Airliner crashes

BOGOTA, Colombia — An explosion ripped through an airliner Wednesday as it carried at least 52 people over northern Colombia. The only known survivor was a 9-year-old girl who apparently fell out before the plane crashed and burned, officials said. The pilot of another plane saw an explosion rock the Intercontinental Aviation DC-9 as it flew at an altitude of about 14,000 feet, said Civil Aviation Director Alvaro Raad Gomez. The plane originated in Bogota and was heading for the Caribbean resort city of Cartagena, 380 miles to the north. It was about 10 miles from Cartagena when it crashed. Everyone on board was Colombian, Raad Gomez told the Associated Press in a telephone interview. He said it would be "premature and irresponsible" to speculate on whether a bomb caused the Colombian-owned plane to crash.

Jackpot jumps

No tickets bought correctly matched all six numbers drawn Wednesday night for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, state lottery officials said. The jackpot was worth $4 million. The numbers drawn Wednesday night from a field of 50 were: 1, 2, 16, 27, 35, and 41. Lottery officials estimate the jackpot for Saturday night's game will be $11 million.

18 hopefuls vie for Lee's head coach position

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

Midland Lee's new football era will begin next season with one of 18 men at the helm of the program that has been in the state playoffs in 11 of the last 12 years.

As the Wednesday 5 p.m. application deadline ended at the Midland athletic office at Memorial Stadium, 18 hopefuls had cast their lot to be considered for the head coaching job.

Earl Miller, the present head football coach at Midland Lee, announced in August that this would be his last season with the Rebels after becoming the winningest coach in Lee history with 77 victories in nine seasons. He will remain at Lee until the end of the school year.

Tim Whalen, Midland athletic director, said Wednesday that the new coach would come from the list of 18 official applicants with "a target date of Jan. 24 to have a name to present to the school board."

Whalen said the 18 applicants would be narrowed to a shorter list, beginning today, and official interviews would begin next week.

"The new coach at Lee will come from this list," Whalen said.

The list of applicants are Bob Alpert, Aldine MacArthur; David Browning, Oklahoma State University; Gary Comer, Cedar Hill; Bobby Etheredge, Texas Christian University; Ralph Harris, Midland Lee; Buster Leaf, Lubbock Monterey; Jim Mickler, Sinton; John Parchman, Llano; Kelvin Ratliff, Lee; Randy Quisenberry, Odessa Permian; Johnny Ringo, Uvalde; Jim Slaughter, Lufkin; Michael Spencer, St. Thomas Aquinas, Fla.; Ronnie Stephens, Burleson; Jerry Stewart, Cleburne; Allen Wilson, Tyler John Tyler; and Larry Zierlein, Louisiana State University.

Three of the coaches on the list have won state championships, including John Tyler's Wilson, who has won a state title at Class 4A Paris and last December with John Tyler in the Class 5A small school division. Wilson is also a Lee graduate.

Lee offensive line coach Ralph Harris also won a Class 3A title at Sealy in 1978 with a back named Eric

Storm cleanup begins with 3 more expected

A man rescues his two dogs on a raft in a flooded area of Rio Linda, Calif., Wednesday morning, after major flooding in the area.

■ Forecasters say stronger storm is off coast, poised to strike over weekend.

Associated Press

MALIBU, Calif. — More than a week of rain left Southern California roads under a foot or more of murky water Wednesday, opened huge sinkholes in freeways and brought production of some of TV's glamour shows to a halt.

Eight deaths statewide have been blamed on nine days of storms that have dropped more than a foot of rain in some areas and forced the evacuation of thousands of people from the wine country north of San Francisco to the fire-ravaged hillsides of Southern California. The state Office of Emergency Services reported a preliminary damage estimate of $66 million, but that figure didn't include hard-hit Los Angeles and Santa Barbara counties.

Emergency crews and homeowners used a brief respite in the weather to clear muck and debris, fortify sandbag barriers and fill sinkholes. But at least three more storms were stacked up over the Pacific, and forecasters said a stronger storm was off the coast, poised to strike over the weekend.

"We love this house and we love this city, but today I've got to tell you, we hate this rain," said Deedee Gene of Altadena, 10 miles northeast of Los Angeles.

Board seeks to keep unitary status from splitting community

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

While the issue of unitary status has resulted in controversy, Midland school board members said it shouldn't be divisive. Board members in favor of the plan said they have been trying to work in a spirit of compromise.

"There is no need for the community to be in an uproar," said school board president Jackie Hamilton.

Little has been said in favor of unitary status since board trustees pushing for it have been honoring requests from the U.S. Justice Department — and from attorneys involved in the legal proceedings — to not deliberate the issue in public.

"The Justice Department has gagged us," Ms. Hamilton said.

However, board members representing Midland's predominantly African American and Hispanic communities have been vocal in their protestations of unitary status and have urged the board to make discussions public.

At past community meetings large numbers of Midlanders have spoken out against Midland's federal court-ordered method of desegregation — the cluster system.

Other large groups, primarily from the minority communities, have spoken in favor of the cluster system.

Those against the cluster system decry the lack of continuity of students attending three different schools

Midland company plans line-up for inauguration entertainment

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

Entertainment for the gubernatorial inauguration celebration next week — featuring names such as the Oak Ridge Boys and Johnny Dee and the Rocket 88's — is being produced by a Midland company.

"We're doing the entertainment for the main gala and the different balls," said Dennis Grubb, president of Wemus Entertainment.

The musical entertainment begins at 7:30 p.m. Monday with a gala at the Frank Erwin Center in Austin. After the inauguration ceremony on the Capitol Building steps at noon the next day, more entertainment will be provided at three balls that evening.

"This (celebration) is about the biggest event you're going to have in Texas and we're very fortunate to do it," Grubb said. "And we're hometown boys doing it."

In addition to the entertainment provided by the local company, Midlander Don Evans is inaugural planning committee chairman. Grubb and Evans have both known Governor-elect

O.J. Simpson sits in a Los Angeles courtroom, Wednesday as his lawyer makes an opening statement in the domestic violence hearing.

Diary portrays O.J. as abusive stalker who threatened to kill

LOS ANGELES (AP) — O.J. Simpson threw his ex-wife out of a moving car, beat her during sex and threatened to cut off the heads of her boyfriends, according to entries from her diary and other explosive documents released by prosecutors Wednesday.

The documents were filed as part of a hearing on whether to let the jury listen to evidence of long-standing violence in Simpson's relationship with Nicole Brown Simpson.

The papers portray Simpson as fiercely jealous and filled with rage, and allege that 17 years of abuse and degradation ended in Ms. Simpson's murder.

Defense attorney Gerald Uelmen argued that the June 12 stabbing deaths of Ms. Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman have all the hallmarks of a drug-related slaying and that evidence of violence in the Simpson household is irrelevant and would prejudice the jury.

"Where is there any similarity between a bedroom argument in which both parties had been drinking and the argument escalates into a slapping incident, and the slashing of two people's throats on a sidewalk?" Uelmen asked.

The jurors, who were ordered se-

Researchers work to smooth aging process

PARIS (AP) — It's no fountain of youth. But a compound isolated by the inventor of the French abortion pill may someday help millions of people grow old with fewer nagging aches and pains.

Imagine baby boomers less prone to fatigue, forgetfulness, brittle bones or weight gain, better able to navigate stairs and use public transport instead of being stuck at home by physical limitations.

According to recent clinical tests carried out at the University of California at San Diego by endocrinologist Samuel S.C. Yen, the molecule dehydroepiandrosterone, better known by its initials DHEA, produced a general feeling of well-being in patients who took small doses over six months.

Far from a wishful fantasy, DHEA is the brainchild of Dr. Emile-Etienne Baulieu, inventor of the French abortion pill, which isn't yet available in the United States, though clinical trials are under way.

"DHEA won't make people live longer, but it will improve the quality of life over a longer period of time and will postpone some of the unpleasant effects of aging, such as fatigue and muscle weakness," Baulieu said in an interview Wednesday at his Paris laboratory.

Baulieu isolated DHEA more than 30 years ago while working on testosterone and estrogen, the sex hormones of which the compound is a key component.

Baulieu gives most of the credit for the subsequent advances on aging to Yen, noting that the American's publications went virtually unnoticed in the United States last June.

The French media have given big headlines to the story — the news magazine Le Point trumpeted Baulieu's "fantastic discovery." But Baulieu deplores journalists who have presented DHEA as a panacea for all the ills of aging.

"A single compound can't repair everything," he said. "This would be worse than wishful thinking. This is impossible."

Baulieu says at least two or three years of clinical tests are necessary before the compound could be manufactured for the general public.

Although scientists are not exactly sure how DHEA works, they do know that the effects of aging become palpable when it begins to dwindle.

DHEA is secreted by the adrenal glands, which also produce steroids and growth hormones, and appears in the bloodstream around the age of 7.

Mexico crisis strikes poor as well as rich

MEXICO CITY (AP) — For housewife Joaquina Saldivar, Mexico's financial crisis means less meat on the table.

For salesclerk Ana Dominguez, it means a sharp jump in rent.

For millions of other Mexicans, dreams of a new car, new house or better job will have to wait because of the three-week-old economic turmoil that has slashed the pesos's value by more than one-third.

Traders working in the luxurious offices of the world's financial markets have seen billions of dollars vanish as the Mexican currency plunged to the equivalent of about 17 cents Wednesday, down from 29 cents on Dec. 20. The stock market also started a steep dive earlier this week.

But the shock has also punished shoppers wending past bouquets roses or butchered pigs at the Jamaica market. Many strain to live on a salary of 15 to 30 pesos a day.

"It's a very hard blow," said Antonio Silva, who runs a small delicatessen at the Jamaica, crowded with hundreds of stalls selling meat, produce, housewares and flowers at bargain prices.

The prices of Mexican-made products jumped along with imports when the currency fell. Mexican producers rely on imported parts and raw materials, as well as foreign-made vehicles, machinery and computers and foreign staff.

Cooking oil rose a peso to 4.5 a quart. Milk is up by 15 percent. A pound of sausage or beef or cheese costs a few pesos more.

"The poor people don't even have enough for beans," Silva said.

The money "doesn't go far enough," said Mrs. Saldivar, 64, who stopped to buy half a pound of spiced sausage at a nearby stall.

"I used to bring 60 or 70 pesos for two days. ... Today, I brought 80, and look!" she said, nodding toward her half-empty shopping bag.

"One has to find other ways," to make food stretch. She said she would mix the sausage with potatoes. "I don't spend much on meat now."

Miss Dominguez, working behind the counter, said she earned only 25 pesos a day — still nearly double the minimum wage. She said that after the devaluation, her landlord raised the rent on the apartment she shares with a sister to 350 pesos a month from 300.

"I can only save a little," said Miss Dominguez, 18, who has been working for three years.

Many find it hard to cope with any price increases at all after seeing the purchasing power of most salaries slip for more than a decade due to inflation and wage controls.

Chechnya's president calls for peace

GROZNY, Russia (AP) — Pale and weary, Chechnya's president came out of hiding Wednesday and admitted his forces couldn't beat a relentless Russian army that has turned Grozny into a smoking ruin littered with corpses.

While Dzhokar Dudayev was summoning reporters to his latest hideout on the outskirts of the besieged capital, fighting raged in the city's shattered center. Russian soldiers and Chechen rebels blasted each other with guns and rockets near the presidential palace, once the center of Chechnya's drive for independence.

Russian warplanes roared overhead and Chechen fighters dodged artillery as they scuttled to reinforce positions in and araound the palace.

As in previous appearances, Dudayev was dressed in military fatigues, but the once-fierce separatist leader's message of defiance was gone.

"We cannot physically confront such an empire as Russia," he said, flanked by heavily armed bodyguards. "There is no other resolution but a peaceful resolution."

He called for peace talks with the Kremlin, but did not make specific proposals. Previously he had said he would not negotiate peace unless Russian forces first withdrew.

In Moscow, the Russian parliament reconvened after a three-week break, and a succession of deputies arose to lambaste the government's decision to send troops to Chechnya.

"The country is in crisis," said reformer Boris Fyodorov, calling for a vote of no confidence. "We have no executive authority, we have no army. The army leadership has shown the army's total inability to act."

One lawmaker said Russian forces appeared en route to a Pyrhic victory; another said at least 1,500 Russian soldiers had been killed in the month-old offensive to quash Chechnya's secession drive.

In Brussels, the NATO allies urged Moscow to end the violence and negotiate a peaceful solution.

Dudayev, a former Soviet air force general who declared Chechnya's independence from Russia in 1991, said the Chechen hunger for independence could not be destroyed, but "the issue now is to stop the military action and stop the senseless casualties from both sides, senseless casualties and senseless destruction."

It was his first in-person appearnce since Russia launched its ground offensive against Grozny on Dec. 31.

Dudayev's Cabinet met earlier Wednesday to discuss grim military realities: Russian troops closing in on the presidential palace and other key installations in the center of Grozny. Dudayev claimed 18,000 Chechen civilians had been killed in the war, far exceeding all previous figures.

Once again, an informal truce that brought a lull in the fighting in the morning was brief.

"We told them (Russians) to collect their dead bodies to stop the dogs from eating them," said Arsan Ukayev, a colonel in the Chechen forces.

Russian television said reinforcements had been sent to Chechnya and other troops were undergoing training, but it was unclear what steps the Kremlin planned next in the month-old war.

A thousand miles to the north, the mood was tense in Russia's State Duma, or lower house of parliament, where opposition to the war runs strong.

Deputies voted unanimously to consider creating a commission to investigate the circumstances behind the war, but rejected a proposal to give the parliament more powers to try to halt the conflict.

President Boris Yeltsin and Prime Minister Viktor Chernomyrdin met with parliamentary leaders to discuss Chechnya. Legislative leader Vladimir Shumeiko said they decided to make the army general staff directly subordinate to Yeltsin — an apparent slap at Defense Minister Pavel Grachev.

However, Yeltsin aide Georgy Satarov denied such a decision had been made and said it was just one option being considered in reforming the army, the Interfax news agency said.

Today partly cloudy, near 70

Today's forecast calls for partly cloudy skies with a high near 70 and northwest winds at 10-20 mph. Tonight should be fair with a low in the mid-30s, according to the National Weather Service.

Friday should be mostly sunny with a high in the lower to mid-60s.

After an overnight low of 43, Wednesday's high reached 77, compared to the record high for that date of 78 set in 1935. The record low was minus eight in 1962.

STATE

While torrential rains continued to pound California and m ch of the rest of the country braced for snow, Texas basked under another day of springlike weather Wednesday.

Temperatures in the 70s and 80s were common over the Lone Star State as strong southerly winds and another day of sunshine kept temperatures in the 70s and 80s across the state.

Brisks westerly winds of 15 to 25 mph, with gusts of up to 35 mph, were reported in West Texas from Midland-Odessa to Amarillo and beyond. Sustained winds over 40 mph with gusts above 55 mph were reported at Guadalupe Pass in the mountains of far West Texas.

Temperatures ranged from 59 at Guadalupe Pass to 82 at Sanderson along the Rio Grande. In North Texas and Central Texas, the range was from 75 at Paris and Sherman to 81 at Killeen. Temperatures in South Texas were mostly in the 70s to low 80s, with mid-afternoon highs ranging from 64 at Del Rio to 85 at McAllen.

NATION

Heavy rain continued Wednesday over flooded Southern California, and snow was scattered in the mountains of the Northwest and over sections of the Northeast. In the Midwest, dense fog closed a Milwaukee airport.

Wednesday's rainfall in Southern California was less intense than Tuesday's gully-washer, but flash-flood warnings remained in effect for parts of the region.

The heaviest rainfall was in Santa Barbara, Ventura, Los Angeles, Orange, Kern, and San Bernardino counties.

ISSUE: Community appears split over unitary status

in fourth, fifth and sixth grades. Members of the minority community say that allowing pupils to stay in neighborhood schools in kindergarten through third grade was a compromise of the 1976 court decree.

However, some school board trustees have said things have changed since the 1970s. They point out that trying any other school system — such as magnet, year-round or stand-alone schools — would require permission from the courts, or being freed from court supervision altogether — by being granted unitary status.

"I think we have satisfied everything the courts have set out for us," said trustee Dianne Anderson. "We need to get out from under government control."

Trustee Robin Hightower agreed. "I think local school districts need to control the destiny of their schools. Government bureaucracy just becomes overpowering. We have done what the courts have asked us to do for 20 years."

If the federal government is taken out of the picture, Robbyne Hocker Fuller said, "It doesn't take a visionary to look down the road and see who is going to suffer. We are in a poor school district. If there is little money for new schools and buses, and the district is allowed to do whatever it wants, who is going to suffer?

"There is not a Greathouse, Scharbauer or Abell in east Midland."

Ms. Hightower said the unitary status issue is not a racial issue.

"It has never been a racial issue. We are looking at each child. What's good for my child is good for every child," she said.

Trustee James Fuller disagreed. "Any board member who says this is not a racial issue is in a state of denial . . . The people in districts 1 and 2 (Fuller and Adela Marmolejo's districts) are not stupid. They know very well what's going down and they are not going to accept the burden or the blame for this issue going beyond what anyone anticipated."

On Tuesday night, board trustees voted 5-2 (with Fuller and Ms. Marmolejo opposed) to go forward with seeking unitary status while dropping a proposed modified plan.

"Initially five of the board members were willing to use the modified plan," Ms. Anderson said.

The plan included having some stand-alone schools that wouldn't need to be part of the desegregation system since they are naturally integrated. Schools that needed to be integrated, however, would bus pupils in grades one through six.

"It would be a compromise to have some schools which would not be a part of busing. We saw this as a good compromise," Ms. Anderson said. "But the intervenors (on the original lawsuit) are not going to accept anything."

She said the intervenors and others want to "keep things just the way they are. In order to get unified status we were willing to go for a modified plan to save money and not have a long court battle. It would be something the whole community could go for.

"But some people have a bitter taste," she said. "They think that the rest of the community doesn't care about minorities. That is such crap. If we do not ensure the minority community is getting a good education, we are shooting ourselves in the foot."

On Tuesday night Dr. Viola Coleman, and other intervenors in the lawsuit, said they have not been privy to the modified plan, which has already been eliminated.

"Why is it that the people who initiated unitary status and voted for the modified plan have now changed their position when they learned that grades one through six would have to be bused? That issue is secondary to those of us wanting our kids to get a quality education," Fuller said.

"The bottom line is that the decision to go to unitary status was predicated on no preparation period," he said. "They (other board members) have come to realize that: 'Hey, maybe we got into more than we anticipated.' Maybe they thought they could simply bowl over the people in districts 1 and 2. They were wrong."

Ms. Anderson said desegregation began in part to resolve the disparities between schools and to ensure all students received an equal education.

