Snow Paralyzes Midwest Area

By The associated Press

Parts of the Midwest were buried in snow today, with hundreds of schools closed and some downtowns virtually deserted, while the Northeast braced for heavy snow tonight. Californians were told to expect rain in areas where rivers were already at flood stage.

Winds in Indiana began piling up snow drifts along the Ohio River, and Evansville, with 13 inches on the ground by 8 a.m., was "just about stifled," in the words of one weather forecaster.

The University of Evansville, the Evansville campus of Indiana State University and all schools as well as major industries were closed.

Fifteen inches of snow fell in parts of southern Illinois, and one resident in Cairo said "It's like the floor fell out of the sky. It's just incredible."

Cairo merchants closed their businesses and police gave rides to foot travelers along the silent streets.

Managing Editor Jay Scott of the Cairo Evening Citizen said only three employees of the afternoon newspaper were at the office by midmorning and it was not known if the paper would publish.

Southern Illinois University in Carbondale was closed except for the physical plant, health service and campus radio station, WSIU.

Trooper Gerald Miller at Du Quoin said, "It hasn't stopped snowing since 11 o'clock the night before last, and it's still snowing. All roads are snow-packed and hazardous. We're just scared to death that it'll turn into freezing rain."

In Missouri, a 14-inch snowfall virtually shut down Cape Girardeau today.

A temperature of 12-below was reported today at Kansas City International Airport, tying the record for the date set in 1930. It was the coldest reading in Kansas City since the thermometer plunged to -13 Jan. 16, 1977

Tuesday update

Negative Influence

WASHINGTON (AP)-President Carter today declared that the U.S. delay in adopting a r energy program was producing a wide-spread "negative" influence throughout the world.

Carter, in remarks to a group of first-and second-term congressmen, also said his State of the Union speech Thursday evening will focus on the U.S. economy.

The president said his immediate goal was concluding action on energy legislation.

Reporter Gets Reprieve

AMARILLO (AP)-A television reporter threatened with a jail term for not revealing his confidential news sources got a brief reprieve today at the trial of Potter County Attorney Kerry Knorpp.

Television Station KVII provided lawyers today for its reporter Mark Baker, who aired the fact that Knorpp would be indicted for official misconduct before it was announced by the grand jury.

Mayors To Meet

WASHINGTON (AP)-The nation's most powerful Democratic mayors, increasingly uneasy about the Carter administration's urban programs, are meeting this week to consider an "outspoken, independent" strategy toward the administration.

At least 10 big-city mayors plan to gather Wednesday and Thursday in New York. The mayors "want to be in a position where we can speak out if the president decides to ignore the cities," one source said.

Farmers Establish Area Strike Center

Snyder has joined the list of Texas cities possessing its own agriculture strike center.

Established Monday night at the conclusion of a two-hour long meeting of angry area farmers, Snyder's agriculture strike center is located at 2612 College Ave., the former site of Snyder Athletic Center.

Local farmers began moving furniture into their new headquarters late this morning.

"We're writing history here tonight," said a Lamesa farmer who spoke to the group. And when it was all over, local history had been made.

Begun on a somber note, the meeting started with the 90-member audience listening to a muffled, tape-recorded speech made by Alvin Jenkens of Springfield, Colo., a member of the American Agriculture Movement.

The gist of Jenkens' message to the group was that farmers everywhere would have to unite and seek support of their cause.

That message was clearly understood by the farmers.

"I'm going to fight for everything I've got," said 37-year-old Tommy Jack Stewart of Roby.

Not only did Stewart say he will fight for improved farm conditions, but he and a group of Fisher County farmers will carry their fight to Washington D.C. later this month when they visit that city.

Despite a good crop, Stewart told the group that he lost $10,000 last year. A fourth generation farmer, Stewart said he fears he will be forced to go out of business unless the current farm situation improves.

Citing the reason for the farmers' unity, Stewart said, "This is the first time all of us are on rock bottom. Every one of us is losing now."

"I don't know how much longer I'll be able to (financially) survive," echoed Mike Miller, a Dawson County cotton farmer.

"I wish we had started this movement several years ago," he said. "I get fired up over this --- it's my life."

Stating that he is in financial straits, Miller said, "It's time we stood on our feet to accomplish one thing -- get 100 percent parity."

"I hate the word 'strike' more than anything," said Miller. "I don't believe in violence of any kind. We can arouse so much attention without being radical about it."

Despite his philosophy of non-violence, Miller emphasized that farmers can wield great influence if they unite.

"We're facing a situation," he said, "of united we stand and divided we fall."

Following the testimonials of out-of-county farmers, Rodger Blackard of Scurry County asked the local farmers if they planned to follow suit and establish a strike center.

From their decision it was clear they did.

The SDN Column

Thank you, Howard Cosell, thank you.

The outspoken sports commentator for ABC Television, who makes a living by irritating fans in wholesale lots, was credited with making a statement that could have been one of the greatest motivating factors of all for the Dallas Cowboys prior to Super Bowl XII.

Cosell said, or at least he was reported to have said, that Denver would win the Super Bowl game because the Dallas Cowboys' defensive secondary was overrated.

So, what happens? Denver suffers four pass interceptions in the first half and to say its passing game throughout was ineffective would be a big understate.

Super Sunday 1978 did indeed take on the appearance of a banner attraction around here. For local Cowboy fans, it was almost more than their cups could hold when the scoreboard on the television screen showed their favorite team with a comfortable lead and a look out the window revealed that it was trying to rain. Moisture from the skies and a Super Bowl victory all in one day made for a perfect combination.

Not only did the Cowboys win the game, but their cheerleaders easily won out over the Denver version, despite those lame attempts of Pat Summerall and Tom Brookshier to even things up. The Denver girls may have tried valiantly, but it will require some expansion for them to match the Dallas lineup.

We're going to have Erma Bombecks's column in the SDN soon. At lot of people have indicated that they would like to see this outstanding humorist's column as a regular feature in the local paper.

Some people say that when dandelions don't open in the morning it will rain that day.

Declining Demand May Halt French At SHS

French will be dropped next year from the Snyder High School curriculum unless preregistration enrollment is high.

Why? Because currently both years of French meet together during the first period -- totaling 6 students. French I and II classes, though still small, had increased in size last year. Then came this year's scheduling disaster: French fell into the same time slot as all freshmen athletics and "A" band. Many freshmen will be involved in sports during some trimester, and consequently, cannot take the year long French I course. Likewise, about half of the French students tend to be in the band -- probably in "A" band.

Also decreasing enrollment is the en masse movement toward vocational training, instead of higher education -- partly in reaction to the college student surplus of the late 1960's and early 1970's.

Many students are unnecessarily frightened at the prospect of taking a foreign language because it is a totally new experience. They don't know what to expect, and everyone says foreign language is so difficult. Actually, whatever grade a student usually receives in English, he will probably receive in foreign language since both courses have similar difficulty and subject matter.

They mistakenly believe that no credit is offered for one year of a foreign language. While colleges don't honor one year for entrance requirements, Snyder High does give credit toward graduation for one year.

Students often think that they must travel to France to speak French. Yet, at the same time England established English-speaking colonies around the world, France established colonies which kept the French language after gaining independence. Canada's province of Quebec, home of current AFS student Chantal Baril, is 81 percent French-speaking. Ontario is 36 percent French-speaking. Louisiana has approximately as many speakers of French as New Mexico has speakers of Spanish.

Three years ago Snyder High School offered Spanish, French, and Latin. Probably only Spanish will be offered in '78-'79. "It's surprising," noted Ed McAnally, local French teacher. "I took two years of Spanish fifteen years ago in Cross Plains High school. My entire hometown was only a little larger than Snyder High, but soon only Spanish will be offered here."

Newsweek's Dec. 5 issue noted that 10 percent of all colleges require foreign language for admission and 61 percent require foreign language study for a bachelor's degree in any field. Students bound for the better colleges and universities will find language requirements and courses more difficult than if they had begun during high school. For example, college level French I equals two years of high school French.

