway, in the west of Ireland, struck the rear of a stopped train from Tralee, in the southwest, which had run out of fuel.

Illinois slayings continue

PARK FOREST — Two people were found brutally slain in the second multiple homicide in Will County in two days, bringing to 16 the number of unsolved killings this summer in the Joliet area, authorities said today.

Park Forest police said today the bodies of Crystal Knight, 25, and Ralph Dixon, 40, were discovered about 8:15 p.m. Sunday in an apartment in the community about 30 miles south of Chicago. Police said the apartment appeared to be ransacked.

The slayings occurred about 20 miles east of Joliet, where four women were found slain Saturday.

Skydivers' plane crashes

STANWOOD — Skydivers on a parachuting outing with friends in Washington were forced to dive for their lives when the World War II-era plane went into a "classic stall" and plummeted to earth, killing 11 people, the survivors and authorities said.

Fifteen of the skydivers survived but nine parachutists and two pilots aboard the twin-engine Lockheed Lodestar were killed Sunday when the plane slammed into a highway embankment about 45 miles north of Seattle, officials said.

Some of the survivors who parachuted to safety before the crash said they had to struggle against gravity forces sucking them back inside the spiraling plane. No one on the ground was hurt.

Authorities sealed off the crash site Sunday night and did not plan to clean up wreckage until today, when investigators from the National Transportation Safety Board were scheduled to arrive.

Witnesses estimated the plane fell at least 12,000 feet and was approaching 400 mph at its nearly vertical impact.

Fireman finds cabinet could break the bank

CHICAGO (AP) — A tangled tale of lost and found could make firefighter Richard Michael rich beyond his wildest dreams. But to bank officers, nervous at the prospect of paying out $7 million, the affair is a nightmare.

The story begins with a banged-up file cabinet that, unbeknownst to any of its previous owners, contained $7 million in negotiable — and possibly still valuable — bank bonds.

Inside were a handful of "strange-looking documents" bundled and tied with rubber bands.

"I was going to take them all and throw them in the garbage can and not even look at what they were," said Michael. "I don't know what made me do it, but I started peeling one off.

"My wife came along and helped me, and 45 minutes later we had found first $1 million, then $2 million, then $3 million and others. We threw all the canceled ones in the garbage cans," he said.

Curious, Cathy Michael on Friday called the First National Bank of Chicago, original owners of the cabinets and issuers of the bonds.

"We're willing to bet anything that they're worthless. But I guess we'll have to wait and see," said bank spokesman William Baldwin.

The FBI is guarding the bonds in a safe at its Chicago office until Monday, when they will be examined by bank officials.

Divers locate Monitor ironclad

HATTERAS, N.C. (AP) — Divers who reached the remains of the Civil War ironclad USS Monitor say they expect to raise the historic ship's four-pronged anchor on Tuesday.

The discovery of the ship Sunday night, delayed by a miscue from an electronic navigation system, made way for divers to begin work today to prepare for raising the anchor, a spokesman said.

The anchor, believed to be buried on the sea floor about 700 feet from the wreckage, would be the first major artifact raised from the site since a lantern was retrieved in 1977.

Divers plan Tuesday to use a cutting torch to remove a 10-foot section

2 boys arrested in car sniping

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Two boys were arrested early today after several vehicles were struck with bullets fired from a highway overpass, injuring one man, police said.

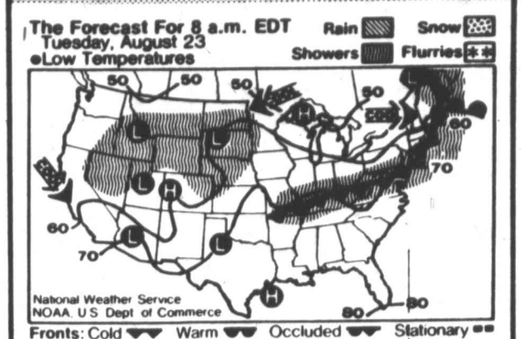

Rance Dickson of Boise was hit in the neck by a bullet as he drove on Interstate 84 at about 2 a.m, police said.

He was reported in stable condition at St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center.

One of the boys was caught by a neighbor awakened by his barking dogs, Shippy said.

Skies fair, mercury to rise

Skies were fair over most of Texas this morning, although a few scattered showers were reported over the Panhandle and in Far West Texas because of a low-pressure system that had stalled.

Winds were southerly at less than 10 mph over all but the plains and Edwards Plateau, although wind speeds there were only slightly higher.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the mid 70s, and ranged from 68 degrees in Amarillo at 4 a.m. to 79 at both Abilene and Brownsville.

The forecast called for fair to partly cloudy skies and continued warm temperatures statewide, although scattered thunderstorms were expected across Northwest and Southwest Texas and along the coast.

Highs today were expected to be mostly in the 90s, but readings were to reach as high as 103 in North Central Texas and 108 in the Big Bend river valleys.

Thunderstorms drenched the Midwest and southern Plains states today after a heat wave singed the South with record temperatures blamed for one death in North Carolina and a damaging propane explosion in Virginia.

A violent hailstorm broke auto windshields in Utah, and showers and thunderstorms today were headed from the mid-Mississippi Valley across the Ohio and Tennessee valleys and the lower Great Lakes to the north and mid-Atlantic Coast states.

A 104-degree reading Saturday in Lynchburg, Va., was the highest ever recorded in that city. All-time heat records also tumbled in Augusta, Ga., where it reached 108 degrees Sunday, and in Roanoke, Va., where the mercury hit 105 degrees Sunday.

West Texas: Partly cloudy with widely scattered mostly afternoon and evening thunderstorms north and southwest. Generally fair elsewhere today and tonight. Partly cloudy north and west and fair elsewhere Tuesday. Continued very warm to hot days and warm nights all sections through Tuesday. Highs today and tuesday mid 90s north and far west to near 103 east with readings near 108 in the Big Bend valleys. Lows tonight mid 60s north to mid 70s south.

North Texas: Sunny and hot days and fair at night through Tuesday. Highs in the mid 90s tonear 103. Lows, mid 70s.

East Texas: Fair and warm with the high today in the mid 90s. Continued fair tonight with the low in the mid 70s. High Tuesday in the mid 90s.

South Texas: Partly cloudy and hot today and tuesday with widely scattered afternoon thundershowers mainly along the coast. Mostly clear and warm tonight. Highs today and tuesday in the 90s to near 100 west. Lows tonight in the 70s to near 80 along the coast.

Upper Texas Coast: Southerly winds near 10 knots through tuesday. Seas three feet or less today and tonight. Widely scattered thundershowers.

Pentagon conflict

What's a Marine officer, drawing his approximately $45,000-a-year pay, doing on the staff of Sen. Roger W. Jepsen, R-Iowa?

Working. According to Congressional Quarterly, Marine Lt. Col. James E. Secrist has been assigned to the staff of the senator, chairman of the Senate Armed Services subcommittee on manpower and personnel, to help him get Pentagon contracts for Iowa businesses.