"We just are not serving the purpose of educating kids when we are busing kids, and moving them away from a stable environment where they know the teachers. That does not serve them well," she said.

Ms. Hightower said times have changed and people have changed over the years. "I feel like we can move forward. Right now there is no accountability," she said.

Ms. Anderson also said accountability is lacking when students move from one school to another.

"We have got to have accountability," she said. "If parents have a choice about where their children attend school, and a school is not being attended, then that sends a big message to the district about that principal."

Ms. Fuller, however, said disparities exist in school buildings across Midland.

"All the new schools and best facilities are in west Midland. If the Midland community is sincere about having natural integration then there would be housing around $30,000-60,000 available around Scharbauer and Greathouse, so any young couple could afford to buy housing there, just as there should be houses in the $70,000-100,000 range in this area (east Midland)," she said.

"If there are no disparities than any little child from west Midland should be glad to come over to east Midland to go to school," Ms. Fuller noted. "And if there are no disparities then why not integrate grades one through six? If we were unitary in Midland we wouldn't be concerned."

Ms. Hamilton said the problem with the modified plan is that Midland parents, of all races, "all agreed they don't want first-graders getting on the bus. The majority of Midlanders simply do not want the very young on the bus."

"We just need to do the best we can to educate our kids," Ms. Anderson said. "If you look at our test scores and dropout rate, we are not doing it. We don't want to continue to send our kids all over the place without accountability."

Fuller said he doesn't believe accountability was the motive for fellow trustees calling for unitary status.

"On May 24, many people who spoke in favor of unitary status were speaking from a standpoint of getting the government out of our hair. It was about politics, and anti-busing, not about education. But there can be no integration in Midland or any other community without busing."

Ms. Hightower said the issue is being blown out of proportion. "I don't think things are nearly as upsetting in the community as is being reported. Everyone on this board is extremely open about wanting the best for all kids. There are no hidden agendas. We need to all work together. Nationwide, people are saying there are better ways to do this."

Ms. Hamilton said the federal judge involved in the legal proceedings is serving as a third party attempting to settle an issue the community is divided on.

"The community is in disagreement, but there is no sense in beating each other up if we want to accomplish anything," she said.

HEAD: Search is on for new Lee football coach

(From 1A)

Dickerson. Etheredge, now at TCU, won a 5A crown in 1991 at Killeen.

In addition to Wilson and Harris, several other coaches have Lee roots. Browning was the offensive line coach under Spike Dykes in 1983 when Lee went to the state finals. He left Lee for assistant college coaching positions at Texas A&I and Applachian State before moving to Oklahoma State.

Leaf is a former assistant at Lee under Jim Acree and has had successful programs at McCamey, Levelland and now Monterey where he has been in the playoffs two consecutive years.

Parchman left Lee as a defensive assistant last year to turn around the program at Class 3A Llano. He put the team in the playoffs for the first time in years, losing in bi-district to Giddens, 21-20.

Ratliff is a current defensive assistant at Lee. He has not been a head coach, but knows the Lee program.

Quisenberry has been an assistant coach at both Lee and Midland High before moving over to Permian where he has had a hand in molding a state championship team.

Stephens was the offensive line coach at Lee last season before moving to Burleson as defensive coordinator. Burleson was 6-3, but didn't make the playoffs. Stephens also knows the Lee system well.

Alpert didn't make the state playoffs at MacArthur last season, but got to the Class 5A Small School championship game there in 1993, losing to Lewisville, 43-37.

Comer put Cedar Hill in the Class 4A playoffs last season and lost in the first round.

Haynes posted a 10-1 mark at Clear Lake last season, losing in the first round of the 5A playoffs to Deer Park.

Mickler was 4-6 at Class 3A Sinton last season, while Stewart was the former athletic director and head coach at Cleburne.

Ringo also had a 10-1 season at Class 4A Uvalde, turning that program around with a playoff berth.

Slaughter is no stranger to West Texas, having coached at San Angelo Lake View from 1979 to 1986 where he had playoff teams. He also has done well at Corpus Christi Carroll. His Lufkin team this past season lost in the third round of the 5A big school division to Plano.

Spencer, from Florida, is the only out-of-state entry in the Lee sweepstakes and his team at St. Thomas Aquinas is known nationwide for its football. The Cowboys' Michael Irvin is a former student.

Zierlein was an assistant at LSU where coaching changes were made this year, but he is used to high profile football, coaching in the SEC.

RAIN: Forecasters call for more storms

President Clinton, who declared 24 California counties disaster areas, was scheduled to visit on Monday anyway to commemorate the first anniversary of the Jan. 17 Los Angeles earthquake.

"You are a people who come together in times of crisis," Clinton said in Washington. "The American people are with you."

The weather created havoc in freeway-dependent Southern California as motorists tried to navigate roads with pools of water up to their car doors.

A sewer line collapsed in Industry, 22 miles east of downtown Los Angeles, creating a large sinkhole that swallowed a car. Neighbors lowered a ladder into the hole and the driver escaped with minor injuries. Other sinkholes were reported throughout Los Angeles County.

The Pacific Coast Highway was shut down in Malibu after a widening crack was discovered in an aging bridge over the swollen Malibu Creek.

Farther down the highway, at Tuna Canyon, the road was blocked by tons of dirt from a collapsed hillside. Tractors scooped up the debris, and dump trucks unloaded it on the beach.

Coated with a thick batter of mud, Malibu looked like a war zone with hills still scarred from the devastating wildfires of November 1993 and beach homes fortified with sandbags.

Pepi Kelman went in search of shovels to dig mud away from her Pacific Coast Highway home.

"Every time this happens, you think about leaving," Kelman said. "Then the sun comes out, the mud is cleared away and the ocean is beautiful and you don't want to go away."

Storm-related deaths included a Marine on maneuvers at Camp Pendleton in San Diego County. The body of Lt. Col. Harry Murdoch, 43, was found four miles downstream from where he was swept away by a raging creek while trying to find a crossing for about 79 of his Marines.

Hollywood shut down several Malibu shoots because of the rain, including the TV shows "Diagnosis Murder," "Models Inc." and the TV movie "Showgirls." A commercial for the juice Sunny Delight also was scrubbed.

Just over the Santa Monica mountains in Agoura Hills, the location for the CBS drama series "Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman" was closed after water and mud damaged outdoor sets.

A year ago, the Ventura County town of Fillmore lost much of its business district and hundreds of homes to the Northridge earthquake. This week, the raging Sespe Creek washed through homes with mud and water.

DOCUMENTS: Prosecutors release diary entries

(From 1A)

quested before the arguments began, were safely tucked away at their undisclosed hotel.

The documents include entries from Ms. Simpson's diary and excerpts from letters from Simpson.

Among other things, the documents say Ms. Simpson's house keys were stolen from her home about two weeks before she and Goldman were slashed to death, and Simpson was carrying the keys when he was arrested five days later.

The documents also include a previously unreported statement from a person at Ms. Simpson's funeral who said Simpson uttered over her casket: "I'm sorry ... I'm sorry ... I loved you too much."

Prosecutors said police responded as many as nine times to domestic abuse calls from Ms. Simpson.

Ms. Simpson's diary quotes Simpson as calling his pregnant wife a "fat ass," demanding she get an abortion and once beating her while they had sex.

The papers also say that after a night of drinking in the summer of 1989, Simpson hit Ms. Simpson and threw her out of a moving car.

According to the documents, Ms. Simpson told her mother that her ex-husband was stalking her. Ms. Simpson was quoted as saying he "is following me again Mommy. I'm scared. I go to the gas station, he's there. I go to the Payless shoe store, and he's there. I'm driving and he's behind me." The date of the conversation was not disclosed.

Eddie Reynoza, who acted along with Simpson in the movie "Naked Gun 2 1/2," alleged in the court papers that Simpson once said if he ever caught Ms. Simpson's boyfriends driving his cars, he would "cut their (expletive) heads off!"

Simpson allegedly made the statement in 1991, while the two were still married. They divorced in 1992.

The alleged threat was the most dramatic statement yet suggesting a motive for the slayings. Goldman was allowed to drive Ms. Simpson's Ferrari, although friends and family said his relationship with Ms. Simpson was platonic.

In one letter, Simpson expressed regret for a New Year's 1989 fight that sent Ms. Simpson to the hospital and resulted in Simpson pleading no-contest to wife beating.

He wrote that he was "thinking and trying to realize how I got so crazy. ... Nicole I love you more than ever as I watched you at the party ... It must be because of those feelings that I reacted so emotionally."

Simpson became agitated in court Wednesday when Uelmen brought up the 1989 fight. According to Uelmen, the Simpsons were drunk when they "got into an argument in their bedroom during which Mr. Simpson admitted he slapped and punched" his wife.

AUSTIN: Local company plans entertainment for inauguration

George W. Bush for many years.

The latest line-up of entertainment at the gala includes: Mark Chesnutt, Janie Fricke, the Oak Ridge Boys, Larry Gatlin and Steve Wariner. The Geezinslaw Brothers will perform and host the show. The audience will also be entertained by Dallas singer Jeanette Brantley, San Antonio vocalist Shelly Lares and the Texas Boys Choir from Fort Worth.

Entertainment at the three balls will include: the Phares Corder Orchestra and the Dixie Chicks at the Austin Convention Center; the TFC Band and Johnny Dee and the Rocket 88's at the Palmer Auditorium; and Collin Raye and the Scott Hoyt Band at the Erwin Center.

Wemus Entertainment began in Midland and now has offices in Dallas and Nashville, Tenn.

In addition to the entertainment, there will be a barbecue after the inauguration and a parade — with the bands from Midland's two high schools — that afternoon.

Hard poultry can't be sold as fresh, agriculture department says

By Robert Greene
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON — The government says it's time to take the "fresh" label off chickens so frozen you can bowl with them.

But a package of fresh chickens might still have a little crust of ice, not to mention the rosy pink juice that turns off some shoppers.

Filling a gap in its regulations, the Department of Agriculture proposed Wednesday that chickens and turkeys can't be sold as fresh if they were ever chilled below 26 degrees Fahrenheit. It could be next year, however, before the proposal takes effect.

Poultry fails the touch test at 26 degrees, meaning you can touch it and it doesn't spring back.

"It was the common sense thing to do and the right thing to do," said Allen Rosenfeld, a consumer advocate with the Washington-based group Public Voice.

The National Broiler Council, the industry's trade group, did not immediately respond to a request for comment. Pressure from the industry quashed an effort to impose the same regulation six years ago.

Right now, birds can be chilled to an inside temperature of zero and still be considered fresh. The industry denies that birds get that cold because it costs so much to chill them.

'Consumers have a right to accurate descriptions of the product that they purchase, and to the consumers, fresh and frozen are two different things.'

— Michael R. Taylor, acting under secretary for food safety, Agriculture department

The department says birds labeled as "fresh" were more likely to be chilled to 20 or 26 degrees to keep them from spoiling and draining during long-distance truck hauls.

But critics said shoppers were nonetheless paying 10 cents to a $1 per pound more for fresh birds that were in fact something else. If the new rule goes through, the poultry that dropped below 26 degrees would have to be labeled as previously frozen.

"Consumers have a right to accurate descriptions of the product that they purchase, and to the consumers, fresh and frozen are two different things," said Michael R. Taylor, acting under secretary for food safety at the department.

The new regulations will be published in the Federal Register on Jan. 17. That will be followed by a 60-day comment period, with final regulations likely drafted by the end of the year, to take effect some time in 1996.

Archie Schaffer III, spokesman for Tyson Foods, the nation's largest poultry producer, said only about 15 percent of his company's product is sold fresh.

"Our basic attitude is that as long as it is uniform, we probably could live with a 25 or 26 degree threshold," Schaffer said. "Our practice is to do everything we can to keep the temperature of our product at 28 to 32 degrees."

However, industry pressure scuttled a 1989 department effort to impose a 26-degree standard, Lester M. Crawford, former head of the department's Food Safety and Inspection Service, told a congressional panel last June.

And the poultry industry fought and defeated a 1993 California law making 25 degrees the cutoff point for fresh fowl.

Jackson orders media lawsuit for 'vicious lies'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Michael Jackson, declaring "enough is enough," said Wednesday he has ordered his lawyers to file lawsuits against organizations reporting there is a 27-minute videotape of him having sex with a boy.

The London Sun and Today newspapers carried reports about the purported videotape last weekend, and the story was carried Monday and Tuesday by the TV news magazine "Hard Copy" and other shows.

According to the reports, one of Jackson's own security cameras captured the alleged Christmas holiday encounter between the 36-year-old entertainer and a boy whose name wasn't disclosed.

The result was an explicit, 27-minute black-and-white video, the whereabouts of which are unknown, according to the reports.

"Enough is enough!" Jackson said in a statement. "I will no longer stand by and watch reckless members of the media try to destroy my reputation. I intend to protect myself and my family.

"I have instructed my attorneys to immediately file lawsuits against those persons who continue to spread vicious lies and rumors about me in their attempts to make money, benefit their careers, sell papers or to get viewers to watch their programs," Jackson said.

A lawsuit was not immediately filed Wednesday, and the London newspapers did not immediately comment on Jackson's remarks. "Hard Copy" senior correspondent Diane Dimond said she stands by her reports.

The reports also said Los Angeles authorities had reopened their child-sex investigation of Jackson, which they had concluded last year without filing charges.

"We have not reopened the investigation. We have heard about the alleged tape. We have not seen it and we don't have it," said Sandi Gibbons, spokeswoman for the Los Angeles District Attorney's Office.

Last September, prosecutors said no charges would be filed against Jackson because a teenager who had initially accused Jackson of seducing him refused to cooperate with authorities after reaching an out-of-court settlement with the entertainer.

Terms of the agreement were confidential but it has been reported that Jackson paid the boy as much as $15 million.

Senate passes bill, requires them to follow workplace laws

WASHINGTON (AP) — Taking five days to do what the House did in about an hour, the Senate on Wednesday approved its first bill, requiring Congress to follow workplace laws other employers must obey.

The measure, approved 98-1, now goes back to the House, which was expected to approve it as a substitute to the one it passed 429-0 in about 75 minutes on its marathon opening day session last week.

Republicans, intent on revolutionizing Congress, set a goal of getting a bill to President Clinton before his State of the Union address later this month.

But Senate rules allowing unlimited debate and unrelated amendments gave minority Democrats a chance to force votes on a range of other pet congressional reform and social welfare issues.

"One of our themes was to end business as usual," said Senate Democratic Leader Tom Daschle of South Dakota, noting that Democrats proposed the workplace bill last session.

The Democrats had promoted a number of other, equally important bills aimed at ending business as usual, Daschle said, and they wanted to remind Republicans of them.

Helmet advocacy is essential first step

In late December the Midland County Medical Society took an important step toward not only educating young bicyclists of the need to wear a protective helmet when riding, but also by providing that headgear to Midland youths whose families might face financial difficulty in purchasing a helmet.

Working with the Midland Police Department, which regularly hosts bicycle safety courses, the medical society intends to purchase and distribute protective helmets to young bicyclists, skateboarders, skaters and others who might sustain a disabling head injury. The hard, plastic helmets can prevent such injuries, the advocates say, and prevent astronomical medical bills that may result from severe head injuries.

Locally, such injuries are significant say physicians, but on a national level they are sobering — 2,800 bicyclists alone who receive severe head injuries each year, according to Midland neurosurgeon Dr. Bill McGavran. Most of the accident victims are children and about 50 die each year. With use of the protective helmets about 85 percent of those injuries could be eliminated, McGavran said.

Due to the evidence that protective helmets do prevent head injuries that result in the need for costly medical treatment and care, and lingering health problems, it only makes good sense to encourage use of the protective headgear by youths. The Midland County Medical Society and Midland Police Department are to be commended for their efforts in this regard. Midlanders wanting to get involved in the "Hard Hats for Little Heads" program should contact the Midland County Medical Society at P.O. Box 4121, Midland, 79794.

There also needs to be greater concern on the part of parents, other adults and, particularly, young adults to not only use protective headgear themselves, but to make it a practice to encourage use of helmets by youths. The necessary change that must come about if a reduction in crippling head injuries results is a change in how our society perceives bicycling, skateboarding, skating, motorcycling and other recreational activities.

Those activities must come to be viewed as life-threatening IF the participants are not wearing protective headgear. Only then will we see a significant reduction in the number of serious head injuries.

Proposed Gingrich changes cause caucuses to complain

Newt Gingrich may or may not be that rare thing in Washington: a politician who actually does what he says he will do. But there is some positive news already, such as his proposed reform of the House committee system. . . .

Gingrich has raised a real fuss by proposing the elimination of the outrageous federal funding for the 28 — repeat, 28 — House caucuses now in operation. The leaders of the Congressional Black and Hispanic caucuses have yelped the loudest about this reform; indeed, Rep. Kweisi Mfume, D-Md., outgoing chairman of the Black Caucus, has accused Republicans of practicing "ethnic cleansing" in Congress.

This is nonsense. All 28 caucuses — from the Women's Caucus to the Travel and Tourism Caucus — are free to meet, issue statements and exchange information. Their activities, which are little more than special interest power-mongering, simply will not be subsidized by taxpayers anymore.

Before banning bullets make sure they'll work

Two new bullets have gone off with a bigger bang of publicity than if they'd been fired at point-blank range.

Signature Products' new bullets, known as Black Rhino and Rhino-Ammo, were touted by their maker as being particularly destructive when they hit a human being.

The bullet was designed, according to the company, for people to use in handguns for self-defense.

So far, neither bullet is banned under federal law because they are made with plastic, not with the usual materials. But that may not last for long. Ever since the bullets exploded on the scene, so to speak, lawmakers and police have worried that they would fall into the wrong hands. Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., said he would introduce a bill to block the bullets if federal regulators didn't.

But before anyone bans anything, someone should test the bullets to see if they do what their maker says they will do. More than a few experts have expressed their doubts.

Funds, jobs may deter likely candidates

WASHINGTON — In one year Iowa — dark, brooding, inscrutable Iowa — will be the center of the universe as Republican presidential candidates wander the tundra pursuing caucus voters. But the winnowing of candidates has already begun.

Will

In 1991 President Bush's chimerical stature after Desert Storm dissuaded several plausible Democrats from seeking their party's nomination in 1992. President Clinton's stature is not the reason Dick Cheney and Bill Bennett have opted out of the race for the 1996 Republican nomination.

Bennett already has the most important, demanding and interesting job he could have, raising children. He chooses not to run because of the time he would have to be away from his two sons and because of the time he would have to spend with other people, asking for money.

Cheney will not run in part because his temperament precludes manic single-mindedness. Before deciding not to run, he was doing well wooing corporate America — as well as anyone has done since John Connolly in 1980. Connolly, the favorite of the boardrooms, raised $11 million and won one delegate.