"Students who have been postponing taking French must realize that it's re-profit is vital

Books could be written on the subject of what's wrong with the economic system where a major industry, like agriculture, is in all kinds of trouble. Much is appearing in print and being stated over electronic communications media about the farm problem. Demonstrations are being staged by farmers. Collectively, they are called a strike, though that is hardly the word that expresses the idea.

These activities are designed to attract attention to a situation involving the nation's food supply, no less. Various ideas have been advanced for correcting the situation, but none seems to meet the test of being effective and politically feasible.

This is particularly true of agriculture for another reason. Food and fiber are produced in every part of the world. Every day is both harvest time and planting time somewhere. Nature of the industry is another complicating factor in determining which, if any, control measures should be adopted.

After everything has been said and every element isolated and evaluated, the problems boil down to a single term, which most guardians of the public interest dislike. Former Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz expressed it the other day in a speech before a meeting held for the purpose of discussing the farm problem.

It is a six-letter word called profit. Mr. Butz never won any popularity awards during his tenure as head man in the U.S. Department of Agriculture. He wasn't unique in that respect. Secretaries of Agriculture as a class are about as popular as highway patrolmen. Whether Butz was a good, poor or totally unacceptable man for the job depends on who is called on for an answer.

But he was dead right when he said the problem is that the farmer has little or nothing left after he sells his commodities. For 40 years now the Government has been working on the other end of the spectrum. It has shortened working hours, raised wages, increased taxes and otherwise stimulated the cost of everything the farmer buys. Until the Government gets out of the act or decides to give agriculture the same consideration it gives to other industries there will be trouble.

Nothing is pertinent to the subject that does not in some way improve the farmer's chance of having something left after he markets his crops and pays his bills.

no real shifting

On the principle that those who use a service should pay for it, Postmaster General Benjamin Bailar reasons that business, which is said to be responsible for four of every five pieces in the mails, should bear the burden of the proposed increase in the annual subsidy.

The burden, he emphasizes, should not be "shifted" onto "individual taxpayers."

Our problem is that we didn't know the burden could be shifted. In fact it can't be.

If business is forced to pay the increase in the subsidy, it will pass the cost along to "individual taxpayers."

As has been said many times before, there is no such thing as a free lunch. Neither is there such a thing as a tax on business which is not a tax on "individual taxpayers."

Think about it, General.

the no-news airlines

For an airplane to take off and get where it's going has not been Page One news since Lindbergh. Perhaps it's time now.

American planes and pilots--public, private and military--are delivering a volume of safe and comfortable transportation deserving of our unanimous applause.

As much as I fly--two and three trips a week--I still enjoy a small thrill each time I watch those big tin birds take off and land.

Did you know that O'Hare Airport, in Chicago, averages one takeoff or landing every 20 seconds around the clock?

A city of 125,000 people is a pretty big city. Yet that many people, 125,000, move through Chicago's big international airport every day!

Uneventfully.

And (knock on wood) the U.S. record for flying safety is the best in the world, and the best it has ever been.

This I can substantiate with the numbers.

From 1974 when 467 died in nine crashes--to 1976 when 41 died in three accidents.

Statistically, you are now four times safer in an airliner than in a car.

It seems a shame that airplanes make news only when they make noise.

Recently the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) has been on the congressional carpet defending itself and its budget.

A California congressman protests that the FAA is "not doing enough to prevent midair collisions."

There have been no midair collisions involving airliners in recent years. And this is a credit both to the men in the cockpit and the men in the tower.

And much of the credit must go to the increased technology which accommodates traffic control. In control areas all aircraft are now equipped with a gizmo which identifies to the men on the ground the plane, its location and its altitude.

There is agitation now to install anticollision warning devices in all planes.

This device would cost more than most planes cost.

Where there are 2,500 airliners using our skies and 20,000 military planes, there are 165,000 general aviation airplanes.

That means that 98.5 percent of all airplanes are general aviation planes--mostly for business, some for pleasure.

Where there are 13,000 airports in our country, only 400 have airline service.

So there will always be a debate over rights and rules and mandatory equipment.

But when these disagreements make headlines, let them not obscure the infinitely more significant fact that just one of those airports--O'Hare--has had only three mishaps of consequence in 30 years. And while moving 11.5 million planes.

You'd be less safe in church.

It is reported that 18 million Americans have a serious problem with phobias. Others have phobias but don't create such a serious problem.

Webster describes a phobia as an exaggerated, inexplicable, illogical fear of a particular object or class of objects.

Phobias are funny to almost everybody but those who have them. "Phobics," uncontrollable fear, is not only weakening but often restricts their ability to earn a living and in rare circumstances, can lead to death.

I suppose I have a mild form of claustrophobia, because I don't like enclosed or tight places.

I'm certain that Avon suffers from acrophobia (fear of heights) as he doesn't like to get very far off the ground.

There are various types of phobias and with a little research I came up with some of the more common ones.

Most phobias are easily linked to the fear by just looking at the word. For instance there is russophobia (fear of Russian influence); francophobia (fearing French influence), germanophobia (dislike of Germans, their characteristics and customs), etc.

Other phobias simply have the thing feared in front of phobia, so they are easily figured out. For instance there is airphobia, bacteriaphobia, demonophobia, pharmacophobia, etc.

Other phobias I found were not as easily linked to the fear.

For instance:

-Agoraphobia, fear of open spaces or public places.

-Acarophobia, fear of small insects.

-Dermatophobia, afraid of minor skin injuries, such as those infected with vaccinations.

-Heresyphobia, fear of religious opinions.

-Hydrophobia, fear of water.

-Neophobia, fear of novelty.

-Phobophobia, fear of one's fear.

-Photophobia, fear of light or sensitive to strong lights.

-Pryophobia, fear of fire.

-Syphiphobia, fear of being infected with syphillis.

-Toxicophobia, fear of poisons.

-Zoophobia, fear of animals.

-Xenophobia, fear of strangers.

-Xanthophobia, fear of yellow.

-Pelagophobia, fear of sea.

-Gallophobia, intense dread of France, or what is French.

Then there is sitiophobia. I would naturally think that this suggests a fear of sitting, but it is a fear of eating. Now if I could only develop this fear, I would have the perfect way to lose weight.

Letters To Editor

To The Daily News:

We would like to state our feeling of the agricultural meeting held here. We attended an agriculture "strike" meeting in Merkel recently also which was more informative. Realistic, relative unknown problems, government statistics and farming futures were presented. Needless to say, after this meeting, you felt a tremendous urge to be involved in support of the farmer.

Not so here. After the chamber decided to help support our cause, they then listed conditions: 1. No tractorcades; 2. a mild meeting so that our businessmen would not be upset. Our farmers have been upset for years. They need us as well as we need them. So why not pull together? In order to be informed we must know both sides of a situation to form an opinion justly.

Apparently since Snyder is dependent mostly on oil and related industry, the answer is fairly evident. The few farmers who must depend totally on a farming income are not that important to others. Where is our brotherly love?

It will take everyone, even farmers and ranchers blessed with oil wells, to jump in and help pull his load, or we'll fail and then you and the community are going to lose a lot of dedicated, hard-working farmers because you did not want your lifestyle upset, and this doesn't mean violence.

By the way, Herby, according to those present at the meeting, was the only one going to Washington. Three men from the small town of Anton are going. Guess who volunteered to pay for their gasoline expense? An Anton, Texas, businessman! That's what we call support. It would be nice to know that our home-town people cared!

WASHINGTON-(NEA)-When a coalition of citizen groups sought last summer to delay the shipment of more than 27,000 pounds of enriched uranium to India, the federal government quickly and deftly rebuffed those efforts.

There were soothing reassurances from the State Department about "sensitive ongoing discussions concerning nuclear nonproliferation," vague references to "important foreign policy initiatives" and dire warnings about challenging decisions "approved at the highest levels of government."

