City certain to be hit

Charleston in David's track

COCOA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane David, the killer of at least 800 persons, churned along the Atlantic Coast today with dead aim on the 300-year-old city of Charleston, S.C., after pummeling the coast of north-central Florida.

A hurricane warning was posted from Daytona Beach, Fla., north to Cape Fear, N.C., and coastal communities of Georgia were still in peril.

Residents of coastal areas of Georgia and South Carolina were evacuated as weather officials predicted the storm packing 90 mph winds would hit land again later today.

"There's no question about it," said Dick Shenot of the National Weather Service at Charleston. "Charleston is going to get hit." He predicted that by midafternoon hurricane-force winds would sweep the historic city of 60,000 residents, home of Ft. Sumter where the Civil War began, with tides 6 to 8 feet above normal.

At 10 a.m. EDT, the hurricane was located near latitude 30.5 north and longitude 80.8 west, or about 35 miles east of Jacksonville, Fla. Picking up speed slightly, it was moving toward the north at 12 to 15 mph.

The projected track of the storm would take it very close to the Georgia coast, weather officials said, and a slight jog to the left would cause it to hit land.

Charleston residents cut short Labor Day celebrations, canceled school today and started batten down for the storm.

"There's not a loaf of bread left in the store," said Billy Powell, a co-manager of a James Island grocery. A Charleston department store reported brisk sales of flashlights, radio batteries, cooking fuel, camp stoves, lamp oil and hurricane lamps.

Low areas of the plush resort of Hilton Head Island near the Georgia border were ordered evacuated and the two-lane bridge leading to the mainland was bumper-to-bumper with cars.

Rain and gale force winds gusting to 45 mph were already buffeting the Georgia coast off Brunswick. With the approach of the worst hurricane area to threaten the area in 32 years, the causeway linking coastal Sea Island and St. Simons Island was already closed by water.

The densely populated Miami area was spared Monday as David, one of the century's worst summer storms, hit the United States mainland after taking a heavy toll in the Caribbean.

Hurricane-spawned tornados snaked out ahead as it ripped through a string of coastal cities, leaving behind power outages, roofless homes, shattered windows and damaged condominiums. Furious winds snatched refrigerators and television sets out of wrecked apartments and tossed heavy camper trailers a quarter mile.

At least five Florida deaths were indirectly caused by the storm's Labor Day arrival, adding to David's growing toll. In the hard-hit Dominican Republic, officials raised the death count to at least 800.

Forecasters said David's 90 mph winds were likely to grow stronger and predicted the storm would move further offshore before slamming back into the coast.

Resort hotels in Daytona Beach were virtually deserted early today as thousands of tourists responded to evacuation orders. Others trimmed vacation plans and prepared to leave beaches along the Georgia and South Carolina coasts.

Aid pours into Dominican Republic

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — U.S. aid poured into the Dominican Republic as the official death toll from Hurricane David passed 800.

Civil defense officials said they feared the toll would go much higher when relief workers reached remote parts of the interior that suffered heavy damage.

A giant C-5a military cargo plane brought four helicopters for search and rescue missions, a water purification unit from Ft. Campbell, Ky., and jeeps, trucks and other equipment. C-130 military cargo planes shuttled to and from Puerto Rico, bringing rice, milk, flour, blankets, tents, medicine, electric generators, communications equipment, and rescue personnel.

"The situation is catastrophic," said Civil Defense Director Pedro Justiniano Polanco. "Hunger is starting to be felt by the thousands of country people isolated by blocked roads."

President Antonio Guzman took a helicopter tour of the badly battered southwestern and western parts of the country, where an estimated 60,000 were homeless.

The greatest death toll occurred in the small village of Ocoa, where 400 died when raging floodwaters from the Yaque River swept through the church and school where they had taken refuge.

"The waters kept rising and rising until everything was flooded and dozens of persons drowned. The few who saved themselves had climbed to the top of the church steeple," a local official said.

Journalists who flew over the Ocoa region, some 75 miles southwest of Santo Domingo, said it was a gigantic lake, with entire villages submerged.

David struck Santo Domingo and the southeast coast of the island of Hispaniola late Friday with winds of 150 miles an hour after destroying the homes of 60,000 people on the Lesser Antilles island of Dominica and killing 77 persons there.

City looking for full-time engineer

By JOHN PRICE
Of The Pampa News

The City of Pampa, Texas, is seeking qualified applicants for the position of City Engineer. Professional Registration required. Strong background in municipal civil engineering with emphasis on utilities, streets, and subdivision design essential.

Because of a recent increase in city planning and zoning, according to City Manager Mack Wofford, the city has begun a new push to hire a full-time engineer, something it has not had since 1973.

Although Pampa "has been actively seeking an engineer for two years or more," Wofford said this morning, the search became more active Sunday with the placement of the above advertisement in the Dallas Morning News.

In the past the city has run ads in trade magazines like Texas Town & City, published by the Texas Municipal League, but with no luck. Other methods of solicitation, such as the TML's Job Bank, also have come up with nothing.

Sunday's ad refers to an "attractive salary and benefit package," but Wofford said the amount of money available to pay an engineer, which he declined to divulge, is one reason the office in City Hall has remained empty for six years.

"I have talked to several people in the last two years, but have not been able to interest them, primarily because of the compensation level of the job," Wofford said. "One of our biggest problems has been competing with private business and other cities."

The last full-time city engineer, Gerald Harris, left Pampa to work for the city of Huntsville. Before Harris, Wofford served as city engineer from 1966 until 1970, when he became city manager. Before Wofford, the city engineer departed to head a municipal water authority. And so on.

Since 1973, the city has retained Merriman & Barber Consulting Engineers Inc., a local firm, for city engineering projects. Wofford acknowledged that Pampa probably could have hired an engineer with the money it has paid over the years to Merriman & Barber. For example, the engineering firm just received roughly $15,000 from the city for one job, the street-sealing program.

Wofford, however, denied that the latest payment to Merriman & Barber is a big factor behind the city's renewed effort to hire an engineer.

"I don't think so, not directly," he said when asked about the money. "I think for a long time there has been a need for a full-time professional. In view of the expansion that we are now faced with, I think that has had more to do with it."

"I'm not trying to knock Merriman & Barber at all, but if you've got someone on your own staff it's advantageous."

Even if an engineer is hired, he said, the city still will need outside help from time to time.

"To keep a staff big enough to handle major projects is not practical," Wofford said. "We're more interested in a day-to-day engineering program — such things as plating land."

Bad weather thwarts rescue efforts

LONGMIRE, Wash. (AP) — Blowing snow and fog again today thwarted ground and air rescue teams trying to reach a disc jockey and two guides stranded near the 14,410-foot summit of the Mount Rainier.

Terry MacDonald, 31, of KYYX-FM radio in Seattle, and his guides began their mountain climb for charity one week ago. They became stranded over the weekend after an accumulation of 8 feet of snow destroyed their tent and forced them to take refuge in sleeping bags nestled in a crevasse "bigger than a basketball gymnasium."

They have been unable to descend because their ice axes were buried in the snow and because of the avalanche danger.

A specially equipped and trained four-member rescue team set out from 10,000-foot Camp Muir for the crevasse, but foul weather forced the party to turn back about 3 a.m. at the 12,200-foot level, said Mount Rainier National Park spokesman Larry Henderson.

He said another party was being dispatched this morning. Four times on Monday a Chinook helicopter from Fort Lewis was unable to land because of fog and blowing snow at the summit, said Maj. Ralph Paduano.

The helicopter made a pass over the area again shortly after daybreak, but was unable to land because of fog and stormy weather. It returned to a staging area about 10 miles from the park.

MacDonald initiated the climb to raise money for the fight against muscular dystrophy and was filing regular reports to his home radio station when the trek began last Tuesday.

Labor Day beach crowd 'terrible disappointment'

By SUSAN STOLER
Associated Press Writer

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND, Texas (AP) — The tourist industry began assessing its losses today from an oil spill that scared away summer business and reduced Labor Day weekend revenues to a fraction of last year's income.

"It's a terrible disappointment," said Ralph Thompson of the South Padre Island Tourist Bureau.

Drizzle and cloudy skies along the Texas Coast most of Monday ended hopes for a last-minute surge of vacationers.

Thompson estimated the hotels, restaurants and shops that depend on seasonal sales lost three weeks of their peak summer business because of oil spill publicity.

The establishments have no way to make up the loss, he said.

Thompson planned to survey businesses today for an estimated percentage of their lost income. He would not put a dollar figure on anticipated losses.

Today also marked the first opportunity for operators to apply for Small Business Administration loans made available to offset effects of the Mexican oil spill.

