Investor defends gifts as being for good government

DALLAS (AP) - A Dallas developer and casino investor says his $205,000 in donations to Gov. Ann Richards and Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock were made because he's interested in good government and not in expanding gambling in Texas.

In a telephone interview Thursday, Daniel P. Robinowitz told The Dallas Morning News the topic of casinos never came up in private meetings that he said he had with the state's top two elected officials in Austin.

The meeting was held just prior to the time he gave $105,000 to Richards and $100,000 to Bullock.

The two officials told the newspaper that there were no such private meetings.

"I have never sat down in a private meeting with the gentleman in my life," Bullock said. "I know nothing about the man."

Bill Cryer, Ms. Richards's press secretary, said the governor had chatted with Robinowitz at public receptions with others present, but has not met privately with him.

In the telephone interview, Robinowitz took issue with the suggestion that he is a newcomer to politics. He said he has given money to a number of state politicians over the years beginning with former Gov. John Connally.

The newspaper reported today that Robinowitz does not show up as a substantial contributor on any of the campaign finance reports filed by statewide candidates in recent years.

An analysis conducted by the newspaper, based on Ethics Commission filings, found only one other $100,000 individual contributor each to the Richards campaign and that of her Republican opponent, George W. Bush.

There were no other similar contributions to either the campaign of Bullock or his Republican opponent, H.J. "Tex" Lezar.

The Dallas man said he gave the money to the governor because of her success in creating new jobs, improving education and curbing crime during her first three years in office.

"She has done a stellar job of providing meaningful results," he said.

Robinowitz also praised Bullock as a "stabilizing" force in Texas for years.

Robinowitz criticized Bush, saying he is "terrified" at the prospect of Bush becoming governor.

"I don't think George Bush is qualified to be governor of this great state. He has no legitimate job I know of," he said. "He got his job (managing general partner with the Texas Rangers baseball team) through his father's friends."

"Consider the source," Karen Hughes, communications director for the Bush campaign, said. "Any Texan who knows the facts and who has seen the concrete testimony to George W. Bush's leadership and business skills, The Ballpark in Arlington, knows Mr. Robinowitz is putting his money on the wrong horse in the Texas governor's race."

Casino gambling, shaping up as a hot issue in the 1995 Legislature, "was absolutely the furthestest thing from my mind" in making the donations to Ms. Richards and Bullock, Robinowitz said.

The Dallas man also said that if he gets involved in the battle, he may back casino opponents because changing the law would put Texas in competition with the big casino he is building in New Orleans.

"Why in the world would I want to impair a multi million dollar investment?" he asked. "If I do get involved, I may be involved in trying to stop casinos from coming to Texas."

He declined to speculate on whether he would seek a casino license if the games are approved for Texas.

Association notes best, worst places for affordable housing around nation

By JOHN D. McCLAIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Looking for an affordable home? The National Association of Home Builders has some suggestions.

Try the Vineland-Millville-Bridgeton, N.J., area in the Northeast, it says. Or Kokomo, Ind., in the Midwest. Brazoria, Texas, in the South, perhaps. Or Denver in the West. Those markets topped the association's Housing Opportunity Index by region in the first quarter.

But avoid San Francisco, the least affordable market in the nation. And New York in the Northeast, Chicago in the Midwest and El Paso, Texas, in the South. Those areas were at the bottom of the regional affordability lists.

Brazoria, with 95.3 percent of the homes in reach of a median-income household, and Beaumont, with 90.5 percent, were the most affordable Texas markets, and among the most affordable in the country. El Paso, with only 59.3 percent of its homes affordable to its relatively low-income population, was the least affordable in Texas and among the least affordable in the nation.

The Vineland area of southern New Jersey was found to be the most affordable market in the nation, according to the index released Thursday. The index was based on a 174-market survey covering 330,000 sales of new and previously owned homes.

Generally, the survey found affordability good in most areas of the nation because of relatively low mortgage rates.

While fixed-rate, 30-year mortgages rose to an average 7.56 percent in the first quarter, from 7.27 percent in the previous three months, they remained well below the double-digit figures experienced during most of the 1980s.

"Although there are many places where affording a home is out of reach for many families, the low mortgage interest rates that we have been enjoying for nearly a year make housing more affordable everywhere," said Tommy Thompson, president of the home builders group.

Regional trends remained steady, with the most affordable markets found primarily in the Midwest and in the South, and the least affordable ones mostly in the West, particularly California, and the Northeast.

The Midwest had 15 areas among the 25 most affordable. Four more were in the South and seven, including two that were tied for 25th place, were in the Northeast.

The West had 19 areas among the least affordable, including 17 in California. Five others were found in the Northeast and one was in the South.

The Housing Opportunity Index measures the ability of a typical family to purchase a home in its own market by comparing median family income with median home price. The median means that half of the families earned more and half earned less, or that half of the homes cost more and half cost less.

The median income nationally was $39,900 in the first quarter and the median home price was $112,000.

Demo leaders plan health plan changes

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Saying they had "listened to America," Democratic leaders are pledging major changes in President Clinton's unpopular plan for health reform as Congress points toward a summer showdown on legislation to provide insurance for all.

"Our plans will be less bureaucratic, more voluntary and will be phased in over a longer period of time," Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, said following a meeting Thursday evening with the president, Hillary Rodham Clinton and top White House aides.

"We're going to suggest different approaches to achieve the same objectives" as Clinton outlined last fall, he added.

Said House Speaker Thomas Foley:

"We believe we are proposing legislation that can receive majority support in the House and Senate." Votes are expected in August.