That's language of diplomacy and statesmanship. Now listen to President Carter talking about precisely the same issue only six months later, after his recent meeting with India's prime minister:

"He's pretty adamant about the nuclear fuel thing. ... I told him we would authorize transfer of the fuel now. It didn't seem to make an impression on him. I think we ought to write him another letter, just cold and very blunt."

Carter's tough talk is well known by now because his comments were inadvertenly picked up by a television network microphone during a stop in New Delhi on his just-concluded international tour.

But there has been virtually no publicity about the litigation in federal court here challenging the United States' exports of hundreds of tons of nuclear fuel during the past decade to India, despite that country's refusal to fully safeguard the material.

One especially outrageous incident in mid-1977 vividly demonstrates the heavy-handed approach of federal officials in dealing with legitimate questions about the practice of selling India enriched uranium, ostensibly for commercial use only.

Last June 20, James N. Barnes, an attorney with a public interest law firm here known as the Center for Law and Social Policy, wrote the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) to express concern about a pending application for an export license to ship nuclear fuel to India.

Barnes noted that the U.S. Court of Appeals here was still considering a legal challenge to the export of enriched uranium, initiated by his law firm two and one-half years ago on behalf of the Sierra Club, National Resources Defense Council and Union of Concerned Scientists.

His letter specifically asked that if the NRC approved the shipment to India, "we would expect sufficient advance notice of the commission's proposed decision to allow us time to request a stay in the Court of Appeals."

A week later, on June 27, NRC officials informed an attorney for the coalition of citizen groups that a decision to grant the export license might be imminent.

In a telephone conversation with NRC attorneys shortly after noon on the following day, June 28, Barnes reiterated his request that time be allowed for intervention by the federal court that already had the issue under consideration.

Late that afternoon, the NRC informed Barnes that the commission had voted to authorize the license but the actual issuance would require an additional day or two.

Barnes told the government officials that he would ask the appeals court the following morning to delay the shipment.

Just before noon the next day, June 29, the appropriate legal papers were filed with the court. But at mid-afternoon, an NRC official telephoned to tell Barnes he was too late because the license had been hastily issued that morning.

"They treated us very shabbily. They treated the public very shabbily," says Barnes in recalling the NRC's fast shuffle.

But he wasn't the only victim. Carter personally approved the shipment, in a futile effort to establish better rapport with India's government-and now he finds it necessary to write nasty letters demanding the safeguards that should have been required before the fuel was shipped.

changing times

NEW YORK (AP)-Sometimes the economic numbers change so gradually that we become accustomed to certain levels, percentages and degrees, and even assume they have always been so.

Only when we step back and obtain the perspective of time do we see the real picture. By comparing two widely separated dates we often obtain a barebone commentary on social and economic change.

We realize, for instance, that the prime rate has not always ranged between 6 percent and 12 percent. Why, as recently as 1947 it was only 1.5 percent. That is what the best corporate customers paid back then.

In the perspective of time we recognize that federal income taxes on corporations have not always been at a rate just above or below 50 percent. Before the 1930s they ranged downward from 15 percent.

Time comparisons also show us that governments were not always in such great debt. Back in 1913 the total of federal, state and local debt per capita was only $58, compared with more than $4,000 in 1976.

There was a time, we come to realize, when the total employment of federal, state and local governments was not around 15 million, as it is now. In 1940, there were less than one-third that number.

Consider social welfare expenditures under public programs. In 1929, expenditures amounted the only $3.9 billion. In 1975 the comparable figure was more than 70 times the amount of 1929, having nearly doubled since 1970.

In 1950, expenditures for health and medical care - public and private - amount to $12 billion. By 1960, the number had more than doubled to $25.9 billion. It more than doubled again by 1970. Five years later it was $118.5 billion.

But in citing such figures we can never forget, as various protagonists are inclined to do, that numbers themselves - not just the things they represent - change greatly.

When citing figures designed to show the great growth of government, we must consider three factors: rising population, greater national production and shrinking dollar values.

By far the most important of these three factors is inflation. Too often we sling numbers about as if they were hard and firm, the better to make our points.

We fudged, for example, in comparing the per capita government debt of $58 in 1913 with the $4,000 of today, because a dollar in 1913 bought a lot more than does a dollar today.

By using a standard measuring stick - dollar-buying power as of 1967 - we find the 1913 dollar was worth $2.78 and the 1976 dollar only 55 cents. For comparison, therefore, that $58 becomes about $162, and the $4,000 becomes $2,200.

One of the more disturbing comparisons is to go back to early 1966 and find the Dow Jones Industrial Average close to 1,000 points - or more than 200 points higher than today. And that is when a dollar was worth twice what it is now.

That perhaps says as much about economic change as any of the other numerical comparisons.

Of the total 1,200 islands in the Maldives in the Indian Ocean, only 200 are inhabited.

Simple-To-Sew Shawl

By Joanne Schreiber

The soft look for fall depends on fall's most important accesory, the shawl. Don't worry about whether you can manage the right wrap while clutching a purse, schoolbooks, briefcase, grocery bags or an umbrella. Get rid of everything else, and leave your hands free to give your shawl just the right fling, drape, wrap or tie.

Luckily, the new look is the easiest-to-sew we've had in years. There are two important shawl designs: the triangular fringed shawl and the rectangular shawl. Both are super-simple to sew. Both are dramatic finishing touches over skirts, culottes, slacks or jeans. You can even wear a shawl over your winter coat.

A yard and a half of 54-inch wool will make two triangular shawls. Make one for yourself and one for a gift. Fold the fabric square to form a triangle and cut along fold. Hem all three sides of each triangle by folding edges over one quarter inch twice and blind stitching. Add fringe on the two straight sides. You can use purchase fringe or make your own.

For the rectangular shawls buy 1 and five-eights yards of 54-inch wool. Fold fabric in half lengthwise and seam along ends and long edge, leaving an opening for turning on the long edge. Turn to right side, blind stitch opening, and press. Add fringe to ends.

To fringe the triangular shawl, you will need about four ounces of worsted. The rectangular shawl will require only one ounce. To make fringe, first mark edges of shawl with pencil dots one fourth inch in from the edge and one half inch apart. Thread a large darning needle with three 2-yard lengths of yarn. Sew through marks, leaving a 3-inch length of yarn. Make a loop of all six strands of yarn and pull through loop with darning needle, as shown. Push the knot close to the edge of the shawl and cut long strands to three inches. You may need to trim fringe evenly after working around the edges of the shawl.

For a complete outfit, make a softly gathered skirt of the same fabric as your shawl. The new light, soft wools and wool blends are ideal for such costumes. If you are making a shawl to contrast with solid-color slacks and skirts, select a blanket wool in a bold plaid.

These suggestions for shawl-dressing are from the new fall and winter edition of Basic Fashion, the magazine for women who sew. Other helpful features include complete directions for a sheer caftan for party wear, for kitchen accessories featuring patchwork, Christmas tree ornaments, doll clothes, decorator pillows and fabric Christmas trees. There are dozens of fresh new patterns and a coupon for a free pattern. To get your copy, write to Stitchin' Time, care of this newspaper, Box 503, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Send just $2, and be sure to include your own name, address and zip.

FASHIONABLE shoulder warmers come in many versions of shawls and stoles. Make them to wear with skirts, culottes or jeans. A yard and a half of 54-inch wool makes two triangular shawls.

For her Federation report, Clara Scherling read the Christmas letter from the General Federation of Women's Clubs president. Mrs. Roy Wagner.

Margie Key announced that a speaker from Union Oil of California would attend the next meeting, Feb. 7. An invitation to this meeting is extended to all other clubs and interested persons. The program will be on the energy problem.

Members were reminded the Texas Federation of Woman's Club reports are due Feb. 1.

Lanier Speaks To Altrurian Daughters

The Altrurian Daughters Club met on Jan. 11 at the Martha Ann Woman's Club for a program presented by Mr. Carrol Lanier, superintendent of Girlstown at Whiteface. Support of this institution has become one of the favorite activities of the club, and this was the second year that Mr. Lanier has spoken to the club. Mrs. Bill Atwood was chairman for the program while Mrs. N.A. Clements was hostess.