Seven coastal counties have been designated disaster areas after either the brown crude or threats of its coming chased away tourists.

Cleanup crews had removed most traces of oil by Labor Day and there were no new sightings of oil floating offshore.

However, the seashore was almost deserted on the summer's last holiday.

"Business is pretty bad, especially for a holiday," said Bonnie Walker at the Dockside Deli.

"The only customers we've had are local people and some Coast Guard guys," she said. "I haven't seen any tourists this week."

Business annually goes into a lull between Labor Day and Christmas, when the winter season begins, Thompson said.

Larger hotels can count on corporate meetings and convention groups to tide them over.

The family-owned establishments won't be so lucky, he said.

"There isn't going to be much activity for the smaller properties," he predicted.

It may be too late to help a beleaguered tourist industry, but Environmental Protection Agency spokesman Roger Meacham said there appears to be a lull in the northward progress of oil from a crippled Mexican offshore well.

A Coast Guard surveillance flight identified scattered patches of sheen 75 miles south of Brownsville and light sheen concentrations a half a mile to a mile out to sea from Port Isabel to Corpus Christi.

However, scientists believe the sheen near the Texas beach is caused by a "reworking" of oil already on the beaches — a process they say contributes to the breakdown of the crude.

Almost 3 million barrels of oil have flowed from the well in the Bay of Campeche, 500 south of Corpus Christi, since it blew out June 3. The target date for capping the well is Sept. 16, but one Mexican engineer estimated it could take until early October.

However, capping efforts have cut the daily flow of oil gushing into the sea from 30,000 barrels to 10,000 barrels.

Davis' prosecutors to introduce recordings

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Key prosecution witness David McCrory has told jurors of the secret meetings and sleepless nights leading up to the first time he told an FBI agent that millionaire Cullen Davis was trying to buy the murders of 15 persons.

McCrory, 41, recounted how he met with FBI agent Ron Jannings Aug. 17, 1978, and told him "the entire story from beginning to end... about how Cullen wanted people killed."

Prosecutors now can introduce crucial tape recordings of meetings between Davis and McCrory, made on Aug. 18 and Aug. 20 of last year.

In the Aug. 18 tape, Davis and McCrory discuss the possible plans to kill District Judge Joe Eidsen and his wife.

"Do the judge and then his wife, and that would be it," Davis says on the tape.

Davis is on trial a second time on charges he tried to hire the murder of Eidsen, the judge presiding over Davis' lengthy, multimillion-dollar divorce trial. The first trial ended in January when a Houston jury deadlocked 8-4 for conviction.

Ending his second day on the stand Friday, McCrory testified he didn't think Jannings believed his story at first. McCrory said he went home after meeting with Jannings and stayed up all night, planning his next move.

"My first option was to move, to pack up Martha and the kids and take off," McCrory said. "Second was to wait and see what happened with the FBI. I didn't think he (Jannings) believed me."

"Third to try and give Cullen back his money and if that didn't work... kill him."

McCrory said Jannings called him the morning of Aug. 18, but McCrory returned the call from a nearby pay phone because "I thought my phone was probably tapped."

The two arranged a mid-morning meeting where McCrory said he repeated his story to Jannings and other agents, who questioned him in detail.

Lo-Vaca contract disputes could reach settlement today

AUSTIN (AP) — It has been nearly six years since the Texas Railroad Commission adopted a controversial order that allowed Lo-Vaca Gathering Co. to ignore its natural gas contracts and raise rates.

Today, the commission had an opportunity to settle the dispute by adopting a proposed settlement between Lo-Vaca and gas buyers.

The commission's September 1973 order authorized Lo-Vaca to recoup 100 percent of its gas costs and to charge major customers, such as cities, an extra nickel per 1,000 cubic feet of gas.

Customers sued Lo-Vaca for $1.6 billion for alleged breach of contract.

The commission voted in December 1977 to rescind the 1973 order and to require Lo-Vaca to live up to its contracts. It also ordered Lo-Vaca to refund the $1.6 billion in alleged overcharges.

Company officials said the order would cause bankruptcy.

The commission then granted additional time for Lo-Vaca and its customers to negotiate a settlement.

On Aug. 21 the commission was advised that buyers representing nearly 100 percent of Lo-Vaca's sales volume wanted the commission to approve the wording of the proposed settlement.

One in four Texans probably would be affected by the settlement since Lo-Vaca supplies virtually all of Central and South Texas and sells to electric and natural gas companies serving Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston and other areas.

Under the settlement plan, Lo-Vaca and several smaller pipelines owned by Lo-Vaca's parent, Coastal States Gas Corp., would be renamed Valero Energy Corp., with the headquarters moving from Houston to San Antonio.

Valero would be owned by its customers, however, not by Coastal States.

Coastal-Lo-Vaca's old contracts would be void and the $1.6 billion in suits would be dropped.

The five-cent surcharge in effect since 1973 would rise to 10 cents the first year and 15 cents the second year of the settlement, which is to go into effect before 1980.

Lo-Vaca President Bill Greehey said rates for major customers would rise by less than 1 percent. He declined to predict new rates for customers of electric or natural gas companies that buy from Lo-Vaca.

Telephone rate hearings to open

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. says Texas should accept a little inflation in their telephone bills to help Bell cope with the inflation it suffers.

Phil Ricketts, hearings director for the Texas Public Utility Commission, opens an estimated two weeks of testimony today on Bell's request for $145.2 million in rate increases.

The PUC staff, whose recommendations carry extreme weight with the three-man commission, says Bell is entitled to $137.7 million in increases over 12 months.

Staff members were expected to pare their recommendation by $1 million and Bell was expected to cut its request by $2 million because of errors in calculation.

Bell says two-thirds of its requested increase in revenue should come from a $1.55 per month across-the-board increase in basic residential and business telephone bills.

In pre-filed testimony, N. Carlton Baker, Bell's vice-president for revenues and public affairs, said two basic reasons are behind the rate increase.

"One is inflation. The second is the continuing demand for telephone service in an inflationary environment," he said.

He said Bell's labor contract with the Communications Workers of America will add $46.5 million to the telephone company's costs over the coming year. Baker said interest rates on Bell debentures are 9 1/2 percent, compared with 8 1/2 percent last year.

Bell's attractiveness to investors also is a major issue.

New York stock analyst Bradford Peery said in pre-filed testimony he now recommends that his clients sell their stock in American Telephone & Telegraph (AT&T), Bell's parent company.

Peery said AT&T's projected total investor market return is 13.3 percent, "significantly below the 14.1 percent market return that investors require for investing in AT&T today."

This is Bell's third trip to the commission for rate increases since the commission started establishing telephone rates in 1976.

deaths and funerals

WARREN D. WEATHERED

KRESS — Services for Warren D. Weathered, 67, will be tomorrow at 10 a.m. in Lemons Memorial Chapel in Plainview, with the Rev. Steve Vernon, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Kress, officiating. Burial will be in Kirkland Cemetery with graveside rites at 3 p.m.

Storm damage reported in area

Severe thunderstorms swept over the Panhandle Sunday and Monday with high wind damage reported in Canadian and severe crop damage in Bailey County.

Mobile homes in residential sections surrounding Fritch were damaged Sunday night, causing an estimated $80,000 in damage. No injuries were reported.

Fritch City Manager Jim Jeffers reported no damage inside the city, but said high winds tore branches from trees.

Fritch resident Artie Thomas reported that "four mobile homes were either heavily damaged or completely demolished" by the wind storm.

"One woman told me she was sitting in her home when the roof just went flying off," he said. "It landed about 100 yards away."

The Fritch resident said one mobile home had been demolished except for the frame.

Jeffers said he believed the heaviest damage came to mobile units which were not tied down.

In western Bailey County, Agricultural Extension Agent Spencer Tanksley was out this morning attempting to assess reported heavy hail damage to cotton and corn crops.

Estimates of the damage were not available at press time this morning.

In Canadian, high winds toppled an office trailer owned by the J.R. Richardson Trucking Co. about 6:30 Monday night, Hemphill County Sheriff's deputies said.

No one was in the trailer at the time, deputies said.

Climbers trapped on Mount Rainier

LONGMIRE, Wash. (AP) — A disc jockey and two companions battled for survival high on Mount Rainier today after a suffocating blizzard halted their charity climb and helicopter rescue attempts failed.

Eight feet of snow fell on the climbers over the weekend, destroying their tent and forcing them to take refuge in sleeping bags nestled in a crevasse "bigger than a basketball gymnasium."

Four rescue flights by a Chinook helicopter from Fort Lewis failed Monday when the aircraft could not land because of fog and blowing snow, said Maj. Ralph Paduano. Flights were to resume at daybreak.