Clinton adviser George Stephanopoulos said the president was in agreement, "ready to go and ready to fight."

None of the participants provided detailed specifics of the changes that are still in the drafting stage.

On the most controversial of provisions, Foley said the House will vote on a requirement for businesses to pay for some portion of insurance coverage for workers.

Mitchell made no such pledge, but when asked whether the so-called employer mandate would be excluded in his bill, he said, "It should not sound that way because that's not the way it is."

Clinton proposed employers pay 80 percent of the cost of insuring workers and their families. The House bill is likely to provide additional protection for small firms and give them more time to comply; in private meetings, Mitchell has broached the idea of workers paying 50 percent of the cost of insuring workers, but not their families, an approach that key moderate Democrats find more appealing.

"We've listened to America; we've listened to Republicans as well as Democrats," Mitchell said.

In the Capitol, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., arranged a hearing at which the chief executive of Pizza Hut, Allen Huston, was defending his company's policy of not paying for coverage for workers, even though it does so in Europe. Kennedy also asked the heads of McDonald's and PepsiCo to appear, but it was uncertain whether they would comply.

The businesses say the requirements imposed by Europeans contribute to "unemployment, stagnant economics and high tax rates."

The Oval Office meeting marked a turning point in Congress' long-running health reform debate, and came near the end of a tumultuous week in which Clinton said coverage of about 95 percent of all Americans would meet his test of universal care. He has since said he was misunderstood, and he's holding fast to his call for everyone to be guaranteed coverage.

Even so, his comments complicated the task of the Democratic leaders, who had been struggling even before he spoke to draft legislation that can both satisfy the administration's goal of universal coverage and pass Congress.

Mitchell said the main objectives of the bills would be to provide affordable, secure health insurance for all Americans; control over federal costs; greater emphasis on preventive and primary care; and maintaining the "highest quality of care" and choice of physicians.

Van Horn man wins last million drawing

SAN MARCOS, Texas (AP) - A 47-year-old bread deliveryman from Van Horn is the final winner in the Texas Lottery's series of $1 million drawings.

"I really couldn't see myself getting $1 million," David McBirnie said. "It's going to have to sink in a little bit. From the very beginning I could not see myself here with this."

McBirnie was one of seven finalists in Thursday's drawing, the 30th and final one.

The Texas Lottery began the drawings two years ago to generate excitement about the game. Finalists for each drawing were chosen from lottery players who scratched off the word "entry" from a lottery ticket.

The Texas Lottery still will feature instant winnings from scratch-off tickets and the bigger money Lotto.

McBirnie's six children, wife and mother rushed to the stage in San Marcos after he opened a mock safe with a message inside declaring him the winner.

McBirnie 47, a Vietnam veteran who was awarded a Purple Heart, said he will ask his wife, Adela, for help in figuring out how to spend the windfall.

"It's only fair. Every time I brought home my paycheck, it was never enough to pay all the bills," he said.

Also in Thursday's drawing, Sara Rempel of Seminole won $50,000; Nelly Moreno of Plainview, $25,000; Jorge Arias of Grand Prairie and Willie D. Harvey of Houston, $15,000 each; and Fred Parker of Dallas and Elsie J. Marak of Ennis, $10,000 each.

At least two other $1 million drawing winners attended the final event. An easygoing Jerry Hockman of San Antonio said $1 million he won in June 1992 made life easier for him and his wife.

"We travel more, we can do a lot more," Hockman said.

District court session here yields prison terms for two

Two defendants were assessed prison sentences and terms of probation of three men were modified during a session Thursday in 22nd District Court.

Judge David Wesley Gulley revoked probation of Danny Maeder, convicted of criminal mischief over $750 and under $20,000, and ordered him to serve four years in Texas Department of Criminal Justice institutional division.

On pleas of guilty to two charges, Ramon Luna Martinez, 48, was sentenced to concurrent four-year terms in prison. He was charged with felony driving while intoxicated and bail jumping and failure to appear.

James Matthew McIntosh,

convicted previously of burglary of a building and assessed an eight-year probation sentence, was ordered to the Taylor County Restitution Center for treatment and placed under intensive supervision on his return to Deaf Smith County. The state had filed a motion to revoke his probation.

Modesto Garcia, who had been on deferred adjudication probation on a conviction for burglary, was given a 10-year probation prison term.

On a motion to revoke probation, Judge Gulley ordered Jose Valdez to a substance abuse punishment facility. His original sentence for felony driving while intoxicated was five years' probation.

State, DOE nearing collider settlement

DALLAS (AP) - Texas and the U.S. Department of Energy could be close to a settlement in the dismantling of the super collider that would give the state up to $200 million in cash, The Dallas Morning News reports today.

Congressional sources quoted by The News said attorneys for the state and the Energy Department are ready to sign a deal that would resolve Texas' claims concerning the more than $400 million it had invested in the high-energy physics project.

Last October, Congress canceled the $11 billion, 54-mile underground atom smasher, which was under construction near Waxahachie south of Dallas.

Gov. Ann Richards was to meet today in Dallas with members of the Texas National Research Laboratory Commission, which oversees the state's investment in the collider, said spokesman Bill Cryer.

Also expected to be at the meeting are Rep. Joe Barton, R-Ennis, whose district includes part of the collider; and Jane Hickie, who as head of the Texas Office of State-Federal Relations in Washington has been a point person on the negotiations.

"I would presume - and this is a presumption on my part - but my understanding is it's to discuss a possible settlement," Cryer said of the meeting.

Cryer said he didn't have any information about the proposed settlement.