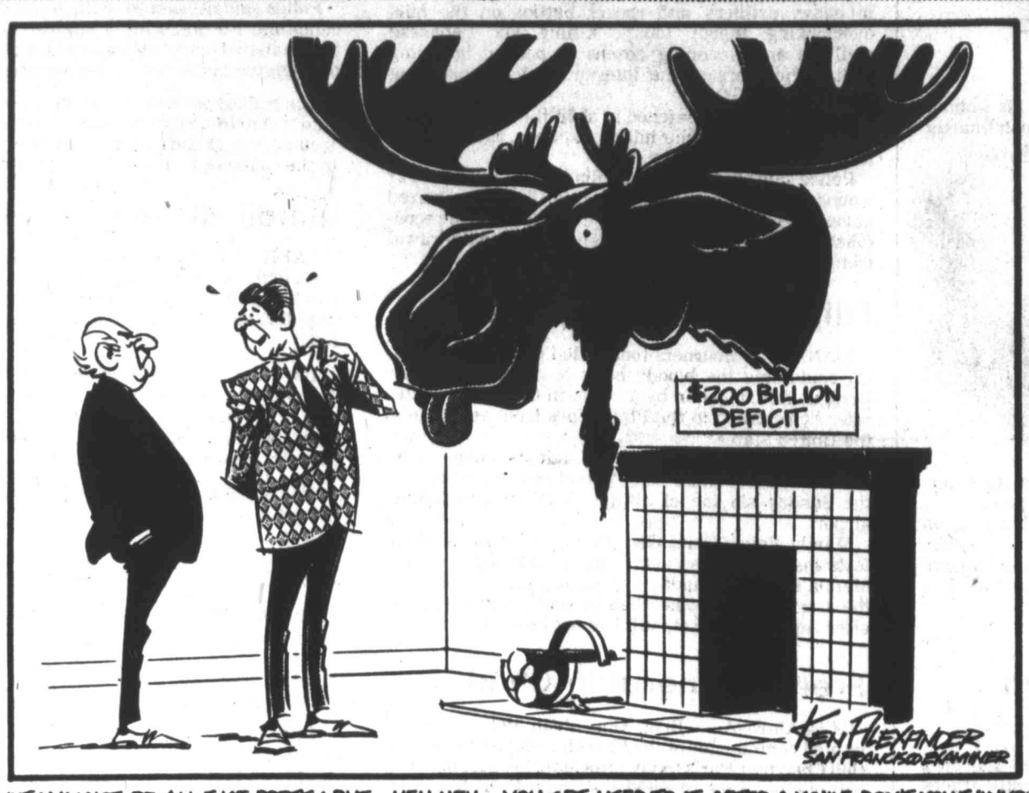

A spokesman for the senator professes not to see a conflict of interest in this arrangement, which reportedly Navy Secretary John F. Lehman Jr. approved at the senator's request.

"I just don't see where it would be a problem," the spokesman declared, adding that it just might indicate that the people of Iowa "have a senator with a lot of initiative."

Or a lot of chutzpah. If Jepsen needs someone (in the spokesman's words) "familiar with defense procurement contracts and procedures," he's entitled to have someone, but that someone surely ought not to be an officer on the Pentagon payroll.

A Navy spokesman says the practice is "uncommon" but "not unprecedented." He adds: "We rely on the senator's good judgment not to assign or accept any jobs that would place him in a compromising position."

Lt. Col. Secrist is in a compromising position in the job on the senator's staff. The Pentagon ought to reassign him forthwith.

Beat goes on

"...the only people for me are the mad ones, the ones who are mad to live, mad to talk, mad to be saved, desirous of everything at the same time, the ones who never yawn or say a commonplace thing but burn, burn, burn like fabulous yellow Roman candles." + Jack Kerouac

In these soulless days of Reagan, conservatism and superficiality, I find myself sagging with ennui and wishing for a movement much like the Beat Generation mounted in the late 1950s.

It was a time when those persons, who had wearied of America's drowsy conformity and pursuit of the status quo, began searching for something to fill a spiritual void not easily filled by the tangible item or the current fad.

They were the Beat Generation. John Clellon Holmes described them as persons believing that "the valueless abyss of modern life is unbearable." They needed a philosphical anchor which gave them reason to live rather than simply exist. And that need brought with it an urgent feeling that it was time to search inward for values which could destroy the awful feeling of discontented boredom.

Fueled by Charlie Parker's jazz music, Kerouac's books and Ginsberg and Dylan Thomas' poetry, the Beat Generation took to the road in search of answers. Crisscrossing America on foot or by car, the Beats delved into poetry, rock 'n' roll, Zen Buddhism, drugs and literature in an encompassing blitz to sort out the worthwhile elements of life from the worthless.

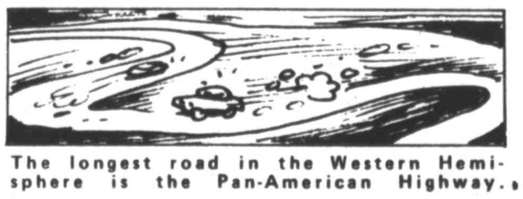

Although the Beats may have been too aggressive and extreme in some of their searches for spiritual values, their intent was original and refreshing. They believed life was empty without some sort of spiritual birth whether it be Christianity, poetry, Buddhism or simply hope.

There comes a time in every individual's life, if his conscience and heart are still working, when he must break and run free of tradition in order to question those values laid before him. The Beats hit upon this moment collectively as they scrambled to keep from being locked into a path of indifference worn deep by dullards who plodded before them.

I believe the Beats were fighting desparately to save the human spirit from forces and trends in society bent on destroying it. I yearn for their earnestness, enthusiasm and courage with which to search for a cause to believe.

I don't want to suggest that it's time to drop out and become hedonists; there's no victory in that. The real challenge for us as individuals these days is to be wary of consultants and other "experts" who tell us what's good to believe, listen to, watch and experience.

We must forge our own individual spiritualities and beliefs if life is to be meaningful.

The longest road in the Western Hemisphere is the Pan-American Highway.

Is Chad worth the effort?

The Chad affair defines the limits of American power. The setting is so remote, and the level of fighting so low, that world politics is not engaged. So a chief impact should be a salutary curb on the impulse of the Reagan administration toward a policy of global unilateralism.

The back of beyond is a term that well describes the whereabouts of Chad. The territory straddles the borderland between the Islamic Africa around the Sahara and the Christian heart of the Dark Continent. It was taken by the French only at the end of the imperial era that preceded World War I. Though about an eighth the size of the U.S., it has a population only half that of New York City. It is bare of resources, and counts only a handful of towns, and not even 200 miles of paved roads.

When the French gave independence to their African colonies in 1960, political authority in Chad first went to the Christians. Military couups then snapped the regime of President Francois Tombalbaye, who was assassinated in 1975. Since 1979 leadership has been up for grabbing by two rivals from the Moslem north — Goukouni Oueddei, who became president in 1979, and Hissene Habre, who went into revolt in 1981 and became president himself last year.

In the course of their civil war, Oueddei and Habre have both enlisted allies on the outside. Oueddei relied on the Libyans, who have Soviet-equipped forces and have been covetous of Chad ever since Col. Moammar Kadafi seized power in Tripoli in 1969. Habre turned to countries opposed to Kadafi — Egypt, Sudan and the French-speaking states of Africa — who see the Libyan strong man as a menace to their territorial integrity.

Despite this formidable diplomatic lineup, combat on the ground, when measured by the Gullivers in Washington and Moscow, has been Lilliputian. Campaigns are like safaris. Rifles and machine guns and jeeps and trucks count as well as missiles and planes. A foray by the Libyans on behalf of Oueddei in 1981 was stopped by the dispatch of French paratroopers.

But the French have no great appetite for rule by paras. It settles nothing decisively. It complicates commercial relations with Col. Kadafi and deals cards to his anti-Western propaganda. It thus makes Chad, and the network of territorial arrangements throughout Africa, vulnerable to the unpredictable actions of the Libyan leader.

Instead of continued resort to arms, accordingly, the government of President Francois Mitterrand has tried to foster a diplomatic solution to the Chad problem. Thanks mainly to French influence, the Organization of African States stood against Col. Kadafi's efforts to take it in tow. But when Kadafi responded last month with a new military intervention in Chad, the French were slow to provide assistance to Habre. Instead, they tried to broker a deal between Habrfe and Oueddei that would keep the Libyans out and mantain border arrangements intact.

