Fulltime student number said high at WTC this fall

Fewer part-time students are expected to keep Western Texas College's fall enrollment below the 1,200 level, but the number of full time college students on campus--those taking 12 college credit hours or more--is greater than any counted for the past two years.

That was the report Friday as classes at WTC opened for the fall semester.

According to Dr. Duane Hood, dean of student services, some 900 students registering for college credit hours were counted as of noon Friday.

He estimated this would break down into 550 fulltime and 350 part-time students.

The fulltime count already exceeds those on campus for either of the past two falls, Hood noted. As a result, he said all campus housing is now filled with some students on a waiting list.

He guessed a final count for the fall term would exceed 1,100. Last year, the college enrolled some 1,207 students in the fall. By comparsion, there were some 545 fulltime and 662 part-time students.

Two years ago, the college registered some 1,006 students.

The largest enrollment for a fall term ever counted at WTC was 1,319, a record established in the fall of 1984. The spring of 1984 produced the college's highest-ever student count, 1,414 students.

The final day to enroll for classes this year is Sept 10.

Ask Us

Q. — In a sentence to prison for 45 years, how much time will actually be spent behind bars?

A. — According to the local DA's office, figuring time off for prison "good time," such a sentence could be served in as little as approximately 5½ years.

In Brief

Six are killed

BRONSON Fla. (AP) — Rescuers used hacksaws and chains to free bloodied, screaming handicapped children and teen-agers trapped in a school bus after a flatbed truck slammed into it, killing six and injuring 17.

One boy remained in critical condition this morning, and his mother couldn't be told because she was traveling to the funeral of her brother, who was killed in another accident, a family member said.

The truck, loaded with hydraulic arms used to lift huge tires, had apparently run a stop sign Friday afternoon at 45 mph.

Local

Court agenda

The agenda for Monday's meeting of the Scurry County Commissioners Court is a short one, listing only the approval of minutes, "any other business necessary" and payment of bills.

City tax rate

The Snyder city council will hold a public hearing to set a city tax rate next Tuesday.

Also set to meet this week, the Western Texas College board of trustees will have a breakfast session Monday in the college cafeteria to consider a resolution supporting acquiring a TDC facility in Scurry County.

Scout signup

Girl Scout registration is scheduled Wednesday at the Girl Scout Hut, 2500 35th St., from 3 until 5:30 p.m.

The fee is $4 which covers national dues and insurance coverage for scout activities.

The Girl Scout and her family my pay for the scout uniform and handbook, insignias and badges, weekly troop fees and personal camp equipment.

Last in-service

The final day of in-service activities for Snyder teachers is Monday as staffers are again given a teacher preparation day in the classroom.

There will also be a bus drivers meeting at the junior high library at 10 a.m. Heading it will be transportation director Keith Gentry.

Weather

Snyder Temperatures: High Friday, 77 degrees; low, 61 degrees; reading at 7 a.m. Saturday, 61 degrees; no precipitation; total precipitation for 1987 to date, 16.99 inches.

Snyder Area Forecast: Tonight, partly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of mainly evening thunderstorms and a low around 60. Southeast wind 5 to 10 mph. Sunday, partly cloudy with isolated afternoon thunderstorms and a high in the mid 80s. Rain chance less than 20 percent.

School tax hike below average

Compared statewide, Snyder ISD had a tax rate increase last year of approximately one-half what the average school district reported.

These facts and others were reported in the recently released "Bench Marks for 1987-88 School District Budgets in Texas," an annual publication of the Texas Research League, an Austin-based educational corporation engaged in governmental research.

The Snyder ISD tax levy last year was increased by 4.8 percent for 1986-87 as compared to a 8.2 percent increase for the average school district.

Regarding tax rates, the average school district imposed a property tax at the rate of 79.3 cents per $100 of appraised value. Locally, Snyder ISD imposed a rate of 81.8 cents.

Many districts were further burdered with interest and repayment of debt, which equaled an average of $281 per student. Snyder ISD is essentially debt free.

Regarding classroom teacher salaries, Snyder also was above state average. The average salary paid by Snyder ISD last school year was $26,610. The average among all school districts in Texas was $24,487.

In Snyder ISD, the average salary for administrators was $45,133 and, for other professional support staffers, $31,364. These posts include librarians, counselors, nurses and supervisors.

Taxpayers provided one teacher for 15.4 students in Snyder ISD compared to statewide pupil-teacher ratio of 1 to 17.4.

Last year, trustees in the 1,061 school districts in Texas adopted budgets totaling $12.2 billion and levied local property taxes totaling $5 billion to pay for it.

The state provided $4.8 billion of foundation aid, and the remainder was funded by school lunch and other fees, federal aid, bond sales and other revenue.

Set Sept. 15-16...

Auction inventory valued at $300,000

An inventory featuring a variety of business and household goods which will be auctioned Sept. 15 and 16 at the King's Highway Mobile Industries building is now valued at more than $300,000.

A walk-through for prospective buyers--mainly associated with industries similar to the motor home manufacturing plant set up by King's Highway--was conducted at the facility Thursday and Friday.

Carpets, drapes, a computer and printer, cassette tape players, radios, nuts, bolts, staples, fire extinguishers, copper connections, all kinds of tools and a large amount of office equipment will be included in the 1,055 "lots" or groups of items to be sold.

The building is the property of the county's Industrial Foundation, and proceeds from the sale will be applied to the note that is still owed for the building's construction.

Chamber of Commerce Manager Bill Moss, a member of the foundation, said he could not guess how many buyers will attend or how the sale will go. He said a turnout of 100 to 200 qualified buyers would be a strong response.

The Snyder auction firm of Hill and Hill will conduct the sale, which will also offer upholstering fabrics, mattresses, ladders, reclining chairs, wood trim, channel iron and angle iron, electrical cords, headlights, holding tanks, air hoses, hydraulic jacks, light bulbs and brass fittings.

A complete list of the inventory will be published prior to the sale.

Leadership group exes undertake community roles

As the fifth class is organized for Century II: Leadership Scurry County, chamber officials point with pride to the roles its past members have assumed in the community.

The program was designed to develop a "pool of well informed and motivated men and women" to assume leadership roles in the community.

The first four classes included some 67 individuals, and well over half of these are now either elected or public service officials or active members of boards which plan and implement chamber-sponsored projects or other community-wide efforts.

A class size of from 15 to 17 individuals is sought and the deadline to apply for class membership is Sept. 8.

City of Snyder

County Government

Snyder School Board

—Mike Jordan, board president.

WTC Board

—Bill Jones, past board member.

Industrial Development

—Jack Smartt, committee member and BCD.

Chamber Organizations

Elizabeth Potts, chamber president; Jerry Vestal, Troy Williamson, Donna Gray and Murray Anne Ray, chamber directors; Diana Allen, Gloria Shaw, Temi Matthies, White Buffalo Days committee members; Jim Tully, Ralph Williamson, Troy Williamson, Jack Smartt, Bob Hawes, Elizabeth Potts, Wedge Turner, members of the Gold Coats; Kent Horsley, Karen Carmichale, July 4th committee chairmen; Jackie Greene, Ralph Williamson, members of the Singing Cowboys.

County Fair Board

—Donna Gray, Jon' Derouen, Diana Allen, Murray Anne Ray, fair directors.

Dove season to open county hunting dates

Hunting season opens in Scurry County Tuesday with the beginning of mourning dove season.

The county is included in the state's North Zone this year which constitutes an area north of I-20.

The season will run Sept. 1 through Nov. 9 in this zone. Across I-20 in the state's Central Zone, the season will run Sept. 1-Oct. 30.

The daily bag limit will be 12 birds and the allowed times of hunting will be one-half hour before sunrise to sunset.

All individuals, regardless of age, carrying a gun must have a hunting license. For state residents, a hunting license is $10 and a combined hunting and fishing license is $15. For individuals under 17 or over 65, a hunting license is $6.

Other hunting seasons for Scurry County include:

—Antelope: Oct. 3-11, by permit only.

—Deer: Archery season from Oct. 3-Nov. 1. The general season runs from Nov. 14-Jan. 3.

—Mule deer: Archery, Oct. 3-Nov. 1; general, Nov. 21-29.

—Quail: Nov. 7-Feb. 28.

—Turkey: archery, Oct. 3-Nov. 1; general, Nov. 14-Jan. 3; spring season, April 2-24.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "The trouble with the school of experience is there are no vacations."

Lu and Wilson Bright of Snyder are proud parents and grandparents. It's not unusual for a grandparent to show off a picture or two, but the Brights have a unique brag.

The Bright's son, Joe, and his wife, Vicki, spent 10 years in Ireland as missionaries. They are back in the states where Joe is now an associate minister of the Holmes Road Church of Christ. The family now resides in Southaven, Miss. which is just a few blocks from Memphis, Tenn.

Before the family returned to the United States last year, they wanted a family portrait taken in Ireland. They found a spot and asked a local photographer to do the honors.

Joe Bright received a letter asking permission to enter the colored photo in a local contest. It won, and Joe was later asked if the same photo could be used in a national Kodak contest. It won the national prize, and the family of five received two checks that totaled $1,638.

Since appearing on the front cover, the family has also been featured in Kodak commercials on Ireland television.

Featured in the picture with their parents are the three children--Lu and Wilson's grandchildren. They are Kelli, 8; Alicia, 6; and Laura, age 2.

Joe is a 1970 graduate of Snyder High School and Vicki graduated from Dalhart High School. Both are 1974 graduates of Lubbock Christian College.

Now that Oklahoma's Brian Bosworth has signed a $11 million contract with Seattle, maybe he can afford a real haircut.

Reagan says...

Bork is for the death penalty

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Reagan says Robert H. Bork's courtroom arguments in favor of the death penalty are one reason the "tough but fair" judge should be confirmed as a Supreme Court justice.

In a meeting with pro-Bork law enforcement and other officials here Friday, Reagan said the Supreme Court nominee "has demonstrated a genuine concern for the right of our citizens to live in safe communities and a clear understanding of the problems facing today's law enforcement professions."

The meeting was the last on the president's schedule before he and first lady Nancy Reagan returned today to their ranch north of Santa Barbara to wind up a 25-day California vacation ending Sept. 5.

During five days in Los Angeles, the president also delivered an address on East-West relations and met with leaders of the Nicaraguan Contra rebels. Aides said his weekly radio talk today would be a follow-up to the East-West speech.

Illinois Gov. James Thompson, a member of the pro-Bork delegation that met with Reagan, said the law officers told the president they will form a group to lobby for Senate confirmation of the nominee.

The Senate Judiciary Committee opens 10 days of hearings on the nomination Sept. 15, with a committee vote scheduled for Oct. 1. The administration says it will press for action by the full Senate before the court reconvenes Oct. 5.

Bork is a conservative judge of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington who served as solicitor general in the Nixon and Ford administrations. If confirmed, he will succeed Justice Lewis F. Powell.

Powell, often a swing vote between liberal and conservative factions on the court, announced his retirement in June.

Reagan, in an opening statement at Friday's meeting, said that as solicitor general, Bork represented the government before the Supreme Court in "landmark cases that upheld the constitutionality of capital punishment — a position maintained by Justice Lewis Powell in his years on the court."

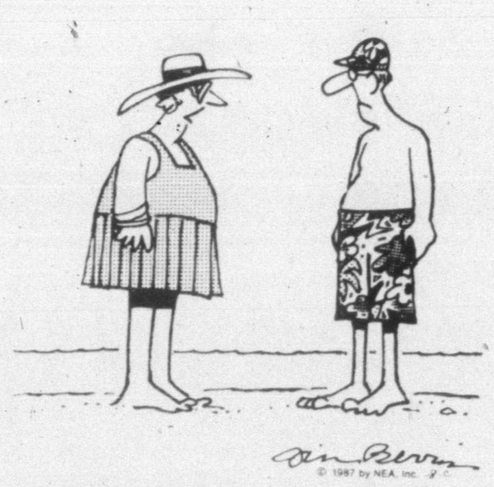

"It's essential that capital punishment remain on the books if we're to protect innocent lives from the tragedy of vicious criminal acts," the president said.

As solicitor general, Bork argued for the constitutionality of the death penalty in a 1976 case in which a Georgia law was challenged on grounds that the penalty is a cruel and unusual punishment, forbidden by the Constitution.

The high court rejected the challenge in a decision in which Powell joined. Reagan said that while on the appeals court Bork "has handed down tough but fair decisions that have protected the rights of victims in the society as well as the rights of the accused."

Shrine Circus is set September 20

On Sunday, Sept. 20, the 24th annual Shrine Circus will be presented at the Scurry County Coliseum with two shows at 2 p.m. and 6 p.m.

The Shrine Circus is being presented by the Snyder Shrine Club and the Suez Shrine Temple of Scurry and Mitchell counties.

The circus chairman is James Tucker; the president is Preston Wilson and Ronnie Hall, secretary-treasurer, is in charge of the special children's tickets and senior citizens groups.

Representatives for the Snyder Shrine Club will be calling the businesses and residences of Snyder and the surrounding area for donations to provide free tickets to the mentally and physically handicapped children and adults in the area, school children, and many other special and charity groups.

All donations will be handled by mail. Those wishing to contribute may make their checks payable to Shrine Circus Fund, P. O. Box 991; Snyder, Tex. 79549. All donations are tax deductible.

All proceeds from the circus will be donated to the Shrine hospitals for the crippled and burned.

The Shrine Circus being presented here will last 215 minutes and includes over 20 acts.

College's money woes doing better

DALLAS (AP) — An attorney for financially struggling Bishop College says the school will file within 10 days a list of institutions that will accept Bishop's credit hours, a move that would restore federal financial aid to its students.

The college also was given a 90-day extension, until Nov. 28, to file a financial reorganization plan in U.S. bankruptcy court. Bishop, which is more than $12 million in debt, filed for protection from its creditors on April 30.

Also Friday, the Rev. J. Alfred Smith, president of the Progressive National Baptist Convention, presented the college with a $25,000 donation, which cut in half the projected $50,000 budget deficit for the fall semester, officials said.

Bishop's attorney, Michael Goldstein, said the college is allowing students who qualify for federal aid to enroll for the fall semester with the understanding that their tuition will be paid by the federal government. He said the college expects federal aid to its students to be restored by the end of the fall semester.

"We're hoping students will be covered for that semester," said Goldstein, who is working with Bishop to regain its accreditation.

The U.S. Department of Education halted federal funds to Bishop after the college, which has a predominately black student body, lost its accreditation from the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

SETS WORLD RECORD--Randy Dorman, grandson of Oma Dorman and Iva Mae Franks of Scurry County, set a world record in the 100-yard dash and placed in six events in the International Stoke Mandeville World Wheelchair Games in England earlier this month. He has also earned a berth on the 1988 U. S. Olympic team. (Family Photos)

World record is set

SAN ANGELO--Randy Dorman of San Angelo set a world record in the 100-yard dash and placed in six events in the International Stoke Mandeville World Wheelchair Games in England earlier this month.

He is the grandson of Oma Dorman and Iva Mae Franks, both of Scurry County.

In addition to his record-setting victory, Dorman was also a member of the first place 4x100-meter relay team, placed third in the pentathlon, fourth in the 400, fifth in the 800, and sixth in the 200. Dorman's 4x200 relay team won that event just 1-10th of a second off world record pace before being disqualified for a lane violation.

Dorman learned that the international rules are different from the American rules. For instance, here the chairs are allowed to have a steering mechanism, but over there they can't.

He learned of this rule change shortly before the contest and only had about two weeks practice time before competing in the event.

Dorman also learned a new backhanded technique to turn the wheels of his chair and found a better way of sitting in the chair as well. The new backhanded technique is gaining worldwide popularity among quadriplegics.

Although Dorman has some use of his arms, the level of paralysis--which is from the chest down and also reduces use of his hands--places him in the quadriplegic category of competition.

Dorman, who was an athletic standout at Roscoe High School until graduating in 1976, has been racing seriously for a year.

About 9 million Americans are exposed to hazardous sound levels on the job, according to a report prepared for the Environmental Protection Agency. Millions more encounter damaging noises while walking city streets, fighting rush hours or enduring noises from low-flying aircraft.

Blowout celebrates city's Centennial

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — A Texas-sized birthday party celebrates Amarillo's 100th year this weekend with a laser show and a tribute to the railroads that helped build the Panhandle city.

Attention focused on the Amarillo Civic Center complex Saturday for a Railroad Days celebration highlighted by entertainment, food vendors, educational displays, railroad cars, surrey rides and Centennial souvenir booths.

An air show featuring the Confederate Air Force also was planned.

To showcase the role railroads played in Amarillo's development, Santa Fe Railway arranged to bring in a series of special railroad cars for display. An 85-foot rolling museum containing railroad artifacts was open for tours.

Coalition plans undercover work

AUSTIN (AP) — In an effort to determine if clinics are violating Texas's new abortion law, an anti-abortion group plans to use "undercover pregnant women" to seek illegal late-term abortions, the group's director said.

"We will probably engage in some sting operations where we will send undercover pregnant women into clinics to see if they can procure an abortion that has been outlawed," Bill Price, director of the Texas Coalition for Life, said Friday.

Price said several doctors in Dallas and Houston are notorious for performing late-term abortions, and the coalition's investigation would focus on them initially.

Tuesday, the new law goes into effect banning all abortions in the third trimester of pregnancy unless the life of the mother is in danger or the fetus has a severe abnormality.

Burma Shave show said going public

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bertram Minkin knows ... that where ... he goes ... nostalgia always ... seems to flow.

Burma Shave.

Minkin today opens a stage show featuring his memorized collection of all 600 rhymes used by Burma Shave on roadside signs of yesteryear.

Minkin brings his "Burma Shave Man" show to the Museum of Modern Mythology, a 5-year-old institution that houses examples of such advertising giants as Snap! Crackle! and Pop!, Buster Brown and his dog Tige and the Jolly Green Giant.

Playing the fictional Burma Shave Man, Minkin tells of his life as an advance man for the Burma Vita Co., recounting such tough tasks as talking farmers into letting the company use prime stretches of land for its signs.

The Burma Shave Man, with his twangy drawl, is a sort of tonsorial Will Rogers, but Minkin is no bumpkin. The 36-year-old Oakland storyteller has a bachelor's degree in classical literature and a master's in rhetoric.

"Those signs say a lot about the America of old," he says. "You read these signs and it's easy to imagine the family out on the road, the kids begging dad to drive faster, faster, so they can read the next jingle."

Minkin will invite the audience to recite their favorite signs during the show. "It's part of their childhood," he said.

"Burma Shave."

Minkin said that each year the Burma Vita Co. would sponsor a contest in which $100 was paid for every jingle used. The jingle had to be six lines long — one line on each sign — the last line always plugging Burma Shave.

From the mid-1920s to the early 1960s, 7,000 sets of signs pushed the slick shaving cream.

The signs helped Burma Vita make an annual $3.5 million profit in the 1930s and 1940s, but the company eventually fell behind Colgate, Palmolive and Barbasol. In 1963, it was sold to Philip Morris. The signs were gone within two years, victims of freeways and faster speeds.

As an indication of the signs' importance in the annals of Americana, the Smithsonian displays this set:

"Burma-Shave."

Hunters exacted a heavy toll on the signs, and horses were hard on them, too, according to Minkin.

"Old Dobbin found the sign's 9-foot height was perfect for back scratching," Minkin said.

One series of signs read:

"Old Dobbin ... reads these signs ... each day ... You see, he gets ... his corn that way.

"Burma Shave."

Oil prices fall as market exhausts itself

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil prices finished the week above $19 per barrel, still buoyed by optimism that OPEC will eventually remedy its supply glut.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, October contracts for West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude, closed at $19.39 per 42-gallon barrel, down 25 cents from Thursday, when the contract rose 18 cents.

Prices for refined products also were mostly lower Friday.

September contracts for wholesale unleaded gasoline closed at 50.40 cents per gallon, down .64 cent from Thursday, when it rose .14 cent. Wholesale heating oil contracts for September settled at 51.29 cents per gallon, down .43 cent. Heating oil contracts had risen .54 cent on Thursday.

Analysts said prices opened higher Friday on the expectation that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries ministers would agree on steps to contain the cartel's increasing overproduction. Technical factors also contributed to that upswing, they said.

But, what analysts described as an exhausted market, sold off later in the day.

OPEC President Alahji Rilwanu Lukman had said the cartel will move decisively to correct the production problems. Meetings of OPEC committees that monitor world oil prices and the cartel's oil production have been put off three days until Sept. 10, but analysts said the market still expects some action to be taken.

The oil market views the meetings as a stabilizing factor because OPEC has been exceeding its self-imposed production quota of 16.6 million barrels a day. Some industry-watchers say the daily surplus has reached 3 million barrels.

In recent weeks, the oil futures market has been turbulent as traders wavered between nervousness that growing overproduction by some OPEC members would push prices down and fears that a Persian Gulf confrontation might hamper supplies and drive prices higher.

That turbulence helped wear the market out Friday.

"By midday the market exhausted itself" and technical selling took over, said Peter Beutel, an oil analyst at Elders Futures Inc.

Madison Galbraith, senior energy specialist with Merrill Lynch Energy Futures, who also called the market exhausted, said reports of a more conciliatory stance by Iran in the Persian Gulf set the stage for the selloff.

Once the downward trend was established, "the market just did not have any real strength for the rest of the afternoon," Galbraith said.

Beutel called the market "nervous and confused — more so now than normal."

Houston nurse returns to her home

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston nurse who spent three months as a captive of Mozambican guerrillas returned home Friday night to her waiting family and friends.

"I feel great," said Kindra Bryan, 27, as she arrived in Houston following an 11-hour trip from Amsterdam. "It's just good to be back home. Good to be back in Houston and in the United States."

Ms. Bryan was greeted at Houston Intercontinental Airport by her parents, Claude and Mary Jo Free, and a sister and nephew. A smiling Ms. Bryan received flowers and a hug from her mother.

Ms. Bryan and six others were kidnapped May 13 and released last week at the Mozambique-Malawi border by pro-Western guerrillas fighting Mozambique's central government.

DORIS BYARS

Reception set for Doris Byars

A retirement reception honoring Doris Byars, secretary in the Scurry County Museum since 1979, will be held from 2-4 p.m. Monday in the museum.

A native of Scurry County, Mrs. Byars was born in Ira. She began working for the Ira Independent School District in 1968, then worked for the Scurry County Senior Citizens Center from 1977-79.

She and her husband, J. L., are the parents of five children: Kay Guy, Linda Sullivan, Jean Morris, Connie Hash and Jimmy Byars. All were graduated from Ira High School.

J. L. Byars is also retired and the couple plans to spend time sightseeing and visiting their grandchilren. They enjoy attending flea markets and auctions and do that as a hobby.

Mother Teresa meets the pope

The Vatican released no details of the meeting at the pope's summer residence south of Rome.

WACO, Texas (AP) — Depositors of the failed Leroy Bank may get their money back if a plan for a new purchase of the private bank is approved, officials said.

State District Judge Bill Logue on Friday extended a temporary restraining order through Sept. 21 to allow Judith R. Kearns of Oceanside, Calif., time to buy the unincorporated bank.

Texas Banking Commissioner Kenneth Littlefield, who was at the hearing, said there would be a check of Ms. Kearns personal and financial background.

Littlefield closed the bank in Leroy, a small town about 15 miles northeast of Waco, on Aug. 7 after declaring it insolvent. He has said the state would be willing to approve a change of ownership as long as he gets an all-clear on the potential purchaser.

The bank's funds were uninsured, and if the transaction does not go through, the depositors may lose much or all of their money. About 600 depositors held accounts of $5 million to $6 million in deposits, said state officials.

Only $20,000 in cash was on hand when the bank was closed, and many of the $5 million in loans are thought to be worthless, state officials said.

Ms. Kearns' agent, John Copelin, said she was "in banking" in California, but did not elaborate. He added she was making arrangements to wire $8.5 million in cash to be held at First RepublicBank Waco to show good faith.

Ms. Kearns also will put up $15 million in U.S. bonds and make arrangements with Lloyds of London to insure the accounts up to $250,000 apiece, Copelin said. If the bank reopens, it will remain unincorporated.

But there is a question as to who owns the bank. The Texas Banking Department never has recognized Bill Tankersly as the owner and considers Ronald O. Bailey the owner. Tankersly, who had loaned Bailey $500,000, said he foreclosed on the bank.

Ms. Kearns found out about the Leroy Bank through Tankersly, said Bill Vannatta, the attorney.

AMA found guilty

CHICAGO (AP) — The American Medical Association led an effort to destroy the chiropractic profession by depriving its practitioners of association with medical doctors and calling them "unscientific cultists" or worse, a federal judge has ruled.

U.S. District Judge Susan Getzendanner described the conspiracy as "systematic, long-term wrongdoing and the long-term intent to destroy a licensed profession" in ruling late Thursday on a 1976 antitrust lawsuit.