Mr. Lanier first brought the club up to date on the many activities that Girlstown has been engaged in since he was here last year. He emphasized that the girls have been very busy. He gave a brief history of Girlstown, saying it originated at Buffalo Gap near Abilene and now has campuses at Borger and Austin as well as at Whiteface. He showed slides with a co-ordinated commentary which presented a good picture of campus and the lives and activities of the girls who live there. Next he told some of the interesting case histories of the girls and concluded by answering questions of club members.

West started out by playing his ace and king of hearts. South ruffed in dummy, led the queen of spades and a second spade to his king. Then he started a parade of clubs.

West could do anything he wanted to do, but there was no way for him to get any tricks except his two high trumps.

"Pretty good play, wasn't it?" chortled South. "If I had played a third spade I would have been set."

North replied rather bitterly. "The play was fine, but the bidding lousy. Do you realize that we were cold for six clubs?"

This started one of those partnership arguments that we have been asked to settle. South claimed that his bidding showed five clubs, four spades and a good hand. North wanted to know why South couldn't have bid two clubs to start with and then shown spades, etc., etc.

We agree that North might have worked out what South was doing, but feel that at least 90 percent of the blame must be charged to South. He should have responded two clubs to North's one-diamond opening bid to make it easy for North to get a good picture of his distribution.

Hogs Fall To Sixth In Poll

By The Associated press

Last week was not a very good one for the nation's top-ranked college basketball teams.

After Arkansas fell from the ranks of te unbeaten with a loss to Texas Saturday, Kentucky and Indiana State were left as the only major unbeaten teams.

Overall, eight of the top 20 teams in The Associated Press poll lost, and the group combined for only a 32-10 record. The result was quite evident in this week's balloting by a national panel of sportswriters and broadcasters.

Kentucky, for the fourth consecutive week, was an unanimous choice for the top spot. The Wildcats, increasing their record to 12-0 with two victories, received all 46 first-place votes and a total of 920 points.

Marquette, the defending national champions, moved from fourth place into second with 808 points. The Warriors, 12-1, won three times last week, including a 97-81 victory over highly regarded Nevada-Las Vegas.

UCLA, 13-1, made the most significant jump, rising four spots to No. 3. The Bruins won twice and received 613 points. No. 4 Indiana State improved its record to 12-0 with two victories, and collected 576 points, climbing from sixth place.

North Carolina, 13-2 after losing to Duke and narrowly beating Wake Forest, dropped from the runner-up spot a week ago to No. 5 with 538 points.

Arkansas, after winning its first 14 games, was upset by Texas. The setback dropped the Razorbacks three spots to No. 6.

Notre Dame, 8-3, losers to San Francisco and one-point winners over St. Bonaventure, plummeted from fifth to seventh place.

Kansas, 13-2, moved up two notches eighth with victories over Oklahoma and Oklahoma State. Louisville was the only Top Ten team other than Kentucky to hold its position. The Cardinals remained at No. 9, improving their record to 10-2 with a victory over Georgia Tech.

Michigan State, 12th a week ago, jumped into the Top Ten, at No. 10, with two victories. The Spartans, 12-1, received 251 points.

Teh Second Ten was headed by Syracuse, which dropped from No. 8 following an 86-81 loss to Pittsburgh. The Orangemen were followed by Providence, Virginia, Holy Cross, Texas, Nevada-Las Vegas, Duke, DePaul, Georgetown and New Mexico.

Dusters Downed By Texanettes

LEVELLAND — South Plains took Western Texas College out of a share of the driver's seat here last night, thumping the visiting Dusters, 87-60.

The loss, the Duster's first in conference play this season, gives them an identical to South Plains 5-1 league record and puts them one game back of leader Howard College. WTC could throw the conference into a three-way tie with a win over Howard College in Big Spring on Monday.

"It was just a good ol' country lickin', " said Dr. Sid Simpson, Duster coach. "We were down 44-17 the first half. We hit our first shot and missed the next 12 in a row, eight of them layups.

"We were real tight at the start. Played good defense but couldn't hit. We were so tight. We wanted to win it so bad, I guess."

Only two Dusters managed to get inside double figures. Cathy Minton garnered her season high with 11 points while top-scorer Cindy Luttrull noted 16 and Renee Muirhead had 8.

South Plains, led by Donette Marble's 21 points, raked the Dusters in every category, including field goals (30-22) and free throws made (27-16).

"They are a well-balanced team and they all shot well," commented Dr. Simpson. "Donette Marble and Mary Lassary (18 points), both 6-ft. post girls, just ate us up."

Also scoring in double figures for the Levelland based team was Beverly Barker with 15.

The Dusters continue their road trip Jan. 23 at Big Spring, and face Odessa College and Texas Christian University before hosting Texas Tech on Feb. 2 at WTC Gym.

"We got beat bad," the coach concluded. "But we think we're capable of playing better. Now we've got to try to beat Howard College and throw it into a three-way tie."

Monday's game in Big Spring is scheduled to tip off at 6 p.m.

LEVELLAND--In what had to be a once-a-season type finish at the most, South Plains clipped Western Texas College's Westerners here last night, 71-70, handing the visitors a third conference loss that put their record at 4-3 in league play and 15-5 for the season.

Setting up the situation: WTC, in foul trouble and hanging on by will power, held a 70-69 lead with 13 seconds to play. A Texan foul gave the Westerners a chance to bundle up the win as Joe Mendoza went to the line on a one-and-one situation, but the WTC athlete missed and South Plains regained possession of the ball.

With three seconds left, the ball was tossed in - a high, desperate pass. WTC's Jon Moorehead got a finger on the sphere; just enough to tip it in the hands of a waiting Texan player who put it through the hoop for the win just as the buzzer sounded.

"We played well, but just couldn't bust out and get anything on them," mused Westerner Coach Nolan Richardson of his teams overall effort. "We took a 7 point lead with a little more than 6:30 to go but we didn't have the aggressiveness and scoring attack we would have had had we not been in foul trouble."

Adam Beadle, who put up 15 points for the game, was charged with his fifth foul with 5 minutes remaining. Mid-way through the second half, Jon Moorehead, Julio Gallardo, Reginald Reid, Joe Mendoza and Beadle - the starting crew - each had four fouls to credit.

"They played good," Richardson allowed the host team. "Besides playing good though, they were real lucky. If it had of happened 10 more times it would have never gotten to that guy that way again. He probably wouldn't even have been where he was."

Leading the South Plains scoring attack was Carson with 18, Frantz with 12, Dixon with 11 and Phillips with 10.

In addition to Beadle's 15 points, Gallrado posted 18 and Doug Worthington added another 15.

Making Mendoza's missed free shot ironic, is the fact that WTC hit 28 of 33 from the line for a night's effort of 84 percent - an extremely good figure and one that kept the Westerners in the lead during the second half.

South Plains had a 21 of 30 effort; 70 percent. WTC hit 21 of 58 field goals while the Texans noted 26 of 57 in the bucket.

This morning, Richardson talked about the mental aspect of the game.

"We're going to have to come from behind and start working," he started. "Everybody we play is so keyed up. It's like they were playing the national champion," he added, referring to the past history of WTC which includes three straight conference titles and two trips to the National Tournament -- one which earned them the honor of being the top junior college in the nation.

"Teams are so fired up to play WTC, and we as Westerners are going to have to overcome that and not let it bother us.

"I'll go out and scout a team, you know, and they won't play all that well. Then they'll come here or we'll meet them out on the road and I never saw them play so well. A guy that couldn't hit the ocean is suddenly hitting all his jump shots. To me, that is the mark of a group of guys firing themselves up.