The newspaper reported that the agreement could mean between $100 million and $200 million in cash for the state for the final shutdown of the project.

In addition to the cash reimbursement, the state would get to keep the linear accelerator, all the land and the magnet development laboratory. Texas also would get the buildings, equipment and other facilities at the site and provisions for leasing them back to the federal government, the newspaper said.

Sources quoted in the story said the proposed settlement, which still must be approved by the Energy Department and the Texas National Research Laboratory Commission, would give the Energy Department liability for the already completed 14 miles of tunnel. Ownership of the tunnel was a key sticking point in the negotiations.

Commission Chairman Shelton Smith, who participated in the negotiations, was en route from Washington to Dallas this morning and couldn't immediately be reached for comment.

TAMU may cancel $120 million plant construction job

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - Texas A&M appeared on the verge today of scrapping construction of a $120 million utility plant, the largest capital project in the university's history.

An estimated $15 million has already been spent in the initial phase of the project, and a Dallas company has already billed as much as $2 million in consultant fees, A&M board chairwoman Mary Nan West said Thursday.

The proposed construction of a cogeneration project, as well as efforts to privatize some operations at the state's second-largest university, has been part of an expansive state and federal investigation since last September.

On Thursday, the parent Texas A&M University System announced that it would be conducting an audit of the project.

Regents were expected today to uphold an administrative decision to stop negotiations to build a cogeneration plant, which was designed to provide A&M's utility needs through the year 2012.

A&M administrators broke off negotiations last month with Tenneco Power Generation Co. to build the plant after independent auditors declared the project "substantially flawed."

The project had come under sharp attack recently from consultants, who question its necessity, and by regents.

Regent Billy Clayton, a former Speaker of the Texas House of Representatives, said the original consultant contract in 1992 was for $25,000 and approved by the university's legal department.

"The next time we heard about it, the contract had reached $2 million without additional approval from legal," Clayton said.

"That gives me some heartburn," he said. "I'm a consultant, and I can't make that kind of money. I don't think anyone completely understands this, and that's the amazing thing."

Ernst & Young Utilities Consulting questioned the need for the plant, as did a former chancellor of the university system, and criticized the university for failing to accurately assess its financial risk from the project. And among other points, Ernst & Young faulted A&M's process of selecting a developer for the project.

The findings tracked allegations raised more than a year ago by an unsuccessful bidder, the City of College Station, which accused A&M of giving an unfair advantage to developer Tenneco and its subcontractor, Brown & Root.

A&M hired Brown & Root in 1992 to help draft its request for project proposals and then chose Tenneco and Brown & Root.

Ms. West said it appears that the first phase of the plant, which amounted to laying pipelines, is justified. However, the huge plant, which would have been built in the second stage, may not be needed at all.

Texas A&M has operated a cogeneration plant for at least 50 years. Documents prepared by A&M physical plant director Joe Sugg say two consultants' studies in 1990 and 1992 pushed the concept of a new plant, which would take fuel - in this case, largely gas - and convert it to electricity and steam to power other utilities.

In assessing the university's energy needs through the year 2012, university officials, in documents obtained under the Texas Open Government Act, said both consultants' studies recommended adding to the existing cogeneration plant.

But Dale Keith, a Kansas engineer who spearheaded the second study, disputes that characterization of his work. He said his firm advised the board of regents to pursue dual options of a cogeneration plant or contracting with an alternative supplier, whichever met the university-imposed 1994 deadline.

Keith said he did not expect A&M to choose the cogeneration option, since the university previously had concluded that it did not want to spend the estimated $27 million to add to its power plant.

State senator hopes to reclaim Alamo battle flag from Mexico

By CHIP BROWN

Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) - A state senator is trying to help Texans remember the Alamo. But it won't be an easy task.

Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, is laying the groundwork to recover a battle flag seized by Mexican troops at the 1836 Battle of the Alamo.

For years, the government in Mexico has rebuffed American attempts to reclaim the flag.

But Truan hopes improved relations tied to the North American Free Trade Agreement and three Mexican flags seized by Texas troops at the Battle of San Jacinto will produce an exchange. He is not holding his breath, however.

"My opinion is that they may want to continue to have the Texas flag for historic reasons and national pride," Truan said. "This is a very sensitive discussion and ought not to be taken as just a casual exchange."

"To them, they have a flag that was captured at the Alamo, where they were victorious. And these three flags we have were taken when they were defeated."

On Thursday, the Texas State Library and Archives Commission voted unanimously to endorse Truan's plan to initiate steps aimed at exchanging the Texas flag, which is on display in Mexico City, for the three flags taken from Mexican troops during the Texas Revolution.

State Archives Commission Director William Gooch says Truan's plan would mark the first time the Mexican government has been offered something in exchange for the flag.

"They have tried this before," Gooch said. "We tried to borrow the flag and Mexico wouldn't relinquish it. But this is the first time I have seen anything where we have in print that there is the possibility of exchanging something they own for something we own."

"The (Texas) flag has importance because it's 150-some-odd years old," Gooch said. "It's a valuable artifact. But the significance of it lies in that it was a flag taken from the Alamo at the time Texas had its beginning in 1836."

Truan, chairman of the Senate Committee on International Trade, Commerce and Technology, said the idea was raised during a meeting he had with Mexican Consul Armando Beteta of Corpus Christi on other commerce matters.

Beteta was out of his office Thursday, and a secretary said he couldn't be reached for comment.

Measuring 45-by-34 inches, the blue "Alamo flag" is made of crude cotton, trimmed in gold and embroidered with a picture of an eagle with a banner in its beak, saying, "God and Liberty."

