BEST PERIOD OF BUSINESS PROSPERITY EVER KNOWN FACING WICHITA FALLS DISTRICT, SAYS FEDERAL RESERVE AGENT, A VISITOR IN CITY TUESDAY.

WICHITA FALLS and the trade territory immediately adjacent to it are facing one of the best periods of business prosperity it has ever known, in the opinion of J. Floyd Clouse, traveling representative of the Federal Reserve bank of Dallas who was in the city Tuesday calling on local bankers.

Mr. Clouse, who travels extensively over the entire 11th Federal Reserve District said that around Wichita Falls he found a progressiveness and a stable financial condition that augured exceedingly well for commerce of all kinds for some months to come. Even this summer, he said, when business naturally was dull, he found things showing but a slight seasonal drop in activity.

The federal reserve man made an inspection tour of the Wichita valley recently in company with Tom Corridon, Iowa Park banker, and declared himself utterly amazed at the tremendous development apparent in the valley. He asserted that this irrigation factor was to be an all-important one in swinging Wichita Falls business into swift and stable channels.

All of Texas, Mr. Clause thought, but more especially the northern and western sections, were experiencing a good year. The eastern and central parts are facing trouble through failure of the cotton crop, he asserted, but otherwise were in fair shape.

He expressed extreme confidence in Col. C. C. Walsh of San Angelo, newly appointed chairman of the Federal Reserve board, and said he found bankers generally in this district congratulating the reserve board on selection of a capable and practical business man and financier to head it.

'WHITE CARGO' STAR MAY DIE AS RESULT OF SHOT BY WIFE

Allen Davis Taken to Hospital Following Her Shooting

WOUNDS ARE SERIOUS

Woman Interrupts Dinner Party and Fires Two Times

NEW YORK, July 7.—(AP)—Allen Davis, 25, leading man in the play "White Cargo," was shot in the shoulder and head tonight by his chorus girl wife in an apartment where he was dining with two friends. He was taken to the Polyclinic Hospital in a serious condition.

Mrs. Davis, known professionally as Edith Parker, entered the apartment as her husband was dining with Melville Anderson and Harry Wagstaff Gribble, playwright.

"I want to see my husband alone," she said.

Asked to Dine.

Anderson and Gribble asked her to dine with them, but she again requested to see her husband alone. Passing through a kitchenette into a bedroom she and Davis held a brief conversation.

A few seconds later Anderson and Gribble heard reports of a revolver. Mrs. Davis returned to the dining room and, eluding the two men, ran to the street.

Three detectives in an automobile saw her running and stopped her. When they learned the cause of her flight they arrested her and she was held charged with felonious assault.

Placed Under Physician.

The actor was placed under the care of Dr. Thomas Russell, who recently operated on Earl Sande, the jockey. An immediate operation was ordered.

Anderson and Gribble were at a loss to account for Mrs. Davis' Motive in shooting her husband.

At the police station Mrs. Davis refused to talk.

Kemp Will Be Asked To Give Waco Ideas Of Irrigation Lake

WACO, July 7.—The city commission tonight voted to invite J. A. Kemp, Wichita Falls capitalist, instrumental in building the lake at that place, to come to Waco and address citizens of this city, suggesting some method of financing the building of a lake on the Bosque river.

TANKS HUNT FOR SMUGGLERS

Tank Company Called Out in Search Of Possemen Slayers.

SALINAS, Calif., July 7.—(AP)—The fortieth tank company of the California National Guard, in camp at Delmonte, was called out today, together with a new citizens' posse to aid in the search for a number of rum runners believed to be in hiding in a hay field at Moss Landing, nine miles from here, after killing a number of a sheriff's posse which surprised them at work last night.

50 PLANES TO SHOW OFF

Air Circus Planned For Opening of Fort Worth Field.

FORT WORTH, July 7.—More than half a hundred airplanes will participate in an air circus at the formal opening of the Fort Worth air port within the next six weeks, it was announced today by J. R. Meeker, field operator.

Plan[illegible] now being made for the flying exhibition which will be sponsored by the Fort Worth Flying club.

Ma Accommodates A Con By Telegraphing Pardon

Hail The Chief and All His Cops! It's Tonight! The Policemen's Ball!

MISS LIBERTY, REPRESENTED BY MISS MAE CATO, AT THE POLICEMAN'S BALL WEDNESDAY NIGHT, AND POLICE MASCOT, MASTER FRANK QUEISSER, JR.

THE fox trot, the one step, the waltz and the time honored square dance will blend in a hilarious ensemble of melody and mirth tonight when a score and more of Wichita Falls cops are hosts to a thousand or more Wichitans.

The occasion is the first annual policeman's ball which, if you let George Hodgins tell it, will be "a dahn good thing to be at." The burley chief may be a bit prejudiced, but there is no denying that he and his men will put on a real party at Lake Wichita tonight. They have worked tirelessly on a program that threatens to eclipse anything heretofore offered in the way of terpsichorean entertainment.

Starting at 8:30, "you can dance until daylight" if you wish. A high-powered orchestra will be on hand to supply music, while plenty of refreshments will also be available for all and sundry. A flock of uniformed officers will be on the grounds from first to last in order that perfect decorum may be preserved.

"This is a dance for everybody," Chief Hodgins said yesterday, "and I intend to see it run in a way everyone can enjoy. We want everybody to come out and have a good time, but by that we mean a sensible and proper good time. No rough stuff goes."

Included on the program will be selections by some of the best entertainers in the city. Mayor R. E. Shepherd—the big chief himself—is slated for a solo, and he confidentially told Chief Hodgins yesterday he might even do a dance like he did down at Stamford one night a couple of years ago when he was on a trade trip.

Mrs. J. S. Pittman, Anna Mae Cato, Marjorie Fae Hoenscheidt, Prof. E. A. Nelson, Laura Mae Costley, Rosa Mary Cotter, the Palace quartet and others will also appear.

For the benefit of those who do not have automobiles, street cars will leave the city hall corner, Ninth and Ohio, promptly at 8 o'clock to carry the revelers to the lake. Special service will also be provided "after the ball is over."

5 BUSHELS IS WHEAT YIELD

Guy Jones, county agent, is authority for the statement Tuesday that threshing is 75 per cent completed in Wichita county and that the average wheat yield appears to be about five and one-half bushels to the acre.

He states the average wheat yield one year ago was 35 bushels per acre.

The county agent also stated that crops in Wichita county at the present time are badly in need of rain.

ROAD ASS'N. HEAD RESIGNS

Former Mayor of Orange Leaving For Tennessee.

FORT WORTH, July 7.—W. E. Lea, former mayor of Orange and president of the Texas Highway association since the annual convention of the association in Galveston last August sent his written resignation to W. T. Wheeler, secretary of the association here today. President Lea announced in the letter that he was going to Tennessee to be gone several month and would be unable to devote his time to the affairs of the association.

PLAINS WELL BRINGS ACTION

Flowing 750 barrels per day, the third day after completion from sand topped at 968 feet and drilled to 988 feet, the Plains Production company's No. 1 Kilcrease, located to the northeast of the Litchfield pool, is creating a good deal of trading along the row. With four new locations already made and the owners' refusal to sell for a comfortable fortune said to be in excess of $200 per barrel flush the field has what promises to be a big future.

With Murchison & Fain's location 300 feet south of their east offset, Humble's 300 feet to the east of the same well and the Plains company skidding one direction and building a new derrick for a second, things are considerably enlivened. It is confidently stated from authoritative sources that the week will see several new locations by surrounding lease holders and these might well be justified as judged by the showing of the new well it may be but a border location on a field of undefinable scope. So Olney may yet take off its hat, this time to reverse the order of things and bow to their brothers of the east.

FARMER GRAIN MARKETING CO. WILL DISSOLVE

Bank Creditors Notified Of End of Biggest Concern

TO LOSE NO MONEY

Year Old Company Holds Properties of Over $16,000,000

CHICAGO, July 7.—The $26,000,000 grain marketing company, the largest farmer co-operative project ever attempted will be dissolved, banker creditors were notified today.

The properties, valued at $16,407,000, will be returned to the grain companies who entered the merger which had for its object eventual control of the company by farmer producers. None of the parties concerned in the merger, either banker creditors or farmer stockholders, will lost money through the dissolution, it was announced.

Incorporated in 1924.

The company was incorporated a year ago as a co-operative, under the permissive provisions of recent agricultural legislation and on the basis of four old line grain companies proposing to lease their properties to the co-operative and participate on the temporary basis as a board of managers.

The operators were also holders of $4,000,000 worth of stock, given in exchange for an advance working capital which was to be retired when an equivalent amount of stock was sold to farmers. Failure of the company to persuade enough farmers to buy stock within the time allowed under the contract for retirement of the $4,000,000 of stock was held responsible for the impending dissolution.

Abandon Sales.

A month ago the Illinois commission required the company to sign an agreement with the Illinois Agricultural association that it would sell no more stock in Illinois before July 28, the date set for an accounting with the four old line grain companies. The Indiana securities commission also refused permission to the co-operative to sell stock in that state and the company withdrew its application for permission to sell stock in Ohio.

Yesterday it was announced that it had disbanded its promotional forces and stopped its stock promotion campaign. Banking interests which advanced money to the concern a year ago for operating expenses were assured today they would be fully repaid. The farmer stockholders' equity in the co-operative is fully covered by current liquid assets, officers said.

THE WEATHER

LYRICS OF LIFE
By Douglas Malloch
Night Is the Cure.

BENEATH the shining stars,
Beneath gleaming moon,
When night has healed the scars
Of burning noon,
You surely cannot weep
In such an hour as this,
When peace, and calm, and sleep,
Come like a kiss.

Yes, if the day was long,
And hard the load you bore,
Whatever has been wrong
Is wrong no more.
Whatever road we go,
Or heavy hurt endure,
Whatever wounds we know,
Night is the cure.

And so, I say to you,
If hate possess your heart,
When day's hot strife is through
Bid hate depart.
You surely cannot hate
When twilight is so kind—
Ah, when you pass your gate
Leave hate behind.

The disappointing day
Whenever wrong, or how,
Is something passed away,
Is ended now,
Forget, forgive, the scar,
And sleep will find you soon
Beneath the shining stars,
The gleaming moon.

HUCKINS WILL BUILD HOTEL ON WEST COAST

Fort Worth Man to Put Up $3,000,000 Hostelry In 'Frisco

FORT WORTH, July 7.—L. W. Huckins, manager-owner of the Westbrook hotel, has announced the purchase of a site for a $3,000,000 hotel in San Francisco, Calif. The ground was purchased at a cost of about $1,000,000. Construction will be begun on the new twenty-story building as soon as the leases on the present property expire.

The new hotel will embrace all modern conveniences in hotel service. It will have 650 rooms, each equipped with bath, circulating ice water and other late improvements.

Huckins is a member of an old Texas hotel family now operating "The Westbrook" in Fort Worth, "The Huckins" in Texarkana, Ark., "The Kemp" in Wichita Falls, "The Huckins" in Oklahoma City, Okla., and "The Oxford" in Enid, Okla.

FAVOR SALE OF SHIPS

WASHINGTON, July 7.—(AP)—Acceptance of one or more of the bids opened in the effort to sell 200 vessels for scrapping was favored by President Palmer of the fleet corporation today in his report to the board.

The recommendation was described as definite and concise but no details were made public.

LOST FOOT FREES ONE

Conditional Freedom To Pool, Convicted of Burglary in Wichita Co.

AUSTIN, July 7.—Harry Boyd of Dallas received a conditional pardon from Governor Miriam A. Ferguson late July 3, it was learned at the governor's office today. The information was wired the state prison at Huntsville and J. K. Brimm of Sulphur, Springs, who helped to obtain the pardon went to Huntsville after Boyd.

"Oversight" Explained.

Ghent Sanderford, personal secretary to the governor, said that friends of Boyd wanted to get him home in time for the Fourth of July so the release was telegraphed instead of mailed. The pardon was not announced, through an oversight, it was explained.

Walter Henderson, alias Heine Jackson, Wichita county, under 5-20 year sentence for murder was Tuesday granted a full pardon, on application brought here by his father W. J. Henderson. He served over half his sentence, it was stated. The pardon was recommended by John Davenport, former county attorney, who prosecuted the case, and who expressed doubt as to guilt, D. M. Perkins, fore-

BIG WHEAT YIELD IS MADE NEAR FREDERICK.

FREDERICK, Okla., July 7.—W. M. Wint is the champion wheat grower this year for Tillman county. During threshing season, he ran a combine over an acre and a half and received 63 bushels of grain.

Such a record is accounted for by the fact that on the land where the wheat was grown, cotton was planted last year and grasshoppers devoured the crop. The field was kept tilled all summer and the moisture was kept for seeding purposes.

First Canal Syphon Installed in Wichita Irrigation Project

P. A. Welty, chief engineer of the irrigation system, announced Tuesday that he is installing a ten-inch syphon to take the water over the banks of a high fill in the Denny neighborhood. The project is being undertaken to avoid cutting the bank of the fill with a gate.

It is stated that this is the first trut syphon to be installed in the Wichita Falls irrigation project.

Fortune in Golden Friendship Left In Wichita Falls By Uncle Charley

Veteran Florist Goes To Reward Amid Mourning of City Leaders Who Knew His Passing Ends Life of Love.

HE died a pauper so far as worldly goods are reckoned, but his friends who gathered at his side to pay a final tribute yesterday knew that the man they honored left behind him a heritage as gleaming as gold and as undying as the beauty of the blossoms he cultivated.

FLOWERS HE LOVED PILED OVER GRAVE.

Uncle Charley Blair slept in Riverside cemetery Tuesday night with the flowers he loved piled high above his head. The remains of the feeble posy vender were buried late in the afternoon after a score or more of the city's business and financial leaders paused a few moments for his funeral. He will be forgotten in time, but those who did him honor yesterday know that in his passing Wichita Falls has lost a man whose absence will leave an emptiness.

The veteran florist passed away Monday evening at the county poor farm after several weeks of ill health. Without relatives and without funds he spent his last days as a charity patient.

A BANK PRESIDENT DEMANDS TO SERVE.

But when it became generally known Tuesday that he had died, the esteem in which he was held immediately began to manifest itself. One of the first to pay tribute to Uncle Charley's memory was W. M. McGregor, president of the First National bank who called officials of the Kay Bible class to make certain the class was to bury the aged man.

"I knew him," Mr. McGregor said "And if the class is not going to bear the expense of the funeral I want to pay it myself. If you gentlemen are in need of any funds I want you to call on me for any amount."

Mr. McGregor attended the funeral and a gorgeous bouquet of flowers bearing the card "Mr. and Mrs. W. M. McGregor" lay on the grave last night.

Expressions of similar esteem came all day from other business men and women of the city. A half-dozen or more gave monetary demonstrations and as many checks for vaying amounts were turned over to Oral Jones, cashier of the City National bank and president of the Kay Bible class, of which Uncle Charley was a member. The funds are to be applied on the burial expense.

AN UNDERTAKER REFUSES TO CHARGE.

Still another to pay tribute to the veteran was George Merkle, local undertaker in whose care the body was placed. When members of the class were making arrangements for the funeral they asked Mr. Merkle what the expenses of funeral and burial would be.

"About $175," Mr. Merkle told them, "but I would like to take care of $75 of it myself. I knew Uncle Charley, too."

It was a spirit similar to this that prevailed in all quarters.

Funeral services were held at 5 o'clock in the Merkle Undertaking parlors on Tenth street with Dr. Walter Johnson, pastor of the First Methodist church, south, officiating. He was assisted by Rev. F. M. Richardson, presiding elder of this district of the Methodist church.

A CITY'S MAYOR SINGS "LEAD KINDLY LIGHT."

Dr. Johnson's eulogy was not lengthy but it was sincere. In it he paid warm tribute to the character of a man who could command such a universal friendship as could Uncle Charley. He touched on Uncle Charley's love of the beautiful in life, as exemplified by his passion for flowers and in closing he said in part: "We mourn the passing of our brother but we need not

HE MAINTAINS SCOPES TRIAL SURE TO BE A DEATH GRAPPLE

Commoner, In Address At Dayton, Says It's to Come To Light

DINED BY CITIZENS

Tennessee Town in Hub-Bub As Prosecuting Attorney Finally Arrives

DAYTON, Tenn., July 7. (AP)—The contest between evolution and christianity is a "duel to the death," William Jennings Bryan declared tonight in an address at a dinner given in his honor by the Progressive Dayton club in the dining room of the Hotel Aqua.

"It has been in the past a death grapple in the dark," said Mr. Bryan, who arrived here today in preparation for the trial of John T. Scopes, charged with violating the Tennessee statute against teaching evolution in the public schools.

"From this time on it will be a death grappel in the light."

Mr. Bryan, who is associated with counself for the prosecution of the young high school instructor, was the guest of the club which two weeks ago entertained Clarence Darrow of the defense counsel. The fundamentalist leader was introduced tonight by Wallace Haggard, member of the prosecution counsel. A welcome to Dayton was extended by John L. Godsey, member of defense counsel.

One of the issues of the coming trial, which is scheduled to begin next Friday, is whether the people shall rule in the United States, the speaker asserted. The people are the only source of power, he said, and will in the end control.

A Busy Day.

The dinner ended a day which for Dayton has been one of the busiest since the visit of Darrow, Colby and Malone. The arrival of Mr. Bryan shortly after noon followed the return of John T. Scopes and Dr. John R. Neal, chief defense counsel, from Cookeville, where yesterday they filed a petition for an injunction to remove the case from the state to the federal court, only to have it refused.