The climbers, who are unable to descend because their ice axes were buried in the deep snow and because there is a threat of an avalanche, are trapped near the summit of the 14,410-foot mountain.

A specially equipped and trained four-man rescue team was to set out early today from 10,000-foot Camp Muir, said Mount Rainier National Park spokesman Larry Henderson.

Disc jockey Terry MacDonald, 31, who initiated the climb to raise money for the fight against muscular dystrophy, was filing regular reports to KYYX-FM in Seattle when the trek began last Tuesday.

The broadcasts from the mountain continued until Saturday morning, when the climbers began to concentrate on survival, said station general manager Bob Bingham.

The charity climb had netted pledges of $27,000, Bingham said.

In a two-way radio interview late Monday with The Associated Press, MacDonald said he and his guides were lucky to be alive.

"It's been an incredible experience..." he said. "Today, we almost died three times."

"We woke up at three o'clock in the morning, and it snowed all night long and covered our tent, including the door. We couldn't get any air. We woke up and none of us could breathe. We tried to light a candle, but no one could get any matches to light."

With MacDonald were guides Rob Newsome and Dave Bishop of the North Cascades Alpine School in Bellingham, Wash.

MacDonald said four feet of snow fell Friday night, and three more came down over the weekend.

By Monday, the tent was covered with "about eight feet of snow... and was crumbling," he said. "We had to put ourselves on ropes and walk down into what was basically a blizzard."

"I thought it was all over. And fortunately, from out of nowhere, came a crevasse. So right now, we're laying in a crevasse bigger than a basketball gymnasium. I'd say it's about 80 feet deep and about 160 feet wide. It's a beautiful spot."

The blustery winter-like storm also prevented rangers from recovering the body of another climber, who died after falling into a crevasse elsewhere on the mountain.

MENDING MATURE MARRIAGE

Tension from tight budget

By Louise Pierce

Sometimes you just plain have to sneak up on your middle-aged mate to get agreement on a project so special to you that you'd fight for it but hope you won't have to.

I've lived on a strict budget all my life, allowing only for necessities, letting luxuries wait for windfalls, which seldom came. For instance, make-up was always adequate but cheap. Last week I was intrigued by the creamy cheeks of the lovely ladies in my beauty shop, as compared to my own dry, flaky face. Before I could stop myself, I had hauled out my checkbook and frittered away a scandalous amount for little bottles and jars. I toted the sack home and applied the new make-up — with amazing, satisfying results.

Of course, the month's budget had been figured to the dollar. (The cent-set went out with present-day inflation.) Neither Otis nor I was supposed to violate the painfully-perfect plan for living within our means, at least not to any appreciable extent. Now I had done exactly that. When he whistled himself into my office that night, I asked, "Have you noticed my poor complexion lately?" He nodded. "Yes, sometimes you look a little flakey," I queried. "What would you think of my taking $15 or $25 or even more out of our nest egg and spending it on new make-up, sometime this month or next?" He usually agrees to extravagant future plans until they get to be present ones. He smiled indulgently. "Sure, honey. Fix up your face." And I said, "Thanks. I already have." It worked. We both laughed. One of these days I'm going to do it again.

Things I always check on when I use this strategy are: (1) certainty that my plan is feasible. If it involves a cash outlay, I know we have plenty of money squirreled away and neither of us will be really inconvenienced; (2) knowledge that my plan won't upset Otis' business schedule, which is our principal source of income — meaning that I wouldn't make a dinner date without consulting his calendar; and (3) surety that he is in a happy, receptive mood for my news. It's been beautiful so far.

In these days of independence and separate incomes for young wives, a youthful husband (30 years old or younger) seldom holds the tight reins on the purse strings that the "head of the house" did when that's what he was. Now it's share and share alike, in money, in house chores, in child care and what have you.

We older wives usually started out wrong, back in the Depression days, and never changed the pattern. I've had saddening notes in this regard.

DEAR LOUISE: Rob and I have to watch our spending real close because all we have to live on is our Social Security and his pension that's less than we thought it would be because things cost so much now. But we're far from poverty-stricken. We could live better than we do without going on relief. When we were young, Rob was real generous with me. But now he checks the bills for everything and raises the roof if I've spent more in a week than he allotted for it. He won't even let me get new underwear or pantyhose because he says nobody sees ragged bras or slips — and pantyhose don't show under slacks, no matter how many runners they have. The only thing he doesn't fuss about is the grocery bill because he loves to eat. So lately I've been writing my supermarket check for a few dollars extra and pocketing the difference. That's how I get my old shoes half-soled and sometimes a new dress that I tell Rob a friend gave me. Am I wrong to keep lying to him to get the things I really need without breaking up our marriage? Rob's Wife.

DEAR R's W: I can't condone lying under any circumstances. Are you sure Rob would divorce you if he found out you'd spend a dollar now and then for decent-dressing's sake? Why don't you have a long discussion with him, sharing happy memories of the years when you both dressed well and enjoyed life more than you do now? Remind him of his old generosity and ask him if he doesn't wish he could be that good to you now. If he says yes, tell him he is already doing it. At such a low cost that you hope he'll approve it from now on. If he refuses, find yourself a job baby-sitting or sewing or other work you can do — and spend your own income in your own way. But stay together, you and Rob. Nothing short of murder, mayhem or complete mis-matching is worth breaking up a mature marriage.

TWEEN 12 AND 20

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D.

Dr. Wallace: My sister and I are tired of being used. We cook all the meals, do all the dishes, do all the garden work, and baby-sit our younger brother and sister.

But what's wrong here is that we are never paid. Not only that, we are never asked to do anything — we are told. When our parents yell, we are supposed to drop whatever we are doing and run to see what they want.

We have seriously considered running away but we would only be caught and returned to the "work farm."

I know you can't help us but if you would print our letter, maybe our parents might read it and change their Scroogie ways. — Twins, Columbus, Ohio

Twins: Hopefully your parents will read your letter and mend their foolish ways. Because they are foolish.

ish. Teens should share the load, not carry it.

Dr. Wallace: I'm an 18-year-old girl who is very ugly and I'm flat as a board. I have never kissed a guy, only my father.

Well, I recently met a real cute guy who rides a motorcycle. All the girls like him, but I somehow think that he likes me.

He is now in the hospital and I think that I'll go and see him. Should I tell him that I like him? — Desiree, Burlington, Iowa

Desiree: By all means stop by and see this boy in the hospital, but don't say anything about liking him. Let's face it, if what you say is true, this boy is out of your league when it comes to dating.

Start out dating a boy who is not quite so popular with the girls. It will save a lot of disappointment on your part.

Dr. Wallace: I'm writ-

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I don't have a problem, but my friend suggested I write for a consultation on what she thinks is a most unusual situation. She couldn't believe it when I told her that my husband and I have been happily married for nine years and have never consummated our marriage.

I am a physician who prefers to practice in the United States, and my husband is a career officer in a foreign military service, based abroad, 3,000 miles away. We are both in our 30s. We see each other only three times a year for a week at a time. We knew how little time we would have together, but married anyway because we truly love each other.

We express our love by hugging and kissing, but always stop short of completing the act of love because we agree it's easier to live in total abstinence than open ourselves up to insufferable frustrations during our long separations.

We are a well-adjusted, heterosexual couple without organic dysfunctions or psychological hang-ups. We are living proof that a sexless marriage can be fulfilling. Some may think we're weird. Perhaps you do.

My friend insisted that I get a prescription from Dear Abby. However, I don't think there's anything wrong that needs fixing. What is your opinion?

DOING FINE WITHOUT

DEAR DOING FINE: Yours is a most unusual case, doctor. But if you and your husband are totally fulfilled in a sexless marriage, I agree — there's nothing that needs fixing. I can only wish you continued abstinence, because if you ever find out what you've been missing, you may kill yourself.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are fit to be tied! Our son is also angry. My sister says we are making something out of nothing. Here is the situation:

My sister's daughter will be married soon. It will be a semi-large affair. Our older son (30) and his wife received an invitation to attend the wedding.

Our youngest son (26) is unmarried and presently living with us. He did not receive a separate invitation. Instead, my husband and I received an invitation addressed to MR. AND MRS. JOHN SMITH AND SON.

My son also feels that he should be allowed to bring a date. Who is right and who is wrong?

J.S.

DEAR J.S.: As an adult, your son should have been sent a separate invitation. However, unless he has a steady girlfriend, he should not dig up a "date" for the occasion.