Bob Dole, Phil Gramm and Lamar Alexander are the three certain candidates. Dan Quayle and Jack Kemp may be deterred by, among other things, this calculation: If, as many political professionals say, a candidate needs to have $20 million by Iowa, a candidate starting to raise money now, as Quayle and Kemp essentially would be, would have to raise more than $50,000 a day, seven days a week, for a year.

Perhaps Colin Powell could raise that sum quickly, or make do with less. However, there is no evidence that he wants to do what politicians do (solicit contributions, talk about abortion and farm price supports, wander the tundra), or that the party will hand the nomination to him on a silver salver.

Powell is intelligent and sophisticated and might make a dandy president. However, he is a potentially potent candidate, not because of what he has done but because of what he is: The country would like a chance to vote for a black gentleman. Still, you can't steal first base and you can't order a nomination from room service. And the next time America elects an "independent" president — one truly independent of organized parties — will be the first time in two centuries.

Given Democratic weakness in the South and Mountain West, a Democrat cannot win the necessary 270 electoral votes without California's 54. Democrats have never had a Californian on their national ticket. In the 12 elections since 1948 (when California's Gov. Earl Warren was Dewey's running mate), Republicans have had Californians (Nixon and Reagan) on their ticket eight times. Democrats have no plausible Californian for the 1996 ticket. Republicans have California's governor, Pete Wilson, but he has inhibitions.

Americans generally choose governors as presidents. Only three presidents have been elected while serving on Capitol Hill (Senator Kennedy in 1960, Senator Harding in 1920, Congressman Garfield in 1881). But given the rigors of today's nominating process, governors have a disability: They have jobs. It is hard to fulfill obligations in Sacramento or Boston or Trenton while speaking from a pay phone at a McDonald's in Attumwa, Iowa.

MIKE ROYKO

Too much cheer can ruin a morning

For most people, waking up in a cheerful mood is a fine way to begin the day. But not in my line of work.

Royko

Feeling bright and chipper could cause me to lose control and irresponsibly write something bright and chipper. And that would turn the stomachs of regular readers, thereby ruining their day too.

Fortunately, that's seldom a problem. I was blessed with a naturally glum temperament that views each bright dawn as a potential disaster. When the golden sunlight streams through the window, my reaction is: "That hurts my eyes." Maybe I have a Transylvanian ancestor.

But once in a while it happens. I awake feeling cheerful. Maybe it is the result of a chemical imbalance. Just about everything is. And I can only hope that science will someday come up with an anti-happy pill for those of us who suffer from this affliction. Until then, I have to do whatever it takes to shake the dreaded mood or it festers all day.

And some time ago I stumbled across an antidote that works every time. I will share it with fellow sufferers.

While shaving, I was spinning the radio dial, trying to escape from all the jovial characters who infest the airwaves in the morning. Even the Limbaugh-clones sound joyous while flailing anyone they suspect of having had a compassionate thought.

That's when I discovered the never-fail cure for morning cheer.

In Chicago, it can be found on the far left-hand side of the FM radio dial, about 91 point something or other. It's the public broadcasting station and I guarantee that it will drive away whatever happy thoughts might be plaguing you.

At first I thought it was just a coincidence that every time I turned it on, some bleak and depressing story was being told.

If it wasn't bloodshed or broken promises in Bosnia, it was rampant tooth decay and a shortage of floss in Third World nations. If it wasn't a new report on famine and hunger in some faraway jungle community, it was obesity and heart disease in some nearby city.

I tried an experiment, turning the station off for several minutes, then returning to see if I could catch them in a lighthearted moment.

But every time I came back, it would be to the woes of the homeless, or the burdens of home ownership, the rising rate of illiteracy or the mounting stress of higher education.

And it was never the sort of fleeting, everyday unhappy news heard on other newscasts — the previous night's teen-age shooting or 4-11 fire. Public radio prefers wide-scale suffering with deep social meaning. They always talk to professors instead of cops about who is suffering from what.

That's when I became convinced that it couldn't be a coincidence. The law of averages says that once in a while they would have to pass along something that could prompt a chuckle. Even O.J.'s trial has had its lighthearted moments.

No, it has to be policy. I suspect that someone in authority at public radio shares the dread of morning happiness and examines every potential news item to make sure it has the proper misery and gloom content.

Any doubt I had vanished when I tuned in and heard a lengthy report on the spread of killer tattoo needles.

Do you know about that health problem? Probably not, unless you, too, are a devoted public radio listener.

It seems that prison inmates in some of our meaner pokeys try to bring a bit of color into their drab lives by covering their skin with tattoos.

But because most prisons are overcrowded, the guards can't keep an eye on every convict who is adding a fire-breathing dragon or the slogan "Life sucks" to his chest.

So the convicts pass around the tattoo needles but sometimes fail to sterilize them.

And all this swapping of used tattoo needles is believed to be leading to a rise in AIDS infections among prisoners who decorate their hides.

During this report, various experts were interviewed about this new crisis, expressing grave concern that little is being done to halt the furtive exchange of tattoo needles in prisons. And they warned that if something wasn't done, more and more prisoners would wind up brightly decorated but dead.

When the story was finished, I really had to admire the initiative of public broadcasting's news department.

With all of the problems in this city, country, and the world, it would never have occurred to me that I should start the day by wringing my hands over some convict placing himself in mortal danger simply because he wanted his skin to say: "I love Mom, even though I threw her out the window."

When I stopped for breakfast at Eddie's later that morning, I told the regulars at the counter: "Heard on the radio that lots of convicts are getting AIDS from tattoo needles."

Tony took a sip of his coffee, snorted, and said: "Yeah, sure — that's what they tell their wives."

That's another serious problem: Some people have no compassion in the morning.

ART BUCHWALD

Bullet makers can sell anything even if it kills them

The good news for surgeons is that the Black Rhino bullet can't blast a hole through somebody the size of the Lincoln tunnel. According to officials of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, who tested the ammunition, the Rhino could do no more damage than an ordinary bullet, which can make a hole the size of a football helmet.

Buchwald

Dr. Fredric Rosenthal, an emergency room surgeon, told me that he was very relieved at the news that the Rhino was incapable of blowing away an entire human being in one bang, but he was disappointed that BATF was not convinced that the ammunition could do enough damage to rate the victim a 12-hour operation.

He told me: "Everyone got so excited about the bullet because the inventor said that it could inflict more damage than any projectile since Hiroshima. It was a dream come true for American gun lovers. The Rhino was touted as ammunition that could sail through a bullet-proof vest and hit a school bus in the next county at the same time.

Dr. Rosenthal said: "This is the kind of talk we doctors don't like to hear. If it's true it would require a lot more blood than a .44 magnum wound and increase the cost of hospital care by 50 percent."

"I understood that the Rhino armor-penetrating bullet was developed for law enforcement people only," I told him.

"So is every bullet on the market. It's amazing how much of today's ammunition winds up in the hands of surly people who are not in the law enforcement business."

"Doctor, are you one of those bleeding hearts who is against the development of new bullets to improve target-shooting and hunting skills?"

Rosenthal said: "Let me read you something. These were toys cited as dangerous by the Consumer Product Safety Commission in 1994: 'High-back toddler swing; Thunderbat, noise-making toy bat; Surprise Party Time Balls, which contain small capsules that look like drug capsules; Good Vibes infant carriers, whose handles might break; and toddler beds with bad guard rails.' By law those items had to be fixed before they could be sold."

"So what has that got to do with a Black Rhino bullet?" I asked.

"Nothing. And that seems to be the problem. Toymakers are liable for anything that they manufacture, but bullet makers can peddle any kind of ammunition they want to even if it kills them."

Former HUD official admits illegal conduct

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Housing Secretary Samuel Pierce admitted his conduct allowed aides to steer federal aid illegally to friends and political allies in the 1980s. But an independent counsel won't prosecute him because he is old and ill, lacked clear criminal intent and didn't profit.

After five years of investigating corruption in Reagan administration housing programs, Independent Counsel Arlin Adams instead released a two-page statement Wednesday provided by Pierce, his highest-ranking target.

"I realize that my own conduct contributed to an environment in which these events could occur," Pierce wrote. "I must . . . take the blame for . . . problems" at the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Adams' investigation has produced 16 convictions and $2 million in fines. Pierce's statement, "coupled with other evidence recently made available," will allow continued investigation of possible perjury and obstruction of justice by others, Adams said.

In the statement dated Dec. 15, Pierce acknowledged his meetings with friends who were lobbying for federal housing funds "sent signals to my staff that such persons should receive assistance." These friends included former Interior Secretary James G. Watt and former ambassador Gerald Carmen.

"These meetings and conversations, and my following discussions with staff members, created the appearance that I endorsed my friends' efforts," Pierce wrote.

Pierce also acknowledged he misled a House subcommittee that investigated HUD in 1989-90 before Adams, a Republican and former federal judge from Philadelphia, was appointed by a three-judge panel.

"I see that I answered certain questions with broad responses that did not always accurately reflect the events occurring at HUD several years earlier," Pierce stated. He also provided a "not completely responsive" answer to Justice Department investigators, his statement said.

Further, Pierce said he failed to "exert sufficient control over the individuals who reported to me," particularly those running HUD's moderate rehabilitation program. "As a result, a number of political appointees, including Deborah Dean and certain other members of my staff, used the program to see that their friends or political allies received mod rehab projects."

Deborah Gore Dean — Pierce's former executive assistant — was convicted in 1993 of 12 felony counts of defrauding the government, taking a payoff and lying to Congress.

Pierce wrote that he "never received a single improper benefit for my actions." And in a separate statement issued through his lawyers, he said "Accepting ultimate responsibility is far different from engaging in criminal conduct."

Adams said he won't prosecute Pierce because he is 72 and has multiple health problems and because of "the conflicting evidence" on Pierce's intent and a lack of evidence "that he or his family profited from his actions at HUD."

Nevertheless, because of Pierce's actions, Adams' statement said, high-ranking political appointees awarded HUD's scarce federal housing funds to benefit their allies, friends, families and themselves "without regard to the actual housing needs of this nation or its low-income families."

Rep. Tom Lantos, D-Calif., who chaired the HUD hearings, said he accepts Adams' decision, based the age, health and intent issues.

The investigations changed HUD's procedures, Lantos said, but he agreed with Adams that the crimes left cynicism about the agency, now facing deeper spending reductions than in the 1980s.

Adams has obtained guilty pleas from nine individuals and one company and guilty jury verdicts against six people.

One guilty verdict, against Pierce's former executive assistant Lance Wilson, was reversed because Wilson was charged too long after the alleged crime took place. One defendant was acquitted.

Among those convicted were former U.S. Treasurer Catalina Vasquez Villalpando, former assistant housing secretary Thomas Demery and former assistant housing secretary and ambassador Philip D. Winn.

Astronomers find 'best evidence' for biggest black hole

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A set of telescopes strung out one-third of the way around the globe has given astronomers compelling evidence of the existence of the biggest black hole ever found, with a mass equal to 40 million of our suns.

The black hole is believed to be at the center of a disk of material rotating at up to 650 miles per second in the heart of a galaxy 21 million light years from Earth. One light year is the distance light travels in one year.

The discovery is the first major success of the Very Long Base Array radio telescope, a set of 10 radio telescope dishes from the Virgin Islands to Hawaii. The array, which functions like one enormous telescope, was completed in 1993 at a cost of $85 million, financed by the National Science Foundation.

The discovery by a team of American and Japanese astronomers was announced Tuesday at a meeting of the American Astronomical Society. The discovery is also the cover story for the science magazine Nature.

"We think this is the best evidence yet for a massive black hole," said one of the scientists, James Moran of the Harvard-Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics in Cambridge, Mass.

Black holes are collapsed objects with such strong gravity that not even light can escape. They have long been thought to exist in the center of active galaxies, but unquestioned proof of their existence has been elusive.

Last year, a NASA team using the orbiting Hubble Space Telescope identified a possible black hole inside a galaxy called M87. But Moran said that what his group found, in a galaxy known as NGC4258, appears to be a much denser object.

"The density inside is greater by a factor of 50 than any that have been found before," he said.

Moran and his team were able to measure the rotation of the disk in galaxy NGC4258 by capturing microwave radio emissions.

Moran said the precise measurement of the rotation proves there is a very dense object at its heart, and that "convinces us that this must be a black hole."

Vera Rubin, an astronomer with the Carnegie Institute of Washinton, called the discovery "spectacular."

"I would say that this is compelling evidence for a black hole," said Rubin. "This is very analogous to the first images from the Hubble Space Telescope."

NGC4258 is about 90,000 light years across; despite the speed of its rotation, Moran said it takes about 800 years for one point in the disk to rotate about the center.

The galaxy is in the constellation Carnes Venatici and appears from the Earth to be just below the bowl of the Big Dipper.

Moran said the galaxy "is a gold mine" for astronomers.

THURSDAY

DAY WATCH

Suspect arrested

ODESSA — An Odessa man was arrested Wednesday in connection with a carjacking incident that occurred last October.

Tom Kirspel, supervisor of the Midland office of the FBI, said FBI officials arrested Jesus Felipe Montoya, 18, on charges of carjacking that had been filed earlier in the day.

Kirspel said the FBI statement alleged that Montoya reportedly fired a shot through a rear window of a vehicle on Oct. 1, forcing the occupants out of the car. Montoya and other subjects then used the vehicle to burglarize an Odessa pawn shop, reportedly driving it through the front of the building to gain access.

If convicted, Montoya will face a maximum sentence of 15 years in prison.

An investigation into the incident continues.

Organization receives $15,000

■ D-FY-IT accepted a $15,000 grant from the Abell-Hanger Foundation.

By Katherine Poteet
Staff Writer

D-FY-IT (Drug Free Youth in Texas) of Midland got a big financial boost Wednesday after receiving a $15,000 grant from the Abell-Hanger Foundation.

The foundation also pledged up to $15,000 as a matching grant — matching every dollar that D-FY-IT raises during the next year.

"This amount is rare for us," said Joan Johnson, executive director for D-FY-IT of Midland. "When we started three years ago, we got some larger donations, but we don't get this amount. And, this is the first time we have received a grant."

■ Related photo/2B

David Smith, executive director of the Abell-Hanger Foundation, said the foundation does not have a strict set of guidelines for organizations to which it donates.

"We try to concentrate on organizations in Midland," he said. "We look at education, health care, organizations that are trying to solve problems."

D-FY-IT is a program set up in the 10th-12th grades that is designed to reward those who are drug free and to provide positive peer pressure for those who might experiment with drugs or alcohol.

Ms. Johnson said the grant will be used in the program's general operating fund and will help fund the expansion of the D-FY-IT program to the 7th-9th grade level.

Ms. Johnson said she wants to see the program expanded to the lower levels due to the fact that the Drug Resistance Awareness Program (D.A.R.E.) stops in the sixth grade.

"Those kids (7th-9th grade) don't have a drug program and that leaves them vulnerable," she said.

Bear, tapes soothe fear of children

By Katherine Poteet
Staff Writer

Dealing with anyone who has been abused is never easy for law enforcement officials. And, children pose an even harder situation.

"Here you have this little kid who has been abused, either sexually or physically, and an adult did it to them," Sgt. David Garcia said. "And you are another adult who is trying to get them to tell you what happened, when they aren't really sure themselves."

Midland police officials got a helping hand in dealing with such situations from the Midland Crime Stoppers Wednesday.

The organization purchased two teddy bears, called Spinoza bears, for officials to use when faced with children who have been abused.

The name Spinoza — the bear who speaks from the heart — was taken from a 17th Century Dutch philosopher, Garcia said.

The bears were created in 1984 in Minneapolis, Minn., by a communications specialist and special-education teacher. Each bear comes with a set of six tapes that are placed inside the bear. The tapes contain songs set to soothing music and words of encouragement.

"The songs are comforting and different tapes can be used for different situations," Garcia said.

Sgt. B.G. Johnson, who heads the department's Crimes Against Persons Bureau, said the bears will be used in any situation where the child has gone through a trauma.

"We recently had a six-year-old girl who had been sexually abused that we talked to for hours and she just would not open up," he said. "I think one of these bears would have helped."

Once the Spinoza bear has served its purpose, the child will be given another bear to keep.

Crime Stoppers President Jess Ann Thomason presented the police department with a check for both bears — which cost $150 each.

"When we heard about this program, we loved it so much that we knew we wanted to have it for our community," Ms. Thomason said.

The bears will be available for other law enforcement agencies and organizations, such as Crisis Intervention, to use, Garcia said.

State hotline assists many runaways

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel
Staff Writer

While running away shouldn't be an option for children and teens when confronting a difficult situation at home, many believe it is their only option.

More than 600 children between the ages of 10 and 16 run away each year in Midland alone, according to Midland police Detective Rickey Benton.

Benton investigates juvenile crimes; dealing with runaways is just a small part of that, he said.

"There are so many of them (runaways) that I don't have time to work on them," Benton said.

The largest group of runaways is white females with white males following behind, Benton said.

Jay Smith, director of the Texas Runaway Hotline, said those statistics are consistent with the types of runaways who call the state-operated hotline. He said the majority of callers are females with an average age of 15.

Benton said the next largest group of runaways in Midland is Hispanic females, then Hispanic males. Black females and black males are on the bottom of the list, he added.

In 1994, 635 runaways were reported by parents and guardians in Midland, Benton said.

He said those numbers are consistent with the cases reported in 1993 that numbered between 630-645. Those figures are up from more than 400 reported in 1992.

Statewide, Smith said, an estimated 120,000 youths run away from home each year.

Despite the large amount of cases reported, most of these children in Midland either return home or their parents locate them, the detective said.

Most parents don't alert the police that the child is home, he added. If the police find out how the case ended up, it is usually through follow up work by the juvenile office's secretary, he said.

Benton explained the way a runaway investigation is started.

He said the call comes in, a report is made, officers are notified by a broadcast over police radio.

Next, the report is given to the detective division where the secretary calls the parents for more information, such as possible location of the youth.

Then, if the secretary is able to get more information, the case is forwarded to a detective, Benton said.

Benton said he will investigate runaways while he is out checking on other cases.

He said most of the runaways stay with friends and others return home on their own the day after the call is made to the police.

The main reason most teens run away, Benton said, is rebellion.

"They don't want to live by mom and dad's rules, like being home by 10 p.m.," he said.

However, Smith disputes Benton's theory.

Smith said he believes "more often than not, they are running away from a difficult situation."

The detective said often the other juvenile crimes he investigates lead him to runaways.

"My theory is if they're not in school and they're not living at hon e and they have no money, they have got to be stealing," Benton said.

He said a lot of burglaries are committed by the homeless males and shoplifting is usually the method females use. He said most females have someone to "take care of them."