The banner is also emblazoned with the words "1st Company of Texan Volunteers from New Orleans."

Mexico has shown an increased interest in the return of the three flags it lost during the Texas Revolution. Texans confiscated the colors of battalions from Matamoros, Toluca and Guerrero on April 21, 1836.

The battalions were under the command of Gen. Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna, who defeated Texans under command of Lt. Col. William Barrett Travis at the Alamo on March 6, 1836.

The Legislature would have to approve any exchange, which likely wouldn't occur before January because of presidential elections in Mexico.

SAN JOSE CATHOLIC CHURCH

As Catholic Christians we are called to follow Christ as community, as the church. Many people seek a deeper spiritual life and wish to be part of the community that forms the church. To bring interested persons into full life in the Catholic Church, our parish offers the R.C.I.A. (Rites of Christian Initiation for Adults) process as a year-long journey of faith growth and initiation for adults who wish to join the Catholic Church. Already baptized Catholics who wish to deepen their Catholic faith are also invited to join our local R.C.I.A. process. We will begin in August with a period of inquiry. If you or someone you know is interested in the R.C.I.A., please contact the parish office, or Julia Scott, R.C.I.A. coordinator.

On Sunday, Aug. 14 there will be the yearly training sessions for Eucharistic ministers and lectors. Training for eucharistic ministers will be held at 3 p.m. in the church, and for lectors at 4:30 p.m. These sessions are a requirement for anyone who wishes to continue in these ministries, and for anyone who would like to be trained for either ministry.

Last week, the parish made a $7,000 payment to Berg Studios in Lubbock from memorial donations deposited in the stained Glass Windows Fund. This payment is one-third of the cost of the entire project. It allows Berg Studios to begin the construction of all 15 windows. This is a reminder to all families of the parish who have committed to donating for a memorial: now is the time to make your first payment. The deadline for paying for a memorial is Nov. 2, Feast of All Souls. For those interested in contributing to the stained glass windows project but who are unable to afford a $450 memorial, there is another option. We hope to memorialize all priests who have served the parish of San Jose plus some of the nuns who served here. These will be listed as open memorials, to which a person or family can contribute $25, $50, $100 or any amount possible.

Munchak retires

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
 AP Sports Writer

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - It was a training camp arrival like no other for guard Mike Munchak.

Munchak showed up wearing a suit with his wife and two daughters to announce that after 12 years, nine knee surgeries and nine Pro Bowl elections, it was time to retire.

At 34, Munchak felt he could have played another year but the pain in his knees told him, no.

"I wanted to be able to run and play basketball with my kids in five years," he said. "I guess I won't be doing any skiing or playing full court basketball."

"That was one of the considerations in deciding not to push the knees any more."

Munchak will remain with the Oilers as assistant to football operations, working with the offensive line on a day-to-day basis.

"What I'll miss the most is the camaraderie of the offensive line," Munchak said. "When you walk away from football, you never have that again. Offensive lineman have to stick together."

"So, I'll remember those times when we weren't winning but we were still busting our butts trying to win."

The Oilers will retire Munchak's No. 63 jersey on Nov. 6 during halftime of the Oilers game in the Astrodome against Pittsburgh. Munchak is the fourth Oiler to have his jersey retired following Elvin Bethea (65), Earl Campbell (34) and Jim Norton (43).

Munchak was the Oilers' No. 1 draft choice out of Penn State in 1982. The Oilers didn't make the

White hot Sox down Tribe despite Belle's efforts

By The Associated Press

Unfortunately for Albert Belle and the Cleveland Indians, one man's hot streak can't beat one team's hot streak.

Belle homered for the third straight night, but it wasn't enough to prevent the Indians from falling another game behind Chicago. The White Sox beat Cleveland 6-5 Thursday night in the opener of a four-game series at Jacobs Field between the top two teams in the AL Central.

Frank Thomas hit his 35th homer for the White Sox, who have won 17 of 21 overall and 11 of their last 12 on the road. The Indians, meanwhile, have lost four of five.

Chicago now leads Cleveland by three games, its largest lead since May 30.

First baseman Eddie Murray's throwing error led to Chicago's tying and go-ahead runs in the eighth inning. The White Sox, trailing 5-4, started the eighth with singles by Julio Franco and Robin Ventura.

Murray then slipped as he fielded Warren Newson's bunt and threw wildly past first, letting one run score. Mike LaValliere's sacrifice fly made it 6-5.

"The grass was wet, and when Eddie tried to make the throw, he was off-balance," losing pitcher Dennis Martinez (9-5) said. "You cannot blame one guy. With the kind of team they are, in a situation like that, they find a way to get the runs in."

Wilson Alvarez (11-5) gave up five runs - four of them unearned - and six hits in 7 2-3 innings. He retired the last 14 hitters he faced.

The game was bereft of any allegations of cheating or corking. It was last Friday night, when Cleveland opened a series at Chicago, that Belle's bat was removed from the game at the request of White Sox manager Gene Lamont.

The bat was found to be doctored and Belle was suspended for 10 days, but he has continued to play - and play well - while appealing.

"The bottom line is, we have to win the series, and the bat situation is out of hand," Thomas said. "The guy's a great hitter, corked bat or no corked bat. He came out and showed us what he could do."

So did Thomas. His two-run homer gave Chicago a 4-0 lead in the third before Cleveland rallied.

"They can use all the corked bats they want to, but I don't need a corked bat. That's why I work so hard in the offseason," Thomas said.