Mr. Bryan immediately after stepping from the train, which made a special stop to deposit him in Dayton, was escorted to the home of Richard Rogers, where he will make his headquarters during his stay in Dayton. During the afternoon he held a brief conference with Sue K. Hicks, Wallace C. Haggard, Judge J. G. McKenzie and Herbert Hicks, local members of the prosecution staff, and visited various points of interest in Dayton.

He viewed the court room in which the trial will be held, visited the newspaper club rooms and the office of the Hicks brothers.

Says He's Ready.

Upon stepping from the train where he was met by a host of Daytonians,

LYNCH LAUDS DAVIDSON FOR DROPPING OUT

Claims That Whit Was Strong Man and a Good Worker

AUSTIN, July 7.—(AP)—Lynch Davidson of Houston, lieutenant governor under Pat Neff's first administration and one of the defeated candidates in the first democratic primary last year in the race for governor, said today that T. W. Davidson's withdrawal from the political ring as a candidate for governor, clarifies the situation.

Lynch to Run.

Mr. Lynch Davidson intends to make a hard race for the governorship of Texas at the next election, he said, while on a brief visit to Austin en route to Chicago on business.

He issued a statement of tribute to T. W. Davidson of Marshall, for the latter's recent statement on the frailties of the present primary law said the independent voter, uncontrolled by factional or group influences, supports the candidate he deems will best serve the state. "Factional or group voters," he said, "usually composed of self-serving minorities, stick to their candidate; the independent vote is scattered and the factional or group candidate is nominated.

Tribute to Whit.

"It is a tribute to T. W. Davidson's patriotism that he is willing to forego his own ambition and by so doing, reduce the number of candidates on the ballot, remove the confusion of two of the name on the same ticket for the same office, and as far as is within his power, overcome the frailties of the present primary election law."

He declared that under the present primary system there is no way to get a fair expression of the will of the people if any great number of candidates run in the first primary.

Mr. Davidson explained that the differences between the two Davidsons had always been political and not personal; that T. W. Davidson's public service had been a matter of pride to his friends and that he was "sure his temporary retirement is a disappointment to them." He lauded T. W. Davidson's public service.

COOLIDGES MOURN DEAD BOY.

One Year Ago Tuesday Calvin Died of Infection.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., July 7.—Saddened by the recollection that their younger son Calvin died just a year ago, President and Mrs. Coolidge remained today in the privacy of the summer White House. They had planned to be in Plymouth, Vt., where the lad was buried, but the illness of the president's father, necessitating a hurried trip there forced an alteration of plans and it is no improbable that they will visit the Vermont village before late in the summer, unless there should be an unfavorable turn in Colonel John C. Coolidge's condition.

FATHER MAY BEAT SON

Court Upholds Parent Who Breaks Into Dance and Whips Boy.

PASADENA, Cal., July 7.—(AP)—A modern youth of twenty should expect to be soundly thrashed when he stays out until 11 p. m., at a dance in violation of parental instructions. This is the ruling handed down in effect here yesterday by the gray haired police court jurors who acquitted J. Frank Ware of a charge of disturbing the peace. Ware was accused of breaking up a dance in the American legion hall by tearing his twenty-year-old son from the arms of a dancing partner and beating him vigorously with a strap.

New York Man Advertises For Girl To Be Adopted Child and Live In Riches

NEW YORK, July 7.—(AP).—Some Cinderella, in place of a prince for a husband, is going to have all the advantages that riches can give in return for love of an adopted father.

Edward W. Browning, wealthy real estate operator, has advertised for a pretty, refined girl about 14 years old to be brought up as his own child with every opportunity—education, travel, kindness, care and love.

Plenty Applicants.

His office has been flooded with applications. After he sees and talks with prospective daughters, they have a Cinderella treat whether they meet with his approval or not. In place of a coach and four horses that turn into mice they are sent home in a big limousine with liveried chauffeur and footman.

Mr. Browning is already the foster father of two girls, Marjorie Gloria and Dorothy Sunshine Browning. After he divorced his wife in Paris last year it was agreed that Marjorie was to stay with Mrs. Browning while he retained Dorothy. He wants another girl principally to grow up as a playmate to Dorothy, who was lifted into the land of luxury six years ago.

Children of the poor, Mr. Browning believes, are healthier and do better in world affairs than children of the rich. Dorothy's companion will be taken into his home on trial for a month or six weeks.

"A Perfect Prize."

"Dorothy has turned out to be a perfect prize," Mr. Browning said. "I got so lonesome for her recently that I dropped all business and traveled up to the private camp in northern Vermont where she is staying. In winter I send her to a select school for girls on Riverside Drive.

"She knows she is my adopted child but that makes no difference in her loving attitude toward me. It is amusing to see how her tastes have changed. Not so long ago she had nothing. Recently I gave her the choice of an automobile and she selected a Rolls Royce."

In town Dorothy's playground is a private roof garden, 12 stories above the street with an artificial lake for bathing.

When the first girl applicant was asked if she wished to leave her mother, she shook her head while tears streamed down her face. But during the ride back home she said it was the best she ever had. Most mothers pleaded poverty for wanting to part with their children.

SEYMOUR HOST TO C-C. HEADS AT A BANQUET

Irrigation Stressed by R. Q. Lee in Speech Before Men

SEYMOUR, July 7.—Irrigation was stressed by R. Q. Lee, of Cisco, president of West Texas chamber of commerce at Seymour, on the shores of one of the world's greatest irrigation lakes. Speaking at a banquet in Municipal building before 100 of Seymour's selected business men, Lee drove home with powerful emphasis his doctrine of intensified and diversified farming. Warning of too much cotton was stressed and he urged farmers to diversify and intensify in their crops. He rehearsed the wonderful expansion of the poultry industry in his home county and city and described the great success of the Bank Head Marketing association that has secured for its members prices for poultry market and has made the market for Eastland county poultry products the equal of Petaluma, Calif.

Porter A. Whaley described the work of the West Texas chamber of commerce in the common point freight rates and urged all West Texans to avail themselves of the services of West Texas chamber of commerce. Homer D. Wade, assistant manager joined the party at Seymour.

Gets Drunk, Steals Locomotive to Take Ride and Wrecks It

NEW YORK, July 7.—Charged with stealing a $65,000 locomotive for a joy ride and wrecking it and another locomotive in a collision, Nicholas Oper of Long Island City, today was held in $1,000 bail for a hearing.

Police say Oper admitted entering the private roundhouse of a construction company on the night of July 3 while intoxicated. Finding no watchman on duty he decided to take a ride. Oper had never been in a locomotive before and was hurled out the cab window at the first sharp curve. He was not hurt.

The runaway engine gathered speed, racing 65 miles an hour crashed into a Long Island railroad locomotive wrecking both engines and seriously injuring Engineer George Dimmick. Total damage is estimated at $150,000.

Frederick Lighting System Is Improved

FREDERICK, Okla., July 7.—Improvements in the city lighting system are the most notable feature of the additional appropriation measures which were adopted at a meeting of the city council, and passed at a recent meeting of the county excise board. A total sum of $18,801.32 was added to the appropriation of which $6,082 will be used in improvements in the city water and light service.

New projects include a power line to the site of the new cotton compresses, the line being run from the plant, which will eliminate tapping the wires downtown and overloading the business section lines.

Seventy-five additional street lights will be constructed under the proposed appropriation, John J. Zumwalt, superintendent, says.

Thieves of Vatican Are Caught With Goods, Says Report

ROME, July 7.—(AP).—The sacred objects stolen from the vatican treasury last Friday night have been recovered and four of the thieves arrested through clever detective work by the Italian police. The stolen articles are valued at more than a million lire, or about $50,000. They included the ring set with diamonds and a great sapphire which is placed on a finger of St. Peter's statute on special occasions, and a complete altar service of gold, adorned with precious stones.

One of the prisoners, Marian Stella, a former shoemaker, is believed to have been a principal in the plot, and the other three accomplises. They were captured when Police Commissioner Marotta got into contact with them, posing as a receiver of stolen goods.

Six workmen who were engaged in repairing the interior of the palace and who are suspected of having connection with the crime were also arrested.

Costly Necklace Of Pearls, Stolen Last September, Returned

CHICAGO, July 7.—(AP)—A costly pearl necklace, taken at the point of a pistol last September by a robber from Miss Hester White, daughter of F. Edson White, head of Armour and company has been returned to Colonel A. V. Smith, Lake county prosecutor.

The prosecutor refused to say in what manner the pearls had been recovered.

The White robbery was one of a series confessed by several youth who named as an accomplice Jack Durand, foster son of the wealthy Scott C. Durand of Lake Bluff. As a result of their statements, Durand recently was arrested in Los Angeles where he worked as a black face target for a ball throwing concession at an amusement park.

UNCLE SAM GOING TO THE DOGS.

London has many great newspapers. The Morning Post is one. Now the Post sees the United States going to the dogs with too much money and too many laws. According to The Post in the last ten years or so, 500,000 laws, mostly of a prohibitive character, have been enacted in the United States. In the same period Great Britain passed 17,000 laws, mostly regulated.

It is the conclusion of the Post that this hyperlegislative spirit has brought all law into contempt in America. Uncle Sam is in a bad way according to The Post, which has been told that with the wave of crime in America has come to an equal wave of social depravity.

There is too much prosperity in America according to The Post. It is bad for any country. Wage workers are too prosperous. This, according to The Post, works great evil and leads to discontented masses. Most of the liberty enjoyed by the United States citizens is enjoyed in open violation of some law or ordinnace which the police are unable or unwilling to enforce.

There was a time when Great Britain had all the gold of the world. It isn't so now. There was a time when the people of the United States borrowed vast sums of money from the people of Great Britain. It isn't so now. Today the people of Great Britain are paying interest money of $250,000,000 a year to the Government of the United States, or rather to the people of the United States.

They borrowed billions to save their faces. Now they are paying the interest and one of their leading newspapers sees in the dim distance Uncle Sam going headlong to Hell because he has too much money and too many laws. Why worry over there?

MRS. ROGERS WON THE PRIZE.

Mrs. John Jacob Rogers has pushed her face into the public picture gallery. Her husband was a republican congressman from Massachusettes for six terms. He was re-elected last year and he died early in the spring time. Now the voters of the district by a majority of 11,000 have elected his widow as the representative.

There are many important industrial centers in this congretional district. Indeed, the husband of the victor of the recent election wrested the district from the democrats years ago. It has a very large population of wage earners. Honorable Eugene publican for many years and then he became a tariff Foss was the democratic nominee. Foss was a reformer with free trade tendancies. He made a campaign of the district, but Mrs. Rogers overwhelmed him. For every vote he received she received two and a half votes.

A tariff reformer or free trader has as much chanace of winning in a New England district as a snow ball has of surviving in Hades. Wage workers in New England, democratic or otherwise, do not take kindly to the free trade gospel. Free trade may be all right but they just can't see it. They are told unless the manufacturers are protected from foreign competition, then the wages of the mill operatives will be cut to the bone. Then they vote the republican ticket or remain from the polls.

A BANKER AND A POET.

Bankers are said to be non-sentimental. There are few poets among them, and the banking world has as never yet produced a sob sister or sob brother. Col. C. C. Walsh of San Angelo is the new chairman and federal reserve agent of the 11th district federal reserve bank at Dallas.

Colonel Walsh is a poet. His cowboy poems are far above the average. Many of them are touching. Some few are really holding. There are others that provoke mirth.

Colonel Walsh has been one of the builders of the Concho river country. He has been a successful rancher, a successful banker, a successful poet, a successful citizens and as president of the West Texas chamber of commerce last year, he demonstrated himself to be a real executive.

Now he is going to transfer his home to Dallas, but not all of his effections. It is a real plan, his new job. It pays $18,000 a year and his salary may be advanced to $25,000 in the near future.

Really the republicans are picking for place their most successful and popular men away down here in Texas. But think of a successful poet that is also a successful banker, and then realize that there is something new under the sun.

NOW CAPTURE THE SMUGGLERS.

Transfer of the headquarters for narcottic in Texas and New Mexico from El Paso to San Antonio has been made by the Coolidge administration. Now capture the drug runners. There are hundreds of federal agents down on the border keeping out aliens. There are hundreds of agents keeping out drugs and rum runners. Adj. Gen. Mark McGee has his rangers down there.

English opium producers in India every year produce eight times more opium than the legitimate demand of the world calls for, and this opium must find a market some where. Is the world wholly civilized? Is the so-called Christian world wholly civilized? No, the dawn of the morning of perfection is not in sight.

Man's greed never changes. Human nature never changes. Human love for gold never changes. There is big money in the cultivation of the poppy plant and that is the reason why the production is eight times in excess of the legitimate demand.

LABOR FOR THE LORD.

Organized labor in the city of New York and this regardless of creed, voted to contribute a window to the name of the new cathedral of St. John the Divine. Organized labor will do the actual work in erecting the structure, but wishing to have a share in it beyond this, they contributed to the cost of some part of it by their own free will financial offering. Organized labor appears to be a fixture in the civilized world now. There was a time when organized labor was an out-cast. It must be true that the world is moving.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

Not When But How.

"When I am rich."

"When I am successful."

"When I am famous."

How often are these words in the minds and speech of youngsters who will never be rich, or successful or famous, but who might be at least one of the three if they would spend as much time planning how it is to be done as they do dreaming of the day when it has been accomplished.

It is so easy to picture what we will do when we have scaled the ladder.

It is another matter to keep going up the ladder step by step, and never being weary until the top has been reached.

Wealth cannot be difficult of acquirement if one is determined to get it.

There are hundreds of thousands of people who have it, some of them having very little else.

Success can be defined in many ways. But substantial success, which comes of doing one's work well, enjoying doing it, and getting enough from it to pay bills and keep out of debt, is common enough.

Fame is another matter. It may come of God given ability, it may come from being born into a position on which the limelight happens to be fixed, or getting into such a position by accident.

But no man who has honestly earned fame, and no woman either, ever did it by dreaming of how wonderful it was.

Even those of great talent discovered that work and planning and self-sacrifice were necessary to achieve it, and gave them unstintedly until the fame was accomplished.

The young person who really wants to occupy some important place in the word because of what he can accompish in it has a ong, hard row ahead of him and he will have no time to stop by the way and look at the top of the mountain if he wants to get there before the sundown of life.

There is hard going even for the unusually able.

There must be hours of plodding, many long and tiresome detours, much thinking about ways and means to make the next step, as the mountain climber must plan carefully to get over a crevice or scale a cliff which looms right ahead of him.

But good progress can be made by thought and effort, if one does not get discouraged by little things, or lose his temper at unforseen accidents.

There are enough people who do "get there" about us to prove to us that it can be done.

It cannot be done easily, or in a leisurely walk. It cannot be done without giving up pleasures, and forgetting hardships.

But if the mind is set on how to do it, it will find a way, provided it is a mind that is at all capable of rising above the ordinary.

And most minds, properly trained, and disciplined, can bring their owners to some sort of success, because there are so many people in the world who prefer dreams to achievement, and are always thinking "when" instead of "how."

BEVERIDGE OF INDIANA.

Vice President Charles G. Dawes knows how it feels to be shot full of arrows or to have his body lance pierced. Former Senator Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana brands the proposed rules in the senate an assault upon the theory and nature of American institutions. Former Senator Beveridge is admittedly one of the ablest of American statesmen, one of the foremost thinkers of the country and if there is a man who knows American history, then this hoosier lawyer and writer should be given second if not first place.

Vice President Dawes is getting plenty of publicity, but when he submits his proposed rule to the 96 senators he is going to be given areal shock, that is, unless Dawes is teasing the venerable gentleman who dominated what was at one time known as the American House of Lords.

Senator Underwood is the only democrat to date who has declared for the Dawes rule, and two-thirds of the republican senators are said to be sharpening their knives for the coming battle. No, not battle. It will be just a little skirmish.

John C. Calhoun, Daniel Webster and Henry Clay are said to be responsible for many of the senate rules. They flourished away back in tthe ox-cart period of civilization, hence it must be true that rules men make lives after them.

WOMEN CONGRESSMEN.

Mrs. Alice Robertson of Oklahoma was the second woman to be elected to the lower house of congress. She served one term and then the voters made her quit. That is, they voted for the other candidate.

New Jersey has a woman congressman, Mrs. Mary T. Norton. She is a democrat. Now Massachusetts has elected Mrs. John Jacob Rogers to keep Mrs. Norton company. Mrs. Huck of Illinois served part of a term. She failed of re-election. Mrs. John J. Nolan of California served a part of a term and then a full term. Then she quit. Mrs. Nolan said it did not appeal to her. Mrs. Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin was asked to become a candidate for a seat in the senate as the successor of her lamented husband.

She refused to take the bait but advised the leaders to select her son, Robert M. LaFollette, Jr. When will the democrats of Texas send a woman to congress? Something sensational will be needed in th ecampaign of 1926. Why not start now?

THIS IS THE TOURIST SEASON.

A million American tourists visited in California, Montana and Wyoming last year. Perhaps more than a million tourist are on their way to the same spots this year. Native sons of the Golden West are going to make it interesting for the tourist.

Montana has already pulled off a number of small earthquakes and there have been rumblings on the Pacific coast from San Francisco to Los Angeles. Santa Barbara had one that destroyed all the brick buildings in the city. Santa Barbara is a popular resort. Among other things it boasts of a milk pure establishment.

A patient is given the milk diet and nothing else for six weeks, and if he survives the treatment at the end of the six weeks he is ready to tackle a grizzly bear. Texas is not in the earthquake zone. There are no quakes in the Magic Valley. This for the tourist.