At that point, the U.S., pressed by Egypt, Sudan and the French-speaking African states, moved to intervene. Two AWACS surveillance planes were sent to the Sudan to keep an eye on ALibyan operations in northern Chad. The aircraft carrier Eisenhower was dispatched to Mediterranean waters off Libya.

The futility of those gestures quickly became evident. Col. Kadafi denounced American military intervention and kept his troops moving on the ground. On Aug. 11, they took the oasis town of Faya-Largeau. As the French continued to negotgiate between Oueddei and Habre, President Reagan had to throw in the towel. At a news conference on Aug. 12, he said: "Chad, actually, you might say, is in a sphere of interest of the French."

As it happened, perhaps because of the visible American presence, Kadafi and Oueddei would not cut a deal. They insisted that Habre be forced from office. In those conditions, on Aug. 13 the French finally moved paras to Chad, thus drawing a line against further Libyan penetration.

At present both the diplomatic and military action hangs in suspense. But certain basics have been reasserted. For one thing, France is the puissance protectrice, or protecting power, in Central Africa. For the French alone are prepared to make the decisive commitment of ground troops.

As to the U.S., the Reagan administration should have learned a lesson. If there is no willingness to commit troops on the ground, superweapons are not relevant to fighting in remote countries. On the contrary, it is sobering to contemplate what this country would have done if a Libyan missile had hit the carrier or one of the AWACS planes.

More important even than the need for allies who will fight on the gorund is the lesson that the challenge by Moscow has limits. The U.S. can stand up to the Russians without maintaining a full-court press in every nook and cranny of the world. Some areas, like Chad, really are beyond the bounds of the Big Two struggle. In such areas, the less conflict is globalized, the better for the world and for the U.S.

Billy Graham

Organ donors give life

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Do you think there is anything in the Bible that would forbid me donating some of my bodily organs (such as my kidneys or my eyes) after my death? — T.C.

DEAR T.C.: No, I find nothing in the Bible that would forbid this, and in fact it could be a very loving act on your part because it might give the gift of sight or even life to someone else after you have gone. Some day, the Bible teaches, we who are in Christ will be given new and perfect bodies by God in eternity, and he is not dependent on the elements of our old bodies by God in eternity, and he is not dependent on the elements of our old bodies to accomplish this miracle.

I am thankful you are thinking about ways you can help others — but I want to use your question to challenge you also. It is good to want to help people in this way (as long as you or your immediate family have no objections) — but have you given much thought to ways you should be helping others right now, while you are still alive? If you know Christ as your Lord and Savior, the greatest treasure you can give to another is not merely the gift of physical help, but pointing them to Jesus Christ. It is important to help people who are in physical need — but it is even more important to help those who have spiritual needs. Are you praying that God will use you in the lives of other people, to encourage them and make them see their own needs of Jesus Christ?

Your question also reminds me of what Jesus Christ has done for us through his death on the cross. You want to give the gift of life to others through your death — and in a far greater way, that is what Christ did for us. He took upon himself our sin and our hell, and in their place he offers us forgiveness, new life, and eternal salvation. "But God demonstrates his own love for us in this: While we were still sinners, Christ died for us" (Romans 5:8).

Life is brief, and no matter who we are it will soon be over. If ever we are going to trust in Christ and live for him it must be now. May God encourage you and challenge you to live for him as you yield your life to Christ.

The sun, astronomers say, follows a pattern of shrinking and swelling. It's presently in its shrinking stage, losing a few feet every hour.

Why the Chinese can't shoot straight

WASHINGTON — President Reagan has made it easier for Communist China to buy U.S. high-technology items for probable military use — justifying the expected sales with the hope that the Chinese won't buy much, or won't be able to use what they to buy.

This hope is echoed in a secret Pentagon estimate that disparages "the Chinese ability to absorb and maintain U.S. equipment."

The report explains why: "One of the lessons we learned from Vietnam was that U.S. know-how — often in the form of U.S. advisers or technicians — must accompany U.S. technology if advanced systems are to be used and maintained properly. Although the Chinese are technologically advanced compared to the Vietnamese, they are well behind the state-of-the-art in most areas, and their common soldier is still technologically unsophisticated.

"Thus, the Chinese might not be capable of effectively integrating our more advanced systems into their force structure. Even less sophisticated equipment would rapidly deteriorate if proper maintenance were not understood and performed. Given the Chinese aversion to foreign technicians... this factor could be critical."

This may seem like too much reliance on an ethnic stereotype, but the fact remains that China is far behind the United Stated in technology. This shortcoming is reflected in the relatively primitive state of its enormous military machine., A top-secret Pentagon report seen by my associate Dale Van Atta details these weaknesses:

● Though China has the world's largest army (163 divisions), most of its equipment is 1950s vintage, consisting of copies or variants of Soviet military hardware.

● Numerically, the Chinese navy is the world's second largest. But the great bulk of its fleet is made up of more than 1,000 small, high-speed patrol craft. There are no aircraft carriers, and no ships bigger than a destroyer. In fact, the Chinese have only 39 ships that fall in the "principal surface combatant" category.

● The Chinese have no anti-submarine aircraft, only one missile-carrying sub and 106 other attack subs. Few are long-range, and none is nuclear-powered.

● The Chinese air force is the world's third largest, with 4,200 fighter planes and 650 bombers. But again, the aircraft are technological Model T's. The planes can't fight at night or in foul weather, and are generally no match for Soviet aircraft.

● The Chinese have about 50 medium-range ballistic missiles, 90 intermediate-range missiles and less than a dozen intercontinental missiles — a pathetically small force considering the Soviet nuclear missiles arrayed against them.

● Chinese bombers have dropped nuclear devices in tests, but the planes that are designated for a nuclear role have no electronic counter-measures against air-defense weapons and are therefore extremely vulnerable. "These constraints place formidable limitations upon the use of bombers against well-defended targets, such as those within the U.S.S.R.," the report observes.

● China's own defense against incoming missiles or bombers, on the other hand, is hopelessly inadequate. Its early-warning system facing the Soviets is riddled with holes. The Chinese have about 1,000 surface-to-air missiles batteries and anti-aircraft guns, but their crews might not even see Soviet planes before it is too late.

LEGISLATIVE FUMBLE: In a manly attempt to bridge the gender gap, Congress managed to widen it instead — and caused the Social Security Administration a big headache.

One of this year's Social Security amendments allows a divorced spouse to collect benefits even if the wage-earning ex-spouse hasn't filed a claim yet. The change was to take effect in January 1985. But that crucial point was left out of the section dealing with men claiming benefits based on their ex-wives' earnings. The result is, technically, that men can take advantage of the change immediately, while women have to wait till 1985.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., has introduced legislation that will maKe men wait, too.

Texas firm probing deep wells

VICKERY, Ohio (AP) — A Texas firm is studying the deep-well injection system used at a hazardous waste dump near here to determine whether the disposal method is safe.

Underground Resource Management Inc. of Austin, Texas, is being paid an estimated $65,000 for the study by Waste Management Inc., the parent firm of Ohio Liquid Disposal.

The study was ordered by the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency after allegations that Ohio Liquid Disposal was improperly handling wastes shipped to the site.

Liquid hazardous wastes are pumped into wells nearly 3,000 feet in the ground. The company said the wells empty into a layer of sandstone known as the Mount Simon formation, which is porous and acts as a sponge to trap the wastes.

The company says once the wastes are trapped, they neither rise to the surface nor threaten drinking water supplies.

Critics of the method claim some wells don't reach the sandstone layer, and say wastes absorbed into the formation could migrate to other states.

No study of the wells was made previously because they were drilled in the mid-1970s, said Pat Morrison, a spokeswoman for the Ohio EPA.

Old man found dead under house

DALLAS (AP) — Bloodstains on a living room carpet prompted a search that ended with the discovery of an elderly man's decomposed body under the floor of his home, police said.