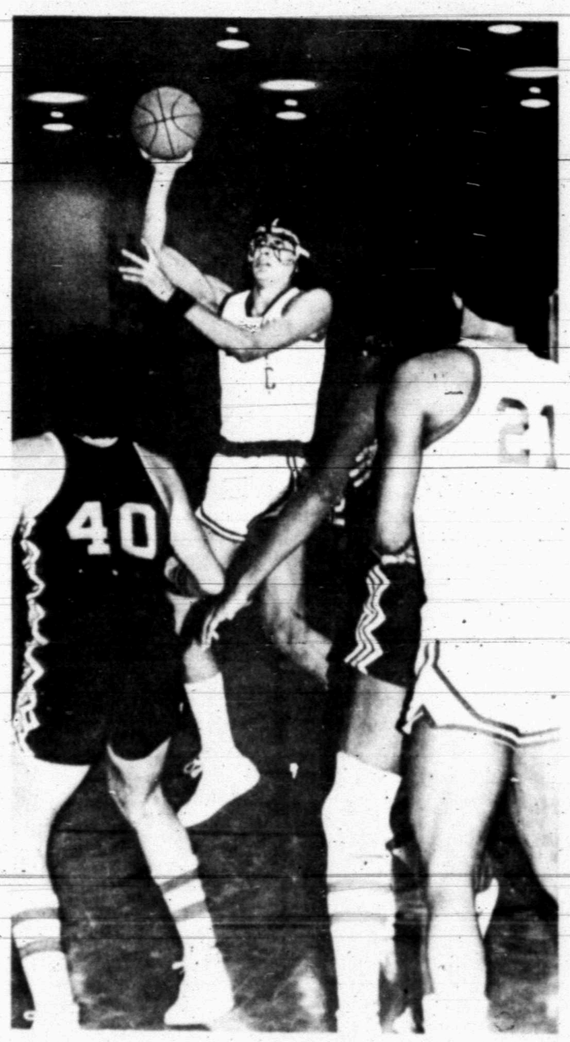

"It's just one of those amazing things. It's WTC tradition. I hope we're able to regroup and learn that Western Texas College is just like UCLA; everybody goes out after them. We don't have that do-or-die feeling. I think this is more important right now that our playing. It's something we have to get," he added.

"We won five in a row and I thought one more would give us the feeling of 'Hey, we aren't supposed to lose, we're the Westerners', but now we've got to start building again."

Upcoming on the Westerner agenda are two crucial games they need to win to stay in the conference race.

"The spots are still there and the race is still on," contended the coach. "I think we can be right back in the thick of things if we win the next two ball games."

The Westerners host New Mexico Military at Scurry County Coliseum on Thursday at 8 p.m., then play Howard College in Big Spring on the 23rd.

PUTS IT UP--WTC's Julio Gallardo trys a one-hander for two points in recent conference action. The Westerners fell to South Plains last night in a 71-70 thriller. Thursday, the group hosts NMMI. See related story. Above, Gallardo wears a type of mask to protect a broken nose. (SDN Staff Photo)

Fem, Black Astronauts Begin Training July 1

By HOWARD BENEDICT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - America's first women and minority astronauts should be in orbit within three years, after veteran spacemen have launched the space shuttle program.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration on Monday named six women, three black men and an Oriental to its previously all-white-male astronaut corps.

They were among 35 new crew members who will fill pilot and mission specialist seats on the shuttle, which is to make hundreds of space trips in the next decade.

The new astronauts will begin two years of training on July 1 at NASA's Johnson Space Center in Houston to prepare for flight, said center Director Christopher C. Craft.

But the practiced skills of pilots from the present 27-man corps will be needed on the first six orbital flights, all scheduled for 1979.

The women selected are Dr. Anna L. Fisher, 28, of Rancho Palos Verdes, Calif., a physician; Dr. Shannon W. Lucid, 35, of Oklahoma City, a post-doctoral fellow in biochemistry at Oklahoma Medical Research Foundation; Dr. Judith A. Resnik, 28, of Redondo Beach, Calif., an engineer at Xerox Corp.; Sally K. Ride, 26, of Stanford, Calif., a physics research assistant at Stanford University; Dr. Margaret R. Seddon, 29, Memphis, Tenn., resident surgeon, City of Memphis Hospital; and Kathryn D. Sullivan, 26, Cupertino, Calif., a post-graduate student in earth sciences at Dalhousie University, Halifax, Nova Scotia, Canada.

Drs. Fisher and Lucid are married, and Dr. Lucid has three children. Dr. Fisher's husband, also a physician, had applied to be an astronaut, but was not accepted.

The three blacks are Air Force Maj. Guion S. Bluford Jr., 35, of Dayton, Ohio, chief of the aerodynamics and airframe branch at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio; Air Force Maj. Frederick D. Gregory, 37, of Hampton, Va., now at the Armed Services Staff College, Norfolk, Va.; and Ronald E. McNair, 27, Marina Del Rey, Calif., a civilian in the physics department of Hughes Research Laboratories.

The astronaut of Oriental extraction is Air Force Capt. Ellison S. Onizuka, 31, of Kealakekua, Hawaii, currently chief of the engineering support section of the test pilot school at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., and a Hawaii-born, third generation Japanese-American.

Mac, Wonder, Twitty Top Music Awards

SAN MONICA, Calif. (AP)-Fleetwood Mac, Stevie Wonder and Conway Twitty were the big winners in Monday night's American Music Awards, ABC's contribution to the annual series of televised awards shows.

The two-hour presentation, as much a variety show as it was an awards presentation, was a slick production homage to public favorites. Unlike the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences' awards - the Grammys - Monday's winners were not chosen by music industry panels but by surveys of record buyers.

The winners of the fifth annual awards show were chosen by a national sampling of 30,000 record buyers.

Fleetwood Mac was named favorite pop group, and their high-chart-riding "Rumours" was named favorite album in the pop category.

Stevie Wonder also scored two awards for favorite male soul vocalist and favorite soul album for his "Songs in the Key of Life."

Wonder was one of those who dominated the awards although he did not release a product in 1977.

In the country category, Conway Twitty was named favorite vocalist, and Loretta Lynn favorite female vocalist. The two of them were named best in the country duo category. Dolly Parton's "New Harvest, First Gathering" was the favorite country album.

Among the big-name entertainers on hand was Kenny Rogers, whose "Lucille" was named favorite country single.

Barry Manilow, who did not have a big pop hit in 1977, was named favorite male vocalist, while Linda Ronstadt, who had lots of pop hits last year, was named favorite female pop singer.

Debby Boone, whose "You Light Up My Life" was the biggest record of the year, was not a finalist in the favorite female vocalist category, but her song was voted the year's favorite single.

Natalie Cole was chosen by those surveyed as their favorite female vocalist in rhythm and blues, while the group Earth, Wind & Fire was named favorite soul group and The Emotions had the favorite soul single, "Best of My Love."

A residential burglary is currently being investigated by city police.

Lynn Smith told police that someone entered his 506 28th St. home and removed a pair of saws and an assortment of tools. Smith set the loss at about $300.

The burglary is believed to have occurred during the weekend. Police theorize that entry to the house may have been gained through an unlocked door.

"Try lowering the temperature in your home to 68° this winter. You'll save on your heating bill!"

Lucy Dubuis
TESCO Information Dept.

"A setting of 68° during the winter is the one Texas Electric recommends for both comfort and energy efficiency.

For each degree above 68° the energy used for heating your house is increased by approximately 4% per degree.

As shown by the chart the difference between the recommended thermostat setting and 74° is 24%.

At 78° the increase in energy usage is 40% or more.

Clearly, the lower you set your thermostat the lower your heating bill is going to be. And after last winter, one of the coldest on record, we think a lot of people are going to be trying their best to use less energy.

Remember to change the filter in your heating system regularly, too. A dirty filter causes your heating system to work longer and that costs you more. Check the filter at least once each month.

All forms of energy are costing more these days. If you're serious about saving energy and money, request a copy of our energy efficiency tips booklet on the comment portion of your electric service bill."