DR. LAMB

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Would you please comment on leaky heart valves? My doctor tells me I have a dysfunction of my heart valve caused by scarlet fever in childhood. Would you explain damage to the mitral valve or the aortic valve and how these problems can be corrected? I'm a 55-year-old male.

DEAR READER — Your doctor thinks you've had rheumatic fever with the complication of rheumatic heart disease. Scarlet fever is a streptococcal infection, a strep throat associated with a rash. When these conditions are not treated adequately at the beginning, a person may develop rheumatic fever.

In your childhood, it wasn't widely known that the real cause for rheumatic fever was streptococcal infections. And it wasn't known that administration of penicillin whenever a person had such an infection would prevent rheumatic fever.

Proper treatment has had a lot to do with the closing of many hospitals once devoted almost exclusively to treating rheumatic heart disease in children. It's one of the great successes in preventing heart disease.

The heart valves can actually be damaged or scarred by the inflammation. Normally the little valves in your heart close perfectly to prevent leakage of blood. They are really flap-like valves. If the flaps are damaged, they can't close properly and the leak follows.

The mitral valve is between the upper and lower chambers on the left side of your heart. If it leaks, every time the left ventricle (the heavy pumping chamber) contracts to eject blood out to your arteries, it also squirts blood backward into the upper chamber of the heart.

The aortic valve is situated at the outlet of the left ventricle at the entrance to the aorta, the large artery that carries blood to the entire body except the lungs. If it leaks, the blood will be squirted out into your arteries but some of it will leak back into the heart. This affects the blood pressure and can overwork the left side of the heart. If the damage is slight, the heart is able to compensate for this and a person might not notice any significant changes. It's interesting to note that people with damaged heart valves — both aortic and mitral — have held athletic records.

There's not much else that can be done for these valves except surgical correction if needed. You have to rely on studies of how your heart is working as a pump to determine whether you need surgery.

Of course, anyone who has heart-valve defects should be certain to take antibiotics any time he has a respiratory infection, an operation or even has his teeth cleaned. This helps to prevent infections to the heart valve that can cause more serious damage.

Readers who want The Health Letter number 13-2, How To Measure Your Risk Of Heart Disease, can send 75 cents in check or coin with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Former residents pay visit to city

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Miller of Sheridan, Ore., residents of Pampa in the late 1920s, are in the city visiting his uncle, R.J. Sailor.

Miller worked for Jones-Everett Machine Shop and for the city when they lived in Pampa.

The couple moved to Oregon in 1930, where Miller retired from the grocery business. The couple soon will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary.

During an extended vacation, they have made stops from Portland, Ore., to Portland, Maine. They are on their way to visit their son in Albuquerque, N.M., and from there will fly to Mexico City.

Big Apple makes come-back as set for motion pictures

New York City is making a come-back as a motion picture set.

Marking the greatest back-to-back film program ever planned in New York City, producer Robert Stigwood ("Saturday Night Fever," "Grease" and "Jesus Christ Superstar," among others) has said he'll produce four major films here in the next 18 months.

The four films, which will carry an overall budget in excess of $25 million, include "Times Square," a youth-oriented drama with an emphasis on music; "The Fan," starring Lauren Bacall, based on Bob Randall's best-selling suspense thriller set against the background of the Broadway theatrical world;

"Angel," set in the barrios of East Harlem, with direction and choreography by Patricia Birch ("Grease"); and "Stayin' Alive," a romantic drama.

Mayor Ed Koch paid tribute to Stigwood by saying, "I salute Robert Stigwood for his good judgment in continuing the use of New York City as the greatest movie set in the world. This is another example of the expanding revival of movie-making in New York City."

"In 1978, there were a record 79 feature films and made-for-TV movies produced in The Big Apple, and 1979 promises to be even better. New York City is truly a 'star' among movie-making cities."

Energy conferees are staging return bout

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate energy conferees, among the scrappiest and most long-winded combatants in Washington, are staging a return bout.

The main event: an attempt to produce a compromise standby gasoline rationing and energy conservation bill. Work gets underway within the next few days.

Participants are largely the same two groups that fumed, argued and battled their way to a compromise energy bill in 1978.

That effort began in 1977 and it was nearly a full year before the work was finished and a compromise produced.

So when congressional leaders predict a short conference, as they have been doing, few on Capitol Hill seem to be taking them seriously.

House-Senate energy conferees deadlocked and brawled so much in their last encounter it took the intervention of President Carter to cool tempers and keep the talks from collapsing entirely.

Squaring off for the new battle are the same leaders of the Senate and House teams as in 1977-78: chairmen Henry M. Jackson of the Senate Energy Committee and Harley O. Staggers of the House Commerce Committee.

Jackson, a Washington Democrat, declared from the outset that he thought the House-passed rationing bill was "riddled with loopholes" and "completely unacceptable" to either him or the Senate.

A top Jackson aide, promised anonymity, was asked several days ago how long it would take to reach agreement. "As long as it takes for the House side to agree to dump all the garbage the House put in the bill," the aide said.

Staggers, a West Virginia Democrat, also approaches the negotiations with his position clear. "I'm against all forms of gasoline rationing. It only leads to corruption," he recently told a reporter.

Another leading House Democrat on the panel said he would give his assessment of the situation if his name wasn't used. "I'm fed up with the whole thing," he said.

Even after agreement is reached on rationing, there will be other parts of President Carter's energy bills to negotiate.

Congress is officially expected to quit for the year Oct. 20. But no one believes that, either.

"Probably, when Congress does recess around Christmas, the energy conferees will be left behind to work," one energy aide said.

That happened, too, in 1977, with dubious results.

Not only did the conferees not produce a compromise bill as a result of staying in town during the Christmas recess, but an unfortunate well-wisher dressed as Santa Claus mistakenly walked into the room where the conference committee was meeting.

He was booted out of the room by an irate Staggers.

After all, this is a tough group.

Rebels vow to fight on

MAHABAD, Iran (AP) — Kurdish rebels vowed to fight on as they withdrew into the hills from Mahabad and Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's forces prepared to occupy the fourth major rebel center they have conquered in northwest Iran.

A ranking official of the banned Kurdish Democratic Party said the tribal warriors were retreating to Sardasht, another mountain stronghold 50 miles south of Mahabad and close to the Iraqi border, and would deliver a "severe blow" there to government forces.

"We were hoping we could draw the army into an engagement inside Mahabad, but unfortunately they did not bite. No we are going to concentrate our forces in Sardasht where they can't use their tanks so effectively," the official, who declined to be named, said.

Heavy firing could be heard into the night echoing over the rugged hills surrounding Mahabad. The Kurds were still pounding away with howitzers and recoilless rifles as they withdrew, and government tanks fired salvos back.

Observers said the government forces apparently didn't want to enter the Mahabad at night and probably would make their final push into the city at daybreak.

The attack on the city started shortly after midnight Sunday when air force Phantom jets rocketed the military garrison in Mahabad that the rebels had occupied since March in their new drive for home rule. The planes returned at dawn and again rocketed the garrison, this time setting it ablaze.

By noon Monday, the 81st Armored Division and the 64th Infantry Division were visible in the distance from rooftops, and the Kurds began to withdraw. Advance government units from the south, mostly tanks, arrived close to the city at nightfall, closing the ring about the city.

Army commanders claimed their forces had entered Mahabad "victoriously" and had been welcomed by the people. But most of the 100,000 population had fled before the fighting started. There was no sign of troops near the main square Monday night, and several armed Kurds were still moving about the streets.

The government claimed its forces suffered no casualties and that an undetermined number of Kurds had been killed.

Wind may solve energy problems

A seventh-century Persian invention taken to China by Genghis Khan and adopted across Europe by the returning Crusaders will enable a group of Navajo children in Arizona to attend school in their own community this year for the first time.

By the year 2,000, it is expected to provide this country with about 17 quadrillion British thermal units of energy a year. That would be less than 2 percent of the nation's total energy consumption, but with today's oil prices every little bit helps.

The ancient windmill thus provides some hope for the future. "The windmills did a good job and still do a good job," said W. W. Duitman, secretary of agriculture in Kansas, where for years the machines have been pumping water for livestock and now new ones are being built to generate electricity.

The federal government budgeted $60 million for windmill research this year — as compared with only $1 million just five years ago — and a number of private companies are involved in multi-million-dollar projects of their own.

Perched 4420 feet high on Howard's Knob near Boone, N.C., is the Goliath of the world's operating wind turbines, a $3.5 million, 350-ton machine with blades 100 feet long. Dedicated in July, it was built by the General Electric Space Division for the U.S. Department of Energy and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Expected to supply enough energy for 300 to 500 homes when it goes into full operation this fall — that's 10 times the peak power of any existing windmill — it is controlled by NASA computers 35 miles away in Lenoir, N.C., collecting data for the Department of Energy.