Police found the body of Alberto Bocanegra, 80, on Saturday in a crawl space below the wooden, carpeted floor.

Police were seeking a 26-year-old relative for questioning in the killing and speculated robbery may have been the motive for the slaying.

Bocanegra was reported missing Friday, but investigators said he may have been dead more than a week.

Police were called to the home when relatives of Bocanegra's late wife went ot the house to feed his chickens and noticed the bloodstains.

Colleges bracing for boom

DALLAS (AP) — Officials at universities and colleges across Texas say they're bracing for another enrollment boom this fall that should hit private and public schools alike.

At the University of Texas, with an enrollment of 48,039 last fall, the student population is expected to grow by more than 12 percent, officials say.

Texas colleges got their first inkling about the student-population boom this summer when unprecedented numbers of freshmen-to-be showed up for orientation programs, officials say.

Last year, enrollments at the 156 universities and colleges in Texas were 16 percent higher than the national average, according to the Texas Education Agency.

Texas ranks third in the United States with 625,447 college students behind California and New York.

Enrollments are growing at both private and public schools, officials say.

Carol Moak, President of Independent Colleges and Universities of Texas, said private enrolemnts are projected to grow by 2 percent each year through 1990.

3 men burned in refinery fire

TEXAS CITY (AP) — Three refinery workers critically burned Sunday in a fire in at a Tenneco plant drove themselves to the hospital in one car, officials said.

The fire erupted Sunday morning in the plant's control room. Investigators said two of the employees smelled gas but could not determine its origin.

One of the victims later lit a cigarette and his butane lighter exploded in his hand.

Bruce Williams of Port Bolivar suffered burns over 45 percent of his upper body. Dan Weeke of Pasadena had burns over 35 percent of his body and Tracy Simpton of League City had burns on 40 percent of his body.

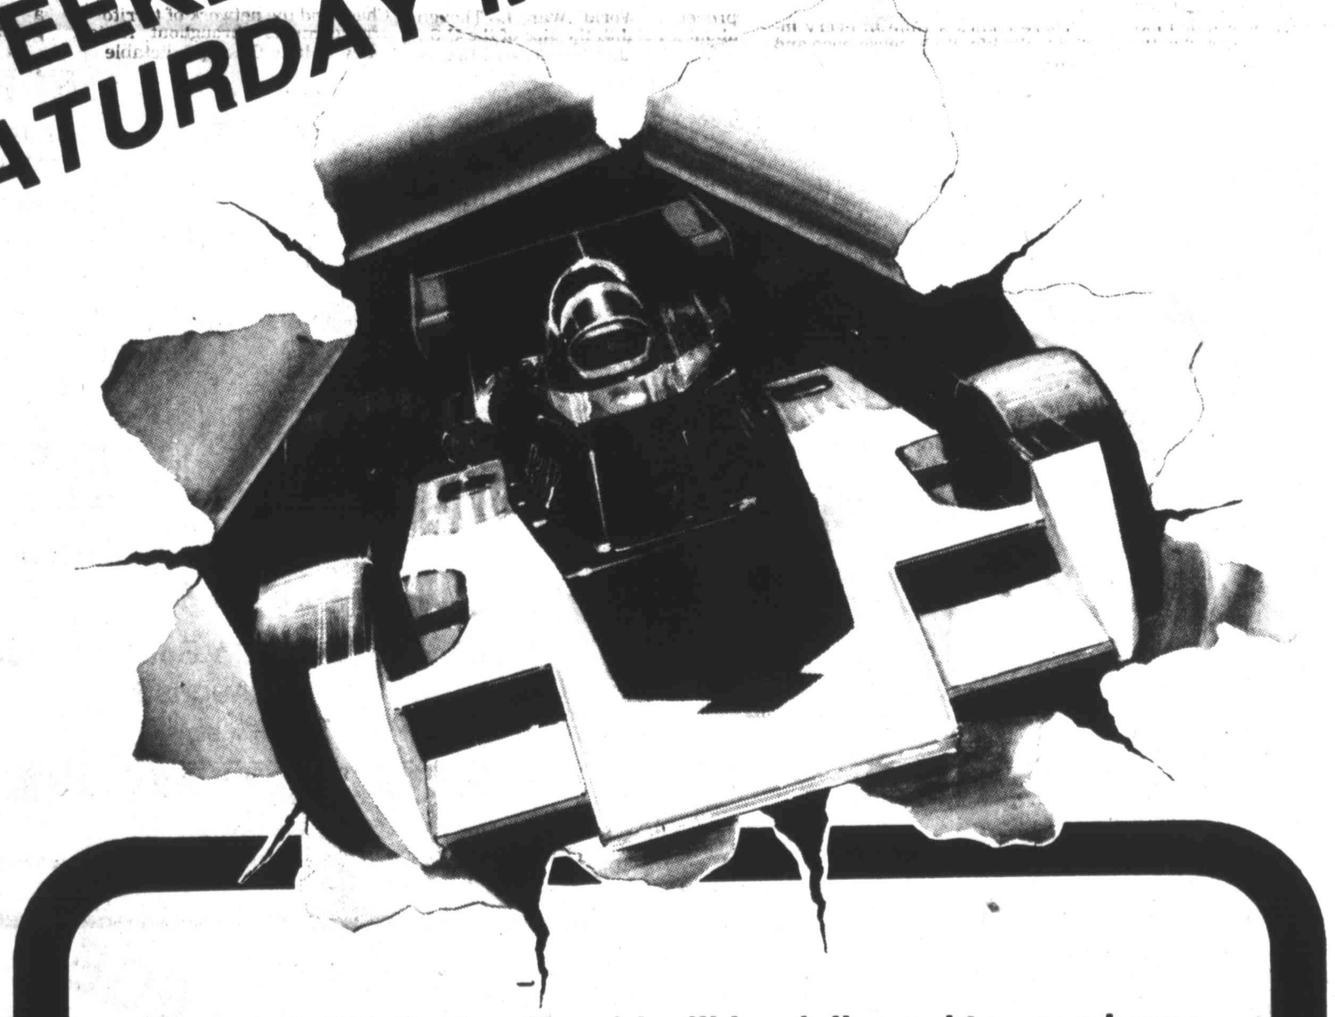

The fire marshal's office is investigating the fire.

Dr. Donohue

Heart is wrapped in two-ply sac

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Recently I was in the hospital for pain that ran across my chest at the top. After X-rays and other tests it was diagnosed as pericarditis. As this is something I have never heard of, will you please explain its cause and treatment? All I have been able to find out is that is has something to do with the sac around the outside of the heart. — T.R.M.

The pericardium is a double-ply sac, like one bag inside another, which holds the heart in place. The two plies glide against each other to avoid any grating against the heart as it beats., When the pericardium is inflamed, that's pericarditis. If the sac is inflamed, pain results from movement in the area.

Inflammation on the pericardium arises from many causes, but I'll discuss the commonest, viral infections. Viral pericarditis causes sharp chest pains, often made worse by coughing or a change in the body's position. The pain is usually relieved when the patient sits up and leans forward. There is often a fever and a general feeling of fatigue. The doctor can hear a leathery sound with his stethoscope as the two piles of the sac grate over eachother with each heartbeat.

There's not much you can do about the infection itself, which must run its course. However, rest and medicines that quiet inflammation (like aspirin and indomethacin) help. Usually, there is complete recovery in time.

Because there are so many other kinds of pericarditis, and many more causes, such as rheumatic fever, severe kidney disease, low thyroid output, lupus and so on, I cannot say that you may have the common virus kind. And if, for example, yours was from a bacterial infection, then antibiotics would be used. And if fluid accumulates between those two plies, it may have to be drained.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Would you please clear something up for me? We have a medical-surgical book that describes an astrocytoma as a benign tumor. But someone else says it's malignant, one of the "hotter" kinds of tumors. I would really appreciate an answer. — Mrs. M.D.