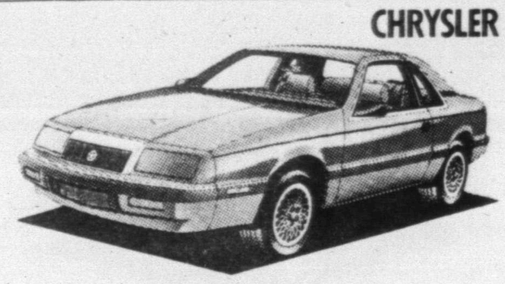

Ms. Getzendanner's decision said the nation's largest physicians' group spearheaded a physicians' boycott designed "to contain and eliminate the chiropractic profession."

A top AMA official denied the judge's allegation. "We don't think there was ever a boycott or a conspiracy," said Dr. Alan Nelson, chairman of the AMA board of trustees, in a telephone interview Friday from Salt Lake City.

In scrimmage with Colorado City...

Tigers show some offensive consistency

They also showed some familiar problems that Coach Dennis Tomlin plans to work out this week.

The Tigers engineered a 70-yard drive to score the scrimmage's only touchdown with a first-team unit. Both second-team units also scored one TD apiece.

Teams ran 20 plays with each first and second-team unit, with coaches on the field, then played a 10-minute game-type scrimmage where plays were sent in from the sidelines.

"Our offense looked a lot better. I was pleased with both our first and second-team backs and I thought our offensive line executed well. That's the youngest area of the team and they've come a long way. We've still got a long way to go, but we showed improvement," said Coach Tomlin.

What Tomlin wasn't pleased with were several fumbles and offsides penalties.

"I did not like those at all," said the coach. "We're going to talk to the kids about that. It's things like that that will kill you."

Colorado City's biggest moment came on the first play of the scrimmage when the Wolves broke a run for 65-yards. Defensive back Randy Morris saved a touchdown when he hauled a C-City runner down at the Snyder 5-yard line.

It was the second time an opponent broke the big first-play. Vernon snapped off a 70-yard touchdown run on the first play of last week's scrimmage with the Tigers.

"We didn't get off on the right foot again," said Coach Kevin Wiseman, defensive coordinator. "The positive side to that is that it didn't seem to rattle us. We came back and although we still made some mistakes, we played pretty well."

The Wolves managed just three first downs during their 20 plays on offense - one coming on the 65-yard gallop and the other on a 29-yard pass play to end the series. Their effort was thwarted in part by safety Scott Lanier, who intercepted a pass on the seventh play.

Snyder also turned the ball over on the seventh play of its offensive series - to a fumble - but then mounted a 70-yard scoring drive. The Tigers put together eight first downs during their 20 plays with seven of them coming in the drive. Keys included runs of 6, 8, 6 and 7 yards by quarterback Roland Romo; a 12-yard scamper from fullback Roy Gutierrez; a 40-yard pass from QB Lee Fletcher to end Craig Watkins; and a 15-yard run by halfback Scott Lanier. Lanier scored on a 3-yard run.

The first portion of the scrimmage was set up so that a team could never advance the ball more than 10 yards. Any gains more than that, such as Snyder's 40-yard pass or C-City's 65-yard run, were simply counted as first downs and moved up 10 yards.

With the second-team units, Colorado City scored on a 10-yard run while Fletcher teamed up with Jimmy Taylor for a 30-yard scoring toss for Snyder.

Snyder dominated the game-type scrimmage which followed, though the Tigers were unable to cross the goal line. They clocked two first downs before fumbling the ball and giving Colorado City possession at about the 30-yard line.

Colorado City managed just one first down, however, before Kevin Dollins batted down a pass at the line of scrimmage and managed to hold on to it for an interception.

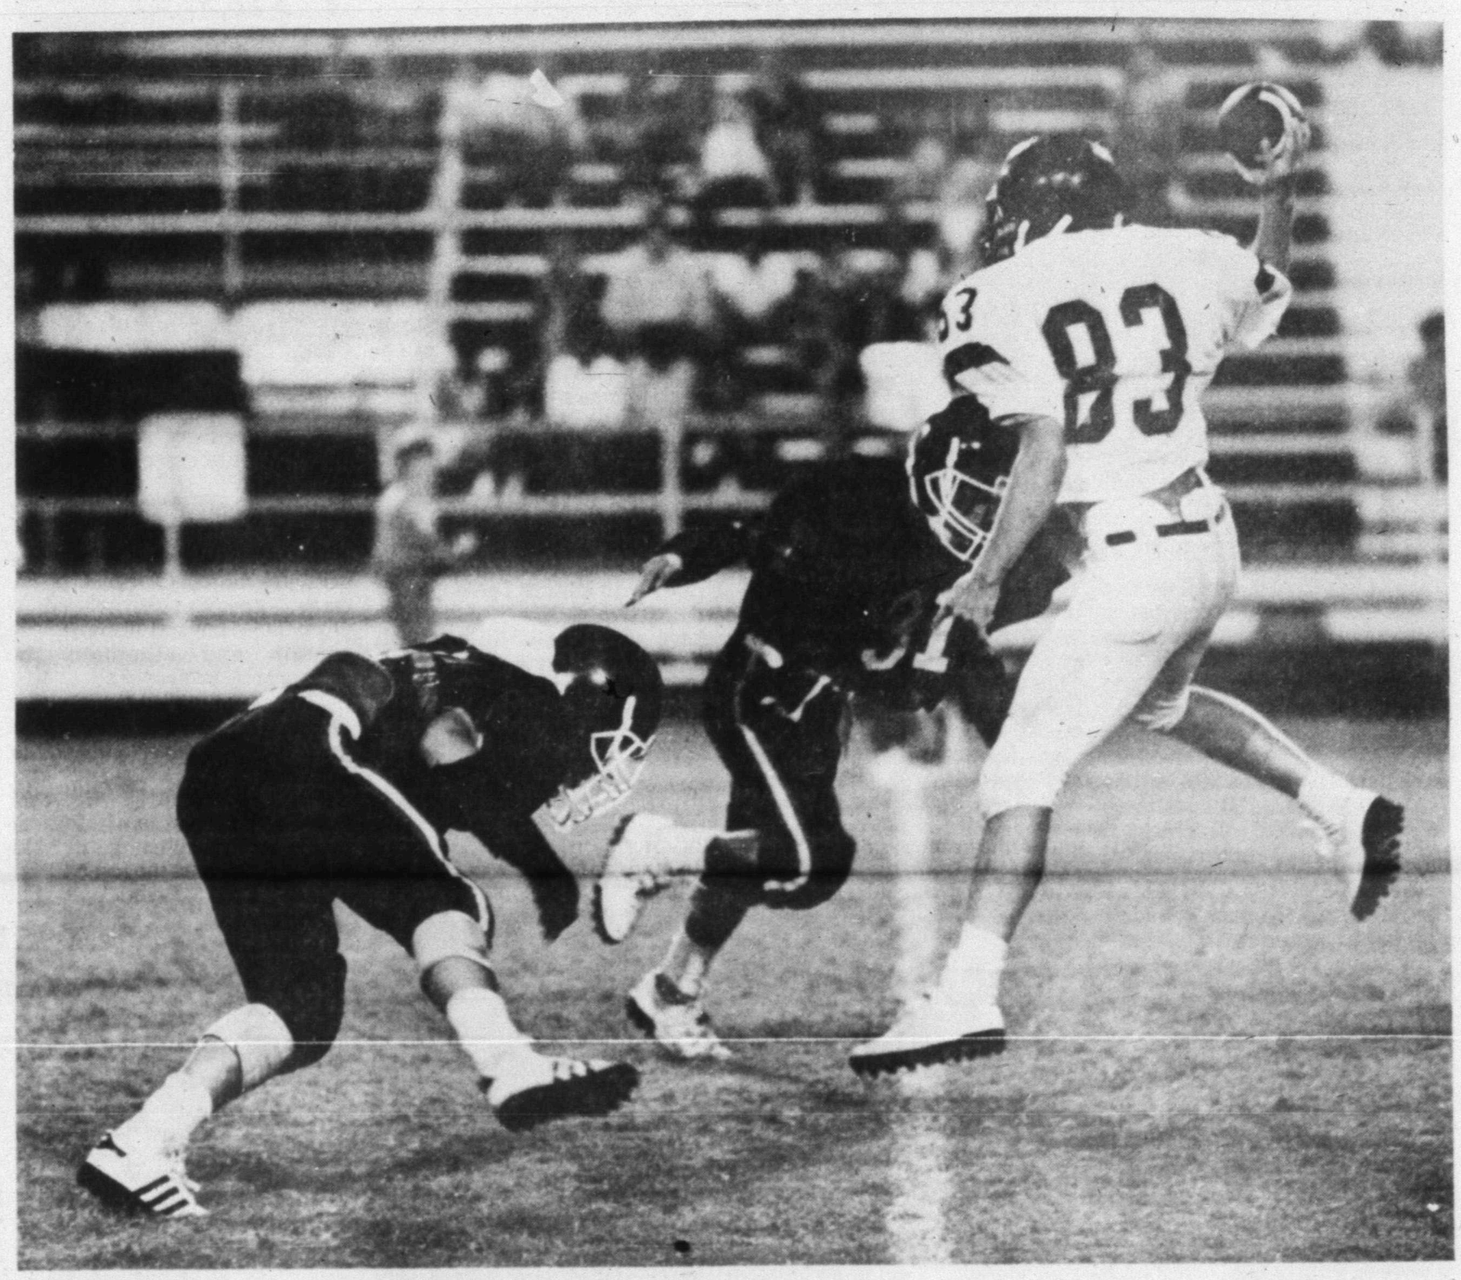

"I thought our defense responded and came up with the big play when it had to," said Wiseman. "Kevin Dollins gave a great individual effort. That's exactly what we are looking for, players who can make the play."

From its 20, Snyder marched to the Colorado City 4-yard line before time ran out. Michael Riggins managed 29 yards on three carries to spark the drive. Two offsides penalties inside the Colorado City 20 helped to muddle the march, however.

"We got to look at a lot of people and I think we learned quite a bit tonight," said Tomlin. "We know we've got a lot of improving to do, but we are encouraged, not discouraged."

One discouraging note however was an injury to senior quarterback Roland Romo. The returning letterman suffered an injury to his left elbow. X-rays taken Friday night were apparently inconclusive and he will return to see a physician this week.

The Tigers open the 1987 season on Friday, Sept. 4, by hosting Tulia at 8 p.m.

Frosh, JV learn from scrimmages

Snyder junior varsity outtallied the Wolves 1-0. The Tiger freshmen scored two TDs - one each with its first and second units.

"We were a little rough," said freshman coach Albert Lewis. "But for the first time out I thought we did well. We still have a lot of work to do to improve.

"As the scrimmage progressed our defense got a lot better. We were inconsistent offensively but we moved it well at times," he added. "We showed promise."

Snyder junior varsity "moved the ball well. Toby Goodwin threw the ball well," said Kenneth Pruitt. "Jason Presely ran well and also got the TD pass from Toby. I thought our offensive line was doing a good job."

"We only gave up one first down and that was with the second bunch," said Gorman. "I was pleased with the way they hit. They hit better than they did last week. These kids have worked awfully hard. They've been here since Day 1 just like the varsity."

Girls advance in tournament

PECOS -- Snyder High School's Lady Tigers were to take on tournament favorite Pecos in first-round action of the second segment of the Pecos Volleyball Tournament here Saturday.

The Tigers advanced to Saturday's action by placing second in their "pool" on Friday.

In the pool format, teams played each other two games as opposed to the regular two-of-three format in volleyball. Games also started with a 4-4 score.

Snyder topped Hereford 15-11 and 15-6, then defeated Imperial twice, 15-7 and 15-5. The Tigers then lost to Midland High 15-13 and 15-10.

"Overall we played better as a team than we've played," said Snyder coach Vicki Nelms. "Against Midland High we got intimidated by the officials. They made some calls that were questionable and it let the kids intimidate them."

Snyder was to play Pecos at 9:45 a.m. Saturday. They would then play again at 12:15 p.m. if they lost, or at 1:30 p.m. if they won, against either Amarillo Palo Duro or Andrews. Saturday's action was to be held as regular two-of-three games.

"Pecos is considered the favorite in the tournament. We'll have to play as well as we've played so far to beat them," said Nelms.

Snyder junior varsity, playing in the Pecos JV Tournament here, defeated Denver City and Andrews on Friday. No scores were available.

The young Lady Tigers were to play Alpine at 11 a.m. in Saturday's semifinals.

Snyder teams open District 2-4A action at home Monday as they host Fort Stockton in the SHS Gym. The three-match series calls for a freshman match at 5 p.m., a junior varsity match at 6:30 p.m. and a varsity match at 7:30 p.m.

Giants, 49ers ready to clash

by The Associated Press

Ken O'Brien picked a tough night to seek the consistency he's lacked in two preseason games.

O'Brien was to start at quarterback and handle the New York Jets' first 30 to 35 plays when they met the New York Giants Saturday night at Giants Stadium.

Kickoff of their annual preseason game was set for 9 p.m. The Giants led the preseason series, 10-7-1. The regular season series, which resumes Dec. 27, is tied, 2-2.

"I need more consistency. I wasn't really into it last week. I was a little disappointed in my first quarter," O'Brien said of his performance (12-for-22 for 100 yards with two touchdown passes and one interception) in last week's 29-27 loss at Tampa Bay.

O'Brien said he liked the challenge of facing the defending Super Bowl champs, with the league's No. 1 defense last year. But, in addition to consistency, he was to be concentrating on a quicker release and "things we can put on our shelf and be successful with no matter who the opponent is."

Coach Joe Walton was more concerned about his own problems than the Giants.

"We've got to keep everything in perspective," he said. "The most important thing is the opening game of the season a few weeks away. We have a lot of work to do and have problems we need to solve. That's the most important thing."

The third week of the NFL preseason schedule got under way Thursday night when San Francisco beat San Diego 17-3.

Seattle beat Detroit 38-10 Friday night with quarterback Dave Kreig throwing two touchdown passes and Randall Morrris scoring on two short runs.

New England was at Minnesota Saturday afternoon in a game nationally televised by CBS.

The other Saturday night games were Washington at Tampa Bay, Miami at Philadelphia, Pittsburgh at New Orleans, Cincinnati at Green Bay, Cleveland at Atlanta, Buffalo at Kansas City, Houston at Indianapolis and Denver at the Los Angeles Rams.

The Los Angeles Raiders are at Dallas on Sunday night on ESPN and St. Louis is at Chicago for a Monday night game on ABC.

American League roundup...

Twins knocked from first

by The Associated Press

Facing a rookie pitcher who was facing problems on and off the field, the Minnesota Twins looked ready to end a skid that saw them lose eight of their previous nine games.

But Chris Bosio pitched a two-hitter for his first career shutout and complete game Friday night as the Milwaukee Brewers beat Minnesota 1-0 and knocked the Twins out of first place in the American League West.

Bosio, 8-5, who won for the first time since July 28, said he never should have gone that long without a victory: "The last three times out, the team has averaged about five or six runs and those are three wins I should have had." In other games, it was Seattle 10, New York 4; Texas 5, Detroit 3; Oakland 3, Toronto 2; Kansas City 9, Chicago 3; and Baltimore 6, California 5. Boston at Cleveland was rained out.

Bosio allowed only Greg Gagne's first-inning single and a seventh-inning hit by Kent Hrbek. He struck out eight and walked three. Minnesota's Les Straker, 6-9, limited the Brewers to six hits in seven innings.

Athletics 3, Blue Jays 2

Dave Stewart became the major leagues' first 18-game winner with 7 2-3 innings of six-hit pitching that gave Oakland a narrow lead in the West while keeping Toronto from taking over the lead in the East.

Stewart, who struck out five and walked four, used a forkball to baffle the Blue Jays' left-handed hitters.

Dennis Eckersley got the last four outs for his 10th save, while Carney Lansford had three of the Athletics' five hits off Dave Stieb, 13-7, who lost despite pitching his third complete game.

Rangers 5, Tigers 3

Texas, held to one hit by Jack Morris for six innings, rallied for four runs in the eighth to beat Detroit.

Ruben Sierra's two-run homer tied the score in the eighth, Pete O'Brien followed with an RBI double and Larry Parrish singled home an insurance run against Morris, 15-7.

Matt Nokes knocked in all three runs for the Tigers with a two-run single and his 24th homer, but Mitch Williams, 7-3, and Dale Mohorcic pitched two shutout innings each in relief for the Rangers.

Royals 9, White Sox 3

Kansas City won its second straight under interim Manager John Wathan as Danny Tartabull homered in the first inning for his league-leading 15th game-winning hit and Charlie Leibrandt scattered 10 hits in eight innings.

Leibrandt, 13-9, struck out six and walked two, retiring 11 consecutive batters during one stretch.

With two outs in the first, George Brett singled off Dave LaPoint, 2-2, and Tartabull hit his 23rd homer to put the Royals ahead 2-0.

Mariners 10, Yankees 4

Alvin Davis' grand slam broke a 3-3 tie and Mickey Brantley homered and drove in four runs for Seattle against New York.

Davis hit his fourth career slam and 22nd homer of the season in the sixth inning against reliever Charles Hudson, 9-4. Brantley had a two-run double in the fourth, homered in the seventh and added an RBI single in the eighth.

Reliever Mike Trujillo, 3-4, pitched 2 1-3 innings for the victory as Seattle ended a three-game losing streak.

Orioles 6, Angels 5

Baltimore beat California for the ninth consecutive time when Fred Lynn, the first batter after an 18-minute rain delay, hit a pinch-hit home run with one out in the ninth inning.

Lynn, who did not start the game because of a thigh injury, hit a 3-1 pitch from reliever Chuck Finley, 2-6, who had pitched 5 1-3 scoreless innings of relief. Lynn's homer, his 21st of the season, also snapped a string of 17 1-3 scoreless innings by Finley in his career against the Orioles.

King pleased with position

BUFORD, Ga. (AP) - Betsy King says one of the reasons Ayako Okamoto of Japan hasn't won in two months is because she's getting the lead too soon.

King, the LPGA's leading money winner, was three shots behind Okamoto heading into the third round of the $250,000 World Championship of women's golf.

"I feel happy with the position," King said of her battle with Okamoto for the richest first place prize in LPGA history, $81,500.

Despite a bogey 5 on the final hole, Okamoto shot a 68 Friday to take the halfway lead with a 6-under-par 138 score for 36 holes over the hilly, 6,073-yard PineIsle Resort golf club course.

King, who has won four tournaments and $381,775 this season, was in second place alone with a 70-141.

"Ayako's been up there a lot and hasn't won," King said. "You have to think it's her turn to win, but it's hard playing in that position."

Schmidt powers Phillies past San Diego Padres, 8-1

by The Associated Press

Mike Schmidt continues to climb the all-time home run ladder, but even passing Ted Williams and Willie McCovey doesn't excite him.

Schmidt's 522nd homer, Friday night, also was his 483rd as third baseman. It put him ahead of Eddie Matthews as the most prolific home run hitter at that position in National League history.

Schmidt seemed more satisfied that the two-run fifth-inning homer, his 27th this season, helped lift the Phillies to an 8-1 victory over San Diego.

"These milestones don't have a lot of luster for me now. Someday they will, but not now," said Schmidt, who is 12 homers behind eighth-place Jimmie Foxx on the all-time major league list.

In other games, it was Chicago 6, Cincinnati 5 in 10 innings; Pittsburgh 4, Houston 2; St. Louis 4, Atlanta 3; Montreal 2, Los Angeles 1 in 12 innings, and New York 4, San Francisco 0.

The 37-year-old Schmidt, who was 3-for-4, shows few signs of his often-mention retirement.

"Physically and mentally I'll be ready to play another year," Schmidt said. "I'll do my best to get another pay raise. If I don't know if I'm going to play baseball by Nov. 1, then I'll probably retire. I'll miss going out of the game as a winner. I would've liked to have a shot at a fourth MVP."

Don Carman, 8-9, scattered nine hits, with Benito Santiago's RBI double in the first the only extra-base hit he allowed, walking one and striking out four in his second complete game. Ed Whitson, 10-9, was the loser.

Cubs 6, Reds 5

Ryne Sandberg's 10th-inning single with two outs scored Bob Dernier from second and lifted Chicago over Cincinnati as the Reds' lost their seventh straight game.

Lee Smith, 4-7, who walked three in the ninth, including a bases-loaded pass to Bo Diaz, pitched the final two innings. Smith allowed one run, one hit, three walks and struck out three.

Pirates 4, Astros 2

Bob Walk supplemented a seven-hitter over 7 1-3 innings with an RBI single to score the lead run in the seventh inning, pacing Pittsburgh over Houston.

Johnny Ray had a two-run single with two outs in the seventh off Mike Scott, 13-10.

AJRA rodeo slated to open on Friday

Western Texas College Rodeo Club will sponsor the first AJRA Rodeo of the 1987-88 season here next Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 4-6.

The rodeo, which will be held at the Scurry County Rodeo Association Arena on Gary Brewer Road, is a qualifying rodeo for the 1988 AJRA National Finals, to be held again in Snyder next August.

Performances of the rodeo are 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $3 for adults and $2 for students. Children under age six will be admitted free.

Sammy Smith of Mullins will be furnishing the rodeo stock.

According to Bob Doty, Western Texas College rodeo coach, this will be a chance not only to see over 250 regular AJRA members perform, but also some new recruits for the WTC rodeo team.

Doty also noted the return of a rodeo to the SCRA arena after an absence of seven years. The last rodeo held at the arena, other than the WTC intramural, was the WTC college rodeo in 1980. The SCRA and WTC have worked to fix up the arena.

Joyce Kincheloe, rodeo secretary, said the rodeo will include a special age group of 8-and-under in addition to the 12-and-under, 13-to-15 and 16-to-19 divisions. Events for 8-and-under are barrel racing, pole bending and flag race. Regular events include barrels, poles, breakaway roping, ribbon roping, calf roping, steer wrestling, goat tying, team roping, and bull, bareback and saddle bronc riding.

Proceeds from the rodeo will go to WTC rodeo scholarships.

Strange leads at Akron

AKRON, Ohio (AP) - Curtis Strange has himself in position to win the lucarative World Series of Golf.

He also has himself in a ticklish position with the PGA Tour Commissioner, Deane Beman.

Strange, a two-time winner this season, was delighted to talk about the 12 one-putts that provided him with a 66 and the second-round lead in the World Series of Golf Friday.

"Any time I shoot 66 at Firestone, I have to make a lot of putts," Strange said after opening up a two-shot lead at the halfway point of the chase for a $144,000 first prize.

But he was much less ready to talk about a Friday morning conference with Beman concerning Strange's reluctance to play in a new, multi-million dollar tournament in San Antonio.

The Nabisco Championships of Golf at the end of October, will offer a total of $3 million in prize money to 30 players.

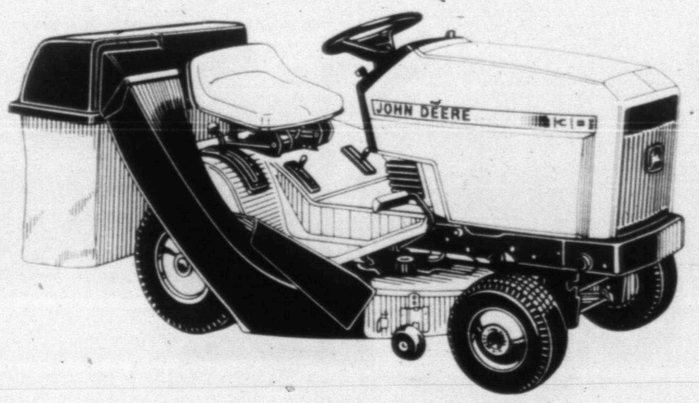

Strange, however, said he has contracts to play in three Japanese tournaments, in one of which he is the defending champion, at that time.

He was quoted in a published article as saying he would not play in the San Antonio tournament, which is being promoted as the season-ending climax to the PGA Tour. The winner could acquire as much as $535,000 from that one tournament.

Senior golf pro Mike Souchak was a football star at Duke University, playing offensive end and also doing the placekicking.

Weapons were sold even though no promises made

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration shipped weapons to Iran even though officials of the Khomeini government would not promise in return that American hostages in Lebanon would be released, Richard V. Secord says.

The Iranians said last fall that they could do "certain things" on behalf of the hostages, but they could not free them "by flipping a switch," Secord said in an interview published in the October editions of Playboy magazine.

"In a gross sort of way, they were saying they had to pay off the Hezbollah," Secord said, referring to the umbrella group of Lebanese Shiites believed to hold the hostages.

"They laid it right out on the table that they didn't necessarily command Hezbollah and couldn't automatically get them released," said Secord, a retired Air Force major general who helped arrange the weapons sales under the direction of Lt. Col. Oliver North.

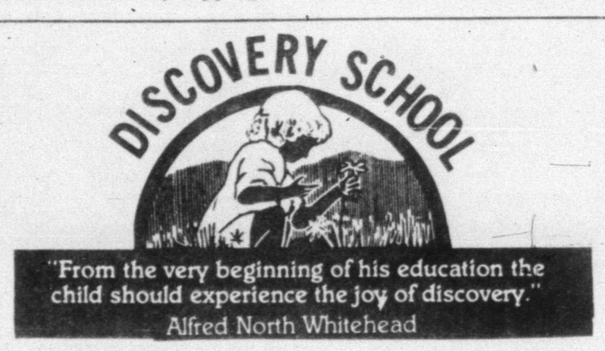

At one point the Iranians, associates of Hashemi Rafsanjani, the speaker of Iran's Parliament, offered to cooperate with the United States by providing information that would enable the U.S. military to free the hostages in a raid, Secord said.