Cleveland tied it 4-4 with four runs in the third, all of them unearned because Chicago shortstop Ozzie Guillen mishandled the throw at second on Kenny Lofton's potential double-play grounder. Jim Thome doubled home one run, and Belle hit a three-run homer on the next pitch.

The Indians took a 5-4 lead on Alvaro Espinoza's RBI grounder in the fourth.

Blue Jays 9, Rangers 3

At SkyDome, Paul Molitor hit a pair of two-run homers and scored four runs.

Dick Schofield added a homer and an RBI single and Pat Hentgen (12-6) gave up eight hits in 6 2-3 innings for the win, striking out 10 for the third time this season.

Texas starter Tim Lincecum (1-1) went 6 1-3 innings, surrendering seven runs on seven hits with four walks.

Yankees 11, Angels 7

At Anaheim Stadium, Jim Leyritz had three RBIs, Mike Gallego drove in two runs with a homer and a double and Jimmy Key (15-2) became the winningest pitcher in the majors. New York moved 21 games over .500 for the first time since Aug. 8, 1987 and opened a 3 1/2-game lead on Baltimore - its largest in 18 days.

The Yankees scored five times in the fifth against Chuck Finley (7-9), who had his worst outing of the season, allowing eight runs and 10 hits in 4 2-3 innings.

Athletics 4, Orioles 3

At Oakland Coliseum, the A's rallied from a 3-2 deficit in the eighth, tying it on Mike Aldrete's sacrifice fly, then won it in the ninth on Geronimo Berroa's single up the middle that scored Mike Bordick from second.

Dennis Eckersley (3-4) pitched the ninth for the victory. Mark Eichhorn (5-4) took the loss for Baltimore.

Brewers 7, Twins 3

At County Stadium, Milwaukee scored all of its runs with two outs and Bill Wegman (7-3) broke a personal three-game losing skid.

Jose Valentin hit a three-run homer in the eighth and fellow rookies Matt Mieske and Mike Matheny hit consecutive homers off Jim Deshaies (5-10) in the second.

Maddux proves too much for Cards

By The Associated Press

Nobody has ever won three Cy Young Awards in a row. Not Tom Seaver, not Roger Clemens, not Steve Carlton, not Sandy Koufax, not Jim Palmer. Nobody.

Greg Maddux is likely to change that, however. Maddux threw a five-hitter and lowered his ERA to 1.71 - more than one run per nine innings lower than any other starter - as the Atlanta Braves beat the St. Louis Cardinals 6-1 for a split of Thursday night's doubleheader.

It was his third consecutive complete game, his major league-leading eighth, and his 13th victory, tying him for the league lead with Montreal's Ken Hill. And, for him, it was no big deal. As usual, he was in low-key form after the game.

"When guys make plays behind you, it helps," said Maddux, who's one of only five players to win consecutive Cy Youngs. "The guys put up some runs early and that helps, that really does."

The Cardinals, however, knew they'd seen somebody special.

"It's obvious he's going to win the Cy Young," Tom Pagnozzi said. "It seems like he never throws the ball over the plate."

"He's obviously the best pitcher in both leagues," Gregg Jefferies said. "I've faced those guys over there (in the American League) and Maddux is the best."

"What he does is the art of pitching," Cardinals manager Joe Torre said.

Maddux (13-5) struck out eight and walked none, retiring 14 batters in a row in one stretch, as the Braves snapped a three-game losing streak and dropped into a first-place tie with idle Montreal in the NL East.

In the only other National League game, Houston beat Pittsburgh 13-6.

Maddux's only rough spot came in the fourth, when Luis Alicea got a leadoff single and scored on Jefferies' double.

The Cardinals won the first game 6-3 on a three-hitter by Omar Olivares, but virtually conceded the second by matching Maddux with John Frascatore, making his major-league debut.

Frascatore (0-1) was called up from Triple-A Louisville on a one-shot basis due to the rare six-game series necessitated by consecutive rainouts in April.

Frascatore gave up all six runs on seven hits in 3 1-3 innings, including a two-run home run by Fred McGriff in the first and a three-run shot by Javier Lopez in the fourth. Then he was sent back to Louisville to make room for Tom Urbani, who was scheduled to start the first game today.

Unexpectedly, Olivares (2-2) was nearly as impressive as Maddux in the opener. He gave up all three hits and three runs in the first two innings, then retired the final 16 batters to win for the first time in eight starts.

Jefferies was 3-for-4 with three RBIs, Ozzie Smith had two hits and an RBI and leadoff hitter Gerald Young was 3-for-5 and scored twice in the opener. Olivares, who's 5-for-20 at the plate, added a run-scoring single in the second off John Smoltz (6-10).

In six innings, Smoltz allowed six runs on 11 hits to spoil his 200th career start.

Astros 13, Pirates 6

At Houston, Ken Caminiti drove in four runs and Andujar Cedeno hit a three-run homer to help Pete Harnisch win his fifth straight start.

Harnisch (7-4) is unbeaten since returning from the 15-day disabled list on June 30. He gave up two runs and five hits in seven innings.

The Astros built a 7-0 lead after three innings against Zane Smith (9-8), who gave up nine runs and nine hits in 3 2-3 innings.

Palmer falls off pace in British Senior

LYTHAM, England (AP) - Arnold Palmer was as steady as they come in the second round of the Senior British Open - until the 13th hole.

"I'm obviously not pleased with my finish," said Palmer, who shot a 2-over-par 74 Thursday to fall four strokes off the pace at the midway point.