It's not an easy concept to understand but some malignancies are "more malignant" than others. And even with a specific tumor,like the astrocytoma you mention, there are different kinds. They range from a very slowly enlarging one, which is usually completely curable, to one at the other end of the spectrum, one which is growing rapidly and has a poor prognosis. The doctor, after looking at the tumor cells under a microscope, can tell which type it happens to be.

The tumor gets its name from its star-shaped (astro) cells. They are the cells that shelter and support nerve cells. It's safe to say, however, that all astrocytomas are malignant to some degree.

You can lose weight if you really want to! The booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing," tells you how — naturally and without gimmicks — to the level best suited to your individual needs. For a copy write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Volunteers start scholarship fund

A.K. Smith, Big Spring State Hospital Superintendent, announced this week that the hospital's Volunteer Council is establishing a nursing scholarship fund.

Lexeen Weaver of Midland, an executive committee member, will chair the scholarship committee. The purpose of the fund shall be to assist interested individuals in attaining an associate degree of nursing.

Volunteer Services Coordinator Kathy Viccinelli said, "The criteria for the program is being developed and scholarships will be available by January 1984." A BSSH employee must have been employed six months or more to be qualified. Selection of scholarship recipients will be made up by a volunteer committee and will be based on criteria established by a nursing scholarship committee.

Consideration will be given to outside applicants but preference will be to hospital employees. Those accepted into the program will be obligated to serve time to the hospital equal to the amount of time for which they have received the scholarship.

"In view of the current and projected continuing shortage of registered nurses both locally and nationwide, this program will help ensure that an ongoing supply of these vital members of the health-care team are available to Big Spring State Hospital," Smith said. "This worthwhile endeavor is a result of devotion and hard work on the part of our Big Spring State Hospital volunteers."

The council is seeking funds from individuals or groups who share the concern for the mentally ill and mentally retarded as it does. Donations to the scholarship fund are tax deductible and will be used only for scholarship recepients.

For additional information about the scholarship fund, contact volunteer coordinator Kathy Viccinelli at Big Spring State Hospital, P.O. Box 231, or phone 267-8216 ext. 534.

Teachers participate in state conference

Charlotta Hamilton, Virginia Martin, Jo Norris, Jill Willbanks and Billye Grisham participated in a four-day state inservice conference for the professional development of vocational home economics teachers, Aug. 8-11.

All women are teachers at Big Spring High School. The conference was held in Houston and was planned by the Vocational Home Economics Division of the Texas Education Agency.

Twenty special interest sessions offered a diversity of subjects to expand the teaching skills of the 2,800 vocational home economists in attendance. National business authorities and educators presented sessions on strategies for computer instruction, curriculum development, entrepreneurship, tomorrow's homeowner, consumer education, parenthood education, industrial sewing, the aging family in contemporary society and other timely topics.

Emphasis also was given on integrating new knowledge and instructional techniques into the classroom and on the training and motivation of students with special needs.

Mrs. Micallef reports VA plans to veterans

Mrs. Virgie Wade, district 19 president, spoke to members of the Veterans of World War I Barracks #1474 and the Ladies Auxiliary during a meeting, Aug. 13.

Mrs. Wade spoke on life membership for World War I District 19 members.

The Veterans Administration Volunteer Services Advisory Committee meeting at the Veterans Administration Medical Center, July 12, was reported on. Members were updated on several construction projects at the Veterans Administration Medical Center. The hospital was one of three chosen for a pilot computer program. Congress has appropriated 11 million dollars for the pilot program.

General orders regarding completion of installation forms were read. Members were reminded to attend the World War I National Convention to be held in Fort Worth, Aug. 28-Sept. 2. Members planning to attend are Virginia Bryant, Virginia Younger, Marion Irland and Maxie Irland.

Jennie Barber and Bessie Suggs served cake and coffee to the veterans, July 26.

The next meeting will be Sept. 10 at Kentwood Center.

Dear Abby

Undertaker's tale shaves the truth

DEAR ABBY: You said that hair and fingernails do not grow after death. Well, you are wrong. My mother told me that when she was a little girl, she lived over a funeral parlor, and bodies were kept down there for as long as two weeks waiting for all the relatives to get there for the funeral.

She said the undertaker said sometimes they had to shave a corpse and cut the fingernails several times because they grew long and became noticeable.

My mother isn't living now to verify this, but it's true nevertheless.

I think you owe your readers a correction.

NELLIE IN KNOXVILLE, TENN.

DEAR NELLIE: I received many letters from people who had "known" about cases where the remains of people long dead had been found with "beards down to their knees and fingernails six inches long."

Pursuing this grave undertaking, I called Bill Gold, spokesman for the Los Angeles County Coroner's office, who said: "Growth of hair and nails ceases at the time of death — when body metabolism stops.

"Hair and nails may give the appearance of having grown after death, but that is due to the dehydration and shrinkage of the skin."

Sorry, you are dead wrong. My statement remains good as Gold.

DEAR ABBY: Until I saw the letter in your column signed "Second Thoughts," I thought I was the only person in the world who just plain didn't care for sex. I could easily live the rest of my life without it.

My husband and I lived together for two years before we were married, so he most definitely knew how I felt about sex. Last week we celebrated our eighth anniversary, and I thank God every day for sending this wonderful, understanding, considerate man to me.

We rarely have sex. It almost never comes up, but our lives are filled with other things that interest us. He has never complained or made me feel guilty. We have never gone for counseling because apparently we don't need it. I've always heard that a poor sex life will turn a marriage sour, and wonder why is hasn't affected ours?

Retired teachers learn about video games

Patrick Salazar, an eighth grade AWAKE student from Coahoma, presented a program on Video Games at a Big Spring-Howard County Retired Teachers' Association meeting at Howard College, Aug. 15.

Salazar researched and developed a presentation on Video Games. He gave some history and reasons for their popularity. He reported on the time and money spent on these games each year. He also pointed out some problems, some benefits and some potential uses in the future.

New members are Grady Tindol, Virginia Lila and Nancy Annen.

The next meeting will be Sept. 19. Larry Don Shaw, state representative, will be the speaker.

Sunday swim wins color U.S.A. gold

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Four times in 15 days, Rick Carey did what other world-class swimmers couldn't do once in the past seven years.

John's Naber's 100-meter backstroke world record of 55.49 seconds, set during the 1976 Olympics, was the oldest on the books until Aug. 6. On that day, Carey, a 20-year-old from Mount Kisco, N.Y., started an assault that culminated Sunday at the IX Pan American Games.

On Aug. 6, at the U.S. Swimming championships, Carey swam a 55.44 in the preliminaries for a world record and lowered it to 55.38 in the final. He went 55.93 in Sunday's prelims and then broke the world mark again, shattering the 56-second barrier for the fourth time with a clocking of 55.19 in the final.

"No one else active has broken 56 seconds and now I'm approaching 55 seconds," Carey said. "And if I can break that, I'll have a real advantage psychologically."

Carey led a five-race U.S. sweep in swimming Sunday, giving the Americans 21 gold medals in 24 events. Greg Louganis of Mission Viejo, Calif., won the 10-meter platform for his second diving victory and the fourth straight U.S. diving gold medal.

The United States now has an overwhelming medal lead, with 82 gold, 166 overall and a week to go in the games. Cuba follows with 53 golds and 108 overall, while Canada's standing is 11-68, Venezuela's 3-37 and Brazil's 2-26.

U.S. athletes had 127 gold medals and 264 overall in the 1979 Pan Ams, the most ever in ecah category.

Boxers Louis Howard and Evander Holyfield moved into he semifinals with easy victories, and the United States ended Canada's unbeaten streak in women's basketball with an 87-79 victory, behind Lynette Woodard's 18 points.