Mrs. Lee Settles With Hunts Out Of Court

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP)-A lawsuit that claimed the late oil billionaire H.L. Hunt had two wives at once has been settled out of court, reportedly for $7.5 million.

Frania Tye Lee, 73, of Atlanta, who said Hunt was bigamously married to her from 1925 to 1934, wouldn't reveal how much the Hunt estate gave her to drop her suit. Lawyers for the Hunt estate wouldn't say, either.

The Shreveport Times carried an unattributed report today that the settlement was about $7.5 million. The Times and Shreveport Journal reported earlier that Mrs. Lee spurned a $5 million offer last week and held out for more.

U.S. District Court Judge Tom Stagg dismissed the jury Monday, saying, "The case has been resolved."

"All in my favor," Mrs. Lee added later. "We have about three weeks of legal work ahead. They're warning me not to say a word."

The settlement was reached after a week of testimony. Mrs. Lee spent nearly two days on the stand, recalling her relationship with Hunt and being cross-examined about it.

Mrs. Lee said Hunt married her in 1925 in Tampa, Fla., signing in as Franklin Hunt. She said the marriage collapsed nine years later when she discovered that all the while, he had been dividing his time between her and another wife and family.

Mrs. Lee said she was living in Dallas when she found out that Hunt had another wife, Lyda Bunker Hunt, less than 100 miles away in Tyler, Texas.

Mrs. Lee said Hunt was away much of the time, saying he was tied up with oilfield business. A former maid, Annie Mae Solomon, 73, testified that Hunt came home frequently but rarely stayed long "just long enough."

Ray Hunt, executor of the Hunt estate and a son of H.L. Hunt by a later marriage, testified that it was family knowledge that Mrs. Lee's four children had been fathered by H.L. Hunt.

In her lawsuit, Mrs. Lee sought to be declared Hunt's commonly accepted wife.

Mother Ashamed That Son's Mentally Ill

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: How do I explain my mentally ill brother to my fiance? My brother has been in a mental hospital for nearly 10 years. He comes home to visit twice a year for a week, and I visit him about once a month. (He is not in this city.) I don't know what type of mental illness he has, or how he got that way.

Mother said he had a "nervous breakdown" and is "confused." But he doesn't seem confused to me. He jokes a lot and is very thoughtful—even remembering people's birthdays.

I love my brother and want my fiance to love him, too, but mother seems ashamed of him and has asked that I not mention him or his condition until after I am married. This doesn't seem right. What is your advice?

"IN THE DARK"

DEAR IN: You are tragically uninformed about your brother's condition. You have a right to know the facts, and so has your fiance. Have a talk with your brother's doctor.

And when you next visit your brother, invite your fiance along. Mental illness in the family is nothing to be ashamed of. I know of no family that has escaped it completely.

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for saying that there are still some fellows around who want their brides to be virgins. I've always thought so, but I can't find a guy who agrees with me.

I'm a 20-year-old female virgin who intends to stay this way until I'm married.

It's not easy staying a virgin. Men know they won't get anywhere with me so they stay away. Some of their explanations are unreal. For instance, one guy said, "Hunting a woman is like hunting an employee. They're no good unless they've had experience."

So how would you answer him?

HANGING ON

DEAR HANGING: I'd explain that some employers prefer to hire someone with no experience because an inexperienced person has no bad habits to unlearn.

DEAR ABBY: Our only child, a son, died leaving a young wife and a small son I'll call Tommy. Tommy's mother subsequently married a man in rather modest circumstances and now they have two more sons besides Tommy.

At Christmastime we always remember Tommy's half-brothers generously, but naturally we go all out for our only grandchild.

Now Tommy's mother refuses to let our grandson spend weekends with us because we favor him over the others. What is your advice?

GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: You can't be faulted for favoring your only grandchild, but his mother calls the tunes, so don't alienate her. Since Tommy must live with his half-brothers, don't make life difficult for him by giving his brothers reasons to be jealous.

If you want to do something special for Tommy, go "all out" on his birthday, or set up a trust to be used for his education, but at Christmastime treat all the boys with equal generosity.

Gouty arthritis

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Is it true that gout is caused by too much protein in your diet? If so, could you send me a diet list? I have, I guess, what they call gouty arthritis. So far I haven't found anything to help it much.

DEAR READER — No, it is not true that too much protein causes gout. Gout is caused by an excess production of uric acid by your own body cells. Because some foods are high in uric acid the older gout diets were "low purine" diets — foods that contained little cellular material which contains the uric acid.

To illustrate a point, milk is a high protein food but since it contains no cells it contains no purine or uric acid. Yet on a diet where all the protein comes from milk and milk products, the body of a gouty person will still produce an excess of uric acid. This is really a classic experiment to show that the uric acid is manufactured by your own body and not obtained from the food you eat. By careful restriction of purine-containing foods you can only hope for a minimal reduction in the uric acid level. That is why the diet in terms of uric acid content is not stressed so much in the treatment of gout today. The other reason is because we now have medicines that will prevent your own body from producing too much uric acid in the first place.

I do think it is wise to limit organ meats and fatty foods in the diet of a gouty individual. A reasonable amount of lean meats, though, will not harm you.

What you really need is proper medical management, and if you really have gouty arthritis you will need to be on regular medicine to control the level of uric acid in your body. To give you more information on the types of medicines and how they work, I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-3, Gout, Uric Acid. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 155, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband who is 66 years old has not had a physical examination since 1943. Since he retired two years ago he doesn't do a thing but sleep a lot, watch TV and drink beer.

He weighs at least 250 pounds and is about 5 feet 7. He wears size 60 undershorts. His legs are very swollen, scaly and purple. He will not listen to anyone at all about going to a doctor.

I've been doctoring him for 30 years for diabetes, high blood pressure and colitis. I don't know what to do or why his legs are so purple.

Please answer as soon as possible or I'll land in a hospital with the terrible headache I get.

DEAR READER — It's almost impossible to help a person against his will. Unfortunately, in such cases the person often has to get sick enough to require emergency admission to the hospital before a doctor gets a chance to help him.

Your description of your husband certainly indicates he needs medical attention now, not later. If his legs are purple as you state, that is what we call cyanosis, and it is caused by some abnormality in the circulation to his legs. He will not improve unless he is able to lose a lot of weight and change his lifestyle and probably not even then without medical help. I'd like to be more positive and helpful but I'm afraid your husband is simply going to have to see a doctor if he is to be helped at all.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Are you tired of footing the bill for government red tape?

Now you can do something about it.

I'm as frustrated as you are by the maze of federal regulatory agencies, committees, and commissions that try to dictate our way of living and doing business. And I intend to help do something about it.

Abner McCall, President of Baylor University, recently said: "At one time we boasted in America that we had a government of laws, not of men. However, in most instances, we have a government of men instead of laws."

In other words, we are ruled by bureaucracy. The list of agencies that we know by their initials is astounding: OSHA, HEW, EPA, IRS, FDA, FTC, just to mention a few.

Not only do they add hundreds of millions of dollars every year to the skyrocketing national debt, they cost you money needlessly, every day!

Many of these agencies have even long outlived their usefulness, but they still exist and you and I are still paying for them.

Taxpayers suffer the high cost of regulating consumers and businessmen.

I could show case after case of unnecessary wastes imposed upon us by too much government. You could name as many, I'm sure.

Every small business, wage-earner, farmer, salesperson — citizens in any walk of life — can show example after example of bureaucracy forcing its way on the public. Who pays for it? You do.

Think of the stacks of expensive paper work required of businessmen by government regulation. Who pays? You know. That's why I am opposed to too much government, too much regulation, too little freedom. I think you'll agree with me there, too.

What is the answer?

We need to change the bureaucratic philosophy of "we know what's good for you better than you do."!

We need to put an end to stifling regulation and restriction that defeats the individualism and initiative that has helped make our country the greatest nation in history.

Many of our representatives in Washington agree, but they also say it's impossible to do much about the endless government interference.

Maybe so, but I don't believe it, do you? We just need some stronger voices in Washington.