Occasionally, he picks up some runaways at school. For instance, he took a girl into custody at school after she ran away. She had moved in with her boyfriend because her father didn't like her seeing him, Benton said.

Smith did agree with Benton's belief that many youth involved in the criminal justice system are runaways.

"Many runaways find themselves in situations where theft, drugs and prostitution become a lifestyle.

Benton said the kind of prostitution local runaway girls may find themselves committing may be in exchange for a ride or a place to stay.

"The hotline not only provides crisis intervention to these callers, but also provides them with information on resources in their own communities," Smith said.

The hotline currently has a database containing more than 1,000 referrals to

Police detain woman for probation violation

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel
Staff Writer

A stint in a drug rehabilitation center and more than six months of probation may have all been for nothing for the wife of the "rag burglar" after she returns to the courtroom Wednesday for a hearing calling for revocation of her probation.

Cybil Bonnette, 36, aka, Barbara Bustamente was placed on eight years probation after pleading guilty to receiving stolen property in June.

Her common-law husband, Andrew Bonnette, was sentenced to 40 years in prison in June for three counts of burglary of a habitation.

Ms. Bonnette has appeared in court before for violations of her probation, according to court officials.

Weeks after she was placed on probation she was arrested for public intoxication and charged with two counts of probation violation.

Probation conditions require the probationer to stay out of legal trouble during the probation period. An arrest could lead to having probation revoked by a judge.

Ms. Bonnette will appear before 142nd District Court Judge George "Jody" Gilles next week.

The latest reported violation leading to the hearing involved her alleged failure to report on time to a halfway house, according to her attorney John Roosa.

Ms. Bonnette has served a month in a drug rehabilitation center and was supposed to report immediately, upon her release, to a Midland halfway house. According to court information, Ms. Bonnette failed to report to the halfway house until several hours later.

She remains in the Midland County Detention Center.

Installation of new line opens I-20 for business

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

A contract bid for construction of a sewer line along Interstate 20 has been accepted with completion anticipated by mid-summer. Installation of the sewer line is expected to unclog a major obstacle to prospective business ventures in the area, officials said.

"There is a substantial business interest in developing the interstate," Assistant City Manager Glen Hackler said.

Officials have recognized three hurdles to interstate development: infrastructure needs being primarily sewer lines, inappropriate zoning and inadequate access.

The city is considering zoning in a comprehensive plan review and working with the Texas Department of Transportation to better access.

The City Council leaped the highest hurdle — infrastructure — by pushing forward sewer line construction.

The project — a 36-inch main line stretching from the water control plant at Garden City Highway and Interstate 20 to just east of Rankin Highway — has been awarded to the Dallas-based state and local youth-related services, Smith said.

Hotline counselors can refer a youth to services that provide food, shelter, medical assistance, legal aid, counseling and transportation home.

"In Texas, more than 120,000 children ages seven to 17 run away annually," Smith said. "Many don't realize there is a hotline and other services available to offer help for homeless youth and counseling to those who are thinking about running away."

The Texas Runaway Hotline serves more than 15,000 callers each year, Smith said.

The hotline was founded in 1973 as a nationwide entity. Since November the hotline has focused all its energy and resources within the state. The hotline number is 1-800-392-3352.

Benton said he was not familiar with the hotline so he didn't want to comment regarding it.

Although the main purpose of the hotline, at its inception, was to bring peace of mind to parents by telling them their runaway children were still alive, it has since played a necessary role in referring needy runaways to social services that can help them.

Smith said 48 percent of the calls the hotline receives are from runaways seeking shelter, 22 percent are from youths seeking counseling and following are from those seeking other crisis lines, referral, legal aid, or information about sexual assault and various things.

For more information on the hotline, call 1-800-392-3352.

Benton encourages parents and juveniles to try and work through their problems at home or seek counseling from any of the many agencies in town.

Hispanic leaders help one of their own in need

By John Bryant
Austin American-Statesman

AUSTIN — It was nearly 10 years ago that Margarita Munoz Simon, standing tall, struck a proud pose in front of the mural that provides a backdrop of Mexican history at Pan American Hillside Theater.

Now, at age 87, Mrs. Simon has lost her perfect posture to osteoporosis. And that's not all. Mrs. Simon, who has promoted pride in Mexican heritage in Central Texas for more than 50 years as a journalist, radio commentator and tireless civic worker, is in the unfamiliar role of needing assistance herself.

Nevertheless, Mrs. Simon, regarded as a beacon for the Hispanic community of Central Texas, has not lost her spirit or pride to the bone disease which kept her from maintaining her South Austin home well enough to withstand last year's damaging spring rains.

The home sustained extensive damage during the storms, leaving only one usable room. Yet Mrs. Simon kept her plight to herself until neighbors on Southwood Road alerted some of the people who have benefited from her mentoring.

Mrs. Simon's friends in the Mexican American Business and Professional Women of Austin organization responded by establishing an emergency relief fund to help her. The donors' list reads like a Who's Who of Hispanic leaders in Austin.

Coordinator Martha Cotera said the fund had to be set up to provide continuing assistance to Hispanics facing crises because Mrs. Simon would have been too proud to accept help if it were meant only for her.

"She would have been embarrassed," said Ms. Cotera, publisher of the Austin Hispanic Directory.

In fact, Mrs. Simon said last week that she is willing to accept help from her admirers only because "it helps them work together once again."

Mrs. Simon said she is afraid that individuals and families of the '90s are too inclined to look after their own interests and not the needs of others. She is bothered by any form of discrimination, within the community or outside.

"If my situation helps recapture the feeling of cooperation that I have helped promote, then it's a good thing," Mrs. Simon said.

Symphony string quartet to play

Staff Report

ODESSA — The Everest String Quartet performs the third concert of its season at 8 p.m. Saturday at the Allison Fine Arts Auditorium, Midland College, and again at 2 p.m. Sunday at the Art Institute for the Permian Basin, 4909 E. University.

The concerts feature the quartet, a performing ensemble of the Midland-Odessa Symphony & Chorale Inc., playing works by Beethoven, Schubert and Britten.

The program will open with the "Quartettsatz" by Franz Schubert followed by the Quartet No. 2 in C, Opus 36 by Benjamin Britten. Beethoven's Quartet in C Major, Opus 59, No. 3, will complete the program.

Tickets, priced at $10 for adults, $9 for seniors and $5 for students, are available at the door or by calling the symphony office, 563-0921. Music students may sign at the door and be admitted free.

NEW: I-20 line opens interstate

(From 1B)

Kenko Inc., which does business as McGrand & Associates.

The city sought bids for the project with a $150,000 incentive bonus if the work is completed by June 30.

"They are interested in pursuing the early timetable on the bid and if they do that it will be completed by June 30," Hackler said.

The low bid was under $3.14 million — more than $300,000 less than the next lowest bid with the bonus, officials said. Six bids were submitted.

"It made sense to go ahead and do the incentive," Hackler said.

Once the line is installed, access will be available to businesses. A second phase of the project will extend the line to near Midland International Airport.

The need for the sewer line is more than to stimulate development along the interstate.

The line will allow the closure of the near-obsolete airport treatment plant, built in 1942, which if kept open would be costly to maintain.

The project was funded in the spring of 1993 when the then-City Council gave the go-ahead to issue water and sewer bonds for about $7 million.

LEGAL HELP FOR CEREBRAL PALSY VICTIMS
Many parents wonder if medical negligence caused their child's cerebral palsy. The majority of cerebral palsy is not caused by medical negligence, but medical and nursing mistakes around the time of birth do cause cerebral palsy. We can help with the answers to your questions and if there is medical negligence we may be able to obtain a settlement or verdict for you or your child.*
Some of the many factors we consider are:
1. Did your baby have seizures or "jitteriness" within 48 hours after birth;
2. Did your baby get enough oxygen during labor, delivery and in the nursery;
3. Was your baby taken to the intensive care nursery;
4. Was there fetal distress detected by the electronic fetal monitor or stethoscope;
5. Was your baby born depressed, very blue, floppy or in need of resuscitation;
6. Was there a delay in performing an emergency C-Section;
7. Were there umbilical cord problems, including knots, wrapped around neck, etc.;
8. Were there placental problems such as abruption or insufficiency;
9. Was there an extremely traumatic delivery, difficult forceps, vacuum extraction, baby bruises, etc.;
10. Did your baby have low blood sugar,

State considers three-month suspension of emissions testing

AUSTIN (AP) — New motor vehicle emissions tests, criticized as onerous and costly, would be suspended for three months under a bill being considered by the Senate Natural Resources Committee on Wednesday.

"You're not ever going to have a clean environment and clean air unless you have a program people respect," said Sen. John Whitmire, sponsor of the bill. "The most prudent thing to do at this time would be immediate suspension for three months."

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock and the 30 other senators have thrown their support behind the proposal.

The 1990 Federal Clean Air Act requires automobile emissions testing for areas nationwide with high levels of certain pollutants. In Texas, those areas are Houston-Galveston, Dallas-Fort Worth, Beaumont-Port Arthur and El Paso.

Under the program that went into effect Jan. 2, drivers must have their cars tested every two years to get their license plates renewed. The tests are performed at specific inspection facilities at a cost of up to $23.

Whitmire, D-Houston, and other critics say the testing is too expensive, time-consuming and unreliable.

The 90-day moratorium would allow the state to negotiate with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and give Congress time to revise the Clean Air Act, Whitmire said.

He also has filed a bill to suspend the program for two years, saying he would move forward with that measure if the three-month proposal is rejected.

A spokesman for the Texas Natural Resource Commission, which oversees the state testing program, said TNRCC Chairman John Hall would discuss the legislation before the Senate committee Wednesday afternoon.

Hall has said he's working on a proposal to change the program to make it easier on vehicle owners. He announced some changes to the program just before it took effect, including lowering the amount motorists must spend on repairs to meet emissions standards.

Thanks to each of you for all of your thoughts, deeds, and prayers.

Cedar allergies cause problem for many Texans

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Years of worsening bouts of mountain cedar fever have left Judith Laughlin with few alternatives.

"My allergist suggested taking steroids or moving (out of town)," said Ms. Laughlin, a San Antonio lawyer. But she doesn't plan to do either.

"I've had it for about 20 years, and it's progressively gotten worse," said Ms. Laughlin, who just tries to bear the irritation, knowing the mountain cedar season eventually will end.

She is one of countless South-Central Texans suffering through one of the most intense mountain cedar pollen seasons on record.

On Saturday, 50,000 grains per cubic meter were reported in San Antonio, second only to 86,000 grains registered in January 1986 by Dr. Paul Ratner, a local allergist.

By Tuesday, the count was 2,270 grains, still considered heavy.

Experts say people who have never had problems with mountain cedar pollen are experiencing discomforts now because of the massive influx of pollen that started in early December.

"Those people who don't have allergies still are getting sick because they have swallowed (pollen)," said Dr. William Kniker, a professor of allergy and immunology at the University of Texas Health Science Center in San Antonio.

"I've seen a few patients who never had an allergic reaction to mountain cedar pollen before," said Dr. Dor Brown, a Fredericksburg allergist in practice for 47 years.

Citrus growers promote products after hard freeze

MISSION (AP) — Their recovery from devastating freezes well under way, Texas citrus growers now are working to heat up consumer interest in their products.

"I think the citrus industry is literally on the verge of an incredibly golden area," Texas Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry told growers Wednesday.

With the season about 60 percent finished, the Lower Rio Grande Valley orange and grapefruit crop is more than 460,000 cartons ahead of this time last year. Citrus acreage has reached 30,000 — about the same amount planted before the latest severe freeze in 1989.

The Valley had nearly 70,000 acres of citrus groves when a crippling freeze hit in 1983.

"Hopefully, Mother Nature has dealt us her worse blow for a long time," said Bill Weeks, executive vice president of the Texas Citrus and Vegetable Association.

Establishing a stronger demand for Texas grapefruit and oranges across more diverse markets is the next step toward full recovery, Perry said.

Toward that end, TexaSweet Citrus Marketing outlined a campaign Wednesday to promote Texas citrus in schools.

One of the "Play Hard, Eat Healthy" posters features Houston Oilers defensive end Ray Childress and linebacker Michael Barrow enjoying red Texas grapefruit.

Judge gives teen 15-year sentence

FORT WORTH (AP) — A 14-year-old girl was sentenced Wednesday to 15 years behind bars for luring a 17-year-old girl to her apartment, where she was then raped by four members of a teenage gang.

The girl, charged with aggravated sexual assault, is to spend the next four years, until she is 18, in state juvenile facilities. At that time, a judge will decide whether to release her or transfer her to an adult facility.

Earlier in the day, the guilty verdict was delivered in such a way that at first the defendant and her family thought she had been acquitted.

They clapped in the courtroom and exclaimed, "Yes!"

But she was indeed found guilty, and the jury disdained pleas for a probated sentence and recommended a 15-year sentence.

The victim said she had feared the 14-year-old would get no more than probation.

"If she would have gotten off, she would have crossed her family to kill me," the girl said in an interview with Dallas-Fort Worth television station KXAS.

The victim testified Tuesday, on the second day of the trial, that the girl lured her to her apartment in September under a guise of getting back a radio that the younger girl had stolen from her.

When she got there, gang members were waiting and told her she would get the radio back only after performing sex acts on each of them, she testified.

Then, the victim said she was beaten, raped and sodomized. Doctors say she was so severely injured she may never have children.

The defendant testified Wednesday that she knew the girl was having sex with the four gang members, but thought it was consensual.

"She's in the gang for that specific reason. That's what she's in there for," the girl said.

Jurors began deliberating punishment immediately. The girl could have been sentenced to up to 40 years.

The youngest defendant in the case, a 12-year-old boy, was convicted of juvenile delinquency-sexual assault in November and was sentenced to one year's probation.

Three others — Antonio Johnson, 18, Cedric Burleson, 18, and Brian Johnson, 16 – are awaiting trial on adult charges carrying a maximum sentence of life in prison.

Under cross-examination, the female defendant said she did not hear her 17-year-old friend cry out for the boys to stop and did not look in on her friend in the bedroom.

The victim testified Tuesday that her friend "sat by and laughed" while four boys took turns attacking her.

The victim testified that after her attackers left, she asked the 14-year-old why she didn't help her.

"She said, 'Cause I didn't want them to think I wasn't down (with the gang)'" the victim testified.

Houston city police tighten pursuit rules

HOUSTON (AP) — City officials, stung by a string of fatal crashes involving patrol cars and fleeing felons, announced tighter restrictions Wednesday on police chases. But Police Chief Sam Nuchia and Mayor Bob Lanier said officers will still be pursuing crooks.

"I'd rather have John Waynes than Sam Wimps," Lanier said of the police. "If the criminal knows he can just run away, I think this community would pay a terrible price."

The mayor had ordered Nuchia to review his department's procedures after four people died in chases during Thanksgiving weekend. Another chase that drew attention late in the year involved as many as 30 police cars speeding through traffic along Interstate 45 to Huntsville, some 75 miles north of Houston.

The Houston Post, in a copyright story Wednesday, said its review of police records showed 11 people died and at least 62 were injured last year in collisions or other traffic accidents caused by police chases.

Nuchia said he hoped the new directives — which formalize existing procedures rather than make drastic changes — would take into account the goals of reducing crime, protecting citizens and preserving the safety of officers.

"I've talked to hundreds and hundreds of citizens," Nuchia said. "They all see this as a common sense issue, as I do, that if the criminals of Houston were to learn that Houston police do not pursue criminals unless they know they committed a violent crime, then the criminals will be the ones to take advantage of that as they do in other cities."

Under the formal policy, two police cars, backed up by a third car commanded by a sergeant or lieutenant, will be allowed in chases. If a police helicopter is available, it will be dispatched to monitor the chase.

"My policy as of today is a little more restrictive because we spell it out in mandatory terms rather than 'this is kind of what we expect,'" Nuchia said.

"No policy up to now has specifically said 'absolutely.' All of our policies have been less specific and less directive up to the one we have now in regards to the number of vehicles. We understood the intention but it has not been spelled out as definitively as it is now."

Lace brings romantic look

By Anne-Marie Schiro
N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — Clothes seem to be getting more romantic and feminine by the minute.

For spring, designers went wild with fabrics like chiffon, satin and lace. Satin skirts were everywhere, often trimmed with petticoat lace. And there were featherweight dresses that combined chiffon and fine lace.

For parties, lace can be combined with any number of other fabrics to make a personalized statement. Maeja Knits, a shop at 1061 Madison Avenue, near 80th Street, has a number of handloomed lace tunics, blouses and jackets in black, navy or pale teal blue.

They can give a new look to velvet pants, leggings, satin skirts, bodysuits or slip dresses. There are long tunics with side slits, and one with deeply ruffled cuffs; kimono-style jackets, to be worn loose or sashed, and one knee-length poncho coverup (at $700, the most expensive item). Most styles range from $215 to $400.

DEAR ABBY

Spouses may not want to know whole truth

By Abigail Van Buren

Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Please tell "Repenting in South Carolina," the man who insisted that his wife tell him all the intimate details of a previous love affair, that he was lucky she refused to tell him.

My husband was unfaithful several years ago, and when I confronted him, I, too, insisted on knowing all the intimate details. My husband unwisely obliged.

What a mistake! It provided me with mental images to keep in my mind, as if I had witnessed the whole thing.

Now I realize that my recovery would have been far easier had I relied on my imagination, rather than knowing all the graphic details for which I foolishly begged. — FOOLISH

DEAR FOOLISH: Thank you for sharing a valuable lesson, for which you paid dearly. Those whose spouses have been unfaithful are often tormented by a compulsion to "know everything." However, knowing the details can be more painful than not knowing them.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the woman who said she had been invited to a bridal shower, but not to the wedding, reminded me of my most embarrassing moment:

I had ordered only 50 wedding invitations, as I was paying for everything myself with very limited resources. You can imagine my embarrassment when, the evening after all 50 wedding invitations were mailed, I was surprised with a lovely shower, given by five coworkers, only two of whom had been invited to the wedding. Of the other 20 guests, only three had been invited.

Caught off-guard, I suffered in silence. No amount of explaining to everyone later made me feel any better about the situation.

What should have been the most wonderful time of my life was ruined for me. — C.J. O'MALLEY

P.S. My fiance had known about the shower plans for two months, but never thought about the repercussions. After 30 years of marriage, I have ALMOST forgiven him.