Palmer, tied for the lead after the first round, began the day by parring the first 12 holes on the Royal Lytham and St Annes course. Then came two consecutive bogeys, a couple of birdies to pull back even, then two more bogeys to finish.

"I'm always looking at why," the 64-year-old American said. "My driving, which had been good this week, went haywire."

New Zealander Bob Charles shot a 69 for a 5-under-par total of 139 to take a 2-stroke lead over American pair Tom Wargo and Doug Dalziel.

South African Gary Player, who played in his record 40th British Open last week, and Bill Dunk of Australia were three shots off the pace.

Palmer, who admitted Wednesday that his recent poor form forced him to consider retirement, said his suspect driving game will have to improve if he is to challenge over the final two rounds.

"My irons and putting have been better this week," Palmer said. "I will go out and put a bit and hit a few drives before dinner."

For Charles, a strong game on the greens has made the difference. He has 3-putted only once in the first two rounds.

"I was a little bit wayward, but no disasters out there," Charles said, "and this is a course where disasters can strike quickly."

"This season I have played like I am playing this week. A few made shots, a few mis-hits and bad shots - just not as consistent as in previous years."

Dalziel, Scottish-born and now an American citizen, shot a 66, the lowest round of the championship so far.

Alfredsson on fire at US Women's Open

LAKE ORION, Mich. (AP) - Who could blame Helen Alfredsson if she just stayed away from work? There was almost no way she could duplicate the job she turned in the previous day.

The native of Sweden shattered the U.S. Women's Open record by 2 strokes Thursday with an 8-under-par 63 in the opening round on the Old Course at Indianwood Golf and Country Club.

"I have no idea what I might shoot in the second round," Alfredsson said. "That's my moodiness coming out. We'll go out and see how it goes."

For one day, at least, it went very, very well.

The 63 matches the lowest round in a major championship by any golfer, male or female.

The only woman to reach that figure was Patty Sheehan at the 1984 LPGA Championship at King's Island, Ohio. It has been accomplished 10 times in majors by men, the last by Vijay Singh in last year's PGA at Inverness.

"I'm not aware of all the history," Alfredsson said. "I know that Johnny Miller shot 8-under at Oakmont (in 1973)."

playoffs until 1987, when they started a string of seven straight appearances.

The first playoff victory against Seattle in 1987 is especially memorable for Munchak.

"I remember winning the game in overtime and the place was sold out," Munchak said. "I walked off the field with Bruce (Matthews) and Dean (Steinkuhler) and after five years, we felt like we were finally on to something."

He was so respected that last season he suited up and played in 13 games without practicing during the week.

Over his career, Munchak endured nine knee surgeries, most on his left knee. He also had arthroscopic elbow surgery in 1989 and suffered a neck strain at the end of the 1992 season.

He's had shoulder injuries and he suffered a broken ankle in his rookie year.

Despite the injuries, Munchak managed to play in 159 games, fifth on the club's all-time list.

"It happened so often that we came to think of him playing hurt as normal, but it wasn't normal," said Matthews, Munchak's close friend and business partner.

Munchak agonized through last season. He'd rehab his knees through the week, go through a light practice on Friday and on most Sundays he'd manage to get into the lineup.

"If I can develop into half the player Mike was, over his career, I'll be happy," said John Flannery, who will replace Munchak. "It's an honor to try to fill his position but don't ask me to replace his knees, I just have one good one left."

Shuler waits on sideline

By The Associated Press

Heath Shuler and Cory Fleming might be able to sell themselves as an act in the NFL. They certainly haven't had much luck as individuals.

Shuler, Tennessee's multitalented quarterback who left school a year early to join the NFL, remains inactive while his agent and the Washington Redskins dither over money. As a high draft choice, Shuler would figure to get a huge contract, but the salary cap changes all that.

Fleming, Shuler's favorite target and Tennessee's career leader in touchdown catches, became a salary cap victim on Thursday when the San Francisco 49ers surrendered their rights to the third-round draft pick. It was simply a matter of numbers, since Fleming was asking for $250,000, but San Francisco, sorely strapped by money limits, was reportedly offering only $125,000.

"The negotiations didn't work out and we had depth at receiver," San Francisco coach George Seifert said, adding that the move gives Fleming a chance to catch on with another team.

That's easier said than done, however. Ask New Orleans linebacker Sam Mills.

He's one of the top men in the league at his craft, yet he's making nothing like he hoped to be making this season, thanks to the cap. He was a free agent, but got no realistic offers.

"I guess that's what the market has to offer me. That's what my value is," Mills said. "So often we look to see what your value as an athlete is out there in the free agent market. It didn't have as much to offer as I thought it would."

When July 15 came and went, Mills' rights belonged to the Saints, who were offering him the flat 10 percent raise required. He'll be making a shade over $1 million.

Redskins
While Shuler remained a stranger, second-round pick Tre Johnson reached agreement on a contract and was expected in camp today.

Chiefs
Kansas City has taken "go deep" to an extreme in scheduling. Before wrapping up training on Aug. 20 at River Falls, Wis., the Chiefs will hustle back home for the debut of Arrowhead Stadium's new grass field, travel to Tokyo for an exhibition against Minnesota and head for Washington for a practice game with the Redskins.

Giants

Vikings
David Palmer, the do-everything threat from Alabama, worked out with the team for the first time Thursday, mostly as a kick return specialist. Palmer, a second-round draft choice, was the last Vikings player to sign a contract.

Eagles
Rookie enthusiasm gave Philadelphia a scare on Thursday when free-agent defensive back Jamie Mendez laid a hard hit on wide receiver Fred Barnett, returning from reconstructive knee surgery. Barnett caught a pass from quarterback Randall Cunningham over the middle. When he turned around, Mendez was there waiting for him.