The U.S. baseball team remained unbeaten and won the first game of its final round-robin when Ben Abner hit a two-run homer with two outs in the eighth inning that gave the Americans a 4-3 victory over Panama.

Cuba dominated Greco-Roman wrestling, and U.S. shooters wound up a virtually spotless tournament.

Pan Am Games

Carey, who also is the world record-holder in the 200 backstroke, is the second world-record setter in Pan Am swimming in 1983. On Wednesday, Steve Lundquist lowered his own 100 breaststroke mark.

The closest challenger to Carey Sunday was Dave Bottom of Danville, Calif., in 56.90. The bronze medal went to Mike West of Canada in 57.20.

Carey, who also won the 200 backstroke here, joined Tracy Caulkins and Tiffany Cohen in earning their second individual gold medals. Carrie Steinseifer swam the freestyle leg on the Americans' winning 400 medley relay for her third overall gold medal.

Caulkins, of Nashville, Tenn., won the women's 200 individual medley, topping the field in 2 minutes, 16.22 seconds. The winner of an unprecedented 47 national swimming titles, she also won the Pan Am 400 individual medley.

Cohen, of Mission Viejo, Calif., won the the women's 800 freestyle in a meet-record time 8:35.42. It was her second individual gold medal.

World record-holder Craig Beardsley of Harrington Park, N.J., smashed his own Pan Am record in the men's 200 butterfly, winning in 1:58.85, a whopping 1.64 seconds faster than his previous meet mark.

Steinseifer, of Saratoga, Calif., who won the women's 100 freestyle and swam a leg on the winning 400 freestyle relay, anchored the U.S. medley relay team to victory in a meet-record 4:12.99. Sue Walsh swam the backstroke leg, Laurie Lehner the butterfly and Kim Rhodenbaugh the breaststroke.

Cuban Greco-Roman wrestlers won eight of 10 matches. One of the exceptions was Steve Frazier of Hazel Park, Mich., who won the gold in the 198-pound class.

Shooter Eric Buljung of Fort Benning, Ga., gained his third individual gold, in central pistol competition, while the dean of the shooting team, Lones Wigger Jr., got his second in three-position match rifle. Of the 36 gold medals in shooting events, the United States won 31.

A team of cyclists added to the U.S. medal count, U.S. rowers won four championships and in women's gymnastics, 16-year-old Lucy Wener of Memphis, Tenn., and 17-year-old Yumi Mordre of Vashon Island, Wash., won gold medals — Wener in the uneven parallel bars and Mordre in the floor exercise. That capped a strong showing for the women gymnasts, who won the team title Friday night.

Louganis, from Mission Viejo, Calif., won the men's 10-meter platform competition with a score of 677.58. But he had to rally to edge Bruce Kimball of Ann Arbor, Mich., who won the silver medal to continue a remarkable comeback from a near-fatal automobile accident less than two years ago.

Louganis trailed Kimball 500.82-498.66 after eight dives in the 10-round competition. But on his last two dives, Louganis was brilliant.

He hit a string of 8's and 8.5's on a back 3½ somersault, then scored four 9's and a perfect 10 on a reverse 3½ somersault — the same dive on which Sergei Shlibashvili of the Soviet Union was fatally injured during the World University Games last month.

Kimball finished with 654.12 points, 20 more than Louganis won from the platform en route to world championships in both diving events last year, while Ricardo Banuelos of Mexico took the bronze at 531.27.

Louganis won the men's three-meter springboard on Friday, and thus successfully defended his Pan Am crowns in both. Kelly McCormick of Columbus, Ohio, won the women's three-meter Thursday, while Wendy Wyland of Mission Viejo took the women's 10-meter gold Saturday.

Howard, from St. Louis, knocked out Alejandro Garcia of Mexico in 2:26 of the first round to advance to the semifials of the 147-pounds boxing class.

Holyfield, from Atlanta, quickly followed with a unanimous decision over Adolfo Morin of Puerto Rico at 178 pounds.

Ponies, 'Horns picked in SWC

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — This muddied crystal ball sees a tie for the title in the 1983 Southwest Conference football race.

In horse racing, they'd call it a dead heat. However, you may, if you wish, call it "chicken".

There are all sorts of excuses for bailing out and predicting a deathlock for first place between the defending champion Southern Methodist Mustangs and the veteran-laden Texas Longhorns.

Analyzing the two teams gets SO confusing.

SMU has a proven quarterback in Lance McIlhenny and Texas plans to go with untested youngsters.

Texas has nine starters returning on defense and SMU only has three.

How can you win without a pressure-proof quarterback?

Well, how can you win without a firm defensive foundation?

Will SMU's easy schedule be a plus?

Will Texas' salty schedule harden the 'Horns into a champion?

Will the NCAA investigation rattle the Ponies?

Will Michael Carter's return at noseguard be the inspiration the Mustangs need?

Stop it. Stop the questions. You get the point.

Dead Heat

Houston, Baylor, Texas A&M, Arkansas, Texas Tech, and Texas Christian could all jump into the first division in what should be a wild title scramble.

Only Rice, although Owls Coach Ray Alborn will be trying every trick his thinking cap can muster, lacks the firepower to shoot for championship heights.

1 SMU and TEXAS (tie) : Nothing breeds winning like winning and SMU hasn't lost since October 1981. However, if the green Texas quarterbacks don't get shellshock after early outings against national powers Auburn and Oklahoma it could be the Year of the Longhorn. SMU does get to play in Irving.

3, BAYLOR: A new offense with Alfred Anderson at tailback, a new defense, and a quarterback, Cody Carlson — who Coach Grant Teaff believes will be sensational — could produce a stunning combination a la the championship years of 1974 and 1980. The key could be the opener against Brigham Young, a game in which the young Bear secondary needs to play well.

4, TEXAS A&M: A first-class quarterback in John Mazur, the Southern California transfer, a new defensive alignment, and an easy schedule could turn Coach Jackie Sherrill's 5-6 team of 1982 into a potent force.

5, ARKANSAS, HOUSTON, and TEXAS TECH (tie): There's no way to separate these three teams. Arkansas will be capable of moving the ball at a rapid clip behind the deadly arm of quarterback Brad Taylor;

(See 'Wacker' on page 6-B)

GOLD AND RECORD FOR HIS COUNTRY — Swimmer Rick Carey stands at attention during the National Anthem during award ceremonies at the Pan Games in Caracas, Venezuela. Carey swam to a 55.19 clocking to set a world record in the 100-meter backstroke to highlight five swim golds by Americans Sunday.

White gains in Dallas QB wars

DALLAS (AP) — Gary Hogeboom's bid to take away Danny White's No. 1 quarterback job took a decided turn for the worse Saturday night.

White, the Cowboy's starting quarterback, turned in a precision passing performance in the first half of a 24-7 National Football League preseason loss to Pittsburgh. But Hogeboom fared poorly.

Hogeboom threw two interceptions and was roundly booed by some of the same fans who had cheered him ony two weeks ago when he threw one touchdown and completed several passes to set up another in the final seconds of a 20-17 victory over Miami.

"I'm still ready to start at quarterback and working to get the job and I am looking forward to next week. I think I learned a lot tonight. I tried to do somethings that just didn't work out," said an undaunted Hogeboom.

"I felt really good about it," White said of his performance.

White completed 11 of 14 passes for 124 yards, but the quarterbacking star of the game was Pittsburgh's Cliff Stoudt, heir apparent to Terry Bradshaw until the veteran Steeler quarterback's injured arm heals.

Stoudt, who has played in only 14 regular season games in six years and started only one, passed for a touchdown and ran for two more.

He apparently will be in the Steeler lineup at the start of this regular season because Bradshaw, who had off-season surgery, is still on the inactive list.