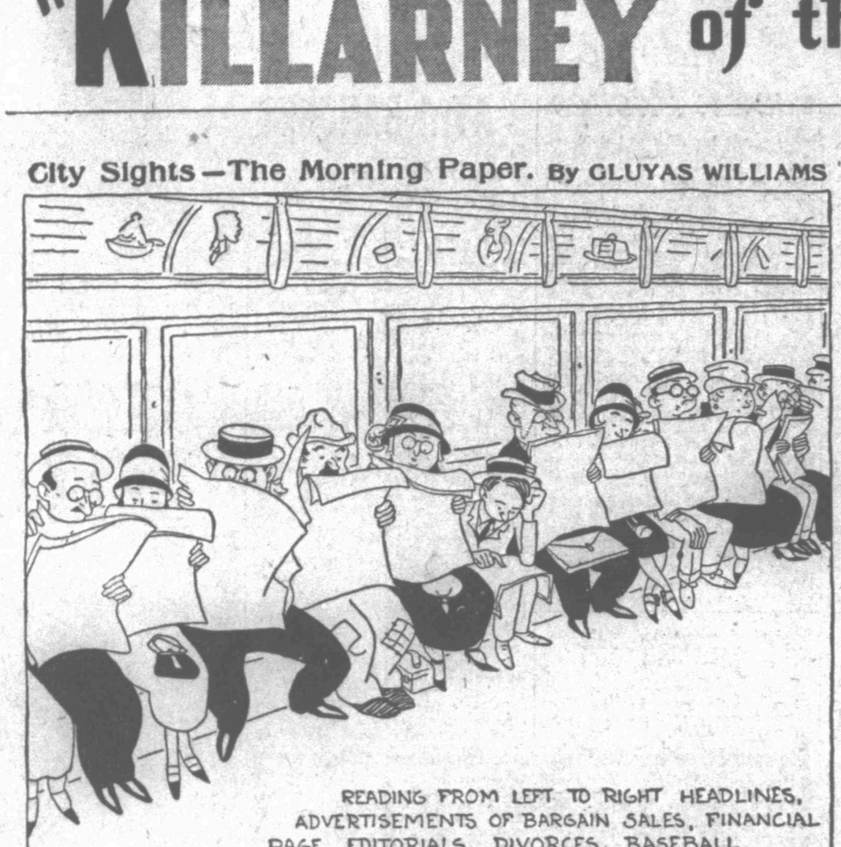

AMERICAN SPINDLES ACTIVE.

Cotton spinning activity increased slightly in April in the United States as compared with March this year and was much more marked than in April a year ago. Indeed it is said that spinning activity reached one hundred per cent of single shift basis capacity for the first time since June, 1923.

Another 12,000,000 bale crop this year will place money in the pockets of American growers not withstanding that some of the southern experts say that when the price of cotton does not go beyond 25 cents a pound it falls below the actual cost of production. Does it?

Slowly, as the motor rolled into the lights and traffic of Longacre Square, he turned his head so that the last thing he saw was the leaping, vivid glow of the electrics of the theatre they had just left. The "Heydeys of 1924" still sprangled its lure of joyousness down the night. He was quite certain that back there at this moment Killarney would be thinking of him also.

As a matter of fact, she was. Her small feet had just tripped down the long iron stairs that led from the gay and completely noisy dressing room of the chorus to the stage door corridor. Here in another moment Marge Walsh, who was all of an inch taller than she and had rebellious brown hair, would come hurrying to join her, full of tremdous plans. They never varied—they were always on how to get to be a star or marry a count. In the meantime she was the third from the end and had a good cry every time her automobile salesman broke a date with her because of a customer.

It was pleasant in the dim corridor. Killarney found herself an old, broken-backed chair and sat down, listening vaguely to the sounds of the 'Heydays' being put away for the night. There passed after a while a majectic presence in a twelve-hundred-lorrar wrap accompanied by a full zephyr of orchids. That was the leading lady going home to her apartment—far, far too important ever to take notice of the slim young person waiting dreamily on the broken chair. And, strange enough the slim young person for the second time that evening was not envying her one iota. Killarney McKenna was drifting along on a little river of memories with a certain rather quiet young man whose eyes held hers, and who went about with an air of knowing exactly what he was doing all the time. He had certainly known what he was doing the night the seven paskages had fallen from her arms all over the pavement. She had heard a laugh ring out, not the edged sneering kind of some one enjoying some one else's accident, but one brimful of honest amusement and sympathy. A voice she liked had immediately followed.

"Look here, you can't carry all those at one time. I think I'd better show you how it's done."

A broad young back had bent down under her startled eyes and the packages had come up—the whole seven of them—with one sweeping motion. It was late and they had the side street to themselves. She took one look at his face and felt perfectly comfortable.

He was examining her quizzically. She was far from reaching his shoulder. And the packages still remained seven in number.

"If I can't get you a taxicab or something to put these in," he announced, "I'll be darned if I don't carry 'em myself If I let you go on alone you'll just do it all over again and I'll have to keep on picking 'em up for you from here to wherever you're going.

"Two of them are plain tomatoes and one is very special asparagus," a small voice informed him. "They are cans and it won't hurt them."

"But the sugar and the coffee in the bags won't bounce on pavement," he smiled. "They will become total losses. How lucky it wasn't breakfast — and eggs."

The laugh that came between them lasted for almost a block. After that the conversation really started. He admitted that he had already seen the "Heydays'; inside the next three minutes he had promised to come and observe it again.

When Scott Revell left her that night on the steps of a rickety, six-story apartment house she knew she was going to see him again. She wanted to.

"It's a long way you came with me," she laughed. Some day I'll tell you why we live over the railroad tracks next to the trains." For an instant her eyes went shadowed. "But daddy'll be up and waiting. So we'll just say good night."

"Good night," he said with a laugh in his own. His gaze took in the delicate, radiant loveliness that was like a breath of spring in the shabby, aged street.

"Killarney McKenna!" exclaimed some one at this moment. Marge Walsh had come pattering down the stairs. "I'm ashamed of you. Sitting there dreaming in the dark. What of? 'Fess up to friend Marge."

"Of asparagus," said Killarney comfortably, "and all kinds of things that come in cans. There — now you know. Let's run."

They ran. Down a brightly-lighted street where glistening motors still rolled, across the brilliancy of Broadway and through the turbulent heart of the Forties until they came at last to the pillars of the Elevated. Now and then a passer-by would turn his head in spite of himself to look after the tiny hurrying pair with the bright faces, who seemed to talk to each other as fast as they scurried.

A little later Killarney's key was clicking at the lock of a door on the third floor of the six-story apartment house. As she fumbled from far away came the long hooting of a train. That would be the Thunderbolt Flyer from the west just pulling out of the terminal a mile or so down the line. In a few moments it would go storming along the concrete-walled cut below the very windows. It was a roaring, pounding, crashing noise but none the less it never failed to stir Killarney's soul because her father loved it. Once more her eyes went soft as the door opened. Scott Revell knew all about why they lived next to the trains.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE.

CANCER.

Today's planetary aspects are negative, rather than positive. While they do not encourage the launching of any new enterprises, or the making of any radical or drastic changes, they do portend a great deal of satisfaction with the progress made in tasks already initiated. It is not an auspicious occasion for the making of important resolutions, or for the execution of contracts or agreements of significance. It is, however, propitious for the prosecution, with all energy, of the task in hand. In the evening, there will be sensed some exhilarating vibrations that will bring about a happy, self satisfied condition, and any social entertainment will prove successful.

Children born today while regardless of sex are destined to possess similar temperaments and characteristics and will enjoy very different physical conditions. While a boy will during early days of his childhood be subject to many ailments of a more or less grave character, a girl will have exceptionally good health, and be robust and strong. The signs denote that they will both attain physical normalcy. In character and disposition, they will be variable at times, bright, happy and carefree. At other times, without any apparent cause, morose, unhappy and troubled. They will be persevering, but their excessive introspection will often rob their efforts of the success they would ordinarily secure. They will be very jealous, and this pronounced tendency is liable to make them morbid and cause a feeling of being "hard done by."

If today is your birthday, your alertness and activity is the wonder, and sometimes the despair of all friends and intimates. A naturally nervous condition keeps you continually on the go, and you are never satisfied to "rest on your oars" and be content. Those most directly associated with you call you fidgity. Your nimbleness of mind is forever asserting itself, and you adapt yourself very easily to a change of circumstances or conditions. You are, in other words, a mental acrobat, and an opportunist in every sense of the word. You are a shrewd schemer and clever manipulator, and, if material success is not already your portion, it is because of the fact that you are unable, at times, to moderate your shrewdness or conservatively check your manipulations. In other words, you overreach yourself.

Art and music make a strong appeal to your temperament, and you might become proficient in the latter field if yo ucould make up your mind to develop the latent talent you possess.

Successful people born on this date are: Maria White Lowell, poet; David Turple, politician; Charles R. Lanman, orientalist; William V. Moody, educator; John D. Rockefeller, capitalist; Frank B. Brandegee, senator.

Through A Woman's Eyes

THE "UNWANTED BABIES"

Have you heard of the Ainslie children? They are the two tots known in newspaper columns where their arrestingly beautiful pictures often appear, as the "unwanted babies." Every once in a while you read of their being left on the doorstep of one or another of their illustrious relatives. For they are no offspring of poverty, no flotsam of the tenements, these Ainslie children, they bear the name of a millionaire and famous patron of art, George H. Ainslie. His son, George Ainslie, is their reputed father, though he denies the parentage. Just the same, on the periodic occasions when nobody else will have them he disposes of them by packing them off into the country somewhere.

Just recently they were abandoned again, left at the art galleries of their reputed grandfather. His employes were hysterical to get rid of them before his return, because he "doesn't want them and doesn't want to hear about them." It appears as though they were all afraid of losing their jobs if the children were found there with them.

Their aunts and uncles also did not want them and their father has repudiated them. Their mother, who was a dancer, has disappeared. She was not wanted either, by their father's family, and it seems that is the reason why the beautiful babies are not wanted—because, according to a representative of their wealthy and respected grandfather—"the family had no use for the mother!". Now we have the reason why two beautiful, inoffensive, trusting children are dropped on one doorstep and then another, why they are shoved and buffeted about like flotsam on a stormy sea.

Because the family had no use for the mother!"

Families come to mind that are praying for children. There are poor people to whom their care will mean great sacrifice, and rich and aristocratic and fine men and women whose name is a thing not to be given lightly who go to foundling homes and orphanages and ask to be allowed to take to their bosoms and their homes and make theirs, a child of whose parentage they are ignorant, of whom they know nothing except that it is the epitome of faith and freshness and beauty and sweetness that is a child, the whiteness and purity of whose unwritten pages charge them with the greatest privilege and the greatest responsibility on earth.

A child—the sweetness of the rose and the song of the bird; the fragrance of the sunlight and the freshness of the dawning day, the artlessness of a gentle wind; the faith of innocence and the trust of love; the mirror of truth, the personification of beauty, the quintessence of charm, the fountain of inspiration, the well of hope, the promise of the rainbow, the only real beginning again—that is a child. Is there anything more paradoxical than that a child be NOT WANTED!

Irrigation

Some Factors Affecting the Size of the Farm Unit.

It is obvious that not all irrigated farms should be of the same size. A farm devoted to the growing of wheat must of necessity be of a larger area than one given to the intensive cultivation of garden truck.

The more productive the soil the less the acreage required for a farmer to make a living.

The greater the money value of the crop per acre the less the number of acres required to obtain the same money return.

The ease or difficulty with which a farm may be irrigated affects the size of the farm which can be handled by one man. Poorly leveled land or a farm with a complicated irrigation system generally mean that the area which can be covered by one man is restricted.

The above are only a few of the more salient factors which must be taken into account if the economic size of the farm unit is to be determined with any degree of accuracy.

The determination of the proper sized farm is of prime importance to the land owner as well as the prospective land buyer. The seller does not want the buyer to fail to meet his payments. Selling a farm on which a failure has been made is not as easy as selling a new farm.

If the buyer has too much land he will not be able to farm all of it to advantage and his payments will be heavier than he can meet. On the other hand if he does not buy enough land so that it will produce a surplus above his living expenses he will not be able to meet his payments either.

Selling the proper sized farm is of great importance in the success of any irrigation project.

FIND CLUE IN SLAYING

OTTAWA, Ill., July 7.—(AP)—A slender clue on which to base the search for the slayers of Mary Secjack, 17, who was found murdered near Ottawa yesterday was given officials by Nellie Schalk, of LaSalle, who admitted having been with Miss Secjack Sunday night on an automobile ride with two young men whose names are unknown.

Miss Schalk said the young men took her home and promised to take Miss Secjack to the home of a sister in Jonesville.

Smuggling Effort By Pola Negri To Cost Her $57,000

NEW YORK, July 7.—(AP).—Pola Negri, screen star, must pay $57,000 to the government to recover two diamond and emerald bracelets and a diamond ring which she failed to declare when she returned last May from an European trip.

Inspectors at the time also found 16 bottles of wine in her trunks, smashed them on the ship's rail and fined her $5 a bottle.

Custom officials assessed the domestic value of the jewelry at $47,000. The fine amounts to $10,000.

Before Miss Negri left the liner Berengaria, it is understood custom inspectors told her that they knew she had the jewelry and cautioned her not to fail to declare. She first said she had declared all her property, but later produced an emerald bracelet. The ring and the other bracelet were seized after she landed. She said her maid forgot to declare them, but the maid insisted she acted on instructions from the actress.

Jones Working For Installation of A Purchasing Agent

In line with the city's needs for more economy in governmental expenditures, Finance Commissioner Oral Jones is sponsoring a plan ultimately designed to create the office of city purchasing agent.

The idea now is more or less embryonic, Mr. Jones asserts, but he believes such an official would be able to save the city thousands of dollars a year through systematic and careful buying of materials that now are purchased by some ten or more different men with only a perfunctory knowledge of prices and materials.

Mr. Jones has pointed out that there are now ten department heads —namely the police, fire, health, sanitary, water, street, city clerk, tax, enfineer and park that annually buy around $150,000 worth of material.

A purchasing agent responsible only for the economic buying of goods, he has pointed out, could no doubt effect a tremendous saving. It is admitted that the plan will require considerable work; that a storehouse and office space should be provided and that other factors should be ironed out, but Mr. Jones, with the support of other members of the council, is confident the idea will eventually carry.

Boy Scouts Return From Summer Camp

Following the court of honor Monday night the weeks camping trip in Craterville under the leadership of Frank B. Creighton, city scout executive, broke up, and twenty-nine boys returned to this city Tuesday morning. Many scouts came up for advancement in scout work before the court of honor.

The feature of the trip was supposed to have been the studying of forestry and woodcraft under the direction of woodmen and guides, but the boys came home talking and enthusiastic about an adoption made while there.

Sunrise, a grandson of Quanah Parker, an old Indian chief, who lives in the Indian reservation near Lawton, became acquainted with the local scouts at the scout camp last week. Sunrise, it was stated, is a first class sport, and would easily make a good scout, so the Boy Scouts adopted him. He is thirteen years of age, and is an excellent swimmer and woodman. Much of his time was spent at the scout camp.

All of the campers were Wichita Falls scouts with the exception of four from Henrietta and Iowa Park.

PATSY RUTH MILLER IN "HEADWINDS" Starring HOUSE PETERS A UNIVERSAL JEWEL

A MISSION FEATURE.

Story Goes That Film Star Saved The Movie Ship While Filming "Headwinds."

If it were not for House Peter's knowledge of navigation it were doubtful whether "Headwinds," the Universal Jewel feature, in which House Peters co-stars with Patsy Ruth Miller, and which comes to the Mission theatre Thursday, would ever be completed.

Romers of the Seas.

"Headwinds, adapted from the sensational Saturday Evening Post story of the same name from the pen of A. M. Sinclair Wilt, is a breezy tale of romance on the high seas. Most of the scenes in the picture were made aboard a palatial private yacht which was especially loaned to the Universal Pictures corporation for this production by its owner, a California millionaire.

When the yacht, with all aboard, was several hundred miles off the California coast she ran into a squall which blew itself into a terrific hurricane. It was all the seamen could do to keep the craft from capsizing. House Peters insisted that he be allowed to have the helm. His request was granted. Peters before he entered upon a theatrical career was a sailor, and can tell of squalls and storms which he encountered while navigating the seven seas of the globe. Peters was most successful in his navigation task.

During the hurricane the members of the "Headwind" company were not idle. They were a company of game troupers, for all of them, lead on by the earnestness of Patsy Ruth Miller, declared that here was an opportunity to obtain some of the most striking sea pictures ever recorded.

Herbert Blache Directed.

Accordingly, the sequences were taken under the direction of Herbert Blache, who directed the production and not the least of credit should go to John Stumar, the cameraman who clicked the sensational sequence on the film. All in all, the story in "Headwinds" is acclaimed to be one of the greatest features ever filmed for a screen story.

The cast for "Headwinds" supporting House Peters is notable for the fact that it brings together some of the best known screen players, including three Oriental actors of note: Togo Yamamato, George Kuwa and K. Nambu.

"JAKE" DUE TO HIT BREAKERS IN CITY DADS

City Attorney Drafts Ordinance Against Beverage

The days of "Jake" in Wichita Falls seem numbered. Following an active campaign by Mayor R. E. Shepherd against the beverage known to have an intoxicating influence, City Attorney W. E. George was called upon to draft a city ordinance to curtail the drink. The ordinance will be presented to the city council Monday evening and that body called on to take whatever action it sees fit. Indications are that it will be passed with an emergency clause that will allow enforcement within five days.