In discussions with Iranians last fall, the representatives from Tehran said "to us that the best way to clear up the problem — because it was a problem for them as well as us — was to give us the location of the hostages and let us deal with it," he said.

Had a raid been authorized, it would have benefited the Iranians because "they could have rested assured that we had knocked off quite a few of those bastards that they couldn't stand, either. And they (Iran) could have regained control over the Hezbollah."

Secord said North, a former National Security Council aide, balked at the idea of a raid to free the hostages. North and his superiors "thought they could get immediate results by negotiation," Secord said.

Rules explained for Snyder Junior High School students

"Students in Snyder Junior High will go to their homeroom each morning when they arrive at school between 8 a.m. and 8:20 a.m.," said Charles Anderson, principal.

The lunchroom period is between 11:40 a.m. and 12:55 p.m. depending on the noon homeroom assignment of the students.

According to Anderson, the junior high is a closed campus and students will not be able to leave the campus at noon except with a parent. The parent must come to the school office and talk with the principal if the student is to leave school any time during the day, Anderson said.

The first class period begins promptly at 8:25 a.m. and anyone tardy will have to report to the office, he continued.

Anderson also asks that parents call the school office when their child is absent. In addition, parents should send a note when a child returns to school. Unexecused absenses will be given for all absences other than those which are approved for illness and such emergencies. Anderson explained that the state mandates that more than five unexecused absenses a semester will cause a student to fail.

Seventh grade students are dismissed at 3:30 p.m. each afternoon and eighth graders at 3:35 p.m. Parents may pick up their children on the east side of the building. Busses will load and unload on the north side of the bus ramp.

Junior high students will report directly to their homerooms when they arrive on campus Tuesday, Sept. 1, Anderson said. Students should arrive at school between 8 a.m. and 8:20 a.m. and go directly to the room or department listed in the chart which accompanies this story. Home room teachers will have a schedule for each student.

Tornado razes mobile home

ROSHARON, Texas (AP) — A tornado that ripped a mobile home from its blocks shredded the trailer but left seven people buried in the rubble with only minor injuries, officials said.

Five children and two women, one of them pregnant, had just finished their evening meal inside the trailer when the tornado struck at about 6:15 p.m. Friday near this city south of Houston.

"Everybody thought their children were going to die, and themselves," Simon Galvan, who arrived home from work moments later to find his family buried under the rubble, told the Brazosport Facts through an interpreter.

Carmen Galvan, 27, her children — aged 3, 5, 7 and 9 — an 11-year-old nephew and Rosemary Contreras, 21, who is pregnant, were all treated for minor cuts and bruises and released at Angleton-Danbury General Hospital, a hospital spokeswoman said.

"Everything was coming at my face and chest," Ms. Contreras said through a translator. "I was lucky nothing hit me in the stomach."

Vocational nursing students graduate

Graduation and capping ceremonies for vocational nursing students at Western Texas College were held Thursday night at Trinity United Methodist Church.

Roy Jean Ivan, RN, a member of the staff of Cogdell Memorial Hospital, was speaker for the program. Graduating students were presented certificates by Dr. Harry Krenek, WTC president, Winnie Poyner, RN, and Diane Beard, RN, vocational nursing instructors. Caps for students ready to begin the clinical phase of training were donated by the Cogdell Memorial Hospital Auxiliary and presented by Katherine Ervin, auxiliary president.

Bettie McQueen, WTC dean of instruction, gave the welcome. Dr. James Tully, WTC financial aid officer, gave the invocation and benediction. Jane Womack, assistant professor of music at WTC, played the processional and recessional and accompanied Mary Lu Hicks, vocalist.

Vocational nursing students who successfully complete the prescribed 12-month course are qualified to take the Texas Board of Vocational Nurse Examiners tests for licensing. Four months are spent in classroom instruction and the remaining eight months are in the clinical period which includes 33 hours of hospital practice and seven hours of classroom instruction weekly.

Sheriff says release of tapes will not affect the sting case

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — The outcome of an Iranian arms deal undercover sting operation conducted by the Midland County Sheriff's office will not be affected by the release of tape-recordings of a private session between Sheriff Gary Painter and county commissioners, Painter said.

However, commissioners are divided on their opinions on the weapons sting and information revealed by the tapes, they said Friday.

Retired District Judge Perry D. Pickett last week ordered the county to open to the public tapes of a private 45-minute meeting on Monday.

The public officials discussed the sting operation that netted 47-year-old Victor Fonseca of Lisbon, Portugal, on a charge of engaging in organized criminal activity. The judge, responding to a lawsuit filed by the Midland Reporter-Telegram, said he felt the public had a right to know what they discussed.

Fonseca was arrested about 6 a.m. Aug. 19 at the Rich Air Co. hangar at Midland Regional Airport while allegedly preparing to inspect crates he was told contained about $2 million in spare missile parts.

"The commissioners asked for the executive session," Painter explained. "they were concerned about some of the activities that took place."

But Painter, who claimed he had no qualms about talking privately or publicly with commissioners, said, "It doesn't change anything."

Painter told commissioners the county may obtain $93,000 that was deposited in a bank in England to pay for transportation of the missile parts to Tehran, Iran, he said.

The bank's lawyer has refused to reply to Painter's request that the check be returned to the Midland sheriff, Painter said.

The check was endorsed to Gary Howard, a friend of Painter, who, with Ron Tucker, spearheaded the sting operation after they were contacted by a British arms dealer for the Iranians, Painter said.

The check is not necessary for evidence in the case against Fonseca, the sheriff said, since Howard gave a copy of the endorsed check to Painter.

However, while two commissioners downplayed the importance of some issues raised in the closed-door meeting, Commissioner Win Brown held forth more questions.

"I wasn't satisfied with it," Brown said of the meeting Monday.

House Speaker refuses comment on escrow fund

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — After meeting with Nicaraguan Contra leaders Friday, House Speaker Jim Wright refused to say whether he would go along with their proposal to put U.S. military aid in escrow in case peace negotiations with the Sandinista government fail.

"I never did enter into any enterprise in my life anticipating its failure, because if one does that, he sows the seeds of its failure," Wright said.

The Fort Worth Democrat met with directors of the Nicaraguan resistance movement in a hotel at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport. After the meeting, he held a news conference with the three — Alfredo Cesar, Alfonso Robelo and Aristides Sanchez.

Reporters repeatedly asked Wright if he would agree with the Contra escrow proposal, but each time he steered clear of a definite answer and finally said he wasn't ready to make a commitment on the subject.

Instead, Wright said, he would rather discuss humanitarian aid to the Nicaraguan resistance.

"There is money in the pipeline already committed, already appropriated," Wright said. "We've been talking about creative ways to use whatever money there is for peaceful processes. Let's call that humanitarian aid.

"I'd rather spend some money sending in a peace corps, sending in a literacy corps, sending a medical corps. Then we won't have to send the Marine Corps," the speaker said.

Wright also would not speculate on what approach Congress might take toward the funds and the peace negotiations.

"I'm not ready to spell out exactly what formula Congress might be willing to support. The fundamental concept is we're going to give peace a chance," he said.

Labor Day closing set

Labor Day will be a holiday for students, faculty and staff at Western Texas College. All classes will be dismissed and offices will be closed that day.

The Scurry County Museum, located on the WTC campus, will also observe Labor Day as a holiday. The Diamond M Museum of Fine Arts at 909 25th Street is closed each Monday as part of its regular schedule.

Adult education classes slated

Adults interested in preparing for GED tests are invited to enroll in Adult Education classes offered free of charge at Western Texas College.

Adult education classes meet from 6:30-9 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays in the WTC Resource Center. Students many enroll at any class meeting. Each student begins his or her studies at their own level of achievement and students work at their own pace.

Howard Sawyer serves as coordinator for the Adult Education program. Elizabeth Jenkins and Esther Clarady also teach in the classes.

Information about Adult Education can be obtained by calling the Continuing Education office at 573-8511, ext. 240.

NOTICE OF PROPOSED SETTLEMENT

In November of 1986, two classes, the first defined as all mexican-americans eligible to presently or in the future vote in elections for trustees to the Snyder Independent School District, and the second defined as all blacks eligible to presently or in the future vote in the elecions for trustees to the Snyder Independent School District, were certified by the court in Malone, et al v. Snyder Independent School District, et al, Civil Action No. CA5-85-259, pending in the United States District Court for the Northern District of Texas, Lubbock Division.

Under the agreement, a new method of electing trustees to the Snyder Independent School District was tentatively adopted. The size of the school district remains at seven members. However, four of the seven members shall be elected from single-member districts, and the remaining three positions shall be elected, simultaneously, at-large and by plurality vote.

All single-member district elections shall be by majority vote. Each registered and qualified voter properly voting in an election for a representative from a single-member district may cast only one ballot for any particular candidate running within that district. With regard to the at-large positions, each registered and qualified voter may cast up to three ballots; however, no more than one ballot may be cast for any one candidate.

The term of the trustees shall remain at three years, except for those who were elected at-large during the April, 1987 elections. Furthermore, each candidate for a trustee position must, at the time of the election and during his or her term of office, live within the Snyder Independent School District. Each candidate seeking to represent a single-member district must, at the time of the election and during his or her term of office, live within his or her respective district and within the Snyder Independent School District. For instance, all candidates seeking to represent District No. 1 must reside within District No. 1 at the time of the election, and, if successfully elected, during his or her term of office. If a trustee occupying a district seat moves out of his district or out of the Snyder Independent School District or if a trustee occupying an at-large position moves out of the Snyder Independent School District, or if any trustee dies in office or resigns then that seat is immediately declared vacant.

An alternate voting plan has also been tentatively adopted. The system, based upon five single-member districts and two at-large, will be implemented depending upon the outcome of that one suit styled Legal of United Latin-American Citizens v. Midland Independent School District; Civil Action. No. MO-85-CA-001 (W.D. Tex.). The Honorable Halbert O. Woodward, Judge, will be asked to consider the alternate as well as the primary plan.

The parties hope to install the new voting plan by the next general trustee elections in 1988. Any member of the above defined class who objects to this plan must file the objection in writing, specifically stating their reason for the objection, with the Honorable Halbert O. Woodward, Judge, United States District Court, Room C210, Federal Building, 1205 Texas Avenue, Lubbock, TX 79401, Mr. Tomas Garza, Attorney for the Classes, 820 Avenue H, Suite 2, Lubbock, Texas 79401, and Mr. Brian P. Quinn, 1722 Broadway, Lubbock, Texas 79401, Attorney for the Snyder Independent School District. All objectons must be received by the Court, Mr. Garza and Mr. Quinn no later than October 7th, 1987. As the Court has scheduled a hearing on the above-referenced settlement agreement for Wednesday, October 14, 1987 at 1:00 p.m. o'clock in the United States District Courthouse, in San Angelo, Texas, and may hold a hearing on any objection filed. Anyone filing a objection must appear at the Federal Courthouse in San Angelo at that time and be prepared to present the objection in open court. If they do not, the objection may be waived.

SINGLE MEMBER DISTRICTS —

AVISO DE ARREGLO PROPUESTO

En noviembre de 1986, dos clases, la primera definida como todos mexico-americanos elegible para votar actualmente o en el futuro en elecciones del Consejo Escolar del Distrito Escolar Independiente de Snyder, y el segundo definido como toda la gente negra elegible para votar actualmente o en el futuro en elecciones del Consejo Escolar del Distrito Escolar Independiente de Snyder, fueron certificadas por el tribunal en Malone, et alii contra Distrito Escolar Independiente de Snyder, et alii, Causa Civil Num. CA5-85-259, pendiente en el Tribunal Regional de los Estados Unidos Americanos del Distrito Norteno de Texas, Division de Lubbock. Despues de negociaciones extensas, los interesados de la disputa sobredicha llegaron a un arreglo propuesto.

Segun el arreglo, un nuevo metodo de elegir miembros para el Consejo Escolar del Distrito Escolar Independiente de Snyder se adopto provisionalmente. El tamano del distrito escolar permanece a siete miembros. Sin embargo, cuatro de los siete miembros se elegiran de distritos uni-miembros, and los puestos que sobran se elegiran, simultaneamente, en general y por voto pluralitario.

Todas elecciones de distrito uni-miembro se llevaran a cabo por voto mayoritario. Cada votante registrado y calificado votando apropiandamente en una eleccion para representativo de un distrito uni-miembro puede dar solamente una votacion por cualquier candidato en particular que procura ese distrito. Con respecto a los puestos generales, cada votante registrado y calificado puede dar hasta tres votaciones; sin embargo, nada mas que una votacion se le puede dar a cualquier candidato.

El termino de los miembros del consejo escolar permanecera a tres anos, con excepcion de esos quienes se elegieron en general durante las elecciones de abril de 1987. Ademas, cada candidato para un puesto del consejo escolar tendra que, a la hora de la eleccion y durante su mandato del oficio, vivir dentro del Distrito Escolar Independiente de Snyder. Cada candidato que procura representar un distrito uni-miembro tendra que,a la hora de la eleccion y durante su mandato del oficio, vivir dentro de su distrito respectivo y dentro del Distrito Escolar Independiente de Snyder. Por ejemplo, todos los candidatos que procuran representar Distrito Num. 1 tienen que residir dentro del Distrito Num. 1 a la hora de la eleccion, y, si elegido con exito, durante el termino de su oficio. Si un miembro del consejo escolar que ocupa un puesto se mueve fuera de su distrito o fuera del Distrito Escolar Independiente de Snyder o si un miembro que ocupa un puesto en general se mueve fuera del Distrito Escolar Independiente de Snyder, o si cualquier miembro del consejo escolar se muere miemtras ocupa el oficio o renuncia su puesto, entonces ese puesto se inmediatamente declara libre.

Un plan alternativo de votacion tambien se ha adoptado provisionalmente. El sistema, basado en cinco distritos uni-miembros y dos en general, se llevara a cabo segun el resultado de ese litigio titulado Liga de Ciudadanos Latino-Americanos Unidos contra el Distrito Escolar Independiente de Midland; Causa Civil Num. MO-85-CA-001 (W.D. Tex.). Se le pedira al Honorable Halbert O. Woodward, Juez, que consiedere el alternativo tanto como el plan primario.

Los interesados esperan instalar el nuevo plan de votacion paara las proximas elecciones generales del consejo escolar en 1988. Cualquier miembro de las definidas clases sobredichas que protesta este plan tiente que registrar la protesta por escrito, declarando especificamente la razon por la protesta, con el Honorable Halbert O. Woodward, Juez, United States District Court, Room C210, Federal Building, 1205 Texas Avenue, Lubbock, Texas 79401, Sr. Tomas Garza, Abogado de las clases, 820 Avenue H., Suite 2, Lubbock, Texas 79401 y el Sr. Brian P. Quinn, 1722 Broadway, Lubbock, Texas 79401, Abogado del Distrito Escolar Independiente de Snyder. Todas protestas tendran que ser recibidas por el Tribunal, el Sr. Garza y el Sr. Quinn no despues del 7th de October, 1987. Asi que el Tribunal ha fijado la hora para una vista acerca del arreglo sobredicho el 14th de October 1987 a la/las 1:00 p.m. en el Palacio Regional de Justicia de los Estados Unidos Americanos, San Angelo, Condado de Tom Green, Texas, y podra escuchar cualquier protesta registrada.

Cualquiera que registra una protesta tene que presentarse en el Palacio Federal de Justicia en San Angelo a la hora fijada y estar preparado para presentar las protesta en pleno tribunal. Si no se cumple con esto, la protesta podra ser renunciada.

On Wednesday morning, the Plainview Home Demonstration Club will present a skit stressing the importance of good nutrition. Pat Reynolds will sing Thursday morning. Her program is to begin at 11:15 a.m. The Friday Sing Along will also begin at 11:15 a.m.

A new ceramics class has begun meeting at 1 p.m. on Mondays in the center and senior citizens who would like to join the group are invited to meet with them on Monday.

With the the start of the fall semester at Western Texas College, swimnastics for senior citizens has been resumed. The group meets at 2 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Senior citizens are reminded that the Senior Center will be closed on Sept. 7 for the Labor Day holiday.

Contact hours show increase

The courses logged a total of 9,155 hours this summer compared to 6,727 last summer. Students in an Emergency Medical Technician course offered as an Adult Vocational Education course accounted for an additional 720 contact hours.

Defensive driving attracted the greatest enrollment. A total of 128 students took this course. Other classes with total enrollment of 20 and over were driver education with 89, beginning swimming with 69, art for children with 41, computers for kids with 30, karate with 27, free style aerobics with 25, and infant/parent swimming with 20.

Continuing Education and Adult Vocational courses do not carry college credit but sometimes gives students the opportunity to earn Continuing Education Units or other special credit. The courses vary in length and cost depending upon the length of the course and other factors. The college welcomes suggestions about courses local residents would like to have taught and will try to arrange courses upon request. Most courses require a minimum enrollment of 10 students and enrollment is sometimes limited at the request of the instructor when the instructor feels he can best work with a limited number of students.

CE/AVE courses for the fall are now being planned at WTC and persons wishing information about the new schedule are invited to call the Continuing Education office at 573-8511, ext. 240.

Special night being planned

The Western Texas College Booster Club has begun making plans for a Meet the Athletes Night in September.

Carl Williams will be serving as president for the Booster Club this season, with Carl "Red" Tefertiller as vice president. Members of the executive committee are Dennis Ball, John Boyd, Ouida Bruner, Luann Burleson, H. W. Cargile, Willard Gladson, Guy Sullivan, and Rod Waller.

Plans are also being made for a membership drive in September and regular meetings of the club are being studied. Information about club membership and projects can be obtained by contacting club officers or the athletic department at the college.

In 1880, all British possessions in North America and adjacent islands, except Newfoundland and its dependencies, were annexed to Canada by imperial order.

Last rebels give themselves up at Aguinaldo

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The government Saturday captured the last mutinous troops at military headquarters after crushing a coup attempt against President Corazon Aquino. But the coup leader and hundreds of rebels remained at large.

Gen. Fidel Ramos, the military chief of staff, said the situation in the Manila area was nearly under control 32 hours after about 800 rebels attacked the presidential compound, key military bases and the state broadcast center.

Led by youthful midlevel officers, the coup attempt was the strongest and bloodiest challenge to Mrs. Aquino's 18-month-old government.

At least 25 people were killed and 275 wounded, including Mrs. Aquino's only son, 27-year-old Benigno III, military and hospital sources said.

By this morning, loyal troops had retaken all of Camp Aguinaldo, the national military headquarters in suburban Quezon City where the fiercest fighting occurred in a 2½-hour battle Friday evening.

Loyal troops also were in control of the nearby government broadcast center, which was retaken Friday afternoon in a half-hour firefight.

Pro-Aquino troops repulsed rebel attacks on the Malacanang presidential palace compound when the coup attempt began about 1:30 a.m. Friday.

Military officials said 43 mutineers surrendered at Camp Aguinaldo early today and 51 more, including soldiers and civilian sympathizers, were captured there during mop-up operations. Officials said 462 rebels had been captured by Friday night, bringing to 556 the number of mutinous troops in custody.

But the rebel's leader, Col. Gregorio Honasan, remained at large as did an unknown number of rebels.

The situation also remained unclear at Villamor Air Base, the air force headquarters rebels had partially taken Friday. This morning, marines sealed off the base near Manila International Airport and checked all military vehicles leaving it.

In Cebu City, 350 miles southeast of Manila, the commander of paramilitary national police, who had supported the coup attempt, stepped down today under orders from Ramos and released civilian authorities he had placed under house arrest. The freed provincial governor and city mayor then led a pro-government demonstration in the metropolis, the nation's second-largest.

Forty miles north of Manila in San Fernando, about 400 rebels who had occupied a paramilitary police garrison were allowed to leave the camp around midnight Friday to avoid bloodshed, military officials said.

Elsewhere Saturday, about 100 paramilitary police officers who had taken over the airport in Legazpi City, 210 miles southeast of Manila, returned to their garrison. Authorities said the mutineers would remain in service though some administrative action might be taken against them.

Officials said the troops had expected to be flown to Manila to join the rebellion, but no aircraft arrived to pick them up.

Traffic in Manila was normal for a weekend and radio stations returned to light programming today after broadcasting continuous reports on fighting the day before.

Mrs. Aquino, 54, said her son was seriously hurt and three of his companions were killed when gunfire riddled their car near the presidential palace Friday in the early stages of the coup attempt.

Also killed during the uprising were two news photographers — a New Zealander and a Filipino — and numerous civilians caught in cross-fire.

Officers supervising cleanup operations at Camp Aguinaldo today said they were finding more bodies, so the death toll could rise.

The rebels did not appear to have widespread, popular support in seeking to overthrow Mrs. Aquino, who gained office in the "people power" revolution that ousted President Ferdinand E. Marcos in February 1986.

The revolt occurred after her husband, Benigno, an opposition leader, was slain upon returning to the Philippines from exile in the United States.

Military officials said Honasan fled Camp Aguinaldo in a helicopter before the counteroffensive. Early in the rebellion, he said Mrs. Aquino's government was weak and accused her of establishing a "personality cult."

Honasan was security chief for Sen. Juan Ponce Enrile until Mrs. Aquino fired Enrile as defense minster last November after an earlier attempted coup. Both men played leading roles in the civilian-military uprising that drove Marcos into exile.

The attempted coup was the most serious since mutineers attacked military and media installations in the capital last January in what the government called a bid to bring Marcos back to power. One mutineer was killed.

On Friday, Marcos said from his home in Hawaii, where he fled into exile, that he had nothing to do with the Honasan-led coup attempt.

Fire destroys home of AIDS brothers; fire marshal alerted

ARCADIA, Fla. (AP) — Fire gutted the home of a family that won a court order allowing three brothers with the AIDS virus to attend public school, and their uncle was hospitalized for smoke inhalation, officials said.

The boys and their parents were not home when the fire broke out just after 10 p.m. Friday following a week of boycotts, death threats and bomb threats aimed at the Ray family, their attorney Bill Earl, said today.

"It's obviously an outrage," Earl said. "The Rays are distraught, worried about the safety of the boys, and whatever they had has been wiped out."

The boys' father, Clifford Ray, told Earl the cause of the blaze "appeared to be some sort of a firebomb," but the attorney said that had not been confirmed.

James Smithers, a friend who helped the uncle, 27-year-old Andy Ray, out of the burning house, said he smelled gasoline.

Andy Ray, who was alone in the house at the time, was in stable condition today at DeSoto Memorial Hospital, where he was treated for smoke inhalation, said spokeswoman Deborah Crews.

Firefighters arrived only a minute after being called, but found the home already in flames, said DeSoto County Safety Director Armond Summerall.

Fire officials refused to discuss what caused the blaze until completion of a state fire marshal's investigation, Summerall said.

The fire followed by a few hours a rally Friday at which a group called Citizens Against AIDS in School called off a boycott of classes at Memorial Elementary School.

Danny Tew, the leader of the group, denied that it or the rally had any connection with the fire.

The three Ray brothers — Ricky, 10, Robert, 9 and Randy, 8 — and their parents were "just getting away from it all" after a difficult week since the three boys began classes Monday, Earl said.

A federal judge ordered their admission to Memorial Elementary School over the objections of many parents in this rural community of 10,000 who felt their children were threatened because the Ray boys tested positive for antibodies to the AIDS virus.

The boycott helped lower attendance by almost half Monday, but more children attended classes as the week wore on.

The brothers, who are hemophiliacs, show no symptoms of acquired immune deficiency syndrome, but apparently were exposed to the AIDS virus through plasma products they use to help their blood clot in case of injury, doctors said.

The family had been subjected to death threats, and bomb threats this week forced two evacuations of the boys' school.

One hysterical caller to the Rays' home a week ago today had threatened to burn the house down, said another family attorney, Judy Kavanaugh.

Earl said the family did not know what to do next.

"Needless to say they are very upset," he said. "But they're safe right now, and they're away from the scene."

Crucial test firing delayed still further

BRIGHAM CITY, Utah (AP) - A critical first full-scale test of the redesigned space shuttle rocket will be postponed still further while engineers sort out problems that caused the firing to be aborted three times, officials said Friday.

In a joint announcement, NASA and rocket manufacturer Morton Thiokol Inc. said engineers will conduct several countdown dry runs to test systems that malfunctioned on Thursday. This work is expected to take most of Saturday.

A decison will be made Saturday night on a day for the test firing, the announcement said.

Police arrest New Mexico man wanted on 5 warrants

A convenience store clerk who became suspicious when she saw a man trying to pry the gas cap off a car led police to arrest a 23-year-old man who was wanted on five felony warrants from Chaves County, N. M.

Officers in two cars answered the 2:26 a.m. Friday call to the Town and Country store at College Ave. and U.S. 84 and arrested Donald Doines of Roswell, N. M. He was wanted for two counts of kidnapping, two counts of aggravated assault, one count of aggravated battery and the unlawful taking of a motor vehicle.