With the Boone mill still in its testing stage, authorities still don't know whether it will generate as much power as expected.

This time of year winds are slack, but that is about as we expected," said Bud Ayers, a spokesman for Blue Ridge Electric Membership Corp. "But I don't know of any particular problem that has caused us deep concern."

Whether it works or not, the giant windmill is such an oddity that tourists come from all over to look at it. Watkuaga County plans to build a 54-acre park at the site.

When the 1,500 Navajos of the remote Birdsprings reservation 60 miles east of Flagstaff, Ariz., decided to build a school for their children, the U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs insisted it must have electrical power. But the Indians discovered it would cost about $100,000 to bring in electricity from the outside and that was beyond the reach of a community dependent on sheep herding and farming.

So with the Indians supplying free labor, they built a wind system. Two windmills revolve on twin 50-foot-high towers, charging batteries that will last three to four days if necessary. It cost $20,000.

This fall the Navajo children, many of whom were sent to schools as far as 250 miles away, will attend classes at the Little Singer School, named for a medicine man who before his death made Indian leaders promise to build their own school.

Clayton, N.M., population 2,978, claimed to be the first community partly powered by wind in January 1977, when a two-bladed windmill hooked into the city-owned utility system. The mill spins enough electricity for about 30 homes and is a source of community pride. A restaurant changed its name to "The Windmill Cafe" and had a mural of the mill painted on its wall.

Louis Divine, chief of the Department of Energy's Wind System Branch, said it presently costs three times more to generate electricity by wind systems than with conventional systems, mainly because of the expense of building the mills. But with mass production of mills and the rising fuel costs, wind power is expected to become cost-competitive with other systems by the mid-1980s.

But the efficiency of windmills depends on the velocity of winds and that varies from place to place.

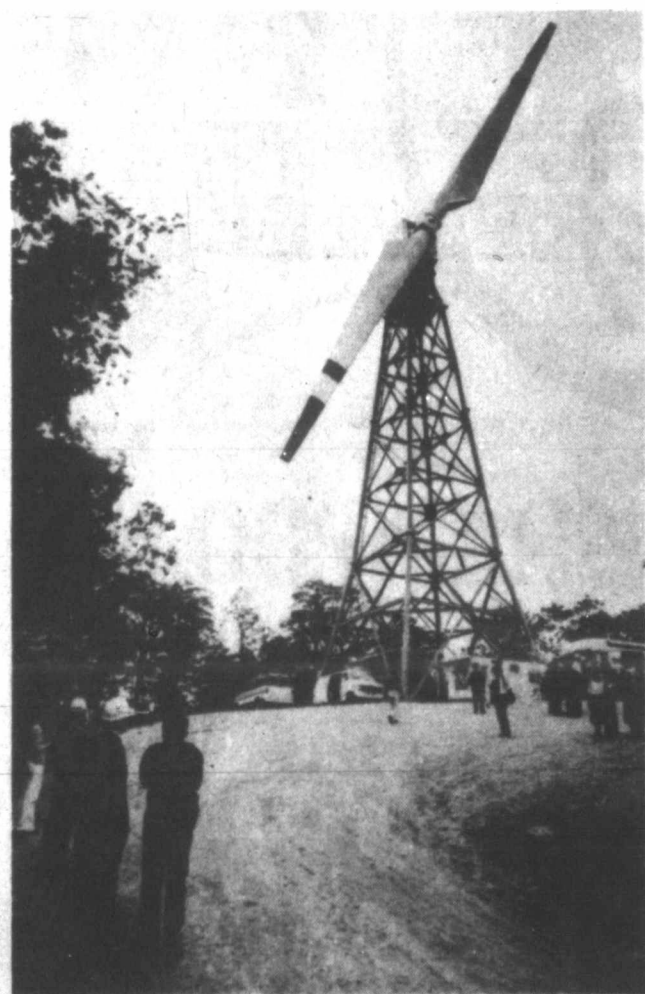

Atop the roof of its Miami Beach test lab on the McArthur Causeway, Florida Power and Light Co. operates a 2,500-watt experimental windmill called Mariah. But over a one-year period, the windmill produced only $63 worth of electricity, figured at 4 cents per kilowatt hour.

In California, there are two state agencies dealing with windmills, the Wind Energy Office, promoting big projects, and the Office of Appropriate Technology, involved in individual requests for assistance.

John Nichols, manager of wind energy, said the State Legislature has set a goal of "10 percent of electrical energy from wind power by the year 2000."

"We are mapping and surveying and determining the proper sites for windmill farms," Nichols said. "We're supposed to get hundreds of sites here in California."

But Arthur Blake, supervisor of load management projects at Southern California Edison, doesn't foresee much impact from wind power until windmills come down in cost.

Wheat farmers holding onto stored grain

WASHINGTON (AP) — Latest figures show that most wheat farmers recently have been holding onto grain they have in the government's three-year reserve program, despite a cutoff on June 30 of federal storage payments.

Agriculture Department officials say that for many of the farmers with wheat in storage, no other choice exists because of transportation snarls caused by strikes and a backlog of shipping orders to help move the oncoming fall harvest of corn and soybeans.

William T. Cherry of the department's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service said many farmers also "are just waiting to see" whether market prices will improve later on.

"But in some areas like the upper Midwest it's a matter of getting transportation to move the grain," Cherry said. "That's also true of other grain in the reserve that they might like to unload."

At its peak, the reserve program included about 732 million bushels of corn; 413 million bushels of wheat and much lesser amounts of barley oats and sorghum.

The concept involves a farmer agreeing to put grain in storage under federal price-support loan for up to three years to keep it off the market and help boost prices. If market prices go up to specified trigger levels, however, the producer has the option of repaying the loan, redeeming his grain and then selling it as he chooses.

Prices of all the reserve commodities have been at or above the trigger or "release" levels for some time.

As of Aug. 24, after 10 weeks of being in release status, wheat farmers had redeemed about 149.4 million bushels, about 36.2 percent of the 413 million they originally had in the program.

Corn producers had redeemed by then about 163.6 million bushels, 22.4 percent of the 732 million they had in storage.

Thus, wheat farmers — although they had much less total grain in the program than corn producers — have redeemed a larger share of their grain for sale on the market.

The release price for wheat was set at $3.29 a bushel. It hit that mark in May and for a time climbed further, reaching a five-day "moving average" of $4.08 a bushel on June 27.

On July 2, USDA announced wheat would continue in release status at least through July 31 at which time, under the rules, farmers would cease earning federal storage payments.

The payments, made at the rate of 25 cents a bushel for an entire year, were made to farmers in advance when they signed up in the reserve program.

Most of the contracts date from early 1978, meaning that those will expire — even if the wheat is not redeemed — early in 1981.

If a farmer signed up in the reserve last Oct. 1, for example, he collected an entire year's federal storage payment in advance. But with the cutoff on July 31, that means the farmer "earned" only 10 months of the payments.

When a producer in this case decides to redeem his grain, officials said, he will have to repay the unearned federal storage payments.

Wheat prices declined in July, dropping to $3.53 a bushel for the five-day moving market average on July 31. Although the market was erratic at times in August, the five-day average by the end of the month was $3.79 a bushel.

Some department officials had thought that when storage earnings were terminated as of July 31 it would lead to farmers stepping up redemptions greatly.

That has not occurred so far, according to USDA figures. When prices were around $4 a bushel earlier this summer, farmers were redeeming wheat at the rate of 20 million bushels or more each week.

Whether because of the decline in prices, the transportation problems or other reasons, redemptions recently have been a trickle. For example, only 2.6 million bushels were redeemed in the week that ended on Aug. 24.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Qualified organizations have until Oct. 15 to nominate candidates as members or alternates on the American Egg Board, says the Agriculture Department.

The 18-member board administers a national research and promotion program financed by egg producers who pay assessments on their sales of eggs. The department monitors the program and certifies organizations eligible to nominate the board's members.

Terms of nine members and their alternates expire at the end of this year. The new terms will run through 1981.

Nominations can be sent to Thomas H. Porter, Director, Livestock, Poultry, Grain and Seed Division, AMS, Room 2631-S, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Livestock producers received $1.3 million in July under the Agriculture Department's emergency feed program to help them recover from losses due to bad weather and other natural disasters.

Officials said that since this fiscal year began last Oct. 1 about $62.5 million in livestock feed aid has been distributed. In 1977-78, the first year of the program, the aid totaled $169.4 million over the entire 12 months.