The questionable drink—what is commonly known as "jake" is a tincture of ginger by the name of Jamiaca ginger. It is obtainable at practically any drug store in the city, according to officials. Charges that people were becoming drunk through overuse of the beverage led to action by the council.

The ordinance, while it does not rule the drink out of the city, in the words of Attorney George "makes it pretty hard to get." The new ruling requires that all dealers in the drink register with the city clerk, sell it only on order of a physician and keep a record of all sales.

MURDER CHARGE IS FILED

San Antonio Man Held for Taxi Drivers Death.

SAN ANTONIO, July 7.—A charge of murder was filed late today against Blackie Davis in connection with the death of Ira G. Lewis, service car driver, whose body was found in an automobile on the Cuero road February 3. Davis was remanded to jail without bond. The complaint followed a statement made by a girl who said she was in a party of three men and two girls who hired Lewis to drive them out in the country.

"They haven't got a thing on me," Davis said when arraigned in justice court.

DENVER HOPES FOR CLEARANCE AT RAIL MEET

Announcement That T. P. & G. Will Not Enter Is Not Surprising

CHILDRESS, July 7.—The statement that the promoters of the Texas, Panhandle & Gulf railroad, proposed new railroad from Fort Worth across the South Plains counties, would enter the hearing to be held at Plainview on July 20 when the Fort Worth & Denver City Railway company will ask for a permit before the State Railroad commission to construct 193 miles of new railroad, comes as no surprise to railroad officials and others interested in the Denver road's extension.

The hearing at Plainview will be held before the Texas Rialroad commission and the Inter State Commerce commission will have a representative in attendance. The Denver road is asking for permission to extend from its main line five miles west of Childress to Plainview and Dimmitt. Two branch lines are to run off from the new railroad at Lockney, one going southwest through Petersburg to Lubbock. The second line goes north to Silverton, county seat of Briscoe county.

Many Towns Represented.

A large number of towns through which the new railroad will pass will have witnesses, also to submit data to show the necessity of the railroad. Notable of these towns will be Turkey, Quitaque and Silverton, the three being without rail facilities. It cost the farmers $2.50 per bale to truck cotton to Memphis and Estelline, the nearest rail shipping points. The cost of trucking maize and kaffir corn is $10 per ton, or an amount equal to the value of these products at most railroad points in the Panhandle. Due to the long distance to a railroad being 54 miles from Quitaque, it is almost profitless to raise hogs or poultry.

It is now believed the hearing will be ended within a week. Only two roads are expected to enter a protest and one of them is expected to drop out, due to its remoteness from the territory to be traversed by the new railroad. If the hearing is ended within ten days it is believed a decision will be filed with the Denver road officials by August 15. F. E. Clarity, vice president and general manager of the Denver road, has repeatedly said that actual construction of the new road will start within a few days after the decision is received, provided it is favorable.

Big Delegation Going.

The Dallas and Wichita Falls chamber of commerce are backing the new railroad and will have witnesses at the hearing. While no definite action has been taken by the chamber of commerce at Fort Worth yet it is certain that city will have a witness before the commission asking for construction of the road.

Childress expects to send a delegation of 100 business men to Plainview. Dallas and Wichita Falls will also have a large representations. Citizens from Lockney, Lubbock, Pittsburg, Silverton, Mimmitt and other smaller places will have scores of their leading merchants and farmers to appear at the hearing.

LOWRY NEW ELK HEAD

Wichita Falls Lodge Names Successor To H. G. Smith.

To take the place of H. G. Smith who resigned upon his transfer to Dallas, Burt Lowry was elected exalted ruler of Wichita Falls Lodge No. 1105, Benevolent and Protective Orders of the Elks.

Mr. Lowry was formally exalted leading knight, but upon his promotion this chair was filled by Charles Fuller being promoted from the office of esteemed royal knight. A. G. Walker, who was elected at the annual meeting four weeks ago to the office of esteemed lecturing knight, will succeed Mr. Fuller, as royal knight. C. E. Frandeson was elected to the office of esteemed lecturing knight.

UNCLE SAM GOING TO THE DOGS.

London has many great newspapers. The Morning Post is one. Now the Post sees the United States going to the dogs with too much money and too many laws. According to The Post in the last ten years or so, 500,000 laws, mostly of a prohibitive character, have been enacted in the United States. In the same period Great Britain passed 17,000 laws, mostly regulated.

It is the conclusion of the Post that this hyer-legislative spirit has brought all law into contempt in America. Uncle Sam is in a bad way according to The Post, which has been told that with the wave of crime in America has come to an equal wave of social depravity.

There is too much prosperity in America according to The Post. It is bad for any country. Wage workers are too prosperous. This, according to The Post, works great evil and leads to discontented masses. Most of the liberty enjoyed by the United States citizens is enjoyed in open violation of some law or ordinnace which the police are unable or unwilling to enforce.

There was a time when Great Britain had all the gold of the world. It isn't so now. There was a time when the people of the United States borrowed vast sums of money from the people of Great Britain. It isn't so now. Today the people of Great Britain are paying interest money of $250,000,000 a year to the Government of the United States, or rather to the people of the United States.

They borrowed billions to save their faces. Now they are paying the interest and one of their leading newspapers sees in the dim distance Uncle Sam going headlong to Hell because he has too much money and too many laws. Why worry over there?

MRS. ROGERS WON THE PRIZE.

Mrs. John Jacob Rogers has pushed her face into the public picture gallery. Her husband was a republican congressman from Massachusettes for six terms. He was re-elected last year and he died early in the spring time. Now the voters of the district by a majority of 11,000 have elected his widow as the representative.

There are many important industrial centers in this congretional district. Indeed, the husband of the victor of the recent election wrested the district from the democrats years ago. It has a very large population of wage earners. Honorable Eugene publican for many years and then be became a tariff Foss was the democratic nominee. Foss was a re-reformer with free trade tendancies. He made a campaign of the district, but Mrs. Rogers overwhelmed him. For every vote he received she received two and a half votes.

A tariff reformer or free trader has as much chanace of winning in a New England district as a snow ball has of surviving in Hades. Wage workers in New England, democratic or otherwise, do not take kindly to the free trade gospel. Free trade may be all right but they just can't see it. They are told unless the manufacturers are protected from foreign competition, then the wages of the mill operatives will be cut to the bone. Then they vote the republican ticket or remain from the polls.

A BANKER AND A POET.

Bankers are said to be non-sentimental. There are few poets among them, and the banking world has as never yet produced a sob sister or sob brother. Col. C. C. Walsh of San Angelo is the new chairman and federal reserve agent of the 11th district federal reserve bank at Dallas.

Colonel Walsh is a poet. His cowboy poems are far above the average. Many of them are touching. Some few are really holding. There are others that provoke mirth.

Colonel Walsh has been one of the builders of the Concho river country. He has been a successful rancher, a successful banker, a successful poet, a successful citizens and as president of the West Texas chamber of commerce last year, he demonstrated himself to be a real executive.

Now he is going to transfer his home to Dallas, but not all of his effections. It is a real plan, his new job. It pays $18,000 a year and his salary may be advanced to $25,000 in the near future.

Really the republicans are picking for place their most successful and popular men away down here in Texas. But think of a successful poet that is also a successful banker, and then realize that there is something new under the sun.

NOW CAPTURE THE SMUGGLERS.

Transfer of the headquarters for narcottic in Texas and New Mexico from El Paso to San Antonio has been made by the Coolidge administration. Now capture the drug runners. There are hundreds of federal agents down on the border keeping out aliens. There are hundreds of agents keeping out drugs and rum runners. Adj. Gen. Mark McGee has his rangers down there.

English opium producers in India every year produce eight times more opium than the legitimate demand of the world calls for, and this opium must find a market some where. Is the world wholly civilized? Is the so-called Christian world wholly civilized? No, the dawn of the morning of perfection is not in sight.

Man's greed never changes. Human nature never changes. Human love for gold never changes. There is big money in the cultivation of the poppy plant and that is the reason why the production is eight times in excess of the legitimate demand.

LABOR FOR THE LORD.

Organized labor in the city of New York and this regardless of creed, voted to contribute a window to the name of the new cathedral of St. John the Divine. Organized labor will do the actual work in erecting the structure, but wishing to have a share in it beyond this, they contributed to the cost of some part of it by their own free will financial offering. Organized labor appears to be a fixture in the civilized world now. There was a time when organized labor was an out-cast. It must be true that the world is moving.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

Not When But How.

"When I am rich."

"When I am successful."

"When I am famous."

How often are these words in the minds and speech of youngsters who will never be rich, or successful or famous, but who might be at least one of the three if they would spend as much time planning how it is to be done as they do dreaming of the day when it has been accomplished.

It is so easy to picture what we will do when we have scaled the ladder.

It is another matter to keep going up the ladder step by step, and never being weary until the top has been reached.

Wealth cannot be difficult of acquirement if one is determined to get it.

There are hundreds of thousands of people who have it, some of them having very little else.

Success can be defined in many ways. But substantial success, which comes of doing one's work well, enjoying doing it, and getting enough from it to pay bills and keep out of debt, is common enough.

Fame is another matter. It may come of God given ability, it may come from being born into a position on which the limelight happens to be fixed, or getting into such a position by accident.

But no man who has honestly earned fame, and no woman either, ever did it by dreaming of how wonderful it was.

Even those of great talent discovered that work and planning and self-sacrifice were necessary to achieve it, and gave them unstintedly until the fame was accomplished.

The young person who really wants to occupy some important place in the word because of what he can accompish in it has a ong, hard row ahead of him and he will have no time to stop by the way and look at the top of the mountain if he wants to get there before the sundown of life.

There is hard going even for the unusually able.

There must be hours of plodding, many long and tiresome detours, much thinking about ways and means to make the next step, as the mountain climber must plan carefully to get over a crevice or scale a cliff which looms right ahead of him.

But good progress can be made by thought and effort, if one does not get discouraged by little things, or lose his temper at unforseen accidents.

There are enough people who do "get there" about us to prove to us that it can be done.

It cannot be done easily, or in a leisurely walk. It cannot be done without giving up pleasures, and forgetting harJships.

But if the mind is set on how to do it, it will find a way, provided it is a mind that is at all capable of rising above the ordinary.

And most minds, properly trained, and disciplined, can bring their owners to some sort of success, because there are so many people in the world who prefer dreams to achievement, and are always thinking "when" instead of "how."

BEVERIDGE OF INDIANA.

Vice President Charles G. Dawes knows how it feels to be shot full of arrows or to have his body lance pierced. Former Senator Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana branda the proposed rules in the senate an assault upon the theory and nature of American institutions. Former Senator Beveridge is admittedly one of the ablest of American statesmen, one of the foremost thinkers of the country and if there is a man who knows American history, then this hoozier lawyer and writer should be given second if not first place.

Vice President Dawes is getting plenty of publicity, but when he submits his proposed rule to the 96 senators he is going to be given areal shock, that is, unless Dawes is teasing the venerable gentleman who dominated what was at one time known as the American House of Lords.

Senator Underwood is the only democrat to date who has declared for the Dawes rule, and two-thirds of the republican senators are said to be sharpening their knives for the coming battle. No, not battle. It will be just a little skirmish.

John C. Calhoun, Daniel Webster and Henry Clay are said to be responsible for many of the senate rules. They flourished away back in tthe ox-cart period of civilization, hence it must be true that rules men make lives after them.

WOMEN CONGRESSMEN.

Mrs. Alice Robertson of Oklahoma was the second woman to be elected to the lower house of congress. She served one term and then the voters made her quit. That is, they voted for the other candidate.

New Jersey has a woman congressman, Mrs. Mary T. Norton. She is a democrat. Now Massachusetts has elected Mrs. John Jacob Rogers to keep Mrs. Norton company. Mrs. Huck of Illinois served part of a term. She failed of re-election. Mrs. John J. Nolan of California served a part of a term and then a full term. Then she quit. Mrs. Nolan said it did not appeal to her. Mrs. Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin was asked to become a candidate for a seat in the senate as the successor of her lamented husband.

She refused to take the bait but advised the leaders to select her son, Robert M. LaFollette, Jr. When will the democrats of Texas send a woman to congress? Something sensational will be needed in th ecampaign of 1926. Why not start now?

THIS IS THE TOURIST SEASON.

A million American tourists visited in California, Montana and Wyoming last year. Perhaps more than a million tourist are on their way to the same spots this year. Native sons of the Golden West are going to make it interesting for the tourist.

Montana has already pulled off a number of small earthquakes and there have been rumblings on the Pacific coast froom San Francisco to Los Angeles. Santa Barbara had one that destroyed all the brick buildings in the city. Santa Barbara is a popular resort. Among other things it boasts of a milk pure establishment.

A patient is given the milk diet and nothing else for six weeks, and if he survives the treatment at the end of the six weeks he is ready to tackle a grizzly bear. Texas is not in the earthquake zone. There are no quakes in the Magic Valley. This for the tourist.

AMERICAN SPINDLES ACTIVE.

Cotton spinning activity increased slightly in April in the United States as compared with March this year and was much more marked than in April a year ago. Indeed it is said that spinning activity reached one hundred per cent of single shift basis capacity for the first time since June, 1923.

Another 12,000,000 bale crop this year will place money in the pockets of American growers not withstanding that some of the southern experts say that when the price of cotton does not go beyond 25 cents a pound it falls below the actual cost of production. Does it?

Slowly, as the motor rolled into the lights and traffic of Longacre Square, he turned his head so that the last thing he saw was the leaping, vivid glow of the electrics of the theatre they had just left. The "Heydeys of 1924" still sprangled its lure of joyousness down the night. He was quite certain that back there at this moment Killarney would be thinking of him also.

As a matter of fact, she was. Her small feet had just tripped down the long iron stairs that led from the gay and completely noisy dressing room of the chorus to the stage door corridor. Here in another moment Marge Walsh, who was all of an inch taller than she and had rebellious brown hair, would come hurrying to join her, full of tremdous plans. They never varied—they were always on how to get to be a star or marry a count. In the meantime she was the third from the end and had a good cry every time her automobile salesman broke a date with her because of a customer.

It was pleasant in the dim corridor. Killarney found herself an old, broken-backed chair and sat down, listening vaguely to the sounds of the 'Heydays' being put away for the night. There passed after a while a majectic presence in a twelve-hundred-lorrar wrap accompanied by a full zephyr of orchids. That was the leading lady going home to her apartment—far, far too important ever to take notice of the slim young person waiting dreamily on the broken chair. And, strange enough the slim young person for the second time that evening was not envying her one iota. Killarney McKenna was drifting along on a little river of memories with a certain rather quiet young man whose eyes held hers, and who went about with an air of knowing exactly what he was doing all the time. He had certainly known what he was doing the night the seven paskages had fallen from her arms all over the pavement. She had heard a laugh ring out, not the edged sneering kind of some one enjoying some one else's accident, but one brimful of honest amusement and sympathy. A voice she liked had immediately followed.

"Look here, you can't carry all those at one time. I think I'd better show you how it's done."

A broad young back had bent down under her startled eyes and the packages had come up—the whole seven of them—with one sweeping motion. It was late and they had the side street to themselves. She took one look at his face and felt perfectly comfortable.

He was examining her quizzically. She was far from reaching his shoulder. And the packages still remained seven in number.

"If I can't get you a taxicab or something to put these in," he announced, "I'll be darned if I don't carry 'em myself If I let you go on alone you'll just do it all over again and I'll have to keep on picking 'em up for you from here to wherever you're going.

"Two of them are plain tomatoes and one is very special asparagus," a small voice informed him. "They are cans and it won't hurt them."

"But the sugar and the coffee in the bags won't bounce on pavement," he smiled. "They will become total losses. How lucky it wasn't breakfast — and eggs."

The laugh that came between them lasted for almost a block. After that the conversation really started. He admitted that he had already seen the "Heydays'; inside the next three minutes he had promised to come and observe it again.

When Scott Revell left her that night on the steps of a rickety, six-story apartment house she knew she was going to see him again. She wanted to.

"It's a long way you came with me," she laughed. Some day I'll tell you why we live over the railroad tracks next to the trains." For an instant her eyes went shadowed. "But daddy'll be up and waiting. So we'll just say good night."

"Good night," he said with a laugh in his own. His gaze took in the delicate, radiant loveliness that was like a breath of spring in the shabby, aged street.

"Killarney McKenna!" exclaimed some one at this moment. Marge Walsh had come pattering down the stairs. "I'm ashamed of you. Sitting there dreaming in the dark. What of? 'Fess up to friend Marge."

"Of asparagus," said Killarney comfortably, "and all kinds of things that come in cans. There — now you know. Let's run."

They ran. Down a brightly-lighted street where glistening motors still rolled, across the brilliancy of Broadway and through the turbulent heart of the Forties until they came at last to the pillars of the Elevated. Now and then a passer-by would turn his head in spite of himself to look after the tiny hurrying pair with the bright faces, who seemed to talk to each other as fast as they scurried.

A little later Killarney's key was clicking at the lock of a door on the third floor of the six-story apartment house. As she fumbled from far away came the long hooting of a train. That would be the Thunderbolt Flyer from the west just pulling out of the terminal a mile or so down the line. In a few moments it would go storming along the concrete-walled cut below the very windows. It was a roaring, pounding, crashing noise but none the less it never failed to stir Killarney's soul because her father loved it. Once more her eyes went soft as the door opened. Scott Revell knew all about why they lived next to the trains.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE.

CANCER.