He was observed attempting to pry the gas cap off the white Lincoln Continental that he had driven to the store. He was alone at the time of his arrest.

In other action, police answered a disturbance call in the 1500 Block of 27th St. and arrested three men, 29, 22 and 17, for possession of marijuana. The 29-year-old was also arrested for possession of drug paraphernalia.

A 15-year-old shoplifter was arrested at 2:46 a.m. Friday at a convenience store on College Ave. and was later released to his mother.

A 21-year-old man was arrested at 2:26 a.m. Friday in the 800 Block of 14th St. for public intoxication, and two women, ages 29 and 52, were taken into custody at 2:44 a.m. in the 1600 Block of Ave. K, the 52-year-old for DWI and the 29-year-old for public intoxication.

Weather blamed on truck mishap

A truck driver escaped injury when his tractor-trailer rig went out of control and jack-knifed on U. S. 84, 5.4 miles south of Snyder.

The Department of Public Safety reported that James Royce Bell of Denton was traveling south when the combination of a wet highway and high winds triggered the 1:30 p.m. Wednesday accident.

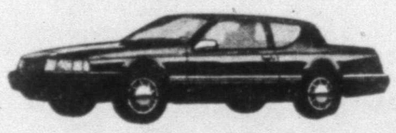

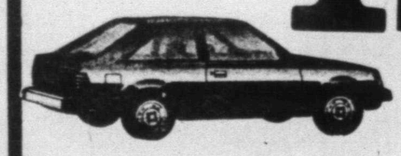

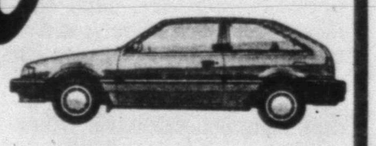

"Control of the vehicle was completely lost as it jack-knifed and slid off the roadway," the investigating trooper said.

Scurry County Folks...

By Shirley A. Gorman

Some people are dreamers and others are doers. For years, Jimmy Thompson of Snyder had dreamed of flying the Alcan Highway, but this summer he joined the ranks of the doers when he and two buddies flew to Canada and Alaska in Thompson's Twin Comanche six passenger airplane.

"For years, I have wanted to fly the Alcan Highway and each year I tried to talk my wife, Frances, into going with me but she always said no. Finally this year she said if I was going to do it I should get a couple of buddies and just do it because she was never going to go with me. And that is just what I did."

Both Burleson and Goldesberry jumped at the chance to accompany Thompson. The trio left Snyder July 3 and returned on July 12. The flight to Calgary, Canada took about 8 hours and encompassed some 3,400 miles.

Both Thompson and Burleson took turns flying the plane. Thompson learned to fly in 1941 and last summer taught Burleson how to fly.

They stopped in Cheyenne, Wyo. for fuel and once there ran into a bit of a problem which was fixed with a piece of Scotch tape. "The fuel flow indicator was leaking gas and we just fixed it with some Scotch tape and went on," Burleson said.

Since they were flying over so much wilderness area in both Canada and Alaska, the three men had to follow stringent restrictions. Just a few of the things they needed in Canada were gun shells, face nets for mosquitoes, a 10-day supply of food for each person, sleeping bags, waterproof matches, fishing tackle, an emergency locater and translator (ELT), a signal mirror and a compass.

They spent the night in Calgary, Canada before flying on to Fort Nelson, a weather station, the next day.

According to a map which they saw in the weather station, some 48 planes had already crashed--mainly in the mountain passes.

Just west of Fort Nelson they ran into some very low clouds which forced them to turn back temporarily and to file an instrument flight plan after which they then flew through the clouds at a safe altitude.

Their original plan was to fly VFR all the way which allows them to fly at any altitude as long as they are under the clouds. From Fort Nelson to Whitehorse, they flew IFR at 10,000 feet.

"We didn't have any anti-ice equipment on the plane so we had to be careful to stay out of the ice," Burleson explained.

Thompson wanted to visit Whitehorse which is located in the Yukon Territory of Alaska. It was made famous during the Gold Rush Days.

They then flew to Fairbanks, Alaska where they rented a car and traveled to Denali Park. The three men all agree that the seven hour bus tour through the park was "fantastic." They saw Mt. McKinley which stands 20,320 feet tall and is so high and tall that it has "a weather system all its own."

"Mt. McKinley was in a foul mood while we were there," Goldesberry said.

"There were 175 mountain climbers on Mt. McKinley," Thompson said. "Five had been killed so far."

After leaving Denali Park, the trio flew back to Fairbanks and the next day they flew to Anchorage where they managed to spend some time fishing for King Salmon. A pilot flew them to their fishing destination in a float plane, but that plane developed trouble and could not make it back to pick them up.

"Another man came and got us and took us back to his home," Thompson said. "He asked me if I wanted to see a bear and sure enough he had a black bear in a tree in his yard."

While at Anchorage, they saw the Kenai Peninsula and took an air boat ride to the Knik Glacier. They also drove to Tolkeetna, which is a very small village where Don Sheldon, the famous bush pilot, lived. There, they saw the Don Sheldon Amphitheater.

"We flew over the Ruth Glacier but could not land on it because rain had softened it," Thompson said.

The temperature in Fairbanks was 93 degrees while they were there and it was so hot that the glaciers had begun to melt and turn the rivers muddy.

By contrast, Anchorage was cool with temperatures in the high 60s.

The three Snyderites had to pass through customs before entering Canada. Burleson said the customs officials seemed concerned that--being from Texas--the three men would be packing hand guns.

It was daylight the entire time they were in Alaska. "Eventually you just get tired of being up and finally go to sleep," Thompson explained. "But it would still be daylight and that took some getting used to."

"I took the trip because I wanted the adventure and I wanted to fish," Goldesberry said. "I had been to Canada three times before this."

"This was my first long distance airplane flight," Burleson said. "I had always wanted to see Alaska where the sun never sets and sure enough such a place exists."

"From Anchorage to St. John was the most harrowing part of the trip," Burleson said. "A cloud was in our path and we went around it and just narrowly missed the mountain. I estimate our wing missed it by only about 30 feet."

Alaskan adventure said 'dream come true'

"Flying in Texas is easier because here we can usually just fly right through a cloud," he said.

"I liked the trip also for the companionship," Burleson said. Goldesberry added he would have liked to have been able to stay longer.

When packing and preparing for the trip, Thompson said Burleson was in charge of the medical kit and Goldesberry was in charge of the mechanics. They also packed survival kits.

Preparations began in March and one of the first things Thompson did was to contact the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association which sent him maps.

"I enjoyed planning the trip," Thompson said. "I have a flight planning program on my computer and it made it easier to do. Almost everything worked out like it was originally planned."

Thompson has owned the plane they flew to Alaska in since 1981 and he has owned airplanes nonstop since 1955.

"Even though the Twin Commanche is a six-passenger plane, Mrs. Thompson said it comfortably carries four people and their baggage.

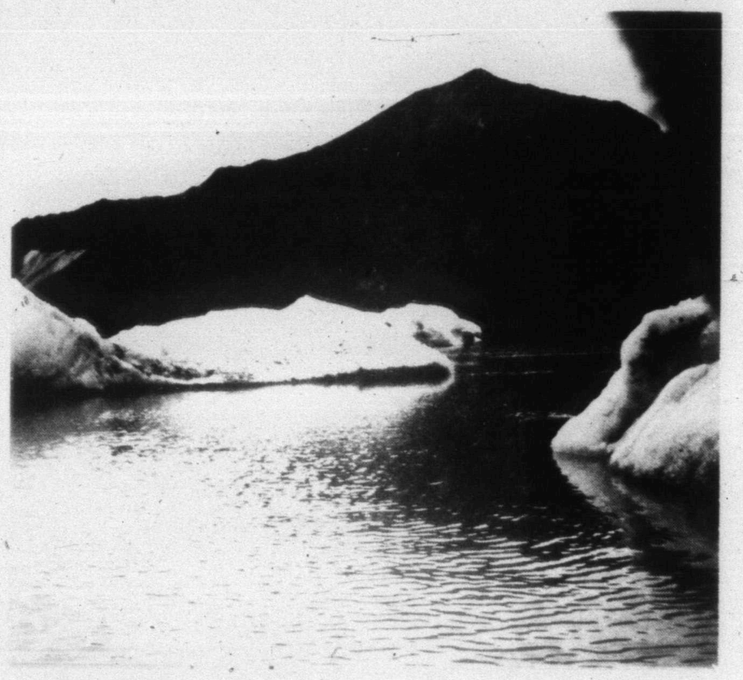

He learned to fly in 1941 before World War II by taking flying lessons in Odessa. He served as instructor in primary flight school in Fort Stockton where he taught cadets the first phase of learning how to fly.

During World War II, Thompson said he flew the Himalayas as a hump pilot which meant he flew supplies between India and China.

Thompson has been flying ever since, taking his family on trips, to name a few, to Canada, the New York World's Fair, Mexico, Washington, D.C. and California.

"Our two girls grew up in the back end of an airplane," Mrs. Thompson said.

FEATURED THIS WEEK

THIS FAR AND NO MORE. By Andrew H. Malcolm.

"This Far and No More" is the first book to address candidly, at the most human level, all the realities of today's negotiated deaths and the challenge facing those who, with their loved ones, take death into their own hands. Emily Bauer's problems, her questions, are quandaries each of us will have to face, either in our own families or as members of a caring society that must also finance that care. Andrew Malcolm first chronicled the Bauer family's story for the New York Times, and has written extensively on the subject of death and dying in America. His compassion for all concerned in this powerful story is evidence of a uniquely sensitive understanding of one of the most compelling issues of our time.

Sprouts can be big

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Sprouts may be small but they are big on nutrients, according to Better Homes and Gardens.

Sprouts contain vitamins and minerals, they're low in calories and they're easier to digest than beans themselves. Sprouts can be grown at home in a jar or on a tray. They also taste good inside casseroles, on sandwiches or topping off a salad.

Double-ring rites join couple

MR. AND MRS. JOHN ANDREW BERTA

John Andrew Berta of Arlington took Jane Ann Billingsley of Grand Prairie to be his bride Aug. 8 at 4 p.m. in the First United Methodist Church Odom Chapel. Carl Nunn of Dunn officiated the double-ring ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Ted and Fretta Billingsley of Snyder. The groom's parents are Marv and Linda Newton of Santa Ynez, Calif.

Peach bows marked alternating pews in the chapel. Ivy and tiny peach bows decorated the altar setting.

The mother of the bride lit the candles. Judy Billingsley of Snyder, sister-in-law of the bride, provided piano accompaniment.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a traditional white gown with a scooped neckline and lace butterfly sleeves. The full skirt was overlaid in illusion swept up the side in graceful folds. The fingertip veil of illusion fastened to a crown of pearls and iridescents.

The bridal bouquet was composed of peach and white roses, baby's breath and greenery finished with peach ribbon streamers. The bride carried pennies dated in the birth years of the couple.

For something old, she wore a pearl necklace belonging to her mother. Pearl earrings were borrowed from her sister-in-law, Donna Billingsley. Something new was her gown and a garter was blue.

Sara Youngkin of Denver, Colo. served as maid of honor. She was attired in a pale peach gown and carried a long-stemmed white rose with white streamers.

The groom was dressed in a white tuxedo and tails with peach bow tie and cummerbund accenting a white tucked shirt.

Groomsmen and ushers were Rickey Billingsley, Randy Billingsley and Kim Billingsley, brothers of the bride.

Karrie Billingsley of Snyder, niece of the bride, registered guests.

A reception in the church parlor followed the ceremony. The bride's table was accented by peach flowers. A double-tiered peach and white wedding cake held a miniature bride and groom which had also been used by the bride's brothers at their own weddings.

Assorted foods were served from the groom's table which also featured ivy and peach flowers. Kim Taggart of Bryan served.

The couple is making a home in Arlington.

The bride graduated from Snyder High School, Western Texas College and Sam Houston State University. She is employed as a teacher with the Grand Prairie ISD.

The groom is a graduate of the University of Southern California at Santa Barbara and is associated with Carpet Services Plus in Arlington.

Cogeneration has big future in nation's electrical requirements

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cogeneration, the simultaneous onsite output of steam and electricity, could supply 10 percent of the nation's baseload electrical capacity by the year 2000, reports Energy User News.

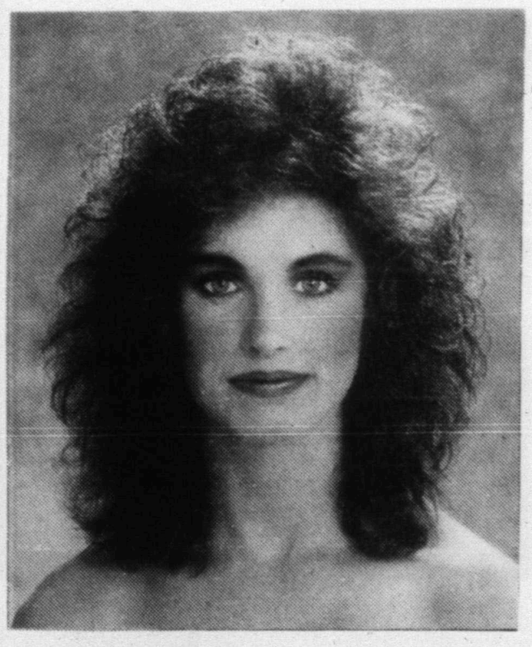

According to the industry journal, total installed cogeneration capacity in the U.S. has grown from 9,000 megawatts in 1980 to the current 15,000 megawatts, almost all in industry.

Today, half of the Fortune 500 companies are cogenerating or providing critical services to the industry. Industry experts say cogeneration helps users compete better in the marketplace by providing less expensive energy and more control over long-term energy costs.

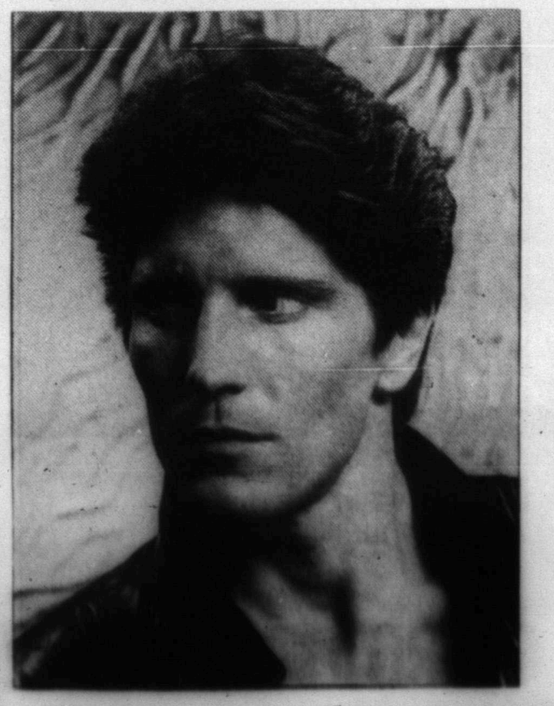

The system does more than provide financial benefits, the publication notes. Since 75 percent of the country's reserve generating capacity is oil-fired, when oil prices go up again, electricity rates could soar unless alternatives are developed in advance.

FALL FERTILIZATION

Fall fertilization can boost a lawn while minimizing energy requirements for mowing and removal of grass clippings.

A fall application of fertilizer not only prolongs green color in grass but also stimulates root growth, reduces winter injury and promotes early recovery. Fall fertilization also increases turf density and reduces weeds.

Warm fall days and cool nights provide conditions favorable for grass to accumulate carbohydrates that promote root growth and help winter survival. And, since leaf growth is also less during the shorter fall days, delaying lawn fertilization until mid-September or October helps reduce mowing requirements and energy use.

I recommend applying fertilizer high in nitrogen and potassium and low in phosphorus.

Both nitrogen and potassium are important to leaf growth and color and root growth. Potassium is also important to winter survival, disease resistance and drought tolerance. Phosporus is essential but is required in much lesser amounts than the other nutrients.

Base the rate of application on the nitrogen content, the first number in the fertilizer analysis. Apply one to two pounds of nitrogen per 1,000 square feet of lawn. So, with a 12-4-8 fertilizer, use 10 to 15 pounds per 1,000 square feet, depending on when the last fertilizer application was made. If the lawn has not been fertilized for the past three months or longer, use the higher rate.

FIT SCHOOL WARDROBE INTO A BUDGET PLAN

Buying a child's entire school wardrobe before the school year starts may mean money gets spent on clothes that will soon be outgrown or never worn.

A few new things will help the youngster get ready for the school year. When children grow rapidly, clothes bought too far in advance may be outgrown before the child gets much wear out of them.

Since children's clothing preferences are influenced by what their classmates wear, it may also be wise to delay some purchases until after the school year starts.

This also gives parents time to plan the child's wardrobe and budget for it throughout the year.

Start with a "try-on" session in the child's room. Have the youngster try on the clothes he or she has now to see which are still usable for school.

Your clothing budget is another consideration. Try to set aside a certain amount each month for clothing for each family member. Some months you may need to spend all of it and other months you may want to save it to buy a more expensive item later.

You should plan to spend the most money on clothing that is worn frequently, receives the hardest wear and is laundered often. If you buy separates, they can be mixed and matched with clothes already in the child's wardrobe.

For children who are growing rapidly, buy only what is needed at one time. Seasonless clothes that can be worn as long as they fit and look good will also stretch your budget. Short sleeve tops, for example, can be layered with other tops and sweaters for use in colder weather.

Many families stretch their clothing budget by shopping at yard sales, thrift shops and used clothing stores. Since children frequently outgrow clothes before they are worn out, good quality clothing often can be found through these sources.

When you shop for children's clothing, take along a list of the items the youngster needs so you can make sure the purchase fits into both your wardrobe and budget plan.

GET INTO ACTION WITH 4-H

The new 4-H year starts soon, so now is an excellent time to make a commitment to join this action-oriented organization.

4-H is a national program for all youth between the ages of 9 and 19 regardless of race, color, ethnic background, economic status or cultural differences. In Texas, you can join 4-H when you enroll in the third grade, regardless of your age. The Texas 4-H program is administered by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The purpose of 4-H is to develop leadership and character in young people. 4-H'ers learn by doing through actively working on projects and participating in club meetings and 4-H activities.

4-H clubs are organized in such places as rural, suburban and urban neighborhoods. Groups may be organized among neighborhood families in one or two city blocks, housing complexes or anywhere they are needed.

Youth can participate in a variety of projects in 4-H, such as foods, clothing, animal projects, electricity, photography, arts and crafts, and many, many others. In fact, almost anything you want can be a project.

Most important, 4-H is a lot of fun! Where else can you get together with other young people your age and have fun while you learn? Boys and girls in 4-H are always on the move doing something and participating in various activities. Livestock projects give youngsters a chance to be responsible for an animal and enter stock shows where they learn competitiveness and sportsmanship. 4-H'ers can even learn to make their own clothes through clothing projects.

Other 4-H activities such as the Share-the-Fun give youngsters the chance to participate in organized recreation. Members in 4-H can go on trips, take tours of interesting and educational places, and help finance their college education with scholarships awarded through 4-H.

Boosting the 4-H program is the private sector which provides resources of money, personnel and materials for the advancement of 4-H. The many business and industrial leaders who have supported and continue to support 4-H gives significant testimony that 4-H is a valuable educational program for America's youth.

Remember, you are what you want to be in 4-H. It is educational, interesting, challenging and lots of fun.

For more details on 4-H and how to join in on upcoming activities for the new club year, contact the county extension office at 573-5423.

She Lost 52 Pounds & 84 Inches And It Stayed Lost... Permanently!

Did you ever hear or read of that from those "Other Guys?" Of course not! All they can talk about is how fast & cheap their deals are. We don't believe in that for a lot of reasons, mostly having to do with health, simplicity and permanency.

Here's a case in point: Mrs. Nelson of Houston, Tx. She first undertook the Pat Walker's program in 1958. You can see where she started, and where she is today at the tender age of 68! And a bundle of energy because she is healthy and feels good about herself.

Mrs. Nelson before Pat Walker

Mrs. Nelson says—Fat made me a person other than "myself" until Pat Walker's. From self-pity, excuses, procrastination & total negativism came the "real" me...positive, aggressive, compassionate, caring, enthusiastic & with real good reasons for loving life. Pat Walker's counselors asked for a commitment to "listen" & in return I have a permanent & perfect figure, 52 lbs & 84 in. less. By listening I had the opportunity of understanding and never once did I lose my dignity. They were professional, caring, knowledgeable.

This was their method 26 years ago; in 1987 the same professional attitude continues to reduce the women of the world. My photographs tell it all.

MATTIE PEARL HOOD
...103 years old...

Local resident celebrates over a century of life

Mattie Pearl Hood celebrated her 103rd birthday Thursday in Snyder Oaks Nursing Home. Born Aug. 27, 1884 in Comanche, Mattie married Henry Hood July 22, 1900. The couple had one girl and four boys. One son, H.B. of Lubbock, is still living at 82 years of age. Henry passed away Dec. 27, 1961 in Sweetwater.

Mattie's mother wanted her to grow up to be a lady — perhaps an opera star — not a field hand. Toward that goal, Mattie was given voice, piano and dance lessons. Still dancing weekly at 101 years of age, Mattie's favorite dance is the waltz.

Instead of becoming a star, Mattie married at sixteen. For the first year of married life, she and her husband traveled with his folks in a covered wagon all over West Texas and New Mexico in search of a healthy climate for her ailing mother-in-law.

Mattie commented, "I've had a long life and a happy one most of the time. It's been nice in some ways; in others not so nice."

Asked if she thinks the world was a better place when she was young, she answered, "I think it's better now." Her friends mentioned that Mattie has always liked progress.

At 40 years of age, Mattie took up snuff to numb a toothache. She still dips and remarked, "I can't talk; I've got snuff in my mouth!"

At 93 years of age, Mattie had difficulty starting her lawn mower. She promptly called a son and said, "Find me a nursing home!" Feb. 1, 1978, Mattie came to Snyder from Coleman. "I'm tired of waiting on people; it's time somebody else waited on me for awhile!" she stated.

Mattie's dancing days came to an end at 101 years of age when she fell and broke her pelvis. She noted that she'd never had a pain in her life; the break didn't hurt and having children didn't hurt.

Nursing home staff observed that Mattie has never complained. She is always cheerful and has filled many hours with anecdotes from her long life.

Mattie saw all of her children celebrate golden anniversaries. Her sons commented that she would outlive them so they were going to pay in advance for her funeral expenses. She was heard to remark that she hasn't seen her casket yet.

A member of the Baptist Church since she was 16 years old, Mattie noted that she feels her age is due to living a clean life.

Eating artichokes is a leafy business

Better Homes and Gardens says the art of eating an artichoke is in your fingers. Once it has been steamed, boiled or microwaved, just pull off a leaf, dunk it into butter or sauce and pull the leaf between your teeth. Eat just the tender part of the leaf and discard the rest.

At the center is the choke, a fuzzy thistle-like substance. Don't eat that or the center leaves. Scrape them off and you've reached the heart. The best way to eat the heart is to cut it into bite-size pieces and dip it into butter.

Bridge

The right time to win the ace

By James Jacoby

It's hard to know when to violate the bridge habits of a lifetime. Back in college we would chant at each other, "Aces are meant to take kings" — a good rule to follow in promoting smaller cards to winning status. But correct defensive strategy can call for ignoring this principle on occasion.

Today's auction ended up with South playing five hearts doubled. West led the spade king. Declarer won dummy's ace and immediately played a diamond back to his king. West took the ace and continued spades. Declarer ruffed, cashed the ace of hearts (dropping East's queen), cashed the queen of diamonds and ruffed a low diamond with dummy's nine of hearts. He now played a second heart to force out the king. The only tricks that came to the defenders were the diamond ace and the heart king, and South made his doubled contract.

Needless to say, West can do better. The key to defeating the contract is simply to allow the king of diamonds to hold the trick when that suit is first led. If a second diamond is led, West will take the ace and give his partner a ruff with the heart queen. If declarer plays the ace of hearts before the second round of diamonds, West will win the diamond ace and play king and another heart, preventing a little diamond from being ruffed in dummy.

A new book by James Jacoby and his father, the late Oswald Jacoby, is now available at bookstores. It is "Jacoby on Card Games," published by Pharos Books.

Moving stress studied

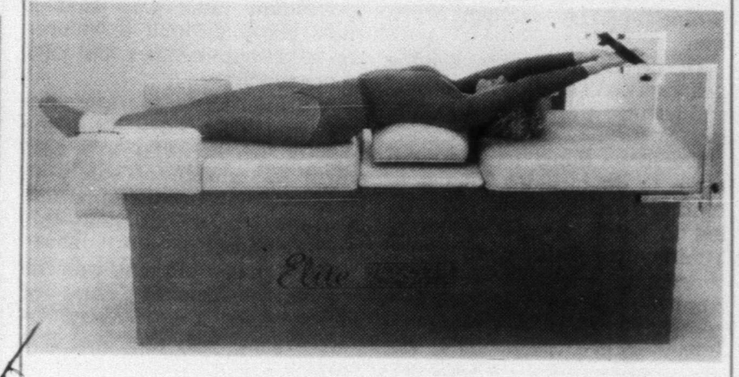

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP) — Women suffer the most stress when families move, a study on stress and coping at Colorado State University, conducted jointly with the University of Wyoming, indicates.