"I thought he knocked my leg off," Barnett said. "Somebody has to tell these young guys it's just training camp."

Falcons
Safety Scott Case, an 11-year veteran, signed a one-year contract believed worth $250,000.

Seahawks

Defensive end Natu Tuatagaloa didn't respond to Seattle's offer of a one-year contract for $162,000, and the Seahawks virtually wrote him off. Tuatagaloa started 15 games for Seattle last season.

Packers
Fifty-four rookies, free agents and selected veterans worked out Thursday in jerseys, shorts and helmets. There were no holdouts, which pleased coach Mike Holmgren.

Cardinals
Coach Buddy Ryan gave the players three days off, but promised to put them through their paces Monday and Tuesday. From the way Buddy is talking, it could be quite a workout.

"The players, because of their bargaining agreement, have got to get three days off. If I could, I'd make them practice Friday and Saturday, too," Ryan said.

Steelers
Vacation is over for Pittsburgh. The veterans got an extra week off when the club pushed back the start of training camp in keeping with the labor contract stipulation that veterans can't be required to report more than 15 days before the first exhibition game.

"Hey, it didn't bother me a bit. I liked it," All-Pro center Dermontti Dawson said. "I took a trip, took some time off and relaxed. You can't do that in camp."

Oilers
Lee Williams, expected to start at left defensive end, reported Thursday night, four days late. Williams said his absence was because of his worries about an injured knee.

Rams
Los Angeles pulled a surprise move as training camp opened Thursday night, cutting running back Russell White so they could sign running back-kick returner Johnny Bailey.

Kids health alert

As the temperature rises, so do many parents' concerns about their children's well-being. Summertime fun often goes hand in hand with greater exposure to sun, insects and a variety of situations that can be hazardous to your children's health and safety. But there's no need to keep kids from enjoying the great outdoors. Some simple precautions can help your children have a safe, healthy summer.

-To help prevent heat exhaustion and dehydration, dress children in light-colored clothing and widebrimmed hats and provide them with many fluids throughout the day. Never leave kids or pets in a car on a hot day. Even with the windows open, temperatures can soar.

-Always consult a physician before allowing a child who is on medication outside. Sunlight can cause adverse reactions to some medications.

-If your kids are in day care for the summer, remember: Germs don't take a vacation. Children in day care may be exposed to germs that cause infectious diarrhea or the common cold. To help prevent these germs from spreading in your home, encourage thorough hand washing and regularly disinfect surfaces with Lysol Spray. Remember, baking soda, vinegar and ammonia do not disinfect.

-Children over six months of age should use a waterproof sunscreen, approved by a pediatrician, every day. Consult a physician before using sunscreen on a younger child.

-If deer ticks are a problem in your area, have your kids wear long sleeves, pants and socks. Check children for ticks by running your hands over any exposed areas of the body. If there is evidence of a tick, call your doctor immediately.

-Sunlight causes mold to release spores into the air, which can cause sneezing, coughing, itchy eyes, and headaches in some kids. If your child has these symptoms, contact your pediatrician.

-Though you can't do much about outdoor mold, you can do something indoors. Dry out and ventilate damp areas, and use Lysol Spray regularly to disinfect surfaces in bathrooms and basements.

-Many playground injuries result from falls off equipment or tripping. Make sure there are safe surfaces, like deep sand or wood chips, shredded mulch, or a thick rubber mat, under climbing equipment.

-Planning a vacation? Remember that little ones can come in contact with all kinds of germs when traveling. Be sure to wash and disinfect bathroom and kitchen surfaces, telephone handles, and other commonly touched surfaces in your vacation room or home. Also disinfect rented car seats, strollers and cribs.

NEW YORK (AP) - Sandra Bullock's role in the movie "Speed" required nerves of steel - and buns to match.

Bullock plays Annie, who is forced to drive a bus rigged to explode if it drops below 50 mph.

"After two weeks, I was like, 'I can't take it anymore!'" Bullock says in the July 22 issue of Entertainment Weekly. "I mean, I'm sitting in a bus for the entire movie. But it was the best acting lesson I've ever had. How do you make sitting in a bus interesting?"

Apparently Bullock managed, because her career is speeding up too. She signed a $1.2 million deal to star in the upcoming "While You Were Sleeping," and is being mentioned for the role of the Caped Crusader's girlfriend in "Batman Forever."

Not bad for an actress whose previous credits included a brief appearance in the 1993 film, "The Vanishing."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Everybody is terrified of AIDS. You have said repeatedly that the only safe sex is NO sex. You have also said that this is not realistic for some and have suggested condoms.

How reliable are condoms? I'm a sexually active 33-year-old male. I've had condoms break, leak and come off. How can you recommend them?—On Tenderhooks in Tennessee

DEAR TENNESSEE: I've stated that abstinence is the only sure guarantee against pregnancy and sexually transmitted diseases. I have also stated that for some, abstinence is not a realistic alternative, and for those, I have recommended condoms.

I turned your letter over to Dr. David Satcher, director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in Atlanta. Here are his comments:

"Scientific evidence demonstrates that latex condoms, when used consistently and correctly, are highly effective in stopping HIV, the virus that causes AIDS. The Food and Drug Administration requires manufacturers to test every batch of condoms made. The FDA also regularly tests condoms to be sure they meet stringent quality standards. Samples representing millions of condoms have shown that the average batch tests better than 99.7 percent defect-free."