GARY HOGEBOOM
...starting bid stalls

"We have a lot of confidence in Cliff and there's no way now Bradshaw could be ready (by the opener) if he came back," said Steeler coach Chuck Noll.

Noll went all the way with Stoudt although he had considered inserting backup quarterback Mark Malone into the fray.

"I thought Cliff had a good game in all respects," said Noll. "I was particularly pleased with the way he directed the running game. We had planned to play him only about three quarters, but then we decided to let him go all the way so that he would become the winning pitcher."

White flipped a 13-yard scoring pass to tight end Doug Cosbie in the first quarter to give Dallas a 7-0 lead before a rash of turnovers, including two fumbles by running back Tony Dorsett and Hogeboom's two interceptions, spelled doom for Dallas.

"Danny looked sharp with the first unit," said Landry. "Gary was in a situation that was just almost impossible with all the second teamers in there. He didn't have much of a chance."

Landry said the turnovers killed Dallas' chances but added, "We didn't do anything."

The Cowboys were coming off a Monday night game in which they had looked most impressive by whipping Los Angeles 30-7.

Hartford Open

Strange kicks No. 2 habit

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — It was a bold Curtis Strange who twice charged to the top of a pack of golfers vying for the lead in the $300,000 Sammy DavisJr.-Greater Hartford Open.

But it was a conservative Curtis Strange who walked to the 18th tee in the final round of the tournament Sunday clutching a two-stroke lead over Jack Renner, the man he had overtaken for the lead.

Strange's second shot on the par-4 hole came to rest on the fringe of the putting surface about 35 feet from the cup. On the next shot he tried only to push the ball to within putting distance.

The ball stopped about five feet from the pin and Strange missed the short putt. It was the second time in two days he bogeyed the hole.

Strange already had won the $54,000 first prize. Renner, his playing partner, parred the hole and finished a stroke behind.

CURTIS STRANGE
...finally gets a victory

"I played a very conservative chip and a very conservative putt," said the 28-year-old Strange, who won his first PGA tournament in three years. He didn't mention that he teed off on the 424-yard final hole with a one-iron.

Strange's 16-under 268 was the highest winning score at the 6,579-yard Wethersfield Country Club course since 1974. In last year's GHO, Tim Norris broke three course records en route to a 25-under 259.

LPGA Championship

Carner's rush brings victory

SHAKER HEIGHTS, Ohio (AP) — As Ayako Okamoto was applying tremendous pressure with a hole-in-one followed by two birdies on the front nine, veteran JoAnne Carner convinced herself there were still plenty of birdies to be had.

The mental peptalk helped Carner pick up five strokes on Okamoto during the final nine holes as she registered a two-stroke victory Sunday in the Chevrolet World Championship of Women's Golf.

Carner, 44, the defending champion, collected three birdies to go with one bogey on the final nine holes, finishing with a 3-under-par 69 for a 72-hole total of 6-under-par 282 on the 6,225-yard Shaker Heights Country Club course.

Okamoto, Japan's leading woman golfer and the runnerup to Carner last year, bogeyed four of the first six holes on the backside and closed with a 70 for a 4-under-par 284.

JO ANNE CARNER
...fast finish earns $65,000

Okamoto, 32, needed only 12 putts on the front nine, where she turned in a 5-under-par 30. She then putted 19 times on the final nine holes for a 40. Carner shot 34-35.

The $65,000 first prize, richest on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, thrust Carner ahead of Patty Sheehan as the leading money-winner this year with $251,384.

The victory was Carner's first of the season, after seven seconds.

Denver Seniors

January wins by 4 strokes

DENVER (AP9 — Don January, shrugging off a potentially disastrous double goey at the fourth hole, held off his challengers with a 2-under-par 69 Sunday for a 4-stroke victory in the Denver Post Champions of Golf seniors tournament.

January, a lanky Texan, finished with a 72-hole total of 13-under-par 271 at Green Gables Country Club and pocketed the $25,000 first-place check.

Billy Casper and Doug Sanders, playing in the same group as the winner, had final rounds of 71 and 70, respectively, to tie for second at 275.

Defending champion Arnold Palmer had a 68 for a 277 total and fourth place.

Palmer made an early run at the leader. Starting the day seven strokes off the pace, Palmer birdied three of the first five holes. Coupled with January's double bogey, that left Palmer just 2 strokes off the pace.

DON JANUARY
...takes four-shot win

But Palmer settled for par on the 577-yard, par-5 sixth hole — a hole he had expected to birdie — and then three-putted No. 7 for a bogey.

"Those two holes kind of took the starch out of me," he said. "If I had birdied 6 I would have kept the momentum going and would have gone 8-under. It might have created some excitement."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORCAST FOR TUESDAY, AUGUST 23, 1983

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today's full moon finds it possible to wind up all sorts of plans, especially where your motivations for your future conduct and your mental progress and advancement is concerned.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Come to the right decisions with friends and then you can proceed with your end of bargains made. Clarify goals.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get out of some project that is getting you nowhere and study into new outlets that can prove lucrative.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A progressive new outlet can bring you much success provided you first discuss it with a bigwig who can give you backing.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Finish those business affairs left undone and then look into new outlets. Plan activities wisely.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) That deal with a partner is just about to come through so be sure of exactly what your duties will be.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Get all details handled in connection with your work and then get into new tasks you have assumed.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Tell your mate that you will be more helpful now and in the future and do the work expected of you. Socialize this evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Solve that problem at home, if any, early and then out to places and people that you enjoy. Be only with close friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Finish that correspondence you started and study new letters that have come in well before answering them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) At last you can get your property as you want it to be, then later talk over with experts aims for the future.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You have been busy with personal aims, but now concentrate on improving your financial status.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Try to complete indoor tasks so that you can take care of personal matters, aims. Try to be of assistance to friends.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will fit nicely into modern life and be happy and expressive in it. Send to up-to-date schools and give every advantage that you can so that the life can be most successful. Your progeny will be quiet and content.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Survival games

Make-believe battles for grown-up kids

JEANNETTE, Pa. (AP) — Crouching in the underbrush with camouflage paint smeared on his face, John Evangeliste clutches his pistol, listening for the gunshot that could bring him down.

"I live for this," says Evangeliste, 27.

Actually, he dies for this. Regularly.

He is an avid player and promoter of The National Survival Game, which was started barely two years ago and now has at least 80 dealerships in 38 states and Canada.

One dealership is owned by a psychologist who believes the game relieves tension and aggression.

An estimated 10,000 to 12,000 people play the game each weekend, its developers say, shooting each other with paint pellets in a grownup version of Capture the Flag.

Officials at National Survival Game Inc. in New London, N.H., say they plan 200 private parks for playing the game in the United States and Canada by year's end and hope to set up similar layouts in Australia and Western Europe.

On Oct. 8-10, eight U.S. teams and two from Canada will compete in New Hampshire in the first North American championship, with an undetermined cash prize.

"We always played army when we were kids," said Evangeliste, who is co-owner of a western Pennsylvania dealership and plays the game with his wife, brothers and friends. "As we got older, it was too childish. Now we found something that lets us play again.

"That's all it is, a game," he said. "We keep trying to tell people we aren't warped like these crazy survivalists."

Some observers aren't so sure.

"The commercialized promotion and spread of this war game is very dangerous," said Dr. Thomas Radecki, chairman of the National Coalition on Television Violence and professor of psychiatry at the University of Illinois School of Medicine. The coalition last week called for congressional hearings on the game and a ban on current television advertisements.

"At the very moment that U.S. soldiers are getting more deeply involved in wars in El Salvador, Nicaragua, Lebanon and Chad," Radecki continued, "college fraternities and normal American businessmen are rehearsing declarations of war and duels to the death."