The woman's duties include arranging the move, packing household items, finding a new school for the children and establishing family ties in the new community. Some help might come from the husband, "but the man usually is more preoccupied with his new job," said Alicia Cook, CSU professor of human development and family studies.

Open container law takes effect this week

AUSTIN (AP) — Drinking alcoholic beverages while driving, a practice that one official calls a deadly Texas tradition, becomes illegal Monday under a new state law.

The "open container" law is among about 750 new ones that go into effect Monday or Tuesday. You are expected to know what is in all of the new statutes dictating what you can do, what you can't do, what you have to do differently and what you have to pay more to do.

In addition to the drinking-while-driving ban, the can't-do list — which seems to be longer than the can-do list — includes prohibitions on late-term abortions, improper payments to college athletes, smoking at public schools and keeping a vicious dog.

The vicious dog law includes a canine capital punishment provision.

The can-do list includes driving golf carts on some public streets and putting more alcohol in candy.

The list of things that will cost more to do includes buying or renting a motor vehicle and staying in hotels or motels. As of Tuesday, the state tax on buying or renting a vehicle increases from the current 5 percent to 6 percent.

The state's hotel-motel tax goes up to 6 percent from 4 percent.

This year's major tax change, increasing the sales tax to 6 percent, is effective Oct. 1.

The open container law was among the more keenly debated issues during the past several legislative sessions. Sen. Bill Sarpalius, D-Amarillo, won approval for it this year. The law makes it a Class C misdemeanor to get caught drinking an alcoholic beverage while driving.

"It's a weak bill," said Ross Newby, executive director of the Texas Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse. "By allowing the passenger to drink in the car, it makes it easy for the driver to hand it over."

In fact, a driver can legally carry an alcoholic beverage. The law only makes it illegal to drink it and be "observed doing so by a police officer."

"It's one of the weaker open container laws," Newby said. "But it is an attempt to help educate the public."

He acknowledged there is something traditionally Texan about downing a beer behind the wheel.

"It's a long-standing tradition that has killed a lot of us," Newby said.

Department of Public Safety spokesman Mike Cox said it could prove difficult to enforce the open container law, but DPS troopers will try.

"We appreciate the law's intent, and we believe the same sort of people who are conscientious enough of safety to wear seat belts are the same sort of people who will abide by this law," Cox said.

The abortion bill also was the product of several years of debate. Rep. Mike Millsap, D-Fort Worth, won approval this year for the law that makes it illegal, in most cases, to abort a fetus during the final three months of pregnancy.

The Millsap bill goes into effect Tuesday. It allows abortions at any time if the pregnancy becomes a severe health threat to the mother or if the fetus has a "severe and irreversible abnormality."

Among the miscellaneous and curious bills was one initially written by Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston, and rewritten by Rep. Ron Givens, R-Lubbock. Thanks to the efforts of Wilson and Givens, as of Monday, the alcoholic content of candy can be 5 percent by volume. Under the old law, the maximum was 0.5 percent.

The change was a result of federal action eliminating the 50-year ban on the interstate sale of candy with alcoholic content in excess of 0.5 percent.

Sen. Grant Jones, D-Temple, was the author of the bill that allows golfers to drive their carts on some public roads near the links beginning Monday.

Also effective Monday is the ban on smoking and use of tobacco products on public school campuses, a measure sponsored by Rep. Jim McWilliams, D-Hallsville, who thought it was wrong for schools to have designated smoking areas for students.

Starting Tuesday, universities that wind up in trouble with the National Collegiate Athletic Association can sue boosters or other people who committed the acts that got them in trouble. Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, got that bill passed in the wake of football scandals at Southern Methodist University and other schools.

The vicious dog law, sponsored by Rep. Keith Valigura, R-Conroe, is effective Tuesday and makes it illegal to keep a dog that has attacked a person, unless the owner restrains the dog and carries a $100,000 liability policy on the animal.

The law also allows a judge to order the death of a dog that commits a second attack on a person or kills a person.

Mauro defends his record

AUSTIN (AP) — Published reports suggesting impropriеties in his handling of an $18 million state contract awarded to a mortgage company that later loaned him money are nonsense, Land Commissioner Garry Mauro says.

Mauro and his staff on Thursday presented an hour-long defense of the contract with Dallas-based Lomas and Nettleton to administer a veterans housing loan program.

Lomas and Nettleton, headed by Democratic Party fundraiser Jess Hay, was sole bidder for the contract despite what Mauro said were repeated attempts to attract more bids.

"I think we just showed that we put this out for competitive bids three times. We were trying to find, and we did find, the best possible way to administer the housing program for the veterans of this state," Mauro said.

"Unfortunately, from only my political perspective, there was only a single bid. The bid that Lomas and Nettleton made was absolutely competitive by any definition of the word," Mauro said.

He said that in addition to the formal request for additional bids he personally contacted other financial institutions.

"We have a 30-day cancellation clause in this contract and if any lender wants to come in and underbid Lomas and Nettleton and take over the central administration of this contract, we're ready to talk to them right now, yesterday, tomorrow," Mauro said.

Asked if his personal and business loans from Lomas and Nettleton included any unusually advantageous terms, he said, "Absolutely, unequivocally no."

Mauro said he is paying 10.875 percent interest on a $71,100 Lomas and Nettleton loan for a condominium he bought in Washington, where his wife works. According to documents released by his office, the interest rate was slightly higher than the Washington and Texas averages at the time.

The business loan involved the purchase of a 38-acre tract near St. Petersburg, Fla., on which a joint venture that included Mauro and his cousin Don Mauro planned to build an apartment complex. Don Mauro said the interest rate on that loan is 16.25 percent, which he said was above the average.

Garry Mauro owns 10 percent of that joint venture and called himself a "passive investor" who did not know of Lomas and Nettleton's involvement.

The land commissioner said the published news reports linking his personal business with the veterans housing program were nonsense. He pointed out that the Lomas and Nettleton contract also was approved by Jack Rains, who, at the time, was the only other member of the Veterans Land Board.

Rains later was named secretary of state by Republican Gov. Bill Clements, for whom Rains served as a top campaign official in 1986.

"He's a pretty prominent Republican," Mauro, a Democrat, said of Rains.

"We all know that Jess Hay raised over a million dollars for (Democratic) Gov. (Mark) White," Mauro said. "We all know that Jess Hay raised over a million dollars to beat Bill Clements. Now, doesn't common sense tell folks that Jack Rains would have made absolutely certain that we didn't do any favors for Jess Hay?"

Tighter pesticide regulation sought by several groups

AUSTIN (AP) — A coalition of environmental and consumer groups wants the state Structural Pest Control Board to tighten regulations to end what the groups call an epidemic of safety violations in Texas during the past year.

"Pesticide use in the home can potentially cause serious long- and short-term health problems. This potential becomes signficantly greater when the chemical is misapplied," said Carol Barger of the Consumers Union.

Leslie Kochan of the Texas Center for Policy Studies said the groups have petitioned the board because of a "lack of initiative ... in taking actions to make the industry accountable and to protect the public's health."

"It is in response to the constant calls for assistance we receive from individuals who have been forced to leave homes and have suffered severe short- and long-term health effects following exposure to pesticides," Ms. Kochan said Thursday.

She said there is growing concern across the state over increasing exposure to chemicals used to eliminate indoor pests.

"This is a type of problem that's very hard to deal with because it's invisible," added George Stone of the Texas Tenants' Union, one of five groups that are co-petitioners.

David Ivie, executive director of the Structural Pest Control Board, said the groups submitted their request to the board several weeks ago and that some of the proposals are being studied.

"Some of the things are under consideration at the present time," Ivie said. "Under the Texas Administrative Procedures Act, the board has a certain amount of time to respond. We have set a time to do that, which will be at our next board meeting, which will be in the latter part of September or the first part of October."

The petition seeks a number of changes, including:

— Establishing a regular recertification program for pesticide applicators requiring retraining and retesting at least once every three years.

— Limiting use of restricted pesticides, such as chlordane, to only the most highly qualified applicators.

— Developing guidelines for enforcing penalties to make certain that serious violations of pesticide laws received stringent penalties.

— Creating an expanded public information program for people who may be exposed to pesticides following misuse.

"In case after case examined by the center, inspectors for the board and board representatives have failed to provide the public with critical information following pesticide misapplications," Ms. Kochan said.

"In some cases, inspectors and representatives for the board have provided information which has further endangered persons living or working in contaminated structures," she said.

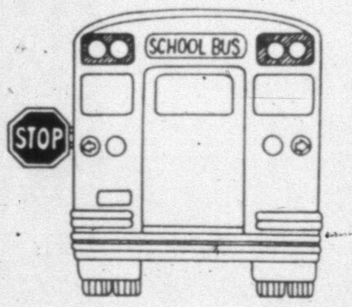

Attending a news conference at which the petition was announced was Kelly Pertl of Houston, whose home was condemned after being improperly treated with chlordane.

"We suffered miserable short-term health effects ... ranging from ongoing flu-like symptoms such as headaches, nausea, vomiting, irritability, fatigue, increased respiratory distress, to extreme weight loss — 40 pounds — numbness in arms and legs and tumors," Ms. Pertl said.

"Had these proposals been enacted several years ago, many individuals would have been spared the agony of enduring the losses associated with pesticide misuse. We feel the loss of health, homes and personal belongings could be greatly reduced if the Structural Pest Control Board would accept and implement the recommendations and changes contained within the center's petition," she said.

Fuller Brush to open stores

DALLAS (AP) — When the Fuller Brush man comes knocking, it's less and less likely that a housewife is at home.

So the company that built its reputation door to door will open its first two stores in the Dallas area this fall.

"We found that a high percentage of folks would buy Fuller Brush products if they could get them," corporate spokeswoman Nancy Young said in a telephone interview from Fuller Brush headquarters in Winston-Salem, N.C. "But the problem was giving them the opportunity."

The company, a division of Sara Lee Corp., undertook market research in 1985 to develop new sales strategies.

That led the company to test a catalog, and its success led to a regional mailing into 16 Southeastern states in 1986, Ms. Young said. Fuller Brush plans to mail 1.5 million catalogs four times a year nationwide, she said.

In September, the company plans to open a 2,600-square-foot store in a shopping mall in suburban Mesquite, followed by one in a northwest Dallas shopping center in October.

"The important thing to remember is that it's a test," Ms. Young said. "We'll look at what product mix works and how receptive the market is."

The growing number of working women is reflected in the declining number of Fuller Brush men. Women now make up four-fifths of the company's door-to-door sales force, Ms. Young said.

The company was founded in 1906 by Alfred C. Fuller in his sister's basement in Boston. He offered free replacements for brushes that wore out.

That guarantee still stands, Ms. Young said, and the Fuller Brush direct sales force will continue as the chief distribution network.

"Direct selling is the backbone of the company," she said "Whatever we have has to mesh with the rest of the company."

Bobbie Foster of Mesquite, who has sold Fuller products for 18 months, believes the new store will generate business for sales representatives.

"It will put the Fuller Brush name out before a lot of people," Ms. Foster said. "They haven't known we're still around."

She said a division manager will distribute store customers' cards to sales representatives who can follow up with at-home orders.

The company makes its brushes in Great Bend, Kan., along with more than 2,000 other items.

Woman brings Thanksgiving to needy

Using generous helpings of faith and the modest earnings from her part-time job as a maid, the 61-year-old grandmother serves hot lunch every Saturday for many of the city's poor.

"I don't take anything down there that I wouldn't eat myself," she said as she mixed a vat of cornbread at her small, crowded Oak Cliff home, where Bibles cover the coffee table and caldron-sized cookware fills the dining room.

On a recent Saturday, she served blackeyed peas, beef and macaroni, cornbread muffins, strudel, coffee, tea and milk to about 45 people, a smaller-than-usual crowd. She said she once served 130.

Mrs. Sanders' guests waited in the parking lot at Cadiz and Harwood streets near homeless shelters downtown. They called her "the lady in the gray car."

Mrs. Sanders, a tall, large woman whose dark hair and unlined face belie her years, flashed her trademark smile. "When they see me coming they start clapping," she said.

In the noon sun, the meal was quick and organized. Mrs. Sanders and a helper, Annie Jones, spread the hood with a vinyl tablecloth, then set out the main courses, coolers filled with drinks and paper utensils and plates.

Bustling from one side of the car to the other, Mrs. Sanders refilled paper cups and chatted with her regulars.

Some put in requests for potato pie or bread pudding. Few thanked her.

"If they didn't say anything, really, I'd be here. That's not what I'm looking for. But it feels good to be recognized," she said.

Last month, she received a Dallas Congressional Citizenship Award from U.S. Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas.

Mrs. Sanders said she would gladly trade recognition for helpers and practical goods, such as a folding table, large pots and mixing bowls and refrigerator space.

Some have already pitched in.

A discount grocery store donates dry goods, and a neighbor givers her fresh garden vegetables. Church members sometimes help serve.

To stretch the meals as far as possible, Mrs. Sanders makes sure everyone has had a plateful before she serves seconds.

Still, she has run out of food before her patrons ran out of appetite.

"Yes, they get angry," she said. "But I never worry (about safety). I believe that good comes out of the Lord's work. And if something bad did happen to me, I'm sure something good would come from it."

So far, the worst thing about serving is washing dishes afterward, she said.

She has not missed a week since she started the parking-lot meals eight months ago after a Thanksgiving feast.

"There was so much food. Everybody has so much food," she said about that repast. "It was just a waste to me."

She thought about the homeless she often saw downtown, and she remembered when she was sometimes hungry as a girl growing up in Forney, Texas. But there were obstacles.

"I didn't have any money. It takes everything from the work I do to keep things going here," she said. "I decided I could go without a few meals a week to buy food for them."

She stopped working on Fridays so she could have enough time to shop and prepare for Saturday's cooking, which she starts as early as 4:30 a.m.

Her sacrifices are small ones, she said.

"I believe giving to each other is why we're here. We can give what we got, even if it's not very much."

Parental notification held unconstitutional

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — A federal appeals court's decision striking down Minnesota's law requiring minors seeking an abortion to notify both parents will not end the controversy, a supporter of the ruling says.

"The anti-abortion forces have never been known to let unconstitutional legislation stand in their way," Thomas Webber, executive director of Planned Parenthood of Minnesota, said Thursday.

"(They) will press the attorney general to appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court where we would expect to prevail again," he said.

Planned Parenthood of Minnesota and the American Civil Liberties Union filed the challenge of the 1981 law that led to Thursday's ruling by a three-judge panel of the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

"We conclude that because it frequently does more harm than good, on balance the present statute fails to further the state's asserted interest and is therefore unconstitutional," the panel ruled.

Minnesota Chief Deputy Attorney General Jack Tunheim said the state would decide in about a week whether to appeal.

The law required those providing abortions for minors to give notice of the pending abortion, when possible, to both of the minor's parents at least 48 hours before the abortion was to occur.

Before the Minnesota law went into effect it was modified by a court challenge to allow minors to have abortions without notifying parents by obtaining permission from a judge.

At least 3,500 girls did so between 1981 and November 1986, when U.S. District Judge Donald Alsop struck down the law, according to court testimony.

The 8th Circuit cited Alsop's findings that about 50 percent of all marriages in Minnesota end in divorce and about 42 percent of all minors in the state do not live with both biological parents.

Alsop also found that many minors in Minnesota who are from broken families "live in fear of violence by family members," the 8th Circuit said.

Little improvement seen in schools

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — A majority of Americans want the nation's public schools to get back to the basics — reading, writing and arithmetic, according to a Gallup poll.

The poll, released Thursday by the national education fraternity Phi Delta Kappa, showed 75 percent of those questioned believe schools should require more basic English, history, science, math and computer training courses.

The 19th annual Phi Delta Kappa-Gallup Poll showed that only 25 percent of the public believes schools have improved, while 22 percent believe schools have deteriorated and 36 percent think there has been no change.

At the same time, however, the poll asked respondents to grade their local public schools, and 43 percent giving their community a grade of A or B, up 2 percent from a year ago; 73 percent giving a grade of C or better, up 4 percent from the 1986 poll.

Public schools nationally were given an A or B grade by 26 percent.

The poll, which contained a margin of error of plus or minus 5 percent, surveyed 1,571 adults across the country, asking them to consider educational changes since 1983.

The best fella we ever knew was a lousy husband and, at best, a medium father.

When we say "best fella," we mean he was the most fun. A guy always willing to be "doing something" whether it be piddling around and shooting the breeze or the wretched debauch of irregular hours and waking up late on Sunday morning to wonder why it had been done and how long it would take to recover to do it again.

He was a "hale fellow well met" and everybody, and we mean everybody, liked him. If you wanted laughs, just show up at his house any time prior to midnight.

All of which, of course, drove his wife nuts and saw his kiddoes to a large degree ignored. Evenings reserved for family fare were usually taken up with poker.

On the flip side, the best father we ever knew was a little bland. His interests didn't seem to rise much above the functions of childhood and family life, that is he was mainly interested in stuff kids were interested in or mowing the grass. For adult conversation, sad to say, he was a bit of a wash.

The best businessman we ever knew was likewise a little short in the husband-father category. His approach to his work was something like a bullet rifling down a long barrel, following his single minded charge so fast that there wasn't much time for the amenity of rose smelling.

The best journalist we ever knew had the power of objectivity to the point of being chilly. We could never figure out if he truly saw both sides of an issue equally or simply couldn't gather up enough steam to give a hoot either way--a kind of icy calm that made his personality otherwise border on the spooky.

All of these folks we have envied a bunch at various times.

Truly exceptional people really are a kind of bug--extreme in one sense to the fault of some other.

No one recognizes this faster than normal folks. And, because of this, we've been trained to believe there is something basically good about being average and something suspect about standing out.

We'll support average people from here to next Sunday. We do this because we are average, descended from average folk, and because it is a very popular position to take.

But let's consider also "the best."

We remember all our lives these brilliant sore thumbs. Those weird, wired cats who, following a joke of a few years back, not only move to the beat of a different drummer, they move in cadence to a whole different orchestra.

Positive thinkers like to say they've never met an average person. Their reasoning is we all have a special quality which makes us shine in some way above the rest.

We listen to this stuff, nod our head and suspect a second theory. They've met thousands of average people, they just temporarily forgot what they looked like.

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

It's not that my poor, dear mother hasn't tried. Lord knows she's been trying ever since I was a girl and hasn't given up yet. See, she got this crazy idea that when I finished college, married, joined the professional world, had two kids, and got involved in the community that I was now a grown-up, and as such, should dress like one. (Silly mothers.)

Which reminds me of a standing joke I once had with a good friend who was a fellow teacher back in West Palm Beach, Florida. He had this crazy, offbeat sense of humor and I was always saying to him, "You're so funny." And he'd say, "No, it's just the way my mother dresses me."

When I told a friend of mine that I was going to write this column, she said, "Were you part of the Unwashed Protestors when you were young who went around barefoot all the time?" And I said, "Are you kidding? My mother dressed me when I was young. I looked like a PTA president with waist-long hair and bangs."

I can remember shopping with my mother. She'd hold up a plaid jumper with a Peter Pan collar or something and say, "Isn't this cute? You'd look like a doll in it." And I'd fling my hand over my mouth as if to prevent myself from puking. (Which wasn't far from wrong.) Between her and a father so strict he'd put a Marine Corps drill sergeant to shame, you can be sure that no love beads, plastic mini-skirts or peace symbols ever found their way near my body.

Believe it or not, it took living in West Texas to bring out the Real Me. It didn't take me long to realize that this was a land of rugged individualists who had to be tough just to survive. I liked 'em. They were my kinda people.

That and the feminist movement. On the surface, you wouldn't see much in common between feminism and West Texas, but all feminism means is the freedom for each one of us to be all that we can be, all that we want to be, without regard to race, creed or sex. All I wanted to do, at first anyway, was burn every dress and skirt I owned.

You don't just wear a skirt. You wear a whole bunch of paraphernalia that goes along with it, like slips and panty hose and stupid little spikey heels that no man would waste a moment on and that are miserably uncomfortable and totally unpractical. Then you have to watch how you sit and be careful of crushing the skirt and be mindful of things like windy days. I ask you, who really needs it? Not me, anyway.

I do own one skirt, a black one that I reserve for funerals. Otherwise I'm free and comfortable in jeans or slacks and my good ole running shoes...and hats, when I'm in the mood or want something to keep my hair out of my face. I'm with Linda Ellerbe, the television news personality who wrote in her book, "And So It Goes," that when she first started covering the United States Senate, there were no female TV journalists there. A strict dress code existed for male journalists, who were to wear dark suits, white shirts, and conservative ties, but there was no such dress code for women, so she did all her interviews in jeans and sweaters.

When Mother, bless her, learned that I was traveling around giving speeches in front of rooms full of grown-up people, she bought me a beautiful, if standard, gray wool suit, complete with boxy skirt, what a proper grown-up lady would wear to such an occasion. I promptly tossed the skirt, drew on slacks and turtleneck and sneakers, shoved the jacket sleeves up to my elbows, turned up the collar, cocked a hat over one eye and said, "Gee Mom, thanks! I love it." To her credit, she kept a straight face.

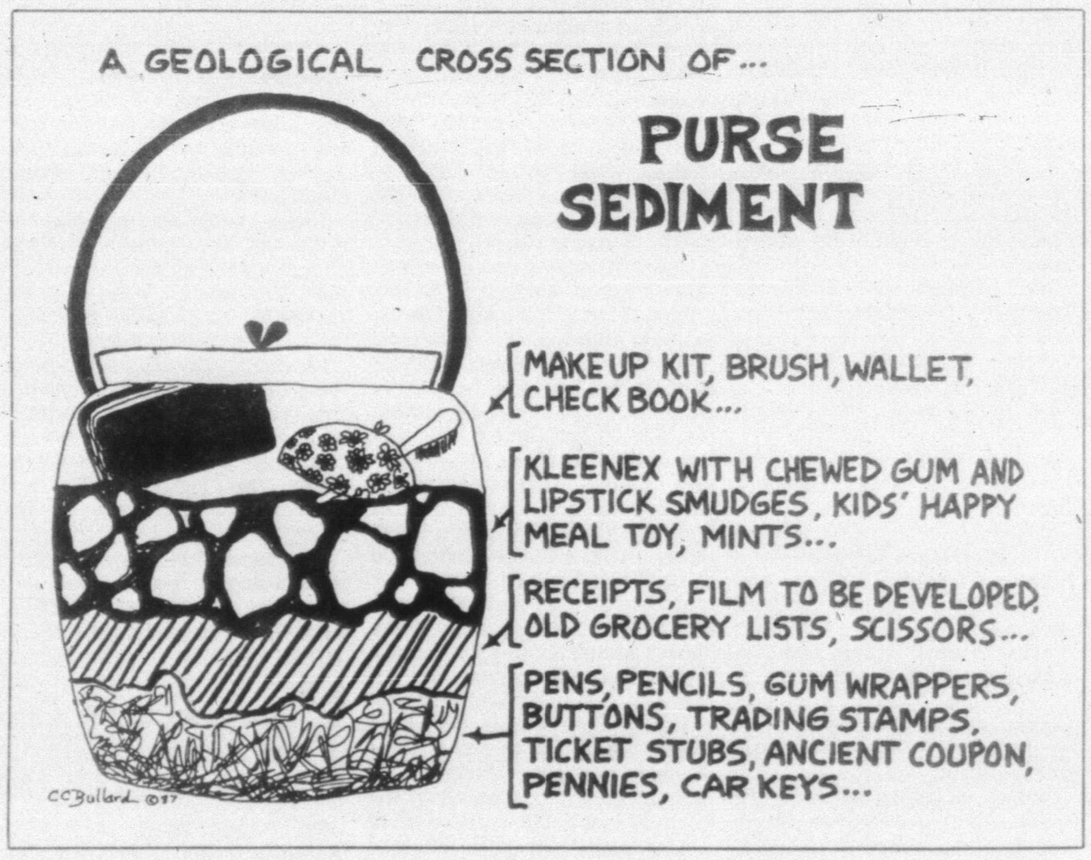

Then she learned that I was teaching at various writer's conferences around West Texas and Dallas. She made one last heroic stab at civilizing her daughter. She came out here around my birthday and took me shopping at all the finer Snyder dress shops. "Just TRY a skirt and blouse," she pleaded plaintively. "You'll see how nice it can be."

I tried. I really did. So did at least one magnificently patient store proprietor on the square. At one point they had me decked out in a sunflower yellow silk blouse, royal blue gathered skirt, and wide cinched belt of yellow, blue and red. "You look beautiful!" they exclaimed. "It takes at least 20 pounds off of you," said the saleslady craftily. "I'll get you accessories and jewelry and shoes to match," bubbled my exultant mother. (Were those tears in her eyes?)

I turned back. I turned forth. I gawked into the mirror. "Mother," I said finally, "I feel like I'm dressed up in your clothes." (Yes. Definitely tears.)