DEAR C.J. O'MALLEY: There's a lesson to be learned here. Brides, always order plenty of extra invitations; better to have them and not need them than to need them and not have them.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

THURSDAY, JANUARY 12, 1995

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Creating something new and unique will bring you widespread name recognition. Do everything you can to increase your earning power. In spring, special benefits stem from who you know. You may be tempted to invest in a financially risky venture. Be guided by professional allies who are better informed.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actress Kirstie Alley, author Jack London, country singer Ray Price, basketball player Dominique Wilkins.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your intellect is especially keen today, enabling you to cover more territory than usual. Romance has special appeal for those who have known bliss before. Buy only what you really need when attending store sales.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Conflicting signals may halt your steady advance. Do not let daydreams entangle you in the world of make-believe and wishful thinking. Keep your eyes on the prize! A hard-working attitude will bring success.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): The business competition is tough enough to stir you into action. Look for new opportunities to get your message across. Taking advantage of a rival's slowness or overconfidence will give you a valuable edge.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Invest your nervous energy in challenging mental pursuits. Honest advice from your mate or a counselor could save you money. Keep your friendships on a high plane. Alliances strengthened by genuine affection will endure.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Create a strong foundation for family life. Consult financial advisors before making investments. Board games like chess and backgammon keep your mind alert. Trust your intuition to lead you in the right romantic direction.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Let go of old resentments and regrets; learn to live in the present. Close friends will come to the rescue in a family emergency. Losing weight becomes easier once you make up your mind.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): An alluring offer could turn out to be a trap. Ignore boastful people. Self-improvement activities are favored. Follow through with a program designed to promote financial gain and career advancement. Polish your appearance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A speculative investment or extravagant whim could make a dent in your cash reserves. Your talents are worth a lot; do not sell yourself short. Steady productivity improves the bottom line in business. Persevere!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Things are going your way. Do not let any grass grow under your feet. Paying too much attention to trivial matters could slow you down. Count to 10 if tempted to speak in anger.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Resist the temptation to squander money on frivolous purchases or costly entertainment. Your creative and artistic powers are at a peak. Be philosophical if you do not achieve the ends you secretly desired. Other opportunities will appear.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A secret alliance could bring you new financial rewards. Be very discreet about the relationship. Intellectual freedom means a lot to you. Stand up for your rights! Refuse to lend your name to dubious ventures.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your faith in yourself and your friends will counteract a tendency to be suspicious. Encourage your associates to do their best work. New business alliances are possible. Guard trade secrets closely. Romance breaks new ground.

The grand old man of French bridge is Henri Svarc of Paris. Although now a venerable 64, the youthful-looking Svarc is a perennial candidate for international honors. This example of his playing skill won the Hand-of-the-Year award some time ago.

South's jump to four diamonds showed a solid suit, and East doubled North's four-heart cue-bid as a lead director. West dutifully led a top heart, and East's ten was captured by the king.

There were 11 fast tricks, and it seemed that the fate of the contract would hinge on declarer's ability to guess the club situation. A slight assist from the enemy allowed South to show that the hand was unbeatable regardless.

After winning the first heart declarer ran off six diamond tricks, discarding two clubs from the table. West saw no reason to hold more than three spades, and that proved to be the defense's undoing defenders. When the defender's also parted with the remaining heart to retain three clubs, East was forced to hold two hearts.

After cashing the ace-king of spades for club sluff, declarer ruffed a spade to bring about a three-card ending. East had come down to exactly two hearts so, as long as the club honors were split the hand was cold.

Svarc exited with the jack of clubs. If East won, the forced heart return gave declarer the last two tricks. If West took the ace, swallowing partner's queen, declarer would score the kings of clubs and ace of hearts at the end.

Police arrest man for stalking Miss America

CREVE COEUR, Mo. — A man suspected of stalking Miss America Heather Whitestone was arrested outside a suburban St. Louis hospital where she was about to give a speech.

The 35-year-old man was jailed Tuesday after he was spotted by a guard who had seen a photograph of him circulated earlier in the week.

He was not immediately charged, and his name was not released.

Miss Whitestone went on to give her speech without incident.

Police arrest man outside hospital where Miss America Heather Whitestone was about to speak.

The man has telephoned Miss Whitestone and her mother, Daphne Gray, and written them letters in which he called himself a CIA agent and a family friend, police said.

He visited Alabama last month, police said. Whitestone and her mother live in suburban Birmingam, Ala.

"We believe that he believed he was a friend of the Gray family," Hoover, Ala., police Capt. Nick Derzis said. "We talked to him and asked him to stay away from Ms. Gray and Miss Whitestone and not make any contact with them."

LOS ANGELES — Years ago, he played out Sid Vicious' love affair with heroin onscreen. Now Gary Oldman is facing down his own addiction, to alcohol.

"I have this problem: I was born with it," said the star of "Immortal Beloved," "Sid and Nancy," and "Dracula."

"I process alcohol differently than a nonalcoholic," Oldman said in an "Entertainment Tonight" interview for broadcast this week.

"I've had this for a long time. It's progressive and it was killing me, so I did something about it. I did it for Gary — not for anyone else."

AUSTIN — Rush Limbaugh, duck! Some Texas Democrats have you in their sights.

Democrats are urging people to demand that broadcasters air opposing opinions and to ask advertisers to end their support for the feisty conservative commentator, who is on both television and radio.

"The man is guilty of half-truths and outright lies and misstatements of fact," party chairman Bob Slagle said Tuesday. "We intend to tell the truth about what it is he says."

A spokeswoman at Limbaugh's New York studio refused to comment.

Limbaugh "obviously has an impact on what happens," said Slagle, whose party has been licking its wounds since Gov. Ann Richards lost to Republican George W. Bush in November.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Ex-blonde Patty Loveless says "Pretty Woman" was to dye for.

"The reason that I went red was because I fell in love with Julia Roberts' hair color in 'Pretty Woman,'" the singer said in the January issue of Country Music Association's Close Up magazine.

Loveless said she "got a lot of heat" from her mother, a bona fide redhead.

Loveless' album "Only What I Feel" has sold 1 million copies. She is up for a Grammy for "How Can I Help You Say Goodbye."

OMAHA, Neb. — Warren Buffett a poster child? Believe it.

The second richest man in the United States will appear in ads touting his native state as a good place to live and do business.

"The truth is, all my life, back when I was a teen-ager, I was an enthusiast for Nebraska," the Omaha billionaire, whose father represented Nebraska in Congress, said Tuesday.

LITTLE ROCK — Sweet, Sweet Connie, the rock 'n' roll groupie immortalized by the group Grand Funk Railroad, was fined $50 after pleading no contest to exposing herself by wearing a thong bikini in a park.

"I don't feel I've done anything wrong," Connie Hamzy said.

Ms. Hamzy was charged with disorderly conduct in March, and was convicted and fined $100. But she appealed, contending she didn't expose as much as police claimed. On Tuesday, she pleaded no contest, and a judge lowered the fine.

Grand Funk's 1973 hit "We're an American Band" opens this way: "Out on the road for 40 days, last night in Little Rock put me in a haze. Sweet, sweet Connie, doing her act. She had the whole show and that's a natural fact."

Moms need moment of privacy

By Erma Bombeck

One of the greatest challenges of motherhood is finding a spot where you can be by yourself. The wonderful humorist Jean Kerr ("Please Don't Eat the Daisies") wrote that she sometimes got into the car, drove to a gas station, parked by the free air and studied the dials on her dashboard. That was brilliant.

Bombeck

New mothers think all you have to do is go to the bathroom and lock the door. Naive little fools. Kids can get through to you with notes under the door and confidences that get your attention — like, "Mark's bleeding all over your new sofa."

I knew technology would destroy our lives as we know them. An ad is touting a "Where's Mom?" beeper for kids who can't keep track of where Mom is. Is she at the mall? Working late? Shopping?

Why don't they just sedate us with a dart gun and attach a beeper around our necks like they do the cheetah? Then we will have no secret habitat — no place to hide.

Usually when children want you it isn't because of some concern for you. It's because they want something. They need money, transportation, or permission to do something they've already done.

I have visions of some poor mother going into labor. As she arrives at the hospital, she hears her beeper go off and figures it's an emergency. She postpones her delivery while she lumbers to the phone and returns the call. The voice asks, "Mom, I'm at Jamie's house. Can I stay up and watch Letterman?"

If there is a future for the egalitarian society, there should be His and Her beepers — one for Dad and one for Mom. Dad should know the thrill of being called at work during a crucial moment to hear, "There's nothing to eat in this house."

Before beepers, there was shouting. I'd tell one of the kids, "Call your father for dinner." He'd stand a foot away from my face and with the veins standing out in his neck yell, "Daaaaaad!"

"I could have done that," I would say irritably.

"Then why didn't you?"

While beepers are more civilized, they take away a mother's last bastion of privacy. If it's 10 o'clock and I don't know where my kids are, why should they know where I am?

NHL season saved; players sacrifice freedom

■ NHL Players Association accepts management's ultimatum, ends 103-day lockout.

Associated Press

NEW YORK — The NHL season was saved Wednesday when players gave in to a management ultimatum and sacrificed some freedom to play hockey again.

Leaders of the NHL Players Association accepted the owners' take-it-or-else proposal, effectively ending the 103-day lockout and pulling off the biggest save in hockey history.

Had they rejected the 6-year contract, the NHL would have gone major-league baseball one worse by becoming the first sports league to shut down at entire season in a labor dispute.

"Are we happy about the scars that have been created for the game of hockey?" asked union president Mike Gartner. "Are we happy about losing millions of dollars? Are we happy the relations between owners and players have been severely hindered?

"No, we're not happy about that. But we're happy that hockey is hopefully going to be played very soon."

The NHLPA executive committee sent the contract to the union's 700-plus members for ratification by management's noon Friday deadline. And though it is expected to receive the necessary 51 percent approval, "there will be a lot of guys with discontent," said Mick Vukota of the New York Islanders.

"There have been hard-liners in our union who have stepped aside for the good of the game," Vukota said. "Some relationships between players and owners were in bad shape even before this started."

Although they managed to sidestep the salary cap and payroll tax favored by the owners, the players made most of the concessions during three months of often nasty negotiations.

Nevertheless, most seemed happy that they'll be practicing Friday afternoon for the first time since

Chaps, OC renew rivalry

■ Midland College men meet No. 3 Odessa College while both women's teams try to avoid an 0-2 start.

By Bill Petitt
Staff Writer

A year ago Midland College and Odessa College met for early bragging rights and a toe-hold on the WJCAC championship at the Chap Center. The largest crowd ever to witness a junior college game at the Chap Center saw sixth-ranked Odessa College outlast third-ranked Midland 90-78.

Tonight there may not be the hype of a year ago, but the importance of the game remains constant as the Chaps tangle with third-ranked Odessa College at 8 p.m. at the OC Sports Center.

Prior to that, the Midland College women, ranked eighth nationally prior to Monday's 87-74 loss to Frank Phillips, will try to avoid an 0-2 start as they meet the OC Lady Wranglers at 6 p.m.

For the men, the fact that Midland is not ranked does not take away from the importance of tonight's game for either Midland coach Pat Rafferty or Odessa's Dennis Helms.

"Well there may not be the hype, but I can tell you Midland is a very good team," said Helms, who downplayed the high national ranking. "In September I wasn't sure we were the best team in the conference much less the nation and today I still don't know. I told our team that there are five teams in this conference that are good enough to go to regionals but one is going to have to stay home."

For Rafferty, this week has been a learning experience in regards to MC-OC rivalry.

"Obviously this game is big, but I think the Frank Phillips game (a 104-86 win) was a bigger win for us. We have to win all of them at home and then break through with a couple of road wins along the way.

"The kids have a lot of respect for Odessa. We know what we have to do, there are no secrets between us. It will be a case of who does what they do best better than the other team to win the game."

Both teams like to pressure the ball with its guards.

Midland relies on sophomore guard Kevin Rice and freshmen D'Juan Baker and Devon Phillips.

Rice suffered a pulled muscle going up for a dunk during the Frank Phillips game and did not practice on Tuesday. He is listed as questionable for the game.

Baker scored a career-high 35 points in the FPC game, including 30 in the second half. The Arlington High product has emerged as the shooting guard in the three guard rotation.

"The thing about D'Juan is he rarely takes a bad shots. I've been pleased with the way he has bought into me and the program."

Odessa College counters with the three guard lineup of Stacey Bryant, Tyrone Mack and Larry Johnson.

It is the third generation of Larry Johnsons at OC. Last year's version of 'LJ' scored a team-high 26 points in the conference opener.

This year's Johnson hails from Savannah, Ga., and is ranked in the top 10 in the league in scoring with 16.6 points per game off a team that averages 110.4 points per game before the Western Nebraska Tournament.

Johnson has recovered from a back strain and Mack suffered a stress fracture in his football in Nov., but played in the last week's Western Nebraska Tournament.

OC is coming off its first loss of the year, an 85-76 loss to Western Nebraska to snap an 18-game win streak. Desmond Greer led the Wranglers with 19 points. Brian Hamer added 16 while Johnson and Corey Williams scored 15 and 12 points. The loss dropped Odessa from No. 1 to No.3 in the national polls.

For the Midland College women the task at hand is clear. A win keeps MC in the middle of the WJCAC race while a loss would put them at 0-2 with the toughest part of their schedule ahead. Following tonight's game, Midland plays it's next three conference games at home before ending the season on the

Erickson to Seattle

SEATTLE — Dennis Erickson of the University of Miami has been hired as coach of the Seattle Seahawks, The Associated Press learned Wednesday night. The Seahawks called a news conference for Thursday in Palo Alto, Calif., to announce the hiring, which came after a week of negotiations. Erickson will coach the East team in the East-West Shrine All-Star game in Palo Alto on Saturday. He will replace Tom Flores, fired as coach and general manager of the Seahawks Dec. 29. Erickson will become the fifth head coach in the Seahwaks' 19-year history.

Erickson, one of the most prominent coaches in college football, was the Seahawks' No. 1 coaching candidate all along. The Seahawks owners hope he will turn the franchise into a winner and bring fans back to the Kingdome. The Seahawks had their two smallest home crowds in history last season, with both turnouts under 40,000. Five of their eight home games were blacked out on television locally because they weren't sellouts. Erickson, 47, has been negotiating with Seahawks majority owner Ken Behring in Palo Alto this week.

He drove a hard bargain. He apparently signed a $1 million-a-year contract thought to be guaranteed for five seasons. He reportedly earned $700,000 a season in Miami. Erickson was born in Everett, 30 miles north of Seattle. He went to Miami after coaching Washington State in 1988 and 1989. In addition to Miami and Washington State, Erickson also was head coach at Idaho and Wyoming.

Ags get QB

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — Reserve Tennessee quarterback Branndon Stewart, a freshman from Stephenville, said Wednesday he is transferring to Texas A&M. Stewart just completed his freshman season in Knoxville, where he lost a close race for playing time to SEC Freshman of the Year Peyton Manning after two more experienced quarterbacks were injured early. Stewart committed first to Tennessee last spring. He surprised many people by not changing his mind when Manning, one of the most sought-after quarterback prospects in the country, said he would sign with the Vols.

Branded Thomas finds home

By Denne H. Freeman
AP Sports Writer

IRVING — Blair Thomas was off the football map when the Dallas Cowboys found him.

Now they may desperately need a big game from him in Candlestick Park on Sunday to keep alive their hopes for a record third consecutive Super Bowl.

Emmitt Smith's finicky hamstring will keep the Cowboys nervous until the kickoff against the San Francisco 49ers in the NFC title game. Smith says he'll start, but a few runs on the soggy turf could pull the hamstring again.

"We won't change a thing in our offense if Thomas plays," Dallas coach Barry Switzer said. "We've only got about four running plays anyway. Sweep left. Sweep right. Stuff like that.

Wilbert's career-high 38 helps Aggies run by Tech

■ Rice tops Houston, SMU levels Baylor and the No. 7 Tech women cruise past No. 25 Texas A&M in conference-opening games.

Associated Press

COLLEGE STATION — Joe Wilbert scored a career-high 38 points and had 11 rebounds, helping Texas A&M take a big lead over Texas Tech and cruise to a 90-80 victory Wednesday night.

Wilbert scored 20 points as the Aggies (7-8, 1-0 Southwest Conference) used a 22-10 run late in the first half to lead 46-34 at halftime in the league opener for both schools.

The Red Raiders (5-6, 0-1), who were the preseason SWC favorites, were hampered by leading scorer Mark Davis spending much of the game with foul trouble.

Davis picked up his fourth foul in the first minute of the second half and was benched until there were seven minutes left. He fouled out with 1:59 to play and had only seven points.

Kyle Kessel had 14 points for A&M, which won its fifth straight at home. Tony McGinnis and Corey Henderson each had 13 points.

Lance Hughes led Tech with 19 points, Jason Sasser had 13 and Jason Martin scored 12.

"They beat us in every phase of the game," Tech coach James Dickey said. "They beat us mentally and physically, they beat us on the boards, they beat us in transition. They were much more aggressive than we were."

Wilbert's big night was the most points scored by an Aggie since Don Marbury had 41 against Baylor in 1985. It was the most points by an Aggie in College Station since Claude Riley had 38 against Houston in 1982.

"Joe Wilbert got a lot of points, but

Kidd's career-high 21 sends Mavs over Clippers

Associated Press

■ NBA Roundup

DALLAS — Jason Kidd had a career-high 21 points with 12 assists to send the Dallas Mavericks past the Los Angeles Clippers 98-93 Wednesday night.

Jamal Mashburn had 25 points and Jim Jackson 19 for the Mavericks.

Loy Vaught had 20 points and Malik Sealy 17 for the Clippers, who lost for the fifth time in their last six games.

Jackson's free throw with 3:28 to play gave Dallas the lead for good, 90-89, starting the Mavericks on a 7-1 run. A jump hook by Roy Tarpley and Kidd's layup with 1:19 to go pushed Dallas' lead to 94-89, then Kidd converted two free throws with 48 seconds left to give the Mavericks a 96-91 edge and close out the Clippers.

Rockets 108, Heat 97

HOUSTON — Robert Horry and Vernon Maxwell helped Houston tie an NBA record with eight first-quarter 3-pointers, and Houston overcame Miami's fourth quarter press for a victory.

Houston hit eight of its 12 3-point shots in the opening period, the most treys since Denver hit eight in one quarter on Jan. 9, 1982, against Seattle. Horry hit three of four and Maxwell three of six, putting the Rockets in early command.

Jazz 114, Nuggets 88

SALT LAKE CITY — Jeff Hornacek tied an NBA record for consecutive 3-pointers made with 11 in his last six games as Utah beat Denver.

Hornacek, who had hit eight in a row entering the game, made his first three against the Nuggets but missed on his fourth attempt, which would have broken Scott Wedman's NBA record set in 1985.

Bulls 115, 76ers 77

PHILADELPHIA — The Bulls held Philadelphia to eight points in the third quarter Wednesday night as Chicago defeated the 76ers 115-77, their sixth straight loss.

Philadelphia's third-quarter drought tied a franchise record set last Jan. 15 at Cleveland.

It was also Philadelphia's worst margin of defeat this season.