RICHARD ELLIS cracks another long tee shot during the final round of championship play in the Top O' Texas Invitational golf tournament Monday at the Pampa Country Club. Ellis carded a 7-under-par 277 to win the title for the second time.

Ellis takes Top O' Texas title

By RANDY LIGHTFOOT
News Sports Editor

Ten years ago, Richard Ellis, a 1966 graduate of Pampa High School who now lives in Plano, fired a four-round total of 271 to win the Top O' Texas Invitational golf tournament at the Pampa Country Club.

Last year he returned to PCC and finished in fifth place tie after carding a two-over 286. This year, he fired consistent rounds of 68, 70, 70 and 69 and fought a fierce duel over the final 18 holes with first round leader Bill Turner to claim his second title in 10 years with a 7-under 277.

"I was surprised I won here," Ellis said while absorbing a cold drink following the 36-hole final day marathon. "I didn't think I had it anymore, but I guess I did."

Going into the final 18 holes of play, Ellis was two strokes out of the lead as Jimmy Nickell had emerged from the pack with a sterling 66 in the morning round to lead with a 205. Turner was in second with a 206 followed by Ellis at 207. Steve LaCrosse was in fourth at 211 and defending champion Ladd Larsen, playing in the foursome in front of the leaders was at 212.

Larsen quickly put himself back into contention with birdies on three of the first four holes and scorched the front nine in a 4-under 31. That put him 5-under for the tournament and only three shots back with nine holes to play.

While Larsen was burning up the course in front of him, Nickell was shooting himself out of contention with bogey fives on the second, fourth, sixth and ninth holes. Turner collected birdies on numbers 1 and 9 and held a two-stroke lead over Ellis at the turn.

Turner hit out of bounds on the 13th and ended with a near-disastrous double-bogey 7 as Ellis moved into a tie with his par and Larsen's birdie on the same hole put him just one shot behind the leaders. Turner retook the lead two holes later with a birdie 3 on the 15th. He immediately fell back into a tie on the 16th with a bogey 4.

The pivotal hole of the match was number 17. Larsen and Turner both missed relatively short putts for par and settled for bogey 5's, but Ellis came through with a birdie 3 to grab a two-shot advantage which he held with an easy par on the final hole.

Larsen hit a tremendous chip shot onto the 18th green to pick up a birdie 4. When Turner parred the hole it dropped him into a tie for second with Larsen and forced a sudden death playoff which Turner won with a birdie 3 on the third extra hole.

Nickell finished the final round with a three-over 74 for a 280 total in grabbing fourth place.

Alan McNally needed one extra hole, but his five-under 66 propelled him the top spot in the first flight with a three-round total of 214. He tied with Jerry Staggs at the end of regulation after Staggs finished with an even-par 71.

Tom Fulton finished third in the highly competitive flight with a 215 and Pampa's Elmer Wilson was fourth at 217.

Borg advances in U.S. Open

NEW YORK (AP) — Dick Stockton was full of surprises, both for himself and Bjorn Borg, although, in the end, the result was anything but surprising.

Stockton extended Borg, the world's top player and the No. 1 seed at the U.S. Open tennis championships, to four sets Monday before bowing 6-4, 1-6, 7-6, 7-5. Borg thus advanced to the quarterfinals where he'll meet either fifth-seed Roscoe Tanner, whom he beat in a five-set final at Wimbledon in July, or No. 14 Tim Gullikson.

"I was a little surprised the way Dick was playing," said the Swede who has won four consecutive Wimbledon championships but has never won the U.S. Open. "That's the best match he's ever played against me. He was serving well and covering the net real well, which gave me problems to pass. I needed almost perfect passing shots."

Today's matches featured four all-American men's singles confrontations. Aside from Tanner-Gullikson, No. 2 seed Jimmy Connors, the defending champion, battled No. 11 Brian Gottfried. No. 3 John McEnroe played unseeded Tom Gorman, and No. 7 Harold Solomon took on unseeded Pat DuPre. The top women's matches had No. 1 Chris Evert Lloyd against unseeded Sherry Acker, No. 3 Tracy Austin versus No. 11 Kathy Jordan and Kerry Reid of Australia, the eighth-seed, against unranked Anne Smith.

The most exciting match of the day involved two unseeded youngsters, 21-year-old Johan Kriek of South Africa and 19-year-old Yannick Noah of France. The 5-foot-7 Kriek, a hard-serving, lightning-quick performer, won the first two sets 6-3, 6-3 before Noah, the French protégé of Arthur Ashe, took the next two sets 6-4, 6-1. Kriek won the fifth set 6-4.

The unseeded Stockton, 28, was the first player to give Borg problems here. Borg had won his first three matches losing just 11 games in nine sets.

Patient Eddie Dibbs, the No. 9 seed, upset No. 6 Guillermo Vilas of Argentina 6-3, 5-7, 7-5, 6-1. Joining Borg, Kriek and Dibbs in the quarterfinals was Vitas Gerulaitis, a 7-6, 6-2, 6-2 victor over 10th-seeded Jose-Luis Clerc of Argentina.

Martina Navratilova, seeded second, blasted No. 10 Greer Stevens of South Africa 6-2, 6-2, while fifth-seeded Evonne Goolagong Cawley stopped Jeanne DuVall 6-3, 3-6, 6-0 and No. 9 Billie Jean King beat Kathy May Teacher 6-3, 6-0.

Steelers nip Patriots 16-13 in overtime

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — You can play perfect football for 59 minutes, but make one mistake against the Pittsburgh Steelers and you can pack it up and go home with a loss.

That's what makes them champions. That's what the New England Patriots have to live with.

They played well — very well — against Terry Bradshaw's passing game virtually all night. But a mistake here, a slip-up there, and the noose began to tighten.

They clamped down on Franco Harris' pile driver running, but when they paused to take a breath, he and Sidney Thornton ran by them like locomotives.

They reveled in Matt Bahr's erratic right foot, but when they tried to rattle the rookie once too often, he just shrugged and kicked their teeth in.

"In a situation like that, the tough guys just naturally come out," said Bradshaw, whose 21-yard touchdown pass to Thornton tied the game with 4:09 to go in regulation play Monday night and whose canny play-calling put Bahr in position to win it 16-13 at 5:10 of overtime with a 41-yard field goal.

"We just made up our minds and did it," added Bradshaw, one of those "tough guys" who played most of the game with a painfully sprained toe but who still managed to complete 15 of 26 passes for 221 yards.

Bahr, the rookie from Penn State who started his pro career raggedly when his first extra point attempt after Thornton had scored the Steelers' first TD on a 2-yard run was just plain bad, left Pittsburgh trailing 7-6.

And his first try at a pro field goal, a 43-yarder with Pittsburgh trailing 13-6 in the third period, was equally poor.

But when it mattered, when he had to prove that the Steelers' decision to hand Roy Gerela his walking papers was a sound one, he came through perfectly.

His kick was dead-center and easily 10 yards longer than it had to be, this despite a timeout called by the Patriots in an attempt to build the already awesome pressure.

If it can be said that one good kick won it for the Steelers, it is equally true that one bad one lost it for the Patriots.

EHare, like Bahr a rookie, had been booming punts all night, 50 yards and more. But with five minutes to play in the fourth period and the Pats still clinging to their 13-6 lead, the kid from Tulsa shanked one, driving it a measly 14 yards to the New England 34.

That is the essence of the Steelers, the way they can lay back and wait for the other team to make the mistake, then call on some inner reserve for the plays, the yards, the victories.

In the overtime, after the Pats went nowhere with the kickoff and Hare punted 40 yards to the Steeler 31, Harris and Thornton took turns taking Bradshaw handoffs and chewing up the yards, 17 of them in one chunk by Thornton, 11 by Harris in a sweep. Finally the ball was on the Patriots' 24, and then it was through the uprights.

"We should have won the game," said Patriots safety Tim Fox. "We won it five times — and lost it six times."

In other weekend games: Falcons 40, Saints 34, OT Reserve running back James Mayberry picked up a desperation pass after a snap on a punt sailed over the head of Russell Erxleben and ran it in for a touchdown nine minutes into sudden death overtime to win their third straight nip-and-tuck contest with the Saints.

Chiefs 14, Colts 0

Ted McKnight took care of the Kansas City offense with touchdown runs of 1 and 70 yards while Gary Green made two key first-half defensive plays to help secure the win over Baltimore.

Chargers 33, Seahawks 16 Clarence Williams ran for two touchdowns and Rolfe Benirschke kicked four field goals to lead San Diego over Seattle.

Bears 6, Packers 3 Bob Thomas kicked field goals of 25 and 19 yards in the second quarter, while the Chicago defense held Green Bay to a third-period field goal by Chester Marcol.