She left me with a $100 bill. "Buy what you want," she said dejectedly as she drove off. I'll be teaching in Dallas in September. I can't wait to tell Mother how much I'll enjoy wearing my new jeans and matching denim blazer, complete with "Santa Fe" tee shirt, sneakers and turquoise earrings.

On second thought, maybe I'd better wait until after the conference to break the news, what'd'ya think?

SDN Letters

To the editor,

I recently visited Snyder on my way back to Texas Tech and found everyone very friendly and cordial. This visit was not a scheduled visit.

My car broke down 15 miles north of Snyder. The folks who helped me in my distress deserve a feather in their cap. I feel sure to say that the help extended to me is not rare, and these people would do the same for any of their customers or would-be customers.

The people at Dupree Motors and Howard Gray Motors were very helpful in seeing that I made it safely to Lubbock and fixing my car in record time.

Linda and Howard Shifflett of Howard's Auto Repair and Paint Shop bent over backwards to make sure that I was treated fairly and had a nice place to stay — the Purple Sage Motel.

To all of these people I give my sincerest thanks. May God bless you all.

This Celebration of Life Is Favored Poem for Eulogy

DEAR ABBY: I have tried without success to track down the author of this lovely poem. Can you help me?

I am not there. I do not sleep.
I am a thousand winds that blow;
I am the diamond glints on snow.
I am the sunlight on ripened grain;
I am the gentle autumn's rain.
When you awaken in the morning's hush,
I am the swift uplifting rush
Of quiet birds in circled flight.
I am the soft star that shines at night.
Do not stand at my grave and cry.
I am not there; I did not die.

GOING CRAZY IN RENO

DEAR GOING: The identity of the author is unknown, but in the NBC-TV world premiere movie "Better Late Than Never," presented Oct. 17, 1978, Harold Gould portrayed an elderly man who delivered a graveside eulogy for an old friend. This poem was the eulogy.

John Carpenter, who wrote the television script, reports that he had heard this poem in December of 1977, when the late John Wayne delivered it as the eulogy at the funeral of film director Howard Hawks.

DEAR ABBY: My very dear friend, "Clara," is driving my husband and our two sons (ages 12 and 14) up a wall. Clara has a habit of constantly scratching her head. She does this while preparing food, and at the table while eating. My husband and our boys hate to eat at the same table with her. When I'm preparing food in my kitchen, Clara offers to help, and I always say, "No thanks," but she persists. Last evening when she was here for dinner, she scratched her head, then picked up a slice of bread from the dish and passed it to my son. He left the table!

How can I politely convince Clara to please quit scratching her head while eating at my table and also hers when we are at her home for dinner?

Any advice would be appreciated. Thank you.

SCRATCHER'S FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: Be a very good friend and tell Clara (privately, of course) that she needs to see a dermatologist who will get to the root of her problem and cure her itchy scalp.

DEAR ABBY: I chuckled when I read the letter from "Greta's Guy in Gardena." Tell him not to worry about Greta's height. It's attitude — not altitude — that makes a marriage.

I'm several inches taller than my wonderful husband and several years older, too. We've been married for 20 years and raised three beautiful children.

We've been through good times and bad times, but height or age was never an issue because our love is based on love for God and each other. And by the way, I wore heels at our wedding.

DEAR ABBY: Two of my relatives moved in with me and my family while they looked for a place of their own. Well, it's been a year and they're still here. This has caused a tremendous burden on us. They are in no hurry to find a place. They're not even looking.

My wife, our children and I have been terribly frustrated living like this. Our two sons had to give up their bedroom.

How can people be so inconsiderate of others? What should I do? I hate to hurt their feelings.

CROWDED IN CORONA

DEAR CROWDED: What feelings? These relatives have the hides of rhinoceroses, and unless you give them a time limit, they will be with you indefinitely. A solution to hasten their departure: Help them to find a place of their own.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to urge all husbands to not keep putting off the nice things they want to do for their wives. For if they do, when they finally get around to it, it might be too late.

I know. That's what I did. My wife passed away nearly a year ago — just 23 days before our 49th wedding anniversary. Since then, I have been putting a bouquet of fresh flowers on her grave regularly. It makes me feel guilty that I never gave her a bouquet while she was alive and could enjoy it.

Now that I think of it, there are a lot of things I should have said and done, but I never got around to it. And now it's too late, and I am filled with regret.

GLENN KIRBY,
LAKEWOOD, CALIF.

DEAR GLENN: Your letter moved me deeply, and it might inspire others to give "bouquets" to the living while they can appreciate them. When I telephoned you personally to ask if I could use your name, you said, "Yes, if it will help someone for whom it is not too late."

Thank you for your generosity. God bless you.

DEAR ABBY: There is a new fellow at work who seemed to like me a lot. My co-workers said he was interested in dating me, but I have a policy against dating people from work.

Later I contrived to introduce him to a friend who works with me. Thanks to my matchmaking scheme, those two really hit it off.

Now I am kicking myself for not realizing how attractive and nice he is. I now regret introducing him to my friend. I should have dated him myself when I had the chance even though we work for the same company. Is it too late now? What can I do?

MISERABLE MATCHMAKER

DEAR MISERABLE: If they "really hit it off," it's probably too late, so don't do anything. (And quit kicking yourself before you dislocate your hip.)

DEAR ABBY: I have been legally separated from my wife for seven years. I recently met a lady whom I figured to be about 40 or 45 years old — and she turned out to be 55! (I am 40.)

We started dating, became good friends, hiking, biking, then dinner and dancing, and finally lovers! When I told her I was married, she became upset and refuses to see me until I am divorced.

I know she loves me, and after not seeing her for a month, I feel like half of me is missing. What should I do?

RUDY

DEAR RUDY: You know the lady's terms. I can't tell you whether you should get divorced in order to marry your perennially youthful lover, but if you feel like half of you is missing, use the half with the brains in it and make a decision you can live with.

DEAR ABBY: Your "Monkey's Disgrace" lifted my laughter high on a low-mood day. It's truly a delightful ode to the disappointment of our furry forefathers.

During World War II I heard this one: "A jungle gentleman is a monkey that will not monkey with another monkey's monkey."

Pet snake 'acts' in play production

NACOGDOCHES, Texas (AP) — Many people who dote on their pets would like to see them featured on stage or in commercials.

Linda and Brent Lindsay of Nacogdoches have a star on their hands, as the family pet, Tillie, a 5-year-old South American boa constrictor, makes her debut Friday night in the Lamp-Lite Theatre summer production of the off-Broadway play, "Talking With."

Appearing with Tillie is Mrs. Lindsay's friend, Mary K. Pollard, and Mrs. Lindsay says she's glad her pet will be with someone she knows, so she won't be as nervous.

The Lamp-Lite cast and crew wouldn't want Tillie to be nervous or tempted to leave the stage in the middle of her big, five-minute scene. Neither would the audience.

Ms. Pollard plays the role of a Kentucky woman who is a member of the snake handler branch of the Holiness Church.

Throughout most of the five-minute scene, Tillie will be in a box at Ms. Pollard's feet. "The audience won't know if there's really a snake in the box until the last few seconds of the scene, when Mary K. holds it up," explained Sarah Zillmer, Lamp-Lite director.

Mrs. Zillmer says she's lucky she didn't have to audition snakes for the role.

Tillie has been a member of the Lindsay family and menagerie since she was a baby. She stays in an aquarium inside the house away from the weather, Mrs. Lindsay explained.

"She didn't gain much weight for a few years, but in the past several months, she's really filled out," Mrs. Lindsay said. Now that's she's growing so quickly, Tillie sheds her skin every time she's fed, about one in two months.

Tillie only has to eat about once a month and she dines on mice or rats. Like anyone else, after a big meal, she's very lethargic and easier to handle.

Mrs. Lindsay says Tillie will be well-fed before her stage debut.

"She can go without food for long periods of time," Mrs. Lindsay said. "Once, she was missing inside the house for about four months. We had no idea where she was hiding or if she was getting any food or water. My husband was very upset about her being loose in the house. He doesn't like snakes!"

While Tillie may be a fearsome sight, she can't do any harm to people or animals larger than mice or rats. The Lindsays' 15-year-old daughter, Anjela, helps care for the snake.

Robot dinosaurs invading Texas city

DALLAS (AP) — Giant reptiles arch their long necks and roar among the rocks and leafy ferns in an exhibit of robot dinosaurs that startles museum-goers with an eerie look at pre-history.

One of the nine lifelike dinosaurs was even seen stalking through a representation of the Dallas skyline at The Science Place I at Fair Park. Museum officials predict the exhibit, "Robot Dinosaurs Invade Dallas," will draw hundreds of thousands of tourists through next spring.

"This is the hottest exhibit going in the science museum circuit today," Richard F. Coyne, president of The Science Place, said Thursday.

The robots, created by a California company which has manufactured them for other museum exhibits across the country, have foam-rubber skins and sinews of aluminum and steel.

The creatures bellow, blink their eyes and stomp their feet as individual computers control air pressure to pneumatic pumps. Paleontologists and others studied fossil bones, also in the exhibit, for the robots' construction.

In one exhibit, a replica of a carnivorous Tyrannosaurus rex gnashes its teeth and roars as a volcanic cone spews steam in the background. Almost 400 people previewed the $1 million exhibit Wednesday night.

"A great deal of the exhibit was designed with the help of a committee of leading paleontologists," Coyne said. "The noises made by the robots were amplified and derived from sounds made by the lizards and reptiles of today."

He said Dinamation International Corp. of California was completing a 10th robot dinosaur which will become a part of the exhibit in September. The dinosaurs are not to scale of the adult creatures but approximate the size of juvenile reptiles.

"It is really something to see them roaring and screaming and to see the expressions on children's faces," said Coyne. "Most of them are not afraid. They've just never seen anything so big."

Children stood in awe as one creature larger than their parents cocked its head and uttered a long, mournful wail out of a swampy scene from hundreds of thousands of years ago.

But not all reacted to the crested Parasaurolophus like Matthew York, 6.

But his brother, Christopher, 3½, was wide-eyed with fear.

"I'm really scared," he said. "They're moving around. One just made a noise."

Their mother, Margie York, was undismayed and promised her children they would return when the full exhibit opens to the public on Saturday. The show will be open through April.

"I can't wait myself until the dinosaurs come to Dallas," she said.

Official pleads 'not guilty'

SAN AUGUSTINE, Texas (AP) — County Tax Assessor-Collector Mary Lou Alford has pleaded innocent to charges of official misconduct in the alleged theft of money from the tax office after telling officials she would not resign her post.

Alford pleaded innocent Thursday to four indictments, including two for official misconduct, tampering with government documents and misapplication of fiduciary property.

The indictments were returned by a grand jury about a week ago.

In a separate action, the visiting judge postponed a hearing in the state's petition to remove Alford from office.

County Attorney Wesley Hoyt told county commissioners that Alford had changed her mind about resigning.

Walker will also preside at a jury trial on the criminal charges and in a civil case filed by Hoyt.

The lawsuit, filed by Hoyt on behalf of the state, asks that Alford be removed from office immediately based on evidence uncovered during a two-month investigation.

Walker agreed to delay the hearing after lawyers for Alford filed a motion to have the case dismissed.

Treatment of cystic fibrosis

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am 14 and have cystic fibrosis. I would like to know what my life expectancy is in this day and age. Are the scientists close to discovering the cure for this disease?

DEAR READER — Cystic fibrosis, an inherited disorder that causes particularly thick secretions from mucus glands, has been termed the most lethal genetic disease of white Americans. In older children and adults, cystic fibrosis causes plugging of the bronchial passageways, resulting in chronic lung infections, emphysema and respiratory insufficiency. The condition also causes intestinal disturbances because of pancreatic disease and deficient digestion.

In previous years, more than 50 percent of cystic fibrosis patients died of pulmonary complications before age 20. Today, thanks in part to the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation and the National Institutes of Health, special hospital units are available and more patients are living longer.

There has been little recent change in the medical treatment of the disease. Therapy still includes special exercises to aid breathing and expel mucus, bronchodilator medicines to widen air passages, antibiotics to combat infection, additional oxygen to reduce breathlessness, and cortisone drugs to block swelling and irritation of lung tissue. You can obtain more information from the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation, 6000 Executive Blvd., Rockville, MD 20852.

Most experts agree that cystic fibrosis patients can obtain most effective care in a specialized setting where the staff is experienced in managing problems associated with the disease.

To my knowledge, no imminent breakthrough in cystic fibrosis treatment is likely. Many children your age have nothing more pressing to worry about than what to wear to school. I admire your courage in addressing your health problem in such an adult manner.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I often use frozen dinners. The one I had last night listed 1,165 milligrams of sodium for the 10-ounce dinner. Is this a reasonable amount?

DEAR READER — Frozen dinners, like all prepared foods, contain a lot of salt, which is added during processing. Although some nutritional experts believe that Americans eat too much salt, for the average person (of any age), this does not present a problem because the kidneys can select the amount of dietary salt that is needed and will excrete the rest.

However, patients with hypertension may have to monitor their salt intake. Sodium chloride tends to make high blood pressure rise higher, so these patients often must restrict dietary salt. For most hypertensive patients, frozen dinners must be added to the list of prohibited substances, which includes cured meats, salted nuts and pretzels, junk food, dill pickles and similar foods.

Doctors need a rude awakening

Doctors are rude.

Don't expect them to admit this, even when they're pressed to confess at social engagements. This rudeness is a fact, and the public is aware of it. Physicians don't talk much about it — in fact, hardly at all. It's an unspoken thing that simply sits there causing discomfort, like that last piece of cold pizza you shouldn't have eaten.

The best place to see raw and uncontrolled doctor-rudeness is at a medical lecture. Here is a world-renowned expert, brought in at some expense and substantial inconvenience, trying to deliver a lecture to a hospital staff on a pertinent topic of general interest. Of the 40 staff M.D.s who would benefit from the expert's views, eight show up. Another five or so filter in midway through the lecture. While the specialist courageously attempts to make himself heard above the hubbub, physicians come and go, answer telephone pages, scrape their chairs, carry on audible conversations in the back of the room, tell jokes to each other, laugh, offer loud comments and try to be as disruptive as possible.

Since most of you do not regularly attend medical lectures, you'll have to take my word for what goes on. Doctors know, all right — but they will deny that such abominable behavior takes place, at least at their hospital.

However, you may have experienced some of this in your own dealings with M.D.s — when, for example, they act as though you're not there. Dr. Thomas Preston, professor of medicine at the University of Washington, cardiologist and author, wrote about this rudeness in Medical World News. The article was titled: "Patient-Centered Ethic Sounds Good, But Doctor-Centered Ethic Prevails."

He described the experiences of one of his hospitalized patients who was awakened at 2:30 a.m. by the intern and resident because the doctors insisted on performing a complete history and physical examination. When Preston criticized them, they responded that this is what they were "supposed" to do; they were expected not to leave the "workup" until the next day.

Preston commented: "Perhaps I was naive to think that such inconsiderateness no longer mars our enlightened age. But I was saddened to hear of the incident, and I felt a sense of personal failure that it could still take place in my hospital, to my patient. The experience really bothered me — not just because it had disturbed my patient, but because it suggested something disheartening about the way we are training our medical students and residents.... Those fine young doctors demonstrated their homage to professional standards, not to patients. Just a few years ago — when they were beginning medical students — they would have been appalled by an act so discourteous and unhelpful from the patient's perspective. But as they've advanced through the medical subculture, they've shifted their fidelity from patient to doctor."

Medical ethicists are beginning to wonder out loud where we are going wrong. Doctors seem so insensitive today. We are preoccupied with paperwork and record keeping, malpractice and our own comforts. We sometimes conveniently forget that the disease we are treating has a person attached to it. We swear allegiance to science instead of to the patients we serve.

True, the practice of medicine has become more complex; there are frustrations and disappointments and endless facts to keep straight. Nonetheless, we could keep it simple. This means that patient self-determination is a valid goal. The ethic of the doctor as a patient advocate has got to trickle down to doctors-in-training. As Preston concludes: "Most doctors... later unlearn practices that are detrimental to patients. But the codified doctor-centered ethic still sets the tone for behavior throughout a physician's career."

Of course, the issue is rudeness. Many doctors have learned to be rude to each other and to their patients. It's part of the mystique, the Superior Human Being syndrome. Healers who are rude need a lot of continuing medical education, both from their colleagues and from their patients. You do not have to put up with a doctor who is insensitive and callous — rude, in a word — no matter how technically skillful he or she is. You can change doctors, ask for a second opinion or take the direct approach by saying: "Don't be rude to me."

Such a revolutionary tactic might be a start toward humanizing some physicians by shrinking their egos. And it certainly wouldn't hurt to teach doctors the manners they appear to have forgotten somewhere along the way.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott in care of this newspaper at P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Due to volume of mail, individual questions cannot be answered. Questions of general interest will be answered in future columns.

Creditors meet with stockholders

RYE BROOK, N.Y. (AP) — Texaco's three-year court battle against Pennzoil has cost Texaco up to $55 million, a lawyer told creditors and shareholders.

Harvey Miller, the lead attorney in Texaco's bankruptcy proceedings, said Thursday that the figure was within ballpark range. He said he preferred to estimate costs in terms of $1.5 million to $2 million monthly, depending upon court activity.

His comments came during a meeting for shareholders and creditors, the first for the shareholders since they created a committee last month to protect their interests.

Sir Walter Raleigh, the English courtier, military adventurer and poet, was executed in London in 1618.

Pilots consider how to keep 'razor's edge' in the cockpit

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Some of the chief pilots from the nation's airlines at an FAA conference on how to maintain "that razor's edge" in the cockpit threw at least part of the blame for safety lapses back on the agency itself.

The session Thursday was called after a string of flight crew mistakes and amid growing evidence that pilot error caused the Northwest jet crash Aug. 16 in Detroit that killed 156 people in the nation's second-worst air disaster.

FAA Administrator Allan McArtor told the 250 pilots at the meeting that they and the airline industry must recapture the public's confidence with better training and insistence on professionalism.

"We've got to rededicate ourselves to professionalism in this industry," McArtor said, warning that if the industry doesn't find solutions "our non-aviation professionals will."

He later told reporters he was referring to concern that Congress may impose safety-related requirements on the industry.

The pilots union said there was widespread agreement between the industry and the FAA in 1984 for a $9.4 million, three-year program aimed at looking for ways to solve human problems in the cockpit.

Duffy said the FAA has spent less than $1 million on the program and never allowed it to get off the ground.

McArtor, a former fighter pilot who took over the FAA less than a month ago, told reporters he was unaware of the program and promised to look into it.

At the session Thursday, McArtor said the problem facing commercial pilots is nearly as old as aviation itself: "How do you maintain that razor's edge?"

The pilots had no quick answers, but agreed more attention, training and discipline are needed in the cockpit.

McArtor called the meeting a success because it renewed focus on human performance in the cockpit. He promised to meet with the pilots again in private.

During the session, chief pilots from more than a dozen airlines took turns commenting briefly on the need for innovative pilot training programs, but one after the other also stressed their employer's commitment to air safety.

Many participants clearly were uneasy by the public nature of the meeting at a downtown hotel. Reporters and TV cameras were not permitted in the room, but a closed-circuit TV hook-up fed the proceedings to an adjacent room.

He suggested another meeting in "a roll-up-your-sleeves atmosphere" without TV cameras.

Harry Alger, Delta Air Lines' chief pilot, said the carrier is committed to repairing damage to its reputation done earlier this summer by a series of cockpit mistakes.

Re-election is out for Proxmire

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire's decision to retire raised GOP hopes and saddened Democratic admirers of the five-term legislator who handed out Golden Fleece Awards for wasteful spending and once was re-elected on $178.

The 71-year-old senator, a longtime physical fitness enthusiast, said Thursday he will not seek re-election in 1988 because "I'd be almost 80 years old when I retired in 1994. ... That's too old."

The announcement, which startled many politicians, came 30 years to the day after Proxmire was first elected to the U.S. Senate to fill the seat left vacant by the death of Republican Joseph R. McCarthy.

Suellen Albrecht, state Democratic chairman, said she was "disappointed, surprised and shocked" by the news. "Sen. Proxmire is a legend," she said. "He will always be remembered as the taxpayer's friend."

"He's a class act," said Republican Gov. Tommy G. Thompson.

Proxmire, chairman of the Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee, set a Senate record of answering every roll call since 1966, and captured 60 to 70 percent of the vote in his last three elections, in 1982, 1976 and 1970.

Because of his popularity, he spent little on winning re-election. In 1982, he spent only $177.75, mostly for postage and stationery to return campaign contributions.

"We obviously now have a great opportunity to recapture the Wisconsin seat from the Democrats," Sen. Rudy Boschwitz, R-Minn., chairman of the Senate Republican Campaign Committee, said in Washington.

One of the GOP politicians reportedly considering a candidacy, Rep. F. James Sensenbrenner Jr., scheduled a news conference for this morning.

Proxmire said the Democrats have excellent candidates for the Senate, mentioning Assembly Speaker Thomas Loftus, former Gov. Anthony S. Earl, Rep. Jim Moody, D-Wis., and former Deputy Attorney General Edward R. Garvey.

"I'm not going to endorse anyone" at this time, he said.

The maverick senator gained wide renown as a fiscal watchdog with his sardonic Golden Fleece Awards for such examples of government spending as $59,000 for playing cards and a $46,000 study of how to break an egg.

Perot's funds were to be used by North

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lt. Col. Oliver North drew up a plan to use as much as $2 million that Dallas billionaire H. Ross Perot put up for a hostage ransom effort for the Nicaraguan Contras, newly declassified testimony has revealed.

The testimony came from Marine Lt. Col. Robert Earl, who was North's deputy on the National Security Council staff, who told Iran-Contra committee investigators earlier this summer that he learned about the scheme in May 1986.

Earl said he learned of the scheme only a week or two before Perot dispatched a courier to the Mediterranean with money to buy the freedom of U.S. hostages in Beirut.

The deal fell through, and Earl said Perot's money never was diverted to the Central American rebels.

North, the fired White House aide at the center of the Iran-Contra scandal, defended the plan to con Perot by citing his concern about funding for the Nicaraguan rebel army, Earl told the investigators.

"Colonel North had confided to me . . . that this whole process had so affected him that he had even conceived of a plan that he could get money from Ross Perot for the Contras by having him deposit some money, ostensibly for hostages, but that it would go to the Contras," Earl said.

Earl described the plan during closed-door questioning by congressional investigators last May. A declassified transcript of Earl's testimony was released Thursday.

Earl, one of the few U.S. officials known to have been aware that North funneled Iranian arms-sale profits to the Contras, said North told him about the Iranian fund diversion and claimed also to have told late CIA Director William Casey.

Perot could not be reached for comment because he is traveling abroad, a spokesman said.

Earl did not provide a specific amount that North planned to solicit from Perot for the Contras.

But Perot has previously confirmed that North asked him in May 1986 to provide $2 million for a secret ransom effort mounted with the assistance of U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency agents in the Middle East.

Perot, former Electronics Data Systems chairman, known for his efforts to free U.S. prisoners of war in Vietnam and his daring 1979 rescue of EDS employees from a Tehran prison, sent the money to Cyprus for a planned ship-to-ship exchange that never materialized.

The money was later returned, but Perot has said that $300,000 he gave North for two previous ransom efforts was not returned.

Astro-Graph

By Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

Sunday, Aug. 30, 1987

Your circle of acquaintances and business contacts will be greatly enlarged in the year ahead. Everything will get started by someone new who you will meet soon.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll function better in a leadership role today than you will in a subordinate one. Step in and take charge of situations that are in need of direction. Major changes are ahead for Virgos in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) There are strong indications that you can benefit today from a situation of a confidential nature. A trusted ally will help uncover the secret.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your dynamic presence will inspire others, and your humor will be contagious today. It will be difficult for people with whom you're involved not to have a good time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Although you have a definite goal in mind today, your approach should be subtle. Success will be achieved by guiding others rather than pushing them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you're confronted by a challenge today, fall back on your faith. This will make you more than equal to the occasion, and you'll be able to overcome adversity.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Joint ventures of a material nature look more promising than usual today, especially if your offering is your ability and not cash.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Any agreement into which you enter today has a good chance for success and longevity, provided it is made with one whose ideals are closely akin to yours.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) This is not apt to be a day of rest for you as it will be for others. Your time will be productively utilized on a specific matter you have in mind.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Move around a bit today rather than confining yourself to a particular gathering. You'll have too much bubble and effervescence for just one group.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You might start puttering around on something today that appears to be a small task, but once you get involved you may turn it into a major project.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll be equally skilled at mental and physical pursuits today. Try to use your brains and brawn in ways that are constructive.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Today, you may perceive something that may be an unusual way for you to make money. It will be a pretty good idea that should be given serious consideration.