Magic 124, Pistons 107

ORLANDO, Fla. — The Orlando Magic won its 16th straight game at home Wednesday night, beating the Detroit Pistons 124-107 behind a 37-point performance by Shaquille O'Neal.

Rebounding from a 32-point loss at Chicago the night before, the Atlantic Division leaders broke the game open with a 14-2 spurt led by Anfernee Hardaway late in the second quarter.

O'Neal, who sat out much of the opening half in foul trouble, made all eight of his shots in the third quarter as Orlando continued to build on a 12-point halftime lead.

Hornets 100, Timberwolves 91

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Larry Johnson had 23 points, 10 rebounds and 10 assists Wednesday night as Charlotte extended its franchise-record winning streak to seven games with a 100-91 victory over the Minnesota Timberwolves.

The Hornets also set a team record with their 10th straight home victory. Charlotte is 12-3 at home this season.

Celtics 100, Pacers 97

BOSTON — Dee Brown, who had 25 points and 11 assists, made two key free throws down the stretch to help Boston Celtics hold off Indiana.

Dominique Wilkins' jumper from 10 feet gave the Celtics a 98-96 lead with 53 seconds to go.

Suns 118, Lakers 108

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Charles Barkley scored 24 points as Phoenix blew a 20-point lead in the third quarter before rallying to beat Los Angeles.

The Suns have won five straight since losing 127-112 to Los Angeles two weeks ago in their only home defeat this season.

Bucks 97, Kings 88

MILWAUKEE — Vin Baker tied a season high with 26 points and Todd Day added 20 as Milwaukee defeated Sacramento to snap a three-game losing streak.

Mitch Richmond scored 19 points for the Kings, who had their three-game winnning streak stopped.

NEED: 'Boys could use Thomas

(From 1D)

We'll just have to go with the position and not the name."

Once upon a time, Thomas was a big name. But his stock plunged.

Branded as a fumbler and injury prone, he had trouble keeping the confidence of his employers. Late in November the New England Patriots were the latest NFL team to cut him.

Desperate for backup help, the Cowboys signed Thomas a week later. Twenty-seven other NFL teams had their chance and passed.

Thomas was an All-American at Penn State, where he rushed for 3,301 yards. The New York Jets took him as the second player in the 1990 draft, 15 picks ahead of a junior running back from Florida named Smith.

Injuries dogged Thomas. So did fumble problems. The Jets had enough.

The Patriots signed him as a free agent in March but Thomas, dogged by the injury bug, got hurt in an exhibition game. Coach Bill Parcells decided to let him go.

"It's amazing how things work out," Thomas said. "All of a sudden I've got a second chance. I've got a chance to help a team win a Super Bowl. I have a chance to get one of those diamond rings."

Thomas showed flashes of being the aggressive runner in the 35-9 victory over Green Bay in Sunday's divisional playoff.

Smith felt a twinge in his hamstring in the first quarter and Thomas got the call over Lincoln Coleman, a slow, ponderous runner who hasn't helped the Cowboys much this season.

Dallas suffered a blow in training camp when swift backup running back Derrick Lassic sustained a knee injury.

"Not having Derrick has hurt us all year," Switzer said. "We needed somebody to come through for us."

Thomas responded with 70 yards in 23 carries. He had a 21-yarder and scored twice on short runs. He kept both footballs.

"I prepared during the week like I was going to be the starter because of Smith's hamstring problems," Thomas said. "I missed some holes because my timing was not right. I was either too fast or too slow. You have to be just right.

"I made some adjustments after the half. The coaches showed me some photos and it helped me see what I was doing wrong. A lot of the time I was there too fast. Once I got it down I thought I made some good runs."

Switzer liked what he saw.

"Thomas ran better late than he ran early," Switzer said. "He tries so hard not to fumble the ball that he doesn't really turn it loose. I thought he made some good runs when he got his head up and turned it loose."

MC: Lady Chaps try to re-establish inside game road for five of its last seven conference games.

(From 1D)

"I told our players early that this is a very important two weeks in our season," said Jones. "We play four at home after this and then we're out on the road to end the season and your don't want to have to qualify for the playoffs on the road."

MC will try to re-establish the inside game with center JoAnna Kailahi. Kailahi is ranked tenth nationally in scoring with 203 points per game. As a team, MC is seventh in scoring with 91.4 points per game prior to the FPC game.

"I think more than anything else we want to take advantage of what the defense gives us, I don't care what it is," said Jones. "It's like football whne to you run to set up the pass and vice-versa. The same goes for us and the inside or outside game."

Odessa is reeling with a 10-6 mark after losing its last three games, including a 69-60 setback to Western Texas College in Snyder on Monday.

Trenita Shields led the Lady Wranglers with 21 points. Nicole Crawford, a 6-foot-4 center from Flint, Mich., that missed the fall semester following knee surgery, hit just 1-of-10 field goals but had 13 rebounds.

"I saw (OC) early in the season with (Crawford) and she is a big, physical player that can play," said Jones. "I don't lnow what kind of shape she is in, but I think the more they have her in the game, the better they will be.

"They are going to apply a lot of pressure out front and will play man-to-man defense. They play it very well and I don't see them changing for us."

CHAP NOTES: Tonight's game will be the men's third game against a ranked opponent. MC is 1-1 against Top 20 competition with a win over Mineral Area, Ill., ranked 15th at the time the Chaps played them, and a loss to Westark, ranked 17th in this weeks poll... Odessa College leads the series with MC 29-22. MC won two of three games last year, including a 78-70 win at the OC Sports Center and a 73-70 win at the Region V Tournament... OC has won 13 of the last 18 meetings, but the two teams have split the last eight meetings... both games will be broadcast on KCRS (AM 550)... reserved and general tickets are on sale at the Athletic Director's office of the OC Sports Center. A spokesperson for Odessa College said there were a "few" seats left on the Midland College side. Plenty of reserved are available, according to a school representative. Reserved tickets are $5, general admission $4, student tickets are $2 and senior citizen tickets are $1.

Knights of Columbus

FREE THROW CHAMPIONSHIP

FREE THROW CHAMPIONSHIP

All boys and girls ages 10 to 14 are invited to participate in the local level of competition for the 1995 Knights of Columbus International Free Throw Championship. The local competition will be held Saturday January 14, at 10:00 a.m., at the First United Methodist Church Recreational Center at 301 North Baird.

The International Free Throw Championship is sponsored annually by the K of C with winners progressing through the local, district, and state level competition. International champions are announced by the K of C international headquarters based on scores from the state level competitions. All boys and girls 10 to 14 years old are eligible to participate and will compete in respective age divisions. Last year more tan 188,000 sharpshooters participated in 3,203 local competitions.

All contestants on the local level are recognized for their participation in this event. Participants will be required to furnish proof of age and written parental consent. For additional information contact Bob Weidner at 689-4626. Pre-registration not necessary.

The Knights of Columbus is an international, Catholic, family, fraternal service organization with over 1.5 million members in more than 10,000 local councils. In 1994, Knights donated 44 million manhours and $94 million to charitable and benevolent causes, sponsoring programs to benefit their Church, councils, communities, families and youth.

No. 2 UConn rallies to stay unbeaten, others upset

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — Ray Allen scored all but eight of his 27 points in a frantic second-half rally as Connecticut turned a 25-point first-half deficit into an 85-76 victory over Pittsburgh.

The Huskies, the only unbeaten Division I team, fell victim to Pitt's turnover-producing full-court pressure and 3-point shooting and trailed 14-2 with barely five minutes gone, and 40-15 with 4:42 left in the first half.

But Connecticut (11-0, 4-0 Big East) turned up the defensive pressure after that, reeling off a 10-0 run to cut the lead to 15 and a 9-0 run early in the second half that made it 55-50.

No. 4 N. Carolina 86, No. 22 Georgia Tech 75

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — Jerry Stackhouse scored 23 points and North Carolina used a 14-0 run late in the first half to get an early jump on nemesis Georgia Tech before holding on for a victory.

The Tar Heels (11-1, 2-1 Atlantic Coast Conference) had lost to the 22nd-ranked Yellow Jackets the last three times — all while ranked No. 1 — but broke the game open in the final 6:06 of the opening period and led by 16 at halftime.

No. 5 Arkansas 79, Miss. St. 74

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. — Scotty Thurman intercepted a pass at one end of the court and then hung in the air at the other end for a one-handed eight-footer with 38 seconds left that ruined a magnificent Mississippi State comeback and gave Arkansas a victory.

No. 24 New Mexico St. 66, Cal State Fullerton 58

LAS CRUCES, N.M. — Rodney Walker scored 17 points Wednesday night and No. 24 New Mexico State forced 25 turnovers in a 66-58 victory over Cal State Fullerton.

The Aggies (11-3, 3-1 Big West) improved to 8-0 at home this season and 18-5 all-time against the Titans (4-7, 2-1).

Indiana 89, No. 11. Michigan St. 82

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Indiana didn't score a field goal in the final 7:20 but made its free throws to hold off Michigan State and extend the nation's longest home winning streak to 50 games.

Shawn Respert scored 40 points to tie the Assembly Hall record for points by an opponent and nearly brought Michigan State back from a 21-point second-half deficit.

No. 14 Wake Forest 74, No. 16 Duke 64

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. — Randolph Childress took advantage of a Duke defense unable to stay with him in the second half and Wake Forest pulled away for a victory, the Blue Devils' third straight loss.

Two games in the slide have occurred with coach Mike Krzyzewski sidelined with a recurrence of back problems which led to surgery on Oct. 22. Doctors say Krzyzewski's 10-day break from basketball following the surgery was not enough, and they now say he will be out indefinitely until his back is completely healed.

Virginia 61, No. 18 Clemson 37

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. — Clemson's unbeaten run ended with a thud as Virginia harassed the Tigers into their second-worst shooting performance ever and rolled to a victory.

Cory Alexander had 16 points as Virginia (9-3) won for the sixth time in seven games and stayed atop the Atlantic Coast Conference with a 3-0 record.

Michigan 83, No. 19 Iowa 82 (2OT)

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — Ray Jackson's dunk off a pinpoint pass from Jimmy King with 11 seconds left in the second overtime gave Michigan a victory over Iowa, running the Hawkeyes' losing streak in Crisler Arena to 14 games.

It was the second straight one-point loss in the Great Lakes state for the Hawkeyes (11-4, 1-2 Big Ten).

No. 23 Iowa St. 79, Saint Louis 66

AMES, Iowa — Loren Meyer used his size advantage to score 29 points inside and Fred Hoiberg broke out of a shooting slump with 23 as Iowa State beat Saint Louis.

Iowa State (12-2) rallied from an early eight-point deficit and pulled away with a 21-5 second-half run in which Meyer and Hoiberg scored all but two of the Cyclones' points.

7th grade tourney starts at Alamo

The seventh grade City Championship Tournament began a three-day run Wednesday at Alamo.

San Jacinto White was a first round winner with a 68-39 win over Alamo Gray as Lance Nix hit 19 points while Justin Taylor had 14 poinst and Ricardo Rendon 14 rebounds. SJ White advances into the winner's bracket and will play Abell Blue at 5:15 p.m. today.

In other games, Abell White defeated Goddard Red 35-26 which sends White into a 6:45 p.m. game today against San Jacinto Green. White was led in scoring by Nick Whitley who had 10 points. Goddard will meet Alamo Gray at 10:30 a.m. in a consolation round game.

Also, Alamo Red got 14 points from Josh Perez as it defeated Goddard White 60-40. Justin Gonzales added 11 for Alamo while Clark (11) and Black (10) scored fyr Goddard. Red plays Abell Maroon today at 5:15 p.m.

Goddard Black pulled away from Alamo White 35-27 in another game. Johnston had 20 points for Goddard while Donnie Bryan (12) and Terry Segobin (11) were in double figures for Alamo. Black will play San Jacinto Gold today at 6:45 p.m. while Alamo faces Goddard White at 10:30 a.m. Saturday.

NHL: Players accept offer for only livelihood owners announced Sept. 30 that the lockout would begin the next day.

"It's our livelihood. This is what most of the guys have done their whole lives. All we know is hockey," said Eric Weinrich of the Chicago Blackhawks. "We want to play hockey because that's what hockey players do."

NHL commissioner Gary Bettman, who on Tuesday night delivered the owners' take-it-or-leave-it offer to union head Bob Goodenow, said the season would start late next week, possibly Friday.

The regular season, probably 48 games, will be followed by four best-of-7 playoff rounds. The NHL normally plays an 84-game schedule, and most owners said as recently as this week that any season shorter than 50 games wouldn't be "legitimate."

In the end, the owners felt losing 36 games from this season's schedule was a small price to take back some of the control they lost in settling the 10-day strike before the 1992 playoffs.

"I think players realized that something had to change," said Edmonton general manager Glen Sather, who had to gut a championship team that once included the likes of Wayne Gretzky, Mark Messier and Jari Kurri to keep Oilers owner Peter Pocklington in business.

"The deal the union had been working under was better than terrific — so good that the league couldn't survive," Sather said. "That's why we did what had to do in Edmonton. Now we can survive."

Bettman, who spoke briefly, didn't answer questions from the media and had to be asked by photographers to produce a smile, said he was "thrilled that this is over."

"It was important that the league come together with the players ... to take this league to the great heights that it can come to," he said. "I retain the optimism that I've always had for the future of this sport."

Bettman said some "transitional issues" — more minor but still essential to a final agreement — had to be completed.

Goodenow also had little to say, answering only a few questions before returning to NHLPA headquarters in Toronto.

"This has been a long, difficult process, one that has come to a conclusion that both sides can live with," he said. "It's important that we get the focus where it belongs — the competition."

The NHL only hopes its short season will be as competitive as the negotiations were.

Gas prices drop

Natural gas futures traded at their lowest price in more than 32 months Wednesday as a slide linked to mild winter weather continued.

Analysts said the descent appeared to be slowing after seven straight days of losses, but new forecasts for above-normal temperatures in the Midwest and Northeast through at least Jan. 21 offered little hope for a price recovery.

Natural gas for February delivery finished 0.2 cent lower on the New York Mercantile Exchange at $1.437 per 1,000 cubic feet. Prices recovered after dropping early in the session to $1.375, the lowest price for near-term deliveries since April 28, 1992.

Natural gas demand is running as much as 22 percent below normal in the Northeast and 19 percent below normal in the Midwest this winter due to mild temperatures, according to Smith Barney Inc. meteorologist Jon Davis. He said last month was the 11th warmest December on record.

Dollar mixed

NEW YORK — The dollar strengthened slightly against the German mark Wednesday as investors paused in their flight to the mark from other European currencies.

The Canadian dollar was quoted at 1.1408 late in New York, down from 1.4103 Tuesday.

In late New York trading, the dollar was quoted at 1.5365 marks, up from 1.5328 late Tuesday.

The dollar was also changing hands in New York at 100 yen, down from 100.08 Tuesday.

Other late dollar rates in New York, compared with late Tuesday: 1.2885 Swiss francs, up from 1.2815; 5.3065 French francs, up from 5.2930; 1,618 Italian lire, down from 1,628.

The British pound was quoted at $1.5595, down from $1.5617.

Stocks dip

NEW YORK — Stocks finished a volatile session on Wednesday mostly lower, as investors took profits amid concerns that Mexico's financial woes would spread to U.S. companies.

The Dow Jones industrial average closed down 4.71 at 3,862.03, nearly erasing a more than 25-point loss posted earlier in the session.

Declining issues outnumbered advancers by 1,182 to 1,052 on the New York Stock Exchange, with 703 unchanged. Big Board volume totaled 346.28 million shares, down from 351.28 million Tuesday.

Broad market indexes finished mixed. The NYSE's composite index rose 0.03 to 251.72. The Standard & Poor's 500-stock index fell 0.02 to 461.66. The Nasdaq composite index fell 0.78 to 755.74. The American Stock Exchange's market value index rose 0.17 to 434.66.

Southwest Airlines plans to offer ticketless travel

DALLAS (AP) — Southwest Airlines Co. will become the first major airline to offer "ticketless" travel throughout its system by the end of this month.

The carrier said its test of paper-free ticketing has gone so well that it will offer the option to all 46 airports Southwest serves Jan. 31.

"We have been absolutely thrilled with customer response. It's more than we expected," said Charles Zug, Southwest's director of marketing automation and business development.

Several other big carriers also are trying the innovation.

The Dallas-based airline's ticketless test began with four cities in Texas and Arkansas and spread to California routes last fall.

The airline developed the system after three of the four major U.S. reservation systems last spring made it more difficult for travel agencies to issue Southwest tickets. Southwest had refused to pay booking fees to the systems, which are partly or wholly owned by other airlines.

Under the ticketless system, a Southwest customer or a travel agency can call Southwest and book a flight, paying with a credit card.

Southwest mails out a letter with a receipt and confirmation number. It also faxes the information to the travel agency or, on request, to the customer. But no paper ticket is issued.

At the airport, the customer presents the confirmation number or his or her name. Once confirming the reservation, the Southwest gate agent hands over a boarding pass.

Zug said Southwest hopes to cut its administrative costs through ticketless transactions because it doesn't have to process the paper ticket at the airport or later at headquarters. However, he declined to predict how much it could save Southwest, partially because Southwest doesn't know how many passengers will go ticketless.

John Colwick, owner and president of Colwick Travel Corp. in Dallas, said the ticketless process has been well-liked by his customers and helps travel agencies.

"'I think it's great. It certainly makes it much cheaper to process Southwest Airlines reservations ticketless than it does with a ticket. It's a major step saver for us," he said.

Two smaller airlines actually pioneered the ticketless process: Morris Air Inc., purchased in December 1993 by Southwest, used a different ticketless system; and ValuJet Airlines Inc. has ticketless reservations only.

Among other carriers, United Airlines Inc. said Tuesday it hopes to expand its ticketless system through its U.S.-route network by summer. It launched a ticketless test Nov. 1 on its Shuttle by United routes in California and said it will begin offering ticketless reservations through the Apollo reservation system in March.

Consumer prices jump in 1994 for 4th straight year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices rose modestly for the fourth straight year in 1994, the best period of low inflation in three decades.

Analysts said it will be tough to extend the string, but the nation could come close as higher interest rates slow the economy.

The Labor Department said Wednesday its Consumer Price Index climbed 2.7 percent last year, matching 1993's performance. And the year ended much as it began, with a mere 0.2 percent rise in the CPI in December.

"We believe that inflation pressures will remain subdued, but that 1994's performance would be hard to repeat," said economist Bruce Steinberg of Merrill Lynch & Co. in New York City. "There is still no real evidence of wage acceleration."

The consumer gauge rose 2.9 percent in 1992 and 3.1 percent in 1991.

While the Federal Reserve raised short-term interest rates six times last year — pushing them up 2.5 percentage points — the higher cost of borrowing has had minimum impact in slowing the economy outside the housing market.