Today's planetary aspects are negative, rather than positive. While they do not encourage the launching of any new enterprises, or the making of any radical or drastic changes, they do portend a great deal of satisfaction with the progress made in tasks already initiated. It is not an auspicious occasion for the making of important resolutions, or for the execution of contracts or agreements of significance. It is, however, propitious for the prosecution, with all energy, of the task in hand. In the evening, there will be sensed some exhilarating vibrations that will bring about a happy, self satisfied condition, and any social entertainment will prove successful.

Children born today while regardless of sex are destined to possess similar temperaments and characteristics and will enjoy very different physical conditions. While a boy will during early days of his childhood be subject to many ailments of a more or less grave character, a girl will have exceptionally good health, and be robust and strong. The signs denote that they will both attain physical normalcy. In character and disposition, they will be variable at times, bright, happy and carefree. At other times, without any apparent cause, morose, unhappy and troubled. They will be persevering, but their excessive introspection will often rob their efforts of the success they would ordinarily secure. They will be very jealous, and this pronounced tendency is liable to make them morbid and cause a feeling of being "hard done by."

If today is your birthday, your alertness and activity is the wonder, and sometimes the despair of all friends and intimates. A naturally nervous condition keeps you continually on the go, and you are never satisfied to "rest on your oars" and be content. Those most directly associated with you call you fidgity. Your nimbleness of mind is forever asserting itself, and you adapt yourself very easily to a change of circumstances or conditions. You are, in other words, a mental acrobat, and an opportunist in every sense of the word. You are a shrewd schemer and clever manipulator, and, if material success is not already your portion, it is because of the fact that you are unable, at times, to moderate your shrewdness or conservatively check your manipulations. In other words, you overreach yourself.

Art and music make a strong appeal to your temperament, and you might become proficient in the latter field if yo ucould make up your mind to develop the latent talent you possess.

Successful people born on this date are: Maria White Lowell, poet; David Turple, politician; Charles R. Lanman, orientalist; William V. Moody, educator; John D. Rockefeller, capitalist; Frank B. Brandegee, senator.

Childress County Agent Forms Club

CHILDRESS, July 7.—Miss Mary Litton, home demonstration agent for Childress county, is doing splendid work. She has organized a number of clubs in the rural district. Springer organized a club during the last part of June. Miss Ora Givens was elected president, Mrs. H. M. Jeter, vice president and Mrs. Myrtle Inman secretary.

FOUNDER RETIRES

PORTLAND, Ore., July 7.—(AP) Dr. Francis E. Clark, founder of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, has retired after 38 years of unsalaried service as president of that body and the duties of the office have been taken over by Dr. Daniel A. Poling, native of Portland and present resident of New York. Dr. Poling for ten years has acted as associate president of the organization.

Through A Woman's Eyes

THE "UNWANTED BABIES"

Have you heard of the Ainslie children? They are the two tots known in newspaper columns where their arrestingly beautiful pictures often appear, as the "unwanted babies." Every once in a while you read of their being left on the doorstep of one or another of their illustrious relatives. For they are no offspring of poverty, no flotsam of the tenements, these Ainslie children, they bear the name of a millionaire and famous patron of art, George H. Ainslie. His son, George Ainslie, is their reputed father, though he denies the parentage. Just the same, on the periodic occasions when nobody else will have them he disposes of them by packing them off into the country somewhere.

Just recently they were abandoned again, left at the art galleries of their reputed grandfather. His employes were hysterical to get rid of them before his return, because he "doesn't want them and doesn't want to hear about them." It appears as though they were all afraid of losing their jobs if the children were found there with them.

Their aunts and uncles also did not want them and their father has repudiated them. Their mother, who was a dancer, has disappeared. She was not wanted either, by their father's family, and it seems that is the reason why the beautiful babies are not wanted—because, according to a representative of their wealthy and respected grandfather—"the family had no use for the mother!" Now we have the reason why two beautiful, inoffensive, trusting children are dropped on one doorstep and then another, why they are shoved and buffeted about like flotsam on a stormy sea.

Because the family had no use for the mother!"

Families come to mind that are praying for children. There are poor people to whom their care will mean great sacrifice, and rich and aristocratic and fine men and women whose name is a thing not to be given lightly who go to foundling homes and orphanages and ask to be allowed to take to their bosoms and their homes and make theirs, a child of whose parentage they are ignorant, of whom they know nothing except that it is the epitome of faith and freshness and beauty and sweetness that is a chil, the whiteness and purity of whose unwritten pages charge them with the greatest privilege and the greatest responsibility on earth.

A child—the sweetness of the rose and the song of the bird; the fragrance of the sunlight and the freshness of the dawning day, the artlessness of a gentle wind; the faith of innocence and the trust of love; the mirror of truth, the personification of beauty, the quintesence of charm, the fountain of inspiration, the well of hope, the promise of the rainbow, the only real beginning again—that is a child. Is there anything more paradoxical than that a child be NOT WANTED!

Irrigation

Some Factors Affecting the Size of the Farm Unit.

It is obvious that not all irrigated farms should be of the same size. A farm devoted to the growing of wheat must of necessity be of a larger area than one given to the intensive cultivation of garden truck.

The more productive the soil the less the acreage required for a farmer to make a living.

The greater the money value of the crop per acre the less the number of acres required to obtain the same money return.

The ease or difficulty with which a farm may be irrigated affects the size of the farm which can be handled by one man. Poorly leveled land or a farm with a complicated irrigation system generally mean that the area which can be covered by one man is restricted.

The above are only a few of the more salient factors which must be taken into account if the economic size of the farm unit is to be determined with any degree of accuracy.

The determination of the proper sized farm is of prime importance to the land owner as well as the prospective land buyer. The seller does not want the buyer to fail to meet his payments. Selling a farm on which a failure has been made is not as easy as selling a new farm.

If the buyer has too much land he will not be able to farm all of it to advantage and his payments will be heavier than he can meet. On the other hand if he does not buy enough land so that it will produce a surplus above his living expenses he will not be able to meet his payments either.

Selling the proper sized farm is of great importance in the success of any irrigation project.

FIND CLUE IN SLAYING

OTTAWA, Ill., July 7.—(AP)—A slender clue on which to base the search for the slayers of Mary Secjack, 17, who was found murdered near Ottawa yesterday was given officials by Nellie Schalk, of LaSalle, who admitted having been with Miss Secjack Sunday night on an automobile ride with two young men whose names are unknown.

Miss Schalk said the young men took her home and promised to take Miss Secjack to the home of a sister in Jonesville.

Smuggling Effort By Pola Negri To Cost Her $57,000

NEW YORK, July 7.—(AP).—Pola Negri, screen star, must pay $57,000 to the government to recover two diamond and emerald bracelets and a diamond ring which she failed to declare when she returned last May from an European trip.

Inspectors at the time also found 16 bottles of wine in her trunks, smashed them on the ship's rail and fined her $5 a bottle.

Custom officials assessed the domestic value of the jewelry at $47,000. The fine amounts to $10,000.

Before Miss Negri left the liner Berengaria, it is understood custom inspectors told her that they knew she had the jewelry and cautioned her not to fail to declare. She first said she had declared all her property, but later produced an emerald bracelet. The ring and the other bracelet were seized after she landed. She said her maid forgot to declare them, but the maid insisted she acted on instructions from the actress.

Jones Working For Installation of A Purchasing Agent

In line with the city's needs for more economy in governmental expenditures, Finance Commissioner Oral Jones is sponsoring a plan ultimately designed to create the office of city purchasing agent.

The idea now is more or less embryonic, Mr. Jones asserts, but he believes such an official would be able to save the city thousands of dollars a year through systematic and careful buying of materials that now are purchased by some ten or more different men with only a perfunctory knowledge of prices and materials.

Mr. Jones has pointed out that there are now ten department heads —namely the police, fire, health, sanitary, water, street, city clerk, tax, enfineer and park that annually buy around $150,000 worth of material.

A purchasing agent responsible only for the economic buying of goods, he has pointed out, could no doubt effect a tremendous saving. It is admitted that the plan will require considerable work; that a storehouse and office space should be provided and that other factors should be ironed out, but Mr. Jones, with the support of other members of the council, is confident the idea will eventually carry.

Boy Scouts Return From Summer Camp

Following the court of honor Monday night the weeks camping trip in Craterville under the leadership of Frank B. Creighton, city scout executive, broke up, and twenty-nine boys returned to this city Tuesday morning. Many scouts came up for advancement in scout work before the court of honor.

The feature of the trip was supposed to have been the studying of forestry and woodcraft under the direction of woodmen and guides, but the boys came home talking and enthusiastic about an adoption made while there.

Sunrise, a grandson of Quanah Parker, an old Indian chief, who lives in the Indian reservation near Lawton, became acquainted with the local scouts at the scout camp last week. Sunrise, it was stated, is a first class sport, and would easily make a good scout, so the Boy Scouts adopted him. He is thirteen years of age, and is an excellent swimmer and woodman. Much of his time was spent at the scout camp.

All of the campers were Wichita Falls scouts with the exception of four from Henrietta and Iowa Park.

At Mission Thursday

A MISSION FEATURE.

Story Goes That Film Star Saved The Movie Ship While Filming "Headwinds."

If it were not for House Peter's knowledge of navigation it were doubtful whether "Headwinds," the Universal-Jewel feature, in which House Peters co-stars with Patsy Ruth Miller, and which comes to the Mission theatre Thursday, would ever be completed.

Romers of the Seas.

"Headwinds, adapted from the sensational Saturday Evening Post story of the same name from the pen of A. M. Sinclair Wilt, is a breezy tale of romance on the high seas. Most of the scenes in the picture were made aboard a palatial private yacht which was especially loaned to the Universal Pictures corporation for this production by its owner, a California millionaire.

When the yacht, with all aboard, was several hundred miles off the California coast she ran into a squall which blew itself into a terrific hurricane. It was all the seamen could do to keep the craft from capsizing. House Peters insisted that he be allowed to have the helm. His request was granted. Peters before he entered upon a theatrical career was a sailor, and can tell of squalls and storms which he encountered while navigating the seven seas of the globe. Peters was most successful in his navigation task.

During the hurricane the members of the "Headwind" company were not idle. They were a company of game troupers, for all of them, lead on by the earnestness of Patsy Ruth Miller, declared that here was an opportunity to obtain some of the most striking sea pictures ever recorded.

Herbert Blache Directed.

Accordingly, the sequences were taken under the direction of Herbert Blache, who directed the production and not the least of credit should go to John Stumar, the cameraman who clicked the sensational sequence on the film. All in all, the story in "Headwinds" is acclaimed to be one of the greatest features ever filmed for a screen story.

The cast for "Headwinds" supporting House Peters is notable for the fact that it brings together some of the best known screen players, including three Oriental actors of note: Togo Yamamato, George Kuwa and K. Nambu.

"JAKE" DUE TO HIT BREAKERS IN CITY DADS

City Attorney Drafts Ordinance Against Beverage

The days of "Jake" in Wichita Falls seem numbered. Following an active campaign by Mayor R. E. Shepherd against the beverage known to have an intoxicating influence, City Attorney W. E. George was called upon to draft a city ordinance to curtail the drink. The ordinance will be presented to the city council Monday evening and that body called on to take whatever action it sees fit. Indications are that it will be passed with an emergency clause that will allow enforcement within five days.

The questionable drink—what is commonly known as "jake" is a tincture of ginger by the name of Jamiaca ginger. It is obtainable at practically any drug store in the city, according to officials. Charges that people were becoming drunk through overuse of the beverage led to action by the council.

The ordinance, while it does not rule the drink out of the city, in the words of Attorney George "makes it pretty hard to get." The new ruling requires that all dealers in the drink register with the city clerk, sell it only on order of a physician and keep a record of all sales.

MURDER CHARGE IS FILED

San Antonio Man Held for Taxi Drivers Death.

SAN ANTONIO, July 7.—A charge of murder was filed late today against Blackie Davis in connection with the death of Ira G. Lewis, service car driver, whose body was found in an automobile on the Cuero road February 3. Davis was remanded to jail without bond. The complaint followed a statement made by a girl who said she was in a party of three men and two girls who hired Lewis to drive them out in the country.

"They haven't got a thing on me," Davis said when arraigned in justice court.

DENVER HOPES FOR CLEARANCE AT RAIL MEET

Announcement That T. P. & G. Will Not Enter Is Not Surprising

CHILDRESS, July 7.—The statement that the promoters of the Texas, Panhandle & Gulf railroad, proposed new railroad from Fort Worth across the South Plains counties, would enter the hearing to be held at Plainview on July 20 when the Fort Worth & Denver City Railway company will ask for a permit before the State Railroad commission to construct 193 miles of new railroad, comes as no surprise to railroad officials and others interested in the Denver road's extension.

The hearing at Plainview will be held before the Texas Rialroad commission and the Inter State Commerce commission will have a representative in attendance. The Denver road is asking for permission to extend from its main line five miles west of Childress to Plainview and Dimmitt. Two branch lines are to run off from the new railroad at Lockney, one going southwest through Petersburg to Lubbock. The second line goes north to Silverton, county seat of Briscoe county.

Many Towns Represented.

A large number of towns through which the new railroad will pass will have witnesses, also to submit data to show the necessity of the railroad. Notable of these towns will be Turkey, Quitaque and Silverton, the three being without rail facilities. It cost the farmers $2.50 per bale to truck cotton to Memphis and Estelline, the nearest rail shipping points. The cost of trucking maize and kaffir corn is $10 per ton, or an amount equal to the value of these products at most railroad points in the Panhandle. Due to the long distance to a railroad being 54 miles from Quitaque, it is almost profitless to raise hogs or poultry.

It is now believed the hearing will be ended within a week. Only two roads are expected to enter a protest and one of them is expected to drop out, due to its remoteness from the territory to be traversed by the new railroad. If the hearing is ended within ten days it is believed a decision will be filed with the Denver road officials by August 15. F. E. Clarity, vice president and general manager of the Denver road, has repeatedly said that actual construction of the new road will start within a few days after the decision is received, provided it is favorable.

Big Delegation Going.

The Dallas and Wichita Falls chamber of commerce are backing the new railroad and will have witnesses at the hearing. While no definite action has been taken by the chamber of commerce at Fort Worth yet it is certain that city will have a witness before the commission asking for construction of the road.

Childress expects to send a delegation of 100 business men to Plainview. Dallas and Wichita Falls will also have a large representations. Citizens from Lockney, Lubbock, Pittsburg, Silverton, Mimmitt and other smaller places will have scores of their leading merchants and farmers to appear at the hearing.

LOWRY NEW ELK HEAD

Wichita Falls Lodge Names Successor To H. G. Smith.

To take the place of H. G. Smith who resigned upon his transfer to Dallas, Burt Lowry was elected exalted ruler of Wichita Falls Lodge No. 1105, Benevolent and Protective Orders of the Elks.

Mr. Lowry was formally exalted leading knight, but upon his promotion this chair was filled by Charles Fuller being promoted from the office of esteemed royal knight. A. G. Walker, who was elected at the annual meeting four weeks ago to the office of esteemed lecturing knight, will succeed Mr. Fuller, as royal knight. C. E. Frandeson was elected to the office of esteemed lecturing knight.

More Truth Than Poetry

DOING IT GENTLY

The Nimrod more humane has grown,
Less bigoted and narrow,
He stalks the jungle beast alone—
With only bow and arrow.
And if these fragile missles fail,
Bare-handed will he smother
And toss upon the tangled trail
His wild four-footed brother.

What beast, but thus deprived of breath,
When gasping could not save it,
Would not rejoice in such a death—
And thank the man who gave it?
What brute, condemned no more to pad
Through Afric's wild expanses,
Would not be glad because he had
Been given equal chances?

Ah! happy tiger in his lair
When hunters hover near him!
Ah! happy, doubly happy bear
With such a thought to cheer him!
To know he'll have at least a fight,
Will both uplift and thrill him,
For he may have a chance to bite
The man who's going to kill him.

But as for us, if we were shot—
And may our luck forbid it!—
We do not think we'd care a lot
About the way they did it.
We would not mark the kind intent
Behind a flying arrow,
We'd just as soon a rifle sent
A bullet through our marrow!

The Travelers played nice ball behind Hatton and as a result upset the dope bucket and slipped off with the long end of a 7 to 6 verdict with the American Refiners Tuesday afternoon. The game was filled with thrillers.

Skipper Medford forced Raymond Windham to see the first American game from the side lines. Windham took things too easily in the infield and this displeased Medford who, fearing it would cause discontent among the players yanked the short stop and gave Red Rounsaville a chance in the infield. Red played bang up ball at second.

It was with regret to Medford that there wasn't one more man on in the seventh when Curly Christion stepped into one of Hatton's slants and poled the ball to the outer regions for a home run.

The loss may be credited to the spectacular fielding catch of Skipper Riley Rawls. With two men on the pats Red Rounsaville poled one to center that was labeled for four cushions, but Riley took the ball while running from the diamond.

Double Play.

Red made a nice catch of Hicks' line drive in the third and with a quick throw turned in into a double play. Charley Hefner led the hitters with three hits in three times at bat. Riley Rawls hit two out of two. Ronnie Glidewell and Skeen hit two out of three, and Christian two out of four.

Hefner's single, a sacrifice, and Rawls double scored the first Traveler score in the first inning. Taylor walked. Rawls scored when the breaks turned in favor of the Travelers and Andree's low pitch hit the plate and bounced over the backstop.