Monday, Aug. 31, 1987

In the year ahead, you could be extremely fortunate in deriving commissions or bonuses. They will arise from situations where you bring one or more parties together for a commercial purpose.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today, you may be unreasonably angered by someone who is always forgiving toward you. Later, when you review your behavior, you'll wish you had acted differently. Major changes are ahead for Virgos in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You might have to make some adjustments in your plans today in order to accommodate someone else. Don't make a big deal of it if this occurs.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) One of the reasons you haven't been getting too much mileage from your budget lately could be due to too many vigorous involvements — such as today's.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your image is a trifle fragile today, especially where your career is concerned. Don't do anything that could provide gossip for detractors to use against you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You might run into a situation today where another's philosophical outlook is diametrically opposed to yours. Don't attempt to make this individual a convert.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Try not to interfere in matters today that don't directly concern you. Poking your nose in where it doesn't belong will be asking for trouble.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today, you might ignore the advice of people you should heed. On the other hand, you might find yourself listening to people whose counsel you should ignore.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Tasks that you are expecting others to take care of for you today might be left undone. It's best to rely on yourself and not on anticipated helpers.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't take unnecessary risks on someone else's ideas today, especially if the person on whom you are banking has bungled things in the past.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) An issue that you and your mate have disagreed on previously might become the major topic of conversation again today. Put it to rest.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you hope to get others to cooperate with you today, try making suggestions instead of issuing demands. Assertiveness invites resentment.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A late afternoon shopping excursion could turn out to be a very expensive diversion. As dusk draws nigh, your extravagance runs high.

Chamber tortures creatures

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The pound should replace the gas chamber with lethal injection because the latter is more humane, an advisory board says.

"There is no choice about the chamber," committee member Barbara Wiederstein said at a meeting Wednesday night. "It's a misdemeanor."

She was referring to state animal-cruelty laws that make it a crime to torture animals. National Humane Society representative Fernard Weller told the committee that the chamber at the El Paso City-County Animal Regulation and Disease Control shelter tortures animals because the lethal gases are too hot.

The 14-member committee was appointed by the city council and El Paso County commissioners after a television news report that alleged cruelty to animals at the shelter. The non-binding resolution called for city and county governments to take action.

The carbon monoxide chamber is a concrete cube, about 4 feet on each side. Exhaust from a nearby gasoline engine is piped into the chamber. The fumes are supposed to kill the animals.

But Weller said earlier this week that many of the animals die because the exhaust exceeds 200 degrees. He said an exhaust cooling system does not work, "causing their (the animals') respiratory systems to roast."

Another Humane Society member, Barbara Pech of El Paso, said she had pictures of animals that had bled to death through their noses and mouths.

Many other pounds inject animals with chemicals that kill them quickly and painlessly, Weller said, adding that lethal injection is a cheaper method than the gas chamber.

Weller, a Corpus Christi resident and self-described expert on the state's animal-cruelty laws, visited El Paso this week to find out more about the shelter. He did not visit the pound, but reviewed videotape of the news report and heard from pet owners with complaints about the shelter.

Other cruel practices alleged by Weller include hosing the cages down with the animals still inside them — especially traumatic to cats, he said — and using cages with wire bottoms, which make it impossible for puppies and kittens to get to their mother to nurse. Some small animals have severed their legs, Weller said, adding that the bottoms of the cages should be lined with plastic boards.

The committee also called for round-the-clock veterinary assistants to kill animals that must be destroyed immediately and to stabilize injured animals until they could be treated by a veterinarian.

The Animal Regulation and Disease Control Department picks up 2,000 animals a month. Fifteen percent are claimed. The department's primary purpose is to protect people and prevent the spread of animal-carried diseases like rabies.

Threat of bomb cuts first city council meeting short

CRYSTAL BEACH, Texas (AP) — The first city council meeting since the town's government was reinstated was cut short by a bomb threat, but not before a new mayor and two council members were sworn in.

A Galveston County Sheriff's Department dispatcher received a telephone threat of a bomb planted in the Crystal Beach Volunteer Fire Department building a minute before the scheduled Thursday afternoon ceremony.

No bomb was found.

On Aug. 18, State District Judge Arthur C. Lesher Jr. declared that petitions forcing the April election to abolish the city were invalid and the election should never have been held.

Even though it has a full complement of council members as of Thursday, the city still is in legal limbo.

When the city was abolished, Galveston County Auditor Phil Lohec was named as receiver to take possession of and control the city's assets under the court's guidance.

The people who gathered petitions to abolish the city have said they'll appeal Lesher's ruling on the validity of the petitions. They have 30 days in which to do it.

"I'm in daily contact with Mr. Lohec and the county legal department to decide if we can make certain decisions, how to go about implementing them," Mayor Bill Kelsey told the Houston Chronicle. "When we feel confident that we can implement some of our policies we will petition the court to terminate the receivership and return our property."

Kelsey said he hopes the court will return the city's assets within 30 days regardless of the appeals process.

Kelsey and council members Monte Potter and Millie Coleman were sworn into office and the council voted on a delinquent tax matter before Kelsey announced news of the threat.

Kelsey, 37, a real estate agent, won the mayor's office the same day voters decided by a margin of 314 to 245 to abolish the city and let Galveston County Commissioner's Court administer public affairs in the town of 1,200.

Before the bomb threat, Kelsey had planned to assure residents of his divided city that the council will be cautious as it rebuilds city government.

The council decided Thursday to let stand a decision by Lohec and the court to let a Texas City law firm collect delinquent taxes.

Longtime Texas Ranger, Glenn Elliott, has retired

MARSHALL, Texas (AP) — A Texas Ranger who stayed a private because he didn't want to sit behind a desk said goodbye to his 38-year career and the friends he made along the way.

More than 400 active and retired law enforcement officers, judges and even a few legislators gathered at a ranch outside Marshall to honor retiring Ranger Glenn Elliot.

Elliot, 61, joined the Texas Department of Public Safety in 1949 and became a Ranger in 1956.

Although Elliot had many chances to be promoted, he chose to remain a private throughout his career in the Company B Division of the Rangers headquartered in Longview.

"I got my first opportunity to promote in 1967," Elliot said Wednesday. "It would be great to retire as a Ranger captain, but I just did not want to sit behind a desk for my entire career."

Fellow officers say the man they called "the very best" worked diligently for long hours and was always available to help another officer.

Radio commentator Paul Harvey even mentioned Elliot's retirement on a broadcast. "East Texas law enforcement will surely have big shoes to fill now," Harvey said.

"If a man is hired out by someone, he ought to go out and do the best he can," Elliot said. "Times are tough now for all law enforcement officers and we all need to be able to work together and to help each other."

Former Henderson assistant DPS chief Reynold Humber recalled a case Elliot solved by tracing clothing back to a suspect in a Henderson jewelry store robbery.

"We were still grasping for a lot of answers to the crime. But Glenn picked up a piece of material that had torn off (the thief's) clothes during the incident and traced it back to a car-accident victim later in the evening that turned out to be our man. He just flat solved our case for us."

Elliot, a World War II veteran, said his career in law enforcement began because he needed a job.

"I applied to the DPS and was accepted. Seven years later, I was accepted to the Rangers and have worked in East Texas my entire career," he said.

Bystanders subdue grocery store thief

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A man charged in a convenience store holdup was hospitalized after a customer knocked him down with her car and two teen-agers subdued him with a baseball bat.

Dennis Coleman, 29, of Austin remained in undetermined condition Friday in Brackenridge Hospital after he was charged in the robbery of a convenience store early Thursday, police said.

Coleman allegedly told the store clerk he had a .45-caliber handgun and threatened her, according to police spokeswoman Kellye Norris.

He allegedly fled with the money and a woman who had just left the store struck him with her car, knocking him down as he ran across the street, Norris said.

The man was subdued by Louis Mayes and his friend, Brian Anderson, both 19-year-old high school students. Mayes said he hit the man with a baseball bat in the knee and the ribs before police arrived.

Coleman was charged with robbery by threat, a second-degree felony, and bond was set at $25,000. He did not have a gun, though, Norris said.

Police appreciate citizen involvement but generally advise against such actions, Norris said.

"We like to see more people get involved, but we do not encourage them to run down robbery suspects," Norris said. "It's good there are people out there who think of themselves last, but it could've been dangerous."

Mayes, who lives across the street, said he was outside the store using a pay phone when he saw what happened. He said he sympathized with the store clerk who worked alone.

IRA BULLDOGS

IRA -- On paper at least, the Bulldogs are a year away. But new head coach Don Jones isn't altering the sights any at Ira High School.

"We've set a goal for getting in the playoffs this season. It's a goal I think we can reach, but we're going to have to overcome inexperience," said Jones, who came aboard after Mitch Lee left for May. "Our kids have good football sense and they are aggressive."

Ira returns only one senior, which means the team will graduate one player from the 1987 season - thus the optimism for 1988.

"A lot of people around here are talking about 1988 already, and I admit it looks bright. But I think we have a chance to have a good team this year, too," stressed Jones, who coached at Amherst last season after a six-year stint in the oil field. He had previously coached at Fort Hancock, Hitchcock, Fort Davis, Loop and Leander during a 13-year span.

Jones will be assisted by Steve Howard, who comes from Union to join the Ira faculty.

The Bulldogs' lone senior - Brent Withers - will be a cornerstone for the team this season. A two-way starter on a team which finished 4-1-1 in zone play last season, Withers was honorable mention linebacker and offensive end. He comes in at 6-0, 165 this season. Juniors Justin Spradlin (5-11, 165) and Gary Gunset (6-1, 170) played more than minor roles last season, and return to lend experience.

Youth - also defined as inexperience - is the key obstacle to overcome. On a roster of 24 players, 10 are freshmen and seven are sophomores.

"Depth could be a problem for us, especially early in the season. Our ability will drop off after our starters until our younger kids get some experience," said the coach. "We have a lot of enthusiasm, though, and sometimes that can make up for a lack of experience."

The current offensive lineup has Withers and Gunset at the ends, Kyle Sorrels (5-11, 155) at center, Chuck Barbee (5-10, 150) at quarterback and Spradlin, Nasario Juarez (5-5, 125) and Greg Box (5-9, 135) at running back. Box is a sophomore.

Coach Jones said the players have not had to make a major adjustment in offense from last year to this.

"It's not all that different from what they were doing. We use more of a number system than Mitch did, but they've picked it up just like that," he said. "What we have added is a more open type of offense. I like to throw the ball."

He thinks his quarterbacks will be able to meet the challenge.

"Chuck throws the ball well. It's just a matter of seeing how he reacts under game pressure. Jason Withers and Shane Bearden have both looked good, too."

Ira's running backs "won't have blazing speed, but we'll be fairly quick, I think," said the coach. "Nasario and Greg are real similar so we'll probably run plays in with them. Both of them are small, but neither one of them would be afraid to run into a brick wall."

Bearden probably won't see a lot of play at quarterback, but that's because he is pegged as the Bulldogs' starting safety. He is 5-7 and weighs just 122 pounds, but his aggressiveness, savy and quickness make him a natural for the job.

Withers and Gunset will command the ends spots on defense with Juarez and Box at the cornerback slots. Spradlin will be at linebacker.

"We haven't concentrated as much on defense as offense yet. Our defense is practically the same as what these kids have been accustomed to. I've been impressed with our aggressiveness. You've got to have aggressiveness and desire to play defense, and I think we have that," said the coach.

Barbee will likely do the punting duties. Brent Withers is a candidate for extra-point work and Jason Withers and Gunset will handle kickoffs.

While Coach Jones has tentative starters picked out, it won't stop the rest of the players from pushing their way into the lineup. Among those working for spots are junior end Alan Martinez (6-1, 151), sophomore ends and corners Tomas Juarez (5-3, 100) and Denver Oppegard (5-4, 112), sophomore quarterback and end Jason Withers (6-1, 152); and sophomore ends Shane Ballard (5-11, 145) and David Reyna (5-5, 130).

Freshmen trying to make an impact are James Sturdivant (6-3, 165), Abel Espino (5-4, 128), Anson Luna (6-0, 225), Trace Young (5-7, 115), Brian Martinez (5-11, 128), Lary Gunset (5-7, 117), John Stewart (5-7, 115), Rodney White (5-3, 90), David Holmes (5-9, 145) and Brad Robinson (5-6, 120).

BRENT WITHERS
...Ira senior

COACH DON JONES

Tables are turned on Ira's lone senior

IRA -- The tables have turned on Brent Withers, Ira's only returning senior ballplayer.

"Last year I came in as the one that didn't have experience. Now it's just the opposite. I'm really the only one with much experience," said the 6-0, 165-pound athlete.

Despite his inexperience at the start of the season, Withers learned quickly and eventually earned honorable mention as a linebacker and offensive end on the team that finished third in the District 4A East Zone. He has higher goals this year.

"I'd like to make all-state. I'd like us to make the playoffs."

Ira has been picked to compete against Jayton, Trent and Highland for the two playoff spots out of the zone.

"Oh, I think we'll have a good year. We're just so inexperienced. I feel like this team has a lot of talent but it may take awhile to get going," he said. "Jayton and Trent will be tough, but they are beatable.

"I'm looking forward to the season. I really like the coach (Don Jones) and I think I'm a little more mature. I think we'll have a lot of fun."

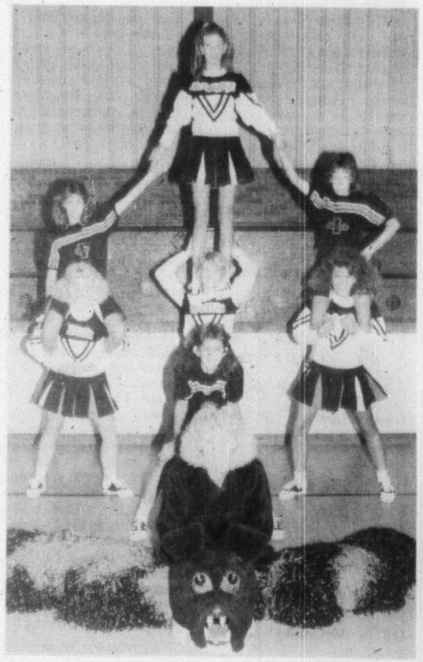

Bulldogs note two Saturday ballgames

IRA -- A couple of Saturday afternoon games punctuate the Ira High School varsity football schedule this season.

The Bulldogs host rival Trent for their homecoming on Saturday, Sept. 26 at 3 p.m., then trek to Hermleigh the following Saturday for the Cardinals' homecoming at 2 p.m.

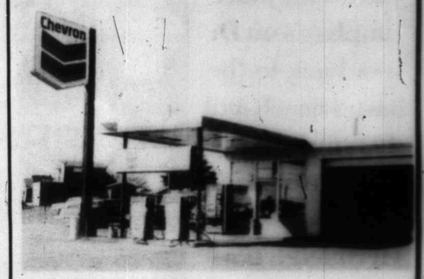

Ira opens its season at home, hosting Southland at 7:30 p.m. on Sept. 4. The 'Dogs stay put for Christoval the following week, then bus to Klondike on Sept. 18.

From there, it's back home for the District 4-A East Zone opener with Trent, a team the Bulldogs tied 12-12 last season. Trent edged the 'Dogs on penetrations, and eventually went to the playoffs when both teams wound up the season with 4-1-1 zone records.

HERMLEIGH -- The Hermleigh Cardinals haven't had much to flap their wings about for the last few years, but some returning experience and a new coach who wants to place an emphasis on defense could bring about a change.

Ten players return to try and flip last year's 0-8 season around. Three freshmen fill out the 13-man roster.

"Every day is a learning experience right now for us," said new coach Doug Cook, a graduate of West Texas State University and a native of Dumas. "We're stressing defense because I don't think that's been stressed to most of these kids before. We're working a lot with the basics, blocking, too."

Hermleigh could be a year away from making a major move towards the District 4-A East Zone title.

"We're short on experience but 10 of our 13 kids will be back next year. We've got a pretty good nucleus for the next two years. Right now we just have a few seniors, but they are enough to give us leadership," said the coach.

Hermleigh will have to rely on fundamentals and technique to win ballgames. The 13 players as a group aren't big, or particularly quick or fast.

"We're not slow are small, either," pointed out Cook. "I'd say we have average speed and quickness. We don't have the breakaway threat, but people shouldn't be able to run away from us every play, either."

Senior Rodney Foster, juniors Daniel Ramey and Joe Mireles and sophomore Mario Sanchez were among those that carried the workload for the Cardinals last season.

The team got some bad news in mid August when it learned that Ben Smith, who led the squad in tackles and rushing last season, would be unable to compete for health reasons. He will be the team manager this season.

Foster, a 5-10 senior, posted 73 tackles last season and led in passing by hitting 43 of 85 passes for 316 yards. He'll likely be moved to end on offense this season, however.

Mireles, 5-8, 215, will play center. Ramey, 5-10, 160, will be at the other ends spot opposite Foster.

Eddie Whitehead, a 5-9, 145 junior, may take over the quarterbacking duties, while the ball carriers will likely come from a group including freshman Felix Martinez (5-10, 155), senior Mac Castillo (5-6, 115) and sophomore Mario Sanchez (5-7, 130).

"We really haven't determined starters yet, especially on defense," stressed Cook. "I'll know a lot more after our two scrimmages. Right now, we're just trying to get everybody into positions."

Bobby Brown, a 5-8, 140 junior, has been looking good at defensive end, but Foster, Mireles and others are, too. Whitehead could start at cornerback, and Martinez looks strong at middle linebacker.

"We want to be able to give some people a rest when we can. That's one of the reasons we are undecided on our running backs, for instance," explained the coach. "Some of these people will play defense, too, and we want to be able to spell them."

A key figure could be senior Arthur Sanchez, a 5-11, 120 end, as could B. J. Gannaway, a 5-8, 180 junior center. Andrew Sanchez, a 5-5, 120 freshman has shown talent in the backfield. Another player who could come on late to help the team is 5-11, 180 freshman end Robert Romero. Romero has a broken arm and will miss the first part of the season.

Hermleigh will run the I and the T this season, with occasional changes. The defense will be variations on the 2-3.

"We're going to use every formation we can to win," said the coach. "Basically, though, we're going to run tight formations because we're concentrating hard on things like blocking and technique."

HERMLEIGH -- It's 1987 and Hermleigh has a new coach. So what else is new?

Well, maybe only a feeling. But you get the feeling at least, that maybe things are changing at Hermleigh. That good times are on the horizon.

For one thing, the Cardinals have an experienced coach in Doug Cook. He's been out of six-man coaching for awhile, but it's what he wants to do.

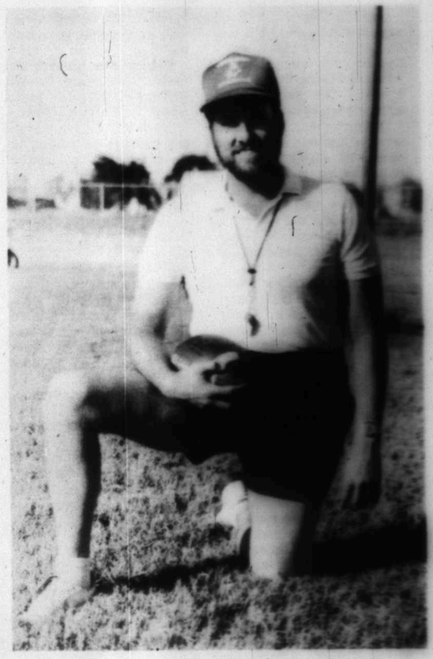

"I like six-man football and I wanted to run my own program," said Cook, who has coached six-man ball for five of the 10 years he has been coaching. "Hermleigh is a small school next to a larger city and that's what my wife (Karen) and I wanted. It fits the bill. I wanted to be where I could coach six-man football without being stranded way out somewhere."

Cook coached and taught at Dumas Junior High for the last four years. He's worked at Loop and Guthrie, too. He has always coached basketball and helped with football. He'll also be coaching the Hermleigh boy's basketball team. And, he'll be aided this season by two other Cardinals coaches, Ike Lewis and John Stevens.

So maybe Cook will stay. But what about the Cardinals? What's in it for them.

"I want to build a solid program. I know I'm like the fourth coach in four years for these guys that are seniors, and I can't say much about that," said the coach. "But we're working hard on fundamentals. We may be able to have a junior high program again. And although we don't have 20-something kids like Jayton and Ira or some of those schools, the guys are working hard. They've got a good attitude. I've been more than impressed with their willingness to learn."

It's just a feeling. But maybe all Hermleigh has needed has been a good Cook. And maybe they've found him.

BORDEN COUNTY

Coyotes fighting uphill battle but could reach top in 4-A West Zone

GAIL – Coach Joe Bond says it will be an uphill battle for the Borden County Coyotes this season, but he believes that with the right breaks, the team could compete for a playoff spot.

Borden Country returns one offensive and three defensive starters from a team which posted a 5-3 record last season.

To do as well, or better, the Coyotes will have to figure a way to beat teams that have an edge on experience.

"It was basically a junior-dominated zone last year," explained Coach Bond. "Most of the teams were junior ballclubs so they have a lot of people back. We lost six to graduation. It's going to be an uphill battle all the way for us.

"Most people consider Sands as the team to beat. They've got practically all their starters back, including Jay Fryar"

Fryar, a 6-0, 185 senior running back, ran for 1,454 yards on 144 carries last season. He also threw the ball for 889 yards and 18 touchdowns.

"Wellman has the Rowden kid (J. Rowden, who ran for 1,214 yards on 154 carries) and Loop has David Davis (a 6-3, 195 senior quarterback)," pointed out the coach. "The rest of the teams are about equal, more or less. What we're hoping we can do is find a way into that second playoff spot."

Borden County's lone offensive returnee is a good one. Shannon Bond, a 6-0, 165 senior, just happens to be the coach's son.

"He's our fastest player and it's important that he's healthy," acknowledged the coach.

Shannon Bond posted good statistics last season, earning second-team honors at quarterback in the tough West Zone of District 4-A. Despite that, he'll be moved to a running back slot for the 1987 campaign so the Coyotes can better utilize his speed.

"We ran the option in the last game of the season and although he didn't score, Shannon did a good job of running with the ball," said his dad. "We're hoping he'll be a good running back for us."

Taking over quarterback duties will likely be Will Phinizy, a 6-1, 153 senior who did not play last year.

The ends will probably be Kerry Fryar, a 6-0, 185 senior, and Robert Buchanan, a 6-2, 222 senior. It will take time for Buchanan, though, because this is his first year to play high school football.

"Robert is coming along. He has good hands, fair speed and he's a smart kid," said Coach Bond. "He's also strong."

Patrick Herridge, a sophomore at 5-9, 155, may start at the other running back. Proposition 48 caught up with him last season, but he showed good promise.

Pushing for a running back spot will be quick-footed freshman Jimmy Rios. Just 5-7 and 134 pounds, Rios could be one of the best backs in the district before his high school career ends.

"He's going to make a lot of mistakes because he is so young but he will be doing it full speed," said the coach. "He has great quickness."

Another player who could wind up earning a slot is Randell Hollis. It won't be soon, however, because the 5-11, 225 junior will be out four to six weeks after having arthroscopic knee surgery.

The defense will involve a lot of people, depending on the opponent's offense. On paper, Shannon Bond, Herridge, Rios and Phinizy figure as linebackers with Fryar at an end and Brian Bond and Cole Vestal at safety. Phinizy might also be used at safety.

"Ray is short, (5-4, 175) but he is a good, hard-nosed kid. We'll utilize him some as a noseguard," the coach noted.

Others working hard for positions include sophomores Lance Telchick and James Lewis and freshmen Cole Vestal, Paul Sturdivant, Eric Lusk and Chad Vaughn.

1960 A district representative with a 4-7 record? It was Conley's last year at Snyder and the Tigers shared the title with a 3-1 loop record. They earned representation rights and gave Brownwood a tough bi-district fight before falling 29-20.

1963 In the third year of Horrace Bostick's tenure, Snyder fashioned an 8-3 mark, 5-0 in district play. The Tigers, averaging 21.2 points on offense, lost to Graham in bi-district play, 19-0.

1969 Snyder recorded early upsets when it tied No. 1 ranked Lubbock Estacado 7-7 and defeated highly rated Dunbar 13-10. A 4-1 zone record (6-4-1 season) put Snyder in the district playoff where Estacado repaid the debt, 38-3. Snyder counted five shutouts, averaged 23.1 points on offense and gave up 9.4 on defense. Wayne Tyrone was the Tiger coach.

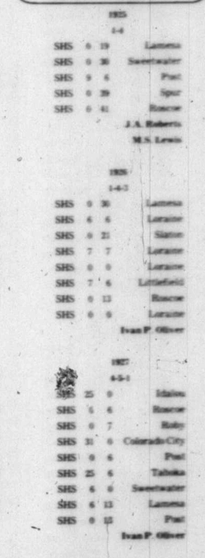

1974 Coached by Maurice "Mo" Hodges, Snyder went 6-0 in district play, 9-2 for the season, to represent the division in postseason play. The team lost to Brownwood in bi-district competition, 42-0.

1978 Snyder's Tigers were 4-0 in loop play and 9-3 on the year. Coach Mike Jenkins' crew posted the school's first bi-district win since 1931, then fell in regionals, 27-9 to Lubbock Estacado.

1980-83 Though the Tigers had won a district title in 1978 and missed by three points in '79 (a 3-0 loss to San Angelo Lake View), the following season began the worst slump ever in Snyder football history. In 1980, Snyder was 2-8 on the season and suffered a 57-0 loss to Fort Stockton - its worst defeat in 49 years. Coupled with 1-9 records in 1981 and '82 and its first winless season ever (1983), the Tigers won only four games in four years.