So if you're just plain tired of the government tangling us in restrictions and regulations and adding needless billions to the cost of government as well, here is what you can do.

Tell me what you think.

I want to know how you feel about it, because your opinion is important to me. I want to study it and use it to help me determine what you want your Congressman in Washington to do.

So will you take a moment to fill in the form provided here? Then mail it to me, Dusty Rhodes, Box 1978, Abilene, Texas 79604 as soon as you can.

I make this pledge to you. When you put me in Washington, it will be your voice, not that of Dusty Rhodes alone, that speaks for you.

But do it now, won't you? I want to hear from you soon.

A copy of our report is filed with the Federal Election Commission, and is available for purchase from the Federal Election Commission, Washington, D.C. 20463. Paid for and authorized by the Dusty Rhodes To Congress Committee, John Allen Chalk, Treasurer, Box 1978, Abilene, Texas 79604.

HOW DO YOU FEEL?

_____ YES _____ NO I am opposed to excessive government regulation and restriction.
_____ YES _____ NO I agree that it adds too many needless costs to government.
_____ YES _____ NO I believe we have too many people in Washington holding down jobs no longer needed.
_____ YES _____ NO I believe we need to get back to greater individual freedom and free enterprise in business.
_____ YES _____ NO You're wasting your time. It's impossible to get rid of bureaucracy.
_____ YES _____ NO I want to work with you to help clear up this regulatory mess.

In addition to the above, here is one of my chief concerns:

Host Families Needed For Next Year

Snyder Takes Pride In It's Exchange Students

The Snyder American Field Service program is one of the strongest in Texas, with two foreign exchange students attending Snyder High School and there have been one or more exchange students here each year continuously since 1959.

At present, the AFS here needs families to apply to keep exchange students in their home. Anyone who has been considering providing a home for an exchange student probably will be interested in comments and testimonies from families who are enjoying the experience this year.

The Marshall Parham family states:

"To intimately share one's life and home with a stranger from halfway around the world has to be an eye-opening, mind-expanding, and overall grand experience for all concerned.

"We have come to know and love Liri Lestari since she came to us in mid-July from Yogyakarta, Java, in Indonesia. We have learned many things about a country that we barely knew existed and about the people who live there.

"We have learned first hand about the Islam religion, one very strange and foreign to us.

"Liri is a very dedicated student and is quite interested in learning our customs, knowing our folklore, and in preparing our food.

"We have found Liri to be honest, loving, and receptive. While being open to new ideas, she is still loyal to her country, her customs, and her family.

"Our children are benefitting from having this close relationship with Liri, not only the furtherance of their education, but the joy of teaching someone else about their heritage.

"This kind of experience makes one more keenly aware of his own customs and blessings, and, at the same time, he begins to recognize that people are basically the same the world over with the same dreams and hopes.

"We are grateful to the American Field Service for this opportunity, for as far as we are concerned, we aren't just keeping a student for a year, we have gained a new daughter for a lifetime."

Bill and Gloria Ziske say: "Our life has been enriched by the adventure, (and it is truly an adventure in living), the day our Canadian daughter, Chantal Baril, arrived from Quebec. Mary Jo and Chantal are like big sister and little sister, in just 4½ months, the girls have enjoyed each other, talked, cried about their problems and yet have even had verbal fights, which prove life is never dull at our house.

"We all dread the thought of losing our 'little girl,' our newfound daughter that has brought us much happiness and laughter this school year.

"The exchange of lifestyles in each other's countries and homelife styles has made each of us aware of how other people in other countries live. It has helped even our youngest son, Billy, he not only loves his new sister, but, wants her around with him all the time and does not look forward to the day she returns to Quebec.

"Both Bill and I in conjunction with our entire family highly recommend any family to open their homes and their hearts to a young person willing to learn our culture and language, the reward of a hug and a kiss and a smile is something everyone should experience. I'm so glad, proud and happy that we have Chantal, if wishes were to come true this school year would never end.

"We'll miss her saying 'You're late in the mind' rather than you're not with it. And another gem, never to be forgotten, I feel like a fish in a can rather than, I know how a sardine feels.

"Our memories are many, full of laughter, tears, joy and especially of happiness, but all this happened to all of us all at once. Try it, believe me, you'll enjoy an AFS student! We will be eternally grateful for having been chosen!"

Many years have come and gone since the first exchange student to Snyder in 1959, Stiga Fernstrom of Finland. His family, the Don Robinson's, have long since moved to Hereford.

The Dan Martins, who with J.M. Kayser started the AFS in Snyder and still teach in Snyder High School, say their memories of the second exchange student, Evert Carlsson from Sweden, who resided in their home, seems just like yesterday. Evert has visited in Snyder twice, which speaks of his feeling for his family and the town. Just last year, he even brought his Swedish parents to Texas to meet his American family. The contact with Evert has remained close through the years.

Mrs. Martin said, "Evert brought with him foreign ideas that were interesting and educational. Our association created understanding between our countries. Since our son, Dick, was the first student abroad, to the Philippines, we had a better understanding of what was expected of us as a family."

The Raymond Williams family hosted the first female exchange student to Snyder, Isabel Saravia from Chile.

Mrs. Williams states, "It was a marvelous experience for our entire family! You profit more than the student does. 1961-62 is a year we would never give up! The experience taught our daughter, Elizabeth, to share and prepared her for living with a roommate at college."

Mail is difficult in Chile, but contact with Isabel has been maintained through her mother.

Helga Burger from Germany in 1970 lived in the Roy Meador home. Roy says, "This was an excellent opportunity to share cultural experiences with people from other lands, and a better understanding of peoples of other nations." Mrs. Meador commented, "We have far more in common than we do differences. We think America is so unique, and through AFS experiences, not only our own, we learn far-away places are just like us."

The class of '67-'68 will be having its 10-year reunion this year and hopes a very special member of their class might return, Gill Potgieter from the Republic of South Africa who resided in the Mal Stevenson home. Mrs. Stevenson said, "It was a rewarding experience! Our daughter, Cheril, has maintained a close tie for the 10 years and both have enjoyed the relationship. Gill even named a daughter after Cheril. Our year was a pleasure all the time! The whole town should be aware that these exchange students belong to the whole community and are not the sole possession of the host family."

Warm goosebumps ran up Mrs. Dennis' back as she recalled her families' wonderful year with a young man from Costa Rica in 1971-72. "Emilo Vargas Mena gave us more than we gave him. He enriched our lives by removing prejudice. He gave us joy by his eagerness and willingness to learn. He was good son. It was the beginning of a new attitude of giving for our whole family," expressed the E.B. Dennis family.

Mrs. Thayne Mebane expressed her family's pleasure in having Hernan Hechenleitner from Chile in their home in 1966-67, "It's one of the greatest years of our lives and we look back on it with great happiness! We could never forget it!"

In 1969-70, Folke With from Norway, found a friendly town in Snyder and an even more loving family in the Marlin Terrell's. Mrs. Terrell says, "Folke was an asset to the school in many ways. It was a good year for us, a time of giving and sharing with typical ups and downs, but no family turmoil. We had a very good family situation with not anything to compare. It's a wonderful feeling to know you've shared your lives with someone, especially so faraway. Folke visited in all the churches in Snyder and was asked out by many families. It was a rewarding year in many aspects. We still exchange pictures and letters with enthusiasm."

Ingun Grytli came to the George Stewart home from Norway in the 1973-74 school year. Shirley and George said, "Ingun was our 'daughter' from Norway. She was a most enjoyable person to have in our home. She and our daughter, Karen, shared their love for music, crafts, drama, and the out-of-doors.

"We still keep in touch several times a year. She is teaching weaving and crafts in a school in the northern part of Norway.

"We do recommend this sharing experience. Yes, it will cost you -- love, time, love, patience, and how much or how little money you wish to spend on a member of your family. There is a cost to the AFS student also. One year of their time, love, patience, and understanding. Their family also invests a sum of money for them to be able to share this time in our American homes.