But analysts said the normal lag time — plus a predicted seventh rate boost by the Fed at the end of January — will begin to restrain economic growth soon.

"The Federal Reserve has pushed interest rates up pretty aggressively and I expect another increase at the end of the month," said Roger Brinner, chief economist with DRI-McGraw Hill, a forecasting service in Lexington, Mass. "That will probably slow down the economy enough to stop major acceleration of inflation. The economy has been very robust, but it's headed for slower growth."

The stock market posted a modest gain after the inflation report was announced, but later stock prices turned lower.

The moderate increases in prices last year were practically across the board. Core inflation — which excludes volatile energy and food components — turned in its best showing in nearly three decades.

The core rate rose 2.6 percent last year compared to 3.2 percent in 1993. It was the best mark since a 1.5 percent rise in 1965.

Food, energy, housing and entertainment costs all rose less than 3 percent in 1994 and clothing prices actually dropped by 1.6 percent. The last time apparel prices slipped that much Harry Truman was in the White House.

Medical-care costs continued to be restrained, climbing 4.9 percent for their best showing since a 3.3 percent increase in 1972. But analysts said the trend may be reversed unless the government reforms the health-care system.

Coffee prices ballooned 55.4 percent last year. But beef, pork and poultry declined, and restaurant meals were up just 1.9 percent.

With higher interest rates, car financing costs shot up 23 percent in 1994.

The 0.2 percent gain in the CPI last month followed increases of 0.3 percent in November and 0.1 percent in October.

Food prices surged 1 percent in December, as tropical storm Gordon damaged vegetable and fruit crops in the Southeast. But energy costs fell 0.3 percent last month after rising 0.7 percent in November.

Excluding food and energy, the core CPI inched up just 0.1 percent in December, matching its smallest advance of the year and its smallest rise since January 1994.

On Tuesday, the government reported that wholesale prices remained in check in 1994 for the fourth straight year. The Producer Price Index, which measures inflation pressures before they reach the consumer, climbed 1.7 percent last year, after a 0.2 percent advance in 1993.

The government is due to announce on Jan. 27 figures for economic growth in the fourth quarter of last year. Analysts predict a robust gain in gross domestic product for the three-month period, and for all of 1994 the strongest growth in a decade.

Eagle to fly ATR aircraft in South, phase them into northern operations

FORT WORTH (AP) — American Eagle said Wednesday it will fly ATR turboprop aircraft more often in the South and phase them into northern operations now that federal authorities are easing icing restrictions on the planes.

"We view the announcement as good news," Robert Martens, president of AMR Eagle, said in a news release.

The Federal Aviation Administration eased restrictions that have kept ATR turboprop planes from flying in icy conditions for a month. Officials said the widely used craft could be back in service in all parts of the country within a week.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Various items affect real estate settlement costs

By Bill Doyle

Q: Several years ago we allowed a homeless family to move into our rental house. They had four children and then had twins. They began paying rent and I put aside $100 a month, which I returned to them when a bank offered to give them a loan.

Doyle

I was required to put in $5,000 worth of structural work before the bank would clear the loan, and I gave the family $3,000 for the down payment -- which was money returned from the rent they paid.

The house was sold for $55,000, way under its true value, and the two parties -- buyer and seller -- had to pay settlement costs of $1,303 for us and $3,051 for them, for a total of $4,354 just to transfer ownership from the seller to the buyer. Isn't this outrageous? Is there any way we could have all paid less?

A: All sorts of items go into settlement costs. There's the title search, title insurance, lawyers' fees, transfer tax and the list goes on.

One can always shop around for a settlement attorney. Some charge more than others.

In some areas where there's a lot of competition for the business, you might find that many of the items on the settlement list are negotiable. The transfer tax is not.

Q: I am the chairman of the board of a small art and design school in Pennsylvania. We have a small endowment invested in a money-market fund that is safe but pays a very small rate of return. There is board unanimity to put the money into other types of investments in order to increase its growth with minimal risk.

We are considering putting money into bond funds, stock funds and three-year U.S. Treasury notes. Will these investments achieve satisfactory growth with a minimal risk? Should we invest now? There are some who say this is the wrong time to enter the securities markets.

A: With the recent Orange County, Calif., derivatives investment fiasco in mind, your board of trustees should get together to set up a written list of investment guidelines. You don't want bad publicity or someone suing you because you invested in some iffy junk bonds or other risky securities.

Once you you've gotten your guidelines in order, you should consider investing in The Common Fund, an investment organization devoted to handling endowment funds from small colleges and universities.

With its gigantic size, The Common Fund can offer much more diversity than you could achieve doing it piecemeal on your own. And, because it is a nationally recognized investment vehicle for colleges and universities, you would never have to face charges of fiduciary irresponsibility.

The fund allows you to choose your investment mix with more in stocks and less in bonds or vice versa.

As far as your timing is concerned, you should start investing now. Don't try to guess market turns.

Q: My wife has retired and has a sizable amount of money in her company's pension plan. I am self-employed, and my retirement money is in a Keogh account invested in a stock mutual fund that is not doing very well right now. Can I transfer my Keogh into an individual retirement account funded by a bank certificate of deposit? If so, is this a good idea?

A: If you are not actively contributing to your Keogh account, you should be able to roll it over into an IRA.

If you are still years away from retirement, putting that money into a CD might not be such a good idea. That is particularly true if your wife has most of her money in fixed-income investments. You might want to keep your stock mutual fund for family investment diversification.

A literary question of propriety

BY JEFFREY MCDONALD

The city of Fort Stockton has received some unwelcome national attention with the release of an article charging local school officials with a discriminatory and racially-motivated decision to ban a work by one of the nation's foremost Hispanic authors.

The original article, "Censorship: by Omission and Commission", written by Roberto Rodriguez and Patrisia Gonzales and distributed nationwide by the Chronicle Features news service, is long on opinions by scholars and experts on censorship. However, it was notably short on actual quotes from the principals in the original action in Fort Stockton that prompted the article to begin with.

"It's apparent that the accuracy of some of that is not complete," said Doctor Dale Pitts, Superintendent of Schools for the Fort Stockton Independent School District and one of the principals in that action.

The book in question is Bless Me, Ultima, a coming-of-age story set in rural New Mexico in the 1940's. Published in 1972, the book was something of a breakthrough work for author Rudolfo Anaya of Albuquerque, New Mexico. In the more than two decades that followed the publishing of Bless Me, Ultima, Anaya has become one of the nation's most prominent Hispanic writers and has served as an inspiration for countless young writers across the country.

According to the original article, Betty Dillard, a teacher of freshman-level English Literature at Fort Stockton High School, was approached by the Superintendent of Schools [who is not named] and told to remove the book from her curriculum. The reason, he tells her, is complaints from parents regarding profanity and witchcraft in the book.

The article goes on to say that Dillard points out to the superintendent that Anaya is the premier Chicano writer in the nation. The superintendent replies that was another of the complaints he had received.

The article describes the action as the "latest attempt by the arbiters of truth to decide what is good for us," and later states that "Latino writers" are frequently subjected to such deliberate acts of censorship by commission.

Betty Dillard had no comment regarding the original article, or the actions it reported. Doctor Pitts, however, was more than willing to speak about those actions in order to address discrepancies that had been reported in the original article.

"What we did was, we asked that the book not be used at the present time, until we had a chance to review it," said Pitts. "The complaints? The graphic language used in the book. That was the initial complaint, the language used in the book."

"There were no other complaints, not when the issue first surfaced. Later, yes, there were some complaints about contents of the book that may possibly allude to witchcraft."

As for the other complaint mentioned in the article, Pitts vehemently denies that any complaint regarding Anaya's race was ever made, or that it had any bearing on the district's decision to review the book.

"No. Absolutely none," he said. "I have no idea what they were talking about."

"And there were more than just at-large parents involved. There were board members as well that complained about the book. And my intent was to take the book out of the classroom, take a look at it, and determine it's appropriateness for the freshman level, because that is the only level we have spoken about."

Pitts also points out that while the review process is ongoing, it is not currently scheduled on the agenda for the January meeting of the Fort Stockton School Board, as had been reported in the original article.

"That is not correct. As of this date, it is not correct," he said. But it could be placed on the agenda if a board member should request it. Then it would be. But as of this date, there are no plans to place it on the January agenda."

"And there is something that everybody needs to understand. And that is, when we made the decision, we asked the teacher to take the book out of the class, and she did it. And we didn't just do this to provide us an opportunity to review the book. We also did it to stop criticism of the teacher. We had a twofold purpose here - we are here to educate and protect our students, but we are also here to protect our employees."

Doctor LuAnna Stephens, Assistant Superintendent of Curriculum for the school district, attended the meeting where district officials met with Dillard and outlined their concerns that the book, while perfectly suitable for college-level courses she had taught, may not be appropriate for young readers in the ninth-grade of high school.

Stephens went on to say that the decision to remove the book for review was a cordial one, arrived at reasonably and agreeably by all parties, including Dillard. And Stephens affirmed Pitts' assertion that the decision to review the book was based upon the appropriateness of the book's language for young readers, and not on racism.

"We're 75% Hispanic here," said Pitts, referring to the community of Fort Stockton that is served by his school district. "And I respect and admire the Hispanic people and their culture. And if I had any problem with that, I wouldn't be here!"

Which brings us to the question, how did the claims of the original article arise? Roberto Rodriguez, a freelance writer based in El Paso, Texas, and co-author of the original article, explained that he and Patrisia Gonzales did not interview school district officials in order to confirm their actions and motives. This was due in part to the rapidly-approaching end of the fall term and the beginning of the winter break, when school operations are either closed or drastically reduced during the holiday season.

Rodriguez also explained that the original actions they attributed to Fort Stockton's Superintendent of Schools were not the main focus of the article. In fact, none of the principals in the original action - including Dillard and Pitts - figured prominently in the development of the original article.

"That was really not our main concern, but rather the issue of censorship by omission. That was our main concern," he said. "The motivation for us was not so much that it happened, but the much, much bigger issue of censorship."

"The reason that we felt comfortable with it was that no decision [on the review of the book] was made yet. But we are interested in seeing how it turns out. I mean, when you think about it, 697 books banned in this country. That's something we should be aware of."

As of yet, no timetable has been announced for the completion of the review process. But Pitts wanted to remind all members of the community that the school district is open to everyone, including those who wish to express their opinions and concerns about the schools and their services.

"We have asked repeatedly that people who have a concern come to us, or call us," he said. "And we will listen!"

EDITOR'S NOTE: Next week, Nueva Vista will speak with Rudolfo Anaya, the author of Bless Me, Ultima, to get his views on the controversy in Fort Stockton, and to place it within the historical context of criticism directed against his work in the past. We will also poll other school districts in the West Texas region to find how they deal with books that are deemed controversial.

La afliccion del monolingismo

POR RAYMOND RODRÍGUEZ

``Oh, lo siento, pero no hablo español".

La joven latina me dijo eso cuando le hice una pregunta en español. Sus modales presuntuosos me informaron que ella estaba orgullosa del hecho de no ser bilingue.

Mi primera inclinación fué atacarla por estar tan evidentemente complacida con su percibida superioridad. Después lo pensé mejor. ¿Por qué asumiría yo, o cualquier otra persona, que sencillamente porque una persona tenga un apellido hispano, debe ser bilingue?

Empero, su actitud me molestó porque no es una reacción inusitada. Lamentablemente, muchos jóvenes desdeñan el idioma que hablan sus padres.

Algunos padres inmigrantes realmente prohiben a sus hijos que hablen su idioma natal. Ellos ven al hablar sólo inglés como una señal de llegar a estar ``americanizados".

En nuestra sociedad, el monolinguismo es la norma aceptada. ¡Qué tragedia! En otras sociedades adelantadas, los estudiantes aprenden dos o más idiomas funcionales. Ellos comprenden que, en el mundo interdependiente de hoy, los idiomas son los puentes a la inter-acción con éxito con otras naciones.

El dominio de los idiomas resulta bien. Un vecino me confió que, en su empleo, el podría estar ganando $40,000 más al año si fuera bilingue. Sé que en la división internacional de una compañía, los vendedores que hablan dos o tres idiomas acostumbran ganar comisiones

The affliction of monolingualism

BY RAYMOND RODRÍGUEZ

``Oh, I'm sorry, but I don't speak Spanish."

The young Latina told me that when I posed a question to her in Spanish. Her haughty manner informed me that she was proud of the fact she was not bilingual.

My first inclination was to assail her for being so obviously pleased with her perceived superiority. Then I thought better of it. Why should I or anyone else assume that simply because an individual has a Hispanic surname, she or he should be bilingual?

Yet, her attitude bothered me because it is not an uncommon reaction. Regrettably, many young people disdain the language spoken by their parents. Some immigrant parents actually forbid their children to speak their native tongue. They view speaking only English as a sign of becoming Americanized.

In our society, monolingualism is the accepted norm. What a tragedy. In other advanced societies, students learn two or more functional languages. They understand that in today's interdependent world, languages are the bridges to successful interaction with other nations.

Language proficiency pays off. A neighbor confided to me that in his job, he could be making $40,000 more each year if he were bilingual. I know that in one company's international division, salesmen who speak two or more languages usually earn commissions two or three times greater than those earned by their monolingual colleagues.

Another friend told me his son and daughter had obtained teaching jobs because they were bilingual. The school district hired only teachers who were language-literate. Schools want teachers who can relate to the diverse composition of today's students.

Another beneficial aspect often overlooked in learning a language is the knowledge and understanding gained about a nation's culture. Many of my boyhood chums were of Japanese ancestry. But it wasn't until I enrolled in a Japanese language class that I began to appreciate the culture of a people whom I have long admired.

Incidentally, contrary to popular belief, it is much easier for students who speak Spanish to master Japanese than it is for them to learn English.

Language, like music, art and literature, has no formal national boundaries. It belongs to all of us. Once we master a language, including our own, we lose the tethers of ignorance that bind and separate us.

I marvel at the number of people in other countries who, when interviewed on U.S. television, respond in flawless English. Contrast that with so many U.S. diplomats whose effectiveness is hampered because they do not speak the language of the host country.

No odio a los anglos

POR JOE OLVERA

Me encanta el pan blanco.

Me encantan el pastel de manzana de mamá, el "roast beef", Ozzie y Harriet, Leave It to Beaver, las canciones de Ricky Nelson, las palabras de William Shakespeare y las obras de John Steinbeck. Mi libro favorito es "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn" (Crece un Arbol en Brooklyn), por Betty Smith.

Pero algunos extraños — lectores blancos de las columnas periodísticas que he redactado durante años aquí, en El Paso, Texas — me dicen que ellos no me gustan. Me escriben y dicen que odio a los anglo-americanos.

Eso es una insensatez.

No odio a los anglos. Fíjense bien en eso.

Sólo odio a lo que ellos les han hecho a las personas de color en los Estados Unidos. Odio al Destino Manifiesto, que emplearon para robarle parcelas de tierras a México.

Odio a la esclavitud y a la importación de africanos a los Estados Unidos para usarlos como esclavos, una costumbre temprana de los Estados Unidos practicada principalmente por anglos, aunque también por otros.

Odio el hecho de que los anglo-americanos no han pedido disculpas por los insultos y las atrocidades que infligieron a los norteamericanos nativos, asiáticos e indo-hispanos, así como a los afroamericanos.

Son los hechos lo que odio, no a sus perpetradores. Pero siempre que señalo a algo negativo que hicieron los anglos, se me cataloga de racista, aunque estas acciones pasadas se hallan todavía en gran medida en las mentes de la gente.

¿Debería quedarme callado y pretender que son un secreto? ¿Se supone de mí que pase por alto la realidad que demasiados de nosotros sufrimos aún, la ciudadanía de segunda clase, en gran parte debido a lo que sucedió a nuestros antepasados?

Muchas personas alegan ahora que los anglo-americanos ya no piensan más como acostumbraban hacerlo, que son mucho más abiertos y aceptan mucho más a los demás. La experiencia personal me dice que existe aún el sentimiento entre ellos de que tienen el poder exclusivo de gobernar a esta sociedad y que

Cogdell South facility fulfills dream

In 1992 retired Midland businessman Bill Cogdell helped the college fulfill a dream of establishing a presence in South Midland when he donated buildings on Florida Street to house the new facility.

Last year, Cogdell again helped shorten the college's wish list when he donated two more buildings to Midland College. He also donated property east of the South Facility that will allow Midland College to expand its presence in South Midland.

In a Midland College Board meeting this fall, the Board approved Trustee William Howard's proposal that the facility be renamed the Midland Cogdell South Facility. Renaming the complex honors Cogdell's commitment to education and his dedication to Midland College.

For many years, Cogdell maintained a business at what is now the South Facility, and he has continued to have an interest in what occurs in South and Southeast Midland, according to Camille Duchesne, dean of the South Facility.

She further stated, "Mr. Cogdell is a true friend of education and has given generously of himself to provide for others."

The college's commitment to the South Facility has been strong, and the community has been able to see ongoing progress in the building's physical presence and in expanded course offerings and services.

At an open house last year, more than 100 Midlanders got a chance to see newly completed renovations at the South Facility that included computer-equipped classrooms, two lobbies, a complete sitting area, and handicapped entrances.

The Cogdell South Facility also is the home of the college's Business and Economic Development Center, the Health Sciences Continuing Education program, continuing education courses and English as a Second Language and G.E.D. classes.
Credit courses this semester include six business courses.

MC BRIEFS

Southside residents who want to take up to 12 hours of college courses can sit in a classroom at Midland College and still be only a few minutes from home.

Six business-related courses will be offered this spring at the Midland Cogdell South Facility, 201 W. Florida.

"Business studies is offering a wide variety of courses at the South Facility using our full-time instructors," said Clara King, Midland College Business Studies division chair. .

Courses being offered are "Introduction to Legal Writing," offered 11:30- 1 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays; "Principles of Accounting II," offered 5:15-6:35 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays; "Principles of Economics I," offered 6:15-7:35 a.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays; "Introduction to Business" 7-9:50 p.m. Thursdays; "Human Relations/Motivations," offered 7-9:50 Tuesdays; and "Beginning Keyboarding," offered 5:15-6:35 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays.

A number of computer courses will be offered at the South Facility through the spring semester. "Computer and You," and introduction to the world of personal computers, will be offered Jan. 23-Feb 2; Feb. 6-March 8; and Feb. 7-March 9. "MS-Windows I," an introductory course to the Windows Operating System, will be offered 11 a.m.-12:50 p.m. and 7:30 p.m-9:20 p.m. Feb. 6-March 8. The course will be offered again April 4-May 9. "MS-Windows II," a course on getting the most out of Windows, will be offered April 3-May 8. "Quicken for Windows," a course on how to use the computerized bookkeeping system, will be offered April 3-May 8. And, "Spreadsheet for Windows," a course on the basic skills of spreadsheet design and development, will be offered April 3-May 8.