"The FDA and other researchers have shown that latex condoms are an effective barrier to viruses, including HIV and the much smaller virus, hepatitis B. In one set of laboratory tests, the FDA subjected condoms to unrealistically strenuous conditions, such as virus concentrations 100 million times higher than found in infected people. Even under these conditions, researchers concluded that condoms would reduce exposure to the virus by 10,000 times."

"Two recent studies have been conducted with a total of 550 couples in which one person was infected with HIV, and the other was not. Among those who did not use condoms or did not use them every time, 11 percent became infected. But among the 294 couples reporting consistent condom use, 1 percent became infected—none out of 123 couples in one study and three of 171 couples in the other."

"Those three infections could have been caused by user errors. When condoms slip, break or leak, user error—not product failure—is usually the problem."

"The CDC has developed a brochure (in English and Spanish) on how to use a condom properly. Free copies are available by calling 1-800-342-AIDS."

"Refraining from sexual activity is the only sure way to prevent HIV infection. However, latex condoms are highly effective when used consistently and correctly."

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: If the surgeon general wanted a really effective health warning on cigarettes, she would place the following messages on cigarette packs:

"Warning: Smoking is a contributing factor to sexual impotence."

These are health risks associated with cigarette smoking. Most teenagers cannot relate to the word "cancer". They do, however, understand the word "sex."

Please send copies of this letter to the various health agencies.—Kansas City Reader

DEAR K.C.: Better yet, I'm printing it. Thanks for the suggestion.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Some time ago, you printed a letter from "A Loving Daughter in Tennessee," who complained about the terrible conditions at her mother's nursing home. If this daughter really loves her mother so much, why doesn't she take her out of that awful place? And then, to top it off, she blames the government.

"Loving Daughter" is typical of those chronic complainers who expect Uncle Sam to take care of everybody's problems.

I work in a nursing home. Many of the patients we care for are unable to walk. They cannot eat without assistance. Some are unable to speak. Several on my floor are incontinent. We don't complain because we know they can't help it. We do things for our patients that their own family members wouldn't do.

Most of the relatives appreciate the care we give their loved ones, and they tell us so. It troubles me, however, to see the way some of them refuse to put themselves out. They could help a lot by assisting with the feeding of Grandma or Grandpa, or by pushing the wheelchair around the grounds. Something as simple as combing and brushing their hair would mean a lot.

Please, Ann, tell these relatives to shape up and assume their responsibilities. Even when the government subsidizes care in the patient's own home, the money is used for everything except the patient. When some patients enter a nursing home, they are so unkempt, it's a disgrace.

The nursing home industry is among the most regulated in the country. We are inspected at least four or five times a year. Every complaint made to the health department is investigated.

I want to say thanks to the loving families who are truly concerned about the relatives who need care and are supportive to those of us who try to provide in a tender, loving way. Our nursing aides work so hard they deserve a kind word, not a kick in the rear.—Lynwood, Calif.

DEAR LYNWOOD: You've covered a lot of territory, and I thank you. The nursing home industry is a huge one, and Uncle Sam picks up a lot of the bills, "Uncle Sam" of course, is you and me, the taxpayers.

I hope my readers will pay attention to what you have written. If you have a family member in a nursing home, visit often, congratulate the staff when they deserve it and be critical if they don't measure up. Above all, be involved. Remember, one day, you may be a resident yourself.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My son gave me this little essay. I think it's fascinating and hope you will pass it on.—Nassau Guardian Reader in the Bahamas

How A Man Became His Own Grandfather

I married a widow who had a daughter. My father visited our house frequently and fell in love with my stepdaughter and married her. Thus, my father became my son-in-law, and my stepdaughter became my mother, for she was my father's wife.

My stepdaughter also had a son. He was, of course, my grandchild and my brother at the same time, because he was the son of my father. My wife was my grandmother, for she was my mother's mother.

I was my wife's husband and grandchild at the same time. Since the husband of a person's grandmother is his grandfather, I was my own grandfather.

When planning a wedding, who pays for what? Who stands where? "The Ann Landers Guide for Brides" has all the answers. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Brides, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

More than 500 people died when Hurricane Audrey slammed through coastal Louisiana and Texas in 1957.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

A SON OF AARON

THE THIRD SON OF AARON AND THE FATHER OF PHINEHAS (EX. 6:25). WITH ALL HIS BROTHERS AND WITH HIS FATHER, AARON, HE WAS CONSECRATED AS A PRIEST AND CONSEQUENTLY SERVED AS SUCH THROUGHOUT HIS ENTIRE LIFE! HE WAS NOT ALLOWED TO MOURN FOR HIS ELDER BROTHERS WHEN THEY WERE KILLED FOR OFFERING STRANGE FIRE AND PAGAN INCENSE BEFORE THE ALTAR TO THE LORD! (LEV. 10:1-7) HE THEN BECAME CHIEF OF THE LEVITES, AND SECOND ONLY TO AARON IN PRIESTLY AUTHORITY (NUM. 3:32). AFTER AARON DIED, HE WAS INVESTED WITH HIS SACRED GARMENTS AND SUCCEEDED TO THE HIGH PRIESTHOOD (NUM. 20:25-28), AN OFFICE THAT HE HELD DURING THE REMAINDER OF MOSES' LIFE AND THE LEADERSHIP OF JOSHUA. WHEN HE DIED, HIS SON PHINEHAS, SUCCEEDED HIM IN THE HIGH PRIESTHOOD! HE WAS BURIED IN A HILL BE- LONGING TO HIS SON IN MOUNT EPHRAIM (JOSH. 24:33).