The Americans took the lead in the second inning. Glidewell hit the first ball pitched for a home run over the left fielder's head. Skeen singled to left and Cannon sent him to second when he beat out an infield hit. Horton scored both runners with a triple to deep left. Morton scored himself on a wild pitch a moment later.

Score in Third.

The Travelers again scored in the third. Rawls led off with a single. Andree made several attempts to catch Rawls off first and finally threw wild at the bag and Rawls took second. Taylor sent Rawls romping home with a single to left.

The Americans came back in the fourth and scored another tally. Coyal Francis singled to left. Skeen singled to the same pasture and took second on O'Leary's boot, Francis took third. Rounsaville squeezed Francis in with a neat bunt down the first base line.

The Travelers took the lead in the fifth inning. Rawls walked. Francis knocked down Taylor's hot grounder and flashed it into a double killing. Francis injured his thumb on the play but finished the game on grit with a swollen thumb. Faichney singled to center. Red Hicks stepped into the limelight and tied the count with a home run. E. Ikard singled to left and circled the bases when Cannon let the ball get away from him.

Hefner's grounder took a high hop over Rounsaville's head for a single. Hefner stole second and continued on home when Horton's peg went wild.

"With that "never say die" spirit the American went into the last of the seventh. Christian's home run with none on fell short of a tie and the game ended.

Giants Grab First On Corsairs, 7-6

NEW YORK, July 7—(AP)—The Giants and the Pirates, old enemies in baseball, today settled down to a rigorous five game test, New York taking the first combat 7 to 6, and creeping up to within one full game of the pace setting club from Pittsburgh. Successive home runs by Moore and Cuyler in the first inning threatened a troublesome day for young Kent Greenfield, McGraw's choice for mound duty, but he steadied and his mates delivered the victory with 13 base blows showered upon Aldridge, Sheehan and veteran Babe Adaba. Among them were a home run by Frisch and two doubles and a single by Young.

Three lightning double plays, one of them in the ninth with Artie Nehf in the box, saved the Giants. Carey barely missed Terry's double in the fifth which tied the game, when he attempted to spear the ball with his gloved hand after a long run. Frisch and Wilson of the Giants and Traynor of the Pirates, cut down hits with sensational fielding.

BOSTON, July 7.—(AP)—The Boston Braves ran their string of victories to five by thumping the St. Louis Cardinals in a double header today, 7 to 4, and 8 to 2. Jess Barnes held the visitors to 7 hits in the opener and Kyle Graham let them down with a like number of safeties in the second game. Neis, Brave's center-fielder, hit the ball far over the left field fence in the fourth inning of the first game, the second time in the history of the park that this feat has been accomplished. CINCINNATI 4-3; PHILADELPHIA 0-4.

PHILADELPHIA, July 7. — Cincinnati split even in a double header with Philadelphia today, winning the first game, 4 to 0, and losing the second, 4 to 3. Rube Bressler wrenched his left ankle in the first game when he fell over Catcher Wilson while scoring in the second inning. He was carried off the field and sent to a hospital to have an x-Ray taken of the injury. Henline's home run in the third inning of the second game gave the Phillies their winning run.

Maranville Takes Over Clubs' Reins

NEW YORK, July 7.—Walter (Rabbit) Maranville, shortstop, today succeeded Bill Killifer as manager of the Chicago team of the National league, President William L. Veeck announced.

This action is the result of the management's search for a playing manager. Killifer, who succeeded Fred Mitchell as leader some years ago, will remain as scout until the expiration of his contract at the end of this year.

CHICAGO, July 7.—Appointment of Walter "Rabbit" Maranville to succeed Bill Killefer as manager of the Cubs, came as a surprise to Chicago's baseball fans. Those on the inside, however, suspected that Killefer might be displaced any time due to the failure of the Cubs in the National league race and a desire of President Veeck to have the club directed by a playing member.

Killefer has been manager of the club since 1921.

CHICAGO 10; BROOKLYN 5.

BROOKLYN, July 7.—Rabbitt Maranville, making his debut as the manager of the Chicago Cubs, led his team to a victory over Brooklyn today, 10 to 5. In the sixth inning the Cubs broke a 2-2 tie when they staged a rally which netted seven runs. Tiny Osborne started for the Robbins but gave way to a pinch hitter in the eighth and Oeschger finished the game. Cooper started for the Cubs, but was knocked off the mound in the eighth and relieved by Guy Bush, who halted a dangerous rally.

Browns Wallop Yanks in Pair

ST. LOUIS, July 7.—(AP)—The Browns won both contests of a double header with the Yankees today, taking the first game 12 to 2, and the second 6 to 5. Batting rallies in the fifth and seventh innings of the initial contest enabled the Browns to win. The Yankees hits were scattered.

Harry Rice, outfielder, brought in the winning Brown run in the ninth frame of the second game. Earl Combs, outfielder, hit for the circuit in the Yankee half of the inning with one man on and tied the score.

Thalheimer and White Out After More Net Honors

Brilliant Longhorn Tennis Duo Invade Eastern Courts

AUSTIN, Texas, July 7.—Intent on winning even higher honors than they did last year, when their play in the east won for them the honor of being ranked sixth among the tennis doubles teams of the United States, Lewis White of Austin and Louis Thalheimer of Dallas, Texas university stars, are now in the east for another summer's campaign. They will play in all the leading invitation tournaments of the season and will climax their year's activities by participating in the national doubles tournament. Last year, the White-Thalheimer combination was one of the four chosen [illegible]try out for the United States Davis cup team, and they are hopeful of once more winning this recognition.

Twice Collegiate Champs.

In 1923 and 1924 White and Thalheimber won the national collegiate doubles championship of the country. Last month, Thalheimer again competed in the national collegiate tournament, going to the semi-finals of the singles ni the play held on the courts of the Merion Cricket club at Haverford, Pa. Paired with Edward Mather of Austin, Thalheimer reached the third round of the doubles where the Texans were eliminated by a Leland Stanford team. White was not eligible to compete in the college net meet, because he had already played for three years in that tourney.

Penick Predicted.

The two Texas university players owe much of their success to the coaching of Dr. D. A. Penick, tennis coach at Texas university for the past 20 years. Before either White or Thalheimer entered the university, Dr. Penick predicted they would one day win the national collegiate doubles championship, should they ever combine their skill. White at that time was a student in Austin high school. Both were recognized as the most promising young players in the state, before they had completed high school.

In addition to winning the national collegiate titles in 1923 and 1924, the White-Thalheimer combination for the past two years has won the state championship in doubles.

WACO 4; BEAUMONT 1.

WACO, July 7.—Tuero was right and he held the Exporters to five scattered hits, while the Cubs had better luck with Fillingim and Jacobus to win the first of the series 4 to 1. Jacobus went in in the eighth after Fillingim was replaced by a pinch hitter in an eighth inning rally that was cut short. It was Waco's eleventh win out of 12 starts with Beaumont.

SAN ANTONIO, July 7.—Bob Couchman held the Buffs to six hits, only two of which were productive, while the Bears accumulated 10 off Deviney to win the opening game of the Houston series here this afternoon 6 to 2. In the seventh inning Big Chief Nason cleared the center field fence near the flag pole with the longest drive made on Bear field, the ball going on a line 400 feet from home plate. Little Chief Khadot obtained from Dallas in exchange for Brovold made his first appearance in the Bear lineup and played a good game.

MISCUES AND WALKS COST SHUMAN TILT

Dallas Hurler Holds Bud's Athletes to Six Hits

DALLAS, July 7.—Six walks issued by Shuman today, two of which blossomed into runs, combined with a Dallas error allowed Wichita Falls to win 3 to 2. Wheeler was nicked for nine hits but kept them scattered.

The Spudders scored one in the second. Golvin singled to right. Dorman grounded to short and was safe when Goss booted. Jonnard singled to left, scoring Golvin. Wheeler sacrificed. Callaghan lined out to short and Dorman was doubled off second.

Each Score in Fifth.

Both teams scored in the fifth. Jonnard opened the inning with a walk. Wheeler, attempting to sacrifice, forced Jonnard at second, but was safe on fielder's choice himself. Callaghan walked, and Distel scored Wheeler with a single to center. Bodie and Fitzgerald grounded out to the infield. After there was one out in the Dallas half of the inning Shuman singled to center. O'Brien flied out to center, but Bauman doubled to the same territory, scoring Shuman. Miller hoisted out to Fitzgerald.

Dallas tied the score at 2-all in the seventh. Segrist opened with a double against the center field fence and scored when Billings followed up with a single to left. Wheeler tightened up, and no further scores were made.

Win in Ninth.

Wichita Falls won the game in the ninth stanza. Wheeler himself started it off with a single to left. Callaghan tried to sacrifice, but forced Wheeler at second. Distel forced Callaghan at second. There were two out and it seemed the game was destined to go into extra innings for there appeared little possibility of the Steers breaking the tie in the last half of the ninth considering the work of Wheeler on the mound. But Bodie walked, and then Fitzgerald hit a roller at short which got by Gross. Distel scored from second.

914,551 bbls. Wichita County's Production In May

13 MILLIONS IS TEXAS RECORD IN ONE MONTH

Limestone County is Heaviest Producer With 2,346,289 Barrels

AUSTIN, July 7.—In May 13,797,280 barrels of oil were produced in Texas, a new record for monthly production in 1925, the report issued today by the oil and gas division of the railroad commission shows. In April the production was 12,416,272 barrels. March was the next high producer with more than 12,000,000.

Limestone county was the heaviest producer, with 2,346,289 barrels. Freestone was second with 1,532,827 barrels, and Reagan county third with 1,397,404 barrels.

The Reagan county production is from Texas University land on which one-eighth royalty is paid on production in addition to the purchase price of the leases. The royalties for May totaled more than $600,000.

Liberty county produced 1,244,557 barrels, Wichita county, 914,551, and Navarro and Archer counties produced more than 500,000 barrels each.

DeLeon, Electra, Larado, Luling, Pan-Texas and Ranger fields produced 1,734,543 barrels.

Some of the production for May was run in April, the report noted.

Frederick Oil Test To Begin This Week

FREDERICK, Okla., July 7.—Actual work on the test well to be drilled on the R. P. Dunham farm, nine miles southwest of Frederick, will begin this week. Construction work on the derrick and equipment which has been in progress by three crews for the past week is finished and drilling is to go forward rapidly.

French Commander Named for Morocco

PARIS, July 7.—(AP)—General Stainslaus Naulin, commander of the Thirtieth Army corps on the Rhine, has been appointed supreme commander of operations in Morocco. General Naulin, who is now on leave, will proceed to Morocco at the earliest possible moment.

In announcing the appointment Premier Painleve said what was needed was a young and vigorous officer, well versed in the methods of both European and colonial warfares and thoroughly acquainted with the mentality of the natives. General Naulin, he added, possessed those qualifications to an eminent degree.

The new commander, who will replace Marshal Lyautey, is 55 years old. He served for a long time in North Africa, was in command at Oran for a year and lived two years in Morocco. He was also in Syria during the European war, where he commanded the twenty-first army corps.

General Naulin's appointment, the premier explained, would relieve Marshal Lyautey of the responsibility of the military operations and permit him to devote all his energies to his heavy administrative and political duties.

General Naulin is a product of the famous St. Cyr Military school. Attached to the 21st army corps of which he was commander in the world war, were several American expeditionary units. General Naulin paid high tribute to the 42nd (Rainbow Division) which distinguished itself July 15-16, 1918, before Rheims. He also praised highly the Second and Thirty-Sixth American Divisions for their operations on October 3, and October 6-7, the same year, when they not only checked the Germans, but forced them back from Rheims.

On their number one Anderson, located to the north of Norday's producers in block 16 South Anderson ranch, The Texas company have a sand and are setting casing to cement at 1431 feet.

Texhoma-Jackson

Texhoma is drilling at 1640 feet in red bed on their A-1 Jackson, Wheeler county. On their No. 1 they are still shut in at 2243 feet with casing trouble. This well made 250 barrels flowing from sand 2235-43 actual test.

Prairie-Andrews

On their Andrews lease, located 1420 feet north and 155 feet west of the southeast corner of the Andrews land in section 2437, T. E. & L. survey, the Prairie are completing a dry hole below 1500 feet.

Pace-Edgerly

George Pace and associates are drilling below 1900 feet on their No. 1 Edgerly, located in the northwest corner of S. A. & M. G. survey, abstract 276, Wichita county. The well has had no shows and will be abandoned as dry at a depth of 2000 feet.

Maer- Staniforth 2 Mills

On the Mills farm Baylor county to the east of their number one, producer Maer and Staniforth are drilling at 1065. Number one, the farthest east well in the pool is now pumping approximately 70 barrels of oil and 40 barrels of water.

Sid Richardson-Compbell

In section 1373 TE&L survey Sid Richardson bailed dry on a sand which gave every indication of being a nice producer. Sand in this well was topped at 1,005 feet. The well will be drilled deeper in the hope of finding a deeper pay.

Consolidated 1 Tuberville

After passing several shows on which casing was set and which have been bailed dry the Consolidated Oil company are ratholing at 1050 feet on their No. 1 Turbeville, located in the northwest corner of section 1, Jefferson county school lands, South Archer county.

Reb Bank 2 Graham

The Red Bank Oil company is drilling at 1570 feet on their two Graham leases, located in the center of section 2206, T. E. & L. survey, southeast Throckmorton county. Their No. 1 on the same lease was lost as a bad fishing job.

White Eagle 3 Hooks

On their Hooks lease located in the Scott survey abstract 255, Wichita county, the White Eagle Petroleum corporation are drilling at 1600 feet. Sand in this district is about 1780 feet and should be picked up in this well in the next two days. On the same lease their number one in the southwest corner is a two hundred barrel well while number two in the northwest corner is a dry at 1800 feet.

Petroleum Producers 1 Kemp and Kempner

Petroleum Producers are drilling at 1708 feet on their number one Kemp and Kemper located in block 45 Wichita Valley farm lands and should have the sand within the next 24 hours. This well is located on the northeast of the Freeman-Hampton pool and is shut off from production on all sides by a series of dry holes.

Wright et al 1 Wilson

Unable to make a satisfactory seat due to drilling into sand with a large bit Dr. Wright and associates have pulled pipe and will drill to the 1,300 feet sand. This well which is a rank wildcat is located on the Sanford Wilson land in the Scott survey due east of Archer City. Sand was topped at 1081 and drilled to 1102 feet. After completion of number one the derrick will be skidded a few feet and the sand just passed given a thorough test.

Petroleum Produces-Lauster

On their number one Yauster lease located in the southeast quarter of section 2 S. P. survey abstract 1237 south Archer county and to the east of the Norday pool on the Anderson, Petroleum Producers are drilling below 1200 feet and expect to start ratholing about 1300 feet for the sand. This is a rank wildcat and is being watched with considerable interest, the more so since the recent discovery of Norday and associates to the north of the Harmel area.

Schimmel et al 1 Kelly

On the Kelly farm, in section 31 of the Comanche Indian Reservation south Throckmorton county Schimmel and associates have what appears to be a opener in their number one which is standing with 2000 feet of oil in the hole from a lime topped at 2980 feet. This well is a rank wildcat being located about one and one-half miles due southwest of the Larkin and White producer on the Richards land. The well will be drilled deeper into the lime in the hope of enhancing production and placed on the pump. Its completion will without doubt have a great deal of effect on future locations in this part of the country.

The Rev. J. T. Jones, pastor, will do the preaching with home forces directing the singing.

WILD GASSER IN MONTAGUE MUDDING OFF

Boyd Humphries Well Is Slowly Coming Under Control

Slowly mudding itself off after running wild for several weeks the Boyd Humphries No. 1 Jones, located in the William Donoho survey, northwest Montague county, is fast coming under control. After blowing out and covering the surrounding landscape for a distance of several hundred feet from the well with a flood of salt water issuing from numerous mud volcanoes, the well is now being brought under control by the use of a mixture of bull ropes and clay, together with driving the casing from clamps with the top bradenheaded well up in the derrick. This has almost succeeded in shutting off the gas at the well and now but for one crater about 40 feet across which is approximately 100 feet to the north and west of the well and which is still blowing a deafening amount of gas and throwing mud from 20 to 30 feet in the air, the well is completely shut in. The mudding off of this last crater is now but a question of time and good old Mother Nature. It is estimated to date that this well has cost operators in the field in excess of one million dollars due to a lowered pressure which means a lower per acre recovery. The gas in this district is the shallowest high pressure gas in the world today and has been a great trouble to producers in the district, but after this experience, the second in the field, operators will take greater care in avoiding such accidents which are so costly to both life and property.

Tick Workers Face Financial Problem

FORT WORTH, July 7.—Members of the livestock sanitary commission are confident of finding a way to finance a half million dollar yearly tick eradication program in Texas though September 1 will find a complete working organization starting into the future with only $80,000 available to pay salaries of inspectors next year, according to Leo Callan, chairman of the commission.

"We have arranged to find a way to make the $150,000 emergency appropriation that the legislature gave us pay the costs until the end of the fiscal year," Mr. Callan said today upon his return from a tour of south west Texas counties, "and we have the simple faith that the Lord will provide."

Under the tick eradication law enacted at the winter session of the legislature the whole cost of the work is assessed against the state and the new commission took office facing the problem of financing tick eradication in all of the infested areas of the state with, the exception of a group of counties in southeast Texas. The problem was solved when Chairman Callan with Caesar Kleberg, of Kingsville and Dr. E. L. Jarrel of Tyler appealed successfully to the commissioners court and cattle raisers of 100 Texas counties to cooperate on a 50-50 basis.