Our year with Ingun is one our entire family will always treasure."

France's contribution to Snyder's AFS program was Brigitte Glandut in 1974-75. Gary, Kathy, and Stocky Roberts express their feelings. "Having a foreign exchange student living with us in our home was a most rewarding experience for the whole family. We learned to share our love, our home, and our very valuable time with a special friend. It was an adjustment for everyone but we feel the things we shared, made us closer as a family.

"The AFS program is a great adventure for families who are willing to take into their home, an outside person from another culture and country, and learn to love that person as one of your own. Many hours were spent talking, looking at pictures, and sharing ideas.

"We met a new person -- made a lifetime friend, whom we love deeply, and will cherish those memories. Our French daughter, Brigitte, is still a part of our family life and we hope one day soon we can meet her family and become closer to her country and her people."

Also some comments from Brigitte's American sister, Dalinda: "Having Brigitte stay with us, was an experience I will never forget ... I learned so much about her country, France, and how they lived. This helped me to appreciate more the way that other people live. I also gained a sister I never had and a long-time friend. I am glad I had the chance to have a foreign exchange student live in my home and I would gladly do it again."

Todd Line returned home from Snyder High School one day, expressing a desire to host a foreign exchange student the following year, 1975-76. Mr. and Mrs. Bill Line caught his enthusiasm and applied to be a host family. Denmark's Lars Clausen soon found his way to Snyder and the Line home. Mrs. Line says, "There was a strain the first three weeks until school started and we became adjusted to each other. Todd and Lars worked out solutions to uncomfortable situations in the very beginning and always got along beautifully. Each felt free to do his own thing. Our son-in-law taught Lars to play golf and this was a wonderful outlet for him. We had to almost drag him off the golf course to give his programs on Denmark.

"The continuation of the AFS program is the all-around biggest plus!" Mrs. Line also found a close friendship with Robyn Trail from New Zealand. She said she would never have approached Robyn if she hadn't had Lars.

Belgium is the destination goal for the D.V. Merritt Jr. family. They hosted Martine Strubble in 1965-66. Mrs. Merritt said, "Having a foreign exchange student in our home was such a warm gratifying experience not only did we gain another daughter when we had Martine Strubbe, in our home, but rather a whole family. We hear not only from Martine but her family. Martine has returned to the states to visit us on one occasion and when her children are older she plans to bring her family. We get so lonesome sometimes to see her. We write and send tapes but that's not like sitting by someone you love very much and talking about the international, national, and home problems. Martine has a warm feeling toward America unlike some of her people. I think this helps to bridge the gap between countries after living here for one year. Sometimes, it's very difficult to return to one's way of life.

"Your family learns so very much from an experience like this. You become more compassionate, have a deeper awareness of the needs of others, that perhaps you had not thought of before.

"Martine and her family are so anxious for D.V. and I to visit Belgium. They are planning many things for us to do and see when we go. Denise Martine, our little girl, who is 10, talks about Martine all the time even though she was not born when Martine lived with us. However, she has seen and loved Martine from the moment she saw her on her last visit in 1972.

"I just wish every one had the opportunity to keep an AFS student. When our 10-year-old is of age, we want to have another student. We surely would like to be considered anyway. I know that's being selfish on our part since we have already had the privilege, but who likes to give up good things if they are possible to have?"

Snyder's first year for two foreign exchange students was 1976-77. Robyn Trail from New Zealand arrived first on the day of the Scurry County Rodeo and parade. She immediately fell into step with her active host family, the Guy Sullivans.

They said, "Being AFS parents for a year was truly a rewarding experience. Our own children benefited from doing and seeing things that we probably wouldn't have made the effort to do if it hadn't been for Robyn. We wanted her to see as much of our state and country as was possible -- and believe me, a year isn't near long enough to do all that you'd like to do!

"From the time we received our first information about Robyn we just knew we were going to love her and her first letter to us was so warm and loving that we could hardly wait for her arrival. We were very fortunate because everything went smoothly from the very beginning. Just one of the many good things about AFS is learning to adjust to a new member of the family. The main adjustment, of course falls on the student. Robyn was marvelous at accepting and adapting to our ways. I'm sure it wasn't always easy for her because our household can be quite hectic at times.

"We all missed her so much when she returned to New Zealand and we still do. We learned so much from Robyn and are so much more aware of her country. We're always watching for news stories or articles about New Zealand. It's how uninformed so many people are until I heard some of the questions Robyn was asked. As an example, many were so surprised that she spoke English. They were honestly unaware of New Zealand as an English speaking country. I think we all need to be more aware of the rest of the world and AFS is a great way to do this.

"We feel that last year was one more wonderful year -- one we will never forget!"

Richardson's Sewing Center Has Special On Tune-Ups Now

A great sewing machine repair service is now underway at Richardson's Sewing Center.

Now you can have your sewing machine re-adjusted, cleaned, oiled, repaired, and totally fixed at a savings you cannot afford to pass up, said store owner Jerry Richardson.

Regularly a $24.95 value, Richardson said you can now have your sewing machine made as good as new with a tune-up for only $12.50 from now through Saturday.

If replacement parts are required in the servicing, there will be an extra charge, Richardson added. But even so, he pointed out, parts are in stock for almost any type machine.

And, as an added advantage, customers can expect to have only a one day waiting period.

But the savings and service featured at Richardson Sewing Center do not end there, Richardson noted.

Eighteen models of sewing machines are now in stock with prices as low as $99 on some models. A free-arm Singer can be purchased for as little as $149.95. The store also has in stock three electronic sewing machines that offer you the latest in Singer technology.

SALE UNDERWAY---Featuring a hospital for sewing machines, Richardson's Sewing Center will re-adjust, clean, repair, and totally fix your sewing machine at a specially reduced price from now through Saturday. Shown displaying a 1907 Singer sewing machine used to advertise the special is Nancy Ballard.

Richardson said he has a full line of portable sewing machines with some weighing only 19 pounds. A large selection of re-conditioned sewing machines are also available starting as low as $59.95.

The re-conditioned machines can be purchased for as little as $15 down and $5 a week. Financing is available at Richardson's Sewing Center.

For heavy-duty work, a commercial machine is also available at the store as well as a serger.

Not only are sewing machines found in abundance, but all of the sewing machine accessories are also there.

Needles, scissors, button holers, thread, cabinets, and chairs are included among the accessories.

Not only that, but Richardson's Sewing Center is also an authorized Kirby, Rainbow-Reyair, and Singer vacuum cleaners dealer. Accompanying the vacuum cleaners are bags, belts, and expert servicing.

You can get whatever you need in the way of sewing machines and vacuum cleaners at Richardson's Sewing Center. The store is located at 1900 37th St. and is open from 9 a.m. until 5:30 p.m., Monday through Friday and from 9 a.m. until noon on Saturday.

Tribute Paid To Dr. King

CHICAGO (AP)-James Meredith, the first black to attend the University of Mississippi, says if Martin Luther King Jr. were alive, "he would concentrate his work in the cities."

At ceremonies in honor of King's 49th birthday Sunday, Meredith said: "If I wanted to discriminate, I would do it the way they're doing it in Chicago. If Dr. King were alive today he would concentrate his work in the cities where most blacks live. He never made any dent in Chicago."

Meredith, 44, was shot and wounded during a civil rights march in Memphis, Tenn. He is now a Jackson, Miss. businessman. King was assassinated in 1968 in Memphis, Tenn.

Wheelbarrow Used For Collection

NEW YORK (AP)-The Rev. Edgar James Helms, Methodist minister, inaugurated the concept of the collection box for the Goodwill Industries of America Inc. when he found the financial squeeze in this country shrinking and pocketbooks of the affluent in the early 1900s.

Rev. Helms canvassed from door to door asking for cast-off clothing, and any other goods that he could carry away. When a streetcar conductor refused to allow him to bring his bags on board, Rev. Helms resorted to a wheelbarrow.