Browns 25, Jets 22, OT

Don Cockroft booted a 27-yard field goal with 15 seconds left in sudden death overtime after tying the game with a 35-yarder 4 seconds from the end of regulation as Cleveland took their second overtime victory over New York in two seasons.

Oilers 29, Redskins 27 Earl Campbell scored his second touchdown of the game with 1:57 remaining to cap a 16-point fourth quarter and give Houston a come-from-behind win over Washington.

Dolphins 9, Bills 7 Larry Csonka bulled one yard for the only touchdown of the game and ran 16 times for 87 yards in his first game with the Dolphins since 1974. Ewe von Schumann, who kicked his first NFL field goal, missed an extra point and had another field goal try blocked. Buffalo cornerback Charles Rome returned it 76 yards for the score.

Vikings 28, 49ers 22

Sammy White recovered a San Francisco fumble in the end zone with 17 seconds left for the winning points, after Minnesota teammate Ahmad Rashad caught four touchdown passes from quarterback Tommy Kramer.

Cowboys 22, Cardinals 21 Rafael Septien's third field goal of the game from 27 yards out with 1:16 left to play gave Dallas its 15th straight Opening Day victory.

Broncos 10, Bengals 0 Following veteran Jim Turner's 37-yard field goal in the second quarter, Norris Weese passed six yards to running back Dave Preston in the third. The closest Cincinnati came to scoring was the Denver 1 yard line where they were stopped on third and fourth down.

Raiders 24, Rams 17

Oakland's Ken Stabler capitalized on two Los Angeles turnovers by throwing a pair of third-quarter touchdowns to Raymond Chester — one to tie the game and the other to win it.

Eagles 23, Giants 17

Ron Jaworski hit Harold Chalmichael twice for TDs as Philadelphia scored all its points in the second quarter. New York, which made a habit of scoring 17 points a game in 1978 — doing it seven times — took a brief lead on a first-quarter field goal by Joe Danelo.

Buccaneers 31, Lions 16 Rookie running back Jerry Eckwood rambled for a club-record 121 of Tampa Bay's 229 ground yardage as they took advantage of many of Detroit's mistakes in Saturday's only game.

BOB DUNBAR, the age 40-49 winner in the inaugural Pampa News Marathon and second place finisher overall, is administered to by a fellow runner after developing leg cramps at the end of the 26-plus mile run. (News photo by Gary Clark)

Pampa News Marathon termed a success

Terry Thomas and Bob Dunbar blazed across the finish line virtually side by side to win their division titles during the first running of the Pampa News Marathon Monday morning.

Thomas, of Borger, clocked the best time of the event posting an amazing time of two hours, forty-five minutes to complete the 26 mile course. Dunbar, of Amarillo, ran stride for stride with Thomas during the race and finished one second behind the leader after pulling up at the finish line with leg cramps.

More than 50 runners turned out for the event which got underway at 7 a.m. when Miss Pampa Angela Day fired the starting gun to set the runners off in the three combined races.

Runners came from as far away as Dallas for the event and many were waiting in the street before 5 a.m. in preparation for their event.

While most runners found the race easy going, several had difficulty in following the course becoming lost as they re-entered the city on Browning Street.

"You just couldn't find your way back," one runner said. "The course was good but it could have been marked a lot better."

Nearly all the marathon runners complained of the Texas heat that reached 85 degrees before the last entries crossed the finish line.

"It (the heat) took a lot out of me," Second place finisher Tommy Slaughter said. "It was really hot."

"I was worried about the aid stations being there with water, but they were really placed good."

Slaughter explained that most beginning races forget water stations or spread them out at long distances.

Service organizations from Pampa joined with the staff of the Pampa News in organizing the event. Members of the Pampa Jaycees, The Pampa Optimists and The Pampa React Team manned aid stations at three mile intervals along the race course providing water and assistance to runners.

The Pampa Police Department trailed runners to make sure of traffic control for the event while Metropolitan Ambulance set up four medical units to aid runners along the course.

Greg Hardin, marathon promoter, said some problems will have to be worked out before the next marathon.

"This was our first year to hold a marathon and we learned a lot about staging the event," Hardin said. "We learned many things by the experience and will be forming a race committee this week to begin planning for next year's race."

All proceeds from the race go to the United Way Fund Drive in Pampa.

Twitty claims B. C. Open

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (AP) — Howard Twitty can only hope that his victory in the B.C. Open will do for him what it did for Gil Morgan two years ago.

Until Morgan won the 1977 B.C. Open the optometrist from Wevoka, Okla., had never won a pro golf tournament in his career. After that victory, he went on a winning spree that saw him win the World Series of Golf and more than double his income.

He also finished as the second highest money-winner on the tour that year.

Twitty entered the B.C. Open last week in the same position, having come close but never winning a tournament in his four years on the PGA tour. The victory Sunday at the EnJole Golf Club course boosted his 1979 earnings to $167,391.

Twitty, who won $92,409 in 1978, already seems to be following in Morgan's path.

Twitty sank a four-foot putt for a par on the final hole to win the $275,000 tournament, after watching Doug Tewell and Tom Purtzer fail on the same 18th green.

Moments before Twitty's putt, Purtzer bogeyed the 18th to fall 1 stroke behind. Then Tewell had a double bogey to fall 2 strokes behind, leaving it all up to Twitty to at least par the hole and take home the winner's purse of $49,500.

Twitty, of Phoenix, Ariz., had entered Sunday's final round trailing Tewell and Brad Bryant of Amarillo, Texas, by 1 stroke.

Twitty shot a 4-under-par 67 over the 6,915-yard course to finish with a 72-hole total of 270, 14 strokes under par for the tournament.

Springs' passing debut was well rehearsed

DALLAS (AP) — Ron Springs prepared for his National Football League passing debut long before he signed on with the Dallas Cowboys.

"We worked on the halfback pass at Ohio State all the time," said Springs. "But Woody (Hayes) would never let me throw it in a game."

He got his chance Sunday when Cowboy Coach Tom Landry called his number on the halfback pass. Springs rolled to his left, pulled up and launched a left-handed, 30-yard touchdown strike to Tony Hill in Dallas' 22-21 win over the St. Louis Cardinals.

"In training camp, Coach Landry came up to me one day and said he wanted me to throw the ball some."

"I threw the pass again four times last week in practice and completed three of them," I thought I might get a chance to throw it against the Cardinals," Springs said.

Springs, one of seven rookies who made the 1979 Dallas roster, said he got excited when Landry called the play "Fire Toss 28 halfback pass" in the fourth quarter.

"I thought, 'Hey, that's my play.' I wiped my hands on Tony's towel. I took the pitch like it was going to be a run then glanced at the St. Louis secondary. Sure enough, they took the bait and Tony was running free. All I had to do was get the ball out there," said Springs.

"I'm not sure the Cardinals knew I threw the ball left-handed, either," said Springs.

Springs became the starting tailback for the Cowboys because of Tony Dorsett's injured toe.

Springs played sparingly his senior year because of injury and the Cowboys drafted him in the fifth round. Landry was so impressed with Springs that he inserted the rookie into the starting lineup ahead of 13-year veteran Preston Pearson.

Asked to compare the difference in playing for the tempestuous Hayes and the calm Landry, Springs said, "Well, Coach Landry is a cool guy. He gets on me like I was a veteran but it's always low-key. Woody would hit you. Or, at least, he would try. I always ducked."

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

Sept. 5, 1979

This coming year you may be uniquely drawn into a rather strange but profitable partnership arrangement. For best results, secrecy may be required of both parties.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Everything will go along beautifully today unless someone challenges your viewpoints. You won't take too kindly to that and could sound off abrasively. How to get along with other signs is one of the sections you'll enjoy in your new Astro-Graph Letter that begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) The ability to visualize is what it takes to be creative, but it is practical and logical application that makes dreams productive. Don't confuse the two.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your instincts for material gain are extremely acute today, so try to find profitable uses for your hunches. Don't broadcast your ideas, however.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Let compassion rather than practicality govern the way you treat loved ones today. If your sentiments take precedence over criticism, everyone will be happier.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Before attacking the ideas of an associate, be sure you fully understand what he or she is trying to say. Look for the big picture, not the small parts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) INSTEAD of trying to solve a problem for a friend, you will be more helpful if you explain why she has it and let her work it out for herself.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Listen to advice today, but do not give more credence to others' statements than they deserve. Rely upon your own intelligence as well.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) The desire to seek information doesn't necessarily guarantee you'll come up with the right answers. Before applying a new technique, double-check with a second source.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Prior to jumping to the conclusion that a friend would welcome help today, check first. He or she might interpret your action as bullying in as well.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You may be able to see clearly how two people close to you should handle their affairs. But hold your tongue. Your advice won't be welcome.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Because you could have too much on your mind today, you're liable to forget the tiny details that make up the whole picture. You'll have an unfinished portrait.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Give all the advice you want about the philosophical things in life but avoid telling anyone how to handle his financial affairs. You'll end up a scapegoat. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

'Beaning' gives Expos 6-5 win

By the Associated Press

Rodney Scott is a real speed-burner, so it's no surprise when Montreal Manager Dick Williams uses him as a pinch-runner for slow-footed Rusty Staub.