An "Intermediate Woodcarver's Workshop" will be offered from 7-9 p.m. on Tuesday beginning in late January at the Midland College Cogdell South Facility. Course instructor is master wood-carver George Friday. Cost of the course is $50 plus books and materials. The course has limited enrollment, and knowledge of woodworking is encouraged. Please call 684-4100.

Schooling that works

Joshua Kris is a 17-year-old high school senior in Saginaw, Mich., who is attending school, learning a skill, holding a job, and looking forward to college with tuition already covered. His classmate, Alan Kounovsky, also is acquiring a skill and has a job waiting for him when he graduates from Arthur Hill High School.

Both are taking part in an innovative school-to-work transition program that serves as a model for programs that will be developed by schools, businesses and communities across America under President Clinton's School-to-Work Opportunities Act.

By 7:45 a.m., the students are at school, focused on challenging academic subjects that often track their career plans, such as psychology and pre-calculus, physics and world literature, architecture and U.S. government. At 10 a.m., it's on to the Averill Career Opportunities Center, where they relate their classroom studies to machine-tool technology — the world of lathes, mills and drills. Then, Joshua goes to work at Allied Tool & Machine, making pistons for General Motors, while Alan makes axles at Shields Manufacturing.

After graduation, Joshua plans to major in mechanical engineering at Delta Community College, with allied committed to paying tuition costs. Later, he might transfer to Saginaw Valley State University. Alan wants to wait awhile to further his education, but in the meantime, he will have a good-paying job as a machine operator at Shields.

Most industrialized countries have provided students with such opportunities for years. This year, Congress passed President Clinton's School-to-Work Opportunities Act, and the United States finally took action to assure that everyone — not just those going immediately to college — has a chance to get the kind of education and training that leads to a career with a future.

"School-to-Work is based on the notion of partnerships," says U.S. Secretary of Education Richard W. Riley. "Partnerships involving schools, businesses and labor, parents and teachers, students and employers, and states and the federal government. "We're inviting states to look at high school and what's available immediately after graduation — apprenticeships, community colleges, technical schools — and bring it all together in one seamless whole that creates opportunities for students to become successful employees and entrepreneurs."

Secretary Robert Reich, whose Department of Labor shares responsibility for the federal role in school-to-work, says, "The connection between what students learn while in school and what they earn later in life is crystal clear. Business and industry joining with schools to ensure students learn what they need to get a good job and get ahead is what school-to-work is all about. It's the first step on the road to high-skill, high-wage work for American's young people."

School-to-work, the secretaries said, is an example of federal support for state

- Every state has received a "development" grant of between $200,000 and $750,000 to create a comprehensive, statewide School-to-Work Opportunities plan to encourage partnerships among employers, labor, education, government and community organizations; design challenging curricula; and support local planning and development activities.
- When states have completed their plans they can compete for "implementation" grants to help set their plans in motion. Such funds might be used to recruit and provide assistance to employers in providing work-based learning opportunities for students; provide training for teachers, employers, workplace mentors and counselors; or work with localities to recruit and retain students.

In addition, local communities can compete for "partnership" grants to support efforts to bring together employers, public secondary and postsecondary educational institutions, labor organizations and other local entities.

"Urban/rural opportunities" grants are available to support efforts in high poverty areas. Other grants serve the special needs of Native American youth.

Riley said various techniques offer great promise in creating statewide systems to ease the transition from school to work, including:

- Career academies - "schools within schools" offering occupationally focused training to high school juniors and seniors in fields such as environmental technology, applied electrical science, horticulture, sports education, business education, travel and tourism, and engineering;
- Cooperative education partnerships - secondary and post-secondary school programs that provide students with school and work experiences. Co-op participants are employed at a worksite related to their field of study while enrolled in school;
- Tech-prep education - a four-year, planned sequence of study for a technical field, requiring a formal agreement between a secondary and post-secondary school. Beginning in the 11th grade, and extending through two years of postsecondary occupational education or an apprenticeship program of at least two years, participants complete the program with a certificate or associate degree;
- Youth apprenticeship - combines structured, paid work and on-the job training and mentoring experiences with related classroom instruction. Career awareness can begin in the elementary grades and continue through high school. In addition to a high school diploma and postsecondary certificate or degree, participants receive a certificate of mastery of occupational skills;
- Adult education - one in six high school diplomas is earned through completion of General Equivalency Diploma (GED) requirements and other alternative diploma programs, such as the External Diploma Program. These alternative methods of completing high school may be used to enter a School- to-Work system.

Upon graduation, school-to-work students will have at least two credentials: a high school diploma and a skills certificate tied to national skill standards as validated by a National Skill Standards Board. The skills certificates, available for a broad range of occupations, will be accepted by industry and recognized by employers nationwide.

Recently, 13 CEOs representing the nation's leading companies met with President Clinton, Riley and Reich at the White House to announce the creation of the School-to-Work National Employer Leadership Council (NELC) to promote and encourage School-to-Work programs. The NELC is scheduled to conduct its first meeting on January 11 in Florida.

NELC chairman and Ford Motor Co. chairman/CEO Alex Trotman says, "The members of the NELC recognize that it is absolutely imperative that the United States has a workforce which is fully capable of competing with any other workforce — anywhere in the world. There's no doubt in my mind that our School-to-Work efforts will help achieve this Reich agrees. "Schools can't do this alone. Business, industry, labor unions all have an interest in making sure that today's young people are ready for the high-wage, high-skill jobs of the future. School-to-Work can keep our workforce productive and America competitive. "

School-to-Work is part of a broader federal effort, Riley says, to help states and communities improve the quality of education. "The foundation is the Goals 2000: Educate America Act, which also provides support for state and local planning, leading to serious education reform. We know that all children can learn and benefit from challenging academic standards.

"This new federal, state and local partnership offers an exciting opportunity to improve American education and redirect our efforts to better serve the needs of families and children. "

PROFILE – Ofelia Bustamante

BY ELISE COOMBES

Being part of a team that helps new businesses start out on the right foot is the job of Midland College student Ofelia Bustamante, a part-time employee at the college's Business and Economic Development Center (BEDC) at the Cogdell South Facility.

The BEDC promotes economic development in the community by providing comprehensive management, financial and technical business assistance and training to small business and entrepreneurial ventures.

It also conducts business and economic research and offers governmental procurement and international trade guidance to private sector businesses. This means that Bustamante, 21, is learning ways to help the 15 to 20 clients who visit the BEDC each month to turn their dreams into a profitable reality.

In the process, she has found a whole new career for herself. "I think it was a great decision to come to Midland College," she said. Originally from Andrews, Bustamante came to MC as a psychology major, but her job at the BEDC quickly changed her mind.

Part of her job at the BEDC is troubleshooting on the computers—dealing with hardware and software problems. "Once that became my responsibility, I just fell in love with computers. And I'm good at computers," she said. Since then, Bustamante has had all the computer programming classes the college offers and a computer maintenance class. She also has changed her major and now plans to become an electrical engineer.

Her job holds other challenges besides computers. One of her favorite tasks is putting together surveys to gage community interest in proposed business and help business owners gage their chances of success with a new business. People bring in what they want to know about starting a business and Bustamante and counselors Ralph Smith and Glenn Yeary help put together a questionnaire.

She has already worked on a major survey for Texas National Bank, a survey for Continuing Education Health Sciences Coordinator Beverly Prichard and she is now working on a survey to help get input from the community about the courses offered at the South Facility.
Bustamante understands the importance of the role the BEDC plays in the business community. According to Bustamante there are a lot of business that owe their success to the BEDC. "They (the business owners) know how to plan it out. They didn't just jump into something. They knew their business started off on the right foot," she said.

"After three years a certain percentage won't be in business anymore. So that's what the BEDC was designed made for—to help business people design their plan so that after two or three years they're still in business," she said.

Working with the BEDC has taught Bustamante the importance of planning and of having realistic expectations about starting a business.
"The first thing I would do is put my idea on a scale and weigh the odds of this working out. You have to be realistic because starting a business involves serious money," she said.

Bustamante points to two unusual, women-owned business, an emu ranch and a private nursing home facility for elderly patients, that have done well with the help of the BEDC.

Working at a job that never become routine appeals to Bustamante. "Everything's a challenge," she said. And, she is excited about the growing interest in the services offered at the South Facility.

"We're busy," she said. "Whether it is GED classes, or English as a Second Language, or the BEDC or Need to Read or Continuing Education, there's a lot of things going on."

Bustamante said she wants the community to know about the South Facility "I think we need to tell the community we're here. We want to know what people need because we want to help."

ENFOQUE A LA SALUD

Joseph Garcia-Prats, M.D. - Baylor College of Medicine in Houston

Oportunidad educativa para miembros de grupos minoritarios

HOUSTON-Estudiantes universitarios de grupos minoritarios que se interesan en la carrera de medicina pueden hacer aplicación para el "Honors Pre-Medical Academy," un programa de verano de seis semanas de duración en el Baylor College of Medicine y la Universidad de Rice, ambos en Houston.

El programa nacional, subvencionado en parte por el Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, tiene el propósito de aumentar la representación minoritaria en la medicina al realizar las calificaciones de los participantes para competir en la entrada a la escuela médica.

Los participantes tienen que ser Africanos-Americanos, Mejicanos-Americanos, Puerto Riqueños del continente o miembros de pueblos indigenos americanos.

Los participantes trabajan con médicos y toman clases de ciencias y comunicaciones en Rice.

Para recibir información adicional, se puede llamar al 1 800-633-6445.

Viejeros especiales" deben planear de antemano

HOUSTON—Las personas con problemas de salud especiale deben de tomar precauciones cuando viajan al extranjero.

El Dr. James Runnels del Servicio de Medicina de Viajeros del Baylor College of Medicine en Houston dice que un viajero especial debe:

*Hablar con un médico antes de planear un viaje.
*Obtener los nombres de médicos en las ciudades a las cuales va a viajar.
*Llevar una carta de su médico explicando la necesidad de las medicinas o el equipo médico que el viajero tendrá consigo en el viaje.
*Llevar una cantidad amplia de las medicina necesarias y copias de recetas.
*Usar un collar o una pulsera de alerta médica o llevar una tarjeta en la billetera que explique las condiciones médicas y las alergias.

Nueva prueba para dolor muscular

HOUSTON—Una prueba diagnostica nueva puede localizar más precisamente la fuente de dolor muscular.

La electromiografia superficial muestra detalles más finos de la actividad muscular que frecuentemente no se ven con radiografia, dijo el Dr. H. Martin Blacker del Baylor College of Medicine en Houston.

El EMG superficial rnide los impulsos eléctricos durante las contracciones musculares. Se usa en personas con espasmos musculares y dolor de la espalda crónico, y en pacientes que han sufrido un derrame cerebral.

"Con un 'cuadro' mejor de la función muscular, podemos determinar el tratamiento que pueda activar el músculo," dijo Blacker.

Durante el examen el paciente lleva un transmisor liviano y una batería alrededor de la cintura.

Nivel de education afecta el riesgo a enerades cronicas entre grupos minoritarios

Hoy en día, las enfermedades más peligrosas y fatales en este país son las enfermedades crónicas, tales como el cancer, enfermedades del corazon, e infartos — y la mayoría de sus victimas vienen de grupos minoritarios. Sin embargo, un nuevo reporte indica que la razon por la cual minorías caen victimas no esta basada en la etnicidad de la persona, sino en su nivel de educación.

"Enfermedades Crónicas Entre Poblaciones Minoritarias," es el nombre del reporte publicado por los Centros para la Prevención y el Control de Enfermedades (CDC — sigla en inglés, una agencia dentro del Departamento Federal de Salud y SeNicios Humanos). Este reporte general es el primero, al nivel nacional, en estudiar información demógrafica e información de salud relacionada a enfermedades crónicas encontradas en Afro-Americanos, Indios Nativos, Asiáticos, e Hispanos. La amplitud de este estudio incluye información de 47 estados y el Distrito de Columbia (la capital). Estudios similares conducidos anteriormente tenían un número limitado de grupos étnicos y solamente fueron conducidos en ciertas regiones. Este no solamente comparó grupos étnicos a la población en general, sino también los comparó entre ellos mismos — - asi ofreciendo una comparasión más amplia sobre el estado de salud de estos grupos. El estudio encontro que:

* A través de todas las razas y grupos étnicos estudiados, las muertes resultadas de enfermedades crónicas son más común entre personas que fuman cigarros, son inactivos ffsicamente, o que estan sobrepeso. Incidentalmente, estos factores de riesgo se encuentran más entre personas que no terminaron la secundaria.
* Para ambos hombres y mujeres, Indios Nativos fuman más mientras Asiáticos fuman menos.
* Afro-Americanos e Hispanos reportan tener una vida más sedentaria (incactiva físicamente) que otros grupos. Incluso, una diferencia del 10 por ciento.

"Lo positivo de un estudio como este," dijo el Director de los Centros, David Satcher, M.D., "es que ahora se sabe que personas no tienen un destino con enfermedades nadamás porque son parte de un grupo étnico que sufre de ellas. Sino ahora, esas personas pueden educarse a como mejor protegerse contra ciertas enfermedades y pueden vivir una vida más saludable. "

"Estoy cansado de escuchar a los grupos minoritarios que se quejan de que los anglo-americanos son racistas y de que los grupos minoritarios merecen una tajada mayor del pastel".

"La queja más reciente trata de las selecciones del Presidente Clinton para cubrir las plazas del sub-gabinete. Me gustaría dejar este pensamiento con todas las minorías que se quejan. Sólo imagínense que cuando se despiertan en la mañana no quedan anglos en los Estados Unidos. ¿Quién sería responsable de gobernar al país? ¿Quién tendría la responsabilidad de promulgar las leyes? "¿Pueden confiar los méxicoamericanos en los afroamericanos para que gobiernen al país? Yo digo que no.

"¿Pueden los afroamericanos confiar en los méxicoamericanos? Yo digo que no.

"¿Pueden los puertorriqueños, cubano-americanos y asiáticos-americanos confiar en cualquiera de los demás grupos? Yo digo que no.

"La guerra en los Estados Unidos haría que la guerra de Yugoeslavia luciera como un día de campo en el verano.

"Miremos al lado brillante. Si no fuera por los anglos, todos estos distintos grupos étnicos se matarían unos a otros".

¿Les sorprende? A mí no.

Creo que lo que más molesta a los anglos es que ya no pueden hacer más unilateralmente todas las cosas que solían hacer. Otros grupos están clamando por el cambio y tomando los asuntos en sus propias manos.

¿Y es por esto que me odian los lectores anglos?

¿Y es por ésto que se me pone en aprietos cada vez que escribo algo? ¿Y que se me tilda de racista?

¿Y es por esto que se me dice "regresa al lugar de donde viniste"¿

Eso sería un truco bueno. He vivido en El Paso toda mi vida. Soy de aquí.

Hay todavía demasiados latinos en los Estados Unidos a quienes no se les ha permitido compartir los beneficios de nuestra sociedad. Aquí, en el lado estadounidense de la frontera, demasiados de nuestros jóvenes no saben aún de dónde vinieron, quiénes son, ni qué derechos tienen.

Se ven a ellos mismos como ciudadanos de segunda clase porque se les ha dicho durante todas sus vidas que lo son. Se les ha enseñado a no aspirar a nada.

Si nosotros, como chicanos, hemos prosperado, ha sido primordialmente a través de nuestra propia ingenuidad no yanqui. Si hemos tenido éxito, se debe a que retamos al sistema y exigimos el cambio.

Yo debería de poder decir eso sin que se me tildara de racista.

Los anglos inventaron la frase que dice: "Algunos de mis mejores amigos son. . ."

La verdad es que conozco a algunos anglos cuyo mejor amigo soy yo. Hay algunos a los que considero ser mis mejores amigos también. Estamos tan próximos como los frijoles y el arroz blanco. Ni modo.

Sin Fin.

dos o tres veces mayores que las percibidas por sus colegas monolingues.

Otro amigo me dijo que su hijo y su hija habían obtenido ambos empleos en la enseñanza porque eran bilingues. El distrito escolar reclutaba solamente a maestros que tuvieran dominio idiomático. Las escuelas necesitan de maestros que puedan relacionarse con la composición diversa de los estudiantes actuales.

Otro aspecto beneficioso que se pasa por alto a menudo al aprender un idioma es el conocimiento y la comprensión que se ganan sobre la cultura de una nación. Muchos de mis amigos de la niñez eran de ancestro japonés. Pero no fué sino hasta que me inscribí en una clase de idioma japonés que empecé a apreciar la cultura de un pueblo al que he estimado y admirado durante mucho tiempo.

Incidentalmente, al contrario de la creencia popular, es mucho más fácil para los estudiantes que hablan español el dominar al japonés, que lo que resulta para ellos el aprender el inglés.

El idioma, como la música, el arte y la literatura, no tiene fronteras nacionales formales. Nos pertenece a todos. Una vez que dominemos un idioma, incluyendo al propio, perdemos las ataduras de la ignorancia que nos atan y nos separan.

Me maravillo de la cantidad de personas de otros países que, al ser entrevistadas en la televisión de los Estados Unidos, responden en inglés impecable. Compárese a eso con tantos diplomáticos estadounidenses cuya eficacia queda disminuída porque no hablan el idioma del país anfitrión.

A medida que nos aproximamos al año 2,000 y que nuestro planeta continúa encogiéndose, llega a ser cada vez más aparente que gran parte de nuestro bienestar futuro quedará determinado por fuerzas mundiales externas. Nuestros jóvenes deben estar preparados, no sólo para ganarse la vida, sino para aportar a la promoción de una mayor comprensión entre las personas y las naciones.

Los latinos, asiáticos y otros estudiantes que no están aprovechándose de una oportunidad disponible para aprender el idioma que se habla en sus hogares, están cometiendo un gran error. Siento pena por la joven y los estudiantes como ella, que desdeñan el aprendizaje de un segundo idioma. Ellos van a tener que funcionar y competir, no sólo en los Estados Unidos, sino en el mundo en su conjunto.

Necesitan prepararse a ellos mismos.

As we move closer to the year 2000 and our planet continues to shrink, it becomes increasingly apparent that much of our well-being will be determined by extrinsic world forces. Our young people must be prepared not merely to earn a living, but to contribute to the promotion of greater understanding among people and nations.

Latinos, Asians and other students who are not taking advantage of a ready-made opportunity to learn the language spoken in their homes are making a big mistake. I feel sorry for the young lady and students like her who shun learning a second language. They are going to have to function and compete not just in the United States, but in the world at large.

They need to prepare themselves.