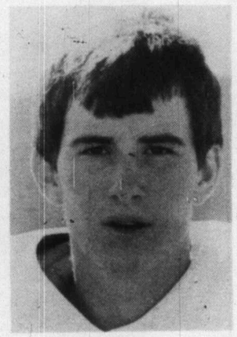

1985-86 Although the Tigers were unable to reach .500, they nonetheless saw some milestones fall by the side. Their 4-6 record in 1985 was the best since 1979. And, all of the victories in 1986's 3-7 season were in district play. It was the most district wins in a single season since 1979. In another note of interest, a 43-0 victory over Lamesa in the 1986 season finale was the Tigers' first shutout since beating Brownfield 21-0 in 1979 and the most points scored since - believe it or not - 1970, when they cracked Colorado City 47-28. Snyder had scored 41 points on a couple of occasions and 42 four times, including twice in 1985, but not higher.

High and low points in Tiger grid history

1925-26 Snyder fought to more ties than wins in its first two years of recorded football history. The team went 1-4 (scoring a total of 9 points) in '25 and 1-4-3 in 1926. Snyder played Loraine four times in '26, tying the 'Dogs each time, 6-6, 7-7, 0-0 and 0-0.

1930 After seasons of 4-2-1 in 1927 and 5-5 in 1928 and 1929, Snyder won its first championship under Ottis "Red" Moore. The 1930 squad, in posting an 11-2 season, averaged 27.4 points offensively while giving up only 4.2 points per opponent. The Tigers recorded six shutouts, including its final four games of the season. After concluding the regular season with a 21-0 whipping of Haskell, Snyder trounced Stanton 31-0 in bi-district play and routed Albany 45-0 in regionals - the highest goal achievable at that time.

1931 Moore and Snyder repeated the trick in 1931, defeating Stanton again at bi-district, 33-12, before polishing off the season with a 13-0 regional win over Commanche. Snyder traded some heavy blows with its opposition this year. The Tigers were ripped on three straight occasions, 71-0 by Lubbock, 46-0 by Abilene and 25-0 by Slaton. To reverse the situation, Snyder grabbed wins of 67-6 over Rotan, 41-0 over Roby, 44-0 over Roscoe and 52-0 over Stamford. Snyder averaged 23.9 points and allowed 17.1.

1933 Moore's 1933 team did not vie for postseason honors, but allowed only 19 points all season and recorded seven shutouts enroute to a 7-1-2 record.

1936 Under W.W. "Red" Hill, Snyder won district with a 5-4-2 record, averaging 9.1 points on offense to its opponents' 9.6. The team lost to Littlefield, 25-12, in bi-district play.

1938 Not a banner year in Tiger history, Snyder was shut out five times. Better times were ahead the following season.

1939 Snyder again did not compete for any postseason honors, but staged six straight shutout games. Unfortunately, the Tigers lost 0-14 to eventual champ Roscoe to put them out of action.

1941 The lowest point in Snyder Tiger history? Perhaps. Snyder posted a season record of 1-9, bad enough, but scored only 25 points all year while giving up a 24.3 per-game average. The Tigers were blanked seven times and scored only six points in their final seven games.

1943 Coach Frank Weaver left the gridiron for the Navy, making Snyder ineligible for district play this year. Interestingly, the Tigers played as many games as they could, supervised in part by team captain Bobby Hicks. The squad posted a 3-0-1 record, giving up only four points.

1948 For the first time since 1941, every opponent managed to score against the Tigers. In fact, Snyder got whipped badly, allowing an average of 23.9 points per opponent. The Tigers scored 31 points in nine games and suffered five shutouts in a 1-7 season.

1955 On the upswing again, Snyder fashioned a 9-2 (8-0 district) record under John Conley, scoring an average of 26.5 points a game and allowing only 7.9. The Tigers won district, but lost to Garland in bi-district play, 18-13.

1956 The Tigers clawed to a 10-1 record under Conley again, recording seven shutouts and allowing its opponents only 2.9 points a game. Snyder offense averaged 26.6. Snyder had allowed only six points after eight games. The team lost to Graham in a tough bi-district battle, 7-6.

1959 Snyder finished the season with a 5-5 record, 3-1 in district play, to deadlock with two other teams for the division title. A flip of the coin sent Lamesa into postseason work. Conley was still the Tiger coach.

Gail schedule has 10 teams, eight opponents

GAIL -- Borden County's schedule has the typical 10 games in 1987 - but only eight opponents again.

In a strange juggling of schedules after last year's UIL realignment, the Coyotes play McCaulley and Sands twice.

The Coyotes entertain McCaulley for their first game of the season, 7:30 p.m. on Sept. 4.

They travel to meet zone foe Sands in a non-zone game on Sept. 11, then entertain Loraine on Sept. 18.

West Zone wars begin the following weekend for the Coyotes, who host Klondike on Sept. 25. In the final game of a three-game home stand, the Coyotes entertain Sands - this time as a zone opponent - on Oct. 2.

The schedule continues at Loop on Oct. 9, back to Gail for Grady on Oct. 16, then to Dawson on the 23rd.

Borden County stays on the road for a non-zone game at McCaulley on Oct. 30, and winds up its season at home by hosting Wellman on Nov. 6.

Optimism flows through Tigers camp

Inexperience, youth permeate 1987 squad but effort, talent tops

Snyder head football coach Dennis Tomlin is hoping talent, enthusiasm and hard work will offset youth and inexperience to make the 1987 Ragin' Tiger football team be a solid contender.

The team, though only boasting 11 seniors, sports some of the best all-around talent in years. Experience in the skill positions should make for some thrilling moments for fans, who will get to see the Ragin' Tigers play six home games this season.

"We're real optimistic for several reasons. One, the amount of work the kids have put in. I think they've easily worked twice as hard as any bunch we've ever had," said Tomlin, who begins his fourth season as head coach.

"Second, I feel like our offense has more of an opportunity to move the ball and keep it. We've got veteran backs in several positions. We know what they can do. Whether we move the ball or not will depend on our young offensive line."

The offensive line could be the key to the whole mix. Coaches decided in the spring to concentrate on defense. Whether the offense suffers because of it remains to be seen.

"We wanted to find the best defensive players we could find, regardless of their offensive skills," explained defensive coordinator Kevin Wiseman. "Not everybody is a defensive player. Some play offense better, some defense. But we wanted to find 11 defensive starters and then try and worry about the offense."

The idea should help keep fresh players on the field, since the coaches are hoping to avoid having many two-way players.

"I've always said 'so goes the defense goes the Tigers' and that's no different now. We've got to play better defense and the kids know that," said Coach Tomlin.

A knew defensive look - the 27 - is being eagerly accepted by the Tigers, who will probably be led by all-state linebacker candidate Trey Tippens.

"From what we've seen of Tippens, we're going to play better defense," exclaimed Tomlin. "When he plays well it causes everybody else to play better.

"I think we've got more quickness on defense than we have had and we're maybe a little more hard-nosed than we've been. Together, our defensive secondary may be the best group we've had since the first year we were here (1984). They have good speed and tremendous potential. And, they'll knock you on your butt."

Another factor in the Ragin' Tigers' favor is the schedule. Snyder plays six of its 10 games at home, including the first two on Sept. 4 against Tulia and Sept. 11 against Levelland.

"Anytime you play at home it is a definite advantage," agreed Coach Tomlin. "The reason is a good home crowd and we can't say enough about the Snyder crowds. They are always great. The kids are excited about playing our first two games at home. We think it will be the first of six exciting home games for our fans."

DENNIS TOMLIN

A graduate of West Texas State University in 1969, he received his masters from Texas Tech University in 1982.

He came to Snyder from Plainview where he was assistant athletic director, head track coach and defensive secondary coach. He has 18 years teaching experience, including positions in Spearman, San Antonio, Stephenville, Quanah and Claude.

He and his wife Margaret have two children: Deedra, age 17; and Shelly, age 15.

KEVIN WISEMAN

Wiseman attended high school in Friona and graduated from Wayland Baptist University in 1977. He received his masters from West Texas State University in 1961.

He coached at Plainview for four years and Muleshoe for three years.

He and his wife Carolyn have three children; Sheila, age 8; Kyle, age 6, and Brian, age 3.

ROD COTTRELL

ROD COTTRELL coaches the Ragin' Tiger linebackers and deep snappers. He is also in charge of the equipment room and coordinates scouting.

Cottrell is a native of Uvalde where he earned all-state honors in football. He graduated from Angelo State University in 1981 after playing center on ASU's 1978 national championship team.

He was an assistant at Angelo State before coaching at San Angelo Central, Tulia and Breckenridge.

BUDDY COMER

BUDDY COMER coaches the offensive line.

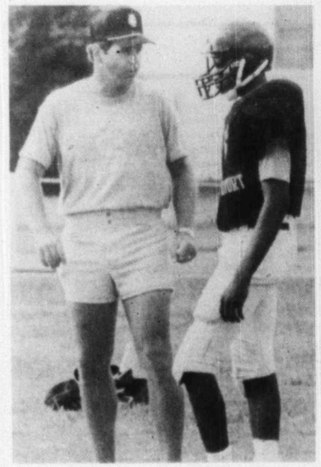

A native of Silverton, he graduated from Texas Tech University in 1972.

He came to Snyder from Stratford, where he was line coach and head track coach. He coached for two years in Lockney and Littlefield and one year in Anton and Lubbock Roosevelt.

He also teaches American History and is an assistant track coach.

Connie is a freshman girl's coach at Snyder High School.

RICHARD GORMAN

Snyder native RICHARD GORMAN joins the Ragin' Tigers this season as a varsity assistant and junior varsity coach. He will work with the defensive backs on the varsity.

A graduate of Snyder High School and Angelo State University, he enters his 10th year of coaching.

He coached for two years at Lumberton, where he was freshman football and junior varsity basketball coach. That was followed by two years at Eastland as assistant football and head basketball coach.

He then worked one-year stints at Pecos and Montgomery as assistant football and head basketball coach, before taking the head coaching position at Rotan for three years.

He and his wife Pam have three children: Jay, age 6; Justin, age 5; and Kaycee, 10 months.

STEVE KRUEGER

He received his bachelors and masters degrees at Eastern New Mexico University.

Steve spent two years in Austin, where he served as assistant principal at Nazarene Christian School and worked with Concordia Luthern College as an athletic trainer. He also worked with Sports Care, doing freelance training for such events as the state high school tennis championships, various gymnastics meets, marathons and the like.

He taught for three years as a graduate assistant at ENMU; was assistant manager of "The Fitness Center" in Clovis, N.M., and worked AAA baseball for the Dodgers and Padres in Albuquerque and Hawaii.

He and his wife Kimberly have no children.

KENNETH PRUITT

KENNETH PRUITT Joins the Tigers coaching staff this year from Giddings, where he spent the last three years.

He served as varsity assistant for the first two seasons, and was offensive coordinator and head track coach. His 1986 track team won the state championship.

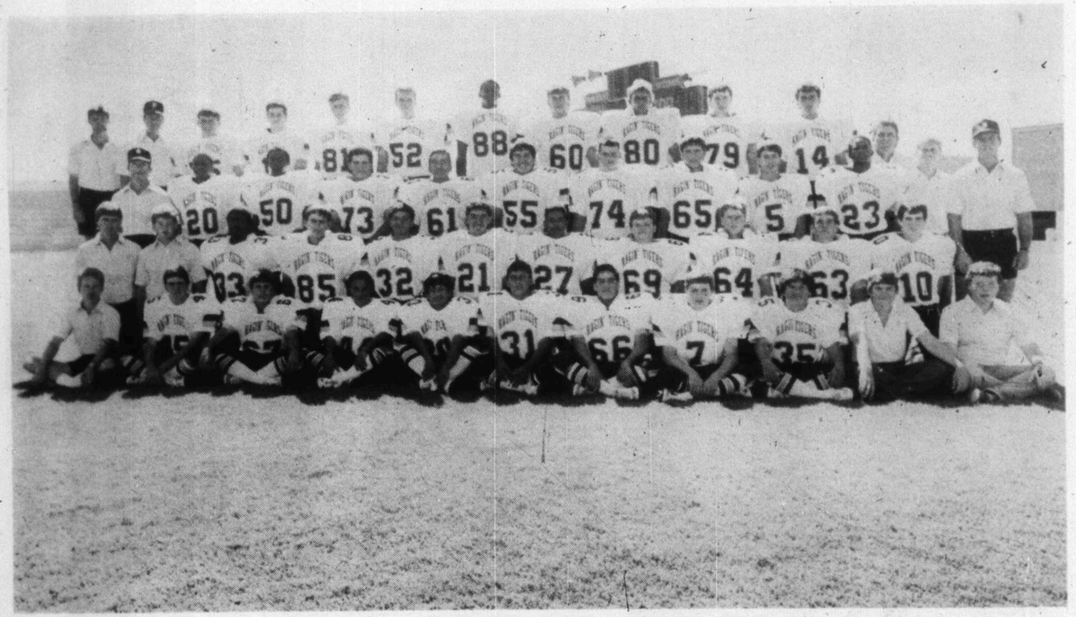

A graduate from Texas A&M University, Pruitt hails from Canton.

In his first year on the Ragin' Tigers staff he will instruct the varsity receivers and will be the junior varsity offensive coach.

He is single.

Defensive coordinator Kevin Wiseman said there are some strong battles for positions along the defense and players will continue getting a strong look - maybe even into the season.

"We just have to see who comes to the front. We're going to start some different guys in places in this scrimmage (with Colorado City) than we started against Vernon. It's that close and we want to get the best people in the position they play best," he said.

LEFT END

DAVID MARTINEZ
TIM BEAUCHAMP
STEVE WARNER

"Tim Beauchamp (6-3, 215 junior) and David Martinez (6-0, 225 senior) have the size we're looking for at left end. They can move well and that's what we need against teams with a big tight end. They fit the mold of a strong side end," said the coach.

Though smaller at 6-0, 160, senior Steve Warner is also getting a look at the position.

RIGHT END

Quickness is important at right end, where Benny Miller (5-10, 172 junior), Chad Hall (5-9, 150 junior) and Stacy Kellums (5-10, 150 senior) are working.

"They are all pretty quick. They usually don't have the tight end in front of them and they rely more on quickness. They are all pretty well suited for that," noted Wiseman.

"Our ends have improved a bunch since the spring. They are beginning to understand what we want out of them," Wiseman said. "The ends are a very, very important part of our defense."

As for the 2-techniques or tackles, "going into the fall they are probably ahead of our defensive ends. After the scrimmage (with Vernon) we saw some things we needed to work on. They play a real reading technique. They have to read certain things and react. It's important for them to get off their blocks and go to the ball," said Wiseman.

"This isn't a penetrating type of defense as much as it is a containing defense. These guys (the tackles) have the freedom to go to either side. Their responsibility, after they read, is to hustle to the ball."

Working at left tackle are Robert Talamantez (5-9, 200 sophomore), Craig Watkins (6-1, 170 senior), Thance Springer (5-9, 215 senior) and Billy Nix (6-0, 215 junior). Trying to earn a starting role at the right side are Manuel Espinosa (5-9, 210 junior), Jerry McNew (5-10, 225 senior), Thomas Wesley (5-10, 165 senior) and Tony Anderson (6-1, 175 junior).

"Our trademark on defense this year is pursuit. We want everybody going to the ball," said the coach.

"We've had good effort in practice. I've been pleased with our effort," he added.

OFFENSE

Tigers have potential for fire power aplenty

"The battle is on," said Coach Dennis Tomlin, for the all-important quarterback position.

The QB slot is a key one in an offensive unit which should be able to produce good punching power if a young offensive line can make the holes. Back to lead the way are 1,000-yard candidate Michael Riggins, tough-running Isrrael Hinojos and Kenneth McClain, and steady performers Scott Lanier and Vyron Clay.

But first, the quarterback role.

QUARTERBACK

LEE FLETCHER
TRACY ODOM
RANDY MORRIS

Leading the way in experience is Roland Romo, a 5-10, 157 senior who shared the duties last season. Romo completed nine of 36 passes for 188 yards and ran for another 39 on 12 carries.

Pushing him is talented Lee Fletcher, a 6-0, 165 junior, who may have an edge in foot speed.

"Roland is a little ahead because of his varsity experience last year. But Fletcher is coming on. He's looking good, too," said Coach Tomlin. "Both throw the ball well and run the offense well."

FULLBACK

ROY GUTIERREZ
RALPH TORRES

Snyder's fullback role will be filled by three short but fiery runners.

"You could stack all three fullbacks on top of each other and they wouldn't be six-feet tall," grinned Tomlin recently.

"Isrrael and Roy both possess enough speed to break the long run and that's something we really haven't had much of in that position before," said Tomlin. "It should really help our offensive production."

Hinojos found success when he ran with the ball last year. Though he carried only seven times, he managed 77 yards.

TAILBACK

MICHAEL RIGGINS
KENNETH MCCLAIN
TOMMY LANE

From the tailback slot comes an legitimate choice to make the 1,000 yard club.

An assault on the 1,000 yard mark? It's possible.

Back for a second year in the tailback slot is Riggins, a shifty, slippery 155-pounder who ranked second among 2-4A's leading running backs last season with a 6.9 yard-per-carry average. He played in just seven games and gained a hefty 701 yards.

"Michael is a returning starter with a lot of experience. He has the good speed. He gets up in the hole and he's capable of breaking the big one," beamed Coach Tomlin.

But Riggins may find his biggest obstacle in reaching fame to be in his own backfield. He is being pushed hard by McClain, who does a pretty fair job of running himself. In limited duty last year, he picked up 33 yards on eight tries.

"He's runs tough, strong," said the coach of the 5-10, 155 junior. "They are contrasting runners, finesse and power. And they both do a real good job."

Working in their footsteps is Tommy Lane, a 5-9, 150 sophomore who is more likely to find a starting role as a linebacker.

Shifting to the halfback position, it's power battling "shake and bake" for the starting role. When it's all said and done, though, both will probably see a lot of playing time.

HALFBACK

VYRON CLAY
SCOTT LANIER
PETE MADRID

Lanier (he's the power back) and Vyron "Shake and Bake" Clay may share duties at the halfback position, since both could be regulars in the defensive backfield. Lanier, a 5-11, 190 senior, doubles at safety. And though Clay, a 5-8, 155 junior is currently recovering from an ankle injury, he also plays at a defensive halfback spot.

Lanier compiled 246 yards on 64 carries last season. Clay had 179 on just 18 for a 9.9 per carry average.

Because both will be heavily relied on in the defense scheme, the door may open for Pete Madrid, a 5-9, 150 senior who is also working hard at the halfback slot.

ENDS

TRACY ODOM
STACEY KELLUMS

"Our speed isn't overwhelming, but we have good speed," said Coach Kenneth Pruitt. "They have pretty good hands as a group and they've been working hard. They have got to learn how to catch the ball in game situations."

take our best defensive players and get them on the field. Then from there, we wanted to make an offensive line without having to play a lot of people two ways," explained Coach Buddy Comer.

CENTER

DAVID MARTINEZ
CARL MCCLURG

In other words, coaches are hoping for big things from inexperienced folks. They'll need help at center, for instance, where last year's starter David Martinez has been moved to the defense. Martinez, a 6-0, 225 senior, is the backup center right now. That's fine with the coaches, who would prefer either Tim Beauchamp (6-3, 215 junior) or Carl McClurg (5-8, 155 junior) step in and take over.

"We're hoping to start something like 19 players (out of a possible 22 positions)," noted Buddy Comer, offensive line coach. "The idea is to get as many involved as we can, if we can."

STRONG GUARD

THANCE SPRINGER
ROBERT TALAMANTEZ
JUSTIN DERRYBERRY
CHRIS CASAS

Lending experience will be strong guard Thance Springer, a 5-9, 215 senior, who played on the Tigers' "Special Forces" short yardage unit last season. Springer heads a list of strong guards that include 5-9, 200 sophomore Robert Talamantez; 5-10, 165 junior Justin Derryberry; and 5-8, 165 junior Chris Casas.

STRONG TACKLE

BILLY NIX
JERRY MCNEW
TODD PERRY

At the strong tackle position are Billy Nix (6-0, 215 junior), Jerry McNew (5-10, 225 senior) and Todd Perry (6-1, 190 junior). McNew played a lot at defensive tackle last season and may again this season.

QUICK TACKLE

MANUEL ESPINOSA
THOMAS WESLEY
CHAD HALL

The quick tackles are Manuel Espinosa (5-9, 210 junior), Thomas Wesley (5-10, 165 senior) and Chad Hall (5-9, 150 junior) - all up from the junior varsity.

Quick guard candidates are Kevin Dollins (5-10, 170 junior) and Benny Miller (5-10, 172 junior).

QUICK GUARD

KEVIN DOLLINS
BENNY MILLER

"I'd say our strong point right now is effort," said Coach Comer. "We're pretty inexperienced, but we're getting better. It's a position you can learn how to play.

"In the scrimmage (with Vernon) I thought we came off the ball well and knew our assignments for the most part. We were too high, though. We've got to learn to get lower," he added.

STRONG END

STEVE WARNER
CRAIG WATKINS
TONY ANDERSON
TREY TIPPENS (Inj)

Included in the offensive line are the strong or tight ends. Working at the position are Steve Warner (6-0, 160 senior), Craig Watkins (6-1, 170 senior), Tony Anderson (6-1, 175 junior) and Trey Tippens (6-5, 210 senior). Tippens is recovering from arthroscopic knee surgery at present.

"This is probably the biggest question mark area of the team right now," said Comer. "We moved Craig over (from guard) and are trying him. What we are looking for is a blocker who can also catch the ball. We'd like to be able to pass more if we can find a good receiver-blocker for the position."

DEFENSE

'D' should be tough unit with experience

If the defensive backfield can overcome inexperience and the implementation of a new system, it could be one of the best groups to don Snyder Tigers uniforms in some time. Certainly, the talent is there.

"What we have there are a lot of good athletes. That's the key," said defensive backfield coach Richard Gorman, who joins the Ragin' Tigers staff this season from Rotan. "We have a lot of quick speed, not like 100-yard dash speed, but all four starters in those positions have quick acceleration."

Heading the list are safety candidate Scott Lanier and halfback Vyron Clay.

"Even though Lanier is a senior, it's his first time to have played back there. But he is showing a lot of leadership," said Gorman. "Vyron is injured right now (ankle) but his experience will help, even though this is a different system."

Clay will work at halfback along with Randy Morris, Michael Riggins, Jimmy Taylor and Pete Madrid. Also at safety are Tracy Odom and Roland Romo, while at rover are Kenneth McClain, Ralph Torres and Roy Gutierrez.

"We have some players that may have to play both ways (defense and offense) because they are so good it's just hard to keep them off the field. But we want to be able to rest players as much as we can. We'd like to have as many starters as we can," said the coach.

Those words apply particularly to Romo and Riggins, who may start at quarterback and tailback, respectively. Clay and Lanier split time at the offensive halfback slot.

"I think we have a lot of potential back there. I was pleased with our first scrimmage, considering it was the first time in a game situation with a new defense," said Gorman. "We're making some mistakes but they are aggressive mistakes and that's good. In fact, we're having to get them to slow down a little bit."

The Ragin' Tigers linebacking corps have a pretty lofty goal for 1987 - to be the best in District 2-4A.

Though young, the group will have that type potential, especially if Trey Tippens returns to form. Hailed by many as the top linebacker prospect in the state, Tippens has been sidelined with arthroscopic knee surgery. The 6-5, 210 pound senior could be suiting out by the first ballgame, however, and almost certainly will be back by the start of 2-4A play.

"We have the best linebacker in the district and we'll have two others that will compliment him well," said Coach Rod Cottrell. "They'll get after you and hit you."

Middle linebacker Tippens and quick side backer Isrrael Hinojos are the only players with experience. Even for them the positions are new, because of the Tigers' new defensive scheme.

Filling in for Tippens at MLB has been Chris Casas, a 5-8, 165 junior, who is "doing a good job and one of our better hitters," said Cottrell. "It wouldn't surprise me if when Tippens comes back that Chris doesn't move to the quick side or the strong side."

Quick-side backers, otherwise known as Willie or Weak-side backers are Tommy Lane, Hinojos, Derryberry and Jason Presley.

Of Lane, a sophomore, Cottrell said, "He is 150 pounds and plays like he is 180. He'll really stick you."

STRONG SIDE

LEE FLETCHER
KEVIN DOLLINS

"We can move these guys around from one position to another pretty well. What we hope to have is three guys that pretty much just play defense," explained the coach. "We're trying to play as many just one way (defense only) as possible."

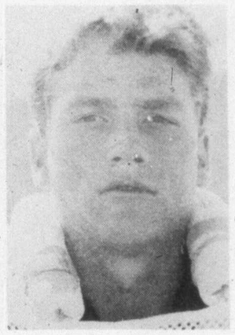

Snyder's linebacking corps are young and quick, and though they aren't big other than Tippens, they have decent size.

"They all seem to have a natural instinct to get to the football," said Cottrell. "And they like to hit. Like Tippens, he doesn't want to tackle somebody. He wants to separate them from the ball."