Norfleet's Last Man Is Behind Bars Again

FOR WORTH, July 7.—W. B. Spencer, "Norfleet's last man," is again behind bars.

He was lodged in the Kansas City, Kan., jail Monday on a warrant issued by Governor Paulen of Kansas, according to a telegram received by District Attorney Hangar from John Morrison, assistant district attorney, who is representing the state of Texas, in the federal habeas corpus hearing instituted by Spencer for his release.

The hearing on the writ was originally scheduled for today but was postponed until Wednesday by the federal judge.

Spencer has been at liberty since he was released from the penitentiary at Leavenworth, after serving a term for violating the liquor law, during the early part of June.

At the time of his release, Texas officers were waiting at the penitentiary gates to return Spencer to serve an eight-year term for being implicated in the stealing of $45,000 from J. Frank Norfleet.

Quakes Topple Cliffs On Isle of Santa Cruz Into The Sea; Unearth Relics

AVALON, Santa Catalina Island, Calif., July 7.—While last week's earthquake was toppling hotels and office buildings of Santa Barbara into the streets it was ripping great fissures into Santa Cruz and San Miguel islands just off the coast from the mission city, hurling sections of the rocky coastline into the sea and revealing old Indian burial places whose existence had not been suspected by archaeologists.

A report of the temblor's effects on the practically uninhabited island was brought her yesterday by Captain Arthur Sanger of the schooner Dreamer, on the vessel's return from anchorage off Santa Cruz island with a party of archaeologists from the Los Angeles museum of history, art and science.

Sanger said the Dreamer was lying off Santa Cruz island when the shocks began early Monday morning and that waves churned up by the quake tossed the vessel about like a piece of kindling. "Cliffs toppled into the sea before us," he said. "And we gazed awe-struck at what seemed to be the end of the world. From San Miguel island to the west of us arose great clouds of dust, indicating that there, too, the cliffs were crashing.

"After the shocks had subsided we went ashore and found that fissures opened by the quake had uncovered ancient burial places the existence of which we had not suspected while exploring other Indian remains on the island. We found five skulls of peculiar conformation and also numerous ornaments and utensils."

IF SICK, BILIOUS! START YOUR LIVER

Don't Take Calomel! "Dodson's Liver Tone" Acts Better and Doesn't Gripe, Salivate or Make You Sick—Don't Lose a Day's Work—Read Guarantee!

Ugh! Calomel makes you sick. It's horrible! Take a dose of the dangerous drug tonight and tomorrow you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mecury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it can not salivate or make ou sick.—Adv

INCOME TAXES DUE FOR CUT, BELIEVES CAL

President Feels That Slice Along Line Due Soon

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., July 7.—(AP)—President Coolidge feels that the next reduction in taxes should be made on incomes all along the line.

While leaving the actual preparation of the tax reduction bill in the hands of the house ways and means committee and treasury officials Mr. Coolidge hopes that it will provide for general relief and at the same time make possible the greatest amount of return in revenue.

To accomplish this end Mr. Coolidge thinks the maximum sur tax should be cut at least to 25 per cent. If it is the opinion of the experts, however, that a smaller maximum sur tax rate, even as low as 12 per cent would produce greater returns to the government and stimulate business he would favor this rate.

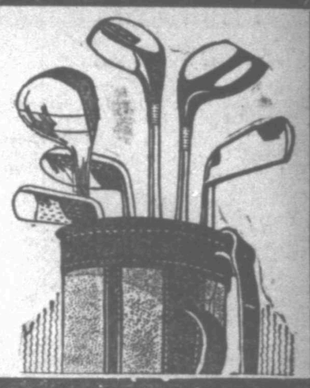

The president also stands on his previous pronouncement that the inheritance tax should be greatly reduced if not entirely wiped out.

LEE VERNON TALKS GOSPEL OF IRRIGATION

West Texas Chamber Of Commerce President Here Tuesday

VERNON, July 7.—R. Q. Lee, president of the West Texas chamber of commerce, found an enthusiastic audience in Vernon tonight when he brought his message of diversified and intensified farming to a gathering of Wilbarger county's most prominent men at a banquet tendered in his honor at the First Presbyterian church. Lee is touring West Texas, a patriotic service to his state in an effort to take his message of construction to the people of his chosen section.

His absolute sincerity and earnestness holds his audience almost spellbound and his message is driven home in a simple yet powerful manner. He quoted numerous statistics showing how southern farmers are failing to feed themselves and by actual illustrations showed that irrigation and intensified farming practiced in West Texas by West Texas farmers pays handsome dividends and has made prosperous those men with industry and ability to put over private irrigation programs.

He was enthusiastic about Wichita Falls' irrigation project at Lake Kemp and prophesied that this great project is but the pioneer of many more to come. His home city of Cisco has put over a project almost rivaling this great irrigation step and Colonel Lee prophesied that West Texas would soon blossom like the rose under the water from great public and private irrigation projects.

Vernon has recently reorganized her chamber of commerce and almost doubled the annual budget. Hubert Harrison, manager of the Wichita Falls chamber of commerce, has assisted in putting on the drive and aided in putting in a business council similar to the one employed in Wichita Falls. Colonel Lee will continue his swing up the Denver to Amarillo and into New Mexico.

man of the jury which tried him: Chief of Police W. L. Garland, of Burkburnett; A. J. Baskin of Fort Worth; J. D. Carwell of Wichita Falls and others.

Heyer Writes Letter.

A long letter from S. Heyer of Wichita Falls to the pardon board asking favorable report is included in the record. The pardon board recommended the pardon.

Governor Ferguson granted a conditional pardon to Arvil Pool, Wichita on a charge of burglary, 2 year sentence. His release was recommended by Chairman J. A. Herring, of the prison commission, and other prison officials and the pardon board, on account of his loss of one foot.

Ten full pardons, five conditional

Clemency was granted to ten men convicted on liquor charges, two for murder, two men and one woman for robbery, one man for assault to murder, two for bigamy, one for theft, and one for criminal assault. Full pardons were granted as follows:

Tom Rambo, Palo Pinto county, who served more than four of a five-year sentence for a liquor conviction.

Tommie Ewell, San Jacinto county, who served nearly eight months of a year's sentence for selling liquor.

Allen Smith, Galveston county, who served more than two-thirds of a 12-year sentence for robbery by assault, was also restored to citizenship.

Jesse Hambers, Medina county, who served six and a half years of four to nine-year sentence for assault to murder.

Charles Baverick, Wharton county, who served more than half of a year's sentence on a liquor law conviction.

Walter Henderson, Wichita county, who served one-half of five to 20-year sentence for murder.

Lex McShan, Montgomery county, who served nearly all of two-year sentence for liquor conviction.

B. J. Stephens, Jones county, who served nearly all of a year's sentence for violation of a liquor law violation.

Adolph Hanna, Hood county, who served most of a two-year sentence fo ra liquor law violation.

Jack White, Fanning county, who served two of a five-year sentence for robbery.

Conditional pardons were granted: Henry Wilson, Fayette county, who served 21 of a 50-year sentence for murder.

Elnora Adams, Harris county, who served half of a five-year sentence for robbery.

Ford Winfrey, Bell county, who served 12 of five to 18-year sentence for criminal assault.

Richard Huff, Tarrant county, who served more than a year of two-year sentence for theft.

Orvil Pool, Wichita county, who served almost half of two-year sentence for bigamy.

C. P. Pope, Scurry county, who served more than three of a five-year sentence for bigamy.

Those who received restorations of citizenship were convicted and served their time for liquor law violations. They are Joel Bradley, Mitchell county; Rowland Perry, Hood county; Will Condor, Kaufman county, and Billy Hunter, Jefferson county.

BRYAN

and dozens of newspaper correspondents and followers, Mr. Bryan told newspapermen he was prepared for the trial.

Mr. Bryan spoke following the dinner which was attended by John T. Scopes, member of counsel for both parties to the suit, leaders in Dayton's civic life and newspapermen. He avoided details of the Scopes' case, saying the case would not be tried by the newspapers, but in court. Three points, he said, he could discuss with propriety.

Referring to the size of Dayton, Mr. Bryan said that "some of the city papers have spoken dispairingly of the town as if it were too small a place in which to hold so great a trial."

Why should the size of the town be a matter of importance in the trial of a large case?" asked the speaker. "Christianity began in a small town, whether we date the beginning with the birth of Christ in Bethlehem. Why should not this peaceful community furnish a fitting environment for the trial of a case that involves the two greatest subjects that interest mankind—education and religions?"

Read the Bible.

"The newspaper critics who have been making fun of Dayton should read the front page of the Book which gave rise to this trial.

"The biology which the defendant was teaching has as its frontpiece a picture of a crowded city street and just below it the picture of a farm house on a quiet country road. Beneath the two pictures is a suggestion upon which the city editors might reflect with profit. This is the comment that the author of the book makes upon the two pictures contrasted: 'Compare the unfavorable artificial environment of a crowded city with the more favorable environment of the country'."

Mr. Bryan inquired into the causes of the widespread interest in the case. He pointed out that the punishment possible of being inflicted could not be more than a fine of $500 and city courts daily impose larger fines than this sum, he said.

"What is the secret of the world's interest in this little case?" the speaker asked. "It is found in the fact that this trial uncovers an attack which for a generation has been made more or less secretly upon revealed religion, that is, the Christian religion. We have no knowledge of it outside the Bible, which Christians regard as the revealed will of God. The Bible is our only standard of morality. It gives us our only conception of God and our only knowledge of Christ, the only begotten son of God.

"Anything that attacks the Bible attacks revealed religion. A successful attack would destroy the Bible and with it revealed religion.

"The contest between evolution and Christianity is a duel to the death. It has been in the past a death grapple in the dark; from this time on it will be a death grapple in the light. For this trial is going to give information or be the means of bringing out information upon which this controversy will be decided.

"If evolution wins, Christianity goes—not suddenly, of course, but gradually, for the two cannot stand together. They are as antognistic as night and day, as antagonistic as God and evil. Heretofore evolution has been like 'the pestilence that walketh in darkness.' Hereafter it will be 'the destruction that wasteth at noonday.'

"The opponents of Christianity understand the character of 'the struggle'," Mr. Bryan declared, and from henceforth Christians will understand its character, he said. Christians, he said, believing that "revealed religion offers mankind the only abiding truth, will fight evolution as their only great foe."

If they are wrong they will, of course, be defeated and be compelled to abandon the Bible as the word of God, he declared.

"If information furnished at the trial and brought out afterwards because of the trial shows evolution to be unproven and therefore unworthy of acceptance, science will have to fall back upon demonstrated truth which has no terrors for Christianity.

"Christianity is not afraid of truth," Mr. Bryan exclaimed. "It only opposes hypothesis put forth in the name of science but unsupported by facts."

Mr. Bryan's third point concerned "the fundamental principle of our government."

"Shall the people rule?" he cried. "If not, who shall?"

He insisted that the basic principle of the Tennessee anti-evolution law was the theory that the people, speaking through the legislature have a right to control the public schools. He quoted figures.

Who's to Spend.

"We have more than twenty-five millions of children in schools and we spend nearly two billions of dollars a year. Who is to control the experiments of money and the training of the children.

'Some of the irreligious have scoffed at the idea of the schools being controlled by those who support them, but they have not yet pointed out any other control than control of the public. And they will find it difficult to set up any authority in the United States independent of the public themselves.

"Our constitutions may place restraint upon legislatures but the people make the constitutions and change them. Our courts may temporarily restrain legislatures but the people create our courts and can change them. We might as well face the fundamental fact that in the United States the people are the source of power—the only source and will in the end control."

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, July 7—(AP)—Stimulated by pool activity in a wide assortment of motors and specialties, stock prices surged upward again today with about thirty issues elevated to new high prices for the year. The demand for stocks spread over a broad list with net gains of one to four points quite common at the close and the day's sales running well over one and one-quarter million shares.

Speculators for the advance found plenty of ammunition for their campaign and were aided by the apparent scarcity in the flowing supply of many issues. Reports that President Coolidge favored a general reduction of income taxes, publication of bank statements showing record breaking deposits and resources and of the easy money rates and stiffening commodity prices all served to create bullish sentiment.

Motors responded to reports of largely increased earnings by the principal manufacturing companies. Studebaker, General Motors and Packard, Hudson, Moon and Pierce Arrow common and prior preferred, all broke through to new peak prices, the last named soaring 6½ points. United States rubber first preferred also advanced a point to a new maximum. Goodrich moved up 1 3-8 and the other tire stocks improved fractionally.

Coppers responded to the improvement in the price of the red metal, and rumor is that Great Britain was in the market for large tonnages. Utah led the advance in that group by moving up 3¼ points to 93¼, the highest price in about six years. Activity on Kennecott was based in part on expectations of an early increase in the dividend.

Strength of the southwestern carriers featured the rail group. Frisco common on which a higher dividend is expected before the end of the year, touched 53 3-8 and was followed into new high ground by Wabash common and Wheeling and Lake Erie common and preferred.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, July 7.—(AP)—The cotton market was slightly more active today than it was the day before and the trend of prices was upward almost from start to finish. Opening six points up despite lower cables than due, the October position after a slight reaction gradually advanced until around mid-session it showed a gain of 35 points over the previous close. After reacting about 11 points on realizing the new crop turned firm in the final trading and advanced to 23.05 or 41 points above the previous close.

After opening slightly higher the market advanced owing to the continuance of dry weather in the west and later on speculative buying by Wall Street interests until October traded as high as 22.99, December 23.13 and January 23.19, or 34 to 35 points above Monday's close. The market then eased off about 10 to 11 points on profit taking but rallied again in the final trading. October traded up to 23.05, December 23.20 and January 23.24, or 38 to 41 points net higher. The close was near the top showing net gains for the day of 34 to 37 points on active new crop positions. July which was active all day closed at 23.35, representing a gain of 59 points from the previous close.

Father Seeks Son Then Son Seeks Father, Find Each Other After Years

AUSTIN, July 7.—Judge Beorge C. Calhoun today granted an application changing the name of Alfred Ben Clark, University of Texas student, to Alfred Ben Atkinson and re-uniting father and son who had been separated for 21 years.

Both the youth and his father told the circumstances that separated them during the hearing before Judge Calhoun and the court granted the request.

Lived in Shreveport.

According to the father and son, the father was living in Shreveport when the son was born in 1899. A few months after the birth of her child, the mother died. The father was unable to place the infant with relatives and gave him in charge of a family, the head of which worked in the railroad shops with the father. Later the father left Shreveport going to Dallas. Soon afterwards, the Tayor family, with whom the baby had been left, disappeared.

Frantic searching for years by the father failed to reveal any trace of their whereabout. At last the search was abandoned by the father.

In the meantime, testimony of the youth showed the Taylor family had moved away from Shreveport and took the family name of Clark. The child was raised under this name. He never knew he was not the child of the pair until 1907 when they let hints drop that he was a foster child. The boy then began an investigation of his own and found his real name was Atkinson and that his father had been a workman in Shreveport.

Hunted in Vain.

From that time until he entered the University of Texas he traced clues as to the whereabouts of his father without success, until after he came to Austin and friends became interested with him in proving his identity. A feature story gave the clue that finally established a connection with a well known Austin family.

Through this family, that of Mrs. J. B. Jourdan, and the efforts of the youth, the father was finally located in El Paso and the re-union took place. After meeting the father the son was able to establish his identity beyond a doubt, they both declared.

Waurika

Today saw the close of a three days' rodeo which was under the management of Royal Spradling. Saturday a large crowd was in attendance as an unusually large number of people celebrated here. Sunday the town was full of cars and today was first Monday which is observed with special prizes in merchandise and sales that are advantageous, bringing in country folk from a large territory. The rodeo was well managed, with a very small number of casualties including the usual number of "busted" fingers, thumbs and a few dislocated shoulders.

PREPART COUNTY REPORTS.

County officials are busy this week preparing annual reports for the fiscal year. These reports will be used by the county commissioners as a basis on which to make the estimate for the ensuing year. After the commissioners finish the estimate it will be used by county commissioners as a basis on which to make the estimate for the ensuing year. After the commissioners finish the estimate it will be passed upon by the excise board, which board will be the final arbiter as to what estimates will be approved for the expenses of the various county officers.

There is a deficit in some of the funds, due to the fact that the amount of money required to be raised by law is in excess of the amount which the law allows levied. This will be covered by judgments.

The county excise board meets Saturday, July 25.—It is very probable that the work can not be completed by the board in the one day and that another meeting will be called at a later date before the levy for 1925-26 taxes can be determined.

SELL FARM NEAR WAURIKA.

W. H. Divers, local real estate dealer, closed a deal recently for the sale of the old Cravens farm northeast of town, owned by D. T. Betts of Ranger, Texas. The land was sold to A. L. Walker of Oklahoma City and D. M. Bridges of Waurika.

Harper and Chandler also closed a deal with Walker and Bridges for the purchase of 300 acres of land lying east of town known as the Graff farm. Bridges and Walker are demonstrating their faith in Jefferson county.

WAURIKA TEACHER PROMOTED.

Prof. Sherman Culwell, at one time principal of the Waurika high school and later superintendent, resigning the latter place to enter the world war, has recently been appointed assistant superintendent of the Kansas boys' industrial school at Topeka, Kan. Prof. Culwell, Mrs. Culwell and their son, Robert, will move to Topeka from Wichita, where he has bene employed in the sales department of the Johnston Press, in July. They will have living quarters on the grounds.

WAURIKA BOOKS CLOSED.