"Let's just say Rodney's a slight bit faster than I am," says Staub with a grin. "You time him with a stopwatch — you time me with a calendar."

But it wasn't Scott's speed that got Montreal's winning run home Monday in the second game of a double-header with the New York Mets. It was his head.

Scott used it to deflect a throw by second baseman Doug Flynn after he was seemingly caught flat-footed in a rundown play between second and third. The ball bounced into left field and Scott raced home to give the Expos a 6-5, 10-inning victory and a sweep of the twinnings.

"The ball hit me right on the back of the head," said Scott, whose team also won the first game, 7-2. "I saw right away where the ball went. I was sure going to try to go all the way home."

The Expos won the opener as Gary Carter keyed a three-run first inning with a two-run homer and Bill Lee, 14-10, and Stan Bahnsen combined on a six-hitter.

Phillies 2-3, Pirates 0-7

Steve Carlton and Tug McGraw teamed up on a one-hitter — Steve Nicosia's sixth-inning double — to lead Philadelphia over Pittsburgh in the opener of their double-header. The opening-game loss snapped a six-game winning streak by the Pirates.

Dale Berra drove in three runs and Jim Rooker gained his 100th career victory as the Pirates beat the Phillies in the second game.

Cardinals 2, Cubs 1

Rookie right-hander John Fulgham hurled a five-hitter to pitch surging St. Louis over Chicago. The victory was the fourth straight and eighth in the last 10 games for the Cardinals.

Fulgham, 8-4, recorded his fourth straight triumph, giving up Chicago's only run on Dave Kingman's double-play grounder in the ninth inning.

Reds 6, Braves 5

Dave Collins' run-scoring single in the eighth led Cincinnati over Atlanta as Gene Garber set a major league record for most losses by a relief pitcher in a season. Garber's loss was his 15th, erasing the record of 14 held by pitchers in both the National and American Leagues, the last by Mike Marshall of Los Angeles in 1975.

Dodgers 1, Astros 0

Jerry Reuss hurled a two-hitter and Joe Ferguson singled in the winning run to lead Los Angeles over Houston. The loss, coupled with Cincinnati's victory over Atlanta, dropped the Astros into second place in the tight NL West race, a half-game behind the Reds.

Houston's Joe Niekro, 18-9, had a no-hitter going through five innings before Johnny Oates singled to open the Dodger sixth. Niekro walked Dusty Baker in the seventh and wild-pitched him to second before Ferguson singled to score Baker.

Padres 3, Giants 0

Dañ Briggs singled and tripled and scored a pair of runs and Gaylord Perry pitched seven shutout innings as San Diego blanked San Francisco.

Perry, 12-11, asked to be taken out after seven complete innings.

Flanagan becomes 1st 20-game winner

By the Associated Press

Mike Flanagan and Nolan Ryan can stop worrying — Flanagan about winning 20 games and Ryan about the condition of his valuable right arm.

Flanagan, the Baltimore left-hander who had to settle for 19 victories a year ago, became a 20-game winner for the first time Monday and the first in the majors this season by defeating the Toronto Blue Jays 5-1 on a seven-hitter to complete a double-header sweep.

The Orioles, who lead the American League East by 8½ games over Milwaukee, won the opener 2-1 on Eddie Murray's tie-breaking bases-loaded single in the 11th inning. The second-place Brewers dropped another half-game off the pace despite a 6-3 triumph over the Oakland A's.

Meanwhile, Ryan, coming back from a late July elbow injury, recorded his 14th victory of the season but only his second since he fired a one-hitter against the New York Yankees on July 13 as the West Division-leading California Angels edged the Chicago White Sox 6-5.

By winning, the Angels maintained their 1½-game lead over Kansas City in the AL West when the Royals nipped the Minnesota Twins 1-0.

Pat Kelly, whose pinch single was turned into the winning run in the first game, led off the second inning of the nightcap with a homer to ignite a four-run outburst that was more than enough for Flanagan, who posted his sixth consecutive victory and 10th in his last 11 decisions. It also was the Orioles' 14th consecutive triumph over Toronto, nine this season.

Angels 6, White Sox 5

Don Baylor hit a three-run homer in the first inning. Bobby Grich added a solo shot in the fourth and the Angels held on behind the relief pitching of Mark Clear, Dave LaRoche and John Montague.

"I threw a lot better, but I still don't know where the ball is going," said Ryan.

Brewers 6, A's 3

Gorman Thomas hit his 38th home run of the season, tops in the American League, and Jim Slaton won his 13th game with help from Jerry Augustine in the eighth as Milwaukee recorded its 17th victory in the last 23 games. The Brewers' Larry Hise, playing his first game since going on the disabled list May 8 with a shoulder injury, opened a two-run seventh inning with a single while Don Money and Cecil Cooper drove in the runs with singles.

Royals 1, Twins 0

Dennis Leonard pitched a four-hitter and struck out nine while U.L. Washington singled home the only run in the eighth inning as Kansas City kept pace with California. Washington singled with two out in the eighth off Geoff Zahn to score Darrell Porter, who drew a leadoff walk, was sacrificed to second and took third on a groundout.

Yankees 10, Red Sox 6

Oscar Gamble and Bobby Murcer hit two-run homers and rookie Brad Gudden drove in three runs with a single and double to help Ron Guidry win his ninth straight game and 15th of the season. Gamble and Murcer connected in the first two innings against Dennis Eckersley, who has surrendered nine home runs to the Yankees in 17 innings this season. Guidry gave up solo homers by Jim Rice and Butch Hobson and needed eighth-inning relief from Ron Davis.

Indians 4, Tigers 3

Mike Hargrove led off the fifth inning with a homer off Jack Morris, breaking a 3-3 tie. Rick Wise, 14-7, scattered five hits, including Ron LeFlore's two-run homer that tied the game in the top of the fifth. Andre Thornton also homered for Cleveland.

Rangers 4, Mariners 1

Home runs by Bump Wills, Willie Montanez and Greg Mahberg powered Texas over Seattle.

AP offices shut down

TEHRAN (AP) — The Iranian government ordered The Associated Press today to close its Tehran office until a new correspondent can be accredited officially through the Iranian Embassy in Washington.

Dr. Ali Behzadnia, foreign press chief of the Ministry of National Guidance, said AP reporting of fighting in western Iran between government troops and Kurdish rebels had been "basically untrue in the previous 48 hours."

"We are unable to verify the AP reports and the government has denied them totally," he said. He also criticized the "general tone" of AP reporting but said he was not obligated to give a full explanation of the government's decision.

Ordered to leave the country within 48 hours were Nicolas B. Tatro, AP's new bureau chief in Tehran, who arrived in the country on a 15-day visa Aug. 28, and his wife Earleen, who was also accredited to The Associated Press in Iran.

Behzadnia said AP could apply at the Iranian embassy in Washington for permanent accreditation for its new correspondent in Iran. He said, "We are not closing the AP forever."

Corning coffee makers pose hazard to user

WASHINGTON (AP) — Corning Glassware Inc. has agreed to ask the owners of 18.5 million coffee makers to stop using them because the handles might come off, posing a risk of scalding burns, a government official says.

John Bell, a spokesman for the Consumer Product Safety Commission, said the agency planned a news conference today to announce details of the Corning plan, which was prompted by consumer complaints.

He said the action involves all 18.5 million coffee makers sold by Corning since 1960.

It is not technically a recall ordered by the commission, Bell said, but a voluntary plan worked out in negotiations between the agency and the Corning N.Y. firm.

However, Bell said, this would be the largest recall-like action involving a single product since the agency was established in 1972.

Although the commission does not expect all 18.5 million coffee makers to be returned, Bell said, it just half that number is returned it would be the largest recall in the commission's history.

Corning spokesmen were not immediately available for comment.

The commission has received about 7,000 complaints since 1972 about handle assemblies separating from the makers, Bell said.

A Word to the Wise... CLASSIFIED ADS REALLY MEASURE UP

When you're in business, the more people that know about you... the more business you'll have. Don't sell our Classifieds short. They can prove a vital selling force for you.