Bob Gurnsey, vice president and chief executive officer of National Survival Game Inc., complained that coalition members "were not pressed in any way as to why it's dangerous, how it's dangerous and how they made these determinations, because to my knowledge, they have never been close to or played in any one of the games."

The coalition said it had polled 12 nationally recognized experts on aggression and violence, all of whom agreed the game was dangerous.

Another professional opinion comes from Lester Mann, a psychologist in Ambler, Pa., who owns a game dealership in northeastern Pennsylvania.

"I'm convinced, in and of itself, the game is not harmful, psychologically or otherwise," Mann said. "I frankly believe it relieves tensions and aggression.

"If anything, it reduces hostilities. People go 'bang, bang' and mark each other with paint and then have a beer together. If that's all we have to fear, we're in good shape."

Evangeliste and his brother, Mark, escape the humdrum of the family carpet business every weekend and turn the family farm east of Pittsburgh into battlefields where victors and vanquished toast each other with post-game beer and soft drinks.

"It's the ultimate outdoor action sport. ... It's escapism," said Mark Evangeliste, 31. "You get it all out of your system. That's something that golf, racquetball and tennis really don't do for me."

The first game was played June 27, 1981, in New Hampshire to settle a friendly argument over who would have the best chance of survival — a city kid whose street smarts were honed in the New York rat race or a country boy with a superior knowledge of terrain and nature. The game didn't settle the argument, but it was a lot of fun.

Bannister baffles Rangers, 3-1

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Another strong pitching performance by Floyd Bannister and a massive homer by Carlton Fisk have combined to keep the Chicago White Sox on their sizzling pace in the American League West.

Bannister struck out nine, walked two and gave up only five hits in 6 2-3 innings Sunday night, working out of two early jams, in a 3-1 victory over Texas.

The triumph was the ninth straight for Bannister, who was only 3-9 at the All-Star break, and put Chicago 14 games over .500 in the Western Division.

Fisk's towering two-run homer in the fifth inning erased a 1-0 Texas lead and made Bannister, 12-9, the winner. The drive, above the walkway in the left field stands, was Fisk's 20th homer of the season — the first time he's circled the bases that many times since 1978.

Butcher gave up one of his two walks, to Rudy Law, just ahead of Fisk's homer.

Salome Barojas struck out two and gave up one hit over the final 2 1-3 innings for Chicago to get his 12th save.

American League

Brewers 7, A's 1

Moose Haas scattered five hits in six innings to tie a club record with his eighth consecutive victory as Milwaukee downed the Oakland A's 7-1 and pulled within one percentage point of first-place Baltimore in the American League East.

Cecil Cooper, the major-league RBI leader with 105 RBIs, drove in four with a pair of singles to back the seven-hit pitching of Haas

Royals 8, Orioles 3

Jim Palmer seemed to be throwing all right, but he wasn't the old Jim Palmer.

Palmer, the 37-year-old Baltimore right-hander who has won 265 major-league games, returned from his latest visit to the disabled list and allowed four runs and 10 hits — including solo homers by Leon Roberts and Hal McRae — in 6 1-3 innings Sunday as the Orioles lost to the Kansas City Royals 8-3.

Twins 4, Tigers 3

Ken Schrom and Ron Davis combined on a six-hitter for Minnesota. Schrom, 12-4, owns 23 percent of the Twins' 53 victories.

Blue Jays 7, Red Sox 3

Cliff Johnson hit a tie-breaking double in the eighth inning, one of six Toronto doubles, and pinch runner Willie Upshaw scored on Jesse Barfield's single. Toronto scored twice in the ninth on RBI singles by Lloyd Moseby and Rance Mulliniks. Jim Gott scattered seven hits, including Jim Rice's 27th homer, tying him with teammate Tony Armas for the AL lead.

Yankees 2, Angels 1

Ken Griffey's two-run single following a two-out, two-base error by Angels second baseman Bobby Grich in the ninth inning lifted the Yankees behind the four-hit pitching of Dave Righetti and Rich Gossage.

Mariners 7, Indians 2

Mike Jeffcoat, making his major-league debut, blanked Seattle on two singles over the first six innings. But the Mariners scored five times against Jeffcoat, Dan Spillner and Tom Brennan in the seventh to take the win.

Rookie Cox outduels vet Ryan

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Manager Whitey Herzog says rookie Danny Cox has a basic approach to his task of pitching the St. Louis Cardinals back into contention in the National League.

"He ain't afraid to throw strikes," said Herzog following Cox's first major league victory in a 5-2 triumph Sunday over the Houston Astros. "He's big and strong. He makes them earn what they get."

The 230-pound Cox, while making his fourth mound start, fought off 100-degree heat and the excitement of his first hit to hurl an eight-hitter for 7 2-3 innings.

His victim was Houston fireballer Nolan Ryan, 12-6. Neil Allen took over after Jose Cruz homered and Ray Knight doubled with two out in the Houston eighth, and Bruce Sutter finished up for his 14th save.

"They're now pitching pretty good," Herzog said of a Cards staff which last week fielded most of the blame for a 2-12 swoon dropping last year's world championship club 7½ games back in the NL East.

St. Louis, by winning a fifth straight time, climbed 3½ games back in topsy-turvy NL East chase standings and badly damaged the hopes of the Astros by dropping them 10 games back in the NL West.

Coveted almost as much as the victory by Cox, 1-1, was his hit off Ryan, who fanned five in six innings to push his lifetime total to 3,627.

Dodgers 6, Phillies 0

Rick Honeycutt had never pitched in the National League and hadn't been at bat since college. So, naturally, he felt right at home throwing and swinging for the Los Angeles Dodgers.

National League

Honeycutt was 14-8 with Texas before being dealt to the Dodgers on Friday. He made his LA debut Sunday and scattered four hits over seven innings before leaving with a slight cut on the left middle finger. Honeycutt struck out a season-high seven and retired the final 11 batters he faced.

He also singled in his first major-league at-bat and brought home a run with a squeeze bunt as the Dodgers registered their ninth victory without a loss this season over Philadelphia. Los Angeles has outscored the Phillies 34-7 in the nine games and shut them out five times.

Braves 11, Cubs 9

While the East leader can't find an offense, the West pacesetters from Atlanta rediscovered theirs in Wrigley Field. The Braves had lost four in a row, scoring only six runs, but got 25 in their last three victories against the Cubs.

Leon Durham, Mel Hall, Jody Davis and Thad Bosley homered for Chicago.

Reds 6, Pirates 4

The visiting Reds rallied for three eighth-inning runs with the help of a two-run error by second baseman Johnny Ray to edge the Pirates.

Mets 4, Giants 3

George Foster homered for the third straight game and Mike Torrez fired a five-hitter before needing ninth-inning relief help from Jesse Orosco as the Mets swept a three-game series with the Giants. Foster's ninth-inning homer tied the game Friday and he belted a grand slam Saturday.

Expos 3-2, Padres 0-5

At San Diego, Charlie Lea extended his personal winning streak to four games with a nine hitter in the first game. The shutout was the third of the year for Lea and his sixth complete game.

In the nightcap, Dave Gwosdz slammed his first major-league homer, a three-run shot.

Wacker to boost Frogs, Owls face long year

Houston has a crack quarterback in elusive Lionell Wilson and the defense will be better behind T.J. Turner; Coach Jerry Moore has his Red Raiders rapidly improving and quarterback Jim Hart is back.

8, TCU: New Coach Jim Wacker has proven he can dominate small college football but can his Horned Frogs produce the depth to last the grinding SWC jousts? The Horned Frogs WILL be dangerous but the first division appears to big a jump this season.

9, RICE: Alborn has produced upset victories in the past over Arkansas, Houston, and LSU but they would be minor miracles compared with any successes he can scrape together this year.