The city council of Waurika closed books for the city this week, with a handsome cash balance and with $22,000 in the sinking fund. The affairs of the city have been managed on a levy of one and one-half mills for the past year, and the council is determined that the finances will not necessitate an increase, with the probabilities strong for a slight decrease in taxation. Much of the credit for the economical regime is due to the foresight of Mayor C. S. Storms, who has conserved finances, but has given the city one of the very best administrations it has ever known.

OFFICERS BEGIN TERMS.

County commissioners, county treasurer and county superintendent of schools all began their term of office today, but it made no change in the Jefferson county official family. All three commissioners will succeed themselves. John L. Evans was elected commissioner for the first district but he died early in the winter, leaving the present incumbent, A. L. Dunkin, to hold over until his successor can be elected and qualified. Tom Dorsett from district 2 and Dan Cathey from district 3 will each succeed himself. Dunkin's term of office is for two years, Dorsett's for four and Cathey's for six. From now on one county commissioner will be elected at each biennial election to serve for a period of six years.

WAURIKA PARK OPENS.

The city park, which has been sponsored by the Delphian club of Waurika and which is one of the beauty spots of the vicinity, was opened to the public July 4. There was a large crowd of folk who took advantage of the shade and grass and of the beauty of the surroundings to eat picnic dinner there.

State Treasurer Counts Out Huge Sum for 7 Banks

AUSTIN, July 7.—(AP)—After spending several hours in the state vaults today W. Gregory Hatcher, state treasurer, counted out $1,294,560.62 in cash of the state bank guaranty fund and paid it to Charles O. Austin, state banking commissioner, who will pay the money to depositors in seven defunct state banks. The banks and amounts to be paid depositors are:

Canal Bridges Torn Out to Help Water

The city water department at present is engagnig a crew of workmen to tear away some bridges and culverts in the city canal in an effort to get a bigger supply of water for city use.

Reports from the department state that good results are being obtained.

THEATRE MANAGER KILLED.

Houston Man Fatally Injured in Car Accident.

HOUSTON, July 7.—Warren H. Holmes, 33, manager of the Palace theatre, an Interstate Amusement company playhouse, was injured fatally on the La Porte road several miles from Houston Tuesday afternoon about 3 o'clock when the automobile in which he was riding overturned, pinning him beneath the wreckage. Joe H. Fallon, an employe of the theatre, was seriously injured.

Federal Judge Refuses to Set Aside Order Against Manufacturer.

NEW YORK, July 7. — (AP) — Federal Judge Knox today refused to set aside an attachment Herman Bernstein, editor of the Jewish Tribune, has obtained against Henry Ford and the Dearborn Publishing company, pending trial of his libel suit for $20,000. About $65,000 in Ford's accounts in New York banks are tied up.

William J. Cameron, editor of the Dearborn Independent, filed an affidavit taking entire responsibility in the matter, and counsel for Ford declared the manufacturer an innocent party.

Report U. S. Sailor Has Killed Chinaman

WASHINGTON, July 7.—(AP)—Consul General Cunningham at Shanghai, cabled the state department that Boatswain's Mate C. Dizsick, attached to the American landing forces there, had fatally shot a Chinese during disturbances while he was inspecting posts in the international settlement.

Naval reports quoted by Mr. Cunningham related that Dizsick had gone to the assistance of a municipal police constable who had arrested a Chinese agitator and was being attacked by a mob. The constable's revolver had been taken from him and the mob was closing in from behind when Dizsick fired.

An inquest will be held by a British assessor and a Chinese magistrate, who have been asked by American authorities to hear all evidence the defense has to present.

BE SOMETHING THEN SAY SO, AD CLUB TOLD

Hubert Harrison Speaks Before Club on City Advertising

"What you are speaks so loud I cannot hear what you say."

Such is the manner in which all towns should advertise themselves, according to Hubert Harrison, general manager of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce, yesterday noon before the Ad club luncheon.

In speaking on chamber of commerce advertising for cities, the speaker stressed the fact that a town must be something before it can advertise. The city must have something worth while before it can boast of it.

In connection with the work done by the local chamber, Mr. Harrison read a brief report on the amount of publicity given during the past year. The first issue of the Community Builder last year cost a thousand dollars and 25,000 copies were distributed. A total of $7,600 was spent in 1924 in advertising Wichita Falls.

This year, he stated, over $13,000 has already been spent, though only $6,600 was for actual advertising. The plans for the year call for $15,000 for publicity. It was the conviction of the speaker that more money should be spent in local newspapers advertising the city to the people inside the city. They, in turn, would advertise the town outside.

In connection with trade trips, Mr. Harrison explained that the publicity committee had decided to abandon future trade trips. This action has been taken due to the little good derived from the tremedous expense. However, special trips throughout the year will be made to individual towns.

The Old Home Town

W. S. Langford has returned from a vacation tour to Colorado and other points.

Archie Smith, funeral director of the Merkle Undertaking company, left Tuesday noon for a two weeks' vacation in Colorado.

O. H. Kellogg and Dan Lundien plan a vacation and fishing trip to Colorado which will taken them from Wichita Falls Sunday after next.

Fifteen cases were called Tuesday morning in corporation court. Most of them were on charges of traffic violations with several drunks and vags mixed in for good measure.

The building permit business showed a healthy increase in size Tuesday when eleven permits with a total valuation of $36,675 were issued by the city clerk. Several of them were for residences costing somewhat more than $7,000. The others were for smaller repair jobs.

W. C. Cook, formerly of the W. C. Cook Tire company has just been appointed sales manager of the Carter Tire company. The Carter Tire company are retail and wholesale distributors for the Cooper, Badger and Dunlop tires. W. C. "Bill" Cook was at one time with the Orient Tire company.

The L. E. Whitham Construction company, now building a plant near the waterworks, has completed its concrete bins for storing bulk cement, it was announced Tuesday. The cement conveyer which takes cement from cars to storage is also being installed, and the machine shop and garage, once blown down by a heavy wind, are nearing completion.

Rev. E. W. Wells, former district superintendent of the San Antonio district and now pastor of the Nazarene church at Temple, will hold special services at the Nazarene church, Fifth and Bluff streets, at 8 o'clock Tuesday and Thursday evenings. Wichitans are promised good and profitable evenings by attending his services, for he is said to be an unusually good speaker.

G. A. Remington contemplates no changes in the personnel of the irrigation district staff at present, following the completion of his inspection of the irrigation district Monday. With officials of the irrigation board he made a complete inspection of the district's properties and holdings. Mr. Remington is the new general manager of the Wichita county improvement district No. 1.

Fred Smith, master councilor, announced Tuesday evening that the last meeting for the summer of Hope chapter of the De Molays will be held at the De Molay hall, Masonic temple, Wednesday evening. The opening of school in September will mark the continuance of the meetings. Owing to warm weather the conferring of the second degree of the De Molay ceremonial work on a number of candidates who were given the first degree several weeks ago, will be postponed until the fall season.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers and their families will have next Thursday set aside for a basket picnic at Lake Wichita. Everyone is expected to bring well-filled baskets. The meeting place will be the post office corner, Ninth and Ohio, at 3:45 o'clock. From there special cars furnished by the Traction company, provided for free usage, will be taken for the lake. Ice cream and soda pop will be furnished.

To those who are interested in the hot weather Wichita Falls is enjoying will be interested in this from Julian Bobo. The Kiwanis governor-general (Oklahoma and Texas) has but recently returned from the Kiwanis international convention at St. Paul and Minneapolis. Says Julian: "Although the thermometer climbed only to 86 while we were there, the natives were suffering. We from Texas were cool. Used light overcoats at night, and during a daylight auto tour of about a hundred miles in a closed car needed an overcoat."

Scopes Is Not The First To Get Into Trouble For Trying To Define The Truth, History Shows

SCOPES IS NOT

NEW YORK, July 8.—The age-old effort to define truth will be revived when Professor John T. Scopes, Tennessee evolutionist, has his day in court.

His indictment for teaching the Darwinian theory in public schools contrary t othe statute has precedents which reach back for centuries. In America they date virtually from Plymouth Rock; in the world at large from the dawn of the Christian era.

The now nationally known "Scopes case" is recognizably akin to prevailing differences between modernists and fundamentalists which have increased with the rise of Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick.

The last actual trial occurred in Cleveland, O., in May, 1924, when William Montgomery Brown, former Protestant Episcopal bishop of Arkansas, was pronounced guilty by a church court of holding beliefs at odds with the accepted doctrines of his denomination. He publicly avowed communism and so-called atheism.

In the '90s, Professor Charles A. Briggs, a Presbyterian seminarian of New York City, was charged with having expressed himself at variance with the Westminster confession. The New York presbytery cleared him, but the general assembly of the church reversed the decision and pronounced a verdict of suspension.

Dr. Richard Heber Newton, a New York Episcopalian, of the same period, cut short charges against his "broad churchmanship" by demanding a formal trial. His demand was met but the plaintiffs failed to appear.

David Swing of Chicago left the Presbyterian faith to preach independently in the '70s when those citing him for alleged heresy refused to abide by his acquittal at the hands of the Chicago presbytery and threatened to appeal to the synod.

Mrs. Sarah B. Cooper, Sunday school worker, was haled before the Presbyterian authorities in San Francisco about 1870.

Theologians to survive heresy proceedings and gain what was reported as a firmer position were Horace Bushnell, Congregationalist of Hartford, Conn., in 1849; Prof. Philips Schaaf, whose acquittal in the German Reformed church in 1845 was echoed for 35 years in the "Mercersburg controversy;" Lyman Beecher, father of Henry Ward Beecher, and Presbyterian pastor in Cincinnati, in 1835; and Rev. Albert Barnes, Presbyterian of Philadelphia, in 1837.

Witchcraft Delusion.

The witchcraft delusion in Salem Village was the tragic climax of controversies in Colonial days when nineteen were hanged and one "pressed to death" in 1692.

Henry Dunster was forced to resign as the first president of Harvard college in 1654 after he publicly doubted the validity of infant baptism. He was also indicted by a grand jury as a heretic and sentenced to "a public admonition" and placed under bond for good behavior.

Samuel Gorton, religionist, about 1640 was virtually deported to England because of the unpopularity of his temperament and views. He returned to America under letter of safe conduct issued by the Earl of Warwick to the Massachusetts magistrates. Gorton's trouble started in Plymouth colony when he came to the defense of his wife's servant who had smiled in church. He suffered successive banishments from Plymouth, Newport, Rhode Island and Boston. A sect which adopted his antinomianism survived him 100 years, records show.

England was stirred in 1407 when Master William Thorpe, priest, was "examined of heresy" before Thomas Amundel, archbishop of Canterbury and lord chancellor.

The first heretic of Christian times was Simon Magus, the magician of Samari, according to the writings of St. Alphonsus M. Ligouri. Simon was cited in Acts of the Apostles as having attempted to buy the secret of the laying on of hands from the Apostles Peter and Paul.

Johns Hopkins Professor Claims That He Is First To Actually See Evolution

BALTIMORE, July 7.—(AP)—The theory of fundamentalists that there is no such process as evolution and that animals and plants as seen by the world today have held their present forms since the beginning of time is diffectly contradicted in a newly published report of biological activities at Johns Hopkins university here.

Dr. Herbert Spencer Hennings, professor of zoology and director of the zoological laboratories at the university is the "first to actually see and control the process of evolution among living things," the report states. "The evidence of evolution had been read in the rocks and the structure of plants and animals but under the microscope, Dr. Jennings was able to follow evolution not as a theory, but as a thing that was actually taking place."

Dr. Jennings reveals that the hereditary characteristics do become changed by external conditions and that through such diversities continuing for great numbers of generations, single stocks, uniform in their hereditary characters, gradually differentiate into many faintly different hereditary features. The process is gradual, or by steps so small that single ones are imperceptible.

"In higher organisms," Dr. Jennings said, "the state of knowledge on this point appears less satisfactory, but the evidence so far as it goes indicates that the processes here are in agreement with those of lower organisms.

"Apparently diversities in external agents may, under conditions which seem rarely met, so modify the germ cells that they produce progeny with changed hereditary characteristics. Altogether, we find that even independently of any mating process diversity of stocks is being produced but most slowly and gradually."

FILM TEAM HERE AGAIN

Marie Prevost and Monte Blue At Olympic Today

A long-awaited event has come to pass. The justly, and widely celebrated "best seller," "Recompense," from the pen of Robert Keable, has been transposed onto the screen by Warner Bros., and will be seen at the Olympic theater for four days, beginning today.

More Than Love Tale.

Mr. Keable's story of Peter and Julie is more than the usual frothy sex-smeared tale of love. It is rather the daring truth about a man who is true to himself in face of the raw, elemental desires that consume his flesh with unutterable longing.

With Marie Prevost and Monte Blue cast as Peter and Julie, there is little doubt that the Warner version of "Recompense" will be an unforgettable sight, inasmuch as Miss Prevost and Mr. Blue have more than once demonstrated their almost uncanny genius in playing together. John Patrick, John Roche, Etta Lee, Wm. C. Davidson, Virginia Brown Faire, Charles Stevens, George Siegman and Katherine Lewis are the supporting members of the Warner cast to enact Mr. Keable's famous novel.

The great celebration of Armistice day on the French front is re-enacted in "Recompense."

Story of Armistice.

In an old chateau, 75 people are noisily expressing their joy at the culmination of the war. It is worthy of note that the French colony of Los Angeles supplied over half of these extras for the scene, a number of whom took part in the great conflict. A stranger visiting this set at once impressed by the sincerity with which the scenes are being made, and one extra in particular at the height of the celebration became so overcome he had to be led from the set. The fellow himself was a soldier under the French republic and well recalls the memorable day six years ago.

"Recompense" was destined for unusual acclaim in the world of books, and remembering its unquestionable popularity, Warner Bros. handed it over to Harry Beaumont, foremost among dramatic directors, to do with as he would. Knowing Mr. Beaumont's work, "Recompense" is one picture that only awaits the final screening for endorsement.

Ladies, Sheiks, Wise Cracks, Other Cracks, Comes Disillusion

She had saved her umbrella for a rainy day, or else for fashion's finish to what was really a pretty outfit.

She had a friend.

Both were the type any man would turn once to admire—yet not to stare.

Two sheiks in the postoffice lobby became bold, however, and followed across the street even to within the shade of the police station—if the sun had been in the right direction.

Came the wise crack from one of the sheiks.

Came a crack from the umbrella in the hands of one of the fair ladies.

The umbrella is no more.

Neither is either of the sheiks, and one is believed to be suffering a broken nose.

The maiden who wielded the umbrella reverted to type as the blow fell, exclaiming:

"You big bum!"

Automotive Ass'n Disbands Awhile

Wichita Falls Automotive Dealers' association, at their regular Tuesday luncheon held at the Wichita club, came to the decision that the distinuance of the meetings during the summer months would be wise. James King, president of the association, presided at the meeting which was attended by fourteen members.

Following the next meeting which will be held next Tuesday all others will be postponed until September. Many various matters of interest to the dealers will be discussed at this final session.

"PINE TO PALM" ROAD.

GALVESTON, July 7.—"From pine to palm," the slogan of the Jefferson Highway association, will soon be synonimous with "from Winnipeg to Galveston," according to A. J. Keith, general manager of the association, who is here in connection with the rerouting of the international highway so as to make Galveston instead of New Orleans its southern terminus.

THREE OF FAIR HANGERS TO BE MADE INTO ONE

Building Will be The Biggest in All Southwest

Contract has been let by the Texas-Oklahoma Fair association for the moving of hanger No. 2 from its present location to the vacant space between hangers. Nos. 7 and 9. The three hangers will be converted into one building, which will be designated "The Merchants' Exhibit Building," according to R. E. Shepherd, fair secretary.

The new building will be 65 by 360 feet and will be the same length and breadth as the automobile building. The two structures will be the largest exhibit buildings in the southwest.

The consolidating of the three hangers will provide much more exhibit space under one roof and all the merchants' exhibits will be located in the new quarters provided by the fair association.

The merchants' exhibits this year will be under the jurisdiction of the Retail Merchants' Credit association, the fair association having leased the building to the organization for the 1925 and 1926 exhibitions.

The building will be in readiness for the fair, October 3 to 8 inclusive, Shepherd stated.

COUNTY GIRLS' ENCAMPMENT BEGINS TODAY

Wichita Rapresentatives To Leave at 9 o'Clock This Morning

Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock the Wichita County Girls' club will leave for a three-day encampment on the Wichita river near Iowa Park. The Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce is furnishing the transportation for the local girls, while the Chambers of Commerce of both Electra and Iowa Park are furnishing the transportation for their representatives.

After the entire assembly is complete a parade will be held in Iowa Park.

The encampment is under the direction of Miss Ethel Louise Webb, county home demonstration agent.

The Boy Scouts and Camp Fire Girls will entertain the camp Wednesday night, and in return the camp will have a free picture show Thursday night to which the Boy Scouts and Camp Fire Girls are invited to attend.

The daily program will consist of recreation, household demonstrations, lectures on household subjects and an education part which will consist of a bread contest, yard improvement, a dress contest, work on tinting, tying and dyeing, planning a year book, a button hole contest, and a demonstration of fancy packs of vegetables. Three lectures will be given, "Opportunities for Club Girls," "Pictures in the Home," and "The Value of Reading Good Books."

GRAND JURY CALLS WITNESSES

Believe Judge Wilson Will Make Report by Saturday.

Witnesses were still being examined Tuesday by the grand jury of the 30th district court, which convened Monday for its July term. District Attorney Ben P. Allred said a number of others were to be called today for examination into criminal matters of the county.

It is believed that a report can be made to Judge Wilson before the end of the week.
